kujaa nk^havu 'dry food'

kuwaa nk^havu 'to become dry'

Nguwo/ zivelee nk^havu. 'The clothes became dry.'

Ziweloo nk^havú/ nii nguwo. 'What became dry are the clothes.'

malungo makavu ‘dry body’ mandraa nk^havu ‘dry bread; just bread and nothing else to accompany it’ Hasani/ mp^heele/ mi/ mandraa nk^havu. ‘Hasani gave me just bread and nothing else.’
manyi makavu ‘dry grass’
Mi/ hupowa makooko/ makavu/ bilaa shtowelo. ‘I am given the hard crust of the rice, dry, without relish.’
Mukhta igozi/ iwelo ikavú/ Abunawaasi/ chi’itukula/ choloka naayo/ maduriini. ‘When the skin dried, Abunawaasi carried it and went with it into the country.’
munt^hu mkavu ‘someone stingy’ Nguwo/ (nii) nk^havu. ‘The clothes are dry.’
nsii nk^havu ‘dried fish’ Nt^hi/ (nii) nk^havu. ‘The ground is dry.’
nt^hii nk^havu ‘dry land’ Nt^hunakuwona/ maduuri/ jisaa yo/ makavú. ‘Don’t you see how dry the forest is?’
qalbi ichiwa nk^havu ndruuza khatari [st.] ‘if (your) heart is dry, my brothers, [that is] dangerous’ qalbi ichiwa nk^havu ndruuza khatari [st.] ‘if your heart is dry (i.e. lacking goodness), my brothers, that is dangerous’ Qalbiye/ nk^havu. ‘His heart is dry – i.e. lacks generosity, kindness, mercy.’
Shaatiye/ (nii) nk^havu. ‘His shirt is dry.’
skunyi skavu ‘dry firewood’ Wowi/ iwelee nk^havu. ‘The river dried up.’

wowi iyi/ iwelee nk^havu/ yana ‘this river was dry yesterday’ wowii nk^havu ‘a river that has dried up’

rel.

u-kavu n. 14 [Sw. ukavu SSED 180] dryness, drought kaw

ideo.

Hamadi/ mbishile Omari/ ka bastoola/ kaw!/ mub^hleele. ‘Hamadi shot Omari with a pistol kaw! and killed him.’
Hamadi/ m-bishile Omári/ kaw!/ fanyiizó/ m-ub^hleele. ‘Hamadi hit Omari kaw! that’s what he did and killed him.’
Mi/ t^hakhufanya kaw!/ t^hakhufaanyó. ‘Me, I am going to kaw! you (i.e. exterminate you), that’s what I am going to do.’
Mwizi/ mdurile Ali/ chisu/ cha miimba/ mub^hleele/ kaw! ‘The thief knifed Ali in the stomach and killed him, kaw!’ Ye/ mtetee mbuzi/ mtiinzile/ kaw!/ bilaa ya khtiya/ w^halasile chinume/ awo wanakhtiyó/ kana/ waazi. ‘He took the goat and slaughtered it without fear and left behind those who wear afraid with open mouth.’

kaawo

at or to their (place); for them

Ali/ simeme w^hwavuuni/ kaawo. ‘Ali stood at their side.’
Basi/ chilawa/ ka kaawo/ shfunga safari. ‘So he came out from home and set out on a journey.’
Chimaliza/ wachiruda kaawo. ‘When it was over [e.g. the hunting], they returned home.’
Kaawo/ nt^haku/ isho khfaanyika. ‘For them there is nothing that can’t be done.’
Mwaana/ chilawa/ kuruda kaawo. ‘The boy left to return to his home.’
Nsi/ shfunga kanaye/ chimtukula/ Huseeni/ mpaka/ kaawo. ‘The fish shut its mouth and carried Huseeni until his home.’
Wo/ ni waaðehe/ kaawo/ tarafu yaa wo/ wanakhsuuló. ‘They are clear about what they want.’

rel.

sh-kaawo adv. in their way, manner

kh-kawuka

v. [Sw. kauka SSED 179] (-kawushile) be, get dry (e.g. of a stream, a spring) (This word is from Mohammad Imam. Gelani Mohamed instead uses the verb –kamuka, particularly with reference to rain stopping.)

Wowi/ ikawushile. ‘The river has dried up.’

rel.

kh-kawula v. tr. dry s.t.

kh-kawusha v. caus. dry s.t.

kaayi

adv. safely

khfaanya kaayi ‘to preserve jealously, carefully’ kuweka kaayi ‘to keep safely’

Abú/ ni lilaahiye/ tarafu ya kuweka kaayi/ peesa. ‘Abu is serious about saving money.’

kuwekela kaayi ‘to keep safely for’

Lurma laa shaba/ nla naani/ laa mi/ mbekelela kaayi. ‘That copper bracelet belongs to whom, the one that for me has been put away safely?’ (A proverb.)

Ndiwe kanzi ya kaay na mpeendozo/ ni jidaari ya kulla imaani [SCB:112] ‘You are a treasure to be jealously preserved and love for you is the foundation of all faith.’

l-kaaza (n-)

n. 11/10 ceiling; [pron. of pl. nk^haaza]

kaazi

n. 9 [Sw. kazi SSED 181] work, job; affair

Chinzena kaaziye/ ya khsuuka. ‘She continued weaving [lit. her work of weaving].’

Chiwanapo kaazi/ simviilé. ‘If he is busy, don’t call him!’

chiwanayo kaazi ‘if he has a job (or is busy)’

Chiwanayopo kaazi/ simdhibé. ‘If he is busy (e.g. as I suspect he might be), don’t bother him!’

Hasiibu/ kaaziye/ iwelee kuja/ na kulaalá/ kulaala/ naa kujá. ‘Hasiibu’s job became to eat and to sleep, to sleep and to eat.’

Ifanyiza naawó/ ni kaazi. [H!H] ‘What was done by them is work.’

Kaazi/ ifanyiza na waant^hu. [H!H] ‘Work was done by people.’

Kaazi/ ifanyiza naawo. [H!H] ‘Work was done by them.’

kazi iyi ‘this work’

Kaazi/ ni kanzi/ maali/ nii ngazi. ‘Work is a treasure, wealth is a ladder.’ (A proverb.)

Kaazi/ wa’ifanyiize. [H!H] ‘Work they did it.’

kaaziya ‘my work’

Kaaziye/ ndiyó/ suurá. ‘It is his work that is good.’

Kaaziye/ siwo/ suura. ‘His work is not good (at all).’

khfanya kaazi ‘to do work’

Ba’ada ya ayaamu/ muḅli/ chimwambila mukeewe/ ya kuwaa ye/ nakendra kaziini/ kanza khfanya kaazi. ‘After a week, the man told his wife that he was going to go to work to begin working.’

khfanya kaazi/ kana mp^huundra ‘to work like a donkey -- said of person who works very hard and diligently when performing material tasks (e.g. cleaning, carrying stones, etc.)’

Kilaa muunt^hu/ laazimu/ khfanya kaazi/ khkasbaṭa ma’iinshaye. ‘Every one must work to earn his living.’

Mwaana/ chanza khfanya kaazi. ‘The boy began to do work.’

mont^hu haṭakhfanya kaazi ‘the man who won’t work’ (Cf. Muunt^hu/ haṭakhfaanya/ kaazi. ‘The man will not work.’)

Waant^hu/ wafanyiize kaazi. [H!H] ‘The people worked.’ (cf. Waant^hu/ wa’ifanyiize/ kaazi. [HH!H] ‘The people did the work.’) (The emphasized verb in this example was actually raised slightly above the initial PP. In our transcription, we use the sequence HH to refer to the absence of either a clear declination or downstep, where the second H maybe slightly higher in pitch than the first, but lacking the marker raising associated with the symbol [†].)

khfanyowa kaazi ‘work to be done’

Kaazi/ ifanyiza na waant^hu. ‘The work was done by the people.’

Khkorsha miimba/ siwo kaazi/ kaazi/ ni khkorsha mwaana. ‘To raise a pregnancy is not work, work is to raise a child.’ (A proverb.)

kh^tomola kaziini ‘to fire from job’; also: kh^tomolowa kaziini

Omari/ tome^la kaziini/ ka khisa/ huragaraaga. ‘Omari was fired from work because he always delays delays.’

kh^tila waant^hu/ kaziini ‘to make people busy’

Mwiini/ ifungila warshada/ ya zilaatu/ mp^hiya/ waant^hu/ wiingi/ wabila kaziini. ‘In Miini a new shoe factory has opened, many people are being put to work.’

koloka kaziini/ ka gaari ‘to go to work by car’ kolokela gaari/ kaziini ‘to use a car to go to work’

Nuzile gaari/ kolokela kaziini. ‘I bought a car to go to work in.’

Mfanya kaazi/ tome^la/ kaziini. ‘The worker was fired from his job.’

Mi/ siisi/ kaazi/ ila/ khfanyaa dawa/ tu. ‘I do not know how to do any work, except just to administer medicine.’

mwenye kaazi ‘one who is busy’

We/ ni muunt^hu/ mwenye kaazi. ‘You are a busy man.’

Na’iwa kazi gani. ‘What kind of work do you know [how to do]?’

Nakendra kaziini. ‘He is going to work, to his job.’

Ni fayda dara/ Faatima/ khfanya ruuhuye/ chiza kiiwa/ kaazi/ za mu^hliwe. ‘It is useless for Faatima to pretend not to know about her husband’s affairs.’

Wa’ifanyize kaazi. ‘They did work.’

Waana/ nt^h awakhpata/ kaazi. ‘The children did not get jobs/ work.’

rel.

m-fanyakaazi (wa-) n. 1/2 worker

Mfanyakaazi/ tome^la/ kaziini. ‘The worker was fired from his job.’

sh-kaazi (s-) n. 7/8 job

kaazi

n. food given to the poor at the end of the mourning period, after which people can return to work khfanya kaazi ‘to celebrate, perform the ceremony that marks the end of the mourning period’ chi-ke

mapambo yaa chike ‘female adornments’

mu-ke (wa-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mke SSED 284, mkwe SSED 289] woman, wife

Chendra ka oyo muke mpiya/ muke chihaba/ chimaambila/ nakhsuulani. ‘Then he went to the new wife, the younger wife, and said to her, what do you want?’

Chimatala mukeewe/ ka sh^tana/ ndretela maayi. ‘He took his wife and angrily (said) bring me some water.’

Chiwaa ye/ nakhsu^laa muke/ mi/ nii muké/ laakini/ chiwaa ye/ nakhsu^la muke wa masku mamooyi/ masharmuuta/ wayeele/ telle/ muyiini. ‘If he wants a wife, I am a woman, but if he wants a woman for one evening, prostitutes fill in abundance the town.’

Haaji/ meenzawe/ hufanya kaazi/ nt^ho. ‘Haaji’s friend works very hard.’

Huko^oa kamaa muke. ‘He talks like a woman.’

Isa/ wake/ awa/ walwaawo/ wafiile. ‘Now both of these women have died.’

Laakini/ wake/ awo/ skuwaweeka/ numba mooyi. ‘But those wives I did not put them in a single house.’

mp^hundraa muke ‘a she-donkey’

Muke oyo/ waaliko/ ni Safiya/ maamaye. ‘That woman was Safiya’s mother.’

muke/ sho kuzaala ‘a barren woman (lit. a woman without giving birth)’ muke/ sho mwaana ‘a barren woman (lit. a woman without child)’

Muke wa mwana wa Nuuru/ pishilee nama. ‘The wife of the son of Nuuru cooked meat.’ Or: Muke/ wa mwana wa Nuuru/ pishilee nama. Or: Muke wa mwaana/ wa Nuuru/ pishilee nama. (Our consultant GM was not comfortable with a more highly articulated phrasing like ??Muke/ wa mwaana/ wa Nuuru/ pishilee nama.)

Muke wa Nuuru/ mwaanawe/ pishilee nama. ‘The wife of Nuuru’s son cooked meat.’

Nuuru/ mwaanawe/ mukeewe/ pishilee nama. ‘Nuuru’s son’s wife cooked meat.’

Oyoo muke/ chiiza. ‘That woman refused.’

Tuma mukeewa ‘Tuma my wife (not some other Tuuma) vs. Tuuma/ mukeewa ‘Tuuma, my wife’

Naani/ iló. ‘Who came?’ This could be answered by Tuuma/ mukeewa. ‘My wife Tuuma.’

Tuma gani/ iló. ‘Which Tuuma came?’ This could be answered by Tuma mukeewa/ iló. ‘It is Tuuma my wife who came.’

Wabli/ leelo/ hawapeendi/ waka majaanili. ‘Men today do not like ignorant women.’

Wake wa M(w)iini/ hawafurahili/ kiskatila ka zote/ ilu ya wabli. ‘Women of Mwiini do not enjoy depending on their husbands for everything.’

Wake/ watuziza ruuhu. ‘The women were comforted in spirit.’

rel.

chi-ji-ke (zi-ji-) n. 7/8 dim. little woman or wife

Chijike ichije/ ni chiovu. ‘That little woman is bad or naïve.’

chi-ke n. 7 in a feminine manner; pertaining to the female gender jawabu zaa chike ‘female issues’

koói zaa chike ‘female talk’

Hukodaa chike. ‘He talks like a woman.’

mapambo yaa chike ‘female adornments’

i-ji-ke (mi-ji-) n. 5/4 aug

mu-ke adj. female

Ye/ wanayo ngombee muke. ‘He had a cow.’

wu-ke n. 14 womanhood, wifehood

m-ke (wa-)

n. [Sw. mkwe] in-law

Ba’adi ya haruusi/ kumala/ Fikiriini/ chimera rukhsa/ ka mkeewe/ sulṭaani/ kumṭukula mukeewe/ kendra naayé/ kaawo/ ka waawaye. ‘After the wedding was over, Fikiriini sought permission from his in-law, the sultan, to take his wife with him to their place at his father’s.’

Laakini/ uje mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ uzila ka majini/ chihada/ si/ ka dasturi yiitu/ mwanaamke/ shpelekoowa/ karkaa nṭhi/ za wakeewe/ ni laazimu/ ye/ ka muda wa sku nṭhaano/ khkalaanṭha/ ka wawaye mubli/ khablaa ye/ keendra/ ka mubliwe. ‘But that daughter of the sultan who was bought from jinns said: we, it is our custom, that if a girl is sent away to the lands of his in-laws, it is a must that she for a period of five days sit with the father of her husband before she goes to her husband.’

Mkeewe/ chimpa/ rukhsa/ ye/ kumṭukula mukeewe. ‘His in-law gave him permission for him to take his wife [with him].’

Mwanaamke/ uyu/ shkalanṭha ka mkeewe. ‘This girl stayed at her in-laws place.’

m-kebe (mi-)

n. [Sw. mkebe “pot, can, canister, mug (for drinking and other purposes), a cigarette case” SSED 284] gloss///long vowel in root?

Mkebe oyo/ mbwiinu. ‘That pot is ours.’ (Cf. Mikebe ayo/ ndiinu. ‘Those pots are ours.’) check gloss

kefu

adv. [Sw. kefu “much less, much more, not to mention” SSED 182; Ar. source given in SSED is qafan “back or reverse of s.t.” W 782] much less, much more, not to mention, let alone

Chiwa mwaalimu/ nṭhakhtaambula/ kefu/ we. ‘If the teacher could not understand, much less could you’ kefu binaadamu asliye neefu [st.] ‘what about human beings (then, who are only) in origin breath’

l-kele (n-)

n. 11/10 [cf. ukelele SSED 182] shout; noise; [pron: nk^hele ‘shouts’]

- ka lkele ‘loudly’
Chibiga teena/ hoodi/ ka lkele. ‘He asked again, loudly, for permission to enter.’
Dafa/ chihada ka lkele/ kumkasisha bakayle. ‘The kite spoke loudly so as to make the rabbit hear.’
Ka lkele/ Muusa/ koðeeló. ‘Muusa spoke loudly.’
- kaa nk^hele ‘with shouts, loudly’
Majini/ wanamraasha/ kaa nk^hele. ‘The djinns were following him, shouting, making a lot of noise.’
Shkalanth^a nt^hini yaa muti/ nakuḷa kaa nk^hele. ‘He sat under the tree crying loudly.’
- khfanya nk^hele ‘to make noise’
Faatima/ mwambile Nuuru/ sfaanyé/ nk^hele/ waana/ waleeló. ‘Faatima told Nuuru: dont make noise, the children are asleep.’
Hasani/ siwo/ munt^hu msuura/ jawaabu/ chihaba/ hufanyaa nk^hele/ na rabsha. ‘Hasani is not a good person, he shouts and makes disturbances over a small thing.’
Sfaanyeni/ nk^hele. ‘You (pl.) don’t make noise!’
- khtila lkele ‘to cause problems, difficulties, arguments etc.’
Stilé/ lkele. ‘Don’t cause problems, etc.!’
- kubiga lkele ‘to shout (e.g. in calling someone)’; also: kubigila lkele ‘to shout at, for’
Omari/ mbigilile Haliima/ lkele/ khfungula mnaango. ‘Omari shouted at Haliima to open the door.’
- kubigaa nk^hele ‘to scold, shout’; also: kubigilaa nk^hele ‘to shout at’
Ba’ada/ ya ma’askari/ koondroka/ kiyolokela muyiini/ Abunawaasi/ chanza kubigaa nk^hele. ‘After the soldiers had left to go to town, Abunawaasi began to shout.’
Chibigaa nk^hele/ chimviila. ‘He shouted and called to him.’
Faatima/ mbigilile muḷiwe/ nk^hele/ kuuya. ‘Faatima shouted for her husband to come.’
Faatima/ mbigilile nk^hele/ muḷiwe. ‘Faatima shouted for her husband.’
Faatima/ bishilee nk^hele/ khsaydoowa. ‘Faatima shouted for help.’
Hamadi/ bishilee nk^hele/ Haliima/ kuwa laazimu/ khsimika/ yaa ye/ nakhfaanyó. ‘Hamadi shouted that Haliima should stop what she was doing.’
- kubigaa nk^hele/ kanaa mba ‘to shout (bark) like a dog’
Mbwa chibigoo nk^helé/ ingile numbaani. ‘The dog that was barking entered the house.’
Mi/ mbishilee nk^helé/ jisa Omari/ kunk^hasa. ‘I shouted so that Omari would hear me.’
Mi/ nimbigilile Omari/ nk^helé/ kuwaa mí/ siná/ wakhti/ kumsaayda. ‘I shouted at Omari that I had no time to help him.’
Mi/ nimbigilile Omari/ nk^helé/ ye/ fakeetó. ‘I shouted at Omari as he ran away.’
Waank^hulo/ hubigaa nk^hele/ chinalapó. ‘Grandfather shouts when he urinates.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is nvula ‘rain’.)
- lkele lkulu ‘a big noise’; nk^hele nk^hulu ‘big noises’
Maama/ na mwaaná/ wachingilaa kuḷa/ nt^hi/ nzimaye/ nk^hele. ‘The mother and the boy went on crying, the whole place was just wailing.’
- munt^hu waa nk^hele ‘a man who habitually makes a lot of noise’
Nk^hele ziinu/ zizidiile/ nt^ho. ‘Your (pl.) noise is very loud.’
Ye/ ni munt^hu mwenyee nk^hele. ‘He shouts a lot – [lit.] he is a man having shouts.’
- rel.
i-kele (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. noise
Mikele/ haytorati chiint^hu. ‘Loud noises are not able to achieve anything.’

- (A proverb.)
sh-kele (s-) n. 7/8 dim. noise kubiga shkele 'to make a (dim.) noise' Mwaana/ bishile shkele. 'The child made a small noise.'
- kh-kemela* v. [Sw. kemea SSED 183] (kemeleele) scold, chide, rebuke, punish Ali/ ha'isi/ khkemela waana/ huwapoteza. 'Ali does not know how to scold children, he spoils them.'
ka kibri maana humkemela mzele [st.] 'with arrogance a child rebukes an old man'
rel.
kh-kemeloowa v. pass.
Waana/ wachigafa/ husula khkemeloowa. 'If children make a mistake, it is needed for them to be scolded.'
kh-kemeleka v. p/s.
Ha'ambiliki/ chiint^hu/ hakemeleki/ wala/ habaramishiki. 'She cannot be told anything, she cannot be rebuked nor talked to.'
Wana wa Ali/ hawakemeleki/ ba/ paapo/ hula. 'Ali's children cannot be scolded, they immediately cry.'
kh-kemelela v. appl. (kemeleele)
rel. nom.
ma-kemelo n. 6
- keendra* adj. [Sw. kenda SSED 183] nine ikumi na keendra 'nineteen'
Kheeri/ keendra/ kolko ikumi/ endra/ ruuda. 'Better nine than ten (if it means) go and come back (to get the tenth).' (A proverb.)
Laakini/ ipepo ya bardi/ yishkilile ilu yaawo/ kaa nguvu/ na idumiile/ sku keendra. 'But a cold wind descended on them with force and it lasted nine days.'
Ni keendra/ tu. 'They are only nine.'
Waant^hu/ waleele/ ndraani/ ya ituundru/ miyaaka/ miyaa nt^hatu/ na keendra. 'The people slept inside the cave for three hundred and nine years.'
- n-kengele* n. 9/10 [Sw. kengele SSED 183] bell; [pron. nk^hengele] kubiga nk^hengele 'to ring bells'
- Keenya* n. Kenya
Mi/ mbaliko Keenya/ khariibu. 'I have been to Kenya recently.' Or:
Keenya/ mbaalikó/ khariibu.
waant^hu wa'enzele Keenya walašile watani [nt.] '[some] people have gone to Kenya, have left the country'
rel.
m-keenya (wa-) n. 1/2 a Kenyan
- kereema* n. cream, lotion
Pasile kereema/ so. 'You put lotion on, didn't you? did you put lotion on (I see that your face is shiny)?'
- kh-keesha* v. [Sw. kasha SSED 183] (kesheeze) stay up all night Keesha. 'Stay up all night!' (Cf. Keshaani. '(Pl.) stay up all night.'
Kesha masku. 'Stay up all night!'
Khkesha kaawo/ nt^hayimpeendeza/ wawa yaawo/ haťa/ skumó. 'Their staying up all night never pleased their fathers, not even once.'
Khkeeshake/ na waana/ imkirihishize waawaye. 'His staying up with the children irritated his father.'
khkesha maato 'to lie in bed with one's eyes open' Kesheze maato/ masku/ mazimaye. 'He lay awake the whole night (i.e. he could not sleep).’

Nk^hesheze naayé. ‘I stayed up all night with him.’ Cf. Nkesheze naayé. ‘You stayed up all night with him.’

Skesheeni/ masku. ‘(Pl.) don’t stay up all night!’

Uweesu/ kesheeze. ‘Uweesu stayed up all night.’

rel.

kh-keesheka v. p/s. able to stay up all night

Apa/ haykeesheki/ ka khisa wako waana. ‘It is not possible to stay up all night here because there are children here.’

kh-keshenzeza v. appl. stay up all night by means of, for, on (i.e. to someone’s detriment)’

Mwaana/ nk^heshenzeze. ‘The child stayed up all night on me.’

Uzile khaati/ khkeshenzeza. ‘He bought khaati to use to stay up all night.’

kh-keshenezanya v. appl. rec. stay up all night for one another kh-keeshesha v. caus. keep s.o. awake all night

Mwana uje/ nk^heshesheeze/ hattá/ fijiri. ‘That child kept me awake until morning.’

Saalimu/ mkeshesheze mwaana. ‘Saalimu kept the child awake all night.’

kh-kesheshan(y)a v. caus. rec.

Waana/ wakeshesheenyé. ‘The children kept one another awake all night.’

kh-kesheshezeza v. caus. appl.

Nureeni/ mkeshenzeze Suufi/ mwaana. ‘Nureeni kept Suufi’s child awake all night.’

kh-kesheshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Omari/ na Hasani/ wakesheshezenye waana. ‘Omari and Hasani kept one another’s children awake all night.’

kh-keshoowa v. pass.

Keesho/ itakhkeshoowa. ‘Tomorrow everyone will stay awake all night.’

rel. nom.

m-keesha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who stays up all night

sh-keesha (s-) n. dim. 7/8

Chijana ichi/ ni shkesha masku. ‘This small child is the one who stays overnight.’

keesho

n. and adv. [Sw. kesho SSED 184] tomorrow

Arabiya/ ni keesho/ tu. ‘Wednesday is just tomorrow.’

Ba’adiye/ m’wanaamke/ oyo/ chim’waambila/ nk^hasiüzé/ jawaabuzo/ laakini/nt^hakhujiba keesho. ‘After that, that girl said to him: I have heard your words, but I will answer you tomorrow.’

Haaji/ takuuya/ keesho. ‘Haaji will come tomorrow.’ (Cf. the simple yes-no question: Haaji/ takuuya/ keeshó?)

Keesho/ chiza kuuya/ nt^hakhtaala/ riyaali/ iyo/ naa chitá/ nt^hakichija.

‘Tomorrow, if he doesn’t come (back for the cow’s head that he purchased), I will take that riyaali and the head and I will eat it.’ (Observe how the ku prefix found in the future tense is converted to ki in front of the [cl.7] object prefix chi.)

Keesho/ mi/ takuuya/ ka baçera. ‘I will arrive tomorrow by boat.’ (In GM’s speech, the first person singular subject marker n- elides in front of the future tense marker ta instead of forming a voiceless prenasalized stop as in MI’s speech. GM regularly fails also to write the n in this context.)

Keesho/ si/ shtakuruda Nayroobi. ‘Tomorrow, we will return to Nairobi.’

Masku/ ya keesho/ ni sku yaa sabá/ cheendra/ masku ayo/ chilala maduriini. ‘The night of (i.e. before) tomorrow, which was the seventh day, he went that night and he slept in the country.’

Muja leelo/ keesho/ haaji. ‘The one who eats today does not eat tomorrow.’ (A proverb.)

Muusa/ nakhtosha/ kuwa maana/ takhpita/ imtihaani/ keesho. ‘Muusa thinks that the child will pass the examination tomorrow.’ (This example is just one of many that illustrate that the prosodic separation of the verb from its complement may be stylistic in nature and not have a significant focus aspect.)

Mukeewa/ Barka/ nakuya keesho. ‘My wife Barka is coming tomorrow.’ Or:

Mukeewa/ Barka/ keesho/ nakuuyó. ‘My wife Barka tomorrow is coming.’

(Ni) keesho/ Muusa/ taakuyó. ‘(It is) tomorrow (that) Muusa will come.’

Nnakendra keeshó. ‘I am going tomorrow.’ Or: Nnakeendrá/ keesho. ‘I am going tomorrow.’

Oloka/ keesho. ‘Go tomorrow!’

Siliwalé/ kuleta chibuuku/ keesho. ‘Do not forget to bring the book tomorrow.’

Siliwale kuleta chibuukú/ tu/ keesho. ‘Just don’t forget to bring the book tomorrow [I am afraid you might forget, so I am emphasizing that you must not forget].’ (Observe that in this case was the negative imperative verb is incorporated into a phrase with its complement, the phrase does not expand to include tu or keesho.)

Tamona keesho/ mukeewa/ Barka. ‘I will see tomorrow my wife Barka.’ Or:

Mukeewa/ Barka/ keesho/ tamonó. ‘My wife Barka I will see tomorrow.’

(The subject is ambiguous, since in GM’s speech the first person singular subject marker n(i) is usually elided in the future tense, those merging the form with a second person singular subject and a [cl.1] subject. The verb form ‘I will see her’ is pronounced tamona in isolation. Notice that the ku prefix, which is ordinarily present in the future tense, is missing in front of a [cl.1] object marker, here realized as m. Note furthermore, in GM’s speech, the initial w of the verb stem /wona/ ‘see’ elides after the consonant m. It is worth mentioning that the future prefix ta ordinarily has a long vowel when followed by a CVCV structure, as in taakuya ‘she is coming’. There is no such lengthening in tamona. Apparently even though superficially -mona is CVCV, its more complex origin prevents lengthening of ta.)

Uko leeló/ keesho/ nt^haako. ‘What is here today tomorrow is not here.’

Ye/ takhpata mukeewe/ keesho. ‘He will get his wife tomorrow.’

keesi

n. [Sw. kesi SSED 184; Eng. case] case at law, lawsuit

khkasa keesi

Leelo/ chinakendra mahkamaani/ khkasa kesi ya Nuurú/ nakuda’awaṭoowá. ‘Today we are going to the court to hear the case that Nuuru has brought.’

khṭinda keesi ‘to make a decision, judgement’

m-keezi (wa-)

n. 1/2 someone who spends the day at someone’s place (in the same town)

Fikiriini/ takuya mkeezi/ kiitu/ keesho. ‘Fikiriini will come as a visitor at our place tomorrow.’

kha’iima

n. 9/10 list (of names, items)

kha’iini (ma-)

adj. deceitful; n. traitor, deceiver, cheater

Kha’iini/ haliwaani. ‘A deceiver, cheater does not prosper/ gain success.’ (A proverb that warns against cheating.)

kha’ini uje ‘that traitor’

Muunt^hu/ hingilo siyaasá/ huwa khaa’ini. ‘Men who enter politics become corrupt.’

munt^hu kha’iini ‘a deceitful person’ kha’insata

v. cheat

rel.

kha’insatana v. rec. cheat one another

Waant^hu/ wachiwa amiini/ hushikilana zoombo/ ka lilaahi/ hawakha’insatani. ‘If people are trustworthy they hold for each other things (i.e. they keep things for one another), they don’t cheat each other.’

n. 10 [Sw. habari SSED 121] news; matters; situation

Basi/ mwana uyu/ choloka ka chizeele/ chimooyi/ chimweleza khabarize. ‘So this child went to an old woman and explained to her his situation.’

Isa/ basi/ mp^ha khabari zotte. ‘Now, then, give me all the news.’

Isa/ nambila khabari za badiikhi. ‘Now, tell me about the melons.’

Khabari? ‘What’s your news?’ (A greeting, the reply to which is Amaani. ‘Peace (i.e. everything is fine).’)

Khabari/ izo/ paapo/ apo/ schikoma sul^taani. ‘Those pieces of news at once reached the sultan.’

khabari/ ka mukhtasari ‘the news in brief’

Khabari za mahala^a we/ iliiló. ‘What is the news from the place that you have come from?’

Khabari/ zichihuzunishiize. [H:H] ‘The news caused us to grieve.’

Khabari/ zimfurahishize Nuuru. ‘The news pleased Nuuru.’

khabari ziingine ‘other news’

Khabari/ zont^he/ chimwaambila. ‘All the news she told him.’ (In our data from MI, preposing the verb complement does not trigger a shift of the verb into pseudo-relative form. GM, on the other hand, may prepose complements without pseudo-relativizing the verb (like MI), but he also may shift the verb to pseudo-relative form. The latter is a case where the preposed complement is being focused.)

khpisa khabari ‘to pass news, i.e. report, inform’

Muunt^hu/ chisula kendra mahala/ ka waant^hu/ kana marti/ laazimu/ khpisa khabari/ mbele/ kiiwisha/ mahala yaa ye/ nakeendró. If one wants to go somewhere as guest, he should let that place know before hand.’

kh^tomola khabari ‘to report’

Nuuru/ ile hafisaani/ ka rasdent^e/ nakhtomola khabari/ za safariye/ Mkhodiisho. ‘Nuuru came to the District Commissioner’s office and is reporting about his trip to Mogadishu.’

kh^tomola khabari/ mbele ‘to say before hand’

Muunt^hu/ chisula kendra mahala/ ka waant^hu/ martihaani/ laazimu/ kh^tomola khabari/ mbele/ kiiwisha/ mahala yaa ye/ nakeendró. ‘If one wants to go somewhere as guest, he should let that place know before hand.’

Lete khabari. ‘(Lit.) bring news – how are things? any news?’

Maali/ bila daftari/ hubaha bila khabari. ‘Possessions without an accounting book get lost without information about them being preserved.’ (A proverb.)

Mi/ kanza leelo/ simó/ karka khabarize. ‘Beginning today, I am not involved in her affairs.’

Mi/ skuwaná/ khabari. ‘I did not know.’

Muke/ chimaliza kumuza khabari za kaazi... ‘After the woman asked him the news of work...’

Mwaana/ wenopo askari/ iwiile/ ya kuwa khabari/ zikomele sul^taani. ‘When the boy saw the soldiers, he knew that the news had reached the sultan.’

Nakuwona khabari. ‘I am seeing amazing things!’

Nazo khabari? ‘Do you know (what’s happening)? Do you have news?’

Ni khabari/ hufurahishó. ‘It is news that pleases.’

N^t^hakuwona khabari. ‘You will see things that will amaze you!’

Rudilopo suungurá/ siimba/ chimpa khabari/ spisiló/ zote. ‘When Rabbit returned, Lion reported to him all that had happened.’

Si/ chihuzunishiza na khabari. [H:H] ‘We were made to grieve by the news.’

Sku niingi/ skupata/ khabari zaawo. ‘For many days I did not get any news from them (lit. their news).’

Sultani waa noka/ chimuza Hasiibu/ khabarize. ‘The king of snakes asked Hasiibu his news (i.e. his explanation of the circumstances surrounding him).’

Wachiruda ka sultaani/ wachimpa khabari. ‘They returned to the sultan and gave him the news.’

rel.

mwa-ana khabari ‘newsman’

Wana khabari/ wamrashizo Niksoni/ wanakuhada ya kuwa... ‘The newsmen who are accompanying Nixon are saying that...’

Wana khabari/ wanakuhaḡa/ ya kuwa ra’iisi/ nakhifilaḡoowa/khfaanya/ mukaḡaba/ pamó/ na ba’adi/ yaa nt^{hi}/ zaa ye/ḡakuzuuro. ‘The newsmen say that the president is expected to make an agreement with some of the countries that he will visit.’

akhbaari n.pl. news (This plural form from Arabic may be used in Chimiini, but khabari is most commonly used; khabari may be singular or plural.)

akhbari za Baana ‘news of/from Baana’ (but more common: khabari za Baana)

Da’iimu/ hulangaḡa akhbaari/ humurugaḡila ‘I generally watch the news worrying.’ (Example from Mikael Mumin.)

khabari gani

[lit.] which news? (informal greeting at any time of day); the obligatory reply: amaani ‘peace’; only after this reply might the person indicate that actually he has had problems of any kind khabiiri

n, expert

khabiithi

adj. [Sw. habithi SSED 122] malevolent, cruel, evil; malignant (of cancer) sho khsala aasi faasiqi khabiithi/ chisuula sifaze sooma hadiithi [st.] ‘one who does not pray is disobediant, scandalous, evil; if you want (to know) his attributes, read the hadiithi’

khacha

ideo. (cf. Sw. kacha)

Laani/ laa muti/ ḡhileeló/ ḡpoḡele ilu yaa jasi/ khacha khacha!/ ḡweeló. ‘The branch of the tree, which was hanging over, fell on the roof khacha khacha! (that’s how) it became.’

Mwaana/ oyo/ poḡeze ḡarmuusi/ ivuunzile/ nzimaye/ khacha khacha! ‘That child dropped a thermos and destroyed it completely.’

Videyoye/ ivundishile/ khacha khacha!/ ba’adi ya ijuuniya/ yaa geḡe/ khpḡetela iluke. ‘His video was completely broken after the gunny sack of maize fell onto it.’

khada’a

v. [Sw. hadaa SSED 122] (khada’iile) cheat someone, deceive someone Boobo/ mkhada’ile mwaalimu. ‘Boobo cheated the teacher.’

Ichiwa muunt^{hu}/ mwaape/ nakhsula kunkhada’a/ ḡamwambila boliisi. ‘If someone tried to blackmail me I would tell the police.’

kumkhada’a ‘to cheat, deceive someone’

Nakhada’á. ‘I am cheating.’ (The general rule in Chimiini is that the infinitive prefix ku elides completely in front of a stem that begins with q or kh. We recorded the possible preservation of the infinitive in GM’s speech, but we have not determined how widespread this phenomenon is: Nakukhada’á.)

Omari/ humkhada’a Nureeni. ‘Omari cheats Nureeni.’

Omari/ mkali/ [ku]khada’a. ‘Omari is skilled, sharp, clever in cheating.’

Omari/ nakumkhada’a Nureeni. ‘Omari is cheating Nureeni.’

Shḡezeezé/ maḡezo ya haqi/ we/ isa/ teena/ nakuhada kuwaa mí/ nikhukhada’iilé. ‘We played a fair game of chance, and now you again are saying that I cheated you.’

Sultaani/ hakhaadiri/ kunfanya chiint^hu/ ka khisa/ mi/ kiḷa/ mara/ hukhaadira/ kumkhada'a. 'The sultan cannot do anything to me since each time I am able to deceive him.'

rel.

khada'akhada'a v. freq. (khada'ilekhada'iile)

We/ nkhada'akhada'iilé. 'You cheated me (repeatedly).'

khada'ana v. rec. (-khada'eene) cheat each other

Hamadi/ khada'ene na Boobo. 'Hamadi cheated (reciprocally) with Boobo.'

khada'ika v. intr. (khada'ishile) be deceived; able to be deceived

Hakhada'iki. 'He cannot be deceived.'

Mi/ nkhada'ishilé/ kula zilatu izo. 'I made a mistake/erred/ was deceived buying those shoes (someone did not necessarily mislead me or the like, I just deceived myself into purchasing the shoes).'

Muunt^hu/ hukhada'ika. 'Anyone can be deceived, make a mistake, err.' (A proverbial saying.)

Nkhada'ishilé/ mi. 'I was deceived, cheated, made a mistake, erred.'

Mwiizi/ khada'ishile. 'The thief was deceived.'

Osmaani/ hukhada'ika ka sahali. 'Osmaani can be cheated easily.'

khada'ila v. appl. (khada'iliile) deceive on Nkhada'iliile mwaana. 'He cheated the child on me.'

khada'isha v. caus. (khada'ishiize) make cheat, deceive

Nuuru/ mkhada'ishize mwaana/ waawaye. 'Nuuru made the child deceive his father.'

khada'ishiliza v. caus. appl. (khada'ishiliize) cause to cheat on Nuuru/ mkhada'ishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ mweenzawe. 'Nuuru made Suufi's child deceive his friend.'

khada'ishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-khada'ishilizeenye) khada'oowa v. pass. (khada'iila)

khada'a

n. deception, trachery

khfanya khada'a 'to cheat, resort to deceit'

Ali/ chisuḷa chiint^hu/ kaaziye/ khfanya khada'a/ siwo/ muunt^hu/ diriṭo.

'When Ali wants something he cheats (lit. his job is to cheat), he is not straight.'

Ni muunt^hu/ mwenye khada'a. 'He is a deceitful man.'

Ye/ ni hayawaani/ mwenye makri/ na khada'a. 'It is an animal that has tricks and decepts.'

khada'oole

adj. (from verb khada'a plus Somali suffix -leh) deceitful, treacherous

Duniya/ ni khada'oole. 'The world is deceitful.' (A proverb, which was also observed as a line in shteenzi: duniya ni xada'oole [st.] 'the world is deceitful (i.e. the pleasures of this world lead astray and do not last)')

khadaraya

n. s.t. big, too big (recorded with gemination regularly: [khaddaraya])

Omari/ chitaache/ khaddaraya. 'Omari's head is big.'

Omari/ ipulaye/ khaddaraya. 'Omari's nose is big.'

review matter of accent

rel.

i-khaddaraya n. aug. 5 s.t. big [pron. [i-kháddaraa]] (In all of the examples currently available to us, this item was regularly pronounced as a separate phrase and with an unusual accent on kha that we did not observe in examples with the diminutive. More research is needed.)

Jawaabu/ shkhaddaraa/ hufanya ikháddaraa. 'A small matter becomes a big matter.' (A proverb.)

Omari/ imḷazile ipu/ ikulu/ ikháddaraa 'Omari has an infected wound (boil, etc.), a big big one'

Omari/ uzile igoombe/ ikháddaraa. 'Omari bought a cow, a big one.'

(This has the same meaning as: Omari/ uzile igoombe/ ikulu. In fact, one can use both adjectives together: Omari/ uzile igoombe/ ¹ikulu/ ikháddaraa ‘Omari a cow, a big big one!’

sh-khaddaraya (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

khadaraayi

how long?

Kazile Mambasa/ wakhti/ khadaraayi. ‘How long has he been in Mombasa?’

khadari

n. see qadri

khaddirisha

v. estimate (size, weight)

Ijuniya iyi/ uzitowe/ takhaddirisha/ kamu. ‘How much do you estimate is the weight of this sack? (lit. this sack its weight you will estimate how much)?’

khadiidi

?

khaadimu (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. hadimu SSED 122] servant (The noun class/agreement pattern of this noun is complex. The singular form, khaadimu, has no overt prefix, but governs [cl.1] agreement. The plural form may be khaadimu as well, in which case it governs [cl.10] agreement. But makhaadimu is also used, in which case it governs [cl.2] agreement.

Abunawaasi/ shkhiira/ laakini/ mbele/ chiwa’amura/ makhaadimu/ kizaanika/ izoo ngozi/ iwaani/ hattá/ schiwaa nk^havu. ‘Abunawaasi agreed, but first he ordered the servants to spread the hides in the sun until they became dry.’

Basi/ chaamura/ khadimuze/ kala mteendre. ‘So he ordered his servant to plant a date tree.’

Chimwambila khadimuye/ kendra muyiini/ kula zaakuja. ‘He told his servant to go to town and buy food.’

khadimu izi ‘these servants’

khadimu uyu ‘this servant’

khaadimu/ walazilopo ndilaani ‘when the servants went outside’

makhadimu awa ‘these servants’

makhadimu wiingi ‘many servants’

Muke/ na khaadimú/ wachishkila. ‘The wife and the servant disembarked.’

Mwanaana/ chamura makhaadimu/ kuletaa ngoma/ khteza/ hatá/ fijiri. ‘The child ordered servants to bring a drum to play until morning.’

Mwanaamke/ shpowa Hasani/ kumwelela khaadimu. ‘The girl was given Hasani to be for her a servant.’

Walimo mwanaashke/ msuura/ karka makhaadimu. ‘There was a beautiful girl among the servants.’

we/ kumwelela mwanaana/ khaadimu ‘for you to be a servant to my daughter’
rel.

sh-khaadimu (s-). 7/8 dim.

Chisula mtele/ wiiko/ nganu/ yiiko/ maftaa sehemu/ yaako/ ka khisani/ we/ nakhsulo khsoolá/ mtamá/ kama shkhaadimú. ‘If you want crushed maize, it is there; wheat is there; ghee is there; why do you want to grind corn like a servant?’

khadira

v. (khadiriile) be able

Ali/ hukhadira khpika iyaank^huku. Ali is able to cook to cook an egg.’ (Note that one cannot passivize the infinitive and leave the passive subject in the lower clause: Ali/ hukhadira iyaank^huku/ khpikoowa. ‘Ali is able for an egg to be cooked.’ The subject of the passive infinitive can be made the subject of the main verb, but that verb must be put into the passive: Iyaank^huku/ ikhadiriila khpikowa na Ali. ‘An egg was able to be cooked by Ali.’ It is ungrammatical to use the main verb in the active when the infinitive is in the passive: Iyaank^huku/ hukhadira khpikoowa. ‘An egg was able to be cooked.’ The idea may be conveyed using the potential/stative verb:

- Iyaank^huku/ hupikika. ‘An egg can be cooked.’)
- Ali/ nt^hakhaadira/ kumpa mwaana/ zawaadi. ‘Ali was not able to give the child a present.’
- Ali/ nt^hakhaadira/ kumpaka mwaana/ dawa. ‘Ali was not able to apply medicine to the child.’
- Hakhaadiri/ khshiindra/ sku mooyi/ pashpo kumwona Abunawaasi. ‘He was not able to pass one day without seeing Abunawaasi.’
- Hakhaadiri/ khuloola. ‘He cannot marry you.’
- Haliima/ hakhaadiri. Nt^hakuuya. ‘Haliima is sick. She did not come.’ Cf.
Haliima/ hakhaadiri/ nt^hakuuya. ‘Haliima, who is sick, did not come.’
 This relative clause was a bit difficult to elicit, suggesting that non-restrictive relative clauses may not be as natural in Chimiini as in English, for example. Further research on this point needs to be done. The restrictive relative clause came more easily: Haliima/ oo hakhaadiri/ nt^hakuuya. ‘The Haliima who was sick did not come.’)
- Haliima/ nt^hakhaadira/ khtindilaa nama/ chisu. ‘Haliima wasn’t able to cut the meat with a knife.’ (MI accepted this sentence, although in an instrumental applied construction he did not tend to like the instrument to reside in the verb phrase if it were part of the focus. In any case, the instrument can be the subject of a corresponding passive sentence: Chisu/ nt^hashkukhadiroowa/ khtindilowaa nama. ‘A knife was not able to be used to cut the meat.’ The logical object, on the other hand, cannot be the passive subject: Nama/ nt^ha’ikhadiroowa/ khtindilowaa chisu.)
- Haliima/ nt^hakhaadira/ kumletela Ali/ chaakuja. ‘Haliima was not able to bring Ali food.’
- Haliima/ nt^hakhaadira/ kumpikila Ali. Haliima was not able to cook for Ali.’
- Hukhadira khpita. ‘He was able to pass through.’
- Hukhadiraayi/ mi/ kumwiiza/ munt^hu uyu. ‘How am I able to refuse this man?’
- Mi/ nile khaambilá/ kuwaa mi/ nkhadiriilé/ khtaambula/ ma’ana ya kooði/ za Ali/ na kooðizó. ‘I have come to tell you that I am able to explain the meaning of the words of Ali and of your words.’
- munt^hi waa we/ waliko hukhaadiri ‘on the day that you were sick’
- Mi/ skhaadiri/ nt^ho. ‘I’m very sick.’
- Ndiwa/ chimwaambila/ sintoongelé/ zita zaa mi/ sikhaadiri. ‘The pigeon told him: don’t provoke for me wars that I cannot afford.’
- Nt^hanakhaadira/ ku’isha peeke. ‘He cannot live alone.’
- Nt^hanakhaadira/ kumbiga. ‘He was not able to beat him.’
- Oko/ kiitu/ sultaani/ wa muuyi/ hakhaadiri/ nt^ho. ‘There, at home, the king of the town is very sick.’
- Omari/ khadirile khfungula mnaango. ‘Omari managed to open the door.’ Or: Omari/ khadirile mnaango/ khfungula.
- Omari/ khadirile kumulila mwaanawe/ fatuura. ‘Omari managed to buy a car for his son.’ Or: Omari/ khadirile fatuura/ kumulila mwaanawe. Or: Omari/ khadirile mwaanawe/ kumulila fatuura. (It should be noted that the main verb cannot be assigned an object marker controlled by either of the complements: Omari/ ikhadirile fatuura/ kumulila. Nor: Omari/ mkhadirile mwaanawe/ kumulila fatuura.)
- Omari ukhadirile khfungula mnaango. ‘Omari managed it [cl.3] to open the door.’ Or: Omari/ ukhadirile mnaango/ khfungula.
- Si/ hihtaja kuwa waaðehe/ yaa si/ hukhadiro khfaanya/ na yaa si/ hashkhaadiri. ‘We need to be clear what we can and what we cannot do.’
- Skhaadiri/ kumlata numbaani/ ka yee/ peeke. ‘I cannot leave her home alone.’
- Skukhaadira/ kumwaambila/ kuwaa mi/ nile naayó/ ka khabriini. ‘I could not tell her that I took it from the graveyard.’
- Waako/ waako/ hattá/ leelo/ waawaye/ chiwa hakhaadiri/ chifa. ‘They lived and lived until one day [lit. today] his father became sick and died.’
- We/ naawé/ takhadirani/ tu. ‘What can you do?’
- We/ nt^hunakhaadira/ waawé/ kuhada kuwaa ye/ ni maskiini. ‘You just cannot say, my father, that he is a poor man.’

rel.

khadirika v. p/s.

Mwana uyu/ hakhadiriki. ‘It is not possible to put up with this child; it is not possible to outsmart this child.’

khadirikana v. p/s. rec.

Mwana uyu/ hakhadirikani. ‘This child is too much of a rascal (one cannot put up with him).’

khadirila v. appl.

khadiriloowa v. appl. pass.

Gaari/ nt^hakhadiriloowa/ kuzoowa. ‘The car wasn’t able to be sold.’ (This sentence is apparently a good sentence, but the applied form of the verb -khaadira is not widely attested in our data. Perhaps the car’s ability to be sold is pertinent only in terms of being to the benefit of some unidentified individual.)

khadiroowa v. pass. (khadirila)

Ali/ hakhadiroowi/ khpikiloowa. ‘Ali cannot be cooked for.’ (Notice that the main verb is not put into the applied form: *Ali/ hakhadiriloowi/ khpikiloowa. Note that only the beneficiary can be the subject in this construction: *Chaakuja/ hashkhadiroowi/ khpikilowa Ali.)

Ali/ nt^hakhadiroowa/ khpikilowa na Haliima. ‘Ali was not able to be cooked for by Haliima.’ (Note that the main verb is not recast into an applied form when the subject of the subordinate clause’s passive verb is promoted to be the subject of the main verb: *Ali/ nt^hakhadiroloowa/ khpikilowa na Haliima.)

Ali/ nt^hakhadiroowa/ kuletelowa chaakuja. ‘Ali was not able to be brought food.’ (Note that it is ungrammatical to say: *Chaakuja/ nt^hashkukhadiroowa/ kuletelowa Ali. ‘Food was not able to be brought to Ali.’)

Fatuura/ ikhadirila kulilowa mwaana. ‘The car was managed to be bought for the child.’

Hamadi/ hakhadiroowi/ khpikiloowa. ‘Hamadi cannot be cooked for.’ (In this sentence, Hamadi controls the agreement on the negative main verb. This is the personal passive construction. An impersonal passive is also possible with the same word order: Hamadi/ ha’ikhadiroowi/ khpikiloowa. ‘It is not possible for Hamadi to be cooked for.’)

Magaari/ nt^hayakhadiroowa/ kulooowa. ‘The cars were not able to be bought (e.g. they cost more than was anticipated).’

Magaari/ yakhadirila khfukuloowa. ‘The cars were able to be lifted.’

Mnaango/ ukhadirila khfunguloowa. ‘The door was managed to be opened.’ (Note that in order for mnaango to be the subject of the passive main verb, the complement infinitive must be passive. One cannot say: *Mnaango/ ukhadirila khfungula. ‘The door was managed (someone) to open it.’)

Mwaana/ nt^hakhadiroowa/ khpakowaa dawa. ‘The child was not able to be applied medicine to.’ (This sentence implies that it is the child who is the problem. Cf. Dawa/ nt^hakhadiroowa/ khpakowa mwaana. ‘The medicine cannot be applied to the child.’ In this sentence, it is the medicine that is the problem, not the child.)

Mwaana/ nt^hakhadiroowa/ khpowa zawaadi. ‘The child was not able to be given presents.’ (But one can also say Zawaadi/ nt^haskukhadiroowa/ khpowa mwaana. ‘Presents were not able to be given to the child.’ This structure could be used, for instance, in the relative clause: zawadi nt^haskukhadirowa khpowa mwaaná... ‘the books that could not be given to the child...’)

Mwaalimu/ nt^hakhadiroowa/ kublowa zibuuku. ‘The teacher was not able to be stolen books from (e.g. he is too vigilant and one cannot get a chance to steal from him).’

Mweendro/ na sifa za muunt^hú/ hukhadiroowa/ kiwoowa/ ka waant^hu/ waa ye/ hushirkano naawó. ‘A man’s behavior and characteristics can be known from the people that he associates with.’

Waana/ nt^hawakhadiroowa/ koshoowa. ‘The children were not able to be washed.’ (Note that the main verb must be put into the passive form when the subject of the passive infinitive has been made subject. One does not say *Waana/ nt^hawakhaadira/ koshoowa/.)

Zibuuku/ nt^haskukhadiroowa/ kublowa ka mwaalimu. ‘Books were not able to be stolen from the teacher.’ (The sentence earlier shows that a bare noun mwaalimu can be used as the passive subject of the verb -khadiroowa. But in the present example, where zibuuku is the subject, it does not appear that a bare form of mwaalimu is possible, rather it must be preceded by the preposition ka. On a phonological note, observe that while ku is ordinarily missing in front of kh, the reduction of zi- to s- seems to block the deletion. This suggests strongly that the conversion of ku to null in front of kh is a phonological process of vowel deletion and subsequent spirantization of k to kh and then degemination. The presence of s serves to block vowel deletion.)

khaða n. lunch
Haliima/ fakeete/ kumdirshiliza waawaye/ kuja/ yaa khaða/ ragiile. ‘Haliima ran to prepare food quickly for her father’s lunch, she is late.’

Khaðija n. the Prophet’s first wife khafaali n. [Som. qafaal DSI 482] kidnapping, robbing hubiga khafaali hupata danawa [nt.]

khafiifu adj. [Sw. hafifu SSED 123; Ar.] thin, insubstantial, irresponsible, flighty, easy Chingila mtanaani/ kaake/ chivalaa nguwo/ za hariiri/ khafiifu/ nt^ho/ hattá/ maluungoye/ yotte/ yachiwonekana. ‘She entered her bedroom and put on clothes of very thin silk, [so thin] even all her body was visible.’
Fanya maṭaaza/ khafiifu. ‘Make the porridge thin!’
khfanya khafiifu ‘to make s.t. easy’ Muunt^hu/ kilaa chiint^hu/ khfanya takliifu/ siwo/ suura/ suura/ khfanya khafiifu/ tu. ‘For one, in every thing, to make it hard is not good, it is good to make things easy.’
kuloomba mwajiitu khfaanya khafiifu [st.] ‘to beg God to make it easy’ miri khafiifu ‘intellectually weak’
Mwana uyu/ ni khafiifu. ‘This child is irresponsible.’
Ni chiint^hu/ shkhafiifu/ laakini/ hukhaadiri/ kishafuna. ‘It is something thin but you cannot chew it.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is maayi ‘water’.)
safari ya hija faanya khafiifu [st.] ‘make the pilgrimage easy’ khaaja n. (my) uncle – i.e. my mother’s brother; [pron. khaajá] khaja yaawo ‘their uncle’ khaja yiinu ‘your (pl.) uncle’ khaja yiitu ‘our uncle’ khaajé ‘his/her uncle’

khaajó ‘your uncle’ Sultaani/ Ijiniile/ mloweele/ mwanaamke/ wa khaajé. ‘The Mad Sultan married the daughter of his uncle.’

khalkhaalata v. (khalkhaleete) go out looking for s.t. that is needed urgently (for oneself) Oloshale khalkhaalata. ‘He went out looking for s.t. needed urgently.’
rel.
khalkhaalisha v. caus. go out looking for s.t. urgently needed for one’s family etc.
Oloshale khalkhalisha peesa. ‘He went out looking for money (needed for his family).’

khalkhaali n. used in the phrase:
khfanya khalkhaali ‘to go out looking for s.t. urgently needed (a loan, a person, etc.)’ khalkhila n. [Ar. verb qaliqa and noun qalaa W 787] apprehension, perturbation, anxiety that makes s.o. sleepless kumtila muunt^hu/ khalkhilaani ‘to make s.o. uneasy, perturbed, apprehensive’ review l’s and review whether q is used? and if q is used, then must both be q or kh?

- khalqi n. [Ar. kalq W 258] people, creatures, mankind, everything that God created; [pron. khalqi or khalghi] Mi/ siwo/ moyi/ si/ ni waant^{bu}/ wiingi/ khalghi/ ni wabjaana/ wa muyi mzima/ na wanaawaké/ wa muyi mzima. ‘I am not alone (lit. one). We are many people, all of mankind; we are young boys from the whole town and girls from the whole town.’
naako itakuuya naada/ khalqi inakirimoowa [st.] ‘and then the divine call will be made for the crowd to be rewarded’ Taha xeer ya khalqi [st.] ‘Taha (= Muhammad), the best of mankind’
- khalwa n. religious seclusion; variant form: khalwa kingila khalwa ‘to seclude oneself in an isolated place or the mosque for religious purposes, seeking to receive an ishaara (i.e. a hint of God’s will)’
Hamadi/ ingile numbaani/ nt^hanakulawa/ ba/ kana muunt^{bu}/ ingilo khalwa. ‘Hamadi went into the house and did not come out, like a man who has gone into seclusion.’
Khalwa/ hingilowa muskitiini. ‘One usually goes to the mosque to seclude oneself.’
Shekhi Aweeso/ mwene mtume/ karka khalwa (or khalwaani). ‘Sheikh Aweeso saw the Prophet while in meditative seclusion.’
- khalabu n. equipment
Mi/ kuwa aajizi/ tu/ siwo/ na khalabu/ sahá/ sinaayo. ‘It is not just that I am lazy, but also I do not have the right equipment.’
- khalali n. [Ar. qalqala “agitation, disturbance, commotion” W 788; Som. noun qaylo and verb qayli DSI 496] loud but confused noise made by many people or things (e.g. indistinct voices, rattling of things, sound of wind against trees, etc.), din, confusion
Nuumba/ nzimaye/ khalali. ‘The house is full of noise (made by many people together)
- khalaaqi n. a name for God; creator
- khalaasa n. [a word not commonly used in Chimiini, but may be found in poetry] peace chiza qiyama hupati khalaasa [st.] ‘otherwise you do not obtain peace’
- khaalifa v. [Ar. kalafa “conflict, diverge, be opposed” W 257] (khalifiile) disobey, contradict, oppose, object; cost get more examples of this use khalifa amri ‘to disobey an order’
Hashkhaalifi/ amriyo. ‘We won’t disobey your order.’
Masku/ yawaliko bardi/ naawó/ wote/ wa’ofeete/ laakini/ nt^hawakhaadira/ khalifa amri. ‘The evening was cold and they all were tired but they could not disobey an order.’
Muunt^{bu}/ mkhalifa waawaye/ siwo/ suura. ‘For one to reject/deny/oppose his father is not good.’ (Observe the common omission of the infinitive prefix in front of a [cl.1] object marker in mkhalifa waawaye.)
Si/ nt^haasá/ siwo/ waaðehe/ kiitu/ kamu/ nuumba/ itakhkhalifó/ peesa. ‘We are not yet clear on how much the house is going to cost.’
Skafaanye/ gaari/ kawa na’iwá/ kamu/ itakhkhalifó/ peesa. ‘I wouldn’t have fixed the car if I had known how much it was going to cost.’
rel.
khalifana v. rec. (-khalifeene) oppose one another Nuuru/ na Hamadi/ wakhhalifeene. ‘Nuuru and Hamadi opposed one another.’ (It is also possible to say: Nuuru/ khalifene na Hamadi. ‘Nuuru opposed [lit. with] Hamadi.’) khalifoowa v. pass.
Amiiri/ hakhalifoowi. ‘The chief is not disputed, questioned, not followed.’

- Shar'a/ haykhalifoowi. 'Sharia law is not disputed, questioned.'
- rel. nom.
- m-khaalifa n. 1/2 one who rejects, denies Mkhalifa mtume/ ni munt^hu wa aḏabuuni. 'He who rejects the Prophet is a person of hell.'
- ma-khaalifo n. 6
Makhaalifo/ hukhadira kuletaa dhibu/ na khasaará. 'Disputing/rejecting can cause difficulty and loss.'
- u-khaalifo n. 14
Ukhaalifo/ wa Hamadi/ mkhalifilo Nuurú/ ni ghalṭa/ Nuuru/ nayoo ndila/ jawabu yaa ye/ fanyiizó. 'The rejection that Hamadi rejected Nuuru is wrong, Nuuru has right (on his side) in what he did.'
- m-khaalifu (wa-) adj. disobedient
- khalinkhore n. [Som.] pencil sharpener
- khaaliqi n. a name for God; the creator
Hu'abudilowa khaalikhi/ ha'abudiloowi/ makhluukhu. 'It is the creator who should be worshiped, it is not worshiped the creation.' (A proverb.)
- khalisa v. (khalisiize) meet requirements
Gari iyi/ inkhalisiize. 'This car suits my requirements.'
Kama chaakuja/ chaa ye/ takhpoowa/ hachimkhalisi/ namere chaakuja/ mahala yiingine. 'If the food that he is given is not of high enough quality for him, look for food some place else.'
- rel.
khalisana v. rec.
Wakhaliseene. 'They met each other's requirements.'
- khaalisi adj.,v. [Ar. kālīs W 255] original, genuine, pure, sincere, of high character Kama chaakuja/ chaa ye/ takhpoowá/ hachimkhaalisi/ namere chaakuja/ mahala yiingine. 'If the food that he is given is not of high enough quality for him, let him look for food some else.'
- munt^hu khaalisi 'a man of high character'
- rel.
u-khaalisi n. 14 in expression:
ka ukhaalisi 'with sincerity'
ka ukhaalisi wa ndraani [st.] 'with inner sincerity'
- khamadi n [Som. qamadi] wheat Haliima/ pishile nk'aaki/ za unga/ wa khamadi. 'Haliima cooked pancakes made of wheat flour.'
maṭaza ya khamadi 'porridge made from wheat'
- khamdi n. a small leather bag used for carrying documents
- khamdi n. a triangular-shaped donut (buru) made in Brava
- khamiiri n. yeast
Mandraa mbiti/ yingile khamiiri. 'The dough has risen [lit. entered yeast].'
- khamiirika v. p/s. rise (of dough)
Mandraa mbiti/ ikhamirishile. 'The dough has risen.'
- rel.

khamiirsha v. caus. leaven bread (by letting it sit, by adding baking powder, etc.)
khamirishiliza v. caus. appl.
Hamadi/ mkhamirishilize Nuuru/ maandra. ‘Hamadi leavened the bread for Nuuru.’

khamri

n. [Ar. kamr W 261] liquor
Chiloota/ kuwaa ye/ wene ruuhuye/ uko mahala suura/ na nakumnesha moojé/ khamri. ‘He dreamed that he saw himself in a lovely place and he was serving his master alcohol.’
Khamri/ husakharatoowa. ‘Liquor makes you drunk.’
Khamri/ insukurishiize. ‘The liquor made me drunk.’
Khamri/ khufanya sakharaani. ‘Liquor makes you drunk.’
Khamri/ ni haraamu. ‘Liquor is religiously impure.’
Waawé/ we/ nakhfanyaayi/ kuna khamri. ‘My father, why are you drinking alcohol?’

khamrisha

v. brew coconut palm wine khamrisha teembo ‘to brew coconut palm wine’

khamsiini

adj. [Ar. kamsīnī W 262] fifty Chooloka/ chimwambila mubliwe/ mp^ha shilingi khamsiini. ‘She went and she told her husband: Give me fifty shillings.’
khamkina keendra or khamsiini/ na keendrá ‘fifty nine’ khamkina naane or khamsiini/ na naané ‘fifty eight’ khamkina nt^haano or khamsiini/ na nt^haanó ‘fifty five’ khamkina saba or khamsiini/ naa sabá ‘fifty seven’ khamkina sitta or khamsiini/ na sittá ‘fifty six’ Khamsiiniza/ mp^heeeté/ isa/ nakhsuulá/ ye/ kuviiloowa/ khpoowa/ ndrutize khamsiini. ‘My fifty blows, I got; now, I want him to be called to be given his fifty blows.’

khamustaashara

n., adj. fifteen

khandaqi (ma-)

n. [Sw. handaki SSED 126; Ar. kandaq W 263] trench, underground shelter variant form: handaqi review
rel.
chi-khandaqi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-khandaqi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

khaniisi

n. [Ar.] male homosexual who assumes a passive role (not as commonly used as ifuga)

khaansa

see khaasa below

khaanso

n. 9/10 [Som. qaanso DSI 478] bow (to shoot arrows with) Nt^hale/ hayinfi chiint^hu/ bilaa khaanso. ‘An arrow does not serve anything without a bow.’ (A saying.)
Nt^hale/ ilazilo khaansó/ hayruudi/ chinume. ‘An arrow that has left the bow does not come back.’ (A proverb.)

khanziiri

n. 9/10 [Sw. hanziri SSED 127; Ar.] pig Hamadi/ haaji/ khanziiri. [HH!!H] ‘Hamadi does not eat pork.’
Hamadi/ haaji/ khanziiri. [↑H!H!H] ‘Hamadi does not eat pork.’
Hamadi/ khanziiri/ haaji. [H↑H!!H] ‘Hamadi pork does not eat.’
Khanziiri/ kudaroowake/ ni haraamu. ‘Touching a pig is forbidden.’
nama ya khanziiri ‘pork’
We/ huji/ khanziiri. [HH!!H] ‘You do not eat pork.’ (The simple yes-no question is:
We/ huji/ khanziiri? Note the Accent Shift on the nominal complement to the negative verb in the question.)

kharabu

n. [Ar. karāb W 231] ruins, destruction (Words from Arabic with the sound written k are only pronounced with kh and never q. On the other hand, words which in Arabic have the sound q are pronounced in Chimiini as either q or kh. Consequently, the present example has only the one pronunciation available.)

Majini/ wamwenopo Sa'iidi/ wafurahiile/ nt^ho/ wafurahiile/ ka khisa/ wo/ wapeete/ fursa/ kumwangamiza/ na kumsabibila kharabú.
'When the djinns saw Sa'iidi, they were very happy, they were happy because they had gotten an opportunity to harm him and to cause him destruction.'

nuumba iyi ni kharabu [st.] 'this house is in ruins, is dilapidated'
rel.

u-kharabu n. 14

kh̄inda ukharaaba 'to cut off relations with family'

Kh̄inda ukharaaba/ ni jawaabu/ siwo/ suura. 'To cut oneself off from family is a matter that is not good.'

kharanfuuri

n. 9/10 clove

muti wa kharanfuuri 'clove tree'

rel.

m-kharanfuuri (mi-) n. 3/4 clove tree

kharari

kh̄inda kharari 'to decide'

Ba'adi ya apo/ tu/ Omari/ t̄nzilo kharari/ khsafira Mw̄iini. 'Only then did Omari decide to travel to Miini.'

Mi/ nayo il̄mú/ kabisá/ kh̄indi kharari/ ni chint^hu saha/ khfaanya. 'I am quite competent to decide what is the right thing to do.'

Mi/ nayoo ndilá/ kh̄inda kharariza. 'I have the right to make my own decisions.'

Yiiko/ keendra/ kuwa Hamiisi/ t̄nzile kharari/ kul̄ata masoomo.
'Perhaps Hamiisi has decided to drop out from his studies.'

kharashi

n. [Som. qarash] expenses, money spent, fees

Gari iyo ya Hamadi/ uziló/ it̄akhsul̄a kharashi niingi/ khfanyoowa/ ivundishile zaaydi. 'That car that Hamadi bought, it will need a lot of money (lit. expenses) to repair it, it is broken down a lot.'

Hamadi/ hadiile/ safari iyi/ Mkhodiisho/ zindrasile kharashi niingi. 'Hamadi said: this trip to Mogadishu, I spent a lot (lit. Many expenses were got out of me).'

Haruusi/ hul̄awa kharashi niingi. 'Marriage incurs a lot of expenses (i.e. you spend a lot for a marriage).'

Maama/ humpa/ mi/ peesa/ za kharashi/ za skool̄a. 'Mother gives me money for school fees.'

Ni suura/ kuweka diiwaani/ kharashizo. 'It is useful to keep a record of your expenses.'

Si/ laazimu/ kumsaayda/ Hamadi/ impetee dhibu/ m̄waanawe/ hakhaadiri/ st̄akhsul̄owa kharashi. 'We must assist Hamadi, hardship has gotten him, his child is sick, (money for) expenses is needed.'

kharasi

n. 9/10 intestinal worm(s)

dawa ya kharasi 'medicine for worms'

Kharasi/ huna waant^hu/ maazi. 'Worms suck the blood from people.'

Nazo kharasi. 'He has worms.'

Tomele kharasi. 'He passed worms (in his feces).'

kharawu

[Possibly connected to Somali verb qaraabo "to gather wild fruits" DSI 489, with a transfer to fish: gather/catch fish, the time of a good catch.] only used in the expression:

bahari kharaawu ‘season/sea when there is plenty of catch’

i-kharba (ma-)

n. 5/6 leaf

Chishika ikharba/ itakuwelelaa nguwo. ‘If you hold a leaf, it will become for you a piece of cloth.’

Ikharba/ ipoteele. ‘The leaf fell.’

ikharba ya mshaka ‘a leaf of a tree’; makharba ya mshaka ‘leaves of trees’

Karka makharba/ yaa we/ takuleetó/ humkina/ kumwelelaa dawa/ mwanaamke/ oyo/ naayé/ khpólá. ‘Among the leaves that you will bring, it is possible to be medicine for that girl and she [might] live.’ review accent

Kasa/ mubliwá/ endra maduriini/ tiinda/ makharba/ ya kulla muti/ na chimuti/ ndo/ naayo/ makharba/ meepe. ‘Listen, my husband, go into the bush and pick [lit. cut] the leaves of every tree and bush, and come with any of them.’ review whether lengthening of kulla makharba ma’akthari ‘green leaves’

Makharba/ yanakuuluka. ‘Leaves are flying about.’

Makharba/ yapiile. ‘Leaves are burned.’

Muti mkulu/ unayo makharba mawili. ‘A large tree that has two leaves.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is muunt^hu/ na mashkiloyé ‘a man and his ears’.)

Ye/ zubile almaasi/ karka ikharba yaa muti. ‘He wrapped the diamond in the leaf of a tree.’

kharbi

n. war

Shinzile kharbiini. ‘He won a victory in the war.’

khariba

v. [Sw. haribu SSED 127] (kharibiile) damage, spoil, corrupt, make a mess, ruin s.o.’s reputation or financial status

Niya njeema/ hutabiiba/ niyaa mbovu/ haykhariba. ‘A good intention cures, a bad intention spoils.’ (A proverb.)

rel.

kharibika v. intr. (kharibishile) be damaged, spoiled kharibisha v. caus.

Isa/ ye/ teena/ makhsuudiye/ ni kumkhada’a/ Sa’iidi/ jisaa ye/ khpata/ kumkharibisha. ‘Now he then, his intention was to cheat Sa’iidi in order to get a chance to destroy him.’

rel. nom.

m-khariba (wa-) n. 1/2 a spoiler, corruptor

m-kharibo n. 3 spoiling, corrupting

khaarija

v. (kharijiile) do away with (in both the sense of 1. to kill and 2. to get rid of s.o., giving him his due; befit, suit, be convenient, afford

Hayishkhaarji/ kuhada... ‘It is not suitable for us to say...’

khariiji

adv. abroad

awaje hawapati kendra khariiji ‘those who do not go abroad’

Husaafira/ hendra khariiji/ kuzida ilmu. ‘They travel and go abroad to increase their knowledge.’

khaarimu

adj. descriptive of a female animal that has reached the stage of being able to give birth mbuzi khaarimu ‘a goat old enough to give birth’ ngombe khaarimu ‘a cow old enough to give birth’

rel.

sh-khaarimu (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

khariita

n. 9/10 [Ar. karīta W 234] map

Mi/ kawa nayo khariitá/ suła kuwa khupasiizé. ‘If I had a map I would have loaned it to you.’

kharsha

v. [Som.] hide (In MI’s speech, the infinitive prefix invariably deletes when preceding a stem-initial kh or q. In GM’s speech, this elision is apparently optional.)

Omari/ karshize mayti/ ya Nuuru. ‘Omari hid Nuuru’s corpse.’

We/ kharshani. ‘What are you hiding (i.e. what secrets are you keeping, what things inside you are you not revealing)?’

rel.

kharshiliza v. appl. hide from

Jawabu izi/ nakukharshilizowa Omari. ‘His work, affairs are hidden from Omari.’ Or: Jawabu izi/ nakharshilizoowa/ Omari.

Omari/ mkharshilize mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Omari hid the clothes from the child.’

kharshilizoowa v. appl. pass.

kharshoowa v. pass.

Inakharshoowani. ‘What is being hidden?’

Ntaku/ ba/ ya kharshoowa. ‘There is nothing to hide.’

khaasa

adv. especially; adj. special; [pron. khaasa or khaasa] (The distribution of final versus default penult accent is not entirely clear from the examples.)

variant form: khaansa

-a khaasa ‘private’ (Note that we did not record final accent in this use of khaasa.)

gari ya khaasa ‘a private car’

Ile ka gariye ya khaasa. ‘He came with his private car.’

Apa/ ni mamnuu’u/ kingiloowa/ khaasa/ ka wana zihabba. ‘It is forbidden to be entered here, especially by small children.’

khaasa/ ka tarafu yaa wake ‘especially concerning women’

Maamo/ khaansa/ nakun’aõiba/ nt^ho/ ye/ nakhsula khuwona. ‘Your mother especially is torturing me very much, she wants to see you.’

Masku ya Ashuura/ karka dini ya Islaamu/ yanayo ma’ana khaasa. ‘The night of Ashuura in the Islamic religion has a special meaning.’

Mubjaana/ shfanya ahdi/ pamo na mwanaamke/ kudirkamana karka sa’a khaasa. ‘The young man made an appointment with the girl to meet at a special time.’

ndruuza ni waajibu amri ya diini/ khaansa kiwoowa mas’ala sitini [st.] ‘O my brothers, it is obligatory [to know] the matters of religion, especially for sixty questions to be known’

Safiriile/ ka aripaano/ khaasa/ koloka ka kuzuura/ nt^hi/ za sharkhi yaa kati. ‘He travelled by his special airplane to go to visit the countries of the Middle East.’

Waant^hu/ hoshu mayti/ ni waant^hu/ khaasa/ siwo/ killa/ muunt^hu. ‘The people who wash the corpse are special people, not everybody.’

Want^hu wa Mwiini/ khaasa/ Wahamari/ wachisaafira/ nt^ho/ nt^hi ziingine. ‘The people of Brava, especially the Wahamari, used to travel a lot to other countries.’

khasabu

n. force, a must

Deeni/ kulipoowa/ ni khasabu. ‘For a debt to be repaid is a must.’

Khsomowa diini/ ni khasabu. ‘To learn religion is a must.’

khasaara

n. 9 [Sw. hasara SSED 128; Ar.] loss, financial loss, misfortune faayda/ na khasaara ‘profit and loss’

Itamletelaa dhibu/ na khasaara. ‘It will bring him trouble and misfortune.’

karka khasaara ‘in or at loss’

Khasara ya mooyi/ ni fayda ya mooyi. ‘One’s loss is one’s profit/benefit.’ (A proverbial saying.)

khpatha khasaara ‘to suffer a financial loss’

Baana/ pete khasaara. ‘Baana suffered a financial loss.’

Khpathisha khasaara ‘to cause s.o. to suffer a financial loss’ khtila khasaara ‘to cause s.o. to lose wealth’

Kaazi/ humtilo muunt^hú/ khasaará/ ha’ifanyoowi. ‘Work that causes one to suffer a loss should not be done.’
Omari/ mtilé Alí/ khasaara. ‘Omari caused Ali to have a financial loss.’ (The final accent on Alí is a lexical property of this personal name in the speech of our source for this example. MI, on the other hand, has default penult accent for this name.)
kingilowa na khasaara ‘to suffer a loss (lit. to be entered by a loss)’ Hamadi/ ingila khasaara. ‘Hamadi suffered a loss.’
Kingila khasaara ‘to suffer a loss’ Hamadi/ ingile khasaara. ‘Hamadi suffered a loss.’
kudirka khasaara ‘to encounter a financial loss’ Khaliifa/ imdirshile khasaara. ‘Khaliifa met with a financial loss.’
Mi/ sinakuwona/ kuwa ni khasaara/ nk^hulu. ‘I do not consider that it is a great loss.’ (The phrasal separation of the modifier from the noun it modifies is a signal of the indefinite nature of the noun.)
Nnayo khasara gani/ mi. ‘What loss is it for me? i.e. it is no loss at all.’
Nt^hakhusaameha/ laakini/ ka sharti/ mooyi/ we/ ni laazima/ kundripila khasaara/ imp^heeetó/ yotte. ‘I will forgive you but on one condition: you must repay me the loss that befell me, all.’
siwo faayda ni khasaara/ ndimi khtowa afiya [song] ‘it is not a profit, it is a loss for me to lose my health’ Siwo/ khasaara. ‘It is not a loss.’

khasaarata

v. (khasareete) lose (money, reputation) Khasaarata. ‘Lose money!’ Khasarataani. ‘(Pl.) lose money!’
khasarata uso ‘to lose face’ Khasareetó/ kaafiri. ‘The one who has lost everything is the one who does not believe in God.’
Skhasaaraté. ‘Don’t lose money!’ Skhasarateeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t lose money!’
rel.
khasaarisha v. caus. (khasarishiize) cause loss Mkhasarishize waawaye. ‘He caused his father financial loss.’ Skhasarisheeni/ ahji. ‘(Pl.) don’t cause financial harm for the family!’
khasarishana v. caus. rec.
khasarishika v. caus. p/s.
khasarishiliza v. caus. appl.
khasarishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

khasaba

v. [Som. khasab DSI 365] (khasbeete) force, oblige s.o.
rel.
(ku-)khasba v. force kumkhasba ‘to force someone’
Simkhasbé/ mwaana/ kuja. ‘Don’t force a child to eat.’
Nkhasbile ruuhuyá/ kumaamalá. ‘I forced myself to be quiet.’ (In the speech of GM, the nasal first person subject marker regularly elides before voiceless sounds like kh, although GM regularly retains the nasal in writing Chimiini.) (ku-)khasboowa v. pass.
Kukhasbowa mwaana/ kuja/ siwo/ suura. ‘For a child to be forced to eat is not good.’ (In the speech of MI, the prefix ku regularly elides when preceding the sound q/kh. However, with our current consultant we have recorded the retention of ku as an option.)

khashabu

n. 9/10 piece of wood

khashiida (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10,6 [Sw. kashida SSED 175; Pers.] a kind of shawl worn by Muslim teachers, made of linen or other soft material, worn as a turban or over the shoulder khashida iyi ‘this shawl’ (cf. khashida izi ‘these shawls’) khtandrika khashiida ‘to put on a khashiida’

- kumwandika khashiida ‘to put a khashiida on s.o.’
kuzuba khashiida ‘to wrap with a khashiida’
- khasirika v. (khasirishile) be annoyed Khamiisi/ khasirishile khkasa jawabu iyo. ‘Khamiisi was annoyed to hear those things.’
- khasisha v. [Som.] mess up (ku)khasishaa dali ‘to mess up the environment’
Muunt^u/ siwo/ suura/ kukhasishaa dali. ‘It isn’t good for one to mess up a situation (e.g. to step into a situation and cause problems or create obstacles, foul things up).’
Omari/ ile/ khasishizekhasishizee dali. ‘Omari came and messed things up (went into a situation that was stable, working out, and messed it up).’
(ku)khasisha jawaabu ‘to mess up the talking, the discussion, etc.’
- khasli in the expression:
variant form: ghasli
kowa khasli ‘to wash after sexual intercourse (as prescribed by Islamic principles)’
- khas^{ti} in the expression:
ka khas^{ti} ‘on purpose’
Hunk^halila/ ye/ mbishilee mi/ ka khas^{ti}. ‘I think he knocked me down on purpose.’
ka khas^{ti} shtapisha somu huvuundika [st.] ‘if you vomit on purpose, your fasting is invalidated’
- kha^{ta} v. (kha^{ti}ile) go without, miss (esp. food) (Observe that the stem-final t in this verb does not undergo mutation to s.)
Chimaliza/ uyu/ shkha^{ta}/ nt^hakhaadira/ koondroka. ‘Then this one (in the story: the older goat) went without food, he could not move.’
Chiraaga/ takha^{ta}. ‘If you are delayed, you will miss/lose/not get in.’
Chiraga keendra/ ta(ku)kha^{ta}. ‘If you are late going (there), you will be without/ miss s.t.’
Jeree^lo/ kha^{ti}ile. ‘The one who is ashamed goes without.’ (A proverb.)
kana miimba haykha^{ti} [song] ‘if the stomach goes without food’ Mi/ kheeri/ kha^{ta}. ‘It is better for me to miss/ lose/ not get.’
Nakhsula kha^{ta}aa zij^o/ raaga. ‘(If) you want to miss the zijo, (then) be late.’
Sho/ kiwa daniy^e/ kha^{ti}ile. ‘One who does not know his interest, need, misses out.’ (A proverb.)
Sho/ khkoo^oa/ hukha^{ta}. ‘One who does not speak (say what he wants) misses out.’ (A proverb.)
Uyu maskiini/ mara niingi/ huwa nt^hana^h/ yaa ye/ kuwapa waanawe/ na ni niingi/ masku/ yaa wo/ washkha^{to}. ‘This poor man, many times there was nothing that he had to give his children, and it was many nights that they missed [getting food].’
- rel. kha^{ti}la v. appl. (kha^{ti}liile) Mwaana/ nkha^{ti}liile. ‘The child went without food (on me).’
kha^{ti}sha v. caus. (kha^{ti}shiize) cause to miss, go without kha^{ti}shana v. caus. rec. (kha^{ti}sheene) kha^{ti}shiliza v. caus. appl. (kha^{ti}shiliize) kha^{ti}shilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (kha^{ti}shilizeenye) kha^{to}owa v. pass.
Nakhtiya kha^{to}owa. ‘I am afraid to miss/lose/not get.’
- kha^{ta}’a n. mistake, wrong behavior; var. kha^{ta}’i khfanya kha^{ta}’a ‘to make a serious mistake in behavior’

Kilaa muunt^hu/ hufaanya/ khaṭa'a/ chihaba/ amá/ nk^hulú/ sho kuwa mojiitu. 'Every one makes an error, small or big, except God.'

khaṭi'i (Ø, ma-) adj. one who has done wrong, made a mistake in behavior (Morph. This adjective stem illustrates the complexity of the behavior of borrowed adjectives in Chimiini. This stem may be used invariantly as khaṭi'i with both singular and plural nouns (always human nouns, due to the meaning of the adjective). However, if the noun is plural, the form makhaṭi'i may also be used. A further complexity arises, however, when the noun modified is a derived diminutive or augmentative noun. In this event, the adjective stem agrees with this derived noun. This explains a form such as zijint^hu skhaṭi'i below, where the agreement morpheme zi- is prefixed to the adjective stem, though phonological rules realize zi- as s- in this context.)

munt^hu khaṭi'i 'a person who behaves wrongly' want^hu (ma)khaṭi'i 'people who behave wrongly' zijint^hu skhaṭi'i 'dim. people who behave wrongly'

khaṭari

n. [Sw. hatari SSED 130] danger, risk; adj. dangerous, risky (and thus not permitted)

Ba'ada/ ya sku nch^haache/ karkaa nt^hi/ iyi/ ichiðihira/ jawaabu/ ya khaṭari.

'After a few days in this country there appeared a dangerous matter.'

chijint^hu shkhaṭari 'a dangerous (dim.) person'

Chimo khaṭariini. 'We are in danger.'

Inakuhadoowa/ ya kuwa ikhtisaadi/ ya talyaani/ yiimo/ karka khaṭari/ nk^hulu. 'It is said that the economy of Italy is in great danger.'

khalbi/ ichiwa nk^havu ndrúza khaṭari [st.] 'if the heart is dry (lacking in goodness), my brothers, that is dangerous' khtila khaṭariini 'to put in danger'

We/ takunt^hila khaṭariini. 'You will put me in danger.'

Khaṭari/ nii nk^hulu. 'The danger is great.'

Khaṭari/ ni kuwaa si/ nt^hachinakhpa/ ihtimaamu/ haali/ inakiineendró. 'The danger is that we will not be paying attention to what is going on.'

kulumika khtomola maazi khaṭari [st.] 'to bleed by cupping, to take blood out is not permitted (due to the danger, risk involved)'

Malizopoo kujá/ Haaji/ sulile kulawa/ laakini/ chizeele/ chimwaambila/ kulala apo/ masku ayo/ ka khisa ndilaye/ ni khaṭari. 'When he finished eating, Haaji wanted to leave, but the old woman told him to sleep there that night because his path was dangerous.'

Mbalimo karka khaṭari niingí. 'I was in great danger.'

Mbalimo khaṭariini. 'I am in danger.'

munt^hu khaṭari 'a dangerous person'

ndila ya khaṭari 'a dangerous road' ndruuza iwaani ujahli ni khaṭari [st.] 'my brothers, know that ignorance is dangerous'

Ni eelo/ iló/ shtomelo ka khaṭariini. 'It was the gazelle who came and got us out of danger.'

Nt^haku/ khaṭari/ kanaa si/ shchinendra ka tahaðari. 'There is no danger if we proceed carefully.'

Nt^hako/ khaṭari/ yaa si/ hashkhaadiri/ kulawila. 'There is no danger that we cannot overcome.'

want^hu khaṭari 'dangerous people'

Ye/ haamina/ kuwa yiko khaṭari/ nk^hulu/ si/ kuja/ kichimalila. 'He believes that there is a great danger that we will run out of food.'

zijint^hu shkhaṭari 'dangerous (dim.) people'

Yiko khaṭari/ nk^hulu/ kanaa si/ shchiza khfaanya/ chiint^hu/ ka hima. 'There is great danger if we do not act quickly.'

Ziko khaṭari/ zaa si/ laazimu/ khpitá. 'There are dangers that we must face (lit. pass).'

khaṭi

n. 9/10 [Sw. hati SSED 130] letter

Basi/ fijiri/ iyo/ ya sku yaa saba/ mgarwa/ chilawa/ ka numbaani/ naayé/ tukiiló/ khaṭi. 'So on the morning of the seventh day, the fisherman went out from the house [and he] carrying the letter.’

Iyoo khaṭi/ yanziza jis’iyi. ‘That letter was begun this way.’
kandikaa khaṭi ‘to write a letter’ Khaṭi/ hayandikiki. ‘The letter cannot be written.’ (Cf. Khaṭi/ hazandikiki. ‘The letters cannot be written.’) khaṭii ndre ‘a long letter’ Khaṭi/ niyandishilé. ‘The letter, I wrote it.’ (In this example, the left-dislocated object of the verb governs an object marker on the verb, indicating the definiteness of this noun phrase Cf. Khaṭi/ nandishilé. ‘A letter, I wrote.’) khaṭi ya mahaba ‘love letter’ kfungaa khaṭi ‘to close a letter (i.e. to seal a letter)’ kfungulaa khaṭi ‘to open a letter’ khpataa khaṭi ‘to receive a letter’ khsomaa khaṭi ‘to read a letter’
Mi/ nch^himwandikilaa khaṭi. ‘I was writing a letter to him.’
Mi/ sikhaadiri/ kulindra khaṭiyo ya piili. ‘I can’t wait for your next letter.’
[Sultaani/ kama oyo/ shfungula¹ khaṭti/ iyo/ chi’isooma/ nt^hakhtila shakka/ ya¹ khaṭti/ ilazile ka waawaye.] ‘The sultan, like that, opened that letter and read it; he did not doubt that the letter had come from his father.’ (Phon. In the performance of this sentence in the tale that we recorded, khaṭi was particularly emphasized, with gemination of the medial consonant. To our ears, there was no lengthening of the preceding vowel in either instance, even though khaṭi is a CVCV word that would ordinarily induce lengthening before it when occurring phrase-final. We suspect that final vowel lengthening does not occur in front of a word that bears such emphasis, but more research is required.)

khaṭi’u tariikhi

n. brigands who stop [lit. cut the road] travelers and rob them Khaṭi’u tariikhi/ ni want^hu wa muḷooni. ‘Khaṭi’u tariikhi are people of hellfire.’

khaaṭibu

n. [Sw. hatibu SSED 130; Ar. kaṭīb W 246] a pious and learned man who preaches the Friday sermon in the mosque variant forms: haaṭibu, khaṭiibu Khaaṭibu/ Imilole/ lwelee nk^havu. ‘The preacher’s throat has become hoarse.’ Or: Khaaṭibu/ Imilo/ limwelee nk^havu. ‘[Lit.] The throat became hoarse to the preacher.’

khaṭiifa

n. carpet
Omari/ uzile makhaṭiifa/ kuwékela hafla/ kaake/ numbaani/ ya haruusi/ ya mwaanawe. ‘Omari bought carpets for making celebrations at his house for his son’s wedding.’

khaaṭima

n. [Sw. hatima “end, conclusion” SSED 130] end, conclusion kufa yiiko mbele yūtu/ khaaṭima inalomboowa [st.] ‘death awaits us [lit. is in our front], let us pray for a blessed end’ (Note the omission of the infinitive prefix from inukulomboowa.)
ya nafsi shpata maali hijja ka hima/ chiiza ntunayo kheeri ntunā khaaṭima [st.] ‘O human being, if you have the means, hasten to make the pilgrimage/ or you will have neither blesss [in life] nor a blessed death’ [SCB 556]

khaṭwa

n.
Baaba/ na mamaye mwanaamké/ washkhiirā/ khaṭwa ya piili/ huwa ni wazaazi/ wa mwiimbili/ kuwatuma wazele/ wa khabiila/ ka wazazi wa mwanaamke. ‘When the father and mother of the girl have agreed [to the marriage], the second step becomes for the parents of the boy to send the chiefs of the clan to the parents of the girl.’

- khawaafu (ma-) n. tramp, vagabond, loafer
- khawaaja (ma-) n. [Ar.] gentleman, s.o. who gives himself airs
- khawoowu adj. cool
Fulana ya suufi/ ni khawoowu/ suura/ kuvaloowa/ wakhti waa hari.
‘Cotton sweaters are cool, they are good to be worn during hot times.’
- khayaali adj. imaginative; n. imagination chint^hu khayaali ‘s.t. imaginary’ munt^hu mwenye khayaali ‘a man of imagination’
- khazaana n. 9/10 safe
Skumo/ masku/ waant^hu/ wote/ waleeló/ Haaji/ shfungula khazaana/ ya waawaye/ shtomola peesa/ zote/ ziwaalimó. ‘One evening when all the people were asleep, Haaji opened his father’s safe and took out all the money that was in it.’
- khazina v. [Ar.] (khaziniile) keep in a safe place
- khazna n. [Ar.] a safe khtila khazna ‘to put in a safe’
- kheebu
khtala kheebu ‘to get involved’
Fikri/ ni waant^hu/ wont^he/ khtala kheebu. ‘The idea is to get all the people involved.’
- kheema n. 9/10,6 [Sw. hema SSED 132; Ar.] tent
khema iyi ‘this tent’ khema izi or makhema aya ‘these tents’ khema nk^hulu ‘a big tent, big tents’ khema nt^hatu ‘three tents’ makhema masuura ‘nice tents’ makhema matatu ‘three tents’
Nimbigilile kheemá/ iwa/ isipate kumbiga. ‘I put up a tent so that the sun might not (get to) hit him (i.e. so that he might not be in the sun).’
Nimbigilile kheemá/ iwa/ isimbige. ‘I put up a tent so that the sun might not hit him (i.e. so that he might not be in the sun).’
- kheeri n. good deeds, blessings, health, peace
Huseeni/ chimjiiba/ ka adabu/ kuwa waawaye/ na kheerize. ‘Huseeni answered with good manners that his father had his health.’
Huseeni/ naayé/ shfungu safari/ ye/ na mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ waa ye/ muzilo ka majini/ chendra naaye/ ka waawaye/ wachiloozanya/ wachi’iisha/ karka kheeri/ na furahá. ‘Huseeni set out on a journey, he and the daughter of the sultan, the one whom he bought from jinns, and he went with her to her father’s; they were married, they lived in peace and happiness.’
Muunt^hu/ uyu/ chimuza Huseeni/ waawo/ na kheerize/ so/ Huseeni/ chimjiiba/ waawe/ na kheerize. ‘This man asked Huseeni: your father, does he have his health? Huseeni answered him: my father has his health.’
ndila ya kheeri ‘the road to good deeds, blessings’
- kheeri n. good deeds, blessings, health, peace
Huseeni/ chimjiiba/ ka adabu/ kuwa waawaye/ na kheerize. ‘Huseeni answered with good manners that his father had his health.’

Huseeni/ naayé/ shfunga safari/ ye/ na mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ waa ye/ muzilo ka majini/ chendra naaye/ ka waawaye/ wachiloozanya/ wachi’iisha/ karka kheeri/ na furahá. ‘Huseeni set out on a journey, he and the daughter of the sultan, the one whom he bought from jinns, and he went with her to her father’s; they were married, they lived in peace and happiness.’

Muunt^{bu}/ uyu/ chimuza Huseeni/ waawo/ na kheerize/ so/ Huseeni/ chimjiiba/ waawe/ na kheerize. ‘This man asked Huseeni: your father, does he have his health? Huseeni answered him: my father has his health.’

ndila ya kheeri ‘the road to good deeds, blessings’

kheeri

better

Basi/ mi/ anakuwoná/ kuwa ni kheeri/ yiitu/ si/ khfuunga/ safari/ kendra mahala/ ije/ itaakuwó. ‘Therefore I think that it is better for us to pack and go any other place that be (other than this place).’

ka kheeri ‘in comfort, comfortably’

Wa’ishiize/ ka kheeri/ ka furaha. ‘They lived together comfortably and happily.’

ka kheeri/ ka fulkheeri ‘with blessings and blessings’

Waliko muke mooyi/ na mubli mooyi/ walozeenye/ ka kheeri/ ka fulkheeri. ‘A woman and a man married one another with blessings and blessings.’

Karkaa khaṭi/ chaandika/ bwana sulṭaani/ mi/ apa/ aakhera/ na kheerizá/ na afiyazá. ‘In the letter he wrote: Mr. Sultan, I, here in the hereafter, have my goodness and my health.’

Kheeri/ endra skolaani. ‘Better that you go to school.’

Kheeri/ jaa mazu. ‘It is better for you to eat bananas.’ Or: Jaa mazu/ kheeri.

Kheeri/ laala/ haba mooyi. ‘It is better to sleep a little.’

Kheeri/ mi/ chiza kuula. ‘It is better that I not buy (it).’

Kheeri/ mpe Nuuru. ‘(It is) better/ that you give it to Nuuru’ (Notice that kheeri does not trigger pseudo-relativization: Kheeri/ mpe Nuuru. is ill-formed.)

Kheeri/ ni/ chiza kuula. ‘It is better for you (pl.) not to buy (it).’

Kheeri/ ni/ suleeni. ‘It is better you not buy (it).’

Kheeri/ numba iyi. ‘This house is better.’ Or: Numba iyi/ kheeri. ‘It is this house which is better.’

Kheeri/ spiké. ‘It is better you not cook.’

Kheeri/ spikeeni. ‘It is better you (pl.) not cook.’ (Note the use here of the second person plural negative imperative. The second person plural negative subjunctive was deemed weird by our consultant GM: Kheeri/ sinpiké.

Kheeri/ stalee mi. ‘It is better that I not take (it).’

Kheeri/ sulee me. ‘It’s better that I not buy (it).’ Or: Kheeri/ mi/ suule.

Kheeri/ suleení. ‘It is better you (pl.) don’t buy (it).’ (Note the use here of the second person plural negative imperative. The second person plural negative subjunctive was deemed weird by our consultant GM: Kheeri/ sinuulé.)

Kheeri/ wasuule. ‘It’s better that they not buy (it).’ (Notice the use of the negative subjunctive after kheeri with a third person plural subject.)

Kheeri/ we/ kachiza khtaalá. ‘It is better you did not take (it) out.’ Or: We/ kheeri/ kachiza khtaalá.

Kheeri/ we/ kachiza kuulá. ‘It is better that you did not buy (it).’ Or: We/ kheeri/ kachiza kuulá.

Kheeri/ we/ suulé. ‘Better that you not buy (it).’ (Notice that although this is an environment in which a subjunctive (affirmative or negative) appears, the second person singular form uses the final accent associated with the negative imperative. One cannot say suule.)

Kheeri/ weené. ‘[Lit.] did you see happiness? -- In Brava, the community kept very close social relations; relatives, friends, neighbours, and acquaintances were expected to share their joys and their sad moments and to show their participation by visiting each other on many occasions, which were all considered (waajibu), i.e. social duties, particularly so by women. When one heard about the arrival of a relative or guest in another household, a visit would be required (even when the newcomer was unknown to the visitors). On this occasion the greeting (by the visitor) is: Kheeri/ weené. The obligatory reply is: Attá/ mbele mnené (plural: Attá/ chiwele wanené). ‘Lit. I (we) even became fat.’

Nuuru/ kheeri/ kaajá. ‘It would have been better if Nuuru had eaten.’ Or: Kheeri/ Nuuru/ kaajá.

Nuuru/ kheeri/ kaja mazú. ‘It would have been better if Nuuru had eaten bananas.’ Or: Kheeri/ Nuuru/ kaja mazú.

Si/ / chimpendelee/ Omari/ kheeri/ ka kaaziye/ mp’hiya. ‘We wish Omari well in his new position/job.’

Sultaani/ shfurahaa ntho/ kumwona mwanaamkewe/ umo karka kheeri. ‘The sultan rejoiced very much to see that his daughter was in good condition.’

Waawo/ na maamó/ naawó/ wana kheri zaawo/ wana afiya zaawo. ‘Your father and your mother also have their goodness, have their health.’

kheyraati

n. pl.

khibra

n. 9 experience

Abunawaasi/ we/ ni muunt^hu/ mwenye akhili/ munt^hu nayo khibrá/ na ma’arifá. ‘Abunawaasi, you are a man possessing intelligence, a man having experience and knowledge.’

Mi/ nayoo khibrá/ kabisá/ khinda go’aani/ ni chint^hu gani/ saha/ khfaanya. ‘I am quite competent to decide what is the right thing to do.’

Muusa/ peete/ kaazi/ haali/ nthanayo khibra=y-é. ‘Muusa got the job even though he had no qualifications.’

Mzele wa muuyi/ nthaná/ khibra/ ya khfanya chiint^hu/ na msiiba/ uyu. ‘The mayor is not competent to deal with this crisis.’

Omari/ nayo kibra/ ya kudafi’a ruuhuye. ‘Omari is quite competent at defending himself.’

Omari/ nthakuhisa/ kuwa nayo khibra/ ya khfanya kaazi. ‘Omari did not feel competent to do the job.’

Sa’iidi/ pete khibra/ niingi/ na zimzidilile akhili. ‘Sa’iidi gained experience and wits increased to him.’

Wo/ hufanya yaa mi/ huwa’ambilo khfaanya/ ka sababu/ mi/ mbarete ka khibrá. ‘They do what I tell them to do because I’ve learned from experience.’

khilaafana

v. rec. (-khilafeene) disagree with one another khilaafu

n. difference of opinion, friction, misunderstanding

Hamadi/ na Omari/ yingile khilaafu/ kati kaawo/ wazelee/ wa’ingiló/ i-bishila faataha /wapatanishiize. ‘Hamadi and Omari had arguments/disputes, elders got in the middle and read faataha and they were reconciled.’

Nthamu khilaafu/ kati kiitu. ‘There is no friction among us.’

Yimo khilaafu/ kati kaawo. ‘There is friction among them.’

khira

v. [Sw. kiri SED 205; Som. qir (past: qiray) ‘to admit, accept as truth’ and qiro (past: qirtay) ‘to confess’ DSI 498] (khiriile) agree, accept, acknowledge, admit, confess, permit

Abubakari/ khiriile kumwulila Nuuru/ gaari. ‘Abubakari has agreed to buy a car for Nuuru.’ Or with verb focus: Abubakari/ khiriile/ kumwulila Nuuru/ gaari. Or with pronominal subject in lower clause: Abubakari/ khiriile/ ye/ kumwulila Nuuru/ gaari. ‘Abubakari agreed he to buy a car for Nuuru.’ Or with pronominal repetition in main clause subject position: Abubakari/ ye/ khiriile/ kumwulila Nuuru/ gaari. Observe the unacceptability of phrasing pronominal with main verb: Abubakari/ khiriile ye/ kumwulila Nuuru/ gaari.

Ali/ khiriile kooloka. ‘Ali agreed to go.’

Ali/ khiriile kuwaa ye/ waliko chinemaani. ‘Ali admitted that he was at the cinema.’

Asadi/ khiriile/ mi/ kumwulila Nuuru/ gaari. ‘Asadi agreed for me to buy a car for Nuuru.’ (The pronominal subject of the lower clause, when it is not co-referential with the subject of the main clause, may be phrased together with the higher verb: Asadi/ khiriilee mi/ kumwulila Nuuru/ gaari. ‘Asadi agreed for me to buy a car for Nuuru.)

Attá/ leelo/ mwanaa masultaani/ hakhiiri/ ba/ kuja. ‘Until one day, the child of sultans was not eating [lit. was not accepting to eat].’

Baaba/ chimwaambila/ kuwaa ye/ tampa/ yaa ye/ nakhsuuló/ kamaa ye/ shkhira khkalanᵀᵀa numbaani. ‘Father told him that he would give him anything that he wanted if he agreed to remain at home.’

Chikhaambila/ kuwaa ye/ nakhsuᵀᵀa khuloola/ we/ tamkhiira.

Hakhiiri/ ni maali. (A proverb.)

Ka isa/ mi/ jawabu ᵀᵀyo/ (mi/) nkhiriiᵀᵀé. ‘As of now, that matter I accept.’ (Note that GM elides the first person singular subject marker in front of kh) khira ᵀᵀambi ‘to confess a misdeed’

Khiriᵀᵀe ᵀᵀambize. ‘He confessed his sins.’

khira makosa ‘to accept one’s mistakes’

khira ziwovu ‘to confess wrongdoings’ khiraani Mooja wiitu kuwa waahidi [st.] ‘you (pl.) accept that our God is only one’; variant: kumkhiira Mooja wiitu kuwa waahidi/ na Mhamadi ni mtumewe ni shaahidi [st.] ‘(the first pillar is) to believe that (our) God is One and Muhammad is His Prophet and witness’

Khiriᵀᵀe kula gaari. ‘He agreed to buy a car.’ (Syn. This verb may have an infinitival complement if the subject of the complement is identical to the subject of khiira. It is ungrammatical to say: Khiriᵀᵀe Muusa/ kula gaari. ‘He agreed for Muusa to buy a car.’) recheck this claim

Khiriᵀᵀe kuwa Muusa/ ni mwalimu msuura. ‘He agreed that Muusa is a good teacher.’

Kumpa Nuuru/ zibuuku/ nkhiriiᵀᵀé. ‘To give Nuuru books, I agreed.’

Kumpa Nuuru/ tu/ zibuuku/ nkhiriiᵀᵀó (or: nkhiriiᵀᵀé). ‘To give only Nuuru books, I agreed.’ (Notice that a focused element inside a preposed infinitive phrase optionally triggers pseudo-relativization of the following main verb.)

Kumpa Nuuru/ zibuuku/ tu/ nkhiriiᵀᵀó (or: nkhiriiᵀᵀé). ‘To give Nuuru only books I agreed.’ (Notice that a focused element inside a preposed infinitive phrase optionally triggers pseudo-relativization of the following main verb.)

Mi/ nkhiriiᵀᵀé. ‘I accepted.’

Mweenza/ nk^hiriᵀᵀé/ kuwa mukeewe. ‘My friend, I agree to be his wife.’

Mzeele/ shkhiira. ‘The old man agreed (to the proposal).’

Nimkhiriiᵀᵀé/ Nuuru/ kuya numbaani/ kaaka/ kuja naami. ‘I agreed for Nuuru to come to my house to eat with me.’

Nkhiriiᵀᵀé/ kula numba. ‘I agreed to buy the house.’ Or: Nkhiriiᵀᵀé/ numba/ kuula. Or: Numba/ kuula/ nkhiriiᵀᵀé. Or: Numba/ nkhiriiᵀᵀé/ kuula.

Nkhiriiᵀᵀe kumpa Nuuru/ peesá. ‘I agreed to give Nuuru money. Or with word order change, but no internal focus: Nkhiriiᵀᵀe kumpa peesá/ Nuuru. ‘I agreed to give money to Nuuru.’ Or with emphasis on the verb: Nkhiriiᵀᵀé/ kumpa Nuuru/ peesa. ‘I agreed to give Nuuru money.’ Or: Nkhiriiᵀᵀé/ kumpa/ Nuuru/ peesa. ‘I agreed to give Nuuru money.’ Or, with focus on Nuuru: Nkhiriiᵀᵀe kumpa Nuuru/ peesa. ‘I agreed to give Nuuru money.’ Or with emphasis on infinitive complement verb: Nkhiriiᵀᵀe kumpá/ Nuuru/ peesa. ‘I agreed to give Nuuru money.’ Or with preposing of Nuuru but no focus: Nkhiriiᵀᵀe Nuuru/ kumpa peesá. ‘I agreed Nuuru to give money.’

Nkhiriiᵀᵀe kumpa Nuuru/ peesá/ keesho. ‘I agreed to give Nuuru money.’

(Notice that the time adverbial typically is outside the scope of the final accent triggered by the first person verb. If final accent does extend to the adverbial, then the adverbial is being focused: Nkhiriiᵀᵀe kumpa Nuuru/ peesá/ keeshó. Cf. the case where the verb is focused: Nkhiriiᵀᵀé/ kumpa Nuuru/ peesa/ keesho.)

Nkhiriiᵀᵀé) kula numba. ‘I agreed to buy a house.’ Or: Nkhiriiᵀᵀé/ numba/ kuula.

Nkhiriiᵀᵀé) kumulila Nuuru/ faᵀᵀuura. ‘I agreed to buy a car for Nuuru.’ Or: Nkhiriiᵀᵀé) faᵀᵀuura/ kumulila Nuuru. Or: Kumulila Nuuru/ faᵀᵀuura/ nkhiriiᵀᵀé. (Note that it is not possible for the main verb to have an OM controlled by a complement of the infinitive: Ni’ikhiriᵀᵀé/ faᵀᵀuura/ kumulile Nuuru. Also not: Nimkhiriiᵀᵀé/ Nuuru/ kumulile faᵀᵀuura. ‘I agreed him Nuuru to buy a car for him.’)

Nnakhsuᵀᵀa khiirá. ‘I want to accept.’

Nt^h anakhsuula/ khira ðambize. ‘He does not want to confess his sins.’

Oloka/ mwaabile/ kuwaa mi/ nimkhiriiḷé. ‘Go and tell him that I accept him (in marriage).’

Omari/ khiriḷe/ kumpa Nuuru/ peesa. ‘Omari agreed to give Nuur money.’ Or:
Omari/ khiriḷe Muusa/ kumwuliḷa Nuuru/ gaari. ‘Omari agreed for Muusa to buy a car for Nuuru.’

Omari/ khiriḷe/ Nuuru/ kumpa Hasani/ peesa. ‘Omari agreed to Nuuru giving Hasani money.’

Shar’a/ hukhira wabli/ tu/ kuhaaḍira. ‘The rules permit only men to be present.’

Shkhirile kuwa shṭakendra numbaani/ ba’adi ya chineemá. ‘We agreed that we would go home after the movie.’

Sho khiira/ khshindroowa/ si mshindraani. ‘The one who does not accept being beaten is not a fighter.’ (A proverb.)

Si/ hashkhiiri/ waana/ khteza ndilaani. ‘We won’t permit children playing in the street.’

Sukhuuni/ baaba/ chimpataa muke/ khiriḷo khkala na mwaanawé. ‘At the market father found a woman who agreed to live with his child.’

Sultaani/ wa karaayle/ chimjiiba/ kuwaa ye/ siwo/ takhiiró/ mambo ayo. ‘The king of the crows answered that he would not agree to this proposal [lit. these matters].’ (The use of the pseudo-relative form takhiiró in this example is not one that we have encountered elsewhere in MI’s speech, but both the final vowel o and the final accent indicate clearly that the verb has been cast into a relative form. However, the fact that the verb is at the end of a phonological phrase and final accent does not extend past this phrase to mambo ayo clearly indicates a pseudo-relative verb rather than a true relative clause. Remember, true relatives are not subject to the Accentual Law of Focus while pseudo-relative verbs are.)

Wote/ washkhiira. ‘All of them agreed.’

rel.

khiiirika v. p/s.

khiiirila v. appl. (khiriḷiḷe) permit, authorize

Abú/ mkhiriḷiḷe mwaanawe/ kendra Mwiini. ‘Abu permitted his son to go to Brava.’

Muusa/ mkhiriḷiḷe Ali/ kula gaari. ‘Muusa authorized Ali to buy a car.’

Omari/ mkhiriḷiḷe Muusa/ kumwuliḷa Nuuru/ gaari. ‘Omari permitted Muusa to buy a car for Nuuru.’

Omari/ mkhiriḷiḷe Nuuru/ keendra. ‘Omari permitted Nuuru to go.’

Omari/ mkhiriḷiḷe Nuuru/ kumpa Hasani/ peesa. ‘Omari allowed Nuuru to give Hasani money.’

khiriḷoowa v. appl. pass. (khiriḷiḷa) be permitted, allowed

Si/ nt^hashkukhiriḷoowa/ khkooḍa. ‘We were not permitted to speak.’

Ye/ haṭá/ chaakuja/ chisuura/ nt^h anakhiriḷoowa. ‘He is not even allowed good food.’

khiiirisha v. caus. (khiriḷiḷe) make someone accept

Nt^ha’ikuwaaliko/ waaḍehe/ ka kilaa lamna/ tarafu ya jisa kumkhirisha Baazi. ‘It was by no means clear how to go about getting Baazi to agree.’

khiriḷishana v. caus. rec.

khiriḷishika v. caus. p/s.

khiriḷishiliza v. caus. appl.

khiriḷishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

khiiirsisha v. caus. (khiriḷiḷe) make someone confess (The s element in this example seems to be based on a s element in the Somali verbal system. Cf.

qirsan (past: qirsanaa) “to have pleaded guilty” DSI 498.)

khiiroowa v. pass. (khiriḷiḷa) be accepted

Gari izi/ skhiriḷa kulilowa Nuuru. ‘These cars were accepted to be bought for Nuuru.’ (The infinitive verb in the complement clause in this sentence is a passive version of a benefactive applied verb. In the case of a main clause benefactive applied verb, only the beneficiary can be made the subject of a passive version of that verb. Notice, however, that gari izi ‘these cars’ is the passive subject of the main verb –khiira. Gari izi is actually a non-benefactive argument of the infinitive verb. It does not seem possible to argue that gari izi was able to become the subject of the higher passive verb because it had been made the subject of the lower verb and then been “raised” to object position.)

Zibuuku/ skhiriila/ khpishoowa. ‘Books were agreed to be burned.’ Or:
Zibuuku/ khpishoowa/ skhiriila./ Or: Skhiriila/ khpishoowa/ zibuuku. Or: Khpishoowa/ skhuriila/ zibuuku.
(The variant word-orders were volunteered by GM. They do not represent all the word orders/phrasings possible.)

- khisa because
We/ nakhsula kump^helekaa mi/ kufa/ tu/ khisa/ we/ na’iwá/ kuwaa mi/ siwo/ dakhtari/ walá/ siisi/ khfanyiliza waant^hu/ dawa. ‘You just want to send me to die, because you know that I am not a doctor and neither do I know how to treat people medically.’
- khitaamu n. complete; the last (cf. khaatima) ilu ya mtume mustafa salaamu/ khitaamu shteenzi cha sala timaamu [st.] ‘upon the Prophet, the chosen, be peace; the end of the poem of prayers is complete’ ya mitume yote ndiye khitaamu =[st.] ‘of all the prophets he is the last’
- khiyaalisha v. (khiyalishiize) imagine Khiyalishize kuwaa ye/ takhfunoowa. ‘He imagined that he would be imprisoned.’
- khiyaama n. [Sw. kiyama “the general resurrection of the dead as conceived by Muhammadans” SSED 213] the hereafter
- khiyaana n. 9/10 (cf. khaa’ini) [Ar. kiyāna W 266] trick, deceit, betrayal, treason, cheating, falseness, treachery, deception, breach of faith khfanya khiyaana ‘to betray, cheat’ Muunt^hu/ shfanya khiyaana/ humdhiba yeeye. ‘When one cheats, one hurts oneself.’
Ni khiyaana/ nk^hulu. ‘It is a big betrayal.’
rel.
u-khiyaana n. betrayal
- khiyaansata v. (khiyanseete) cheat, betray, deceive’ Mweenzawo/ simkhiyaansate. ‘Your friend, do not cheat him.’ (A proverbial saying.)
We/ nkhiyanseete. ‘You deceived me.’
rel.
khiyansatika v. p/s. be betrayed, cheated
- khiyaari n. [Ar.] choice huvuunda milaango wanaayo khiyaari [nt.] ‘they break doors at their will’ khkoða ka khiyaari ‘to speak voluntarily, freely’
We/ nayo khiyaari/ khkoða/ kuhada/ yaa ye/ nakhsuuló. ‘You have the right to say whatever you want to say.’
Nt^haná/ khiyaari. ‘He has no choice.’
- khiyaarisha v. caus. (khiyarishiize) give a choice
- khiyaasi n. measurement, estimation Fardoosa/ pimiile/ haanzu/ laakini/ siwo/ khiyaasiye. ‘Fardoosa tried on the dress, but it did not fit her.’
khiyasi gani ‘how many?’
- khiza v. [Sw. hizi SSED 135; Ar.] (khiziize) disgrace, curse Mojiitu/ nakhukhiza. ‘May God curse you!’
Mojiitu/ nakhukhiza/ ka duniyaani/ na akherá. ‘May God curse you in this world’

- and in the thereafter!’
- Omari/ hukhiza waant^hu. ‘Omari disgraces people.’
rel.
khizika v. p/s. (-khizishile) be disgraced, cursed Omari/ khizishile. ‘Omari got disgraced.’
khizoowa v. pass. be disgraced, cursed Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ hukhizoowa. ‘For a person to be disgraced is not good.’
- khizaaya n. [Sw. hizaya SSED 135; Ar.] disgrace, curse
- khoofa v. [Sw. hofu SSED 135; Ar.] (khofeele) fear
rel.
khofoowa v. pass.
Siimba/ mba khofoowa. ‘A lion is something to be afraid of.’
- khoofu n. [Sw. hofu SSED 135; Ar.] fear
khfanya khoofu ‘to frighten’ Omari/ hadiile/ Mwiini/ zikoo zita/ inakunfanya khoofu/ kooloka. ‘Omari said there is fighting in Miini, it scares me to go.’
khshika khoofu ‘to be gripped by fear’; also: khshikowa khoofu (passive) Huseeni/ hadiile/ maskuu kati/ nk^hasize koođi/ ibanyaani/ nshishila khoofu/ nt^hosheze ni majini/ laakini/ yaliko waant^hu/ washpitó. ‘Huseeni said: at midnight I heard talking outside, I got afraid, I thought it was demons, but it was people who were passing.’ (It is important to point out that in the speech of Gelani Mohamed, the first person singular subject marker N- actually elides in front of voiceless consonants and does not aspirate a following voiceless stop. Thus the three first person forms in this example were actually pronounced kasize..., shishila..., and tosheze... These pronunciations stand in stark contrast to Mohammad Imam, who retained the nasal consonant in such forms and aspirated a voiceless stop. We do not know to what extent Gelani Mohamed’s pronunciation is characteristic of present day speech. In this book we have always transcribed examples from Mohammad Imam with the nasal, but have been inconsistent with respect to Gelani Mohamed’s examples. Writing the nasal does, of course, help identify a form as first person. In the present example, of course, the accent also reliably indicates first person.)
Laakini/ Sa’iidi/ imfanyize/ khoofu/ chimwaambila/ mi/ skhaadiri/ khpanda mloongoti/ uyu/ ka khisa/ ni mweembaamba/ hawkhaadiri/ kunt^hukula. ‘But Sa’iidi was seized by fear and he told her, I am not able to climb this mast because it is (too) thin and cannot carry me.’
Nuuru/ hadiile/ mi/ nuumba/ masku/ ichiwa ni miinza/ hushikowa khoofu. ‘Nuuru said: me, if the house is dark at night, it makes me afraid.’
khtilowa khoofu ‘to be frightened by’
Waant^hu/ watila khoofu/ na saahera. ‘People were frightened by the witch.’
khtila khoofu ‘to frighten [lit. instill fear]’ Saahera/ watile waant^hu/ khoofu. ‘The witch frightened people.’
kingilowa na khoofu ‘to be afraid [lit. to be entered by fear]’ Nuuru/ ingila na khoofu. ‘Nuuru was afraid.’
kingila khoofu ‘to be afraid [lit. enter fear]’ Nuuru/ imwingile khoofu. ‘Nuuru was afraid.’
kuwanayo khoofu ‘to fear’
Siná/ faza’a/ siná/ khoofu. ‘I have neither fear nor dread.’
- khookha v. [cf. Som. qooq ‘to be sexually aroused, said of an animal’] (khokheele) become arrogant; become sexually aroused (but not by virtue of direct sexual stimulation) Muunt^hu/ shkookha/ hukabilowaa muke. ‘If a man becomes sexually active, he should be added/ given a wife.’ (A proverb.)
rel.
khookhisha v. caus. (khokhishiize)
Ji/ mkhokhishize mwaana. ‘Ji caused the child to become arrogant.’
khokhishana v. caus. rec.

khokhishika v. caus. p/s. khokhishiliza v. caus. appl.
khokhishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

- khookhi n. arrogance; adj. arrogant kuwa khookhi 'to be arrogant' Wele khookhi. 'He is arrogant.'
Ni munt^hu khookhi. 'He is an arrogant person.'
- khookhisha v. caus. (khokhishiize) make haughty, proud, arrogant
- i-kholi n. palm leaf bag
Ka jis'iyoy wachimfanyiliza ikholi/ wachimtila katiike/ wachimtukula.
'For [doing] that, they made a mat-bag, and they put her in it, and they carried her.'
khshoma ikholi 'to stitch together a palm bag' kh^tukula ka ikholi 'to carry with a palm bag'
- i-kholoofu (mi-) n. 5/4 the outer covering of s.t. (like the shell of an animal) ikholofu yaa mazu 'the cover of a banana'
- kholow ideo. [Som. qolow] of the ringing of the bells on a camel's yoke Ikora (y)angamiila/ inakula/ kholow kholow. 'The yoke of the camel is crying kholow kholow.'
- khoomu n. community, tribe, society, group of people Oyo/ ni khomu Luuti. 'That one is a homosexual (i.e. a member of the tribe of Lot).'
- khora v. (khoree^{le}) scratch khora khalamu 'to sharpen a pencil' Omari/ khore^{le} khalamu. 'Omari sharpened a pencil.'
khora^a luti 'to sharpen a stick' khora lwawo 'to whittle a piece of wood' Omari/ khore^{le} gaari. 'Omari scratched the car.'
rel.
khorana v. rec. (-koreene) scratch one another Gaari/ skoreene. 'The cars scratched one another.'
khoreka v. p/s. be scratched Ha'ikhoreki. 'It cannot be scratched.'
Mkonowe/ ukhoreshele. 'My arm is scratched.'
- khoreka v. lose weight, get, grow thin Sku izi/ oyo/ nakhoreka/ tu. 'These days that one is just getting thinner and thinner.'
- khori n. [Som. qor "wood or object made of wood" DSI 502] (colloquial) gun, rifle.
khori AK 'an AK gun'
khori/ M16 'an M16 rifle' Omari/ tukilee khori/ M16. 'Omari is carrying an M16 rifle.'
khori ow^toma^tik 'an automatic gun' kumbiga kaa khori 'to shoot s.o.'
Ali/ mbishile Omari/ kaa khori. 'Ali shot (lit. hit) Omari with a gun.'
Tukilee khori. 'He is carrying a gun.'
Tuuma/ uzilee khori/ ka Omari. 'Tuuma bought a gun from Omari.'
Tuuma/ uzile khori ya Omari. 'Tuuma bought Omari's gun.' Or: Tuuma/ uzilee khori/ ya Omari. Or: Tuuma/ uzile Omari/ khoriye.
- khoori n. [Som. khoori "gulf, bay, canal" DSI 367] lagoon or deep waters Khoori/ imteete. 'Deep water took him – i.e. he drowned.'
mayi khoori 'deep water'

	Potele khoriiini. ‘He fell in deep water.’
khorsha	n. [Som. qorsha] plan, proposal; var. khorsho Abú/ iize/ khorsho iyo. ‘Abu objected to the proposal.’ khfanya khorsha ‘to plan’ Mi/ nfanyize khorshá/ kumnola Haliimá. ‘I planned to marry Haliima.’ Mi/ nfanyize khorshá/ shiri/ kumala khabla ya masku. ‘I planned for the meeting to end before evening.’ Muke/ uzilo muundrá/ nakhfanya khorsha/ kalaa gele. ‘The woman who has bought the farm is planning to cultivate maize.’ Si/ shfanyize khorshá/ kudirkamana shpiindri. ‘We planned to meet each other at noon.’ Wo/ wafanyize khorsha/ kuḷawa fijiri. ‘They planned to leave in the morning.’ Khorsha yiiitu/ ni kuḷawa masku/ Mwiiini. ‘Our plan is to stay overnight in Brava.’ Mi/ nayo khorshá/ kumalizaa zita. ‘I have a plan to end the fighting.’ Mi/ nonyeezé/ kuwa khorsha/ wa Omari/ ha’unajihii. ‘I showed that Omari’s plan would not be successful.’
khoowamu	n. crowd
khpala	n. padlock, lock khpala ya baskiili ‘bicycle lock’ Khpala ya mlaango/ iboozela. ‘The lock of the door was stolen.’ kubiga khpala ‘to lock’ Bishile khpala. ‘He locked up.’
ku-khtari’a	v. (with an initial i vowel in the past: ikhṭari’iile) invent khtima	n. a reading of the Quran by a group of people for a specific purpose khfanya khtima ‘to perform khtima ’ khsoma khtima ‘to read the Quran in its entirety’
-khu-	second person singular object prefix Adabu/ inakhuṭoshe. ‘Behave [lit. good manners should suffice you].’ Basi/ chimwaambila/ nini/ ikhuleselo apá. ‘So he asked her: what brought you here?’ Basi/ mp^ha riyali mooyi/ naami/ nt^hakhupikila chaakuja/ na nt^hakhupa/ mahala/ yaa we/ kulaala. ‘Well, give me one riyal and I will cook food for you and I will give you a place where you can sleep.’ chikhaambila/ kuwaa ye/ nakhsula khuloola ‘if he were to say to you that he wants to marry you’ Chaakuja/ chikhufuṭiile. ‘You missed a lot of food [lit. food missed you]!’ khuja ‘to eat you’ Habba/ow wiingi/ watakhukahata. ‘Few or many will hate you.’ khupashilo waandrá ‘the one who has applied makeup (special black makeup applied only to eyelashes and eyelids) to you’ Maambo/ yakhufuṭiiló. ‘What excitement you missed!’ Mi/ siná/ chaakuja/ cha khupaa we. ‘I have no food to give you.’ Mi/ skhaadiri/ khupa peesa. ‘I am not able to give you money.’ Nakhuwona. ‘He sees you.’ Nk^ha’oloká/ sula khuwona. ‘If I went, I would see you.’ Siná/ unga wa khufanyiliza baskuuti. ‘I do not have flour with which to make cookies for you.’ Sikhupi. ‘I will not give it to you.’ Wakhuloosele. ‘They dreamed about you.’ Waant^hu/ awo/ wachiruuda/ watakhutukula/ khupeleka muyiini/ khufanya sulṭaani. ‘When those people return, they will carry you to town to make you sultan.’

Yachikhupata/ waant^hu/ wotte/ huhuzunika. ‘When it gets you. All people become sad.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is maradi ‘sickness’.)

khubura

- v. [Sw. hubiri SSED 121; Ar.] (khuburiile) inform, tell
- Awa wa mwiisho/ naawó/ hukhubura wazele waawo. ‘The latter [i.e. the parents of the bride-to-be] then inform their clan elders.’
- Basi/ chilawa/ chendra ka mukeewe/ chimkhubura. ‘So he left and went to his wife and informed her.’
- Chimkhubura kuwaa ye/ mereja na mubli. ‘She informed him that she was being sought for marriage by a man.’
- Chimkhubura mweenzawe/ maskiini/ kuwa uko ndilaani/ ni waziri wa sulṭaani. ‘He informed his friend the poor man that the one who was outside was the minister of the sultan.’
- Chimwona Haliima/ tamkhubura. ‘If I see Haliima, I will tell him.’
- Endrá/ mkhubure. ‘Go and inform him!’
- Hasani/ mkhuburile Omari/ tarafu ya matezo. ‘Hasani informed Omari about the game.’ (Cf. Nimkhuburile Omari tarafu ya matezo. ‘I informed Omari about the game.’)
- Hasani/ nkhuburile jawabuu mbovu. ‘Hasani informed me of the bad news.’ Or: Hasani/ nkhuburilee mi/ jawabuu mbovu.
- Mkulu/ wa makhaadimu/ oloshelopo ka usinziziini/ chiwona kuwa nt^heendre/ zijiila/ ye/ shfakaṭa/ chimkhubura mwaana. ‘When the chief of the servants awoke from sleep and saw that the dates had been eaten, he ran and informed the boy.’
- Mtumishi/ cheendra/ chimkhubura mmamulaṭaa nt^hi. ‘The servant went and informed the caretaker of the land.’
- Muke/ chimkhubura Sa’iidi/ mambo yotté/ yaṭamiṭiló/ keeshó. ‘The woman informed Sa’iidi of all the mishaps that would afflict him tomorrow.’ (The final accent in the phrase mambo yotte is not understood at present. In the course of our investigation, there were other cases where the head of a relative clause received final accent, though the more typical case was for the head to have default accent.)
- Mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ wenopo zimpeto Hasani/ shṭukulika maraa piili/ cheenda/ ka waawaye/ chimkhubura/ jisa Hasani/ nakhfanyoowa. ‘The daughter of the sultan, when she saw what had befallen Hasani, she took herself a second time to her father and informed him how Hasani was being treated.’
- Nakhukhuburá/ (kuwa) Omari/ nt^hanakuuya/ numbaani. ‘I am informing you that Omari is not coming to the house.’ Or with emphasis on Omari:
- Nakhukhubura kuwa Omari/ nt^hanakuuya/ numbaani.
- Nakhukhubura kuwa Omari/ takuya numbaani. ‘I am informing you that Omari will come home.’ (The main verb here is one that triggers final accent. Observe that it is quite natural for this accent to extend to the end of the complement clause, provided there is no interfering focus/emphasis.)
- Rudile muyiini/ khubura weenzawe. ‘He returned to the town to inform his friends (of what he had found).’
- Waawé/ siná/ wakhṭi/ walá/ sinakuwona/ kuwa mi suura/ kinkhubura kaa khaṭi/ stulushilo apá. ‘Father, I do not have time nor do I think that it is good to inform you by letter what has happened here.’ (Observe that in kinkhubura, the speaker uses the plural form of the second person object prefix when addressing her father.)
- We/ kana/ shṭahaja ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ nkhubura. ‘If you need anything, let me know.’
- Yaasini/ mkhuburile Hamadi/ koḍi ziiitu. ‘Yaasini informed Hamadi as to what we spoke about [lit. our words].’

rel.

khuburika v. p/s.

Hamadi/ hakhuburiki chiint^hu. ‘Hamadi cannot be told anything (e.g. he will not keep anything a secret).’

Kođi izi/ haskhuburiki waant^hu. ‘These matters are not anything you can tell people about.’

khuburisha v. caus. (-khuburishiize) cause s.o. to spread news

Jaabiri/ khurubishize kođi. ‘Jaabiri caused the news to spread.’

Jaabiri/ mkhurubishize Yaasini/ kođi. ‘Jaabiri caused Yaasini to spread the news (to people).’

khuburishana v. caus. rec.

khuburishika v. caus. p/s.

khuburishiliza v. caus. appl.

khuburishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

khuburoowa v. pass.

Hamadi/ khurubiła kođi ziitu. ‘Hamadi was informed about what we said [lit. our words].’ (Note that one cannot have kođi as the subject of the passive sentence: Kođi ziitu/ skhuburila Hamadi. ‘Our words were reported to Hamadi.’)

khuduma

v. [Sw. hudumu SSED 122; Ar.] serve s.o.

kumkhuduma mwaana ‘to serve the child’

Sultaani/ shkumaanganya/ watumawe/ wataanawe/ na ma’askariwé/ na kiła/ chimkhudumó/ ye/ chiwa’ambila/ wo/ kumtji’a/ sultani waawo/ mpiya. ‘The sultan gathered together his servants, his slaves, and his soldiers, and each one who served him, he told them to obey their new sultan.’

rel.

khudumila v. appl. (khudumiljile)

khudumisha v. caus. (khudumishiize)

khuđaari

n. [Ar. kud□ar "greens, vegetables" pl. of kud□ra W 243; also Ar. kad□ār "greens"] vegetables

Omari/ jile/ khuđaari/ laakini/ nt^haakuja/ ismu/ ya chint^hu chiingine. ‘Omari ate the vegetables, but he did not eat anything else.’

khuđra

n. vegetables

khuđuru

only recorded in the following example:

Mi/ siwo/ aduwi/ nakhumero khuđuru. ‘I am not an enemy who seeks to harm you.’

khuđurunji

n. [Sw. hudhurungi SSED 136; Ar.] yellowish brown

khufu

n. 9/10 sock

jogi ya khufu ‘a pair of socks’

Khufu izi/ nza naani. ‘Whose socks are these?’

khufu ya mkono ‘glove [lit. sock of the hand]’

Muunt^hu/ chosha zoombo/ suura/ kuvala khufu za mikono/ kuhafiđa mikono/ na jeermi. ‘When one is washing things, it is good to wear gloves to keep the hands safe from germs.’

Laazimu/ kuumisha/ khufuzo/ nt^hasaa we/ kuvala. ‘You have to dry out your socks before wearing them.’

Skaarpa/ suura/ kuvalilowaa khufu/ hureba huuri. ‘It is good to wear shoes with socks, it stops sweating.’

khulaasa

review the nature of the l

ka khulaasi ‘in brief’

Ka khulaasa/ ni đaruura/ khsooma/ khpata khpita imtihaani. ‘In brief, it is important to study in order to pass an exam.’

- khula n. [cf. Som. quluc] calabash (a pumpkin dried in the sun and then emptied) for carrying liquids Kharibu ya mishpa/ iwalikoo khula/ nt^hupu/ na khamdí/ katiike/ iwalimo shtupa cha daawa/ na mbarakhá. ‘Near the bones was an empty calabash and a leather bag in which there was a bottle of ink and sheets of paper.’
Maamaye/ chimfanyiliza/ mikate/ saba/ chimpa naa khulá/ ya maayi/ na izijé/ shilingi thalathiini/ za sulṭaani/ mpeeló. ‘His mother made seven cakes for him and gave him as well a container of water and those thirty shillings that the sultan had given him.’ (The prosody of this example is a bit intricate. In the phrase chimpa naa khulá, it is the conjunction na that triggers final accent. The na+NP construction used here conveys the meaning ‘NP also’. The final accents in na izijé/ shilingi thalathiini are also triggered by the conjunction na, which here is used in its ordinary sense of ‘and’. The final accent in mpeeló is, of course, the final accent associated with a relative clause.)
- khulaamu n. [Som. qulaan; Hindi gulaam] jack (in a deck of cards)
- khumoowa v. pass. [Sw. ghumia, but pass. verb ghumiwa used in same sense SSED 115; Ar.] (khumiila) faint, lose consciousness
Diini/ ka chinaho/ na shtiishó/ shkumoowa. ‘Diini, because of fright and fear, fainted.’
Naayé/ shtuluka/ shkhumoowa. ‘And he fell down and fainted.’
Omari/ khumiila. ‘Omari fainted.’
Waliko tulushile/ khumiila. ‘He had fallen down and fainted.’
- khumusi n. [Sw. humusi SSED 137; Ar.] a fifth part
- khuungula v.
Na nt^haykhuungula/ ila/ ba’ada ya sku. ‘And it did not stop raining except after some days.’
- khuuni n. [Som. qun DSI 505] tonsils Hamadi/ khuunize/ zimfuriile. ‘Hamadi’s tonsils are swollen.’
Hamadi/ nayo maraḍi ya khuuni. ‘Hamadi has tonsillitis (lit. disease of the tonsils).’
khṭinda khuuni ‘to cut the tonsils – i.e. perform tonsillectomy’ khṭindowa khuuni ‘to be cut the tonsils – i.e. to undergo tonsillectomy’ Omari/ nakṭindowa khuuni (or: mikhuuni). ‘Omari is having a tonsillectomy.’
Sheekhi/ nazo khuuni. ‘Sheekhi has tonsils – i.e. his tonsils are swollen, he has tonsillitis.’
rel.
mi-khuuni n. pl.
Mikhuuni/ yanakunlaaza. ‘My tonsils are hurting me.’
Omari/ nayo mikhuuni. ‘Omari had tonsillitis.’
- khunsali (ma-) n. consul or consulate; var. khunsuli khunsali wa Amerikaano ‘American consul’ khunsali wa Misra ‘Egyptian consul’ khunsali wa Ngereenza ‘the British consul’
- khuntha n. [Sw. huntha SSED 138; Ar.] hermaphrodite Aamina/ ni khuntha. ‘Aamina is a hermaphrodite.’
Omari/ ni khuntha. ‘Omari is a hermaphrodite.’
- khura [Sw. kura SSED 231; Ar.] in the phrase:
kubigaa khura [Sw. piga kura] ‘to ask the cards; to toss a coin (in order to decide a matter)’

- khuraa'a n. [Som. quraac] breakfast
Ye/ hanza kiġaa muun^{thi}/ ka kuja khuraa'a/ na weenzawe. 'He begins each day by having breakfast with his friends.'
Ye/ ni 'aadi/ kanza fijiri/ ka khuraa'a/ niingi. 'He typically begins the morning by having a big breakfast.'
- khuraafaati n. 10 [Ar. kurāfa, pl. kurāfāt "superstition, fable, fairy tale" W 235] myths, lies, statements not based on fact or reason, etc.
Omari/ khuraafaati/ niingi. 'Omari his lies are many.'
- khursaṭa v. (khurseete) lose all hope Muun^{thi}/ chiwanayo imaani/ hakhursati/ nahirisi/ ya mojiitu. 'When one has faith he does not give up on God's mercy/kindness.' (A saying.) Nimkhurseete/ maanawa. 'I lost all hope for my child.' (Our consultant preferred to phrase the verb separately. The phrasing: Nimkhurseete maanawá. Was judged to be appropriate as an answer to the question: Mkhurseete naani/ we. 'Whom did you give up all hope for?') Nkhurseete. 'I gave up all hope.'
Osmaani/ mkhurseete/ maanawe. 'Osmaani lost all hope for his child.'
rel.
khursaṭoowa v. pass.
Ka mojiitu/ ha'ikhursaṭoowi/ chiint^{thi}. 'For God there is nothing for which there is no hope.'
Naharisi/ ha'ikhursaṭoowi/ ka mojiitu. 'Mercy from God is never given up on.' (A proverb.)
- khusa v. [Ar. xassa W 240] (khusiize) concern, be about Hayinkhusi. 'It does not concern me/ you.' (Although our orthography does not distinguish these two different meanings, the pronunciation is in fact different. The second person plural object prefix is realized as a coronal sound that is unassimilated to kh whereas the first person object prefix assimilates the point of articulation of kh.)
Hayshkhusi/ si/ keendra/ kumera peesa/ kuwapelekela. 'It does not concern us to go and look for money to send to them.'
Jawabu izo/ haykhukhusi. 'That matter does not concern you.'
khusa na 'be concerned with'
Taliile/ mooḍu'u/ hukhusano na iqtīsaadī. 'He chose a topic concerning the economy.'
Koḍi izi/ hunkhusa. 'These words are about me.'
Mi/ hukhusani/ kazi ya Omari. 'Why does Omari's job concern me?'
Omari/ humkhusa/ jawabu iyo. 'Omari has a concern in that matter.'
Omari/ imkhusiizeni/ jawabu iyo. 'How does that matter concern Omari?'
We/ ikhusiizeni. 'How does it concern you?'
rel.
khusiliza v. appl. (khusiliize)
Jawabu iyo/ Omari/ imkhusiliizeni. 'That matter, how does it concern Omari?'
khusoowa v. pass.
Mi/ sababu gani/ khusowa jawabu iyo. 'For what reason am I concerned in that matter.'
- khushuu'ata v. (khushu'eeṭe) be humble (in a religious context); be immersed in prayers, humble oneself in prayer
Mwambiile/ nuumba/ inakhushuu'ata/ inakusifila mojiitu. 'He told him that the house [was shaking because it] was humbling itself, praising God.' should it be inakhssifila or inakumsifila?
- khushuu'u n. immersement in prayers shkosi na moongo liinganya khushuu'u [st.] 'the neck and the back should be level during the immersement in prayer'

khuusi	v. [Som. quus 'to submerge oneself in water, to dive'] in the expression: kingila khuusi 'to dive' Ingile khuusi/ maraa mbili. 'He dived in twice.' Waank^hulá/ hingila khuusi/ chilawa/ ndrevuze/ huwa nelpe. 'My grandfather dives (into water) and when he emerges, his beard becomes white.' (A riddle, the answer to which is mwiiiko, a wooden spoon used for stirring food, especially zijo, which is white and usually sticks to the mwiiiko.) kubiga khuusi 'to dive'
khusuuma	n. antagonism, hostility Kani/ we/ nayo khusuumá. 'Why do you have enemy (towards me)?' Yimkhusuuma/ kati kaawo. 'There is enemy between them.'
khuuti	n. food khu_{ti} ya waana 'food for children' khu_{ti} ya wazele 'food for old people' kumera khuuti/ yoomu 'to search for one's daily food'
khuṭba	n. 9/10 speech Breshnev/ leelo/ karka khuṭbaye/ wa'ambiile/ marusi/ ya kuwa...ba'ada/ ya miyaaka/ miwili/ ruusya/ takhshiindra/ natakhpita/ ameerika/ ka killa chiint^u. 'Brezhnev today in his speech told the Russians that after two years Russia will surpass and overtake America in all things.' khsoma khuṭba 'to read a speech' kubiga khuṭba 'to make a speech' Leelo/ spiṭoore/ steeshini/ wabigilile ma'askari/ khuṭba. 'Today the inspector at the station made a speech to the soldiers.' Omari/ tarjumile khuṭba ya Hamadi. 'Omari interpreted Hamadi's speech (from one language into another).' Omari/ tarjumile khuṭba ya Hamadi/ ka chingereenza. 'Omari translated Hamadi's speech into English.'
khuṭuba	v. [Sw. hutuba "read the Koran publicly, preach, give an address" SSED 130; Ar.] give a speech (either religious or political in nature) Ali/ khuṭubiile. 'Ali gave a speech.' Karka Suukhu/ Mushtaraki/ mkulu wa Suukhu/ Mushtaraki/ khuṭubiile. 'At the Common Market, the head of the Common Market gave a speech.' Waziiri/ wa maali/ karka Itaalya/ bishiḷa iluuma/ leelo/ mukhta_{aa} ye/ shkhuṭubó. 'The minister of finance in Italy was hit on the head today when he was giving a speech.' rel. khuṭubika v. p/s. khuṭubila v. appl. Chiwakumaanganya/ waant^hu/ chiwakuṭubila. 'He gathered the people together and delivered a speech to them.' khuṭubisha v. caus. (khuṭubishiize) Baana/ mkuṭubishize maana. 'Baana had the child give a speech.' khuṭubishika v. caus. p/s. khuṭubishana v. caus. rec. khuṭubishiliza v. caus. appl. (khuṭubishiliize) Baana/ mkuṭubishilize Muusa/ maana. 'Baana had Muusa's child give a speech.' khuṭubishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-khuṭubishilizeenye) Baana/ na Muusa/ wakuṭubishilizenye waana. 'Baana and Muusa had one another's children give speeches.'
ki	ideo. of laughing

Aamina/ nakiimba/ kana/ ijiniile/ Haliima/ shishile shṭeko/ ki ki ki ki!
 ‘Aamina is singing like a crazy person, Haliima is bursting with laughter ki ki ki ki!’ Wake/ wanakṭeka/ ki ki ki ki. ‘The women are laughing.’

u-ki

n. 14 [Sw. uki SSED 493] honey
Iyele uki. ‘It (a hole) was filled with honey.’
Monda uki/ haakosi/ konda teena. ‘The one who tastes honey never fails to taste it again.’ (A proverb.)
Rashaa nyoki/ ja uki. ‘Follow bees and you will eat honey.’ (A proverb.)
ukiwa ‘my honey’
Uyelo mtuungi/ ni uki. ‘That which filled the clay pot was honey.’
Waṭunzilopó/ wachiwona/ iboholi/ kama chisima/ na iyele uki. ‘When they dug, they found a hole like a well and it was filled with honey.’

küiboodi

n. keyboard
Küiboodi/ ichidirka maayi/ hangamila. ‘If water reaches a keyboard, it gets spoiled.’

kibri

n. arrogance, pride; adj. arrogant (a very strong condemnation in the society since only God has the right to be arrogant); someone who cannot tolerate insults, insinuations, criticism, and becomes easily agitated even to the point of physical violence; [pron. kibri or kibri] akhuaaniza [ataani niingi kibri [st.]] ‘my brothers, abandon excessive pride’ chijana shkibri ‘arrogant dim. person’ khfanya kibri ‘to be arrogant, to show off’ Kibri/ siwo/ sifa za mluungana. ‘Arrogance is not an attribute of an intelligent person.’
munt^hu kibri ‘an arrogant person’ mwenye kibri ‘one who has arrogance’ want^hu kibri ‘arrogant people’
Ye/ ka kibrize/ ṭosheeze/ ruuhuye/ kuwaa ye/ miḷkile duniya/ nzimaye. ‘He, out of arrogance, believed that he himself owned the world in its entirety.’
 rel.
kibraani adj.
chijana shkibraani ‘arrogant dim. person’
munt^hu kibraani ‘an arrogant person’ want^hu kibraani ‘arrogant people’ zijana skibraani ‘arrogant dim. people’
u-kibri n. 14 arrogance Ka sababu iyo/ ye/ peele/ ruuhuye/ ina/ ya ukibri. ‘Because of that, he gave himself the name Arrogance.’

kiḍbu

n. 10 lies fiṭina na kiḍbu zotte haraamu [st.] ‘creating discord and lies are all unlawful sins’ Koḍele kiḍbu. ‘He told lies.’
mwenye kiḍbu niingi ‘one who tells many lies’ Omari/ ha’isi/ kiḍbu. ‘Omari does not tell lies (lit. does not know lies).’
Omari/ hukoḍa kiḍbu. ‘Omari tells lies.’
 rel.
u-kiḍbu n. lies Omari/ hukoḍa ukiḍbu. ‘Omari tells lies.’

kh-kiḍiba

v. (kiḍibiile) deny the truth of what someone says kumkiḍiba ‘to say someone is lying’ Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kumkiḍiba mweenzawe. ‘It is not good for a person to deny the truth of what his friend says.’
Omari/ kiḍibiile/ jawabu iyo. ‘Omari denied the truth of that matter.’
 rel.
kh-kiḍibana v. rec. (-kiḍibeene) contradict one another

Fikhiriini/ na Nureeni/ wakiðibeene. ‘Fikhiriini and Nureeni contradicted one another.’ Or: Fikhiriini/ kiðibene na Nureeni. ‘Fikhiriini contradicted Nureeni.’

kh-kiðiboowa v. pass. (kiðibiila) for one’s truthfulness to be denied Mtume/ kiðibiila/ na wazuungu. ‘The prophet(’s words, teachings) have been denied by infidels.’

Muunt^hu siwo/ suura/ khkiðiboowa. ‘It is not good for a person to be contradicted (the truth of what he is saying to be denied).’

rel. nom.

m-kiðibo n. 3

u-kiðibo n. 14 lies

sh-kifari (s-)

n. 7/8 a small metal piece linking two things (e.g. clothing, belt)

Lkaandra/ nt^halná/ shkifari. ‘The belt does not have a metal joiner.’

skifari cha lkaandra ‘belt joinings, fasteners, connectors’

kifaaya

enough

Ichiwaa mi/ nazo peesá/ kifaayá/ takula gaari/ nk^hulu. ‘If I have enough money, I will buy a big car.’

Mi/ kawanayo pesa kifaayá/ sula khulilaa we/ fatuura. ‘If I had enough money, I would buy you a car.’

kh-kifila

v. [Ar. kafala W 833] (kifiliile) stand surety, sponsor, support, protect Mojiitu/ nashkifila awo/ na shari yaawo. ‘May God protect us from those with their evil doing.’

Mojiitu/ shkifiliile/ awo/ na shari yaawo. ‘God has protected us from those ones with their evil doing.’

rel.

kh-kifiloowa v. pass.

Chinamnomba mojiitú/ khkifilowa awo/ na shari zaawo. ‘We are praying to God to be protected from those one with their evil doings.’

kila

each; [pron. kila or killa]; variant form: kula, kulla

Baaba/ kila/ chiya kaziini/ hubiga hoodi. ‘Whenever father comes (home) from work, he asks for permission to enter (the house).’

Hunlaazima/ kendra kaziini/ kilaa muunt^hi. ‘It is a must for me to go to work every day.’

kilaa chiint^hu ‘everything’

Kilaa muke/ ile. ‘Each, every woman came.’ (When kila is phrased with a following noun, one would expect that a noun of the consonant-vowel structure CVCV would lengthen the final vowel of kila. However, kila seems actually to be lengthened whatever the structure of the next word.)

Kila/ muke iló/ peela/ habaye. ‘Every woman who came has been given her little share.’

Kilaa muunt^hi/ heendra/ Omari/ dukaani. ‘Every day goes Omari to the shop.’ Or: Kilaa muunt^hi/ heendró/ Omari/ dukaani. ‘Every day it’s Omari who goes to the shop.’

Kilaa muunt^hi/ Omari/ hendra dukaani. ‘Every day Omari goes to the shop.’ Or, with verb emphasis: Kilaa muunt^hi/ heendra/ dukaani. (Phon. Observe that the pre-verbal kilaa muunt^hi does not trigger pseudo-relativization of the main verb. If there is pseudo-relativization of the verb, as in Kilaa muunt^hi/ Omari/ heendró/ dukaani., it is because there is focus on the subject: ‘Every day it is Omari who goes to the shop.’)

Kila muunt^hu/ fakete keendra/ kulangala markabu/ iyo. ‘Everyone ran to go to see that ship.’ (Phon. This example illustrates the possibility of kīla being phrased with its complement.)

Kīlaa muunt^hu/ ile. ‘Everyone came.’

Kīla/ munt^hu nayo kooḍi/ nahade. ‘Anyone who has something to say, let him speak.’

Kīla/ munt^hu nayo su’aali/ na’uze. ‘Anybody who has a question, let him ask it.’

Kīla/ muunt^hu/ nimeené. ‘Everyone, I saw.’ Or: Kīla/ muunt^hu/ nimeené.
Or: Kīlaa muunt^hu/ nimeené.

Kīla/ munt^hu waa mi/ chimsuuló/ nimweené. ‘Every one whom I wanted [to see], I saw him.’

Kīlaa muunt^hu/ yaake/ imshiishile. ‘Everyone is caught by his own w’s concerns (issues, affairs).’ (A proverb.)

Kīlaa mwaana/ humleetela/ mwaalimu/ ije/ yaa ye/ hukhaadiró. ‘Each child brings his teacher whatever he is able to.’

Kīla/ nch^hitemuka zeema/ za eelo/ we/ hukiriha. ‘Whenever I speak well of the gazelle you are disgusted.’

Kīla/ waliko ilu yaa muti/ chanza kubigaa nk^heje. ‘Each one in the tree began to shout.’

Kūla/ chisūla khpandra kaake/ chulunguuni/ oyo taajiri/ ni laazima/ kuwa nakhpandra ka ndilaani. ‘Every time he wanted to climb to his place upstairs, it was necessary for this rich man to climb up from outside.’

Kooḍi/ kīla mo/ jisaa ye/ hutaambulo. ‘Talk is how everyone understands it.’ (A proverb.)

Kūla/ mo/ nimpele nuumbaye. ‘Each one (e.g. of these two wives) I gave her own house.’

Mi/ hendra dukaani/ kīlaa muunt^hi. ‘I go to the shop every day.’ Or, with verb focus: Mi/ heendra/ dukaani/ kīlaa muunt^hi.

Mmerele kīlaa mahalá/ nt^hozelé. ‘I searched for it everywhere, but I could not find it.’

Mmerele kīlaa mahalá/ skupata. ‘I looked everywhere, but I could not find it.’

Mp^hundra oyo/ kulla/ mukhtaaya ye/ chisulo kendra mahalá/ amo fanyiza kaazi/ chimumikila mp^hundra/ oyo. ‘That donkey, every time that he wanted to go someplace or to work, he used that donkey.’

Na cheendra/ kīla/ ilooni. ‘And he went each evening.’

Na cheendra/ kīlaa ilooni? ‘Was he going each evening?’

Na kīlaa muza biyaashara/ humlaazima/ kumwolokela uje tamvijó.
‘And it is necessary for every merchant to go to whoever calls him.’

Nenzele dukaani/ kīlaa muunt^hi. ‘I went to the shop every day.’

Or: Nenzele dukaani/ killa/ muunt^hi. ‘I went to the shop every day.’ Or, with verb emphasis: Neenzelé/ dukaani/ kīlaa muunt^hi.

(Phon. Observe that kīlaa muunt^hi is outside the scope of the final accent in the first example, presumably because it is out-of-focus. But the phrase killá in the second example is also not included in the scope of the verb’s final accent. Why not? We suspect that it is due to the narrow focus on killá – i.e. the domain of final accent does not extend from a triggering verb when that verb is not included in the focus. Of course, the emphasis on the verb in the third example predicts that all subsequent phrases are outside the scope of the final accent. The simple yes-no questions related to these three examples provide possibly supporting evidence for the above suggestions. Nenzele dukaani/ kīlaa muunt^hi? ‘Did I go to the shop every day?’ shows the expected shift of accent in the out-of-focus final phrase. Nenzele dukaani/ killa/muunt^{hi}? ‘Did I go to the shop every day?’ shows that the out-of-focus final phrase muunt^{hi} undergoes accent shift, but the focused killā does not. Neenzelé/ dukaani/ kilāa muunt^{hi}. ‘Did I go to the shop every day?’ illustrates that with verb emphasis, both of the following phrases are out-of-focus. We should point out that the evidence from exclamatory yes-no questions is parallel. Exclamatory yes-no questions do not go well with cases where the verb is optionally emphasized, so we will cite just the following two variants: Nenzele dukaani/ kilāa muunt^{hi}!? and Nenzele dukaani/ killa/ muunt^{hi}!? Observe that even in the exclamatory yes-no question, the emphatic phrase killā is not subject to accent shift.)

Nim kilāa jimapiilī. ‘I came every Sunday.’

Nimweené/ kilāa muunt^hu. ‘I saw everybody.’

Nimwene kilāa muunt^hú/ waa mi/ chimsuuló. ‘I saw everyone whom I wanted to see.’ (Notice the lengthening of the final vowel of kilā when it is phrase internal. This lengthening is independent of the phonological structure of the next word, in contrast with the general lengthening of final vowels in phrase-medial words.)

Nimubleeelé/ kilāa muunt^hu. ‘I killed everybody.’

Nimubleeelé/ kilā/ munt^hu koðeeló. ‘I killed everybody who spoke.’

Nsomeelé/ kilāa chibuuku. ‘I read each book.’ Or: Nsomeelé/ kilā/ chibuuku. ‘I read each book.’ Or: Nsomele kilāa chibuukú. (Usage: The last pronunciation emphasizes that I have read every book, but our consultant suggested that there is a kind of implied ‘but’ involved: e.g. Nsomele kilāa chibuukú/ laakini/ jawabu yaa we/ nambiiló/ skuwona. ‘I read every book, but I could not find the matter that you told me about.’)

Nsomeelé/ kilā/ chibuuku. ‘I read each book.’

Nsomeelé/ kilā/ chibuuku. ‘I read each book.’

Omari/ kilā chiint^hu/ hutilaa shaka. ‘Omari doubts everything (lit. Omari puts in doubt to everything).’

Wacheendra/ kuḷa muuyi/ mkulu/ na chihabá/ na killa/ mahaḷaa wo/ wamweno mwaamubli/ apó/ tu/ zaazilá/ wachimubla. ‘They went to every town, big and small, and everywhere they saw a boy who had just been born there, they killed him.’ no final accent observed, maybe because stressed?

Waawaye/ kilā/ chuza khabarize/ hambiloowa/ kuwa hakhaadiri. ‘Every time his father asked for news of him, he was told that he was sick.’

rel.

kilasku always, everytime, every day (Phon. This item behaves like a prosodic word since accent falls on the penult syllable and not the final syllable: [kilásku] and not *[kilá skú]. The l in this word was not ever observed with germination, contrary to kilā by itself.)

Kama kilasku/ maama/ chimlomba mwaana/ chiza kendra teena/ maduriini/ laakini/ mwaana/ iize. ‘Like every time, mother begged the boy not to go again to the bush country, but the boy refused.’

Kilasku/ chimona Omari/ nakhfaklaṭa/ tu. ‘Every day when I see Omari, he is running.’

Mi/ nch^{hiya} kilasku. ‘I used to come every day.’

kilī

n. [Som. kelli] kidney

Alī/ atiila/ tilaa kilī. ‘Ali has been operated on, he has had a kidney put in.’

Hamadi/ nakhsulā kubigilowaa kilī. ‘Hamadi wants a kidney transplant.’

kh-kīla

v. (kilīile) step on, step over; survive

Isa/ hattá/ leelo/ umo chooloni/ nakoowa/ naakuḷa/ kaleent^he/ nakhkiḷa/ nakhsuḷa kuvuuka. ‘Now, until today, she is in the bathroom, bathing, crying, seated, crying, she wants to go [to the wedding].’
Fa/ ambó/ kiḷa. ‘Die or survive!’ (A proverbial saying.)
Mi/ nk^hiḷiḷe ijabali. ‘I stepped on the rock.’
Nakuḷa nakhkiḷa. ‘She was crying very much.’
rel.
kh-kilḷa v. appl. (kiḷiḷiḷe)
Nk^hiḷiḷiḷe mwaana. ‘He stepped on my child.’
kh-kilḷisha v. caus. (kiḷishiize) make step over Hamadi/ mkilishize mwaana/ chiziingiti. ‘Hamadi had the child step over the threshold.’
kh-kilḷishoowa v. caus. pass. (kiḷishiiza) be made to step over Mwaana/ kilishizaa mbwa. ‘The child was made to step over the dog.’
kh-kiliza v. skip ajabu muunt^hu naayo maali hiizo/ keendra Makka hu’ajizo hukilizo [st.] ‘how can a rich person refuse/ to go to Mecca, or hesitate and try to avoid [this journey]?’
keendra Maka hu’ajizo hukilizo [st.] ‘the one who postpones and skips going to Mecca’ kh-kilooowa v. pass. be stepped on Igome/ ikiḷiḷa khariibuye. ‘The rock was stepped on it.’
Ijabali/ ikiḷiḷa. ‘The rock was stepped on.’

kiḷma

n. word
ikum na keendra kiḷma za aḍaana [st.] ‘nineteen are the words of the aḍaana’ Ye/ dhibishile/ khfahama haṭá/ kiḷma mooyi/ ya chingereenza. ‘She could barely understand a word of English.’

m-kila (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mkia SSED 285] tail; (fig.) a follower rather than a leader khshika mkila ‘to always follow after’ khṭeza ka mkila ‘(lit. to play with the tail) – said of someone who has nothing to lose, is “sitting pretty”, has an advantage (e.g. the son of the boss who is in a better position than another worker)’ mbuzi/ mikilaye ‘the goats, their tails’ mbuzi/ mkilawe ‘the goat, its tail’ mikila yaa mbuzi ‘the tails of goats’ mikila yaa mp^haka ‘cats’ tails’ mkila waa mbuzi ‘tail of a goat’ mkila waa mp^haka ‘a cat’s tail’ mkila waa nsi ‘caudal fin’ Ndovu/ chimḷaṭa/ miilu hataa yé/ nakhsuḷo kumshika mkilá/ bakayle/chuuluka/ shfakaṭa/ chingila kaake/ iboholiini. ‘The elephant let go of his [the hare’s] legs while he was trying to catch him by the tail, and the hare jumped and ran away and went into his hole.’
Ngamiilayo/ nt^hayná/ mkila. ‘Does your camel have no tail?’
Wawaye mwaana/ wanacho shpete/ chilazilo kaa noká/ mkilaani. ‘This boy’s father had a ring that came out of a snake’s tail.’ (Phon. The word order and phrasing wawaye mwaana ‘the boy’s father’ is well-established in MI’s speech, but other Chimiini speakers do not readily accept it, allowing rather mwaana/ waawaye ‘the boy his father’, a construction that MI also used.) Wazele wiitu/ huhada/ bakayle/ chifa/ hutetemesha mkilawe. ‘Our ancestors say that if a hare dies, it shakes its tail.’

rel.

i-kila n. 5 aug. large tail

kh-kila

v. be alive, live, survive
Nakhkila. ‘He is still alive.’

- rel.
kh-kiza v. caus.
Mwajiitu/ namkiza. ‘May God give him a long life.’
- kiilo n. 9/10 [Sw. kilo SSED 196] kilo, kilogram nuskiilo ‘half a kilo’ robokiilo ‘a quarter of a kilo’
rel.
ma-kilokiilo n. 6 in kilograms
Waant^hu/ wape^laa nama/ makilokiilo. ‘People were given meat in kilos.’
- kilomeeteri n. [cf. Sw. kilometa SSED 196] kilometer Chinakubiga iteké/ chinakeendrá/ ziyaraani/ ka Shekh Makh^tuubu/ ni kilomeetiri/ nt^haano/ takhriibu. ‘We are going on foot to the religious ceremony for Shekh Makhtuubu, it is (held) about five kilometers (from Miini).’
Muduni/ hatá/ Miini/ ni kilomeeterii né. ‘Muduni up to Brava is four kilometers.’
- kh-kimila* v.
hujuz^a laakini owla ni khkimila [st.] ‘it is permitted (not to perform a certain religious act), but it is better if (the act) is completed’
- kimistiri n. chemistry
Ee/ Fardoosa/ na khsoma kimistiri/ hukaha^ta. ‘Yes, Fardoosa also hates studying chemistry.’
- kh-kiinga* v. [Sw. kinga SSED 199] (kingiile) used in the following phrases:
khkinga ishikilo ‘to put one’s hand to one’s ear and lean forward to listen’ na khkiinga ishikilo khkasa zumaari [st.] ‘and to lean forward to listen to zumaari (a musical instrument)’ khkinga mashkilo ‘to listen to something being said at a distance, to listen carefully’ Skingeené/ mashkilo! ‘Don’t listen!’
khkinga moongo ‘to give one’s back to someone’
rel.
kh-kiingika v. p/s.
kh-kingisha v. caus.
kh-kingishana v. caus. rec.
kh-kingishika v. caus. p/s.
kh-kingishiliza v. caus. appl.
kh-kingishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- l-kiingo (n-) n. 11/10 [Sw. ukingo SSED 200] precipice, edge, margin, brink; [pron. nk^hiingo ‘precipices’] lkingo la ijabali ‘cliff’
rel.
sh-kiingo (s-) n. 7/8 rim (of a cup, e.g.)
- kiniini n. 9/10 generic term for any kind of pill, tablet kiniini/ za hargabu ‘tablets for a cold’ kiniini/ za malaariya ‘malaria tablets’ kumiza kiniini ‘to swallow pills’ kuna kiniini ‘to drink, take tablets (with water or other liquid)’
rel.
sh-kiniini (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- kiinu at or to your (pl.) (place)
Ali/ simeme lwavuuni/ kiinu. ‘Ali stood at your (pl.) side.’
rel.

sh-kiinu adv. in your (pl.) way, manner

kh-kiinya

v. (kinyiize, kinyiile) deny

Ali/ kinyeze kuwa oloshela. ‘Ali denied that he went.’

Baana/ kinyize kooði. ‘Baana denied what was said.’

Huseeni/ kinyize kuwa oloshela. ‘Huseeni denied that he went.’

Muusa/ kinyize kuwaa ye/ waliko chineema. ‘Muusa denied that he was at the cinema.’

Nureeni/ kinyize kuwa Muusa/ bozele chibuuku. ‘Nureeni denied that Muusa stole the book.’

rel.

kh-kiinyika v. p/s. (kinyishile)

kh-kinyiliza v. appl. (kinyiliize)

Nk^hinyilize kuwaa ye/ nt^haanzile. ‘He denied to me that he insulted me.’

Nuuru/ mkinyilize Muusa/ kuwaa ye/ bozele chibuuku. ‘Nuuru denied to Muusa that he (i.e. Nuuru) stole the book.’

kh-kiinyisha v. caus. (kinyishiize) kh-kiinyishana v. caus. rec.

kh-kinyishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-kiinyishiliza v. caus. appl. (kinyishiliize)

kh-kiinyishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-kinyoowa v. pass.

Khabari/ skinyiiza. ‘The news was denied.’

kir

ideo.

Abú/ mwambile Omari/ kir!/ maamala/ spendi/ khkasa kooði/ kana izo/ za ebu. ‘Abu told Omari stop/back up/be quiet, I do not want to hear disgraceful talk like that.’

kh-kiriha

v. [Sw. kirihi SSED 74] hate, abhor, be disgusted by, resent, be displeased

Baba wa mwanaamke/ uyu/ kirihile/ kondolowa ka usinziziini. ‘The father of this girl was displeased at being awoken from sleep.’

Daawuudi/ hukirihani. ‘What displeases Daawuudi?’ (A possible answer:

Daawuudi/ hukiriha Faatma/ koloka (or: kujawa) ka hima. ‘Daawuudi is displeased by Faatma’s leaving early/quickly.’)

Jiraani/ wamkirihile ka maposoye. ‘The neighbors were disgusted at his (repeated) borrowing (of things).’

Khalbiyo/ isikirihe. ‘May your heat not resent it.’ (This is used to apologize in advance for a (future) behavior or request that might displease.)

Mzeele/ kirihile (kuwa) mwaana/ kuvunda ikoopa. ‘The old man was displeased that the child broke the cup.’

Mzeele/ mkirihile mwaana. ‘The old man hated the child.’

Suufi/ mkirihile Nuuru. ‘Suufi hated Nuuru.’

Watakukiriha. ‘They will hate you.’

rel.

kh-kirihila v. appl. (kirihiliile)

kh-kirihisha v. caus. (kirihishiize) disgust s.o., disappoint and annoy s.o. (but notice that this verb is not used to mean ‘to cause to hate’)

Baaba/ kumwona mwaanawe/ daa’ima/ umo mikooni/ kharibu yaa wake/ imkirihishiize/ nt^ho. ‘It displeased the father very much to see his son always in the kitchen near the women.’

Baana/ mkirihishize mwaana. ‘Baana disgusted the child.’

Hamadi/ mkirihishize waawaye. ‘Hamadi displeased his father.’

Khpasake peesa/ ka Nuuru/ imkirihishize waawaye. ‘His lending money to Nuuru displeased his father.’

Laazima/ we/ khfungula kanayo/ hada/ jawaabu/ yo yotte/

itakhfurahishó/ waant^hu/ wakuluwó/ hatá/ ichiwa jawaabu/ izo/ stamkirihisha/ mwajiitu. ‘But you must open your mouth and say whatever will please your superiors, even if those words (things) will not please

	God.'
	Siimba/ kubooleke/ chibuuku/ imkirihishize waawaye. 'Simba's having stolen the book displeased his father.'
	kh-kirihishana v. caus. rec.
	kh-kirihishika v. caus. p/s.
	kh-kirihishiliza v. caus. appl.
	Nuuru/ mkirihishilize Suufi/ mwaana. 'Nuuru disgusted Suufi's child.'
	kh-kirihishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
	Suufi/ na Nuuru/ wakirihishilizenye waana. 'Suufi and Nuuru disgusted one another's children.'
	kh-kirihoowa v. pass.
	Jaama/ kirihila na Nuuru. 'Jaama was hated by Nuuru.'
	kh-kirisha v.
	kumkirisha qalbi 'to hurt s.o.'s feelings'
	rel. nom.
	m-kirihisha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who annoys
	sh-kirihisa (s-) n. 7/8 s.t. that annoys
	u-kiriho n. 14
kh-kirima	v. [Sw. kirimu SSED 174] (kirimiile) extend hospitality, giving something; respect s.o. (by providing food etc. for them); entertain, treat hospitably
	Mkirimilee ntho/ waawe. 'He showed his father much respect (e.g. he provided him with food etc. on his visit).'
	We/ mkirimilee ntho/ Sultani Daraayi. 'You showed great respect to Sultan Daraayi.'
	rel.
	kh-kirimoowa v. pass. (kirimiila) be rewarded, be respected naako itakuuya naada/ khalqi inakirimoowa [st.] 'and then the divine call will be made for the crowd to be rewarded'
	sho kuwa Ibraahiimu wazaazila/ ka Mwaana Khadijata wa'iwila/ ni waana sita wakirimiila [st.] 'except for Ibraahiimu, they were born of Lady Khadija and they were known as six children endowed with noble traits'
	rel. nom.
	m-kirima (wa-) n. 1/2 a person who shows respect
	m-kirimo n. 3 hospitality
	u-kirimo n. 14
kirkiri	n. [Tunni kirkirro , kirkirro , kirkirra "warthog" Tosco 222] warthog
Kismaayo	n. Kismayu; variant form: Chismaa'ilu Muduni/ ni mahaḷa/ ndila/ huṭindo Chismaa'ilu/ na Miini. 'Muduni is a place where the roads to Kismaayo and Brava intersect.' ndila ya Kismaayo 'the road to Kismaayo'
kiswa	n. [Ar. kiswa W 828] dress, clothes – used particularly in discussions of Islamic law and found in poetry
kit	ideo. of laughin review t
kiṭaani	n. [Sw. kitani SSED 209] the fibre of the sisal plant (used in ropes, string, sacks) lkambala la kiṭaani 'a rope made of sisal'
	rel.
	m-kiṭaani (mi-) n. 3/4 sisal plant
kh-kitika	v. flow
	rel.
	kh-kitikila v. appl.
	yatakitikila maatozi/ nguwo stakolozoowa [st.] 'tears will keep flowing and wet their clothes' kh-kitikoowa v. pass.

wasimeemo kumnuurisha/ maatozi yatakikoowa [st.] ‘those who are standing and reciting ḍikri and the Quran praying for him, tears will flow down their cheeks’

kiitu

at or to our (place), us

Ali/ simeme lwavuuni/ kiitu. ‘Ali stood at our side.’

Mukhta ukomelo wakhti/ wa kawanya mawiindó/ siimba/ chimvila mp^huundra/ chimwaambila/ iyi/ ni kaaziyo/ chawanyilize mawindo aya/ kati kiitu. ‘When the time came to divide the loot, Lion called Donkey and said to him: this is your job, divide up this loot among us.’

Si/ hashkhaadiri/ teena/ kendra miyundraani/ kiitu. ‘We are not able any longer to go to our fields.’

Wo/ wanakhsula khkasa/ kiitu/ yaa si/ sh^takhfaanyó/ kahalisha mushkila. ‘They want to hear from us what we will do to solve the problem.’

rel.

sh-kiitu adv. in our way, manner, language

kiwa siifa za mojiitu/ na za mitume at^a ka shkiitu [st.] ‘to learn the attributes of God and the Prophets, at least in our language’

kh-kiwirsata

v. [Som. kibir ‘to become arrogant, haughty’ DSI 367; although ultimately this Som. word must have come from the Arabic noun kibr, Chimiini must have taken the word directly from Somali; this is shown by the change of b to w, the use of the suffix at which is generally limited to Somali borrowings, and the fact that Arabic does not have an equivalent verb.] (kiwirseete) become arrogant

rel.

kh-kiwirsatisha v. caus.

kiyaawe

n. [Ital. chiave] any kind of wrench

m-kiizi (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mkizi ‘cuttle-fish’ SSED 285] a kind of fish

Chinakeendrá/ khpata mikiizi. ‘We are going to fish for mikiizi.’

mkizi uyu (or: uwu) ‘this fish’; mikizi aya ‘these fish’ (not: awa*)

rel.

i-kiizi n. ibid.

l-kiizi (mi-) n. 11/4 aug.

klaasi

n. [Eng. class] class in school

Adadi ya wana wa klasi iyi/ ni ishiriini. ‘The number of children in [lit. of] this class is twenty.’

-ko

locative copular root which appears in a great variety of forms chiikó ‘we are at’, nt^hachiiko ‘we are not at’

Chiikopí. ‘Where are we?’

numbaani/ maha^laa si/ chiikó ‘at the house where we are’

Si/ chiko madrasaani. ‘We are at school.’

chiiko ‘it [cl.7] is at’, nt^hachiiko ‘it [cl.7] is not at’

Chiko ilu ya meeza. ‘It is on the table.’ (This construction is preferred over Chiko mezaani.)

Chiko numbaani. ‘It’s at the house.’

Chiko nt^hini ya meeza. ‘It’s under the table.’ (A contraction of the final vowel of nt^hini and the associative particle ya yields an apparent violation of the principle barring successive long vowels in a phrase: Chiko nt^hinaa meeza.)

Chiiko/ laakini/ hichiwoni. ‘It is there, but you do not see it.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is: Ikosi ‘nape of the neck’.)

Chiikopi/ chireza chimo^lela muunt^hú. ‘Where is the razor that was used to shave the man?’ (Syn. It is interesting that the instrument may be the subject of a passive relative verb. MI rejected however the main clause sentence where the instrument is the subject of the passive verb: Leembe/ Imolela mwaana. ‘The straight razor was used to shave the child(‘s head).’

Chiikopi/ shfasaleta cha mwaana/ pangulila mapulá. ‘Where is the handkerchief that the child wiped his nose with?’

Chiikopi/ shfasaleta pangulila mwaaná/ mapulá. ‘Where is the handkerchief that the child used to wipe his nose?’ (Syn. Observe that the subject of the passive relative verb is mwaana, as can be seen from the phonologically null subject prefix on the verb. This subject has been postposed after the relative verb, which allows the head of the relative clause ‘handkerchief’ to immediately precede the relative verb with no -a link, in contrast to the preceding sentence where the subject is pre-verbal and an a-link is required to connect the head to the subject.)

Chiikopi/ shfasaleta shpangulila mapulá. ‘Where is the handkerchief that was used to wipe the mucous from the nose?’

Chiłuti/ chiikopi. ‘Where is the dim. stick?’

Chiınt^hu/ cha waana/ waboozeló/ nt^hachiiko/ kule. ‘Something that children have stolen is not far away.’ (A saying.)

Chisu/ chiko chulunguuni. ‘The knife is upstairs.’

Chisu/ chiko ilu. ‘The knife is up on s.t., is upstairs.’

Chisu/ chiko nt^hiini. ‘The knife is downstairs.’

Chisu/ chiikopi? ‘Where is the knife?’

Shkapu/ chiko mikooni. ‘The basket is in the kitchen.’

liiko ‘[cl.11] is at’

Liikopi/ lembe Imolela mwaaná. ‘Where is the straight razor that was used to shave the child(‘s head)?’ (Syn. Although in the relative construction, the instrument leembe can function as subject of the passive verb, this is not possible in the main clause in MI’s judgment: Leembe/ Imolela mwaana. ‘The straight razor was used to shave the child.’)

Luti/ liko numbaani. ‘The stick is at the house.’

Luti/ liikopi? ‘Where is the stick?’

niikó ‘I am at’, siiko ‘I am not at’

Mi/ niko madrasaani. ‘I am at school.’

Mi/ niikopi. ‘Where am I?’

Niko numbaani. ‘I am at home.’ Or: Niikó/ numbaani. Or with preposing of the locative, leading to pseudo-relativization of the copular verb: Numbaani/ niikó.

niikó ‘you pl. are at’, nt^haniiko ‘you pl. are not at’

Ni/ niko kiinú. ‘You pl. are at your place.’

Ni/ niko kiinú/ so. ‘Are you pl. are at your place?’

Ni/ niko madrasaani. ‘You (pl.) are at school.’

Ni/ niikopi. ‘Where are you pl.?’

uko ‘you (sg.) are at’ (but in various tenses there is no overt subject marker)

Takuwako karka numba gani. ‘Which house will you be at?’ (In the future tense affirmative, the second person has a null subject marker.)

Ukopi. ‘Where are you?’

Waliko (karka) numba gani. ‘What house were you at?’ (In the past tense affirmative the second person has a null subject marker.)

We/ uko madrasaani. ‘You are at school.’

uko ‘he/she is at’, nt^haako ‘he/she is not at’

Abunawaasi/ chim(w)aambila/ ya kuwa mp^huunda/ nt^haako/ isa.
‘Abunawaasi told him that the donkey was not there now.’

Ali/ nt^haako/ apa. ‘Ali isn’t here.’ Or, a less common word order:

Nt^haako/ Ali/ apa.

Ba’adi yaa ye/ kumnoola/ uko/ uko/ ichimshika safari/ kendra mahala.
‘Some time after marrying her, he had to take a trip to go somewhere.’

Basi/ uko numbaani/ ukó. ‘So she is at the house, that’s where she is.’

Chimwona sarmala/ uko mlangooni/ namliindra. ‘He found the carpenter at the door waiting for him.’

kawa maame/ uko naami ‘if my mother were with me’

Mp^haka/ ukopi. ‘Where is the cat?’

Mp^huundra/ si oyo/ naaku^ló/ naawé/ nakuhada kuwaa ye/ nt^haakó. ‘The donkey, isn’t he the one who is braying, and you are saying that he is not here?’

Mwaana/ nt^haako/ madrasaani. ‘The child isn’t at school.’

Mwaana/ uko numba gani. ‘At which house is the child?’

Mwaana/ ukopi. ‘Where is the child?’

Ndruwé/ chimwaambila/ ya kuwa uko kaa muke/ mooyi ‘his relative told him that she is found at a woman’s place’

Nuuru/ uko mweezi. ‘Nuuru is here one month.’

Nuuru/ uko numbaani. ‘Nuuru is at home.’ (Preposing leads to pseudo-relativization of uko: Numbaani/ ukó/ Nuuru. Or: Numbaani/ Nuuru/ ukó. Or: Nuuru/ numbaani/ ukó. The only evidence that pseudo-relativization has occurred is the final accent on uko.)

Uko Ali/ apa. ‘Ali is here.’ Or: Ali/ uko apa. (Ordinarily the ordering of the NP after the -ko signals indefiniteness, but in the case of a proper name, no definiteness dimension is present.)

Uko muunt^hu/ mlangooni. ‘There is a man at the door.’ (cf. Muunt^hu/ uko mlangooni. ‘A man is at the door.’ Or: Uko/ muunt^hu/ mlangooni. ‘There is a man at the door.’)

Uko numbaani. ‘(S)he is at home.’ Or: Ye/ uko numbaani. ‘(S)he is at home.’ (Cf. Uko numbaan í. ‘You are at home.’ Or: We/ uko numbaaní. ‘You are at home.’)

Uko/ uko/ attá/ leelo/ chishika miimba/ chizaala/ mwaana/ mwaamubli. ‘She stayed until one day [lit. today] she became pregnant and gave birth to a male child.’

Ukopi. ‘Where is he/she?’

Ukopi mweenziwo. ‘Where is your companion?’

Ukopi/ sultaani/ oyo/ nakhsulo kumlola mwanaamkewa. ‘Where is this sultan who wants to marry my daughter?’

Wachimuuz/ mwaana/ uje wa maskiini/ ukopi. ‘They asked the boy: that [boy from] a poor family, where is he?’

Ye/ uko madrasaani. ‘(S)he is at school.’

uko ‘[cl.3] is at’

Muti/ uko kharibu yaa wowi. ‘The tree is near the river.’

waako ‘they [cl.2] are at’, nt^hawaako ‘they are not at’

Isa/ hadiile/ wanawake awo/ wotte/ waakoyi. ‘Now he said: all those girls, where are they?’

mubliwe/ muzizopo waakopi/ waaná ‘when her husband asked here where the children were’

Nt^hawako waana/ madrasaani. ‘The children aren’t at the school.’ Or:

Waana/ nt^hawaako/ madrasaani. Or: Nt^hawaako/ madrasaani/ waana.

Wakoo nfuye/ maduriini. ‘There are monkeys in the bush.’ Or: Maduriini/ wakoo nfuye. Or: Nfuye/ wako maduriini. ‘The monkeys are in the bush.’

Waako/ waako/ wazazile waana/ ba’adi ya apo/ mubli/ chimpenda muke miingine/ sulile kumnoola. ‘They lived like this for some time and had children; after that, the husband loved another woman and wanted to marry her.’

Wako waant^hu/ mlangooni. ‘There are men at the door.’ Or: Waant^hu/ wako mlangooni. ‘The men are at the door.’

Waakopi. ‘Where are they?’

Waana/ waakopi. ‘Where are the children?’

Washtiinda/ amri/ kulaala/ masku ayo/ mahala wo/ waakó. ‘They decided to sleep that night at the place where they were.’

Wo/ wako kaawo. ‘They are at their place.’

Wo/ wako kaawo/ so. ‘Are they at their place?’

Wo/ wako madrasaani. ‘They are at school.’

wiiko [cl.3] is at (see wuuko below for a variant form) Chiwona ya kuwa muuyi/ uyu/ wiiko/ ka lpaandre/ wiineme. ‘He saw that this tree was leaning on its side.’

Ikomelopo maskú/ shpandra ilu yaa muti/ kulaala/ walá/ nt^hakiwa/ ya kuwa muti oyo/ wiiko/ khariibu/ ya siimba/ oyo/ nakublo waant^hú/ na hoolá. ‘When it was night, he climbed up on a tree to sleep, nor did he know that that tree was near the that lion who was killing people and animals.’

Muti/ wiko khariibu yaa wowi. ‘The tree is near the river.’

Wiiko/ ilu ya lfuwo la tawala ya Hiindi. ‘It (referring to the town of Brava) is located on the shore of the Indian Ocean.’

wowi yaa muti/ wiko khariibuyé... ‘the river that the tree is near it...’

wuuko [cl.3] is at Muti/ wuukopi. ‘Where is the tree?’

yaako ‘[cl.4] is at’

Mimuti/ yaakopi. ‘Where are the (aug.) trees?’

Miti/ yaakopi. ‘Where are the trees?’

yaako ‘[cl.6] is at’; nt^hayaako ‘[cl.6] is not at’

Masheetara/ yaakopi. ‘Where are the umbrellas?’

Mayaank^huku/ nt^hayaako/ apa. ‘The eggs are not here.’ Or: Nt^hayaako/ apa/ mayaank^huku.

Mayaank^huku/ yaakopi. ‘Where are the eggs?’ (Possible answer:

Mayaank^huku/ yako apa. ‘The eggs are here.’) Or: Yaakopi/ mayaank^huku. ‘Are where, the eggs?’ (A possible answer: Yako apa/ mayaank^huku. ‘Are here, the eggs.’)

Sungura/ chimuza/ khalbi/ na mashkiló/ yaakopi. ‘Rabbit asked him (Lion), where are the heart and the ears (of the donkey that Lion killed).’

Yako maayi/ ndilaani. ‘There is water in the road.’

yiiko ‘[cl.5] is at, there’

Imuti/ yikopi. ‘Where is the (aug.) tree?’

Isheetara/ yikopi. ‘Where is the umbrella?’ Or: Yikopi/ isheetara.

yiiko ‘it [cl.9] as at’

Isa/ leelo/ masku/ yiiko/ nikaaha/ Safiya/ nakulooloowa/ na mubli/ wa waawaye/ namsuliió. ‘Now today at night there is an engagement, Safiya is being married by a man whom her father wants for her.’

Ka khisa numbaani/ nt^hayiiko/ kuja. ‘Because in the house there was no food.’ (A possible answer to the question: Ka khisani/ Tuuma/ nt^hakhpiká. ‘Why did Tuuma not cook.’)

Laazima/ tubaaku/ yiko paapo/ apo/ tu. ‘The tobacco must be there just at that very place.’

Mikooni/ yikoo nama. ‘In the kitchen, there is meat.’

Nama/ yiko mikooni. ‘The meat is in the kitchen.’

Nama/ yikopi. ‘Where is the meat at?’

Nini/ yikonni. ‘“Why, what is the matter [lit. what is there]?’

Numba/ yikopi. ‘Where is the house?’

Yiko habamó/ mbele. ‘It [land] is a little ahead of us.’

yiiko/ keendra ‘perhaps’

Yiiko/ keendra/ kuwa Hamiisi/ tinzile kharaari/ kulata masoomo. ‘Perhaps Hamiisi has decided to drop out from his studies.’

Yiko mikooni. ‘It is in the kitchen.’

Yiikó/ yiiko/ tu. ‘That which is there, is just there.’ (A proverb, similar to the English “where there’s smoke, there’s fire”. It says that if there are little hints that something is true, then there is probably something behind these hints.)

yiikopi ‘it [cl.9] is where?’

Mweezi/ waa tatu/ mubli/ chimwambila mukeewe/ yikopi/nt^hiyo. ‘The third month, the husband asked his wife, where is your land?’

Yiikopi/ nama. ‘Where is the meat at?’ (A possible answer: Yiko mikooni. ‘It is in the kitchen.’) ziiko ‘they [cl.8] are at’

Mikooni/ ziko zibuuku. ‘In the kitchen are the books.’

Skapu/ ziko mikooni. ‘The baskets are in the kitchen.’

Zisu/ ziikopi. ‘Where are the knives?’

ziiko ‘they [cl.10] are at’, nt^haziiko ‘they [cl.10] are not at’

Gele/ staawanyé/ mahala zikoo nk^hukú. ‘Grain does not spill where there are hens.’ (A proverb.)

Hasiibu/ chimuza maamaye/ ziikopi/ ziwo za waawaye. ‘Hasiibu asked his mother where the books of his father were.’

Langala ziko mbeleyo/ isa. ‘Look at the things that are in front of you now.’

Mp^haka/ ziikopi. ‘Where are the cats?’

Ndruti/ ziikopi. ‘Where are the sticks?’

Nguwo/ nt^haziiko. ‘The clothes are not there.’

Nguwo/ ziiko. ‘The clothes are there.’

Numba/ ziikopi. ‘Where are the houses?’

Spisiló/ hazirudi/ darbatila/ ziko mbeleyó. ‘The things that went by never come back, be prepared for the things that are ahead of you.’ (A proverb.)

Zikoo ngoma/ keesho. ‘There is drumming tomorrow.’

ko

invariable verbal particle: here, take it! said when handing out s.t. to s.o.

Basi/ mi/ nikusilé/ ko/ we. ‘Enough, I am satiated, here you take it.’

Ko. ‘Here, take it! Have it!’

Ko baskuuti. ‘Take a cookie! Have a cookie!’

Ko/ mshike mbuziwo/ langala/ siyi/ hatá/ numbaani/ skukoma/ naayé/fiile. ‘Here, take your goat! Look, here it is, I did not reach home even and it died.’

Ko teleefono. ‘Take the telephone!’

Kooni. ‘(Pl.) take it!’

kh-koóda

v. (koóeele) talk, speak; to talk speak about someone in his absence

Hasani/ kaaziye/ hukooða waant^hu. [H¹H¹H] ‘Hasani, his job is to backbite people – i.e. all that Hasani does is backbite people.’ (The emphasis on kaaziye is expressed as a pitch upstepping on this element, as indicated in the intonational annotation of this example.)

Haṭaa we/ nakhkoða na Nuurú/ nakendra nt^hiini/ kuleta zoombozá. ‘While you are talking to Nuuru, I am going down to bring my things.’

Hukoða kaa mp^hula. ‘He is arrogant (lit. he talks through his nose).’

Humkoðo Omarí/ ni Huseeni. [H¹H] ‘The one who backbites Omarí is Huseeni.’ (The downstep between the relative clause subject and the copular phrase is clear.)

Humkoðó/ Omarí/ ni Huseeni. ‘The one who backbit Omarí is Huseeni.’ (In true relative clauses like this, it is common for final accent to cross the emphasized verb, in contradiction to the Accentual Law of Focus. However, in this kind of example, our consultant GM regarded the pronunciation where ALF is respected as perhaps better: Humkoðó/ Omarí/ ni Huseeni.)

Huseeni/ humkoðo Omarí. [H¹H] ‘Huseeni backbites Omarí.’

Huseeni/ humkoðó/ Omarí. [H¹H¹H] ‘It is Huseeni who backbites Omarí.’ (Focus on the subject triggers the pseudo-relativization of the verb; when the verb is at the same time emphasized, the norm is for the Accentual Law of Focus to be brought into play to block the extension of final accent past the verb. A pronunciation like the following is usually regarded as questionable: ?Huseeni/ humkoðó/ Omarí.)

Huseeni/ humkoða Omarí/ ka wiingi. [H¹H¹H] ‘Huseeni backbites Omarí frequently.’ (The adverbial ka wiingi was emphasized in this example, indicated by the superscript upwards pointing arrow in the intonational representation.)

- Huseeni/ humkoḍo Omari/ ka wiingi. ‘It’s Huseeni who backbites Omari frequently.’
- Kana ijiló/ ha’ikooḍi. ‘A mouth that has eaten does not talk.’ (A proverb that suggests that someone who has done something wrong does not talk about what he has done.)
- khkoḍa ka ishkiilooni ‘toi whisper (lit. to talk into s.o.’s ear)’
- khkoḍa lila ‘to say the truth’
- khkoḍa na qalbiye ‘to talk to oneself’
- Hamadi/ siwo/ mzima/ nakhkoḍa na khalbiye/ naankhó. ‘Hamadi is not sane, he is talking to himself again.’
- Khkoḍa/ ni feḍa/ kumaamala/ ḍahabu. ‘To speak is silver, to keep quiet is gold.’ (A proverb.)
- khkoḍa wanaafakhi ‘to tell lies’
- khkoḍa waant^hu ‘to slander, speak ill of people in their absence’
- Koḍele naami. ‘He talked with me.’
- Koḍeele/ naami/ ka wiingi. ‘He has spoken to me often.’ (An overt pronominal subject is of course possible as well: Ye/ koḍeele naami/ ka wiingi. The pronoun is not required of course since the accent indicates a third person subject; cf. Koḍeelé/ naami/ ka wiingi. ‘You have spoken to me often.’)
- kumkoḍa ‘to backbite someone’
- Hasani/ kaaziye/ khkoḍa waant^hu. ‘Hasani, his job is to backbite people – i.e. he does nothing but backbite.’
- Huseeni/ humkoḍa Omari/ ka wiingi. ‘Huseeni backbites Omari frequently.’ Huseeni/ humkoḍo Omari/ ka wiingi. ‘(It is) Huseeni who backbites Omari frequently.’
- Muke/ mwenopo mubliwé/ nakhkoḍa na mwaanawé... ‘When the woman saw her husband speaking with his child...’
- Muunt^hu/ chisuḷa khfanya chiint^hu/ hakooḍi. ‘When someone wants to make something he does not talk.’ (A proverb.)
- Naani/ koḍeeló. ‘Who spoke?’
- Naani/ nt^hakhkoḍá. ‘Who did not speak?’
- Ndrata nk^hooḍe. ‘Let me speak.’ Or: Ndrataa mi/ nk^hooḍe.
- Skhaadiri/ khkoḍa. ‘I can’t talk.’
- Skoḍé. ‘Don’t talk!’ (Cf. Skoḍeení. ‘You (pl.) don’t talk!’)
- Skoḍé/ naami. ‘Don’t talk to me!’ (Cf. Skoḍé/ naaye. ‘Don’t talk to him!’)
- We/ skoḍe/ na waant^hu. ‘Don’t talk with people.’
- Ye/ nt^hakhkoḍa/ naami. ‘He has not spoken to me.’
- Ye/ koḍele ka tarafu ya mwaalimu. ‘He spoke about the teacher.’ (Cf. mwaalimu waa ye/ koḍelo ka tarafuye ‘the teacher whom he talked about him’.)
- rel.
- kh-kooḍakooḍa v. freq. talk much, frequently
- Ba’adaa ye/ kingila ndraani/ chiwa teena/ nakhkoḍakooḍa na oyo mwaarabu. ‘After he went inside, he began then talking with that Arab.’
- Khkoḍakooḍa niingi/ nt^hayna ma’ana. ‘Talking a lot is meaningless.’
- Uje/ shkoḍa/ hukooḍakooḍa naaye. ‘If that one talks, [the other one] talks as well.’
- Ye/ nakhkoḍakooḍa/ tu/ nakhtezaateza/ jisaa ye/ sho kubarataa kuja. ‘He was just talking and playing around without learning the way to eat.’
- kh-kooḍeloowa v. appl. pass. be talked about, be taken seriously
- Cho/ chisu chaa we/ mpheeló/ chinakhkoḍeloowá. ‘It, the knife that you gave me, is the (very) one that is being talked about.’
- Kooḍiye/ inakihtaja khkoḍeloowa/ nt^ho. ‘His arguments need to be taken seriously.’
- kh-kooḍela v. appl. (koḍelele) talk about, with, for; discuss
- Shkoḍelele/ khsoma pamooyi. ‘We discussed studying together.’

kh-koōdisha v. caus. (koōdishiize) cause to talk; talk to, with someone; seduce or court a woman; urge (This causative form is exceptional. We would expect the mid vowel in the stem to induce a lowering of the high vowel in ish to esh. This does not happen.)

Nk^hoōdishiize. ‘He talked to me.’

Sink^hoōdishé. ‘Don’t make me talk!’ or ‘Don’t talk to me!’

Ye/ mkoōdishiize Fardoosa/ nt^ho/ kuwa tahaðari. ‘She urged Fardoosa to be careful.’

Ye/ mkoōdishiize muþjiwe/ nt^ho/ kudhakha. ‘She urged her husband to hurry.’

Zahara/ nawakhkoōdisha waanawe/ tarafu ya mgeeni. ‘Zahara is talking to her children about the stranger.’

kh-koōdihiliza v. caus. appl. (-koōdishiize) seduce with or for Gawadi uyu/ nk^hoōdishiizee muke. ‘This pimp obtained (lit. seduced) a woman for me.’

kh-koōdishiowa v. caus. pass. (koōdishiiza)

Aaba/ koōdishiiza. ‘Aaba was made to talk; Aaba was talked to.’

Ye/ chanza khkoōdisha ruuhuye. ‘He began to talk to himself.’

kh-koōoowa v. pass. (i-koōeeġa) be talked

Chiswaahili/ hukooðowa nt^hi niingi. ‘Swahili is spoken in many countries.’

Ishkoōoowa/ haqqi... ‘If the truth were told...’

Wageeni/ wanakhkoōowa na Zahara/ tarafu yaawo. ‘The guests are being talked about them by Zahara.’

kh-koōowakoōoowa v. freq. pass.

Khkoōowakoōowa niingi/ nt^hayna faayda. ‘Talking a lot has no benefit.’

rel. nom.

m-koōda (wa-) n. 1/2 one who speaks

Mkoōda waako/ si waako. ‘The one who talks ill of yours (i.e. your friends or relatives) is not your (i.e. your friend).’ (A proverb.)

Yuusufu/ e/ we/ mkoōda lġla/ shġafsirġle/ ndroto izi. ‘O you Joseph, speaker of truth, explain for us these dreams.’

m-koōdisha (wa-) n. one who talks to, seduces

koōdi

n. 9/10 language, talking, words

Chiwona koōdi/ zaa dafa/ nza lġla. ‘It realized that the words of the hawk were the truth.’

khġinda koōdi ‘to decide, be decisive and to the point, cut off talking’; also: khġindowa koōdi (passive), khġindila koōdi (applied)

Hasani/ ingile numbaani/ ġinzile koōdi/ waant^hu/ wanakhkoōðó/ tarafu ya Sheekhi/ safariyé. ‘Hasani entered the house and interrupted people talking about Sheekhi’s trip.’ (This example illustrates the fact that in true relative clauses, even if the verb is emphasized and put in phrase-final position, its final accent extends to the end of the relative clause.)

Jeeli/ ġinzile koōdi. ‘Jeeli made a decision.’

Koōdi/ khfanyowa niingi/ ndre/ siwo/ suura/ koōdi/ suura/ kugawishoowa/ khġindoowa. ‘For talk to be made too much and too long is not good, talk is good to be shortened and to be decisive/to the point.’

Nuuru/ mġindiġġle Hasani/ koōdi/ mwambiile/ siyé/ kaaka/ dukaani/ mara yiingine. ‘Nuuru cut off talking to Hasani and told him: don’t come to my shop the next time.’

Omari/ ġinzile koōdi/ hadiile/ mi/ mwaaanawa/ simloozi/ mwanaashke/ wa Ali. ‘Omari decided, he said: me my child will not marry Ali’s daughter.’

Waant^hu/ wazima/ washkoōða/ hawaġindoowi/ koōdi/ siwo/ adabu suura. ‘If adults are speaking, they should not be interrupted, it is not good manners.’

khkasa koōdi ‘to listen to advice etc.’

Muunt^hu/ chiza khkasa kooði/ ya waake/ huwona yaake. ‘If one does not listen to the words of his (brother, kin) he sees his (i.e. he will see a bad end).’ (A proverb.)

kh̄tomoza kooði ‘to pull out words, talk, information’ kh̄tomoza kooði/ za minooni ‘to pull out words, talk, information (as one does) teeth’

Majaajuusi/ hūtomoza waant^hu/ koði za minooni. ‘Spies pry out from people words of teeth (i.e. pry out information etc. from people that is like extracting teeth).’

khtila kooði ‘to make an argument, oppose with words’; also: khtilowa kooði (passive), khtilika kooði (potential-stative)

Chiint^hu/ it̄inzila go’aani/ fadhiini/ muunt^hu/ haatili/ kooði. ‘Something decided in the meeting, one should not dispute/ argue about.’

Kooði/ ish̄indoowa/ na wazele/ ha’it̄iloowi/ kooði. ‘If matters discussed are decided by the elders, there should be no arguing about them.’

Masheekhi/ amri yaawo/ ha’it̄iliki/ kooði. ‘The orders of scholars are not disputed.’

Kooði/ haspiki/ chuungu. ‘Words do not cook food (lit. the cooking pot).’ (A proverb.)

Kooði/ ich̄ilawa kanaani/ ha’iruudi. ‘When talk comes out of the mouth, it does not go back in.’ (A proverb.)

Kooði/ hazimali. ‘Talk has no end.’ (A proverb.)

Kooði iyi/ inayo ma’ana. ‘This word has meaning.’ (A saying, stressing that you mean something by the word you spoke.)

Kooði/ kila mo/ jisaa ye/ hutaambuló. ‘Talk is how everyone understands it.’ (A proverb.)

Kooði/ majibuye/ ni kooði. ‘The answer to words is words.’ (A proverb.)

Kooði niingi/ haziinfi/ chiint^hu. ‘Too much talk does not serve anything.’ (A proverb.)

Kooði njeema/ wahali/ koði mbovu/ dahari. ‘A good word is a companion, a bad word is suffering.’ (A proverb.)

koði ya mw̄ iinsho ‘the last word’

koði za Chimwiini ‘the Chim(w)iini language’

Kooði/ zim̄lazilelazile. ‘He blurted out the words (lit. the words came out and came out from him).’

Kooðize/ kana/ za waana ‘His talk is like that of children (i.e. he talks a lot of nonsense, foolishness).’

kuleta kooði ‘to report what someone is saying in private’

Muunt^hu/ huleto kooði/ kh̄tukulo kooði/ ni muunt^hu/ wa āḁabuuni. ‘One who brings and takes talk (i.e. reveals what people are saying) is a person of hellfire.’

Mi/ nk̄ōdele na Nuurú/ yana. ‘I spoke with Nuuru yesterday.’ Or with verb emphasis: Mi/ nk̄ōdelelé/ na Nuuru/ yana.

Mi/ nk̄ōdelee yaná/ na Nuuru. ‘I spoke yesterday with Nuuru.’ Or with verb focus: Mi/ nk̄ōdelelé/ yana/ na Nuuru.

Mi/ ñnakhkōḁa na Nuurú. ‘I am speaking with Nuuru.’ Or with verb emphasis: Mi/ ñnakhkōḁá na Nuuru.

Ni koði gani/ izi. ‘What kind of words are these?’

Omari/ kooðize/ nt̄aziná/ khiima | kana/ za waana. [H̄H!H!H!H!H] ‘Omari’s words do not have value/ meaning, they are like those of children.’ (We have interpreted the pitch pattern of this example as indicating that kana za waana is a separate Intonational Phrase, with pitch re-setting putting the initial pitch at a level similar to the last accented syllable in the first IP. It should be noted that the subject of this clause is superficially null, but the agreement morpheme z- in the phrase za waana ‘of children’ indicates that the null subject being referred to is kooði ‘words’. There is no overt copula preceding kana ‘like’.)

Speendi/ koođizo. ‘I don’t want to hear your words.’

Sultaani/ chimwaambila/ munt^hu mletelelo koođi/ keendra/ kumvilila Ali. ‘The sultan told the man who had brought the information to go to call Ali for him.’

Wamwambile muunt^hu/ koođi. [H!H] ‘They spoke to the man [lit. they spoke to the man words].’ Or: Muunt^hu/ wamwambile koođi. [H!H]

Ye/ nt^hakhsuula/ kinenza koođi. ‘She did not wish to continue the conversation.’

i-kodho (mi-)

n. 5/4 a kind of shore bird that survives on left-overs of the sahali; it is believed that the ikodho cannot give birth to a sahali, but that the ikodho is an offspring of the sahali (Although dh ordinarily only occurs in Somali loanwords in Chimini, we have not located this word in Somali.)

Chiwona ikodho/ ikulu/ yiile/ yulushile/ yulushile/ yiile/ yingile (ka iyo)/ ka sultaani/ yingiló. ‘He saw a large seagull; it came, it flew and flew, it came, it entered there in the sultan’s [house], that is where it went in.’

Naank^bó/ chimwona ikodho/ kamba jisaa ye/ huuyó/ naank^bó/ ile/ ingile ukuje/ nini/ watilile waanawe/ kuja. ‘And again he saw the seagull like the way she used to come (home), and again she came and entered in there and, what, put food for her children.’

Sahali/ huzala ikodho. ‘A sahali gives birth to an ikodho.’

koofano

n. [Ital. cofano] hood (of a car)

Gari iyi/ hayfunguliki/ koofano. ‘This car’s hood cannot be opened.’

i-koofiya (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. kofia SSED 215; Ar.] hat (generic term)

Ikoofiya/ ichimwingila sultaani/ mkonooni. ‘The hat fell into [lit. entered into] the sultan’s hand[s]. (s.t. that was not wanted nor planned).’ (Prosody. This sentence exhibits canonical downstep intonation. As such, the corresponding simple yes-no question undergoes no accent-shift, just Q-raising. The exclamatory question shows accent-shift in the verb phrase: Ikoofiya/ ichimwingila sultaani/ mkonooni!?) ikofiya yaa mi/ mp^hheetó/ ya mwaana ‘the hat that I found of [i.e. belonging to] the boy’ (Notice that the relative clause yaa mi/ mp^hheetó ‘that I found’ modifies the head of the associative phrase ikofiya ya mwaana ‘the child’s hat’ and as a consequence ya mwaana is outside the relative clause; one does not say ikofiya yaa mi/ mp^hheetó/ ya mwaaná, with the final accent triggered by the verb extending to the ya mwaana phrase.)

ikofiya ya mwaana ‘the child’s hat’

Ikofiyaani/ andishile shi’iri ka chihindi. ‘On the hat he wrote a poem in Hindi.’

Ka nasiibuye/ kuwa suura/ mwana wa sultaani/ ikoofiya/ ichimwingila sultaani/ mkonooni. ‘The son of the sultan’s luck being good, the hat fell into sultan’s hands.’

mwaana/ ikofiyaye ‘the boy’s hat (lit. the boy his hat)’ (Notice that the addition of the possessive enclitic to the noun ikoofiya triggers the shortening of the long vowel in the first syllable of the stem since the addition of a syllable puts the vowel too far from the end of the word to bear the “abstract stress” that allows a long vowel to remain.)

mwana waa mi/ mp^heto ikofiyayé ‘the child who I found his hat’

Mwana wa sultaani/ shfanya ikoofiya/ isuura. ‘The sultan’s son made a beautiful hat.’

Wo/ hushoma makoofiya. ‘They sew hats.’

rel.

koofiya n. ibid.

kofiya ya chim(w)iini ‘a white skull-cap with a design that is handmade’ (also known as kofiya ya stuundu)

l-kofiya (mi-) n.aug. 11/4

sh-kofiya (s-) n. dim. 7/8

m-kohaatiimu (wa-)

n. 1/2 a member of the Haatiimu clan, which is one of the two clans making up the Bida; the primary consultant for our original work on Chimiini in the 1970’s and 1980’s, Mohammad Imam Abasheikh, was a mkohaatiimu

chimini cha Wakohaatiimu ‘the Chimiini spoken by the Wakohaatiimu’

Mi/ ni Raawali/ Mustafa/ ni Mkohaatiimu. ‘I am of the Raawali clan; Mustafa is a member of the Kohaatiimu clan.’

koohi

n. team, squad

Ka paapo/ koohi/ ya Hamiisi/ watile chigooli/ cha kaandra. ‘Suddenly, Hamiisi’s team scored the first goal.’

Nt^haasa/ hutasawara/ koohi/ kunajiha. ‘It remains possible for the team to be successful.’

kooko

n. cook

Kooko/ rasmi/ laazimu/ kuvala garambiyoolo/ mukhtaa ye/ nakhpiko.
‘An official cook must wear an apron when he cooks.’

kooko

[Sw. kuko SSED 225] strong locative demonstrative; there, far away

Fulaani/ nasale kooko/ ka kheeriye/ na shariye. ‘Let so-and-so stay far away with his blessings and his wickedness!’

kooko/ ka kooko ‘from there to somewhere else’

Mojitu/ nashfanyiliza msiba uyu/ kooko/ ka kooko. ‘May God make for us this problem be from there to somewhere else!’ (A proverbial saying.)

Mulowe/ na maaiye/ (yanawe) kooko/ ka kooko. ‘His fire and his water, let them be far away.’ (A saying; see below.)

Maayi/ kooko/ mulo/ kooko. ‘Let water be there far away, let fire be there far away!’ (A saying where the speaker is uttering a sort of prayer that some possible disaster stay far away.)

kooko/ oko

emphatic locative demonstrative; that very place

kooko/ oko/ muskitiini ‘at that very mosque’; or: kooko/ muskitiini/oko ‘ibid.’; or: muskitiini/ kooko/ oko ‘ibid.’; or: oko/ muskitiini/ kooko ‘ibid.’; but not muskitiini/ oko/ kooko

Noloshihe kooko/ oko. ‘I went to that very same place.’ (cf. Umo kooko/ oko. ‘He is in this very same place.’) (Phon. Despite the extremely close relationship between kooko and oko, it is clear that they are in separate phonological phrases and that kooko is focused/emphasized. The vowel length in kooko shows that it is phrase-final. The failure of the final accent in Noloshihe kooko/ oko. to extend past kooko shows that it is focused/emphasized.)

Nsafiriile ka kooko/ oko. ‘I departed from that place.’ Or: Nsafiriile/ ka kooko/ oko. (Prosody. The first example contrasts with the immediately preceding example, where kooko did not allow the final accent to project beyond it. In the present example, it appears that while kooko is in some sense focused, it is not the sort of focus that triggers the Accentual Law of Focus.)

Omari/ lasile mwaana/ kooko/ oko/ ka Hasani. ‘Omari left the child right there at Hasani’s place.’

Omari/ mlasile maana/ kooko/ oko/ numbaani. ‘Omari left the child right there at the house.’ (Prosody. Perhaps somewhat surprisingly, we did not observe accent-shift in the simple yes-no question, despite the clearly focused nature of kooko. Shift was observed in the exclamatory question: Omari/ mlasile maana/ kooko/ oko/ numbaani!?)

Safirile ka kooko/ oko. ‘He departed from that place.’ Or: Safariile/ ka kooko/ oko.

Safirile ka kooko/ oko/ pashpo kingila muyiini. ‘He departed from that very place without even coming into town.’

Safirile ka kooko/ oko/ so. ‘He departed from that very place, didn’t he?’

i-kooko (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. ukoko SSED 493] hard crust that sticks to the bottom of a pot when it has been cooked at too hot a temperature; scab

Chimpa mwaanawe/ chakuja chisuura/ na mwana wa muhliwé/ chimpa makooko. ‘She gave her child good food and her husband’s child makooko.’

ikoko yaa muti ‘the bark of a tree’

Laakini/ zijo/ mpele mwanaamke/ na ikookó/ mpele mwana wa muhliwe. ‘But zijo she gave to her daughter, and ikooko she gave to her husband’s child.’

Mi/ nk^hawaa munó/ mi/ suła khpoowa/ makooko/ naawé/ zijó? ‘If I were your little sister, would I be given the crust and you zijo?’

Nunguu nk^hulu/ haykosi/ ikooko. ‘A large pot never fails to have ikooko.’ (A proverb.)

rel.

l-kooko (mi-) n. aug. 11/4

sh-kooko (s-) n. dim. 7/8

m-kooko (ma-) n. 3/6 [Sw. mkoko (mi-) SSED 286] mangrove Oloshela mkokooni. ‘He went to the mangrove.’

kh-kokola v. [Sw. kokoa SSED 216] (kokeele) gather together a large quantity of s.t. (similar in meaning to kuzoola, which appears to be more commonly used)

rel.

kh-kokolela v. appl. (kokolelele) kh-kookota v. [Sw. kokota SSED 216] (kokeete or kokosele) drag, pull behind one on the ground khkokota ruuhu ‘to get along on one’s own’

Nakhkokota ruuhuye. ‘He is getting along on his own.’

Mkokosele Hamadi. ‘He dragged Hamadi.’

Mwaana/ chiwa’amura wataana/ kumkokotaa ndrovu/ haṭá/ muyiini. ‘The son ordered the servants to drag the elephant up to the town.’

Walá/ wo/ nt^hawakhfikira/ kuwa washkookota/ ijarsi/ kuwa uyu/mp^haka/ takoondroka. ‘Nor did they think that if they pulled the bell, that this cat would wake up.’ check

Wamalizopoo kujá/ wachimbiga/ dughaaghi/ nk^hambalaze/

wachimkookota/ masku/ na muunt^hi/ hattá/ muyiini. ‘When they finished eating, they tied up the beast with ropes and dragged him night and day until town.’

Wanakhkokotapó/ ifanyizee nk^heje/ niingi. ‘While they were pulling it, it made a great deal of noise.’

rel.

kh-kokotana v. rec. (-kokoteene) pull one another

Wafiiló/ wanakhkokotana. ‘The dead are dragging one another.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is jahazi/ na itaangá ‘fishing boat and sail’.)

kh-kokoteka v. p/s.

kh-kokotela v. appl. (kokotelelele) pull for, with

Ali/ nk^hokotelele (i)bakhji. ‘Ali dragged the carcass for me.’

kh-kokotesha v. caus. (kokotesheeze)

Ibreeni/ mkokotesheze mwaana/ gaari. ‘Ibreeni had the child pull the car.’ (It is of course possible for the causee in this example to be referred to by the object marker, but otherwise not included in the sentence: Ibreeni/ mkokotesheze gaari. ‘Ibreeni had him pull the car.’ It is also possible to fail to specify what was pulled: Ibreeni/ mkokotesheze mwaana. ‘Ibreeni had the child pull something.’ It is possible to not specify the causee at all: Ibreeni/ kokotesheze gaari. ‘Ibreeni had the car pulled.’ But one cannot have the verb agree with the thing pulled: Ibreeni/ ikokotesheze gaari. An object marker on the verb always refers to the causee and cannot refer to the logical object.)

Sarmadi/ mkokotesheze Haamidi/ waana. ‘Sarmadi had Haamidi pull the children.’ (Because the causee and the logical object belong to different noun classes, it is possible to omit the causee and rely on the object marker to convey the meaning: Sarmadi/ mkokotesheze waana. ‘Sarmadi had him pull the children.’ If the logical object is not expressed, then Sarmadi/ mkokotesheze. conveys the meaning ‘Sarmadi had him pull something or someone’. The causee and the logical object may belong to the same noun class, as in Sarmadi/ mkokotesheze Haamidi/ mwaana. ‘Sarmadi had Haamidi pull the child.’ But in this case there can be no omission of the noun referring to the causee: Sarmadi/ mkokotesheze mwaana. cannot mean ‘Sarmadi had him pull the child’; it can only mean ‘Sarmadi had the child pull something or someone’.)

kh-kokotesheza v. caus. rec.

kh-kokotesheka v. caus. p/s.

kh-kokotesheleza v. caus. appl.

Omari/ mkokotesheleze Ali/ mwaana/ gaari. ‘Omari made Ali’s child pull the truck.’

kh-kokoteshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-kokotoowa v. pass.

rel. nom.

m-kokota (wa-) n. 1/2 one who drags, pulls mu-kookoto (mi-)

n. 3/4 cart

Mahamaali/ sukhuuni/ ndiwó/ wa’uskuma mikookoto. ‘Porters at the market are the ones who push carts.’

koleejo

n. college review 1

Abú/ anzize koloka koleejo. ‘Abu has begun attending college.’

Fardoosa/ anzize khsoma koleejo/ jisaa ye/ khpata kazi suura. ‘Fardoosa began attending college in order to get a better job.’

kolko

[Sw. kuliko SSED 226] greater than, more than, rather than Afóali/ khsaafira/ kolko khkalaant^ha. ‘Better to travel than to stay.’

Kaafiri/ khiinfó/ ni kheeri/ kolko/ islamu sho khiinfa. ‘An infidel who is of use to you is better than a Muslim who is of no use to you.’ (A proverb.)

Laakini/ furahiloo nt^ho/ kolko sultaani/ ni Sultani Daraayi. ‘The one who was pleased more than the sultan was Sultan Daraayi.’

Miti ayo/ ni zigobe/ kolko/ miti aya. ‘Those trees are shorter than these trees.’

Miti ayo/ ni zigobee nt^ho/ kolko miti aya. ‘Those trees are much shorter than these trees.’

Munt^hu uje/ si/ chinamwiiwá/ kolko we. ‘That man, we know him better than you do.’

mwaana/ kawaa mulé/ kolko Muusá ‘if the child had been taller than Muusa’ Naani/ mulé/ kolko Muusá. ‘Who is taller than Muusa.’ (While it may be possible to retain the copula, our consultant judged it to sound redundant:

Naani/ nii mulé/ kolko Muusá.)

Ni Nuuru/ mulé/ kolko Muusá. ‘It is Nuuru who is taller than Muusa.’ (In this example, the ni Nuuru structure triggers pseudo-relativization which, in the absence of an overt verbal element, is manifested on the predicate adjective as well as the following phrase. It is apparently possible for the predicate adjective to be focused, in which case final accent does not project into the following phrase: Ni Nuuru/ mulé/ kolko Muusa. ‘It is Nuuru who is taller than Muusa.’ There is a variant of this sentence where kolko is phrasally separated from the following noun phrase: Ni Nuuru/ mulé/ kolko/ Muusa.

Raaði/ nii nk^hulu/ kolko maali. ‘Blessing is better than wealth.’ (A proverb.)
Sultaani/ mpeenzele/ mwaana/ uyu/ kolko waanawe/ wawili. ‘The king loved this boy more than his own two children.’

n-kolgoro

n. trevally, a family of fish of which there are many species [pron. nk^holgoro] variant forms: nk^holgoro review whether both l and r are possible pronunciations nk^holgoro abu rassi ‘a trevally with a huge head’ nk^holgoro huundru ‘[lit.] red trevally, but actually a bluefin trevally (and not red at all)’ nk^holgoro bahariini ‘[lit.] deep sea trevally, a trevally like nk^holgoro huundru but bigger’ confirm long vowel in bahariini nk^holgoro joodari ‘[lit.] tuna trevally, its meat looks like tuna (jackfish?)’ nk^holgoro ya matete ‘lit. spotted trevally, has three dots with gray lines and white streamlined body; never caught in high seas, they surf with the waves’

n-kolo

n. 9/10 [Sw. koleo SSED 216] pincer of the native type used e.g. to pick up s.t. hot; a large hook (e.g. on a crane)
 rel.
sh-kolo (s-) n. 7/8 hook

koola

n. glue Chilaatucha/ yambushile koola. ‘My shoe, the glue has become undone/ is not holding s.t. in place.’
kaambaṭa/ kana koola ‘to stick like glue’ Mambeete/ kana/ koola. ‘He stuck to him like glue.’
kumshiika/ kana koola ‘to hold him like glue’

kh-kola

v. [perhaps connected to Som. kulul ‘to be hot’ DSI 373 and Tunni kulal Tosco 223] (kozele) be or get warm, warm up Chaayi/ chiko muḷooni/ chinakhkola. ‘The tea is on the fire, it is getting warm.’
Kahawa/ ikozele. ‘The coffee has become warmed up.’
Kuja/ yiko muḷooni/ inakhkola. [H!H!H] ‘The food is on the fire, it is getting hot.’
 rel.
kh-koleza v. caus. appl. warm up with or for Fanyizee muḷo/ khkoleza chaakuja. ‘He made a fire to warm the food with.’
kh-kolezakoleza v. caus. appl. redup.
Nimwene Haliimá/ numbaani/ kaaké/ nakuwakolezakoleza waana/ kuja. ‘I saw Haliima in her house warming food for the children.’
kh-koza v. caus. (koseeze) warm, heat s.t. up Haliima/ nakhkozaa kuja. ‘Haliima is warming up food.’
kh-kozaakoza v. caus. redup.
Omari/ nakhkozakoza kuuluye/ ka chiguwo chimuḷo/ imfuriile. ‘Omari is warming his leg with a warm cloth, it is swollen.’
kh-kozeka v. caus. p/s. able to be warmed up i-koli

n. [etymology unknown] nickname
Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kuvilowa ka ikoli. ‘It is not good for someone to be called by his nickname.’
Omari/ ikoliye/ ni Baabu. ‘Omari’s nickname is Baabu.’

kh-kolola

v. [Sw. kohoa SSED 215] (koleele) cough
Baabu/ nakhkolola maazi. ‘Baabu is coughing blood.’

Hamadi/ nakhkolola/ ox ox. ‘Hamadi is coughing ox ox.’ Nakhkolola/ kana ibuzi. ‘He is coughing like a big sheep.’
rel.

kh-kololeḷa v. appl. (kololeḷe)

Ondroka/ sink^hololeḷé. ‘Move away, don’t cough on me.’

kh-kololoowa v. pass. (koleḷa) be coughed kh-kololakolola v. freq.

Waana/ hawakhaadiri/ wanakhkololakolola. ‘The children are sick, they are coughing and coughing.’

Waana/ sku mbili izi/ wanakhkololakolola/ hawa/ ibadilishile/ ni bardi.
‘Children these days are coughing and coughing; the air has turned, it is cold.’

kh-kololeka v. p/s. (kololeshele)

kh-kololesha v. caus. (kololesheeze) make cough kh-kololeshana v. caus. rec.

kh-kololesheleza v. caus. appl.

kh-kololeshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

i-kololo (mi-)

n. 5/4 cough

Ikololo/ dawaye/ ni kumiza mayank^huku mawiti/ mawili/ kiḷa/ fijiri/ skuu nt^hatu. ‘A cough, its medicine (remedy) is to swallow two raw eggs each morning for three days.’

Alí/ ikololo yiingi/ impanzize chiliini. ‘Too much coughing confined Ali to bed.’

Omari/ nakhkolola ikololo ikavu. ‘Omari is coughing a dry cough.’

rel.

i-kololo (mi-) n. aug. cough

sh-kololo (s-) n. cough, coughing

Mapeenzi/ ni kama shkololo/ haya’ushiki. ‘Love is like coughing, it cannot be hidden.’ (A proverb.)

Umi/ potoshele/ ka shkololo. ‘Umi bent over coughing.’

kh-koma

v. [Sw. koma SSED 217] (komeele) arrive, reach (for,to), visit (but not stay at a place)

Ajaliyo/ ikomeele. ‘Your time of death has come.’

Chaaki/ oloshole Ohaayo/ khkoma wazele. ‘Chuck went to Ohio to visit his parents.’

Chimooche/ shkomeḷee jasi. ‘His height reached to the roof (i.e. he was so tall that he could reach the roof).’

Chinakhkoma dukaani/ kulaa mazú. ‘We are going to the shop to buy bananas.’

Chiineendra/ muda/ wa sku niingi/ nt^ho/ haḷá/ aakhiri/ shkoma nt^hi mooyi. ‘He walked for a period of many days until at last he reached a land.’

Chishkomeelé. ‘We have reached [cl.7].’

Fijiri/ ishkomá/ holoka kaake/ mundraani. ‘When morning comes, he goes to his farm.’

Fijiri/ ishkomá/ we/ ndraasha. ‘When morning comes, follow me!’

Khabari izi/ haskomi/ Mkhodiisho. ‘This news will not reach Mogadishu.’

Khabari/ schimkoma sulṭaani. ‘The news reached the sultan (it was not expected and was not wanted).’ (This sentence exhibits canonical downstep intonation. As expected, the yes-no question involves only Q-raising, with no accent shift. The exclamatory question has accent shift in the verb phrase: Khabari/ schimkoma sulṭaani!?)

Khabari/ zimbomele Omari. ‘The news reached Omari.’ (Even though Omari governs object agreement on the verb in this example, it is not possible to make Omari the subject of a corresponding passive sentence: Omari/ komelá na khabari. ‘Omari was reached by the news.’ This is presumably due to the non-agentive nature of the subject in Khabari/ zimbomele Omari. Note also that one can say Omari/ khabari/ zimkomeele. The grammatical relations remain the same.)

Kheeri/ kuraaga/ kama chiza khkoma. ‘Better to be late than not to come at all.’

Khfakaṭa/ siwo/ khkoma. ‘To run is not to arrive.’ (A proverb.)

khkoma go’aani ‘to reach a decision’

We/ Hamadi/ koma go’aani/ jawabu iyo/ kanaa we/ nakhjfaanyá/ amó/ kanaa we/ nt^hunakhfaanyá. ‘You, Hamadi, reach a decision about that matter, if you are going to do it or if you are not going to do it.’

khkoma mpaka ‘to reach the limits (literally or figuratively)

Sabriya/ ikomele mpaka. ‘My patience reached its limit.’

khkoma na ‘to stop’

Koma na (khfanya) ziwovu. ‘Stop doing evil deeds!’

khkoma suura ‘to complete the study of a suura in koranic school’

Kooḍi/ zimkomeele. ‘The conversation reached him (i.e. he heard about the conversation).’

Komele hafisaani. ‘He arrived at the office.’

Komele numbaani. ‘He reached home.’

Komele Miini/ ṭakuruda ba’ada skuu mbili. ‘He went to Brava, he will return after two days.’

komelopo kaaké ‘when he arrived at his place’

Muke/ wakhtí/ ukomeelopó/ chishika uṭuungu/ chizala ‘when the time came the woman went into labor and gave birth.’

mukhta wakhtí/ ukomeelopó ‘when the time came’

Mukhta ya/ komeloo mbelé/ za Harun Rashiidi/ nt^hampa/ salaamu/

Harun Rashiidi. ‘When he arrived in front of Haruun Rashiidi, he did not greet Haruun Rashiidi.’

Muza eelo/ mkomeelopó/ maskiini/ chimuza sa’ari ya eelo. ‘When the seller of gazelles reached him, the poor man asked him the price of the gazelle.’

Nnakhkoma wazeelé. ‘I am going to visit my parents.’

Nuuru/ mkomele Hamadi. ‘Nuuru reached Hamadi.’

Olele mkono/ khkoma mlaango. ‘He stretched his arm to reach the door.’

Shfakaṭa/ haṭá/ shkoma muuyi/ mooyi/ mkulu/ nuumbaze/ zote/ zaa mawe. ‘He ran until he reached a big town, all of its houses made of stone.’

Sku ya ikumi/ wo/ washkoma muuyi/ wa mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ namsuuló. ‘On the tenth day, they reached the town of the girl that the sultan wanted.’

Sku ya taatu/ washkoma/ jaziira/ yiingine. ‘The third day they reached another island.’

Suufi/ komele kaawo. ‘Suufi reached home.’

Wageeni/ wakomeele/ numbaani. [H’H!H] ‘The guests arrived at the house.’ Or: Numbaani/ wakomeele/ wageeni. [H’H!H] ‘At the house they arrived, the guests.’

Wakomelo numbaani/ ni wageeni. [H’H] ‘The ones who arrived at the house are the guests.’ Or: Numbaani/ wakomeeló/ ni wageeni. [H’H’H] ‘The house, the ones who arrived were the guests.’

Wakomeelopó/ sarmala/ chilindra ndilaani. ‘When they arrived, the carpenter waited outside.’

Waana/ wakomele Nuuru. ‘The children approached Nuuru.’

Waant^hu/ hukomó/ khariibu/ ya miḷyuuni/ ishiriini/ walazile/ ndilaani/ leelo/ khfanya muḍaahara/ ḍiddi/ ya ra’iisi/ Niksoni. ‘People, who reached close to twenty million people, took the streets today to protest against President Nixon.’ (Note that the final accent associated with the relative verb hukomó does not extend past the verb. Since the final accent of a relative verb always extends to the end of the relative clause, the prosody seems to indicate that khariibu/ ya miḷyuuni/ ishiriini are not regarded as part of the relative verb phrase.)

Ye/ safarile sku niingi/ haṭá/ komeele/ Misra. ‘He travelled many days until he reached Egypt.’

rel.

kh-komana v. rec. (i) be close [lit. reach one another]; (ii) associate with

(i) Wana awo/ hukomana na mikono. ‘Those children (by you) are close to

- one another (lit. reach one another with the hands).’
- (ii) Waanawa/ wawili/ hukala muyi mooyi/ laakini/ hawakomani. ‘My two children live in one town, but they do not deal with each other [lit. reach one another].’ (A riddle, the answer to which is zilima ziwili ‘two small hills’.)
- Want^hu awa/ hawakomani/ ka kheeri/ walá/ ka sharri. ‘These people do not associate with one another either in good times or bad times.’
- kh-komeka* v. p/s. be approachable, reachable
- Hakomeki/ fijiri. ‘He cannot be approached in the morning (e.g. because he is too moody at that time of day).’
- Huwala/ hupeendeza/ laakini/ hashkomeki. ‘It shines, it pleases, but it cannot be reached.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa ‘the sun’.)
- Khabari/ haskomeki. ‘The news cannot be reached (i.e. it is secret).’
- Kuzimu/ haykomeki. ‘The sky cannot be reached.’
- Zeena/ hakomeki/ na want^hu. ‘Zeena cannot be approached by people.’
- kh-komela* v. appl. (komelele) reach for, with
- Mkomelele Hamadi/ numbaani. ‘He reached the house (quickly) for/on Hamadi.’
- Tete gaari/ khkomela numbaani. ‘He took a car to go to the house.’
- kh-komelana* v. appl. rec. visit one another
- Jirani izi/ hukomelana. ‘These neighbors visit one another.’
- kh-komeleza* v. tr. appl.
- Baana/ mkomeleze mwaalimu/ waana/ madrasaani. ‘Baana took the children to school for the teacher.’
- Mwaalimu/ mkomeleze Nuuru/ mwaana/ suura. ‘The teacher taught the child to complete the suura for Nuuru.’
- Nikhukomeleze nthumeyó/ ka Hamadí. ‘I conveyed your message to Hamadi.’
- Suufi/ mkomeleze Nuuru/ mwaana/ kaawo. ‘Suufi took Nuuru’s child home.’
- kh-komelezanya* v. caus. appl. rec.
- khkomelezanyaa nthume ‘to convey messages for one another’
- khkomelezanya waana/ numbaani ‘to help the children home for another’
- khkomelezanya waana/ suura ‘to help the children complete a suura for one another’
- kh-komesha* v. caus.
- Nuuru/ mkomesheze mwaana/ kaawo. ‘Nuuru caused the child to go home.’
- kh-komesheleza* v. caus. appl.
- Suufi/ mkomesheleze Nuuru/ mwaana/ kaawo. ‘Suufi caused Nuuru’s child to go home.’
- kh-komeshelezanya* v. caus. appl. rec.
- Suufi/ na Nuurú/ wakomeshelezenye waana/ kaawo. ‘Suufi and Nuuru caused one another’s children to go home.’
- kh-komeza* v. tr. (komeeze) convey, cause to reach, help to reach
- Ali/ mkomeze maana/ lkasaani. ‘Ali helped the child to reach up to the ceiling.’
- Ali/ komezee khati/ numbaani. ‘Ali took the letter home.’
- Bur’i/ mkomeze Huseeni/ khabari. ‘Bur’i caused the news to reach Huseeni (this could mean that Bur’i told Huseeni directly or told him through an intermediary.)
- Hamadi/ mkomeze Omari/ khabari. ‘Hamadi caused the news to reach Omari.’ (Syn. This example is interesting because the noun Omari controls the object agreement in the causative sentence just as it does in the simple sentence to which it is related: Khabari/ zimkomele Omari. ‘The news reached Omari.’ Ordinarily, the object of the causative verb is the subject in the corresponding simple verb, as discussed in the introduction. This phenomenon is connected to the inanimate nature of khabari.)

Jahaziyo/ haytakhukomeza/ mahaḷa/ we/ walá/ waant^hú/ wakhurashiizó.
'Your boat will not cause you to reach anyplace nor the people who have followed you.'

Ji/ komezee khaṭi/ ka Ali. 'Ji took the letter to Ali.'

Keesho/ nt^hakhonyezaa ndila/ khukomezo ka mzele wa taatú.
'Tomorrow I will show you the road that will make you reach the third old woman.'

khkomeza khabari 'to report what was said'

khkomeze kooḍi 'to report what was said'

Ali/ mkomeze mwaalimu/ koḍi ziitu. 'Ali reported our conversation to the teacher.'

khkomeze nt^hume 'to convey a message, cause a message to reach s.o.'

Noloshele kaa muke/ na nimkomeezé/ nt^humeyo. 'I went to the woman and conveyed to her your message.'

Komeze maana/ chaakuja. 'He took the child food.'

Komeze maaana/ numbaani. 'He helped the child home.'

Komeze maana/ suura. 'He helped the child complete the study of the suura.'

Laakini/ ye/ takunk^homezaa dhibu/ takump^handila/ apa/ mahaḷaa mi/ niikó. 'But he will cause me difficulty, he will come up for me here to the place where I am.'

Mooja (or: Mojiitu)/ nashkomeza. 'May God let us reach it.' This is said as comment to any long-term plan: it is uncertain whether God will let us live so long as to reach the time to implement it. It is more or less the equivalent of the Arabic Inshallah.

Mtume Nuuhu/ waliko tumiḷa/ na mojiitu/ keendra/ khkomeza/ risaala/ ka makhluuqu/ wa nt^hi izo/ karka wakhṭi/ oyo. 'Prophet Noah was sent by God to go to take a message to the people of those countries at that time.'

Muke/ mamaye Safiya/ chimkomeza/ khabari izi/ waawaye. 'The woman, Safiya's mother, conveyed this news to her father.' (The construction mamaye Safiya is well-attested in MI's speech, but seems less acceptable to our current consultants.)

Nimkomeze Hamadí/ khabari. 'I conveyed the news to Hamadi.'

Sku mooyi/ mgeeni/ uyu/ ndrashiize/ kunk^homezaa dhibu. 'One day this foreigner followed me (in order) to bring harm to me.'

Suufi/ mkomeze maana/ kaawo. 'Suufi took the child home.'

Ye/ takunkhomezaa dhibu. 'It (e.g. the rabbit) will cause me difficulties.'

kh-komezeka v. caus. p.s.

Hamadi/ hakomezeki/ khabara. 'Hamadi cannot be brought news.'

kh-komoowa v. pass.

Fijiri/ ishkomoowa/ nt^hakhusaayda/ kingila nt^hi wako mayahuudi.

'When morning is reached, I will help you to enter the land where there are Jews.'

Hamadi/ komela na Nuuru. 'Hamadi was reached by Nuuru.'

Kuja/ Huseeni/ huja na mwanaamke/ laakini/ ishkomoowa/ wakhṭi/ wa kulaḷoowa/ mwanaamke/ hingila kaake/ mṭanaani. 'Food Huseeni eats with the girl, but when the time is reached for sleeping, the girl enters her bedroom.'

rel. nom.

m-koma (wa-) n. 1/2 one who reaches

m-komeza (wa-) n. 1/2 one who conveys

m-komo n. 3

Nṭ^hamkoma mkomo mo. 'I will visit him once.'

ma-komo n. 6 end

sh-komo (s-) n. 7/8 end, destination

Komele shkomo cha suura. 'He reached the end of the suura.'

shkomo cha kulla darsi 'the end of each lesson'

u-komo n. 14

- kh-koomba* v. [cf. Sw. komba "scrape out, hollow out, clean out" SSED 217] (koonzele) lick Koomba! 'Lick!' (cf. Kombaani! 'You (pl.) lick!') Kombani sufuriya! 'You (pl.) lick the pot!'
Omari/ konzele chaalache. 'Omari licked his finger.'
Skombeení. 'You (pl.) don't lick!' Skombeení/ zaala! 'You (pl.) don't lick (your) fingers!'
rel.
kh-koombeka v. p/s.
kh-koombela v. appl.
kh-komboowa v. pass. be licked Mkono mtupu/ hawkomboowi. 'An empty hand is not licked.' (A proverb.)
kh-koonza v. caus. (konzeeze) Heedari/ mkonzeze mwaana/ chaalache. 'Heedhari caused the child to lick his finger.' (The periphrastic version of this sentence: Heedari/ mtile mwaana/ khkombaa chaalacha. 'Heedhari persuaded/convinced the child to lick his finger.')
- kh-konzeleza* v. caus. appl. (konzeleeze) Nuuru/ mkonzeleze Omari/ mwaana/ chaalache. 'Nuuru caused Omari's child to lick his finger.' (The periphrastic version of this sentence:
Nuuru/ mtile Omari/ mwaana/ khkombaa chaalache. 'Nuuru persuaded/ convinced Omari's child to lick his finger.')
- kh-konzelezanya* v. caus. appl. rec. (-konzeleezenye) Nuuru/ na Omari/ wkonzeleezenye waana/ zala zaawo. 'Nuuru and Omari caused one another's children to lick their fingers.' (The periphrastic version of this sentence: Nuuru/ na Omari/ watililene waana/ khkombaa zala zaawo. 'Nuuru and Omari persuaded/convinced one another's children to lick their fingers.')
- kh-konzeshana* given by MI but need to be verified kh-konzeshela kh-konzeshelanya
kh-konzoowa v. caus. pass. (konzeeza)
- i-koombe (ma-)* n. 5/6 [Sw. kombe SSED 318] shoulder-blade
- l-koombe (n-)* n. 11/10 [Sw. ukombe SSED 218] a silver or metal spoon, as opposed to a wooden one; [pron. nk^hoombe] (Phon. Observe that the Sw. class prefix u is l in Chimiini.)
Jile ka l_koombe. 'He ate with a spoon.'
Jilile l_koombe. 'He ate with a spoon.' (In the absence of of the logical argument, it is possible for the instrument to appear immediately after the applied verb. However, the instrument may not control an object prefix on the applied verb: Chiljilile l_koombe. The instrument may, however, be the subject of the passive verb:
l_koombe/ ljilila. 'The spoon was used to eat.')
- l_kombe chihaba 'a small spoon'; nk^hombe zihaba 'small spoons'
- sh-koombe (s-)* n. 7/8 [Sw. kikombe SSED 218] a china cup with a handle, bowl Nakhsula kuna shkombe cha kahawa. 'He wants to drink a cup of coffee.'
Nelele mataaza/ shkombe. 'He drank the porridge with a cup.'
Nelele maayi/ shkombe. 'He drank water with a cup.' Or: Shkombe/ nelele maayi.
shkombe cha chaayi 'a tea cup, a cup of tea' shkombe cha kahawa 'a coffee cup, a cup of coffee' shkombe cha mataaza 'a bowl of porridge' shkombe cha mtuzi 'a cup of soup' Shkombe cha mwajitu/ ni chiwaazi. 'God's cup is open.' (A riddle, the answer to which is chisima 'well'.)
Shkombe/ chivundishile. 'The cup is broken.'
Shkombe ichi/ nch^haawo. 'This cup is theirs.' (Cf. Skombe izi/ nzaawo.
'These cups are theirs.')

i-kombo (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. kombo SSED 218] leftovers, scraps on the plate after one has finished eating kuja ikombo ‘to eat leftovers’

Makombo/ yaa ye/ seezó/ chimpaa mbwa. ‘The leftovers that he did not eat he gave to the dog.’

Muxtaa wo/ wa’oshezo mikonó/ khaadimu/ naayé/ chiya/ chija/ makombo yaseeló/ hatá/ chiikuta. ‘When they washed their hands, the servant also came and ate the leftovers until he was satiated.’

We/ ni muja ikombó. ‘You are an eater of leftovers -- an insult that refers to someone as so lazy that he relies on the leftovers of other people.’

rel.

sh-kombo (s-) n. 7/8 dim. [Sw. kikombo SSED 218]

kh-komela

v. [Sw. komea SSED 219] (komelele) lock khkomela mlaango ‘to lock inside [lit. lock the door]’

Omari/ mkomelele mwaana/ mlaango. ‘Omari locked the child inside.’

khkomela qalbi ‘to have a closed mind, not to be able to love’

Komelele qalbiye/ nt^haku/ humwingiiló. ‘He has closed his mind, there is nothing that reaches him [lit. enters him].’

Khkomelake/ mlaango/ nt^hayimdhiza (or: nt^haykumdhiza). ‘His locking the door did not bother anyone.’ (This example illustrates a type of sentential complement found in Chimiini where the possessive is encliticized to the infinitive verb: khkomelake ‘his locking’; notice that the verb so encliticized is always phrase-final.)

Komelele mlaango/ ka khpala. ‘He locked the door with a padlock.’

Shkomela mlaango/ wa chuumbache. ‘He locked the door of his room.’

rel.

kh-komelana v. rec. (-komeleene)

Waana/ wakomeleene milaango. ‘The children locked one another inside.’

kh-komeleka v. p/s. (komeleshele) be locked

Mlaango/ ukomeleshele. ‘The door is locked.’

Mlango uyu/ hukomeleka ka ifungulo ili. ‘This door can be locked with this key.’

kh-komelekeleloowa v. p/s. appl. pass. (komelekelelela)

Mi/ nk^homelekelela na mlaango. ‘I had the door lock on me.’

kh-komelekela v. p/s. appl. (komelekelelele)

Mlaango/ unk^homelekelelele. ‘The door locked on me (e.g. the wind blew it shut).’

kh-komelela v. appl. (komelelelele)

Nuuru/ mkomelelele mwaana/ mlaango. ‘Nuuru locked the door for the child.’

Tete khpala/ khkomelela mlaango. ‘He took a padlock to lock the door with.’

kh-komeleloowa v. appl. pass.

Mlango uyu/ hukomeleloowa ifungulo ili. ‘This door is locked with this key.’

kh-komelelana v. appl. rec. (-komeleleene)

Waana/ wakomeleleene milaango. ‘The children locked doors for one another.’

kh-komeleloowa v. pass.

Mlaango/ ufuunzila/ kabisá/ unakhkomeleloowa. ‘The door was closed firmly, it was locked.’

Mlaango/ wa nuumba/ iyi/ uwaliko nt^hawukhkomeloowa. ‘The door of this house was not locked.’

rel. nom.

- m-komejo* n. 3
mkomejowe wa mlaango ‘his locking of the door’ sh-komejo (s-) n. lock u-komejo n. 14
- i-koomini* (mi-) n. 5/4 a black catfish (but maybe a shark, since it does not have top fin and tail like a catfish); it has tail like that of the crocodile and lives in fresh water and arrives at the sea with the river current
- kompyuutar(i)* n. computer; pl: makompyuutari; [pron. kompyúutari]
Ba’adi ya wana wa skoola/ wanayo kompiyuutar. ‘Some students have a computer.’
Kiiboodi/ ya kompyúutari/ ápol/ ni bilaa fiilo. ‘The keyboard of an Apple computer is wireless.’
Kilaa mwaana/ wa skoola/ nayo kompyuutar. ‘Every student has a computer.’
Mi/ nenzele skoolá/ kubarata tarafu ya makompyuutari. ‘I went to school to learn about computers.’
- koncheerto* n. [Ital. concerto "concert"] This word is commonly used in southern Somalia for theatre pieces mixing drama/comedy and music. Concerts as such were unknown. These performances were never held in Brava, but only at the National Theatre in Mogadishu.
Skoola/ itakhfanya koncheerto/ khpata peesa. ‘The school will put on (lit. make) a concert in order to raise (lit. get) money.’
- i-koonde* (ma-) n. 5/6 [cf. Sw. kende SSED 183] testicle
rel.
l-koonde (mi-) n. 11/4 aug.
sh-koonde (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- i-koondre* (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. konde SSED 219] fist, blow, punch Hubigo ikutá/ ka ikoondré/ humlaazó/ ni mkonowe. ‘The one who strikes a wall with his fist, that which gives him pain is his hand.’ (A proverb.)
ikondre ya ‘a handful of’ kubiga ikoondre [Sw. piga konde SSED 219] ‘to hit with the fist’ kubiga makoondre ‘to hit with the fists’ Omari/ ikoondreye/ kana chuuma. ‘Omari’s punch, blow is like steel.’
rel.
l-koondre (mi-) n/ 11/4 aug.
sh-koondre (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- sh-koondro* (s-) n. 7/8 [no etymological source known] a sweet made of honey or sugar which has been boiled and thickened Skoondro/ zisuura/ huzowa Ka Mashariifu. ‘Good sugar candies are sold at Ka Mashariifu.’
- sh-kone* (s-) n. one-handed; a person who has lost a hand and lower arm
- m-koonge* n. [Sw. mkonge "a kind of fish" SSED 286] blue herring, has spikes that can prick; used as bait
rel.
i-koonge (ma-) n. 5/6 ibid.
l-koonge (n-) n. 11/10 ibid. [pron. nk^hoonge] sh-koonge (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- i-koongono* (ma-) n. 5/6 elbow
- n-koonko* n. a game played at the shore when the tide is low or at an open space, involving two teams hitting a ball with sticks toward a goal; [pron. nk^hoonk^ho]

m-kono (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mkono SSED 286] hand, arm, sleeve

Baaba/ chimshka mwaana/ mkono. ‘Father held the child by the arm.’

Chaako/ ni chimo kaako/ mkonooni. ‘Yours is the thing that is in your hands.’ (A proverb.) review pronunciation

Chimo kaakó/ mkonooni/ ndichó/ chaako. ‘What is in your hands is what is yours.’ (A proverb.) review

Chiint^hu/ ni chimo chiwovuuní/ silaaha/ ni yimo mkonooni. [H!H||H!H] ‘That which is in your pocket is something that you possess, that which is in your hand is a weapon (that can be used).’ (A proverb.) (We have analyzed the two clauses in this sentence as constituting a sequence of two IP’s, indicated by the symbol ||. In such a sequence, the initial accent in the second IP is raised above the last accented syllable of the first IP, but is noticeably lower than the initial accented syllable of the first IP.)

Endrá/ ruuda/ ka moojó/ muuze/ watakuwaayi/ wake/ awaje/ watinzilotinzilo ruhu zaawó/ mikonó. ‘Go, return to your master and ask him about those women who cut their hands.’

Humpa maayi/ kosha mikonó. ‘She gave him water to wash his hands.’

Ikoofiya/ imchingila sulṭaani/ mkonooni. ‘The hat fell into the king’s hand[s].’

Khati/ ye/ chimwandikila sulṭaani/ mkonooni. ‘The letter he put it in the hand of the sultan.’

Khkooḍa/ tu/ siwo/ na mkonó/ hukabiló. ‘It is not just talk, his hand he also adds (i.e. he gets physical).’

khpa mkono ‘to give a hand, support’

Muunt^hu/ walaali/ husuloowa/ kumpa mkono/ ka ismu/ ya jawaabu. ‘A person should (lit. is needed) to support his brother in any matter.’

Omari/ haṭá/ muunt^hu/ chifa/ hampi/ mkono. ‘Omari, even if someone dies, does not help him.’

khpa mkonowa ta’aziya ‘to give my hand of condolence – i.e. express one’s sympathy for someone who has lost someone dear to them’

khshika mikono ‘to walk with someone holding his/her hand’

Muke/washishile waana/ mikonó. ‘The woman walked with the children holding their hands.’

khshika mkono ‘to catch someone in the act of stealing’ (cf. Eng. to catch someone red-handed)

Mwiizi/ shishila mkono. ‘The thief was caught stealing.’

khtila mkono ‘to give, lend a hand, support’

Ali/ hadiile/ apa/ jawabu iyi/ inakhsulowa Omari/ khtila mkono/chiizapó/ hayiwi/ chiint^hu/ kuḷaṭowa Nuuru/ yeepeeke.

‘Ali said this thing is needed, for Omari to lend support, otherwise, nothing will be (done) if left to Nuuru alone.’

kingila mkonooni ‘to be in a very bad situation; be in the hands of, e.g. the police’

Ingile mikonooni/ ka askari. ‘He fell into the hands of the police.’

kuḷaṭila mikono ‘lit. to throw the hands – to reject with anger, to dismiss something as impossible to accomplish’

Ali/ jawaabu/ chihaba/ huḷaṭila mikono/ nt^haná/ sabri/ haṭá/habamooyi. ‘Ali, even over a little matter’ he throws his hands (getting upset over it), he has no patience, even a little.’

Omari/ kambilowa tomola dolari miya/ khsaydilowa Nuuru/ḷaṭile mikono/ hadiile/ mi/ hupatapi/ dolarii miya.

‘Omari to be told to pay one hundred dollars for Nuuru to be assisted, he threw up his hands and said: me, how can I get one hundred dollars?’

kuḷaṭilaa nguwo ‘lit. to throw cloth – to reject vehemently, over-react; to be extremely committed to one's position on some matter'

Ali/ mukh̄taa ye/ kasizo mwaanawé/ namsula kumnola mwanashke wa Nuurú/ lafilee nguwo/ hadiile/ awo/ ni far'aa mbovu. 'Ali, when he heard that his son wants to marry Nuuru's daughter, threw lit. cloth and said: those are from a bad clan.'

kuḷawa mkonooni 'to be out of control, spoiled (e.g. of a child who is no longer under the control of the parent)'

Ameerika/ waana/ huḷawa mikonooni. 'In America, children get out of control.'

Omari/ lazile mkonooni. 'Omari is doing whatever he wants (he is no longer under the control of his parents).'

Luti khiinfó/ ni limo kaakó/ mkonooni/ silaaha/ ni ije/ yimo mkonooni. 'The stick that is of use to you is the one that is in your hand, a weapon is the thing that is in your hand.' (A proverb.)

Luti/ limo mkonooni/ ndiló/ hubloo noká. 'The stick which is in your hand is the thing that kills a snake.' (A proverb.)

Mbishile mwaana/ mkono. 'She hit the child's hand.'

mikono/ chiṭaani 'hands on the head – i.e. grief-stricken'

Ile mikono/ chiṭaani. 'He came grief-stricken.'

mikono mikavu 'dry hands; empty-handed'

mikono miwili 'two hands'

Mikono/ yiimp^hi. 'Which hands?'

mkono chigobe 'small hand'; mkono zigobe 'small hands'

Mkono mooyi/ hawkorshi/ mwaana. 'One hand cannot raise a child.' (A proverb.)

Mkono mtupu/ ha'utoorati/ chiint^hu. 'An empty hand cannot do anything.' (A proverb.)

Mkono mtupu/ hawkomboowi. 'An empty hand is not licked.' (A proverb.)

mkono muumu '(lit. hard hand – i.e. miser'

Omari/ mkono muumu/ shiliingi/ ha'impoteli. 'Omari is a miser, a shilling does not fall down from him.'

mkono/ na zaalá 'hand and fingers'; mkono/ na zaalá 'hands and fingers' (The Chijini, or "talking backwards", form of conjoined nouns is interesting. The conjunction na forms part of the base expression, thus when the final syllable is transposed to the beginning of the base, na follows the transposed syllable: nomk^o/ lanaz^a and nomik^o/ lanaz^a.)

mkono/ na zaalazé 'hand and its fingers'; mkono/ na zaalazé 'hands and their fingers' (The Chijini form of these examples shows an interesting variation. The enclitic may count as the final syllable and thus be moved to the beginning: nomk^o/ zenazal^a and nomik^o/ zenazal^a. But it is also possible for the last syllable of the noun stem to be targetted, in which case that syllable and the enclitic as well are moved to the beginning: nomk^o/ lazenaz^a and nomik^o/ lazenaz^a. These forms clearly establish the native speaker's recognition that the enclitic is part of the word but not of the stem.)

mkono nt^huundru '(lit.) a hand with a hole – i.e. someone who just lets money pass through his hand, gives it away, s.o. very generous and does not save'

Hasani/ ni mkono nt^huundru. 'Hasani is a spendthrift.'

Mkono waa we/ hukhadiri ku'utjiindá/ ubuuse. 'The hand that you cannot cut, kiss it.' (A proverb that says if there is someone that you cannot go against, you had better be friends with him.)

mkonowa 'my arm' (cf. mkonowo 'your arm', mkonowe 'his or her arm'; mikonya 'my arms', mikonoyo 'your arms', mikonoye 'her or his arms', mikono yiitu 'our arms', mikono yinu 'your (pl.) arms', mikono yaawo 'their arms')

Mwaana/ pishize ruuhuye/ mkono. 'The child burned himself on the hand.' Or with verb emphasis: Mwaana/ pishiize/ ruuhuye/ mkono. Or with fronting of the noun: Mwaana/ mkono/ pishize ruuhuye. Or: Mkono/ mwaana/ pishize ruuhuye. Or with both verb emphasis and noun fronting: Mwaana/ mkono/ pishiize/ ruuhuye. and Mkono/ mwaana/ pishiize/ ruuhuye. Or preposing of noun and postposing of the subject: Mkono/ pishize ruuhuye/ mwaana. Or: Mkono/ pishiize/ ruuhuye/ mwaana. Or with just subject postposing: Pishize ruuhuye/ mkono/ mwaana. Or: Pishiize/ ruuhuye/ mkono/ mwaana. There are word orders that do not seem acceptable; for example, Mwana/ pishize mkono/ ruuhuye. Nor: Mwaana/ ruuhuye/ pishize mkono. Nor any other case where ruuhuye is preposed: Ruuhuye/ pishize mkono/ mwaana.

Na takumneesha/ moojó/ khamri/ ka mkonowo. ‘And you will be serving your master alcohol with your hand.’

Nt^hile mandra gani/ kapiya mkono. ‘What bread did I put in fire that I burn my hand?’ (A proverb.)

Rudiile/ mkono mtupu. ‘He came back empty-handed (i.e. with nothing).’

Sarkaali/ mkonoowe/ nii mule. ‘The government has a long arm.’ (A proverb.)

Shika ka mikono miwili/ yaa mi takhaambiló. ‘Hold with two hands that which I will tell you – i.e. believe that which I will tell you, believe what I say.’

rel.

i-kono (mi-) n. 5/4 handle; arm (of a chair)

ikono ya chibiriikhi ‘handle of a kettle’

ikono yaa chiti ‘arm of a chair’

(Speaker A: Omari/ vuzile kulu yaa chiti. ‘Omari broke the leg of the chair.’ Speaker B: ā’ā/ vuzile ikono. ‘No, he broke the arm.’) ikono ya choloko ‘window handle’ ikono ya mnaango ‘door handle’ ikono ya mnaango/ ya gaari ‘the handle of the door of a car’ ikono ya sufuriya ‘the handle of a metal pot used for cooking rice, spaghetti’ ikono ya shtoka ‘the handle of an axe’ sh-kono (s-) n. 7/8 dim. [Sw. kikono] (small) bunch of s.t., a handful shkono chaa mazu ‘a small bunch of bananas’ kontorobaanda n. contraband

kontoroolo n. control

khfanya kontoroolo ‘to control’

Ye/ bashiize/ uzito/ haali/ ye/ nt^hakhfaanya/ kontorooló/ kujá. ‘She lost weight, although she never dieted (lit. controlled her eating).’ (A pronunciation was also given without the separation of the negative verb: nt^hakhfanya kontorooló.) kubasha kontroolo ‘to lose control’

Hamadi/ nakeenza gaari/ bashize kontoroolo/ bishile nuumba. ‘Hamadi was driving a car and he lost control and hit a house.’

Muunt^hu/ chibasha kontoroolo/ bas/ hakhaadiri/ tele/ hulawa/ mkonooni. ‘If a person loses control, then he is not able (to do s.t.), managing (things) leaves his hands.’

i-koopa (ma-) n. a unit of measure (for grains, milk) that corresponds to the quantity which fills an empty tin that originally contained ½ kg of tomato; this was also the unit of measure for milk sold in the market (Etym. The Tunni Somali word for this measure is koob.)

makopa mawili ‘one chidhu’

rel.

sh-koopa (s-) n. 7/8

Hatá/ zijo/ haba mooyi/ karka shkoopa/ hutosha/ kuwa ni akhiba yiiu. ‘Even a little zijo in a tin suffices to be our reserve.’

i-koopa (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. kopa SSED 222; Ar. or Port., according to SSED; however, Sac. cites the Kigunya dialect form as (i)kopwa; this dialect is the Swahili dialect closes to Chimiini geographically] glass container, cup

ikopa ikulu ‘a large cup’

Ikoopa/ ikulu. ‘The cup is large.’

ikopa ikulu/ ya mwaalimu ‘the large cup of the teacher’; makopa makulu/ ya mwaalimu ‘the large cups of the teacher’; makopa makulu/ ya waalimu ‘the large cups of the teachers’ Ikoopa/ ishtiiloowa/ pashpo/ wo/ kiiwa. ‘The cup was placed somewhere without them knowing.’

ikopa ya biloori ‘a glass’ ikopa ya maayi ‘a cup of water’
makopa makulu ‘large cups’ Makoopa/ makulu. ‘The cups are large.’

rel.

sh-koopa (s-) n. 7/8 dim. a little cup

We/ sula kuwa khadirilé/ kundretelaa mi/ shkopa chimooyi/ cha chaayi/ chisuura. ‘You could bring me a nice cup of tea.’

sh-koopa (s-)

n. a drink of alcohol [lit. little cup]

Abú/ shkoopa/ chimgafile. ‘Abu missed the alcoholic drink.’

l-kope (n-)

n. 11/10 [Sw. ukope SSED 222] eyebrow; [pron. n-k^hope (pl.)]

Faatima/ nk^hopeze/ ^fsuura. ‘Faatima has nice eyebrows.’

Haliima/ humoola/ nk^hopeze. ‘Haliima shaves her eyebrows.’

Haliima/ nakhpaka waanda/ nk^hopeze. ‘Haliima is putting waanda on her eyebrows (to blacken them).’

Hamadi/ nk^hopeze/ zirashmeenye. ‘Hamadi’s eyebrows run together (i.e. there is no space between the eyebrows).’

kubiga l^kope ‘to move the eyebrow’ kubigisha nk^hope ‘to make up the eyebrows’

Faatima/ nakubigisha nk^hopeze. ‘Faatima is making up her eyebrows.’

lkopela ‘my eyebrow’; nk^hopeza ‘my eyebrows’

Want^hu wa Miini/ hawa’isi/ kumolaa nk^hope. ‘The people of Brava do not have the culture, custom (lit. do not know) of shaving the eyebrows.’

rel.

sh-kope (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-kope (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

Hamadi/ mikopeye/ mikulu. ‘Hamad’s eyebrows are large.’

kopeerto

n. [Som. kubeerto DSI 372, from Ital. coperta] blanket (though Chimiini also uses buraangeeti from English blanket)

Finishile kopeerto. ‘She covered herself with a blanket.’

Kopeerto/ iyele n^huundru. ‘The blanket is full of holes.’

Kopeerto/ ya Haliima/ finishiló/ nii mp^hiya. ‘The blanket that Haliima covered herself with is new.’

i-koora

n. the yoke of a camel

Ikora (y) a ngamiila/ inaku^la/ kholów kholów. ‘The yoke of the camel is crying kholow kholow.’

kh-kora

v. [Som. kor ‘to grow’ DSI 371; Som. kor ‘to climb’ DSI 371] grow up; climb

Hamadi/ korelee muti. ‘Hamadi climbed the tree.’ (Yes-no questions based on this sentence: Hamadi/ korelee muti?, simple yes-no question, and Hamadi/ korelee muti!?, exclamatory yes-no question.)

Muti/ ukorelopo ipotofú/ ha’ikhadiroowi/ khtosishoowa. ‘A tree that grows up crooked is not able to be straightened.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ hukora/ jisaa we/ humkorshó. ‘A child grows up the way you bring him up.’ (A proverb.)

Yuusufu/ koreele/ karka nuumba/ iyo. ‘Joseph grew up in that house.’

rel.

kh-korsha v. raise, breed, make grow

Ka yee/ peeke/ chimkorsha/ mwaana. ‘All alone, she raised the boy.’

khkorshaa mbuzi ‘to raise, breed goats’

- Khkorsha miimba/ siwo kaazi/ kaazi/ ni khkorsha mwaana. ‘To raise a pregnancy is not work, work is to raise a child.’ (A proverb.)
- khkorshaa nk^huku ‘to raise chickens’
- mwaana mzaale mkorshe we zote maliza/ takhiḷiḷa muunt^hu takhtaala khuliza [nt.] ‘have a child, raise it, complete upbringing, someone will come to you and snatch it away, leaving you crying’
- Mkono mooyi/ hawkorshi/ mwaana. ‘One hand cannot nurse a child.’ (A proverb which says that both parents are needed to take care of a child properly.)
- Mwaana/ namkorshe/ maamaye. ‘A child, let his mother bring him up.’ (A proverb.)
- Mwanaamke/ kama oyo/ chihada/ chinoka ichi/ ni chisuura/ mi/ nt^h akishkorsha. ‘The girl, (like) that one, said: this little snake is pretty, I will bring it up.’
- Nakuwakorsha. ‘She is raising them.’ (Analysis: null [cl.1] subject prefix followed by present tense marker na followed by infinitive prefix ku followed by [cl.2] object prefix wa followed by verb stem korsh ending in the final vowel a.)
- Sultaani/ wakorsheeze/ waanawe/ chisultaani. ‘The sultan raised his children in a royal manner.’
- Ye/ shkorsheeze/ chinoka/ icho/ hatá/ chiweele/ shkulu. ‘She raised the little snake until it became big.’
- kh-korshoowa* v. pass. (korsheeza) be raised, be brought up
- Mwaana/ korsheeza/ jisa suura/ hatá chiwa muḷjaana. ‘The child was brought up in a good way until he became a young man.’
- Nakhkorshoowa/ nakhkorshoowa/ hattá/ wele mkulu. ‘He was raised and raised until he became big.’ (Note the use of a present tense verb in a narrative telling about what had happened in the past, prior to the beginning of the action in the story.)
- rel. nom.
m-korsha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who makes grow, breeds etc.
mkorshaa mbuzi ‘s.o. who breeds, raises goats’
m-korsho n. 3 way of maing grow, breeding etc.
Mkorsho/ waa we/ hukorshoo mbuzi/ siwo/ suura. ‘The way that you breed goats is not good.’
- koranta n. 9 [Som. koronto, from Ital. corrente] electricity; [pron. koranta] Chizimize koranta. ‘We turned off the electricity.’
Koranta/ izimiza naasi. ‘The electricity was turned off by us.’ (The SM i- on the passive verb in this example indicates that koranta is a [cl.9] noun.)
- kormeeri n. supervision
Mi/ nakhtaambulá/ kuwa Omari/ hiḥtaja kormeeri/ daa’imu. ‘I understand that Omari needs constant supervision.’
- m-koroofi* (wa-) adj. [Sw. -korofi SSED 222; Ar. verb qarafa “to be loathsome” and noun qarad “loathing, disgust” W 758] s.o. cursed, an ill-omen, s.o. for whom things always go wrong
Angamizee dali/ mkoroofi/ ye. ‘She spoiled everything [lit. the world], she is cursed.’
Mlaṭe mkoroofi/ ye/ naafe. ‘Let the accursed one die.’
- korneeli n. [Ital. colonnello] colonel
- n-korooma n. [Sw. koroma SSED 223] [pron. nk^horooma] in the expression:
kubiga nk^horooma ‘to snore’
- korso n. [Ital. corso] course of study

kh-kosa

- v. [Sw. kosa SSED 223] (koseeze) miss, fail, err, make a mistake Ali/ haakosi/ kuwanayo peesa. ‘Ali never fails to have money.’
Isa/ nimkoseze mweenza/ chiniinfó. ‘Now I have lost the friend who was a help to me.’
Nunguu nk^hulu/ haykosi/ ikooko. ‘A large pot never fails to have ikooko.’ (A proverb.)
Shkosa iwele ya maamo/ amá/ haṭa yaa mbwa. ‘If you lack your mother’s breast, suckle even a dog’s.’ (A proverb.)
Uko kharibu ya miikó/ haakosi/ kuwaandra. ‘The one who is near the kitchen/ never fails/ to get fat.’ (A proverb.)
Wele mahzuuni/ kumkosa eelowe. ‘He became sad as a result of missing his gazelle.’

rel.

kh-kosan(y)a v. rec. (-koseen(y)e) miss one another kh-koseka v. p/s.

kh-kosekana v. disappear, not be present or found

Haadi/ hakosekani/ chinemaani/ kilaa masku. ‘One never fails to see Haadi at the cinema every night.’

Numbaani/ kaaka/ unga/hawkosekani. ‘In my house, flour is never lacking.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ivu ‘ashes’.)

kh-koseleza v. appl. mistreat verbally, speak insultingly ka khisa/ mi/ skumkoseleza mukeewo/ walá/ skukhukoselezaa we ‘because I did not wrong your wife or you’

Somo/ nk^hoseleze mbele za waant^hu. ‘Somo insulted me in front of people.’

kh-kosesha v. caus. (kosesheeze) cause s.o. to make mistake kh-kosoowa v. pass.

Munt^hu wa khupa kooḍi/ hakosoowi/ hapatikani/ ni munt^hu wa khupaa kuja. ‘A man to give you advice is not lacking, the one who is not found is a man to give you food.’ (A proverb.)

ma-kosa

n. mistakes

khfanya makosa ‘to make mistakes’

Ali/ karka darsi/ iyo yaa ye/ someeló/ fanyize makosa miingi. ‘Ali, in the lesson that he read aloud, made many mistakes.’

khtomola makosa ‘to correct, remove mistakes’

Hamadi/ m-pele Omari/ darsi/ m-ambiile/ langala/ kana yi-mo ma-kosá/ tomola ‘Hamadi gave Omari a lesson (and) said to him: look at it, if there are mistakes in it, take them out.’

mfanya makosa ‘someone who does wrong’

Wafanya makosa/ waleesela/ moyimooyi. ‘Those who had done wrong were brought one after the other (in the story: to be judged).’

Sultaani/ chaamura/ wafanyizo makosá/ kuletowa mbeleeye. ‘The sultan ordered that those who had done wrong be brought in front of him.’

m-kosefu (wa-)

n., adj. 1/2 [Sw. -kosefu “full of (given to, liable to) mistakes, erroneous, defective, etc.” SSED 223] one who needs; needy

Mwamina mwajiitu/ si mkosefu. ‘One who trusts in God is not needy.’ (A proverb.)

i-kosi (mi-)

n.

l-kosi (n-)

n.11/10 [Sw. ukosi (kosi) SSED 224] back, nape of the neck; [pron. nk^hosi (pl.)] lkosila ‘my nape (of the neck)’

rel.

sh-kosi (s-) n. [Sw. kikosi SSED 224] nape of the neck, throat kumandika shkosiini ‘to put s.o. on the back of the neck’ kumbiga shkosi ‘to hit on the back of the neck’ kumkala shkosi ‘to press s.o. on the back of the neck’ kumkalant^hila shkosi ‘to sit on the back of someone’s neck’ kumla^tila shkosi ‘to expel, send’ kumtukula shkosiini ‘to carry s.o. on the back of the neck’ kuvundika shkosi ‘to break the nape of the neck’ lkosila ‘my nape’
Mlume shkosi. ‘Sting/bite him on the neck!’
Mp^haka/ haani/ maayi/ chishikowa shkosi. ‘The cat does not drink water if grasped by the throat.’ (A proverb which says that one cannot be forced to do what one does not want to do.)
shkosi/ kulaaza ‘for the nape of the neck to ache’ kotoone

n. cotton
Khufu za naylooni/ ni nuumu/ kolko/ za kotoone. ‘Nylon socks are stronger than cotton ones.’

i-kooti (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. koti SSED 224; Eng.] coat
Aya/ ndiyó/ makoti yaa mi/ niya’uziló (or: nuuziló). ‘These are the coats that I bought.’
Ikooti/ imbelele chihaba. ‘The coat became small for me.’
ikoti imooyi ‘one coat’ ikooti/ na sh^tezó ‘a coat and a button’; ikooti/ na sh^tezó ‘a coat and buttons’ ikooti/ na sh^tezoché ‘a coat and its button’; ikooti/ na sh^tezozé ‘a coat and its buttons’ ikoti yaa nvula ‘rain coat’ Iyi/ ndiyó/ ikoti yaa mi/ niyuuziló (or: nuuziló). ‘This is the coat that I bought.’
makoti mawili ‘two coats’ makooti/ na sh^tezó ‘coats and buttons’ makooti/ na sh^tezozé ‘coats and their buttons’ Ni ikooti/ yaa ye/ veetó. ‘What a coat he has on!’

rel.

kooti n. 9/10 coat
Koti iyi/ nda laana. ‘This coat is made of wool.’
Koti iyi/ nda paamba. ‘This coat is made of cotton.’
Koti iyi/ nda suufi. ‘This coat is made of cotton.’
Nureeni/ uzile kooti. ‘Nureeni bought a coat.’ Or with verb focus: Nureeni/ uzile/ kooti. (The simple yes-no question for these two statements:

Nureeni/ uzile kooti? and Nureeni/ uzile/ kooti?)

l-kooti (mi-) n. 11/4 aug. large jacket (size reference, not disparaging) sh-kooti (s-) n. 7/8 dim. (size reference, not disparaging)

Omari/ uzle shkooti/ chijiin(i)s. ‘Omari bought a denim jacket.’

Omari/ uzile shkooti/ chisuura. ‘Omari bought a nice coat.’

i-koowa

n. [cf. Sw. koa “band of thin metal plate” SSED 214] a ring put around something broken to mend it choombo schivuundika khfaanya ikoowa/ ya fe^da au ya ^dahabu izoowa [st.] ‘when a vessel breaks, it is forbidden to mend it with a ring made of silver or gold’

kowaani

n.
Mwaadamu/ ilmuye/ ni koowani. ‘A human being, his knowledge is limited.’ (A proverb.)

kh-koowa^ta

v. [Som. koob “to comprehend, to be formed of” DSI 371] (koweete) reach, obtain, possess; comprehend, encompass

Ka khkowaṭa kooḍi/ ni muhimu/ khsooma/ jisa khpita imṭihaani. ‘In conclusion, it is important to study in order to pass an exam.’

maayi ya bahari shteka hayamali / na siifa za mtume ndruwa hazimali [st.] ‘if you fetch water from the sea it does not finish (i.e. you are unable to take all water out of the sea, it is an endless task), and [likewise] the praises of the Prophet, my friend, are endless’ sandra wrote nruwa ndi we koweeto jaaha sho khpata mirsaliini [st.] ‘you obtained the glory that the [other] prophets did not get’

siifatiizo ni niingi naa mi skhaadiri kiskoowaṭa waLLaahi kamba bahari [st.] ‘your praises are [too] many and I am unable to encompass them all, they are verily like the sea’

rel. nom.

m-koowaṭa n. the one who reaches, obtains na mkoowaṭa kulla faḍli/ Mhamadi wiitu sho mithli [st.] ‘and the one who obtained all favors, our peerless Mohammad’

sh-kooya (s-)

n. 7/8 necklace

Chimpa mfazi/ shilingi khamsiini/ izo/ kumfuliḷa shkooya. ‘She gave a blacksmith the fifty shillings to forge for her [e.g. his wife] a necklace.’

kuvala shkoya ‘to wear a necklace’

Ndrani ya shkooya/ icho/ muke/ chiyaṭila mishpa/ yaa noka/ chimaliza/ chichiweka shkooya/ icho/ nt^hiini yaa chili. ‘Inside that necklace the woman put the bones of the snake and then she put that necklace under the bed.’

shkoya cha ḍahabu or shkooya/ cha ḍahabu ‘a necklace of gold’ shkoya cha feḍa or shkooya/ cha feḍa ‘a necklace of silver’ shkoya cha haruusi ‘a marriage necklace’

kh-koza

v. (koseeze) warm, heat something up

rel.

kh-koleza v. appl.

kh-kolezakoleza v. appl. redup.

Nimwene Haliimá/ numbaani/ kaaké/ nakuwakolezakoleza waana/kuja. ‘I saw Haliima in her house warming food for the children.’

kh-kozaakoza v. redup.

Omari/ nakhkozaakoza kuuluye/ ka chiguwo chimuḷo/ imfuriile. ‘Omari is warming his leg with a warm cloth, it is swollen.’

i-kraahi

n. discord

Kilasku/ itakuwa ikraahi/ kati kiitu. ‘Every day it will be discord between us.’

kristiyaano (ma-)

n. Christian

Makristiyaano/ wa Misra/ huviḷowa Khibṭiya. [H!H!H] ‘The Christians of Egypt are called khibṭiya.’

kuinfinitive prefix; morphophonemic variants: k before a vowel-initial verb stem (with compensatory lengthening if allowed); kh before verb stems with an initial voiceless obstruent; ki before various object prefixes that contain a palatal element; Ø before a verb stem with an initial q or kh; ku elsewhere

kh variant:

khpika ‘to cook’, kh-faanya ‘to do’, khṭeka ‘to laugh’, khtafuna ‘to chew’, khsooma ‘to read’, khchiimbila ‘to flee’, khshiika ‘to hold’, khkuumbuka ‘to remember’

ku variant:

kuboola ‘to steal’, kuviva ‘to be ripe’, kubiga ‘to hit’, kudaara ‘to touch’, kuziika ‘to bury’, kujeera ‘to be ashamed’, kugafa ‘to make a mistake, kumaamala ‘to be quiet’, kuna ‘to drink’, kuḷa ‘to cry’, kuḷipa ‘to pay’, kuruuda ‘to return’, kuwona ‘to see’, kuyela ‘to be full’, kuhisa ‘to feel’, ku’ajiba ‘to please’

k-variant (plus compensatory lengthening, context permitting):

kooloka ‘to go’, kuula ‘to buy’, keeleza ‘to explain’, ∅-variant:

Chimtuma/ waziiri/ mooyi/ kendra kumvīla Hasani. ‘He sent one minister to go to call Hasani [to come to him].’

kichaambila ‘to tell us’

(n)nakinaambilá ‘I am telling you (pl.)’

Ye/ chanza kubigaa nk^he/ kuḷa/ na kuhadá/ siwo/ mi/ Abunawaasi. ‘He began to shout and cry, saying, I am not Abunawaasi.’

kubli

right; [pron. kubli]

mkono wa kubli ‘the right hand’

Sultaani/ uyu/ naayé/ kila shpisa/ hukumu/ hulangaḷa/ ka kublike/ chimaliza huṭeka/ kanmake/ hulangaḷa/ ḷpaandre/ ḷa kusooṭo/ huḷa. ‘This king [lit. and he] whenever he passes judgement, he looks to his right and then laughs, then he looks to his left, and he cries.’

upandre wa kubli ‘the right side’

kh-kubura

v. [cf. Ar. kabara W 809-810, which includes the meaning "deem important"] only observed in the example:

ruuhu haqiqaye mtume nt^hakubura [st.] review number of syllables etc

kuchiina

n. kitchen

Zahara/ nakhkoḷa na waanawe/ kuchinaani. ‘Zahara is talking to her children in the kitchen.’

u-kufri

n. 14 straying from the faith

asli ya kulla ukufri/ na mbovu zont^he na kibri/ ni khtaala sharri ya amri/ za nafsi bahri ya makri [st.] ‘all loss of faith, evil and arrogance derive from following the evil commands of the soul, a sea of deceit’

kufu

equal

Fulaani/ siwo/ kufuyo. ‘So-and-so is not your equal.’

Mwajiitu/ nt^hana/ kufu. ‘God has no equal.’

kh-kufura

v. [Sw. kufuru SSED 166; Ar.] abandon one’s faith and convert to another religion; do s.t. forbidden that makes one an infidel ḷata khfatisha chizapo takkufura [st.] ‘leave off investigating (such things) or else you will lose your faith’

Muunt^hu/ haminoo miti/ hukufura. ‘One who believes in trees (magic) becomes an infidel.’

nt^haku mahala yaa ye sho khsujuda/ numa ka kibri shfukura chiruuda [st.] ‘in every place he (referring to Iblis) prostrated himself, (but) later, because of pride, he disobeyed God’ stosheeni niingi nt^hakhkufura chiiza [st.] ‘don’t think that there is a lot (i.e. more qudra than God’s), otherwise you will lose your faith

rel.

kh-kufurila v. appl. convert for

Nt^haná/ sababu yaa ye/ khkufurila. ‘He has no reason to convert.’

kh-kufurisha v. caus. sonvert someone kh-kufurishiliza v. caus. appl. use s.t. to convert someone

Peja peesa/ zaa ye/ khkufurishiliza. ‘He was given money to use to convert people.’

kuja

n. (see ku-ja) food

n-kuku

n. 9/10 [Sw. kuku SSED 225] chicken, hen; [pron. nk^huku] akhili zaa nk^huku ‘the intelligence of a chicken (i.e. lack of intelligence)’

Omari/ akhilize/ kana zaa nk^huku. ‘Omari’s intelligence is like that of a chicken.’

Gele/ staawanyé/ mahala zikoo nk^hukú. ‘Grain does not spill where there are hens.’ (A proverb.)

Ka’iwa yaa nk^huku/ hujó/ (we)/ skamuje. ‘If you knew what a hen eats, you would not eat it.’ (A proverb.)

kh̄inda nk^huku ‘to slaughter a chicken’

Kulu yaa nk^huku/ haymub̄li/ mwaanawe. ‘The leg of the hen does not kill its chick.’ (A proverb.)

lbawa laa nk^huku ‘the feather of a hen’

Nk^huku/ nakudaakha. ‘The hen is grazing/feeding.’

nk^huku za maduuri ‘birds with black stripes and white and grey dots, similar in size to a six month old Bravanese chicken; eaten by Bravanese who considered them a delicacy’ nk^huku za Taaliyaani ‘Italian hens’

Marti/ ni nk^huku mwelpe. ‘A stranger is like a white hen (i.e. a stranger always stands out, whether it is because of his dress or his speech or his manners).’ (Phon. Note that although a vowel preceding nk^huku is lengthened when nk^huku is phrase-final, there is no such lengthening when nk^huku is not at the end of the phrase.

Thus we have Nii nk^huku. ‘It is a chicken.’ but Ni nk^huku mwelpe. ‘It is a white chicken.’) nama yaa nk^huku ‘the meat of a chicken’

Nk^huku/ hamub̄li/ mwank^hukuwe. ‘A chicken never kills its chick.’ (A proverb.)

Nk^huku/ zanzizopo kuwika/ mi/ nondroshelé/ kendra kul̄atiza/ haba mooyi. ‘When the cocks began to crow, I arose and went to lay down for a little while.’

nk^huku za talyaani ‘lit. Italian hen – a large red hen that is not a local type’

Nt^hakhūinda/ kanaa nk^huku. ‘I will cut you like a chicken.’ (A threat.)

Ruuhuye/ kana yaa nk^huku. ‘His soul is like that of a chicken – i.e. he is weak, doesn’t have a strong will, is a coward, etc.’)

Takht̄inda/ kanaa nk^huku. ‘He will slaughter you like a chicken.’

Waant^hu/ wanaakufa/ kanaa nk^huku. ‘People are dying like chickens.’ (This is equivalent to the English: People are dying like flies.)

rel.

i-kuku (mi-) n. aug. 5/4

sh-kuku (s-) n. dim. 7/8

kh-kukuunta

v. [Sw. kukuta SSED 226] (kukuunsile) shake out a wet cloth to dry it; sieve, strain, separate husks from grain; [pron. khkukuunt^ha]

sh-kukuunto

n. 7/8 sieve; [pron. shkukuunt^ho]

kh-kukutala

v. (-kukuteele) become dry, become dried up chiza khkukutala nijisi nafsiye, wala chiza kuguura karka fadhiye [st.] ‘otherwise (if one does not clean oneself properly after defecating) the unclean thing dries up on its own, nor does it move from its

- place'
- Maaziye/ yachilātowa paapo/ yashkukutala/ hattá/ sku ya oyo siimbá/ nakuuyó/ yashatalowa ayo maazi/ oyo mwiimbili/ chi'aruurisha/ shtila karka chiguwo/ shfuunga/ sh̄tuluka/ na lpaangá. 'Its blood (i.e. the blood of the cow that was killed) was left right there and dried up, until the day when that snake was to show up, that blood was taken, that boy collected it and put it in a piece of cloth and tied it and carried it, along with a sword.'
- kūla [see kīla] [Sw. kula SSED 226; Ar.] every
- Kūla munt^hu wa Jaama/ mbishiló/ ishtakiile. 'Each person that Jaama hit complained.'
- Kūla waa mi/ nkođelo naayé/ njibiile/ kuwa mtume/ uyu/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakuzaloowa. 'Everyone that I spoke about to him, he answered that this prophet had not yet been born.'
- kuleeta n. [Ital. colletto] collar
- kuleeta ya haanzu 'the collar of a haanzu'
- kumshika muunt^hu/ (ka) kuleeta 'to grab s.o. by the collar (in a quarrel, a fight, etc.)'
- kulkulu adj. old, wornout [but a restricted range of usage] (Phon. It is a common pattern in Chimiini for a bisyllabic CVCV stem, when reduplicated, to elide the final vowel of the first element in the reduplication. Furthermore, if the second consonant is l, it is converted to l̄ in pre-consonantal position. Compare, for instance, the verb kugalgala.)
- nguwo nk^hul̄kulu 'old clothes'
- kh-kulmatana v. (Som. kulan) (kulmateene) meet
- Mi/ ka'iwa kuwaa we/ nakuuyá/ sul̄a khkulmatana naawe/ eraportani. 'If I had known you were coming I would have met you at the airport.'
- Mi/ nkhuimateené/ na Haliima/ mara ya kaandra/ mukhtaa yé/ mziyareto maamé. 'I met Haliima for the first time when she visited my mother.'
- We/ weenzawe/ kamu/ kulmateno naawó. 'How many of his friends have you met?'
- kh-kula v. [Sw. kua SSED 224] (kuzile) grow (of a child or a plant, e.g.), mature (Observe that Chimiini is more conservative than Standard Swahili in various respects, one of which is the retention of the liquid consonant l in stems where Swahili has elided this consonant.)
- Apa/ miti/ hayaakuli. 'Here, trees do not grow.'
- Kuzile maluungo/ nt^hakhkula/ aqli. 'He matured physically, but not mentally.'
- Mi/ mbaliko shkula muyi uyu/ karka nuumba/ iyi. 'I grew up in this town in this house.'
- Miti/ hayaakuli/ funguuni. [H'H!H] 'Trees do not grow in the wet sand along the beach.' Or: Funguuni/ miti/ hayaakuli.
- Miti/ hukula karkaa nt^hi. [H!H] 'Trees grow in the ground.' Or: Karkaa nt^hi/ miti/ hukula. [H'H!H] 'In the ground trees grow.'
- Mwaana/ kuzilopó/ chimuza maamaye/ nini/ inaye. 'When the boy grew up, he asked his mother what his name was.'
- Wakht̄i oyo/ mi/ mbaliko chihabá/ tu/ isa/ mi/ nk^huzilé/ mi/ isa/ niilé/ khusaayda. 'At that time, I was just small, now I have grown up, now I have come to help you.'
- Ye/ liinzile/ hattá/ nt^heendre/ skuzile. 'He waited until the dates grew.'
- rel.
- kh-kuza v. caus. raise, bring up (a child); respect, praise (Note that only the first of the meanings of this verb is transparently understood as being the result of the causativization of the base verb -kula.)

One might well consider the second meaning to represent an independent verb, homophonous with the verb -kuza ‘raise, bring up’. There is one argument against such a view. There is a general constraint that bars a causative verb from undergoing a second round of causative stem formation. Thus -kuza ‘raise, bring up’ cannot become -kuzisha* ‘cause to raise, bring up’. But if -kuza ‘respect, praise’ were not considered a causative verb, then there would be no reason not to allow a causative form like -kuzisha* ‘cause to praise, respect’. Such a form does not exist, however.)

Haakuzi/ waant^hu. ‘He does not respect people.’

Munt^hu hakuzi waant^hú/ hakuzoowi. ‘The man who does not respect people is not respected.’

Want^hu wa Mwini/ hukuzaa nt^ho/ Ashuura/ na hudarbatila. ‘The people of Brava respect Ashuura very much and prepare for it.’

kh-kuzoowa v. caus. pass.

Mukeewe/ shkuzoowa. ‘His wife was praised.’

Munt^hi uyu/ ni munt^hi hukuzowaa nt^ho/ na islaamu. ‘This day (i.e. idi ya wamuusi) is a day very much respected by Moslems.’

give an example of the passive of the ‘raise’ use of this verb

rel. nom.

m-kuzu n. t one who enlarges, increases, makes greater (used as an attribute of God)

kh-kuula

v. tr. [This word is of Bantu origin, but is not used in Sw., where the equivalent is ng’oa.] (kuuzile) extract, uproot, pluck, pull out (e.g. from someone’s hands by force)

Ali/ kuzile igoyi. ‘Ali had a molar tooth extracted.’

Ali/ kuzile musmaari/ (ka) lkutaani. ‘Ali took a nail out of the wall.’ Or:
Ali/ kuzile lkuta/ musmaari.

Ali/ mkuzile mwaana/ peesa. ‘Ali took the money from the child by force.’ (The human NP must be the object in this sentence; one cannot, for example, locate ka ‘from’ in front of it: Ali/ kuzile peesa/ ka mwaana. ‘Ali took money from the child.’)

Dakhtari/ mkuzile Ali/ igoyi. ‘The doctor extracted Ali’s molar.’

khkula ruuhu ‘to bother to death’

Nkuzile ruuhu. ‘He bothered me to death (repeating his request obsessively, until I had to give in).’

Mi/ niskuuzilé. ‘I took them [cl.8] off.’

Mi/ niskuuzilé/ zo/ zilaatu. ‘I took them off, the shoes.’ (Note the possibility of the co-occurrence of a [cl.8] object prefix with the [cl.8] independent pronoun as well as the overt occurrence of the [cl.8] noun itself.)

Mukeewo/ chink^hula iyo badikhi/ chimpa mwaanawe. ‘Your wife grabbed the melon from me and gave it to her child.’

Nk^hulaani/ mbawa/ zote/ chimaliza/ nt^hukulaani/ ndratiilani muyiini/ kaa dafa. ‘Pluck off all my feathers and then take me and throw me into the town of the kites.’

Nk^huuzilé. ‘I took it/them off off.’

Nk^huzile shaatiyá. ‘I took off my shirt.’

Nk^huuzilé/ yo. ‘I took it [cl.9] off.’

Nk^huuzilé/ yo/ shaatiya. ‘I took it off, my shirt.’

Nk^huzile zilaatuzá. ‘I took off my shoes.’

Nk^huuzilé/ zo. ‘I took them [cl.8] off.’

Nk^huuzilé/ zo/ zilaatu. ‘I took them off, the shoes.’

Shati yaa mi/ nk^huuziló/ yaatushile. ‘The shirt that I took off was torn.’

Tuuma/ namkula mwaana/ zilaatu. ‘Tuuma is taking the shoes off the child.’ Or: Tuuma/ nakhkula zilatu za mwaana. ‘Tuuma is taking off the child’s shoes.’ Or: Tuuma/ namkula mwaana/ zilaatuze. ‘Tuuma is taking off from the child his shoes.’

rel.

kh-kuuka v. intr. (-kuushile)

Ali/ igoyi/ imkuushile. ‘Ali’s molar tooth came out.’
Mi/ chint^hu icho/ stakhupi/ hatá/ shkuka ruuhu/ we. ‘I will not give you that thing even if the soul comes out of you (i.e. you die).’
Musmaari/ unakhkuka ka lkutaani. ‘The nail is coming out of the wall.’

Ye/ malizopo kumkasa myaaná/ laṭize ruuhuye/ chilini/ na paapo/ apo/ ruuhu/ imkuushile. ‘When he finished listening to the servant, he threw himself on the bed and right then his soul left him -- i.e. he died.’

kh-kukoowa v. pass.

Buure/ hukukowa tuure. ‘Free things cause you to develop a hump (become bent).’ (A proverbial saying.)

kh-kuḷoowa v. pass. (kuuziḷa) be extracted

Ali/ kuziḷa igoyi. ‘Ali had his molar extracted.’

Musmaari/ ukuziḷa ka lkutaani. ‘A nail was taken out of the wall.’ (Syn: Contrary to the active version of this sentence, ka cannot be omitted: Musmaari/ ukuziḷa lkutaani. Nor can the bare form of lkuta be used: Musmaari/ ukuziḷa lkuta. But MI did accept the sentence: Lkuta/ lkuziḷa musmaari. ‘The wall had a nail taken out of it.’)

Mwaana/ kuziḷa peesa/ na Ali. ‘The child had money taken from him forcefully by Ali.’ (Syn: One cannot say Peesa/ skuziḷa mwaana/ na Ali. ‘Money was taken forcefully from the child by Ali.’ One can prepose peesa while keeping mwaana the subject: Peesa/ kuziḷa mwaana/ na Ali. ‘The child had money taken from him by

Waziiri/ shkuḷoowa/ usultaani/ ka khisaa ye/ khtumila khada’a. ‘The minister had the sultanhip taken from him because he used deception (to get his position) minister had the sultanhip taken from him because he used deception (to get his position)

kh-kulakuula v. freq. (-kuzilekuuzile)

Noloshelé/ ndeelé/ ilu ya chilima/ masku/ inyelee nvula/ niingi/ nt^ho/ hattá/ ikuzilekuzilee miti/ ya nt^heendre. ‘I went and I slept on a small hill; at night, it rained very much, until the date trees were uprooted.’

kh-kuulika v. p/s. able to be extracted from

Chiti ichi/ hakuuliki/ mwana uyu. ‘This chair cannot be taken from this child.’ (Observe that in this sentence, chiti ichi has been preposed but is not the subject of the verb. One cannot say: Chiti ichi/ hashkuuliki/ mwana uyu. One can, of course, say: Mwana uyu/ hakuuliki/ chiti ichi. ‘One cannot take this chair from this child.’)

Musmari uyu/ hawkuuliki/ ka lkutaani. ‘This nail cannot be extracted from the wall.’ (Syn: It is not possible to omit the ka nor to use the bare noun lkuta: Musmari uyu/ hawkuuliki/ lkutaani. and Musmari uyu/ hawkuuliki/ lkuta. But one can say: Lkuta ili/ haḷkuuliki/ musmaari. ‘This wall cannot have a nail extracted from it.’)

Mwana uyu/ hakuuliki/ peesa. ‘One cannot take money from this child.’ (It is not possible to say: Peesa/ hakuuliki/ mwana uyu. ‘Money cannot be taken from this child.’)

rel. nom.

m-kuuko (mi-) n. 3/4 ‘the act of coming out

m-kuulo (mi-) n. 3/4 the act of extracting kule

cf. -le

kaa kule ‘from afar, at a distance’

Askari/ wachimrasha baduwi/ kaa kule/ haṭa kaaké/ chimaliza/ wachiruda ka sultaani/ wachimpa khabari. ‘The soldiers followed the nomad at a distance up to his place, then they returned to the sultan and gave him the information.’

Karkaa ye/ nakugalgalo chiliini/ shkasa waant^hu/ kaa kule/ wanakuuya. ‘While he was tossing and turning on the bed, he heard people from afar coming.’

Nile ka mahala kulé. ‘I have come from a place far away.’

kule/ kamba akheera ‘as far as the life hereafter’

Mwaana/ oyo/ skumó/ shfunga safari/ kendra nt^hi zaa kule. ‘That boy set off on a journey to go to far-away lands.’

ndilaa kule ‘the farthese away road’

-kulu

adj. big, large

Apo/ zamaani/ waaliko/ taajiri/ mooyi/ mkulu/ mwenye maali/ na makhaamú. ‘Once upon a time there was a rich man, important, having wealth and high position.’

Chimera ndilaa nk^hulu/ ya muuyi. ‘He looked for the main street of the town.’

Chint^hu chihaba/ ndichó/ huwo shkulú. ‘A small thing is what becomes big.’ (A proverb.)

chisu shkulu ‘large knife’; zisu skulu ‘large knives’

ikopa ikulu ‘a large cup’

ikulu/ kana idovu ‘something as big as an elephant’

Ishondre ikulu/ nda msaafiri. ‘The large lump of faeces is from the traveler.’ (A proverb.)

Jawaabu/ chihaba/ hufanyaa nk^hulu. ‘A small thing develops into (lit. makes something big.’ (A proverb.)

kudhora waant^hu/ wakulu wiinu ‘to respect people older than you (plural)’ lkuta lkulu ‘large wall’; nk^hutaa nk^hulu ‘large walls’ lpelo lkulu ‘large broom’

makopa makulu ‘large cups’

Mi/ nuzile faturaa nk^hulú. ‘I bought the big car.’

mkono mkulu ‘large hand’; mikono mikulu ‘large hands’ mlango mkulu ‘a large door’

Mi/ nuzile numbaa nk^hulú. ‘I bought the big house.’ Cf. Mi/ nuzile nuumbá/ nk^hulu. ‘I bought a big house.’

mp^heloo nk^hulu ‘large brooms’

Munt^hi uyu/ lapiiile/ wakulu/ na zihabá/ hulawa ibana ya muuyi/ hendra kulangala matezo za namna ka namna. ‘In the afternoon of this day adults and children go to the outskirts of town to watch games of different kinds.’

munt^hu mkulu ‘a large person’; want^hu wakulu(wakulu) ‘large people’ muti mkulu ‘big tree’

mwalimu mkulu ‘headmaster’ (walimu wakulu ‘headmasters’)

Mwaana/ chiwa muunt^hu/ mkulu/ apo. ‘The boy became a great man there.’

Mwaana/ mkulu. ‘The child is grown-up.’ (Waana/ wakulu. ‘The children are grown up.’) mwana mkulu ‘a grown-up child’ (wana wakulu ‘grown-up children’)

Ni wakulu/ takhaadira/ khfaanya. ‘They (your daughters) are big, you will be able to do it (get work).’

numbaa nk^hulu ‘a large house; large houses’

Nuumbaya/ nk^hulu/ nt^hayna mlaangó. ‘My large house which has no doors.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iyaank^huku ‘egg’.)

Nunguu nk^hulu/ haykosi/ ikooko. ‘A large pot never fails to have ikooko.’ (A proverb.)

Raaði/ nii nk^hulu/ kolko maali. ‘Blessing is better than wealth.’ (A proverb.)

Wachihada/ chimwublelee noka/ mooyi/ mkulu. ‘They said: we killed a snake, a big one.’

We/ histahila chiint^hu/ shkulu/ kolko ichi. ‘You deserve something bigger than this.’

Ye/ shkorsheeze/ chinoka icho/ hattá/ chiweele/ shkulu. ‘She raised that snake until it became a little big.’

rel.

-kulu -kulu adj. pl.

Ndrani ya ibirka/ yawalimo maayi/ na katikati ya ibirka/ yawalimo majiwe/ mikulu mikulu. ‘Inside the water container was water, and in the middle of the water container there were big stones.’

m-kulu (wa-) n. 1/2 head, chief

Mkulu/ wa ma’askari/ chuuza/ ndo/ yiikoni/ apa. ‘The chief of the soldiers asked: come, what is (going on) here?’

Mkulu/ wa makhaadimu/ chimwoondrola/ chimitila numbaani. ‘The head of the servants lifted him up and took him home.’

kuulu

n. 9 (cf. miilu [cl.6] ‘legs’ for additional examples) leg; wheel

chala cha kuulu ‘toe’ (zala za kuulu ‘toes’)

Chisu/ shchimbiga cha kuulu. ‘The knife struck him on his leg.’

chiti chaa mi/ nandishilo kuulu ‘the chair that I put my leg on’

Isa/ nsele ka kulu mooyi. ‘Now (after having my leg cut off) I remained with one leg.’

Jaama/ shishile kulu yaa mbwa. ‘Jaama grasped the leg of the dog.’ Cf.

some variations: Kulu yaa mbwa/ ishishila na Jaama. ‘The leg of the dog was grasped by Jaama.’ (In this passive sentence, kulu yaa mbwa is the subject, with kuulu triggering subject agreement.) Mbwa/ shishila kuulu/ na Jaama. ‘The dog was grasped by the leg by Jaama.’ (In this example, mbwa is the subject of the passive verb and governs the null subject prefix associated with human subjects.) Jaama/ shishile kuuluye. ‘Jaama grasped its leg.’ (In this example, there is no object marker on the verb.) Jaama/ mshishile kuulu. ‘Jaama grasped him by the leg.’ (In this example, the verb has the agreement for a human singular object, which is appropriate for an animal as well as a human.) Kuuluye/ mbwa uje/ ishishila ma Jaama. ‘His leg, that dog was grasped by Jaama.’ (In this example, kuuluye controls the subject marker on the verb, not mbwa uje.)

khekaza kuulu/ miilu ‘to push one’s leg into a tight trouser etc.’

khindowa kuulu ‘leg to be amputated’

Omari/ nakhindowa kuulu. ‘Omari is having his leg amputated.’

kubiga mpiira/ ka kuulu ‘to kick a ball with the leg (foot)’ kulu chigobe ‘short leg’ (cf. milu zigobe ‘short legs’)

Kuulu/ ichuuluka/ ishpotela mayiini. ‘(His) leg flew off (after being cut off) and fell into the water.’

Kuulu/ itindishile. ‘The leg is broken.’

kulu ya chigure ‘left leg’

kulu ya chinume ‘back leg’

kulu ya gaari ‘wheel of a car’ (cf. milu ya gaari ‘wheels of a car’)

kulu ya kubli ‘right leg’ (cf. milu ya kubli ‘right legs’)

kulu ya kusooto ‘left leg’

kulu yaa mbele ‘front leg (e.g. front tire of a car)’ kuluu ndre ‘long leg’ (cf. miluu male ‘long legs’) kulu yaa numa ‘back leg (e.g. back tire of a car)’ kuluu nzito ‘heavy wheel’ (not: kulu izito) (cf. milu mizito ‘heavy wheels’)

Kuuluya/ ivundishile. ‘My leg is broken.’ Or: Kuulu/ invundishile. ‘My leg is broken – lit. leg is broken [with respect to] me.’ Or: Invundishile kuulu. (Phon. Observe that when kuulu is placed in post-verbal position, it may be placed in the same phonological phrase as the verb.)

kumfunga kuulu/ miilu ‘to tie someone’s leg/s’ kumishkiza kuulu/ miilu ‘to bring down someone’s leg/s’ kumkandra kuulu/ miilu ‘to massage someone’s leg/s’ kumkuta kuulu/miilu ‘to bend one’s leg/s’ kumkawaṭa kuulu/ miilu ‘to fix someone’s leg, i.e. to bandage, put a splint, etc.’

kumpotosha kuulu/ miilu ‘to twist someone’s leg/s’ kumolola kuulu/ miilu ‘to stretch one’s leg/s’ kumondrola kuulu/ miilu ‘to raise someone’s leg/s’ kumpanza kuulu/ miilu ‘to take up someone’s leg/s’ kumtinda kuulu/ miilu ‘lit. to cut one’s leg/s – i.e. to make someone do something without getting what he wanted’ kumtuwa kuulu/ miilu ‘to rub someone’s leg/s’ kumvunda kuulu/ miilu ‘to break one’s leg/s’ kumwaka kuulu/ miilu lit. to construct one’s leg/s, i.e. to fix a broken leg, to put a bandage on a leg or splint etc.’

mahaḷa ya kuweka kuulu/ miilu ‘a place to put the leg/s’ milu manene ‘fat legs’

Muunt^hu/ imṭindishile/ kuulu. ‘The man broke his leg.’ (Syn. Note that in this construction, kuulu is the grammatical subject and muunt^hu controls object agreement on the verb. See below for a variant where muunt^hu controls subject agreement on the verb.)

Muunt^hu/ kuulu/ immurkeete. ‘The man’s leg was sprained.’ Or:

Muunt^hu/ immurkeete kuulu. (Syn. and phon. In both of these variants, kuulu is the grammatical subject of the verb and muunt^hu controls object agreement. Notice, however, that in the second version, kuulu is postposed after the verb and forms a phonological phrase with the verb. We can see that the verb is not phrase-final by the absence of the long vowel in the verb and the absence of accent.)

muunt^hu/ na kuulú ‘a man and a leg’ muunt^hu/ na kuuluyé ‘a man and his leg’

Muunt^hu/ ṭindishile kuulu. ‘The man broke his leg.’

Muunt^hu/ uyu/ chimwaambila/ Huseeni/ waawo/ ndiyé/ nṭhinzilo kulu iyí.
‘This man told Huseeni: your father, it is he who cut off this leg.’

Muunt^hu/ vundishile kuulu. [H!H] ‘The man broke (his) leg.’ Cf. Muunt^hu/ vundishile kuulu. [H!H] ‘The man was broken the leg – i.e. he broke his leg.’ Cf. Muunt^hu/ kuuluyé/ vuunzila. [H!H!H] ‘The man, his leg, was broken.’

Nandishile kuulú/ chitiini. ‘I put my leg on the chair.’

Nvundishile kuulú. ‘I broke my leg.’ (Syn. Note that in this sentence, the experiencer is the subject of the verb.)

Omari/ vuzileee chiti/ kuulu. ‘Omari broke the leg of the chair.’ Or: Omari/ vuzile kuulu/ chiti. (Syn. This example illustrates the presence of so-called “possessor raising” in Chimiini. Both kuulu and chiti are complements to the verb. This sort of sentence contrasts with Omari/ vuzile kulu yaa chiti. In the latter sentence, kulu and chiti are joined together into the possessive phrase kulu yaa chiti.) ṭindishilo kuulú/ ni muunt^hu. ‘The one who broke his leg is the man.’

Ye/ wanaayo/ kuulu/ mooyi/ tu. ‘He had just one leg.’

rel.

zi-j-uulu n. 8

Zijuulúze/ kamba zaa mbu. ‘His legs are as thin as those of a mosquito.’

m-kulu (wa-)

n. 1/2 chief; superior; a grown-up, adult

Laazima/ we/ khfungula kanayo/ hada/ jawaabu/ yo yotte/

itakhfurahishó/ waant^hu/ wakuluwó/ haṭá/ ichiwa

jawaabu/ izo/ ṣtamkirihisha/ mwajiitu. ‘But you must open your mouth and say whatever will please your superiors, even if those words (things) will not please God.’

Mi/ skuwona/ haṭá/ sku mo/ mi/ niikó/ tu/ haṭá/ mbele mku mo/ skutala chiint^hu. ‘I have not seen it [the missing shoe]; not even once from when I [came] here until I became a grown-up have I taken anything.’

Sho mkasa mkulu/ huvundika kuulu. ‘The one who does not listen to his elder breaks his leg.’ (A proverb stressing the need to respect one’s elders.)

Wamfanyize Saalimu/ mkulu. ‘They made Saalimu chief.’ (cf. Saalimu/ fanyiza mkulu. ‘Saalimu was made chief.’)

kuma

n. [Sw. kuma SSED 226] vagina -- but only used in the insult: mwana kuma ya maamo 'son of your mother's cunt', an insult now mostly used by elderly people; younger speakers prefer mwana ndinaa mamo. review phonology

kh-kumaangana

v. (kumangeene) meet, get together, gather together, have a reunion

Ka nasibuye/ kuwa suura/ ye/ shkumangana na sulṭaani. 'His luck being good, he met with the sultan.'

kendra khkumaangana/ na mowṭiwe 'to go to meet his death'

Si/ shkumangeene/ na qati'utariiqi/ wiingi. 'We met many brigands.'

Waant^hu/ wa muyiini/ wote/ washkumaangana/ apo/ ka furaha. 'All the people of the town gathered together there with happiness.'

Waant^hu/ wakumangeene/ kulindra hokomo ya sulṭaani. 'People gathered to wait for the judging of the sultan.'

rel.

kh-kumanganikila v. p/s. appl.

Waana/ wamkumanganikiliile. 'The children gathered around him.'

kh-kumaanganya v. tr. (kumangeenye, kumanganyiize) gather together, collect together, pile together

Baana/ kumangeenye waant^hu. 'Baana collected the people together.'

Basi/ Sa'iidi/ choondroka/ shkumaanganya/ zoombo/ zote/ peesaze/ maaliye/ mingineye/ na hoolazé/ zote/ chi'irudila karka

nt^hiye/

chiruuda/ mahala ya ye/ iliiló. 'So Sa'iidi got up and gathered all his things: his money, his other belongings, and all his animals, and he returned to his country, he returned to the place where he came from.'

Chiwakumaanganya/ waant^hu/ chiwakuṭbila. 'He gathered together people and delivered a speech to them.'

Fijiri/ ya sku ya piili/ khadimu sulṭaani/ shkumanganya waant^hu/ wotte/ wa muuyi. 'On the morning of the second [next] day, the sultan's servant gathered together all the people of the town.'

Kumangeenye skunyi. 'He collected firewood.'

Laakini/ shfikira/ chihada/ waawe/ chinambila oloka/ kumaanganya/ nt^heendre/ ndreetela/ mi/ nk^hamwambilani. 'But he thought and said: if my father told me: go and gather up the dates and bring them to me, what would I do (lit. say to him)?'

Mtile mwaana/ khkumanganya skunyi. 'He had the child collect firewood.'

Sulṭaani/ shkumanganya askari/ miya. 'The sultan gathered together a hundred soldiers.'

Washkumanganya zombo zaawo/ na nt^hakant^haka zaawó/ wachingile maduriini. 'Tir things and their scraps and entered into the bush.'

kh-kumanganyika v. p/s. be collectable, gatherable

Hawakumanganyiki. 'They cannot be collected together.'

Skunyi/ skumanganyishile. 'The firewood was able to be collected.'

kh-kumanganyikila v. p/s. appl.

Waana/ wakhukumanganyikiliile? 'Were you able to be ring the children together (lit. were the children able to be brought together for you)?'

Waana/ wamkumanganyikiliile Zeena. 'The children were able to be brought together for Zeena (i.e. Zeena succeeded in bringing them together); the children were gathered around Zeena.'

kh-kumanganyila v. appl.

Waana/ wamkumanganyilile skunyi. 'The children gathered firewood for him.'

kh-kumanganyishiliza v. tr. caus. appl. collect for, with kh-kumanganyishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. collect for one another kh-kumangan(y)isha v. caus. (=kh-kumaanganya)

Kumanganyishize skunyi. 'He collected firewood.'

kh-kumanganyishika v. caus. p/s.

Zijiwe/ skumanganyishile. ‘Gravel has been collected together.’

kh-kumanganyishiliza v. caus. appl. gather, collect for kh-kumanganyishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

rel. nom.

m-kumaanganya (wa-) n. 1/2 one who gathers, collects ukopi ibnu Afaani/ mkumaanganya qur’aani [st.] ‘where is the son of Afaan who collected the Quran?’

kumbe

interj. [Sw. kumbe SSED 227] indicative of surprise; in fact

Huseeni/ shpandra chibaṭeera/ chishkila jaziraani/ kumbe/ jaziira/ iyi/ ndiyó/ jaziira/ ya sulṭaani/ wawe mwanaamke. ‘Huseeni boarded a small boat and disembarked on the island; lo and behold, this island was the island of the sultan, the girl’s father.’

Kumbe/ we/ ni mwanaamke. ‘My goodness! you are a woman.’

Shṭosha Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ mpiira/ kumbe/ nakhsooma/ hupeenda. ‘I thought Hamiisi (just) likes football; in fact, reading he likes (too)!’

Review whether final accent.

i-kuumbi (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. kumbi SSED 227] the fibrous husk of the coconut, used e.g. in making ropes and rugs (it is buried in the sand for a few weeks to soften and then beaten)

kh-kuumbuka

v. [Sw. kumbuka SSED 227] (kumbushile) remember (The verb kuumbuka takes a kuwa complement clause or an infinitive complement. It does not allow a subjunctive or a gerundive complement.)

Ali/ kumbushile koloka madrasaani. ‘Ali remembered to go to school.’ (One does not say: *Ali/ kumbushile na’oloke madrasaani. Also, not *Ali/ kumbushile kolokake/ madrasaani.)

Ali/ kumbushile kuwa keesho/ nt^haku/ madrasa. ‘Ali remembered that tomorrow there is no school.’

Basi/ we/ mp^ha baḷani/ kuwaa we/ chilawa/ ka apa/ kunk^huumbuka/ ka moojó. ‘So, promise me that when you leave from here to remember me to your master.’

chibuku chaa mi/ nk^humbushilo kuulá... ‘the book that I remembered to buy...’

chibuku cha waant^hu/ wakumbushilo kuwaa mi/ n(ich)uzilé... ‘the book that people remembered that I bought (it)...’

Kuumbuka/ spisiló. ‘Remember the things that have passed.’ Or: Kumbuka spisiló.

kuumbuka spisilo zaa we chinaambilo [song] ‘remember those things that have passed that you used to tell me about’

Kuumbuka/ spisiló/ chiza kugafa/ mara yiingine. ‘Remember what has passed so that you do not make a mistake another time.’

Kumbuka spisiló/ zaa we/ nfanyiizó. ‘Remember the things that have passed that you have done to me!’

Laakini/ kuumbuka/ jisaa mi/ khambiiló/ awanyá/ kuumbuka/ kuwaa mi/ khambile awanya ṭawalá/ mafunguu mané. ‘But remember how I told you to divide it up, remember that I told you to divide the sea into four parts.’

Mi/ hukumbuka (kuwa) nch^hinendra koloka Raasiini/ kuḷa fijiri. ‘I remember I used to walk to go to Raasiini every morning.’

Mi/ hukumbuka mukhta mi/ mbaliko mwaaná/ kuwa gaari/ schinendra ka makala. ‘I remember when I was a child that cars went by charcoal.’

Mi/ hukumbuka (ya) kuwaa we/ hadile huṭakendra madrasaani. ‘I remembered that you said that you would not go to school.’

Mi/ nk^humbushile khpika chaakujá. ‘I remembered cooking food.’

Mi/ nk^humbushilé/ kuwa Faatima/ lazile festaani/ ka mapeema/ masku. ‘I remembered that Faatima left the party early in the evening.’

Mi/ nk^humbushilé/ kuwa nfungile mnaangó. ‘I remembered having opened the door.’

Mi/ hukuumbuka/ we/ waliko furhaani/ nt^ho. ‘I remember (a time when) you were very happy.’

Mi/ humkuumbuka/ Haliima/ jisa suura. ‘I remember Haliima well.’

Mi/ skuumbuki/ yo/ yotte/ karka hayaati/ ipisiló. ‘I do not remember anything of the life that has passed.’

Mubji/ shkuumbuka/ ya kuwaa ye/ tile tubaaku/ nt^hini ya mtaawo. ‘The man remembered that he had out the tobacco under the pillow.’

Mwaana/ chila/ chimkumbuka maamaye. ‘The child cried remembering his mother.’

Mwana wa Mhamadi/ kumbushilo kuwa Sheekhi/ mpele chibuuku/ ni Baana. ‘The boy who Mhamadi remembered that Sheekhi gave him a book is Baana.’

Nimkumbushile maamé. ‘I remembered my mother.’

Nimkumbushilé/ uje muunt^hu. ‘I remembered that man.’ (This sentence is an answer to the question: Did you remember that man?’ The answer to the question: Mkumbushile naani? ‘Who did you remember?’ would be: Nimkumbushile uje muunt^hu.)

Nimkumbushile (uje) munt^hu waa si/ chimweno sukhuuni. ‘I remember the man that we saw at the market.’

Niyakumbushilé/ mazu/ kiya’ula. I remembered them the bananas to buy them.’ Or: Kiya’ula/ mazu/ nk^humbushilé. ‘To buy them the bananas I remembered.’ Or: Niyakumbushilé/ kulaa mazu. Or: Niyakumbushilé/ kiya’ula/ mazu. Or: Niyakumbushilé/ kuula/ mazu. Or: Niyakumbushilee mazú/ kuula. Or: Niyakumbushilé/ mazu/ kuula. Or: Niyakumbushilee mazú/ kiya’ulá. Or: Niyakumbushilee mazú/ kiya’ula.

Niyakumbushilee mazú/ kuuloowá. ‘I remembered them the bananas to be bought.’ Or: Niyakumbushilee mazú/ kuuloowa.

Nk^humbushile kula maandra. ‘I remembered to buy bread.’ Or: Nk^humbushilé/ kula maandra. Or: Nk^humbushilé/ maandra/ kuula. Or: Maandra/ kuula/ nk^humbushilé.

Nk^humbushilé/ kiya’ula/ mazu. ‘I remembered to buy it the bread.’ Or: Nk^humbushilé/ mazu/ kiya’ula.

Nk^humbushilee mazú/ kuuloowa. ‘I remembered bananas to be bought.

Nk^humbushilopo kuwaa we/ hukhaadiri/ nfakete kuya khulangaála. ‘When I remembered that you are sick, I ran coming to visit/ look in on you.’

Nuuru/ kumbushile kuwa Jaama/ mpele mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘Nuuru remembered that Jaama gave the child the book.’ (Cf. The noun phrase mwaana can be made into the head of the corresponding relative clause: Mwana wa Nuuru/ kumbushilo kuwa Jaama/ mpele chibuuku/ ni Ali. ‘The child whom Nuuru remembered that Jaama gave (him) the book is Ali.’)

Ori/ kumbushilopo kuwa waank^hulé/ mwambile chiza kaaminilá/ ruuhuyé/ na du’edá/ chihada/ mweenza/ waawe/ file naa mi/ chihabá. ‘When the rooster remembered that his grandfather had told him not to trust himself with a fox, he said [to the fox] friend, my father died when I was little.’

Shkuumbuka/ kuwaa ye/ nacho chileemba. ‘He remembered that he had a turban.’

Suufi/ kumbushile darsi. ‘Suufi remembered the lesson.’

Waant^hu/ wakumbushile kuwaa mi/ nuzile chibuuku. ‘People remembered that I bought a book.’

We/ nt^hukhaadira/ khkumbuka zeema/ zaa ye/ khufanyizó/ amó/ mukeewó. ‘You could not remember the good that he did for you or your wife.’

rel.

kh-kumbukika v. p/s.

kh-kumbukila v. appl. (kumbukiliile)

kh-kumbukoowa v. pass. be remembered

Kuwaa mi/ mp^hishilé/ itakhkumbukowa na waant^hu. ‘That I cooked will be remembered by people.’

Namnaya ya khpika/ itakhkumbukowa na waant^hu. ‘My way/ type of cooking will be remembered by people.’

kh-kuumbusha v. caus. (kumbushiize) remind someone

Nimkumbushiizé/ Omari/ kulaa mazu. ‘I reminded Omari to buy bananas.’

(There are many variations possible. Restricting ourselves to examples where the main verb is emphasized and thus phrase-final, here are some variants our consultant GM offered: Mazu/ Omari/ nimkumbushiizé/ kuula. Nimkumbushiizé/ mazu/ kuula/ Omari. Kulaa mazu/ Omari/ nimkumbushiizé. Kulaa mazu/ nimkumbushiizé/ Omari. Mazu/ kuula/ nimkumbushiizé/ Omari. Mazu/ kuula/ Omari/ nimkumbushiizé.

Nimkumbushiizé/ mazu/ kuuloowa. ‘I reminded him (that) bananas (needed) to be bought.’ (Note that the subject of the passive infinitive cannot be promoted to be the subject of a passive version of the main clause: Mazu/ yakumbushiiza/ kuuloowa. ‘Bananas were reminded to be bought.’ One could say: Mazu/ yakumbushila/ kuuloowa. ‘Bananas were remembered to be bought.’

Nimkumbushiizé/ Omari/ mazu/ kuuloowa. ‘I reminded Omari (that) bananas (needed) to be bought.’

Skuumbushé/ ruuhuye. ‘Don’t remind yourself.’

Tuuma/ mkumbushize mwaana/ darsi. ‘Tuuma reminded the child of/about/ concerning the lesson.’

kh-kumbushan(y)a v. caus. rec. remind one another kh-kumbushika v. caus. p/s.

kh-kumbushiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-kumbushilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (kumbushilizeenye)

rel. nom.

m-kuumbuko n. 3

sh-kuumbuko (s-) n. 7/8

u-kuumbuko n. 14

m-kuumbusho n. 3

sh-kuumbusho n. 7/8 momento, souvenir

u-kuumbusho n. 14

i-kumi

n, adj. [Sw. kumi SSED 228] ten ikumi/ na keendrá or ikumna keendra ‘nineteen’ ikumi/ naa mbilí or ikumnaa mbili ‘twelve’ ikumi/ na mooyí or ikumna mooyi ‘eleven’

ikumi/ na naané or ikumna naane ‘eighteen’ ikumi naa ne/ñe or ikumnaa ne/ñe ‘fourteen’ ikumi/ na nt^haanó or ikumna nt^haano ‘fifteen’

Leete/ mp^ha shilingi ikumna nt^haano. ‘Bring it and give me fifteen shillings.’

ikumi/ naa nt^hatú or ikumnaa nt^hatu ‘thirteen’ ikumi/ naa sabá or ikumnaa saba ‘seventeen’ ikumi/ na sittá or ikumna sitta ‘sixteen’

Kheeri/ keendra/ kolko ikumi/ endra/ ruuda. ‘Better nine than ten (if it means) go and come back (to get the tenth).’ (A proverb.)

Kila numba ikumi/ inayoo chiṭa. ‘Every ten houses has a leader.’

Mp^hundra ikumi/ uziló. ‘Ten donkeys is what he bought.’

Mudda/ wa sku ikumi/ wachisaafira/ tu/ sku ya ikumi/ wachiwasila. ‘For a period of ten days they just traveled, and on the tenth day they arrived.’

Omari/ nayo balani/ taariikhi/ mweezi/ ikumi. ‘Omari has an appointment on the tenth day of the month.’

Sku ya ikumi/ wo/ washkoma muuyi/ wa mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ namsuuló. ‘On the tenth day, they reached the town of the girl that the sultan wanted.’

(Note that the two occurrences of wa in this example represent two different uses of the Ag-a particle. In the first occurrence, it is the associative link between a noun and its complement; in the second use, it is the relative clause link between the head and the subject of a relative verb.)

Uzile mp^hundra/ ikumi/ uziló. ‘He bought ten donkeys, that’s what he did.’ Or: Uzile mp^hundra ikumi/ uziló.

Zibuku ikumi/ uziló. ‘Ten books is what he bought.’ Or: Zibuuku/ ikumi/ uziló. ‘It’s ten books that he bought.’

kumpuni

n. 9/10,6 [Eng. company] company

Kumpuni/ ikhubalile utulubo wa mashakhaale. ‘The company accepted the demands of the workers.’

- Kumpuni/ nk^hulu ya hawaala ni Dahashiil. ‘The biggest money transfer company is Dahashiil.’
- Makumpuni/ husonda waant^hu/ maazi/ huwatumisha/ kana/ mp^huundra.
‘Companies suck people’s blood, they work them like donkeys.’
- kumraadi interj. [Sw. kunradhi SSED 230] forgive me!
- kun fayaakun a fixed expression borrowed from Arabic: be and it becomes Mojiitu/ jalla/ jalaaluhu/ kilaa chiint^hu/ hukhaadira/ khfaanya/chisuḷa chiint^hu/ ni kun/ fayakuun. ‘God the highest and with majesty can do whatever he wants, if he wants something, it is be and it becomes.’
- kh-kuna v. [Sw. kuna SSED 228] (kuniile) scratch (one’s body), grate (coconuts) kakuna ‘if he scratched’
kawa kuniile ‘if he had scratched’
Muunt^hu/ hukuna ruuhuye/ mahaḷaa ye/ hukomó. ‘A man scratches himself where he can reach.’ (A proverb that says that a person does what a person is able to do.)
rel.
kh-kunaakuna v. freq.
Naani/ ilo kaaká/ nakunk^hunokunoo chitá. ‘Who is it that has come to my place, scratching at my head?’
kh-kunila v. appl. [Sw. kunia SSED 228] kh-kunoowa v. pass. [Sw. kunwa SSED 228] (kuniila) be scratched kakunoowá ‘if he has been scratched’ kawa kuniilá ‘if he had been scratched’ kawa nt^hakhkunoowá ‘if he had not been scratched’ Nakhkunoowa. ‘He is being scratched.’
rel. nom.
m-kuna (wa-) n. 1/2 ‘one who scratches’
m-kuno (mi-) n. [Sw. mkuno SSED 228] act of scratching, grating
- n-kunaazi n. a fruit that grows on a tall tree, camels love to eat it; a circular fruit that has a crispy, apple-like texture: identified as the ziziphus spina-christi (the Christ’s thorn Jujube; [pron. nk^hunaazi]
variant form: nk^honaazi Tandrikaa chili/ chije nk^hunaazi. ‘Lay the bed so that we may eat the fruit of the mkunaazi tree (a tree known for bearing much fruit).’ (A riddle, the answer to which is noota ‘stars’.)
rel.
m-kunaazi (mi-) n. 3/4 the tree bearing the fruit described above variant form: mkonaazi
- kuncherto n. [Ital.] concert
Duniya/ ni kuncherto. ‘The world is a concert.’ (A proverb which conveys the idea that the world is a place where everyone must make a contribution.)
- sh-kuunda (s-) n. a unit of measure (for grains, milk) that corresponds to 2 zi-dhu (see the entry for this measure) (Etym. The source of this word is unknown; the local Tunni Somali uses the word madaal for this measure.)
- ma-kundri makuundri adv. in groups
Waant^hu/ makundri makuundri/ wachiḷawa/ kendra kubigaa zita. In groups, the people left to go to fight the war.’
- u-kuundri (ma-) n. 11/6 [Sw. ukunde “fruit of mkunde shrub” SSED 288, though this is identified as “cowpea” in one source we located and thus different from the Chimiini fruit] a type of wild fruit/plant that is very important in Brava, as it is green even in the driest seasons; camels and wild pigs depend on it, and wild pigs dig up its bulbous roots for water; the fruit has a light brown to white skin that slips off easily and a red pulp with a big green seed; in serious draughts, people would cook the hard seeds overnight and eat them; people even eat the leaves mixed with maize; identified as the dobera glabra; it is also used as an indicator of drought since it responds so quickly to rain maato/ mahuundru/ kana ukuundri ‘eyes red as ukuundri mshaka wa makuundri ‘the makuundri tree’

Nakuja makuundri. ‘He is eating makuundri.’
Ukuundri/ uwaaliko/ młada. ‘The fruit was sweet.’ Or: Ukuundri/ uwaliko młada.

kh-kuunduka

v. (kundushile) be spread iwa/ ishkuunduka ‘if the sun’s rays spread’

rel.

kh-kuundula v. (kundiile) spread s.t., unfold s.t.

kh-kundulisha v. caus. (kundulishiliize) cause, make s.o. spread or unfold s.t.

Baana/ mkundulishizee muke/ msala. ‘Baana had the woman spread the prayer mat.’

Msalā wa Baana/ mkundulishizoo muké/ mbwaaká. ‘The prrrayer mat that Baana had the woman spread out is mine.’

Muke wa Baana/ mkundulishizo msalá/ ni Haliima. ‘The woman whom Baana had spread the prayer mat was Haliima.’

kh-kundulishoowa v. caus. pass. (kundulishiiza) be made to spread s.t. out

Muke kundulishiza msalá/ ni Haliima. ‘The woman who was made to spread out the prayer mat is Haliima.’ (Note that the subject of the passive of a causative verb must be the “causee”, i.e. the one who was caused to perform some action, and not the logical object. One thus cannot have a sentence like Msalā ukundulishizaa muké/ mbwaaká. ‘The prayer mat that was made to be spread out (by) the woman is mine.’)

kh-kungamana

v. [Sw. kongomana SSED 220]

n-kuungu

n. sp. fish; [pron. nk^huungu]

n-kuungunyi

n.9/10 bedbug; [pron. nk^huungunyi]

Chendra numbaani/ kaako/ wa’ambiile/ watumishi/ wana’ondrole/ godoro/ kama zimo nk^huungunyi/ meepe/ wanazub̄le.

‘When you go to your home, tell the servants to move the mattress (to see) if there are some bedbugs so that they may kill them.’

Chili cha nk^huungunyi / khadiri kulaalila. ‘A bed of bedbugs cannot be slept in.’ (A proverb which says that one cannot remain with a spouse who is nagging and annoying or even unfaithful.)

Chili chaa we/ nt^hukichilaalila/ hiiwi/ nk^huungunyize. ‘A bed that you do not sleep on, you cannot know its bedbugs.’ (A proverb.)

kuna maazi/ kana nk^huungunyi ‘to drink blood like bedbugs (said of someone who exploits someone too much, “sucks him dry”)’

kunha

[Ar. kunh W 843]

sh-kuunku (s-)

n. 7/8 general term for bracelet or ring-shaped implement (made of metal or other material); as a bracelet, it is not specifically reserved for women; as an implement, it can be used to tie or join mishpi

kh-kuunta

v. (kuunsile) be in financial difficulty, hardship, narrow straits; [pron. khkuunt^ha]

Waant^hu/ wakuunsile. ‘The people lived in difficult circumstances.’

rel.

kh-kuunsa v. caus. (kunsiize) put in difficult circumstances, ill-treat s.o., esp. a wife or a child

Mkunsizize mwaana. ‘He caused the child to live in a difficult situation (e.g. left the child with someone who did not care for him properly).’

kh-kuunsanya v. caus. rec. cause one another to live in difficult circumstances kh-kuunsika v. caus. p/s.

Nt^hakhkuunsika. ‘He was no longer in a difficult situation (i.e. through his own efforts he overcame a difficult situation that otherwise he would have been caused to be in).’

kh-kunsiliza v. caus. appl.

Nk^hunsilizize mwaana. ‘He exposed my child to difficulties (on me).’

kh-kunsilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Abubakari/ na Nureeni/ wakunsilizenye waana. ‘Abubakari and Nureeni exposed one another’s children to hardship.’

kh-kuuntila v. [pron. khkuunt^hila]

Mwaana/ nk^hunt^hilile sku zaa mi/ skuwaalikó. ‘My child lived in difficult circumstances during the period that I was away [not present].’

kh-kuntoowa v. pass. [pron. khkunt^hoowa]

Mi/ nnakuwona kuwa inakhkunt^hoowá/ apa. ‘I notice that people are starving here.’

rel. nom.

m-kuunto n. 3 [pron. mkuunt^ho]

u-kuunto n. 14 [pron. ukuunt^ho]

Inakhkunt^howa ukuunt^ho/ apa. ‘People are in dire straits here.’

kh-kuntamana

v. (-kunt^hameene) meet; [pron. khkunt^hamana] variant form: khkutamana

Apo/ Misra/ ye/ kunt^hameene/ na muunt^hu/ mooyi/ inaye/ Alfaani.

‘There in Egypt he met with a man whose name was Alfaani.’

Apo/ shkunt^hamana na chizeele/ chike/ na ba’ada ya kuzanya khabari/ chizeele/ shchimweegasha/ kaake/ na chimpikila chaakuja.

‘There he encountered an old woman and after they exchanged their news, the old woman invited him to her place and cooked food for him.’

Karkaa ndila/ shkhunt^hamana na khaadimu/ za sulṭaani. ‘On the way he met with the sultan’s servants.’

rel.

kh-kuntamanisha v. caus. cause to meet; [pron. khkunt^hamanisha] kh-kutana v. [Sw. kutana "meet together, assemble, collect, hold a meeting, be crowded" SSED 232] meet

rel. nom.

ma-kuntamano n. 6 meeting; [pron. makunt^hamano] variant form:

makutamano

kh-kuuntana

v. rec. [pron. khkuunt^hana] khkuunt^hana na muke soomu huṭaanguka[st.] ‘to lie with a woman [renders] fasting invalid’ sh-kunyi (s-)

n. 7/8 firewood

Kazi yaawo/ iwaliko khṭinda shkunyi/ kuuza. ‘Their work was to cut firewood and sell it.’

Ḳkaambala/ nii Ḳile/ Ḳaakini/ halkhaadiri/ khfunga skunyi. ‘A rope is long, but it cannot tie firewood.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ndila ‘road’.)

- Mwaana/ wa maskiini/ oloshela maduriini/ kh̄inda skunyi. ‘The son of the poor man went to the bush to cut firewood.’
mwenye skunyi ‘someone who sells firewood’ Skunyi/ zishishilee mulo. ‘The firewood has retained the heat.’
Zishishiloo muló/ ni skunyi. ‘What has retained the heat is the firewood.’
- rel.
l-kunyi (n-) n. 11/10 [Sw. ukuni (kuni) SSED 494] piece of firewood; [pron. nk^hunyi]
- l-kuunzi (n-) n. 11/10 a large golden necklace similar to shkoya
- n-kupa n. 9/10 [cf. Sw. mkupa identified as Dobera glabara] the ‘seed’ of the ukuundri fruit which is cooked and eaten; [pron. nk^hupa]
- kh-kuura v. [Tunni dialect of Som. kuur but not found in standard Som.] (kuriile) sip Ali/ kuriile iziwa. ‘Ali sipped the milk.’
- rel.
kh-kuurika v. p/s. (kurishile)
Iziwa iyi/ haykuuriki. ‘This milk cannot be sipped (e.g. it is too hot).’
kh-kurikila v. p/s. appl. (kurikiile) Maame/ hakurikili/ iziwa. ‘Mother cannot be sipped milk on (to her detriment).’
kh-kuurila v. appl. (kuriliile) Shaafi/ mkuriliile mwaana/ iziwaye. ‘Shaafi sipped the child’s milk (to his detriment).’
- kurama adj. pl. (see kariimu) [Ar. kuramā W 822] generous
- l-kuraasa (n-) n. 11/10 [Sw. ukarasa SSED 494] piece of paper; [pron. nk^huraasa]
- kurba n. [Ar. kurba “worry, distress, trouble” W 819] hardship, difficulty Kilaa muunt’u/ nayo kurbaye. ‘Every one has his difficulties/problems.’
(A proverbial saying.)
sh̄teenzi sh̄timiile mooja kurba ondola [st.] ‘the poem is complete, may God take away hardship’
- kh-kurbata v. [Som. kurboo DSI 374, from Ar. karaba W 819] (kurbeete) be disturbed, deeply worried
- rel.
kh-kurbisha v. caus. make deeply worried kh-kurbishanya v. caus. rec. make one another deeply worried kh-kurbishiliza v. caus. appl. make worried on kh-kurbishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. make deeply worried on one another
- i-kuri n. (=farmani) a pole holding the sail, usually made of bamboo
- i-kuuri (mi-) n. ?
- kurr ideo. of snoring
Hamadi/ hakhadaroowi/ kulaḷowa naaye/ huvuta ngoroongi/ masku mazima/ kurr kurr. ‘It is not possible to sleep with Hamadi, he snores the whole night kurr kurr.’
- kursi n. [Ar. kursī “chair, throne” W 820] throne of God (?)
- sh-kurubu (s-) n. 7/8 [?cf. Sw. kuruba “bend” SSED 231; Ar. mu ‘aqrab “curved” W 629] ear-ring, ring skurubu za mashkilo ‘ear-rings’ skurubu zaa mp^hula ‘nose-rings’

- ma-kuruumbe n. 6 a wild fruit that grows on a vine; it is not as common as the other wild fruit (like goosho, maḍeeyo, maduulu, chint^haki, etc.); it is big, red, and fleshy with a large seed, much like a plum, but larger makurumbe ya ngamiila ‘a type of makuruumbe that is longer and bigger than the generic variety’ maato/ kana makuruumbe ‘eyes like makuruumbe – i.e. big red eyes’
- kh-kuusanya v. [Sw. kusanya SSED 232] (kuseenye) pile things in a heap
rel.
kh-kusanyika v. p/s. (-kusanyishile) be piled up in a heap Miṭaanga/ yakusanyishile. ‘The sand is piled high.’
rel. nom.
ma-kusanyo n. 6 act of piling up ma-kusanyiko n. 6 the state of being piled up
- kuusi n. [Sw. kusi SSED 231] southerly wind kusiini ‘[loc.] southern wind’
Lpepo/ la kuusi/ iyumiile/ Itaharakishiize/ nt^haanzi/ na iwuyú/ impotelele mwaalimui/ imublelele. ‘The wind from the south blow and shook the branches and the baobab fell down on the teacher and killed him.’
Mooyi/ katikaawo/ chihada/ ya kuwa ni kuusi/ imublele mwaalimú. ‘One of them said that it was the southern wind that killed the teacher.’
Wachi’ishiika/ kuusi/ wachi’ivunaanga. ‘They grabbed the south wind and beat it.’
- kuusi n. a fish that is caught during the southern monsoon season (kuusi); the Arabic name for this fish is zube(y)di
- l-kusi (n-) n. [unknown etymology] hand, handful; claps (pl.); [pron. nk^husi in the plural] ka lkusi ‘by the handful’ Nazo daank^hu/ ka lkosi. ‘He has popcorn by the handful.’
kubiga lkusi ‘to take a handful’ kubigaa nk^husi ‘to ululate, clap, jump up in down with joy’ Haliima/ furahiile/ maanawe/ khshiindra/ nakubigaa nk^husi. ‘Haliima is happy her child won, she is clapping/ jumping up and down.’
kubigilowaa nk^husi ‘to be applauded by someone’ Ibreeni/ bigililaa nk^husi/ naasi. ‘Ibreeni was applauded by us.’ (If one wishes to convey the idea ‘by us and no one else’, then the agent phrase is put immediately after the verb: Ibreeni/ bigilila naasi/ nk^husi.) kubigilaa nk^husi ‘to applaud for someone’ Chimbigilile Ibraahimú/ nk^husi. ‘We applauded Ibraahimu.’
Muundrawa/ ni mkulu/ laakini/ mavunoye/ hayayezi/ lkusi. ‘My farm is large but its harvest does not fill a hand.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is: mashuungi ‘hair’.)
rel.
i-kusi (ma-) n. 5/6 handful sh-kusi (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- kusooto n. 15 [Sw. kushoto SSED 231] left-hand side
Chiko ka kusooto. ‘It [cl.7] is on the left side.’
Chilangaḷa ka kuḷji/ chimaliza/ ka kusooto/ na nt^hakuwona/ shokuwa ivuumbi. ‘He looked to the right and then to the left; he could not see anything except dust.’
mkono wa kusooto ‘left hand’ Sultaani/ uyu/ naayé/ kiḷa shpisa/ hukumu/ hulangaḷa/ ka kuḷlike/ chimaliza huteka/ kanmake/ hulangaḷa/ lpaandre/ la kusooto/huḷa. ‘This king [lit. and he] whenever he passes judgment, he looks to his right and then laughs, then he looks to his left, and he cries.’

upandre wa kusooto ‘left side’

kusummak

interj. [?Ar.] your mother’s cunt

kustubaani

n. [Sw. kustabani SSED 23; Ar. kustubān W 825] thimble

kuṭ

ideo.

Abú/ mwambile Omari/ kuṭ!/ maamala/ speendi/ khkasa kooḍi/ kana izo/ za ebu. ‘Abu told Omari stop/back up/be quiet, I do not want to hear disgraceful talk like that.’

kuṭa

adv. [etymology unknown] every day, always; [pron. kuṭá] huhuzuniko mp'engele/ kuṭa schinendroowa [st.] ‘the pathways along which he walked daily will feel sad’

Kuṭá/ Tuuma/ nakujaa nsi. ‘Every day Tuuma is eating fish.’

nt'aku kudda'ima kuṭa ku'insha [st.] ‘there is no living for eternity, living always’

Tuuma/ kuṭá/ naakuḷa. ‘Tuuma every day is crying.’

Kuṭá/ Tuuma/ nakuuya. ‘Every day Tuuma is coming.’

kh-kuṭa

v. [cf. Sw. kunja SSED 229] (kusile) fold, pinch khkuṭaa chiwo ‘lit. to close (lit. fold) a book; also figuratively: to close definitely a matter, to decide not to deal with a certain matter any more’

Alí/ hadiile/ mi/ nakhsuḷa khkuṭaa chiwó/ cha Abú/ sfaanyi/ naaye/ kaazi/ ba'ada isa/ khada'aze/ niingi. ‘Ali said: I want to close page/book of Abu, I will not work with him after now, he is cheating.’

ziwo za Barzanji kamu wakusilo [st.] ‘how many [people] have closed the books of Barzanji (i.e. no longer read the mawliid written by Barzanji)’ khkuṭa iṭaanga ‘to fold up a sail’ khkuṭa ka shkuṭa ‘to pinch’ khkuta uso ‘to frown, grimace’ kumkuṭa ‘to pinch someone’; kunk^huṭa ‘to pinch me’; khukuṭa ‘to pinch you’; kishkuṭa ‘to pinch us’; kinkuṭa ‘to pinch you (pl.)’;

kuwakuṭa ‘to pinch them’

Nk^husile. ‘He pinched me.’ Nkusile. ‘He pinched you (pl.)’

Nk^huṭa. ‘Pinch me!’; Mkuṭe. ‘Pinch him!’; Shkuṭe. ‘Pinch us!’; Wakuṭe. ‘Pinch them!’

Nt^hakumkuta. ‘He didn’t pinch him.’

Nuuru/ kusilee nguwo. ‘Nuuru folded the clothes.’

Sink^huṭé. ‘Don’t pinch me!’; Simkuṭé. ‘Don’t pinch him!’; Sishkuṭé. ‘Don’t pinch us!’; Siwakuṭé. ‘Don’t pinch them!’

rel.

kh-kuṭaakuta v. freq. (kusilekusile) crumple, fold over and over

Malizopo kaandiká/ kusilekusile Iwarakha/ Iṭile karaka nt^hupa/ ifinishile/ iḷaṭile ṭawala. ‘When he finished writing, he folded the piece of paper and put it in a bottle, covered it, and threw it into the sea.’

kh-kuṭamana v. shrink, curl up, become folded Kuṭamene chiliini. ‘He was curled up on the bed.’

kh-kuṭamanisha v. caus. cause to be curled up

Bardi/ imkuṭamanishiize. ‘Cold caused him to huddle up.’

kh-kuṭamanishana v. caus. rec.

kh-kuṭamanishika v. caus. ps/s.

kh-kuṭamanishiliza v. caus. appl.

	kh-kuṭamanishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
	kh-kuṭana v. rec. pinch one another Ali/ na Hamadi/ wakuteene. ‘Ali and Hamadi pinched each other.’
	kh-kuṭanisha v. rec. caus. make pinch one another Ali/ shkuṭanishiize. ‘Ali made us pinch each other.’
	kh-kuṭisha v. caus. make fold Nuuru/ mkuṭishize mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Nuuru made the child fold the clothes.’
	kh-kuṭishiliza v. caus. appl. Nuuru/ mkuṭishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Nuuru made Suufi’s child fold the clothes.’
	kh-kuṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wakuṭishilizenye waana/ nguwo. ‘Nuuru and Suufi made one another’s children fold clothes.’
	kh-kuṭoowa v. pass. be pinched, folded Chiza khkasa jawabu/ takhkuṭoowa. ‘If you do not listen to what you are told, you will be pinched.’ Mzele oyo/ hukuta waana. ‘That old man pinches children.’
	kh-kuṭowakutoowa v. freq. pass. Jawabu izi/ kheeri/ khkuṭowakutoowa. ‘These matters, it is better for them to be wrapped up, concluded, finished.’
	rel. nom. ma-kuṭamano n. 6 u-kuṭamano n. 14
sh-kuṭa (s-)	n. 7/8 [related to kh-kuṭa ‘to pinch’] pinch Mp^h a shkuṭa cha tangawiizi. ‘Give me a pinch of ginger.’ Omari/ skuṭache/ chimulo. ‘Omari’s pinches are hard, painful (lit. fire).’
kh-kuṭamana	v. [cf. Sw. kunjamana SSED 229]
kh-kuṭana	v. need gloss rel. kh-kuṭika v. p/s. kh-kuṭila v. appl. kh-kuṭisha v. caus. kh-kuṭishana v. caus. rec. kh-kuṭishika v. caus. p/s. kh-kuṭishiliza v. caus. appl. kh-kuṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
m-kuṭaano (mi-)	n. 3/4 meeting
sh-kuṭo (s-)	n. 7/8 a little pleating in a dress (French pince)
l-kuta (n-)	n. 11/10 wall; [pron. nk ^h uta ‘walls’] Abú/ tumbile lkuta. ‘Abu made a hole in the wall.’ chinume cha lkuta ‘behind the wall’ Chiza kuziwa lufa/ itakhushika kilwaka lkuta/ lizimale. ‘Unless you fill in a crack it will be necessary for you to build the whole wall.’ (A proverb.) Kaahini/ nambile kuwaa we/ zimile karka jaziirá/ na jaziirá/ iyo/ imersheza na maayi/ na mayi ayó/ yamersheza lkuta. ‘The soothsayer told me that you were hidden on an island and that island was surrounded by water and that water was surrounded by a wall.’ lkuta laa ye/ andishiló ‘the wall that he wrote on’ Lkuta/ lwalikoo lile. ‘The wall was long/high.’ Or: Lkuta/ lwaaliko/ lile. lkuta lpaana ‘a wide wall’; nk^huta mp^haana ‘wide walls’ Lkuta/ lpashila ranji. ‘The wall was painted.’ Cf. Lpashila ranji/ ni lkuta. ‘What was painted is the wall.’

Nk^huta za numba iyi/ spomeela. ‘The walls of the house were demolished.’
Numba iyi/ iburbushizaa nk^huta. ‘This house has been knocked down the walls.’
Numba iyi/ nk^hutaze/ ziburbushiiza. ‘This house, its walls have been knocked down.’

rel.

i-kuta (mi-) n. aug. 5/4 large wall ikuta ikulu ‘a large wall’; mikuta mikulu ‘large walls’ ikuti iyi ‘this aug. wall’ mikuta aya ‘these aug. walls’ sh-kuta (s-) n. dim. 7/8 small wall

i-kuti (ma-, mi-)

n. 5/6,4 coconut palm reed, used e.g. for roofing
Ikuti/ ha’imubli/ noka. ‘A reed does not kill a snake.’ (A proverb.)
Lumila naa noká/ hutiya ikuti. ‘One who has been bitten by a snake is afraid of a reed.’ (A proverb.)
mikuti ‘reeds’ (From an historical point of view, makuti is the expected plural for the noun ikuti, and indeed this is the plural volunteered by MI. However, in the speech of GM, mikuti was the first plural form suggested, although makuti was not ruled out as a possibility.)
Mtowaa luti/ hushika ikuti. ‘One who lacks a stick grabs a reed.’ (A proverb.)

rel.

sh-kuti (s-) n. 7/8
changaangu/ kana shkuti ‘light as a [dim.] coconut palm leaf’

n-kutu

n. [Sw. kutu SSED 232] rust; [pron. nk^hutu]

khpandraa nk^hutu ‘to rust’

Suulé/ gaari/ ipanziloo nk^hutu. ‘Don’t buy a car with rust.’

kuwa

sentential complementizer

Hamiisi/ nambilee mi/ kuwaa ye/ hupeenda/ khsooma. ‘Hamiisi told me that he likes to read.’ Also: Hamiisi/ nambiile/ kuwa hupeenda/ khsooma.

Nakhtamaná/ kuwa nna’iwá. ‘I wish that I knew.’

Nakhtoshá/ kuwa Nuuru/ oloshale Mkhodiisho. ‘I think that Nuuru went to Mogadishu.’ (The strikethrough indicates that in a sentence such as this, the kuwa is not obligatory.)

Wamó/ wachihada/ kuwaa wo/ watosheze kuwaa ye/ fiile. ‘Some said that they thought that he was dead.’

rel.

ya kuwa ‘that’

Chimwaambila ya kuwaa ye/ nakhsuula... ‘He said that he wants...’

i-kuwa (ma-)

n. 5/6 [no etymology known] thunder variant form: nk^huwa jawabu zaa nk^huwa ‘words of thunder – i.e. wild talk, talk impossible things’

Omari/ jawaabuze/ nza nk^huwa. ‘Omari’s words are not possible.’

kubigaa nk^huwa ‘to thunder’

Nk^huwa/ zinakubiga/ hatá/ stile waant^hu/ khoofu.

‘Thunderstorms are sounding loudly till they put fear to people.’

Zinakubigaa nk^huwa/ kana rasaasi. ‘It is thundering like bullets.’

Masku/ yawaliko miinza/ nvula/ ichimiminika/ na yawaliko makuwa/ ya kuyeza qalbi/ shtiisho/ na faza’á. ‘The night was very dark, rain poured down, and there was thundering that filled the heart with fear and fright.’

kuwaarta

Gaari/ ichineendra/ hubadilowa maarsha/ kaandra/ hutlowa biriima/ chimaliza sekondo/ chimaliza tersa/ chimaliza kuwaarta/ chimaliza kuwlnta.
'When a car runs, you change the gears, first gear one, then gear two, then gear three, then gear four, and then gear five.'

kuwinta

kh-kuza

v. [Sw. kuza "make great, enlarge, magnify, increase, glorify, prosper" SSED 224] (kuziize) respect s.o. (of a younger person respecting an older person); blow s.t. up out of proportion ku'ajiza kuwakuza 'to fail to honor them'
rel.
kh-kuliza v. appl. (kuliize)
rel. nom.
m-kuza (wa-) n. 1/2 s.o. who respects

m-kwaayu (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mkwaju SSED 289] a tamarind tree Muti uyu/ (ni) mkwaayu. [H!H] 'This tree is a tamarind tree.' Or: Ni¹mkwaayu/ muti uyu. [H!H] 'It is a tamarind (tree), this tree.'
rel.
u-kwaayu n. 14 [Sw. ukwaju SSED 495] tamarind Muti uyu/ huzala ukwaayu. [H!H] 'This tree bears tamarinds.'
siita/ kamba ukwaayu 'as sour as a tamarind' need to review the pronunciation of this item with Gelani, as on one recording he gave u-kaawu

L

l-

[cl.11] noun class prefix (Phon. Historically, this prefix had the shape lu-; while in Swahili, the vowel u is retained, in Chimiini only the consonant is retained on the surface. From a synchronic point of view, we know of no evidence that the prefix has a vowel in it. However, if it does have a vowel, it must be a high vowel, either i or u, since there is independent evidence that a prefix of the shape sonorant consonant+high vowel will elide this high vowel in most cases. There is one piece of evidence that might suggest that the prefix is li- and that is the object prefix that agrees with it. The [cl.11] object agreement is heard as li- in certain environments. Given that in some cases an object prefix is identical in shape to the prefix of the noun that controls it, we could reasonably expect that li- is indeed the shape of the noun class prefix from a synchronic point of view. However, nothing much depends on this assumption)

- lkuta 'wall'
- lpeelo 'broom'
- lpepo 'wind'
- lwarakha 'page'

l-

[cl.11] agreement marker on possessive root (There is no direct evidence as to whether this prefix has, from a synchronic point of view, a vowel in its underlying structure.)

- lfulungulola 'my key'; lfulungulolo 'your key'; lfulungulole 'his/her key';
- lfulungulo liitu 'our key'; lfulungulo liinu 'your (pl.) key'; lfulungulo laawo 'their key'

Nch^hiwonaa dhibu/ ka khisa mukeewa/ walimo numba iyó/ muke mwovu/ safihi/ limiile/ lwovu. 'I used to face difficulties because of my wife who lived in that house; she was a bad wife, insolent, her tongue was bad.'

l'akbari

adj. [cf. Ar. akbar "greater, bigger, larger" W810] great, big mapeendo ya nafsi ni dambi l'akbari [st.] 'love of self is a great sin'

la

interj. [uncommon in everyday speech] no!

Abunawaasi/ chihada/ la/ laazima/ we/ kunbiga. 'Abunawaasi said: No! You must beat me.'

Dafa/ chimwaambila/ la/ stiyé. 'The kite told him: No! Don't be afraid!'

Huseeni/ chihada/ la/ hayiinfi/ iyi/ siwo/ kaaziyo/ ni kazi yaa mi. 'Huseeni said: no, it won't be useful, this is not your work, it is my work.'

La/ Omari/ walá/ Nureeni/ talkaadiró. 'Neither Omari nor Nureeni are able to do it.'

La/ ye/ walá/ ra'iyawe/ nt^hawakh^hosha/ ba/ kuwa humkina/ khtuluka/ jawaabu/ mweepe/ nt^hawakhtila kaawo/ qalbiini/ hattá/ sku mó. 'Neither he nor his subjects ever thought that it was possible for anything to happen [which] they did not [lit.] put in their hearts, not even one day.'

ku-la

v. (lizile) cry, weep; make a loud sound (of animal or thing, e.g. a telephone ringing)

Baaba/ chanzaa ku^la. 'Father began to cry.' Or, with verb emphasis: Baaba/ chaanza/ ku^la. (It is also possible to postpose the subject: Chanza baaba/ ku^la. 'Began father to cry.' Notice that the postposed subject phrases with the verb in this example. The subject may also be postposed to clause-final position: Chanzaa ku^la/ baaba. 'He began to cry, father.'

Baaba/ chingilaa ku^la. 'Father began to cry.'

Chanzaa ku^la/ kaa nk^heje. 'She began to cry loudly.'

Chihada/ nnaku^la/ tu. 'She said: I am just crying.'

Haliima/ lizile. 'Haliima cried.'

Halima liziló 'the Haliima who cried'

Lizile masku/ na muun^hi. 'He cried night and day.'

Lizile munt^hu oyo/ hatá/ miimba/ itakhaaka. 'That man cried [to an extent that] your stomach will burn [i.e. you will be so sorry for him].'(This example illustrates the possibility for a definite subject to be postposed after the verb and phrased with it. However, this occurs only when there is some amplification of the main clause that follows. If one is dealing with a simple sentence such as Munt^hu oyo/ lizile. 'That man cried.', one can postpose the subject and separate it phrasally from the verb: Lizile/ munt^hu uyu. We refer to this phenomenon as right-dislocation. However, one cannot felicitously join the postposed subject into a phrase with the verb: Lizile munt^hu oyo.)

Lizile/ Omari/ kana mwaana. 'Cried, Omari, like a baby.' (The simple yes-no question is interesting in that the out-of-focus right-dislocated subject undergoes accent shift, but not the kana maana phrase: Lizile/ Omari/ kana mwaana? The emphatic yes-no question is different in that the kana mwaana phrase does undergo accent shift: Lizile/ Omari/ kana mwaanâ!?)

Lizile Omari/ kana mwaana. 'Cried Omari like a baby.' (Observe that the subject has been relocated to IAV position; this typically requires that the affected clause be expanded in some way – this example illustrates that a kana-phrase is sufficient to permit the move to IAV position. The simple yes-no question has no accent shifting: Lizile Omari/ kana mwaana?, while the emphatic version shifts the final phrase's accent: Lizile Omari/ kana mwaanâ!?)

Mamaye Hasiibu/ petopo khabari/ lizile/ nt^ho. 'When Hasiibu's mother got the news, she cried a great deal.'

Maskiini/ chihuzunika/ chanzaa ku^la/ kaa nk^heje. 'The poor man became sad and began to cry loudly.'

Mbona/ we/ naakuḷá. ‘Why are you crying?’ (We noted a different word order in which the accent of mbona was shifted: We/ mboná/ naakuḷá. Yet another word order seemed to allow both an unshifted and shifted accent: Naakuḷá/ we/ mboná (or: mbona). These accentual possibilities are not connected to the second person subject nature of the preceding sentences, as the following demonstrate: Mbona/ Muusa/ naakuḷá. ‘Why is Muusa crying?’ Or: Muusa/ mboná/ naakuḷá. Or: Naakuḷá/ Muusa/ mboná (or: mbona).

Mukhtạa ye/ muukililo mwaaná/ ye/ lizile. ‘When she scolded the boy, he cried.’

Muná/ mboni/ we/ naakuḷá. ‘My little sister, why are you crying?’

Mwana wa sarmaḷa/ shkalaant^ha/ nt^hi/ chiḷa. ‘The child of the carpenter sat on the ground and cried.’

Mwana/ wenopo kuwa nt^heendré/ zijilá/ chanzaa kuḷa. ‘When the child saw that the dates were eaten, he began to cry.’ (Our consultant actually used [cl.9] agreement ijiḷa rather than [cl.10] agreement, zijiḷa. We have observed this usage in other cases as well, but do not know how common it is with other speakers.)

Mwanaamke/ chiḷa/ nt^ho/ apo/ markabuuni. ‘The girl cried a lot there in the ship.’

Naayé/ nakhtiya/ naakuḷa/ naakuḷa/ naakuḷa/ mwaana. ‘An he was afraid and he cried and cried and cried, the child.’ (This example illustrates the right dislocation of a subject.)

Nk^haanga/ waliko chiḷa/ kaa kule/ nt^ho. ‘The guinea fowl was crying from very far off.’ (Observe the absence of lengthening of the final vowel of waliko in front of the verb chiḷa; words with two open syllables usually trigger lengthening -- cf. the examples chingilaa kuḷa and chanzaa kuḷa. Perhaps the critical difference is that the infinitive kuḷa is a noun while chiḷa is a verb.)

Omari/ lizile. ‘Omari cried.’ Or, with right-dislocation: Lizile/ Omari. (The simple yes-no question version of the first sentence has no shift in accent: Omari/ lizile? The second sentence, however, shifts the accent in the out-of-focus postposed subject: Lizile/ Omari? The emphatic yes-no questions are: Omari/ lizilê!? and Lizile/ Omari!? Observe that there is no accent shift in the initial verb.)

Omari/ lizile kana mwaana. ‘Omari cried like a baby.’ Or: Omari/ lizile/ kana mwaana. (The simple yes-no question versions of these sentences lack accent shift: Omari/ lizile kana mwaana? and Omari/ lizile/ kana mwaana? What is clear from these questions is that kana mwaana out-of-focus phrase. The emphatic yes-no question versions of these sentences are: Omari/ lizile kana mwaanâ!? and Omari/ lizile/ kana mwaanâ!?)

Paapo/ apo/ mp^huundra/ chiḷa. ‘At that very moment the donkey brayed.’

Peesa/ izo/ schiḷa kaa nk^hele/ hattá/ sultaani/ shkasa. ‘Those coins made a lot of noise until the sultan heard.’

Shteko chiingí/ ni chiḷo chiingí. ‘The one who laughs a lot is the one who cries a lot.’ (A proverb.)

Silé/ chiṭa/ shtakhulaaaza. ‘Don’t cry! You will get a headache.’

Silé/ daadá. ‘Don’t cry, grandmother!’

Sili. ‘I do not cry.’ Cf. the rest of the paradigm of human subjects: Huli. ‘You do not cry.’ Haali. ‘He does not cry.’ Haachili. ‘We do not cry.’ Haanili. ‘You pl. do not cry.’ Hawaali. ‘They do not cry.’

Waawe/ niliize/ laakini/ mi/ nanzizopoo kuḷá/ waawe/ shkhiira/ mi/ kumraasha. ‘My father refused me, but when I began to cry, my father agreed that I accompany him.’

Wayana/ na walungana/ wachingilaa kuḷa. ‘Servants and free people began to cry.’

rel.

ku-laakuḷa v. freq. cry often and easily (Observe that in the case of a monosyllabic stem such as -la, the frequentative is formed by reduplicating not just the stem, but also the preceding prefix as well. Thus kuḷaala* is incorrect.

is not an two

Mwana uyu/ hujaahula. ‘This child cries often, easily.’

ku-lilila v. appl. (lilile)

Chimuza/ nakulililani/ we. ‘He asked her: what are you crying for?’

Ichiwaa we/ ile kazima nk^hele za mp^huundra/ ndrata khuilile. ‘If you came to borrow the brays of a donkey, let me bray for you.’

Iyo/ tu/ nakulililo/ waawé/ silililé/ ba/ we. ‘It is just that you are crying for, my father, don’t cry because of that.’

kumilila Huseeniya/ ifaramiilo Hamziya [st.] ‘to weep for Husein is recommended by the Hamzya’

Lilile ufo wa maamaye. ‘He cried over the death of his mother.’

Mooyi/ karka makhaadimu/ mkasize mwaana/ naaku/ chimsoonga/ kumuza/ khisa yaa ye/ nakulililo. ‘One of the servants heard the boy crying and approached him to ask him what he was crying for.’

Naki’ililila/ tu. ‘I am crying for myself only.’

ku-liza v. caus. (liziize) make cry mwaana mzaale mkorshe we zote maliza/ takhila muunt^hu takhtaala khuliza [nt.] ‘have a child, raise it, complete its upbringing, someone will come to you and snatch it away, leaving you crying’

Nimuzizopo inamlizoni... ‘When I asked her what was making her cry...’

Nt^hana/ sababu ya kumiza/ ni raaha/ tu/ imwelelo niingi. ‘She has nothing to make her cry, it is just comfort that is too much for her.’

ku-lizanya, ku-lizanyana v. caus. rec. (-lizeenye or -lizanyene) make one another cry ku-lizanyoowa, ku-lizanyanoowa v.caus. rec. pass.

Sheekhi nakuzikowaayi/ ikaleent^ha kulizanyoowa [st.] ‘but how can the Sheikh be buried if all are sitting and weeping?’

ku-lizoowa v. caus. pass. (liziiza) be made to cry ku-loowa v. pass. (ilizila) be wept ba’adi ya hayi ni mowti/ Sheekhi chifa isiloowa [st.] ‘after life comes death/ when the Sheikh dies, no one should weep’ (The shteenzi from which these lines come is characterized by lines that have eight syllables; it appears that the word hayi ‘life’ is being regarded as monosyllabic in this line: hay.)

nt^haku nuumba waazi Miini sho kuloowa [nt.] ‘in all Brava’s houses people are weeping -- lit. there is not in Brava an inhabited house where there is no weeping’

Sheekhi chifa ha’iloowi/ itakuðikirishoowa [st.] ‘when the Sheikh dies, no one should weep, instead people should recite ðikiri’

Sultani Daraayi/ kasiizopó/ inakułowá/ chuza/ khabari. ‘When Sultan Daraayi heard the crying, he asked what had happened.’

takhkasa nk^hele naa zilo kuloowa [nt.] ‘you will hear screaming and crying’ ku-lowakuloowa v. freq. pass. be cried frequently and easily (This example is interesting. The base for the reduplication is two syllable -loowa, and thus one might reasonably expect that it would not be necessary to reduplicate a prefix along with the stem. Bisyllabic and longer consonant-initial stems do not require the prefix to be reduplicated along with the stem. It appears that the fact that -loowa is derived from a monosyllabic stem is sufficient to cause the prefix to be included in the reduplication.)

Kulowakulowa niingi/ ni ta’abu. ‘To cry too much is a problem.’

rel. nom.

i-lizi n. aug. big crier

chi-lo (zi-) n. 7/8 cry, sound

Ba’ada yaa ye/ kumublaa noka/ shkasa chilo cha mwaanawe/ na shfakata mtanaani/ ka mwaana. ‘After he killed the snake, he heard the cry of his child, and he ran into the child’s room.’

chilo cha gaari ‘the sound of the car’

chiloocha ‘mycrying’

Haliima/ chilooche/ chimnesele Omari/ ka mtanaani/ nakhfakató.

‘Haliima’s cry brought Omari running out of the bedroom.’
khshikaa zilo ‘to cry’
Waana/ wa Omari/ hawadaariki/ ka paapo/ hushikaa zilo.
 ‘Omari’s children cannot be touched, immediately they start crying.’
Ku’awaaða/ tu/ siwo/ naa chiló/ kabiiló. ‘Not only mourning he adds a cry.’
Nii chilo/ chiliziza waant^hú. ‘What weeping it was that people were made to cry.’
Nuumbaye/ nzimaye/ ishikamena naa zilo. ‘The entire house is gripped by crying.’
takhkasa nk^hele naa zilo kuloowa [nt.] ‘you will hear screaming and crying’

la’ala

review this word

Mi/ hutukula kuulu/ ya gaari/ skoorta/ kana la’ala/ kuulu/ ichinthumbukila. ‘I carry a spare wheel in case I have a puncture (the tire gets punctured for me).’

la’ana

n. curse

la’ana nt^hangilo niingi hudhibika [st.] ‘it is a curse, much loud singing [the dead person] is disturbed by it’

ku-la’ana

v. [Sw.laani SSED 238; Ar.] curse someone

Muunt^hu/ mojiitu/ chimla’ana/ haliwaani. ‘If God curses one, one does not succeed.’

Sila’ané/ waant^hu/ ka buure. ‘Don’t curse people with no reason.’

la’aani

?lack of, without

Furaha la’aani/ ya Hamadi/ inakoonyesha. ‘Hamadi’s unhappiness shows.’

proverb.)

Iimu/ la’aani/ ni miinza. ‘Without knowledge there is darkness.’ (A Kana dobla la’aani/ kheeri/ dobla mbovu. ‘Instead of no government, better a bad government.’ (A saying.)

La’aaniyo/ awari. ‘Without you there is dearth (a complete lack of s.t.).’

mikuti la’aani ‘without reeds’ ndala la’aani ‘a lack of appetite’

Omari/ uko pesa la’aani. ‘Omari is without money.’

skopa la’aani ‘without dim. cups’ (Observe that la’aani does not agree with the noun to which it is appended, even a diminutive noun, which triggers agreement on bare adjectives even when the basic noun classes do not.)

usinzizi la’aani ‘insomnia’

la’iimu (ma-)

adj. evil, base (Morph: This adjective occurs with a bare stem in agreeing with a [cl.1] noun, but has ma- in agreement with a [cl.2] noun. In conjunction with "derived" noun classes, the stem -la’iimu agrees with each derived noun class.)

munt^hu la’iimu ‘an evil person’ (cf. want^hu mala’iimu ‘evil people’, chijint^hu chila’iimu ‘dim. evil person’, zijint^hu zila’iimu ‘dim.

evil people’, ljana lla’iimu ‘aug. evil person’, ijana ila’iimu ‘aug.
 evil person’)

la’iini

adj. [Ar. la’ in W 870] cursed, damned

la’iiki (na)

adj. [Sw. laiki SSED 240] suitable for, fit for, deserving of; [pron. la’iiki or la’iikhi]

Fulaani/ siwo/ la’iikhi/ na mahaala. ‘So-and-so is not fit for the position.’

Fulaani/ siwo/ la’iikhi/ na kazi yaa ye/ aminilijila. ‘So-and-so is not fit for the job that he has been entrusted with.’

Mambo aya/ siwo/ la’iikhi/ naawe. ‘These affairs are not suitable for you.’

- Mi/ ni la'iikhi/ na mapeenzi. 'I am deserving of love.'
- review laa'iqi or la'iiki
- ku-laa'iqa v. (la'i*iqiile*) be suited to, fit for, deserving of Mi/ hula'iqa kazi iyi. 'I am suited for this job.'
- labda adv. [Sw. labda SSED 238; Ar.] Swahilism perhaps, maybe
- i-labe n. a gold choker necklace (an old piece of jewelry)
Aamina/ maamaye/ ndratilile ilabe/ dhahali. 'Aamina's mother her a large gold necklace as an inheritance.'
- labeeka interj. [Sw. lebeka "at your service! yes, sir (madam)! -- in answer to a call, coming! I am here! A common reply of a slave or inferior to a master's call" SSED 239] yes? -- a polite word to answer a call; this word is repeated over and over by pilgrims during the Hajj, meaning 'Oh God, I am here in answer to your call', and thus has particular Islamic connotations in addition to its secular usage also Masku mooyi/ eelo/ shkooda/ chihada/ mooja/ maskiini/ chihada/ labeeka. 'One evening the gazelle spoke and said, Master. The poor man said, Yes (here I am).'
- ku-labisa v. (labisiize) wear; dress fit to kill Ali/ chilabisa/ jisa suura/ choloka ke sultaani. 'Ali dressed in his finest and went to the sultan.'
Cheendra/ chilabisa. 'She went and got dressed.'
Chilabisa nguwo suura/ chendra ka mwanaamke/ wa sultaani. 'He put on nice clothes and went to the daughter of the sultan.'
Fulaani/ labisiize. 'So-and-so has put on beautiful, fine clothes.'
Haliima/ labisiize/ nakuwala/ kana/ mezaa weelu. 'Haliima was dressed fit to kill, she was shining like the moon.'
Muke/ chilabisa/ chilawa/ cheendra/ ka sultani daalimu. 'The wife got dressed and went out and went to the unjust sultan.'
- ku-labisoowa v. pass. (labisiiza)
Hata/ oyo haruusi/ nt^hakulabisoowa/ jis'iyo. 'Even the bride was not dressed this way.'
- laabuda inevitable, certain, must Ba'adi ya hayaati/ laabuda/ (ni) mooti. 'After life there must be death.'
- laachi n. 9/10 lace
laachi/ za zilaatu 'shoe laces'
Liindra/ nakhfunga zilaatu/ laachi. 'Wait, I am tying (my) shoe laces.'
Nakhfunga zilaatu/ laachi. 'I am tying (my) shoe laces.' Or:
Nakhfunga laachi/ zilaat.
- lada, ladda n. [Sw. ladha "n. the taste of anything, whether pleasant or unpleasant but usually the former" SSED 239] sweetness; adj. sweet, flavorful, fresh, delicious, tasty chakuja chilada 'flavorful food' Chaayi/ ichi/ chilada. 'This tea is sweet/ good.' (Usage: We should note that lada refers to tasting good of sweet things; one does not use an adjective like taamu to refer to tasting good of sweet things.)
embe lada 'sweet mango'
Ka makinaani/ ka Amiini/ maandra/ hutowa nasha/ kana/ chimento/ haaziwi/ lada. 'At Amiini's grinding machine, the dough is ground very smooth, like cement, the bread does not become good.'
Khariibuye/ iwaaliko/ ito ya maayi/ marbadi/ na malad. 'Near it was a spring of cool and fresh water.'
Kuja jilo Nuuru/ lada. 'The food Nuuru ate is tasty.' (Syn. Note the postposed subject of the relative clause; the absence of a pre-verbal subject allows the head noun kuja to precede the verb without any -a particle being necessary. Kuja is phrased with the relative verb, as is the postposed Nuuru.)

kuja lada ‘sweet, tasty food’

Kuja/ pishilo Haliimá/ simeeré/ kuwa lada. ‘Food cooked by Haliima, do not try to search out whether it is sweet, good – i.e. do not dream that it will be good, there is no way that it will be good.’

Kuja/ nii lada/ kulima/ haraarisi. ‘To eat is sweet, to cultivate is bitter.’
(A proverb.)

ladda/ kamba halwa ‘as sweet as halwa’ ladda/ kamba (or: kana)/ suukari ‘sweet as sugar’

ladda/ kamba (or: kana)/ uki ‘sweet as honey’

Bin^{ti}/ pishile mkate/ mlada/ kana uki. ‘Binti cooked cake as sweet as honey.’

Lada ya haruusi/ ni saba ayaamu/ na shidaye/ ni dawaamu. ‘The sweetness of marriage is seven days and its hardship is everlasting.’
(A proverb.)

mayi malada ‘fresh water’

Mi/ spendi/ mayi yinu/ maayiya/ ni malada. ‘I do not want your water, my water is sweet, fresh.’

Maayiye/ masaafi/ na malada. ‘Its water (referring to a river) was clean and fresh.’

Mkate uyu/ mlada. ‘This cake tastes good.’

Muunt^u/ chibarata lada/ hareebeki. ‘When one learns, gets sweet he cannot be stopped.’ (A proverb.)

Uki/ ladda/ wo. ‘The honey is sweet, it.’

Ukuundri/ uwaliko mlada. ‘The sp. fruit was sweet.’

Wo/ uki/ mladda. ‘It, the honey, is sweet.’ Or: Uki/ wo/ mladda.

Ziko zakuja zilada/ na ziko zaakuja/ siwo/ zilada. ‘There are sweet foods, and there are foods that are not sweet.’

ladaayi n. locust, grasshopper

ladu (n-dradu) n. [Sw. ladu SSED 239; Hind.] a sweetmeat, made of powdered sesame seeds and sugar, in the shape of small round lumps.

laföi n. 11 (or 9) [Sw. lafudhi] pronunciation, elocution, manner of speaking (Observe how Chimwiini has derived closed syllables, [laf.öi], by eliding the high vowel that occurs in the Swahili form of the word.)

Laföile/ fasihi. ‘His manner of speaking [cl.11] is clear.’

laföila ‘my pronunciation [cl.11]’ laföiye ‘his pronunciation [cl.9]’ laghaayi (ma-) adj. one who talks a great deal but says nothing

rel.
u-laghaayi n. 14 act of talking a great deal but saying nothing lahja n. [Ar. lahja "manner of speaking, dialect, vernacular" W 880; cf. Som. lahjad DSI 383] dialect lakhdawa n. argument, quarrel

Hamadi/ lakhdawaze/ niingi. ‘Hamadi, his quarrels are many.’

Lakhdawa/ siwo/ suura. ‘Arguing is not good.’ (A proverb.)

ku-lakhdawisha v. tr. (lakhdawishiize) argue, quarrel

Sheekhi/ kaaziye/ kulakhdawisha waant^u. ‘Sheekhi, his job is to argue with people (i.e. Sheekhi makes a practice of arguing with people, it is his nature).’

rel.

ku-lakhdawishan(y)a v. tr. rec.

Karkaa wo/ wanakulakhdawishano... ‘While they were arguing...’

ku-lakhdawishliza v. tr. app.

ku-lakhdawishoowa v. tr. pass.

Mi/ skuuya/ apa/ kulakhdawishoowa. 'I did not come here to be argued with/ against.'

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kulakhdawishoowa. 'It is not good for one to be argued with.'

laki

n. [Sw. laki SSED 239; Hind.] hundred thousand

Laakini/ kaako/ ni kama laki mooyi. 'But for you it is like one hundred thousand.'

laakini

conj. [Sw. lakini SSED 240] but, however

Chiiko/ laakini/ hichiwoni. 'It is there, but one does not see it.' (A riddle, the answer to which is Ikosi 'nape of the neck'.)

Daa'ima/ humkasa/ laakini/ simwona. 'I always here him, but I do not see him.' (A riddle.)

Huja/ laakini/ ha'ikuti. 'He eats, but is never satisfied.'

Huseeni/ laakini/ nt^hakiiwa. 'Huseeni, however, did not know.'

Laakini/ Nuuru/ fiile. 'However, Nuuru died.' Or: Laakini/ Nuuru/ fiiló. 'However, it is Nuuru who has died.' (Syn. There is some freedom in the placement of laakini. One can say: Nuuru/ laakini/ fiile. Or: Fiile/ Nuuru/ laakini. Or: Nuuru/ fiile/ laakini. However, in our text collection, laakini is regularly initial in the clause.)

Lkaambala/ nii lile/ laakini/ halkhaadiri/ khfunga skunyi. 'The rope is long, but it cannot tie firewood.' (A riddle.)

Mayti/ nakhkoo^oa/ laakini/ wamtukiiló/ wamameele. 'The corpse is talking, but those who are carrying it are silent.' (A riddle.)

Mbene ltaki/ ndilaani/ laakini/ skukhaadira/ killokota. 'I saw a necklace outside, but I could not pick it up.' (A riddle.)

Mi/ huja zint^hu matuuri/ zotte/ laakini/ mi/ siwaandi. 'I eat all fat things but I do not get fat.' (A riddle.)

Nuuru/ laakini/ washile nuumba. 'Nuuru, however, built a house.' Or: Nuuru/ laakini/ washile/ nuumba.

Nuuru/ washile laakini/ nuumba. 'Nuuru built however a house.' (Phon. Although laakini is almost always a phrasal isolate in our experience, in this example it was phrased together with the preceding verb. We have not recorded, so far, an instance where it is phrased with anything following.)

laakiri

n. [Sw. lakiri "sealing wax" SSED 240] plastic

Skombe zaa si/ chineleeló/ zivaliko za laakiri. 'The cups that we drank with were made of plastic.'

laakuja

adv. time of sunset (in Brava: from 6 to 7 p.m.)

Ikomele laakuja. 'It reached the time of sunset.'

Iwaliko laakuja/ apo/ na kula laakujá/ mu^hli oyo/ m^hasiló/ hulawa ka kaaké/ kendra miskitiini/ hupita mbele ya nuumba/ iyo/ yaa muke. 'It was dusk then, and each dusk, that man who divorced her goes from his place to the mosque, [and] he passes in front of that house of the woman.'

khsala laakuja 'to perform the formal, sunset (maghrib) prayers

Laakuja/ Nuuru/ iló. 'It was at sunset that Nuuru came.' Or: Laakuja/ iló/ Nuuru. But the postposed subject in the latter sentence cannot be phrased with the verb: Laakuja/ ilo Nuuru.) lakujaani 'around sunset'

Nile laakujá. 'I came at sunset.'

Nuuru/ ile karka laakuja. 'Nuru came around sunset.'

Nuuru/ ile kharibu ya laakuja. 'Nuuru came near sunset.'

ku-lalamika

v. [Sw. lalamika "be made to appeal for mercy, be reduced to submission, be beaten -- and so, beg for mercy, cry out for quarter" SSED 240] speak in a rush, deliriously, making no sense; talk, complain too much

 rel.
ku-lalamata v. (lalamete) same in meaning as kulalamika
ku-lalamisha v. caus. (lalamishiize) ku-lalamishana v. caus. rec.
ku-lalamishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-lalamishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-lalamishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
 rel. nom.
ma-lalamisho n. 6
ma-lalamo n. 6

laaluushi

n. 9/10 [Som. laaluush- "to bribe"] bribe khtala laaluushi 'to take a bribe' Omari/ hutaala/ laaluushi/ niingi (or: zaaydi). 'Omari takes large bribes.'
khtomola laaluushi 'to pay a bribe' kuja laaluushi 'to take a bribe (lit. to eat a bribe)' Keenya/ ma'askari/ wont^he/ huja laaluushi. 'In Kenya all soldiers accept (lit. eat) bribes.'
kumpa laaluushi 'to give someone a bribe' laaluushi/ la'aani 'without a bribe' Suufi/ hafaanyi/ kaazi/ laaluushi/ la'aani. 'Suufi does not work without a bribe.'
lalushi niingi or laaluushi/ niingi 'a large bribe' Huseeni/ husuula/ laaluushi/ niingi. 'Huseeni wants a large bribe.' lalushii nk^hulu or laaluushi/ nk^hulu 'a large bribe' lalushi zaaydi or laaluushi/ zaaydi 'a large bribe' laaluushiye 'his bribe'
Wo/ wamda'awete ye/ khira dolari alfu/ laaluushi. 'They have brought charges against him that he accepted a thousand dollars in bribes.'

ku-laala

v. (laazile) be sick for a rather long period of time (much used in the negative (nt^haku^laala) when speaking of somebody who dies suddenly, not having shown any symptoms of illness, or after a very short illness)
Hasani/ laazile/ wele mwambaamba/ kana/ ngoondra. 'Hasani got sick, he became thin like dried fish.'
Miimba/ inakunaaka/ Omari/ ku^laala. 'I am very sorry [lit. my stomach burns me] that Omari is sick.'
Waawaye/ chimuuz/ nini/ munó/ impeeteni/ Hasani/ chimjiiba/ chile pamooyi/ laakini/ ye shishila maraó/ ya miimba/ laazile/ sku/ chimaliza/ fiile. 'His father asked him: what happened to your younger brother? Hasani answered: we came together, but he was afflicted by a stomach ailment and suffered for some days and then died.'

lama

in the example:
Kufa/ ni lama huraani. 'To die is a must, it cannot be avoided.' (A proverb.)

laame

n. 9 [Sw. lami SSED 241; Ar.] tar; tarmac (road) khpaka laame/ ndila 'to put tarmac on a road' lame imulo or laame/ imulo 'hot tar'
Lame iyi/ nyulusi/ kabisá. 'This tar is very black.'
Lame iyi/ nyulusi/ nt^ho. 'This tar is very black.'
Lame iyo/ yiko miboholi. 'That tarmac road has potholes.'
Nakambula laame. 'He is stripping the tar off (the road).'
ndila iyi/ ya laame or ndila ya laame/ iyi 'this tarmac road' ndila ya laame 'a tarmac road' nyulusi/ kana laame 'as black as tar'

lamiyeeri

n. 9/10 [Ital. lamiera] corrugated iron used for roofing a house; galvanized iron sheet

lamna

n. 9/10 [Sw. namna SSED 330] kind, species, way, manner, type, color
-a lamna gani ‘of what kind?’

Gari ya lamna gani/ we/ uziló. ‘What kind of car did you buy?’

Fatuura/ lamna gani/ Hasani/ uziló. ‘What kind of car did Hasani buy?’ Or:
Hasani/ uzile fatuura/ lamna gani.

ijiwe/ lamnaye or lamnale ‘the stone, its color or type’ lamna gani ‘what kind?’

Lamna gani/ nk^hutaze. ‘What color are its walls?’

Nk^hutaze/ ni lamna gani. ‘Its walls, what color are they?’

lamna ya kubiga paasi ‘way/style/manner of ironing’

Uzile gaari/ lamna gani. ‘You bought what kind of car?’

lamna iyo ‘that way’

lamna/ ka lamna ‘of different kinds’

Wataana/ washpika/ zaakuja/ za lamna. ‘The servants cooked foods of different kinds.’

lamna la ijiwe ‘type or color of the stone’ (but it is also possible to have lamna ya ijiwe) lamna (/) la majiwe ‘type or color of the stones’ (or: lamna (/) ya majiwe) lamna yiingine ‘a different way, another way’ lamnaye ‘it’s kind, color’ doolari nk^hasiize skuwoona lamnaye [nt.] ‘I have heard about dollars [but] I have never seen them’ majiwe/ lamnaye ‘the stones, their color or type’ (or: majiwe/ lamnale) neendre/ kumeraa nyunyi/ lamna uje ‘that I go to look for bird of that kind’ (The primary source of data in this book, MI, often uses [cl.1] agreement for a singular animate noun, thus uje in this example; ije, the class [9] form, is of course also possible.) review phrasing re nyunyi lamna

Stemuké/ kooði/ lamna izi. ‘Don’t utter words like these.’

Waant^hu/ karka muuyi/ wachiwa ni lamnaa mbili. ‘People in the town were divided into two groups.’

Warudiile/ naawó/ watukilo matuundrá/ na zaakujá/ za lamna ka lamná. ‘They returned, and them carrying fruits and foods of various kinds.’ (Although MI used lamna ka lamna in this sentence, apparently lamna ka lamuuna is more common.)

Waawé/ kuwaa ye/ letelelee mbuzi/ mbili/ lamna mooyi/ ambiila/ mptomole mwaana/ mptomole mzeele. ‘My father, it be that he was brought two goats of one kind (i.e. they looked the same), and he was told to take out the younger one and to take out the older one (i.e. pick out which is the younger and which is the older).’

lampadiina

n. 9/10 light bulb

chi-laamu

n. 7 the dialect of the island of Lamu; in the manner of the people of Lamu lamuuna

found in the phrase:

lamna ka lamuuna ‘of different kinds’

laana

n. wool

Koti iyi/ nda laana. ‘This coat is made of wool.’

ku-laana

v. [cf. Proto-Sabaki lawn-* “=to fight” N&H 599] (laniile) quarrel, “fight” (in the figurative sense); fight

Ali/ lanile na Nuuru. ‘Ali quarreled with Nuuru.’

Hamadi/ lanile naami. ‘Hamadi fought with me.’

Hamadi/ nazoo nguvu/ zaaydi/ chilana na Sheekhi/ takumuna/ kana/ maayi. ‘Hamadi is so strong (lit. has strength surpassing), if he fights with Sheekhi, he will drink him like water (i.e. he will beat him easily).’

Ichiwaa we/ hukhubali/ mi/ naawé/ shtakulaana. ‘If you do not consent, I and you will fight one another.’

Koði niingi/ huleta kuḷanoowa. ‘Too much talking brings fighting.’ (A proverb.)
Maneno miingi/ huleta kuḷanoowa. ‘Too much talking brings fighting.’ (A proverb.)
Mi/ na mukeewá/ chinakuḷaaná. ‘Me and my wife are quarreling.’
Mi/ spendi/ we/ kuḷana na mukeewo. ‘I do not want you to quarrel with your wife.’
Mooja ilu yaawo shtila kuḷaana [nt.] ‘[as] God made them fight among themselves’
 (This line from a poem about raids on Brava refers to the fact that many Somali looters fought among themselves, and killed each other, trying to steal booty from other groups.)

Si/ hashkhaadiri/ kuḷana naa mp^haka. ‘We cannot fight the cat.’
Wachiḷaana/ kati kaawo. ‘They quarreled among themselves.’
Waana/ walaniile. ‘The children quarreled (with one another).’
 rel.

ku-ḷanoowa v. pass. (ḷaniila)

Duniyaani/ huḷanoowa/ hupatanoowa. ‘In this world people fight and people reconcile.’ (A proverb.)

ku-ḷanya v. caus. (ḷanyiize) make fight, create a fight

Ndranyize na waawe. ‘He caused me to fight with my father.’

Sheekhi/ mḷanyize mwaana/ na waant^hu. ‘Sheekhi caused the child to quarrel with people.’ (Syn. One can also use a periphrastic construction: Sheekhi/ mtile mwaana/ kuḷana na waant^hu. ‘Sheekhi [lit. put in] the child to quarrel with people.’) ku-ḷanyiliza v. caus. appl. fight for s.t.

Nuuru/ na mkulé/ wanakuḷanyiliza maali. ‘Nuru and his elder brother are fighting for money.’

Sheekhi/ mḷanyilize Habiibi/ mwaana/ na waant^hu. ‘Sheekhi caused Habiibi’s child to quarrel with people.’ (Morph. A common use of the causative applied verb is to indicate a relationship between the "causee" and the object of the applied verb.) (Syn. A periphrastic version is also possible: Sheekhi/ mtile Habiibi/ mwaana/ kuḷana na waant^hu. ‘Sheekhi [lit. put in for] Habiibi’s child to quarrel with people.’)

Si/ chiḷanyilize peesá. ‘We fought over money.’

ku-ḷanyilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass. be fought for Alafu/ ha’iḷanyilizoowi. ‘Luck is not something that can be fought for/ over.’ (A proverb.)

Nasiibu/ hayḷanyilizoowi. ‘Luck is not competed for (it just comes).’ (A proverb.) (Observe from this and the above example that the structure: ha negative + i [cl.9] subject prefix can be realized either as ha’i or hay in pre-consonantal position.)

Peesa/ ziḷanyiliiza. ‘Money was fought over.’

ku-ḷanyoowa v. (ḷanyiiza) be induced to fight someone

Landrani

n. London

Waant^hu/ karka Landrani/ leelo/ washuhudijiile/ haadithi/ nk^hulu/ karka sa’aa ne/ za muunt^hi/ boomba/ ibishile mziinga/ karka barḷamaani/ ya chingereenza. ‘People in London today witnessed a big event: around ten (lit. four) in the morning, a bomb exploded in the English parliament.’

ḷaano (n-draano)

n. 11/10 story, tale, fairytale

khfungula ḷaano ‘to tell a story’

ḷaano/ ili/ humaliza ka apo. ‘This story ends there.’

ḷaano/ ili/ ḷkomele apa. ‘This story has ended here.’

ḷaano/ la Mwalimu Gooso ‘the story of Teacher Gooso’ ḷaanola ‘my story’; ndraanoza ‘my stories’

Mi/ nanzize kuwafunguliḷa waaná/ ḷaanó. ‘I began telling the story to the children.’

mitume mirsali ikum na nt^haano, kiwoowa waajibu stoshe ni ḷaano [st.]
 ‘the prophets who were sent (by God) are fifteen, for this to be known is obligatory, don't think that it is just a fairy tale'

Munt^hi mzima/ wo/ hufungulilana ndraano. 'All day long they tell one another stories.'

ndraano/ za hayawaani 'tales of animals' (or: ndrano za hayawaani)

Nnafunguloowa/ isa/ laano/ la shtoloko. 'Now I will tell the story of the little bean.'

laanti

only used in the expression below: [pron. laant^hi] kubiga laant^hi 'to go on foot (for a long distance, tiring one)'

Leelo/ skupata/ gaari/ mbishile laant^hi/ ka hafisaani/ mpaka numbaani. 'Today I could not find any car, I had to go on foot all the way home from the office.'

Muduni/ hubigika/ laant^hi. 'One can go to Muduni by foot.'

Nuuru/ bishile laant^hi. 'Nuuru came on foot.'

lapiili

adv. in the afternoon (from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m.); the second part of the day, afternoon (starting about 3 p.m.)

Lapiili/ rudile kaake. 'At around three in the afternoon he returned to his place.'

Lapiilini/ wote/ warudile na skunyi ziingi. 'That day around lapiili they returned with much firewood.'

Munt^hi uyu/ lapiiile/ wakulu/ na zihaba/ hulawa ibana ya muuyi/ hendra kulanga la matezo za namna ka namna. 'In the afternoon of this day adults and children go to the outskirts of town to watch games of different kinds.'

Mwaana/ na askari/ na watumishi/ wa'ineenzele/ kaa muda/ wa sa'a niingi/ hatta/ khariibu/ ya lapiili/ chidirkamana/ na ipaka/ ikulu/ ya maduuri. 'The boy and the soldiers and the servants walked for a period of many hours until near afternoon they encountered a large wild cat.'

Sku ya piili/ shtete batera yitu/ chigisile makasiya/ hata/ khariibu/ ya lapiili/ shkomele jaziira/ yingine. 'On the second day, we took our boat, we rowed until just before 3 p.m., we reached another island.'

lashiini (ma-)

n. someone who invents songs, poems, etc.

Abudeera/ ni lashiini/ ma'aruufu. 'Abudeera is a famous artist.'

laasi (ma-)

n. 9,6 [Sw. lasi SSED 241; Pers.] a kind of silk; adj. smooth, silky, esp. of hair hanzu ya laasi or haanzu/ ya laasi 'a silk haanzu' luzi la laasi 'silk string' mashungi malaasi 'long, silky, soft hair' (used also to suggest a person of higher status), in contrast with mashungi majereere 'curly, kinky hair' (used to refer to African or Bantu people of lower status)

shati ya laasi or shaati/ ya laasi 'a silk shirt'

Tuuma/ mashungiye/ malaasi. 'Tuuma's hair is long and soft.' Or: Mashungi ya Tuuma/ malaasi.

Tuuma/ mukeewa/ mashungiye/ malaasi. 'Tuuma my wife's hair is long and soft.' Or: Tuuma/ mukeewa/ malaasi/ mashungiye. 'Tuuma my wife's hair is silky.'

ku-lata

v. [cf. Proto-Sabaki *-lac- "throw away, leave" N&H 595] (lasile) let go, leave off; stop; omit; permit, let; divorce

Ali/ mlasile Hamadi/ kandikaa khati. 'Ali allowed Hamadi to write a letter.'

Basi/ ndovu/ chimlata. 'So Elephant let him go.'

heendra miskitiini nuumbaya hulata [nt.] 'I go to the mosque and leave my house'

Chichilasilé. ‘We let it [cl.7] go.’

Chimlataa ndovu/ paapo/ ye/ chiyolokela. ‘He left the elephant there and he went away.’

Lata. ‘Stop it!’

Lata kaa mbele. ‘[Lit.] leave from before – i.e. leave this matter alone, don’t bother.’

Lata matezo. ‘Stop joking! Be serious!’ (which is stronger than Latī matezoyo. -- see below, and employs the regular imperative form of this verb)

Mi/ simlati/ na kama chiwajiboowa/ kumlata/ mi/ laazima/ peesa/ zaa mi/ nt^homeeló/ khpowa ka maraa mbili. ‘I will not divorce her; if I am obligated to divorce her, I must be given double the money that I spent.’

Mlate kaa mbele. ‘Let him be, don’t heed him, let him do whatever he wants without interfering.’

Mubjaana/ chimlata Safiya. ‘The young man divorced Safiya.’

Muunt^hu/ chisula khfanya chiint^hu/ hufaanya/ jisa suura/ ambó/ hulata. ‘When one wants to do something, one does it well or leaves it.’ (A proverb.)

Ni/ lataani/ khfanya farqi iyi/ bena maskiini/ na taajiri. ‘You (pl.) stop this discrimination between the poor and the rich!’

Omari/ peesa/ lasile. ‘Money left Omari – i.e. at one time Omari had money, but now it is all gone.’

Numa/ wandrasile/ wa’oloshale. ‘Then they left me and went away.’

silate khfaanya sadakha [st.] ‘don’t omit to give alms (or prepare food as alms)’

Simlate/ yee peeke/ chiiza/ takumala chaakuja. ‘Don’t leave him alone otherwise he will use up all the food.’

Wa’ishiize/ jis’iyi/ ka mudda/ hattá/ maali/ yotte/ yamlasile/ na ufalmé/ umbeele. ‘They lived like this for a period of time until all the money was gone and he had lost his kingship.’

We/ mlasilé/ siimba/ khfanya yaa ye/ nakhsuuló. ‘You allowed the lion to do whatever he wanted.’

We/ nayoo ndilá/ kumlata Huseeni. ‘You are right to avoid Huseeni.’

ya baatili ilateeni/ ndilaye hupoteleowa [st.] ‘reject deception and lies, which lead to eternal damnation’

rel.

ku-lasiliza v. appl.

ku-lasisha v. make someone divorce

ku-latana v. rec.

Maali/ yapelaa muké/ kuwa ni mahari/ hayaruudi/ ka mubli/ kama mubli/ naa muké/ wachilatana. ‘Money that has been given to a woman as dowry is not returned to the man if the man and woman divorce.’

ku-latiloowa v. appl. pass.

Ifungu ya taatu/ takulatilowaa nsi/ zinapate ku’iisha/ na kuzaalaná.

‘The third portion [of the sea] will be left for the fish so that they get to live and reproduce.’

ku-latila v. appl. (latiliile) leave for, drop to Budukhu yaa mi/ nimlatililo Nuuru/ ndaaká. ‘The gun that I left with Nuuru is mine.’ (The past tense form -latiliile falls together with the past tense of -latilila ‘throw to’, so this sentence could also be understood as ‘The gun that I threw to Nuuru is mine.’)

Maamaye/ chilatila ruuhuye/ nt^hi/ chila/ nt^ho. ‘His mother fell to the ground and cried very much.’

ku-latisha v. caus. (It is not clear that this verb is properly used to convey the idea of making someone divorce.)

ku-latishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-latoowa v. pass. (lasila)

Apo/ zamaani/ sultaani/ Harun Rashiidi/ tomele amri/ kuwa nt^haku/ rukhsa/ karka muuyiwe/ kashoowa/ mibeebe/ yaa mu^o/ wala/ ku^latowaa tala/ kaaka/ masku. ‘Once upon a time king Haruun Rashiidi issued an order that there was no permission in the town for mibeebe of fire to be lit nor for lamps to be permitted to be lighted at night.’

Chilazila lfuwooni/ hupatikana bahariini. ‘That which is left on the shore is found in the ocean.’ (A proverb.)

Haliima/ lasila/ na chigeeché/ peelee. ‘Haliima is divorced and her divorce money is given.’

Karka wakh^ti oyo/ wanaashke/ wa masultaani/ na wanashke winginewé/ ba/ liini/ wachila^toowá/ kumera ndilaani. ‘During those times, daughters of sultans and other daughters as well did not go out to wander the streets.’

Numbaani/ chila^towa yee peeke/ umo mikooni/ ni kaa ndala/ kaa ndala/ chila^toowa. ‘In the house, [the step-daughter] was left all alone; she was in the kitchen with hunger, with hunger, that’s how she was left.’

wont^he watakumraasha/ muuyi utaku^latoowa [st.] ‘all will follow him (in the funeral procession) and the town will be deserted’

lati

v. irregular imperative form of ku^lata

Lati. ‘Please leave it; why not leave it? (less strong than Lata.)

latifu

n. [Ar. la^ff W 868] an attribute of God (the Kind)

ku-latila

v. [cf. Proto-Sabaki -lac-* “=throw away, leave” N&H 595] (latiile) throw, hurl; fire (a gun); throw away (e.g. garbage)

Chambiloowa/ ya kuwa waant^hu/ wataku^latila ndriimu/ mara ya kaandra/ mara ya piili/ na mara ya taatú. ‘He was told that people would throw lemons, a first time, a second time, and a third time.’

Hasani/ lata^lile chiloho/ mayiini. ‘Hasani threw the hook into the water (to try to catch a fish).’ (The corresponding simple yes-no question involves no change in accent location, Hasani/ lata^lile chiloho/ mayiini?, while the exclamatory yes-no question shifts the accent inside the VP: Hasani/ lata^lile chilohó/ mayiini!?) ku^latila bunduukhu ‘to shoot a gun’ (idiom) or ‘to throw a gun’ (literal)’

Bunduukhu yaa mi/ ndatiiló/ ndaaká. ‘The gun that I threw away is mine.’

(This literal interpretation of the sentence represents the most immediate one that one would have. MI suggested that an idiomatic interpretation may be possible: ‘The gun that I fired is mine.’

However, he preferred: Bunduuxu yaa mi/ mbishiló/ ndaaká. ‘The gun that I fired is mine.’ This uses the phrasal verb -biga bunduukhu.) ku^latila mikono ‘to reject with anger (lit. to throw the hands)’

Omari/ lata^lile mikono/ khkasa jawabu izo. ‘Omari grew angry after listening to those things.’

Latila miziinga/ lata^lilá. ‘Fire the guns, that’s what you should do.’

Ma’askari/ washtukula/ majuuniya/ ayo/ yotte/ wachiyalata^lila/ bahariini.

‘The soldiers carried all those sacks and threw them into the sea.’

Mi/ nimlata^lile Hamadí/ kana mpiira. ‘I threw Hamadi like a ball.’ (In the simple yes-no question, our consultant did shift the accent in the kana mpiira phrase:

Mi/ nimlata^lile Hamadí/ kana mpiirá? The exclamatory question also shifted the accent: Mi/ nimlata^lile Hamadí/ kana mpiirá!?)

Mwaana/ shtomola amri/ na ma’askari/ wachila^latila bunduukhu/ wote/ ka mara mooyi. ‘The boy issued the order and all the soldiers fired [their guns at one time].’

Naani/ lata^lilo ijiwé/ cholokooni. ‘Who threw a stone at the window?’

Ndo/ nimlata^lilepi. ‘Come, where have you (pl.) thrown him?’

Nfuye/ ichiwa/ huṭinda matuundra/ huḷaṭila mayiini/ na mp^haamp^há/ naazó/ hufakaṭa/ hutaala/ matuundra. ‘The monkey used to pick off the fruits and throw them into the water and the sharks (and they) would run and take the fruit.’

Ni kheeri/ mi/ kuḷaṭila ruuhuya/ bahariini. ‘It is better for me to throw myself into the sea.’

Omari/ mḷaṭile Hamadi/ kana mpiira. ‘Omari threw Hamadi like a ball (i.e. threw him down hard).’ (he simple yes-no question does not shift accent, while the exclamatory question does: Omari/ mlatile Hamadí/ kana mpiirá!?) Or: Kana mpiira/ Omari/ mḷaṭilo Hamadí. ‘Like a ball Omari threw Hamadi.’

Poliisi/ nt^hawakhaadira/ kiiwa/ mahaḷa/ ijiwe/ ilaziló/ walá/ munt^hu ḷaṭiló. ‘The police were not able to know the place where the stone came from nor the person who threw it.’

Suufi/ laṭile ijiwe/ cholokooni. ‘Suufi threw a stone at the window.’

Wachimjiiba/ chimḷaṭile wowiini. ‘They answer him: We have thrown him in the river.’

Waant^hu/ wachanza kuḷaṭila ndriimu. ‘People began to throw lemons.’

rel.

ku-latilila v. appl.

Chisu icho/ chimḷaṭilila oyoo muke/ shchimbiga cha kuulu. ‘That knife, he threw it at that woman, and the knife struck her in the leg.’

kuḷaṭilila bunduukhu ‘to shoot a gun at’, but also the literal use: ‘to throw a gun at’

Bunduukhu yaa mi/ nimḷaṭililo Nuuru/ ndaaká. ‘The gun that I threw at Nuuru is mine.’ Or, if the verb is taken to be the applied form of -lata: ‘The gun that I left for or with Nuuru is mine.’ Notably MI rejected the idiomatic interpretation: ‘The gun that I fired at Nuuru is mine.’ The issue seems to be whether to take bunduukhu in the idiom to be an argument of the verb or not.)

Omari/ mḷaṭilile mwiizi/ ijiwe. ‘Omari threw a stone at the thief.’

Omari/ mḷaṭilile Nuuru/ buunduukhu. ‘Omari shot the gun at Nuuru; Omari threw the gun at Nuuru.’ (Actually, there is a third interpretation of this sentence: ‘Omari left the gun for or with Nuuru’, but this interpretation derives from the applied form of the verb -lata; see above.)

Uki/ umaliizopó/ Hasiibu/ chiwa’ambila weenziwe/ wawaliko ilú/ kumḷaṭilila ḷkaambala/ ye/ khpata kuḷawa/ ka chisimaani. ‘When the honey was finished, Hasiibu asked his friends who were up above to throw to him a rope so that he could get out from the well.’

Wamḷaṭilile mwaana/ majiwe. [H!H] ‘They threw stones at the child.’

ku-latiloowa v. appl. pass.

hatta waako zidank^haani/ watakuḷaṭililoowa [st.] ‘and those looking down from the rooftops, it will be thrown to them (lit. they will be thrown to)’

Ijiwe/ laṭilila mwiizi. ‘A stone, he was thrown at, the thief.’ Or: Mwiizi/ laṭilila ijiwe. ‘The thief was thrown a stone at.’

Mwaana/ laṭilila majiwe/ naawo. [H!H!H] ‘The child was thrown stones at by them.’

Naawé/ kasizopo kuwa eeló/ fiilé/ we/ amurile nalatiloowa chisimaani. ‘And when you heard that the gazelle had died, you ordered that he be thrown into the well.’

ku-latiloowa v. pass. (laṭiila)

Amri/ ichilawa/ kuḷaṭiloowa/ ndriimu. ‘The order was given for the lemons to be thrown.’

Bunduuku/ ilaṭila na Omari. ‘The gun was thrown away by Omari; the gun was fired by Omari.’

Mafta/ yachilaṭilowa ṭawala. ‘The oil was thrown into the sea.’

Majiwe/ yalaṭiila. [H!H] ‘Stones were thrown.’ Or: Yalaṭiilá/ ni majiwe.

[H'H] 'What were thrown are stones.'

Ndriimu/ zilaṭiṭlapó/ schimbiga yeeye/ khaadimu. 'When the lemons were thrown, they struck the servant.'

Wanakulaṭiṭlowa masku. 'They were going to be left at night.'

ku-ṭatiliṣha v. caus. cause to throw at Iisa mṭaṭiliṣhize Haaji/ ijiwe/ cholokooni. 'Iisa caused Haaji to throw a stone at the window.'

ku-ṭaṭiliṣhiliza v. caus. appl.

Suufi ndratiṣhize mwaana/ ijiwe/ cholokooni. 'Suufi caused my child to throw a stone at the window.'

ku-ṭaṭiza v. caus. throw oneself down, lie down (esp. for sleeping)

Apo/ wajiile/ chimaliza/ waṭaṭiize/ khpumula. 'There they ate and then they lay down to rest.'

Hasiibu/ chiṭaṭiza ruuhuye/ ilu ya chili/ ichi. 'Hasiibu threw himself on this bed.'

Nk^huku/ zanzizopo kuwiiká/ mi/ nondroshelé/ kendra kuṭaṭiza/ haba mooyi. 'When the cocks began to crow, I got up and went to lay down for awhile.'

Wachiimba/ washteza/ haṭá/ sa'a ikumi/ za masku/ ba'ada ya apo/ dhokhookhi/ yaawo/ itozeḷa/ wotte/ usiinzi/ uwateete/ waṭaṭize/ nṭhini ya mteendre. 'They sang and danced until the hour of ten at night (i.e. four a.m.); after that their sound was missing (i.e. no sound was heard from them), sleep took them all so that they lay under the date tree.'

laatulo

n. time of evening prayer (Note that it is impossible to have a locative form *ṭatulooni.)

Aasha/ pishile chakuja cha laatulo. 'Aasha cooked dinner (lit. food of laatulo).'

khsala laatulo 'to perform the evening prayer'

Mwana uje/ nk^heshesheeze/ nṭhangú/ laatulo/ haṭá/ fijiri. 'That child kept me awake from evening until morning.'

Omari/ khiriḷe khpika chakuja cha laatulo. 'Omari offered to cook dinner.'

Sṭakuwonana ba'di ya laatulo. 'We will meet after the time of evening prayers.'

chi-laavi (zi-)

n. 7/8 fish trap

khpataa nsi/ ka chiḷaavi 'to get fish with a trap' kuṭaṭila chiḷaavi 'to throw out a trap'

ku-lawa

v. [Sw. lawa SSED 241] (ḷazile) go or come out of, move from, leave, come from

Abunawaasi/ chiḷawa/ na muḃjaaná. 'Abunawaasi left and the child [left also].'

Abunawaasi/ chiḷawa na muḃjaana. 'Abunawaasi left with the child.'

Abunawaasi/ chiḷawa/ na muḃjaana. 'Abunawaasi left with the child.'

Ali/ chihada/ kuwa hayṣṭa(ku)mḷawa/ kooḏi/ ka kanaani. 'Ali said that no words would come from (his) mouth.'

Amá/ we/ takuḷawa/ ka apa/ laakini/ takuḃḷoowa/ takhutundrikowa wa mutiini/ naa nyunyú/ ṣṭaakuja/ karka ongoyo. 'As for you, you will leave from here (prison), but you will be killed and you will be hung from a tree and birds will eat from your brains.'

Awuri/ ilazile. 'The seeds have sprouted.'

Chiḷawa/ waant^hu/ wote/ humwona. 'When he comes out, everyone sees him.' (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa 'the sun'.)

Chiḷawe kiitu. 'Let's go to our place.' confirm phrasing

Chiḷawe madrasaani. 'Let's go to school.'

Chiḷawe/ mbigee mp^haka. 'Lets go and hit the cat!'

Chiḷawe/ mujee mp^hana. 'Let's go and eat the rat!'

Chiḷawe/ shkase jawaabuze. 'Let us go so that we can listen to his words.'

Haaji/ kooḏi/ zimḷazile. 'Haaji blurted out the words [lit. Haaji the words came out of him].’

Haaji/ laziló/ mi/ niilé. ‘When Haaji left, I came.’

Hasiibu/ chiwa’uza/ chimaliza/ ye/ takulawaayi/ ka iboholi. ‘Hasiibu asked them then how he would get out of the hole.’

Haye/ chilaweni wowiini/ chihadó/ siimba. ‘OK, let’s go to the river, the one who spoke was Lion.’

Huseeni/ chivalaa nguwo/ suura/ chilawa/ kendra ka sulṭaani. ‘Huseeni put on nice clothes and went out to go to the sultan’s place.’

Ka apo/ wachilawa/ waant^hu/ wawili/ mwaamubli/ na mwanaamké. ‘From that place emerged two people: a boy and a girl.’

Ka muyiini/ waant^hu/ huḷawa zamaa zama/ wote/ naawó/ wanakuleto stenzi za diini. ‘People depart from the town in groups reciting religious songs.’

khaadimu/ walazilopo ndilaani ‘when the servants went outside’

Khaṭi iyi/ ilazile ka mwaalimu. ‘This letter came from the teacher.’

kuḷawa huuri ‘to perspire’

Zimlazile huuri. ‘He perspired.’

Zindrazile huuri. ‘I perspired.’

kuḷawaa nt^hi ‘lit. to come out of the ground -- i.e. to be a nobody, someone who cannot trace his ancestry’

Nakhtoshaa mi/ ndrazilee nt^hi. ‘“Do you think I am “a nobody”?”’ kumḷawa ‘to resemble, be like someone’

Nuuru/ mlazile waawaye. ‘Nuuru resembles his father.’

Nuuru/ nt^hamḷawa/ waawaye. ‘Nuuru does not look like his father.’

Nzaala/ ndrawa/ nt^haku. ‘Be born to me and be like me does not happen.’
(A proverb.)

kumḷawa maazi ‘to bleed’

Ichindrawa maazi. ‘I was bleeding.’

Ichindrawa maazi/ ichindrawó. ‘I was bleeding, that’s what I was doing (lit. blood came from me, that’s what it was doing)’

Maazi/ yachindrawa ka mp^hulaani. ‘I was bleeding from the nose.’

Mkonowe/ uchilawa maazi. ‘His hand was bleeding.’

Mwaana/ yamḷazile maazi/ kanaani. ‘Blood came out of the child’s mouth.’

Laakini/ kuḷa/ huḷawo ka mwajiitú/ ni kheeri. ‘But whatever comes from God is a blessing.’

Lazile kana ifriiti. ‘He appeared like an ifrit (i.e. appeared suddenly, huge, ugly, and with the intention to harm); however, it is also used playfully.’

Lazilee yana/ Omari. ‘He left yesterday, Omari.’ (In this example, the right-dislocated subject is downstepped. Cf. Omari/ lazilee yana. ‘Omari left yesterday.’ In this example, the verb phrase is downstepped relative to the subject. Cf. Omari/ lazile/ yana. ‘Omari left yesterday.’ In this example, the verb is not downstepped, but yana is.)

Liini/ ntakuḷawó. ‘When will you (all) leave?’ (It should be noted that the second person plural subject marker in GM’s speech is retained in front of a voiceless consonant, in contrast to the first person singular subject marker which elides in that environment.)

Mahaḷaa we/ laziló. ‘[Lit.] the place from which you went out (i.e. came from).’ (This expression is a form of inquiry about the situation (health, etc.) of people who live in the (far) location a visitor has come from.)

Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakuḷawa/ ka cholooni. ‘The guest has not yet come out from the bathroom.’

Mi/ ndrazile Mwiini. ‘I left Miini.’ Or with emphasis on the verb: Mi/ ndrazilé/ Mwiini.)

Mi/ niilé/ Haaji/ laziló. ‘I came when Haaji left.’

Miti/ hayaalawi/ funguuni. ‘Trees do not grow in the wet sand along the beach.’ Or: Funguuni/ miti/ hayaalawi.

- Mubliwa/ mbozelee mbuzi/ wa sulṭaani/ mṭinzile/ laakini/ jawaabu/ iyi/ isinḷawe/ ni/ chizaa si/ shtakubḷoowa. ‘My husband stole a sheep of the sultan’s and slaughtered it, but this matter should not be made known on us, otherwise we will be killed.’
- Muke/ lazile ka uzeleeni. ‘The woman came out of the required period of time indoors (after giving birth) (i.e. now she can go out and resume her normal life).’
- Muke/ lazilee nde. ‘The woman went outside (after staying in for the required period of time after giving birth).’
- Muusa/ lazile Miini. ‘Muusa left Brava.’
- Muusa/ nt^hakuḷawa/ Miini. ‘Muusa did not leave Brava.’
- Mwaana/ yamḷazile maṭozi. ‘Tears flowed from the child.’ Or: Maṭozi/ yamḷazile/ mwaana. Or: Yamḷazilo mwaaná/ ni maṭozi. ‘What flowed from the child was tears.’
- Mzeele/ mwiingine/ chilawa ka cholokooni/ chihada... Another old man peeped from the window and said...’
- Mzeelewá/ siisi/ mahala mi/ nakeendró/ walá/ mahala mi/ ndraziló/ nnakeendrá/ tu/ kumeraa nyunyi. ‘My old woman (i.e. my mother), I do not know where I am going nor where I have come from, I am just going to look for the bird.’
- Na ndrazilé/ ka ngoziini/ ka himaahima. ‘And I got out from inside the skin (that was used to carry me) hurriedly.’
- Ndrazilee kulé. ‘I came from a far place.’
- Ndrazilee yaná. ‘I left yesterday’ Cf. Yana/ ndraziló. ‘Yesterday I left.’
- Nt^hale/ ilaziló/ hayruudi/ chinume. ‘An arrow that has left does not come back.’ (A proverb.)
- Nt^hi iyi/ hayḷawi/ chiint^hu. ‘This country does not produce anything (i.e. it is not arable land).’
- Omari/ nakhtosha/ Baazi/ lazile/ fijiri iyi. ‘Omari thinks Baazi left this morning.’ Cf. Liini/ Omari/ nakhtosho Baazi/ laziló. ‘When does Omari think Baazi left?’ Or: Liini/ Baazi/ laziló/ Omari/ nakhtoshó. ‘When did Baazi leave, Omari thinks.’ Or: Omari/ nakhtosha Baazi/ lazile liini. ‘Omari thinks that Baazi left when?’ This last example, with the liini in situ seems to require a special intonation, falling-rising, which needs to be studied further.)
- Omari/ yana/ laziló. ‘Omari yesterday left.’ (It is clear that Omari is focused since the verb is in a pseudo-relative form and yana is downstepped relative to Omari. The pseudo-relative verb is also downstepped. Cf. Yana/ Omari/ laziló. ‘Yesterday Omari left.’ In this example, it is yana that is focused, as seen from the pseudo-relative form of the verb and the fact that Omari is downstepped relative to yana.)
- Safiya/ lazile karka reeri/ inayo maalí. ‘Safiya comes from a family that has money.’
- Shari/ na kheerí/ huḷawa na mojiitu. ‘Evil and good come from God.’ (A proverb.)
- Si/ chilazile shpiindrí. ‘We left at noon.’
- Silaweení/ ndilaani. ‘You (pl.) don’t go into the street.’
- Siimba/ lazile/ ka muyiini/ ingile maduriini. ‘The lion left from the town and went into the countryside.’
- Siisi/ huḷawapi/ amó/ heendrapi. ‘I do not know where it comes from or where it goes.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ipepo ‘wind’.)
- Wareebe/ waana/ kuḷawa ndilaani. ‘Stop the children from going into the street.’
- Wareebe/ waana/ seendré/ kawaḷawá/ ndilaani. ‘Stop the children otherwise they might go into the street.’
- Wareebe/ waana/ wasilawe ndilaani. ‘Stop the children so that they not go into the street.’ (Foc. A negative verb is ordinarily at the end of a phrase. This example represents a case where this is not necessary, although it is of course possible: Wareebe/ waana/ wasilawe/ ndilaani.)

Wasilawe/ ndilaani. ‘They should not go into the street.’ (Foc. Unlike the above example, it is not felicitous in sentence initial position to group the negative verb with the complement: ?Wasilawe ndilaani.)

Waawé/ chimwiini/ chilazilepi? ‘Father, where did Chimwiini come from?’

Ye/ lazile/ naakuó. ‘She left crying.’

rel.

ku-lawaalawa v. freq. (lazilelazile)

Kooði/ humlawaalawa. ‘He blurts out words.’

Kooði/ zimlazilelazile. ‘He blurted out the words.’

ku-lawika v. p/s.

Iwa/ ichiwa dharaari/ haylawiki/ ndilaani. ‘If the sun is at mid-day one cannot go outside.’

ku-lawila v. appl. come, get out (for someone’s sake), go away; welcome, meet

Basi/ chimwaambila/ ndrawila/ ka apa. ‘So [the sultan] said to him: get out from here [for me]!’

Basi Juha/ chimambila maanawe/ nakuwoná/ duniyaani/ muunt^hu/ yaa ye/ takhfaanyó/ halawili. ‘So Juha told his son: you see, in this world, when a person does something, he does not get away with it.’

Hawaṭakiiwa/ almasi iyi/ iwalawiliilepi. ‘They will not know where this diamond comes to them from.’

Ka paapo/ apo/ ichije chizeele/ shchimlawila. ‘At once that old woman came for him.’

kuławila kaazi ‘to do work properly, well’

Hulawila kaaziye/ jisa suura. ‘He does his work very well.’

Kila/ kaazi/ yaa ye/ peleshela kubaratá/ Hasiibu/ nt^hakuławila. ‘Every job that he was sent to learn, Hasiibu did not do it well.’

kuławila waajibu ‘to carry out a duty’

Hulawila wajibuye. ‘He carries out his duty.’

Maliizopó/ Abunawaasi/ chi’iławila/ chiyolokela. ‘When he finished, Abunawaasi departed and went away.’

Ndrawila ka numbaani/ kaaka. ‘Get out of my house!’ (Very strong, implies that person is turned out of the house.)

Oko/ kiitu/ muunt^hu/ haysabaṭoowi/ kuwa ni muunt^hu/ kaa ye/ khfanya kaazi/ ka daḍaali/ kaa ye/ makulawila wajibuye. ‘There in my country people are not considered to be a man (of significance) by working hard, by carrying out his duties.’

Sku yaa ye/ kumlawila sulṭaani/ nt^haasá/ nt^haykhkoma. ‘The day for her to come out for the sultan had not yet arrived.’

Ucheelopó/ eelo/ chi’iławila. ‘When it dawned, the gazelle took himself off.’

Waant^hu/ wamlawilile ra’iisi/ ndilaani. ‘People went out to see the president.’

Ye/ hukhaadira/ kuławila wakhti/ waa dhibu. ‘She is able to make the best of a difficult situation.’ review translation

ku-lawisha v. caus. (This form does not seem to be used.)

ku-lawoowa v. pass. (lazila) be gone out from, be gotten out of, be moved from Khariibu/ inakuławoowa/ nakhfakkaṭa/ mbele ya waant^hu/ chilatu chimó/ shchimpotela. ‘Near [the time when] there was going away being done, [the girl, “Cinderella”] was running ahead of the people, [and] one shoe fell off.’

kuławowa ka muyiini ‘to be gone from town’ kuławowa mikooni ‘to get out of control (of one’s parents) (lit. to get out of the hands)’

Ameerika/ huławowa mikonooni. ‘In America, there is getting out of control (e.g. children get out of the control of their parents and do whatever they want to do).’

Mwaana/ nakulazowa na yiino. ‘[Lit.] the child is being pained by the tooth.’

Numba ilazila. ‘The house has been moved out from.’

Shpiindri/ ilazila. ‘Noon was left at.’

lawandaayi

n. 1/2 a professional clothes-washer

lawandayi awa ‘these clothes-washers’ lawandayi uyu ‘this clothes-washer’

ku-lawaaŋan(y)a

v. (lawangeene) distinguish, differentiate, separate

Chimera asli yaawo/ wo/ huławaaŋana/ lamnaa nthatu. ‘If you trace their ancestors, they can be divided into three groups.’

Gaari ilawangeene. ‘The car fell apart.’

Hamadi/ haŋaa ye/ chiya/ ilawangeena. ‘By the time Hamadi had come, lit. it had been separated – i.e. whoever had been there had finished, e.g. eating, and gone away (said to describe someone who arrived very late to a gathering and missed all that had gone on there).’

Mlaango/ ulawangeene. ‘The door fell apart.’

Omari/ na Hamadi/ walawangeene. ‘Omari and Hamadi parted ways, broke off their relationship.’

Walawanganye uje mluungana/ na uje myaana/ mwaandike. ‘Tell apart the one that is free-born and the one that is a female slave.’

Walawangeni/ ka ilmu. ‘Separate people according to education.’

Zint^hu zisuura/ na zint^hu ziwovu/ huławanganyoowa/ hazidanganyoowi. ‘Good things and bad things are to be differentiated/taken apart/separated, they are not put together/mixed up.’

rel.

ku-lawanganila v. appl.

ku-lawaaŋanya v. caus. (lawanganyiize) separate s.t.

Hamadi/ lawanganyize mlaango. ‘Hamadi tore the door apart.’

Hamadi/ lawanganyize waant^hu. ‘Hamadi sowed discord among people.’

(Observe that when an indefinite plural object like waant^hu is used, the verb does not bear a [cl.2] object marker. Singular human nouns, even if indefinite, are regularly marked with the [cl.1] object prefix.)

Mfanya biyaashara/ halawaanganyi/ taajiri/ walá/ maskiiní. ‘A merchant does not distinguish between rich and poor.’

Mlawanganyize mubli/ na mukeewé. ‘He caused the wife to separate from her husband.’

ni sunna we lawaaŋanya bayana [st.] ‘it is better, preferred for you to enunciate clearly (the call to prayer)’ ku-lawanganyika v. caus. p/s.

Want^hu awa/ hawalanganyiki. ‘These people cannot be separated (i.e. you cannot cause discord between these people).’

Waant^hu/ walawanganyika ilmu. ‘People are separated/differentiated by (the level of their) knowledge.’

ku-lawanganyikila v. caus. p/s. appl.

Mlaango/ unlawanganyikiliile. ‘The door was able to be torn apart for me.’

ku-lawanganyiliza v. caus. appl.

Nlawanganyilize waana. ‘He created discord among the children on me.’

Omari/ mlawanganyilize Iisa/ waana. ‘Omari created discord among the children on Iisa.’

ku-lawanganyilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Omari/ na Hamadi/ walawanganyilizenye waana. ‘Omari and Hamadi created discord among the children on one another.’

ku-lawanganyoowav. pass.

koodi ya Sheekhi kodeelo/ suura kulawanganyoowa [st.] ‘the Sheik’s teachings (words) warrant careful consideration’

Waana/ walaŋangeenya. ‘The children were separated from one another (by someone).’

Waant^hu/ wanaŋanganyoowa/ ka ilmu/ so/ ka maali/ walá/ so/ kaa nguvu/ walá/ so/ ka khabila. ‘People should be distinguished from one another by (the extent of their) knowledge rather than by their wealth or their power or the (size of) their clan.’

laweeni n. cream

ku-lawisha v. (lawishiize, labishiize) mix; create confusion or misunderstanding; [pron. ku-lawisha or ku-labisha]
rel.
ku-lawishiliza v. appl. (lawishiliize)
rel. nom.
m-lawisho n.3 act of mixing, creating confusion

layini adj. soft

chint^hu layini ‘s.t. soft’

Malungoye/ yawaaliko/ layini/ na chiwala/ ka usuura. ‘Her body was soft and was shining with beauty.’

ku-layinisha v. caus. (layinishiize) soften
rel.
ku-layinika v. p/s.
ku-layinishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-layinishilizanya v. caus. appl. pass.

ku-laaza v. (laziize) ache, hurt

Chaala/ shchilaaza/ hashindoowi. ‘When a finger pains, it is not cut off.’ (A saying.)

Chiŋa/ chinakundraaza. ‘My head hurts me.’

Chiŋa/ chinamlaaza/ miimba/ inamlaaza/ na maluungo/ yote/ yanamlaaza. ‘His head aches him, his stomach aches him, and all his body aches him.’

Chiŋa/ shtakhu-laaza. ‘You will get a headache.’

Hubigo l^hkuŋa/ ka ikoondré/ humlaazó/ ni mkonowe. ‘One who strikes a wall with his fist, that which hurts him is his hand.’

Igoyi/ inamlaaza/ mwaana. [H!H!!H] ‘The molar tooth is paining him, the child.’ (The status of the pitch drop between the first two phrases needs more careful examination. In MI’s performance of this sentence, there seemed to be some emphasis on the verb, preventing the verb from being radically downstepped. At the same time, the drop seemed to be greater than ordinary declination. But what is clear is the extremely radical lowering of the postposed subject, mwaana, indicated by the double exclamation mark.)

Inamlaazo miimbá/ ni mwaana. ‘The one whom the stomach is hurting is the child.’

Inakindraaza. ‘It hurts me.’

Inakinlaaza. ‘It hurts you (pl.).’

Inakumlaaza. ‘It hurts [cl.1].’

ku-laaza/ kana ruuhu ‘to ache like the soul (coming out of one)’

Maluungo/ yote/ yanamlaaza. [H’H’H] ‘All his body aches him.’

Miimba/ imlaziize/ mwaana. ‘(His) stomach pained the child.’

Mkono/ umlaziize/ Hamadi. ‘Hamadi’s hand/arm ached.’ Or: Hamadi/

mkono/ umlaziize.

Muunt^hu/ hakhaadirí/ ndiyé/ na’iwó/ mahala inamlaazó. ‘The one who is sick is he who knows where it hurts him.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ igoyi/ inamlaaza. [H’H’H] ‘The child’s molar tooth aches.’ (In the pronunciation of this sentence, there did not seem to be downstepping on the verb.)

Mwaana/ miimba/ inamlaaza. ‘The child’s stomach is hurting.’

Mwaana/ yiino/ inamlaaza. [H’H’H] ‘The child’s tooth aches.’ Or: Yiino/ inamlaaza/ mwaana. [H!H!!H] ‘A tooth is paining him, the child.’ (Note the greater pitch drop on the postposed subject than is the case with ordinary downstep.)

Mzeele/ iṭo/ ichimlaaza/ chanza kubigaa nkʰele/ ka ulaazo/ kuwaa...mwiingi. ‘The eye pained the old man and he began to shout because of the pain.’ (We have noted in this example that sometimes a speaker starts pronouncing a phrase, but pauses after a word before he continues. In such case, the final vowel of the word before the pause is lengthened, despite the fact that this lengthening would not occur in the absence of the pause.)

Yanamlazoo ye/ ni maluungo(ye)/ yote. [H!H!H] ‘What ached him was his whole body.’

Ye/ maluungoze/ yote/ yanamlaaza. [HH!H!H] ‘His whole body aches him.’

Yiino/ inamlaza mwaana. ‘(His) tooth is hurting the child.’ Or: Mwaana/ yiino/ inamlaza.)

rel.

ku-laazisha v. caus. (lazishiize) cause to pain

Chaakuja/ chimlazishize mwaana. ‘The food caused the child’s stomach to hurt.’

ku-lazoowa v. pass. feel pain

Hinendro tartiibú/ halazoowi/ na miilu. ‘The one who walks slowly is not given pain by his legs.’ (A proverb.)

Laziza na maluungo/ yoyote. ‘He hurts all over his body.’

Mwaana/ nakulazowa na igoyi. [H!H] ‘The child is pained by a molar tooth.’

Mwaana/ nakulazowa miimba. ‘The child has stomach pains.’

Mwaana/ nakulazowa na yiino. [H!H] ‘[Lit.] The child is being pained by tooth (i.e. he has a toothache).’

Nakulazowa miimbá/ ni mwaana. ‘The one who is being ached by his stomach is the child.’

Nnakulazowa naa chitá. ‘I have a head ache.’

rel. nom.

u-laazo n. 14 pain

Hiwo ulaazo waa ndalá/ ni mwenyee ndala. ‘The one who knows the pain of hunger is the one who is hungry.’

khtila ulaazo ‘to inflict pain’

Mwaadamu/ chintʰu chiwovu/ haalaṭi/ mpaka/ kumtila ulaazo.
‘A human being does not quit bad things until they cause him pain.’

naayo kuwatila ulaazo waana [st.] ‘[God] has (the power) to inflict pain on them (in hell), O you children’ kuwona ulaazo ‘to experience pain’

Ali/ umo spitaale/ atiila/ naakula/ hadiile/ nakuwona ulaazó/ zaaydi. ‘Ali is in hospital, he had surgery, he is crying, saying, I am experiencing a lot of pain.’

Fardoosa/ anzize kuwona ulaazo/ miingi/ karka kuuluye.

‘Fardoosa began to experience a lot of pain in her leg.’

mbanaayo ulaazo zaa’idi ya utuungu [nt.] ‘we felt a pain more severe than labor-pains’

Mi/ ntʰakufa ka khisa ruuhuya/ iyele ulaazo/ na ghaḏabú. ‘I will die because my soul is full of pain and anger.’

mwaana/ chiwanyo ulaazo ‘if a child has pain’

Mwiisho/ mzeele/ ntʰakhaadira/ kistahamila/ ulaazo. ‘Finally, the old man could not bear the pain.’

Ulaazo wa mwaana/ hiiwó/ ni maama. ‘The pain of the child, the one who knows it is the mother.’ (A proverb.)

m-lazoowa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who is ached by mlazowa naa chitá ‘one who has a head ache’ lazanya

n.

lazanya ya khudaari ‘vegetable lasagna’

ku-laazima

v. [Sw. lazimu SSED 242] (lazimiile) compel; stick to, be with Chimaliza/ waant^huwe/ walazimeeni/ kishkiḷa/ ka markabuuni/khpandra chibaṭera chaawo. ‘Then, her people, you (pl.) should compel them to disembark from the ship to get on their boat.’

Humlaazima kendra ka maama. ‘She must go to her mother.’

Hunlaazima/ kendra kaziini/ kiḷa muunt^hi ‘It is necessary for me to go to work each day.’

...kuwaa we/ isa/ ikhulazimiile/ khfunga safari ‘...that you must now set out on a journey/ pack for a journey’

Mi/ inlazimiile/ keendra. ‘I am obliged to go.’

Mlaazime. ‘Stick to him!’

Mubli/ nakulooló/ humlaazima/ khtomola peesa/ habba mo. ‘The man who is getting married must pay some money.’

Muke/ na mubli/ huwalaazima/ kambilana liḷa. ‘A wife and a husband must tell one another the truth (lit. it is necessary for them).’ (Note the use of an object marker in this example, with the meaning ‘necessary for them to’.)

Nlazimile (or: ndrazimile) keendra. ‘He compelled me to go.’

Qaaḍi/ mlaazimile kumnafikha mukeewe. ‘The judge obliged him to maintain his wife.’

Sabri/ lazimaani. ‘(Pl.) remain patient!’

rel.

ku-lazimisha v. caus. compel ku-lazimoowa v. pass.

Ijini/ shfaanya/ ije yaa ye/ lazimilá/ chimpa Sa’iidi/ maaliye. ‘The djinn did that which he was obliged to do and gave Sa’iidi his wealth.’

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kulazimoowa/ chiint^hu. ‘It is not good for a person to be compelled to do anything.’

Na shokuwa naacho/ cho choṭé/ halazimoowi/ khtala deeni. ‘And he who does not have anything is not obliged to take a loan.’

laazimu

obligatory, necessary, a must; variant form: laazima

Abú/ ingile ndraani/ khkodela nini/ laazimú/ khfanyoowá. ‘Abu got down to discussing what must be done.’

Abunawaasi/ chihada/ la/ laazima/ we/ kunbiga. ‘Abunawaasi said: No, you must beat me.’

Chihada/ ni laazima/ mi/ kumpata/ mgarwa uyu/ kunfanyiliza mi/ kaazi. ‘He said: it is necessary for me to get this fisherman to do work for me [and not anyone else].’

Laazimu/ chibuuku/ icho/ mi/ khsooma. ‘It is a must for me to read that book.’

laazimu/ kana ibaada ‘as obligatory as worship’

Laazimu/ mi/ khsooma/ chibuku icho. ‘It is a must that I read that book.’ Or: Mi/ laazimu/ khsooma/ chibuku icho. Or: Chibuku icho/ mi/ khsooma/ ni laazimu. Or: Khsoma chibuku icho/ ni laazimu/ mi. Or: Ni laazimu/ mi/ khsoma chibuku icho.

Merameera/ laazima/ tubaaku/ yiko paapo/ apo/ tu. ‘Keep looking, the tobacco must be at that very place there.’

Mi/ hukhaadira/ khurudila mubliwo/ laakini/ni laazima/ mi khpata ndrevu/ zaa mp^hisi. ‘I am able to return your husband to you, but it is a must that I get the beard [lit. beards, i.e. the hairs of the beard] of a hyena.’

Mi/ nakhtaja khkasa kaakó/ yaa mi/ laazimú/ khfaanyá. ‘I need to hear from you what I should do.’

Mi/ nambile Suufi/ tu/ kuwaa ye/ laazimu/ kuuya. ‘I told only Suufi that he should come.’ Or with the preposing of the complement: Suufi/ tu/ mi/ nambiiló/ kuwaa ye/ laazimu/ kuuya. ‘I told only Suufi that he should come.’

Mi/ ni laazima/ keendra/ mahaḷa/ dughaghi uyu/ ukó/ na nch^himwoná/ itakuwa mooyi/ karkaa mbili/ taakufó/ ndiyé/ ambo/ nt^haakufó/ ndimí. ‘It is necessary that I go to the place where this animal is and if I see him, there will be one of two things: the one who dies will be him, or the one who will die [lit. I who will die] is me.’

- Ni laazima/ keendra/ khkooða/ na waawe/ ije yaa ye/ takuhadó/ teena. ‘I must go and speak with my father, whatever it is that he may say then.’
shkalaant^ua choolo kistanja laazimu [st.] ‘if you sit for choolo (i.e. to defecate), then cleaning oneself is a necessity’
- lbani n. 9/10 [Sw. ubani SSED 485; Ar.] incense
- lee interj. oh no! nature of the l -- chec k in idiomatic book as well
Lee/ nini/ kula gari iyo/ motooreye/ nii mbovu. ‘Lee! Why did you buy that car, its engine is bad.’
Lee/ sijé/ embe iyo/ iwozele. ‘Lee! (be careful) don’t eat that mango, it is rotten!’
Pandrani ka skutaani/ wabungileeni/ wa’ambileeni/ lee/ hawajeeri/ wake wawili/ ka mara/ wanakowa chooloni/ hawajeeri. ‘You (pl.) climb up the dim. walls and peep in and tell them lee they are not ashamed for two girls to be bathing at one time in the bathroom, they are not ashamed.’
- legdani n. wrestling, in particular using the feet to try to cause an opponent to fall kubiga legdani ‘to wrestle using the feet to try to fell an opponent’
- leembe (n-) n. 11/10 razor; [pron. leembe and ndreembe] (This noun is irregular. The singular noun suggests a prefix l plus a vowel-initial stem. If this were the structure, then one would expect the plural form ?nyeembe. While MI suggested such a plural form is possible, he also gave ndreembe as the plural, a form that other speakers accept as the proper plural. The form ndreembe involves adding the [cl.10] nasal prefix n- to a stem -leembe.)
Alí/ mǰinzile Nuuru/ chaala/ ka leembe. ‘Ali cut Nuuru’s finger with a razor.’
rel.
ch-eembe (z-) n. 7/8 a small knife
chi-leembe (zi-) n. 7/8 straight razor
- leeso (n-dreeso) n. 9/10 [Sw. leso SSED 243; Port.] a piece of imported cotton cloth used as a woman’s dress (The singular form leeso is a [cl.9] noun which in the plural adds a nasal prefix.)
Abú/ nakuza ndreeso/ suura. ‘Abu is selling good ndreeso.’ (Cf. Ndreso za Abú/ nakuuzó/ suura. ‘The ndreeso that Abu is selling are good.’) leeso iyi ‘this piece of cloth’ ndreso izi ‘these pieces of cloth’ ndreso niingi ‘a lot of ndreeso’
rel.
chi-leeso (zi-) n. dim. 7/8 (disparaging use) Chilesó chimooyi/ chiwovu/ ndreteleeó. ‘One small, bad chileeso he brought to me.’ (The speaker is disparaging the cloth that was brought to her.)
Zilesó za Abú/ nakuuzó/ zilesó gani/ izó. ‘The zileeso that Abu is selling, what the hell kind of zileeso are they (i.e. they are not any good).’
- leetiri n. [Som. liitir, litir DSI 389] liter; variant form: liitiri Mwiini/ hatá/ Mkhodiisho/ gaari/ huja/ banziina/ leetiri/ siitiini. ‘From Miini to Mogadishu, a truck consumes sixty liters of petrol.’
- leewa n. 9/10 [Ital. leva] lever Ijulu iyi/ ya gaari/ izito/ ha’ikhadiroowi/ kondroloowa/ sharti/ ka leewa. ‘This tire of a truck is heavy, it cannot be lifted, it must be (lifted) with a lever.’
Sheekhi/ mbishile Nureeni/ ka leewa/ mvunzile mkono. ‘Sheekhi hit Nureeni with a lever and broke his hand.’
- li- [cl.11] agreement prefix on adjectives Lkaambala/ nii lile/ laakini/ halkhaadiri/ khfunga skunyi. ‘The rope is long, but it cannot tie firewood.’ (A riddle.)

Lkaandra/ liimp^hi. ‘Which belt?’

Lkuta ili/ l;(i)naloo lufa. ‘This wall has a crack in it.’

lpelo lkulu ‘a large broom’

lpelo lpiya ‘a new broom’

lwarakha lmooyi ‘one page’

li- [cl.11] subject prefix; [morphophonemic variant: l-, li-] (The most common form in which this prefix occurs is without a vowel. Historically, this prefix seems to have contained the vowel u, but in Chimwiini it is the vowel i that appears in environments where the full form is required.)

Ee/ nnayoo luti/ limo mtanaani. ‘Yes, I have a stick, it is in (my) room.’

liint^hu/ kaalifa ‘if the giant were to die’

Leeso/ lnuunshile. ‘The cloth smelled.’ (The subject marker is regularly l in front of a consonant-initial perfect stem. Another example: Leeso/ lbeele. ‘The cloth got lost.’ It is also l in the future and in the chi- tenses: Leeso/ ltakunuunk^ha. ‘The cloth will smell.’ Leeso/ lchinuunk^ha. ‘The cloth smelled/ was smelling.’ However, in the present tense, we record both l and li: Leeso/ linakunuunk^ha. ‘The cloth is smelling.’)

Limo mtanaani. ‘It (e.g. luti ‘a stick’) is in the room.’

Lkaambala/ nii lile/ laakini/ halkhaadiri/ khfunga skunyi. ‘The rope is long, but it cannot tie firewood.’ (A riddle.)

Lkuta/ likhupoteleele. ‘The wall fell on you.’

Lkuta/ limburbukiliile. ‘The wall fell on him.’

Lmaliize. ‘It (the story) is finished.’

Lo/ lwaliko nlaaka. ‘It ([cl.11]) was mine.’

Lpepo la kuusi/ lvumile/ ltaharakishize nt^haanzi. ‘The south wind blew and shook the branches.’

Lpepo/ lvumiile. ‘The wind blew.’

Luti/ liikopi. ‘Where is the stick?’

mukhta lpepo/ lanzizo kuvuma ka wiingi ‘when the wind began to blow hard’

Sku yaa nne/ ichanza darba/ na lpepo/ lchivuma. ‘On the fourth day it began to storm and the wind blew.’

We/ rebele lpepo la kuusi/ lchiza khpita/ naaló/ loloshele/ limpoteze mwalimu Gooso/ iwuuyu/ na mwaalimu/ fiile. ‘You blocked the south wind from passing through [you], and it [then] went and caused the baobab to fall on Teacher Gooso and the teacher died.’

li- [cl.11] object prefix

Chimwambila killeeta. ‘He told him to bring it [cl.11] (e.g. lpaanga ‘a sword’).’

Ili/ nii luti/ laa mi/ chilmeeró. ‘This is the stick that I was looking for [it].’

Wachooloka/ wachilvunanga lkuta la uloongo. ‘They went and beat the mud wall.’

chi-li (zi-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. utili, kilili SSED 495] bed

Ali/ lele chiliini. ‘Ali slept on the bed.’

Apo/ barzaani/ chivalimoo chili/ chimardaadi. ‘There in the hall was a beautiful bed.’

chili cha lkaambala ‘a bed made of ropes’ chili chaa mbawo ‘a wooden bed’

chili cha moola ‘bed springs’

chili cha waana ‘a bed for children’

Chili chaa we/ nt^hukichilaaliá/ hiiwi/ nk^hungunyize. ‘A bed that you do not sleep in you cannot know its bedbugs.’ (A proverb.)

chili ichi ‘this bed’

chili shpaana ‘a wide bed’

Hamadi/ pishiize/ cho/ chili. ‘Hamadi burned the bed.’ A less preferred word order is for the pronoun to follow the noun it refers to: Hamadi/ pishiize/ chili/ cho.

Hasiibu/ chilatiza ruuhuye/ ilu yaa chili/ ichi. ‘Hasiibu threw himself on this bed.’

khpandra chiliini ‘to be confined to bed sick’; also: khpandrowa chiliini (passive) Khpandrowa chiliini/ chiza khfanyowa kaazi/ hayiwi/ tele. ‘To stay in bed without working is not advised.’

khpanza chiliini ‘to make sick (lit. to put in bed)’

Ali/ mwambile Hasani/ we/ segereji niingi/ stakhupanza chiliini/ khariibu. ‘Ali told Hasani: you, too many cigarettes will soon make you sick (lit. put you in bed).’

khpanzowa chiliini ‘(of the bride) to be prepared for the groom (lit. be put on the bed)’

Mwanaashke/ nakhpanzoowa/ chiliini. ‘The girl is put on the bed (i.e. during the wedding, the girl is prepared for the groom).’

kulu yaa chili ‘leg of the bed’

Muke/ chimwambilaa noka/ kalaant^ha/ nt^hini yaa chili/ nt^hini ya godoro/ chilaala/ lawa/ mlume naafe. ‘The woman told the snake, stay under the bed under the mattress and when he sleeps, come out and bite him so that he dies.’

Ndrani ya shkooya/ icho/ muke/ chiyatila mishpa/ yaa noka/ chimaliza/ chichiweka shkooya/ icho/ nt^hini yaa chili. ‘Inside that necklace the woman put the bones of the snake and then she put that necklace under the bed.’

Yaayé/ mkorsheezó/ ilopo numbaani/ chimwona mwanaamke/ kalent^he chiliini. ‘When his aunt who raised him came home, she saw a girl sitting on the bed.’

rel.

i-ji-li (mi-ji-) n. 5/4 aug.

ijile ipaana ‘a wide (aug.) bed’

Omari/ mtanaani/ kaake/ imo ijili/ ikulu/ kana/ tawala. ‘In Omari’s room there is a bed big as the sea.’

u-li n. 14 [Sw. ulili SED 495] obsolete and poetic bed chidirke Amina karka mamaati/ khaansa uliini karka sakaraati [st.] ‘assist us, O Amina, at the time of death, especially on [our] death-bed’ ka uliwe wa joohari na hariiri za kaloowa [st.] ‘with his bejewelled bed and silks to be spread’

uliini ‘in the bed’

li’ajli

for the reason of

Ali/ hadiile/ mi/ nsafiriile/ li’ajli/ kumwona waawe/ Keenya. ‘Ali said: me, I traveled for the reason of seeing my father in Kenya.’

Maskiini/ uyu/ ichiwa nt^haná/ yaa ye/ khfaanya/ iyi/ ni kaaziye/ ye hufaanya/ kaazi/ iyi/ li’ajli ya kuwapatila/ waana/ arzaakhi. ‘This poor man, it became that he has nothing to do. This is his job [catching fish], he does this work in order to get for his children the means of subsistence.’

libsi

n. clothes; [pron. libsi or lipsi]

jezaye janna libsiye hariiri [st.] ‘(of a child who has died in childbirth) his reward is heaven, his clothes are silk’

Waana/ iidi/ huveshowa libsi/ mp^hiyaamp^hiya. ‘Children on Idd are dressed with new clothes.’

rel.

libaasi n. pl. clothes

Dukaani/ ka Hamadi/ huzoowa/libaasi/ suura/ ghaali. ‘At Hamadi’s shop clothes, good and expensive, are sold.’

lijaamu

n. bit (of a horse), reins

Farasi/ oyo/ chandikoowa/ nguwo/ za hariiri/ hattá/ lijaamuye/ lwaliko nda hariiri. ‘That horse had spread on it clothes of silk, even its reins were of silk.’ (The possessive form lijaamule was also offered, indicating some variability as to whether this noun is treated as [cl.11] or [cl.9]. The subject agreement in lwaliko... reflects a [cl.11] treatment.)

Farasi/ shpandroowa/ hushikowa lijaamu/ kuhogamishoowa. ‘If a horse is ridden, it is held by a rope in order to guide it.’

liila

n. 9 truth, truthfulness, sincerity, right

Abú/ nayo liila/ kuwa Hasani/ shkoða wanaafakhi. ‘Abu is right that Hasani was lying.’

Chikhambila liila/ Omari/ siwo/ msuura. ‘If I tell you the truth, Omari is not a good person.’

Chiwona kooði/ zaa dafa/ nza liila. ‘He realized that the words of the crow were true.’

Ichiwa/ haanzuye/ yatushile/ kaa mbele/ muke/ koðele liila/ Yuusufu/ ni mwaafakhi/ na ichiwa/ haanzuye/ yatushile/ ka chinume/ muke/ koðele wanaafakhi/ Yuusufu/ ni mooyi/ karka wakoða liila. ‘If it be that his garment is torn in front, [then] the woman has spoken the truth and Joseph is a liar, and if it be that his garment is torn from behind, [then] the woman has told lies, and Joseph is one among the truth tellers.’

kaka liila ‘(it is) true’

Ni kaka liila/ skaruude. ‘It is true, he would not have returned.’

kaka liilaako ‘what you are saying is true’; kaka liilaake ‘what (s)he is saying is true’

Kana ni liilá/ ambó/ siwó/ nt^haasá/ ni kiwoowa. ‘Whether it is true or not remains to be learned.’

Koðele liilá/ we/ waaziri. ‘You have spoken the truth, minister.’

Liila/ hupiisha/ laakini/ ni liila. ‘Truth burns, but it is the truth.’ (A proverb.)

Liila/ kheepula/ wanaafakhi/ khuhalika. ‘Truth saves you, lies destroy you.’ (A proverb.)

Liila/ mojiitu/ peenzeló. ‘Truth, it is God who liked it.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Liila/ ni sibiri. ‘Truth is bitter.’ (A proverb.)

liilayo ‘your truthfulness’ (Phon. This possessive form suggests that this noun might not be CVCV fundamentally, since a CVCV noun would be expected to lengthen the final vowel in the singular possessive form – cf. luti ‘stick’ and lutiila ‘my stick’. In some cases, MI pronounced this noun with gemination: liilla.)

Liilayo/ itakhookola. ‘Your truthfulness will save you.’

Mahaḷa/ yiko liilá/ wanaafakhi/ hayiingili. ‘Where there is truth, a lie cannot enter.’ (A saying.)

Mi/ nayo amiini/ kuwaa Muusa/ takhfanya jawaabu/ ya liila. I have faith that Muusa will do what is right.

Mi/ nayo liilá/ tarafu ya Omari/ kishkhiyansataa si. ‘I am right about Omari cheating us.’

Mooyi/ karka askari/ chiwa’ambila weenziwe/ izo/ siwo/ koði za liila. ‘One of the soldiers said to his companions, these are not words of truth.’

Mwaana/ shṭinda kumwambila waawaye/ za liila. ‘The child decided to tell his father the truth.’

Mzeele/ chimwaambila/ kooði/ zaa mi/ khambiiló/ nza liila. ‘The old man said to him: the words that I said to you are true.’

Nimwambile Jaamá/ liilá. ‘I told Jaama the truth.’ Cf. Jaaama/ ambila liila/ naami. ‘Jaama was told the truth by me.’ (Note that one cannot passivize liila:

*Liila/ yambila Jaama/ naami. ‘The truth was told to Jaama by me.’

Although it cannot be the passive subject, a fronted form is possible: Liila/ ambila Jaama/ naami. ‘The truth was told by me.’)

Nnakhsulaa ye/ nachambile liilá. ‘I want that he tell us the truth.’

Omari/ nayo liila/ kulangala kazi yiingine. ‘It is right for Omari to look for another job.’

Si/ chinakhtahaja Omari/ kuhada liilá. ‘We need Omari to tell the truth.’

Sint^helezé/ nambila liila. ‘Don’t joke, play with me; tell me the truth.’

Sku mooyi/ nt^hafsiriile ndrootoza/ na zaa ye/ nambiiló/ zote/ stulushile/ ziwéle liila. ‘One day he explained for me my dreams and everything that he told me happened, all came true.’

za liila ‘true (e.g. words)’ lilaahi

adj. serious

Abú/ ni lilaahiye/ tarafu ya kuweka kaayi/ peesa. ‘Abu is serious about saving money.’

Hamadi/ ka wiingi/ ni lilaahi. ‘Most of the time Hamadi is very serious.’

ka lilaahi ‘with seriousness’

Abú/ siwo/ ka lilaahiye/ tarafu ya kuḷaṭa kaazi. ‘Abu isn’t serious about quitting his job.’

Abú/ yaliko ka lilaahiye/ kuwatila hima/ wo/ kuḷawa Mwiini. ‘Abu was serious in encouraging them to leave Brava.’

Mi/ ni ka lilaahiya/ tarafu ya kuza nuumba. ‘I am serious about selling the house.’

Mi/ ni lilaahiya/ kuwa waana/ wachiza khiriḷoowa/ kendra chinemaani/ woo peeke. ‘I am serious that the children should not be allowed to go to the movies alone.’

Mi/ siná/ sababu/ khtilaa shaka/ tarafu ya Abú/ lilaahiye. ‘I have no reason to doubt Abu’s sincerity.’

liili

[cl.11] first position strong demonstrative (For MI, this form is found only in the first position strong demonstrative. In the data collected by BH, this form is not found, as it is replaced by liilo. In the speech of GM, liili is one option for the first person strong demonstrative, but it was also recorded as a possibility in conjunction with the second position weak demonstrative. It is not clear how widespread this extended use of liili is.)

liili/ ili ‘this very one’

liili/ ikambala ili ‘this very rope, this rope itself’ luti liili/ ili ‘this very stick’ liili/ ilo ‘that very same one’ (a variant observed in the speech of GM; the more regular form would be liilo/ ilo)

liilije

[cl.11] third position strong demonstrative (used by MI)

liilo

[cl.11] second position strong demonstrative for MI, but can be used with all three weak demonstratives in the speech of GM and in the data collected by BH liilo/ ikambala ili ‘this very rope, this rope itself’

liilo/ ikambala ilije ‘that very rope, that rope itself’

liilo/ ikambala ilo ‘that very rope, that rope itself’

lillaahi

Muunt^{hu}/ chinendra ka lillaahi/ hujiwaana. ‘When one goes on the right path (i.e. God’s path), he will succeed.’ (A proverb.)

(Munt^u) lillaahi/ haawoni/ dhibu. ‘A righteous person will not encounter difficulties, problems.’ (A proverb.)

Omari/ kaaziye/ siwo/ lillaahi. ‘(The way that) Omari (conducts) his business is not righteous (i.e. he is dishonest, cheats).’

Omari/ ni lillaahi. ‘Omari is righteous (e.g. he can always be trusted to tell the truth, not lie or deceive).’

Omari/ siwo/ lillaahi. ‘Omari is not telling the truth, not being honest and righteous.’

We/ fanya kaazi/ lillaahi. ‘Do work, business in the righteous way, i.e. be honest and don’t cheat etc.’

rel.

u-lillaahi n. 14

Wo/ wanayoo shaka/ nk^hulu/ tarafu ya ulillaahi/ ya Omari. ‘They have serious doubt about Omari’s honesty.’

liimbo (n-)

n. 11/10 song; [pron. ndriimbo ‘songs’] (The morphology of this noun is a problem. It would appear that liimbo should be derived from the verb k-iimba ‘to sing’; this would imply a morphological structure /l-iimbo/. The problem is that given this structure, the [cl.10] plural would be expected to be *ny-iimbo, since the [cl.9/10] prefix is ny- when the stem is vowel-initial. But the [cl.10] form is in fact n-driimbo, which indicates a stem that begins with l. It is likely that what has happened in the course of the history of Chimiini is that the noun l-iimbo was reanalyzed as liimbo.)

- Limbo ili/ Isuura/ linziḷa na Mkenya. ‘This nice song was sung by a Kenyan.’ (It is of some interest to note that despite the phrasal separation, the initial l in Isuura syllabifies as a coda to the preceding vowel.)
- liimbo la raafu lmalize ka apa [nt.] ‘Raafu’s song ends here’
- Leelo/ nkhasize liimbó/ Isuura/ radiyooni. ‘Today I have heard a nice song on the radio.’ (In this example, GM preserved the prenasalized voiceless stop nk^h.)
- Mwaana/ inzile liimbo. ‘The boy sang a song.’
- Ndrimbo izi/ suura/ zinzila na Mkenya. ‘These nice songs were sung by a Kenyan.’

limi (n-)

- n. 11/10 tongue; [pron. ndrimi ‘tongues’]
- Ali/ limiile/ lwovu. ‘Ali’s tongue is bad (i.e. he says bad things).’
- Hamadi/ limiile/ kana/ lpaanga. ‘Hamadi’s tongue is like a sword (i.e. he will get angry and rail against you with the slightest provocation).’
- Kheeri/ kulazowa na chaala/ kama kulazowa naa limi. ‘Better to have the finger aching than the tongue.’ (A proverb.)
- khshikaa limi ‘to catch, hold the tongue – i.e. to not talk’
- Mwaana/ wazeele/ washkooḷa/ hakoḷi/ hushika limiile. ‘A child, if his parents/elders talk, he does not (i.e. he should not) talk, he holds his tongue.’
- khshika limiini [lit. to catch in the tongue] to not say something’
- Omari/ hapeendi/ ba/ kuhada muunt^hu/ bozelo peesá/ dukaani/ ka Nuuru/ shishile limiini/ tu. ‘Omari does not want at all to say who stole money from Nuuru’s shop, he just held his tongue.’
- khṭindaa limi ‘to cut the tongue [to stop s.o. from talking]’
- Haliima/ mwambile mwaanawe/ chiza kulata maneno miingi/ nt^hakhuṭinda limiilo. ‘Haliima told her child: if you do not stop talking so much, I will cut out your tongue (to stop you from talking).’
- Haṭá/ mojiitú/ chikhuṭinda limiilo/ we. ‘Until God cuts your tongue, you! – I pray that God cuts your tongue out to stop you from talking!’ (A curse.)
- khṭomolaa limi (lit. to take out the tongue) to talk’
- We/ simaamalé/ tomola limiilo. ‘You, don’t be quiet, talk!’
- Koḷi iyo/ yaa mi/ nimwambilo Hamadi/ sku iyó/ sinakuumbuka/ laakini/ yiko limiini/ tu. ‘What (lit. those words) that I told Hamadi that day I am not remembering, but it is just on my tongue (meaning I am close to remember or about to remember or will remember it).’
- kubigaa limi ‘to speak sarcastically, to reprimand by saying the opposite of what one means; to criticize indirectly; to speak harshly’
- Haliima/ mbishile Umi/ limi/ chiza kuya harusini/ ka mwaanawe/ nakulooló. ‘Haliima spoke harshly to Umi for not coming to her child’s wedding.’
- Hamadi/ mbishile Omari/ limiile. ‘Hamadi tongue-whipped Omari.’
- kulumaa limi ‘to bite the tongue’
- Kuja iyi/ jisaa yo/ laddá/ haṭá/ muunt^hu/ huluma limiile. ‘This food is so delicious that one can bite his tongue.’
- kumizaa limi ‘to swallow the tongue’
- Omari/ mizize limiile. ‘Omari swallowed his tongue (i.e. he couldn’t answer, he was too afraid or shy to speak).’
- kumṭomoleḷa limiile ‘to take out one’s tongue to s.o. – i.e. to open up to someone, to tell someone things that one would ordinarily not say etc.’

Hamadi/ mtomolele limiile/ Omari. ‘Hamadi opened up to Omari.’

kureba limiilo ‘to not talk (lit. to stop your tongue)’

Hamadi/ mwambile Omari/ reba limiilo. ‘Hamadi told Omari: stop talking (lit. stop your tongue)!’

We/ rebe limiilo. ‘You, don’t talk!’

kurudilowaa limi ‘to be talked back to’

Wazele/ hawarudiloowi/ limi. ‘Parents are not talked back to.’

kurudilaa limi ‘to talk back’

Muunt^hu/ wazelewe/ hawaruudili/ limi. ‘One does not talk back to one’s parents.’

Limi/ hukhaadira/ kuhada/ ma’anaye/ kila/ chiint^hu/ ni sahali. ‘The tongue can say anything, it is easy.’ (The word ma’anaye ‘it’s meaning’ is frequently used in explanations. The present sentence was commenting on the proverb given below: Limi/ nt^haliná/ mwishpa. Because the tongue is just flesh, and does not have a bone, it is flexible and can say whatever it wants. It is unconstrained by truth etc. It lacks the rigidity that a bone provides.)

Limi/ kila/ chiint^hu/ hulawa. ‘The tongue, anything can leave it (i.e. the tongue might say anything).

limi/ khshiika ‘tongue to catch – i.e. learn’

Limi la Omari/ liize/ khshiika/ limbo ilo. ‘Omari could not learn that song (lit. the tongue of Omari refused to catch that song).’

Limi laa mbuzi/ ni ladda/ kolko la ngoombe. ‘The tongue of a goat is more delicious than that of a cow.’

limi langaangu ‘light tongue – refers to one who is able to learn things easily, quickly’

Hamadi/ mwaanawe/ limiile/ lanaangu. ‘Hamadi’s son learns quickly.’

limi lkali ‘a sharp tongue’

limi lsuura ‘one who talks well, says good things (lit. good tongue)’

Hamadi/ nt^hakumpa Omari/ limi lsuura. ‘Hamadi did not give Omari good tongue (i.e. tell him good things).’

limi lwovu ‘(lit.) bad tongue – i.e. a sharp tongue; or, speaks negatively’

Hamadi/ limiile/ lwovu. ‘Hamadi’s tongue is bad – i.e. he speaks negatively about people etc.’

limi lziito ‘heavy tongue – i.e. one who learns slowly’

Hamadi/ mwaanawe/ limiile/ lziito/ habarati/ chiint^hu/ ka sahali.

‘Hamadi’s child has a heavy tongue, he does not learn things easily.’

Limi/ na miinó/ ha’ilumani. ‘The tongue and the teeth do not bite each other.’ (A proverb.)

Limi/ ndiló/ humtilo muunt^hú/ mulooní. ‘It is the tongue that puts one in hell.’ (A proverb.)

Limi/ nt^haliná/ mwishpa. ‘The tongue has no bone.’ (A proverb.)

limiila ‘my tongue’

Lumilee limi. ‘He bit his tongue.’

Muunt^hu/ suura/ kumpa walaaliwe/ limi lsuura. ‘It is good for someone to give his friend a good tongue (i.e. to speak well of him).’

Nt^haná/ limi. ‘He talks very little, he doesn’t talk (lit. he has no tongue).’

Omari/ limiile/ kana/ chireenza. ‘Omari’s tongue (is sharp) like a razor.’

Wallaahi/ ndrwelee/ jawabu iyo/ laakini/ yiko kaaka/ limiini/ tu. ‘I swear I have forgotten that thing, but it is just there on (the tip of my) tongue.’

Walumilee ndrими. ‘They bit their tongues.’

Wamameele/ tu/ kana/ wakuzilaa limi/ kanaaní. ‘They kept quiet, like ones who were taken away the tongue from the mouth (in better English: like ones who the tongues had been taken from their mouths).’

Want^hu wa Miini/ huja/ limi. ‘The people of Brava eat tongue.’

Want^hu wa Miini/ huja/ limi la ngoombe/ na laa mbuzi. ‘The people of Brava eat the tongue of a cow and of a goat.’

rel.

i-limi n. aug.

ilimi ikhaddarayá ‘big-tongued (talks too much)’

Hamadi/ ilimiiye/ ikhaddarayá. ‘Hamadi talks too much.’

ilimi ikulu ‘big-tongued (lit. talks much) Hamadi/ ilimiiye/ ikulu. ‘Hamadi talks too much (lit. has a big tongue).’

liini

[Sw. lini SSED 248] when?

Ali/ liini/ iló. ‘When did Ali come?’ Or: Liini/ Ali/ iló.

Ali/ uzile liini/ gaari. ‘When did Ali buy a car?’ Or: Ali/ uzile gaari/ liini. Or: Ali/ gaari/ uzile liini. Or: Gaari/ Ali/ uzile liini.

Andishile liini/ khati. ‘When did you write a letter?’

Khubishile liini. ‘When did I hit you?--i.e. I did not hit you.’

Khuwene liini/ mi. ‘When is it that I have seen you? -- i.e. I didn’t see you.’

Liini/ Ali/ iló. ‘When did Ali come?’ Or: Ali/ liini/ iló. Or: Ali/ ile/ liini. (When pre-verbal liini triggers pseudo-relativization, but not when post-verbal. It is ungrammatical to say: *Ali/ iló/ liini.)

Liini/ Ali/ uzilo gaari. ‘When did Ali buy a car?’ (The question word liini does not appear in a cleft construction: *Ni liini/ Ali/ uzilo gaari.)

Liini/ Haliima/ pishiloo zijó. ‘When did Haliima cook zijo?’

Liini/ Hasani/ uzilo faturaa mp^hiyá. ‘When did Hasani buy a new car?’ Or: Liini/

Hasani/ uziló/ faturaa mp^hiyá. (Observe that in the second alternative, separation of the verb from its complement does not invoke the application of the Accentual Law of Focus.)

Liini/ Huseeni/ nt^hakingila numbaani. ‘When did Huseeni not enter the house?’

Or: Huseeni/ liini/ nt^hakingila numbaani.

Liini/ mapoliisi/ wamshishilo miizi. ‘When did the police catch the thief?’

Liini/ nchijó. ‘When was I eating?’

Liini/ njiiló ‘When did I eat?’

Liini/ nt^hakeendró. ‘When will I be going?’

Liini/ Nureeni/ uzilo jaka iyó. ‘When did Nureeni buy that jacket?’ Or: Liini/Nureeni/ uziló/ jaka iyo. ‘When did Nureeni buy that jacket?’ (It is clear that liini is the focused word in these two sentences; like other focused pre-verbal elements, it requires the verb to be put in the pseudo-relative form. The second version of the sentence illustrates that although liini is the primary focus, the verb is also focused, as indicated by the fact that it is phrasally separated from its complement and by the fact that it is not downstepped.)

Liini/ Tuuma/ nt^hakhpikaa zijó. ‘When did Tuuma not cook zijo?’ A possible answer to this question: Leelo/ Tuuma/ nt^hakhpikaa zijó. ‘Today Tuuma did not cook zijo.’

Liini/ olosheló. ‘When did he go?’ Cf. Oloshile liini. ‘When did he go?’

Liini/ tulushiló. ‘When did he fall?’ Or: Tulushile liini. ‘He fell when?’ Or: Ni liini/ tulushiló. ‘When was it that fell?’ But not: *Tulushile/ liini.

Liini/ ye/ hatakhfanya kaazi. ‘When won’t he work?’ (Observe that although a negative verb is in the default case phrase-final, the pseudo-relative context here puts the complement into the same phrase as the negative verb.)

Mi/ liini/ nt^hakujó. ‘When will I eat?’

Muusa/ khuwene liini. ‘When did Muusa see you?--i.e. Muusa did not see you.’

Nakendra liini/ Mkhodiisho. ‘When are you going to Mogadishu?’

Njile liini. ‘When did I eat?’ (cf. Jile liini. ‘When did you eat?’ Jile liini. ‘When did he eat?’)

Siisi/ liini/ uzizo gaariyé. ‘I do not know when he sold his car.’
Sultaani/ uyu/ nt^hasaa ye/ khpeleka majeeshi/ chimvīla Abdalla/ kumuuz/ ye/ takufa liini. ‘This sultan, before he sent his army [to fight the war], summoned Abdalla to ask him when he [Abdalla] will die.’
Takendra liini. ‘When will he go?’ Or: Liini/ ye/ takeendró.
We/ liini/ iló. ‘When did you come?’ Cf. Ye/ liini/ iló. ‘When did he come?’ We/ uzile gaari/ liini. ‘When did you buy a car?’ Or: We/ uzile liini/ gaari. (Assuming that liini is inherently focused, the Accentual Law of Focus predicts that the final-accent triggered by the verb will not cross liini. It is correct that We/ uzile liini/ gaari. is unacceptable as an ordinary question. A final accent on gaari is possible if the speaker is seeking confirmation, e.g. that he heard correctly.)
Yont^he/ insaliiloo mi/ khfaanyá/ ni khambilaa we/ liini/ kuuya. ‘All that remains for me to do is to tell you when to come.’
Zoombozo/ stakuya liini. ‘When will your luggage (things) arrive?’

liini negative; [pron. liini] (Syn. The use of the negative element liini appears to be connected to particular tenses. It was rejected, for example, by MI in conjunction with the present, past, and habitual tenses: Mi/ liini/ nnaakujó. ‘I am not eating’, Mi/ liini/ njiiló. ‘I did not eat.’, and Mi/ liini/ hujó. ‘I do not eat.’ We have separated this negative usage from the interrogative liini on the basis of the accentual difference: liini in the sense of ‘when’ has default accent, while this negative usage has final accent. There is, however, a close connection. For example, the first citation below might well be glossed as “good morals and wits, when did he ever lack?”)

Akhlaqi suura/ na aqli/ liini/ schimpungukiló. ‘Good morals and wits he never lacked.’

Karka wakhji oyo/ wanaashke/ wa masultaani/ na wanashke winginewé/ ba/ liini/ wachilaatoowá/ kumera ndilaani. ‘During those times, daughters of sultans and other daughters as well did not ever go out to wander the streets.’

Liini/ chinheshmó. ‘She never respected me.’

Liini/ shkhadiro khtawala ruuhuyé. ‘He was not ever able to control himself.’

Mi/ liini/ nch^hijó. ‘I was not eating at all.’

Mwaana/ waliko hodaari/ na akhili/ liini/ schimpungukiló. ‘The boy was clever and wits were not less with him.’

Mwanaamke/ chimweeka/ Hasani/ numbaani/ kuwaa ye/ ni khaadimuye/ laakini/ Hasani/ liini/ shfanyo kaazi/ yo yotté. ‘The girl had Hasani stay in her home as though he were her servant, but Hasani never was the one who did any work.’

na zint^hu zinginezé/ liini/ schipatikanó/ Afrika ya mashriqi ‘and other things that were never found in East Africa’

Naawó/ liini/ wachimwiwó/ muunt^hu/ wo wotte/ apo. ‘And they did not know anyone at all there.’ (Phon. Observe that liini triggers pseudo-relativization of the following verb. However, the phrasal break after the pseudo-relative verb inhibits the projection of the final accent past the verb to the rest of the verb phrase.)

nk^hawa liini/ nch^hijó ‘if I was not eating at all’ nk^hawa mbaliko liini/ nch^hijó ‘if I had not been eating at all’

Peesaze/ liini/ chiveko bangiini/ walá/ liini/ chimwaminilo muunt^hu/ wowoté. ‘His money, he did not put in the bank, nor he did not trust anyone at all.’

Tajiri uyu/ nt^hakuwaaliko/ bakhili tu/ yoopeeke/ bal/ waliko na liini/ chamino want^hú. ‘This rich man was not only just a miser, rather he [also] did not trust people at all.’

Wachimtukula/ chizeele/ ichi/ liini/ shchikhadiro kiineendrá. ‘They carried this old woman who was not able to walk at all.’

Zamani ziitu/ waana/ liini/ wasfanyo jis’iyí. ‘During our time/ children did not ever do things this way.’

- linsoole n. bedsheet (=nguwo yaa chili)
Chili/ suura/ kubadiowa linsoole/ kilaa muunti. ‘It is good to change the linen of a bed every day.’
- liisani n. 11 [Sw. lisani SSED 248; Ar.] tongue; flap under the front opening of the haanzu Haliima/ haanzuye/ liisani/ yatushiló/ peshele sherkhaniini/ khshomeloowa.
‘Haliima, the flap of her dress was torn, she took it to the sewing shop to be sewed for her.’
Muuntu/ humubló/ humtilo adabuuni/ ni liisani. ‘What kills one and puts him in hell is his tongue.’
- liishe adj. smooth chijamu chiliishe ‘a flat plate’
lkuta liishe ‘a smooth wall’ Malungoye/ liishe. ‘His body is smooth.’
meza liishe ‘a smooth table’ ndila liishe ‘a smooth road’
nti liishe ‘a smooth floor’
- lista n. in the expression:
mafta ya lista ‘oil, e.g. sunflower oil, that is from a source different from mafta ya zeeti, mafta ya maansara, mafta ya sehemu’
- ku-liwaana v. (liwaniile) prosper, succeed, be victorious; [pron. kuliwaana or kulibaana]
Haasidi/ haliwaani. ‘An envious person does not succeed.’ (A proverb.)
Husawarató/ huliwaanó. ‘The one who exercises patience is the one who succeeds.’ (A proverb.)
Kha’iini/ haliwaani. ‘A liar does not prosper.’ (A proverb.)
Muntu aajizi/ haliwaani. ‘A lazy man does not succeed.’ (A proverb.)
Muntu/ chinendra ka lillaahi/ huliwaana. ‘If someone walks, goes, behaves honestly, truthfully, he succeeds.’
Muntu/ chiza kinendra ka lillaahi/ haliwaani. ‘If someone does not walk honestly, truthfully, he does not succeed.’ (A proverb) Muntu/ shtalaa du’a/ ka wazeelewe/ huliwaana. ‘If one takes blessings from his parents he succeeds.’
rel.
ku-liwaanisha v. caus. cause to succeed Mwajiitu/ mliwanishiize. ‘God crowned his efforts with success.’
ku-liwanishoowa v. caus. pass.
Sheekhi na sahabuze/ watakuliwanishoowa [st.] ‘the Sheikh and his companions/ will be granted eternal bliss’ ku-liwanoowa v. pass. [lit.] be succeeded; [pron. kuliwanoowa or kulibanoowa] inalomboowa khaatima/ ndila ya kuliwanoowa [st.] ‘let us pray for a blessed end, the path to eternal happiness’ inasomoowa faataha/ ndila ya kuliwanoowa [st.] ‘let us recite the faataha, the path to eternal bliss’ Kuliwanoowa/ huwila kudaalatoowa. ‘For one to be successful calls for one to struggle.’
- liwaani n. success; [pron. liwaani or libaani] liwaani yaawo ni nk’ulu/ janna kubarikiwoowa [st.] ‘their bliss is great/ their reward is paradise’ Muntu/ nazo ink’aari/ haliwaani. ‘One who is cursed does not succeed.’

m-liya

Ye/ na wamrashiizó/ wa’ineenzele/ masaafa/ hattá/wachidirkamana/ na mp^hundra mliya. ‘He and those who followed him walked some distance until they encountered a zebra.’

i-lizi (mi-)

n. 5/4 one who cries too much

Ijana ya Haliima/ (ni) ilizi/ masku/ na muunt^hi/ hu^hla. ‘Haliima’s child is an ilizi, she cries night and day.’

lo

independent pronoun [cl.11]

Ee/ nnalo mtanaani. ‘Yes, I have it (e.g. luti ‘a stick’) in (my) room.’

Lo/ lpootee. ‘It ([cl.11]) fell.’

Lo/ luti/ lpootee. ‘It, the stick, fell.’ Or: Luti/ lo/ lpootee.

Lo/ ndaaka. ‘It [cl.11] is mine.’

luti la Nuuru/ naaló ‘the stick that Nuuru has’

Luti/ lpootee/ lo. ‘The stick fell, it.’

Ndiló. ‘It’s it [cl.11].’

Wa’oloshele/ wamerele lkaambala/ maha^hlaa lo/ liikó/ wachanza kilyunaanga. ‘They went to search for a rope wherever it might be, and began to beat it [thinking it was the cause of Teacher Gooso’s death].’

We/ rebele lpepo la kuusi/ lchiza khpita/ naaló/ loloshele/ limpooteze mwajimu Gooso/ iwuuyu/ na mwaalimú/ fiile. ‘You blocked the south wind from passing through [you], and it [then] went and caused the baobab to fall on Teacher Gooso and the teacher died.’

logaani (ma-)

n. defile, narrow and deep depression (like those formed by water erosion on the hill slopes near Brava)

Isa/ mi/ nakhuwasá/ zint^hu ziwilí/ chint^hu cha kaandra/ silaalé/ karka logaani/ apo/ hupita maayi. ‘Now I warn you of two things. The first: do not sleep in a defile [such that] water passes there.’

loganiini ‘in the defile’

Goroodi/ inakuya ka loganiini. ‘Mud is coming from the depression.’

Ngoombe/ potele loganiini. ‘A cow fell in the depression.’

lohooho (n-)

n. 11/10 a kind of soft pancake, like lkaaki, but with sugar added; [plural form pron. ndrohooho ‘pancakes’] lohoohola ‘my pancake’; ndrohooha ‘my pancakes’

m-loojiri (wa-)

n. 1/2 one who tends goats, cattle

Waloojiri/ wamwenopo nakeendrá/ ngombeení/ wachizimila. ‘The shepherds, when they saw him going among the cattle, hid.’

loolo

[cl.11] strong demonstrative (This strong demonstrative, a strengthened form of the [cl.11] pronoun lo, was not observed in MI’s speech. GM used the form, and allowed it to co-occur with all three weak demonstratives.)

lóolo/ ili ‘this very one’

lóolo/ ilije ‘that very one (far from us)’

lóolo/ ilo ‘that very one (near you)’

ku-looma

v. [Sw. laumu SSED 24; Ar.] (lomeele) blame

Saanzé/ ku^hloma waant^hu/ nt^hasaa we/ kiwa hakhiikha. ‘Don’t start blaming people before you know the facts.’

loomu

n. [Sw. laumu SSED 241; Ar.] blame

huraasho ltuungo litu nt^hana loomu [st.] ‘those who follow our poem will not go wrong’ iwaani chiza ilu yiinu loomu [st.] ‘you (pl.) should know, otherwise blame will be

- on you’
kandika loomu ‘to put blame on’ kodeele naa ye mooja pashpo loomu [st.] ‘God talked to him without (casting) blame (on him)’
- loongo in the expression: kubiga loongo ‘to make a fishing line’
- looni n. [Sw. launi SSED 241] color, complexion hujuuza nguwo vaala kulla looni/ wala nyulusi stoshe nda mu looni [st.] ‘it is permitted, wear clothes of any color/ even black, don’t think that it is from hell’
Huseeni/ shkhiira/ chihadá/ mi/ nnaayó/ maato/ ya kila/ looni/ ma to aya/ yamo kaaka/ sandukhuuni. ‘Huseeni agreed, saying, I have eyes of every color, these eyes are in my box.’ (We are at present unable to explain the final accent observed in chihadá, as it does not seem to follow from any principle that we have been able to identify.)
Looniile/ Igedishile. ‘His complexion has changed.’ (The verb is Igedishile in MI’s speech, but Igadishile in the speech of our current consultants.)
- lkuuki n. pl. [Sw. lukuki SSED 249; Hind.] hundreds of thousands
- lowla [Ar. laulā W 881] if not, if it weren’t lowla mtume Mhamadi/ skawaumboowa abadi / makhluuqu [st.] ‘if it were not for the Prophet Mohammad, the creatures would never have been created’
- loози (n-droози) n. 11/10 [Sw. lozi ‘an almond, fruit of the mlozi’ SSED 249] candy, sweets
rel.
chi-loози (zi-) n. 7/8
Watakuleta ziloози. ‘They will bring candy.’ Answers the question:
Watakuleetani. ‘What will they bring?’ Note that it would be inappropriate to answer this question with: #Watakuleeta/ chiloozi. ‘They will bring candy.’
- lpoororo adv. in succession, one after the other Wote/ wachirashmana lpoororo/ wacholoka wowiini. ‘All followed one another in succession and went to the river.’
- luuchido n. polish, a tin of polish kubiga luuchido ‘to polish’
Nakubiga zilaatuzá/ luuchidó. ‘I am polishing my shoes.’
kubigowa luuchido ‘to be polished’ Omari/ zilaatuhze/ zibishila luuchido/ zinakuwala. ‘Omari’s shoes have been polished, they are shining.’
- lufa (n-drufa) n. 11/10 [Sw. ufa (nyufa) SSED 488] crack Chiza kuziwaa lufa/ itakhushika kilwaka lkuta/ izimaale. ‘Unless you fill in a crack it will be necessary for you to build the whole wall.’ (A proverb.)
kubigaa lufa ‘to make a crack’ lufaale ‘its crack’; ndrafuze ‘its cracks’ Lkuta ili/ l(i)naloo lufa. ‘This wall has a crack.’
Mrashaa lufa/ hufa. ‘One who follows a crack dies.’ Variant: Hurashoo lufá/ hufa. (MI suggested that this proverb conveys the idea that one who indulges in too much sexual intercourse dies, metaphorically. GM suggests that it conveys the idea that if someone does anything risky will get hurt.)
Nt^hanakhaadira/ khtomola/ karka...kambaa lufa/ jis’iyo/ chiingiló/ nt^hanakhaadira/ khtomola. ‘He could not get it out, [it had gone] into...like a crack, that’s the way it had gone in.’
- lufkuti n. [etymology uncertain, but possibly linked to Standard Somali luuf ‘small piece of s.t. worn out" and lufluuf "to get stripped away, to become worn out (of fiber)" DSI 392] umbilical cord kumtinda mwaana/ lufkuti 'to cut the child's umbilical cord' Mwaana/ lufkuti/ limzubile shiingo. 'The child, the umbilical cord surrounded his neck.'

lughu

n. 11/10 [Sw. lughu SSED 219; Ar.] language (Even though this noun has a single shape, lughu, whether used as a singular or plural noun, the agreement pattern differs: it governs [cl.11] agreement in the singular and [cl.10] agreement in the plural.)

Chijini/ siwo/ lughu/ mbali. 'Chijini is not a different language (from Chimiini).'

Cho/ siwo/ kama lughu za want^hu wiingine. 'It [i.e. Chimiini] is not like the languages of other people.'

Kubaraṭa kiḷaa lughu/ ni suura. 'To learn each language is good.' (If the infinitive phrase is preceded by na then a final accent appears at the end of the infinitive phrase: Na kubaraṭa kiḷaa lughá/ ni suura. 'And to learn each language is good.')

Lughu gani/ we/ hupeendo. 'Which language do you like?'

lughu ili 'this language' (cf. lughu izi 'these languages')

Lughu ili/ ni lughu la kaandra/ la waant^hu/ hukalo miyi ya ṭawala ya Keenyá/ na Tanzaniyá. 'This language [i.e. Swahili] is the first language of the people who reside in the coastal towns of Kenya and Tanzania.'

lughu la wangereenza 'the language of the English people, i.e. English' lughu la want^hu wa Mwiini 'the language of the people of Brava' lughuala 'my language'

Mi/ hupenda lughu niingi. 'I like many languages.'

lughawiyaati

n. linguistics

lughzi

n. riddle

Basi/ muḅli/ fijiri/ chilawa/ kendra kumera ṭafsiiri/ ya lughzi/ ilo. 'So in the morning the man left and went to look for an explanation of that riddle.'

What is the plural form of lughzi?

luh(u)di

n. [Sw. luhudi = ufuko "the narrow trench dug to receive the body after the rest of the grave is finished" A Grammar of Dialectic Changes in the Kiswahili Language, p. 75] bottom niche in a grave, where body is laid; the body is placed on its right side with the face towards qibla in Mecca

lujna

n. 9/10 committee

Ali/ waawaye/ ni mooyi/ karka lujna/ iyo. 'Ali's dad is one (member) of that committee.'

Mwiini/ ifanyiza lujna/ ya want^huu saba/ kuhalila/ mushkila/ ya anshuuru. 'In Miini a committee of seven people has been created to solve tax problems.'

lukuuki

n. pl. [Sw. lukuki SSED 249] (hundreds of) thousands (cf. laki 'one hundred thousand')

Ali/ tomele lkuuki/ haṭá/ mwaanawe/ shṭomolowa habaasa. 'Ali paid thousands until he got his child released from the prison.'

Omari/ hadiile/ haṭá/ shpowa lukuuki/ suzi/ nuumbaya. 'Omari said: even if I am given hundreds of thousands, I will not sell my house.'

luulu

n. 9/10 [Sw. lulu SSED 249; Ar.] pearl

Ilu ya ijabali/ we/ takuwona luulu/ na almaasi. 'On top of the mountain you will see pearls and diamonds.'

Khufuliini/ lwalimo lfuungulo/ la luulu. 'In the padlock there was a pearl key.'

Kumera luulu/ na joohari/ humtila muunt^hu/ karka khaṭari. 'To crave pearls and jewels puts one in danger.’

luulyo

n. [Ital. luglio] July

Bandeera/ ya Somaaliya/ ipanziiza/ luulyo/ mwezi muusi/ mwaaka/ wa alfu/ na miya keendrá/ na sitiini. ‘Somalia’s flag was raised (for the first time) on July 1, 1960.’

i-luuma (mi-)

n. 5/4 cut, lump resulting from a blow from a stick or a stone, etc.; a light head wound

Hamadi/ bishile Omari/ iluuma/ maazi/ fmiingi/ yamta(w)anyishiló. ‘Hamadi struck Omari a blow on the head and a lot of blood came out.’

Mbishile mwaana/ iluuma. ‘He inflicted a wound on the child’s head.’

Waziiri/ wa maali/ karka Itaalya/ bishila iluuma/ leelo/ mukhtaa ye/ shkhutubó. ‘The minister of finance in Italy was hit on the head today when he was giving a speech.’

luqma

n. [Sw. lukuma SSED 249; Ar. luqma W 874] "bread" -- i.e. one’s daily food; a share of something (Hist. phon. Chimiini often lacks a medial high vowel that is present in the corresponding Swahili word, and there is clear evidence from prefixes that Chimiini has undergone, in its development from Proto-Bantu, a high vowel elision rule that Swahili has not. There is some reason to think that Chimiini has borrowed words from Arabic independently of Swahili; i.e. these borrowings do not necessarily date from some pre-Swahili stage that ultimately developed into Chimiini and Swahili. For instance, n the present example Swahili has lukuma, while Chimiini has luqma. But it is not necessarily the case that Chimiini elided the medial vowel from an earlier form like that found in Swahili. Since Arabic lacks the medial vowel, it may simply be the case that Chimiini borrowed the word directly from Arabic in its current shape luqma.)

Nhadile wiingi/ ka sababu wiingi/ haṭá/ kanaa wo/ nt^hawanakhfurahila/ hukuuma/ naawó/ luqma/ ya muunt^hi/ shtiisho/ zint^hu izi/ ziwatiile/ wo/ khfunga maato/ na haqqi/ chiza kuwona/ jawabu ya lilla/ chiza kuwona/ jawaabu ya haqqi. ‘I said many because many, even if they are not pleased with the government, [the need for] daily bread, fear, these things, have forced them to close their eyes to what is right, not to see the truth, not to see what is right.’

Sinbashilizé/ luqmaya. ‘Don’t make me lose my share.’

luskila

n. crushed fish thrown into water as bait (GM is not familiar with this word and thus could not provide additional information or illustrate its use.)

luti (n-druti)

n. 11/10 stick

Chiwana^lopoo luti/ simsoongé. ‘If he has the stick (e.g. that he usually carries), don’t go close to him!’

Chiwana^lpoo luti/ simsoongé. ‘If he has a stick, don’t go close to him!’

Ili/ ndiló/ luti laa mi/ nilvuunziló. ‘This is the stick that I broke.’

Ilije/ ndiló/ luti laa mi/ niluuziló (or nuuziló). ‘That one is the stick that I bought (it).’ (Instead of ilije, one could use ilo or ili.)

Izi/ ndizó/ ndruti zaa mi/ nizivuunziló. ‘These are the sticks that I broke.’

Izije/ ndizó/ ndruti zaa mi/ nizuuziló (or nuuziló). ‘These are the sticks that I bought.’ (Or the demonstratives izo and izi could be used.)

Jeeli/ bozele luti la mwaalimu. ‘Jeeli stole the teacher’s stick.’ (Cf. mwaalimu wa Jeeli/ bozele lutiile ‘the teacher from whom Jeeli stole his stick’.)

Khamsiiniza/ mp^heeṭé/ isa/ nakhsuulá/ ye/ kuviloowa/ khpoowa/ ndrutize/ khamsini. ‘I got my fifty blows, now I want him to be called to be given his fifty blows.’

khtilaa ndruti ‘to beat (lit. put in) with sticks’

Alí/ lanile na Hamadi/ mtilee ndruti/ haṭá/ fakeete. ‘Ali fought with Hamadi, he hit (lit. put) him with sticks until he ran away.’

kubigaa luti ‘to give a blow with a stick’

Nimbishile ndruti nt^hatú. ‘I struck him three blows.’

Luti ili/ lpeeta. ‘This stick was found.’

Luti ili/ na chisu ichi/ speeta. ‘This stick and this knife were found.’ (Observe that the subject agreement morpheme on the verb is zi- (>s-), which is the appropriate agreement for both the plural form of luti and also the plural form of chisu. It appears that when one has a conjoined subject, one would like a plural agreement on the verb if possible; and apparently one thing that makes it possible is if the plural form of each of the conjoined NP’s governs the identical agreement shape. Another example: Ndruti izi/ na chisu ichó/ speeta. ‘These sticks and that knife were found.’)

Luti/ likoo n thi/ halvuundiki. ‘A stick that is on the ground does not break.’

lutiila ‘my stick’ (cf. lutiilo ‘your stick’, lutiile ‘his stick’, luti liitu ‘our stick’, luti liinu ‘your (pl.) stick’, luti laawo ‘their stick’; ndrutiiza ‘my sticks’ (cf. ndrutiizo, ndrutiize, ndruti ziitu, ndruti ziinu, ndruti zaawo) (Observe the lengthening of the final vowel of the noun that occurs in front of the enclitic possessives =AG-a AG-o and AG-e. This phenomenon is associated with CV and CVCV nouns.)

Muunt^hu/ hublowa ka lutiile. ‘A person is killed with his stick.’ (A proverb.)

Shtalaa luti/ chimbiga Abunawaasi. ‘He took a stick and beat Abunawaasi.’

rel.

chi-luti (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

Basi/ mwaana/ nfaanyeni/ nfaanyeni/ chendra ka chiluti/ chiluti/ chiluti.
‘So the child [thought:] what should I do? what should I do? [And] he went to the stick [calling:] stick! stick!’

ch-ambaamba/ kana chiluti ‘as thin as a stick’

Chiluti/ na’ondroke/ nakhfakata/ nakhsula mbigaa mp^haka. ‘The stick [in a story] left and ran and wanted to hit a cat.’ (Morph. Observe the optional elision of the infinitive prefix ku in front of the [cl. I] object prefix in mbigaa mp^haka instead of kumbigaa mp^haka.)

Ichije/ ndichó/ chiluti chaa mi/ nichuuziló (or: nuuziló). ‘That is the small stick that I bought (it).’ (Icho is used if the stick is nearby the listener, ichi if nearby the speaker.)

Izije/ ndizó/ ziluti zaa mi/ nizuuziló (nuuziló). ‘These ones are the small sticks that I bought.’ (Instead of izije, one could use izo or izi.)

khtila ziluti ‘lit. to put in sticks, i.e. to beat with a stick’

Mwaalimu/ watile waana/ ziluti/ nash nash. ‘The teacher hit children with a stick, nash nash!’

Omari/ mbishile mwaana/ ka chiluti. ‘Omari hit the child with a stick.’

(Phon. This is a canonical sentence with downstep intonation. The corresponding simple yes-no question eliminates the downstepping, and seems to be pronounced more quickly than the statement: Omari/ mbishile maana/ ka chiluti? The emphatic version maintains the downstep structure, but shifts the accent in the verb phrase and the prepositional phrase: Omari/ mbishile maaná/ ka chiluti!?)

i-luti (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

luuti n. the Biblical Lot luuti n. homosexual who assumes the active role, in contrast to khaniisi or ifugo or majo

luzi (n-druzi) n. 11/10 [Sw. uzi (nyuzi) SSED 511] thread

Chula mbarakha/ chula naa ndruzi. ‘He bought paper and he also bought thread (pl).’

luzi la chuuma ‘wire [lit. thread of iron]’ luzi la koranta ‘electric wire’ luziila ‘my thread’; ndruziza ‘my threads’

rel.

chi-luzi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-luzi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

L

- m-lakata* (wa-) n. 1/2 a member of one of the five Tunni subclans that inhabit the Brava area; the term is especially used for Tunni living in rural (as opposed to urban) areas or behaving in the uncouth ways of the countryside; [pron. mlakata or mnakata]
Mnakata/ tomelee chisu/ ijaliini/ mdurilile mwiizi. ‘The bush guy took out a pocket knife and stabbed the thief.’
 rel.
chi-lakata n. the language of the walakata; in the manner of the walakata
Ye/ huvalaa nguwo/ chilakata. ‘He dresses in the manner of the walakata.’
- lakhaanto* n. a kind of fish, looks like yija nk^hala; [pron. lakhaant^ho] review
Lakhaant^ho/ nii nsi/ haytowi/ nt^ho. ‘Lakhaanto is a fish that is not liked (lit. missed) much.’
- i-laakha* n. relationship
Ali/ na Omari/ ilakha yaawo/ skumbili izi/ yangamiile/ nt^hangú/ wana waawo/ walaniiól. ‘The relationship between Ali and Omari these days is bad since their children fought.’
Ilaakha/ ya Somáaliya/ na Keenyá/ isa/ ni suura. ‘The relationship of Somalia and Kenya now is good.’
Ilaakhaye/ na maamaye/ iwelee mbovu. ‘Her relationship with her mother has become bad.’
- i-lala* (mi-) n. 5/4 a kind of palm tree; the leaves of this palm tree khsuka milala ‘to plait milala’
Pa ilala iyó. ‘Give (me) that ilala.’ (The use of final accent in this example has not been researched. It is not the case that an imperative verb like pa ordinarily triggers final accent.)
Wake/ wa Mwiini/ hushoma skapu/ ka milala. ‘Brava women sew baskets with milala.’
- ku-laala* v. [Sw. lala SSED 240] (leele) lie down, sleep Ali/ leelee. ‘Ali slept; Ali is asleep.’
Ali/ lele chijiini. ‘Ali slept on the bed.’
Basi/ mp^ha riyali mooyi/ naami/ nt^hakhupikila chaakuja/ na nt^hakhupa/ mahala/ yaa we/ kulaala. ‘Well, give me one riyal and I will cook food for you and I will give you a place where you can sleep.’
Chilaale/ isa. ‘Let us sleep now.’
Eelo/ chilaala/ hatá/ fijiri. ‘The gazelle slept until morning.’
Hasiibu/ kaaziye/ iwelee kuja/ na kulaala/ kulaalá/ naa kujá. ‘Hasiibu’s work became to eat and to sleep, to sleep and to eat.’
Kuja/ ichilala masku/ hutasawara/ kughayirika. ‘If food stays (lit. sleeps) overnight, it can go bad (lit. change).’
kulala ka lwavu ‘to lie on one’s side’ kulala ka miimba ‘to lie prone (on ground, bed)’ kulala ka moongo ‘to lie on the back’ kulala ka usiinzizi ‘to sleep’ kulala ka uso ‘to lie face down’ kulala kamba igogo ‘to sleep like a log (i.e. very soundly)’ kulaala/ kamba mayti ‘to sleep like a corpse’ kulala kana ngoombe ‘to sleep like a cow (i.e. very deeply)’ Ndrele kana ngoombé. ‘I slept like a cow.’ Or: Ndrelel/ kana ngoombe. ‘I slept like a cow.’
Sheekhi/ lele kana ngoombe. ‘Sheekhi slept like a cow.’ (It is interesting that it is possible to locate the subject in post-verb position and join it together with the verb into a phonological phrase: Lele Sheekhi/ kana ngoombe. ‘Slept Sheekhi like a cow.’ It needs to be pointed out, however, that such a construction is not possible if kana ngoombe????)

Sheekhi/ leele/ kana ngoombe. ‘Sheekhi slept like a cow.’ (In the simple yes-no question, the out-of-focus phrase undergoes accent-shift: Sheekhi/ leele/ kana ngoombé?) kulala naa muke ‘to sleep with a woman’

Laala. ‘Lay down!’ Lalaani. ‘(Pl.) lay down!’ Lalani chiliini. ‘(Pl.) lay down on the bed.’ Silaleeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t lay down!’ Silaleeni/chiliini. ‘Don’t lay down on the bed!’

Leele. ‘He is sleeping.’ (Cf. Nakulaala. ‘He is going to sleep.’)

Lele ilu yaa chili/ cha sulṭaani. ‘He was asleep on the sultan’s bed.’

Leele/ mwana wa Haliima. [H!!H] ‘He is asleep, Haliima’s child.’

Leeló/ ni Sheekhi. ‘The one who is asleep is Sheekhi.’

Masku ayo/ wote/ wachilaala/ ka amaani. ‘That evening everyone slept peacefully.’ masku leelopo ṭakhkasa zibuumbu [nt.] ‘in the night, when you have just gone to sleep, you will hear the hooting of cars.’

Mi/ skuuya/ festaani/ ka khisa/ Omari/ waliko apo. ‘I did not come to the party because Omari was there.’

Mwana/ halaali/ chiliini. ‘The child does not sleep on the bed.’ (Cf. mwana halali chiliini ‘the child who does not sleep on the bed’.)

Mwana/ haṭakulaala/ chiliini. ‘The child will not sleep on the bed.’ (Cf. mwana haṭakulala chiliini ‘the child who will not sleep on the bed’.)

Mwana leeló/ ni Sheekhi. ‘The child who is asleep is Sheekhi.’ (One cannot say Lelo mwana/ ni Sheekhi.)

Mwana/ nt^hanakulaala/ chiliini. ‘The child is not sleeping on the bed.’ (Cf. mwana nt^hanakulala chiliini ‘the child who is not sleeping on the bed’.)

Ndrele chiliini. ‘I slept on the bed’

Nṭ^hasaa we/ kulaala/ chiliicho/ faanya. ‘Before you sleep, you do your bed.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Nṭ^hakulaala/ Omari. [H!!H] ‘He did not sleep, Omari.’

Nṭ^hawakulaala. or Want^hakulaala. ‘They did not sleep.’

Nṭ^hukulaala/ we. [H!!H] ‘You did not sleep, you.’

Nuuru/ leele. ‘Nuuru is asleep.’ Cf. Leele/ Nuuru. ‘He is asleep, Nuuru.’

Nuuru/ tu/ leeló. ‘Only Nuuru is asleep.’ (An interesting restriction can be seen: if the subject is posposed, it cannot be focused: Leele/ Nuuru/ tu. ‘He is asleep, Nuuru only.’ A sentence like the following is possible: Leeló/ Nuuru/ tu. ‘The one who is asleep is only Nuuru.’ In this structure, we have a headless relative clause in subject position, a null copular, and a focused predicate noun.)

Oloshela kulaala. ‘He went to sleep.’

Omari/ nt^hakulaala. [H!H] ‘Omari did not sleep.’

Sheekhi/ leele. [H!H] ‘Sheekhi is asleep; Sheekhi slept.’ Or, with right-dislocation:

Leele/ Sheekhi. [H!!H] ‘Is asleep, Sheekhi.’

Sheekhi/ lele chiliini. [H!H] ‘Sheekhi slept on the bed.’ Or: Sheekhi/ leele/ chiliini.

[HH!!H] ‘Sheekhi slept on the bed.’ Or: Lele chiliini/ Sheekhi. [H!!H] ‘Slept on the bed, Sheekhi.’ Or: Leele/ chiliini/ Sheekhi. [H!!H!!H] ‘Slept on the bed, Sheekhi.’

Si/ wote/ chileelé. ‘We all slept.’ Or: Si/ chileelé/ wote. ‘We slept, all (of us).’ Or: Si/ chilele woté. ‘We slept all.’

Skuuya/ festaani/ ka khisa/ mbaliko ndreelé. ‘I didn’t come to the party because I was sleeping.’

Wachidarbisha/ bundukhu zaawo/ na wotté/ wachilaala/ ka miimba. ‘They prepared their rifles and all lay on [their] stomachs.’

Waant^hu/ walele mtanaani. ‘People slept in the room.’ Also possible:

Walele waant^hu/ mtanaani. Or: Mtanaani/ walele waant^hu.

We/ nt^hukulaala. [H!H] ‘You (pl.) did not sleep.’

rel.

ku-laaliḷa v. appl. (-laliḷa)sleep on

Chili chaa we/ nt^hukichilaaliḷa/ hiiwi/ nk^hungunyize. ‘A bed that you do not sleep on, you cannot know its bedbugs.’ (A proverb.)

Fikiriini/ naayé/ nt^hanakiwá/ yaa ye/ nakuhadó/ chimwambila majiibu/ ya su'aali/ iyo/ chimaliza/ ye/ chi'ilaalila.

'Fikiriini, while not realizing what he was saying, told her the answer to that question, and then he went to sleep.'
(Morph. Observe the use of the applied reflexive verb.)

Hamadi/ ilaliile. 'And so Hamadi lay down.' (MI did not accept adding the reflexive pronoun *Hamadi/ ilaliile ruuhuye.)

Siná/ chili cha kulaalila. 'I haven't a bed to sleep in.'

ku-'i-laalila v. reflex. appl.

Ni'ilaliile. '(Finally) I went to sleep.' Cf. Chi'ilaliile. '(Finally) we went to sleep.' Wa'ilaliile. '(Finally) they went to sleep.'

Oloshale ki'ilaalila. '(Finally, after being disappointed in his expectations) he went to sleep (lit. he took himself to sleep).' (Cf. the simple sentence Oloshale kulaala. 'He went to sleep.') ku-laaloowa v. pass.

masku na muunt^hi haychilaaloowa [nt.] 'night and day nobody could sleep'

ku-laalika v. p/s.

Apa/ haylaaliki/ ka bardi. 'One cannot sleep here because of the cold.'

Chili ichi/ hachilaaliki. 'This bed cannot be slept on.'

Ilu ya majiwe/ haylaaliki. 'One cannot sleep on stones.'

ku-laaliza v. caus. appl.

Siná/ chili cha kumlaaliza. 'I don't have a bed in which to put him to sleep.'

ku-laaza v.

Iwilopo kuwaa mi/ sina mahala ya kulaalá/ Ali/ ndeze kaake.

'When he learned that I did not have a place to sleep, Ali permitted me to sleep at his place.'

rel. nom.

ma-laalo n. 6 way of sleeping; something slept on (a mat, sleeping bag, bed cover), a sleeping place

Chimfanyiliza malaalo/ chimfanyiliizó. 'He prepared for him a place to sleep, that's what he did.'

Malaaloye/ mawovu. 'His way of sleeping is bad.'

Mp^ha malaalo. 'Give me something to sleep on!'

Tuure/ ndiyé/ na'iwo malaaloyé. 'It is the humpback who knows how (to position himself) to get his sleep.' (A proverb.)

ma-laazo n. 6 the act of putting someone to sleep u-laazo n. 14 the act of causing someone to sleep

ku-laaliza

v. inform relatives and friends of a coming wedding, invite to a wedding; there is probably a connection between this verb and the causative applied form of ku-laala 'to sleep', namely, ku-laaliza 'to put to sleep for' – specifically, in Bravanese culture, guests to a wedding were meant to stay for several days and were provided with sleeping accommodations during the celebrations hulalizoowa haruusi/ kulaaliza hunganoowa [st.] 'this is what we do for a wedding, and these invitations strengthen our ties'

Maadamu/ mi/ chimwona Hasani/ tamlaaliza/ haruusi/ ya mwaanawa. 'If by chance I see Hasani, I will invite him to my son's wedding.'

Muunt^hu/ chilaliza waant^hu/ laazimu/ kuwadalbatila. 'If a person invites people, he must get ready for them.'

rel.

ku-lalizanya v. rec.

ku-lalizanyoowa v. rec. pass.

ndiwo muunt^hi wa furaha/ itakulalizanyoowa [st.] 'this is actually a day of joy, a day to invite each other to a celebration'

ku-lalizoowa v. pass.

Basi/ naayé/ laliiza. ‘So, she also was invited.’

Ichilalizowa haruusi/ ka sultaani. ‘There was announced a wedding at the sultan’s.’

u-laanga

n. a kind of plant which has roots about twice the size of grapefruits and are white in color; these roots are cut, dried, and ground into powder to make a flour that is used in making halwa unga wa ulaanga ‘the flour made from ulaanga’

ku-langala

v. [Sw. angaa SSED 15] (langaliile) look at, look after, guard, look on Basi/ jis’iyo/ haṭá/ sultaani/ haṭá/ leelo/ shkalant^ha kuja naaye/ chimlangala/ sultaani/ chimwona (ni) mwaana/ msuura/ basi/ chimwammbila/ kalant^ha apa/ kalaant^há. ‘So, [it went on] like this until the sultan one day sat down to eat with him [the poor boy who was accompanying the sultan’s son in eating]; he observed him, the sultan, and saw that he was a good child, so he told him: sit here, that’s what you should do.’ (There are a couple interesting aspects to this passage. Notice the right-dislocation of sultaani. Also notice the repetition: kalaant^há. The final accent here is due to this being a pseudo-relative clause, though of course there are no true relative clauses with an imperative as the relativeverb.)

Chilangala kuzimu. ‘He looked at the sky.’

Chimwambila sultaani/ maame/ mlangale/ jisa suura. ‘He told the sultan look out after my mother nicely.’

Chiint^hu/ hulangalowa akhiriye. ‘Something must be looked at (in terms of, with respect to) its end.’ (This saying comments on the fact that one can evaluate a matter only once its end result is known.)

Ha’isii kufá/ nalangale khabri. ‘The one who does not know death, let him look at the grave.’ (A proverb.)

Halaali/ walá/ ha’ineendri/ uko nakhulangala/ tu. ‘It does not sleep nor walk, it is just there looking at you.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is piicha ‘a photograph, picture’.) confirm phrasing

Humlangala mwaana/ ka kula yaa ye/ hihtaajó. ‘He looks after the child in every way that he needs.’

Isa/ sultaani/ peleshele/ maato/ nakuwalangala/ nakuwalangala/ nakuwalangala/ wa’ambile waant^hu/ walangaleeni/ waalimu/ nini. ‘Now the sultan moved his eyes, looking at them, looking at them, looking at them, and said to the people, you look at them (the two girls that were supposed to be told apart), learned people, what.’

Ka khisani/ we/ nakunlangaloo mi. ‘Why are you watching me?’

Kheeri/ mi/ mmeree muke/ nimloole/ napate kumlangala mwaana. ‘It is best that I look for a woman to marry so that she can look after the child.’

Kooḍi/ langala/ nt^hasá/ yaa we/ kuhada. ‘(Your) words, look (at them) before you speak.’ (A saying: think before you speak!)

kulangala noota ‘to prophesy, astrologize, read the stars’

Langala chijumba/ nt^hachina chiint^hú. ‘Look for a nest that does not have anything in it.’ (Observe that in a relative clause, the negative verb is not separated phrasally from its complement.)

Langala/ Huseeni/ kuwasila muṭa’akhiri. ‘Watch for Huseeni to arrive late.’

Langala/ kuwaa we/ hupotezi/ mayaank^huku/ ayo. ‘Watch that you do not drop those eggs.’

Langala/ kuwaa we/ nakhsimama sawasawá. ‘Watch that you stand straight.’

Langala/ kuwona mahala ya Omari/ hoolokó. ‘Watch to see where Omari goes.’

Mi/ ndrangaliilé/ jisa Abú/ dhakhameetó. ‘I watched how Abu behaved.’

Mi/ ndrangaliilé/ jisa Omari/ hufanyo kaazi/ nt^ho. ‘I watched how hard Huseeni worked.’

Mi/ ndrangaliile nt^hiini/ yaa chili. ‘I looked under the bed.’

Mi/ nk^haleent^hé/ apo/ pashpo haraka/ kuwalangala. ‘I remained there without moving, watching them.’

Nimlangaliḽe Haliimá/ nakhkalangoo nsi. ‘I watched Haliima frying fish.’

Nimlangaliḽe Haliimá/ nakhpikó. ‘I watched Haliima cook.’

Mi/ ndranganaliḽe ka cholokooni. ‘I looked through the window.’

Mi/ nimlangaliḽe Haliimá/ nakulawo numbaani. ‘I watched Haliima leave the house.’

Mlangaleeni. ‘You (pl.) look at him!’

Muunt^hu/ chimlangala muunt^hu/ kanaa nt^hupu/ huṭowa maato. ‘If someone looks at a person naked, he will lose his eyes (become blind).’

Muunt^hu/ hulanganlawa weenzawe. ‘(To understand a person, look at his friends.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Ndranganaliḽe/ nfunguloza/ kilaa mahaḽa. ‘I looked for my keys everywhere.’

Niilé/ ka khisa khulanganlawa we. ‘I came in order to see you.’

Nile khulanganlawa we. ‘I came to see you.’

Noony(ez)a/ mi/ kuwaa we/ hundraḽala/ mi. ‘Show me that you are looking after me/care for me.’

Omari/ langaliḽee muḽo/ inakaaka. ‘Omari watched the fire burn.’

Salma/ nakulangala ruuhuye/ chilolooni. ‘Salma is looking at herself in a mirror.’

Sayidiyá/ si/ nt^hashkumlagala/ eelo/ uyu/ kama eelo/ tu/ si/ chimlangaliḽe kama mwana wiitú. ‘My lord, we did not look on him just as a gazelle, we looked upon him as our child.’

Sku mooyi/ mwaana/ sulile keendra/ kumlangala maamaye. ‘One day the boy wanted to go and visit his mother.’

Sultaani/ chindranḽala nt^hangú/ chaala/ cha kuulu/ haṭá/ chiṭaani. ‘The sultan looked at me from toe to head.’ review

Muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ hulanganlawa ka kaake. ‘A man discovers things from his home.’ (A proverb.)

Nimnanganaliḽe Jeeli/ oyo nakuwo mwaalimú. ‘I looked for Jeeli, who is becoming a teacher.’

Oloshela kumlangala eelo. ‘She went and looked for the gazelle.’

Ondroshelopó/ oloshela/ kulanganlawa nt^heendre. ‘When he woke up, he went to survey the dates.’

We/ langala zikhushishiló/ na mwinginewó/ nalanganle zimshiishiló. ‘You, mind your own business, and someone other than you, let him mind his own business.’

Ye/ nakulangala jawaabu. [H!H] ‘He is checking (looking over) his answers.’
rel.

ku-langalalangala v. freq.

Karkaa ye/ nakulangalanganlawa/ kaa kule/ chiwona hayawaani/ nk^hulu/ laakini/ nt^hakhaadira/ kiiwa/ jinsiye. ‘While he was looking about, in the distance he saw a large animal, but he was not able to tell [lit. know] what kind it was [lit. its type].’

Muné/ shtala chaakuja/ chilanganlalanḽala chiwekaa nt^hi. ‘Her younger sister took the food and looked at it and put it on the ground.’

Ye/ takulangalalangala eelo. ‘He will examine the gazelle.’

ku-langalana v. rec. look at one another ku-langalika v. p/s. able to be looked at

Iwa/ ha’ilanganliki/ khusawala maato. ‘The sun cannot be looked at, it (lit. seduces) the eyes.’ (A proverb.)

ku-langalila v. appl. (langaliliḽe) look after (e.g. a child); practice soothsaying for

Oyo sultaani/ chimviiḽa/ kaahini/ mooyi/ chimwaambila/ mi/ nnakhsulaa we/ kundranḽala/ kuniwila/ mahaḽa/ ya Abunawaasi/ zimiiḽo. ‘That sultan invited a soothsayer and said to him: I want you to practice soothsaying for me to learn for me the place where Abunawaasi is hidden.’

ku-langalisha v. caus. (langalishiize)

Suufi/ mlangalishize mwaana/ ruuhuye/ chilolooni. ‘Suufi made the child look at himself in the mirror.’ (Although ordinarily the reflexive pronoun occupies the position of primary object and is co-referential with the subject, this is not the case in the causative verb structure. In the causative, the reflexive is co-referential to the "causee", which occupies the primary object position. The following sentence is ungrammatical: *Suufi/ langalishize ruuhuye/ mwaana/ chilooni. ‘Suufi made himself look at the child in the mirror.’) ku-langalishana v. caus. rec.

ku-langalishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-langalishiliza v. caus. appl. (-langalishiliize)

Muusa/ mlangalishilize Ali/ mwaana/ ruuhuye/ chilooni. ‘Muusa caused on Ali the child to look at himself in the mirror.’

ku-langalishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-langaloowa v. pass.

Chili/ chilangaliila/ nt^hiinike. ‘The bed was looked under it.’

Ka cholokooni/ ilangaliila. ‘The window was looked through.’

Muunt^hu/ halangaloowi/ suuraze/ hulangalowa tabi’aye. ‘One is not judged on the basis of one’s looks but on the basis of one’s character.’ (A proverbial saying, much used in connection with marriage decisions.)

tala waaliko ni yeeye/ nuuru ya kulangaloowa [st.] ‘for he was the light, a bright light we all watched’

rel. nom.

m-langala (wa-) n. 1/2

mlangala noota ‘astrologer, one who reads the stars’

Karamuuni/ wa’azimiila/ masheekhi/ walangala noota/ na ma’akhyari wa muuyi. ‘To the feast were invited learned men, astrologers, and gentlemen of the town.’

m-langalo n. 3

ma-langalo n. 6

u-langalo n. 14

m-laangazo (mi-)

n. 3/4 [this noun would seem to suggest a derivation from a verb stem -laangaza, but no such verb has been found in present-day Chimini] light, a ray of light coming through a crack (e.g. in the curtains) into a darkened room

rel.

chi-laangazo (zi-) n. 7/8 a light coming through an opening

m-laango (mi-)

m-laango or mnaango]

n. 3/4 [Sw. mlango SSED 289] door, gate, channel (way into a harbor); [pron.

Chimwona sarmaala/ uko mlangooni/ namliindra. ‘He found the carpenter at the door waiting for him.’

Chi’ufunzile mlaangó. ‘We closed the door.’

Chisonga mlangooni. ‘He approached the door.’

Ilu ya mlaangowe/ yandishiila/ kuila/ huuyó/ jazira iyi/ nfuye/ wa jazira iyi/ hawamlati/ kuruda kaawo. ‘Above the door was written: whoever comes to this island, the monkeys of this island will not let them return home.’ -- relative clause phrasing and accent needs to be reviewed

Kilaa mnaango/ unayo ifungulole. [H’H] ‘Every door has its own key.’ (A proverb.) Or: Kilaa mnaango/ unayo ifungulo laake. [H’H]

Kulaa mlaango/ (hufungulowa) ka ifungulole. ‘Every door (is opened with) its own key.’ (A proverb.)

Milaango/ ni miwaazi. ‘The doors are open.’

milango ya nuumba or milaango/ ya nuumba ‘the doors of a house (or of houses)’

Mlaango/ uwaliko mfuunge. ‘The door was closed.’

Mlango wa numba iyi/ hawfunguliki. ‘The door of this house cannot be opened.’

Mlangooni/ uko muunt^hu/ mletelelo majiibú. ‘At the door was the man who had brought the reply.’

Mnaango/ Omari/ fungilo ka lfuunguló. ‘The door, Omari opened it with a key.’

mnango wa nuumba or mnaango/ wa nuumba ‘the door of a house’

Muke/ chisimama mlangooni. ‘The woman stood at the door.’

Niyafunzile milaangó. ‘I closed the doors.’

Numba ifanyiza mlaangowé/ ndiítú. ‘The house that had its door repaired is ours.’ (Our first consultant, MI, judged an example like this one, where the head is joined into a single phrase with the immediately following verb, to be a restrictive relative clause.

Ifanyiza mlaangowé serves to identify the house we are talking about. If there is phrasal separation, as in Nuumba/ ifanyiza mlaangowé/ ndiítú., then the interpretation is non-restrictive: ‘The house, which had its door repaired, was ours.’ Although MI pointed out this contrast on various occasions, our second consultant, GM, did not seem to distinguish between these two pronunciations, regarding them simply as optional variants. More research on this matter is required.)

nuumba/ milaangoye ‘the house, its doors; the houses, their doors’ nuumba mnaangowe ‘the house, its door’

Nuumba/ nt^hayna mlaangó. ‘A house which has no doors.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iyaank^huku ‘egg’.)

Nuumbaya/ nk^hulu/ nt^hayná/ mlaango. ‘My house is large, it has no doors.’
Shfunga mlaangowe. ‘He closed his door.’

rel.

chi-laango (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

Chilango ichi/ mi chiwaazi. ‘This (dim.) door is open.’

Wambenopo kuwaa mi/ mbele sakraani/ wafunzile chilango cha ipakacha/ want^hukiile. ‘When they saw that I was drunk, they tied the door of the basket and carried me off.’

Zilango izi/ ni ziwaazi. ‘These (dim.) doors are open.’

i-laanzi

variant form: i-yaanzi

kufa ilaanzi ‘to be asleep (of body parts)’

Kuuluya/ ifile ilaanzi. ‘My leg is asleep.’

Mkonowa/ ufile ilaanzi. ‘My arm is asleep.’

m-laanzi (mi-)

n. 3/4 coconut tree; [pron. m-laanzi or m-naanzi], pl: [mi-laanzi]

Zamaani/ Mwiini/ milaanzi/ ^fmiingi/ yawaalikó/ waana/ wash^tinda naazi.

‘During old times in Miini there were many coconut trees, children used to cut coconuts.’

ku-lapa

v. [Sw. apa SSED 18] (lasile) swear an oath

Nakulapá/ ka chivo cha qur’aani. ‘I am swearing by the book of the Quran.’

Nakulapá/ ka ina ya mojiitu. ‘I am swearing by the name of God.’

Nakulapá/ ka ina mtume. ‘I am swearing by the name of the Prophet.’

Nakulapá/ ka msahaafu. ‘I am swearing by the holy Quran.’

Nakulapá/ ka qur’aani. ‘I am swearing by the Quran.’

Nakulapá/ ka yamiini (or: ka yamiini). ‘I am swearing by the right hand.’

Omari/ kaaziye/ kulapa. ‘Omari is always swearing (using one of the common phrases for swearing to the truth of something) (lit. Omari, his job is swearing).’

rel.

ku-lapika v. p/s.

ku-lapila v. appl. (lapiliile)

kulapila waanawa ‘to swear on the name of my children’

Mi/ humlapila/ Omari/ kuwaa ye/ hakooði/ wanaafakhi. ‘I swear, affirm that Omari does not tell lies.’

ku-lapiloowa v. appl. pass.

Kulapilowa qur'aani/ nii ndila. 'To swear with the Quran is the right (thing to do – one cannot use any other book etc.)' ku-lapoowa v. pass.

Kulapoowa/ zilapo za wanaafakhi/ ni haraamu. 'To swear false swearing is impure, taboo.'

ku-lasa v. caus. (lasiize) administer taking an oath kumlasa 'to make someone swear an oath – e.g. administer an oath' ku-lasanya v. caus. rec.

ku-lasika v. caus. p/s.

ku-lasiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-lasilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-lasoowa v. caus. pass. (lasiiza)

Ra'isi wiitu/ lasiiza. 'Our president was sworn in.'

We/ takulasoowa/ ka msahaafu. 'You will be sworn in using the Holy Quran.'

rel.

chi-lapo (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kiapo SSED 18] oath

khpita chilapo '(lit.) to pass a swearing – a test establishing that one is right (on some issue)'

Mi/ takhpita chilapo/ ka msahaafu. 'I will pass the swearing with the Quran – i.e. I will prove I am right by swearing on the Quran (a Muslim would never lie while swearing on the Quran due to fear of what would happen to him should he do so).'

kubiga chilapo 'to swear an oath'

ku-lapiza

v. curse

kumlapiza 'to curse someone'

Mzele oyo/ kaaziye/ kulapiza. 'That old man always curses (lit. that old man, his job, is to curse).'

Mzeele/ siwo/ suura/ kumlapiza maanawe. 'It is not good for a parent to curse his children.'

rel.

ku-lapizan(y)a v. rec.

Wazele awo/ kazi yaawo/ kulapizana. 'Those old people are always cursing each other out (lit. their work is to curse each other).'

ku-lapizan(y)oowa v. rec. pass.

Kulapizanoowa/ siwo/ suura. 'To curse one another is not good.'

ku-lapizoowa v. pass.

Kulapizowa waantú/ siwo/ suura. 'Cursing people is not good.'

rel.

chi-lapizo (zi-) n. 7/8 a curse; the act of cursing

Chilapizo chiwovu/ humrudila menewe. 'A bad curse can revert (rebound, strike back at, etc.) its owner (i.e. the one who cursed).' (A proverb.)

chi-laatu (zi-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. kiatu SSED 236] shoe

Baana/ zilaatuze/ zibishiḷa luuchido/ zinakuwala. 'Baana's shoes are polished, they are shining.'

chilatu cha gooma 'rubber shoe' chilatu cha mpiira 'sports shoe' chilaatu/ cha muke wa sulṭaani 'the shoe of the wife of the sultan' chilatu chaa ngozi 'leather shoe' chilatu cha zookolo 'high-heel shoe' chilatu chatushiló 'a shoe that was split open'; zilatu zatushiló 'shoes that were split open' chilatu chelpe 'white shoe'; zilatu zelpe 'white shoes' chilatu chimooyi 'one shoe'; zilatu ziwili 'two shoes' superstition.) Chilatu chimooyi/ hachivaloowi. ‘A single shoe is not worn.’ (A Chimwaambila/ chilaatu/ ndimí/ mp^hheetó. ‘He told him: the shoe, it is me who found it.’

joogi/ ya zilaatu ‘a pair of shoes’ khfanya chilaatu ‘to make a shoe; to repair a shoe’

Nakendra khfanya chilaatuchá/ chitindikiile. ‘I am going to repair my shoe (because) it has gotten cut.’

khfungula chilaatu ‘to take, pull off a shoe’ khkula chilaatu ‘to take, pull off a shoe’ khtila chilaatu ‘to put on a shoe’ kumfunga zilaatu ‘to tie someone’s shoes’

Tuuma/ namfunga maana/ zilaatu. ‘Tuuma is tying the child’s shoes.’

kumtila zilaatu ‘to put shoes on someone’

Tuuma/ namtila maana/ zilaatu. ‘Tuuma is putting shoes on the child.’

kuvala chilaatu ‘to put on a shoe’ lachi za zilaatu ‘laces of shoes’

Maamé/ maskiini/ takinendraayi/ ka chilatu chimooyi. ‘Mother, how will the poor (woman) walk with (just) one shoe?’

Maskiini/ chivala sarwaani/ haanzu/ ijuukhu/ chileemba/ na zilaatú.

‘The poor man put on trousers, a haanzu, a cloak, a turban, and shoes.’

Nakendra khfanya chilaatuchá/ chambushile. ‘I am going to repair my shoe (because the sole) has gotten detached.’

Nakubiga zilaatuzá/ luuchidó. ‘I am polishing my shoes.’

taki ya chilaatu ‘heel of a shoe’

Tuuma/ nt^hampa/ Omari/ zilaatu. ‘Tuuma did not give Omari the shoes.’

Wo/ hufanya zilaatu. ‘They make shoes.’

zilatu spiya ‘new shoes’

zilatu za khfakaṭila ‘running shoes’

zilatu za kiineendrela ‘walking shoes’

zilatu za ghaali ‘expensive shoes’

zilatu za rakhiisi ‘cheap shoes’ zilatu zimaliizó ‘worn-out shoes’

zilatu zishepe ‘old shoes’

zilatu ziwili/ naazó/ za ḍahabu ‘two shoes which were made of gold’

rel.

chi-ji-laatu (zi-ji-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-ji-laatu (mi-ji-) n. 5/4 aug.

mi-laatu n. 4 aug. large boots

Wakhtí wa barafu/ Ameerika/ huvalowa milaatu/ ya buuti/ kurebela bardi. ‘During cold times in America big boots are worn to stop the cold with.’

-le

adj. [Sw. -refu SSED 398] tall, long

Faatíma/ haanzu/ kaa wule/ yiize/ mṭosha/ iwelee yile/ zaaydi. ‘Faatima, on the length side, the dress did not fit her, it was too long.’

ibat^heraa yile ‘a long aug. boat’ khfanyaa ndre ‘to make long’

Kooḍi/ muunt^hu/ shkooḍa/ siwo/ suura/ khfanyaa ndre/ suura/kugaawisha. ‘When a person speaks, it is not good to to make it long, it is good to shorten.’

mw-aana/ kawaa mule/ kolko Muusa ‘if the boy had been taller than Muusa’ itarajaa yile ‘a high step of a staircase’; mat^harajaa male ‘high steps of a staircase’ khatii ndre ‘a long letter’

Laakini/ maanyi/ yawaliko maleemale/ yotte/ apo. ‘But the grass was very tall there.’

Ipeloo lile ‘long broom’
-le/ kana igamiila (or: ngamiila) ‘as tall as a camel’
Omari/ waank^hulé/ mule/ kana ngamiila. ‘Omari, his grandfather is as tall as a camel.’
-le/ kana iloongoti ‘as long as a pole’
Mi nii mulé / kolko Muusa. ‘I am taller than Muusa.’ (Cf. the simple yes-no question: Mi/ nii mulé / kolko Muusá? ‘Am I taller than Muusa?’ In this question, the accent on kolko Muusa shifts to the final syllable.)
mibaṭeraa mile ‘long aug. boats’ mikonoo mile ‘long arms, long sleeves’
Miti/ yote/ yatakuwaa mile. ‘All the trees will become tall.’ Or: Yatakuwaa mile/ miti/ yote. ‘Will become tall, all the trees.’ (A right-dislocated subject ordinarily is radically lowered in comparison to the preceding verb phrase. However, in this example, where miti is followed by the quantifier yote, this lowering does not occur. This is presumably the consequence of the presence of yote.)
mkonoo mule ‘a long arm’ mp^heloo ndre ‘long brooms’, or mp^helo ndree ndre ‘long brooms’ (The accent is noteworthy here. Accent in both examples is on the final monosyllabic element ndre. But the reduplicated adjective ndree ndre must be taken to represent two words for this to be the case. If we were to analyze the adjective as ndreendre, then accent would be predicted to fall on the penult syllable.)
munt^huu mule ‘tall person’
Muusa/ nii mule/ kolko ya naani. ‘Muusa is taller than who?’ Or: Muusa/ nii mule/ kolko naani.
Mwanaa mule/ ile. ‘The tall boy came.’ Or: Ile mwanaa mule. Cf. It is not preferred to say Mwaana/ mule/ ile. ‘A tall boy came.’, one would rather say Ile mwaana/ mule. to convey that meaning.)
Mwanaa mule/ mbishile Nuuru. ‘The tall boy hit Nuuru.’ Cf. Mwaana/ mule/ mbishile Nuuru. ‘A tall boy hit Nuuru.’
Naani/ mulé/ kolko Hamadí. ‘Who is taller than Hamadi?’ (Although ni is possible, it seems redundant: Naani/ nii mulé/ kolko Hamadí.)
Nii mile/ miti aya. ‘These trees are tall (lit. are tall these trees).’
Ni milee nt^ho/ miti aya. ‘These trees are very tall (lit. are very tall these trees).’
Nimwene Omarii mulé. ‘I saw Omari the tall (as opposed to some other Omari).’
Niwawene wana watatu waleewalé. ‘I saw the three tall children.’
numbaa ndre ‘tall building(s)’ (cf. alternative plural form: numba ndreendre)
Nuzile haanzú/ ndre. ‘I bought a long dress.’ (Because ndre is a monosyllable, it is not possible to immediately see whether it has a final accent that has propagated from the verb to the end of the verb phrase, or whether it has final accent because that is the only possible realization. The example sentence Nuzile haanzú/ ndre/ huundru. ‘I bought a long red dress’ does not necessarily illuminate the matter. The absence of final accent on huundru shows that either it or the preceding ndre is a barrier to the propagation of final accent. It seems to be a valid generalization that an emphasized adjective does not accept the propagation of final accent nor does it allow propagation across it. It remains to be determined whether the location of emphasis is restricted in a sequence of adjectives.)
Sarkaali/ mkonooe/ nii mule. ‘The government has a long arm.’ (A proverb.)
Sultani waa noka/ chimwaambila/ kuwa khisaze/ nii ndre/ nt^ho. ‘The sultan of the snakes told him that his story was very long.’
Wana awa/ nii wale. ‘These children are tall.’
want^huu wale ‘tall people’
Waawe/ na maamé/ nii wale. ‘Father and mother are tall.’

ku-le

loc. far away, far off
Arabiya/ siwo/ kulé. ‘Wednesday is not far off.’
Duude/ siwo/ kule. ‘Duude (located off the shore facing the Friday mosque) is not far away.’

kaa kule ‘in the distance’

Nk^haanga/ waliko chila/ kaa kule/ nt^ho. ‘The guinea fowl was crying from very far off.’

Maraöi yakoo kulé/ hayaletooi/ khariibu. ‘Disease that is far away is not brought closer.’ (A proverb.)

wu-le

n. height, length

Ali/ ni sawasawa/ na munt^hu uje/ kaa wule. ‘Ali is the same as that man in terms of height.’

Faatima/ haanzu/ kaa wule/ yiize/ m^hosha/ iwelee yile/ zaaydi. ‘Faatima, on the length side, did not fit her, it was too long.’

Muunt^hu/ chishome^howa surwaani/ hupimowa miimbaye/ na wulewé. ‘If one is sewn for trousers, he is measured his waist (stomach) and his length.’

ku-lekela

v. [cf. Sw. elekea SSED 81] (lekeele) face towards something, be aimed at something, head towards, turn to Bundukhu/ imlekele Hamadi. ‘The gun is aimed at Hamadi.’ (Even though in this sentence Hamadi controls object agreement on the verb, it is not possible for Hamadi to be the subject of a corresponding passive sentence: Hamadi/ leke^hla na bundukhu. ‘Hamadi was aimed at by the gun.’ This is presumably a function of the non-agentive nature of the subject of Bundukhu/ imlekele Hamadi.)

Chilikelapi. ‘Where are you headed to?’

Chilekelapi/ we. ‘Where are you headed to?’

Chimaliza/ chimlekela oyoo muke/ chimwaambila... ‘Then he faced the woman and said to her...’

Chingila mooyi/ ka mooyi/ mpaka m^htanaani/ apo/ ye/ chilekela chiliini/ ka nt^hini ya m^htaawo/ shtomolaa chita/ icho/ chichiwekaa nt^hi. ‘He went straight in as far as the bedroom, there he headed to the bed, and from under the pillow, he took out that head [of a goat] and put it on the floor.’

Chiwa nakulekela khariibu/ ya mwaana... ‘He (the snake) was going near the baby...’

Chiwalekela mp^hana ziingine. ‘He faced the other rats.’

Is^hlaamu/ wachisala/ hulekela ka’aba. ‘When Muslims pray, they face the ka’aba.’

Ka nasiibu/ ya Abdalla/ kuwa suura/ siimba/ lekele muiyini. ‘Abdalla’s luck being good, the lion headed towards town.’

Khaaöi/ chimlekela msaafiri/ chimwaambila... ‘The judge faced the traveler and said to him...’

kulekela khibla ‘to face the direction towards which one prays’

Maha^hlaa mi/ kulekela/ siisi. ‘I do not know where to turn (lit. the place to direct myself towards).’

Maskiini/ chimlekela mwenye eelo. ‘The poor man faced the owner of the gazelle.’

Mooyi/ ka mooyi/ lekele nunguuni/ kuja. ‘Directly he went to the pot to eat.’

Muunt^hu/ chisala/ hulekela ka’aba. ‘When one prays, he faces the Ka’aba.’

N^haynakundrekela/ chiint^hu/ leelo. ‘Nothing is going right for me today.’

Siimba/ chimlekela bakayle. ‘The lion turned to the hare.’

Wachilekela chisimaani. ‘They headed to the well.’

Wakomelopo muiyini/ sul^htaani/ na wamrashiizó/ wote/ mo/ ka mooyi/ wachilekela chisimaani. ‘When they reached the town, the sultan and the ones who followed him, all headed straight to the well.’

We/ waliko chilekelapi/ yana/ we/ naa munó. ‘Where were you heading to yesterday, you and your younger brother?’

rel.

ku-lekelela v. appl.

Shkalan^ha shtako/ khfikira yaa ye/ khfaanya/ laakini/ nt^haku/ imlekeleleó. ‘He sat (on his buttocks) and thought about what he should do, but nothing came to mind (i.e. he came up with no good ideas how to cope with the situation).’

ku-lekeleloowa v. pass.

Ichisaloowa/ kulekelowa ká'aba/ khibla. 'When praying, it is faced the Ka'aba/ the praying direction.'

ku-lekeza v. (lekeeze) aim, point at; direct; cause to face; adjust husaalo khfikira silekezi kiitu [song] 'what remains is thinking, I am not able to direct myself home'

Huseeni/ chilekeza/ ka chinumeche/ teena/ ichiwa/ ina/ ya sultaani/ inakuwonekana. 'Huseeni adjusted it (the turban) at his back, then it became that the name of the sultan was visible (the name having been written on the turban).'

Isa/ yaa ye/ kulekeza/ nthaná. 'Now he does not have anything to suggest.'

kulekeza bundukhu 'to aim a gun' Ali/ mlekeze Hamadi/ bunukhu. 'Ali aimed the gun at Hamadi.'

kulekeza qibla 'to make face the praying direction' kulekeza kooodi 'to make one's speech meaningful, to the point; to try to figure out what to say; to be good at using words'

Walekeze kooodi/ izi/ ka izi. 'They thought of this and that to say.'

Waana/ washalaantha/ kulekeza kooodi. 'The children sat, trying to figure out what to say.'

Ye/ ni mkali/ kulekeza kooodi. 'He is good at using words effectively.'

Kulekeza/ siwo/ khfuma. 'To aim (i.e. to try to put things together without proper knowledge and expertise) is not weaving (an activity that requires care and planning).' (A proverb advising that doing something willynilly or just theorizing about something is not doing.; haphazard actions or words alone do not get results.)

Llepo/ lldegeelopó/ naa nvulá/ ifungiilopó/ ichibele majiira/ na nthashkukhaadira/ kulekezaa ndila. 'When the wind calmed down and when the rain stopped, we had lost our way and were not able to aim for the path, way.'

Muke/ chimonyeza Sa'iidi/ chimlekeza/ ka chaala/ chimwaambila/ langala oko. Nt^hi yaa we/ nakuwonó/ ndiyó/ nthi ya mayahuudi. 'The woman showed Sa'iidi, pointing with her finger, saying to him: look over there! The land that you see, it is the land of the Jews.'

ku-lekezalekeza v. redup.

Hamadi/ lekezelekeze/ fanyiize/ chili/ laakini/ sku ya piili/ ba/ chivundishile. 'Hamadi tried (lit. aimed-aimed) to fix the bed, but on the second day it broke.'

ku-lekezeka v. caus. p/s.

Fulaani/ halekezeki. 'So-and-so cannot be made to face something.'

ku-lekezoowa v. caus. pass.

Askari/ walekeza kumshika mwiizi. 'The police have been instructed to arrest the thief.'

kulekezowa bundukhu 'to be aimed at a gun'

Osmaani/ lekeza bundukhu/ na Ali. 'Osmaani had a gun aimed at him by Ali.'

rel. nom.

u-lekelo n. 14 direction (of a place)

m-lekeza (wa-) n. 1/2 one who aims at, directs chi-lekezo (zi-) n. sign, hint ku-lela v. [Sw. lea "bring up, rear, nurse, educate" SSED 242] (?lezele) ?bring up (It is uncertain whether this verb in fact exists in Chimiini, but a passive verb appears to be attested in a stenzi passage.)

rel.

ku-leloowa v. pass. (lezela) be brought up, raised wazaazila walezela/ na jisaayi wo washpendoowa [st.] 'how they were born and brought up and how they were loved' ku-leela v. (lezele) be loose (e.g. a tooth, clothing), hang over

Abuuyi/ surwaani/ ni nk^huluye/ inamleela/ shar^ti/ khfunga lkaandra. ‘Abuuyi, the trousers are too big, they are hanging loose, he must wear a belt.’
Alí/ shaati/ ikuluye/ inamleela. ‘Ali’s shirt is bigger than him, it is hanging on him.’
Kharibu ya tawala/ uwaliko muti mooyi/ nt^haanzize/ schilelo ilu ya maayi. ‘Near the sea there was a tree whose branches hung over the water.’
L^aani/ laa muti/ lchileeló/ lpo^te^le ilu yaa jasi/ khacha khacha!/ lweeló. ‘The branch of the tree, which was hanging over, fell on the roof khacha khacha! (that’s how) it became.’
Nguwo/ inamleela. ‘The cloth is loose for him.’
Nuumba/ inakuleela. ‘The house was no longer firm (lit. was loose).’
Sheekhi/ sasiile/ hatá/ surwaani/ inamleela. ‘Sheekhi got thin until trousers were loose on him.’

rel.

ku-leeleza v. caus. (leleeze) loosen, hang s.t. over

Ichiwa teena/ ye/ huleeleza/ chileemba/ chisimaani/ schidaara/ maayi/ hichigiita. ‘It became then that he puts the turban into the well and when it touches the water, he pulls it up.’

kuleeleza/ nguwo ‘to make cloth loose’ ku-lelezeka v. caus. p/s, (lelezeshela) able to be loosened

Ifundro iyi/ ha’ilelezeki/ jis’iyo. ‘This knot cannot be loosened in that way.’

m-leele (wa-)

n. 1/2 someone sick (apparently use is restricted to steenzi)

humiinfa menyé afiya na mleele [st.] it (the Quran) is useful to the healthy and the sick alike’

leleeyi/ ondrosheleeyi

how did you sleep [and] how did you wake up? (a more personal query in the morning than bariida)

leelo

adv. [Sw. leo SSED 243] today, one day

Chiwa’ambila ya kuwa mwaana/ leelo/ nakhpowa ina. ‘She told them that the child was being given a name today.’

hatá/ leelo ‘now, until one day [lit. until today]’

Basi/ hatá/ leelo/ oyo mubli/ chiwa hakhaadiri/ chifa. ‘So, until one day that man became sick and died.’

Leelo/ ni jima nne. ‘Today is Tuesday.’

Leelo/ we/ ni munt^hu taakufó/ tu. ‘Today you are just a man who is going to die.’

Mbona/ ragiilé/ leelo. ‘How come you are so late (doing s.t.) today?’

Muja leelo/ keesho/ haaji. ‘The one who eats today does not eat tomorrow.’ (A proverb.)

Nakhsaafirá/ leelo. ‘I am leaving on a trip today.’ (Cf. Nakhsafira leeló. ‘It’s today that I am leaving on a trip.’)

Uko leeló / keesho/ nt^haako. ‘What is here today, tomorrow is not here.’ (A proverb.)

Uko/ uko/ attá/ leelo/ chishika miimba/ chizaala/ mwaana/ mubli. ‘She stayed and stayed until one day [lit. today] she became pregnant and gave birth to a baby boy.’

Waako/ waako/ hattá/ leelo/ wawaaye/ chiwa hakhaadiri/ chifa. ‘They lived and lived until one day [lit. today] his father became sick and died.’

chi-lemma (zi-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. kilema SSED 243] handicapped person, cripple

Mteka chilema/ hu^tekowaa ye/ amó/ waaké. ‘One who laughs at a cripple is laughed at, or his (relative) is.’ (A proverb.) review

mwenye chilema ‘crippled’

chi-leemba (zi-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. kilemba SSED 195] turban

Chileemba/ icho/ chiwaliko chisuura/ nt^ho. ‘That turban was very beautiful.’

Huseeni/ naayé/ chishfaanya/chileemba. ‘Huseeni, and he, made it (a piece of cloth) into a turban.’

kubiga chileemba ‘to wrap a turban on someone; use as a turban’

Huseeni/ chivala nguwoze/ shtaala/ na chiguwó/ cha mwanaamke/ mpeeló/ chibiga chileemba/ lpiindo/ la chiguwo/ landishilá/ ina ya sultaani. ‘Huseeni put on his clothes and took as well the piece of cloth that the girl had given him and used it as a turban; the edge of the turban had written on it the name of the sultan.’

Kuvala chileemba chelpe/ si kumtiya mwajiitu. ‘To wear a white turban is not (necessarily) to fear God.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaarabu/ vete chileemba. ‘An Arab has put on a turban.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is daank^hu ‘popcorn’.)

Sa’iidi/ shpita mbele ya waant^hu/ shtala ije riyaali/ chimtilila mnaadisho/ kaake/ chilembaani. ‘Sa’iidi took his place [lit.

passed] in front of the people, and he took that riyaali, and he put it for the auctioneer in his turban.’

Sku ya arkhamiisi/ mi/ noloshelé/ muyiini/ apo/ sukhuuni/ nimwene mbiga mnaadó/ bishilo chileembá/ chisuurá/ chiṭaani/ kaaké. ‘On the day of Thursday I went downtown and there at the market I saw the auctioneer who was wearing a nice turban on his head.’

rel.

i-leemba (mi-) n. turban shṭakumbiga ileemba/ na nguwo ya khfinikoowa [st.] ‘tighten his turban and cover him with a cloth’

leembe

n. razor

Chisu ichi/ shkali/ kana leembe. ‘This knife is as sharp as a razor.’

rel.

chi-leembe (zi-) n. 7/8 straight razor

Omari/ nakumolowa mashuungi/ chiṭa/ ka chileembe. ‘Omari is getting his head hair cut with a little razor.’

ku-lemela

v. [Sw. lemea SSED 243] (lemeele) lean on s.t. or s.o. for support; be against s.t. (physically); be on Baazi/ lemele ikuta. ‘Baazi leaned against the wall.’

Baazi/ mtile mwaana/ kulemela ikuta. ‘Baazi caused the child to lean against the wall.’ (Syn. This periphrastic causative formation is used to describe the situation where Baazi induced the child to lean against the wall, rather than physically manipulating him. The latter notion is expressed by the verb -lemeza. More complex periphrastic forms: Baazi/ mtijile Nureeni/ mwaana/ kulemela ikuta. ‘Baazi caused on/for Nureeni the child to lean against the wall.’ And: Baazi/ na Nureeni/ watijilene waana/ kulemela ikuta. ‘Baazi and Nureeni caused one another’s children to lean against the wall.’)

Kharibu ya ilooni/ ofeetopó/ chilemela mteendre/ khpumula/ na usiinzizi/ uchimtaala. ‘About dusk, when he got tired, he leaned against the date tree to rest and sleep overtook him.’

Mahmuudi / lemele ikuta. ‘Mahmuudi leaned against the wall.’

Mp^hula/ indemelee kana. ‘[Lit.] my nose is leaning on my mouth – i.e. I cannot talk for some reason.’

Ngazi/ ilemele ikuta (or: ikutaani). ‘The ladder was leaning against the wall.’

rel.

ku-lemeleka v. p/s.

Halemeleki. ‘One cannot lean against him (e.g. without his showing his disapproval). ‘

ku-lemeleza v. tr. appl. (lemeleeze) lean s.t. against s.t. for, etc.

Baazi/ mlemeleze Nureeni/ mwaana/ Ikuta. ‘Baazi leaned Nureeni’s child against the wall.’

ku-lemelezanya v. tr appl. rec. (-lemeleezenye) lean s.t. against s.t. for one another

Baazi/ na Nureeni/ walemlezenye waana/ Ikuta. ‘Baazi and Nureeni leaned their children against the wall for one another.’

ku-lemeza v. tr. (lemeeze) lean s.t. against s.t.; strike, pound s.t. (e.g. with a stick)

Baazi/ mlemeze mwaana/ Ikuta. ‘Baazi leaned the child against the wall.’

Hamadi/ lemezee muti/ Ikutaani. ‘Hamadi leaned a piece of wood against the wall.’ Also in the same meaning: Hamadi/ lemeze Ikuta/ muti. (In the latter example, the noun Ikuta is in its bare form and located in position after the verb, while in the former sentence it is in its locative form and is normally ordered after the direct object muti.. But one can also say Hamadi/ lemezee muti/ Ikuta.) kulemeza ka... ‘to strike sharply with’ kulemeza kaa luti ‘to strike sharply with a stick’

Lemezee ngazi/ Ikutaani. ‘He leaned the ladder against the wall.’

ku-lemezalemeza v. freq.

Wachindremezandremeza mijiwe. ‘They struck me repeatedly with large stones.’ (Observe that when the stem is reduplicated, the first person singular object is repeated in both parts of the reduplication. This seems to be triggered by the fact that the nasal object prefix combines with the stem-initial consonant to form a prenasalized stop ndr.)

ku-lemezanya v. tr. rec. lean against one another ku-lemezeka v. tr. p/s.

Ikuta ili/ hallemezeki/ ngazi. ‘This wall does not allow a ladder to be leaned against it.’

Ngazi iyi/ haylemezeki/ Ikutaani. ‘This ladder cannot be leaned against the wall.’

ku-lemezana v. tr. rec. strike one another (e.g. with a stick)

ku-lemezanya v. tr. rec. lean against one another

ku-lemezoowa v. caus. pass. (lemeeza) be leaned against s.t.

Ikuta/ ilemezaa muti/ na Hamadi. (There is no very good English equivalent for this Chimiini sentence. Roughly it says that the wall is the location against which a piece of wood was made to lean by Hamadi.)

Ngazi/ ilemeza Ikutaani. ‘The ladder was leaned against the wall.’ (One cannot say Ngazi/ ilemeza Ikuta., which suggests that in the active sentence, when both verbal complements are bare – i.e. Ikuta is not in its locative form, then Ikuta functions as the object and is subject to being made into the subject of the corresponding passive sentence.)

ku-leeta

v. [Sw. leta SSED 244] (leesele) bring, go and bring back; bring back up (vomit)

Akhili niingi/ kuletaa dhibu. ‘Too much cleverness causes harm.’ (A proverb.)

Ali/ lesele gaari/ numbaani. ‘Ali brought the car home.’

Chaayi/ leeseló/ ni mgeeni. ‘The tea, the one who brought it is the guest.’

Cheendra/ chimleta mwaana/ chimleetó/ wa qaaði. ‘He went and brought [home] the son, that’s what he did, of a judge.’

Cheendra/ chimleta mwana wa taatu/ chimleetó. ‘He went and brought a third child, that is what he did.’

Chileta chaakuja/ chiwa’egesha. ‘He brought food and invited them to eat it [lit. welcomed them].’

Chimwambila killeeta. ‘He told him to bring it (e.g. lpaanga ‘sword’).’ (Observe that the infinitive prefix ku is realized as ki in front of the [cl.11] object prefix l(i).)

Chimwambila mukeewe/ kuleta chaakuja. ‘He told his wife to bring the food.’

chint^hu chaa ye/ leeseló ‘something that he brought’

Fardoosa/ lesele maayi. ‘Fardoosa brought water.’ Or with verb focus: Fardoosa/ leesele/ maayi. Or with left-dislocation but not focus on the complement:

Maayi/ Fardoosa/ leesele. Or with left-dislocation and focus on the complement: Maayi/ Fardoosa/ leeseló.

Hamadi/ chilesele chibuku cha mwaalimu. ‘Hamadi brought the teacher’s book.’
(The head of the associative phrase can trigger an object prefix on the verb, as can be seen in this example. The head is a definite noun in this case.)

However, when the associative phrase is "repackaged", replacing the associative particle AG-a with a possessive enclitic on the head, no object agreement is possible: Hamadi/ chilesele mwaalimu/ chibuukuche. or Hamadi/ chilesele chibukuche mwaalimu. This limitation on object agreement in the "repackaged" constructions is apparently true only of inanimate nouns.)

Hamadi/ lesele chibuku cha mwaalimu. ‘Hamadi brought a book of the teacher’s.’
The associative phrase may be "repackaged" as follows: Hamadi/ lesele mwaalimu/ chibuukuche. or Hamadi/ lesele chibukuche mwaalimu. The second repackaging was used often by MI, but seems unacceptable to the speakers we consulted recently.)

Haṭaa we/ nakhkoḍo na Nuurú/ nakendra nṭ^hiini/ kuleta zoombozá.
‘While you are talking to Nuuru, I am going down to bring my things.’

Haye/ lete wahaliwe. ‘Ok, bring the other one [lit. its companion].’

Kulla/ chiwo/ schilawa/ na waalimú/ washpitaa mbele/ wachileeta/ lamna iyi/ wachileetó. ‘Every Quranic school class went out and the teachers walked in front, and they brought these things (the writing boards), that’s what they did.’

kuleta dalili ‘to cite evidence’

Lesele dalili/ karka Qur’aani. ‘He cited evidence from the Quran.’

kuleta haqiqa ‘to relate the essence, the truth about something’ Lesele haqiqa ya amri. ‘He related the details of the events.’
Lesele haqiqa ya kooḍi. ‘He related the essence of the conversation.’

kuleta kooḍi ‘to relate what has been said by someone when one was not supposed to do this’
Omari/ tabi’aye/ mbovu/ kaaziye/ kulet kooḍi/ apa. ‘Omari has a bad character, his practice (lit. his job) is to take talk from here and talk from there (i.e. take people’s words and try to make mischief between people).’

kuleta nyenyeghi ‘to bother someone greatly’ Ali/ humleta waawaye/ enyenyeghi/ kilaa wakhtí/ nakuḷana na wana wiingine/ chiwooni. ‘Ali is giving his father a hard time, he is always fighting with other children at religious school.’

kuleta ruuhu ‘to supplicate, beg, entreat’ Fulaani/ mlesele ruuhu. ‘So-and-so entreated, begged him.’

kuleta x ruuhu ‘to bother someone very much’ Fulaani/ mlesele Jeeli/ ruuhu. ‘So-and-so bothered Jeeli very much.’

kuleta shaahidi ‘to introduce a witness’ kuleta shaawuri ‘to make a suggestion, discuss how to accomplish s.t.’

Wazele/ wakalent^hee faḍi/ kuleta shaawuri/ jisaa zita/ za khabiila/ zinakinendro Miini/ kureboowa. ‘The elders held a meeting to decide how to stop the clan fighting going on in Miini.’

kuletaa zita ‘to bring war’ kumwaambila/ kuwa badiikhi/ mi/ ndresele ka khabriini/ ka maamé ‘to tell her that I brought the melon from my mother’s grave’

Lesele chibuuku. ‘He brought a book.’

Lesele da’awa/ ka sarkaali. ‘He took his complaint to the government.’

Leselee khati/ ka Aasha. ‘He brought a letter to Aasha (or: to Aasha’s place).’

Leselee khati/ ka Aasha/ numbaani. ‘He brought a letter to Aasha’s house.’

Lesele makina yaa tala/ Mwiini. ‘He brought an electric generator to Brava.’

Leselee nthume/ ka Jeeli. ‘He brought a message to/from Jeeli.’

Leeta. ‘Bring!’ Cf. Letaani. ‘(Pl.) bring!’

Lesele chibuuku. ‘He brought a book.’

Lesele da’awa/ ka sarkaali. ‘He took his complaint to the government.’

Lesele makina yaa tala/ Mwiini. ‘He brought an electric generator to Brava.’

Leselee nt^hume/ Jeeli. ‘He brought a message to (or from) Jeeli.’

Lesele peesa/ madrasaani. ‘He took money to school.’ (One can strip the goal of the locative enclitic and have it serve as the head of a relative clause: madrasa yaa ye/ lesele peesá ‘the school that he took money to’.)

Leete. ‘Bring it!’ (cf. Leteeni! ‘You (pl.) bring it!’)

Lete chaakuja/ ka mikooni. ‘Go and bring food from the kitchen.’

Maryamu/ zileeseló/ zo. ‘Maryamu brought them.’

Matezo miingi/ huletaa dhibu. ‘Too many jokes brings problems.’ (A proverb.)

Mgeni/ lesele chaayi. ‘The guest brought tea.’

Mlesele mwaana/ Mwiini/ kumkorsha. ‘He brought the child to Brava to raise him.’ (It is perhaps worth noting that one cannot use the applied form of the verb to express this idea: Letelele Mwiini/ mwaana/ kumkorsha. ‘He brought to Brava the child to raise.’) muke waa ye/ leseloo khatí/ kaaké ‘the woman whom he brought a letter to’ (cf. muke waa ye/ leseloo khatí/ kaaké/ numbaani ‘the woman whom he brought a letter to her place’; also cf. muke waa ye/ leseloo khatí/ ka kaaké ‘the woman whom he brought a letter from’)

Muunthu/ lesele majiwe. ‘The man brought stones.’ Or with verb focus: Muunthu/ leesele/ majiwe. Or with verb focus and an object marker on the verb: Muunthu/ yaleesele/ majiwe. Or with left dislocation without focus: Majiwe/ muunthu/ yaleesele.

Mpuunga/ lesele numbaani. ‘Rice he brought to the house.’

Mwaana/ chimjiiba/ ya kuwa khabari/ zaa ye/ leeseló/ siwo/ suura. ‘The child answered him that the news that he brought was not good.’

Mwambile Ali/ sileete/ chaayi. ‘Tell Ali not to bring tea.’ (But it is also possible for the negative subjunctive verb to be phrased with the complement: Mwambile Ali/ silete chaayi.)

Naank^hó/ numa/ chimwaambila/ maamaye/ chimwaambila/ mwaanawá/ leelo/ mwana uyu/ mleseló/ simleeté/ maraa ka isa/ mlete mwana mwiingine. ‘And again, afterwards, she told him, the mother told him: my son, today this child is the one whom you brought; don’t bring him the coming time, bring another child.’

Ndreeselé. Or Nleeselé. ‘I brought it.’

Nilleeselé. ‘I brought it [cl.11] (e.g. luti ‘a stick’).’

Nimwambile Ali/ sileeté/ chaayi. ‘I told Ali: don’t bring tea!’ (This example illustrates a direct quote of a negative imperative verb. A negative subjunctive form is illustrated in Nimwambile Ali/ silete chaayi. ‘I told Ali not to bring tea.’)

Nt^haku/ yaa ye/ hukhadiro kuleetá. ‘There is nothing that he can bring.’

Nuuru/ lesele chibuuku/ ka mwaana. ‘Nuuru brought the book to the child’s place (i.e. to his home, not to him wherever he might be).’

Omari/ leesele/ mpuunga/ numbaani. ‘Omari brought rice home.’ Or: Omari/ lesele numbaani/ mpuunga. ‘Omari brought home rice.’ It is also possible to focus the locative in situ: Omari/ lesele mpuunga/ numbaani. (Without the focus on the locative, this word order and phrasing would be an instance of a canonical (“all new information”) sentence, characterized by downstep intonation: Omari/ lesele mpuunga/ numbaani. The post-verbal complement can also be focused: Omari/ lesele mpuunga/ numbaani. ‘Omari brought rice home.’ Without this focus, realized as raised pitch, we again have the canonical sentence cited above.)

Omari/ leesele/ zoombo/ adadi niingi. ‘Omari brought things in large number.’

Osmaani/ jilee kuja/ yont^he/ leesele. ‘Osmaani ate (so much) food (that) he brought all of it back up (vomited).’

Sileteení. ‘You (pl.) don’t bring it!’

Sultaani/ chimuuzá/ karaayle/ nini/ imleselo apá. ‘The king [of the kites] asked the crow what brought him here.’

Wa’ambile waana/ wasileete/ chaayi. ‘Tell the children not to bring tea.’ (But it is also possible to phrase the negative subjunctive verb with the complement: Wa’ambile waana/ wasilete chaayi.)

Waliko ni eelo/ uyu/ ndreseloo mi/ apá. ‘It was this gazelle who brought me here.’
Yaa ye/ naakujó/ nakuleeta. ‘Whatever he eats, he brings it back up (vomits).’
Ye/ haleeti/ kheeri. ‘[Lit.] he does not bring blessing. (Something that is said of a person who, wherever he goes, never pleases anyone.)’

rel.

ku-leesanya v. caus. rec. (leseene or lesanyiize) reconcile two or more parties in discord, create harmony

Lesenye waana. ‘He reconciled the children.’

Waliko ni eelo/ uyu/ lesenyo walwiitú. ‘It was this gazelle who brought us together.’

ku-leetana v. rec. (-leteene) of things to be compatible, agree with each other (e.g. words of two persons)’

Waletene ka qaaði. ‘They went together (at each other’s instigation) to the judge.’

Yaa ye/ khiinfó/ na yaa ye/ khuhāshiliizó/ ha’ileetani. ‘What he does that is useful to you and what he does that is harmful do not offset one another – i.e. he is more damaging to you than useful.’ (A proverbial saying.)

ku-leeteka v. p/s.

Gaari/ hayleeteki/ gedi iyi. ‘This car cannot be brought to this side of town (e.g. there is no bridge or no ferry).’

ku-leteḷoowa v. appl. pass. be brought to, for Chigaari/ chileteḷeḷa Nuuru/ skunyi/ na Ali. ‘The cart was used to bring firewood to Nuuru by Ali.’ (Syn. Observe that the instrument can be the subject of the passive sentence, at the same time that there are two unmarked verbal complements as well. If Nuuru is the passive subject, then chigari must be preceded by a preposition: Nuuru/ leteḷeḷa skunyi/ ka chigaari/ na Ali. ‘Nuuru was brought firewood with a cart by Ali.’

Chileteḷowa sultaani/ khabari. ‘News was brought to the sultan.’ (Notice that in this example, sultaani is the subject of the passive verb and governs a null subject prefix on the verb, but it is postposed after the verb.)

Mi/ nakhtahajaa yo/ kuleteḷowaa mi/ ka himá. ‘I need it brought to me immediately.’

mwalimu leteḷeḷa chibuukú/ naa mi ‘the teacher for whom a book was brought by me’

Mwaana/ leteḷeḷa chibuuku/ na Aasha. ‘The child was brought a book by Aasha.’

Nakuleteḷowa mikuja ya kila lamna/ nakuleteḷoowá. ‘He is being brought foods of every kind, that’s what he is being brought.’ Cf. also: Nakuleteḷowa mikuja/ nakuleteḷoowá/ ya kila lamna. ‘He is being brought foods, that’s what he is being brought, of every kind.’

Sufuriya iyi/ ileteḷeḷa mwaana/ chaakuja (naa Dede). ‘This pan was used to bring the child food (by Dede).’ (Cf. Mwaana/ leteḷeḷa chaakuja/ ka sufuriya iyi/ (naa Dede). ‘The child was brought food with a pan (by Dede).’)

Sufuriya iyi/ ileteḷeḷa shfiniko. ‘This pan was brought for a lid (i.e. for someone to get a lid to put on it).’

Waleteḷeḷa chaayi. ‘They were brought tea.’ Or: Chaayi/ waleteḷeḷa/ wo. [H’H!!H] ‘Tea they were brought for, they.’ (The postposed pronominal subject is subject to extreme downstepping.)

ku-leetela v. appl. (leteḷeḷe) (i) bring to, for; (ii) understand, grasp

(i) Aasha/ mleteḷeḷe mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘Aasha brought a book to the child.’

Chigaari/ Ali/ mleteḷeḷe Nuuru/ skunyi. ‘The cart, Ali brought firewood to Nuuru with it.’ (Observe that the instrument is topicalized to initial position in an unmarked form, i.e. without a preceding preposition, even though this means that -leetela is occurring with three unmarked complements.)

Dede/ mleteḷeḷe mwaana/ chaakuja/ ka sufuriya iyi. ‘Dede brought food for/to the child with this pan.’

Huseeni/ mletelele Nuuru/ skunyi/ ka chigari. ‘Huseeni brought firewood to Nuuru with a cart.’ (Note that in this sentence, it is not possible to omit the preposition ka and leave a bare NP chigari.)

Iletelele ruuhuye/ dhibu. ‘He brought the difficulties on himself.’

Isa/ ndretela mbuziya. ‘Now bring me back my goat.’

Jaama/ letelele sufuriya iyi/ shfiniko. ‘Jaama brought a lid for this pan.’

Jaani/ mletelele mwaalimu/ zawaadi. ‘John brought a gift to the teacher.’

Laakini/ shfikira/ chihada/ waawe/ chinambila oloka/ kumaanganya/ nt^heendre/ ndreetela/ mi/ nt^hamwambilani. ‘But he thought and said if my father told me go, gather up the dates and bring them to me, what would I tell him?’

Leelo/ mp^hete nsi iyi/ mooyi/ ninletelelele. ‘Today I caught this one fish and I brought it to you (pl.).’

Letelele gaari/ ijuulu. ‘He brought a tire for the car.’

Letelele gaari/ miilu. ‘He brought tires for the car.’

Letelele madrasa/ ijarsi. ‘He brought a bell for the school.’

Letelele Mwiini/ makina yaa tala. ‘He brought for Brava an electric generator.’

Mboni/ we/ ragiile/ ndreetela/ mashkilo/ na khalbi/ mi/ nnayoo ndala. ‘Why are you late? Bring me the ears and the heart (of the donkey that was killed), I am hungry.’

Mi/ khuletelele kheeri. ‘I have brought you good news.’

Mi/ nakhtaraja/ mu^hliwa/ kundretela hanzuu mp^hiya. ‘I hope for my husband to bring me a new dress.’

Mi/ nimlinzile Omari/ kundretela kujá/ mi. ‘I waited for Omari to bring me food.’

Mletelele Nuuru/ mwaana/ kumkorsha. ‘He brought the child to Nuuru for him to raise.’

Muke/ chimletela. ‘The wife brought [the books] to him.’

mwalimu wa Jaani/ mletelele zawaadi ‘the teacher to whom John brought a gift’

Ndreetelele chaakuja. ‘He brought food for me.’

Nimletelele mwaaná/ chibuukú. ‘I brought the book to the child.’

Nimletelele Nuurú/ chibuukú/ ka mwaaná. ‘I brought the book for Nuuru to the child’s place.’ (Syn. It is not possible for the applied verb to be used to incorporate both an unmarked beneficiary and an unmarked goal at the same time. It is ungrammatical to say:

Nimletelele Nuurú/ mwaaná/ chibuukú. ‘I brought the book to the child for Nuuru.’)

Nsi uyu/ waawó/ humpeenda/ naamí/ nashiqilé/ kinletela. ‘This fish, your father loves it, and I longed to bring it to you (pl.).’

Nuuru/ mleteleleni/ mwaalimu. ‘What did Nuuru bring to the teacher?’

Oloka/ ndretela apa/ chakujaacha. ‘Go and bring me my food here.’

Si/ chikhuletelele/ we/ shati iyi/ kuvaala/ muunt^hi/ waa we/ zaazilá. ‘We brought this shirt for you to wear it on your birthday.’

Tamletela dhibu. ‘He will cause him trouble.’

Ye/ nt^hakuleta naani/ chibuuku. ‘To whom did he not bring a book?’ Or:

Ye/ nt^hamletela naani/ chibuuku. (Morph. The infinitive prefix ku which occurs in a number of verb tenses is usually deleted when the object prefix is the [cl.1] m(u).)

(ii) Chiza khadira kuletelá/ mi/ takhubla. ‘If you are not able to grasp (the meaning), I will kill you.’

ku-leteleloowa v. appl. pass. (letelelela)

Chili ichi/ chiletelela mwana hakhaadirí. ‘By means of this bed the sick child was brought.’ (Note that the instrument in an instrumental applicative verb can be the subject of the passive verb.)

Nuuru/ letelele skunyi/ ka chigaari. ‘Nuuru was brought firewood with a cart.’ (Note that in this sentence, the preposition ka cannot be omitted, leaving a bare NP chigaari behind. Perhaps surprisingly, a bare NP chigaari can be used in the following sentence: Chigaari/ chiletelele Nuuru/ skunyi. ‘A cart was used to bring firewood to Nuuru.’ In this example, the applied verb allows both Nuuru, the indirect object that controls the OM in the corresponding active sentence, and the instrument to appear without prepositional marking. The instrument is the subject of the passive verb in this “double duty” construction.)

ku-letelana v. appl. rec. bring each other’s for, send to each other, bring for each other

Haliima/ na Umi/ wanakuletelana zoombo/ kilaa mweezi. ‘Haliima and Umi are bringing one another things every month.’

Waleteleene/ waana/ ka qaadi. ‘They brought each other’s children to the judge.’

Waleteleene khati. ‘They sent each other a letter.’

ku-leetesha v. caus. make bring bring food home.’

Haaji/ mletesheze Nuuru/ chaakuja/ numbaani. ‘Haaji caused Nuuru to Ali (‘s place).’

Nimletesheze Nuuru/ mwaaná/ ka Ali. ‘I caused Nuuru to bring the child to Osmaani/ (i)letesheze gaari/ numbaani. ‘Osmaani had the car brought home.’ (Observe that it is possible for the verb to agree with gaari, see the optional object prefix i, only because there is no overt “causee” in the sentence. When the causee is present in the sentence, the verb can only agree with it: Osmaani/ mletesheze Nuuru/ gaari/ numbaani. ‘Osmaani had Nuuru bring the car home.’) ku-letesheka v. caus. p/s.

Mwana uyu/ haletesheki/ gaari/ numbaani. ‘This child cannot be made to bring the car home.’ (Note that a sentence where gaari is subject of the passive/stative verb is clearly ungrammatical if the cause is mentioned: Gari iyi/ hayletesheki/ mwaana/ numbaani. If the causee is not mentioned, making gaari the subject is still of questionable grammaticality: ?Gari iyi/ hayletesheki/ numbaani.)

ku-letesheleza v. caus. appl. (letesheleeze)

(I)letesheleze gaari/ ijuulu. ‘He had a tire brought for the car.’ (Note that the optional object prefix on the verb is in agreement with gaari, the beneficiary in this causative applied sentence, though this fact is not obvious since ijuulu would govern the same agreement.)

Ndretsheleze mwaana/ noka/ numbaani. ‘He caused my child to bring a snake home (to my detriment).’

Nuuru/ letesheleze madrasa/ jarsi. ‘Nuuru caused to be brought for the school a bell.’ (It appears not to be possible to overtly refer to the human “causee”, the item brought, and an inanimate beneficiary; cf. the ungrammaticality of Nuuru/ letesheleze madrasa/ Osmaani/ jarsi. ‘Nuuru had Osmaani bring a bell for the school.’ If the beneficiary is human, then the causee can be overt: Nimletesheleze Suufi/ Osmaani/ chaakujá. ‘I had Osmaani bring food for Suufi.’ In a case like this, where both Suufi and Osmaani would govern the same object prefix, the word order is of necessity the benefactive first and the causee second.)

ku-leteshelezoowa v. caus. appl. pass. (letesheleeza)

Gaari/ iletesheleza ijuulu. ‘The car was caused to be brought for a tire.’

Maskiini/ letesheleza chaakuja. ‘A poor man was caused to be brought for food.’

Maskiini/ letesheleza Nuuru/ chaakuja. ‘The poor man was (the one who someone) caused Nuuru to bring food for.’ (It is important to note that in the passive version of a benefactive causative verb, the subject must be the beneficiary and not the “cause”, i.e. the person who was made to perform the action. Consequently, a sentence of the form Osmaani/ letesheleza waant^hu/ chaakuja. cannot be understood to mean ‘Osmaani was made to bring food for the people’; it can only mean that people were made to bring food for Osmaani.)

ku-leteshoowa v. caus. pass. (letesheeza) ku-letooa v. pass. (leeseja) be brought Chaayi/ chileeseja. [H!H] ‘Tea was brought.’

Chaayi/ chileeseja na mgeeni. ‘Tea was brought by the guest.’

Chileeseja na mgeeni/ ni chaayi. ‘What was brought by the guest is tea.’

Chiletowapo ka mukeewé/ hukalan^ha numbaani/ muda wa ayamu mooyi. ‘When he is brought to his wife [after having been taken around town after the wedding ceremony], they stay at home for a period of one week.’

Harun Rashiidi/ chi’amurisha/ mkulu wa mawaardiya/ kuletoowa.

‘Harun Rashiidi ordered the head of the guards to be brought.’

Ichiletoowa/ naa mbuzi/ na mbuzi iyo/ wachileeto/ ni china Mahmuudi/ wa Shekh Huseeni/ Raa Tahaara. ‘And a goat was brought, too, and this goat, those who brought it were the family of Mahmud [son] of Shekh Husein, the Tahaara family.’

Leselapó/ Harun Rashiidi/ chi'amurisha nabigoowa/ ndruti khamsiini.
'When he was brought in, Haruun Rashiidi ordered that he be given fifty blows.'

Majiwe/ yalesela na muunt^hu. 'The stones were brought by the man.'

Maraði yakoo kulé/ hayaletoowi/ khariibu. 'Disease that is far away is not brought closer.' (A proverb.)

mukhta chaakuja/ huletoowá 'when food is brought'

Mwaana/ chamura zaakuja/ kuletoowa. 'The boy ordered food to be brought.'

Mwaana/ leselapó/ sulṭaani/ chimwaambila/ nnakhsulá chijuumbá/ cha nyunyi izí. 'When the boy was brought, the sultan said to him: I want the nest of these birds.'

Mwanaamke/ chishikoowa/ chiletowa mbele za sulṭaani. 'The girl was captured and brought in front of the king.'

Osmaani/ leseḷa ruuhu/ na fulaani. 'Osmaani was bothered very much by so-and-so.'

rel. nom.

ma-leesanyo n. 6 reconciliation

m-leeto n. 3

u-leeto n. 14

m-leevi (wa-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mlevi SSED 244] a drunkard; adj. drunk

Munt^hu mleevi/ mbishile maamaye. 'The drunk man hit his mother.'

rel.

u-leevi n. 14 drunkenness; variant form: uleevu

Khamri/ huleta uleevi. 'Liquor causes drunkenness.'

Uleevu/ huletaa dhibu. 'Drunkenness causes problems.'

ku-leewa

v. [Sw. lewa SSED 244] (leweele) get drunk; get or feel nauseous, esp. seasickness

Fikiriini/ ba'ada ya wakhti/ chileewa/ ye/ chisukurika/ shṭukula ruuhuye/ cheenda/ kaake/ chiliini. 'Fikiriini, after a while, became drunk, he got intoxicated and carried himself and went to his place to bed.'

kulewa ka bahari 'to be seasick'

Omari/ nakuleewa. 'Omari is feeling nauseous.'

Suufi/ leweele. 'Suufi got drunk.'

rel.

ku-lewaleewa v. freq. lose one's balance, stagger, reel (from drunkenness or seasickness)

ku-leweka v. p/s.

ku-lewela v. appl. get drunk with ku-leweshá v. caus. make drunk (e.g. by putting alcohol into someone's drink); make seasick; spoil s.o. (e.g. of a parent giving his child things too freely)

Menye/ mlewesheze mwaanawe/ ka kumpa yaa ye/ nakhsuuló. 'Menye spoiled his son by giving him whatever he wanted.'

Shariifu/ mlewesheze mwaana. 'Shariifu caused the child to get seasick (though intentionality is not involved here -- e.g. he may simply have taken the child on a boat ride and the child became seasick).'

ku-leweshanya v. caus. rec.

ku-leweshaka v. caus. p/s.

ku-leweshenze v. caus. appl. rec.

Madi/ mleweshenze Huseeni/ mwaana. 'Madi caused Huseeni's child to get drunk.'

ku-leweshenezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Mamadi/ na Nureeni/ waleweshenze waana. 'Mamadi and Nureeni made one another's children drunk.'

ku-lewoowa v. pass.

Khamri niingi/ hulewoowa. 'Too much alcohol gets one drunk.'

rel. nom.

chi-leewo n. 7 drunkenness
u-leewo n. 14 drunkenness

- li- past tense marker limited in Chimini (in contrast to Swahili) to the verb kuwa ‘to be’
Apo/ zamaani/ waliko sulṭaani/ mooyi/ miḱkilo nusu ya duniyá. ‘Once upon a time there was a sultan who owned half the world.’
- ku-lima v. [Sw. lima SSED 246] (limiile) farm, cultivate, work the land for raising crops
Chimaliza/ kulla/ mo/ chendra kaake/ muundraani/ kulima. ‘Then each one went to his field to cultivate.’
Hamadi/ chilima/ amó/ chiza kulimá/ ni mamooyi/ kaaka. ‘Whether Hamadi cultivates or does not cultivate is all the same to me.’
Hasani/ chishindroowa/ ye/ shṭukuḷoowa/ shpelekowa miyundraani/ ka sulṭaani/ khfanya kazi ya kulima. ‘Hasani was defeated and he was taken and sent to the fields of the sultan to do the work of cultivating.’
Hulima muundra. ‘He plows, cultivates the field, farm.’
Hulimo miyuundrá/ ni waant^hu/ haba. ‘It is a small number of people who farm.’
Hulimo miyuundrá/ ni waant^hu/ wiingi. ‘Many people farm.’
Iyembe iyi/ haylimi. ‘This hoe does not [serve to] cultivate (i.e. it is broken, or not sharp, or lacks a handle, etc.).’
Lima/ amó/ silimé/ ni mamooyi/ kaaka. ‘Cultivate or don’t cultivate, it is all the same to me.’ (The verb forms used here are the imperative and the negative imperative.)
Mi/ na’iwa kulimá. ‘I know how to farm.’
Naalime/ amó/ silime/ hayinkhusi. ‘Whether he cultivates or not does not concern me.’ (In this example, the affirmative and the negative subjunctive verb forms are used. Notice that there is no final accent associated with the negative subjunctive.)
Ndrimiilé. ‘I cultivated.’
Yaa we/ takaaló/ takulimó. ‘What you plant is what you will harvest.’ (A proverb.)
- rel.
ku-limika v. p/s. capable of being cultivated (e.g. of ground that is not too hard or does not have too many trees); become cultivated Nṭhi/ haylimiki. ‘This land cannot be cultivated.’
- ku-limikila v. ps/s. appl. become cultivated for Nṭhi/ ikhulimikiliile. ‘This land became cultivated for you.’
- ku-limiḷoowa v. appl. pass.
Baaba/ nakulimiḷowa muundra/ na Haaji. ‘[Lit.] father is being cultivated the field for by Haaji.’ Or: Muundra/ nakulimiḷowa baaba/ na Haaji. Regardless of word order, baaba controls the subject agreement (which is phonologically null for a third person human subject) and not muundra.
Iyeembe/ hulimiḷowa muundra. ‘The axe is for cultivating a farm.’
Omari/ nakulimiḷowa muundra. ‘Omari is being cultivated for the farm.’
- ku-limila v. appl. cultivate for, with Haaji/ namlimila baaba/ muundra. ‘Haaji is cultivating the field for father.’
nguwo za kulimila ‘clothes to cultivate in’
Omari/ nakulimila iyeembe/ muundra. ‘Omari is cultivating the farm with an axe.’
- ku-limilana v. appl. rec. (-limileene) cultivate for one another Walimilene muundra. ‘They cultivated one another’s farm.’
- ku-limilika v. appl. p/s. be capable of being cultivated for Ali/ halimiliki/ muundra. ‘Ali cannot be hoed for a garden (i.e. it is not possible to hoe a garden for Ali).’
- ku-limisha v. caus.
ku-limoowa v. pass.

Nṭhi iyi/ siwo/ suura/ kulimoowa. ‘This land is not good for cultivation.’
Uyu/ ni meezi/ wa kulimoowa. ‘This is the month for hoeing.’

rel. nom.

m-lima (wa-) n. one who cultivates mlima muundra ‘a farmer’; walima miyuundra ‘farmers’

Waant^hu/ wiingi/ ni walima miyuundra. ‘Many of the people are farmers.’

Waant^hu/ wote/ ni walima miyuundra. ‘All the people are farmers.’

m-limo n. 3 the act of farming

u-limo n. 14 agriculture

m-lima

n. 3/4 [Sw. mlima SSED 290] hill; more specifically, this word (as well as ibuuri) refers to the coastal hill from the top of which you can see Brava and the Indian ocean

Chiruuda/ ilu/ ya mlima/ mahaḷa/ ya ma’askari/ na watumawé/ wawaalikó. ‘He returned up the hill to the place where the soldiers and his servants were.’

Fijiri/ wa’ishkilile/ ka mlimaani/ wa’olosehe kumlangala dughaaghi. ‘In the morning, they descended the hill and they went to look at the beast.’

Maayi/ hishkiḷa/ hayapaandri/ mlima (or: ibuuri). ‘Water comes down, it does not go up the hill.’ (A proverb that advises that one cannot change the course of events, everything follows its natural path.)

Wachanza khpandra mlima/ shpaandra/ hattá/ ilu/ ya mlima. ‘They started to climb the hill; they climbed until the top of the hill.’

Waka nuumba/ ilu ya mlima. ‘Build a house on a hill!’

rel.

chi-lima (zi-) n. dim. small hill

Cheendra/ chilaala/ ilu/ ya chilima. ‘He went and slept on a small hill.’

Jeelaani/ waaliko/ simeeme/ ilu/ ya chilima. ‘Jeelaani was standing on a small hill.’

Muunt^hu/ husimamó/ ilu ya chilima ichi/ hukhaadira/ kuwona/ muuyi/ mzimawe. ‘A person who stands on this small hill is able to see the whole town.’ (This example, from a narrative constructed by Mohammed Imam very early in our research, illustrates a significant point about Chimiini prosody. Putting emphasis on the verb routinely confines any final accent triggered by that verb from extending past the verb. However, if the verb is a relative verb, such a phrasing does not block the final accent triggered by relative verbs from extending to the end of the relative clause.)

ku-liindra

v. [Sw. linda SSED 247] (liinzile) wait, expect, guard, look after Abunawaasi/ shfakata/ chiwamera makhaadimu/ wa’amurila kulindra magozi. ‘Abunawaasi ran and looked for the servants who had been ordered to look after the hides.’

Apo/ chilaṭowaa ndovu/ kulindra chisima/ na chiza mḷata bakayle/ kuuya/ khteka maayi. ‘Elephant was left there to guard the well and not let Hare come and fetch water.’

Apo/ numbaani/ chimwambila mwaanawe/ waliko chimliindró... ‘There, at the house, he said to his child, who was waiting for him...’

Chizeele/ chinandriindre/ haba mo. ‘The old woman should wait for me a little while.’

Eelo/ chimwaambila/ maskiini/ kumliindra/ hatá/ chiruuda. ‘The gazelle told the poor man to wait for him until he returned.’

Hundriindra. ‘You do not wait for me.’

Huseeni/ linzile nṭhini yaa muti/ nuumba/ ibanyaani. ‘Huseeni waited under a tree outside the house.’

Jeelaani/ chiliindra. ‘Jeelaani waited.’

Karkaa ye/ nakuliindró/ mwenee mbwa/ namsongaa ndovu. ‘While he was waiting, he saw a dog approaching the elephant.’

kulindra chitaawo ‘to wait for the bus’ kumliindra or kumniindra ‘to wait for him/her’

Mi/ mbeshela apá/ ku’uliindra/ muti uyu. ‘I was put here to look after this tree.’

Mi/ nakhtaraja kulawa apá/ karka miyaka miwili/ mi/ sinakhaadira/ kuliindra. ‘I’m aiming to leave from here in about a couple of years. I can’t wait.’

Mi/ namliindra Faatimá/ kubiga telefoonó. ‘I am waiting for Faatima to telephone.’

Mi/ shkhaadiri/ kulindra kiiwa/ yo/ yont^he/ yaliko tarafu yaní. ‘I can’t wait to find out what it was all about.’

Mi/ takhulindra apa/ ba. ‘I will be waiting for you right here (at this specific place).’

Mi/ takhulindra apo/ ka Omari/ ba. ‘I will be waiting for you right there at Omari’s place (nowhere else, just there).’

Mubli/ nakulindra majiibuyo. ‘The man is waiting for your answer.’

Mwaana/ chimwambila waawaye/ mi/ ndrriinzilé/ nt^heendre/ haṭá/ kharibu yaa sala/ ya fijiri. ‘The child told his father: I watched over the date tree until near (the time of) morning prayer.’

Mzeele/ chinaambila/ we liindra/ haṭá/ mukhta wo/ watakuyo koowá. ‘The old man told me: you wait until the time when they will come to bathe.’

ndriindre ‘wait for me’; mliinde ‘wait for [cl.1]’

Ndriinzile. ‘He waited for me.’

Ndrinzile Jaamá/ kuuyaké. ‘I expected Jaama’s coming.’ (The subject of the “gerundial” complement clause cannot be raised to be the object of the main verb: *Nimlinzile Jaamá/ kuuyaké.)

Ndrinzile Jaamá/ kuyake kahimá. ‘I expected Jaama’s coming quickly.’

Ndriinzilé/ kulla/ mwaaka/ konda nt^heendre. ‘I waited each year to taste the dates.’ (Phon. The word kulla is emphasized and thus diminishes the audibility of the final accent on the preceding verb. Note that that the verb is not part of a phrase with kulla and consequently final accent cannot appear on kulla: *Ndrinzile kullá/ mwaaka... Also note that the final accent cannot cross kulla and appear on subsequent phrases.)

Ndrinzile kuwa Jaamá/ takhpita imṭihaaní. ‘I expected that Jaama would pass the examination.’

Ndrinzile muda ya meezi. ‘I waited for a period of one month.’ Or: Ndriinzilé/ muda ya meezi. Or: Ndrinzile mudá/ ya meezi. (Phon. The various alternative forms show phrasing options that are available for this sentence and the effects of the Accentual Law of Focus on the scope of the final accent triggered by the first person past tense verb.)

Ni laazima/ kuliinda/ mezi mitatu. ‘It is necessary to wait for three months (referring to the requirement that a divorced woman wait before remarrying).’

Nimlinzile Jaamá/ kuuyá. ‘I waited for Jaama to come.’ Cf. Ndrinzile Jaamá/ kuuyá. ‘I waited for Jaama to come.’ (In the first example, the subject of the complement verb has been “raised”, controlling an object marker on the main verb. In the second example, Jaama is not raised, functioning just as the subject of the infinitival complement.)

Nimniinzilé/ nt^hangú/ fijiri/ haṭá/ laakuja. ‘I waited for him from morning until dusk.’ review final accent on fijiri

Nnakulindra peesá/ ka mweenzáwá. ‘I am expecting money from my friend.’

Nt^hakuliindra/ majiibuye. ‘I will wait for her reply.’

Nt^haná/ ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ kumliindra/ ye. ‘She has no one to wait on her.’

Omari/ ba/ liinzile/ hoteliini. ‘Even Omari waited at the hotel.’ Cf. Omari/ linzile hoteliini/ ba. ‘Omari waited at the hotel itself (at the hotel, not anywhere else).’

Omari/ hakhaadiri/ kulindra kuruda ndraani. ‘Omari can’t wait to get back inside.’

Si/ chiliinzilé/ masku mazima. ‘We waited the whole night.’

Si/ chimlinzile Omari/ masku mazimá. ‘We waited for Omari the whole night.’

Si/ chinakulindra kumwona dakhtarí. ‘We are waiting to see the doctor.’

Si/ chinayo wakhti miingi/ mi/ takuliindra. ‘We have plenty of time. I’ll wait.’

Siná/ sabri ya kuliindra. ‘I do not have the patience to wait.’

Teena/ wa’ambiile/ mbele/ lindaani/ ninpe kuja yiinu. ‘Then she told them: first, (you plural) wait so that I may give you your food.’

Wakhuliinzile. ‘They waited for you.’

Wamaliizopó/ wachiruda kaawo/ kuliindra/ haṭá/ muundra/ kuḷawa. ‘When they finished (planting the garden), they returned home to wait until the garden bore fruit.’

Wanakinliindra. ‘They are waiting for you (pl.).’

Wardiya/ linzile nuumba. ‘The guard looked after the house.’

Wo/ nt^hayaaliko/ kulindra niingi. ‘They didn’t have to wait long.’

Wo/ waliko laazimu/ kuliindra/ kuḷiowa mara yiingine. ‘They had to wait to be called again.’

Wote/ wachendra nt^hini ya majabali/ kulindra haṭaa nvula/ ishtiinda. ‘All went under the rocks to wait until the rain stopped.’

Ye/ njibiile/ mi/ bilaa kuliindra. ‘He answered me without hesitation.’

rel.
ku-liindrika v. p/s.
Omari/ huraaga/ haliindriki. ‘Omari delays, he cannot be waited for.’

ku-lindriḷoowa v. appl. pass.
Nt^haku/ sababu ya Omari/ kulindiḷoowa. ‘There is no reason to wait for Omari.’

ku-liindrila v. appl.
Nakumlindrila/ Omari. ‘Why are you waiting for Omari?’

We/ hukhaadiri/ kulindrila zombo izo. ‘You can’t wait on these things.’

ku-liindrisha v. caus. (lindrishiize)
Ali/ lindrishize waant^hu/ skuliini. ‘Ali had people wait at the school.’

Ali/ mlindrishize wardiya/ nuumba. ‘Ali had the guard look after the house.’

ku-lindrishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-lindrishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
ku-lindroowa v. pass.

Ba’ada apo/ wachilindrowa masheekhi/ kuuya/ wachilindroowá/ ichiletoowa/ na mbuzi. ‘After that, they waited for the sheiks to come, that’s what they did, and a goat was brought, too.’ (Syn. The conjunction na, when it precedes a noun that is not in fact being conjoined, has the interpretation ‘too, also’. Thus, the last clause in this example is more literally translated as: ‘It was brought, a goat too.’ Notice also the repetition of the verb in a pseudo-relative clause form: wachilindroowá. That this repetition is a relative form is indicated here only by the final accent. While ordinarily a relative verb ends in the vowel o, a passive verb always ends in a. This repetition pattern was not observed in MI’s speech, but has been found among other consultants. It was also found in texts that MI recorded, apparently from family members. Thus it’s absence from our elicitation sessions and from MI’s recordings do not necessarily indicate that it is a construction that he was not familiar with.)

chihada mi nakhsuula kulindroowa/ hatta qiyaama naa ye chambiloowa/ takulindroowa karka walindroowa [st.] ‘He said: I want to have [my punishment] delayed until the Day of Judgment. And he was told: You will be among those who will be given respite.’

Hulindroowa/ niingi/ chitaawo. ‘It is waited for long the bus.’

Jaama/ linzila naami/ kuuya. ‘[Lit.] Jaama was waited for by me to come - i.e. I waited for Jaama to come.’

Masku mazima/iliinzilá. ‘The whole night there was waiting.’

Muti/ ulinzila nt^hiinike/ nuumba/ ibanyaani. ‘A tree was waited under it outside the house.’ Another passive: Nuumba/ ibanyaani/ iliinzilá/ nt^hini yaa muti. ‘The house was waited outside it under a tree.’
Omari/ liinzila/ masku mazima. ‘Omari was waited for the whole night.’ Or: Masku mazima/ linzila/ Omari. ‘The whole night Omari was waited for.’
Uyu/ ni muunt^hi/ hudarbañiloowá/ na hulindroowá. ‘This is a day that is prepared for and waited for.’
Wanakulindroowa. ‘They were being expected.’

i-liindri (mi-)

n. 5/4 a part of the wooden weaving tool Wa’ooji/ Mwiiini/ hufumaa nguwo/ aliindi/ ka iliindri. ‘Wa’ooji in Miini weave aliindi cloth with iliindri.’

ku-liingana

v. [Sw. lingana SSED 242] (lingeene) be equal, be the same (e.g. in height) Ali/ lingene na waawaye. ‘Ali reached the same height as his father.’
Waana/ walingeene. ‘The children are the same (in height).’
Wo/ walingene ka ilmu/ na maalí. ‘They are of equal status in terms of knowledge and wealth.’

rel.

ku-lingamana v. (lingameene) be of the same size, rank; be equal to Lingamene na waawaye. ‘He reached the same height as his father.’
Nakulingamana na waawaye. ‘He is about to be as tall as his father.’

ku-linganila v. appl.

ku-linganisha v. caus. (cf. kulinganya below)

ku-liinganya v. caus. (lingeenye or linganyiize) compare the measurements of two things, compare two things; take measurements; try on sewn clothes to see whether they fit, they are the right size

Sindriinganyé/ na Alí. ‘Don’t compare me with Ali.’ review why final accent ku-linganyika v. caus. p/s. able to be compared ku-linganyiliza v. caus. appl.

Ali/ mlinganyilize Omari/ waana/ nguwo. ‘Ali took the measurement of the children for clothes for Omari.’

ku-linganyisha v. caus. caus. make someone take measurements

rel. nom.

m-lingamano n.3

u-lingamano n. 14

m-liingano n. 3

u-liingano n. 14

m-liinganyo n. 3

u-liinganyo n. 14

ku-lipa

v. [Sw. lipa SSED 248] (lisile) repay, pay s.t. owed (Note the mutation of stem-final p to s in forming the perfect stem. When the stem is mutated, the perfect extension ii/eel loses its vowel length.)

Ali/ lisile deeni. ‘Ali paid the debt.’

Ali/ lisile deni yaa Nuuru. ‘Ali paid Nuuru’s debt (i.e. either the debt that Nuuru had with someone else or Ali’s debt to Nuuru).’

Ali/ lisile deni ya Nuuru/ chimwiló. ‘Ali paid the debt that he owed to Nuuru.’

Ali/ mlisile Nuuru/ deeni. ‘Ali paid to Nuuru the debt that he (Ali) owed him (Nuuru).’

Bakhiili/ lisile/ deeni. [H’H!H] ‘The miser paid the debt.’

Bakhiili/ lisile/ deeniye. [H’H!H] ‘The miser paid his debt.’

Basi/ isa/ we/ ni laazima/ kundripa/ kuuluya. ‘So now, you, it is necessary that you pay me back my leg (in the context of the story from which this example comes: the leg that your father cut off me).’

Khufanyize zeema/ zaa we/ hukhaadirí/ mlipá. ‘He did good for you that you are not able to repay (him).’ (Phon. Observe that even though the negative relative verb is separated phrasally here from its infinitival complement, [ku]mlipa, the final accent extends to the end of the relative clause.)

kulipaa sala ‘to perform an obligatory prayer at a time later than its appointed time (i.e. when the prayer is qaada).’

Leelo/ shkhaadiri/ kulipa peesa. ‘I cannot pay today.’

Lisilo deeni/ ni bakhili. ‘The one who paid the debt is the miser.’

Mi/ nakhsuula/ Sultani Daraayi/ naye apa/ mp^hate kumlipa zeemaze. ‘I want Sultan Daraayi to come here so that I can repay him for his good deeds.’ (Phon. The emphasis on the main verb precludes the final accent triggered by that verb from extending past the emphasized phrase, in accordance with the Accentual Law of Focus.)

Mi/skhaadiri/ khulipa. ‘I cannot pay you back.’

Naami/ ni laazima/ khulipa jezayo. ‘And I must repay you your favors (i.e. the things you did for me).’

Ndrisile deeni. ‘I paid the debt.’ (Cf. a subject which does not trigger final accent: Ali/ lisile deeni. ‘Ali paid the debt.’)

Nimlisile Ali/ deeni. ‘I paid the debt to Ali.’

Omari/ ndrisile (/) haba haba. ‘Omari paid me little by little.’

Sarkaali/ lisile/ gharama za waana. ‘The government paid the expenses of the children.’

takuliso Zabaaniya/ karka mujo wa Hawiya [st.] ‘Zabaniya will avenge there, in the hell-fires of Hawiya’

Wachimjiiba/ wachimwaambila/ chinambiga/ mayti/ uyu/ ka khisa/ mukhta ya/ waliko hayi/ teete/ deeni/ ka kiitu/ na nthakichilipa. ‘They answered him and said to him: we are beating this dead man because when he was alive he took loans from us and he did not pay us back.’

Ye/ ni laazima/ kundripa/ itooya. ‘It is necessary that he pay me back my eye (the one that he perforated).’
rel.

ku-lipaalipa v. freq.

Omari/ lisilelisile (/) haba haba. ‘Omari paid his debt little by little.’

Omari/ ndrisilendri (/) haba haba. ‘Omari paid me little by little.’

ku-lipana v. rec. need examples

ku-lipanoowa v. rec. pass.

Ichiwaa we/ mhalashize muunt^hu/ ichiwaa we/ mtawanyiz e muunt^hu/ maazi/ ni jawabuu nziito/ ni jawabuu nk^hulu/ hulipanowa aari. ‘If it be that you hurt someone, if it be that you spill someone’s blood, it is a serious (lit. heavy) thing, it’s a big deal, it’s being revenged.’

ku-lipika v. p/s.

ku-lipiloowa v. appl. pass.

Taale/ pesa izi/ mpe Safiya/ nalipiloowa/ mubli. ‘Take this money and give it to Safiya so that the husband may be repaid the money (that he had paid in dowry).’

ku-lipila v. appl. (lipiliile) pay for, with, to Baana/ mlipiliile Nuuru/ deeni. ‘Baana paid the debt for Nuuru (to someone else); Baana paid his debt to Nuuru.’

Ali/ mlipiliile Nuuru/ deni zaa ye/ chiwiloowa. ‘Ali paid for Nuuru the debts (he owed to people).’

Ali/ mlipiliile Nuuru/ deni zaa ye/ chimwiló. ‘Ali paid to Nuuru the debts that he (Ali) owed to him (Nuuru).’

Ifuungu/ yaane/ ndripiliile deeniza/ na walá/ skumaliza/ kulipaa deeniza/ zote. ‘The fourth share I used to pay my debts and neither did I finish paying all my debts.’

Nimlipiliile Ali/ deeniyé. ‘I paid for Ali his debt.’

Nthakhusameha/ laakini/ ka sharti/ mooyi/ we/ ni laazima/ kundripila khasaara/ imp^hheetó/ yotte. ‘I will forgive you but on one condition: you must repay me the loss that befell me, all.’

Teete/ peesa/ zotte/ mpele mkule/ khfanyiliza/ kaazi/ na kulipila deeni. ‘He took all the money and gave it to his elder brother to use for business and to pay his debts with.’

We/ khusudijilieni/ kuhada/ kuwa ifuungu/ yanne/ we/ lipilile deeni/ walá/ nt'ukumaliza/ kulipa deenizo.. ‘What did you mean by saying that the fourth portion [of the wealth you squandered] you used to pay your debts ku-lipoowa v. pass. (lisila)

Gharama za waana/ zilisila na sarkaali. ‘The expenses of the children were paid by the government.’

Lisila deeni/ ni bakhili. [H'H] ‘The one who was paid a debt is the miser.’

Lisila deeniyé/ ni bakhili. [H'H] ‘The one who was paid his debt is the miser.’

Mzeele/ uyu/ chishiika/ kuwa ni laazima/ ye/ kulipowa itooye. ‘This old man insisted that he must be paid back for his eye.’

ku-lisa v. caus. (lisiize) make pay

Omari/ mlisize mwaalimu/ deeni. ‘Omari made the teacher pay the debt.’

ku-lisoowa v. caus. pass. (lisiiza) be made to pay

Mwaalimu/ lisiza deeni. ‘The teacher was made to pay the debt.’ (Syn: The subject of the passive verb must be the ‘causee’; it is ungrammatical to say Deeni/ ilisiza mwaalimu. One can prepose the other complement and postpose the subject, but the verb still agrees with the postposed subject: Deeni/ lisiza mwaalimu. ‘The teacher was made to pay the debt.’ Observe that the postposed subject phrases together with the verb.)

ku-liisha

v. (lishiize) feed

Muke/ mlishize mwaana/ chaakuja. ‘The woman fed the child food.’ (In this sentence, either of the verbal complements may be topicalized to the beginning of the sentence: Mwaana/ muke/ mlishize chaakuja. Or: Chaakuja/ muke/ mlishize mwaana. Notice that in either case, the complement that remains in post-verbal position phrases naturally with the verb.)

Mwaana/ mlishizee nfuye/ mazu/ ka farkeeta. ‘The child fed the monkey bananas with a fork.’ (In this example, nfuye ‘monkey’ governs [cl.1] human object agreement on the verb. As shown below, nfuye may also be the subject of the passive version of this sentence.)

rel.

ku-liishika v. p/s.

Mwana uyu/ haliishiki. ‘This child cannot be fed (e.g. he won’t sit still).’

ku-lishikila v. p/s. appl.

Baana/ halishikili/ mwaana. ‘One cannot feed for Baana the child.’

Baana/ mwaana/ mlishikiliile. ‘Someone was able to feed for Baana the child.’

ku-lishiliza v. appl. feed for, with Farkeeta/ mwaana/ lishilizee nfuye/ mazu. ‘A fork, the child fed the monkey with it.’ (In the instrumental applied construction, it is much preferred for the instrument to be topicalized to the beginning of the sentence. The instrument in this construction does not represent new information nor is it focused in any way, thus it is not readily found in immediate post-verbal position. It is not acceptable for nfuye or mazu to be topicalized in the instrumental applied: Nfuye/ mwaana/ lishilize farkeeta/ mazu. Nor: Mazu/ mwana/ lishilize farkeeta/ nfuye. The post-verbal word order is irrelevant to the ungrammaticality of these sentences.)

Farkeeta ya mwaana/ lishilizoo nfuyé/ mazú/ ndaaká. ‘The fork that the child used to feed the monkey bananas is mine.’ (Syn. It is not possible for nfuye nor mazu to be the head of a relativized form of the instrumental applied verb: Nfuye wa mwaana/ lishilizo farkeeta/ mazú/ fiile. ‘The monkey that the child fed bananas with a fork died.’ Nor: Mazu ya mwaana/ lishilizo farkeeta/ nfuyé/ ziviviile. ‘The bananas that the child fed the monkey with a fork were ripe.’ The word order of the post-verbal NP’s is irrelevant to the unacceptability of these sentences.)

Mubli/ mlshilizee muke/ mwaana/ chaakuja. ‘(Her) husband fed the child food for the woman.’ (Any of the three verbal complements in this sentence may be topicalized to initial position in the sentence: Muke/ mubli/ mlshilizee mwaana/ chaakuja. or: Mwaana/ mubli/ mlshilizee muke/ chaakuja. Or: Chaakuja/ mubli/ mlshilizee muke/ mwaana. Any of the complement positions may be relativized into as well: e.g. Chakuja cha mubli/ mlshilizoo muké/ mwaaná/... ‘The food that (her) husband fed the child for the woman....’)

Mubli/ mlshilizee muke/ mwaana/ chaakuja/ ka lkoombe. ‘(Her) husband fed the child for the woman with a spoon.’ (Since the verb is in a benefactive applied form, there is not the possibility of using this same form to permit the instrument lkoombe to appear without a preposition. However, the instrument can be topicalized or relativized without the use of the preposition; in these cases, the applied form licenses both the benefactive and the instrument: Lkoombe/ mubli/ mlshilizee muke/ mwaana/ chaakuja. ‘The spoon, (her) husband used it to feed the child food for the woman.’ Also: Lkombe la mubli/ mlshilizoo muké/ mwaaná/ chaakujá/... ‘The spoon that (her) husband used to feed the child food for the woman....’) ku-lishilizoowa v. appl. pass.

Tuuma/ namlisha mwaana. ‘Tuuma is feeding the child.’

ku-lishoowa v. pass. (lishiiza) be fed

Mwaana/ nakulishowaa kuja. ‘The child is being fed food.’

Nfuye/ lishizaa mazu/ ka farkeeṭa/ na mwaana. ‘The monkey was fed bananas with a fork by the child.’ (Note that in this passive structure, mazu cannot be the subject of the passive verb, only nfuye: Mazu/ zilishizaa nfuye/ ka farkeeṭa/ na mwaana. ‘Bananas were fed to the monkey with a fork by the child.’)

ku-liwala

v. [cf. Proto-Sabaki *-liWal- N&H 597] (liweele) forget Haliima/ liweele/ kuvala chiintu. ‘Haliima forgot to put something on.’

Hamadi/ liweele/ iziwa/ uzile rooti/ tu. ‘Hamadi forgot milk, he bought only bread.’

Iboorsaya/ ndrilewee apá/ iweené. ‘I forgot my bag here, have you seen it?’

khfanya ruuhuye/ kana liweeló ‘to pretend to have forgotten (though in fact you just did not do)’

Kuliwala/ siwo/ ḍambi. ‘To forget is not a sin.’

Maashe/ haliwali/ lutiile. ‘A blind man does not forget his (walking) stick.’ (A proverb.)

Mbona/ we/ liwele ka himá/ zema za elo uyu/ khufanyiizó. ‘How can you forget so quickly the good that this gazelle did for you?’

Mgarwa/ kama oyo/ chimliwala/ mukeewe/ na waanawé/ waa ye/ walaṣilo kaawó. ‘The fisherman, just like that, forgot his wife and his children that he had left behind in their country.’

Mi/ mubliwa/ ndrasile/ laakini/ mi/ sinakhaadira/kumliwala/ ka khisa/ mi/ nimpeenzelé/ nt^ho. ‘Me, my husband divorced me, but I am not able to forget him because I love him very much.’

Mi/ ndrilewee tu. ‘I just forgot.’

mooja haliwali mooja halaali [st.] ‘God does not forget, God does not sleep’

Muunt^hu/ fanyiizó/ huliwala/ fanyiizá/ haliwali. ‘The one who has done something wrong, forgets;(but) the one who has been wronged does not forget.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaadamu/ chimfanyiliza ihsanii miya/ chimaliza/ mara mooyi/ zont^e/ huliwala. ‘A human being, you may do him a hundred favors, but if you refuse him once, he forgets all (those favors).’ (A proverb.)

Na itakhupató/ we/ umriwo/ hutakuliwala. ‘And what will happen to you in your

- life you will not forget.’
- Ndo/ laakini/ siliwale chibuukú. ‘Come, but don’t forget the book.’ (In this example, we see that while in the default case siliwalé would constitute a separate phrase, in some contexts the negative imperative verb may form a phrase with its complement. In that case, the final accent associated with the negative imperative extends to the broader phrase.)
- Ndriweelé/ kumpa Nuuru/ peesa. ‘I forgot to give Nuuru money.’ Or: Ndriweelé/ Nuuru/ kumpa peesa. Or: Ndriweelé/ kumpa peesa/ Nuuru. Or: Pees/ ndrriweelé/ kumpa Nuuru. Or: Nuuru/ ndrriweelé/ kumpa peesa.
- Ndriweelé/ kuwa Alí/ nuzizee mi/ kumpa mwaanawe/ Omari/ peesa. ‘I forgot that Ali asked me to give his son Omari money.’ Also: Ndriweelé/ Alí/ nuzizé/ kumpa mwaanawe/ Omari/ peesa. Also: Nimliweelé/ Alí/ kuwa nuzize kumpa mwaanawe/ Omari/ peesa. ‘I forgot him, Ali, that he asked me to give his child Omari money.’
- Ndriweelé/ peesa/ Nuuru/ khpoowa. ‘I forgot money Nuuru to give him.’ Or: Ndriweelé/ Nuuru/ peesa/ khpoowa.
- Nimliweelé/ Nuuru/ kumpa peesa. ‘I forgot him Nuuru to give him money.’
- Niziliweelé/ peesa/ kumpa Nuuru. ‘I forgot it [cl.10] money to give Nuuru.’ Or: Nuuru/ kumpa peesa/ niziliweelé. Or: Peesa/ niziliweelé/ kumpa Nuuru.
- Niziliweelé/ peesa/ Nuuru/ khpoowa. Or: Nuuru/ peesa/ khpoowa/ niziliweelé.
- Nuuru/ liwele kuwa Jaama/ mpele mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘Nuuru forgot that Jaama gave the child a book.’ (Cf. The noun phrase chibuuku can be made the into head of the corresponding relative clause: Chibuku cha Nuuru/ liwelo kuwa Jaamá/ mpele mwaaná/ nch^haaká. ‘The book that Nuuru forgot that Jaama gave to the child is mine.’)
- Omari/ iliweele/ kuwa Hamadi/ uzile gaari. ‘Omari forgot it [cl.9] that Hamadi bought a car [cl.9].’ Or: Omari/ iliweele/ kuwa gaari/ Hamadi/ uzile. Or: Omari/ iliweele/ gaari/ kuwa Hamadi/ uzile. (Our consultant GM accepted all these variations where the main verb has an OM in agreement with gaari, but preferred that the verb be emphasized. The absence of emphasis led to a judgment of ill-formedness: Omari/ iliwele kuwa Hamadi/ uzile gaari. And: Omari/ iliwele kuwa gaari/ Hamadi/ uzile. And: Omari/ iliwele gaari/ kuwa Hamadi/ uzile.)
- Omari/ liweele/ kuwa Hamadi/ uzile gaari. ‘Omari forgot that Hamadi bought a car.’ (Our consultant tended to prefer sentences like this, where the main verb is emphasized, to ones where the complement is joined into a phrase with the main verb: Omari/ liwele kuwa Hamadi/ uzile gaari. But this second version is certainly grammatical.)
- Omari/ liweele/ kuwa Hamadi/ tu/ uzilo gaari. ‘Omari forgot that only Hamadi bought a car.’ (Our consultant preferred emphasis on the main verb, but accepted as possible a lack of emphasis as well: Omari/ liwele kuwa Hamadi/ tu/ uzilo gaari. The critical thing about this sentence type is that focus on the complement subject requires pseudo-relativization of the complement verb.)
- Omari/ mliwele Hamadi/ kumpa zoombo. ‘Omari remembered him Hamadi to give things (to him).’
- Omari/ mliweele/ kuwa Hamadi/ uzile gaari. ‘Omari forgot him that Hamadi bought a car.’ Or: Omari/ mliweele/ Hamadi/ kuwa uzile gaari. (Our consultant GM wanted the main verb to be emphasized in order for that verb to have an object marker on it. He rejected Omari/ mliwele kuwa Hamadi/ uzile gaari. Also: Omari/ mliwele Hamadi/ kuwa uzile gaari.)
- Omari/ tu/ liweeló/ kuwa Hamadi/ uzilo gaari. ‘Only Omari forgot that Hamadi bought a car.’ Or: Omari/ tu/ liweeló/ kuwa Hamadi/ uzile gaari.
- Siliwalé. ‘Don’t forget!’ (cf. Siliwaleeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t forget!’)
- Siliwalé/ kuleta chibuuku. ‘Don’t forget to bring the book!’ Or: Siliwalé/ kuleta/ chibuuku.
- Siliwalé/ kuleta chibuuku/ keesho. ‘Don’t forget to bring the book tomorrow.’
- Siliwale kuleta chibuukú/ tu. ‘Just don’t forget to bring the book [I am afraid that you might forget, so I am emphasizing that you should not forget].’ (Cf. the remark above concerning the phrasing of the negative imperative verb. Also, tomorrow'

it should be noted that in this example the pitch on tu is radically lowered.)
Siliwale chibuukú/ tu/ keesho. 'Don't forget to bring the book tomorrow!'
Siliwalé/ kuleta chibuuku/ we/ chiya. 'Don't forget to bring the book when you come.'
ya nafsi keesho aakhera siliwale [st.] 'oh, soul, don't forget the hereafter (which is

rel.

ku-liwaloowa v. pass. (liweela)

Gaari/ iliweela/ kuwa Hamadi/ uzile. 'The car was forgotten that Hamadi bought.' Or: Gaari/ iliweela kuwa Hamadi/ uzile.

Gaari/ iliweela/ kuwa yuuzila. 'The car was forgotten that it was bought.' Or: Gaari/ iliweela kuwa yuuzila.

Hamadi/ liweela/ kuwa uzile gaari. 'Hamadi was forgotten that he bought a car.' Or: Hamadi/ liweela kuwa uzile gaari.

iyi ni taarikhi sho kuliwaloowa [nt.] 'this is a [piece of] history that will not be forgotten'

Kuliwaloowa/ niingi/ huleta dhibu. 'To forget too much can cause problems.'

Liweela/ Omari/ kuwa uzile gaari. 'He was forgotten, Omari, that he bought a car.' (There is some evidence that the postposed subject in this example cannot be focused: Liweela/ Omari/ tu/ kuwa uzilo gaari.)

Nuuru/ liweela/ khpoowa/ peesa. 'Nuuru was forgotten to be given money.'

Nuuru/ ziliweela/ khpoowa/ peesa. 'Nuuru, it [cl.10] was forgotten to be given money to Nuuru.' Or: Nuuru/ peesa/ khpoowa/ ziliweela. Or: Nuuru/ ziliweela/ khpoowa/ peesa. Or: Nuuru/ ziliweela/ peesa/ khpoowa.

Omari/ tu/ liweela/ kuwa uzilo gaari. 'Only Omari was forgotten that he bought a car.' Or: Omari/ tu/ liweela/ kuwa uzile gaari. (A pre-verbal focused element in Chimiini requires the verb to switch into a pseudo-relative form. In many cases, this switch involves changing the final vowel of the verb to -o. However, in the case of passive verbs, there is no such shift in vowel quality. All pseudo-relative verbs, however, are characterized by being a final accent-trigger. Thus it is clear in both of the examples given here, the main verb is in pseudo-relative form, liweela), due to the focused subject. The particle tu bears focus. The difference between the two examples here has to do with whether the complement verb is also put into pseudo-relative form. In the first example, it is; in the second example, it is not. It appears from these data, then, that pseudo-relativization of the complement verb is not obligatory.)

Wo/ wafiile/ laakini/ nt'awakuliwaloowa/ wala/ hawatakuliwaloowa.

'They died, but they are not forgotten nor will they be forgotten.'

ku-liwaza v. caus. (liweeze) make forget

Dhibu/ ya sa'a mooyi/ khuliwaza/ raha/ ya miyaaka. 'Hardship/pain of one hour makes you forget pleasure/entertainment of years.' (A proverb.)

Matezo/ khuliwaza mashaqa. 'Games make you forget problems, hardships.'

Omari/ hupenda kuliwaza waanthu/ sala. 'Omari likes to make people forget praying.'

rel. nom.

ma-liwazo n. forgetfulness forgetfulnesses are many).'

Haliima/ maliwazoye/ miingi. 'Haliima forgets a lot (lit. Haliima her chi-loho (zi-)

n. 7/8 [cf. Proto-Sabaki kiloWo* N&H 598] fishing hook; bait chiloho chaa nsi 'a fish hook'

Chiloho/ chimduriile. ‘The fishing-hook has pierced, snagged, caught him.’
Chiloho/ pashpo chaambo/ hashpati/ nsi. ‘A hook without bait does not get a fish.’ (A proverb.) khataa nsi/ ka chiloho ‘to catch fish with a hook’ Mawe/le/ hutumikiḷowa chiloho. ‘Mawe/le [sp. fish] is used as bait.’

ku-lokota v. (lokeete, lokosele) pick up, take a handful, take s.t. out of a mass of s.t. (e.g. dip water out of a larger container with a glass)

Lokosele maayi. ‘He dipped water out.’

Mbene ṭtaki/ ndilaani/ laakini/ skukhaadiri/ killokota. ‘I saw a necklace outside but I could not pick it up.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is siyaafu ‘safari ants’.)

rel.

ku-lokoteka v. p/s. (-lokoteshele)

Maayi/ hayalokoteki/ yachiwa habba. ‘Water cannot be taken out from it, it (the amount) is little.’

ku-lokoteḷoowa v. appl. pass.

Omari/ nakuloteḷowa maayi. ‘Omari is being dipped out water for.’

ku-lokotela v. appl. (lokoteleele) take out with, for kulokotela ḷkoombe/ suukari ‘to take out sugar with a spoon’ ku-lokotoowa v. pass.

kulokotowa maayi ‘(of) water to be scooped up’

ku-loola

v. [Sw. oa SSED 350] (loweele) take a wife, marry (of a man)

Ali/ loweele. ‘Ali got married.’

Chikhaambila/ kuwaa ye/ nakhsuḷa khuloolo/ we/ tamkhiirá? ‘If he says to you that he wants to marry you, will you accept him?’

Haadi/ mlowele Maryaamu. ‘Haadi married Maryaamu.’

Karka nṭ^hi ya Mwiini/ muunt^hu/ chisuḷa kuloolo/ humtuma maamaye/ ka mamaye mwanaamke/ na waawayé/ ka wawaye mwanaamké. ‘In the land of Brava, if a man wants to marry, he sends his mother to the mother of the girl, and his father to the father of the girl.’

Kheeri/ mi/ mmerree muke/ nimloole. ‘It is best that I look for a woman to marry.’

Laakini/ mwaana/ iize/ kumloola/ mwanaamke/ wa waawaye/ msuḷiḷiḷó. ‘But the boy refused to marry the girl that his father wanted for him.’

Loweeḷó/ ni Haadi. ‘The one who got married is Haadi.’

Maamaye/ chimreeba/ laakini/ iize/ mkasa/ mnoweele. ‘His mother forbid it (tried to stop him), but he refused to listen to her, and he married her (the woman).’

Muke/ waant^hu/ wiingi/ humsuuḷó/ mooyi/ tu/ humnooló. ‘A woman, many people want her, but only one marries her.’ (A proverb.)

Mungaano/ loweele/ yuuzi. ‘Mungaano got married the day before yesterday.’

Mi/ mukhta mi/ nṭ^hawaḷishiiza/ ndroweele/ wake wawili. ‘When I was installed as king, I married two women.’

Mwana wa sultaaniwa/ takhuloolo/ naami/ nṭ^hakuwa khadimuyo. ‘My sultan’s son will marry you and I will be your servant.’

Ndroola. ‘Marry me (spoken by a woman).’

Nimwambiile/ kuwaa mi/ nimpeenzelé/ na kuwaa mi/ nakhsuḷa kumloolá. ‘I told her that I loved her and that I wanted to marry her.’

Nṭ^hamwaambila/ kuwa siimba/ nakhsuḷa kumloola. ‘I will tell her that Lion wants to marry her.’

Sa’iidi/ nṭ^hile kumlola Haliima. ‘Saiidi persuaded me to marry Haliima.’

Sarmala mooyi/ ondroshere loweele muke. ‘A carpenter took a wife.’

Sultaani/ Ijiniile/ mloweele/ mwanaamke/ wa khaajé. ‘The Mad Sultan married the daughter of his maternal uncle.’

Sultaani/ wenopo kuwa mwanaamkewe/ shiinziḷa/ chihada/ nṭ^hakhulooza/ mwanaamkewa/ Huseeni/ chiiza/ chihada/ mi/ speendi/ kumloola. ‘When the sultan saw that his daughter was defeated, he said: I will marry my daughter to you; Huseeni refused, saying, I do not want to marry your daughter.’

Teena/ chilola muke mwiingine. ‘Then he married another woman.’

Waako/ waako/ wazazile waana/ ba’adi ya apo/ muḅli/ chimpenda muke mwiingine/ sulile kumnoola. ‘They lived like this for some time and had children; after that, the husband loved another woman and wanted to marry her.’

Waawaye/ chilola muke mwiingine. ‘Her father married another woman.’

Ye/ mloweele/ mwanaamke/ mooyi/ msuura/ nt^ho. ‘He married a very beautiful girl.’

Waliko... muḅli mooyi/ nnoweele/ mwanaamke/ wa amiyé. ‘There was a man married to the daughter of his paternal uncle.’ (Although our consultant MI retained an l that was preceded by a nasal consonant, many speakers convert the l to n, as can be seen in this example and the preceding one.)

Ye/ oloshela/ ka sulṭaani/ wa muuyi/ kummeera/ mwanaamkewe/ kumloola. ‘He went to the sultan of the town to seek his daughter to marry her.’

rel.

ku-looleḷa v. appl. [Sw. olea SSED] (loleele)

Mwandikilile mkuḷé/ khaṭi/ kumpa iḍini/ yakumlooleḷa. ‘He wrote a letter to his older brother giving him the authority to marry on his behalf.’

Nṭ^haná/ peesa/ za kuloolēḷa. ‘He does not have money with which to marry.’

ku-loḷoowa v. pass. [Sw. olea SSED350] (loweeḷa) be, get married (but the subject must be the woman)

Haliima/ ṭakuloḷowa na Ali. ‘Haliima will be married by Ali.’

Isa/ leelo/ masku/ yiiko/ nikaaha/ Safiya/ nakuloḷoowa/ na muḅli/ wa waawaye/ namsuliiḷó. ‘Now today at night there is an engagement, Safiya is being married by a man whom her father wants for her.’

Kuloḷoowa/ mi/ nakuwona kuwa itakunondrooleḷa ṭa’abú. ‘To be married I see will eliminate difficulties for me.’

Loweeḷá/ ni Maryaamu. ‘The one who got married is Maryaamu.’

Maryaamu/ loweeḷa na Haadi. ‘Maryaamu was married by Haadi.’

Mbujá/ chihaba/ nt^hakuloḷoowa. ‘My younger sister is not married.’

Mi/ speendi/ kulooloowa/ na muunt^hu/ mwiingine/ sho kuwaa we/ uje nt^hukilo ka kiitú. ‘I do not want to be married to any other man except you, the one who took me from my home.’

Mwanaamke/ uyu/ hapeendi/ kulooloowa/ na muunt^hu/ kuwa ni muḅli/ basi/ mloweele. ‘This daughter does not want to be married by a man just for the sake of being married.’

Mwanamke wa mwaalimu/ mereeḷa/ kulooloowa. ‘The teacher’s daughter was sought to be married (i.e. her father was asked the hand of his daughter in marriage).’

Safiya/ chilooloowa. ‘Safiya got married.’

Safiya/ loweeḷapó/ naayé/ nt^haku/ wanaayo/ furaha/ ka sababu nt^hamsuula/ muḅli oyo. ‘When Safiya got married, she too was not happy because she did not want that man.’

...ya kuwa mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ nakuloḷoowa. ‘...that the daughter of the sultan was getting married.’

ku-loolana v. rec. A reciprocal verb of this shape does not appear to be in use in Chimiini, although in Kiswahili one does find the cognate oana SSED 350.

ku-looleka v. p/s. [Sw. oleka SSED 350]

Haadi/ kaake/ haylooleki. ‘Haadi’s family cannot be married into – i.e. one cannot marry Haadi’s daughters.’

ku-loolesha v. This causative verb form is not in use in Chimiini.

ku-looleza v. caus. appl. [Sw. oleza SSED 350]

Ndroleze mwaana. ‘He assisted my child to marry for me.’

ku-loowela v. appl. (loweelele) = ku-looleḷa

ku-loweeleza v. = ku-looza

ku-looza v. caus. [Sw. oza SSED 350] (loweeze) assume the financial burden of a wedding (generally the husband’s parents do this); perform the marriage ceremony; cause to marry

Ali/ mloweze mwaanawe. [H!H] ‘Ali financed his son’s wedding.’

Hasani/ loweeza. [H!H] ‘Hasani was married [to the sultan’s daughter].’

Marhabá/ laakini/ ni khuloze naaní. ‘Alright, but it is who that should marry you?’

Mi/ nakhsuulá/ kumloza mwaanawa. ‘I want to arrange a marriage for my child; I want to marry him to my child.’

Ndroweze Haliima/ ka nguvu. ‘He compelled me to marry Haliima.’

Ndrooza/ mwanaamke/ waa mi/ nimleeseló. ‘Help me marry the girl whom I brought.’

Ni waawaye/ mloweezó. ‘It is his father who helped finance the wedding.’

Suufi/ mloweze Sa’iidi. ‘Suufi provided the means for Saiidi to marry.’

Suufi/ mloweze Sa’iidi/ mwanaamkewe. ‘Suufi married his daughter to Saiidi (i.e. he agreed to the marriage and will help make the marriage possible by providing funds etc.’

Sultaani/ fanyize haruusi/ nk^hulu/ mloweze Sultani Darayi/ mwanaamkewe. ‘The sultan held a big wedding ceremony and married his daughter to Sultan Daraayi.’

Sultani uyu/ sulile mloza mwaanawe/ muke. ‘This sultan wanted to marry his son to a woman.’ (Morph. It is common in Chimiini for the infinitive prefix ku to elide before the object marker m(u)-referring to a [cl.1] noun. Thus ku-m-looza often will become m-looza as in this sentence.)

Waawé/ mi/ nnakhsulaa we/ kundrozá. ‘Father, I want you to help me get married.’

Wotte/ wachiwafikhana kumtumila khaadi/ nt^hume/ naaye/ nawalooze. ‘All agreed to send a messenger to bring a judge to come and marry them.’

ku-loozanya v. caus. rec. (wa-lozeenye) marry each other

Ali/ lozenye na Haliima. ‘Ali married (with) Haliima.’

preceding example shows that either the male or the female may reside in subject position, while the example below shows that the male and the female may be conjoined and reside in subject position.)

Maryaamu/ na Haadi/ walozeenye. ‘Maryaamu and Haadi married.’

Omari/ khubaliile/ kulozanya na Aamina. ‘Omari agreed to get married with Aamina.’

Sulile kulozanya naaye. ‘He wanted to get married to her.’

Walozeenyó/ ni Maryaamu/ na Haadi. ‘The ones who got married were Maryaamu and Haadi.’

Want^hu wa Miini/ huloozanya/ kati kaawo. ‘The people of Brava marry from among themselves.’

ku-loozeka v. caus. p/s.

ku-lozeleza v. caus. appl.

ku-lozelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-lozoowa v. caus. pass.

Ye/ chilozowa mwanaamke/ oyo/ ka furaha. ‘He was married to that girl with happiness.’

rel. nom.

m-loola (wa-) n. 1/2 one who marries

Mlola maamo/ ni waawo. ‘The one who married your mother is your father.’ (A proverb.)

the marriage) ma-loozo n. 6 marriage (the act of performing the ceremony or the arrangements for variant form: ma-loozi

chi-lolo (zi-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. kioo SSED 202] mirror, glass (in general meaning, not a glass to drink with) kana chilolo or kamba chilolo ‘like a mirror, glass’

Nakuwala/ kamba/ chilolo. ‘She is shining like a mirror.’ (A pronunciation like this, where kamba is put into its own phrase, is possible. But the following example shows that it is not necessary: Nakuwala kamba chiloló. ‘You are shining like a mirror.’ The absence of accent except at the end shows that we are dealing with a single phrase here.)

Zahara/ osheze sufuriya/ ka oomo/ inakuwala/ kana chilolo.

‘Zahara washed the pan with detergent, it is shining like glass.’

kaandra nonyeeze chilolo isa badiliile haaliyo [song] ‘first you showed me the mirror (i.e. promising me good things), now you changed your behavior’

Langala ruuhuyo/ chilolooni. ‘Look at yourself in the mirror!’

Langala ruuhuyo/ ka chilolo. ‘Look at yourself with a mirror!’

Nonyeeze chilolo. ‘She showed me a mirror [lit.]—i.e. she cheated/ deceived me.’

rel.

i-lolo n. aug. (i) large mirror; (ii) x-ray plate

ku-loomba

v. [Sw. omba SSED 351] (loonzele) beg someone; beg God (as opposed to formal prayer)

Astaghafiru/ ni sku/ waant^hu/ wa Mwiini/ hulawa kendra lfuwooni/ kulombaa nvula. ‘Astaghafiru is the day the people of Mwiini leave to go to the beach to pray for rain.’

Basi/ sku mooyi/ mgarwa/ lonzele rukhsa/ ka sultaani/ wawaye mukeewe/ keendra/ ye/ na mukeewé/ kumzuura/ mweenzawe/ hukalo karka nt^hi ya sultani ðaalimu. ‘So one day the fisherman begged permission from the sultan, his wife’s father, to go, he and his wife, to visit his friend, who lives in the land of the unjust sultan.’

Baazi/ lonzele koloka skolaani. ‘Baazi begged to go to school.’

Baazi/ lonzele maayi. ‘Baazi begged for water.’

Fardoosa/ chiloenzele/ si/ kuuya/ kuwaziyaṭaa wo. ‘Fardoosa begged us to come and visit them soon.’

Fardoosa/ loonzele/ kendra skolaani. ‘Fardoosa begged to go to school.’

Hufanyo kaazi/ haloombi. ‘He who works does not beg.’ (A proverb.)

Isa/ mi/ nakhuloombá/ watume ma’askariyo/ wanamleete/ muunt^hu/ oyo/ mbelezo. ‘Now I beg you to send your soldiers to bring that man in front of you.’

Ka paapo/ apo/ naa ye/ Hasani/ chiloomba/ ka khalbiini/ kaake/ chiloomba/ shpeteche/ chimbadike nawe karka haali/ suura/ jisaa ye/ zazila na wazeelewé. ‘At that same moment too Hasani begged in his heart, he begged his ring that it change him so that he be in the nice condition the way he had been born by his parents.’

Kana kuboolá/ kheeri/ kuloomba ‘Begging is better than stealing.’ (A saying.)

Kuloomba/ na kiizá/ hadanganyoowi. ‘To beg and to refuse must not be put together.’ (A saying.)

kulombaa nvula ‘to pray for rain’ kulomba raaði ‘to beg forgiveness’

Basi/ oyo sultaani/ chimlomba raaði. ‘So that sultan asked him for his forgiveness.’

Mwaana/ khiriile/ kuwaa ye/ laazimu/ kulomba raaði. ‘The boy admitted that he should apologize.’

kulomba sadaqa ‘to beg for alms’

Chilomba sadakha/ chiloombó. ‘She begged for alms, that’s what she did.’

Chingila kuloomba/ sadakha. ‘He began (lit. entered) to beg for alms.’

Mi/ ni muunt^hu/ nakulomba sadakhá. ‘I am someone who is begging for alms.’

Maama/ chimloomba/ mwaanawe/ chiza kendra teena/ maduriini/ laakini/ mwaana/ iize/ khkasa/ kooði/ za maamaye. ‘Mother begged her son not to go again to the bush, but he refused to listen to his mother’s words.’

- Mi/ ndronzele khiri^loowá/ ku^lawá. ‘I begged to be allowed to leave.’
- Mi/ nimnoonzelé/ Omari/ kuliindra/ mi. ‘I begged Omari to wait for me.’
- Mi/ yaliko laazimu/ kumloomba. ‘Me, it was necessary (for me) to beg him.’
- Mub^li/ chimlomba mukeewe/ raa^lo. ‘The man begged his wife to grant him forgiveness.’
- Muun^hu/ chilomba chiint^hu/ hupoowa. ‘If someone begs for something, he is (i.e. should be) given it.’ (A proverb.)
- Muun^hu/ kulomba niingi/ hukaha^loowa. ‘A person who begs a lot will be hated.’ (A proverb.)
- Muusa/ mnoonzele/ mweenzawe/ kuya naaye. ‘Muusa begged his friend to come with him.’
- Na killa/ chiloombapó/ we/ mlaango/ fungu^liloowa. ‘And every time when you ask, that door will be opened for you.’
- Nakhuloombá/ lawa/ ndilaani/ mp^hate khkoo^lo/ naawe. ‘I beg you, come outside so that I may get to talk with you.’
- Nakhuloombá/ msaamehe. ‘I beg you to forgive her.’
- Nimlonzele Baazi/ ye/ kunsaydaa mi. ‘I begged Baazi to help me.’ (In the speech of GM, the first person singular object marker in this example was not heard in front of the voiceless consonant. Nevertheless, in writing the sentence, he wrote the nasal., which was always present in the speech of MI.)
- Nloonzelé/ gaari/ koshoowa. ‘I asked for the car to be washed.’ (Note that gaari is the subject of the passive infinitive, but it cannot be the object of the main verb: *Ni^liloonzelé/ gaari/ koshoowa. ‘I asked the car to be washed.’)
- Nimloonzelé/ Omari/ kosha gaari. ‘I asked Omari to wash the car.’ Or: Gaari/ koosha/ nimnoonzelé/ Omari. Or: Gaari/ nimnoonzelé/ Omari/ koosha. (Note that it was not judged acceptable for the main verb to agree with gaari rather than Omari: *ni^liloonzelé/ gaari/ Omari/ koosha. ‘I asked the car for Omari to wash it.’)
- Oloshela ka sultaani/ chimloomba/ nampe igozi ya ngoombe. ‘He went to the sultan and begged him to give him the skin of a cow.’
- Si/ chiloonzelé/ we/ kishpaa si/ ndila. ‘We begged that you give us guidance.’
- Si/ chinakulomba kuwaa we/ kishpaa si/ waanó. ‘We beg that you give us advice.’
- somaani mnombeeni Mooja Rahmaani/ takishpeleka ka mtume Adnaani [st.] ‘recite it and beseech God, the Merciful/ to take us to visit the prophet Adnan’
- Ye/ chilonzelee si/ kuuya/ kuwawonaa wo/ ka hima. ‘She begged us to come and see them as soon as possible.’
- Ye/ loonzele/ mo maape/ khfungula mnaango. ‘He begged for someone to open the door.’
- Ye/ mlonzele waawaye/ naank^hó/ deni yiingine. ‘She begged her father for yet another loan.’
- Ye/ ndroonzele/ mi/ kumpa nguwoze/ laakini/ mi/ niüzé/ kumpa. ‘She begged me to give her her clothes, but I refused to give her them.’
- Ye/ ndronzelee mi/ kuya kahima. ‘He begged for me to come as soon as possible.’ rel.
- ku-lombanoowa* v. rec. pass.
teena Sheekhi nakulawa/ raa^lo inalombanoowa [st.] ‘now the Sheikh is going out, people are begging each other’s forgiveness’
- ku-lombeloowa* v. appl. pass.
Sheekhi Nureeni nasiimu/ rahma mba kulombeloowa [st.] ‘Sheikh Nureeni, the Gentle Breeze/ mercy is to be implored for him’
- ku-loombela* v. appl. (lombeleele) pray (to God) for s.o.
Nfungu^lila mlaango/ mi/ niingile/ numbaani/ nt^hakhulombela ma’abuudu/ nakhutile rahaani. ‘Open the door for me so that I may enter the house, I will pray to the one who is worshipped to be put you in comfort.’
- Wa raadi/ wa raadi/ n t^hakhuloombela/ we/ wekoowa/ karka sku ya uzelee/ naawé/ fanyiki^loowa. ‘Goodbye, goodbye, I will pray for you that you be put in (your) days of old age and for you everything be smooth.’

ku-lombelana v. appl. rec. beg for one another ku-lomboowa v. pass. (loonzeḷa) be begged

Hulombowa mojiitu/ kughafira ḍambi. ‘It is God who is begged to forgive sins.’

Rabbi Rahmaani Rahiimu/ rahmaye hulomboowa [st.] ‘our Lord is the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful/ and for his mercies we implore’

Raaḍi/ hulombowa ka mwajiitu. ‘Forgiveness is sought from God.’

Ye/ shpoowa/ zaa ye/ loonzeló. ‘He was given what he asked for.’

rel. nom.

m-loomba (wa-) n. 1/2 beggar ma-loombo n. 6 begging to apologize chi-loombo

n. begging

Chiloombo/ hachizoowi. ‘Begging for something is not refused/denied.’

rel.

i-loombo n. begging, request

Baaba/ shkhubala/ iloombo/ ya mwanaamkewe. ‘Father agreed to his daughter’s request.’

m-lome

in the expression:

mp^hamp^ha mlome ‘a kind of fish’

m-lomo (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mlomo SSED 291 or mdomo SSED 273] lip, beak; [pron. mlomo or mnomo in the singular, but only milomo in the plural]

Funga milomo. ‘Shut up (lit. shut lips)!’

khpaka ranji/ milomo ‘to paint the lips – i.e. apply lipstick’ khsonda milomo ‘to lick the lips (as of a child after eating)’ kubusanya ka milomo ‘to kiss one another on the lips’ kuluma mnomo/milomo ‘to bit the lip(s)’ kumbusa ka mnomo/milomo ‘to kiss with the lip(s)’ kumsonda mnomi/milomo ‘to suck someone’s lip(s) – refers to kissing as part of the sexual act’ milomo aya ‘these lips’

milomo mikavu ‘dry lips’

milomo mikulu ‘big lips’

milomo miwili ‘barracuda -- [lit.] two lips’ milomo ya ndini mikulu ‘labia major’

milomo ya ndini zihaba ‘labia minor’

milomo zihaba ‘small lips’

mnomo (or: milomo)/ khfuura ‘for lip to swell’

Milomo/ yamfuriile/ Omari. ‘The lips swelled him, Omari.’ (Phon.

The ordinary word order for this construction is that the person affected is in initial position – see below. In the present example, Omari has been postposed and is in a different phrase from the verb. The simple yes-no question reveals that Omari is out-of-focus, causing accent-shift: Milomo/ yamfuriile/ Omari? GM did allow an emphatic version of this question, but it is only the out-of-focus Omari that undergoes accent-shift: Milomo/ yamfuriile/ Omari!? Apparently, the fact that the verb is focused leads to the fact that it escapes accent-shift in the emphatic yes-no question.)

Omari/ milomo/ yamfuriile. ‘Omari’s lips are swollen.’ (Syn.

Note that milomo controls subject agreement on the verb, while Omari controls the object prefix.) (Phon. In the simple yes-no question, there is no accent shift. In the emphatic version, there is accent shift on each of the last two phrases: Omari/ milomó/ yamfuriilé!?) Omari/ milomo/ yamfuriiló. ‘Omari’s lips swelled.’ (Phon. If we compare this sentence to the one above, the difference is that milomo is the focus here; focusing on milomo induces a shift of the verb into the pseudo-relative form.

Yamfuriile/ Omari/ milomo. ‘They swelled him, Omari, the lips.’

(Phon. In this sentence, both nominals are postposed after the verb; it is the verb that is being emphasized. In the simple yes-no question, both nominals undergo accent-shift: Yamfuriile/ Omari/ milomó? In the emphatic version, even the verb undergoes accent-shift: Yamfuriilé/ Omari/ milomô!? In the exclamatory question, the final accent is markedly falling in pitch. The principle that determines when a phrase containing the verb will undergo accent shift in the emphatic yes-no question is not clear to us at present. Just in the data cited above, we find cases where there was no accent shift: Milomo/ yamfuriile/ Omari!?, as well as cases where there is accent-shift: Omari/ milomó/ yamfuriilê!?) need to check the simple yes-no question here again mnomo uwu ‘this lip’

mnomo wa ilu ‘upper lip’

mnomo waa muso ‘hen’s beak’ mnomo wa nṭhiini ‘lower lip’

mnomo wa ori ‘cock’s beak’ mp^haamp^ha wa milomo ‘a kind of shark that has big lips’

ranji ya milomo ‘lipstick’

Ye/ nambiile/ kuwa inyunyi/ ikulu/ itakukhtukulaa ngozi/ ka mlomowe/ itakhpandra naami/ ilu/ ya ijabali. ‘He told me that a big bird would carry the animal skin in his beak and would go up with me to the top of the mountain.’

rel.

i-lomo (mi-) n. aug. 5/4 ilomo ya mp^haamp^ha ‘a shark’s (aug.) lip – used as an insult’

Omari/ ilomoye/ kana ya mp^haamp^ha ‘Omari, his lip is [big] like that of a shark.’ (This is an insult, rather than descriptive of someone’s lips.)

zi-loondra

n. 8 syphilis

Pinichiliina/ nii dawa/ ya ziloondra. ‘Penicillin is a cure for syphilis.’

Ziloondra/ hupakanowa ka mubli/ kujami’ana naa muke. ‘Syphilis is given to one another by a man having intercourse with a woman.’

chi-loondro (zi-)

n. 7/8 leg of a bed

chilondro chaa chili ‘leg of a bed’

rel.

i-loondro (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

u-loongo

n. 14 [Sw. udongo SSED 488] clay, mud

fija ya uloongo or fiija/ ya uloongo ‘clay stove’

Lkuta la uloongo/ lchuuza/ mbona/ ni/ nnakunvunaangá/ mi/ ninfanyiizeni. ‘The mud wall asked: how come you (pl.) are beating me? what have I done to you?’

Mi/ nk^hawa ni hukhadiro khfanya killa chiint^hú/ mi/ nk^hawa ni hukhadiro kubla waant^hú/ mazá/ lkuta la uloongo/ sulá khaadira/ so/ kundreeba/ mi/ chiza khpitá/ kingila mahala mi/ nnakhsuuló. ‘If I am able to do whatever [I want], if I am able to kill people, how come a mud wall is able to block me from passing through it and enter wherever I want?’

mtungi wa uloongo or mtuungi/ wa uloongo ‘clay pot’ numba ya uloongo or nuumba/ ya uloongo ‘clay house; idiomatic: someone who is easily upset, irritated’

Numba ya uloongo/ hayhimili/ zishiindro. ‘A house of mud cannot withstand shocks.’ (A proverb that conveys the idea that a person can take only what he can take.)

Ye/ ni numba ya uloongo. ‘He is easily upset.’

skopa za uloongo or skopa/ za uloongo ‘clay cups’ uloongo/ na makufi ‘mud and palm leaves’

m-loongofu (wa-)

n. 1/2 guide

Mloongofu/ ni mojiitu. ‘The one who guides is God.’ (A proverb.)

u-loongofu

n. 14 [Sw. wongofu SSED 355] moral uprightness, moral straightness

Uloongofu/ ni ka mojiitu. ‘Guidance comes from God.’

ku-loongola

- v. [Sw. ongoa SSED 355] (longeele) lead s.o. on the right path (of God)
Ahmada longeele ka ndila njeema/ pamo na ndruuze na sahaaba weema [st.] ‘Ahmad, who led us onto the right path, and upon his relatives and his righteous companions’ (In CLE, this example was mistranscribed and hence incorrectly glossed. Thanks to Alessandra Vianello for the correct transcription and translation.)
mooja chiloongole khsaala t̄imaamu/ ka jaaha ya mtume w̄itu imaamu [st.] ‘O Lord, lead us (on the right path) to remain perfect, for the sake of our prophet imaamu’ mooja chiloongole shfaanye ibaada/ karka amali njeema yiimo faayda [st.] ‘O Lord, guide us so that we worship (fulfill our duties as Muslims), in good deeds there is profit’ Mojiitu/ nakhuloongola. ‘May God guide you on the right path.’

rel.

ku-loongoza v. caus. (longeeze) show the right way; guide (physically as well as morally)

m-loongoti (mi-)

n. 3/4 mast; [pron. mloongoti or mnoongoti]

Monyeze mloongoti/ mule/ nt^ho/ ulaziloo nt^hi/ na ukomelo kuzimú. ‘She showed him a very long mast that came from the earth and reached to the sky.’

Nnaksula markabú/ ya ðahabú/ milongotiye/ ya feða/ mitaangaye/ ya hariiri. ‘I want a ship of gold, its masts of silver, its sails of silk.’

Sku ya piili/ shpandra teena/ oyo mloongoti/ kulangaḷa/ inakhfanyoowani/ oko/ karkaa nt^hi/ ya majini. ‘The second day he climbed again that mast to see what was being done there in the land of the djinns.’

rel.

i-loongoti n. aug. long pole or tall tree mule/ kana iloongoti ‘tall like a tall tree’

chi-loongozi

n. guide

Moyi uyu/ ye/ chimtinda mashkilo/ chimfanya chiloongozi/ kumwonyaa ndila/ humpeleko ka sultani aduwi. ‘This one, he cut off his ears and made him as guide to show him the way that leads to the enemy sultan.’ (Usage: Notice how aduwi ‘enemy’ is used here to modify sultaani, being incorporated into the same phonological phrase with it.)

i-looni

n. [Sw. jioni SSED 156; cf. Proto-Sabaki ijilo* N&H 625] after dark (Morph. This item would appear to consist of a stem ilo followed by the locative enclitic =ni – cf. fijiri ‘morning’, fijiriini ‘about dawn’; shpiindri ‘mid-day’, shpindriini ‘around mid-day’. However, there is no independent stem ilo that we have encountered.)

Hupelekowa mahala/ mayiini/ tawala/ ilooni. ‘(The two pieces of wood) were taken to a place of water at the sea at dusk.’

Ilooni/ muke/ na mub̄liwé/ wachilawa/ wacholoka kaawo. ‘After dark the woman and her husband departed and went to their place.’

Ilooni/ muke/ shpika chaakuja. ‘At dusk the woman cooked food.’

Khariibu ya ilooni/ ofeetopó/ chilemela mteendre/ khpumula/ na usiinzizi/ uchimtaala. ‘About dusk, when he got tired, he leaned against the date tree, and sleep overtook him.’

Ye/ chendra fijiri/ na mapeema/ la piili/ na chendra kiḷa ilooni. ‘He went in the morning and the afternoon twice, and he went each evening.’

review accent

ku-loota

v. [Sw. ota SSED 356] (loosele) dream (Comparison with the Swahili cognate reveals two ways in which the Chimiini form is more conservative than the Swahili: first, Chimiini retains the initial l of the stem, and second it retains the proto-Bantu long vowel. Swahili has lost the long/short contrast: vowels are short unless lengthened when penultimate in a phrase. Swahili does not indicate this predictable phrasal lengthening in its orthography. When Swahili has a word with successive vowels like aa, this represents a situation where the vowel is rearticulated.)

Ali/ losele kuwa Nuuru/ nakendraa Maka. ‘I dreamed that Nuuru was going to Mecca.’ (Chimiini is a language permitting some perhaps surprising syntactic manipulations of sentences with complement clauses. For example, in the case of the present example, it is possible to make the subject of the complement clause into the object of the main clause: Ali/ mlosele Nuuru/ (kuwa) nakendraa Maka. ‘[Lit.] Ali dreamed Nuuru (that) he was going to Mecca.’ It is also possible to make the subject of the complement clause into the subject of a passive form of the main clause: Nuuru/ losela (kuwa) nakendraa Maka. ‘[Lit.] Nuuru was dreamed (that) he was going to Mecca.’ The complement clause, cast into a pseudo-relative form, may be preposed, with the main verb also put into pseudo-relative form: Ali/ Nuuru/ nakendroo Maká/ mlooseló. ‘Ali, Nuuru going to Mecca, he dreamed him.’ Also: Nuuru/ nakendroo Maká/ looselá. ‘Nuuru, his going to Mecca, he was dreamed.’)

Ali/ losele kuwa siimba/ mubjelee mbuzi. ‘Ali dreamed that a lion killed a goat.’ (One can also say: Ali/ mlosele siimba/ kuwa mubjelee mbuzi. ‘Ali dreamed about the lion that it killed a goat.’ One can also say: Ali/ mloselee mbuzi/ kuwa siimba/ mubjelee. ‘Ali dreamed about the goat that a lion killed it.’)

Ali/ losele kuwa siimba/ mrashize Nuuru. ‘Ali dreamed that a lion chased Nuuru.’ (One can also say: Ali/ mlosele siimba/ kuwa mrashize Nuuru. But MI observed that he disliked giving emphasis to the animal over the man. So he liked better Ali/ mlosele Nuuru/ kuwa siimba/ mrashiize. ‘Ali dreamed about Nuuru that the lion chased him.’ One can also make Nuuru the subject of the passive: Nuuru/ losela kuwa siimba/ mrashiize. ‘Nuuru was dreamed that a lion chased him.’)

Ali/ losele kuwa Nuuru/ mbigilile Jaama/ mwaana. ‘Ali dreamed that Nuuru beat the child for/on Nuuru.’ (Observe that if one says Ali/ mlosele mwaana/ kuwa Nuuru/ mbigilile Jaama, this can only be understood as meaning: Ali dreamed about the child that Nuuru beat Jaama (to the child’s benefit or detriment). In other words, it is only the beneficiary that can be marked as an object on the higher verb.)

Ali/ mlosele Nuuru/ kuwa rashize siimba. ‘Ali dreamed about Nuuru that he followed/chased a lion.’

Chiloota/ kuwaa ye/ wene ruuhuye/ uko mahala suura/ na makumnesha moojé/ khamri. ‘He dreamed that he saw himself in a lovely place and he was serving his master liquor.’

Khpatha maali/ na ku’isha karka miyi mikulú/ zivaliko ba’aði ya ziint^hu/ za iisha/ chiloótó. ‘To get money and to live in big cities were some of the things that Iisha dreamed about.’

Losele kuwa fiile. ‘He dreamed that he was dead.’

Loosele/ kuwaa ye/ uko kaawo/ kalent^he mbele za waawaye. ‘She dreamed that she was at home sitting in front of her father.’

Losele ndrooto. ‘He dreamed a dream.’

ndroote ‘that I dream’; loote ‘that you/he dream’; nloote ‘that you (pl.) dream’

Siloteení. ‘You (pl.) don’t dream!’

Collect data to explore whether an inanimate noun can be raised and if it can be raised in presence of an animate/ human noun.

rel.

ku-loosa v. caus. (loseeze) receive a message from a dead person while one is asleep

Hamadi/ waawaye/ mloseeze. ‘Hamadi’s father sent him a message in a dream.’

ku-lootana v. rec. (-loteene) variant form: kulotanana (-lotaneene)

ku-lotoowa v. pass. (loosela)

ku-loowa

v. (loweele) obsolete fish

- ku-lula* v. (luzile) be worn out, rusted out (of metals) inakululake ‘it’s wearing out’
Nakulula kama chuma cha miriri. ‘[Lit.] he is wearing out like a rusty piece of iron – i.e. he is losing weight, becoming a frustrated wreck from his worries.’
Siisila/ iluzile. ‘The chain rusted out.’
Tahaðari/ nk^holo iyi/ iluzile. ‘Be careful, that hook is rusted out.’
- rel.
ku-lulila v. appl.
Chuuma/ chindruliile. ‘A piece of iron has worn out on me.’
Mwaana/ ndruliile. ‘The child is becoming worried to death on me.’
- ku-luloowa* v. pass.
Apa/ inakuloowa/ siisi/ ka khisani. ‘People here are becoming frustrated, I do not know why.’
- ku-luza* v. tr. wear out, cause to suffer
Ito ya kulangala/ kana haykhubli/ huluza. ‘The eye that looks, if it does not kill you, you will suffer.’ (A proverb, especially used with respect to a “wandering eye” and infidelity.)
Kooðize/ zinakundruza. ‘His words are wearing me out – i.e. worrying me to death, bothering me to the point where I am losing weight, etc.’)
Mayi ya tawala/ huluza chuuma. ‘Sea water rusts out iron.’
- ku-luzanya* v. tr. rec. worry one another to death (Syn. This verb does not allow the phenomenon we refer to as reciprocal shift.)
- ku-luzika* v. p/s.
Chuuma/ huluzika kaa hima/ ka mayi ya tawala. ‘Iron rusts out quickly from sea water.’
- rel. nom.
u-lulo n. 14
ululo wa chuuma ‘the wearing out of the iron’
- ku-luma* v. [Sw. uma SSED 497 (lumiile) bite, sting, ache (This verb is used with human objects, not with food, e.g.)
- Boora/ mtile mwaana/ kuluma ruuhuye. ‘Boora caused (persuaded etc.) the child to bite his [own] finger.’ (Syn. An example of a periphrastic causative, which in the case of the present verb is an alternative to the verb lumisha ‘cause to bite’. Cf. also: Boora/ mtile Huseeni/ mwaana/ kuluma ruuhuye. ‘Boora caused for/on Huseeni the child to bite himself.’ Also: Boora/ na Huseeni/ watililene waana/ kuluma ruhu zaawo. ‘Boora and Huseeni caused one another’s children to bite themselves.’)
- kuluma chaala ‘to bite the finger (showing regret for a lost opportunity, e.g. missing scoring a goal or missing a target when shooting)’ Mwaalimu/ lumile chaalache. ‘The teacher bit his finger in regret.’
- kuluma/ kanaa noka ‘to bite like a snake – e.g. to take s.t. on loan and not repay’
- kuluma miino ‘to bite the teeth, either in pain or to show anger Lumile miino/ ka shtana. ‘He clenched his teeth in anger.’
Lumile miino/ ka ulaazo. ‘He clenched his teeth in pain.’
- kuluma mlomo ‘to bite the lip (showing disapproval)’ Mwaalimu/ lumile mlomo. ‘The teacher bite his lip (showing disapproval).’
- Maduuri/ yanakhtishaa nt^ho/ naa ndalá/ inakundruma. ‘The bush is very frightening and hunger is gnawing at me.’
- Maana/ mlumile Omari. ‘The child bit Omari.’
- Maana/ mpende chilaala/ choondroka/ mnumile chaala. ‘Love a child when he is sleeping; when he wakes up, bite him a finger.’ (A proverb. Among the want^hu wa miini, biting one’s finger is a gesture of disapproval or anger.)

Mana waa noka/ haatowi/ kuluma. ‘The child of a snake does not fail to bite.’ (A proverb.)

Mi/ tu/ ndrumiḷa naa noká. ‘Only I was bitten by a snake.’ (The data that we collected on the version of this sentence with verb focus indicated a failure of the Accentual Law of Focus to hold: Mi/ tu/ ndumiḷá/ naa noká. This issue needs further research.)

Muke/ chimwambilaa noka/ kalaant^ha/ nt^hini yaa chili/ nt^hini ya godoro/ chilaala/ lawa/ mlume naafe. ‘The woman told the snake: sit under the bed, under the mattress, and when he goes to sleep, come out and sting him to death.’

Muusa/ hadile kuwaa mi/ nimlumiḷé. ‘Muusa said that I bit him.’

Muusa/ hadile kuwaa ye/ mlumile mwaana. ‘Muusa said that he bit the child.’

Muusa/ lumiḷa naa mba. ‘Muusa was bitten by a dog.’

Muusa/ lumiḷa naa noka. ‘Muusa was bitten by a snake.’

Muusa/ lumiḷa naa noká... ‘Muus, who was bitten by a snake...’

Muusa/ tu/ lumiḷa naa noká. ‘Only Muusa was bitten by a snake.’

Mwaana/ lumile ruuhuye. ‘The child bit himself.’ (Syn. Observe that when the primary object of the verb is the reflexive ruuhu, then there is no object agreement on the verb. It is ungrammatical to say:

Mwaana/ mlumile ruuhuye. Observe also that the reflexive ruuhu has a possessive enclitic appended that agrees with the subject in person. The sentence is ill-formed if there is not agreement, as in Mwaana/ lumile ruuhuya. ‘The child bit myself.’)

Mwaana/ ndrumiḷe. ‘The child bit me.’

Nalumeni/ miino/ ba/ nt^haná. ‘What should he bite? He does not even have teeth.’ (A proverb.)

Ndrumiḷa naa noká. ‘I was bitten by a snake.’ Or: Ndrumiḷá/ naa noka.

Nimlumiḷé. ‘I bit him.’

Nimlumile Omari. ‘I bit Omari.’ Or: Nimlumiḷé/ Omari. ‘I bit Omari.’

Ni Muusa/ lumiḷa naa noká. ‘It’s Muusa who was bitten by a snake.’

Ni Khaliifa/ lumiḷa naa noká. ‘It is Khaliifa who was bitten by a snake.’

Noka/ mlumile Omari. ‘The snake bit Omari.’

Nt^huungu/ ndrumiḷe. ‘An ant bit me.’ (Syn. Note that [cl.9] subject agreement may be used to render the subject NP definite:

Nt^huungu/ indrumiḷe. ‘The ant bit me.’)

Silumeení. ‘You (pl.) don’t bite!’

rel.

ku-lumaaluma v. freq.

Mbwaawa/ mukhta ye/ mweno aduwiyá/ nakuya ka chinumechá/ kunubḷá/ chimulukila/ chilmumaaluma. ‘When my dog saw my enemy coming from behind to kill me, he jumped him and bit him here and there.’

We/ laṭa/ kichilumaaluma. ‘You quit biting us again and again.’

ku-lumana v. rec. (-lumeene) bite one another

Ali/ na Hamadi/ walumeene. ‘Ali and Hamadi bit one another.’ (Syn. This reciprocal verb apparently does not allow ‘reciprocal shift’, the process whereby one member of the conjoined subject is postposed after the verb and preceded by the agent marker na: Ali/ lumene na Hamadi.)

Limi/ na miinó/ ha’ilumani. ‘The tongue and the teeth do not bite each other.’ (A proverb.)

Mino yaa mba/ hayalumani. ‘The teeth of a dog/ do not bite one another.’ (A proverb.)

ku-lumika v. p/s.

ku-lumila v. appl. (lumiliḷe) bite on kulumila chaala ‘to bite the finger in regret at s.o.’

Mwaalimu/ ndrumiḷiḷe chaala. ‘The teacher bit his finger at me

(as an indication of his regret over my actions).’

kulumila mlomo ‘to bite the lip in disapproval at s.o.’

Mwaaalimu/ ndrumulile mlomo. ‘The teacher bit his lip at me in a sign of disapproval.’

Mbwa/ ndrumulile mwaana. ‘The dog bit my child on me.’

Mp^hamp^ha mlome/ nt^haná/ mino ya kulumila. ‘A [type of] shark does not have teeth to bite with.’

ku-lumilana v. appl. rec.

Walumilene zaala. ‘They bit their fingers at one another in regret.’

ku-lumisha v. caus. (lumishiize)

Boora/ mlumishize mwaana/ ruuhuye. ‘Boora caused the child to bite himself.’

ku-lumishana v. caus. rec.

ku-lumishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-lumishiliza v. caus. appl. (lumishiliize)

Boora/ mlumishilize Huseeni/ mwaana/ ruuhuye. ‘Boora caused Huseeni’s child to bite himself.’

ku-lumishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (lumishilizeenye)

Boora/ na Huseeni/ walumishilizenye waana/ ruhu zaawo. ‘Boora and Huseeni caused one another’s children to bite their fingers.’

ku-lumoowa v. (lumila) be bitten

Lumila naa noka/ hutiya ikuti. ‘One who has been bitten by a snake is afraid of a coconut palm leaf.’ (A proverb.)

Muusa/ tu/ lumila naa noka. ‘Only Muusa was bitten by a snake.’

Ndrumila naa noká. ‘I was bitten by a snake.’ Or: Ndrumilá/ naa noka. ‘I was bitten by a snake.’

Ni Muusa/ lumila naa noká. ‘It is Muusa who was bitten by a snake.’

rel. nom.

chi-luma (zi-) n. 7/8 s.t. that bites

m-luma (wa-) n. 1/2 one who bites

m-lumo n. 3 act of biting mlumowe ‘his act of biting’ ma-lumo n. 6 bites, acts of biting

Noka uyu/ malumowe/ mawovu. ‘This snake’s [his] bites are dangerous.’

u-lumo n. 14 bite, act of biting

Ulumo waa noka/ siwo/ kama ulumo wa waana. ‘The bite of a snake is not like the bite of children [they have different consequences, etc.]’

ku-lumika

v. [Sw. umika SSED 499] bleed s.o. by cupping (the horn of an animal is used; the part of the body that is giving pain is cut with a razor and the horn is used to suck out the blood; it is believed that this will remove the ‘bad’ blood) kulumika khtomola maazi khatari [st.] ‘to bleed s.o., taking out the blood, is dangerous [i.e. is not allowed]’

Suufi/ lumishile. ‘Suufi bled (himself).’

Suufi/ mlumishile mwaana. ‘Suufi bled the child.’

rel.

ku-lumikika v. p/s.

ku-lumikisha v. caus.

ku-lumikishana v. caus. rec.

ku-lumikishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-lumikishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-lumikishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-lumikishilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

ku-lumikishoowa v. caus. pass.

ku-lumikoowa v. pass.

kulumikoowa ni doraani ndruga ‘[st.] ‘to be cupped, avoid it, my brothers!’

ku-lumisha v. caus.

Suufi/ mlumishize Huseeni/ ruuhuye. ‘Suufi caused Huseeni to bleed himself.’

Suufi/ mlumishize Huseeni/ mwaana. ‘Suufi caused Huseeni to bleed the child.’

ku-lumishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-lumishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nureeni/ na Osmani/ mlumishilizenye waana/ ruhu zaawo. ‘Nureeni and Osmani caused one another’s children to cup themselves.’

need to confirm that –lumik- and –lum- may both be the base for caus formation etc

u-luumu

n. science

ku-luundra

v. [Sw. unda SSED 500] (luunzile) build (esp. boats) variant form: kuundra [only observed in the infinitive, however]

Lundra jahazi. ‘Build a boat!’

Nakuluundra. ‘He is building something.’

Wa|waawo/ wachingila kaziini/ kulundra jahazi/ khsafirila. ‘Both of them began to work, building a boat to travel in.’

rel.

ku-lundri|oowa v. appl. pass.

Mwaana/ chilundri|oowa/ markabu/ saba. ‘The son was built for him seven ships.’

ku-luundrila v. appl. (lundri|iile)

Sh|takhulundrila markabu. ‘We shall build a ship for you.’

ku-lundrilana v. appl. rec.

ku-lundroowa v. pass.

rel. nom.

m-luundra (wa-) n. 1/2 builder

m-luundro (mi-) n. 3/4 the act of building

ku-luunga

v. [Sw. unga SSD 502] (luunzile) join two things together, unite, set (bones); build kulunga bateera ‘to build a small boat’ kulunga jahazi ‘to build a jahazi’ kulungaa mbawo ‘to join together planks of wood’ kulunga mishpa ‘to set bones’, kulunga mwishpa ‘to set a bone’

¶Nnakulunga mishpa/ yavundishilo. ‘I am setting the broken bones.’ (The singular form mwishpa falls together with the plural form mishpa for speakers who elide w after the labial nasal m. In the present example, the ya- subject marker on the relative verb ‘which were broken’ clearly establishes that mishpa is plural in this example.)

kulunga nk^haambala ‘to knot ropes together’ luunga chizaazi |takhpata thawaabu [st.] ‘be united with your blood relatives, you will be rewarded’

Lunzilee miti/ ka mismaari. ‘He nailed pieces of wood together.’

rel.

ku-lungamana v. (lungameene) be or get straight, make oneself erect, straighten up; have it “altogether”; be united, connected, coherent

Huseeni/ ni mwaana/ lungameeno. ‘Huseeni is a child who has it altogether.’

Koodize/ nt^haskulungamana. ‘His words were not coherent.’

Lungamana. ‘Straighten up!’

Maneenoye/ nt^hayakulungamana. ‘His words were not coherent.’

Ra’ayi izi/ zilungameene. ‘These ideas are coherent, meaningful.’

Waant^hu/ walungamene ka ku|a chiint^hu. ‘The people are united in all things.’

ku-lungamanikila v. p/s. appl. (Morph. Note that the stem –lungamanika does not appear to be in use.)

Mwaana/ mlungamanikili|ile. ‘The boy grew up/ became morally straight for him.’

ku-lungamanisha v. caus. make or help s.o. to straighten up, become erect ku-lungamanishoowa v. caus. pass.

ku-lungamanoowa v. pass. is this possible?

ku-luunganya v. (lungeenye lunganyiize) join two things together, unite ku-lunganyika v. p/s.

ku-lunganyiliza v. appl.

ku-lunganyisha v. caus.

ku-lunganyishoowa v. caus. pass.

ku-lunganyoowa v. pass.

ku-luungika v. p/s. (-lungishile) able to be joined, set

Kuuluye/ itakuluungika. ‘His leg can be set (i.e. the bone is broken but it can be set).’

Mbawo izi/ stakulungika ka mismaari. ‘These planks will be able to be joined together with nails.’

ku-luungila v. appl. (lungiliile) join with, for ku-lungilana v. appl. rec. (-lungileene)

ku-luungisha v. caus. (lungishiize)

Mlungishize fuundi/ jahazi. ‘He had the skilled workman build a boat.’

ku-lungishana v. caus. rec.

ku-lungishika v. caus. p/s.

Hulungishika. ‘He is able to be made to build s.t.’

ku-lungishiliza v. caus. appl. make s.o. build, join for’

ku-lungishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. make build, join for one another ku-lungishoowa v. caus. pass.

ku-lungoowa v. pass.

rel. nom.

m-luunga (wa-) n. 1/2 one who joins things together

m-luungo (mi-) n. 3/4 the act of joining things; joint u-luungo n. 14 the act of joining things ma-lungamano n. 6 the act of straightening up u-lungamano n. 14 the act of straightening up

m-lungaana (wa-) n. 1/2 [Sw. mwungwana SSED 323] (historically-speaking) a free born person, as opposed to a slave; a city-dweller of the Swahili coast who can trace his ancestry and therefore considers himself to be of noble birth; s.o. who, being of noble birth, adopts the values and behavior that are considered essential characteristics of his class (this involves the adoption of a distinctive kind of dress and a set of values and patterns of behavior (noblesse oblige) such as a rejection of arrogance, an emphasis on deeds rather than talking, etc.); it must be stressed that one is born a mlungaana and does not become one; [pron. mlungaana or munungaana]

Aada/ ya mtaana/ maneen/ ya mlungaana/ shteendro. ‘The custom of the mtaana (originally slave, but now referred to one whose ancestry cannot be traced) is words, that of the mlungaana is action.’

Kibri/ siwo/ sifa za mlungaana. ‘Arrogance is not one of the characteristics of a mlungaana.’

Mbona/ ni/ walungaana/ wenye mahaanzu/ majuukhu/ na zileembá/ na wenye maalí/ na mulkú... ‘How come you (pl.) walungaana having mahaanzu, cloaks, and turbans, and with wealth and property...’

Mlungaana/ nt^hana aari/ ni kama ngoombe/ nt^hana mp^heembé. ‘A mlungaana who has no sense of disgrace is like a cow that has no horns.’ (A proverb.)

muke na mubli hant^hi na mlungaana [st.] ‘for a woman and a man, for a slave and a free person’ na wo ni wabli walungaana kumali [st.] ‘and they (the prophets) are noble men and (in all things) faultless’

rel.

u-lungaana n. 14 [Sw. uungwana “n. usu. contracted to ungwana n. condition (status, rank, quality) of a freeman, commonly contrasted formerly with that of a slave. Now usually denoting a relatively high social grade – and so, good breeding, education, accomplishments, civilization, in contrast with ushenzi, barbarism” SSED 323] the state of being a mlungaana

ma-luungo

n. 6 [Sw. maungo “=limbs of body collectively, body as a whole” SSED 502] body Aamina/ nt^haná/ maluungo. ‘Aamina does not have a (good) body.’

Faatiima/ maluungoye/ masuura. ‘Faatima, her body is nice.’
Haliima/ maluungoye/ ni mawovu. ‘Haliima, her body is not good.’
Haliima/ nayo maluungo. ‘Haliima has a body (i.e. a good body)!’
khkula maluungo ‘to grow (physically)’

Ye/ kuzile maluungo/ nt^h akhkula/ akhli. ‘He grew up physically, but not intellectually.’

maluungo huwola lata shiqaaqi [st.] ‘the body rots (after death), abandon being argumentative’ malungo (ma)waazi ‘naked [lit. open body]’

Maluungo/ yamsusumushile. ‘He shuddered [lit. body shuddered him].’

Maluungo/ yanakundraaza. ‘My body aches me.’

Maluungo/ yote/ yachanza kumlaaza. ‘His whole body began to ache.’

Mi/ sinakuwona/ alaama/ yo yotte/ kaake/ malungooni/ honyesho kuwaa ye/ ubleela. ‘I do not see any sign whatsoever on his body that shows that he has been killed.’

Naa wo/ ni sawasawa/ mashungi yaawo/ malungo yaawo/ uwelpe waawo/ sura zaawo/ zont^{he}/ sawa. ‘And they are equal, their hair, their body, their whiteness, their looks, all are the same.’

Nakhpaka mafta/ maluungo. ‘I am oiling my body.’

Nayo maluungo. ‘She has a body -- i.e. she is well-built.’

Yanamlazoo ye/ ni maluungo/ yote. ‘What pains him is the whole body.’

Or: Yanamlazoo ye/ ni maluungoye/ yote. ‘What pains him is his whole body.’

Ye/ maluungoye/ yote/ yanamlaaza. ‘His whole body ached.’ Or:

Maluungo/ yote/ yanamlaaza.

rel.

chi-luungo (zi-) n. 7/8 part of the body

faroi ya koowa amima maluungo/ yote ka maayi silate chiluungo [st.] ‘(there is) an obligation of washing up (after ejaculating), cover all the body with water, don’t leave any part (untouched by the water)’

i-luungo (mi-) n. 5/4 [Sw. ungo “=1. joint or member of body. 2. back, backbone” SSED 501] back(bone)

Haba mooyi/ nakhsula kuweka iluungo. ‘I want to rest my back(bone) a little bit.’ Or: Nakhsula kuweka iluungo/ haba mooyi.

Haliima/ namkandra maamaye/ iluungo. ‘Haliima is massaging her mother’s backbone.’

Hamadi/ vundishile iluungo. ‘Hamadi broke his back.’

Iluungo/ inakundraaza. ‘My back aches.’

Iluungo/ kulaaza/ ni maradaa wazeele. ‘Backbone ache is a sickness of the elderly.’

Mtukile mwaana/ ilungooni. ‘She carried the child on her back.’

Muunt^hu/ chiwa mzeele/ iluungo/ humlaaza. ‘If a person is old, his back (often) aches.’

Nt^hunakuwona/ weenziwo/ wanakhfanyo kaazi/ wanakuvundiko miluungo. ‘Do you not see your friends working, breaking their backs?’

Washishila miluungo. ‘They have back(bone) pains.’

Wont^{he}/ washishila miluungo. ‘All of them have back(bone) pains.’

-lusi

adj. var. [Sw. ekusi SSED 87] black (If preceded by the m agreement element, the l may assimilate to n among present-day Chimiini speakers; MI did not exhibit this phonetic process. In most instances, the agreement prefix is appended to the stem -lusi. The [cl.9/10] form, however, is odd, appearing as nyulusi. There is not a synchronic explanation for this phonological shape.)

Chibuku ichi/ (ni) chilusi. ‘The book is black.’

gari nyulusi ‘a black car, truck’

Haanzu/ (ni) nyulusi. ‘The haanzu is black.’

ijiwe ilusi ‘a black stone’ janaani waant^huwe wote ni hirimu/ wasuura welpe mnusi att^a mooyi nt^hamo [st.] ‘in heaven all people are the same age, beautiful [and] white, there is not even one black one in it’ khalamu nyulusi ‘black pen’ (Phon. Observe that in the case of [cl.9/10] agreement, the vowel u appears between the agreement element which appears as ny and the stem -lusi. The agreement element ny- represents the prevocalic form of the [cl.9/10] agreement morpheme. In other words, it seems as though the stem here is -ulusi, though the u vowel is not found in other forms of the adjective.)

-lusi/ kana daawa ‘as black as ink’

Hamadi/ nakunya choolo/ chilusi/ kana/ daawa. ‘Hamadi is defecating feces black as ink.’

-lusi/ kana makala ‘as black as coal’

-lusi/ kana wiino ‘as black as ink’ luti llusi (or: illusi) ‘black stick’ majiwe malusi ‘black stones’

mkila mlusi ‘black tail’

Nuzile faṭuurá/ móoyi/ nyulúsi. ‘I bought one black car.’ (We interpret the realization of this sentence to be a reflection of some emphasis on the adjective mooyi and that this emphasis does not allow the final accent from the verb to penetrate to mooyi or to cross mooyi and affect the next adjective in the sequence.)

yino ilusi ‘black tooth’

Tuuma/ mashuungiyé/ malusi. ‘Tuuma’s hair is black.’

Tuuma/ mukeewa/ mashuungiyé/ malusi. ‘Tuuma my wife’s hair is black.’

Zibuku izi/ (ni) ziluzi. ‘These books are black.’

zilatu zilusi ‘black shoes’

i-luwa (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. ua (maua) SSED 484] flower

Haliima/ maluwaye/ ni ghaali. ‘Haliima’s flowers are expensive.’

na maluwa/ nt^hayana adadí ‘and countless flowers’

Nimpele Maryaamú/ maluwa. ‘I gave Maryaamu flowers.’

Niyawene Haliimá/ maluwayé. ‘I saw Haliima’s flowers.’ Or, without the object prefix: Mbene Haliimá/ maluwayé. (Syn. In this possessive construction, maluwaye governs object agreement on the verb, if there is agreement; Haliima cannot control the object agreement: Nimwene Haliimá/ maluwayé.) chi-luya

n. fish of the snapper family, silver-gray with yellow ku-luza

v. suffer, lose weight, get worn down, get run down

Maraði/ huluza waant^hu. ‘Diseases wear people down.’

Maraði/ khuluza. ‘Diseases wear you down.’

rel.

ku-luzika v. p/s.

Omari/ nakuluzika/ tu/ sku mbili izi. ‘Omari is just wearing down these last few days.’

ku-luzikoowa v. p/s. pass.

Huluzikoowa/ ka maraði. ‘He is wasting away from disease.’

ma-

[cl.6] noun class prefix

majiwe ‘stones’

maluwa ‘flours’

ma-

[cl.6] agreement prefix on adjectives

Ali/ pete maqamu makulu/ ka sarkaali. ‘Ali has gained a high position with the government.’

Haliima/ maluwaye/ ni masuura. ‘Haliima’s flowers are nice/good.’

ma

- muunt^hu/ na ma/ amiyé ‘a person and child of his/her paternal uncle, i.e. cousins who are children of two brothers’
- muunt^hu/ na ma/ yaaye ‘a person and a child of his/her aunt, i.e. cousins who are the children of two sisters’
- muunt^hu/ na ma/ khaaje/ na ma/ yaaye ‘a person and child of maternal uncle and aunt, i.e. cousins who are the children of a brother and a sister’
- maa a term of endearment for one’s mother
- ma’abuudi n. [Sw. maabudu “(1) worship; (2) object of worship” SSED 1; Ar. ma’būd W 587] God (the one who is worshipped) variant form: ma’abuudu
Nt^hakhulombela ma’abuudu. ‘I will pray for you to the one who is worshipped.’
waaliko ma’abuudi yaawo [st.] ‘(Pharaoh) was the object of their worship’
- ma’adini n. 9/10 [Sw. madini SSED 252; Ar. ma’din W 598] mineral, metal Bati/ ni noo’i/ ya ma’adini. ‘Copper is a kind of metal.’
chijamu cha ma’adini ‘metal plate’
Nt^hi iyi/ ma’adani niingi/ yiimo. ‘In this earth there are many metals.’
- ma’(a)duumu adj. [Ar. ma’dūm W 597] scarce, rare, not seen much, unavailable, unobtainable variant form: ma’aduumu Chaakuja/ ni ma’duumu. ‘Food is scarce.’
chijana chima’duumu ‘a child not seen much’
chint^hu ma’duumu ‘s.t. scarce or unavailable’ kuwa ma’duumu ‘to become scarce’ ma’aduumu/ kana ðahabu ‘as difficult to find, get as gold’ munt^hu ma’duumu ‘s.o. not seen much’; want^hu ma’duumu ‘people not seen much’; zint^hu ma’duumu ‘scarce things’ Suukari/ ma’aduumu. ‘There is no sugar available, it is hard or impossible to find sugar.’
- ma’(a)ðuuri adj. [Ar. ma’ḍūr W 600] excused; s.o. whose behavior is unbecoming munt^hu ma’ðuuri ‘s.o. who has a good excuse for not being present’; want^hu wa’ðuuri ‘people who have a good excuse for not being present’ Ni munt^hu ma’ðuuri. ‘He is a man whose behavior is unbecoming.’
- ma’ahsaaba n. companions
Ma’ahsaaba/ na masheekhi/ riðwaani/ ya mojiitu/ inawe ilu yaa wo/ wafafishiize/ risaala/ ya mojiitu/ ba’adi ya mtume Mhamadi. ‘Companions and scholars, may God’s satisfaction be on them, they spread God’s message after the Prophet Mohamed.’
- ma’(a)luumu adj. [Sw. maalum SSED 251; Ar. ma’lūm W 637] specific, definite, recognized, well-known Gele/ ijuuniya/ sa’ariye/ ni shilingi alfu/ ikumi/ ma’aluumu/ kiḷa/ mo/ na’iwa. ‘(That) a sack of maize, its cost is ten thousand shillings, is known everyone.’
Karka sku ma’aluumu/ wazele wa mwāimbili/ na mwanaamké/ hukumangana karka numba ya wazazi wa mwanaamke. ‘On the designated day, the clan elders of the boy and of the girl get together in the house of the parents of the girl.’
khfanya ma’luumu ‘to make public, well-known’
Ali/ fanyize ma’aluumu/ kiḷaa fijiri/ kuya ka yaaye/ Umi/ numbaani/ kuna kahawa. ‘Ali made a habit that every morning he comes to his aunt Umi’s house to drink coffee.’

Omari/ fanyize ma'aluumu/ kilaa fijiri/ kuna kahawa/ mgahawaani/ kaa Fakhi. 'Omari made it known that every day he goes to drink coffee at the restaurant at Fakhi.'

munt^hu ma'luumu 'someone well-known' wakh^ti ma'luumu 'a specified time'

ma'aluuli

n. difficulties

ku-wona ma'aluuli 'to see, experience difficulties'

Haliima/ safari/ ya aakhiri/ yaa ye/ oshelo Mkhodiishú/ wene ma'aluuli/ ka malaalo/ mawovu/ na kujaa dará 'Haliima, on her last trip to Mogadisho, she saw severe hardship with bad sleeping arrangement and not enough food.'

Muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ chiwona ma'aluuli/ mara mooyi/ ka piili/ haruudili. 'If one experiences hardship (doing something) one time, he does not repeat it a second time.'

need to review the pronunciation is ma'aluuli possible and if so, what kind of l?

is ma'luuli possible, and if so is it l and l or both l is maaluuli possible and if so what kind of ls?

ma'amuumu

n. [Sw. maamumu "guided/led (by God or by a righteous leader" M&N 1126; cf. Ar, amma "lead the way, lead by example, lead prayer" W 25] rows of people praying, led by the imaamu, in the mosque

ma'ana

significance

n. [Sw. maana SED 25; Ar. ma'nan W 650] meaning, purpose, importance, Ha'isi/ ma'anayé/ ha'ambiloowi. 'The one who does not know its meaning, he is not told.'

Hasani/ mukh^taa ye/ iwiiló/ ma'ana ya shpeté/ ichi/ chi'azima safari. 'When Hasani came to know the meaning of this ring, he decided to make a trip.'

Ijaara/ ya waana/ hu^tomoló/ siwo/ chiint^hu/ cha ma'ana. 'The fee that children pay is not next to nothing, of little significance (lit. not something of meaning, significance).'

Kamaa ye/ mtete suriya/ ma'anaye/ ye/ nt^haná/ haaja/ naami/ teena. 'He has taken a mistress, that means he has no need of me anymore.'

Karkaa ye/ nakhtomolo peesá/ ka sandukhuuni/ mabahaariya/ wachimwona/ kuwaa ye/ tukile pesa niingi/ na tomele peesa/ bilaa ma'ana. 'While he was taking money from the box, the crewmen saw (him) that he carried a lot of money and gave it out without purpose.'

khtila ma'anaani 'to give s.t. due consideration' koði za ma'ana 'words of importance' ma'anaye '[lit.] its meaning -- used as a pet phrase of many Bravanese before an explanation, as: i.e., that is, I mean that...'

Ma'anaye/ raaha/ imwejele niingi. 'The meaning of that is, comfort had become too much for her [she was unhappy in the comfortable circumstances in which she found herself].'

Ma'anaye/ shpete ichi/ shchiwaamo/ kaako/ chalaani/ nt^haku/

t^hakhuwonó. 'Its purpose [i.e. of putting on the ring] is that if this ring is on your finger, no one will see you.'

Mp^haamp^ha/ chimuuzaa/ nini/ ma'anaye. 'The shark asked him: what do you mean (lit. what is its meaning)?'

Mpeende/ ka khisa kooðize/ ladda ladda/ na zinazo ma'aná, 'Love him because of his sweet and meaningful words.'

Nt^hakhpata/ kasbu ya ma'ana. 'He did not get much, enough, anything of significance.'

Siwo/ munt^hu wa ma'ana. 'He isn't a reliable man.'

want^hu washo ma'ana 'men without importance' want^hu wenye ma'ana 'highly regarded men'

- ma'(a)quuli the discourse etc.) adj. inv. [Ar. ma'qūl W 630] reasonable, logical (not of human beings but rather of
- chint^hu ma'quuli 'something reasonable' fikiri ma'quuli 'a reasonable thought' koði ma'quuli 'reasonable talk' Koodize/ ni ma'quuli. 'His words are reasonable.'
ra'yi ma'quuli 'a reasonable idea'
- ma'araði n. [Ar. ma'rið, plural ma'arid W 604] (not commonly used; rather: fiyeera) fair
- ma'(a)rifa acquaintance (with) n. [Sw. maarifa SSED 18; Ar. ma'rifa W 606] wisdom, knowledge, understanding,
- Ka kheri niingi/ hubarsha ma'arifa. (A proverb.)
ma'rifaya 'my knowledge'
Ni muunt^hu/ mwenye ma'arifa/ na aqli. 'He is a person having knowledge and intelligence.'
Siná/ ma'arifa/ naaye. 'I am not acquainted with him.'
Uko mubjaana/ mubjaana/ msuura/ mwenye ma'rifa/ laakini/ nt^haná/ maali/ naa ye/ nakump^heenda/ nakhsuula/ kundrolaa mi.
 'There is a young man, a nice young man who possesses knowledge, but he has no wealth, and he loves me and he wants to marry me.'
We/ takuwa dakh^htari/ mkulu/ mwenye ma'arifa/ na ilmú. 'You will become a great doctor, having wisdom and knowledge.'
- ma'aruufu adj. inv. [Sw. mmarufu SSED 18; Ar.] famous, renowned Abudeera/ ni mfanaani/ ma'aruufu. 'Abudeera is a famous artist.'
khfanya ma'aruufu 'to make famous' kuwa ma'aruufu 'to become famous' munth^u ma'aruufu 'a famous person'; want^hu ma'aruufu 'famous people' Omari/ ni muunt^hu/ ma'aruufu/ karka Ameerika. 'Omari is a famous man in America.'
Omari/ ni taajiri/ ma'aruufu. 'Omari is a famous rich man.'
Tuuma/ waawaye/ ma'aruufu. 'Tuuma's father is famous.'
Tuuma/ waawaye/ ni muunt^hu/ ma'aruufu. 'Tuuma's father is a famous man.'
- ma'(a)siya n. [Sw. maasiya M&N 1129; Ar. ma'siya W 618] sin, act of disobedience, adultery, extramarital sex; var. ma'siya, maasiya khfanya ma'siya 'to sin'
Jeelaani/ nt^hamliindra/ Safiya/ apo/ keendra/ khfanya naaye/ ma'siya. 'Jeelaani did not wait for Safiya there (in order) to go and commit a sin with her.'
Ma'asiya/ ni haraamu/ ma'asiya/ yukharibulbina. 'Adultery is impure/forbidden, adultery destroys people.' (An Arabic proverb that has been "Chimiini-ized" and is known to all want^hu wa Miini.)
Maasiya/ yakathirille/ zamani izi. 'Adultery has increased these days.'
Mi/ skhaadiri/ khfanya ma'siya. 'As for me, I cannot commit a sin.'
Yuusufu/ chiiza/ chihada/ iyi/ ni ma'asiya/ mwajiitu/ rebeele/ khfanyoowa.
 'Yuusufu refused, saying, this is a sin. God forbade it to be done.'
- rel.
ma'siyoole n. 1/2 one who is adulterous/ ones who are adulterous Awo/ ni ma'siyoole. 'Those ones are adulterous.' Cf. Oyo/ ni ma'siyoole.
 'That one is adulterous.'
Ma'siyoole/ kurujumoowa/ ni diini/ haandikó. 'The one who commits adultery is to be stoned, it is religion that prescribes (this).'
- ma'ashala adv. together needs to be checked
Walikoo muke/ waalikó/ na mubliwé/ wa'inshiize/ ma'ashala/ wakht^hi niingi/inshiizó. ‘There was a woman who was married to a man and they lived together for a long time.’

ma’awliya	n. friends of God ndiwe hadiilo saant^hiya/ ni ilu ya ma’awliya [poem] ‘you are the one who said: the sole of my foot is upon (all other) friends of God’
ma’(a)wazi	n. 9/10 [cf. Sw. vazi “generally used in the plr. Raiment, apparel, robes” SSED 513] a cloth garment worn around the waist by men that extends from the navel to the ankles; usually worn at home or as pyjamas, but formerly was often worn outside instead of trousers; this word is a synonym for chiguwo cha nt^hiini ; var. ma’(a)wazi Hamadi/ havaali/ surwaani/ huvala ma’wizi/ tu. ‘Hamadi does not wear pants, he only wears ma’wazi. ’ Hamadi/ mulile maanawe/ ma’wizi/ mp^hiya. ‘Hamadi bought for his son a new ma’awazi/ za mariingi ‘ ma’awizi which are imported (from Singapore?)’ Ma’awizi/ za mariinga/ ni zisuura. ‘ Ma’awizi of the mariinga type are very nice.’ Want^hu wa Miini/ wa zamaani/ wachivala ma’wizi/ tu. ‘People from Brava in the old days used to only wear ma’wizi (i.e. they did not wear trousers).’
ma’duumu	adj. inv. [cf. Sw. adimu “rare, scarce, unobtainable” SSED 3; Ar.] lacking, scarce, not seen much, rare, unobtainable (As seen from the examples below, this is an invariable adjective, which means that there is no agreement prefix on it when the noun modified belongs to one of the basic noun classes. Diminutive and augmentative nouns, however, do trigger an agreement prefix.) Chaakuja/ ni ma’duumu. ‘Food is scarce.’ Chijana chima’duumu ‘a (dim.) child not much seen’; chint^hu ma’duumu ‘something scarce’; zint^hu ma’duumu ‘scarce things’ kuwa ma’duumu ‘to become scarce’ munt^hu ma’duumu ‘someone not seen much’ ; want^hu ma’duumu ‘people not seen much’
ma’iisha	n. [Sw. maisha SSED 143; Ar. ma’iṣa W 662] life
ma’jnabi	n. strangers We/ laazimu/ kumdigilaa ye/ chiza khtaala/ zawaadi/ ka ma’jnabi. ‘You have to warn her about not accepting gifts from strangers.’
ma’shara	n. a kind of thin pancake using flour, sugar, oil mkate wa ma’shara ‘a kind of cake-like version of ma’shara often using ground rice rather than flour in the preparation’
maa’uuni	n. 10 [Ar. mā’ūn W 915; Som. maacun DSI 395] cooking utensils, dishes, cutlery, etc. Ma’isha/ numbaani/ kaake/ nazo maa’uuni/ niingi. ‘Aa’isha in her house has many cooking utensils.’ Haliima/ oloshela sukhuuni/ kula ma’unii mp^hiya. ‘Haliima went to the market to buy new cooking utensils.’ ma’uni za Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s cooking utensils’ ma’unii mp^hiya za Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s new cooking utensils’
mabaadi’i	n. principle Tanzaanya/ nii nt^hi/ mooyi/ karka za nt^hi za Ist Aafrika/ zirashiizó/ mabaadi’i/ ya ishtiraakiya. ‘Tanzania is one country among the countries of East Africa that follows the principles of socialism.’

maabeena

prep.[cf. Ar. baina W 87] between Chisima/ cha Atikh(i) Abdurahmaani/ chiko mabena muskiti waa jima/ na muskiti wa Atikh(i) Abdurahmaani. ‘The well of Atiikhi Abdurahmaani is located between the Friday mosque and the mosque of Atiikhi Abdurahmaani.’

Firkha/ mabena Hamadi/ na Nuuru/ ni kana/ nṭhi/ na ku-zimú. ‘The difference between Hamadi and Nuuru is like (that between) the earth and the sky.’ Or: Firkha/ maabeena/ Hamadi/ na Nuuru/ kana/ nṭhi/ na ku-zimú.

mabena idi ya wamuusi/ na idi ya wataatú ‘between the idi following Ramadhan and the idi in the third month following Ramadhan’ maabeena qabri ya Mtume na miimbari [st.] ‘between the Prophet’s grave and the preacher’s platform (in the mosque)’

Mabena salaa lapiili/ na salaa laatuló/ yimo salaa laakuja. ‘Between the afternoon praying and the evening praying there is the sunset praying.’

mablaghi

n. [Ar. mablagh W 74] amount of money

Hamadi/ nazo peesa/ mablaghi/ niingi. ‘Hamadi has a large amount of money.’

Hamadi/ ni taajiri/ mablaghi. ‘Hamadi is a rich man, he has a (large) amount of money.’

Numba iyo/ inakuzowa ka peesa/ mablaghi/ niingi. ‘That house is being sold for a large amount of money.’

mabsuuti
mapsuuti

adj. [Ar. mabsūt W 58] invar. joyful, happy, pleased, glad; [pron.mabsuuti or chijana chimabsuuti ‘a happy baby’ isa kaako ni mapsuuti [song] ‘now in your (company) I am happy’

Khadirile keendra/ kuruda ka moojé/ mahalaa ye/ hutumikó/ naayé/ mabsuuti. ‘He was able to go and return to his master to the place where he worked as a servant, and he was content.’

khfanya mabsuuti ‘to make happy, please’

Kumfanya Jaani/ mabsuuti/ ni sahali. ‘To make John happy is easy.’ Or: Kumfanya mabsuuti/ Jaani/ ni sahali.

Ni sahali/ kumfanya Jaani/ mabsuuti. ‘It is easy to please John.’ Or: Ni sahali/ kumfanya mabsuuti/ Jaani.

khfanyowa mabsuuti ‘to be made happy, pleased’

Jaani/ ni sahali/ khfanyowa mabsuuti. ‘John is easy to be pleased.’

Jaani/ ni sahali/ khfanyoowake/ mabsuuti. ‘John is easy his being pleased.’

Jaani/ khfanyowa mabsuuti/ ni sahali. ‘For John to be made happy is easy.’

Jaani/ khfanyoowake/ mabsuuti/ ni sahali. ‘John’s being pleased in easy.’

Khfanyowa Jaani/ mabsuuti/ ni sahali. ‘For John to be made happy is easy.’ Or: Khfanyowa mabsuuti/ Jaani/ ni sahali.

kuwa mabsuuti ‘to become happy’

munt^hu mabsuuti ‘a happy person’

Nii dhibu/ kumfanya kilaa mooyi/ mabsuuti. ‘It’s difficult to please everybody.’

want^hu mabsuuti ‘happy people’ zijana zimabsuuti ‘happy babies’

Sultaani/ weele/ mapsuuti/ nt^ho/ kuzaliloowa/ waana/ wotte/ wiimbili. ‘The sultan was very happy to have all boys [born to him].’

Waziiri/ wele mabsuuti/ ye/ nakeendra/ khpata usultaani/ leelo/ ka khisaa ye/ na’iwa/ ma’ana ya kooði/ za Ali. ‘The minister was very pleased, he was going to get the sultanship today because he knew the meaning of the words of Ali.’

madadi

n. [Ar. madad W 897] blessings

kubiga madadi ‘to call for blessings’

Masheekhi/ wamo numbaani/ wanakuðikirisha/ wanakubiga madadi. ‘There religious scholars in the house, they are praying, they are calling for God's blessings.'

Numbaani/ ka Omari/ yiko maṭaanga/ waant^{hu}/ wanakuleta ðikiri/ wanakubiga madadi. 'At Omari's house there is mourning, people are singing (lit. bringing) blessing songs and are calling for blessings.'

Qureeshi wiingi wagafiile madadi [st.] 'many of the Qureeshi missed blessings' takiink^{hiro} mlāte nt^{annayo} madadi [st.] 'he who will deny, let him, he does not have blessings'

maadaama

adv. [Sw. maadam "while, since, seeing that, because" SSED 251; Ar. mādāma W 303; Som. maadaama] while, since, as long as, seeing that, because Ali/ mwambile Nuuru/ we/ maadaama/ heendri/ naami/ seendri. 'Ali told Nuuru: since you will not go, I also won't go.'

Basi/ mwambiile/ maadaama/ nakulomboo nt^o/ jis'iyi/ oloka/ mraashe/ kanaa ye/ ni mweenzawó. 'So she said to him [the son of sultans]: since you are begging this way... [speaking to her son:] go, follow him, if he is your friend.'

Maadama/ Hamiisi/ hupendo khsomá/ ye/ takhpita imtihaani. 'Because Hamiisi likes to read, he will pass the examination.'

Maadaama/ siná/ kaazi/ nnakhsuulá/ we/ kump^a/ kundarbishiliza/ zoombo/ za kingilila safari. 'Since I have no job, I would like you to give me, to prepare for me goods (for me) to set out on a journey with.'

Maadaama/ sindako/ wa muuyi/ hadilo maduká/ yanafungowa sala yaa jimá/ shpiindri/ ni laazimu/ amri/ kurashoowa/ maduka/ khfungoowa. 'Since the mayor of the town said that shops are to be closed for Friday noon prayers, it is a must that the order be followed (and) shops be closed.'

this was written in an email,. confirm the pronunciation

Maadaama/ we/ izo kunraashá/ mi/ takendra mii/ peeke. 'Since you refused to come with me, I will go alone.'

Omari/ maadaama/ khiriilo ðambizé/ khaaði/ hadile hafungoowi. 'Since Omari accepted his felonies/sins, the judge said he will not be imprisoned.'

Oyo mwaana/ nakhtiya/ basi/ maamaye/ mwaambile/ maadaama/ ni sultaani/ nakupeendó/ oloka/ mwaanawá/ laakini/ jisaa we/ shiishiló/ rasha yaaya. 'That child was afraid, so his mother told him: since it is the sultan who loves you, go, my child, but the way that you have behaved, follow that [way].'

maadamu

adv. just in case, if by chance

Haliima/ mwambile mwanaashkewe/ maadamu/ waawo/ chiya/ mpikilee khaða. 'Haliima told her daughter: just in case your father comes, cook lunch for him.'

Keesho/ takuuya/ kana Haliima/ maadamu/ nakhsuula. 'I'll come tomorrow in case Haliima wants me.'

Lete jaaka/ maadamu/ fijiri/ ichiwa bardi. 'Bring a jacket in case it is cool in the morning.'

Maadamu/ kana Charles/ chiya/ mpe peesa. 'In case Charles comes, give him money.'

Maadamu/ mi/ chimwona Hasani/ tamlaaliza/ haruusi/ ya mwaanawa. 'If by chance I see Hasani, I will invite him to my son's wedding.'

Mi/ daa'imu/ hutukula kuulu/ skoortá/ maadamu/ kana kulu ya gaari/ ichint^{umbukila}. 'I always carry a spare tire in case I have a puncture.'

Mi/ takuuya/ keesho/ maadamu/ kana Nuuru/ chint^{ahaaja}. 'I will come tomorrow in case Nuuru needs me.'

Omari/ mwambile mukeewe/ maadamu/ Nuuru/ chiya/ mpe zilaatu. 'Omari told his wife: if by chance Nuuru comes, give him the shoes.'

mad.hi

n. 9 [Ar. madḥ w 898] laudation, extolment, glorification variant: madihi

chisooma mad.hiye mtume ni haadiri [st.] 'when you recite his laudations, the Prophet is present' mad.hi ya mtume ‘praising of the Prophet Mohammad’

Madransaani

n. [cf. madrasa + loc. enc. ni] A small area located between the two quarters

Mp^haayi and Biruuni. The name derives probably from a religious school founded by the Qadiriyya leader Sheikh Aweys (Sheekh Uweesu) at the turn of the 20th century, but could refer to some previous learning center. In Madransaani is located the house of Raa Tahaara, which was also for some time the Italian Residency. It also includes some mosques and the tomb or cenotaph of Aw Nuur Chaande.

madrasa

n. [Sw. darasa (ma-) “(1) class, meeting, for reading or study; (2) a class-room; (3) teaching, instruction” SSED 79; Ar. madrasa W 278] religious school

Baana/ enzele madrasaani. ‘Baana went to school.’

Chijaana/ hachooloki/ madrasaani. ‘The (dim.) child does not go to school.’ (Cf. phrasing in: chijana hacholoki madrasaani ‘the (dim.) child who does not go to school’ or chijaana/ hacholoki madrasaani ‘the child, who doesn’t go to school’). Notice that the negative relative verb is not routinely separated phrasally from the complement as it is in the main clause version.)

Hasiibu/ tila madrasaani/ kubarata skoola/ na khsooma. ‘Hasiibu was put into school to learn to write and to read.’

Ijmu/ husomowa madrasaani. ‘Knowledge is studied at madrasa.’

kharibu ya madrasa ‘near the school’

Lesele peesa/ madrasaani. ‘He took money to school.’ (Cf. madrasa yaa ye/ lesele peesa ‘the school that he took money to’.)

Madrasa izo/ hazeendeki. ‘Those schools cannot be gone to.’

Maama/ uyu/ waliko aminiile/ ya kuwa mwaanawe/ chibaraṭa/ killa/ chiint^hu/ madrasaani/ itamwiinfaa ye/ na maamayé. ‘This mother believed that if her son learned every thing in school, it would be useful to him and his mother.’

Mi/ ijmu/ nsomele madrasaani/ ka Shekh Wali. ‘Me, I have studied knowledge at Sheikh Wali’s madrasa.’

Mwaana/ ingile madrasaani/ kubarata. ‘The boy entered school to learn.’

Peleshela madrasaani/ iize. ‘You were sent to school, you refused.’

Watile madrasaani/ kubarata khsooma/ na kaandiká/ na kubarata kula/ ya waana/ wa sulṭaani/ husulowa kiwá. ‘He put them in school to learn to read and write, and to learn everything that the children of a sultan needs to know.’ (It is striking that even though the conjunction na triggers final accent on its complement, as seen in the phrase na kaandiká, when a phrase-final kula follows, there is no final accent: na kubarata kula displays default penult accent. One does not say na kubarata/ kula/... nor na kubarata/ kulá/..., nor any other version where a final accent appears that is induced by na.)

maḍahweena

n. president

Maḍahweena/ wa Burundi/ inqilabeeta. ‘The president of Burundi is being overthrown.’

maḍaali

n. a unit of measurement borrowed from Somali maḍbuuti

inv. adj. [Sw. madhubuti “precise, accurate, trustworthy, honest, reliable, strong, firm, durable, resolute, solid” SSED 74; Ar. madbūt “accurate, correct, precise” W 535] s.o. who is well-organized, well-prepared munt^hu maḍbuuti (cf. want^hu maḍbuuti)

maḍhabu
Sunni Islam

n. [cf. Sw. madhehebu SSED 252; Ar. madhab W 313] one of the four schools of Ghaalibu/ islaamu/ huraashó/ maḍhabu ya Imaamu Shaafi’i/ hawashiiki/ mbwa/ numbaani/ ka khisa maḍhabu iyi/ ifanyize kudarowaa mbwa/ kuwa ni haraamu/ khaasá/ chiwaa mbwa/ ni maymaayi. ‘Often, Muslims who follow the school of Imaamu Shaafi’i do not keep dogs in the house because this school made the touching of dogs to be forbidden, especially if the dog is wet.’

maðhabu ya Maaliki ‘the school of Maaliki’ maðhabuye ‘his school’ khtumila zoombo za feða na ðahabu/ mbilize ni haraamu raasha maðhabu [st.] ‘the use of things made of silver and gold both are unlawful, follow [the views of our]school (maðhabu)’ maaði n. [Ar. māḍn W 913] past tense in grammar

maðila

peete liwaani ya jumla/ hondroleloowa maðila [st.] ‘he will crown his achievement with success and his sinful state will be annuled’ maðiyi n. 6 [Sw. madhii “the clear viscid discharge of the male organ when sexually excited” SSED 252; Ar.]

maðluumu

adj. inv. [Sw. madhlumu] wronged, oppressed, treated unjustly mi ndimi maðluumu/ ka zaa mi nfanyiza/ kuwa chita chuumu/ sabri nishkiliiza [song] ‘I am the one (who is) wronged, for the things which have been done to me; to be stubborn, patience was sent down to me’

muntʰu maðluumu ‘wronged person’; wantʰu maðluumu ‘wronged people’ (cf. chijintʰu chimaðluumu, ijintʰu imaðluumu) maðmuuni n. [cf. the Sw. madhumuni “intention, purpose” SSED 252 does not appear to be connected semantically to the Chimiini form; Ar. maḍmūn “guaranteed (adj.); meaning (noun), e.g. of a letter” W 546] the contents of s.t.; adj. guaranteed

Khatiyō/ mp^hetē/ na maðmuuniyē/ nfahamiilē. ‘Your letter I received it, and its contents, I have understood.’

Kooðize/ ni maðmuuni. ‘His words are guaranteed.’

Mafakha(ani)

n. The name of one of two small islands (the other is called Chilaani) offshore from Brava, facing the Mp^haayi quarter. Mafakha is some three kilometers from Brava, and there is a small pyramidal construction in cement located there, name unknown and purpose unknown. This construction is located on Mafakha mkulu. There is also a Mafakha chihaba, a part of the same reef that is visible only at low tide.

Mafakhaani/ holokeka/ ka koowela. ‘Mafakhaani can be reached by swimming.’

Mafakhaani/ hupatikana mooskolo/ na ostrīiká/ niingi. ‘At Mafakhaani one can find a lot of mussels and ostrich mussels (like mooskolo, but larger).’

2. mooskolo (l for leelo). it is muscle, you get this in sea attached to rocks. they have shells and you open the shell and eat raw with lemon. The same is with ostrika, meaing ostrick, just like muskolo but bigger

mafhuumu

adj. [Ar. mafḥūm W 730; a cognate for this item is not cited in SSED, but words like fahamu SSED 90 and other words related to it are found in Sw.] s.t. understood, understandable

Iyo/ ni mafhuumu. ‘This is understood.’

maafiya

n. Mafia; someone who cheats, steals, etc.

Faatima/ khatari/ ni maafiya/ takhupiima/ takhutula ijuniyaani. ‘Faatima is a dangerous person, she is maafiya, she will measure you and (lit.) put you in a sack (i.e. cheat you and steal from you without your even knowing what is happening).’

Omari/ ni maafiya. ‘Omari is a big cheat, thief, etc.’

Maftaaho

n. the name of a mosque in Brava, named after Sharif Muftaaho chisima cha Maftaaho ‘the well at the mosque of Maftaaho’

Muskiti ya Maftaaho/ yikoo kule/ Dawuuro/ khpitoowa. ‘The mosque of Maftaaho is far, one passes even Dawuuro (to get to it).’

Muskitiini/ ka Maftaaho/ husalishó/ ye/ menewe/ Sharif Muftaaho. ‘In the mosque of Maftaaho, the one who leads the prayers is Sharif Muftaaho himself.’

- mafta n. 6 [Sw. mafuta SSED 253] oil (Morph: It is possible to consider this item to be morphologically complex, consisting of the [cl.6] prefix ma- and a stem -f̥ta. However, we have not encountered any evidence for the existence of a stem -f̥ta appearing separate from ma.) (Observe that this is one of many words where it can be seen that a medial vowel in the Sw. form of a word is absent in this Chimiini form. This historical vowel loss has created numerous instances of coda consonants in Chimiini -- i.e. syllables that end in a consonant. The syllabification of mafta is /maf̥.ta/, where the period indicates the syllable boundary.)
- Chooloka/ chimpika/ oyoo noka/ mafta/ yalazilo ka namaani/ shtaala/ chiyatila karka zibalasi/ saba. ‘She went and she cooked it, that snake, and the oil that came from its meat, she put in seven large clay jars.’
- mafta aya ‘this oil’ mafta mawiti ‘lit. uncooked oil, e.g. seasoning for a salad’ mafta ya maansara ‘sesame oil’ mafta ya naazi ‘coconut oil’ mafta ya ndruugu ‘oil from peanuts (groundnuts)’ mafta ya paamba ‘cottonseed oil’
mafta ya sehemu ‘ghee’
Mafta ya sehemu/ fanyizeeyi. ‘What did she do with the ghee?’
mafta yaa tala (can be contracted to maftaa tala) ‘animal fat, which was used to light lamps before the introduction of paraffin’ Namaye/ inayo maftaa tala/ niingi (or: miingi). ‘Its meat has a lot of fat.’
mafta ya wilaaya ‘kerosine [lit. oil of Europe]’ maghaadi n. [Som. magad, meged DSI 430] a mineral substance used in tambú which burns the mouth; a substance used to tan hides ku-maghaadisha v. [Som. noun meged, variant of magad ‘tanned hide, vegetable tanning substance’ DSI 430] (maghadishiize) tan hide

79. Igozi ya bakhti huwa halaali chimaghaadisha ni tahaara maali

79. The hide of a carcass becomes lawful when you tan it. Then it becomes pure and is valuable.

magh(a)fira n. [Ar. magfira W 677] forgiveness (of God)
ayamu zote chijiha ni maghfira [st.] ‘for all days, if you perform the pilgrimage, [your sins will be] forgiven’ Nakulomba maghafira. ‘He is asking for forgiveness of his sins.’
ingila maghani suluzika maghfira [st.] ‘seek [God’s] protection, ask earnestly for forgiveness’ ku-maghanata v. [Som. maqan ‘absent’ DSI 415] (maghaneete) be absent Maghaneete/ sku/ Hamadi/ Mkhodiisho. ‘He was absent for days, Hamadi, in Mogadishu.’ Or: Maghaneete sku/ Hamadi/ Mkhodiisho. (Notice in the second variant, the noun sku is included in the same phrase as the verb. The final vowel of the verb cannot be lengthened due to the consonant cluster at the beginning of sku. What is striking is that the verb, which is maghanéete in isolation, cannot retain the long vowel even though it is in the antepenult syllable, which is one where a long vowel typically is allowed to appear. The problem of course is that the penult syllable is heavy, tes, and thus attracts the phrasal ‘abstract stress’, requiring the preceding long vowel to shorten due to its unstressed nature.)

Na kuḷa mará/ husimama/ heendra/ ndraani/ numbaani/ humaghanata/ chimaliza/ huruuda/ kiineenza/ hukumuye. ‘And every time he stands up and goes inside the house and stays away and then returns to make his judgement.’

- maghani adj. [Som. maqan DSI 415] absent, being out of ones home area kingila maghani ‘to go under the protection or shield of s.o.’
ingila maghani mloombe Hamiidi [st.] ‘put yourself under (God’s) protection and pray to Hamiidi (God)’ Sheekhi aziizi ka Mooje/ maghani mba kingiloowa [st.] ‘the Sheikh is dear to God, his protection is to be sought’
Ye/ ingile maghani. ‘He sought s.o.’s protection.’
Sheekhi ndimi maghaniyo/ nasuula kulombeloowa [st.] ‘O Sheikh, I myself wish to be granted your protection’ (Morph. Note the elision of the infinitive marker in the present tense verb form nasuula.)
Ye/ uko maghani. ‘He is absent, away.’
Ye/ umo maghani. ‘He is under protection.’
- rel.
makhanata adj. absent
Mahaḷa/ amá/ muukhata/ amá/ makhanata. ‘At a place either be visible or be absent (i.e. when you go somewhere, be positive/active/take part or do not go).’ (Translation of a Somali proverb.)
- maghani protection n. [Som. magan “1. protection, 2. under the protection of” DSI 406] under the Ye/ umo maghani. ‘He is under protection.’
- maghasi n. gallant deed iyoni ni ebu yaa we stosheni maghasi [song] ‘that is your disgrace, do not think it’s a gallant deed’ sinoonye maghasi furahaza nzaako [song] ‘don’t show me gallantry, my joys are yours’
- maghmuumu invar. adj. [Ar. maḡmūm W 683] worried, sad, grieved munt^hu maghmuumu ‘sad, worried person’ (cf. want^hu maghmuumu, chijint^hu chimaghmuumu, zijint^hu zimaghmuumu, ijint^hu imaghmuumu)
- maghnaatiisi n. [Ar. miḡnāḡis, variant maḡnāḡis W 916] magnet maghnaatiisiye ‘his magnet’
- maghribi and seven p.m.; west adv. [Sw. magharibi SSED 253; Ar. maḡrib W 669] sunset, dusk, the time between six Maghribi/ yanzizipo kuwa miinzá... ‘Around sunset, when it began to get dark...’
Mnaadisho/ oyo/ liinzile/ apo/ sukhuuni/ haḡá/ ikomeele/ maghribi. ‘The auctioneer waited there at the market until it reached dusk.’
- maghruuri invar. adj. [cf. Ar. verb ḡarra, ḡurūr “to be misled, deceived, to be or become conceited” W 667] someone with a “swollen” head; someone deceived, who does not understand a situation munt^hu maghruuri ‘someone deceived’ (cf. want^hu maghruuri, chijint^hu chimaghruuri, ijint^hu imaghruuri, etc.)
- mahaba n. [Sw. mahaba SSED 131; Ar. maḡabba W 152] love Nt^haku/ ya khshakishoowa/ mahabaye/ na Faatima. ‘There is no doubting his love’ for Faatima.’

mah(a)buusi

n. [Sw. mahabusi "a prisoner awaiting trial, and the place where such prisoners are kept" SSED 253; Ar. maḥbūs W 154] prisoner variant plural form: mahaabiisi [Ar. maḥābis, plural of maḥōbūs W 154] mahabisi awa ‘these prisoners’; mahabusi awa ‘these prisoners’; mahabusi

uyu ‘this prisoner’

Mahabuusi/ bishile neefu/ nt^ho. ‘The prisoner breathed out hard.’

Sultani Daraayi/ shtomola amri/ waant^hu/ wawaliko mahbuusi/ khpikiḷoowa. ‘Sultan Daraayi issued an order that people who were prisoners should be cooked for.’

Mahadi

n. an individual referred to in a proverbial saying, a cousin of Shanlō, a rich miser; he accompanied Shanlō about town, wearing old, dirty clothes and doing Shanlō’s bidding

Hurashmanya/ kama Mahadi/ na Shanlō. ‘They go about together, like Mahadi and Shanlo.’

mahaḷa

n. 9/10 [Sw. mahali SSED 253; Ar. maḥali W 199] place; somewhere (in a negative context: nowhere, not anywhere)

Apo/ ndipo mahaliye/ na ndipo mahaḷaa ye/ huzaalō. ‘There is its place (where it stays) and there is the place where it lays eggs [lit. gives birth].’

Bwaana/ zijuumba/ zaa nyunyi/ mi/ nt^hakuleta ka mahaḷaamp^hi.
‘Master, where will I get the bird nests?’

Chizeele/ ichije/ choondroka/ chendra maduriini/ mahaḷa/ ya muunt^hu/ oyo/ leelō. ‘That old woman left and went to the country to the place where that man was sleeping.’

Gari iyi/ hayrebaṭi/ mahaḷa. ‘This car does not stop anywhere.’

Hashkhaadiri/ kulima mahaḷa nt^hakuu nvulā. ‘We cannot cultivate where there is no rain.’

Hashkhaadiri/ kulima pashpoo nvula. ‘We cannot cultivate without rain.’

Hashkukoma/ mahaḷa. ‘We did not arrive anywhere.’

ka mahaḷa yaa mi/ nguriilō ‘the place where I moved from’ mahaḷa izi ‘these places; but can be used with singular reference to refer to a place that is inappropriate, wrong for s.o. to be at’

Mi/ skufilaṭila/ khuwona we/ mahaḷa izi. ‘I never expected to see you at such a place as this.’

Mahaḷaa mi/ heendró/ hundraasha. ‘Wherever I go, it follows me.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is chibḷi ‘shadow’.)

mahaḷaa yaa mi/ nguriilō ‘the place I moved to’ mahaḷa yiingine ‘another place’

Mahaḷaamp^hi/ Hasani/ uzilo gaarí. ‘Where did Hasani buy the truck?’ Or:

Mahaḷaamp^hi/ Hasani/ uzilō/ gaari. (Phon. Observe that in the alternative sentence, where the verb is separated from its complement, our consultant preferred to respect the Accentual Law of Focus.)

Masku ayo/ chilawa/ chendra mahaḷa/ ya majini/ wanakhteza khamaarí. ‘That night he left and went to the place where the djinns were gambling.’

Mwaana/ mahaḷaye/ ni kharibu ya mzeelewe. ‘A child’s place is near his parent.’

Ndro/ feḍa/ weshele mahaḷa gani/ ye. ‘Come you, the money, where did he place it?’ (Phon. The final accent on gani in this example needs explanation.)

Seendré/ mahaḷa. ‘Do not go anywhere!’

Si/ shkoḍele Omarí/ khkoḍa wanaafakhi/ tarafu ya mahaḷaa yé/ waalikó. ‘We discussed Omarí’s lying about where he had gone.’

Siisi/ Hamadi/ mahaḷaa ye/ olosheló/ laakini/ nt^hakeendra/ numbaani. ‘I do not know where Hamadi went, but he did not go home.’ (The default case is for a negative verb to be phrased separately from its complement, as in the present example.)

Siisi/ mahaḷaa ye/ uzizo gaariyé. ‘I do not know where he sold his car.’

Sku mooyi/ ile muunt^hu/ mooyi/ mahaḷaa si/ chiwaalikó. ‘One day there came a man to the place where we were.’

Sooloki/ mahaḷa nt^haku chaakujá. ‘I don’t go where there isn’t food.’

Wachimeera/ mahaḷa/ ya qasri/ ya sulṭaani/ yíikó/ wachiingila. ‘They searched for the place where the palace of the king was and they entered.’

We/ siwo/ mahaḷayo/ kum’amilaṭa jis’iyi. ‘You, it is not fitting for you to treat him this way.’

maharaja

n. way out, way to get out

Mojiitu/ nashṭomoleḷa maharaja/ na dhibu iyi. ‘God finds a way of getting out from these hardships.’

Nt^hayiiko/ maharaja/ yaa si/ kuḷawila dhibu iyi. ‘There is no way to get out of this difficulty.’

mahari

n. [Sw. mahari SED 254; Ar. mahre “dower, bridal money” W 929] a sum of money settled on the wife in the marriage contract; it can be paid to her by the husband at any time during the marriage or after it has been dissolved; after the husband’s death, it is paid to the widow before the inheritance is divided among the heirs; in case a woman dies before receiving it, it has still to be paid by the husband to her heirs

Maali/ yaa ye/ leeseló/ yotte/ chimpa sulṭaani/ kuwa ni mahari/ ya mwanaamkewe. ‘All the wealth that he brought he gave to the sultan to be the dowry of his daughter.’

Peesa/ izo/ ni kama peesa/ za mubḷi/ humpo mukeewé/ kuwa ni mahariyé/ zo/ haziruudi/ teena/ kaako. ‘That money [which has been lent to people] is like the money that a man gives to his wife as dowry; it does not come back again to you.’

Qabla/ yaa mi/ khpokela mahari/ ya mwanaamkewe/ ka kaako/ mbele/ we/ ni laazima/ khṭeza naayé/ karaṭa. ‘Before I receive my daughter’s dowry from you, first it is necessary for you to play cards with her.’

mahaṭi

n. [Som. mahad DSI 407] gratitude, thanks, appreciation; praise

Hamadi/ mahaṭi/ nt^hanaayo/ yaa we/ tamfanyiliizó. ‘Hamadi is not thankful whatever you do for him.’

khṭoza mahaṭi ‘to fail to thank s.o., fail to recognize a favor done’ mahaṭi nda mojiitu wütu m’aali [st.] ‘thanks are due to God Most High’

Nt^haná/ mahaṭi. ‘He has no gratitude.’

ku-mahaṭisha

v. caus. (mahaṭishiize) thank, appreciate, be grateful, praise

Hamadi/ hammahaṭishi/ muunt^hu. ‘Hamadi does not praise/thank people.’

Mwana/ mmahaṭishiize/ baaba. ‘The child thanked his father.’

Waan^hu/ wamahaṭishiize/ ruhu zaawo. ‘The men praised themselves.’

rel.

ku-mahaṭishana v. caus. rec.

?ku-mahaṭishika v. caus. p/s. (This verbal form was rejected by GM.)

ku-mahaṭishiliza v. caus. appl.

Muunt^hu/ hupowa chiint^hu/ chaa ye/ kumahaṭishiliza. ‘One is given something such that one can give praise/ appreciation for it (i.e. one is given something good, not something bad).’

ku-mahaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-mahaṭishoowa v. pass. (mahaṭishiiza)

Ada zaawo/ want^hu awa/ nt^haskumahaṭishoowa. ‘The traditions of these people are not appreciated.’

Mojiitu/ ndiyé/ wa kumahaṭishoowa. ‘God is the one to be praised/ thanked.’

mah(a)zuuni	invar. adj. [Ar.] sad Aasha/ waliko mahazuuni/ nt^ho. ‘Aasha was very sad.’ Hamadi/ waliko mahazuuni/ khpotela imt̄ihaani. ‘Hamadi was sad at having failed the examination.’ munt^hu mahzuuni ‘sad person’ (cf. want^hu mahzuuni, chijint^hu chimahzuuni, etc.) nsoeelo risaala mbeele mahazuuni [s] ‘when I read the letter I became sad’ Si/ wont^he/ chaliko mahazuuni/ Abú/ kubasha kaaziye. ‘We were all sad about Abu losing his job.’ Ye/ waliko mahazuuni/ kuḷawa Mwiini. ‘He was sad to leave Brava.’
mahbuubu	adj. [Ar. maḥbūb W 152] beloved, s.o. loved niiko ka nk^handa za miimba kuliinda we mahbuubu [song] ‘I exist (with my) stomach tightened with a belt, waiting for your love’
mahiibu family	n. a sum of money that was distributed before a wedding among the wazele of the family
maahine	?
mahkama	n. [Sw. mahakama SSED 137; Ar. maḥkama W 196] trial, court khpanza mahkama ‘to try in court’ mahkamaani ‘in court’ Mi/ mphela peesá/ khkoḍa wanaafakhi/ mahkamaani. ‘Money was given to me to lie in court.’ Poliisi/ hu’ aḍiba wiizi/ nt^hasaa wo/ kuwapeleka mahkamaani. ‘The police torture thieves before they take them to trial.’
mahmaahi	n. [Som.] proverb Mahmaahi/ iyi/ inakhpenzelezoowa/ jis’iyo. ‘This proverb is meant like that (said in concluding a discussion of the meaning of a particular proverb).’ Mahmaahi/ iyi/ ma’anaye/ limi/ ni chinama/ tu/ nt^halíná/ mwishpa/. Limi/ hukhaadira/ kuhada/ ma’anaye/ kila/ chiint^hu/. Ni sahalí. ‘This proverb, its meaning, the tongue is just flesh, it doesn’t have a bone. The tongue is able to say, its meaning, anything, It’s easy.’
Mahmuudi	n. Mohammad
mahrajaani	n. [Som. mahrajaan "parade of civilians, gymnastic display" DSI 408] parade, gymnastic display
mahṭuuti	invar. adj. [Sw. mahututi SSED 254; ?Ar. ḥatta “to put down, reduce” W 185; this Ar. etymology was given in SSED, but it does not seem satisfactory] very sick munt^hu mahṭuuti ‘a sick person’ (cf. want^hu mahṭuuti, ngombe mahṭuuti, chijana chimahṭuuti, zijana zimahṭuuti, ijana imahṭuuti, mijana mimahṭuuti) Myaana/ ilopo kuleta zoombó/ eelo/ waliko mahṭuuti/ nt^ho. ‘When the servant came bringing things, the gazelle was very sick.’
mahuro	adj. [Som. mahuraan DSI 408] necessary, indispensable
mahuurto	adj. inevitable Sheekhi kufa ni mahuurto/ lombaaani kuragishoowa [st.] ‘the Sheikh’s death is inevitable, implore God that it may be postponed’
mahzuuni	adj. inv. [Ar. mahzūn W 174] sad kuwa mahzuuni ‘to be sad’ na teená/ wele mahzuuni/ kumkosa eelowe ‘and then he became sad from missing his gazelle’ munt^hu mahzuuni ‘sad person’; want^hu mahzuuni ‘sad people’; but chijint^hu chimahzuuni ‘sad (dim.) person’, etc.

waleelo ka miimba qalbi mahzuuni [nt.] ‘lying on their bellies with heavy hearts’

maja’aliwo n. [Sw. majaliwa SSED 148; Ar.] fate, destiny maja’aliwo NOTE: this entry needs careful re-checking. Sw.
 majaliwa = help, favour, grace of God (not fate). Ar. etymo given in SSED is verb ja’ala = to create, make a principle, fix or set (a price), Wehr p. 127, with no reference to fate, and no derived noun. Also, form given seems to have 2nd person possessive (-wo). Possible connection with ajali, CLE p. 12, from Ar. ajal, Wehr p. 6?

majaahili adj. ignorant Wabli/ leelo/ hawapeendi/ wake majaahili. ‘Men today do not want ignorant women.’

majaazi in the expression:
khudra majaazi ‘human will’

majduubu adj. [Ar.] (religiously) frenzied

majduumu adj. [Ar.] leprous

majhuuli invar. adj. [Ar.] ignored, unknown Haaliye/ majhuuli. ‘His condition is unknown.’
munt^hu majhuuli ‘an unknown person’ (cf. want^hu majhuuli, chijana chimajhuuli, ijana imajhuuli, etc.)

majiira n. [Sw. majira "(i) time, period, season; (ii) course of a ship -- in navigation; also used of a watch keeping time" SSED 255; Ar. majran “course, progress, passage” W 122] need data on range of uses in Chimiini khfanya majiira ‘to "case" a place that one intends to rob’ Lpepo/ ldegeelopó/ naa nvulá/ ifungiilopó/ ichibele majiira/ na nt^hashkukhaadira/ kulekezaa ndila. ‘The wind, when it calmed down, and the rain, when it stopped, we had lost our way and we were unable to aim for the path/way.’

majlisi n. [Sw. majilisi "a reception room, place for conversation" SSED155; Ar. majlis W 131] council, meeting

Nuuru/ huðurile majlisi. ‘Nuuru was present at the meeting.’
Sultaani/ chivila majlisi/ chiwa’ambila mawaziiriwe/ kuwaa ye/ qaririile/ kumlooza/ mwanaamke/ muḥjaana/ fulaani. ‘The sultan called a meeting and told his ministers that he had allowed his daughter to marry a so-and-so young man.’
Teena/ sku mooyi/ masku/ mkulaze/ wachiweka majlisi. ‘Then one day at night his elder brother held a meeting.’

majnuuni invar. adj. [Sw. majnuuni SSED 255; Ar. majnūn W 138] mad, crazy munt^hu majnuuni ‘a crazy person’ (cf. want^hu majnuuni, chijint^hu chimajnuuni, ijint^hu imajnuuni, etc.)

majo n. 1/2 a male homosexual who assumes a passive role [this word is used primarily by young speakers and is derived from the verbal root -ja ‘to eat’] majo uyu ‘this homosexual’; majo awa ‘these homosexuals’

- majo n. [etymology unknown] caterpillar (insect), a kind of termite found in roofs
- majruuhu invar. adj. [Ar.] injured askari majruuhu ‘an injured soldier’ mbwa majruuhu ‘an injured dog’ want^hu majruuhu ‘injured people’ (but cf. chijana chimajruuhu, zijana zimajruuhu, etc.)
- majuusi n. [Sw. majusi SSED 255; Ar. majūs “Magi, adherents of Mazdaism” W 894; cf. Som. majuusi “Zoroastrians, adorers of fire” DSI 409] astrologer – check this meaning
- Maka n. [Sw. maka SSED 255; Ar.] Mecca
haji cheendra maka koowa ni aḍali [st.] ‘when one goes on pilgrimage to Mecca, it is better to wash oneself’ Islāamu/ humlāzima kendraa Maka/ kuhija/ ichiwa/ ye/ naazo/ peesa/ za kumtōsha safariini. ‘A Muslim is obliged to go to Mecca to pilgrimage if it be that he has money enough for him on the trip.’
maskiini wa Maka nama hupoowa [st.] ‘the meat [of the slaughtered goat] is given to the poor people of Mecca’ safari ya Maka inayo faayda [st.] ‘the trip to Mecca has profit’
- Makadara n.
Mombasa/ feestā/ hufanyowa Makadara. ‘In Mombasa celebrations are held at Makadara.’
- makaani n. [Sw. makani SSED 256; Ar. makān W 847] place hiingila makaani nuumba ya Mojiitu [nt.] ‘I go find shelter in the house of God’ takonyoowa makaaniye/ na wakeewe takhpoowa [st.] ‘he will be shown his place and allotted his wives.’
- makaaniko n. mechanic; [pron. makaanikó]
Saalaha/ ni makaanikó/ hufanya magaari/ kaake/ garachaani. ‘Saalaha is a mechanic, he repairs cars in his garage.’
- makaari adj. [Ar. makkār W 917] cunning (We did record this item with gemination, makkaari, reflecting the gemination in the Arabic source.)
munt^hu makaari ‘a cunning person’ (cf. want^hu makaari, chijana chimakaari, zijana zimakaari, ijana imakaari, zijana zimakaari, etc.)
- makhazina n. [cf. Ar. ḥazna W237 and various nominal forms with the prefix ma W 237] store, storehouse; treasure
Naminilaa mi/ makhazina/ zaa nt^hi. ‘Entrust to me the treasures of the country.’ (The z- agreement on the associative marker -a indicates that this is a [cl.10] noun and that the ma should not be regarded as the [cl.6] prefix, but rather merely as a retention of the original Arabic word.)
Skaarpa/ za Hasani/ zalimo makhazinaani/ wakhṭi miingi/ haṭá/ zijaneene. ‘Hasani’s shoes were in the store for a long time, until they got worn out.’
- makhluuqu n. [Sw. mahluku SSED 137; from Ar. makluq W 259] people, creatures; [pron. makhluuqu or makhluukhu] Aadamu/ ni awali ya makhluukhu. ‘Adam was the first creature.’
Hu’abudiḷowa khaalikhi/ ha’abudiḷoowi/ makhluukhu. ‘It is the creator who should be worshipped, it is not worshipped the creation.’ (A proverb.)
makhluuqu kuwa haadithi we khsadiqa [st.] ‘[that] creatures are not eternal, to believe [that]'

Mtume Nuuhu/ waliko tumiila/ na mwajiitu/ keendra/ khkomeza/ risaala/ ka makhluukhu/ wa nt^hi izo/ karka wakhti/ oyo.

'Prophet Noah was sent by God to go to take a message to the people of those countries at that time.'

Siri za mwajiitu/ zimo karka makhluukhuye. 'The secrets of God are in his creatures.' (A proverb.)

tiinda yaqiini ka limiini haqiqa/ makhluuqu kuwa hadiithi we khsadiqa [st.] 'be sure [and then] say it [lit. on the tongue] be certain that people are not eternal, believe [thst]'

makhraja

n. way out

nt^haasa sinaayo makhraja [song] 'and yet I do not have a way out' ghaala. Refine definition: storehouse used for grains and other staple foodstuffs. Storehouse (general meaning) is either baxaari (spelled boxaari in CLE, page 62) or maxazina (CLE p. 511, where meaning given is "treasure"). Checked.

maki

adj. [Sw. maki "n. thickness, stoutness" SSED 256; cf. Ar. waku'a "to be hard, strong, sturdy" W 1095] firm, strong chinthu maki 'something strong' (cf. also ikambala maki 'strong rope', munthu maki 'strong person', wanthu maki 'strong people', chijinthu chimaki 'strong dim. person', ijinthu imaki 'strong aug. man', ljana lmaki 'strong aug. child', mijana mimaki 'strong aug. children' (This adjective may be pronounced with gemination: -makki, though it is uncertain whether this is in fact an invariable feature of the pronunciation of this item. The absence of length on a preceding word-final vowel, as in chinthu maki would be explained if the adjective has the shape -CVCCV underlying, since final vowels are not lengthened when the next word begins with a closed syllable.)

makiina

n. 9/10 [Ital. macchina] machine, engine (though this word is never used with reference to the engine of a car, which is motoore); when used without any further specification, this word was especially used for the machinery used to grind maize and coffee beans, and also to indicate the shop/workshop where this operation was carried out

Ka makinaani/ ka Amiini/ maandra/ hutowa nasha/ kana/ chimento/ haaziwi/ lada. 'At Amiini's grinding machine, the dough is ground very smooth, like cement, the bread does not become good.'

khfanya kaazi/ kana makiina 'to do a job fast, like a machine'

Warshada/ ya zilaatu/ ya Kakamoole/ waant^hu/ washfanya kaazi/ kana/ makiina. '(In) the shoe industry of Kakamoole, people worked like a machine.'

makina ya barafu 'refrigerator (lit. machine of ice)' (probably an old term, now frijideeri is more commonly used) makina ya chireeza 'razor' makina ya kandikila 'typewriter [lit. machine to write with]'

makina yaa tala 'electric generator'

Nuuru/ uletejele muundra/ makiina. 'Nuuru brought a piece of machinery for (use in) the field.'

Peleka maandra/ makinaani. 'Take the maandra to the shop (to be ground).'

Makiina/ yaa nali

n. the electricity power plant in Brava, located at the edge of Buulo/ Baazi; the word nali (listed separately) comes from Somali nal meaning electric bulb or electric power; another name for the power plant is Ka Mada Saalehe Luungo, named after the man who used to run it

makiindri

n. [unknown etymology] belly dance, dance moving the pelvis or buttocks khzeza makiindri 'to play, dance with the pelvis/butt' kḥinda makiindri ‘to dance with the pelvis, butt’ kubiga makiindri ‘to dance with pelvis/butt’ makiini adj. [Sw. makini SSED 256; Ar. makīn W 918] calm, stable, cool-headed munt^hu makiini ‘stable person’ (cf. want^hu makiini)

maakiri adj. deceptive

makri n. [Ar. makr W 917] tricks, stratagem Chiwona/ kuwa humlaazima/ ye/ khfaanya/ makri meepe. ‘She saw that it was necessary for her to resort to some sort of stratagem.’
Izi/ ni makri zaa wake. ‘These are female tricks.’
Makri ziinu/ nii nk’ulu. ‘Your tricks are great.’
Ye/ ni hayawaani/ mwenye makri/ na khada’á. ‘He is an animal that has tricks and deceit.’

makruuhu adj. [Sw. makuruhi SSED 174; Ar. makrūh “abhorred, hateful, reprehensible” W 823] s.o. that people do not care to be associated with since he annoys and bothers people; s.t. that is not allowed, but yet is not a sin, as opposed to mubaaha

maktaba n. [Ar. maktaba W 813] library mal’iimu n. [Ar. la’uma “to be ignoble, wicked, evil” W 853] evil Matuundraye/ muti wa zaquumu/ ni chaakuja/ cha mal’iimu ‘the fruits of the tree of zaquumu are food for the evil.’

mal’uuni adj. [Ar. mal’ūn W 870] cursed, one who has had a spell cast on him maala ya’ani adj. senseless, meaningless review 1 or 1 #1.1

Hasani/ hadiile/ Alí/ mara mara/ hukoða mikooði/ maala yá’ani/ akh!/ haṭá/ iṭakhufanya matapika. ‘Hasani said: Ali sometimes talks and talks without meaning, akh! until it will make you want to vomit.’
Mukhṭaa mi/ nsuḷilooye/ kunaambilá/ ka khisa yaa ye/ nkoðeloo mi/ kaziini/ jisaa mbovú/ ye/ jibiile maala yá’ani. ‘When I wanted him to tell me why he talked badly of me at work, he ended up talking nonsense.’

maḷaariya n. malaria check the 1 #1.3
Mbu/ huleta maḷaariya. ‘Mosquitoes cause malaria.’
Mbu za ṭawala/ nt’aziná/ maḷaariya. ‘Mosquitoes (from) the coast do not carry malaria.’

malbolo in the expression:
malbolo la waawowe ‘son of your father’s penis!’

Maḷiindri n. Malindi ā’ā/ si/ hachooloki/ Maḷiindri. ‘No, we won’t go to Malindi.’
We/ heendri/ Maḷiindri/ naawé? ‘Won’t you go to Malindi as well?’

malḡalaṭa n. 9 [Ital. marmellata; Eng. marmalade] marmalade, jam ku-mala v. [cf. Sw. maliza SSED 258] (no perfect form, but rather falls together with ku-maliza in the perfect) finish, end, use up, complete Abú/ khiriḷe khfanya kaazi/ haṭá/ ichimala. ‘Abu offered to work until the job was done.’

Chaakuja/ chinakumala. ‘The food is being used up.’
jawaabu ya duniya hiingila humala [nt.] ‘the matters of this world ebb and flow’
maayi ya bahari shteka hayamali / na siifa za mtume ndruwa hazimali [st.] ‘if you fetch water from the sea it does not finish (i.e. you are unable to take all water out of the sea, it is an endless task), and [likewise] the praises of the Prophet, my friend, are endless’ sandra wrote nruwa

Mwaadamu/ dhibuze/ hazimali. ‘A human being’s problems don’t end.’ (A translation of a Somali proverb.)

Mwaana/ deni yaa ye/ hulipo wazeelewé/ haymali. ‘A child, the debt that he owes his parents never ends.’

Naani/ nt^hakumalá/ imṭihaani. ‘Who did not finish the examination?’ Or: Naani/ nt^hakumala imṭihaaní. Or: Imṭhaani/ naani/ nt^hakumalá. (Pre-verbal naani triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb, here manifested only by the final accent. In relativization, the negative verb is not necessarily separated phasally from its complement.)

Uki/ ukharibilīle kumala. ‘The honey was almost finished.’

Zita/ zimaliize. ‘The war has ended.’

rel.

ku-malīla v. appl. (malīile) end for, with Chaakuja/ chichimalīile. ‘Our food is finished (lit. the food is finished for us).’

Liindra/ khumalīle kooḍi. ‘Wait so that I may complete my words, discourse to you.’

Mukeewa/ mmalīle maali. ‘My wife has used up my wealth (on me).’

ku-malika v. p/s.

ku-maliza v. [Sw. maliza SSED 258] (malīize) end, complete, finish

Chimalizaa kuja/ oloka skuḷiini. ‘When you finish eating, go to school.’

Fiiló/ yaake/ imaliize. ‘He who has died, his (affairs, issues, concerns, etc.) are finished.’ (A proverb.)

Isa/ imaliize. ‘Now it has finished, its over.’

Kooḍi/ zimaalīze. ‘The debate has come to an end.’

Kuḷa haanzó/ humaliza. ‘Whatever has a beginning ends.’ (A proverb.)

kumaliza kaazi ‘to finish a job, work’

Malize khfaanya. ‘He finished doing it.’

Malizopo koowá/ chimwambila mukeewe/ kuleta chaakuja. ‘When he finished bathing, he asked his wife to bring food.’

Mukhtaa we/ malizoo kuḷá... ‘When you have finished eating...’

Mwaaka/ umaliize. ‘The year ended.’

Nt^hakumaliza kazi iyi/ lapīili. ‘I will finish this work by evening.’

Numba/ ni khariibu/ ya kumaliza. ‘The house is nearly finished (being built).’

Waana/ wamaliize/ kosha faṭuura. ‘The children have finished washing the car.’

ku-malizoowa v. pass. (malīiza)

Chaakuja/ chimaliza kujoowa. ‘The food was finished being eaten.’

rel. nom.

u-malizo n. 14 malaakhi

n. [Som. malaakh "clan headman" DSI 410] historically, a military title for Tunnis, but in modern times with the ironic meaning of ‘self-appointed chief, leader’

Alí/ hufanya ruuhuye/ kana malaakhi/ kīlaa chiint^hu/ ndiyé/ tū/ hupitoo mbelé. ‘Ali makes himself like a malaakhi, in everything it is him who puts himself first.’

Malaakhi/ wa Baandowó/ tomele amri/ kuwa mwaka uyu/ kīlaa numba/ khsomowa khtīma sabba. ‘The leader of the Baandhowo clan issued an order that in every house this year the holy book should be read in its entirety seven times.’

malaani

adj. [Ar. mal’ān “full, filled” W 920] full of khālbiye/ malani na mahaba ‘his heart full of love’ na khālbi zītu ni malaani mahaba [st.] ‘and our hearts are full of love’ malaayka

n. 9/10, or 1/2 [Sw. malaika SSED 257; Ar. malak and malā’ik W 922] angel

Du’a/ za wana zihaba/ (ni) kana/ za malaayka. ‘The prayers of small children are like (those) of angels.’

Haliima/ nayo imaani/ kana malaayka. ‘Haliima has faith like an angel (i.e. she is a woman of strong faith).’

Ibliisi waaliko malaayka mkulu/ shfaanya ibaada niingi n̄hiini na ilu [st.] ‘Ibliisi was a great angel, he used to worship constantly everywhere (lit. down and up)’ (Note that in this example, malaayka is used as a singular noun controlling [cl.1] agreement.)

malaayka...wa sho baaba wala maama [st.] ‘angels... who have neither father nor mother’ (Note that in this example, malaayka is a plural noun that controls [cl.2] agreement.)

malaayka za rahma apo haziingili [st.] ‘angels of mercy do not enter there (where there are idols)’ (Note that in this example, malaayka is a plural noun that controls [cl.10] agreement.)

na nguzo yaane amina malaayka [st.] ‘and the fourth pillar (of faith) is belief in angels’

Shchambiloowa/ ya kuwa malaayka/ hupenda kuwona kuḷa muunt^hu/ nakuwaziidila/ waanawe/ arzaakhi/ nakhtomola sadakha/ nakhteza na waant^hu/ na chimaliza nakumshukura mwajiitu/ ka yaa ye/ mpeeló. ‘We were told that angels love to see every man increase for his children foods, give out alms, laugh with people, and then thank God for whatever he has been given.’

Sura za Haliima/ kana za malaayka. ‘Haliima’s beauty is like that of an angel.’

Waana/ ni malaayka. ‘Children are (innocent like) angels.’

Wana zihaba/ ni kana/ malaayka. ‘Small children are (innocent) like angels.’

wawashile ka’ba mbele malaayka [st.] ‘those who first built the ka’ba were angels’ need to see whether malaayka can ever control [cl.9] agreement in the singular maali

n. 6 [Sw. maali SSED 257; Ar. māl W 931] money, wealth, possessions, goods (We do not know of any evidence as to whether this item, from a synchronic point of view, should be considered to involve a fusion of the [cl.6] prefix ma- and a vowel-initial stem or not. When we lack evidence on such matters, we have opted to list the form without any indication of there being morphological complexity.)

Baaba/ ni sultaani/ nayo na maali/ muḃjaana/ ni maskiini/ nt^haná/ maali/ na apó/ karka wakht̄i oyó/ nt^haykuwaaliko/ sahali/maskiini/ kumlola muunt^hu/ taajiri. ‘(The girl’s) father was a king, he had wealth; the boy was poor, he had no money, and then at that time it was not easy for a poor person to marry a rich person.’

ka want^hu wenye maali ‘to people having wealth’ khpata maali ‘to acquire wealth’ khpanda maali ‘to like, love wealth’ kubadila maali ‘to barter goods’

kubasha maali ‘to lose wealth’

Leete/ maaliyo/ yotte/ mpe/ naawé/ ileete/ bahari/ apa/ napate kiyina. ‘Bring all your belongings and give them to him, and you bring the sea here so that he may drink it.’

mali aya ‘this wealth’

Maali/ bila daftari/ hubaha bila khabari. ‘Possessions without an accounting book get lost without information about them being preserved.’ (A proverb.)

mali haba ‘little wealth’

mali miingi ‘much wealth’

Maali/ ni mawaahibu. ‘Wealth is a gift from God.’ (A proverb.)

Mali ya duniya/ hupatoowa/ hubashoowa. ‘The world’s wealth is made and is lost.’ is this a proverb?

mali ya haraamu ‘money, wealth made illegally, in a manner not compatible with religion (lit. impure wealth)’

Maali/ yamlasile. ‘He lost his wealth (lit. his wealth left him).’

Maaliyo/ na waanawó/ ndiwó/ aduwiyo. ‘Your wealth and your children are your enemies.’ (This saying conveys the idea that your money and your children, these are what give you a hard time, cause you problems.)

Maaliyo/ na waanawó/ ndiwó/ khutilo janaani/ na ndiwó/ khutilo aḏabuuní. ‘Your wealth and you children are the ones who put you in paradise, and they are the ones who put you in hellfire.’ (A proverb.)

Mojiitu/ hadiile/ karka qur’aani/ maaliyo/ na waanawó/ ni aduwiyo. ‘God said in the Quran: your wealth and your children are your enemy.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ chiwanayo maali/ hupendoowa. ‘If a man has wealth, he is loved.’ (A proverb.)

muunt^hu/ mwenye maali ‘a wealthy person’ muunt^hu naayo maali chifa bila hiji [st.] ‘if a man has money and dies without performing the pilgrimage’

Nanzize khfanya kaazí/ khpata maali. ‘I began to do work to get money.’

Nayo ipupa ya maali. ‘He has a very strong desire for wealth.’

Nayo maali. ‘He is wealthy, has wealth.’

Numba iyi/ ndiyó/ maaliya. ‘This house it is that is my wealth.’ (One does not say

Numba izi/ ni maaliya. ‘These houses are my wealth.’

Raaḏi/ nii nk^hulu/ kolko maali. ‘Blessings are better than wealth.’ (A proverb.)

reeri/ inayo maali ‘a family that has wealth’

Taajiri/ na maaliyé/ maskiini/ na mwaanawé. ‘A rich man and his money, a poor man and his son.’ (A proverb.)

Washpowa maali. ‘They were given wealth.’

We/ nakubiga boolí/ mali ya waant^hú. ‘You are looting people’s wealth.’

Ye/ peḷa maali/ bilaa adadi. ‘He was given wealth without limit.’

Maaliki n. proper. one of the teachers from whom the four main schools of Islam derive maḏhabu ya Maaliki ‘the school of Maaliki’ Maaliki na Hanafi wotte akmali [st.] ‘Maaliki and Hanafi are good’ maaliki adj. [Ar. malik W 922] one of Allah’s attributes in Islamic belief

Maliindi n. name of a town on the East African coast ku-maliza v. (both intransitive and transitive) (maliize) finish, complete, end Chaakuja/ chimaliza kujoowa. ‘The food was finished being eaten.’

Chimalizaa kuja/ oloka skuḷiini. ‘If you finish eating, go to school.’
Maaliya/ yamalize jis’iyo. ‘My wealth was exhausted in this way.’
Maliza. ‘Finish it!’ Cf. Malizaani. ‘(Pl.) finish it!’
Mwaaka/ umaliize. ‘The year ended.’
Mwaalimu/ takendra numbaani/ mukhtaḷa ye/ takumalizo khfanya kaazí. ‘The teacher will go home when he finished working.’
Nṯ^hakumaliza kazi iyi/ lapili. ‘I will finish this work by evening.’
Nṯ^hasaa we/ koondroka/ nṯ^hakuwa ni’imaliizé/ kazi iyi. ‘Before you get up I will have finished this job.’ Or: Nṯ^hasaa we/ koondroka/ nṯ^hakuwa ni’imalize kazi iyí. ‘Before you get up I will have finished this job (i.e. this job, not some other job).’
Simalizé. ‘Don’t finish it!’ Cf. Simalizeení. ‘(Pl.) don’t finish it!’
Wachija/ hattá/ wachimaliza. ‘They ate until they finished.’

rel.

u-malizo n. 14

maama n. mother

éwe maama ya muu’mini wote [st.] ‘O you, mother of all the faithful.’

Maama/ humtila maana/ makapaani. ‘Mother puts her child in her wings (for protection).’

mama msuura ‘a nice, beautiful mother’ wake wa Mtume maamazo wa’oondrole [st.] ‘the Prophet’s wives, your mothers, alert them (literally: make them rise, i.e. make them act in your favour)’

rel.

maama=poss.

mama yaawo ‘their mother’ mama yiitu ‘our mother’ mama yiinu ‘your pl. mother’

maamaye his/her/its mother

Cheendra/ chimwambila maamaye. ‘He went and told his mother.’
Maamaye/ mwambiile/ nini/ mwaanawá/ khupeleshelo ka masultaaní. ‘His mother said to him: what, my son, takes you to [visit] sultans?’

Muke/ apa/ numbaani/ chimwambila mamaye muḽiwe/ mi/ nnakhsulaa we/ kump^haa gele/ mi/ khsoola. ‘The woman, here, at home, told her husband’s mother: I want you to give me maize for me to pound.’

Mwaana/ namkorshe/ maamaye. ‘A child, let his mother bring him up.’ (A proverb.)

Ye/ chi’irudila kaawo/ ka maamaye. ‘He went back to their place at his mother’s.’

maame n. (my) mother

Nakendra mwambila maamé. ‘I am going to tell my mother.’ (Phon. The final accent on maame in this example is projected from the first person present tense verb and is not an inherent aspect of the pronunciation of maame.)

Maame/ mlangale/ jisa suura. ‘My mother, look after her in a nice way.’

Maame/ (nii) mule. ‘Mother is tall.’ (cf. Maame/ ni mulee nt^ho. ‘Mother is very tall.’)

Maame/ ni chigobe/ kolko waawe. ‘Mother is shorter than father.’

Waawe/ na maamé/ nii wale. ‘Father and mother are tall.’ (cf. Waawe/ na maamé/ ni walee nt^ho. ‘Father and mother are very tall.’)

maamo your mother

Maamo/ khufanyilizee muḽo/ khariibuyo. ‘Your mother started a fire for you near you.’

Mi/ maamo/ oyo/ wele maashé. ‘I am your mother who has become blind.’

Mi/ na maamó/ ba/ hashpeendi/ chiint^hu/ ka kaako/ sho kuwa chaakuja/ naa nguwo. ‘I and your mother as well do not want anything from you except food and clothes.’

Shkosa iwele ya maamo/ ama/ haḽa yaa mbwa. ‘If you lack your mother’s breast, suckle even a dog’s.’ (A proverb.)

Takhshalayata maamo/ khuzaa. ‘You will regret that your mother gave birth to you!’ (A formulaic saying, warning that if you do something, you will rue the day!)

ku-maamala

v. [unknown etymology] (mameele) be quiet, silent

Amaani/ nda mwenye mameeló. ‘Peace is with the one who has kept quiet.’ (A proverb.)

Chimaamala/ pashpo khkabila chiint^hu. ‘He kept quiet without adding anything (to that which had been said).’

Chimtuzatuza/ haḽá/ mwanaamke/ chimaamala. ‘He comforted the girl until she stopped crying.’

Iba iyi/ ichiwonoowa/ ba/ ha’imaamali/ inakubiga mikelé/ wúh wúh wúh. ‘This dog is just seen not being quiet, it is barking wuh wuh wuh.’

Kana/ hukooḽó/ humaamala. ‘A mouth that talks will (in the end) be silent

(i.e. however much you may talk now, in the end you will die and be silent).’ (Translation of a Somali proverb.)

Kana/ khkoða kooði/ bilaa ma’aná/ kheeri/ kumaamala. ‘Instead of talking nonsense, you are better off being quiet.’ (A proverb.)

Kumaamala/ ni ðahabu/ khkooða/ ni matuzi. ‘To be silent is gold, to speak is excrement.’ (A proverb.)

Kumaamala/ ni khiira. ‘To be silent is to accept.’ (A proverb.)

Maamala/ tu. ‘Just keep quiet!’

Mayti/ nakhkooða/ laakini/ wamtukiiló/ wamameele. ‘A dead person is talking, but those who are carrying him are silent.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is chuungu/ na fiijá ‘cooking pot and stove’ or chuungu/ na majiikó ‘cooking pot and cooking stones’.)

Muunt^hu/ maskiini/ humaamaló/ mtiye/ ndiyé/ chishikowa sh^hana/ khatari. ‘A poor man, who keeps quiet, beware of him, he is the one who when angry can be dangerous..’ (A proverb.)

Ndiwa/ nt^hakumjiiba/ mameele/ tu. ‘The pigeon did not answer him, it just kept quiet.’

Nt^hawakhaadira/ kumaamala. ‘They could not keep quiet.’

Khkooða/ ni feða/ kumaamala/ ðahabu. ‘To speak is silver, to keep quiet is gold.’ (A proverb.)

Waant^hu/ won^he/ wamameele/ shup! ‘Everybody stopped talking...silence!’

rel.

ku-mama^lila v. appl. (mama^lile) be quiet for Eelo/ sh^htowa yaa yee/ kuhada/ chi’imama^lila. ‘The gazelle [lit. missed what] to say and kept [himself] quiet.’

ku-mama^loowa v. pass. (-mamee^la)

Imamee^la. ‘There was silence.’

ku-mama^lika v. p/s.

ku-mama^liza v. tr. appl. (mama^liize)

Mama^ðo/ mmamalize Adnaani/ maana. ‘Mamadho silenced Adnaani’s child.’

ku-mama^lizanya v. tr. appl. rec.

ku-maama^za v. tr. (mamee^ze) silence s.o.

Batuula/ imameze raadiyo. ‘Batuula turned down the radio (so that it could not be heard).’

Chimmamaza mukeewe. ‘He silenced his wife.’

Eelo/ chimmaamaza/ chimwaambila... ‘The gazelle quietened him and said to him...’

Haliima/ nakummaamaza/ maanawe. ‘Haliima is quietening her child (who is crying, e.g.).’

kummaamaza ‘to silence him’

ku-mama^zan(y)a v. tr. rec.

ku-mama^zika v. tr. p/s.

ku^la/ kumamazika ‘to cry and weep’

Omari/ naaku^la/ nakumamazika. ‘Omari is crying and weeping.’

Omari/ chi^la/ hamamaziki. ‘When Omari cries, he cannot be silenced.’

ku-mama^zikoowa v. pass.

Ku^loowa/ kumamazikoowa/ bilaa sababu/ siwo/ suura. ‘To cry and weep without any reason is not good.’

ku-mama^zoowa v. tr. pass. (mamee^za)

Haliima/ ha’isi/ jisa humamazowa waaná. ‘Haliima does not know how to quieten the children.’

rel. nom.

u-maama^lo n. 14 silence, quiet

u-mama^zo n. 14

mamaaŋi	n. [Ar. mamāt W 930] death
maamba	n. 9/10 [cf. Sw. mamba "(1) crocodile; (2) a name of a very dangerous kind of snake" 218] a large shark
maamba	n. a kind of game, involving playing with small seashells
mambaraani	n. 9/10 basking shark mambarani ikana '[lit.] large mouth shark, a Whale Shark' mambaranii mbili 'two sharks' mambarani mooyi 'one shark' mambarani talyaani '[lit.] Italian shark, large shark so-called because it was unknown in Brava before the Italians came; type unknown' mnyaasa 'the Nurse Shark, used to make ngoonda (salted dried fish)' mambarani pepo '[lit.] wind shark, Tiger shark' mambarani ya matete '[lit. spotted shark] a large shark with black spots/dots (Grey Nurse Shark?)' mambarani yaa nt^hi 'a very big shark with an open mouth (same as mambarani ikana)'
Mambasa	n. Mombasa, a city in Kenya Mi/ mbaliko Mambasá. 'I have been to Mambasa.' Mwaka uyu/ si/ shŋakendra Mambasa. 'This year, we will go to Mombasa.' rel. chi-mambasa n. the dialect of Mambasa
maambiya	n. parrot fish; meat isn't good for eating
maambo	n. 6 [Sw. mambo SSED 148] affairs, matters (In Swahili, mambo is the plural of jambo , thus there is evidence that the word should be divided into a prefix and a stem. However, in Chimiini, this singular form does not exist, thus there is no direct evidence that that this item is morphologically complex. Consequently, we do not indicate a prefix-stem structure, although perhaps evidence can be found for the psychological reality of such an analysis by speakers.) Basi/ ni mambo gani/ aya. 'So what is this all about?' Chimjiiba/ kuwaa ye/ siwo/ takhiiró/ mambo aya. 'He replied that he would not agree to this proposal.' (The infinitive prefix, when located in front of a stem with an initial q or kh has a null phonological shape. Thus the relative future tense form takhiiro comes from /ta-ku-khiiro/ and the ku is absent in pronunciation.) Duniya/ ina maambo/ haytukuliki. 'The world has affairs that are unbearable.' Mambo aya/ ya'ineenzele/ ka muḍda/ wa miyaaka/ mitatu. 'This situation [lit. these affairs, matters] continued for a period of three years.' Maambo/ hayaŋakhuweleleja/ jisaa we/ nakhsuuló. 'Things won't turn out for you the way that you want (them to).' mambo yanuŋishiizó/ ya mwana uje 'the behavior that annoyed me of that child' (Cf. mambo ya mwana uje/ yanuŋishiizó 'the behavior of that child that annoyed me' – notice that maambo controls subject agreement on the relative verb and not mwaana ; in other words, it is the behavior that annoyed me.) Mwaana/ chihada/ kuwaa ye/ nakuwona/ kuwa itakhtuluka/ mooyi/ karka maambo/ matatu/ leelo/ nt^haasá/ iwa/ kiingila. 'The boy said that he felt that one of three things would happen today before the sun set.' Ni mambo gani/ ajabu yaa we/ weenó. 'What amazing affairs did you see?' Siwo/ mambo ya chi'akhyaari. 'It is not the behavior of a civilized person.' Sultaani/ oyo/ chanza kumfungulila khabarize/ chimweleza maambo/ jisa yatulushiló. 'That sultan began to narrate his story, explaining to him the events that had befallen [him].'

-mameele	ad. silent
maamili customer	n. [cf. Ar. mu'āmala “association with one another, business relation” W 646]
mam̄laka	n. [Sw. mamlaka “(1) authority, dominion, rule, rights of ownership; (2) property, possessions, dominions” SSED 258; Ar. mamlaka W 923] kingdom mam̄laka ya Sa’uudi ‘the kingdom of Saudi Arabia’
mamnuu’u	adj. [Ar. mamnū ‘W 927] forbidden variant form: mamnuu’i Isa/ Mkhodiisho/ khorī/ ifanyiza mamnuu’u/ kh̄tukuloowa. ‘Now in Mogadishu for guns to be carried has been forbidden.’ Mwaālimu/ kumbiga mwaana/ ni mamnuu’u. ‘For a teacher to hit a child is forbidden.’ Or: Ni mamnuu’u/ ka mwaālimu/ kumbiga mwaana.
ku-maamula serve people (e.g. at a party)	v. [Som. maammul , variant maamul “to administer, to manage” DSI 397] deal with; rel. ku-mamulāta v. (mamuleete) deal with, serve Chimuuló/ ni muunt^hu/ apo/ chimamulāto shu’uni zaa nt^hi/ siwo/ fir’ooni/ nafsiye. ‘The one who bought him (Joseph) was a man there (i.e. in Egypt) who took care of the affairs of the country, it was not Pharaoh himself.’ Haliima/ wamamuleete/ martize/ jisa suura. [H!H!H!H] ‘Haliima served her guests well.’ (Emphasis on the verb accounts for the fact that the verb is declinated rather than downstepped. A Continuation High tone appears at the end of the subject Haliima , as is often the case.) ku-mamulātoowa v. pass. Waana/ humamalātoowa. [H!H] ‘Children are managed/served.’ (A phonetic note is perhaps in order. In our recording of this example, there is no Continuation High tone at the end of the subject waana . Nevertheless, it is worth pointing out that although there is a clear fall in pitch on the penult syllable of waana , the pitch of the final syllable is level and higher than the pitch in the next phrase. Indeed,, the downstepped accented syllable in that phrase is not as high in pitch as the final syllable of the subject waana .) ku-mamulisha v. caus. rel. nom. m-mamulāta (wa-) n. 1/2 one who tends, takes care of Mmamulātaa nt^hi/ uyu/ chim̄tukula/ Yuusufu/ chimpeleka kaake. ‘This custodian of the land took Joseph and sent him to his home.’
maamuli	n. management, administration Dow̄la/ ya Amerikaano/ iwātindilile ma’askari/ ya Somaaliya/ mu’aawana/ yaa kuja/ ka sababu/ mamulii mbovu. ‘The American government cut assistance for food to the soldiers of Somalia because of bad administration.’ Mamulii mbovu/ huleta khasaara. [H!H] ‘Bad management brings loss.’
manaami	n. [Ar. manām W 1013] sleep (An Arabic-sourced word not much used in colloquial Chimiini.) variant form: manaamu Shekh Abdūkhaadiri/ mwene mtume/ karka manaamu. [H!H!H] ‘Sheikh Abdulkhaadiri saw the Prophet in a dream (lit. in sleep).’ (One a phonetic note, it should be pointed out that even though there is not a markedly raised Continuation High tone at the end of the first two phrases, it is nonetheless true that the final syllable of each of these phrases is pronounced at a pitch level which is clearly higher than the pitch of the next phrase.)

Sheekhi Uweesu khiinzilo / karka manaami loselo / Omari yaa ye shishilo / “Mtume chimo maghanniyo” [st.] ‘Sheikh Aweys, who sang your praises, in [his] sleep Omar saw in a dream [and] what he retained [was] “O Prophet, we are under your protection” -- i.e. Omar saw in a dream Sheikh Aweys singing the praises of the Prophet, but once he woke up, he could remember only sentence: O Prophet we are under your protection’

the

manda

n. a unit of measure: the width of one finger; a unit of measure used esp. by women in connection with the sizes of makoofiya (skullcaps) manda maṭaano ‘five manda, i.e. the breadth of a hand’

mandalavi

?useless nonsense; [mandalavi]

Ali/ jawabu zaa ye/ hukooḏó/ nza mandalavi/ haṭá/ muunt^hu/

hujunuunata. ‘The things that Ali talks are nonsense, one even gets mad.’

kooḏi/ za mandalavi ‘useless words’

mandari

n. [Sw. mandari SSED 258; Ar. manẓar ‘view, panorama’ W 977] picnic

Si/ chinakhsuḷa kendra mandari. ‘We want to go on a picnic.’

mandariini Somalia)

n. 9/10 [Ital. mandarino, pl. mandarini] mandarin orange (but not available in u-maande

n. [Sw. umande SSED 497] dew, fog

Leelo/ fijiri/ yaliko umaande. ‘There was fog this morning.’

Umaande/ zaaydi/ leelo/ haṭá. chiint^hu/ huwoni. ‘There is a lot of fog today, to the point that you cannot see anything.’

maandra

n. 9/10 a kind of bread made out of maize (gelle) or sorghum (mhuundru), cooked in an oven after being pounded, soaked, and rolled out

Ijila maandra. ‘Has been eaten the bread.’ (The passive verb is different from the active verb in being quite comfortable with having its subject postposed after the verb and forming a phonological phrase with it.)

Ka ṭartiibu/wakaleent^hó/ kana/ wakuziḷa maandra/ mkoononi. ‘With calm/silence, they sat as if they had had bread taken out of their hands.’

kaja maandra/ Muusá ‘if Muusa had eaten bread’ (The subject Muusa in this example seems to be postposed to the end of the verb phrase, not right-dislocated. This is indicated by the fact that the final accent triggered by the verb extends to this subject. Need to look into the validity of this point.

kaja maandra/ Muusa ‘if Muusa had eaten bread’ (This example differs from the preceding in that there is no final accent on Muusa, but rather default penult accent. However, this difference is a bit obscured due to the presence of an intonational rise on the final syllable of Muusa, making the pronunciation difference between these two examples less obvious than might appear.)

kaja Muusá/ maandra ‘if Muusa had eaten bread’ (Observe that the ka-tense verb here allows the subject to be postposed after it and form a phrase with it; the final accent triggered by this verb tense shows up both on the postposed subject and on the object maandra.)

kaja Muusá/ maandra ‘if Muusa had eaten bread’ (In this version, the final accent is not extended to the object maandra. It has default accent. However, this accentual pattern is obscured somewhat by the fact that there is an intonational raising of the final syllable, which makes it possible to miss the difference between this and the preceding example. Our consultant was sensitive to the difference in pronunciation in these two sentences, but did not specify a difference in usage. It is not clear from the pronunciation whether Muusa might be focused in the example where maandra is not affected by final accent. That would be the most likely explanation for the accentual facts.)

kaajá/ Muusa/ maandra ‘if Muusa had eaten bread’ (In this example, the focus on the verb restricts the scope of the final accent to the verb itself; the postposed subject is not subject to final accent, nor is the object maandra. However, the accentual pattern is somewhat obscured due to the presence of an intonational raising of the final syllable of maandra. We would argue, however, that there is still default penult accent on maandra.)

kana maandra/ lpaandre ‘like the half-loaf of bread’

Hamadi/ na Alí/ uso waawo/ sawasawa/ hufaanana/ kana maandra/ lpaandre. ‘Hamadi and Ali, their faces are alike, they resemble one another like a half-loaf of bread (i.e. the two halves of a loaf of bread).’

khawaawa/ ya mandraa nne ‘a pan of/for four maandra’ khtilowa maandra ‘to cook bread (lit. put bread – i.e. in the oven or khawaawa)’; also:

khtilowa maandra (passive)

Ajini/ ikaanzila/ itila maandra. ‘The dough was kneaded and bread was cooked.’

Nkʰanzile ajini/ ntʰile maandra. ‘I kneaded the dough and cooked bread.’

Maandra/ itila/ ka ajini/ ikaanzila. ‘Maandra has been cooked with dough that has been kneaded.’

Yaa Aamó/ zamaani/ shtila maandra/ lada/ chuuza/ wanayo maamili/ wiingi. ‘Aunt Aamo used to bake very delicious bread, she had many customers.’

khinda maandra ‘to cut bread’ mandra za kudirsha ‘[lit. emergency or hasty mandra] mandra baked without yeast, flour or sugar’

Maandra/ Faatima/ pishiló. ‘(It’s) bread that Faatima cooked.’

Maandra/ Faatimá/ pishiló/ mi/ siji. ‘The bread that Faatima cooked, I will not eat it.’

Maandra/ ijiila. ‘Bread has been eaten.’ Cf. without focus: Maandra/ ijiila. ‘Bread was eaten.’

Maandra/ pishilo Faatimá/ ni ladda. ‘The bread that Faatima cooked is sweet.’

Mandra pishilo Faatimá/ ladda. ‘The bread that Faatima cooked is sweet.’ (In both this and the preceding example, the subject of the relative clause is postposed after the relative verb. In this example the head of the relative clause is phrased with the relative verb, while in the preceding example it is not. In this example, the copular verb ni is omitted, while in the preceding example it is not. There does not appear to be any substantial meaning difference associated with these variations in form.)

Maandra/ ya Faatimá/ pishiló/ mi/ siji. ‘The bread that Faatima cooked, I will not eat it.’ Or: Mandra ya Faatimá/ pishiló/ mi/ siji.

Maandra/ yaa ye/ peelá/ ntʰaakuja. ‘The loaf of bread that she was given, she did not eat it.’

Mandra za kudirsha/ zilada. ‘Quick bread (a special type of bread made in Brava) is tasty.’

Muusa/ kaja maandra ‘if Muusa had eaten the bread’

Muusa/ kaja maandra/ ka himá ‘if Muusa had eaten the bread quickly’

Muusa/ wapele waana/ maandra. ‘Muusa gave the children bread.’ Or: Muusa/ wapele maandra/ waana. Cf. Niwapele waaná/ maandra. ‘I gave the children bread.’ Or: Niwapele maandra/ waaná. (These examples illustrate the case where there is no narrow focus inside the verb phrase. They show that with a ditransitive verb like -pa ‘give’, although the indirect object controls object marking on the verb, either complement may follow the verb immediately. The canonical order, however, is for the indirect object to precede the direct object, using those terms in their traditional sense. Observe, in particular, that the final accent projected by the first person singular verb extends to the end of the verb phrase under either order. When there is narrow focus on the noun immediately after the verb, the prosody is different. This difference is intonational (i.e. primarily a matter of relative pitch heights) in the case where the verb triggers default accent, but is revealed more clearly in the final accent case, where the final accent does not pass beyond the narrow focus: Niwapele waaná/ maandra. and Niwapele maandra/ waana.) mandra yaa gele ‘bread made from maize’ mandra ya mhuundru ‘bread made from sorghum’ mandra ya unga ‘bread made from wheat flour’

mukhtạa ye/ nakujo maandrạ ‘when he was eating bread’ or: mukhtạa ye/ naakujó/ maandra (the latter form illustrates that verb emphasis triggers the Accentual Law of Focus in adverbial relative clauses as well as pseudo-relative clauses; only head-modifier relative clauses are exempt from ALF)

Muusa/ kaja maandrạ ‘if Muusa had eaten bread, if Muusa ate bread’

Nt^hile mandra gani/ kapiya mkonó. ‘What bread did I put in fire that I burn my hand?’ (A proverb.)

Nuuru/ jile maandra/ na Muusá/ zijo. ‘Nuuru ate bread and Muusa zijo.’

shpandre cha maandra ‘a slice of bread’

Tala maandra/ ja. ‘Take some bread and eat!’

mandusi

n. a box in which clothing and other similar items were put

mandari

n. [Sw. mandhari SSED 258; Ar. manzar W 977] scene, sight, view

manfa’a

n. 6 [Ar. manfa’a W 987] usefulness, utility

Daðaleete/ kubarata/ kịla/ chiint^hu/ chaa ye/ weenó/ china manfa’á. ‘He tried hard to learn everything that he saw had utility.’ (This sentence illustrates the fact that in relative clauses, the phrasal separation of the relative verb from its complement does not restrict the projection of the final accent from the relative verb to the end of the relative clause. In other words, the Accentual Law of Focus does not constrain the relative verb’s final accent.)

Huṭasawara kuwa nt^ha’iná/ manfa’a/ khfikirowaa nt^ho/ tarafu ya iyi. ‘It is probably useless to think too much about this.’

Iyo/ inayo manfa’a/ kiwoowa. ‘That’s useful to know.’

Muunt^hu/ suura/ kumsimika walaaliwe/ khalbi/ chisuḷa khfanya chiint^hu/ cha manfa’a. ‘It is good for a person to encourage his friend if he wants to do something useful.’

ku-manfa’aṭa

v.
rel.

ku-manfa’aṭila v. appl.

ku-manfa’aṭiloowa v. appl. pass.

Omari/ kluṭba/ ya rasdente/ fanyiizó/ shiriini/ tomele ta’aljikhi/ hadiile/ kuwa kluṭba iyo/ ni suura/ laazimu/ kumanfa’aṭiloowa. ‘Omari, the speech that the district commissioner made at the meeting, he made a comment; he said that the speech was good and benefit must be taken from it.’

manfuukhu

adj. [Ar. manfuk W 982] someone who gives himself airs

wa-maanga

n. 2 [Sw. manga “a name of Arabia” SSE 258] Arabs

Wamaanga/ wanakubigana ka mp^haanga. ‘Arabs are striking one another with swords.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is daank^hu ‘popcorn’.)

maangi

n. 9 [etymology unknown] a dish of boiled maize grains and beans, or rice and beans, with oil and sugar added; a favorite dish in Brava

Haliima/ mpikilile mubliwe/ maangi. ‘Haliima cooked maangi for her husband.’ But also possible: Haliima/ mpikilile maangi/ mubliwe. (These two word orders are both possible with canonical downstep intonation, i.e. with no internal focus. Cf. the simple yes-no questions Haliima/ mpikilile mubliwe/ maangi? and Haliima/ mpikilile maangi/ mubliwe? In these two questions, there is no shift of accent to the final vowel, which would indicate an out-of-focus phrase. Of course, it is also possible to have focus on the NP in IAV position: Haliima/ mpikilile 'maangi/ mubliwe. The corresponding yes-no question for this sentence would have accent shift: Haliima/ mpikilile maangi/ mubliwé?)

Maangi/ ipishila. 'Maangi has been cooked.' (The corresponding simple yes-no question exhibits only Q-raising. The exclamatory question has obligatory accent shift in the verb and the optional shift in the subject: Maangi/ ipishilá!?) mangi yaa gele 'maangi with maize' mangi ya mpuunga 'maangi with rice' ku-mani'a v. [Ar. mana'a W 926] (mani'iile) forbid (We have only observed this verb being used with an infinitive complement and a negative subjunctive complement. An affirmative subjunctive complement, or a finite complement, do not seem to be allowed.)

Hamadi/ mmani'ile mwaanawe/ kowa tawala. 'Hamadi forbade his son to swim in the sea.'

Hamadi/ mmani'ile mwaanawe/ soowe/ tawala. 'Hamadi forbade his son that he not swim in the sea.'

rel.

ku-mani'oowa v. pass. (mani'iila)

Hamadi/ mani'iila na waawaye/ kowa tawala. 'Hamadi was forbidden by his father to swim in the sea.'

maani'i adj. [Sw. manii SSED 259] someone who forbids or is an obstacle maniyi n. 6 [Ar. minan W 928, from the verb manā, many "to ejaculate" W 927] semen Diini/ huhada muunt'u/ laazimu/ koowa/ ichimlawa maniyi. 'Religion says that one must take a shower if one ejaculates.'

maniyi/ kuvuuya 'for sperm to leak, slide maniyi shomola bataala soomu [st.] 'if semen is emitted, fasting is invalid'

Maniyi/ siwo/ nijisi. 'Sperm is not impure.'

maniyi yachilawaqpo kowoowa/ ni waajibu na taakufo koshoowa [st.]
'when semen comes out, to be washed up is obligatory, and he who dies must be washed'

Tanyize maniyi. 'He ejaculated.'

manjoore n. major maank'ale n. [Som. maankaal "solid residual part after sesame has been pressed for oil" DSI 398] a kind of food made by crushing sesame seeds into a paste that is molded into a ball, with sugar added mank'ale ya maansara 'the residue left behind after oil has been extracted from sesame seeds (the crumbs, containing some oil, are eaten as food by humans with sugar added; the dry, hard pieces are used as food for animals)';

manmani n. [Som. malmal "plant with an aromatic resin which has medicinal properties and is soluble in water" DSI 412] A resin that is smeared on part of body (e.g. head) where it is hurting. Also used as a remedy against stomachache: to be drunk in water with salt. Men are told to use it sparingly, because it is believed to affect male sexual potency.

mannaani adj. [Sw. manani "a title of God, the beneficent" SSED 258; Ar. mannān W 925] an attribute of God (the Benefactor or Beneficent) review gemination maa(n)sara n. [Som. macsarad "oil mill" and saliid macsaro "sesame oil" DSI 402] in the expressions:

chinu cha maansara 'an oil press driven by a camel'

mafta ya maansara 'sesame oil'

Mafta (y)a maansara/ ni dawa ya mishpa. 'Sesame oil is (good) medicine for the bones.' (A traditional belief in Brava.)

Mafta/ ya zeeti/ ni afiya/ na ni ghaali/ kolko/ ya mafta ya maasara. ‘Olive oil is healthy and is more expensive than sesame oil.’

- manthuura adj? [very probably Arabic, but an etymological source was not identified] poetic watumishi kama luulu manthuura [st.] ‘servants like scattered pearls’
- maanvula said of sea in the period of extreme difference between high and low tide, corresponding to end/beginning of lunar month and to 15th day of lunar month
- manwari n. warship
Basi/ sultaani/ shkhubala/ na shomola amri/ manwari/ nthatu/ zinawaraashe/ kuwadaafi’a/ kama aduwi mweepe/ chiwata’araõila. ‘So the sultan agree and issued an order for three warships to escort them to defend them if any enemy should come on their way.’
Sultaani/ mukhtaa ye/ kasizo jawabu za kaahini/ oyó/ shkumanganya markabuze/ na manwarizé/ na majahaziyé/ choondroka/ keendra/ kumera Abunawaasi/ karka majaziira/ yotte/ yamo karka mulkuwé. ‘When the sultan heard the words of this soothsayer, he gathered his ships and his warships and his dhows and he moved and went to look for Abunawaasi in all the islands that were in his possessions.’
- i-manya adj. the second stage of the development of camel’s milk from freshest (i-ziwa i-shu) to sour (iziwa i-siita) ishu kayiwa imanya [song] ‘lest fresh milk becomes imanya’ iziwa imanya ‘the imanya stage of camel’s milk’
- manya’a n. [Som. manyac "joke, playful intercourse; tantrum (of children)" citation] joke, playful intercourse. From Somali (manyac) which has also the meaning of “tantrum” (of children), Example:
muunt^hu mzimawe manya’a -- gloss; phrasing nt^hayiiko aashiqi nt^hayiiko manya’a [nt.] ‘there is no [thought of] dalliance or impropriety’
- manya’oole adj. s.o. who likes playful intercourse
- maanyi n. 6 [Sw. jani (ma-) SSED 150] [perhaps this item is morphologically analyzable, e.g. m-aanyi or even maa-nyi, but its analysis is not immediately evident] grass, weeds, hay khpakila maanyi ‘to load grass’ khpisha maanyi ‘to burn grass’ khtilanga maanyi ‘to cut grass’ khinda maanyi ‘to cut grass, remove weeds’ ku’arurisha maanyi ‘to collect grass’ kudakha maanyi ‘to graze on grass’ kuzola maanyi ‘to collect grass’
Leelo/ mi/ noloshele mahaala iyelo maanyi/ naa miti/ mikulu. ‘Today I went to a place full of grass and big trees.’
Manyi aya/ yawaliko mwembaamba. ‘This grass was thin.’ Or: Yawaliko mwembaamba/ manyi aya. ‘Was thin, this grass.’ (Phon. The second version, involving the right dislocation of the subject, has a decidedly different prosody than the first version. Specifically, the first version has downstep intonation, but the accented syllable in the second phrase still has a somewhat raised pitch, albeit not as raised as in the corresponding yes-no question. The dislocated subject in the second example is radically lowered in comparison to the accented syllable in the first phrase.) maanyi/ khpiya ‘for grass to be (lit.) burnt – i.e. grass to be dried out, wither from the sun’ manyi ma’akhõari ‘green grass’
manyi makavu ‘dry grass’

manyii male ‘long grass’
manyi maymaayi ‘wet grass’ manyi miingi ‘a lot of grass’ manyi ya chaayi ‘tea leaves’ manyi ya tawala ‘seaweed’
manyi zigobe ‘short grass’
Mbwa/ chimlomba mp^huundra/ nampe chiint^hu/ mweepe/ karka zaakuja/ zaa ye/ tukilo mungooni/ ka khisa/ mbwa/ haaji/maanyi. ‘The dog asked the donkey to give him something else from the food that he carried on his back because dogs do not eat 77 grass.’

manzili n. [Sw. manzili “circumstances, positions, as given by God, including revelations, etc.” SSED 259; Ar. manzil “house, lunar phase” W 957; note that in various languages constellations of the zodiac are called “the houses”] constellation

maanzine adv. already Ahsanta/ maanzine/ njiilé. ‘Thanks, I have already eaten.’ Or: Ahsanta/ njiilé/maanzine.
Anzize kaaziyo/ maanzine. ‘Had you started your work already?’
Ilopó/ maanzine/ ma’askari/ wawaliko watawanyishile ka apa/ na apa. ‘When he came, already the soldiers were scattered aimlessly here and there.’
Iwaliko maanzine/ ni fijiri/ na iwá/ yanzize kulawa. ‘It was already morning and the sun had begun to come out.’
Ma’askari/ wawaliko maanzine/ watinzile tama’a/ wo/ khshiindra/ wawaliko ni tayaari/ wo/ khchiimbila. ‘The soldiers had already given up hope of winning, they were ready to flee.’

maapa n. [morphologically complex form?] [Sw. kwapa SSED 235] underarms mashungi ya maapa ‘underarm hair’

mada n. get more examples of meaning Fardoosa/ hukahaṭa mada ya hisaabu. ‘Fardoosa hates the subject of mathematics.’
Mada gani/ ya skoola/ Fardoosa/ hukahaṭó. ‘Which school subject does Fardoosa hate?’

maape invariable adj. some, any (This is the prevalent form in present day speech. It seems likely that historically this item had the shape mwaape. We recorded this item as mweepe in the speech of Mohammad Imam, i.e. both with and without the glide element.)

chibuku mweepe ‘some, any book’ Chiwa’egasha/ chiwapa chiint^hu/ mweepe/ kuna. ‘He welcomed them and gave them something to drink.’
ila ichiwa iweele/ waajibu/ sababu mweepe... ‘unless it becomes obligatory for some reason’

Haliima/ muzize Omari/ peesa/ maape. ‘Haliima asked Omari for some money.’
Kama mahala/ mweepe/ ivundishile/ kama yako mataandru/ wa’ambile watumishi/ wanapeele. ‘If some place is broken, if there are cobwebs there, tell the servants that they should sweep (there).’
Leelo/ ma’isha yaawo/ hulawa ka kaazi/ mweepe/ zaa wo/ hukhadiro khfaanyá/apó/ muyiiní. ‘Today their living expenses come from some jobs that they are able to do there in town.’
Mbwa/ chilomba mp^huundra/ nampe chiint^hu/ mweepe/ karka chaakuja/ zaa ye/tukilo mungooni. ‘The dog asked the donkey to give him something from the food that he was carrying on his back.’

Mlete muunt^hu/ nakhubarshee kuja/ mlete mwaana/ maapa/ ja naaye/nakhubarshee kuja. ‘Bring someone (home) so that he teaches you to eat, bring any child and eat with him so that he teaches you to eat.’
mo/ mweepe ‘someone, anyone’

Mp^ha chint^hu mweepe. ‘Give me anything.’

munt^hu mweepe ‘someone, anyone’

Mwambile muunt^hu/ mweepe/ nakhuble. ‘Tell anyone that he should kill you.’

Mwaana/ tiyiile/ ye/ cheendra/ kulaala/ munt^hu mweepe/ kuuya/ kubola nt^heendre. ‘The child feared that if he went to sleep someone would come and steal the dates.’

Na kila mará/ mo mweepe/ karka waant^hu/ wa’izó/ kumwaaminá/ shpita/ wachimteleza. ‘And every time someone among the people who refused to believe him, as he was passing, they made jokes at his expense.’

Ni laazima/ si/ khfaanya/ hiila/ mweepe/ kumwoondrola/ Yuusufu/ kharibu ya waawaye. ‘It is necessary for us to make some sort of trick to move Joseph away from his father.’

Pelesheja nuumba/ mwaape/ ya matajiiri/ khtumika. ‘He was sent to the home of some rich people to work as a servant.’

Sheekhi/ naayé/ t^hakhkalaant^ha/ muunt^hu/ mwaape/ apa/ t^hamfunga maato.

‘Sheekhi too will stay and someone here will blindfold him.’

Wapelee cho/ chibuuku/ waana/ mwaape. ‘He gave them, books, to some boys.’ (In this sentence, chibuuku is downstepped strongly, presumably due to the focus on cho.)

Wapelee cho/ waana/ mwaape. ‘He gave it to some boys.’

Wapele waana/ mwaape. ‘He gave some boys (something).’

Wapele waana/ mwaape/ izo peesa. ‘He gave some boys that money (which we were talking about).’

Wapele waana/ mwaape/ peesa. ‘He gave some boys money.’ (There is no downstep between waana and maape.)

Wapele waana/ mwaape/ peesa/ zo. ‘He gave some boys money, it.’

Wapele waana/ mwaape/ wo. ‘He gave some boys s.t., them.’

Wapele waana/ mwaape/ wo/ peesa. ‘He gave some boys, them, money.’

rel.

-eepe var. adj. some, any chibuku cheepe ‘some book’

Wo/ watosheze kuwaa ndovu/ zimile maha^hla meepe/ nakuwalindraa wo/ kishkila. ‘They thought that the elephant was hiding some place waiting for them to come down [from the tree].’

mapeema

adv. [Sw. mapema SSED 260] early (This adverbial does not display the behavior characteristic of time adverbials like yana. Mapeema is not used alone, but with the prepositions na and ka.)

Abú/ ka mapeema/ weno khatari. ‘Abu was early to see the danger.’

Chondroshele na mapeema. ‘We got up early.’

Daa’imu/ siwo/ ka mapeema/ kuwowa tayaari/ na iyo/ hutasawaro khtuluká. ‘It is never too early to prepare for what might happen.’

Fijiri/ na mapeema/ chishkila ka mutiini/ chishika ndilaye. ‘Early in the morning he climbed down the tree and went on his way.’

Hamadi/ ka mapeema/ weno fursá/ khfanya kaazi/ apa. ‘Hamadi was early to see an opportunity to do business (lit. work) here.’

Mi/ nenzele sukhuuni/ na mapeema/ yana. ‘I went to the market early yesterday.’

Mi/ nsulile kendra madrasaani/ na mapeema. ‘I wanted to go to school early.’ Cf.

Ye/ sulile kendra madrasaani/ na mapeema. ‘He wanted to go to school early.’ With verb focus: Mi/ nsulile/ kendra madrasaani/ na mapeema. ‘I wanted to go to school early.’ Cf. Ye/ sulile/ kendra madrasaani/ na mapeema. ‘He wanted to go to school early.’

Mi/ sukhuuni/ nenzele na mapeema/ yana. ‘I to the market went early yesterday.’ (The intonation of sentences such as this with a final time adverbial is interesting in that it is clear that normal downstep intonation is not found in the preceding part of the sentence. The final accent on na mapeema is not downstepped, being nearly as high as the preceding accented syllable. In the simple yes-no question, only yana undergoes accent shift: Mi/ sukhuuni/ nenzele na mapeema/ yaná? Q-Raising, of course, raises the pitch of yana, so there is no radical downstep in this situation. In the exclamatory question, accent-shift affects all phrases, and there is ordinary downstep throughout the sentence: Mi/ sukhuuni/ nenzele na mapeema/ yaná!?)

Ndrazole na mapeemá/ kendra safarí. ‘I got up early to go on a trip.’ (Phon. If there is emphasis on mapeema, then there will be not final accent in the following phrase, as predicted by the Accentual Law of Focus: [Ndrazole na [↑]mapeemá/ kendra safarí.])

Ni ka mapeema/ kht₁oshowa naani/ t₁akhshiindró. ‘It is very early to be thought who is going to win.’

Nondroshele na mapeemá/ ¹mi. ‘I left early (that’s why I...).’

Sht₁akhsafira (na) mapeema. ‘We will leave early.’

Yaliko ka mapeema/ mi/ kuruda Mwiini. ‘I was early coming back to Brava.’

Ye/ enzele sukhuuni/ na mapeema/ ¹yana. ‘He went to the market early yesterday.’ (The radical downstepping of the time adverbial yana is reflected in the simple yes-no question where it undergoes accent-shift like out-of-focus verb phrase elements in general: Ye/ enzele sukhuuni/ na mapeema/ yaná? In such a question, the time adverbial is raised in pitch due to Q-Raising. In the exclamatory question, all the phrases undergo accent shift. The radical downstep of yana is missing, but the exclamatory questions exhibit ordinary downstep throughout the sentence.)

Ye/ chendra fijiri/ na mapeema/ la piili/ na chendra kila ilooni. ‘He went early in the morning, in the afternoon, and he went each evening.’ (Observe the final accent triggered here by the conjunction na.)

Ye/ t₁akhsafira na mapeema. ‘He will leave early.’

maapu

n. map

Mi/ kawa nayo maapú/ su₁la kuwa khupasiizé. ‘If I had a map I would have loaned it to you.’

maqaala

n. [Sw. makala SSED 255; Ar. maqāla W 798] (written) essay want^hu wa₁takhsomo makhala iyí ‘people who read this essay’

maqaamu

[Sw. makamu “substitute, deputy, manager” SSED 166; Ar. maqām W 800] rank, position

Apo/ zamaani/ waaliko/ taajiri/ mooyi/ mkulu/ mwenye maali/ na maqaamú. ‘Once upon a time there was a rich man, important, having wealth and high position.’

Nayo maqaamu makulu/ ka sarkaali. ‘He has a high position in the government.’

Ni mwenye maqaamu. ‘He is of high rank, position.’

ku-maqana₁ta

v. be absent; [pron. kumaqana₁ta or kumakhana₁ta] (There is no more basic verb from which this is derived; kumaqana does not exist.)

Harusi iyi/ we/ makhana₁ta. ‘Be absent from this wedding (don’t come).’

Maha₁la/ amá/ muukhá₁ta/ amá/ makhana₁ta. ‘At a place either be visible or be absent (i.e. when you go somewhere, be active, take part, be positive or do not go).’ (A translation of a Somali proverb.)

Omari/ humakhana₁ta niingi/ skolaani. ‘Omari is absent from school a lot.’

rel.

ku-maqana₁tika v. p/s.

Harusi ya Omari/ ha’imakhana₁tiki. ‘One cannot be absent from Omari’s wedding.’

ku-maqana₁toowa v. appl. pass.

Nt^haku/ sababu/ ya kumakhana₁toowa/ skola. ‘There is no reason for being absent from school.’

ku-maqana₁tala v. appl.

Nt^haku/ sababu ya Omari/ kumakhana₁tala skolaani. ‘There is no reason for Omari being absent from school.’

We/ skolaani/ nakumakhana₁tilani. ‘Why are you absent from school?’

ku-maqana₁tisha v. caus.

Mi/ nakhsula kumakhana₁tisha Omari/ harusiini. ‘I want to make Omari be absent from the wedding.’

ku-maqana₁toowa v. pass.

Chiwoni/ ha’imakhana₁tiki. ‘One cannot be absent from koranic school.’

Harusi iyi/ isimakhana₁toowa. ‘This wedding (one) should not be absent from (e.g. it is very important).’

Kumakhanaṭowa niingi/ skolaani/ huletaa dhibu. ‘To be absent from school a lot brings problems.’

- maqani adj. absent; [pron. maqani or makhani]
Mbuzi/ uko maqani/ halaali. ‘A goat that is absent does not sleep (i.e. when one is lost or away from home, one does not rest, sleep).’ (A translation of a Somali proverb.)
Osmaani/ uko makhani. ‘Osmaani is absent.’
- maqasi n. 9 [Sw. makasi SSED 256; Ar. miqasi plural of maqasi W 766] scissors; [usu. pron. makhasi] Makhasi iyi/ haṭiindi/ chiint^{bu}. ‘This [pair of] scissors does not cut anything.’
Makhasi iyi/ inayoo maso. ‘This [pair of] scissors is sharp.’
Makhasi iyi/ nk^hali. ‘This [pair of scissors] is sharp.’
Makhasi iyi/ nt^hayná/ maso. ‘This [pair of] scissors is not sharp.’
makhasi yaa nguwo ‘scissors for cutting clothes’ Maryamu/ nakhtinda lwarakha/ ka mkhasi. ‘Maryamu is cutting paper with scissors.’
Nguwo/ itilaanzila/ ka makhasi. ‘The cloth was cut with scissors.’
Ye/ mbigilile Hamadi/ nk^he/ kuleta makhasi. ‘He shouted to Hamadi to bring scissors.’
- maqbuuli adj. (cf. qubala) [Ar. maqbul W 741] accepted hija ya maqbuuli ina alaama/ karka ibaada menewe huzaama [st.] ‘the pilgrimage that is accepted (by God) has visible signs/ the pilgrim is completely immersed in worship’
- maq dara n. [?Sw. makadara “strength, power, influence” (in reference to God) SSED 225; cf. Ar. muqaddar or maqduṛ W 746 and maq dara “power, ability”] s.t. willed by God, predestined review definition
- maq sabu n. [Ar. muqaṣṣab W 766] brocade embroidered with gold and silver; [pron. maq sabu or makhsabu] janna mawakoye nusu nda ḍaahabu / nusu nda feḍa ni kana makhsabu [st.] the buildings of paradise are half of gold, half of silver, they are like a brocade embroidered with gold and silver.’
- maq sadi n.
Ja’da nt^hakhpata maqsada/ mpee/le sumu nt^hakuhada [st.] ‘Ja’da never got her wishes, she gave him poison and did not say’
- maq suudi n. 9/10 [Sw. makusudi SSED 231; Ar. maqṣūd “aimed at, intentional” W 767] goal, aim, purpose, intention, need, desire; [usu. pron. makhsuudi] Baazi/ ni waaḍehe/ nt^ho/ kaake/ na makhsuudize. ‘Baazi is quite clear in his intentions.’
Isa/ ye/ teena/ makhsuudiye/ ni kumkhada’a/ Sa’iidi/ jisaa ye/ khpata/ kumkharibisha. ‘Now he then, his intention was to cheat Sa’iidi in order to get a chance to destroy him.’
makhsuudiye ‘his/her need, intention’ (cf. makhsuudize ‘his needs, intentions’) somaani nt^hakhpataa kulla maqsuudi/ taqiuro kumzuura mt^hume Mahmuudi [st.] ‘recite it and you will see every wish fulfilled/ who agrees to visit the prophet Mohamed’
We/ nii muké/ mwovu/ we/ makhsuudiyo/ ni kunub^hlaa mi/ khpata sulṭaani/ khuloolo. ‘You are a bad wife, your intention is to kill me to get the sultan to marry you.’
- maq uudi [Ar. mauqūd :burning” W 1088] only observed so far in the line from a translation of a poem: need more examples to determine Chimiini meaning Mi/ ndimi/ nfuzilo nafsiyá/ karka hayaati/ amó/ ndimi/ maquudi. ‘Is it me who tied himself up in life or is it me who is tied down?’

marā

adv. [Sw. marā SSED; Ar. marra W 900] time (occasion) (The expression marā ya... is often contracted to marāa..., thereby producing a long vowel that is retained even though it is in a position that may not ordinarily permit length to be manifested.)

Harbi/ naank^hó/ ichoondroka/ marā ya taatu/ marā ya isa/ sulṭaani/ uje/ shinzila marāa mbili/ leesele/ jeeshi/ ya askari/ alfu/ ikumi. ‘The war arose again, a third time. This time, that sultan who was defeated twice, brought an army of ten thousand soldiers.’

kila marā ‘every/each time’

Kilaa marā/ Hamiisi/ hulangaḷa tiivi/ mpiira. ‘Every time, Hamiisi watches football on tv.’

kula marā ‘every time (also may occur as: kula si marā with the same meaning; the si here has no obvious functional or lexical content) (Note that the vowel before marā in this expression is not lengthened.)

marā mooyi ‘[lit.] one time -- used in addition to tafaḍali and fanya ihsaani, strengthening the meaning “please” when asking s.o. to do s.t.’

Tafaḍali/ nnink^hila suukari/ marā mooyi. ‘Please pass the sugar to me.’

Mara/ ya aakhiri/ mi/ nakhuuzó/ keendrá. ‘For the last time, I request you to go.’

marā (y)a kaandra ‘the first time’

Mara/ ya kaandra/ ye/ koḍelo chiswaahili. ‘For the first time, she has spoken Swahili!’

marā yīingine ‘another time’

Hamiisi/ lasile masoomo/ iyo/ ma’anaye/ kuwaa ye/ haruudi/ skoḷaani/ marā yīingine. ‘Hamiisi has dropped out from his studies,, that is, he will not return to school anymore.’

Ye/ nthanakhsuula/ kumwona Omari/ marā yīingine. ‘He has no desire to see Omari again.’

Mi/ shfilaṭilowa kulindra maraya. ‘I was expected to wait my turn.’

Mi/ simḷaṭi/ na kama chiwajiiboowa/ kumḷaṭa/ mi/ laazima/ peesa/ zaa mi/ nt^homeeló/ khpowa ka marāa mbili. ‘I will not divorce her; if I am obligated to divorce her, I must be given double the money that I spent.’

Muunt^hu/ hufa marā mooyi. ‘A man dies once.’ (A proverb.)

Nimweené/ Hasani/ kuna aḷkola/ marā niingi. ‘I have seen Hasani drink alcohol many times.’

Ye/ chibiga/ marā ya isa/ si/ shṭamuza/ ni naani. ‘If he knocks (again), this time we will ask him who it is.’

rel.

maramara adv. sometimes, from time to time

Hamadi/ huna biira/ maramara/ tu. [HH!!H!!H] ‘No, Hamadi drinks beer just now and then.’

Maramara/ Hamiisi/ hulangaḷa tiivi/ mpiira. ‘From time to time, Hamiisi watches football on tv.’

Siri/ maramara/ hufakaṭa. ‘Secrets sometime escape (i.e. come out, get revealed).’

marāḍi

n. 6 [Sw. maradhi SSED 260; Ar. marad W 903] disease, illness, sickness; variant form: maradi

Baaba/ chishikowa na marāḍi/ chifa. ‘Father was seized by illness and died.’

Baaba/ marāḍi/ yachimziida. ‘Father became sicker.’

Filile marāḍi ya khalbi. ‘He died of heart disease.’

File ka marāḍi ya khalbi. ‘He died of heart disease.’

haysihi aarafa hoola za maradi [st.] ‘it is not valid for sick animals to be slaughtered on Aarafa’ khshikowa marāḍi ‘to fall sick’

Baaba/ chishikowa marāḍi/ nt^ho. ‘Father became very sick.’

- Mama yaawo/ naayé/ chishikowa maraði. ‘Their mother also fell sick.’
Kiła/ maraði/ inayoo dawa/ shokuwaa kufa. ‘Any disease has a remedy except death.’ (A proverb.)
ma’ina/ ya maraði ‘names of diseases’
Maraði/ hayabli. ‘Disease does not kill.’ (A proverb.)
Maraði/ huya ka mshiindro/ naharisi/ ni itako ya siindanu. ‘Disease comes with quick impact, relief is a needle's point (i.e. comes very slowly).’ (A proverbial saying.)
Maraði yakoo kulé/ hayaletooi/ khariibu. ‘Disease that is far away is not brought closer.’ (A proverb.)
maradi yaa nt^hi ‘tetanus’
Mi/ siwo/ takhpolo maraði ayá. ‘I am not one who will recover from this disease.’
Naayó/ maraði/ mi/ hayapoloowi. ‘I have a disease from which one does not recover.’
nimo maraðiini, ni kaako tabiibu [song] ‘I am sick, the cure is with you’ Yampete maraði/ fiile. ‘She fell sick and died.’
Ye/ chiwaa dawa/ zote/ na chiwa maraði/ yote. ‘[Lit.] he was all medicine and all sickness – i.e. he was consumed with the world of remedies and illnesses.’ (Observe that the conjunction na does not trigger final accent when followed by a finite verbal form.)
- marashi n. [Sw. marashi “n.pl. scent, liquid, perfume” SSED 397; cf. Ar. verb rašša “to sprinkle” W 340] perfumed water that is used to sprinkle on the heads of people when celebrating takulabisoowa sanda/ na marashi takhtiloowa [st.] ‘he will be clothed in a shroud and sprinkled with rosewater’
- mardaadi adj. [Som. mardaadi “elegance” DSI 417] decorated, embellished, well-dressed, beautiful, fancy Apo/ barzaani/ chiwalimoo chiji/ chimardaadi.
Uyu/ ni muuyi/ mkulu/ na mardaadi/ laakini/ una fitna/ naa bala. ‘This is a town, big and beautiful, but it has mischief and trouble.’
- marduufu n. [Sw. mar(a)dufu “double, twofolded”; “a kind of cloth, double in width” SSED 402; Ar. radafa “to become stratified” W 335] cloth of cotton of double thickness
- marfuuku adj. [cf. Sw. noun rufuku (ma-) “prohibition, refusal, always in the plural” SSED 402] forbidden, prohibited
- margi n. [Som. mergi “tendons near backbone” DSI 431] sinews, cartilage, tendons
 rel.
chi-margi n. in the phrase:
khkala chimargi ‘to choke, strangle (often used figuratively and as a threat)’
Huseeni/ mkalile Omari/ chimargi. [H!H!H] ‘Huseeni choked Omari.’ (In the corresponding simple yes-no question, downsteps are replaced by declination in GM’s speech: [H’H’H]. In the exclamatory yes-no question, downstep is retained but accent shift affects the phrases in the VP: Huseeni/ mkalile Omari/ chimargi!? [H!H!H].)
Huseeni/ mkalilo Omari/ chimargi. [H!H!H] ‘Huseeni choked Omari.’ (Our consultant also accepted: Huseeni/ mkalilo Omari/ chimargi. [H!H’H] In this second pronunciation, the final accent projected from the pseudo-relative verb does not extend to chimargi. In various examples, the failure to extend final accent to a complement is accompanied by a radical downstep of that complement. This is clearly not the case in the present example. In fact, comparing the first pronunciation to the second pronunciation, the complement in the latter seems to only be declined as opposed to downstepped. This contrast, however, bears more detailed scrutiny.) Huseeni/ mkaliló/ Omari/ chimargi. [H!H!H!H] ‘Huseeni choked Omari.’ (Although a verb separated phrasally from its complement is ordinarily immune from downstepping, instead simply being declined in pitch, the pseudo-relative verb is different. It is clearly downstepped. As shown in this example, emphasis of the verb invokes the Accentual Law of Focus, preventing final accent from extending beyond the emphasized verb. The status of pronunciations where ALF is violated is uncertain. For instance, GM was skeptical of ??Huseeni/ mkaliló/ Omari/ chimargi. But at the same time it has to be admitted that perhaps our work on the topic did not identify an intonational pattern that would make such a sentence acceptable.)

Ijini/ chuuluka/ kumkala Hasani/ chimargi. ‘The djinn jumped and choked Hasani.’

Mkaliilo Omari/ chimargi/ ni Huseeni. [H!H!H] ‘The one who choked Omari is Huseeni.’

Mkaliilo/ Omari/ chimargi/ ni Huseeni. [H!H!H!H] ‘The one who choked Omari is Huseeni.’

Nimkaliile chimargi. ‘I choked him.’

Nimkaliile mwaaná/ chimargi. ‘I choked the child.’

Waa mi/ nimkaliilo chimargi/ ni mwaana. ‘The one who I choked is the boy.’

i-margi (mi-) n. aug.

Namaye/ ni mimargi. [H'H] ‘Its meat has a lot of sinews, cartilage.’ (Such meat would usually be given to cats!) (In copular sentences such as this, the predicate adjective seems ordinarily to not be downstepped, but rather simply declined in its pitch realization.)

marhaba

interj. [Ar. marhaba “to welcome” W 902] very good, with obedience, with pleasure; [pron. marhabá]

Mwaana/ chihada/ marhabá/ laakini/ ye mwanaamke/ nayo sharti/ ye/ chishkila lfuwooni/ we/ ni laazima/ kumtiinda/ waziiri/ chitache. ‘The boy said: with pleasure, but she, the girl, has a condition: if she is to come down onto the shore, it is a must that you cut off the minister’s head.’

Mwaana/ chimjiiba/ marhabá. ‘The boy replied to her: Very good!’

marhuumo

adj. [Ar. marhūm “deceased” W 332] “late” (i.e. recently deceased)

Marhuumo Omari ntaasa ya ye kufa fareete nuumbaye ya Baghdaadi khpoowa mukeewe Aasha. ‘Omari, God bless him (i.e. the deceased), before dying, he left a message that his house in Baghdaadi be given to his wife Aasha.’

maaridi

adj. inv. (cf. mutamaridi) [Ar. mārid W 903] defiant of traditions and conventions muntu maaridi ‘someone who defies traditions etc.’; wantu maaridi ‘people who defy traditions, etc.’; but cf. the derived noun classes: chijintu chimaaridi ‘(dim.) person who defies traditions, etc.’ and zjintu zimaaridi ‘(dim.) people who defy traditions, etc.’

mariidi

adj. sick, ill, diseased; n.1/2 a sick person chijana chimariidi ‘a sick dim. child’; ljana lmariiði ‘a sick aug. child’ (or ijana imariidi)

mariði awa ‘these sick people’

muntu mariiði ‘a sick person’; wantu mariiði ‘sick people’

Wawa yaawo/ chiwa muuntu/ mariiði/ nt^ho. ‘Their father became a very sick man.’

ya kuwa celo/ leelo/ ni mariiði ‘that the gazelle today is sick’

Ye/ nafsiye/ waliko mariiði. ‘He himself was sick.’

Yuuzi/ want^hu/ wote/ wawaliko mariiði. ‘The day before yesterday everyone was sick.’

marriki

n. [Ar. mirrīk W 902] the planet Mars

mariina

n. sea military, i.e. navy

Hamadi/ waliko askari/ mariina. ‘Hamadi is a naval soldier.’

mariinga

in the expression:

ma’awizi/ za mariingi ‘ma’awizi of very good quality which are imported (from Singapore?)’

Ma’awizi/ za mariinga/ ni zisuura. ‘Ma’awizi of the mariinga type are very nice.’

- Maringuwaay n. The old route from Mogadishu to Brava involved a tarmac road for 100 kms from Mogadishu to Shalaambood (Shirombooto in Chimwiini). From this place, one followed a dirt track for another 100 kms through the villages of Merin Gubaayi, which in Chimwiini is Maringuwaay, and Eeriile (Somali "the place where there are goats") to Mudul (in Chimwiini, Muduni), a small village where there was a petrol pump. Maringuwaay is some forty-five kilometers north from Brava.
- marjaani n. 9/10 [Sw. marjani SED 261; Ar. marjān W 902] coral (bead) nakaanza khtuunga marjaani [st.] 'I start stringing coral beads'
- Marka n. the town of Merca in Somalia, located on the coast about nine kilometers east of the village of Shalaambood, which is on the road to Mogadishu.
Marka/ yiko spiṭaale/ nk^hulu. 'In Merca there is a large hospital.'
ndila ya Marka 'the road to Merca'
- markabu n. 9/10 [Ar. markab W 357] ship
Ifungu ya piili/ ilate/ nda Sulṭaani/ khpata markabuze/ kiineendra. 'The second portion, leave it, it is the sultan's., so that his ships get to move about.'
Markabu/ iyi/ ifanyiza ka ḍahabu. 'This ship is made from gold.'
Markabu nk^huluunk^hulu/ schizaama/ ka ḍarba... 'If big ships sink in a storm...'
markabu ya kuuluka 'airplane [lit. ship of flying]' markabu ya mayiini 'ship [lit. ship of in water]'
Mwanaamkewa/ nakhsulā kulangala markabuyo. 'My daughter wants to see your ship.'
Sanduukhu/ ipanziizapó/ markabuuní/ mwaana/ chamura inatiloowa/ kaake/ mṭanaani. 'When the box was loaded onto the ship, the boy ordered that it be put in his room.'
- maroone adj. invar. [Ital. marrone] brown wino maroone 'brown ink'
Nayo maato/ maroone/ masuura. 'She has beautiful brown eyes.' It is also possible to say: Nayo maato/ masuura/ maroone.
- marqaani adj. euphoric, hyper; [pron. marqaani or markhaani]
Hamadi/ ni markhaani/ ha'isi/ yaa ye/ koḍeeló. [H!H|H!H!H] 'Hamadi is hyper, he does not know what he is talking about.'
Khaati/ inayo markhaani. [H!H] 'Khaati has an euphoric effect.'
- maasha n. 9/10 [Ital. marcia] gear
khtomola maasha 'to put into neutral, disengage the gears' Gaari/ ichisimama/ huṭomoloowa/ maasha. 'When a car stops, one must disengage the gears (in order to fix the problem).'
khtila maasha 'to engage the gears' Gaari/ ichiineendra/ hutilowa maasha. 'When a car moves it is put into gear.'
kubadila maasha 'to change gears' Gaari/ ichiineendra/ hubadiḷowa maasha/ kaandra/ hutilowa biriima/ chimaliza sekondo/ chimaliza teersa/ chimaliza kuwaarta/ chimaliza kuwinta. 'When a car runs, you change the gears, first gear one, then gear two, then gear three, then gear four, and then gear five.'
- martaba n. [Sac. 508 cites martaba from northern Swahili dialects as a little used word, but gives its use as being similar to Sw. tabia, while the Chimiini usage seems to be more related to the Arabic form, martaba "rank, degree, class", cited by Sac. as the source of this word, see W 325] high rank, position

marti

n. [Som. marti DSI 420] guest (from out of town), visitor (who comes for a meal) Ahmadi/ nayo marti. 'Ahmadi has a visitor.' (Cf. Ahmadi/ nazo marti. 'Ahmadi has visitors.') ba'adi ya marti 'some of the guests'

Chiwa'ambila martize/ kuwa kilaa chiint^hu/ ni tayaari/ numbaani. 'He told his guests that everything was ready at the house.'

Ile marti/ mooyi/ mi/ siisi/ inaye. 'A visitor came, I do not know his name.'

kubiga marti 'to invite for a meal, to provide a meal for a guest'

Khulipa ihsaaniyo/ mi/ mukeewa/ na waanawá/ chinakhsulaa we/ kuya kiitu/ shpate khubiga marti. 'In order to repay you for your favor, I, my wife, and my children want for you to come to our place so that we may provide a meal for you.'

Mi/ ni laazima/ khupeleka/ kiitu/ mp^hate khubiga marti/ na apajé/ pata kubaratana/ na ndruezaza/ wote. 'I must take you to our place so that I can give you a meal, and there (you) can get acquainted with all my relatives.'

Marti/ ishpita skuu nt^hatu/ hukaha^oowa. 'A guest for more than three days is hated.' (A proverb.)

Marti/ ni skuu mbili/ tu/ shkalant^ha sku niingi/ hukaha^oowa. 'A guest is just for two days; if he stays longer, he will be hated.' (A proverb.)

Marti/ nnayo numbaani. 'A guest, I have one in the house.' Cf. Marti/ nnawo numbaani. 'A guest/ the guest, I have in the house.'

Marti/ ni nk^huku mwelpe. 'A foreigner is like a white hen.' (A proverb.)

Marti/ umo numbaani. 'A guest is in the house.' Cf. Marti wamo (or: zimo) numbaani. 'Guests are in the house.'

Marti wiitu/ ile numbaani. 'Our guest arrived at the house.'

marti/ wont^he 'all the guests'

marti ziitu 'our guests'

Mayaank^huku/ yajila na marti ziitu. 'The eggs have been eaten by our guests.'

Mwaadamu/ duniyaani/ ni marti. 'A human being is a guest in this world.' (A proverb.)

Mwaarabu/ chimpa khaadimu/ amri/ kumbiga oyo/ martiye/ ndruti miya/ ziseeló. 'The Arab ordered the servant to beat that one, his guest, the one hundred blows that remained.'

Mwaarabu/ na martiyé/ wamalizopo kosha mikonó/ wachanzaa kuja. 'When the Arab and his guest washed their hands, they began to eat.'

Nnayo marti/ numbaani. 'I have a guest in the house.' Cf. Nnazo marti/ numbaani. 'I have guests in the house.' Cf. Nnawo marti/ numbaani. 'I have guest/ guests (definite or indefinite) in the house.'

Uko marti. 'There is a guest.'

Uko marti/ apa/ iló/ na siri/ nk^hulu. 'There is a stranger here (who) has come with a big secret.'

Uko marti/ ka Ahmadi. 'There is a visitor at Ahmadi's place.'

Wako marti. 'There are guests.'

Wako marti/ ka Ahmadi. 'There are visitors at Ahmadi's place.'

rel.

martihaani n. as a guest

Muunt^hu/ chisula kendra maha^la/ ka waant^hu/ martihaani/ laazimu/ khtomola khabari/ mbele/ kiiwisha/ maha^la yaa ye/ nakeendró. 'If one wants to go somewhere as guest, he should let that place know before hand.'

Marwa

n. one of two hills, now located in the Masjid al-Haram in Mecca, between which Muslims go back and forth seven times during the pilgrimages Hajj and Umrah (the other hill is Safa) chiruzuqe khfakaṭa marwa na safa [st.] ‘allow us to run (between) Marwa and Safa’

- marwa n. [Som. murwo DSI 450] respect, dignity
Marwa Haliima/ leelo/ ile kiitu/ numbaani/ salaamu. ‘The respected Haalima today came to our house to greet (us).’
Wawaliko wazeele/ wasuura/ wenye shuhra/ na marwá. ‘They were good parents, possessing fame and dignity.’
- marwaha n. [Som. marwaxad or marwaxo DSI 417, cf. Ar. mirwaḥa "ventilator" W 365] electric fan
- mas’ala n. [Ar. mas’ala W 391] riddle, problem (i.e. something to be understood), issue khfungula mas’ala ‘to solve a riddle, answer a question posed to one’ Shekh Omari/ ize khadira khfungula mas’aḷa/ ya Hamadi/ mfuunziló/ tarafu ya ilmu/ ya falaki. ‘Shekh Omari could not respond to what Hamadi asked him about the study of astrology.’
ndruuza ni waajibu amri ya diini/ khaansa kiwoowa mas’ala siṭini [st.] ‘O my friends, you must learn what our religion commands, especially with respect to sixty issues’ Nimwaḍihishilize Jaamá/ mas’alá. ‘I explained the problem to Jaama.’
- mas’iyoole n. a philanderer, someone who commits adultery over and over again Omari/ ni ma’siyoole/ haalaṭi/ kuzina. ‘Omari is a philanderer, he does not quit committing adultery.’
- mas’uuli adj.,n. [Ar. mas’ul W 391] responsible, dependable; responsibility chijint^hu chimas’uuli ‘a responsible dim. person’ khṭukula mas’uuli ‘to take on, assume (lit. carry) a responsibility’ Haliima/ hadiile/ mi/ skhaadiri/ khṭukula mas’uuli/ ya wana wa Faaṭima/ kilaa fijiri/ kuwapeleka skoḷaani. ‘Halima said I cannot assume the responsibility of taking Fatiima’s children every morning to school’ khtala mas’uuli ‘to take on a responsibility’
Alí/ tete mas’uuli/ kilaa muunt^hi/ kumpa Omari/ shilingji miya/ ila/ mwezi mooyi. ‘Ali assumed the responsibility of giving Omari one hundred shillings each day up to one month.’
Hamadi/ amiyé/ Alí/ ndiyé/ tete mas’uuli/ ya kumloozá. ‘Hamadi, his uncle Ali is the one who took responsibility for him to marry.’
Muunt^hu/ mas’uuli/ yaa ye/ hakhadiri kulawilá/ hataali. ‘One does not (i.e. should not) assume a responsibility that he cannot fulfill.’
Teto mas’uuli) tetee dhibu. ‘The one who has taken responsibility (for s.t.) has taken hardship, problems.’ (A proverbial saying.) Kuḷa muunt^hu/ ni mas’uuli/ na waanawe. ‘Each person is responsible for his children.’
mas’uli iyi ‘this responsibility’; mas’uli izi ‘these responsibilities’ munt^hu mas’uuli ‘a responsible person’ (cf. want^hu mas’uuli ‘responsible people’) (Observe that this adjective is invariant, showing no agreement, except when modifying a derived nominal such as the diminutive; see above.)
Nayo mas’uuli. ‘He has the responsibility (for something).’
Ndimi/ mas’uuli. ‘I am the one who is responsible (for s.o. or s.t.).’
We/ nakhtahaja kubarata kuwa mas’uuli/ zaaydí. ‘You need to learn to be more responsible.’
rel.
mas’uuliya n. (Ar. , mas’ uḷiya W 391)
kandika mas’uuliya ‘to burden someone with a responsibility’ kandika ruuhuye/ mas’uuliya ‘to assume a responsibility’ Bakari/ andishile ruuhuye/ mas’uuliya. ‘Bakari assumed

- responsibility.’
kandikisha mas’uuliya ‘to cause someone to take a responsibility’ Mwaana/ chimpa/ kila/ mooyi/ mas’uuliya/ nk^hulu. ‘The boy gave each one an important responsibility.’
- masahaaba n. [Sw. masahaba SSED 261; Ar. aṣ-ṣahāba ‘the companions of the Prophet Mohammed’ W 504] friends of the Prophet wazuure masahaaba won^he waawo/ karka Madina tuundra barka zaawo [st.] ‘you should visit all of the companions of the Prophet/ in Medina, and gather their blessings’
- masaajo n. vapor rub
kumpaka masaajo ‘to apply vapor rub’ Zeenabu/ nampaka maamaye/ masaajo/ chiṭa/ chinamlaazó. ‘Zeenabu is massaging her mom, (her) head is aching her.’
kununk^ha masaajo ‘to inhale vapor rub’
Mwaana/ namkandrila mwaalimu/ masaajo. ‘The child is massaging the teacher with a vapor rub.’
Zahara/ nakununk^ha masaajo/ mwaanawe/ mpashiló/ leelo. ‘Zahara is inhaling masaajo, her child put it on her today.’
- masaakiini n. pl. (cf. maskiini) [cf. Sw. maskini SSED 262; Ar. masākīn pl. of miskīn W 909] poor people kawanyilizowa masaakiini ‘to be distributed to poor people’
- masalkheeri invar. good evening
Leelo/ karkaa ye/ nakhpitó/ muke/ chimwaambila/ masalkheeri/ bwaana/ muḅli/ naayé/ ka heshma/ na darajá/ chijiba salaamu. ‘Today while he was passing by, the woman said to him: good evening, sir; the man also with respect and dignity answered her greeting.’
- mash’ada n. martyrdom
Hasani peete mash’ada/ karka Firdowsi maq’ada [st.] ‘But Hasani got martyrdom and a seat in Firdous.’
- maasha’allah an Arabic expression meaning ‘what Allah wishes’, used to express praise of someone; it is said that if one praises someone without saying maasha’allah, that person may be a target of the evil eye; the ll in this Arabic expression is pronounced [lʰ]
Omari/ mwaana/ msuura/ adabu/ maashaa’allah. ‘Omari is good boy. disciplined, maasha’allah.’
- mashakha n. [Ar. maṣaḥḥa W 480] observed in the phrase: kuwona mashakha ‘to see, experience difficulty’
Muunt^hu/ nayo du’a ya wazeelewé/ haawoni/ mashakha/ walá/ dhibú/ duniyaani. ‘One who is blessed by his parents (because he has treated his parents properly) doesn’t experience hardship and problems in the world.’
- mashaakili n. pl. (cf. mushkila) [Ar. maṣākīl, plural of muškila W 483] different sorts of worries, frustrations Sababu/ ya safari/ iyi/ itaakuwa/ ni kumeera/ kuhila/ ba’aḍi/ ya mashaakili/ yasabibiiló/ makosanyó/ benaa nṭhi/ izii mbilí. ‘The reason for this trip will be to seek to solve some of the problems that have caused misunderstandings between these two countries.’
- maashe invar. adj. [possibly related to Som. il ‘eye’ DSI 323, which becomes isha with the attachment of the article; see also Tunni iša ‘eye’ Tosc o 219] blind in both

- eyes; 'blind' in the sense of not understanding, not seeing the truth Basi/ basi/ ayo majini/ wachiwa kana maashe/ nt^hawamwona/ ba. 'So, so those djinns became like blind men, they didn't see him at all.'
- Dawa ije/ imfanyize maashe. 'That medicine made him blind.' Cf.
Imfanyizo maashé/ ni dawa ije. 'What made him blind is that medicine.'
- Huseeni/ pete maraḍi ya maato/ miyaaka/ miingi/ nakhfanyilizowaa dawa/ isa/ wele maashe/ tozele maato. 'Huseeni got an eye disease and for many years was treated for it; now he has become blind, he has lost his sight (lit. eyes).'
- khfanya maashe 'to make blind'
Alí/ nakhfanya ruuhuye/ kana maashe/ nt^hanakulangaḷa/ ba/ zoombo/ dukaani. 'Ali is making himself like a blind man, he is not (even) looking at things in the shop.'
- Lizile masku/ na muunt^hi/ masku/ na muunt^hi/ haṭá/ tozele maato/ wele maashe. 'He cried night and day, night and day, until he lost his eyes (i.e. sight) and became blind.'
- mashe uyu 'this blind person'
Mi/ takeendra/ takhfanya ruuhuya/ maashe. 'I will go (to her) and pretend to be blind.' (Observe that the first person subject prefix can be null in the future tense.)
Nt^hanakuwona/ kana munt^hu maashe. 'He is not seeing, like a blind man.'
munt^hu maashe 'a blind person' (cf. want^hu maashe 'blind people', but chijana chimaashe, ijana imaashe, etc.)'
- mashghuuli adj. [cf. Sw. shughuli SSED 426; Ar. mašḡūl W 477] busy Mi/ kuwa ni mashghuuli/ tu/ siwo/ na pasaportayá/ ba/ ipoteele. 'It is not only that I am too busy, but also my passport is out of date.'
Mi/ mbaliko mashghuuli/ khfanya kazii mbili. 'I have been busy working two jobs.'
Mi/ ni mashghuuli/ kabisá/ kujiba telefoono. 'I am too busy to answer the phone.'
Waawe/ ni mashghuuli/ khfanya gaari. 'My father is busy repairing the car.'
- mashhuri adj. [Sw. mashuhuri SSED 262; Ar. mašhūr W 490] famous munt^hu mashhuuri 'someone famous'; want^hu mahhuuri 'famous people'; chijana (chi)mashhuuri 'dim. famous child'; ijana (i)mashhuuri 'famous aug. child'
- mashiriqi n. [Sw. mashariki SSED 261; Ar. mašriq W 468] east, the direction where the sun rises
- mashruu'i n. [Ar. mašrū ' W 466] plan, project; var. mashruu'u khfanya mashruu'i 'to make a plan; to set up a business' Hamadi/ na Alí/ wahadiile/ si/ chinakhsuḷa khfanya mashruu'ú/ ya kuwaka mijuumba. 'Hamadi and Ali said: we want to make a project to build houses.'
Hamadi/ na Omari/ wafanyize mashruu'i/ ya kuwaka mijuumba. 'Hamadi and Omari made a project for building houses.' (In the recording of this sentence, mashruu'i was not downstepped, while its associative complement was downstepped relative to it.)
Mwiini/ skiizi/ mashruu'u/ niingi/ ziikó/ mashru'u ya miyuundra/ mashru'u ya khfanyaa ndila/ na ziinginé. 'Miini, nowadays there are many projects, agricultural, road-building, and many others.'
- mashṭaayṭa n. [Sw. mashtata 'the remains of seed after oil has been skimmed off' SSED 261] sesame seeds
Saalé/ mashṭaayṭa/ mahala zikoo nk^huku. 'Don't spread sesame seeds where there are chickens.'
- masiha n. [Sw. masihiya SSED 262] a Christian ku-masiirata

v. [Som. verb masayr DSI 423] (masireete) be jealous

Wakulu wa muuyi/ wachimasiirata/ washtila muyiini/ ya kuwa mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ pozele ka nasiibu/ tu/ siwo/ ka khisa kuwaa dawa/ za Abdalla/ mpeelo. ‘The chiefs of the town became jealous and [lit.] put in the town that the daughter of the sultan had gotten well just by chance, not because of the medicine that Abdalla had given her.’

rel.

ku-masiirisha v. caus. (masirishiize) make jealous

Ji/ mmasirishizee muke. ‘Ji made his wife jealous.’

ku-masirishana v. caus. rec.

ku-masirishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-masirishiliza v. caus. appl. (masirishiliize)

Ji/ mmasirishilize Nureeni/ muke. ‘Ji made Nureeni’s wife jealous.’ (In the causative benefactive applied verb, the “beneficiary” controls the OM on the verb. Recall that the beneficiary may often be understood to mean the person related or connected to the causee. In the present sentence where the causee and the beneficiary belong to the same noun class, the overt beneficiary NP cannot be omitted: Ji/ mmasirishilizee muke. ‘Ji caused someone’s wife to be jealous.’

ku-masirishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Ji/ na Habiibi/ wamasirishilizenyee wake. ‘Ji and Habiibi made one another’s wives jealous.’

masiiri

n. [Som. masayr DSI 423] jealousy

khfanya masiiri ‘to show jealousy; khfanyiza masiiri ‘to make jealous’

Haliima/ muḅliwe/ kumnola muke mwiingine/ imfanyize masiiri/ zaaydi. ‘For her husband to marry another woman made Halima very jealous.’

Zahara/ muḅliwe/ kumnola muke mwiingine/ imfanyize masiiri/ nakhsula kulatoowa. ‘Zahara, her husband marrying another woman made her jealous, she wants to be divorced.’

khshikowa masiiri ‘to be affected (lit. caught) by jealousy’

Haliima/ shishiḷa masiiri/ muḅliwe/ kumnolaa muke/ wa piḷi. ‘Haliima was caught by jealousy (because of) her husband marrying a second wife.’ (In the recording of this sentence, muḅliwe was not downstepped.)

khtila masiiri ‘to make jealous’

Hamadi/ uzile gaari/ suura/ haṭá/ inṭhile masiiri. ‘Hamadi bought a good car (lit. until) it made me jealous.’ (In the recording of this sentence, suura is not downstepped nor haṭá.)

Umi/ waanawe/ kulḷilowa nguwo mp^hya/ iwatile wana wa Khaḍija/ masiiri. ‘Umi, her children being bought new clothes has made the children of Khadhija jealous.’

kuwanayo masiiri ‘to be jealous’

Muke/ chiloleḷowa muke mwiingine/ huwanayo masiiri. ‘A woman, if (her husband) marries another woman, becomes jealous.’

Mwaana/ chihaba/ chizalḷilowa mwana mwiingine/ huwanayo masiiri. ‘A small child, if another child is born, gets jealous.’

Omari chihaba/ nayo masiiri/ ya kuzalḷilowa mana mwiingine. ‘Omari the small/junior is jealous because of having been born on another child (i.e. his mother gave birth to another child).’ (In the recording of this sentence, masiiri was not downstepped.)

Wanayo masiiri. ‘They are jealous.’

mwenye masiiri ‘jealous -- lit. owner of jealousy’

Hamadi/ ni mwenye masiiri/ miingi/ haṭá/ jawaabu/ chihaba/ humasiratila. ‘Hamadi is too jealous, to the point that he gets jealous of even small things.’ (In the recording of this sentence, both miingi and chihaba are not downstepped.)

masiroole

adj. jealous

masirtiri

n. [Som. masayrtir DSI 423] a gift presented by husband to wife, to assuage her jealousy when he is marrying another woman

- maska n. [Sw. masika "the season of the greater rains, when the hot north monsoon gives way to the cooler south. Corresponding to autumn in northern latitudes." SSED 262] fig. a chaotic situation bahari maska 'rough sea (esp. June to August)' (Etym. Although maska obviously is connected to Sw. masika, the pattern of rainfall is different in Somalia and East Africa and the southern monsoon is also much stronger in Somalia than farther south. Maska refers to rough sea, which corresponds mainly (but not exclusively) to months of June to August (when southern monsoon is at its peak) and not to the (spring) months when the north winds change to south (like masika). The reference in SSED to "autumn" is misleading.)
- maaskara n. [Ital. maschera] mask
- maskaraato adj. [Ital. mascherato] masked
- maskiini n., adj. [Sw. maskini SSED 262; Ar. miskīn W 909] poor person Maamaye/ maskiini/ na waawayé. 'His mother was poor and his father also.'
Mapendo ya maskiini/ hayawonekani. 'The love of a poor person is not seen.' (A proverb.)
Maskiini/ basi/ waawaye/ maskiini/ na maamayé/ maskiini/ waako/ waako/ hattá/ leelo/ waawaye/ chiwa hakhaadiri/ chifa. 'So [this] poor [one], his father was poor and his mother was poor; they stayed and stayed until one day his father became sick and died.'
maskiini/ hattá/ yaa ye/ kuja/nt^hanaayo 'so poor that he does not have food to eat'
Maskiini/ haatáli. 'A poor person does not choose -- i.e. he cannot be choosy, he has to settle for whatever he can get.' (A proverb, equal to the English "beggars can't be choosers".)
Maskiini/ histirika/ kaawo/ dhibuye/ hanza chiwa mgeeni. 'A poor man's problems/ difficulties are not seen in his own country, his difficulties begin when he becomes a stranger (in another country).'
Muke uyu/ mukhtaa ye/ weno kuwa ni maskiini/ ichimwelela ni laazima/ ye/ kumpeleka/ mwaanawe/ madrasaani/ napate kubarata kila chiint^hu. 'When this woman saw that she was poor, it became a must for her to send her son to school that he could get to learn everything.'
Mwana/ wa maskiini/ chimloola/ mwanaamke/ wa mzele Simsini. 'The boy from a poor [family] married the daughter of old Simsini.'
Waawaye/ maskiini/ na maamayé/ maskiini. 'His father was poor and his mother was poor.'
rel.
masaakiini [Ar. masākīn W 909] (pl.) poor Waaliko/ maana/ wa masaakiini. 'There was a child of poor parents.'
(Phon. In the performance of this sentence on tape, maana was realized with the H pitch on the penult continuing onto the final vowel, while masaakiini was pronounced with an exaggerated long penult vowel, and its H pitch also continued over to the final syllable.)
- masku n. [see ma-sku] night
Isa/ ni sa'a nt^hatu za masku. 'Now it is 9 p.m. (lit. third hour at night).'
(An alternative phrasing is: Isa/ ni sa'aa nt^hatu/ za masku.) kharibu ya masku or khariibu/ ya masku 'around night time'
Masku/ mp^hisi/ chiya chiya kuulu/ iyo/ ciyolokela. 'At night the hyena came and ate that leg and went away.'
Masku/ na muunt^hi/ hawaaji/ hawaani/ hattá/ khariibu/ kufa/ ba. 'Night and day they do not eat, they do not drink, until (they are) near to dying.'

- maslaha n. 9/10 recommendations; s.t. of interest or pertinence or benefit to s.o.
khpandanoowa ni maslaha[song] ‘to love each other is a benefit’ maslahaya ‘my interest’, maslahaza ‘my interests’
Sho kiwa maslahaye/ ni dokhani. ‘One who does not know his interest is stupid.’ (A proverb.)
Wazeele/ huuya/ hufanya maslaha. ‘Elderly people came and made recommendations.’
- maso n. [no etymological source known] edge Inayoo maso/ kana chireeza. ‘It has a sharp edge like a razor.’
shoo maso ‘blunt -- lit. without an edge’
- masruufu n. expenses
Ni manfa’a/ kandika lwarakhaani/ masruufuzo. ‘It is useful to keep a record of your expenses.’
- mastuuri adj. [Ar. mastūr W 397] s.t. covered, concealed, not exposed; s.o. who keeps secrets; s.o. who is getting along (i.e. doing alright economically, and thus his affairs are not known to others)
Haaliye/ mastuuri. ‘He is getting along [lit. his condition is hidden].’
Ni muunt^hu/ mastuuri. ‘He is a man with means barely sufficient for his survival.’
- maṭaṭibu n. 10 goals, purposes, things that are requested
- maṭaari n. airport
Mi/ ka’iwa kanaa we/ nakuuya/ suḷa ndirkamene naawe/ maṭariini. ‘If I had known you were coming, I would have met you at the airport.’
- maṭba’a n. [Ar. maṭba’a W 552] printing house; printing press
- maṭeli n. [no etymological source found] kubiga maṭeli ‘to criticize someone’s behavior indirectly (e.g. by pointing out similar things that were done and did not turn out well); to praise someone ironically (in fact criticizing)’ Nureeni/ mbishile Baana/ maṭeli. ‘Nureeni criticized Baana indirectly.’
- maṭiini adj. [Ar. maṭīn W 891] strong, firm lkambala maṭiini ‘a strong rope’
- maṭla’i n. [Sw. matlai "sunrise, the east, east wind, morning wind" SSED 263; Ar. maṭla ‘daybreak, dawn’ W 565] morning wind
- maṭobooshi n. [Sw. matoboshi] a dessert made by mixing flour with a little oil, forming the resulting paste into round lumps and cooking them with coconut milk
- maṭruudi adj. [Ar. ṭarada W 556] banished, driven out Du’a/ hulombowa mojiitu/ bila yaa niya/ ni maṭruudi. ‘Praying prayed to God without will is turned back.’
mooja chijiibe / sichiwe maṭruudi [st.] ‘may God answer us, so that we are not banished (from paradise)’
- mataban n. meter band; [pron. matabán]
Iyi/ ni raadiyo/ isho wenewe/ hufafisho khabari/ maraa nṭatu/ kila muunt^hi/ ilu ya mataban/ thalathina mooyi/ arba’in naa mbili/ na arba’in na keendrá. ‘This is Free Radio which broadcasts the news three times each day on meter band 31, 42, and 49.’
- mate n. 6 [Sw. mate SSED 263] spit (It is likely that this noun should be regarded as consisting of a prefix ma- and a stem -te, but we lack any clear evidence at present for a use of -te that is independent of the prefix ma-.)

Mate/ haya'ondroki/ ila/ ka m̄taanga. 'Spit can not be picked up (from the floor) except with some sand.' (A proverb, which conveys a meaning something like the English "where there's smoke, there's fire"; it is saying that if there are little hints that something is the case, then likely there is really something true behind these hints. The spit is seen as the hints, the sand is what supports these hints.)

qalamu yaa mate '[lit.] pen of saliva -- meaning: pencil'

Siná/ mate ya kumiliza. 'I do not have saliva to swallow with.'

Stufé/ mate/ nt̄hi. 'Don't spit on the floor!'

mathalan for example

Laakini/ we/ ni muunt̄ú/ mwenye khabiri/ ni mwenye chit̄á/ munt̄u mzima/ mathalan. 'But you are a person having experience, having a brain (lit. head), an adult, for example.'

Mathalan/ mwene mubjaana/ mwaapé/ we/ mweenó/ humwiisi/ umriwo/ mweené/ mubjaana/ mwaape/ mwene muunt̄ú/ mwaapé/ humwiisi/ umriwo/ nt̄umwona. 'For example, you see some young man, you see him, you have never seen him (lit. you don't know him) your whole life, you see him, some young man, you see some person, you don't know him, your whole life, you haven't seen him.' (Part of a discussion of the proverb: Maazi/ ya muunt̄u/ hayaabahi. 'Someone's blood is not lost.' The speaker is telling how you might meet someone whom you have never seen before, but detect the blood-line from which the individual comes.)

mathali for example

mauliidi n.

khfanya mauliidi 'to perform, celebrate mauliidi' maayi n. 6 [Sw. maji SED 254] water (It is quite possible that this noun should be analyzed as having the morphological structure {m-aayi} or even {maa-yi}, but we have no conclusive evidence bearing on this matter, since at present we do not have any examples where the root would appear without the [cl.6] prefix.)

Hugura kharibu yaa wowi/ kuwa kharibu ya maayi. 'They move near the river to be near water.'

Kamaa we/ nakhsula maayiyá/ yotté/ mi/ nt̄akhupa/ laakini/ ka sharti mooyi. 'If you want all my water, I will give it to you, but on one condition.'

kana maayi 'like water'

Omari/ nakuza zoombo/ rakhiisi/ zinamiineendrela/ kana maayi. 'Omari is selling stuff cheap, they are moving for him like water.'

kh̄indika maayi 'for water to be cut off'

Leelo/ ikumi/ maayi/ yat̄indishile. 'Today is ten days since the water was cut off.'

kumuna/ kana maayi 'to drink him like water – e.g. of a stronger person dominating, overwhelming someone' mayi melpe '[lit. white water] plain water, as opposed to mayi mahuundru '[lit. red water] tea or soft drinks'

Hamadi/ nazoo nguvu/ zaaydi/ chilana na Sheekhi/ takumuna/ kana maayi. 'Hamadi is so strong (lit. has strength surpassing), if he fights with Sheekhi, he will drink him like water (i.e. he will beat him easily).'

Maayi/ yadirshilee nguvo. 'The clothes got wet.'

Maayi(ye)/ kooko/ mūlo(we)/ kooko. '(May) his water be far away, his fire far away.' (A kind of prayer -- let it, some disaster, be there, far away, and not come here to us.)

Mwanaashke/ ulushile/ mayiini. 'The girl jumped into the water.'

mwenye maayi 'one who sells water'

Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kuwanayo maayi. 'May I have some water, please?'

Wachendra ka maayi/ wachiyavunaanga/ maayi/ yachiwa'uzá/ nini/ makosaya/ mbona/ nnakuvunangoowá/ mi. 'They went to the water and they beat it, and the water asked them, what are my faults, how come I am being beaten?' (The [cl.6] classification of maayi is indicated in this passage by the ya object prefix in wachiyavunaanga, by the ya subject prefix in yachiwa'uzá, and the y possessive agreement in makosaya.)

We/ nayo maayi. 'Do you have water?'

We/ ni maayi/ huzimizoo mūló/ mūlo/ hudhayishoo chisú... 'You are the water that extinguishes fire, the fire that melts the knife...’

ku-mayiza v. [Ar. māza, maiz W 933] (mayiziize) distinguish, discern (This verb is not commonly used; the preferred verb is -lawaanganya.)

rel.

ku-mayizoowa v. pass. (mayiziiza) be distinguished, discerned

Zint^{hu} zisuura/ na zint^{hu} ziwovu/ humayizoowa/ hazidanganyoowi.
‘Good things and bad things are to be differentiated / taken apart/separated , they are not put together/mixed up.’

mayleli in the expression:

kubiga mayleli ‘to ululate (as during a wedding), jump and clap with joy’

Haliima/ furahiile/ mwaanawe/ khshiindra/ nakubiga mayleli.
‘Haliima is happy her child won, she is jumping, clapping etc.’

Wake/ wanakubiga mayleli. ‘The women are ululating.’

maymaayi adj. [reduplicated form of maayi] wet

Iwafanyize bardi/ na nt^hawakuwanaayo/ yaawo/ khfinikila ruhu zaawo/ ka khisa buraangeeti/ zaawo/ zotte/ zivaliko maymaayi. ‘They felt cold and they did not have anything to cover themselves with since all their blankets were wet.’ (Syn. Notice the initial clause, iwafanyize bardi, which has a [cl.9] subject prefix triggered by bardi and a [cl.2] object prefix triggered by the implicit noun wabjaana ‘young men’.)

Nt^hi/ ni maymaayi. ‘The ground is wet.’

mayti n. 1,9/2,10 [Sw. maiti SSED 254; Ar. mayyit W 930] corpse, dead body (The following set of examples display a complex agreement pattern for this noun. The fact that mayti may be either singular or plural in meaning suggests a [cl.9/10] noun. The associative forms below, mayti ya.. and mayt za... reflect this categorization, as does the subject agreement in yiko apó in the first example and ikaghe... in a later example. The possessive form maytiye also reflects a [cl.9] noun, but mayti waawo reflects a [cl.2] noun. The demonstratives mayti uyu and mayti awa reflect [cl.1/2] agreement, as does mayti ump^hi and mayti waamp^hi. However, it is not the case that these agreements are all invariable -- e.g. mayti uyu and mayti iyi are both possible.)

Apo/ tawala/ wene majini/ miingi/ wakumangeene/ kulangala mayti/ yiko apó/ tawalá. ‘There at the sea, he saw many djinns gathered to look at a corpse that was there at the sea.’

Apo/ ye/ chiwawona/ waant^hu/ watatu/ kila/ mooyi/ naloo luti/mkonooni/ nambigila mayti/ ukoo nt^hi/ apó. ‘There he saw three people, each one with a stick in his hand, beating a corpse that was on the ground there.’

bardi/ kana mayti ‘as cold as a corpse’

Haliima/ mbardi/ kana mayti. ‘Haliima is as cold as a corpse (usu. used to refer to someone very sick whose body is cold).’

-enye mayti ‘the relatives etc. of a dead person’

muunt^hi oyo wemye mayti hiskitika [st.] ‘because on that day the people of the dead person are feeling sad’

Hakooði/ kana mayti. ‘He is as quiet as a corpse (lit. he does not speak like a corpse).’

Haliima/ leele/ kana/ mayti. ‘Haliima slept like a corpse (i.e. soundly, for a long time).’

Ichiwa/ mayti/ ya maana/ waant^hu/ hurasha ka chinume. ‘If it be that the corpse is a child, people follow behind [the corpse].’

kana/ mayti ‘like a corpse’

Omari/ ha’infī chiint^hu/ ni kana/ mayti. ‘Omari is of no use for anything, he is like a corpse.’

Sheekhi/ chiint^hu/ haṭoorati/ kana mayti. ‘Sheekhi is not able to do any thing, he is like dead body.’

Leeló/ ni mayti. ‘One who is asleep is dead.’ (A proverb.)

Mayti/ hamziiki/ mayti. ‘A corpse cannot bury a corpse.’ (A proverb.)
Mayti mooyi/ hamziiki/ mayti/ mweenziwe. ‘One corpse cannot bury the corpse of his companion.’ (A proverb.)

mayti ump^hi ‘which corpse’ (cf. mayti waamp^hi ‘which corpses’) mayti uyu ‘this corpse’ (cf. mayti awa ‘these corpses’) Mayti/ ya mwaana/ ha’itukulowi ka janaazi/ hutukulowa na munt^hu mooyi/ tu/ ka kafani. ‘The corpse of a child is not carried on a funeral bier, it is carried by just a single person, in a shroud.’

mayti ya Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s corpse’ (cf. mayti za waant^hu ‘the corpses of people’) Mayti ya Nuuru/ ikaghefe ka iwa. ‘The corpse of Nuuru was dried up by the sun.’
maytiye ‘his corpse’ (cf. mayti waawo ‘their corpses’) Maytiye/ ileele/ ndilaani. ‘His corpse lay outside.’
Mi/ ninenzele kati ya mayti. ‘I walked among the corpses.’ Passive version:
Mayti/ zinenzela kati kaawo. ‘The corpses were walked among them.’
Mwosha mayti/ hoshoowa. ‘The washer of corpses will be washed (himself).’ (A proverb.)
na mayti ziitu/ zilelo nthini ya barafu ‘and our dead bodies laying under the snow’ Noloshele numbaani/ ka Haliima/ kaawo/ wotte/ waleele/ kana/ mayti. I went to Haliima’s house; all there were asleep, like corpses.’
Tomele mayti ya celo/ ka chisimaani. ‘He took the corpse of the gazelle from the well.’
Wamzishile mayti. ‘They buried the corpse.’
Yamlesele mayti/ yamlonzele sultaani/ natomole amri/ ku’aqibowa qaatili/ wa mayti/ uyu (although iyi is also possible here). ‘They [the djinns] brought the corpse and begged the sultan to issue an order that the killer of this dead man be punished.’

maza part. [no etymological source found] how come? so, given what you just said; (as a reply: of course! exactly so! e.g. did you attend the wedding feast? answer: maza [pron. maza] ‘of course (I went)’)

Basi/ chimala/ teena/ wachimwaambila/ maza/ maame/ takhtambulaayi/ maskiini. ‘So then after that, they said to her: how, my mother, will he differentiated (the two things), the poor man.’

Maame/ takhtambulaayi/ maza. ‘My mother, how will he tell the difference (we ask)?’

Maza/ jilile. ‘So, did you eat?’

Maza/ mi/ khufanyeyi. ‘What shall I do for you?’

Maza/ mwambileni. ‘So, what did you tell him.’ (This sentence might be a response to someone else who said: Osmaani/ ile kumera kaaka/ peesa/ we/ namwiwa kuwa haalipi. ‘Osmaani came looking for money from me. You know that he never repays.’)

Maza/ mwaanawa/ yaa mi/ khurebelo ka masultaani/ si iyo/ yaa mi/ khurebelo ka masultaani/ nakhtiyó/ huleta jawabu izo. ‘How come [i.e. was it not for this?], my child, that I [tried to] stop you from going to the sultan’s place; is it not for that [reason] that I [tried to] stop you from going to the sultan’s place, fearing, that it would bring these things.’

Maza/ olokeleleni/ madrasaani/ chiwaa we/ nthunakubarata. ‘So why did you go to school if you did not learn anything?’

Mi/ nk^hawa mwenyee nguvu/ jisaa ni/ nakuhado/ maza/ mi/ sula kumlata/ ngoombé/ kunina. ‘If I [in the story, it is water speaking] have the power that you say, how come I let the cow drink me?’

Mphaamp^ha/ chimwaamina/ chimuza/ maza/ isa/ shfanyeyi ‘The shark believed him [the monkey] and asked him: well, now, what shall we do?’

Mazá/ waanawe/ wachimwaambila/ mazá/ takhtambulaayi/ naa ye/ ha'isi. 'We wonder, her children said to her, we wonder how he will differentiate (between the two poles) when he does not know how (to do it).'

Wamwambiile/ mazá/ maamé/ takhtambulaayi. 'They said to her, how, my mother, will he differentiate (the two girls)?'

maazi n. 6 [presumably derived from a Proto-Bantu word ma-gadi* 'blood' via the deletion of intervocalic g and the conversion of di to zi, phenomena seen elsewhere in Chimiini] blood

Awo/ wazalene ka maazi. 'Those ones are blood-relatives.'

Hamadi/ ka sahali/ maaziye/ humpaandró. 'Hamadi's blood easily rises (i.e. he gets angry, excited, "hot under the collar").'

Hamadi/ Omari/ nii muné/ wa maazi. '(With respect to) Hamadi, Omari is his younger brother by blood.'

Hamadi/ wiizi/ yimo kaaké/ maziini. 'Hamadi, thievery is in his blood.'

Hamadi/ sahali/ maazi/ humpaandró. 'Hamadi easily his blood rises (as in the example above).'

kana spaandre/ za maazi '[lit.] like pieces of blood -- i.e., reddened, used mostly for eyes'

Maatoye/ yawele mahuundru/ kana spaandre/ za maazi. 'His eyes became as red as pieces of blood.'

khawanyika maazi 'to bleed'

Yanamhawanyika maazi. 'He is bleeding – [lit.] blood is flowing from him.'

Zita/ stushilo maduriini/ inakuhadowa maazi/ miingi/ yaanyishiló. 'The fighting that took place in the upcountry is said that much blood was spilt.'

khtila maazi 'to be rejuvenated; to transfer blood; of someone teaching one his evil ways, bad character, etc.'

Omari/ tile maazi. 'Omari gained weight, became healthier, stronger.'

kingila maazi '(lit.) to enter the blood – i.e. harm, do bad to, kill'

Muunth^u/ siwo/ suura/ kingila maazi/ ya meenziwe. 'It is not good for someone to harm his friend.'

Siingilé/ mazi ya waant^hu. 'Don't get into the blood of people (i.e. harm, do bad to people)!'

kugiiṭa maazi 'to help, attract fellow clansmen'

Nureeni/ hugiṭa maazi. 'Nureeni (lit. pulls blood) helps his fellow clansmen, attracts them to him.'

kuḷawa maazi 'to bleed'

kondroka maazi 'for blood to rise—get angry'

Mi/ shkasa jawabu izo/ maaziya/ hunoondroka. 'When I hear those things, my blood goes up (i.e. I get angry).'

kumdegsha maazi 'to calm someone' kumondrola maazi 'to raise someone's blood – i.e. make him angry'

Mahmuudi/ mkali/ kumondrola muunth^u/ maazi. 'Mahmuudi is good in making people angry.'

kuwanayo maazi 'lit. to have blood – i.e. react vigorously, get excited, angry, respond immediately to'

Hamádi/ oo/ ni meende/ nt^haná(or: nt^hanaayo)/ maazi. 'That Hamadi is like a cockroach, he has no (lit.) blood – i.e. he does not act, he is a coward, he does not seek to revenge what has happened to him.'

Hamadi/ ni kana meende/ nt^hanaayo/ maazi. 'Hamadi is like a cockroach, he does not respond/ react to things.'

Hamadi/ nt^hanaayo/ maazi. 'Hamadi does not have blood – i.e. he is passive, does not react or respond to s.t.'

Maazi/ ni mazito/ kolko maayi. 'Blood is thicker (lit. heavier) than water.' (Translation of the English saying.)

Mazi ya muunth^u/ hayaabahi. 'One's blood does not get lost (i.e. you can know someone by his blood).' (A proverb.)

maaziya ‘my blood’
Mi/ maaziya/ yapaanzile/ niizé/ khadira karka apo/ khkasa jawabu iyo.
 ‘My blood got up, I could not stay there and listen to that stuff.’
nama/ na maazi ‘flesh and blood’
Omari/ ni namaya/ na maaziya. ‘Omari is my flesh and blood.’
Noka/ mzimawe/ wele maazi/ naa nt^hi/ nzimayé. ‘The snake was bloody all over, and the floor all over [as well].’
Nakhuloombá/ Hamadi/ oloka/ mwishkiza Omari/ maazi/ haba mooyi. ‘I beg you, Hamadi, go and calm Omari down a little.’ Omari/ ni mwenye maazi. ‘Omari has blood (he reacts immediately, gets angry etc.)’

ku-mazika

v. (mazishile) weep (Usage: Although this verb might be used alone, it is normally used in conjunction with kuḷa, as shown below.)

Isa/ naakuḷa/ nakumazika/ kana maṭaanga. ‘Now he is crying and weeping bitterly as [is done] during the mourning period.’

Mwaana/ chiḷa/ chimazika. ‘The child cried and wept.’

Omari/ lizile/ mazishile. ‘Omari cried and wept.’

Omari/ naakuḷa/ nakumazika. ‘Omari is crying and weeping.’

Wachiḷa/ wachimazika. ‘They were crying and weeping.’

rel.

ku-mazikila v. appl. (mazikiliile) weep for Omari/ mliliile/ mazikiliile/ muṅé. ‘Omari cried and wept for his younger brother.’

mazu

n. 9/10 [Ar. mauz W 931] banana(s)

Ambilee mazu/ ambiiló. ‘He peeled off the skin of the banana, that’s what he did.’

Mazu iyo/ ndaako. ‘That banana is yours.’ (Cf. Mazu izo/ nzaako. ‘Those bananas are yours.’) mazu ya mp^huundra ‘a type of banana that is very large in size’; mazu mashkilo ya mp^huundra ‘(lit.) banana ears of a donkey – a type of banana’ mazu ya sukaari ‘a small, very sweet banana’ mazu ya bukeeni ‘a large banana like mazu ya mp^huundra; it is not very sweet, and thus cooked rather than eaten raw’

Nuzile mazuu mbiti/ sukhuuni, ‘I bought raw bananas in the market.’ Or: Nuzilee mazú/ mbiti/ sukhuuni. ‘I bought bananas, raw ones, in the market.’ Or: Nizuuzilé/ mazuu mbiti/ sukhuuni. ‘I bought the raw bananas in the market.’ Or: Nizuzile mazuu mbiti/ sukhuuni. ‘I bought the raw bananas in the market.’

mbalmbali

adv. [Sw. mbalimbali SSED 256] separately

Maayi/ naa kujá/ hubḷa ka lamna mbalmbali. ‘Water and food kill in different ways.’

chi-mbalazi

n. the older name for the Chimiini language

zubadi ka chimbalazi ni toomu [st.] ‘zubadi in Chimbalazi is toomu’ mbali

adv. [Sw. mbali SSED 266] far off; different

Ile kaa mbali. ‘He came from far away.’

ma-mbaazi

n. a kind of wild fruit

mbee

ideo. the sound a goat or sheep makes; n. goat (The vowel of this ideophone is nasalized, but since this feature of pronunciation does not seem to be contrastive, we do not indicate it. The nasal onset to the syllable triggers the nasalization.)

Masku/ mazima/ ka Hamadi/ kaawo/ ha’ilaaliki/ mbuzi/ na ngoombé/ zinaakuḷa/ mbee mbee!/ mboo mboo! ‘The whole night at Hamadi’s place one cannot get sleep, lambs/goats and cows are shouting mbee mbee! Mboo mboo!’ sister'; mbujaza 'my younger sisters', mbujaze 'his/her younger sisters', mbujazo 'your younger sisters'; mbuja yaawo 'their younger sister', mbuja yiinu 'your pl. younger sister', mbuja yiitu 'our younger sister'; mbuja zaawo 'their younger sisters', mbuja ziinu 'your (pl.) younger sisters', 'mbuja ziitu 'our younger sisters'

Mbujá/ t̄inzile ruuhuye/ chaala. 'My sister has cut her finger.'

Mbuja yaawo/ wo/ wachichimbiza/ wamwambiile/ tala msahaafuwo/ lawa ka apa. 'They evicted their little sister and told her: take your Quran and get away from here.'

mbujazá 'o, my younger sisters'

Mbujazá/ nakinloombá/ lawa naami/ shiriini. 'My sisters, please (lit. I beg you, pray that you) come to the meeting with me.' (Note the final accent that appears in the vocative use of mbujaza 'my sisters'.)

Moomo/ mbujé/ ile spitaale. 'Moomo (a male) his sister went to the hospital.' Or: Ile spitaale/ Moomo/ mbujé. 'She went to the hospital, Moomo (a male) his sister.'

Moomo/ mbujé/ peshela spitaale. 'Moomo (a male) his sister was taken to the hospital.'

Moomo/ peenzele/ kuwanayo mbujé. 'Moomo (here used as a male name) wishes that he had a sister.'

Naani/ mbujé/ we/ mweenó/ haflaani. 'Whose sister did you see at the party?'

Ni mbujawe/ naani/ uyu. 'Whose sister is this?' (It is not clear to what extent a form mbuja-w-e as opposed to mbujé etc. is possible. Gelani Mohamed did not accept the form as possible.)

u-mbukhu

ka qahri na huuri na wana umbukhu/ kaa ndruti tayaari shchitiya bundukhu [nt.] 'overpowered, sweating, suffocating/ ready with sticks, we were fearing guns'

mbwa

[cl.1] is of

Mbwa naani/ mwana uyu. 'Whose child is this?'

Ye/ mbwaa Juma. 'He is Juma's.'

Ye/ mbwaaká. 'It (e.g. mbwa 'dog', which requires a [cl.1] agreement in its singular use) is mine.'

medaalya

n. [Ital. medaglia] medal

Hamadi/ pete medaalya/ ya ðahabu/ ya ugaasi. 'Hamadi got a gold medal for bravery.'

mehena

n. [Ar. mihna W 895] difficulty, preoccupation; variant form: mihna

Omari/ hadiile/ mehena/ yashpeetó/ jisaa si/ khfanya kaazi/ nthaku/ makiina/ zont^he/ zihala^hweete. 'Omari said: problems/difficulties have afflicted us, there is no way we can work, all the machines have broken down.'

ondrola mehena mwiisho shpe khatima [song] 'take away preoccupation and in the end give us a good end'

meeli

n. 9/10 [Sw. maili SSED 254; Eng. mile] mile

meeli mbili 'two miles'

Edgar Evans/ waliko munt^hu wa kaandra/ kufa/ na wiinginiwé/ wadaðaleete/ wa'ineenzele/ meji miyaa nthatu. 'Edgar Evans was the first man to die and others tried hard and walked three hundred miles.'

melmeli

n. [Sw. melimeli SSED 275; Hind.] thin, transparent cloth mi-melo

n. 4 [apparently derived from the Bantu verbal root mel which is no longer used in Chimwiini] agricultural produce

meende

n. 9/10 [Sw. mende SSED 275] cockroach

Hamadi/ oo/ ni meende/ nt^haná(or: nt^hanaayo/ maazi. ‘That Hamadi is like a cockroach, he has no (lit.) blood – i.e. he does not act, he is a coward, he does not seek to revenge what has happened to him.’

Meende zimo chooloni. ‘There are cockroaches in the toilet.’

Mikooni/ zimo meende. ‘There are cockroaches in the kitchen.’

sumu ya meende ‘the poison of a cockroach’

rel.

chi-meende (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

ku-meera

v. [Som. meer DSI 429] (merele) search for, ask for, seek, look for, trace, go/turn around, roll

Basi/ kheeri/ mi/ mmerree muke. ‘Therefore it is best that I look for a wife.’

Basi/ oloka/ mera kaazi/ yaa we/ khfaanya/ na wanawakewo. ‘So go and look for work that you can do together with your daughters.’

Chimera kaa wo/ iðni/ yaa ye/ kumpandrila Harun Rashiidi. ‘He asked them for permission to go to up to see Haruun Rashiidi.’

Chimera nuumba/ ya sultaani. ‘He looked for the house of the sultan.’

Ile kumeeraní. ‘You came looking for what?’ (It is only the final accent on the infinitive that tells us that the subject is ‘you’ rather than ‘(s)he’.)

kumeera/ kana duwaara ‘to go around like a kite (never staying in one place)’ kumeraa muke ‘to ask for a woman’s hand in marriage’ kumera waant^hu ‘[lit.] to look for people -- meaning: to be sociable, to keep close social relations’

We/ hummeeri/ muunt^hu. ‘You do not look for anybody, i.e. you do not call on people or ask about their wellbeing (a serious criticism in the Bravanese community).’

Kumeera/ siwo/ khpata. ‘To look for is not (the same as) getting.’ (A proverb.)

Laakini/ chimeera/ asli yaawo/ wo/ hulawaangana/ lamnaa nt^hatu. ‘But if you trace their ancestors, they are divided into three groups.’

Meera. ‘Search for it!’ Cf. Meraani. ‘You (pl.) search for it!’

Merani maali. ‘Look for money!’

Merele khsaydoowa. ‘He sought help (lit. to be helped).’

Mi/ nk^hasizé/ ye/ nakumero numbaani. ‘I heard him moving around the house.’

Mmera chotte/ hukosa chotte. ‘The one who seeks all, loses all.’ (A proverb.)

Mmerele/ nfunguloza/ kilaa mahala. ‘I looked for my keys everywhere.’

Mmerele peesá. ‘I searched for money.’

Mpiira/ nakumeera. ‘The ball is rolling.’

Muke/ oyo/ muzize Sa’iidi/ ile kumeeraní. ‘That woman asked Sa’iidi: you came looking for what?’

Mwana mwiingine/ mi/ simmeeri/ hingilo kaaká/ illa/ ni mwana u(y)u. ‘I will not look for another child who has entered my place [and stolen the missing shoe], except/only this child.’

Namera ¹mubliwá/ Nureeni. ‘I am looking for my husband Nureeni.’

Namera ¹Nureeni/ mubliwa. ‘I am looking for Nureeni my husband.’

Namera Tuumá. ‘I am looking for Tuuma.’

Ndovu/ chimera mazaaydi. ‘The elephant asked for more.’

Nile kumeraa muké/ mzeele/ nt^ho. ‘I came looking for a very old woman.’

Nimmerele Jeeli/ oyo nakuwo mwaalimú. ‘I looked for Jeeli, who is becoming a teacher.’

Niwamerele wimbili wont^hé. ‘I looked for all the boys.’ Or, with the quantifier separated phrasally: Niwamerele wiimbili/ wont^hé. and Niwamerele wiimbili/ wont^he. Or, with verb focus: Niwamerele/ wiimbili/ wont^he.

Oloshela kumera peesa/ ka waawaye. ‘He went looking for money from his father.’

Oloshela kumera waawaye/ sukhuuni. ‘He went for his father in the market.’

Omari/ chimera Huseeni/ laakini/ mpete Hamadi/ tu. ‘Omari was looking for Huseeni, but he found only Hamadi.’

Omari/ chimera muunt^hu/ mwaape/ nguvu/ laakini/ ye/ mpete Hamadi/ tu. ‘Omari was looking for someone strong, but he could only find Hamadi.’

Simereeni. ‘You (pl.) do not search for it!’

Simereeni/ maali. ‘You (pl.) do not search for money!’

Skumeera/ peesa. ‘I did not look for money.’

Wachimeera/ nt^hi suura/ washfanya muundra/ na wachaala/ matuundra/ naa mbogá. ‘They looked for some good land (and) made a garden, and they planted fruits and vegetables.’

Wo/ wachimera maayi/ ka apa/ na apá. ‘They looked for water here and there.’

Zinakumera khabari kuwa... ‘The news is getting around that...’

rel.

ku-merameera v. freq.

Hayawaani/ zotte/ karkaa wo/ wanakumeromero maayi/ wachiwona/ chisima/ chiwelo shkavú. ‘While all the animals were searching for water, they saw a well which had become dry.’

Mubli/ chimwaambila/ merameera/ laazimu/ tubaaku/ yiko paapo/ apo/ tu. ‘The husband told her: keep looking, the tobacco must be there at that very place.’

ku-meerele v. appl. (merelele)

Basi/ we/ mweewe/ mmerelela muke/ mweema. ‘Therefore you yourself look for a good wife for me.’

ki’imerele rizqi ‘to look for daily sustenance for oneself’ kumerelela muke ‘to look for a woman’s hand in marriage for s.o.’

Mamaye mwaana/ chimerele mwaanawe/ muke/ chimloza. ‘The boy’s mother looked for a wife for her son and married him [i.e. caused him to marry her].’ (The construction mamaye mwaana is not acceptable to many Chimiini speakers, but was routinely used by MI.)

Mi/ khumerelelee muke/ ka sultaani. ‘I sought a wife for you from the sultan.’

Nikhumerelele/ festaani/ laakini/ sikhuwona. ‘I looked for you at the party, but I did not see you.’

ku-merelelana v. appl. rec.

Waant^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kumerelelana ziwovu. ‘It is not good for people to search for bad things about each other.’

ku-mereleloowa v. appl. pass.

Munt^hu nakumereleloowá/ ni uyu. ‘The man who is being looked for is this one.’ Or: Muunt^hu/ nakumereleloowá/ ni uyu. Or: Uyu/ ni munt^hu nakumereleloowá. Or: Uje munt^hu nakumereleloowá/ ni uyu.

ku-meroowa v. pass. (merelela) be searched for; for a woman to be asked in marriage (not directly, but through her family)

Muunt^hu/ nakumeroowa. ‘The person is being looked for.’

Munt^hu nakumeroowá/ ni uyu. ‘The person being looked for is this one.’

(When comparing this and the preceding example, note that the segmental make up of the main clause present passive verb and the relative present passive verb is the same. The difference is prosodic: the relative has final accent, while the main clause version has penult accent, at least in the case of a third person subject. Note also that in the main clause version, the subject muunt^hu is a separate phrase and as a result its penult syllable surfaces as long, while in the relative clause version the head may phrase with the verb and thus have neither an accent nor a long vowel. It is, however, possible for the head to be phrased separately from the relative verb: Muunt^hu/ nakumeroowá/ ni uyu.)

Shtumaa nt^hume/ ka apa/ na apá/ kendroowa/ kumerowa muunt^hu/ takhaadiró/ khtafsiirá/ ndroto izó. ‘He sent messengers here and there to be gone to be searched for a man who would be able to interpret those dreams.’ (Phon. Observe that in the relative clause, phrasal breaks occur after both verbs, but the Accentual Law of Focus does not come into play to prevent the final accent from propagating throughout the relative clause.)

Uje munt^hu nakumeroowá/ ni uyu. ‘That man being searched for is this one.’

Uyu/ ni munt^hu nakumeroowá. ‘This one is the man being searched for.’

ku-meersha v. caus. (mersheeze) turn s.t., take around, advertise, surround kumersha kahawa (or: chaayi) ‘(lit.) to take around coffee (or tea) – i.e. to offer coffee or tea to all the people assembled (at a meeting, ceremony, etc.)’

kumershaa chiṭa ‘to rotate the head’

Meersha. ‘Take around!’ Cf. Mershaani. ‘You (pl.) take around!’

Mershani zoombo. ‘You (pl.) take things around!’

Mersheze nuumbaye/ kuuza. ‘He advertised his house (for sale).’

Mmersheze iziwá. ‘I took milk around.’

Omari/ nmersheeze/ mi/ Mombasa. ‘Omari showed me around Mombasa.’

Simersheeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t take around!’

Simersheeni/ zoombo. ‘You (pl.) don’t take around things!’

Skumeersha/ peesa. check the meaning

Waant^hu/ wiingi/ wamershezo munt^hu haḷaweetó. ‘Many people surrounded the injured man.’

ku-meershanya v. caus. rec. (-mersheenye) make one another go around ku-mersheleza v. caus. appl. (mersheleeze) take around for; turn with Hamadi/ mmerseheleze mwaanawe/ nuumbaye/ tiile/ mbarakha/ seeni.

‘Hamadi has turned over his house to his son, he has signed the papers.’ check the use of the verb here

ku-mershoowa v. caus. pass. (mersheeza) be surrounded by; be caused to go around

Cheema/ huza ruuhuye/ chiwovu/ humershoowa. ‘Something good sells itself, something bad has to be advertized.’ (A proverb.)

Imersheeza/ kahawa. ‘Coffee was offered (to those assembled).’

Maayi/ ayo/ yamersheza na lkuta. ‘This water is surrounded by a wall.’

Munt^hu haḷaweetó/ mersheza na waant^hu. ‘The injured man was surrounded by people.’

Na jazirá/ iyo/ imersheeza/ na maayi. ‘And this island is surrounded by water.’

Ondroshelopó/ Hasiibu/ chiwona/ kuwaa ye/ mersheza na ma’askari.

‘When he awoke, Hasiibu saw that he was surrounded by soldiers.’

rel. nom.

m-meera (wa-) n. 1/2 one who seeks

Mmera chiint^hu/ ha’ofati. ‘The seeker of something never gets tired.’ (A proverb that commonly refers to seeking an education and religious knowledge.)

Mmera chotte/ hukosa chotte. ‘The one who seeks all loses all.’ (A proverb that says: be satisfied with what you have.)

Mmera niingi/ hukosa habba. ‘The seeker of much misses a little.’ (A proverb that counsels one to be satisfied with the little that you have, since even the one who seeks a lot, misses a little.)

meetiri

n. [Ital. metro, pl. metri] meter; measuring stick ndre/ kamba meetiri ‘as long, tall as a meter’

Luti ili/ lile/ kana meetiri/ haljingili/ apo. ‘This stick is as long as a meter, it cannot fit into there.’

Taambula/ yiimp^{hi}/ kaḏá/ ikumi/ ba/ metri kaḏá/ alhaasili/ inakhuunguló. ‘Distinguish which one is so long, ten meters perhaps, and which is less.’

meeza

n. 9/10 [Sw. meza SSED 275; Pers.] table

Lesele ijiwe? ‘Did you bring the stone?’ Possible answers: Ee/ yiko ilu ya meeza. ‘Yes, it is on the table.’ Or: Ee/ yiko mezaani. ‘Yes, it is on the table.’

Meza iyi/ nzito/ kana chuuma. ‘This table is as heavy as iron.’

Meza iyo/ ndaaká. ‘That table is mine.’ (Cf. Meza izo/ nzaaká. ‘Those tables are mine.’)

Nuzile mezaa nk^hulú. ‘I bought the big table.’ Cf. Nuzile meezá/ nk^hulu. ‘I bought a big table.’

sa’a ya meeza ‘a clock that you can put on the table’

Uzile mezaa nk^hulu. ‘He bought the big table.’ Cf. Uzile meeza/ nk^hulu. ‘He bought a big table.’

Waziiri/ shkalaant^ha/ mezaani/ shtala khalamu/ na lwarakhá/ chandikaa khaṭi/ kuwa mulkuwe/ wotte/ na wataanawé/ wotte/ ye/ mpele Ali. ‘The minister sat at the table and took a pen and a piece of paper and began to write a letter [saying] that all his property and all his servants he gave to Ali.’

Wene meeza/ niingi/ na wenee ziti/ ziweeshela/ nt^hiini/ yaa miti/ karka hoosi. ‘He saw many tables and he saw chairs placed under trees in the shade.’

rel.

chi-meeza (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. table

Chimeza icho/ ni shtaka. ‘That (dim.) table is dirty.’

Zimeza izo/ ni staka. ‘Those (dim.) tables are dirty.’

mi

independent pronoun for first person singular

Chibuuku/ nishpetee mi. ‘The book, I got it.’ (Notice that in this example, the subject pronoun mi is put to the post-verbal position and phrases with the verb. The postposed subject pronoun does not, however, phrase with the verb in all cases. See below.)

Chihada/ mi/ nnakhsulá khaadimú/ mooyi/ kundraasha. ‘I want one servant to accompany me.’

Mi/ ndimí/ muke oyo. ‘I am that woman (you are looking for).’

Mwaanwá/ nt^haku/ nfurahishizoo mi/ nt^ho/ kol^{koo} we. ‘My son, there is no one who has pleased me more than you.’

Njiilé/ ba/ mi. gloss?

Ni mkulu/ kol^{koo} mi. ‘He is bigger than me.’

Noka/ ndrúmilee mi. ‘The snake bit me.’

Siimba/ njilee mi. ‘The lion ate me.’

Ye/ nakhsuláa mi/ kandikaa khaṭi. ‘He wants me to write a letter.’

mi-

[cl.4] noun class prefix

miti ‘trees’

mi-

[cl.4] agreement prefix on adjectives

Abunawaasi/ kaleent^he/ maduriini/ kaa muda/ wa meezi/ miwili.

‘Abunawaasi stayed in the country for two months.’

Miti aya/ nii mile. ‘These trees are tall.’ Cf. Miti aya/ siwo/ mile. ‘These trees are not tall.’

Miyi aya/ ni milee nt^ho. ‘These trees are very tall.’ Cf. Miti aya/ siwo/ milee nt^ho. ‘These trees are not very tall.’

Muundrawa/ unayo miti miṭaano/ tu. ‘My farm has only five trees.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is mkono/ na zaala ‘a hand and fingers’.)

Nnakhsuláa miti/ yanawee milé. ‘I want that the trees be tall.’

- mi question particle
Mii/ uzilé/ chibuukú. ‘Is it true that you bought a book (I did not expect you to do that)?’ (The simple yes-no question would be: Uzilé/ chibuukú? ‘Did you buy a book?’)
- mi’aadi n. [Ar. mī’ād “promise, appointment” W 1081] appointment Hamadi/ nt^hanaayo/ mi’aadi. ‘Hamadi does not have an appointment.’
khfanya mi’aadi ‘to make an appointment’
Mi/ na Omari/ shfanyize mi’aadi/ kudirkamana/ numbaani/ ka Nuuru/ muunt^hi/ wa mfumaa jima/ unakuuyó. ‘Me and Omari made an appointment to meet at Nuuru’s house on the coming Saturday.’
Mi’adi yiitu/ kiilana/ ni keesho. ‘Our appointment to meet, come together, is tomorrow.’
- mi’raaji n. [Ar. mī’raj W 602] the Prophet’s ascension to the heavens on the winged horse Buraq; the celebration of this event
Leelo/ masku/ ka Hamadi/ numbaani/ yiko mi’raaji. ‘Tonight at Hamadi’s house there is mi’raaji.’
Mi’raaji/ ni masku/ ya mtume/ pesheja kuzimú/ ka moojé. ‘Mi’raaji is the night in which Prophet Mohammed was taken to heaven to his God.’
mi’raji ni ngazi nt^hayna mithaali [st.] ‘[the Prophet’s] ascension is a ladder that has no equal’
- miidaani n. [Ar. maidān, mīdān W 933] open, flat piece of land (e.g. a playground) (This word is but one of a number of loanwords that have stems with an antepenult long vowel as well as a penult long vowel. When these syllables are put in an environment where neither attracts “abstract stress”, then they both shorten, as in midani ije ‘that open piece of land’. When the second long syllable attracts “abstract stress”, then the preceding one remains long, as in miidaani and in miidaaniye ‘its open piece of land’.)
Ibanya/ iyi/ yaliko miidaani/ ya harbi/ za qabiila. ‘This open space was the space for tribal fighting.’
- miðibu n. 9/10 [Som. midab DSI ??] complexion, color Nguwo izi/ miðibuze/ skupeenda. ‘These clothes, their colors, I did not like.’
- mifa’a n. [cf. Sw. mfaa “centre-piece of door, fixed to one valve, the other closing against it” SSED 275] a kind of bookrest – a frame with crossed-legs and a top on which a book rests (This item is unknown to GM.)
- mih(i)raabu n. [Sw. mhirabu SSED 270; Ar. mīhrāb W 166] the apse of a mosque, which shows the direction to Mecca Imaamu/ hupandra mihirabuuni/ kubiga khuṭba/ ya sala yaa jima. ‘The imam climbs the mihraabu to give the lecture for Friday prayers.’
- mihiraaji n.
Shekh Madaa Sheekhi/ waliko sheekhi/ fasaaha/ sowṭiye/ shfungula mihiraaji/ Mwīini/ zamaani/ ka ufasaaha. ‘Sheekhu Madaa Sheekhi was a very eloquent scholar in his voice, he used to explain mihiraaji in the old times in Brava with clearness and eloquency.’
- miiko n. [Sw. jiko SSED 155] kitchen (This item is related to ijiiko ‘cooking stone’, which suggests that it is morphologically complex in origin, perhaps mw-iiko.)
Baaba/ kumwona mwaanawe/ daa’imu/ umo mikooni/ kharibu yaa wake/ imkirihishiize/ nt^ho. ‘It displeased Father very much to see his son always in the kitchen near the women.’
Ye/ nt^hampeenda/ mwana waa sabba/ ka khisa/ ye/ fanyize miiko/numbaani/ na nt^hachilawa/ ibenyaani/ kh^hteza na weenziwe. ‘He did not love his seventh son because he [the seventh son] made the kitchen his home and did not go outside to play with his companions.’

Zahara/ nakhko^hda na waanawe/ mikooni. ‘Zahara is talking to her children in the kitchen.’

zombo za mikooni ‘kitchen utensils’

mi^lla n. [Sw. mila SSED 280; Ar. milla ‘religious community, faith, confession’ W 918] custom, regulations, tradition, way iy^o ndiy^o mi^lla ya mtume Mustafa [st.] ‘that is the way of the prophet Mustafa’ ka mi^lla ‘by law, tradition’ niingi ni khatari mi^lla za awali/ nama koshoowake shtosheeni sahali [st.] ‘many of the old customs imperil the soul, do not think that (the rule for) washing meat is easy’ thalaatha miya na ikumi ka jimla/ na watatu sho kiwa nt^hanaayo mi^lla [st.] ‘(there are) three hundred and ten (prophets) in total, plus three, the one who does not know this does not have religion/ faith (lit. tradition)’

Want^hu awo/ nt^hawanaayo/ mi^lla/ ya kurashoowa. ‘Those people do not have a tradition to be followed.’

mi^lhooyi n. [no etymology found] a kind of evil spirit (This word is not known to GM.)

mi^litaare n. military Jeneraale/ ni garaada/ nk^hulu/ ya mi^litaare. ‘General is a high rank in the military.’

ku-mi^lka v. [Ar. malaka, milk ‘acquire, possess’ W 921] (mi^lkiile) own Apo/ zamaani/ waliko sul^ltaani/ mooyi/ mi^lkilo nusu ya duniya. ‘Once upon a time there was a sultan who owned half of the world.’

Kulla yaa mi/ humi^lko/ ni mul^lkuwe. ‘Everything that I possess is his property.’
kumi^lka ruuhu ‘to control oneself’

Ichiwa Hasani/ nt^hanakhaadira/ kumi^lka ruuhuye. ‘It became that Hasani could not control himself.’

Mi/ humi^lka fa^luraa m-bili. ‘I own two cars’

Mi/ humi^lka nuumba/ Mkhodiisho. ‘I own a house in Mogadishu.’

Muunt^hu/ humi^lka chaake. ‘One owns/possesses his (things), i.e. one does not own that which belongs to other people.’

Waant^hu/ wote/ wana^hiwa/ kuwaa si/ hachimi^lki/ chiint^hu. ‘Everyone knows that we do not own anything.’

rel.

ku-mi^lkisha v. caus. (mi^lkishiize) give or otherwise provide money for the purchase of s.t., perform the legal transactions resulting in s.o. owning s.t.

We/ hukhaadiri/ kummi^lkisha muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ siwo chaake. ‘You cannot make someone the owner of things that are not his.’

ku-mi^lkishana v. caus. rec.

ku-mi^lkishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-mi^lkishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-mi^lkishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-mi^lkoowa v. pass.

Maadamu/ hami^lkoowi. ‘A human being is not owned, possessed.’

mi^lki n. wealth, possessions

N^li iyi/ ni mi^lkiya. ‘This piece of land is mine.’

s^losheeni naayo haja karka mi^lkiye [st.] ‘don’t think [God] needs his possessions’

Zombo izi/ ni mi^lkiya. ‘These things are mine, my possessions.’

mi^lyooni adj. million

variant form: milyuuni

Isa/ nt^hachinakuwona chiint^hu/ chinakambiḷowa kuwa chinakhpoowá/ doolari/ milyuuni/ miyaa mbili/ walá/ nt^hazinakhtomoloowa/ zotte/ daf'a mooyi. 'Now we do not see anything; we are being told that we are being given two hundred million dollars, but we are not being given all of it immediately.'

Peesa/ stakhtomolowa jis'iyi/ milyooni/ miya mooyi/ stakhtomolowa ka hima/ na ba'ada miyeezii/ habá/ stakhtomolowa milyooni/ miya mo/ ziingine/ ziseeló. 'The money will be given out as follows: one hundred million will be given immediately, and after that another one hundred million will be given that remained (from the original sum).'

l-milo (milo)

n. 11/10 [Sw. umio SSED 500] throat, food passage, esophagus (The [cl.11] noun class prefix is historically lu*. In Swahili, the initial l* has elided. In Chimiini, the l* did not elide, but rather is realized as l. However, the vowel of the prefix elided, like other prefixal high vowels, in front of a consonant. Chimiini has, however, apparently reanalyzed the prefix as li, as evidenced by evidence that the agreement morpheme with this noun class is li in certain cases.)

Chimdurila chisu cha lḡmilo/ chimduriló. 'He stabbed her with a knife at the throat (lit. a knife of the throat), that's what he did.'

Haaḡibu/ lḡmiloḡe/ lwelee nk^havu. 'The preacher has become hoarse (lit. his throat has become dry).'

kumḡinda lḡmilo '[lit.] to cut the throat -- i.e. make someone miss his daily food, earn his daily wage; take s.t. that is essential to s.o., take s.t. from one who has just enough to go around (esp. food)'

Simḡiindé/ lḡmilo/ mweenzawo. '[Lit.] Do not cut your friend's throat -- i.e. do not make him miss his daily food.'

Siwo/ suura/ muunt^hú/ kumḡinda mweenziwe/ lḡmilo. 'It is not good for someone to cut his friend's throat.'

lḡmilooni 'in the throat'

Shtaala/ chimdurila cha lḡmilo. 'He took (a knife) and pricked her with it at the throat (lit. of the throat).' (Note that cha lḡmilo is an associative phrase in agreement with the missing nominal chisu 'knife'.)

miilu

n. 6 (cf. kuulu) legs (This noun is treated as a [cl.6] noun and perhaps should be viewed as deriving from an underlying ma+ilu, but the singular form kuulu does not provide any evidence in support of such a derivation.)

iriiri/ miilu 'the legs of trousers to be tight, narrow'

ka miilu 'by foot'

Fardoosa/ ḡinzile go'aani/ kuruda numbaani/ ka miilu/ ye/ tosheze kuwa itamtalila nusuu sa'a/ laakini/ imtalile dakha ikumi/ tu. 'Fardoosa decided to come back home on foot. She thought it would take her half an hour, but it just took her ten minutes.'

kandikana miilu 'to put one leg over the other' katikati ya miilu 'between the legs'

Habadi/ impisile katiukati ya miilu. 'A bullet passed between his legs.'

khpisanya miilu 'to cross the legs' khḡinda miilu 'to cut the legs – i.e. to disappoint, to take s.o. somewhere without meaning, advantage, purpose, etc.'

Nḡ^hinzile miilu/ ndresele apa/ bilaa ma'ana. 'He [lit. cut my legs] – i.e. he disappointed me, e.g. brought me here for no advantage, profit, purpose, etc.'

Simḡiindé/ miilu/ ye/ maskiini. 'Don't cut his legs, the poor fellow – i.e. don't send him somewhere where he will not get a profit etc.'

kolola miilu 'to stretch the legs; rest' kubiga miilu 'to walk on foot' kumbusa miilu 'lit. to kiss someone's legs—i.e. to honor, respect someone' who had done something great for one' kumosha miilu 'lit. to wash one's legs – i.e. to pay back well for a favor that has been done for one' kumlalila miilu 'to sleep on one's legs' milu mambaamba 'thin legs'

milu manasha 'smooth legs' milu mapotofu 'crooked legs' milu mashuungi 'hairy legs' milu ta'abaani 'very tired legs' milu ya artífichaale 'artificial legs' milu yaa baabuuri 'tires of a truck' milu yaa chiti 'legs of a chair'
milu ya faatura 'tires of a car' milu ya gaari 'tires of a lorry' milu ya mawaazi 'naked legs' milu yaa mbu 'lit. mosquito's legs – i.e. thin legs' milu ya meeza 'legs of a table'
milu muruqu 'strong legs'
milu yaa muti 'wooden legs'
milu ya'ofeetó 'tired'
milu yafuriíó 'swollen legs' milu zinama 'lit. meaty legs; idiomatically used to refer to the legs having walked so long that they have become like meat, not strong enough to walk any more' Mbishile iteké/ hatá/ miilu/ yambele zinama. 'I walked on foot until my legs became like dim. meat.'
milu ziin'bi 'fat legs, like the bastone used for grinding corn maize' nafasi/ miilu 'for the legs (of trousers) to be loose, not tight' Ndovu/ chiya/ chimshika miilu/ bakayle/ chimwaambila/ sinshiiké/ miilu/ mpumbaavu/ we/ nshika mkila. 'The elephant came and held him [the hare] by the legs; the hare said to him: don't hold me by the legs, you fool, hold me by the tail.'
saamilu 'without shoes'
Surwaani/ yaa mi/ nuuziló/ miilu/ iriiri. 'The trousers that I bought, the legs are narrow/tight.'
Surwaani/ yaa mi/ nuuziló/ miilu/ male. 'The trousers that I bought, the legs are long.'
Wanaafakhi/ nt'ayná/ miilu. 'A lie does not have legs (i.e. does not work, cannot exist for long).' (A saying.)

rel.

zi-gulu n. creeper

zi-j-ulu dim. legs

zijulu zaa mbu 'lit. dim. mosquito's legs – i.e. dim. thin legs' zijulu zambaamba 'small thin legs' zijulu zida'iifu 'weak dim. legs'

miimba

n. 9/10 [Sw. mimba SSED 280] stomach

Fardoosa/ kashifile kuwaa ye/ nayo miimba. 'Fardoosa discovered that she was pregnant.'

Huseeni/ chingila kanaani/ kaa nsi/ hattá/ shkoma/ mimbaani/ kaake. 'Huseeni entered the mouth of the fish until he reached his stomach.'

khfunga miimba 'to tighten the stomach – i.e., endure, tolerate'

Muunt'bu/ laazimu/ khfunga miimbaye/ wakhti ya ta'abu. 'A person has to lit. tie his stomach – i.e. endure, put up with – during difficult times.'

khshika miimba 'to get, become pregnant'

Chishika miimba. 'She became pregnant.'

Muke/ chiloloowa/ khshika miimba. 'When a woman is married, she gets pregnant.'

Muke/ shishile miimba. 'The woman has become pregnant.'

Mukeewe/ nt'akhshiika/ miimba. 'His wife did not become pregnant.’

khshika mimbaani ‘to keep in the stomach – i.e. to never forget s.t.’

khtila miimba ‘to get someone pregnant’

Mtilee muke/ miimba. ‘He made the woman pregnant.’

Kuja/ kamba siwo yaakó/ miimba/ ndaakó. ‘If food is not yours, the stomach is yours.’ (A proverb which encourages one to not overdo; just because the food is free, for example, don’t eat until you are sick.)

kulala ka miimba ‘to lie on one’s belly, i.e. prone (on the ground or on a bed)’ kuwa na miimba ‘to be pregnant’

Haliima/ nayo miimba. ‘Haliima is pregnant.’

Muke/ chiwanayo miimba/ haaji/ niingi. ‘If a woman is pregnant, she doesn’t (i.e. should not) eat a lot.’

We/ nayo miimbá. ‘You are pregnant.’

mimba ikulu ‘big stomach, belly’

Miimba/ inakunaaka. ‘The stomach is burning me – i.e. I feel very sad, sick to the stomach.’

miimba/ inamlaazó ‘the stomach that ached him’ miimba/ kaaka/ kana igaaya/ yaa muḷo ‘for the stomach to burn like a potshard of fire (e.g. to hear something thatg makes you sick to your stomach)’ (This simile makes reference to the practice in Brava where if one needs to borrow a fire from a neighbor, one takes a potshard and puts pieces of burning charcoal on it to take home to start a fire.)

Omari/ kufa/ miimba/ inakunaaka/ kana igayaa muḷo. ‘Omari’s death made his stomach hurt.’

miimba yūze khaaka we ni kunuskuma [song] ‘you did not feel remorse (lit. stomach did not burn you), why did you push me aside?’

Miimbaye/ mbovu. ‘His stomach is (filled with) bad (things).’ (That is to say, he keeps everything you tell him, every bad thing you did to him, in his stomach, he does not forget, even if you apologize, he does not forget – he holds a grudge against you.) (A proverbial saying.)

Munt^u hafanyi kaazi/ miimbaye/ waazi. ‘A man who does not work, his stomach is empty (lit. open).’ (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ miimba/ inamlaaza. ‘The child’s stomach is aching.’

Mwaana/ nakulazowa miimba. ‘[Lit.] the child is being ached by stomach -- i.e. the child’s stomach is aching him.’

Omari/ miimba/ imfakeete. ‘Omari’s stomach is expanding [lit. stomach escaped him].’ (Prosody. Despite the somewhat uncanonical look of this sentence, it exhibits downstep intonation and the corresponding simple yes-no question involves no accent-shift. In the exclamatory question, we noted accent shift only in the verb phrase: Omari/ miimba/ imfakeetê!?) waleelo ka miimba qalbi mahzuuni [nt.] ‘lying on their bellies with heavy hearts’

rel.

chi-j-iimba (zi-j-) n. dim. 7/8

Haliima/ chijiimbache/ chihabba. ‘Haliima’s stomach is small.’

i-j-iimba (mi-j-) n. aug. 5/4

Ali/ ijiimbaye/ ikuulu. ‘Ali’s stomach is big.’

Ijiimba/ inaakuḷa/ kana/ igoma. ‘My stomach is crying (making noises) like a drum.’

miimbari

n. [Sw. mimbari SSED 280; Ar. minbar W 939] pulpit (of a mosque); platform where speaker stands to give a speech mabeena qabri ya mtume na miimbari [st.] ‘between the grave of the Prophet and the speaker’s platform’

miimbe

adj. in the expression: so-and-so the big bellied

Nimene Omari miimbé. ‘I saw Omari the bigbellied.’ Or: Nimeené/Omari miimbe. ‘I saw Omari the bigbellied.’ (Note that one cannot separate the two elements of this kind of expression: *nimene Omari/ miimbe.)

Omari miimbe/ fiile. ‘Omari the big bellied passed away.’

Omari miimbe/ ile. ‘Omari the bigbellied came.’

ku-miimina

v. [Sw. mimina SSED 280] (mimiine) pour (a liquid), pour out, let flow full force Ingile chooloni/ mimine maayi. ‘He went into the bathroom and let the water run full force (from the shower).’

Mimine mafta shŭpaani. ‘He poured oil into a small bottle.’

rel.

ku-miminika v. p/s. (miminishile) pour; go fast

Gaari/ humiminika ndila iyi. ‘A car can go fast on this road.’

Gaari/ inakumiminika. ‘The car is going fast.’

kumiminika maatozi/ kana bomba ‘to pour out like tap water’

Maayi/ yanakumiminika ka bombaani. ‘Water is pouring out of the faucet.’

Nvula/ inakumiminika. ‘The rain is pouring down.’

Sku ya taatu/ fijiri/ yanzize darba/ naa nvulá/ ichimiminika. ‘On the morning of the third day a storm began and rain poured down.’

ku-miminikila v. p/s. appl.

Tuuma/ maayi/ yammnikilile. ‘Tuuma, the water poured out for her.’

ku-miminila v. appl. pour for Safiya/ miminilile Amiina/ maayi/ nt^hupaani. ‘Safiya poured water into the bottle for Amiina.’

ku-miminisha v. caus.

Osmaani/ mminishize mwaana/ maayi. ‘Osmaani caused the child to pour water.’

rel. nom.

u-mimino n. 14

u-miminiko n. 14

mimsaha 908] eraser

n. [cf. Ar. mimsah “dust cloth, scraper” W 907 and mamsūh “wiped off, cleaned” W mingisi

n. [Som. mingisi “evil spirit; illness caused by evil spirits” DSI 4378] the beating of drums accompanied by recitations designed to drive away evil spirits (a practice now forbidden by the government)

Jaama Weledi/ ni mwaalimu/ wa mingisi. ‘Jaama Weledi is the teacher of mingisi.’

khfanya mingisi ‘to do mingisi’ kubigilowa mingisi ‘to be played, drummed mingisi for’

Haliima/ nakubigilowa mingisi. ‘Haliima is being drummed mingisi for (i.e. to have evil spirits driven from her).’

Mingisi/ hubigilowa waant^hu/ wanayoo mp^hepó. ‘Mingisi is drummed for people who are possessed by evil spirits.’

l-miingu

n. [Sw. ulimwengu SSED 496] world

ilmu ni kanzi ya lmiingu na akhera [st.] ‘knowledge is a treasure of this world and the hereafter’

Muunt^hu/ chiwanazo peesa/ ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ chiko lminguuni/ hupata. ‘When one has money everything in this world one gets (will get).’

Sikhaafishi/ lminguuni/ na akherá. ‘I will not forgive you in this world and in the world hereafter.’

min al aidin

[lit.] among the celebrators (Arabic); general wish in Chimiini on the occasion of Eid. Obligatory reply (to reciprocate the wish): min al fa’iziin = [lit.] among those who succeeded (in completing the fasting or the pilgrimage) or “among those who - have been accepted”, i.e.whose pilgrimage or fasting has been accepted by God.

Although both expressions are in Arabic, they are used by all waant^hu wa represent the only form of Eid greetings.
- Miini and
- min al fa'iziin [lit.] among those who succeeded (in completing the fasting or the pilgrimage) or “among those who have been accepted”, i.e.whose pilgrimage or fasting has been accepted by God -- the obligatory reply to min al aidiin.
- minha n. 9/10 [Ar. minḥa “grant (of scholarship)” W 926] scholarship (GM was not familiar with this word. He uses boorsa, an Italian loanword.) washpata minha za daraasa ‘if they get scholarships’
- Miini n. Brava, Baarawa
Nakhtiyá/ kendra Miini. ‘I am afraid to go to Brava (e.g. because of Al Shabab activities in the region).’ Or: Naki’itiyá/ Miini/ keendra. ‘I am afraid of it Miini to go to.’ Or: Naki’itiyá/ keendra/ Miini.
- Nakhtiyá/ koloka Miini. ‘I am afraid to go to Brava.’
- minjaniiqi n. [Ar. manjanīq W 926] catapult, mangonel (GM was not familiar with this word.)
- mintidi adj. tough, stubborn, strong-willed Hamadi/ ni mintidi/ mwenye go’aani/ ha’ubleki/ khalbi/ shinda go’aani/ hufaanya. ‘Hamadi is a tough, stubborn man, decisive, he cannot be discouraged, if he decides to do something, he does it.’
- miinza n. [??Sw. giza SSED 116] darkness Ba’ada ya maamaye/ kufa/ mwaana/ duniya/ imweleele /miinza. ‘After his mother died, the world became dark for the boy.’
khfanya miinza ‘to make dark’
Sheekhi mwambile Ali/ habamooyi/ tawaafa/ ruuda/ fanya miinza/ maato/ yanakundraaza/ ka weelo. ‘Sheekhi told Ali lower the lantern little, I cannot see (lit. eyes are lacking me) because of (lack of) light.’
Kuja minzaani/ ni kuja na sheetaani. ‘To eat in the dark is to eat with the devil.’ (A superstition.)
Kuzimu/ ichiwa miinza. ‘The sky became dark.’
minza kana ziinza (variants: minza ka ziinza, minza kamba chiinza) ‘lit. darkness like a piece (or: pieces) of coal -- said of dark moonless night or dark place’ Miimba/ ni miinza. ‘The stomach/intestine is darkness.’ (A proverb which describes the fact that any food will be acceptable to your stomach, since it does not see it.)
muunt^hu sho kiiwa qabriye ni miinza [st.] ‘the man who does not know [these things], his grave is dark’ na ilu ya maayi masku ya miinza [st.] ‘and over a body of water in the darkness of the night [lit. night of darkness] (stating the conditions where taking care of bodily functions is prohibited)’ Numba/ imwelele miinza. ‘The house became dark for him [referring to his mental condition].’
Shkalant^ha karka miinza/ khtuunza/ ya taajiri/ nakfaanyó. ‘He sat in the darkness spying at what the rich man was doing.’
Yanzizopo kuwa miinzá... ‘Around sunset when it began to get dark...’
- ku-miira v. [Som. miir DSI 434] (miriile) filter, strain (a liquid), squeeze (a fruit)
Chiguwo ichi/ hachimiiri/ mafta. ‘This cloth will not serve as a filter the oil.’

Fardoosa/ miriḷe mafta. ‘Fardoosa strained the cooking oil.’
Faatma/ mmiriḷe mwaana/ ipu. ‘Faatma squeezed the child’s boil.’
kumira ndriimu ‘to squeeze a lemon or other citrus fruit’ Haliima/ nakumira ndriimu/ maayi/ fashuuq!/ nakhfanya sparamuuto. ‘Haliima is squeezing out the (lit.) water of the citrus fruit, fashuuq! she is making grapefruit juice.’

rel.

ku-miirika v. p/s.

Mwana uyu/ hamiiriki/ ipu. ‘You cannot squeeze this child’s boil [lit. this child cannot be squeezed his boil].’

ku-mirikila v. p/s. appl.

Mafta/ yammirikilile Salwa. ‘The oil was able to be filtered for Salwa.’

ku-miirila v. appl. (mirilile)

ku-miirisha v. caus. (mirishiize)

Salwa/ mmirishize mwaana/ mafta. ‘Salwa had the child strain the cooking oil.’

ku-mirishiliza v. caus. appl. (mirishiliize)

Faatma/ mmirishilize Salwa/ mwaana/ mafta. ‘Faatma had Salwa’s child strain the cooking oil.’

ku-mirishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-mirishilizeenye)

Faatma/ na Salwá/ wamirishilizenye waana/ mafta. ‘Faatma and Salwa had one another’s children strain the cooking oil.’

rel. nom.

m-miiro n. 3

u-miiro n. 14

miiraathi n. [Sw. mirathi SSED 281; Ar. mīrāt W 1060] inheritance (however, dhahali is the more commonly used word) mirfa’a n. 9/10 [Ar. mirfa’a “hoisting gear” W 350] a wooden, foldable stand locally made used for supporting large books such as the Quran mirfa’a iyi ‘this stand’

miiri n. 10 [Som. miyir, variant miir “ability to distinguish, intelligence, consciousness, mind” DSI 440] mental ability, mind, intellect, conscience Ijini/ ina miiraze. ‘Even the jinn has intelligence, consciousness.’ (A proverb.)

khpata miiri ‘to regain one’s composure after having lost one’s head’

Mukhta’a mi/ mp^heto miiri/ mbene ruuhuya/ ndrani ya ipakachá/ na nt^hukila naawó. ‘When I came to my senses, I found myself inside a basket and I was being carried by them.’

khpotela miiri ‘to lose one’s head, go mad, be astonished’

kh_otowa miiri ‘to lose one’s head’

kh_oza miiri ‘to cause to lose one’s head’

Abooke/ m_ozoze waawaye/ miiri. ‘Abooke confused, bothered his father [to the point of his losing his head].’

Mi/ miiriza/ tamaamu. ‘As for me, my mind is unimpaired.’

Oyo/ nt^haná/ miiri. ‘That one is mad (lit. does not have a mind).’

miriri n. [Som. mirir DSI 439] rust

Chisu/ chingile miriri. ‘The knife is rusty [lit. knife entered rust].’

Chisu/ chingila na miriri. ‘The knife is rusty [lit. the knife was entered by rust].’

khpanda miiri ‘to get rusted’

Lamiyeeri/ kharibu ya tawala/ hupandra miiri/ kahima/ ka uumiito. ‘Corrugated sheets near the sea get rusted quickly from the humidity.’

chi-miiro (zi-) n. 78 sieve

Haliima/ nakumira pompee|mo/ ka chimiiro/ cha laakiri. ‘Haliima is squeezing grapefruit with a plastic sieve.’

ku-miirsata v. [Som. miyrso, variant miirso DSI 440] (mirseete) sober up; come out of the wildness of youth and into the sober maturity, wisdom that comes with age

Muunt^hu/ chishikowa shšana/ hulaṭowa ka yeeye/ haṭá/ chimiirsata. ‘If someone gets angry, he is left alone until he gets back to his senses.’
rel.

ku-miirisha v. [cf. Som. miyiri ‘to bring s.o. to his senses, to calm s.o. down’ DSI 440] calm someone and bring him to his senses, provide means to sober someone up (e.g. give him alka seltzer); subdue someone who has been bullying another person

Muunt^hu/ chiwerersata/ humirishoowa/ ka ṭarṭiibu. ‘If someone gets confused, he is slowly calmed (and returned to his senses).’

ku-mirsatisha v. caus.

misqi n. [Sw. miski SSED 28; Ar. misk ‘musk’ W 909] perfume; [pron. misqi or miskhi] (It is not clear why Arabic k has been borrowed as q in Chimiini.)

variant form: miski

chileteḷoowa miskhi na rihaani/ pokela siize izo nza jannaani [st.] ‘if you are brought a perfume or sweet basil, accept them, do not refuse; those are from Paradise’

khpaka misqi ‘to apply perfume’ misqi hadaari saahibuḷ ihraamu [st.] ‘one who is in the state of ihraamu does not touch perfume’

Misqi/ zinakunuunk^hó. ‘Good smells/perfumes are being emitted (lit. smelling).’

Omari/ nakunuunk^ha/ misqi. ‘Omari is smelling a good smell (like perfume).’

tumila miskhi hufaanyo islaamu [st.] ‘use perfumes that are made by Muslims’

misra n. [Sw. misri SSED 281; Ar. miṣr W 911] Egypt

munt^hu wa misra ‘an Egyptian’

Si/ chinakendra karka nt^hi za misra. ‘We are going to the lands of Egypt.’

Wachoodroka/ wachiruda misra. ‘They departed and returned to Egypt.’

Ye/ safirile sku niingi/ haṭá/ komele misra. ‘He traveled many days until he reached Egypt.’

miite n. [etymology unknown] the long hairs of the tail of an animal (e.g. a horse) (Morph. The morphological structure of this item needs to be determined.) miite ya farasi ‘the hairs of the tail of a horse’ mithaali n. [Sw. mithali SSED 281; Ar. miṭāl W 892] proverb, example; equal, comparable thing; adv. for example; variant form: mathaali

Mathaali/ khufunzilee we/ maato/ mi. ‘For example, I bound your eyes.’

Mathaali/ we/ nakhsula kendra Mkhodiishó/ keeshó/ jimaa tatú/ laakini/nt^hakhaadira/ kulawa. ‘For example, you want to go to Mogadishu tomorrow, Monday, but you cannot travel/leave.’

mi’raji ni ngazi nt^hayna mithaali [st.] ‘[the Prophet’s] ascension is a ladder that has no equal’

ndiye wa kale nt^hana mithaali [st.] ‘he is the One without beginning and without equal’ (For the most part, we follow Sandra Vianello’s suggested practical orthography for the transcription of steeenzi and other written forms of Chimiini. We have diverged primarily in that we continue to indicate aspiration, even though it is largely predictable. We have also chosen to omit all indication of accent, since in the steeenzi there is no manifestation of it in the oral performance. Vianello, on the other hand, retains accent marking in a few cases; e.g. she writes ntaná where we have written nt^hana. It is true that in the spoken language there is ALMOST always a final accent on n^haná. But there is also always a final accent on ndiyé ‘he is’, but Vianello does not write a final accent there. There may very well be some reason to have a different practice in these two cases, but we have preferred to simple omit indication of accent.)

- si shchiparpatooa mithaali ya nt^huungu* [nt.] ‘we were hunted down everywhere as if we were ants’
- Waant^hu/ wanakhfilatiloowa kubarata ka mithaaliye. ‘People are expected to learn from his example.’
- rel.
- mithli n. [Ar. miṭl W 891] comparison
Hamadi wiitu sho mithli =[st.] ‘our incomparable Muhammad’
- miwaani n. 9/10 [Sw. miwani SSED 281; cf. Ar. ‘uwaināt “eyeglasses” W 663] eye-glasses Nakihtaja miwaani/ khsoomela. ‘He needs glasses to read with.’
Nakiyhtaja miwaani/ khsoomela. ‘He needs the glasses to read with.’
Siná/ miwani ya khsoomela. ‘I do not have glasses to read to you with.’
- miya n., adj. [Sw. mia SSED 279; Ar. mi’a W 889] hundred Chint^hu chimooyi/ huzaloo miya. ‘One thing which bears a hundred.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is awuuri ‘seed’.)
Mi/ iwaliko khpata/ ndrutii miya. ‘(For) me, it was (to be the case) to get one hundred blows.’
miyaa miya ‘hundreds and hundreds’ miya keendra ‘nine hundred’ miya/ na ikumí ‘a hundred and ten’ miya/ na keendrá ‘a hundred and nine’ miya/ na mooyí ‘a hundred and one’ miya/ na naané ‘a hundred and eight’ miya/ na nt^haanó ‘a hundred and five’ miya/ naa sabá ‘a hundred and seven’ miya/ na sittá ‘a hundred and six’ miyaa nt^hatu ‘three hundred’
Sku mooyi/ Abunawaasi/ peete/ dinarii miya. ‘One day Abunawaasi found a hundred dinars.’
Sultaani/ naayé/ shfuraha/ nt^ho/ chimpa mwaana/ shilingii miya. ‘The sultan too became very happy and gave the boy one hundred shillings.’
- rel.
- miyateeni n., adj. two hundred
- chi-miya n., adj. [Morphology uncertain, may be an unanalyzable chimiya.] silence, silent Mamele chimaayi. ‘He kept silent.’
nowi ni laazimu na mwiinso chimiya [st.] ‘death is a must and the end is silence’ Numba/ iwaliko chimiya. ‘The house was dead silent.’
- ku-miza v. [This seems to be a word of Bantu origin, but it does not appear in SSED; Sw. does, however, have the related item umio “throat” SSED 500] (miziize) swallow Inoka/ ichimmiza/ muke/ mwiishowe/ uwaliko jis’iyo. ‘The snake swallowed her, the woman’s end was just like that.’
Muunt^hu/ shpowa chaala/ haamizi/ chont^he. ‘If a person is given a finger, he doesn’t swallow all of it.’ (A proverb.)
Ngoombe/ wa Omari/ jibiso/ immiziizó. ‘The snake swallowed Omari’s cow.’
Shpowa chaala/ simizé/ chotte. ‘If you are given a finger, don’t swallow all of it (i.e. if s.o. does you a favor, do not rely on that person for everything, develop self-reliance.’ (A variant of the preceding proverb.)
Weenziwe/ walangalilopo chinumé/ nt^hawamwona/ teena/ ni kama bahari/ immiziizó. ‘When his companions looked back, they did not see him again, it was like the sea had swallowed him.’
Ye/ mizizee dawa. ‘He swallowed the medicine.’

rel.

ku-miliza v.appl. (miliize)

Siná/ mate ya kumiliza. ‘I do not have saliva to swallow with.’

ku-mizisha v. caus. (mizishiize) cause s.o. to swallow s.t.

Nmizishizee kuja. ‘He made me swallow food.’

ku-mizoowa v. pass. be swallowed

Muunt^hu/ chiwa moloolo/ humizowa mzimawe. ‘If someone is soft he is swallowed whole.’ (A proverb.)

miizaani

n. [Sw. mizani SSED 281; Ar. mīzān W 1065] scale, balance (instrument), weight Huwa’andika mizanaani/ ... mbuzi mbilize/ sawa/ tu. ‘He puts them [the goats] on a scale... Both the goats are just alike.’

Kanaa we/ nakhsuḷa kishkiza miizaani/ we/ laazimu/ kuja haba. ‘If you want to lose weight you must eat less.’

khpoṭeza miizaani ‘to lose weight’

Kuwaā ye/ nakhpoṭeza miizaani/ inakanza koonyesha. ‘That he is losing weight is beginning to show.’

khtila mizaniini ‘to weigh (e.g. evaluate someone’s words)’ chi-mizo (zi-)

n. 7/8 throat

Mkhodiisho

n. Mogadishu

Mkhodiisho/ ni muuyi/ mkulu. ‘Mogadisho is a large town.’ Or: Ni muyi mkulu/ Mkhodiisho. ‘It is a large town, Mogadisho.’ (In the second example, the pitch on Mkhodiisho is radically lowered, as is the pattern for a right-dislocated subject.)

ndila ya Mkhodiisho ‘the road to Mogadishu’

Oko/ Mkhodiisho/ mawaziiri/ wa khaariji/ wa nt^hi za chi’aafrika/ wakunt^hameene/ ili kubahitha/ mashaakili/ ya nt^hi zaawo. ‘There in Mogadisho the ministers of foreign affairs of the countries of Africa met in order to look into the problems of their countries.’

ku-mkina

v. [Sw. yamkini SSED 533; cf. Ar. mumkin ‘possible’ W 918] be possible, perhaps Humkina. ‘It is possible; perhaps.’

mkulā

n. 9/10 [no etymological source found] (my) elder brother (but restricted to a brother of a male); [pron. mkulá]

mkulá ‘my elder brother’ (cf. mkulāza ‘my elder brothers’) mkulā mkulu ‘my elder brother’ (cf. mkulāza wakulu ‘my elder brothers’, although an archaic form: wakulā wakulu was also recorded)

Mkulá/ waa we/ mweno numbaani/ ni mwaalimu. ‘My brother, who you saw at the house, is a teacher.’

mkulé ‘his elder brother’

Baana/ na Saabiri/ ni muunt^hu/ na mkulé. ‘Baana and Saabiri are a person and his elder brother.’ (Cf. Baana/ na Saabiri/ ni muunt^hu/ na muné. ‘Baana and Saabiri are a person and his younger brother.’)

Hamadi/ koḏele na mkulé/ tu/ nt^hakhkooḏa/ na ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ mwiingine. ‘Hamadi spoke only to his brother. He did not speak to anyone else.’

mwaana/ na mkulé ‘a boy and his elder brother’

Muunt^hu/ na mkulé/ wa’enzele sukhuuni. ‘The brothers [lit. someone and his elder brother] went to the market.’ (One cannot say ‘the brothers’ because the word ‘brother’ must always be used in conjunction with a possessive ending (and of course must indicate relative age). Instead of ‘brothers’, one says ‘someone and his older brother’, as in the present example. Observe also that one would say: Ali/ na

Nuurú/ ni muunt^hu/ na mkulé. ‘Ali and Nuuru are brothers.’ An alternative to this construction is: Ali/ ni Nuuru/ mkulé. ‘Ali is Nuuru’s older brother.’ or Ali/ ni Nuuru/ muné. ‘Ali is Nuuru’s younger brother.’)

Spisile/ sku niingi/ oko/ kaawo/ mkulé/ Huseeni/ichimwingilamurugu/ ka chiiza/ kumwona/ muné/ sku izi/ zotte. ‘Many days passed, and there at home his older brother, Huseeni, became worried at not seeing his younger brother all these days.’

mkuló ‘your elder brother’

mkulaza ‘my elder brothers’

mkulaze ‘his elder brothers’

Mwaana/ chiwameereja/ mkulaze/ wake/ chivalooza. ‘The boy looked for women for his elder brothers to marry.’

Mwaana/ na mkulazé/ wachizajilowa waana. ‘The boy and his elder brothers were born to children.’

Wote/ baaba/ maama/ na mkulazé/ teena/ wachoondroka/ ka nt^hi izo/ wacheendra/ khkala na Yuusufu. ‘All -- father, mother, and elder brothers -- then moved from these lands and went to live with Joseph.’ (The final accent on mkulaze in this example is not due to an inherent final accent on mkulaze but rather to the fact that it is preceded by the conjunction na.)

Yuusufu. chanza khfatisha/ mizigo/ ya mkulaze/ qabla ya mzigu/ waa muné. ‘Joseph began to inspect the bags of his older brothers before the bag of his younger brother.’

mkulazo ‘your older brothers’

Mkulazo/ wa’ikalant^hijiile/ ka sabri/ walá/ nt^haku/ mooyi/ kati kaawo/ nakhsulo khuraashá. ‘Your older brothers stayed at home, patiently, neither does any one of them want to follow you.’

Mwaanawa/ siwafungulilé/ mkulazo/ ndroto zaa we/ weenó/ seendré/ mkulazo/ kawakhufanya ziwovú. ‘My son, do not tell your older brothers the dreams that you have seen, lest your elder brothers do harm to you.’

Mwaanawa/ siwafungulilé/ mkulazo/ ndroto zaa we/ weenó/ seendré/ mkulazo/ kawakhufanya ziwovú. ‘My son, do not tell your older brothers the dreams that you have seen, lest your elder brothers do harm to you.’

mloi

said of sea in the days of lunar month when there is not a great difference between high tide and low tide.

-mo

locative copular root which appears in a great variety of forms chiimo ‘it [cl.7] is in’, nt^hachiimo ‘it [cl.7] is not in’

Chibuuku/ chimo sandukhuuni/ chiimó. ‘The book is in the box, that’s where it is.’

Chibuuku/ shchiwa nt^hachiimo/ sandukhuuni/ chimera

kabatiini. ‘If the book is not in the box, look for it in the cupboard.’

Chimo numbaani. ‘It’s in the house.’

Chimo sandukhuuni. ‘It’s in the box.’ (Or: Chimo karka sandukhuuni. ‘It’s in the box.’)

Chisu/ chimo (karka) sandukhu gani. ‘In which box is the knife?’

(It does not seem possible to say: Chisu chimo (karka) sandukhuuni gani.)

hashtakuwaamo

Chibuuku/ hashtakuwaamo/ sandukhuuni. ‘The book will not be in the box.’

liimo [cl.11] copular

Luti/ liimo numbaani. ‘The stick is in the house.’

niimo

Mi/ nimo madrasaani. ‘I am in the school.’

Mi/ nimo mtanaani. ‘I am in the room.’

Niimó. 'I am in.'

niimo

Niimó. 'You (pl.) are in.'

nt^hachiimo 'we are not in'

nt^hachiimo '[cl.7] is not in'

Chibuuku/ nt^hachiimo/ sandukhuuni. 'The book is not in the box.' (Note that negative verbs do not permit Verb Copy, hence the unacceptability of *Chibuuku/ nt^hachiimo/ sandukhuuni/ nt^hachiimó. 'The book is not in the box, that's where it isn't.'

Chibuuku/ shchiwa nt^hachiimo/ sandukhuuni/ chimeera kabatiini. 'If the book is not in the box, look for it in the cupboard.'

Nakumera chibuukú/ nt^hachimo sandukhuuní/ (nakumeeró). 'I am looking for the book that is not in the box (that's what I am looking for).'

Ni chibuuku/ nt^hachimo sandukhuuní. 'It is the book that is not in the box.'

nt^haamo [cl.1] negative copular

Nt^haamo/ muunt^hu/ mṭanaani. 'The man is not in the room.'

nt^haamu

Nt^hamu muunt^hu/ mṭanaani. 'There isn't a man in the room' nt^hawaamo 'they [cl.2] are not in'

nt^huumo 'you are not in'

sichiwaamo

Sulile chibuuku/ sichiwaamo/ sandukhuuni. 'He wanted that the book not be in the box.' (Note that the negative morpheme si- in this example does not elide its vowel in front of the voiceless obstruent in the SM.) review this point

siimo 'I am not in'

Ama/ mi/ siimo. 'As for me, I am not involved.'

Simo numbaani. 'I am not at home.'

umó second person singular copular khuwonaa we/ karka dhibu yaa we/ umó 'to see you in the dire straits that you are in'

umo [cl.1] copular

Muunt^hu/ umo mṭanaani. 'The man is in the room.'

sandukhuuni/ mahaḷaa noka/ umó 'the box in which there is a snake'

Umo markabuuni. 'He is on the ship.'

Umo muunt^hu/ mooyi/ hakhaadiri. 'There is one person sick.'

Umo muunt^hu/ mṭanaani. 'There is a man in the room.'

↑Umo muunt^hu/ mṭanaani. 'Is there any man in the room?' review

accent issue

↑Umo/ muunt^hu/ mṭanaani? 'Is the man in the room?' Or:

↑Muunt^hu/ umo mṭanaani?

waamo [cl.2] copular

Apa/ wamo waant^hu/ wazima. 'There are old people here.'

sulṭaani/ wawenopo wamo karka dahshá... 'when the sultan looked and found them in such bewilderment'

yaamo [cl.6] copular

Ma'uwa/ yamo shkapuuni. 'The flowers are in the basket.'

Ndani ya numba iyi/ yamo maali/ miingi/ wamo waant^hu/ wiingi/zimo zoombo/ ziingi/ na zakuja ziingi. 'Inside this house there is much wealth, there are many people, there are many things and much food.'

yiimo [cl.5] copular

yiimo [cl.9] copular

- Nama/ yiimopi. ‘Where is the meat (in)?’ (A possible answer to this question: Nama/ yimo sandukhuuni. ‘The meat is in the box.’)
- Sanduukhu/ yiimoni. ‘What is in the box? What does the box contain?’ (A possible answer to this question: Sanduukhu/ yimoo nama. ‘The box contains meat.’)
- Yiimoni/ sandukhuuni. ‘What is in the box?’ (A possible answer to this question: Yimoo nama. ‘Meat is in it.’)
- Yiimopi/ nama. ‘Where is the meat (in)?’ (A possible answer to this question: Yimo sandukhuuni. ‘It is in the box.’)
- ziimo [cl.8] copular
Ziwo za waawaye/ zimo nḽhini ya mvuungu. ‘The books of his father were under the bed.’
- ziimo [cl.10] copular
Ndruti/ zimo numbaani. ‘The sticks are in the house.’
- mo n. heart of an animal, which may be eaten Wako wantḽu/ hawaaji/ mo. ‘There are (some) people, they do not eat the heart of an animal.’
- mo/ ka mo directly
Sa’iidi/ chishkila/ ka mlongotiini/ na mo/ ka mo/ cheenda/ ka ujé/ muke/ chimweleeza/ zaa ye/ weenó. ‘Sa’iidi climbed down the mast and directly went to that woman and reported what he had seen.’
Sa’iidi/ ingiile/ nḽ^hi iyo/ na oloshela/ mo/ ka mo/ ingile sukhuuni. ‘Sa’iidi entered that land and went directly and entered the market.’
- moo’idi n. [Ar. mau’id ‘pledge, engagement, appointment’ W 1081] a place or time to meet, an appointment
Nnayo moo’idi/ na Nureení. ‘I have an appointment with Nureení.’ (In GM’s speech, the first person subject marker is null before the present tense marker na. MI, on the other hand, usually retains a geminate nasal in this situation. We usually write the geminate due to its presence helps to identify the verb as first person.)
- mo’jeza n. [Ar. mu’jiz W 592] miracle, wonder variant forms: mo’jiza, mu’jeza cheendra Makka isa takuwona mo’jiza/ ka kuwa niingi fikiri hu’ajiza [st.] ‘when you go to Mecca you will see so many miracles/ that the mind is too weak to grasp them all’ na saantḽize takuwona alaama/ makaaloye mo’jiza karaama [st.] ‘you will see the mark of his footprints/ where he walked, a great miracle’ nawone mo’jeza ya kulla kuzimu [st.] ‘so that he sees the wonders of each of the (seven) heavens (in Islamic cosmology)’ tumiilo kiitu mitume ka mo’jeza [st.] ‘who sent us prophets with miracles’
- mooda n. [Ital. moda] fashion
- mooḽi [Som. mowd ‘death’ DSI 442] in:
mwana mooḽi ‘a stillborn child’
Zazile mwana mooḽi. ‘She gave birth to a stillborn child.’
- mooḽu’u n. [Ar. mauḽu’ W 1078] topic
- mooja n. [this form is not apparently used in Sw., where mungu SSED 315 or mola SSED 295 is used] God, owner, master variant form: mwooja
rel.
mooje n. his God, his master; [pron. moojé]

- Ka ye/ na moojé. ‘[Lit.] between him and his God -- meaning: if s.o. has done s.t. wrong, justice is better left to God, he will be accountable to God for it, or: he will have to justify his action before God.’
Kanaa ye/ khuḍuḥiile/ mlate/ ka ye/ na moojé. ‘If he cheated you, let him be, the matter will be settled between him and God.’
Saalimu/ olosehele ka moojé. ‘Saalimu went to the Lord – i.e. he died.’
Sultaani/ chamura moojé/ khfanyilizowa maayi/ mamulo/ koowela/ na khpikilowa zaakujá. ‘The sultan ordered warm water to be prepared for his master to bathe in and food to be cooked [for him].’
- mooji n. [Ar. mauj W 930] wave (of the sea)
- mojiitu n. God
variant form: mwajiitu
Fanyiize/ jahazi/ pamooyi/ na msaa’ada/ wa waant^hu/ wamwaminiloo ye/ na mwajiituwé. ‘He made an ark (lit. boat) with the help of people who believed in him and his God.’
kumtiya/ kana mojiitu ‘to fear him as one fears God’ Mtume Nuuhu/ waliko tumiila/ na mwajiitu. ‘Prophet Noah was sent forth by God.’
- mojiitu na mrehemu fixed phrase: God’s mery be on him, used in referring to someone dead Shekh Nureeni/ fiile/ mojiitu/ na mrehemu. ‘Shekh Nureeni is dead, God’s mercy be on him.’
- moka
Chishikaa ndila/ moka/ mo/ hattá/ numbaani/ ka sultaani. ‘He followed the road straight to the home of the sultan.’
Mweenza,/ haba moka/ kala ka zaaydi. ‘My friend, stay a little while longer.’
Siimba/ moka/ mo/ chilekela numba iyó. ‘The lion headed straight towards that house.’
- moola n. 9/10 [Ital. molla] (metal) spring
- ku-moola v. [Sw. nyoa SSED 346] (moozele) shave
Chimmolaa mp^hisi/ ndrevu/ izo/ chistukula/ chendra naazo/ ka chizeele. ‘She shaved off the hyena’s beard [lit. beards – i.e. the hairs constituting the beard] and went with them to the old woman.’
Muke/ mozele chiṭa cha mwaana/ kaa chisu. ‘The woman shaved the head of the child with a knife.’ (Cf. Muke/ mmozele mwaana/ chiṭa/ kaa chisu. ‘The woman shaved the child’s head with a knife.’
Nimmozele muunt^hú. ‘I shaved the man.’
Nimmozele muunt^hú/ ka chireezá. ‘I shaved the man with a razor.’
Tuuma/ mmozele Haaji/ chiṭa. ‘Tuuma shaved Haaji’s head.’ Or: Tuuma/ mmozele/ Haaji/ chiṭa. ‘Tuuma shaved Haaji’s head.’ (When the verb is not a final-accent trigger, then the presence of focus is not reflected in terms of accent placement. Thus a sentence like Tuuma/ mmozele Haaji/ chiṭa. has the same default accent placement as the example sentence Tuuma/ mmozele Haaji/ chiṭa. There is, however, a difference in pronunciation, as Haaji in the latter case is downstepped but when focused, it is raised in pitch.)
- rel.
ku-moolela v. appl. (moleele) shave for, with chireza chaa mi/ nmoolelo muunt^hú ‘the razor that I used to shave the man’
Muke/ nmoolele waana/ ziṭa/ kaa chisu. ‘The woman shaved the children’s heads for me with a knife.’ review pronunciation of the 1 sg obj Nimmoolele muunt^hú/ chireeza. ‘I shaved the man with a razor.’ (This pitch pattern, where the final accent triggered by the first person past tense verb does not project beyond the first complement, is the consequence of focus on that complement.)

Nuuru/ tiyile kumolela Ali/ chireza ichi. ‘Nuuru was afraid to shave Ali with this razor.’ (It is possible to prepose the instrument in front of the applied instrumental verb and have the main verb bear an object marker governed by this preposed instrument: Nuuru/ shtiyile chireza ichi/ kumolela Ali. ‘Nuuru was afraid for this razor to be used to shave Ali (e.g. the razor is not sharp enough).’)

Tete chireeza/ kumolela. ‘He took a razor to shave with.’

Tete chireeza/ kummolela. ‘He took a razor to shave him with.’

Tete chireeza/ ku-n-molela. ‘He took a razor to shave me with.’

ku-moleloowa v. appl. pass. (moleela)

Molela waana/ zita/ kaa chisu/ naa muké. ‘[Lit.] I was shaved for the children’s heads with a knife by the woman.’

Molela naani/ chireeza. ‘Who was shaved with a razor?’ (Observe that in the case of the instrumental applied verb, the thing directly affected may be the subject of the passive sentence. Incidentally, a possible answer to the question given here would be: Molela Hamadi. ‘Hamadi was shaved with it.’ Hamadi is the subject and controls the subject marker, which is null in this case, but appears in post-verbal position.)

Molela naani/ Hamadi. ‘Who was shaved for Hamadi.’ (In this sentence, Hamadi is the subject of the verb. Naani questions who was affected by the action, not who benefitted from the action. Notice that in post-verbal position naani must follow the verb since that is the position for focus and question words are inherently focused. It is also phrased with the verb. A possible answer to this question: Molela mwaana. ‘(His) child was shaved (for him).’)

Naani/ molela Hamadi. ‘Who was shaved for Hamadi?’ (This sentence is somewhat deceiving in its word order. The verb moleela is a passive of a benefactive applied verb moleela. In the passive, it is only the beneficiary that can be the subject. Thus in the sentence at hand, it is Hamadi that is the subject of the verb, not naani ‘who?’ Naani questions the identity of the person shaved. Because it is located in pre-verbal position in this example, it requires the pseudo-relativization of the verb. Note furthermore that the subject of the verb is not only shifted to post-verbal position, but it actually phrases together with the verb. The postponing of the subject is not obligatory, however: Naani/ Hamadi/ moleela. ‘Who is it that Hamadi was the beneficiary of his being shaved?’)

ku-moleloowa v. pass. (moleela) be shaved

Chitaache/ chiwaliko chimolela. ‘His head was shaven.’

ka muunt^hi waa saba mwaana moleloowa [st.] on the seventh day (after birth) the child is shaved’

Muunt^hu/ mozela ka chireeza. ‘The man was shaved with a razor.’ (This passive construction is preferred to one based on the instrumental applied verb: ?Muunt^hu/ molela chireeza.

Mwaana/ mozela chita/ kaa chisu/ naa muke. ‘The child(’s head) was shaved with a knife by the woman.’ (Syn. Note that it is ungrammatical to make chita the subject of the passive verb:

Chita/ chimolela mwaana/ kaa chisu/ naa muke. One can, however, rearrange the word order: Chita/ mozela mwaana/ kaa chisu/ naa muke.) ku-moolana v. rec.

ku-molanila v. rec. appl.

ku-moleka v. p/s.

ku-molesha v. caus. (moleesha)

Khaliifa/ molesheze mwaana/ ruuhuye. ‘Khaliifa made the child shave himself.’ (Syn. The reflexive pronoun ruuhuye can only be co-referential with the “causee”, mwaana in the present sentence, and not the subject, Khaliifa. This regularity holds for the causative verb. Otherwise, the reflexive must be the primary object and be co-referential with the subject.)

-mole adj. shaved

chidevu chimoole ‘a shaved chin’ chita chimoole ‘a shaved head’

moomini adj. faithful

Moomini/ ni waant^hu/ humti’a mojiitu/ ka kilaa chiint^hu/ na kilaa waqti/ hawam’aansi/ mojiitu/ humaamina/ ka kilaa chiint^hu/ chaa ye/ hadiilo. ‘Faithful (people) are people who fear God in every thing and at every time, they do not negate him, they deeply believe in all that he says.’

moomini	adj. [Ar. mu'min W 29] believer (esp. of Islam), faithful, good person Abú/ sala/ ha'imgafi/ ni moomini. 'Abu, praying does not miss him (i.e. he never fails to pray), he is a righteous believer.' munt^hu moomini 'a believer'; want^hu moomini 'believers' Sheetaani/ humpata moomini. 'Evil (lit. Satan) gets a good person (i.e. bad things happen to good people).' (A proverb.)
moomo/ umunu	locative emphatic demonstrative, first position moomo/ umunu/ m̄tanaani 'in this very room, in this room itself'; or: umunu/ moomu/ m̄tanaani 'ibid.'
moomo/ omo	locative emphatic demonstrative, second position Chibuuku/ chimo moomo/ omo/ sandukhuuni. 'The book is there in the box (close to you -- so don't stop looking, so look carefully for it, etc.).' moomo/ omo/ m̄tanaani 'right there in the room (close to you)'; or omo/ m̄tanaani/ moomo 'ibid.'; or m̄tanaani/ moomo/ omo 'ibid.'; but not *m̄tanaani/ omo/ moomo , which our consultant regarded as "weird"
moomo/ umuje	locative emphatic demonstrative, third position Chibuuku/ chimo moomo/ umuje. 'The book is there somewhere inside the box (over there, away from us).' moomo/ umuje/ m̄tanaani 'in that very room, in that room itself'; or: umuje/ moomo/ m̄tanaani 'ibid.'
moordi	n. [Som. moordi] red sorghum Fasali iyi/ ndaa gele/ na moordi. 'This is the season of maize and sorghum.' mat̄aza ya moordi 'porridge made from sorghum'
mooro	n. [Som. mooro "enclosure for animals" DSI 442] fenced-in enclosure Apo/ ndilaani/ uwaaliko/ mooro/ uyeeló/ ngoombé/ za sul̄taani. 'There outside there was a fenced-in enclosure full of the cattle of the sultan.' Chakujaache/ mpelekelowa morooni. 'She wants her food brought to the backyard.' review the verb form... loc subj? Chinume cha nuumba/ uwaliko mooro/ uyelo farasi. 'Behind the house was a yard filled with horses.' kht̄ilowa morooni 'to be put under someone's control' Kht̄ilowa muunt^hu/ morooni/ siwo/ suura. 'To be put under someone's control is not good.' kuḷawa morooni 'to get out someone's control' Nuuru/ lazile/ morooni/ ka Hamadi. 'Nuuru got out from Hamadi's control.' kumtila morooni 'to have s.o. under your control' Hamadi/ mtilee mbuzi/ morooni/ kaake. 'Hamadi put the goats under his custody (lit. in his fence).' Nuuru/ mtile Omari/ morooni/ kaake. 'Nuuru put Omari under his control.' (The recording of this sentence exhibited canonical downstep intonation.) Morooni/ walimo ngamiila/ mooyi. 'In the enclosure there was a camel.' Orii mbili/ hawaakali/ karka moro mooyi. 'Two roosters cannot live in a single enclosure.' (A proverb.)
moroodi	n. [Som. maroodi DSI 419] elephant ni kana moroodi 'he is like an elephant (i.e. a big, stout, strong man)'
moosimu	n. [cf. Sw. msimu SSED 303; Ar. mausim "time of the year, season" W 1070] season of the year Muke/ uzilo muundrá/ nakhfanya khorsha/ mosimu uyu/ kalaa gele. 'The woman who has bought the farm is planning to cultivate this season.’

- Mosko n. Moscow
Oko/ Mosko/ wafafisha khabari/ wahadiile/ ya kuwa waruusi/ wa’ulushiize qamari/ sinaa’i. ‘There in Moscow reporters said that the Russians had launched a satellite (artificial moon).’
- mooskolo n. mussels
Mafakhaani/ hupatikana mooskolo/ na ostriiká/ niingi. ‘At Mafakhaani one can find a lot of mussels and ostrich mussels.’
- mooti n. 3 [Sw. mauti SSED 264; Ar. maut W 930] death variant form: mowti
Hasiibu/ ishiize/ karka raaha/ na amaani/ hatá/ mowti/ umwiliilopó. ‘Hasiibu lived in comfort and peace until death came for him.’
Huyo apá/ huwa nakumera mowti. ‘The one who comes here is looking for death.’
Mooti/ nt’ha’uná/ wakhti. ‘Death has no time – i.e. it can come any time.’ Is this a proverb?
Moṭi wa jamaa’a/ ni haruusi. ‘A death in a group or family is a marriage.’ (A proverb.)
mowti ya Harun Rashiidi ‘the death of Harun Rashiidi’ Moṭi wa waawaye/ umhuzunishiize. ‘The death of his father saddened him.’
Skhaambila/ mi/ kuwa ndiwé/ takuwo sababu ya mootiwa. ‘Did I not tell you that it is you who will be the cause of my death?’
Taksabiba mootiwa. ‘You will cause my death.’
- mooto n. [Ital. moto, shortened from motocicletta] motorcycle Huseeni/ uzile baaskiili/ na mootó/ ba’adiye/ na uziize. ‘Huseeni bought a bicycle and a motorbike, and then sold them.’ (Notice that it is not required to add an object marker to the final verb, though it is of course possible: na zuziize ‘and sold them’. Also notice that the agreement for the conjoined singular nouns is [cl.10] zi.)
- moṭoore n. 9/10 [Ital. motore] motor, engine; steamboat used to unload cargo from ships, tugboat used to pull vessels to the dock Ali/ patilile gaari/ moṭoore. ‘Ali got an engine for the car.’
moṭore ya gaari ‘the engine of the car’
Moṭoore/ ya gaari/ imuḷo/ inakuḷawa yifke. ‘The motor of the truck is hot, heat is coming out.’
Omari/ ulile gaari/ moṭoree mp^hiya. ‘Omari bought a new engine for the car.’
- mootulfuja sudden death [Ar. expression maut “death” W 930 + verb faj’a “to grieve” W 697] Arabicism
- mowla n. [Ar. maulan W 1101] lord, master; the Lord = God ya rabbi ya muṭa’ali / mowla peeke sho mithaali [st.] ‘O Lord Most High, the one and only peerless lord’
- mowlana n. our lord (mowla + Ar. poss.), used both as an attribute of God and as honorific for people Mowlana Muhyidiini ‘Our lord Muhyiddin’ (Note that this is another name of Sheikh Abdulqaadir al-Jilaani)
- mowliidi n. 6 the birthday of Mohammad variant form: mooliidi Mowliidi/ ya’anziiza. ‘The celebration of Mohammad’s birthday was begun.'

Mowliidi/ ya'anziize. 'The celebration of Mohammad's birthday has begun.'

Mowliidi/ ya'ikhṭimiila. 'The celebration of Mohammad's birthday was completed.'

mowṭi

n. death

Mwaana/ chiwa'ambila/ ya kuwa shtiisho/ hachireebi/ mowṭi. 'The boy told them that fear does not stop death.'

Mweenziwa/ wa piili/ mowṭi/ umteete/ naayé/ nakṭekó. 'My second companion, death took him while he was laughing.'

mowṭujama

only used in the proverb:

Mowṭujama/ ni haruusi. 'Dying in a group is (like) a wedding.' (A proverb roughly equivalent to "misery loves company". If one is not alone in suffering afflictions etc., the situation is not so bad. Hard times are best faced together with others.)

-mo(oyi)

one; the same; some

Haba mooyi/ kala ka zaaydi/ mweenza. 'A little while stay longer, my friend.' (A vocative in final position is radically lowered in pitch.)

Haqi/ ni haqi/ wanaadamu/ wotte/ ni wamooyi/ ondroka/ shfanyeeni/ haruusi/ iyi. 'Right is right; all human beings are the same; stand up, let's make this marriage.'

ijiko imooyi 'one cooking stone'

Ka want^hu wamooyi/ daaba/ ni daaba/ walá/ nt^haziná/ athari/ ilu ya wanaadamu. 'For some people, animals are [just] animals, neither do they have significance for human beings.'

mo(oyi) ka mooyi 'directly'

ndila ya mooyi/ ka mooyi 'a straight, direct road'

Wakomelopo muyiini/ sulṭaani/ na wamrashiizó/ wote/ mo/ ka mooyi/ wachilekela chisimaani. 'When they reached the town, the sultan and the ones who followed him, all headed straight to the well.'

Muyiini/ apo/ waliko mzeele/ muke/ mooyi/ maskiini/ wanayo mwana mo. 'In town there, there was an old person, a poor woman, who had one child.' (Phon. Observe that the shortened form mo does not behave like a monosyllabic word with a short vowel: the preceding vowel does not lengthen. This apparently reflects the fact that mo in actuality is mooyi, and mooyi would not induce lengthening in front of it.)

Shtala chihaba mooyi/ schisaaló. 'She took a little piece that remained.'

Wamooyi/ awaje/ maskiini/ wachingila mpenda sulṭaani. 'Some, they are poor people, beganto love the sultan.'

rel.

chimochooyi adv. one by one moymooyi adv. one after the other

Muskitiini/ iriiri/ waant^hu/ wanakuḷawa/ moymooyi/ tu. 'At the mosque it is crowded, people are coming out one by one.'

Wafanya makosa/ waleesela/ moymooyi. 'Those who had done wrong were brought one after the other (in the story: to be judged).'

Waana/ wamoo safa/ wanakingila skolaani/ moymooyi. 'Children are in line, they are entering the school one by one.'

mooyo

n. 3 [Sw. mooyo SSED 296] heart (Even back in the 1970's, our consultant MI considered this word to be used primarily by elderly people; younger speakers used the word qalbi.)

Mooyowe/ uchiyela furaha. 'Her heart filled with joy.'

rel.

mo n. (a shortened version of mooyo) used for the edible heart of animals

mooyo

in the expression: kubiga mooyo ‘to yawn’

Hamadi/ nakubiga mooyo/ tamilyaawata. ‘Hamadi is yawning too much (lit. you will be amazed at him).’

Omari/ ofeete/ shishiya usiinzizi/ nakubiga mooyo. ‘Omari is tired, and sleepy; he is yawning.’

Mpaayi

n. one of the four main quarters of Brava, characterized by the houses being constructed of stone; [pron. Mp^haayi]

chimini cha Mp^haayi ‘the Chimiini spoken in Mp^haayi’

-mpi

interrogative root: which? [pron. -mp^hi]

Chibuku chiimp^hi/ chaako/ chibeeló. ‘Which book of yours is lost?’ (Less common is: Chibukucho chiimp^hi/ chibeeló. ‘Your book which is lost?’)

Chibuku chiimp^hi/ karka zaa we/ uziló/ we/ someeló. ‘Which book of those you brought did you read?’

Chibuku chiimp^hi/ we/ suliló. ‘Which book did you want?’ (Note that when -mp^hi precedes the verb, the verb must be put into pseudo-relative form. It is ungrammatical to have the verb in its main clause form: Chibuku chimp^hi/ we/ sulilé. The difference between main clause and pseudo-relative form in this case depends entirely on the choice of the final vowel, -o in the pseudo-relative and -e in the main clause form. Because the verb is past tense affirmative and second person, the accent is final in both the relative and in the main clause form.)

Chint^hu chiimp^hi. ‘Which thing?’ Cf. Zint^hu ziimp^hi. ‘Which things?’

Ijiwe yiimp^hi. ‘Which stone?’ Cf. Majiwe yaamp^hi. ‘Which stones?’

Karka wana wa Omari/ mwana mwiimp^hi/ mbishilo Sheekhi. ‘Among Omari’s children, which one hit Sheekhi?’

Luti liimp^hi. ‘Which stick?’ Cf. Ndruti ziimp^hi. ‘Which sticks?’

Mbwa mwiimp^hi/ mlumilo mwana wa Nuuru. ‘Which dog bit Nuuru’s child?’ Or:

Mbwa mwiimp^hi/ mlumilo mwaaná/ wa Nuuru.

Mbwa mwiimp^hi/ mlumilo Omari. ‘Which dog bit Omari?’

Munt^hu ump^hi. ‘Which person?’ Cf. Want^hu waamp^hi. ‘Which people?’

Mwanaashke mwiimp^hi/ we/ nampeendó. ‘Which girl do you like?’

Ngombe ump^hi. ‘Which cow?’ Or: Ngombe yiimp^hi. (The first form exhibits ‘human’ ([cl.1]) agreement, while the second form exhibits [cl.9] agreement. The plural form of the noun has the same two options: Ngombe waamp^hi. ‘Which cows?’ or Ngombe ziimp^hi. However, human agreement is the norm in the case of the singular while [cl.10] agreement is the norm in the case of the plural noun.)

Numba yiimp^hi. ‘Which house?’ Cf. Numba ziimp^hi. ‘Which houses?’

Uhuru ump^hi. ‘Which freedom?’

Wana waamp^hi/ wa Nuuru/ wa’olosheló. ‘Which children of Nuuru’s left?’

Want^hu waamp^hi/ wagurilo hafaani. ‘Which people moved away from the neighborhood?’

Zombo ziimp^hi/ Ali/ leeseló/ zibeeló. ‘Which things that Ali brought got lost?’

mpiindri

[pron. mp^hiindri]

conj. [cf. Sw. kipindi ‘portion of time’ and pindi ‘when, if’ SSED 378-9] if, so long as;

Mp^hiindri/ yaa we/ chimshiindra/ ye/ takuwa mukeewo. ‘In the event that you defeat her, she will be your wife.’

We/ takuwa muunt^hu/ mu’tarafu/ mp^hiindri/ yo/ kanayo/ ichiwa nfuungufu. ‘You will be someone recognized if your mouth be open (in the context of the text: praising your superiors).’

Weenza/ ni weenza/ mp^hiindri/ yaa we/ chidekheka naawo. ‘Friends are friends so long as you do not depend on them.’

- mu- [cl.1] object prefix; morphophonemic variants: mu, m(w), m- Ka khisa/ mi/ nnakhsulā kumublā. ‘Because I want to kill him.’
kamaa ye/ chimubli ‘if he kills him, it [cl.1]’ kamaa ye/ chimuja ‘if he eats [cl.1] (e.g. a goat)’ kamaa ye/ chimuza ‘if he asks him’ kumbiga ‘to beat him/her [cl.1]’
Nk^ha’oloké/ sulā (ku)mwona. ‘If I went, I would see him.’ Or: Sulā (ku)mwona/ nk^ha’oloké. ‘I would see him if I went.’
Simkooðishé. ‘Don’t talk to him!’ or ‘Don’t make him talk!’
Waana/ wambozele mwaalimu/ chibuuku. ‘The children stole a book from the teacher.’
Waana/ wampelelee muke/ nt^hi. ‘The children swept the floor for the woman.’
(We/) ka’oloké/ sulā mpata. ‘If you went, you would find him.’
- mu- [cl.1] noun class prefix
mgeeni ‘stranger, guest’
muke ‘woman’
m(w)aalimu ‘teacher’
- mu- [cl.3] noun class prefix
muti ‘tree’
- mu- [cl.1] agreement prefix on adjective; allomorphs: m-, m(w)- Suyú/ mbuzi mzeelé/ suyú/ mbuzi mwaaná. ‘This is the older goat and this is the younger goat.’ (In this example sentence, the [cl.9] noun mbuzi ‘goat’ triggers [cl.1] agreement on the adjective stems -zeele ‘old’ and -aana ‘young’.)
- mu- [cl.3] agreement prefix on adjective; m- in most pre-consonantal positions, but mu- in front of a monosyllabic root; m(w) in prevocalic position (the glide appearing in the speech of MI, but elided in the present-day language we have observed) Muuyi/ mzimawe/ washizaa tala. ‘The whole town was lit with lamps.’
Nnakhsulāa muti/ unawee mulé. ‘I want that the tree be tall.’
- mu’aahada n. 9 [Ar. mu’āhada ‘agreement, arrangement’ W 652] agreement; a date (between a man and a woman)
Keesho/ masku/ si/ chinayo mu’aahadá. ‘Tomorrow evening we have a date.’
Mu’ahada yiitu/ nt^ha’ikuwaaliko/ si/ kula numba. ‘Our agreement wasn’t that we buy a house.’
Mu’ahada yiitu/ yaaliko/ si/ kudirkamana ka Omari/ numbaani. ‘Our agreement was that we meet at Omari’s house.’
- mu’akadi adj. recommended
Tahajudi/ husaloowa/ maskuu kati/ ni sunna/ mu’akadi. ‘Tahajudi is prayed around midnight, it is a strongly recommended sunna’ ziyaara za Mtume sunna mu’akaddi/ takiink^hiro mlāte nt^hanaayo madadi [st.] ‘(the obligation to) visit the Prophet is a confirmed tradition/ do not heed whoever denies this, he does not have God’s support’
- mu’aamala n. [Ar. mu’āmala ‘treatment, behaviour, business’ W 646] dealings kamu mu’aamala huwo haraamu [st.] ‘how many dealings can become unlawful?’
- mu’aamara n. [Ar. mu’āmara W 27] plot mp^hana/ mukhtaa wo/ wa’iwiiló/ kuwa mu’amara waawó/ ufashilishilé... ‘when the rats knew that their plan had failed’
- mu’aawana n. help, assistance

Dowla/ ya Amerikaano/ iwaṭindiḷile ma'askari/ ya Somaaliya/ mu'aawana/ yaa kuja/ ka sababu/ mamulii mbovu. 'The American government cut assistance for food to the soldiers of Somalia because of bad administration.'

mu'iini

n. [Ar. mu'in W 659] an attribute of God (=the Helper, the Supporter)

mu'jiza (mi'ujiza)

n. miracle, miraculous thing

Laakini/ chizeele/ icho/ chiwa'onyeze mu'jiza. 'But that old woman showed them something miraculous.'

Na nnayo mi'ujiza/ niye/ nikhonyeze. 'And I have miraculous things that I have come to show you.' (Syn. It does not appear that the subjunctive verb niye 'that I have come' has a relative form, hence the absence of relative clause morphology and phonology.)

mu'tamidi

n. worthiness of being relied on Hamadi/ nt'ana/ mu'tamidi. 'Hamadi is not reliable.'

mu'tarafu

adj.

We/ takuwa muunt^hu/ mu'tarafu/ mp^hiindri/ yo/ kanayo/ ichiwa nfuungufu. 'You will be someone recognized if your mouth be open (in the context of the text: praising your superiors).'

mubaaha

n. [Ar. mubāh W 81] s.t. allowed or permitted or accepted, but not required; something good, nice, joyful etc.

Haruusi/ ni mubaaha. 'A wedding is something joyful.'

mubli kumoola chitaache mubaaha/ laakini muke na nk'ope ikraaha [st.] 'it is proper for a man to shave his head, but it is reprehensible for a woman to shave her eyebrows'

Ni mubaaha. 'It is lawful.'

muda

n. 3,9 [Sw. muda SSED 313; Ar. mudda W 897] period of time; when (as a variant of mukhta); [pron. muda or mudda] (Perhaps this item should be regarded as having the morphology mu-da, but we are not aware of any evidence of an independent root -da. Furthermore, it may be treated either as a [cl.3] or a [cl.9] noun.)

Ka mudda/ wa sku sitta/ wachiwa fijiri/ hendra maduriini/ khinda skunyi. 'For a period of six days whenever it became morning, they went to the bush to cut firewood.'

Kalent^he maduriini/ muda/ wa sku niingi/ haṭá/ mliweele/ moojé. 'He stayed in the bush for a period of many days, until he forgot all about his master.'

Mereele/ nt^ho/ kaa muda/ wa sku/ niingi/ laakini/ nt^hakhpata. 'She looked very hard for it for a period of many days, but she could not find it.'

muda (/) wa skuu saba 'a period of seven days'

muda ya meezi 'a period of a month'

Linzile muda (y)a meezi. 'He waited for a period of a month.' Or:

Liinzile/ muda (y)a meezi. 'He waited for a period of a month.' Or: Liinzile/ muda/ ya meezi. 'He waited for a period of a month.'

Muda (y)a meezi/ liinziló. 'It was for a period of a month that he waited.'

Ndrinzile muda (y)a meezi. 'I waited for a period of one month.'

Or: Ndriinzilé/ muda (y)a meezi. Or: Ndrinzile mudá/ ya meezi. Or: Ndriinzilé/ mudá/ ya meezi.

mudaa we/ iló 'when you came' (=mukhta we/ iló)

Ndrinzile mudda waa sa'á. 'I waited for a period of one hour.'

Siisi/ mudaa ye/ uzizo gaariyé. 'I do not know when he sold his car.'

mudiiri (ma-) n. [Sw. mudir “chief, village headman, used in Zanzibar and Pemba only” SSED 313; Ar. mudīr W 301] principal, director of a school Jaama/ mletejele mwaalimu/ khati/ ka mudiiri. ‘Jaama brought a letter to the teacher from the principal.’

Muduni n. The old route from Mogadishu to Brava involved a tarmac road for 100 kms from Mogadishu to Shalaambood (Shirombooto in Chimwiini). From this place, one followed a dirt track for another 100 kms through the villages of Merin Gubaayi, which in Chimwiini is Maringuwaay, and Eeriile (Somali “the place where there are goats”) to Mudul (in Chimwiini, Muduni), a small village where there was a petrol pump. At Muduni, one then took a side-road that climbed the coastal hill (ibuuri or mlima in Chimwiini), from the top of which one could at last see Brava and the Indian Ocean.

Muduni/ haṭá/ Miini/ ni kilometerii né. ‘Muduni up to Brava is four kilometers.’

Muduni/ ni mahaḷa/ ndila/ huṭindo Chismaa’ilú/ na Miini. ‘Muduni is a place where the roads going to Kisimayu and Brava intersect.’

muḍaahara n. [Ar. muḍāhara “public demonstration, rally” W 585; cf. Som. muddaaharad DSI 443] a demonstration to express grievances, a public rally of many people going in procession to support s.t. or to protest against s.t.

khfanya muḍaahara ‘to demonstrate, protest, rally in support of s.t.’

Waant^hu/ waḷazile/ wafanyize muḍaahara/ hawampeendi/ mkulu wa poliisi. ‘People went out and protested that they did not want the chief of police.’

Waant^hu/ waḷazile/ wafanyize muḍaahara/ kuja/ kuwa ghaali. ‘People went out and protested that food was too expensive.’

Waant^hu/ hukomó/ khariibu/ ya milyuuni/ ishiriini/ waḷazile/ ndilaani/ leelo/ khfanya muḍaahara/ ḍiddi/ ya ra’iisi/ Niksoni. ‘People, who reached close to twenty million people, took the streets today to protest against President Nixon.’

muuḍi adj. [Ar. mu’ḍin W 12] nuisance, bothersome variant form: mu’ḍi

laakini kubḷa kulla mu’ḍi haydhibi [st.] ‘but to kill something that is a nuisance doesn’t matter’ munt^hu muuḍi ‘a bothersome person’; want^hu muuḍi ‘bothersome people’ mufiṭo [Ital. ammuffito] in the expression:

kuwa mufiṭo ‘to become moldy, musty (idiomatically used to refer to people who are so often at a place that they become unwanted there)

Sigareeti/ zivele mufiṭo. ‘The cigarettes became moldy.’

mufṭi (wa-) n. 1/2 [Ar. mufṭin W 696] one who can interpret matters, s.o. recognized by all scholars in the discipline (This borrowing from Arabic can be regarded as having the structure mu-fṭi, in which case the plural is wa-fṭi, or as an unanalyzable mufṭi, in which case the plural is wamufṭi.)

ndiye mufṭi wa aakhiri zamaani [st.] ‘he is the mufṭi of the last days’ mazu suukhuuni ya yeele kana mufu (bananas in the market are full like mufu fish).

mufu n. 10 a kind of fish, smaller than sardines, that can be found in huge swarms; anchovies; the fact that they arrive in large swarms has given rise to the idiom -ingi kanaa mufu ‘as many as mufu, i.e. a great quantity’

Mazu/ sukhuuni/ yayelee/ kanaa mufu. ‘The market is full of bananas like mufu.’

mufu izi ‘these anchovies’ niingi/ kanaa mufu ‘many, like mufu’

Haliima/ nakuzala waana/ wiingi/ kanaa mufu. ‘Haliima is giving birth to children as many as mufu.’

Sukhuuni/ zileseḷa f’embe/ niingi/ kanaa mufu. ‘Mangos were brought to the market in large quantities, like mufu.’

nsi zaa mufu ‘anchovies’

Waant^hu/ wayeele/ kanaa mufu. ‘People filled (the place) like sardines.’

Ziyaraani/ ka Shekh Nureeni/ waant^hu/ yiila/ kanaa mufu. ‘To the celebration of Shekh Nureeni there was coming of people like mufu.’

mufuri n. [said to be from Tunni, but we do not have any printed citation available] maize that has been stored for some time and has become dry and yellowish-brown; good for zijo but not for maandra

muhadathaati n. conversation

Iwatilo waant^hu/ khoofu/ na shaka/ ni/ ye/ kiiza/ khtomola/ shariita/ za muhadathaati/ spasiló/ benaa ye/ na ba^hi/ ya waant^hu/ washfanyo naayé/ kaazi. ‘It put fear and doubt in people: why has he refused to release the tapes of conversations between him and the people working with him?’

muhaali adj. [Sw. muhaali SSED 313; Ar. muḥāl W 219] impossible

Ni mambo/ ya muhaali. ‘It is something impossible.’

Ni muhaali/ kumkhene’asha Abooke. ‘It is impossible to persuade Abooke.’

su’ali muhaali ‘an impossible question (i.e. one without an answer)’ muhibu adj. [Sw. muheba SSED 131; muhibu SSED 314; cf. Ar. verb ḥabba ‘to love’ W 151] beloved muhibu niize liini [song] ‘beloved, when did I refuse?’

muhimu adj. [Sw. muhimu SSED 133; Ar. muhimm W 1033] important; var. muhima

Mi/ naayo/ amri/ muhimu/ nt^ho/ na siná/ wakhti. ‘I have one very important matter (to discuss) and I have no time (to waste).’

Ni amri/ muhimu/ indreeseló/ mí/ kaakó/ maskuu katí. ‘It is an important matter that brought me to your place in the middle of the night.’

Ni muhima/ we/ khtaambula/ khatari/ za khtala dawa iyi. ‘It is crucial that you understand the risks in taking this medicine.’

Ni muhimu/ ka mwaalimu/ khsomesha waana. ‘It is important for the teacher to teach the children.’

Ni muhimu/ khsomeshowa waana. ‘Children are important to be taught.’ Or: Waana/ ni muhimu/ khsomeshoowa.

Ni muhimu/ waana/ khsomeshowa na mwaalimu. ‘It is important for the children to be taught by the teacher.’

Teena/ ni muhimu/ si/ kiiwa/ kuwa Tunne/ ichilawaangana/ jamaa’a/ nt^haano/ Goygaali/ Dakhtira/ Da’faraadi/ Wiriile/ na Hajuuwá. ‘Again, it is important for us to know that the Tunne were divided into five clans: Goygaali, Dakhtira, Da’faraadi, Wiriile, and Hajuuwa.’

Waana/ khsomesha na mwaalimu/ ni muhimu. ‘For the children to be taught by the teacher is important.’

muhiti n. [believed to be an Arabic word, but not found in W] Arabicism ocean (This word is probably would not be understood by the average munt^hu wa Miini, primarily being used only by people knowing Arabic very well.)

Mbele ya zonte/ miini/ hupatikana karka januubi/ ya Soomaalya/ ilu ya I-fuwo la muhiti al Hindi. ‘First of all, Miini is found in the south of Somalia on the shore of the Indian Ocean.’

muhla n. [Sw. muhula SSED 314; Ar. muhla ‘respite, delay, time limit’ W 929] period, space of time

Chimwambila muhli/ pela muhla/ wa skuu saba/ sku yaa saba/ chiza khfuungula/ we/ takubloowa. ‘She told her husband: you are given a period of seven days, on the seventh day, if you have not solved (the riddle), you will be killed.’

muhṭamali adj. [Ar. muḥṭamal W 208] probable (This word is unknown to GM.)

Ni muḥṭamali. ‘It is probable.’

	Siwo/ muhtamali. ‘It is not probable.’
muhtaramu	adj. [Ar. muhtaram W 172] respected munt^hu muhtaramu ‘someone respected’; want^hu muhtaramu ‘respected people’ Sharif Mubiidi/ mojiitu/ na mrehemu/ waliko muunt^hu/ muhtaramu/ Miini/ katiike. ‘Sharif Mubiidi, God’s mercy being on him, was a respected person inside Brava.’
muhuri	n. 9/10 [Sw. muhuri SSED 314; Ar. muhur W 929] seal, government stamp Chibuku ichi/ hachibooleki/ ka khisa chibishiḷa muhuri. ‘This book cannot be stolen because it has a stamp/seal on it.’ kubiga muhuri ‘to stamp, put a seal on’ Biga muhuriyo. ‘Put your seal on it.’
mujarabu	adj. [Ar. mujarrab W 118] tested, tried, trustworthy, proven dawa mujarabu ‘proven medicine’ Hamadaa Sheekhi/ waliko muunt^hu/ mujarabu/ ka dawa za waalimu. ‘Hamadat Sheekhi was a trusted person in scholarly religious medicine.’ munt^hu mujarabu ‘a trustworthy person’
mujrimu	adj. [Ar. mujrim W 121] criminal Mujrimu/ hafanyoowi/ mweenza/ naawé/ khutila ḍambiini. ‘A criminal is not made a friend, he will thrust you into crime.’ Mujrimu/ laazimu/ khpisowa shar’a. ‘A criminal must be subjected to the rule of law.’
mujtama’i	n. [Ar. mujtama’ W 137] society Haye/ mpelekele/ laakini/ iwá/ kuwa ka want^hu ni wakulú/ karka mujtama’i/ yiko khatari. ‘Alright, take it to him, but know that people who are important in society, there lies with them some danger.’ Kiḷa/ mujtama’i/ inawe mujtama’i ya islaamu/ ba/ amó/ hurasho dini zinginezé/ wazeele/ wafanyize kuwa ni haqi yaawo/ khpa wana waawo/ ma’ina. ‘Each society, be it a Muslim society or that of the followers of other religions, the parents made it their right to give their children names.’ Mujtama’i nt^hayina adaalá/ ni kama jahazi/ bilaa ishkilo. ‘A society without justice is like a boat without a rudder.’
mujtahidi	adj. [Ar. mujtahid W 143] industrious, diligent Hamadi/ ni mujtahidi/ kabisá/ ka kubarata diini. ‘Hamadi is very diligent in learning religion.’ Wana wa Osmaani/ ni mujtahidi/ skolaani. ‘Osmaani’s children work hard at school.’
mukarramu	adj. [Ar. mukarram W 822] poetic respected laakini lisa ni hayi mukarramu [st.] ‘but Jesus is alive and respected’
mukaataba	n. agreement Wanakahari/ wamrashizo Niksoni/ wanakuhada/ ya kuwa ra’iisi/ nakhfilatiloowa/ khfaanya/ mukaatabu/ pamo(oyi)/ na ba’aḍi/ yaa nt^hi/ zaa ye/ takuzuuró. ‘Newsmen accompanying Nixon said that the president was expected to make agreements with some of the countries that he will visit.’
ku-muukhata	v. be visible Ali/ nt^hakumuukhata. ‘Ali was not visible (i.e. he did not make his presence felt).’ Mahala/ amá/ muukhata/ amá/ makhanata. ‘At a place either be visible or be absent (i.e. when you go somewhere, be positive/active/take part or do not go).’ (Translation of a Somali proverb.) Omari/ mukhete jisa suura/ harusiini. ‘Omari was visible at the wedding (i.e. he participated fully).’

mukhlisi

adj. [Ar. muklis W 255] sincere, candid, frank, loyal

We/ kanaa we/ ni muunt^hu/ suura/ mukhlisi/ munt^hu islaamu/ munt^hu hupendo zeemá/ mpe/ talaakhaze. ‘If you are a good, sincere man, a Muslim man, a man who loves goodness, give her a divorce.’

mukhta

adv. [very likely connected to Ar. waqt “time” W 1087] when

Ka nasiibuye/ kuwaa mbovu/ mukeewe/ nt^hakhshiika/ miimba/ mukhta ye/ waliko muḅjaaná. ‘His luck being bad, his wife did not become pregnant when he was a young man.’

Mukhta Faatma/ iló/ Omari/ yolokeleele. ‘When Faatma came, Omari took [himself] off.’ Or, with the subject postposed into Immediately After Verb position: Mukhta ilo Faatma/ Omari/ yolokeleele.

mukhta Haliima/ pishiloo zijó ‘when Haliima cooked zijo’; or: mukhta Haliima/ pishiló/ zijó ‘when Haliima cooked zijo’ mukhta Haliima/ shpikó (or: pishiló) ‘when Haliima cooked’ mukhta Haliima/ wapelo waaná/ peesá ‘when Haliima gave the children money’

mukhta lpepo/ lanzizo kuvuma ka wiingi ‘when the wind/ began to blow hard’ mukhta maamo/ khuposhelo badiikhí ‘when your mother/ took the melon from you’

Mukhta Muusa/ takuuyó/ nt^haakuja. ‘When Muusa comes, I will eat.’

Mukhta nuumba/ iwelo tayaari/ lazile/ oloshole/ kumera mushṭari/ kiyuula/ iyo. ‘When the house was ready (built), he left and went to look for a buyer to buy it.’

mukhta Omari/ pakilo gaarí ‘when Omari loaded the truck’ mukhta Omari/ pakizo majiwé/ gariini ‘when Omari loaded stones onto the truck’; or: mukhta Omari/ pakiizó/ majiwé/ gariini ‘when Omari loaded stones onto the truck’

Mukhta wakhti/ ukomeeló/ sungura/ chooloka/ ka mp^huundra/ chimpa salaamu/ chimwaambila... ‘When the time came, Rabbit went to Donkey and greeted him/ and said to him...’

Mukhta ye/ Baazi/ takuuyó/ naambila. ‘When Baazi will come, tell me.’ Or: Baazi/ mukhta ye/ takuuyó/ naambila. ‘Baazi, when he will come, tell me.’ Or: Mukhta ye/ takuuyó/ Baazi/ naambila. ‘When he will come, Baazi, tell me.’ Or: Mukhta ya Baazi/ takuuyó/ naambila. ‘The time of Baazi coming, tell me.’ There are of course also variants where the main verb in the sentence is initial: Naambila/ Baazi/ mukhta ye/ takuuyó. ‘Tell me Baazi, when he will come.’

Mukhta ye/ iló/ Omari/ nt^hawaaliko. ‘When he came, Omari was not there.’ Or: Mukhta iló/ Omari/ nt^hawaaliko.

Mukhta ye/ komelo dukaani/ mi/ skuwaaliko. ‘When he arrived at the shop, I was not there.’ Or: Mukhta ye/ komeeló/ dukaani/ mi/ skuwaaliko. (Observe that in the relative clause formation triggered by mukhta, the presence of focus on the relative verb prevents the final accent from extending beyond the verb.)

Mukhta ye/ komelo dukaani/ yana/ mi/ skuwaaliko. ‘When he arrived at the shop yesterday, I was not there.’ Or: Mukhta ye/ komeeló/ dukaani/ yana/ mi/ skuwaaliko. (Observe that in the relative clause formation triggered by mukhta, final accent does not extend onto the time adverbial, in contrast to true relative clauses. Also note that the presence of focus on the relative verb prevents the final accent from extending beyond the verb, again in contrast to true relative clauses.)

Mukhta ye/ komeeló/ mi/ skuwaaliko. ‘When he arrived, I was not there.’

mukhta ye/ mpeto mp^huundá/ m’ajibiiló ‘when he found a donkey that pleased him’ mukhta ye/ naakujó ‘when/while he was eating’ mukhta ye/ ofeetó ‘when he became tired’

Mukhta ye/ welo mzeelé/ mukeewe/ shishile miimba. ‘When he became an old man, his wife became pregnant.’

Muusa/ mukhta ye/ iló/ mi/ nch^handikaa khati. ‘Muusa, when he came, I was writing a letter.’

- Mwaana/ chimwaambila/ mukhtaa we/ takhsuuló. ‘The boy answered him: whenever you want.’
- Nt^haakuja/ mukhta Muusa/ takuuyó. ‘I will eat when Muusa comes.’ Or: Mukhta Muusa/ takuuyó/ nt^haakuja.
- Shtamwaambila/ ya kuwa mukhtaa si/ chenzelo khshindramana ka mafakató/ chimlasile Yuusufu/ mahaalaa si/ chiweshelo zoombó. ‘We shall tell him that when we went to run a race we left Joseph at the place where we put our things.’
- We/ chandikani/ mukhtaa mi/ niiló. ‘What were you writing when I came?’
- mukhtalifu adj. different Daaba/ zina ma’ana mukhtalifu/ ka waant^hu/ mbaimbali. ‘Animals have different meanings (significance) for different people.’
- mukhtaari adj. [Ar. muktār W 267] chosen -- an attribute of the Prophet, not used as a general term for ‘chosen’; mtale is the ordinary term, although it too may be used as an attribute of the Prophet; var. mokhtaari
- mukhtasari adj. [Sw. muhtasari SSED 314; Ar. mukhtasr W 242] brief (of a talk, speech) Fanya kooðizo/ mukhtasari. ‘Make your speech short.’
ka mukhtasari ‘in brief, in outline, sketchily’
Ka mukhtasari/ ni muhimu/ khsooma/ jisa khpita imtihaani.
‘In brief, it is important to study in order to pass an exam.’
keleza ka mukhtasari ‘to explain in brief’
khabari/ ka mukhtasari ‘the news in brief’ khutba mukhtasari ‘a short speech’ koði mukhtasari ‘a short talk’
- mulhidi adj. [Ar. mulhid W 859] unbelieving (of religion) munt^hu mulhidi ‘an unbeliever’ want^hu mulhidi ‘unbelievers’
- mulku n. 3 [Ar. mulk W 922] property, possessions; var. mulki
Basi/ karka mulkuwe/ chi’iisha/ chizeele/ shuure/ chimó/ chiwalimo miyakaa miya/ amo zaaydí. ‘So in his possession [i.e. the land he owned] there lived an old one-hump-backed woman who was one hundred years old or more.’
Mulku/ ubeele. ‘(Our) possessions are lost.’
Mweenza/ we/ nakuwona/ haali/ yiitu/ peesa/ zoleshele/ na mulkú ubele. ‘My friend, you see our conditio; the money is gone and the property lost.’
Ndrasile maaliyá/ na mulkuwá/ na nt^haasá/ skumwona/ mtume uyu. ‘I left my money and my property and yet I haven’t seen this prophet.’
Ni/ mwenye maali/ na mulkú. ‘You (pl.) have wealth and property.’
Sultaani/ mukhtaa ye/ kasizo jawabu za kaahini/ oyó/ shkumanganya markabuze/ na manwarizé/ na majahaziyé/ choondroka/ keendra/ kumera Abunawaasi/ karka majaziira/ yotte/ yamo karka mulkuwé.
‘When the sultan heard the words of this soothsayer, he gathered his ships and his warships and his dhows and he moved and went to look for Abunawaasi in all the islands that were in his possessions.’
Uyu/ ni mulku wa sultaani. ‘This is the property of the sultan.’
- muló n. 3 [not found in Sw., but seems to be of Bantu origin; cf. Bemba u-mu-lilo as well as other Bantu languages with [cl.3] nouns employing a stem comparable to -lilo] fire, heat, hell Abdalla/ iwilopo kuwa siimbá/ nt^haná/ jisaa ye/ kulawá/ shfakata/ chendra ka sultaani/ kumera rukhsa/ khtila nuumba/ iyo/ muló. ‘When Abdalla knew that there was no way for lion to get out [from the house], he ran to the sultan and asked permission to set that house on fire.’

Dawa yaa muḷo/ nii muḷo. ‘The remedy for fire is fire.’ (A proverb.)

Fulaani/ maayiye/ kooko/ muḷowe/ kooko. ‘Let so-and-so stay as far as possible [lit. let so-and-so’s water stay far away, his fire far away].’ (A proverbial saying.)

Ifuungu/ imooyi/ mi/ ni’itilee muḷo. ‘One share I put in the fire.’

izo khtumila oyo mbwa muḷooni [st.] ‘the one who refuses to use (knowledge) that one is of hell (i.e. belongs in hell)’ kanaa muḷo ‘like fire’

Hamadi/ huza zoombo/ ghaali/ hazidaariki/ kanaa muḷo. ‘Hamadi sells expensive stuff, they cannot be touched likefire.’

khfanyaa muḷo ‘to make a fire’

Umi/ nakhfanyaa muḷo/ kuwapikila waanawe/ kuja. ‘Umi is making fire to cook food for her children.’

khtilaa muḷo ‘to put fire in – instigate’

Hasani/ hupeenda/ khtilaa muḷo/ karka waant^hu/ kuwalaanya. ‘Hasani likes to instigate (lit. put fire in) people to fight (make them fight).’

kubigaa muḷo ‘to make a fire for heat or as protection against animals’

Omari/ lele maduriini/ bishilee muḷo/ kudhora mahayawaani. ‘Omari slept in the bush and made a fire to protect himself from animals.’

kumpiisha/ kanaa muḷo ‘to burn him like fire’ kudaraa muḷo [lit.] to touch fire – i.e. to touch s.o. who, if touched, is going to make problems, have a bad reaction, etc.’

Chimdaara/ Omari/ kana kudaraa muḷo. ‘If you touch Omari, it is like touching fire – he will cause a lot of problems etc. (so it is best not to touch him).’

Hadaariki/ kanaa muḷo. ‘He cannot be touched just like fire (e.g. one cannot discuss or argue with him because he is too responsive, gets too heated, etc.).’

Numba/ hazidaariki/ kanaa muḷo. ‘Houses cannot be touched like fire (i.e. houses are so expensive one cannot buy them).’

Maamaye/ oloshele/ fanyizee muḷo/ habamo ba’iidi/ na ibirka iyo. ‘His mother made a fire a little way away from that tank of water.’ need to review phrasing of this example mooja duniya unzile na aakhera janna na muḷo weshele [st.] ‘God created the world and in the hereafter laid down paradise and hell’

Muke/ ni kamaa muḷo. ‘A woman is like fire.’ (A proverb.)

Muḷo/ huzalaa muḷo. ‘Fire begets fire.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ mbarakha za waant^hu/ khtila muḷooni/ khpiisha/ siwo/ suura. ‘For someone to put the papers of people in a fire and burn them is not good.’

Skunyi/ zishishilee muḷo. ‘The firewood has retained heat.’

Wachendra kaa muḷo/ wachi’uvunaanga/ muḷo/ uchihada... ‘They went to the fire and beat it, and the fire said...’ (The [cl.3] classification of muḷo is indicated by the u object prefix in wachi’uvunaanga and the u subject prefix in uchihada.)

We/ nakhtilaa muḷo/ na maayi/ mahaḷa mooyi. ‘You are putting fire and water in one place (i.e. you are putting two incompatible things together).’ (A proverbial saying.)

We/ nii muḷo/ hudhayishoo chisú/ chisu/ huḷindo lkaambalá... ‘You are the fire that melts the knife, the knife that cuts the rope...’

Zishishiloo muḷo/ ni skunyi. ‘What has retained heat is the firewood.’

rel.

u-muḷo n. heat

Umulo/ iwaletelele waant^hu/ dhibu/ naayó. ‘The heat has brought problems for people, too.’

adj. hot

Chaayi/ ni chimulo. ‘The tea is hot.’

Chuuma/ hubigowa cho chimulo. ‘The iron should be struck while it is hot.’ (A saying.)

-muḷo

-muḷo/ kana aḍaabu ‘as hot as hell’
 -muḷo/ kana beebe ‘as hot as a bonfire’
Haliima/ mphele chaayi/ chimuḷo/ kana beebe/ kanaani/ hashpelekeki. ‘Haliima gave me tea as hot as a blazing fire, into the mouth it cannot be taken (it will burn you).’
 -muḷo/ kanaa muḷo ‘as hot as fire’
Iwa/ ni imuḷo. ‘The sun is hot.’
Ja/ kuja/ yo imuḷo. ‘Eat food while it is hot.’ Or: kuja/ ja yo imuḷo. ‘Food, eat it while it is hot.’
Kakanyize mayi mamuḷo/ chunguuni. ‘She poured boiling water into the pot.’
Kuja/ hujowa yo imuḷo. ‘Food should be eaten (lit. is eaten) while hot.’
Ye/ nii muḷo. ‘He is hot.’
Ye/ nt^hangú/ maali/ yamḷasiló/ nt^hakuja chakuja chimuḷo. ‘Since he lost his wealth, he has not eaten hot food.’

mumathili

n. 1/2 [Ar. mumattil W 893] representative
Laakini/ ba’aḍi/ ya mumathili/ wa nt^hi za chi’aafrika/ wahadiile/ ya kuwaa si/ leelo/ wa’áfrika/ siwo/ raaḍi/ pamooyi/ na saluuku/ na mweendró/ waa nt^hi/ za ch’arabú. ‘But some of the representatives of the African countries said that today we Africans are not pleased with the behavior and the treatment of the Arab countries.’
Mumathili wa Jarmani/ simeeme. ‘The German representative stood up.’

mumkini

adj. [Ar. mumkin W 918] possible
Alí/ mumkini/ keesho/ kuuya/ ka Mkhodiisho/ ka sababu/ maamaye/ hakhaadiri. ‘It is possible that Ali comes tomorrow from Mogadishu because his mother is sick.’
Iwaliko mumkini. ‘It was possible.’
Keesho/ mumkini/ kuwa ramaḍaani/ ka sababu/ leelo/ ni mweezi/ wa ishiriini/ sha’abaani. ‘Tomorrow may possibly be Ramadhan because today is the 29th of the month of Sha’abaani.’
Ni mumkini. ‘It is possible.’

muumu/ umu

demon. in this same place
Chibuuku/ chimo muumu/ umu. ‘The book is here inside somewhere (close to me).’
Ningile muumu/ umu. ‘I went into this very same place.’ (cf. Ingile muumu/ umu. ‘He went into this very same place.’)

muumu/ umuno

demon.
Chibuuku/ chimo muumu/ umunu. ‘The book is here inside somewhere (close to me).’

muumuje/ umuje

demon. in that very same place there muna

n. [cf. Bajuni mnuna, see D. Nurse’s Bajuni wordlist] (my) younger brother (of a male), my younger sister (of a female); [pron. muná] Beeló/ ni muná. ‘The one who is lost is my younger brother.’
Menyee muná/ beele. ‘My brother Menye is lost.’ Cf. Menye/ muná/ beele. ‘Menye, my brother, is lost.’
mi/ munaya ‘my younger brother’
Mi/ ni Yuusufú/ na uyú/ nii muná. ‘I am Yuusufu and this one is my younger brother.’
muná/ nda mi ‘my younger brother’ Muna uyu/ nii mule. [H!H] ‘This younger brother (of mine) is tall.’ (cf. Muna uje/ ni chigobe. [H!H] ‘That younger brother (of mine) is short.’) munawa ‘my younger brother’ munaya/ mi ‘my younger brother’
Munaya/ mi/ nt^hakeendra/ Mkhodiisho. ‘My younger brother did not go to Mogadishu.’

Munaza/ na bayaazá/ wa'oloshela kulangala matezo. 'My younger sisters and my older sisters went to watch games.'

Naayé/ choondroka/ chendra ka waawaye/ chimwaambila/ waawé/ nnakhsuulá/ khsaafira/ lí'ajli ya kummeraa muná. 'And he arose and went to his father and said to him: father, I want to set off on a journey for the sake of looking for my younger brother.'

Peesaze/ steta naa muná. 'My money has been taken by my brother.'
rel.

muná=poss.

Ali/ na Nuurú/ ni muunt^hu/ na muné/ ka baaba/ tu. 'Ali and Nuuru are brothers, from father's [side] only.'

Basi/ olokaani/ ndretelaani/ muna yiinu. 'So go and bring to me your (pl.) younger brother!'

muná 'my younger brother/ sister'

Oyo/ nii muná. 'That one is my younger brother/sister.'

muna yaawo 'their younger brother/sister'

muna yiinu 'your (pl.) younger brother/sister'

Baasi/ olokaani/ ndretelaani/ muna yiinu. 'So (pl.) go and bring to me your younger brother.'

muna yiitu 'our younger brother/sister'

Mwiingine/ chihada/ la/ kubloowa/ siwo/ suura/ ni muna yiitu/ nalangaloowa/ jawaabu/ mweepe/ yiingine. 'Another one said no, for him to be killed is not good, he is our younger brother; he should be shown some other answer (i.e. he should be dealt with in some other way).'

muné 'his younger brother, her younger sister'

Aziizi/ muné/ pisile/ imtihaani. 'Aziizi's younger brother passed the examination.' Or: Aziizi/ muné/ imtihaani/ pisile.

Aziizi/ muné/ pisile imtihani ya hisaabu/ tu. 'Aziizi's younger brother passed only the mathematics examination.'

Aziizi/ muné/ tu/ pisilo imtihaani. 'Only Aziizi's younger brother passed the examination.'

Ndo/ ni/ nna'iwá/ so/ zaa ni/ nimfanyizo Yuusufú/ naa muné.

'Come! Do you know what you did to Yuusufu and his younger brother?'

Ye/ koðele ka tarafu yaa muné. 'He spoke concerning his younger brother.'

Ye/ waliko cholokapi/ yana/ pamo naa muné. 'Where was he going yesterday together with his younger brother?'

(Possible answer: Ye/ waliko choloka sukhuuni/ yana/ pamo naa muné. 'He was going to the market yesterday together with his younger brother.')

Yuusufu/ chanza khfañisha/ mizigo/ ya mkułaze/ khabla ya mzigu/ waa muné. 'Joseph began to inspect the bags of his older brothers before the bag of his younger brother.'

munaze 'his younger brothers, her younger sisters'

Aziizi/ munaze/ wotte/ wapisile imtihaani. 'Aziizi's younger brothers all passed the examination.'

Ye/ koðele ka tarafu ya munaze. 'He spoke concerning his younger brothers.'

munó 'your younger brother/ sister'

Munó/ ni garabuyo. 'Your brother is your shoulder.' (A proverb.)

Oyo/ nii munó. 'Is that one your younger brother?'

Oyo/ nii munó/ so. 'That one is your younger brother, isn't he?'

Sinviłe muná/ mi/ siwo/ munó. 'Don't call me 'my little sister', I am not your little sister.'

munaafiqi

adj. [Ar. munāfiq W 988] hypocritical; [pron. munaafiqi or munaafikhi]

Munaafiqi/ du'aye/ ha'itakhabaloowi. 'A hypocrite, his supplication is not accepted.'

mun^hu munaafiqi 'a hypocritical person' (cf. want^hu munaafiqi) ‘hypocritical people’)

munaafiqiin n. hypocrites Munaafiqiin/ hingizowa mahaḷa ya nṯhiini/ ya aḏaabu. ‘Hypocrites get entered into the lowest level of hell fire.’

munaaqasha n. [Ar. munāqaṣa W 991] argument, debate; var. munaaqisha; [usu. pronounced munaakhasha and munaakhisha]
Mi/ ha’iṯahajoowi/ ku’akida/ muhima/ inaayo adabú/ na iḥṯiraamú/ karka munaakhisha/ iyi. ‘I hardly need stress the importance of discretion in these discussions.’
Wazeele/ wahadiile/ munakhasha uyu/ chiwekeni chinume/ unasuḷa khfikiriḷoowa/ zaaydi. ‘The elders said let us put this argument back (i.e. delay) it needs to be thought about more.’

munaasaba n. time, meaning, value Kiḷaa chiintḥu/ chinayo munasabaye. ‘Everything has its time/ meaning/ value.’ (A proverb.)

munaasibu adj. [Ar. munāsib W 991] appropriate, suitable Chiḷawa/ choloka numbaani/ ka Harun Rashiidi/ na waqṯi/ ntḥakuwaaliko/ wakḥṯi munaasibu/ wa muuntḥu/ kendra kumzura Harun Rashiidi. ‘He left and went to the house of Haruun Rashiidi but it was not an appropriate time for a person to visit Haruun Rashiidi.’
Hamadi/ mwambile Ali/ koḏi iyo/ siwo/ munaasaba/ khkoḏowa apa. ‘Hamadi told Ali that that talk is not appropriate to talk about here.’

mundule n. [Som. mundul DSI 446] a circular, dome-shaped hut made of wood with mud plastering Omari/ nuumbaye/ jisa iwashiḷá/ nviriinge/ kana mundule. ‘Omari’s house the way that it is built is round like a hut.’

munishiipiyo n. [Ital. municipio] the town-hall in Brava; municipality; [pron. Munishiipiyo] Ali/ tiḷiḷa/ rukhsa/ seeni/ ka munishiipiyo/ kuwaka nuumbaye. ‘Ali has gotten signed permission to build his house from the municipality.’
Karka diiwaani/ ya munishiipiyo/ nṯhi/ yiko kharibu ya muskitiini/ ka Madani/ nda Nuuru. ‘In the register of the municipality, the land that is near Madani mosque belongs to Nuuru.’
Teesara/ huṯomoló/ ni munishiipiyo. ‘ID’s, who issues (them) is the municipality.’

muunju n. a small weevil that enters cereals (seaweed is used to protect grain from muunju) Geḷe/ ishkala niingi/ hingila muunju. ‘Maize if kept for too long gets infested with weevils.’
Wake/ wanakhtalaa geḷe/ muunju. ‘Women are taking weevils out from the corn.’

muunju n. in the phrase:
munju wa ori ‘the cockscomb of an ori (cock, rooster)’ muunkari adj. stubborn, contradictory, rebellious, insubordinate; [pron. muunkḥari] Haaji/ waliko muunkḥari/ ize kumkasa chizeele/ chilawa/ chishikaa ndila. ‘Haaji, who was stubborn, refused to listen to the old woman and left and went on his way.’

rel.

u-muunkari n. 14 disobedience; [pron. umuunkḥari]

- munu n. 3 [Sw. munyu SSED 315] salt; [pron. muu, but munu may also be heard] khtilaa muu ‘to add salt to’ Tilee nama/ muu. ‘He put salt in the meat.’
muuuwe ‘his salt’
Na teená/ nguwo/ zaa ye/ veetó/ zinazo mayi yaa muu. ‘And also, the clothes that he is wearing have salt water [taste salty].’
- munzukaafiri n. [the second part of this noun would seem to be kaafiri “infidel”] lizard
- muqadasi adj. [Ar. muqaddas W 747] sacred Awa/ kaawo/ ngoombe/ ni daaba/ muqadasi/ walá/ hazijoowi/ kaawo.
‘For these people, cattle are sacred animals, neither are they eaten by them.’
Haruusi/ ni chiint^hu/ muqadasi/ nt^ho/ ka want^hu wa Miini. ‘Marriage is something very sacred for the people of Brava.’
- muqtafa adj. [Ar. “to follow; track; imitate”] wapeenzelo Mtume muqtafa/ ndiye mrashoowa ka diini musaffa [st.] ‘they loved the Prophet, the Chosen One; he is to be followed in the pure religion’
- mura n. [Sw. mur “kind of native medicine used in stomach trouble of children; also mixed with aloe and other ingredients and used for putting on swellings” SSED 315] A black substance that is usually applied on the forehead and face of infants (perhaps as a remedy against the evil eye). It is also given to them to drink, mixed with water, as a remedy against stomach ache. Apparently, mura is not a vegetable substance, but a mixture of different ingredients. Bravanese do not know its composition, because it is sold as lumps in shops, ready for use.
- mur’oodi n. a kind of wild fruit
- muriidi n. [Ar. murīd W 366] disciple, follower of Sufi order masheekhi ya si chinaayo / chiweele muriidi waawo [st.] ‘the Sheikhs we have – we have become their disciples’
- muuriya n. a gold necklace made of large hollow ball beads (but has not been observed in Brava)
- murka n. sprain
- murtadi adj. [Ar. murtadd “renegade, apostate” W 334] a Muslim who only pays lip-service to this religion, s.o. who has left his Islamic roots
m^late oyo ni murtadi ni faasiqi [st.] ‘leave that one alone, he is someone who has recanted Islam, he is scandalous’
- ku-mur(u)gika v. [Som. murguco, variant murkuco DSI 448] sprain (The p/s. extension ik has been appended to the Somali root element murg/k-.)
Mkono/ ummurugishile. ‘He sprained his arm -- [lit.] arm sprained with respect to him.’
- rel.
ku-murkaṭa v. (murkeete) sprain something, be sprained Mkono/ ummurkeete. ‘He sprained his arm.’
Muunt^hu/ kuulu/ immurkeete. ‘The person sprained his leg.’ Or:
Muunt^hu/ immurkeṭe kuulu. (Phon. Observe that when the subject of the sentence, kuulu, is postposed after the verb, it phrases together with the verb.)
Omari/ mpiraani/ tuushile/ immurkeṭe kuulu. ‘Omari fell down at soccer’ and sprained his leg.’

ku-mur(u)gisha v. caus.

ku-murugsata

v. [Som. murugeysan DSI 449] (murugsee) be worried

Basi/ sultaani/ nakumurugsata. ‘So the sultan is becoming worried.’

Haliima/ ni laazimu/ chiza kumurugsata. ‘Haliima ought not to worry.’

Jariba chiza kumurugsata. ‘Try not to worry.’

Maame/ humurugsata/ tarafu ya amaaniya. ‘My mother worries about my safety.’

Mi/ daa’imu/ humurugsata/ khfanya ghalta. ‘I always worry about making a mistake.’

Mi/ nakumurugsata/ khambilaa we/ kuwaa we/ nt^hukudorsatoowa. ‘I am sorry to inform you that you were not chosen.’

Mi/ nakumurugsata/ kuwa Hasani/ haayi. ‘I am worried that Hasani will not come.’

Mi/ nakumurugsata/ kuwa waawo/ ni mariidi. ‘I am sorry that your father is sick.’

Mi/ nakumurugsata/ ka iyo/ imtulukililo Hamadi. ‘I am sorry for what happened to Hamadi.’

Mi/ nakumurugsata/ Omari/ khfungoowa. ‘I am sorry about Omari’s being arrested.’

Ni ‘aadi/ kabisá/ muunt^hu/ kumurugsata/ tarafu ya mushkila/ ya muunt^hu. ‘It is quite common to feel depressed about one’s problems.’

Simurugate. ‘Don’t worry.’

Ye/ hatahaaji/ kumurugsata tarafu ya peesa. ‘He does not need to worry about money.’

rel.

ku-murugisha v. caus. (murugishiize) worry someone

Mi/ sinakhtasha/ kuwaa yo/ huwamurugiisha/ wo. ‘I don’t think it worries them.’

Mi/ skusuula/ khumurugisha/ na mushkilaza. ‘I didn’t want to worry you with my problems.’

Omari/ chiza kujiba telefooon/ inamurugisha Haliima. Omari’s not answering the telephone worries Haliima.

ku-murugsatila v. appl. be worried about

Mubiidi/ maamaye/ daa’imu/ hummurugsatila. Mubiidi’s mother, she always worries about him.’

ku-murugsatisha v. caus. (murugsatishiize) worry someone Sakiina/ mmurugsatishize mwaallimu. ‘Sakiina worried the teacher.’

ku-murugsatishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-murugsatishana v. caus. rec.

ku-murugsatishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-murugsatishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

murugu

n. 3 or 9 anxiety, frustration khtila murugu ‘to worry someone’

kingila muruguuni ‘to be worried’

Hamadi/ ingile muruguuni. ‘Hamadi was worried.’

kumpata murugu ‘to be worried’

Ali/ umpete murugu. ‘Ali was worried [lit. worry got Ali].’

Hasani/ impete murugu. ‘Hasani got worried.’

Ka ‘khisani/ Nuuru/ impeto murugú. ‘Why was Nuuru worried?’

(The pre-verbal question words, being focused, trigger pseudo-relativization of the verb.)

‘Murugu/ impeto maaná. ‘(It is) worry that has gotten the child.’

Or: ‘Murugu/ impeetó/ maana. Or: Murugu/ maana/ impeetó. (Our consultant rejected the sentence where an initial murugu is not focused: Murugu/ impete Nuuru.)

‘Naani/ impeto murugú. ‘Who got worried?’

Nuuru/ ka’impatá murugú ‘if Nuuru had been worried’ or Nuuru/

ka’impatá/ murugú (Note that in the case of the ka-tense, the Accentual Law of Focus may fail to come into play, as in the present example.)

Nuuru/ ^ftu/ impeto murugú. ‘Only Nuuru was worried.’

Yana/ Nuuru/ impete murugu. ‘Yesterday Nuuru got worried.’ Or: (Ni) yana/ Nuuru/ impeto murugú. ‘Yesterday Nuuru got worried.’ Or: Yana/ Nuuru/ impeetó/ murugu. ‘Yesterday Nuuru got worried.’ (In the last example, where besides focus on yana, the verb is also emphasized and thus at the end of a phonological phrase, the Accentual Law of Focus comes into play to restrict the extension of final accent to murugu. In our data, ALF is much more likely to come into play in the case of pseudo-relativization than in true relativization.)

kumwingila murugu ‘to be worried’

Omari/ umwingile murugu. ‘Omari was worried [lit. worry entered Omari].’

kuwanayo murugu ‘to be sad, have worries’

Waziiri/ chiwa mzimawe/ murugu. ‘The minister’s whole body was sad.’

Ye/ mbenopo mzima/ wa murugu/ na sinakhaadira/ kuja/nuziize... ‘When he saw me totally anxious and (saw) that I was not able to eat, he asked me...’ review accent

Ye/ shtukulika/ naaye/ mzimawe/ murugu/ chendra ka waawaye. ‘He took himself and filled with worries, he went to this father.’ review

rel.

mi-murugu n. 4 aug. different sorts of worries, frustrations murukhu

n. 9/10 muscle

Alí/ bishila sindanu ya murukhu. ‘Ali has gotten an intramuscular injection.’

Alí/ murukhuze/ ni zihabba/ Hamadi/ murukhuze/ nii nk^hulu. ‘Ali’s muscles are small, Hamadi’s are big (i.e. he is well built, athletic).’

Alí/ nakh^hteza mpiira/ halaweete/ tindishile murukhu. ‘Ali was playing football; he hurt himself, he tore a muscle.’

Hamadi nayo murukhu. ‘Hamadi has muscles.’

We/ sinyoonyé/ murukhuzo. ‘You, don’t show me your muscles (i.e. flex one’s muscles, pretend to use force to achieve s.t.).’

muruni

n.

Baazi/ jaribile kuwa waaðehe/ na jawaabu/ za muruni. ‘Baazi tried to stay clear of controversial matters.’

Hakhiikha/ ya kuwaa mi/ nfunzile mnaangó/ ha’itiloowi/ muruni. ‘The fact that I locked the door is not disputed.’

Jisa muruni/ yanziizó/ nt^haasá/ hayisoowi. ‘How the dispute began remains unknown.’

musaa’ada

n. help; var. musaa’ida

Leelo/ nakumereLOWa Omari/ musaa’ada/ maanawe/ hakhaadiri. ‘Today assistance for Omari is being looked for, his child is sick.’

We/ laazimu/ khfikiriJa/ kumera musaa’ida/ wa Baazi. ‘You should consider seeking Baazi’s help.’

musaffa

adj. freed from impurities, pure wapeenzelo Mtume muqtafa/ ndiye mrashoowa ka diini musaffa [st.] ‘they loved the Prophet, the Chosen One; he is to be followed in the pure religion’

mushiiri

n. title given to the Italian governor of the Benadir during days of Italian colonialization

mushkila

n. 3,9/10 [Ar. muškila ‘issue, unsolved question’ W 483] problem, dilemma

Chimaliza/ oyo mnaadisha/ naayé/ choloka ka sul^taani/ na mushkilawe. ‘After that, that auctioneer went to the sultan with his problem.’

Iyi/ ni mushkila/ ya aadi. ‘This is a common problem.’

mushkila iyi ‘this problem’; mushkila izi ‘these problems’ (Note that in this example, mushkila is treated simply as an (invariant) [cl.9/10] nominal.)

mushkila mkulu ‘a big problem’ (In this example, mushkila is treated like a [cl.3]) nominal consisting of a prefix mu- and a stem -shkila .)

	mushkilaa nk^hulu ‘big problem(s)’ (In this case, the noun is treated like an unanalyzable [cl. 9/10] noun.)
	Nt^haku/ mushkila . ‘There is no problem.’
	Wo/ watakinenza khkooðela/ mushkila/ keesho . ‘They will continue discussing the problem tomorrow.’
	rel.
	mashaakili n. pl. [Ar. mašākil W 483] different sorts of worries, frustrations
mushṭaraki	adj. [Ar. mušṭarak “common, joint, collective” W 469] Karka Suuqu/ Mushṭaraki/ mkulu wa Suqu Mushṭaraki/ khuṭubiile . ‘At the [meeting of] the Common Market, the head of the Common Market gave a speech.’
mushṭari	n.[Ar. al-muṣṭarī W 470] the planet Jupiter
muusi	one, but mooyi is used when the number is a modifier muskiri one’s mental faculties	adj. [Ar. muskir “intoxicating liquor” W 417] anything that makes one lose control of musimu	n. season Chimpa sulṭaani/ salaamu/ chimwiwisha khabari/ za nt^hi za wanyaasa/ na chimwaambila/ ya kuwa oko/ musimu waa nsi/ umaliize . ‘He greeted the sultan and informed him of the news from the lands of the Wanyaasa, telling him that there the season for [catching] fish had ended.’
musmaari	n. [Sw. msumari SSED 305 , from Ar. mismār W 429] nail Musmaari/ unakhkuka ka lkutaani . ‘The nail is coming out of the wall.’ Walá/ nt^hakhtaala/ haṭá/ musmari mooyi/ kuwa mbwaake . ‘Nor did he take even one nail (of the house) to be his.’ accent needs to be checked
muso	n. 9/10 [cf. Bajuni muso “young male chicken”, D. Nurse’s Bajuni wordlist] hen muso uyu or muso iyi ‘this hen’ (cf. muso izi ‘these hens’) Uzilee muso . ‘He bought a hen.’ rel. chi-muso (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
muṣṭa’amali	adj. [Ar. muṣṭa’al W 646] used Chiint^hu/ muṣṭa’amili/ na chiint^hú/ shpiyá/ haayiwi/ sawa/ shpiya/ ni ghaali . ‘Used things and new things are not equal, new things are more expensive.’ gari muṣṭa’amali ‘used car(s)’ mayi muṣṭa’amali ‘water that is not appropriate for taking ablutions (lit. used water)’ Nuuru/ dukaye/ huzowaa nguwo/ na zilaatú/ muṣṭ’aamili . ‘Nuuru’s shp sells used cloth and shoes
muṣṭa’amari	n. colony Doblá/ za Aafrika/ niingize/ zalimo muṣṭa’amari/ zamaani . ‘Most African nations were colonies in old times.’ Somaaliya/ yaliko muṣṭa’amari/ ya Taliyaani . ‘Somalia was a colony of Italy.’
muṣṭa’iddi anything.’	adj. [Ar. muṣṭa’idd W 595] ready Munt^hu uyu/ muṣṭa’iddi/ khfanya kiḷa chiint^hu . ‘This man is ready to do

mustafa	adj. chosen; n. a name for the Prophet Mohammad
mustakhiri	adj. stable Hamadi/ umo spitaale/ laakini/ haaliye/ ni mustakhiri. ‘Hamadi is in hospital, but his condition is stable. Muunthu/ chiwanayo peesa/ ma’iinshaye/ huwa mustakhiri. ‘If a person has money his life becomes stable.’
mustaq(a)wali	n. [Ar. mustaqbal “future”, adj. and noun, W 742] future; future tense (in grammar) = shtendro chinakuuyó ‘action which is coming’ Fardoosa/ ni waaðehe/ kaake/ nt^ho/ tarafu yaa ye/ nakhsulo khfanya mustakhbali. ‘Fardoosa is quite clear about what she wants to do in the future.’ Muunthu/ shfanya kaazi/ laazimu/ peesaze/ haba mooyi/ kuweka aakhiba/ ya mustakhbali. ‘When one works one must keep some of one’s money as a savings for the future.’
mustaqilli	adj. [Ar. mustaqill W 783] independent khfanya mustaqilli ‘to make independent’ munt^hu mustaqilli ‘s.o. independent’ nt^hi mustaqilli ‘an independent country’
mustaqiimu	adj. [Ar. mustaqim W 802] straight (physically, morally); [pron. mustaqiimu or more commonly mustakhiimu] luti mustakhiimu ‘a straight stick’ Muunthu/ chinendre sirati mustakhiim/ huliwaana. ‘If a person walks on the straight path he succeeds.’ munt^hu mustakhiimu ‘a morally upright person’
musukhmaasikhi	n., adj. [Som.] corruption, corrupt Waant^hu/ hingilo siyaasa/ huwa musukhmaasikhi. Men who enter politics become corrupt.
muta’abidi	adj. [Ar. muta’abbid W 587] devout, pious
muta’akhiri	adj. late Bilaa shaka/ Abú/ takuwa muta’akhiri. ‘Without a doubt Abu will be late.’ Mi/ kawa mbele muta’akhiri/ we/ sula kuwa shishiila shtaná. ‘If I were to be late, you would get angry.’ Mi/ ni muta’akhiri. ‘I am late.’ Oyo/ ilo muta’akhiri/ ni dakhtari. The one who arrived late is the doctor.
muta’asifu	adj. [Ar.] sorry Aasha/ waliko muta’asifu/ kabisá. ‘Aasha was very sad.’ Mi/ mbaliko muta’asifu/ nt^ho/ kuwalaata waana. ‘I was very sad to leave the children.’ Mi/ ni muta’asifu/ ka iyo/ imtulukililo Hamadi. ‘I am sorry for what happened to Hamadi.’ Mi/ ni muta’asifu/ kuwa waawo/ hakhaadiri. ‘I am sorry that your father is sick.’ Mi/ skukhaadira/ khtaambula/ ka khisani/ mi/ mbelo muta’asifu/ nt^ho. ‘I could not understand why I felt so sad.’ Ye/ waliko muta’sifu/ kulawa Mwiini. ‘He was sad to leave Brava.’ rel. muta’asif interj. sorry; [pron. muta’ásif] Muta’ásif/ sinakhfahama. ‘Sorry, I don’t understand.’ Muta’ásif/ siná/ peesa. ‘Sorry, I have no money.’
mutanta	n. 9/10 [Ital. mutande] underpants, underwear (Although in native Bantu words, the the voiceless prenasalized stops written mp nt nch and nk are aspirated, various loanwords occur where no aspiration occurs, suggesting perhaps that these sounds represent sequences of a nasal followed by a stop and are not actually prenasalized stops. The sequence nt in the present word represents an example of the lack of aspiration.)

- Muṭaṅṭa iyi/ nda naani. ‘This pair of underpants is for whom?’ (cf. Muṭaṅṭa izi/ nza naani. ‘These underpants (pl.) are for whom?’)
- muṭaṅṭa mooyi ‘a pair of underpants’ (cf. muṭaṅṭa niingi ‘many underpants’)
- Muṭaṅṭa/ za Omari/ nakuuzó/ suura. ‘The underpants that Omari is selling are good.’
- rel.
chi-muṭaṅṭa (zi-) n. 7/8 underpants
- muṭamarridi adj. [Ar. mutamarrid “recalcitrant, rebellious” W 903] defiant of traditions and conventions
- muṭashaa’imu adj. [Ar. mutašā’im W 449] pessimistic
- muṭawafu n. [Ar. muṭawwif W 574] pilgrims’ guide in Mecca
- muṭma’ini adj. [Ar. muṭma’inn “peaceful, safe – of land” W 568] tranquil. quiet, peaceful munt^hu muṭma’ini ‘a tranquil person’ want^hu muṭma’ini/ waṭma’ini ‘tranquil people’
- muwaatini n. nationalist, supporter of the government
Mukhtaā we/ takhfanyo zint^hu izi/ apo/ ndipó/ we/ takuvilowa muwaatini. ‘If you do these things, that is when you will be called a nationalist.’
- muzdahimu in the expression:
ndila ya muzdahimu ‘a crowded or busy road’
- muuzika n. [Sw. muziki SSED 315; Eng. music; Ital. musica] music Ba’adi/ kinendra dakhikha/ niingi/ muuzika/ isimeeme. ‘After continuing for several minutes, the music stopped.’
- chi-mvita n. 7 the dialect of Swahili spoken in Mombasa
- mwaamba n. [Sw. mwamba SSED 318] a rock under the sea
Jahazi/ ipanzile mwaamba. ‘The dhow went aground on an underwater rock.’
- mwarbarani n. 1/10 a kind of large shark mwarbarani izi ‘these sharks’ mwarbarani matete ‘a sp. shark, black-spotted (tiger shark?)’ mwarbarani uyu ‘this shark’
- mwaana n. [Sw. mwana, recorded under jana SSED 150] a title for a female
- mwanua interj. calling s.o.’s attention and giving respect (used by females)
- mwaape
Hutukula chijuwo/ cha khur’aani/ chijuwo/ mwaape/ cha ilmu/ husomasooma. ‘He carries a book of the Quran, some little book of knowledge, and reads it.’
Mara mwaape/ Hamadi/ huno wiinó. [HH!H] ‘Sometimes Hamadi drinks wine.’
- mwaayo n. [Sw. mwayo (miayo) "seldom heard except in the plural, yawn"] yawn (Morph. We do not have evidence as to the noun class of this item, though the corresponding Swahili example suggests that this is a class 3 nominal, and that if a class 4 form exists it would be myaayo.)
kendra mwaayo ‘to yawn’ (cf. Sw. kupiga miayo)’ Hamadi/ hendra mwaayo/ ka^fwiingi. ‘Hamadi yawns a lot.’

Omari/ kaleent^{he}/ ^fniingi/ haṭá/ nakendra mwaayo. ‘Omari sat a lot until he started to yawn.’

kendrela mwaayo ‘to have a strong desire for s.t.’

koloka mwaayo ‘to yawn, gape’

l-mwiingu

n. [Sw. ulimwengu SSED 496] world; experience

variant form recorded from MI: l-mweengu

Hafundrowi na maamayé/ humfundro l-mweengu. ‘The one who is not taught by his mother is the one whom the world teaches.’ (A proverb.)

Moojá/ narude l-mwiingu/ kana/ la mbele. ‘May God bring back (i.e. restore) the world as it was before.’ (This is a well-known line from a shṭeenzi, but has acquired a proverbial flavor and is widely used in everyday speech. It is said to comment on a present situation full of problems, calamities, etc., like the present situation in Somalia, or in general after criticizing “modern” behavior and trends. One would wish to go back to an earlier time of order, peace and plenty that only God could bring back.)

Mwiini

n. 9 the indigenous name of Brava (Barawa) -- apparently a contraction of the locative noun mu-yii=ni ‘in the town’, itself derived from muu-yi ‘town’. Brava is located in southern Somalia and represents the last mainland outpost of the Swahili language group in Somalia. There is historical evidence that some form of Swahili was spoken as far north as Mogadishu at one time, but the only surviving communities in present-day Somalia are the waant^hu wa Miini who speak Chimiini and the Bajuni on the offshore islands, who speak a Swahili dialect Tikuu. At the time the original research for this lexicon was conducted, Brava was the home to the vast majority of Chimwiini speakers (ten thousand or so, according to the estimate of MI). However, the upheavals in Somalia in the 1990’s have largely dispersed the want^hu wa Miini, with many fleeing to Kenya and large numbers subsequently migrating to the United Kingdom and the United States as well as elsewhere.

Apa/ haṭá/ Mwiini/ ni khariibu. ‘From here to Brava is close.’

Apa/ haṭá/ Mwiini/ siwo/ kule. ‘From here to Brava is not far.’

Isa/ Mwiini/ inakuvuundika/ na waant^huwé/ wanakhpuunguka. ‘Now Brava is going into ruins and its people are decreasing in number.’

Mwiini/ ni mahaḷaa mi/ niḷiḷó. ‘Brava is where I come from.’

Mwiini/ wa’oloshihe/ waana. [H!H!H] ‘Brava, they went, the children.’

Mwiini/ waant^hu/ wa’oloshihe. [H!H!H] ‘Brava, people went to.’

Wa’oloshihe Mwiini/ waant^hu. [H!H] ‘They went to Brava, people.’

Wa’oloshelo Mwiini/ ni waant^hu. [H!H] ‘The ones who went to Brava are the people.’

Wa’oloshelo Mwiini/ ni waana. [H!H] ‘The ones who went to Brava are the children.’

Wa’oloshelo Mwiini/ ni want^hu wazima. [H!H] ‘The ones who went to Brava are the adult people.’

Waana/ wa’oloshihe Mwiini. [H!H] ‘Children went to Brava.’

Waant^hu/ wa’oloshihe Mwiini. [H!H] ‘People went to Brava.’

rel.

Chi-mwiini n. Chimiini, the language of the people of Miini

Tafaḍali/ koḍa ka Chimiini. ‘Please speak Chimiini.’

N- [cl.9/10] noun class prefix (When followed by a consonant, this prefix assimilates the point of articulation of the consonant and forms a prenasalized consonant with it. If the consonant is a voiceless stop, this stop becomes aspirated.)

mbiṭa ‘duck/ducks’

mp^haka ‘cat/cats’

mp^haanga ‘swords’ (cf. the [cl.11] singular lpaanga) mp^heelo ‘brooms’ (cf. the [cl.11] singular lpeelo) mp^hisi ‘hyena/hyenas’

ndila ‘road/roads’

nguwo ‘clothes’

nk^huta ‘walls’ (cf. the [cl.11] singular ikuta)

nsi ‘fish (both singular and plural)’

nuumba ‘house’ (Although we list this noun in the dictionary as an unanalyzable stem, there are morphologically-related nominals that suggest that it could be viewed as having internal structure, /n-uumba/, in which case the [cl.9/10] noun class prefix has the allomorph n in this word.)

N- [cl.9/10] agreement prefix (When followed by a consonant, this prefix assimilates the point of articulation of the consonant and forms a prenasalized consonant with it. If the consonant is a voiceless stop, this stop becomes aspirated.)

Karkaa ndila/ chiwawona/ waant^hu/ wawili/ watukilo sufuriyaa nk^hulu/ na nguwo nelpe. ‘On the way he saw two people who were carrying a large pot and a white cloth.’ (The adjective nk^hulu ‘large’ agrees with the [cl. 9/10] noun sufuriya and illustrates the fact that the nasal agreement prefix triggers aspiration of the initial voiceless stop in /kulu/. The adjective nelpe illustrates that the prefix appears as n when followed by a vowel-initial stem like /elpe/.)

mazuu mbi^{ti} ‘unripe bananas’ (The adjective stem /wi^{ti}/ illustrates that an initial w will form a prenasalized stop mb with the N- prefix.)

mp^heloo ndre ‘long brooms’ (Note that the adjective stem /-le/ forms a prenasalized voiced stop with the N- prefix: ndre.)

Mteendre/ uzaazile/ nt^heendre/ niingi. ‘The date tree bore many dates.’ (The adjective niingi shows that the N- prefix has the shape n- in front of a vowel-initial stem like /-iingi/.)

Nguwo/ zivelee nk^havu. ‘The clothes became dry.’

Nunguu nk^hulu/ haykosi/ ikooko. ‘A large pot does not fail to have ikooko.’

(A proverb.)

na

conj. and

Abunawaasi/ choloka chingila muyiini/ kumera mushtari mwiingine/ na ka nasiibuyé/ mbovu/ nt^hakhpita. ‘Abunawaasi went and entered town to look for another buyer and his luck being bad, he did not find one.’

Chimpa Abdala/ maali/ miingi/ nt^ho/ chimpa na nuumbá/ iwaliko nk^huluu nt^ho. ‘He gave Abdalla very much money and he gave him a house which was very big.’ (Syn. Notice the placement of the conjunction na after the verb and how it triggers final accent on the following nominal.)

Inaya/ ni Bulukhiya/ na waawé/ waliko sul^{ta}aani. ‘My name is Bulukhiya and my father was king.’

Khati/ ya mkulu/ wa mawaardiya/ shtaaló/ Abunawaasi/ na khati ya

Abunawaasi/ shtaaló/ ni mkulu wa mawaardiya. ‘The letter of the head of the guards, the one who took it was Anunawaasi, and Abunawaasi’s letter, the one who took it was the head of the guards.’

Majiraani/ wanne/ wa’uzize uki/ na wa’awanyize peesa/ kati kaawo. ‘The four neighbors sold the honey and divided the money among themselves.’

Mbuzi/ fiile/ mba na. ‘The goat died, and what about the dog?’ (Observe this rather unexpected construction where the preposition na is located post-nominally, phrase-final.)

Mi/ inaya/ ni Janishaahi/ na ina ya waawé/ ni Tayghamuusai. ‘My name is Jamishaahi, and the name of my father is Tayghamuusi.’

na lpaangá/ mkonooni ‘and a sword in hand’ or: na lpaangá/ mkonooni, with no very clear difference in meaning or usage

Na mtanaani/ kaaké/ weene. ‘And he saw it in his room [e.g. after seeing it somewhere else first].’

Na mtanaani/ weene. ‘And he saw it in the room [e.g. after seeing it somewhere else first].’

na

prep. by (The preposition na ‘by’ forms a prosodic word with a following monosyllabic pronoun.)

Jaama/ faramila naami/ keendra. ‘Jaama was advised by me to go.’ (We know that naami is being treated as a word because it has default penultimate accent. If mi were being treated as a separate word, accent would fall on it.)

Nfaramiḷa keendrá/ na Jaama. ‘I was advised to go by Jaama.’ (Observe that in this example, the agentive phrase is outside the focus and final accent is not projected to it. It is possible for the agentive phrase to be focused by putting it into position immediately after the verb: Nfaramiḷa na Nuurú/ keendra. ‘I was advised by Nuuru to go.’ Notice that because the agent phrase is focused, the final accent from the verb does not extend past it to the infinitival complement.)

Nfaramiḷa keendrá/ na Nuurú. ‘I was advised to go with Nuuru.’

Nkhani’ishize na Nuurú/ kooloka. ‘I was persuaded by Nuuru to go.’

Ra’iisi/ peḷa zawaadi/ na wanaa nt^{hi}/ barzaani. ‘The president was given a gift by the citizens of the country at the courthouse.’ Or: Ra’iisi/ peḷa zawaadi/ barzaani/ na wanaa nt^{hi}.

na

prep. with, to

Apo/ mzeele/ chimviila/ na mwanaamke/ naayé/ chimuza su’aali/ yiiyo/ iyo/ yaayé/ wa’uzizo wabjaaná. ‘Then the old man called his daughter, too, and asked here the very same question that he had asked the boys.’ (Notice the use of na between the verb and the complement to the verb. It is not immediately clear whether this na should be understood to be the prepositional na or the conjunction na. The latter would seem possible since in the example mwanaamke is being discussed in conjunction with wabjaana. However, this na does not trigger a final accent on the following complement, as would be expected if it were the conjunction. In any case, the meaning seems to be that the old man called also the daughter, in addition to calling the sons.)

Karaayle/ shkhiira/ chendra naawo/ kanisaani. ‘Crow agreed to go with them to the church.’

Mwanaamke/ chilawa/ na Hasani/ chendra naaye/ numbaani. ‘The girl left with Hasani and went with him to her home.’

Na ^fNuuru/ nk^hoḏeeló/ yana. ‘With Nuuru I spoke yesterday.’ (Time adverbials typically are ‘outside’ the verb phrase. A time adverbial in IAV position would be focused. In the present example, the focus on Nuuru seems to preclude focus on yana, as can be seen from the fact that GM rejected Na ^fNuuru/ nk^hoḏeloo yaná.)

Na ^fNuuru/ yana/ nk^hoḏeeló. ‘With/to Nuuru yesterday I spoke.’ (We can see that Nuuru is focused from the pseudo-relative clause form of the verb and the fact that yana is lowered in pitch relative to Nuuru. If yana were the focused element, it would be higher in pitch. The pseudo-relative verb is downstepped, as is the common pattern for such verbs.)

Shkalaant^ha naaye/ kuja naaye/ oyo mwaana. ‘He sat with him to eat with him, that boy.’

Sultaani/ chirashmana/ na ma’askariye/ naayé/ kendra kubigaa zita. ‘The sultan accompanied his soldiers and also went to fight the war.’

Yana/ nk^hoḏele na Nuurú. ‘Yesterday I spoke with Nuuru.’

Yana/ nk^hoḏeelé/ na Nuuru. ‘Yesterday I spoke with Nuuru.’

^fYana/ nk^hoḏelo na Nuurú. ‘Yesterday I spoke with Nuuru.’

^fYana/ nk^hoḏeeló/ na Nuuru. ‘Yesterday I spoke with Nuuru.’

na + N, pronoun

prep. also, too (Commonly found in narrative texts, not necessarily contributing much to the sentence from a meaning point of view, though in some cases at least conveys a notion similar to also or too in English. In this usage, na triggers final accent, indicating its identification with the conjunction na ‘and’ and not the preposition na ‘with, by’.)

Attá/ leelo/ naayé/ mwanaa masultaani/ naayé/ husoma naaye/ chiwo/ mahala mooyi. ‘Until one day [lit. today] a son of sultans studied with him (i.e. a previously mentioned boy) in the same school.’ (The phrase husoma naaye represents, of course, a use of the preposition na in the sense ‘with’; unlike na ‘and’, this preposition does not trigger final accent. Another point about the present example should be made: mwanaa masultaani seems to violate the general principle that one cannot have a long vowel located so far from the end of the phrase. However, mwanaa masultaani is a contraction from mwana wa masultaani and such contracted long vowels are not subject to shortening in Chimwiini.)

Chibuuku/ mwiizi/ naachó/ boozele. ‘The book, the thief stole it also.’ Or: Mwiizi/ chibuuku/ naachó/ boozele.

Chibuuku/ naachó/ mwiizi/ boozele. ‘And the book also has been stolen.’

Chibuuku/ nacho mwiizi/ naayé/ naacho. ‘The book which the thief has, he [someone else] also has it.’

Kuja/ naayó/ ni kaazi. ‘Eating is also work.’

Maama/ naayé/ chishikowa na maraöi/ chifa. ‘Mother too fell sick and died.’

Mi/ naami/ noloshelé/ ka mwaarabu/ oyo/ laakini/ mi/ nnele kahawá. ‘And I also went to that Arab’s place, but I drank coffee.’

Mi/ nuzile chibuukú/ naayé/ uzile. ‘I bought a book and he also bought [a book].’

Mwaana/ naayé/ bishiila. ‘The boy also was hit.’

Mwaana/ naayé/ uzile. ‘The boy also bought [one].’

Na mwaalimú/ ooshele. ‘The teacher also has left.’ Or: Mwaalimu/ naayé/ ooshele.

Na skola za sarkaali/ sfuunzila. ‘Government schools also have been closed.’

Naayé/ uzile chibuuku. ‘And he also bought a book.’

Nishfungile chisanduukhú/ na ndrani ya chisandukhu ichi/ chiwalimoo chuwo. ‘I opened the little box and inside this little box was a book.’

Omari/ baaburi/ uziize/ nuumba na, ‘Omari sold the car, what about the house?’

Sandukhuuni/ chiwaliko chiwovu/ na chiwovuuni/ chiwalimoo chuwo/ cha siifa/ za mtume. ‘In the box there was a pouch, and in the pouch there was a book of praises of the prophet.’

Shtala na peesá/ zaa ye/ tukiiló. ‘She took as well the money that he was carrying.’

Waziiri/ naayé/ chihada/ naami/ kaöaalika/ noloshelé/ numba iyo/ na mbishiila ndruttii miyá. ‘The minister also said: and I likewise went to that house and I was given one hundred blows.’

Ye/ chiwaa dawa/ zote/ na chiwa maraöi/ yote. ‘He was all medicine and he was all diseases (i.e. he was totally immersed in medicine and diseases).’

-na-

present tense marker

Chinakhteza. ‘We are playing.’

Mzele uje/ nakufa kaa ndala. ‘That old man is dying of hunger.’

Naakulá. ‘You (sg.) are crying.’

Nnaakujá. ‘I am eating.’ (The first person subject marker regularly elides in front of na in present-day Chimiini. MI, however, regularly retained the subject marker.)

Sinakuwawona. ‘I do not see them.’

Wanakiimba. ‘They are singing.’

Wanaakufa. ‘They are dying.’

Wanakumera muunt^h/ aadili/ na faahimú/ kuwawejelela sultaani. ‘They are looking for someone just and intelligent to be their sultan.’

We/ nakhfaanyani. ‘What are you doing?’

-na-

a semantically empty formative used with third person subjects in the subjunctive affirmative

Mukhtaaya ye/ takuuyó/ wa’ambile/ want^huwo/ wanampise/ nt^hiini/ nalangale markabu. ‘When she comes, tell your people that they should have her go below in order to see the ship.’

naapite ‘that she pass’

nasoole ‘that she crush grain’

Nnakhsulaa chisú/ chinawe shkali. ‘I want that the knife be sharp.’ Cf. Nnakhsulaa zisú/ zinawe skali. ‘I want that the knives be sharp.’

Nnakhsulaa luti/ linawee lilé. ‘I want that the stick be long.’ Cf. Nnakhsulaa ndruti/ zinawee ndre. ‘I want that the sticks be long.’

Nnakhsulaa muti/ unawe chihabá. ‘I want that the tree be small.’ Cf. Nnakhsulaa mití/ yanawe zihabá. ‘I want that these trees be small.’

Nnakhsulaa wo/ wanawe wasuurá. ‘I want that they [cl.2] be good.’ (Contrast the second person plural subject case, which does not have the na element: Nnakhsulaa ni/ niwe wasuurá. ‘I want that you (pl.) be good.’) Nnakhsulaa ye/ nanambile jillá. ‘I want that he tell me the truth.’ Cf. Nnakhsulaa ye/ nachambile jillá. ‘I want that he tell us the truth.’
wanaapite ‘that they pass’ wanasoole ‘that they crush grain’
Waant^huwe/ ye mwanaamke/ wana’endre mbali yaawo. ‘The girl’s people, let them go a different way [so that they are separated from the girl].’

-na

v. have (The bare stem seems to be possible just in the event there is an overt subject prefix. Thus We/ na chibuuku. ‘You have a book.’ and Ye/ na chibuuku. are of doubtful validity. It can be used, however, in these cases if there is an enclitic added: naayo.)

Infinitive:

kuwanaayo ‘to have’

kuwanayo khalbi ‘to have courage’

Affirmative present tense:

naa ‘I have’ (MI retained the first person singular nasal n before na, while GM simplifies the geminate.)

Mi/ naa chibuukú. ‘I have a book.’

Mi/ naayo khalamú/ tu/ kaaka/ chiwovuuni. ‘I only have a pen in my pocket.’ (The verb is a final accent-trigger, but the focus marker tu is a barrier to the projection of the final accent to the following complements, kaaka and chiwovuuni.)

Mi/ naayo kuwaa ye/ nakhkoða wanaafakhí. ‘I think that he is lying [lit. I have it that he is lying].’ (Cf. Mi/ naayo kuwaa ye/ koðele wanaafakhí. ‘I think that he lied.’ And: Mi/ naayo kuwaa ye/ shkoða wanaafakhí. ‘I think that he used to lie.’) (Observe that the first person main verb naayo... triggers a final accent that is realized at the end of each of the phrases in the verb phrase, even though the third person complement verb would trigger default accent.)

Naayo keendrá. ‘I should leave.’

na ‘you have’

E/ naayó/ chisú/ kaakó/ chiwovuuní? ‘Do you have a knife in your pocket?’ (In this yes-no question, the emphasis on naayo puts all of the complements to the verb out-of-focus and thus triggers Accent Shift to the final vowel. Compare the following answer to this question: Á’á/ mi/ nayo khalamú/ kaaka/ chiwovuuni. ‘No, I have a pen in my pocket.’ Here the focus on khalamu puts the following complements outside the scope of the final accent from the first person verb.)

Naayó/ ismú/ ya chiint^hú/ kaakó/ chiwovuuní? ‘Do you have anything in your pocket?’ (See above for the Accent Shift observed here.)

Nayooyí/ we. ‘How do you see it? What do you think about it?’

Nazooyí/ kooðize? ‘How do you see/ take what he said?’

Ndo/ we/ naayoní. ‘Come, you, what is the matter with you?’

?We/ na chibuukú. ‘You have a book.’ (Appears to be ungrammatical.)

na [cl.1] has

Amiina/ naayó/ ni Suufi. ‘Amiina, the one who is married to her, is Suufi.’

Muunt^hu/ nachoo chisu. ‘The man has a knife.’

Munt^hu uyu/ nacho chisu shkali. ‘This man has a sharp knife.’

Muusa/ nacho chibuuku. ‘Muusa has the book.’ Or with verb focus:

Muusa/ naacho/ chibuuku. (The use of cho conveys a definite noun. If th noun is indefinite, then yo is used:

Muusa/ nayo chibuuku. ‘Muusa has a book.’ Or with verb focus: Muusa/ naayo/ chibuuku.)

Muusa/ tu/ nayo chibuukú. ‘Only Muusa has a book.’ Cf. Muusa/

tu/ nacho chibuukú. ‘Only Muusa has the book.’

Muusa/ tu/ naayó/ chibuuku. ‘Only Muusa has a book.’ Cf.
Muusa/ tu/ naachó/ chibuuku. ‘Only Musa has the book.’
mwaana/ nacho chibuukú ‘the child who has the book’ or, with verb focus: mwaana/ naachó/ chibuukú (cf. mwaana/nayo chibuukú ‘the child who has a book’ and, with verb focus: mwaana/ naayó/ chibuukú) mwaana/ nayo chibuukú ‘the child who has a book’ and, with verb focus: mwaana/ naayó/ chibuukú)
Nayo kaazi. ‘He has a job.’
Ni Muusa/ nayo chibuukú. ‘It is Muusa who has a book.’ Or, with verb focus: Ni Muusa/ naayó/chibuuku. (Cf. Ni Muusa/nacho chibuukú. ‘It is Muusa who has the book.’ Or, with verb focus: Ni Muusa/ naachó/ chibuuku.) (Observe that in these cleft sentences, the Accentual Law of Focus is obeyed. This contrasts with the true relative clause, shown above, which does not obey the Accentual Law of Focus.)
Noka/ naalo/ lpaanga/ kali/ nt^ho. ‘The snake has a very sharp sword.’
Nokla uyu/ naayo/ so/ lpaangá. ‘Does this snake have a sword?’
 (Observe that the [cl.9] noun noka has [cl.1] agreement.)
Omari/ nayo Fardoosa/ ye/ humpeenda/ Fardoosa/ nt^ho. ‘Omari is married to Fardoosa (lit. has Fardoosa), he loves her very much.’
 *?Ye/ na chibuuku. ‘He has a book.’ (Appears to be ungrammatical.)
 Ye/ nacho chibuuku. ‘He has a/the book.’ Or: Ye/ naacho/ chibuuku. ‘He has the book.’
 Ye/ nacho ichije chibuuku. ‘He has the book.’
 Ye/ nayo chibuuku. ‘He has a book.’

china ‘we have’
Si/ china chibuukú. ‘We have a book.’
Si/ chinacho chibuukú. ‘We have a/the book.’ Or: Si/ chinaachó/ chibuuku.
 ‘We have the book.’
Si/ chinacho ichije chibuukú. ‘We have the book.’
Si/ chinayo chibuukú. ‘We have a book.’
Nna ‘you (pl.) have’
Ni/ nna chibuukú. ‘You (pl.) have a book.’
Ni/ nnaazó/ peesa. ‘You (pl.) have money.’
wana ‘[cl.2] have’
huvuunda milaango wanaayo khiyaari [nt.] ‘they break doors at their will’
Want^hu awa/ wanazoo zisu. ‘These people have knives.’
Want^hu awa/ wanazoo zisu/ niingi. ‘These people have many knives.’
wenye mabunduqu wanaayo tele [nt.] ‘those who wield the guns have the upper hand’ Wo/ wana chibuuku. ‘They have a book.’

other noun classes:

ina ‘[cl. 9] has’
Duniya/ ina zeema/ na ziwovú. ‘The world has good and bad.’

Other noun classes in present tense affirmative

Negative present tense:

siná ‘I do not have’
Mi/ siná/ haaja/ na mp^hundra uyu. ‘I have no need of this donkey.’
Mi/ sinaayo/ ala. ‘I do not have a weapon.’
Mi/ sinaayo/ ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ khatari. ‘I do not have anything dangerous’ Siná/ chiint^hu. ‘Nothing is the matter (lit. I don’t have anything).’
Siná/ peesa. ‘I do not have money.’
Sinaazo/ peesa. ‘I do not have money.’ Or: Sinaayo/ peesa.
nt^huná ‘you do not have’

Nthuná/ peesa. ‘You do not have money.’
Nthunaazo/ peesa. ‘You do not have money.’ Or: Nthunaayo/peesa.
nt^haná [cl. I] does not have’
Isa/ yaa ye/ khfaanya/ nt^haná. ‘Now, of him to do, he has nothing (i.e. there is nothing that he can do, he does not know how to solve his problem, etc.)’
Mbwa/ nt^haná/ mkila. ‘The dog does not have a tail.’
Mbwa/ nt^hanaayo/ mkila. ‘The dog does not have a tail.’
Muke/ nt^haná/ peesa. ‘The woman does not have money.’
Muke/ nt^hanaazo/ peesa. ‘The woman does not have money.’ Or:
Muke/ nt^hanaayo/ peesa.
Muusa/ nt^hanaayo/ chibuuku. ‘Muusa does not have a book.’
Muusa/ tu/ nt^hanayo chibuukú. ‘Only Muusa does not have a book.’ Or,
with verb focus: Muusa/ tu/ nt^hanaayó/ chibuuku.
Ni Muusa/ nt^hanayo chibuukú. ‘It is Muusa who does not have a book.’ Or, with verb focus: Ni Muusa/ nt^haanayó/ chibuuku. (Phon. Observe that in this construction, the Accentual Law of Focus holds. This contrasts with true relative clauses where the Accentual Law of Focus is not respected.) Nthaná/ aslí/ walá/ faǒlí. ‘He does not have (either) ancestry (i.e. noble birth) nor manners.’
Nthaná/ ifumo. ‘He does not have a spear.’
Nthaná/ ijiwe. ‘He does not have a stone.’
Nthan á/ kaazi. ‘He does not have a job.’
Nthaná/ luti. ‘He does not have a stick.’
Nthaná/ mahala ya khkala(ant^ha). ‘He does not have a place to sit.’
Nthaná/ majiwe. ‘He does not have stones.’
Nthaná/ maana. ‘He does not have a child.’
Nthaná/ mifumo. ‘He does not have spears.’
Nthaná/ mپییرا. ‘He does not have balls.’
Nthaná/ mpiira. ‘He does not have a ball.’
Nthaná/ ndruti. ‘He does not have sticks.’
Nthaná/ peesa. ‘He does not have money.’
Nthaná/ waana. ‘He does not have children.’
Nthanaalo/ luti. ‘He does not have a stick.’ Or: Nthanaayo/ luti.
Nthanaawo/ waana. ‘He does not have children.’ Or: Nthanaayo/ waana.
Nthanaayo/ ifumo. ‘He does not have a spear.’
Nthanaayo/ ijiwe. ‘He does not have a stone.’
Nthanaayo/ majiwe. ‘He does not have stones.’
Nthanaayo/ maana. ‘He does not have a child.’
Nthanaayo/ mifumo. ‘He does not have spears.’
Nthanaayo/ mپییرا. ‘He does not have balls.’
Nthanaayo/ mpiira. ‘He does not have a ball.’
Nthanaayo/ ta’aliimu. ‘He does not have an education.’
Nthanaazo/ ndruti. ‘He does not have sticks.’ Or: Nthanaayo/ ndruti.
Nthanaazo/ peesa. ‘He does not have money.’ Or: Nthanaayo/ peesa.
nt^hachiná ‘we do not have’
Bwaana/ nt^hachiná/ haaja/ ya kumera maali/ ya kondrokela/ keendra/ khfanya biyaashara. ‘Mister, we do not need to seek wealth with which to go to do business.’
Nthachiná/ hakhi/ si/ khteza? ‘Don’t we have the right to play?’ (The final accent on khteza is due to the yes-no question intonation.)
Nthachiná/ peesa. ‘We do not have money.’
Nthachinaazo/ peesa. ‘We do not have money.’ Or: Nthachinaayo/ peesa.

- nt^hachiná [cl.7] does not have Chisima/ nt^hachiná/ maayi. ‘The well does not have water.’
Shkapu/ nt^hachiná/ ikono. ‘The basket does not have a handle.’
Shkapu/ nt^hachinaayo/ ikono. ‘The basket does not have a handle.’
- nt^hanná ‘you (pl.) do not have’
- nt^hawaná ‘they do not have’
Nt^hawaná/ peesa. ‘They do not have money.’
Nt^hawanaazo/ peesa. ‘They do not have money.’ Or: Nt^hawanaayo/ peesa.
Wake/ nt^hawaná/ peesa. ‘The women do not have money.’
Wake/ nt^hawanaazo/ peesa. ‘The women do not have money.’ Or:
Wake/ nt^hawanaayo/ peesa.
- nt^hawná [cl.3] does not have’
Muti/ n^hawná/ makharba. ‘The tree does not have leaves.’
- nt^hayaná [cl.4] do not have’
Miti/ nt^hayaná/ makharba. ‘The trees do not have leaves.’
- nt^hayaná [cl.6] do not have’
Mashaati/ nt^hayaná/ s^hezo. ‘The shirts do not have buttons.’
Mashaati/ nt^hayanaazo/ s^hezo. ‘The shirts do not have buttons.’
Or: Mashaati/ nt^hayanaayo/ s^hezo.
- nt^hayná [cl.5] does not have’
Shaati/ nt^hayná/ s^hezo. ‘The shirt does not have buttons.’
Shaati/ nt^haynaazo/ s^hezo. ‘The shirt does not have buttons.’ Or:
Shaati/ nt^hanaayo/ s^hezo.
- nt^hayná [impersonal form]
Apa/ ntayná/ maayi. ‘Here there is no water.’
Maha^hla/ ntayná/ maayi. ‘The place does not have water.’
- nt^haziná [cl.8] do not have’
Skapu/ nt^haziná/ mikono. ‘The baskets do not have handles.’
Skapu/ nt^hazináayo/ mikono. ‘The baskets do not have handles.’
- nt^haziná [cl.10] does not have’
Mbwa/ nt^haziná/ mikila. ‘The dogs do not have tails.’
Mbwa/ nt^hazinaayo/ mikila. ‘The dogs do not have tails.’
- affirmative past
- mbana ‘I had’
Mbanayo kuwaa ye/ shko^hða wanaafakhí. ‘I thought that he was lying [lit. I had it that he was lying].’
- wana ‘you had’
Wanayooyí/ we? ‘How did you see it? What did you think about it?’
- wana ‘(s)he had’
Alí/ wana wakht^hi ↑ miingi/ khfanya kazi iyo. ‘Ali had a lot of time to do that job.’
Sult^haani/ uyu/ wanaayo/ mwanaamke/ mooyi/ msuura/ nt^ho. ‘This sultan had a very beautiful daughter.’
- uwana [cl.3] had’
Muti uyu/ uwanaayo/ matuundra/ miingi. ‘This tree had a lots of fruit.’
- iwana [cl.9] had’
Sku mo/ mp^huundra/ ya Abunawaasi/ iwanaayo/ ooni/ naayé/ nt^hakuwanaacho/ choombo/ chaa ye/ kumpe^hle^hla/ maayi. ‘One day Abunawaasi’s donkey was thirsty and he did not have anything with which to give him water.’ (This example illustrates the complexity of describing the agreement pattern of an animate noun like mp^huundra. In this sentence, it governs [cl.9] subject agreement in iwanaayo but [cl.1] object agreement in kumpe^hle^hla.)
- negative past
- nt^hawaná [cl.1] did not have’
Muusa/ nt^hawanaayo/ chibuuku. ‘Muusa did not have a book.’
Ni Muusa/ nt^hawanayo chibuukú. ‘It was Muusa who did not have a book.’

Or, with verb focus: Ni Muusa/ nt^hawanaayó/ chibuuku. (Observe that in this construction, the negative verb does not necessarily appear phrase-final, though it is possible for there to be a phrase break after it. But if there is a break, then the Accentual Law of Focus comes into play.)

Ye/ nt^hakuwanaayo/ kaazi/ yo yotte. ‘He did have any work, employment.’

Affirmative future:

takuwana [cl.1]

Nuuru/ takuwanayoo luti. ‘Nuuru will have a stick.’ (It is also possible for the enclitic to be =lo, in agreement with the [cl.11] noun luti, rather than =yo.)

Nuuru/ takuwanazoo ndruti. ‘Nuuru will have sticks.’ (In the case of [cl.10] nouns, there seems to be a preference for the enclitic =zo rather than =yo, though the latter does not appear to be unacceptable.)

Nuuru/ takuwanazo numbaa nt^hatu. ‘Nuuru will have three houses.’

utakuwana [cl.3]

Muti/ utakuwanayo makharba/ kahima. ‘The tree will have leaves soon.’ (There is only one possibility for the enclitic here: yo. The enclitic can either have [cl.9] default agreement or can agree with the [cl.6] makharba, but [cl.9] and [cl.6] both trigger =yo.)

Muti/ utakuwanayo nt^hanzi niingi/ kahima. ‘The tree will have many branches soon.’ (It is also possible for the enclitic to be =zo, in agreement with the [cl.10] nt^hanzi rather than =yo, with default [cl.9] agreement.)

yatakuna [cl.4] will have Miti/ yatakunayo makharba/ kahima. ‘The trees will have leaves soon.’

Affirmative counterfactual kawana ‘if [cl.1] had’

Mp^hundra uyu/ kawanayo mashkiló/ na khalbí/ suja kuuya/ maraa piilí/ apá? ‘If this donkey had ears and a heart would she have come back here a second time?’

Muusa/ kawanayo chibuukú ‘if Muusa had a book’ (cf. Muusa/ kawanacho chibuukú ‘if Muusa had the book’)

Muusa/ kawanaayó/ chibuuku ‘if Muusa had a book’; Muusa/ kawanaachó/ chibuuku ‘if Muusa had the book’ (In both of these examples, there is an intonational rise at the end which obscures somewhat that the complement chibuuku has default accent when separated prosodically from the verb.)

Affirmative conditional

nch^hiwana ‘if I have’

Chih^htaja peesa/ naambila/ nch^hiwanaazo/ nt^hakhupa. ‘If you need money, tell me, if I have it [cl.10], I will give it to you.’ (There is a more emphatic form of this verb, where the nasal of na is geminated and there is final accent: nch^hiwannaazó, although the gemination may also occur without the final accent: nch^hiwannaazo. The final accent is possible just in first or second person.)

chiwana ‘if [cl.1] has’

Chih^htaja peesa/ mwambila Nuuru/ ye/ chiwanaazo/ takhupa. ‘If you need money, tell Nuuru, if he has it [cl.10], he will give it to you.’ (Note that final accent is not possible in the emphatic version of this verb: chiwannaazo, not chiwannaazó.)

chii-na (zii-)

n. no etymological source known written letters of the alphabet

Lmooyi/ karka mbarakha/ lwanazo zina izi/ chiwaa we/ ile chisiwa ichi/ jisaa si/ pashpo khsuuḷa/ teena/ we/ siwereerishé/ ruuhuyo.
 ‘One of the sheets of paper had these words written on it: if you have come to this island as we did, without intending to, then don’t worry.’

Nuuru/ pangile ziina. ‘Nuuru erased the writing.’

zina zisomesheza waaná/ na mwaalimú ‘the passages that were taught to the children by the teacher’

Zinaaze/ zisuura. ‘His letters are nice, i.e. he has a good handwriting.’ (Phon.

The form zinaaze is a bit surprising. There is lengthening in front of the possessive enclitics =CV just in the event as word has the shape CVCV, i.e. two light syllables. We recorded the prefix of this word as having a long vowel and thus would not expect the lengthening to occur before =ze.)

ku-na

v. [Sw. nywa SSED 349] (neele) drink; [pronounced kuna, but can also be kuna]

china chiint’u hukuumbuka [song] ‘when I drink something, I remember’

Hamadi/ nakuna (or: nakuna) maayi. ‘Hamadi is drinking water.’

Hamadi/ nele (or: nele) maayi. ‘Hamadi drank water.’

Haṭá/ farasi/ shpowa maṭaaza/ ya mhuundru/ haṭaakuna. ‘Not even a horse, if given gruel made out of mhuundru, would drink it.’

Huseeni/ hunani. ‘What does Huseeni drink?’ A possible answer: Huseeni/ huna chaayi. ‘Huseeni drinks tea.’

kuna maayi/ kana chuula ‘to drink water like a frog – i.e. to drink too much, too often’ laakini/ kuwaa mi/ skukhaadira/ kiyana ‘but that I could not drink it’ (Notice that the infinitive prefix ku is pronounced ki in front of the [cl.6] object prefix ya. This shift occurs whenever the object prefix contains a palatal element.)

Ma’anaye/ muunt’u/ chaakuja/ na chaa kuná/ ka maṭezo. ‘Its meaning, a person does not get food and something to drink with fooling around (i.e. if you want something, you have to work for it).’

Mbele/ mp’ani maayi/ nine. ‘First, give me some water to drink.’

Nakhsuḷa kuna shkombe cha kahawa. ‘He wants to drink a cup of coffee.’

Nakhtamanaa we/ kuna. ‘He wants you to drink.’ Cf. Nakhtamanaa kuna chaayi. ‘He wants you to drink tea.’ Cf. Nakhtamanaa we/ kichina. ‘He wants you to drink it [cl.7].’ (Note that although the verb -tamana permits a subjunctive complement, the second person singular form is not used in the case of monosyllabic stems. Thus the following are not used:

Nakhtamanaa we/ ne. Nakhtamanaa we/ ne chaayi. Nakhtamanaa we/ chine.

Nele ka shkoombe. ‘He drank with a cup.’

Nele maayi/ ka ikoopa. ‘He drank water with a glass.’

Nnele iziwá/ na khamrí. ‘I drank the milk and the liquor.’

Shartí ya mara ya isa/ iwaaliko/ kuwa ṭakhshindroowá/ itamlaazima/ kuna maayi/ ya ṭawala/ yotte. ‘The condition this time was that the one who was defeated, it was obligated for him to drink all the water from the sea.’

Sinaakuja/ walá/ sinaakuna. ‘I am neither eating nor drinking.’

Sini. ‘I do not drink.’ (Cf. the other human subject forms: Huni. ‘You do not drink.’, Haani. ‘(S)he does not drink.’, Haachini. ‘We do not drink.’, Haanini. ‘You (pl.) do not drink.’, and Hawaani. ‘They do not drink.’)

Wamalizopo kuna maayi/ shpanda farasi/ chanza khsaafira. ‘When they [Fikiriini and his horse] finished drinking water, he mounted the horse and began to travel.’

wanafaanye ibaada karka haramu/ wanaṭuufe Ka’ba wanaane Zamzamu [st.] ‘may they worship in the great mosque (and) walk around the Ka’ba (and) drink from [the well of] Zamzam.’

We/ haṭá/ china habamooyi/ tu/ wo/ waṭakhuṭomola/ kaziini. ‘Even if you drink just a little, they will fire you.’

rel.

ku-naakuna v. freq. (neleneele)

ku-neeka v. p/s. be drinkable, be drunk

- Chaayi/ chize kuneeka. ‘The tea was not drinkable.’
Maayi/ yanakuneeka. ‘The water is being drunk.’
ku-neelega v. appl. (nelele) Nelele maayi/ ikoopa. ‘He drank water with a glass.’ Or: Ikoopa/ nelele maayi. (These data from MI illustrate his rejection of a focused instrument in the instrumental applied verb construction. This rejection is illustrated by ikoopa not appearing in Immediately-After-the Verb position, which is a position associated with focus. Note that ikoopa can be topicalized, but not maayi: Maayi/ nelele ikoopa. If one wants to topicalize maayi, the prepositional instrument construction must be used: Maayi/ nele ka ikoopa. ‘Water, he drank with as glass.’ This pattern was regularly observed in MI’s speech, but it does not appear to hold among present day speakers.)
Nelele shkoombe. ‘He drank with a cup.’
Neleleni. ‘What did he drink with?’
ku-neesha v. caus. (nesheeze) water (e.g. plants); make drink; serve drinks Ali/ nesheze muundra. ‘Ali watered the garden.’
Chiloota/ kuwaa ye/ wene ruuhuye/ uko mahala suura/ na nakumnesha moojé/ khamri. ‘He dreamed that he was in a lovely place and he was serving his master liquor.’
Haaji/ mnesheze mwaana/ khamri. ‘Haaji caused the child to drink liquor (e.g. by providing it to him, or by tricking him into drinking it, or by physically pouring it into his mouth, or by persuading or verbally compelling him to drink it).’ (A periphrastic causative may be used as an alternative for the persuasion/verbal compulsion senses: Haaji/ mtile mwaana/ kuna khamri.)
Nesheze maayi. ‘He made me drink water.’
Ye/ kaaziye/ ni kunesha muundra/ maayi. ‘His job is to water the cultivated field.’
ku-neshaneesha v. freq.
Haaji/ mneshezenesheze mwaana/ khamri. ‘Haaji caused the child to drink liquor frequently.’
ku-nesheleza v. caus. appl. (nesheleeze)
Chooloka/ ka jiraaniye/ kazima sufuriya/ kumnesheleza mp^huundrawe/ maayi. ‘He went to his neighbor to borrow a pot with which to give his donkey water.’
Ikoopa/ Ali/ mnesheleze mwaana/ maayi. ‘A glass, Ali made the child drink with.’ (It should be noted that in this example the instrument ikoopa is not an instrument that was used to cause the child to drink but rather the instrument that the child used to drink.)
ku-neshelezoowa v. caus. appl. pass. (nesheleeza) Ikoopa/ nesheleza mwaana/ maayi/ na Ali. ‘A cup, the child was made to drink water with by Ali.’ (Notice that the causee, mwaana, is the subject of this passive sentence, but it has been postposed after the verb while the instrument ikoopa has been preposed. MI did not accept Mwaana/ nesheleza/ maayi/ ikoopa. It should be noted that no noun phrase other than mwaana can be the subject of the passive sentence: Ikoopa/ inesheleza mwaana/ maayi/ na Ali. Also: Maayi/ yamesheleza mwaana/ ikoopa/ na Ali.) ku-neshoowa v. caus. pass. (nesheeza) Mwaana/ nesheza maayi/ ka ikoopa. ‘The child was made to drink water with a glass.’
ku-nika v. p/s.
Mayi aya/ haniki/ ni (ma)bardi/ kana/ barafu. ‘This water cannot be drunk, it is cold like ice.’
ku-noowa v. pass. be drunk
Amurile uki/ usinoowa. ‘He ordered the honey not to be drunk.’
Chimshika ooni/ maayi/ ya kunoowa/ yammajiile. ‘He became thirsty, water to be drunk was finished for him.’

- Maayi/ ha'inoowi/ ka khsimama. 'Water is not drunk standing.' (It is believed by the waant^hu wa Miini that one should not just take water from the water pot and drink it quickly while standing; one should sit and relax and drink it slowly.)
- Maayi/ hunoowa/ tu/ sahali/ kunoowa/ maayi/ laakini/ maazi/ maazi/ hukhaadiri/ kuna/ walá/ khtaawanya. 'Water is just drunk, it is easy for water to be drunk, but blood, you cannot drink blood nor spill it.' (Part of a comment on the proverb: Maazi/ ni mazito/ kolko maayi. 'Blood is heavier than water.')
- rel. nom.
ch-aa-ku-na (z-aa-ku-) n. 7/8 s.t. to drink, a drink mu-na (wa-) n. 1/2 one who drinks wu-no n. 14 the act of drinking
- naa pron. who? (reduced form of naani)
Naa/ naayo/ yo. 'Who has it?'
Naa/ takinreebó. 'Who will stop you (pl.)?'
- na mapeema adv. [Sw. mapema SSED 260] early Na mapeema/ wachiḷawa. 'They left early.'
- na'am part. [Sw. naam SSED 328; Ar. xxx W 980] yes; [pron. na'ám] (The commonly used word for 'yes' is ee)
Uje taajiri/ chimjiiba/ chimwaambila/ na'am/ nakhsuulani/ Abunawaasi. 'That business man answered him, saying to him: yes, what do you want, Abunawaasi?'
- naa'ibu n. [Sw. naibu SSED 329; Ar. nā'ib W 1008] deputy, vice-chairman, etc.
Omari/ ni naa'ibu/ ya mkulu/ wa guddi/ ya skoolā. 'Omari is the deputy of the chief of the school committee.'
Ra'iisi/ ya muuyi/ nt^hakhaadira/ kuuya/ shiriini/ mtumile naa'ibuye. 'The president of the town was not able to come on the twentieth, he sent his deputy.'
- rel.
u-naa'ibu n. deputyship
- na'muusi n. respect; variant form: naamuusi ezi na na'musi nda Mtume Mhamadi [st.] 'dignity and respect are due [lit. of] the Prophet Mohammad' nt^haná/ naamuusi 'he has no respect for people'
- nabari n. [Som. nabar DSI 457] a muscular pain, especially in the neck or chest, caused mainly by cold, which makes breathing and movement very difficult; [pron. nabari] khpata nabari 'to get nabari' Shkalaant^hé/ bardiini/ takhpata nabari. 'Do not sit in the cold, you will get nabari.'
khtomola nabari 'to remove nabari' Kamba/ we/ nakhsuḷa khtomolowa nabari/ endrá/ kandrowa ka mafta. 'If you want nabari to be removed, go have a massage with oil.'
kubiga nabari*
kubigowa nabari ***
- ku-nabihisha v. [Sw. nabihisha "cause to remember" SSED 328; Ar. nabaha, nabihā W 940] call someone's attention to something
- nabiyi n. [Sw. nabii SSED 328; Ar. nabīy W 941] prophet ka Nabiyi Mokhtaari/ kheeri kubashiriḷowa [st.] 'near the Prophet, the Chosen One/ may he receive eternal happiness’

rel.

ambiya (ma-'ambiya) n. pl. [Ar. ambiyā W 941] poetic naada

n. call naako itakuuya naada/ khalqi inakirimoowa [st.] ‘and then the divine call will be made for the crowd to be rewarded’

ku-naada

v. [Sw. nadi SSED 328; Ar. nadā W 952] (nadiile) call for the first bid at an auction; make a proclamation; summon ambiila mtume Ibraahimu naada/ waviile waant^hbija ni ibaada [st.] ‘the prophet Abraham was told: summon/ all people, the pilgrimage is an act of worship’

Mbiga mnaada/ ilopó/ sultaani/ chimwamura kingila muyiini/ kunaada/ kuwa sultaani/ wele waziiri/ na waziiri/ wele sultaan i. ‘When the proclaimer came, the sultan order him to go into town to announce that the sultan had become the minister and the minister had become the sultan.’

Mnaadisho/ chinaada/ naani/ nakhsulo kula chita cha ngoombé. ‘The auctioneer announced publicly: who wants to buy the head of a cow?’

rel.

ku-nadanaada v. freq.

Kilasku/ nakunadanada choombo/ ka sultaani/ hunaadó/ yaa ye/ hupató/ humletela sultaani. ‘Each day he auctions things for the sultan, that’s what he does, and whatever he gets, he brings to the sultan.’ (Note the verb repetition in this example. Ordinarily, the repeated verb is morphologically identical to the verb that it repeats, but here the present tense of the triggering verb is matched with the habitual verb in the repeated verb.)

Oyo mubli/ kaaziye/ iwaliko chinadanada zoombo/ ka sultaani. ‘The man’s job was to auction things for the sultan.’

ku-naadisha v. caus. auction off; announce s.t. verbally (e.g. using a microphone in issuing a governmental proclamation)

rel. nom.

m-naada (wa-) n. 1/2 [Sw. mnadi SSED 328] auctioneer, one who makes a proclamation

Ye/ chondroka ka chitiini/ chiwa’ambila waant^hu/ wawaliko haadiri/ barzaani/ kumvijila mbiga mnaada. ‘He arose from his chair and told the people who were present in the royal hall to summon for him one who makes proclamations.’

m-naada (mi-) n. 3/4 [Sw. mnada SSED 328] auction, auctioneering; proclamation khtila mnadaani ‘to put up for sale’ kubiga mnaada ‘to auction off; announce (policies, programs, etc.)’ mooja nashfaanya wakasiizo mnaada [st.] ‘may God make us be those who have heard the call’

m-naadisha (wa-) n. 1/2 auctioneer

Chimweeleza/ chimwaambila/ mi/ ni mnaadishá. ‘He explained to him, saying, I am the one who auctions (things).’

We/ takingila sukhuuni/ na apo sukhuuni/ we/ ta(ku)mwona mnaadisha/ hunadisho apó. ‘You will enter the market and there at the market you will see an auctioneer who is auctioneering there.’

m-naado (mi-) n. 3/4 announcement; auction

Cheendra/ chimpeleka mnadooni/ chimuuzá. ‘He went and took him (the goat) to the auction and sold him.’

Ibishila mnaado/ muyiini/ ya kuwa mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ nakulojoowa. ‘It was announced to the town that the daughter of the sultan was marrying.’

Karkaa wo/ wanakhsulo koondroká/ washkasa mnaado. ‘While they were planning to move, they heard an announcement.’

kubiga mnaado ‘to auction off; announce (policies, programs, etc.)’

Ye/ takuya sukhuuni/ kubiga mnaado/ kuzaa nama/ ya ngoombe. ‘He will come to the market to auction off and sell the meat of cows.’

Ye/ chaamura/ kubigowa mnaado/ ya kuwa tamloozá/

mwanaamkewe/ muunt^hu/ tamletelo hundra ya

Yahuudí. ‘He ordered an announcement to be made that he would marry his daughter to the man who will bring the dry measure of the Jews to him.’

kubigowa mnaado ‘to be auctioned off; to be announced’

Ichibigowa mnaado/ waant^hu/ wotte/ kuhuðura ka sulṭaani/

sa’a fulaani/ muunt^hu/ sibaakhaṭe/ waana/ na wazeelé/ shokuwanayo mwaaná/ nalete ijiwe. ‘It was announced for all people to be present at the sultan’s place at a certain hour, no one should be absent, children and elders, and the one who does not have a child, let him bring a stone.’

Sulṭaani/ shṭomola amri/ kubigowa mnaado. ‘The sultan issued an order for a public announcement to be made.’

u-naðaaafa

n. [Sw. unadhifu SSED 328] cleanliness

naðari

n. [cf. Ar. verb naðira "to have been warned" W 953] forewarning, announcement hokomu ya Mooja ishpitapo ntachina naðari [st.] ‘when God’s judgement passes [= death comes] we have no forewarning’

naðiifa

adj. [Sw. nadhifu SSED 328]

Hamadi/ ni mwaana/ naðiifa/ msuura/ na adiibú. ‘Hamadi is a child (who is) clean, handsome, and well-mannered.’

Mayi manaðiifa/ ni afiya. ‘Clean water is healthy.’ (Note that although naðiifa is an invariable adjective, a variant such as this exists where it displays agreement with a [cl.6] noun. We are unsure whether this phenomena extends to other noun classes.)

Mayi naðiifa/ ni muhimu/ tarafu ya afiya. ‘Clean water is important for health.’

Maayi/ ni naðiifa/ nt^ho. ‘The water is very clear.’

naðiifa/ kana chilolo ‘as clean as glass’

Numba ya Omari/ (ni) naðiifa. ‘Omari’s house is clean.’ (Cf. the simple yes-no question: ^QNumba ya Omari/ naðiifa?, and the exclamatory yes-no question: [↓]Numba ya Omari/ naðiifá!?)

ku-naðiifisha

v. [Sw. nadhifisha SSED 228; Ar. verb naḏufa and naḏif "clean" W 977] (naðiifishiize) clean s.t.

Chooloka/ choowa/ chinaðifisha ruuhuye. ‘He went and bathed and cleaned himself.’

Haliima/ nakunaðifisha nuumba. ‘Haliima is cleaning the house.’

Munt^hu uyu/ naðifishize ruuhuye/ tawala. ‘This man cleaned himself on the beach.’ (Cf. the negative version of this sentence and the difference in phrasing attached to it: Munt^hu uyu/ nt^hakunaðiifisha/ ruuhuye/ tawala. ‘This man did not clean himself on the beach.’)

Tuuma/ hunaðifisha/ nuumba. ‘Tuuma (habitually) cleans the house.’

We/ ndrasilee mi/ numbaani/ khpata khulangaḷiḷa waana/ kuwapikila/ kuwanaðiifisha/ na kuwafanyiliza yaa wo/ wanakiḥṭaajó. ‘You left me in the house to look after your children, to cook for them,

- to clean them, and to do for them whatever they need done.’
- rel.
ku-naḍifishana v. caus. rec.
ku-naḍifishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-naḍifishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-naḍifishilizana v. caus. appl. rec.
- ku-naḍima* v. [Sw. nadhimu cited in N&M with the meaning "compose verses, compose a poem"; Ar. naẓama W 977] arrange in order Mooja namreHEME muunt^hu naḍimiilo [st.] ‘may God have mercy on the one who composed [this poem]’
- rel.
ku-naḍimisha v. caus.
- naḍiiri* n. [Sw. nadhiri SSED 328; Ar. nadr W 953] promise, pledge, vow (religious) khfanya naḍiiri ‘to make a vow’ kuweka naḍiiri ‘to make a vow’
- nadiiri* adv. [cf. Sw. adj. nadra "uncommon, rare, scarce" SSED 328; Ar. nādir "infrequent, uncommon" W 951] Hamadi/ sku izi/ huwonekana naadiri. ‘Hamadi is rarely seen these days.’
- nafi* n. [Sw. nafuu "profit, advantage, gain, progress, assistance, e.g. in money or food, for a journey; also improvement in health, convalescence" SSED 329; cf. Ar. nafa ‘a "to be useful, beneficial" W 987] usefulness Ilmu/ suura/ ya nafi. ‘Knowledge is good, (something) useful.’ (A proverbial saying.)
- rel.
naafi’i adj. useful
- nafaqa* n. [Ar. nafaqa "cost of living, maintenance, adequate support" W 987] maintenance
- nafasi* n. [Sw. nafasi SSED 328; Ar. nafas "freedom, convenience" W 985] space, room, chance (time to do s.t.)
Aduwi/ hapoowi/ nafasi. ‘An enemy is not given space, room (to do s.t.).’ (A saying.) chisuula khtumila shari’a nafasi [st.] ‘if you wish to use (water that has been used to clean s.t. that is ritually unclean), the shari’a law is flexible (has space, room to accommodate)’ chiwa siiko naawe hupata nafasi [song] ‘if I am not with you, will you find relief?’
Hamadi/ na wakhṭi/ nafasi/ kilaa chiint^hu/ hudirka/ faanya. ‘Hamadi has a lot of time, he can do anything.’
khpata nafasi ‘to find the time/chance (to do something)’ Mp^ha nafasi. ‘Give me enough time.’
nafasi ya khalbi ‘(lit.) space of the heart – i.e. one always finds the space to accommodate a guest, even in a small house, if one’s heart is generous and loving’
Siná/ nafasi. ‘I have no time; I have no room.’
- ku-nafiqā* v. [Ar. nafaqa "provide means of support" W 987] (nafikhiile) support a family; [pron. kunafiqā or kunafikha]
kuḷazima kunafikha ‘to oblige to support’ (This expression is used rather than a morphologically causative form such as kunafikhisha.)
- rel.
ku-nafiqila v. appl. (nafiqiile)
- nafsi* n. [Sw. nafsi SSED 328; Ar. nafsi SSED 328; Ar. nafs "soul, human being, person" W 985] self, soul, inner world, emotions, id ahli infariqiile mi nakhkooḍa na nafsiya [nt.] ‘my relatives have left me and I talk to my soul’

Chakujaache/ shpikiloowa/ na watumishe/ wiingine/ na chegeshoowa/ na mwanaamke/ nafsye. ‘His food was cooked by other servants and brought to him by the girl herself.’

Chimuuló/ ni muunt^hu/ apo/ chimamulaŋo shu’uni zaa nt^hi/ siwo/ fir’ooni/ nafsye. ‘The one who bought him (i.e. Joseph) was a man there (in Egypt) who took care of the affairs of the country, it was not Pharaoh himself.’

Hamadi/ uzile jaaka/ iyo/ nafsye. ‘Hamadi bought that jacket itself.’ (It is striking that in this sentence, downstep intonation is lacking. Jaaka is not downstepped relative to Hamadi, but neither is iyo nor nafsye downstepped relative to jaaka. The intensifier nafsye is apparently focused, and a bit higher in pitch than the preceding phrase.)

Jaaka/ iyo/ nafsye/ Omari/ uziló. ‘That jacket itself Omari bought.’ (The three initial phrases are all roughly at the same pitch level, so it is not immediately obvious on the basis of pitch which should be considered to be focused. We have opted to consider nafsye the focus, as it seems the highest pitch. Note that the subject Omari is downstepped, as is the verb, which has been put into the pseudo-relative form to the presence of focus in the pre-verb material.)

Laakini/ iyo/ hupati/ mi/ nnakeendrá/ kumwubla/ sulṭaani/ nafsye/ nt^hasaa ye/ kunublaa mi. ‘But that, you will not obtain it; I am going to kill the sultan himself before he kills me.’

mapeendo ya nafsi ni óambi l’akbari [st.] ‘love of self is a great sin’ na killa maadamu khtiyila nafsye [nt.] ‘and every one is fearing for his own life’

Nafsi/ ni aduwi/ si’itúilé. ‘The self/soul/emotion/id is an enemy, do not obey it!’ (A proverb.)

nafsiyo/ ba (an expression used to show surprise)

Nafsiyo/ ba/ uzile gaari. ‘So you bought yourself a car!’

Ni shiliingi/ khamsiini/ zaa ye/ nafsye/ stomeeló. ‘It is the fifty shillings that he himself gave to her.’

nt^hana mithaali nt^hana mfaano nafsye [st.] ‘[God] has no equal, he has nothing like himself’

Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ iyo/ nafsye. ‘Nureeni bought that jacket itself.’

Sulṭaani/ naafsye/ chingila chisimaani/ chimtomola celo. ‘The sultan himself went down in the well and took the gazelle out.’

Tumila aqliyo/ siraashé/ nafsyo. ‘Use your brains, don’t follow (obey) your emotions.’

uhaqi wa nafsi kumeera salaama [nt.] ‘it is one’s right to seek safety’

We/ nafsyo/ nayo ijini. ‘You yourself are crazy.’

Ye/ nafsye/ waliko mariiði/ na walikoo...khalbi/ imvundishile. ‘He himself was sick and he was discouraged.’ (It is possible for the speaker to hesitate/pause in the middle of a phonological phrase, in which case the final vowel before the pause is lengthened.)

nafta

n. [Ital. nafta] diesel oil

gari ya nafta ‘a diesel truck’ Gaari/ za nafta/ nii nguvu/ kolko gari za banziina. ‘Diesel trucks are stronger than petrol trucks.’

ku-naha

v. [Som. nax DSI 463] be scared, startled, terrified, shocked

Naha! ‘Be scared!’

Nahaani! ‘(Pl.) be scared!’

Sinahé! ‘Don’t be scared!’

Sinaheeni! ‘(Plural) don’t be scared!’

Suufi/ hunaha ka sahali. ‘Suufi gets scared easily.’

rel.

ku-nahaanaha v. get scared frequently, easily

Huseeni/ hunahaanaha. ‘Huseeni gets frightened often, easily.’

ku-nahila v. appl. lament what has happened, feel empathy for s.o.

Omari/ hanahili/ waant^hu/ hupeenda/ kujuza waant^hu/ tu. ‘Omari does not feel empathy for people, he just likes to reproach/find fault/ rub it in.'

ku-nahisha v. caus. scare, startle someone

Fikiriini/ mukhtaa ye/ mweno mwanaamké/ qalbi/ imbishile/ sura za mwanaamke/ zinnahishiize/ nt^ho. 'When Fikiriini saw the girl, his heart pounded, the girl's beauty frightened him very much.'

Omari/ zinahishizee nk^huku. 'Omari startled the chickens.'

ku-nahishana v. caus. rec. scare one another ku-nahishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-nahishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-nahishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-nahoowa v. pass. be scared, startled, shocked

Lilla/ ha'inahoowi. 'Truth is not scared.' (A proverb.)

Jawabu yaa kufa/ ni jawabu ya kunahoowa. 'The matter (issue) of dying is a matter of being frightened.'

Kufa/ ni jawabu ya kunahoowa. 'To die is a matter of getting frightened.'

Kunahoowa/ huleta maradi ya khalbi. 'Being frightened causes (lit.) heart disease.'

ku-nahowanahoowa v. freq. pass. be scared, frightened often, easily

Kunahowanahoowa/ huleta maradi ya khalbi. 'Being frightened repeatedly causes (lit. brings) heart attack (lit. disease pf heart).'

chi-naho (zi-)

n. 7/8 a scare

Ulushile ka chinaho. 'He jumped from fright.'

ku-naharisa

v. be generous ka rahmaze humnaharisa sha'iibu [st.] '(God) in his compassion is generous to the old'

Mnaharise/ uko nt^hi/ naawé/ takhunaharisó/ uko kuzimú. 'Be kind to the one who is on earth and you will be the one who the one in the sky will be kind to.'

rel.

ku-naharisoowa v. pass.

Aduwi/ hanaharisoowi. 'An enemy is not someone to be generous to.' (A saying; says that one should not be kind to an enemy.)

chilombeeni rahmaye/ Sheekhi kunaharisoowa [st.] 'let us beg for His grace/ and for the Sheikh to be granted His compassion'

nah(a)risi

n. [Som. naxariis DSI 463] kindness, generosity, pity, mercifulness

Amá/ wazeele/ wa sku izi/ nt^hawaná/ nahrisi. 'Truly, old people these days have no pity.'

E we/ sho naharisi/ muumuu/ khalbiyo/ inakhfungoowa. 'O you, merciless and rigid, your heart is being locked.'

Khalbiye/ iyele naharisi. 'His heart was filled with kindness, pity, etc.' Or: Iyele naharisi/ khalbiye. 'Was filled with kindness, generosity, etc., his heart.'

Khalbiye/ nt^hayná/ naharisi. 'His heart did not have generosity [in it].'

kudara naharisi

Sultaani/ naharisi/ ichimdaara/ chiwasaameha/ waanawe. 'The sultan was touched by generosity and he forgave his children.'

kuwonela naharisi 'to feel sorry for'

Maskiini/ naharisi/ (i)chimdaara/ chimwaazima/ haanzu. 'Pity touched the poor man and he lent him (in the story, another poor man who did not have any clothes to wear) a haanzu.' mwenye naharisi 'a kind person'

Naharisi/ imdariile. '[Lit.] Pity touched him -- i.e. he felt pity.'

nahrisi nda mojiitu na amaani/ ilu ya mtume mtafe wa rahmaani [st.]

'may God's mercy and peace be upon the Prophet, the one chosen by the Compassionate'

Nt^haná/ naharisi/ khalbiini. 'There is no kindness, generosity in [his] heart.'

- Sultaani/ chishikowa sh̄tanaa nt^ho/ chihada/ uyu/ Abunawaasi/ nofishiize/ nt^ho/ walá/ ba'ada ya isa/ mi/ siwo/ nt^hamonelo naharisi. 'The sultan became very angry and said: this Abunawaasi has made me very tired (of his tricks and boasting), and not after this time will I pity him.'
- Uyu muunt^hu/ imdarile naharisi/ shkharira kishtala icho chinoka/ kishkorsha kaake. 'This man felt pity and decided to take that little snake and raise it at his place.'
- Uyu/ nii muke/ mwenye naharisi/ na khalbi suurá. 'This is a woman who has generosity and a good heart.'
- Wanakuhada/ mzele uyu/ nt^haná/ naharisi/ ye/ panzile mp^huundra/ m̄wana chihaba/ nakiineendra. 'They said, this old man doesn't have any pity, he has climbed the donkey and his small son is walking.'
- naharisoole adj. generous Maskiini/ ye/ naharisoole. 'The poor person, he is generous.'
- ku-nahila v. take care of Muunt^hu/ chiza kunahila ruuhuye/ nt^haku/ humnahiló. 'When a person does not take care of himself, no one will take care of him.' (A proverb.)
Muunt^hu/ mbele/ hunahila ruuhuye/ chimaliza/ hunahila waant^hu. 'One first has to take care of himself and then take care of others.' (A proverb.)
- chi-naho n.
Ulushile/ ka chinaho/ na fungilopo maṣṣoyé/ wene ruuhuye/ uko nt^hakaani/ ka shpandre cha maandra/ mkonooni. 'He jumped from fear and when he opened his eyes, he saw himself in a garbage dump with a slice of bread in his hand.'
- nahwi n. [Sw. nahau SSED 329; Ar. nahw W 948] grammar Ali/ hukoda nahwi. 'Ali speaks grammatically, correctly.'
Ni muṭabahiri/ ka nahwi. 'He is well versed in grammar.'
- najaahi n. success
Daḍaalīyo/ ṭaajiye/ ni najaahi/ na liwaani. 'Your effort, its crown is success and success.'
- ku-najiha v. [Ar. najaḥa W 943] (najihile) succeed, pass (an exam)
Muunt^hu/ mojiitu/ chimla'ana/ hanajihī 'if God curses someone, he does not succeed.'
Mukhtaa we/ hudaḍalaṭo khsomá/ we/ ṭakunajiha. 'When you study hard, you succeed.'
M̄waana najihile imṭihaani 'The boy passed the examination.'
We/ kajaaribá/ skanajihe. 'If you had tried, you would not have succeeded.'
rel.
ku-najihisha v. caus.
Mnajihishize m̄waana/ imṭihaani. 'He passed the child on the examination (e.g. he raised the child's grade so that he would pass).'
ku-najihishiliza v. caus. appl.
Nuuru/ mnajihishilize Ali/ m̄waana. 'Nuuru passed Ali's child on the exam.'
- najla n. [Ar. najl W 945] offspring, descendants, progeny
- mu-najimu (wa-) n. 1/2 [Ar. munajjim W 945] astrologer (The initial syllable of the Arabic source munajjim has apparently been reinterpreted as the [cl.1] noun class prefix, as is shown by the fact that the plural is wajjimu. However, the retention of the vowel in the initial syllable mu is unexpected for the [cl.1] prefix mu-.)

Ordinarily this syllable would elide its vowel in front of a consonant-initial suffix of two or more syllables.)

nakhayrizo

in the expression:

Nakhayrizó/ na'afiyazó. 'Are you well and healthy?' (A greeting at any time of the day.) If addressed to plural people: Nakhayri ziinu/ na'afiya ziinu. (The obligatory reply is Nakhayriza/ na'afiyaza. or: Chinakhayri ziitu/ china'afiya ziitu.) (This greeting is perhaps an historical development from na + kheeri + possessive and na + afiya + possessive.) accent

naakhuḍa(Ø, ma-)

n. [cf. Sw. nahodha SSED 329; Som. naakhuude DSI 456; perhaps there is a dialectal Arabic source, but not found in Wehr's dictionary] captain (esp. of a local sailing boat)

Jahazi/ bilaa naakhuḍa/ nt'a'iná/ jiha. 'A dhow without a captain has no direction.'

Naakhuḍa/ wachiwa wiingi/ jahazi/ huzaama. 'If the captains become many, the dhow sinks.' (A proverb, like the English "too many cooks spoil the broth".)

nakuwonaayi

[a fixed expression] how do you see the situation, my ideas, proposals, etc., in the sense of asking for approval of a suggestion

nakuwonaayi/ ruuhuyo

[a fixed expression] how are you? (lit. how do you see yourself?)

nalī

n. [Som. nal "electric bulb, electric power" DSI 461] light, light bulb, electric power Gaari/ ya Alí/ nakuwoná/ nalize/ kaa kule/ birikhbirikhize. 'Ali's truck, I see its lights from afar flashing.'

kudarshaa nalī 'to put on a light' kuzimizaa nalī 'to put off the light' maatoye/ kana/ nalī 'his eyes are like a light (i.e. he sees very well)'

Mp'aka/ maṭo yaawo/ huwala/ masku/ kana/ nalī/ haṭá/ minzaani/ huwona. 'Cats, their eyes are bright during the night, they shine like a lamp, they see even in darkness.'

ku-nala

v. (ṅazile) urinate; [pron. kunala, but [kunala] is also possible]

Amá/ ngamiilaye/ uyu/ ṅazile katikati yaa ndila. 'But his camel urinated in the middle of the road.'

Hamadi/ nakunala. 'Hamadi is urinating.' (But one can also hear: Hamadi/ nakunala.)

Huṅa maayi/ hanali. 'He drinks water, but he does not urinate.' (A riddle, the answer to which is nk'uku 'hen'.)

Ngamiila/ schiwaamo/ karka safari/ mukhta'a zo/ huṅaló/ hufaafisha/ mane yaawo/ ka mkila. 'Camels, when they are travelling, if they urinate, they spread their urine with their tail.'

Mwaana/ kama nakhsulo kunalá. 'It seems the child is about to urinate.'

Waankhuló/ hubigaa nk'hele/ chigalapó. 'Your grandfather shouts when he urinates.' (A riddle, the answer to which is nvula 'rain'.)

rel.

ku-nalīla v. appl. (nalīile) urinate on

Haliima/ harusini/ ka Omari/ mwaanawe/ shishile shṭeko/ haṭá/ nalīle ruuhuye. 'Haliima, at the wedding of Omari's son, kept laughing until she pissed on herself.'

Mwaana/ ṅalīile. 'The child urinated on me.'

ku-nalisha v. caus. help a child to urinate; take a child to the bathroom; make a noise so that a child may get the idea of what he is to do (in toilet training), toilet train; cause someone to urinate (in a non-agentive fashion); [pron.

kunalisha]

Dakhtari/ mṅalishize mariiḍi. 'The doctor put a tube in the patient etc. to get him to urinate.' (Syn. If one wants to convey the idea that the doctor persuaded the patient to urinate, then a periphrastic construction may be used; e.g. Dakhtari/ mtile mariiði/ kunala.)

Dakhtari/ mñalishize mariiði/ shtupaani. ‘The doctor persuaded the sick person to urinate into the small bottle.’

Zeena/ mñalishize mwaana. ‘Zeena trained the child to urinate.’

nama

n. 9/10 [Sw. nyama SSED 293] meat, flesh; [pron. nama, but nama may also be heard]

Chija zijoze/ ka mtuzi/ naa namá. ‘She ate her zijo with gravy and meat.’

Chooloka/ chimpika/ oyoo noka/ mafta/ yałazilo ka namaani/ shtaala/ chiyatila karka zibałasi/ saba. ‘She went and she cooked that snake and the oil that came from its meat, she put it in seven large clay jars.’

Muunt^hu/ hałiindi/ namaye. ‘One does not eat his meat – i.e., one does not fight, deny, reject his clansman.’

nama halaali ‘meat from an animal that has been slaughtered according to Islamic practice – e.g. Lord’s name mentioned at the moment of slaughtering’

Nama/ ijila na waant^hu. ‘The meat was eaten by the people.’ Or: Nama/ ijila/ na waant^hu.

nama mbiti maskiini yotte khpoowa [st.] ‘all the raw meat (of the slaughtered animal) must be given to the poor’ wajaa nama/ za waant^hu ‘cannibals (lit. eaters of the flesh of people)’

We/ hupowaa zijo/ kaa nama. ‘You are given zijo with meat.’

rel.

chi-nama n.

Limi/ ni chinama/ tu/ nt^haliná/ mwishpa. ‘The tongue is just flesh, it doesn’t have a bone.’

nambari

n. [Sw. namba, nambari SSED 330; Eng. number] number namiiima

n. [Ar. namīma "slander, defamation" W 1000] defamation, slander; adj. slanderer variant form: namiiimu

munt^hu namiiima ‘a slanderer’; want^hu (ma)namiiima ‘sladers’ namiiima ow kuhamata islaamu [st.] ‘a slanderer or to speak slanderously of Muslims’

rel.

unamiiimu n. 10 backbiting, slandering, gossiping

Huseeni/ unamiiimuze/ ni niingi. ‘Huseeni’s backbitings are many.’
(Despite the apparent [cl.14] prefix u, the possessive agreement z supports assigning this noun to [cl.10].)

namna

n. [Sw. namna SSED 330] way, manner, kind

Hupikowa zaakuja/ za namna niingi/ na husaaló/ hawanyilizowa maskiini. ‘Food of many kinds is cooked and what remains is shared with the poor.’

namna itaakuwó ‘in any way, in any manner’ namna ka namna ‘different kinds’

Kuła mwaana/ hułukula chibeeramu/ zaakuja/ za namna ka namna/ na nt^hupa ya sharbaati. ‘Every child carries a banner, foods of various kinds, and a bottle of kool-aid.’

Munt^hi uyu/ lapiiile/ wakulu/ na zihabá/ huława ibana ya muuyi/ hendra kulangała małezo za namna ka namna. ‘In the afternoon of this day adults and children go to the outskirts of town to watch games of different kinds.’

namna yiingine ‘another, a different way’ zaakuja/ za namna mbałbali ‘foods of different kinds’ namuuna

n. [cf. namna above] kind, sort

- naamuusi n. [Ar. nāmūs "rule, honour" W 936] in the expression:
kuvunda naamuusi 'to disgrace s.o., cause s.o. to be disgraced'
- chi-nanaande (zi-) n. 7/8 a kind of hard, folded pastry that (looks) like small boats.'
Haliima/ fanyize zinanaande/ kana zibaṭeera. 'Haliima made zinanaande zinanaande/ za aadi 'the normal zinanaande pastry'
- chi-naandra (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kinanda SSED 199] guitar, phonograph Ka shkapuuni/ schilawa zinaandra/ na gambuusá/ naazó/ zinakubigó.
'From the basket she took our banjos and guitars which were playing.'
kubiga chinaandra [cf. Sw. piga kinanda] to play a phonograph; to copulate (said of humans, esp. during the first week of marriage)
- naane n. and adj. [Sw. nane SSED 330] eight ikumi na naane 'eighteen'
na mweezi naane wachiḍana keendra [st.] 'and if they think the ninth day of the month is the eighth'
skapu zinaane 'eight baskets'
- naanga n. 9/10 [Sw. nanga SSED 330] swahilicisms anchor
- naani interrog. pron. [Sw. nani SSED 330] who(m)? variant form: naá Abashekh/ mpatilile naani/ gaari. 'Who did Abasheikh get a car for?' (Observe that in the benefactive construction, naani may be used to question the identity of the beneficiary.) Abdi/ uyu/ ni naani. 'Abdi, who is this?'
Ali/ mbigilile naani/ Suufi. 'Whom did Ali hit to Suufi's detriment (or who is related to Suufi)?' (The first interpretation in this sentence is that Suufi is the beneficiary. It is, however, possible to understand the sentence as asking:
Whom did Ali hit Suufi on?' This ambiguity is possible only when naani is post-verbal. In the following sentence, Suufi is understandable only as the beneficiary: Ali/ mbigilile Suufi/ naani. 'Whom did Ali hit for/on Suufi.')
- Ali/ mbozele naani/ chibuuku. 'Ali stole a book from whom?' (When the question word naani is the primary object of the verb and post-verbal, then the verb is not affected, in contrast to when naani is preverbal: Naani/ wa Ali/ mbozelo chibuukú. 'Who was it that Ali stole a book from?')
- Boobo/ mtumilile naani. 'Whom did you send to Boobo?' (This sentence cannot mean 'Whom did you send Boobo to?' In other words, when the two complements to the verb belong to the same noun class and thus govern the same object prefix on the verb, one can prepose only the logical indirect object and not the logical direct object.)
- Bwaana/ mwenye nyunyi izi/ naani. 'Master, who is the owner of these birds?'
- Chibuku cha naani/ chiboozelá. 'Whose book was stolen?' Or: Chibuuku/ cha naani/ chiboozelá.
- Chimuuza/ naani/ namviló. 'She asked her who was the one calling her.'
- Isa/ naambila/ nda naani/ numba iyi. 'Now tell me whose house this is.'
- Laakini/ ni naani/ takeendró/ mfungaa mp^haká/ ijarsí. 'But who will go and tie a bell on the cat?'
- Muusa/ mbozele naani/ chibuuku. 'Muusa/ stole from whom/ the book?'
- Mwana wa naani/ iló. 'Whose child came?'
- Mwana wa naani/ Muusa/ mweenó. 'Whose child did Muusa see?'
- Naá/ [↑]liinziló. 'Who waited?' (This pronunciation, where the verb is exaggeratedly raised in pitch, conveys the speaker's disbelief that a certain person waited.
The upward pointing arrow indicates the exaggerated raising of the final syllable of the verb.)
- Naa/ veto haanzú. 'Who wore a haanzu?'

Naa/ veto haanzú/ Tuuma. ‘Who wore a haanzu, Tuuma?’ Or: Tuuma/ naa/ veto haanzú. ‘Tuuma, who wore a haanzu?’

Naani/ chiyó. ‘Who was coming?’ (Answer: Omari/ chiyó. ‘Omari was coming.’)

Naani/ iló. ‘Who came?’ Or: Ni naani/ iló. ‘It is who who came?’ (Note that it is ungrammatical not to put the verb in pseudo-relative form: Naani/ ile. The relative clause may come first: Iló/ (ni) naani. ‘The one who came is who?’ But naani may also occur inside the VP: Ile naani/ numbaani. ‘Who came home?’ In this case, the verb is not put into pseudo-relative form.)

Naani/ mwekelelo Nuurú/ chibuukú/ nt^hini ya meezá. ‘Who put a book for Nuuru under the table?’

Naani/ mnaango/ fungiló. ‘Who opened the door?’

Naani/ mpelo Jaamá/ chaakujá. ‘Who gave Jaama food?’ (A possible answer: Ali/ mpelo Jaamá/ chaakujá. ‘Ali gave Jaama food.’)

Naani/ mpelo maaná/ chibuukú. ‘Who gave the child a book?’ If the verb in the pseudo-relativized clause has emphasis on it, then the final accent is barred from projecting to the complement: Naani/ mpeeló/ maana/ chibuuku. Yet another variant: Naani/ chibuuku/ mpelo waaná.

Naani/ mtindililo mwaaná/ namá. ‘Who cut meat for the child?’

Naani/ nakubigo hoodí. ‘Who is it that is asking for permission to enter?’

Naani/ nt^hakhpikaa zijó. ‘Who did not cook zijo?’ A possible answer to this question would be: Tuuma/ nt^hakhpikaa zijó. ‘Tuuma did not cook zijo.’

Naani/ nt^hamona Omari. ‘Who did not see Omari?’ or: Naani/ nt^hamoná/ Omari.

Naani/ Nuuru/ mekelelo chibuukú/ nt^hini ya meezá. ‘Who put for Nuuru a book under the table?’

Naani/ peła chibuukú/ na mwaajimú. ‘Who was given a book by the teacher?’

Naani/ somelo chibuukú. ‘Who read the book?’ Or: Naani/ someeló/ chibuuku. (Note that the Accentual Law of Focus holds in the pseudo-relative construction.)

Naani/ uzilo chibuukú. ‘Who bought the book?’ Or: Naani/ uziló/ chibuuku.

Nii muke/ hiiwó/ naani/ jiló/ amó/ naani/ nt^haakujá. ‘It is the wife who knows who ate and who did not.’ review

Ni chibuku cha naani/ ichi. ‘Whose book is this?’ Or: Nch^ha naani/ chibuku ichi. (It is less likely to say ?Ni chibuukuche/ naani/ ichi., though the example below illustrates that this construction can be comfortably used with a human noun.)

Ni mwana wa naani/ uyu. ‘Whose child is this (e.g. why hasn’t he been brought up better?)’ Or: Ni mwaanawe/ naani/ uyu. Or: Mbwa naani/ mwana uyu.

Nt^hi iyo/ nda naani. ‘Whom does this earth belong to?’

Nza naani/ surwani izi. ‘Whose trousers are these?’ Or: Surwani izi/ nza naani.

Omari/ chaakuja/ mpele naani. ‘As for the food, whom did Omari give it to?’ (A possible answer: Omari/ chaakuja/ mpele Jaama. ‘As for food, Omari gave it to Jaama.’ (Observe that topicalization of an object may position the object between the subject and the verb, at least when there is no possible ambiguity as to which is the subject. In the present example, the null subject agreement on the verb mpele shows that it agrees with Omari and not chaakuja.)

Omari/ mpele naani/ chaakuja. ‘Whom did Omari give food?’ (A possible answer: Omari/ mpele Jaama/ chaakuja. ‘Omari gave Jaama food.’)

Pikilila na naani/ chaakuja. ‘You were cooked for food by whom?’ (Cf. Pikilila na naani/ chaakuja. ‘He was cooked for food by whom?’) (These examples illustrate the movement of the agent to the so-called IAV -- immediately after the verb -- position, which is where a focused element is located. In a neutral sentence the agent phrase is at the end: Pikilila chaakujá/ na naani. ‘You were cooked for food by whom?’ (Cf. Pikilila chaakuja/ na naani. ‘He was cooked for food by whom?’))

Si/ shchinkasa/ kooðize/ schifuungula/ ijuuniya/ naani/ na’iwó/ itakhtulukani. ‘If we listen to his words, if we untie the sack, who knows what will happen.'

We/ mulile naani/ chibuuku. 'Whom did you buy a book for?' A possible answer to this question: [Mi/ [ni]mulile ^FHuseeni/ [↓]chibúuku]. 'I bought for Huseeni a book.'

We/ naani. 'Who are you?'

Wene n aani. 'Who did you see?' Cf. Wene naani. 'Who did he see?'

Ye/ nt^hampa naani/ chibuuku. 'Whom didn't he give a book?' (Observe that when the question word naani is located in post-verbal position, the verb does not shift into its pseudo-relative form.)

naanko

conj. and, again, moreover, also; [pron. naank^hó]; variant form: naakó

Apo/ naank^hó/ chijile matuundrá/ na chinele maayi. 'There, once again, we ate fruit and we drank water.'

Ba'ada/ ya sku nch^haache/ zita/ naank^hó/ schiruuda. 'After a few days, the fighting returned again.'

Hamisi/ husoma niingi/ naank^hó/ hupeenda/ mpiira/ wa kuulu/ nt^ho. 'Hamisi reads a lot. Also, he likes football a lot.'

Karkaa wo/ wanakiineendr^hó/ naank^hó/ chiwakasa waant^hu/ wachihada/ mzeele/ uyu/ mwaana/ uyu/ nt^haná/ adabu/ mzeele/ nakiineendra/ ye/ paanzile. 'While they were continuing on, once again he heard people saying: This old man, this child doesn't have good manners; the old man is walking while he rides.'

Maama/ naank^hó/ isa/ jaribiile/ kumvunda mwaana/ khalbi. 'Mother again tried to discourage the boy [from looking for the lion to kill him].'

Mboni/ naank^hó/ mlasile kingila maduriini. 'How come then he permitted him to go into the forest?'

Naank^hó/ endrá/ karkaa nt^hi/ ya mayahuudi/ muze sultaani/ langala/ takhambilani. 'Again, go to the land of the Jews and ask the sultan: look, what should I do?'

Naank^hó/ keesho/ mleeete/. 'Again tomorrow bring him (along).'

Naank^hó/ nt^humiiló/ ni eelo. 'Again, the one who sent me is the gazelle.'

Naank^hó/ shfikira/ chendra kaa mp^haka. 'And then [the boy] thought and he went to the cat.'

Sultaani/ teena/ naank^hó/ chimtuma waziiri/ keendra/ kumvila Hasani/ laakini/ Hasani/ jisa maraa kandra/ chimzimila waziiri/ chendra mashakaani/ shfanya jisaa ye/ hufaanyó. 'Then the sultan again sent the minister to go and call Hasani, but Hasani like the first time, hid from the minister and went to the bush as he does.'

Waant^hu/ wachilačila teena/ naank^hó/ mara ya isa/ ndriimu/ zimbishile yeeye/ khaadimu. 'The people threw [lemons] again, but now this time the lemons struck that same servant.'

Waziiri/ naank^hó/ chimraasha/ ka chinume. 'The minister once again followed after him from behind.'

m-naanzi (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mnazi SSED 292; Ar. and Pers.] coconut tree

Minanzi yiimp^hi. 'Which coconut trees?'

Mnanzi ump^hi. 'Which coconut tree?'

m-naqasha n. [Ar. munāqasa W 991] discussion review discrepancy in vowel length from origin

naqdi

n. [Sw. nakidi SSED 329; Ar. naqs "cash, ready money" W 990] cash payment khtomola naqdi 'to pay in cash'

ku-naqida

v. criticize

Winginewe/ wachimnaqida/ ya kuwaa ye/ angamiize/ nuumbaye/ na angamiize/ weenziwe/ ka kumloozu/ muunt^hu/ maskiini/ mwanaamkewe. ‘Others criticized him that he had wronged his house and had wronged his companions by having a poor man marry his daughter.’

naaqisi

adj. [cf. Sw. nakisi v. "reduce" and nakisi n. "reduction, deficit, blemish" SSED 329; Ar. nāqis W 992] lacking, short, less, not complete ka fakhari shfaanya ibada naqisi [st.] ‘if you do something boastfully, worship is not complete’

Mp^hele peesa/ naaqisi. ‘He gave me less than the full amount.’

ku-naaqisha

v. [Sw. nakshi “adorn with carving” SSED 329; Ar. naqaša "to argue, dispute" W 991]

Sku mooyi/ mp^hana/ ziweshelee fadhi/ kunaaqisha/ jisaa wo/ watakingilo amaniini/ na mp^haká. ‘One day the rats held a meeting to discuss how they could find safety from the cats.’

Ye/ iize/ kunakhisha want^huu kamu/ wafiló. ‘He refused to discuss how many people died.’

rel.

ku-naqishan(y)a v. rec. (-naqisheene)

kunaqishana na wazele waawo ‘to discuss (things) with their parents’

Nureeni/ na Baaná/ wanaqisheene. ‘Nureeni and Baana argued with one another (over a certain point).’ Or: Nureeni/ naqishene na Baana. ‘Nureeni argued with Baana (over a certain point).’ (Syn. Observe that a singular noun may be the subject of a reciprocal verb when the second portion of the logical conjoined subject has been postposed after the verb. However, it should be pointed out that in this second version, the na behaves like ‘with’ and not ‘and’, as can be seen by the fact that it does not trigger final accent in the way that ‘and’ does.)

ku-naqishiliza v. appl.

ku-naqishoowa v. pass. (naqishiiza)

Chinaqishiiza/ ka luulu/ johaari/ na almaasí. ‘It was decorated with pearls, jewels, and diamonds.’

naqli

n. 9/10 [Sw. nakili SSED 329; Ar. naql W 995] copy

naqshi

n. [Sw. nakshi SSED 329; Ar. naqš W 991] decoration, engraving

Baduwi/ nt^hachiiwa/ chihiiindi/ na tosheeze/ yandishiila ikofiyaani/ ni naqshi. ‘The nomad did not know Hindi and he thought that what was written on the hat was [just] decoration.’

kubiga naqshi ‘to decorate’

Tosheeze/ yandishiila ikofiyaani/ ni naqshi. ‘He thought that what was written on the hat was (just) decoration.’

naqsi

n. [Sw. nakisi SSED 329] deficit

m-naara (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mnara (mi-) SSED 342; Ar. manāra, var. of manār W 1009] lighthouse; the glass globe of a paraffin lamp; minaret (Approx. 3 km. south of Brava, one finds the Mnaara -- locative Mnaraani, which indicate its site. This is an ancient tower, very probably a light-house, built on top of a rock that now is separated from the shore (one has to wade through shallow water to reach it), but was possibly originally a spur of land jutting into the sea (the area was extensively quarried for stone). This mnaara is a round tower built of coral rag and saaruji, with a kind of balcony on top, which was reached by a spiral wooden staircase. This staircase was already in ruins in 1867, when German explorer Richard Brenner was the first to describe it, and nobody has climbed to the top in recent times. It is often called “The Portuguese lighthouse” but actually it was built before Portuguese colonial times. During the 19th century the mnaara was an important mark for all sea-vessels arriving in Brava, because it marks the southern end of the high reef that shelters the inner waters of Brava.)

Ifuwo (/) la mnaraani ‘the beach at Mnaraani’ mnara waa tala ‘lighthouse; globe of a paraffin lamp’

chi-naara

n. 7/8 a folded paper which sugar is put into Ali/ nakuzuba suukari/ ka zinaara. ‘Ali is wrapping sugar with folded papers.’

naari

only in the Arabicism: adhabu nnaari ‘the tortures of hell’ (from Ar. al-nār, which becomes an-nar by assimilation)

naarsi

n. [Eng. nurse] nurse
Iyo/ yaliko mukhtaa mi/ nt^hinzilo go’aani/ kingila naarsi. ‘That was when I decided to go into nursing.’
Naarsi/ ile. ‘The nurse came.’
Ye/ koðele naarsi/ tu. [HH!H] ‘She only talked to the nurse (not the doctor, for example).’

ku-nasabila

v. appl. (cf. nasabu below) attribute a lineage or ancestry to s.o., to call after one’s ancestors (but in the steeenzi, only the passive form has been observed)
rel.

ku-nasabiloowa v. appl. pass.

chuzoowa maamaye hadaani Mariya/ uje hunasabiloowa Qibtiya [st.] ‘if you are asked who was his mother, say: Mariya, who was a Copt by descent’ na maamaye Maana Aminata / hunasabiloowa Bani Zahrata [st.] ‘and his (i.e. the Prophet’s) mother Lady Amina belonged to the tribe Bani Zahra (lit. is given the lineage)’ tuunzilo ilo ituungu ni Ahmadi / hunasabiloowa Marzuuqu ni jaddi [st.] ‘the one who composed that poem is Ahmed, who is called after (his) grandfather Marzuuq. (this poet is known as Ahmed Al-Marzuuqi)

nasabu

n. [Sw. nasaba SSED 330; Ar. nasab W 960] lineage; one whose ancestors are known to have descended from a pure family

Munt^hu uyu/ ni nasabu. ‘This person is of good origin (meaning pure and of good manner).’

Takhaadira/ kunaambila/ nasabuyo. ‘Can you tell me your lineage (usually with reference to father’s lineage, but could mean mother’s as well).’

rel.

u-nasabu n. 14 behavior associated with members of ‘good’ families

Kuda’owada’oowa/ siwo/ unasabu/ ni ubooni. [H’H!H!H] ‘To boast is not behavior associated with the upper class of people, it is the behavior of the lower class.’

nash

ideo.

M^waalimu/ watile waana/ ziluti/ nash nash. ‘The teacher hit children with a stick, nash nash!’

nasha

adj. [cf. Som. nashnaash “to refine, smooth down, polish -- work or speech” DSI 462] smooth (surface); s.t. grinded into a fine powder etc. [pronounced nasha or nasha] (Although this word has the shape CVCV, it is unlike other words of this structure in that it does not permit the lengthening of a preceding vowel in the same phrase. This may reflect a geminate origin for the medial consonant. In fact, we at least sometimes observed gemination of sh in speech, although it is doubtful that this is a consistent feature of pronunciation. It should also be noted that words showing the possibility of either n or n are ordinarily of Swahili origin.)

khfanya nasha ‘to make smooth’

kuwa nasha ‘to be smooth’

Msaḷa uje/ ni mnasha. ‘That mat is smooth.’
nasha/ kana/ chimento ‘as smooth as cement’ Ka makinaani/ ka Amiini/ maandra/ hutowa nasha/ kana/ chimento/ haaziwi/ ḷada. ‘At Amiini’s grinding machine, the flour is ground very smooth, like cement, the bread does not become good.’
nasha/ kana/ hariiri ‘as smooth as silk’ Ḳuzi ḷa Hamadi/ shomeḷelo shaatiye/ Ḳnasha/ kana/ hariiri. ‘The thread that Hamadi sewed his shirt with is smooth as silk.’
nasha/ kana/ ṭoomu ‘as smooth as butter, curd’ Buru izi /nt^haskuviva/ suura/ unga/ ndraanike/ mnasha/ kana/ ṭoomu. ‘These doughnuts are not well-cooked, the flour inside is smooth/soft like curd.’
ndila nasha ‘a smooth road’
Nṭ^hi iyi/ nasha/ husheroowa. ‘This floor is smooth, it is slippery.’
Ṭangawizi iyi/ itele nasha. ‘This ginger is ground very fine.’

ku-nashiqa

v. long for
Nsi uyu/ waawó/ humpeenda/ naami/ nashiḳiilé/ kinleetela. ‘This fish, your father loves it, and I longed to bring it to you (pl).’

ku-nashira

v. [Ar. našara W 965] (nashiriile) broadcast, publicize, spread news, gossip Mwachiwooni/ nakunashira chiwo chaa ye/ andishiló. ‘The educated person is publishing the book that he wrote.’
Sarkaari/ nakunashira sirri/ zaa zita. ‘The government is spreading the secrets of the war.’

naashiza

[Ar. nāšiza "recalcitrant woman", from nusūz "violation of marital duties" W 966] a woman who is legally separated from her husband; in shari’a law, naashiza refers to the status of a married woman who is not obedient to her husband, refusing her husband his legal rights; as a consequence, he discharges himself from delivering her rights ḷaakini naashiza huyuuta aakhera [st.] ‘but a separated woman will regret it in the afterlife’ muke muḷiwe chifa humpaandra idda/ hant^hi na hurri muṭii’i na naashiza [st.] ‘when her husband dies, a woman enters the state of idda, whether slave or free-born, obedient to her husband or disobediant’

Muke/ naashiza/ nt^haná/ haqi ya masruufu. ‘The naashiza wife has no right to receive expenses from the husband.’

Muke uyu/ ḷasiḷa naashiza. ‘This woman has been left in the position of being nashiiza.’

onyeza muke naashiza muḷooni [st.] ‘he (the Prophet) was shown a woman separated (from her husband) in hell’

naasi

[Ar. nās "men, people" W 936] kheerinnaasi [Ar. ḳair al-nās, where Ar. al-n becomes ann] ‘the best of all mankind’ ḷaakini Mhammadi ni kheeri naasi [st.] ‘but Mohammad is better [than all]’

Ni kheeri/ naasi. ‘He is a better person (i.e. he will not be concerned just about himself).’

nasiibdara

Som. = nasibuu mbovu ‘bad luck, bad chance’ Ṭakuwa nasiibdara/ si/ kubasha fursa iyo. ‘It would be a pity to waste that opportunity.’

nasiibu

n. 9 [Sw. nasibu SSED 330; Ar. našīb W 969] chance, luck Abunawaasi/ choloka chingila muyiini/ kumera mushṭari mwiingine/ na ka nasiibuyé/ kuwaa mbovu/ nt^h akhpata. ‘Abunawaasi went and entered

- town to look for another buyer and his luck being bad, he did not find one.’
Itakuwa nasibuu mbovu/ si/ kubasha fursa iyo. ‘It would be a pity to waste that opportunity.’
- Ka nasiibuye/ kuwaa mbovu/ mukeewe/ nt^hakhshiika/ miimba. ‘His luck being bad, his wife did not become pregnant.’
- Langaḷa nasiibuyo. ‘Try [lit. see] your luck!’
- Maamé/ mi/ nnayo nasiibuyá/ nt^hakhpata mubḷi/ mi/ nna’iwá. ‘Mother, I have my chance, I will get a man, I know it.’
- Mi/ nasiibuya/ suura/ leelo. ‘My luck is good today.’ review, wrote final accent Muunt^hu/ hameeri/ nasiibuye/ nasiibu/ ndiyó/ humeeró/ mwene. ‘One does not search for one’s luck, it is luck which seeks.’
- Nasiibu/ haylanyilizoowi. ‘Luck is not competed for (it just comes).’ (A proverb.)
- Watezeze/ maraa mbili/ laakini/ Sa’iidi/ ka kuwa nasiibuye/ suura/ chishiindra.
‘They played [in the context of the story: a game of chance] twice, but Sa’iidi, his luck being good, won.’
- We/ nayo nasiibiyó. ‘You have your luck.’
- nasiha n. [Sw. nasiha SSED 330; Ar.] advice, specifically positive advice regarding good deeds, not bad deeds khṭomola nasiha ‘to issue good advice’ Sheekhi/ tomele nasiha/ suura. ‘The sheikh issued good advice.’
khtala nasiha ‘to take advice’
Tala nasiha ya mzelewo. ‘Take your parent’s advice.’
kumera nasiha ‘to seek advice’
Endra ka dakhṭari/ mera nasiha. ‘Go to the doctor and look for advice.’
mtume fafishiize diini ka nasiha na hikma [song] ‘the prophet promulgated religion with good advice and wisdom’
- ku-nasiha v. [Sw. nasihi SSED 330; Ar. naṣaha W 969] (nasihiile) advise rel.
ku-nasihika v. p/s. be capable of getting advice, listening to advice
- ku-nasikha v. [Ar. nasaka W 961] abolish, abrogate
- nasiimu adj. [Ar. naṣīm "fresh air, wind, breeze" W 963] Arabicism someone who is very generous; used as an epithet of Sheekh Nureeni (This lexical item is not known to Gelani Mohamed or others with whom he consulted. The citation is from a shṭeenzi where words of Arabic origin are employed even though not common in everyday Chimiini speech.)
Sheekhi Nureeni nasiimu/ rahma mba kulombeḷowa ‘[sṭ.] Sheikh Nureeni, the Gentle Breeze/ mercy is to be implored for him’
- nasli n. [Ar. nasl W 962] Arabicism issue, progeny, offspring (This word is not known to Gelani Mohamed or people with whom he consulted, although it was recognized as being of Arabic origin.)
- naaso n. [Som. naas ‘women’s breasts’ DSI 458] A congenital illness that is visible as a vibration of the skin and ribs on the left hand side of the chest, just under the left nipple. If a child suffers from this, he becomes pale and skinny. The traditional remedy is kh-pishoowa ‘to have a skilled practitioner burn the skin of the patient on the focal point of the illness, which is called in Chimiini ito ‘eye’. This kind of therapeutical burning was widely practised in Brava for a variety of ailments (vomiting, sciatica, headache, etc.) on many parts of the body (belly, wrists, soles of the feet, lower back, etc.). If the ailment was not cured, people said that the healer had not found the "ito". [pron. naasó]
- nasraani n. [Ar. naṣrānī W 970] Christian variant: nasaara
Diini/ ya nasraani/ huhada/ kuwa mtume Iisa/ ni mojiitu. ‘The Christian religion says that the prophet Jesus is God.’ (It is also possible to say: ya nasaara instead of ya nasraani.)

Quraani/ huhada/ kuwa mtume Ibraahimu/ nthakuwaaliko/ nasaara/ walá/ yahuudí/ laakini/ islaamu. ‘The Quran says that the prophet Ibraahimu was neither Christian nor Jew but was Muslim.’

- nasri n. [Ar. naṣr W 970] victory
Laakini/ wufo/ nt^hawapatikana/ karka nasri. ‘But death did not achieve a victory (lit. did not obtain in victory).’
- naastro n. [Ital. nastro] recording tape; tape recorder
Haliima/ nakuzuba ndriimbo/ ka naastro. ‘Haliima is recording songs with a tape recorder.’
Hamadi/ mgahawaani/ kaake/ inakula naastro/ inakiimba. ‘Hamadi, at his restaurant, the tape recorder is playing (lit. sounding), it is singing (i.e. someone is singing on the tape recorder).’
Omari/ nayo naastro/ nkhulu/ huzuba ndriimbo. ‘Omari has a large tape recorder, he records songs.’
- natijja n. [Ar. natīja W 942] result, outcome
Fanyiizé/ yaa we/ nakhsuuló/ lesele (or: pete) natija gani. ‘You did what you wanted, so what outcome did you get?’
Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ natijjaye/ takhpita imtihaani. ‘Hamiisi likes to read, as a result (lit. its result), he will pass the examination.’
Itakuwani/ natijjaye. ‘What will be its result?’
Natija ya imtihaani/ ilazile. ‘The result of the examination is out.’
- nawli n. (cf. nowli, nooli) [Sw. nauli SSED 330] fare (for transportation) kh^htomola nawli ‘to pay the fare’ kulipa nawli ‘to pay the fare’
- naylooni n. [Eng. nylon] nylon Khufu za naylooni/ ni nuumu/ kolko/ za kotoone. ‘Nylon socks are stronger than cotton ones.’
- Nayroobi n. Nairobi
Mi/ n’inshize Nayroobi/ miyaka miingi. ‘I have lived in Nairobi for many years.’
- nazaa’a n. [cf. Sw. verb nazaa "to quarrel, contend" SSED 331; Ar. naza’a W 954] uncommon argument, difficulty karka qiyaama haawoni nazaa’a [st.] ‘in the hereafter he will not encounter difficulty’
- nazaaja n. [etymology unknown] mother-in-law (interestingly, there is no word for father-in-law)
Nazaaja/ nakunt^hila ijini. ‘My mother-in-law is driving me crazy.’ Review final accent issue.
- naazi n. 9/10 [Sw. nazi SSED 292] coconut
Ifuvu ya naazi/ siwo/ naazi. ‘The empty coconut shell is not a coconut.’ (A proverb.)
Mtala naazi/ hupata mbaata. ‘The one who chooses a fully-developed coconut gets mbaata (an undesirable stage of coconut ripeness).’ (In Swahili -- see Scheven 1981 -- one says: Mchagua nazi, hupata koroma. ‘He who selects coconuts with great care, gets an unripe one.’ or Amechagua nazi akapata dafu. ‘He has chosen the fully grown coconut and he got the unripe one.’ MI provided a different version of this proverb: Mtala mbaata/ hupata idaaifu. This version seems suspect since idaafu was not sold or found in Brava, and mbaata is not a desirable stage of the coconut and thus one would never seek it out.)
Naaziya/ hufurahisha duniyaa nzima. ‘My coconut pleases the whole world.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa ‘the sun’.)

rel.

chi-naazi (zi-) n. 7/8 a sweet made from coconut, to which one adds sugar and oil and shaped into round balls to be cooked; coconut

Hamadi/ chiṭaache/ chiviriinge/ kana/ chinaazi. ‘Hamadi’s head is round like a coconut.’

m-naazi (mi-) n. 3/4 coconut tree mnazi wa nt^heendre ‘a date palm’

nch^ha

[cl.7] is of

Cho/ nch^haaká. ‘It is mine.’

Cho/ nch^hiitú. ‘It is ours.’

Nch^ha naani/ chibuku ichi. ‘Whose book is this?’

nda

[cl.5] is of

Nda naani/ shati iyi. ‘Whose shirt is this?’

nda

[cl.9] is of

Feli iyi/ nda Hamadi. ‘This file belongs to Hamadi.’

Ndaa Juma. ‘It (e.g. [cl.9] sabuura) is Juma’s.’

Shati iyi/ nda naani. ‘Whose shirt is this?’

nde

adv. outside ndi+pronoun

cop. it is ndicho it is it [cl.7]; [pron. ndichó]

ndilo it is it [cl.11]; [pron. ndilóló]

ndimi it is me; [pron. ndimí]

Mwaðihishizo Jaamá/ mas’alá/ ndimí. ‘The one who explained to Jaama the problem is me.’

Ndimí/ waziri wa sultaani. ‘I am the minister of the sultan.’

Ni/ nnaakulá/ kama ndimí/ nfiiló. ‘You (pl.) are crying as if it was me who died.’

Nimwambile kuwa ndimí/ nt^heto nguwozé. ‘I told her that it was me who took her clothes.’

Oyo muke/ chimwaambila/ mi/ ndimí/ muke oyó. ‘That woman told him: I am that woman.’

Sultaani/ chimjiiba/ na’am/ mi/ ndimí/ walá/ nt^haku/ mwinginewa. ‘The sultan answered her: Yes, it is me [i.e. I am the one you are asking for], neither is there another other than me.’

ndini it is you pl. [pron. ndiní or ndiní]

ndipo it is then [pron. ndipó]

Apo/ ndipó/ we/ takuwo muunt^hú. ‘That’s when you will become someone (of significance, importance, recognized).’

ndisi it is us [pron. ndisí]

ndiwe it is you (sg.); [pron. ndiwé]

Waawé/ we/ ndiwé/ sultani Hashiindrikí. ‘My father, are you Sultan Hashiindrikí [He Cannot Be Defeated]?’

ndiwo it is them [cl.2]; [pron. ndiwó]

ndiwo it is it [cl.3]; [pron. ndiwó]

ndiwo it is it [cl.14]; [pron. ndiwó]

ndiye it is him, her [cl.1]; [pron. ndiyé]

ndiyo it is them [cl.4]; [pron. ndiyó]

ndiyo it is it [cl.5]; [pron. ndiyó]

ndiyo it is them [cl.6]; [pron. ndiyó]

ndiyo it is it [cl.9]; [pron. ndiyó]

Ije itakeelukó/ ndiyó/ neenganú. ‘The one that will float, that is the one that is lighter.’

Ije itakuzamo nt^hiini/ ndiyó/ izitó. ‘That one which sinks down, that is the one that is heavier.’

Ndiyó/ yaa mi/ nnakhsuułó. ‘It is that which I want.’
ndizo it is them [cl.8]; [pron. ndizó]
ndizo it is them [cl.10]; [pron. ndizó]

ma-ndina

[cf. n-dini] in the expression:

mandina ya maamaye ‘mother-fucker; his mother’s cunt’

Omari/ shiinzile/ mandina ya maamaye. ‘Omari won, the mother-fucker.’

Shiinzile/ Omari/ mandina ya maamaye? ‘Did Omari win, the mother-fucker?’ (Phon. This simple yes-no question is interesting in that the epithet mandina ya maamaye fails to exhibit the shift to final accent that affects post-verbal, out-of-focus noun phrases – cf. the pitch shift in Omari. This absence of accent shift seems to reflect the epithet status of mandina ya maamaye.)

mandina ya maamo ‘your mother’s cunt’ ma-ndira

in the expression:

mandira ya maamaye ‘mother-fucker’

Omari/ iize/ mandira ya maamaye. ‘Omari refused, the mother-fucker!’

ndo

irreg. imper. ‘come!’

Chiwaa we/ ni dakhtari/ ndo. ‘If you are a doctor, come.’

Ndo/ leelo/ maduriini/ ni/ nułleleni. ‘Come, today, in the bush, what did you (pl.) kill?’

Ndo/ kasa jawaabuza. ‘Come and listen to my words.’

Ndo/ songa khariibuya/ mp^hate khuwona/ jisa suura. ‘Come, come near me, so that I may see you clearly.’

Ndooni/ kasani jawaabuza. ‘You (pl.) come and you (pl.) listen to my words.’

chi-ndooro (zi-)

n. 7/8 [cf. Som. kintir DSI 368] clitoris

Chindooro/ ni karka mooyi/ hubini/ zaa wake/ huwonelo raahá/ yaa muké. ‘The clitoris is one of the female organs from which a woman derives pleasure.’

Wanaashke/ washtinoowa/ hutindowa chindooro/ habamooyi. ‘When girls are circumcised, the clitoris is cut a little.’

ndraani

n. down in; deep

Chishkila/ chiskila/ ndranaa magome. ‘He climbed down and down inside the sea rocks.’ (Notice the bimoraic vowel at the end of ndranaa. One does not expect a long vowel in phrase-medial position when a trisyllabic word follows. This vowel length represents a contraction from ndrani ya. Long vowels resulting from contractions of this sort do not undergo the usual shortening of a vowel in “unstressed” position.)

iboholi/ ndraani ‘deep in the hole’

Irudilopo sufuriyá/ ka jiraani/ mwenye sufuriya/ chiwona/ chisufuriya/ chihaba/ ndrani yaake. ‘When he returned the pot to the neighbor, the owner of the pot saw a small pot inside his (pot).’

itundru ya ndraani ‘a deep hole’

Jahazi/ ichoondroka/ icholoka ndraani/ mayiini/ oko/ ba’adaye/ nvula/ ishuunguka/ ichireeptama/ naa nt^hi/ ichina maayi. ‘The ship (ark) began sailing and went far out in the water there; after that, the rain eased and stopped, and the earth drank the water (i.e. the flood subsided).’

kamu wawaalimo ndraani ya sanduukhu [nt.] ‘how many people hid inside wooden chests?’

Mwaana/ nakhfakata ndranaa nuumba. ‘The boy is running inside the house.’

ndraani/ kana/ chisima ‘deep like a well’

Omari/ nuumbaye/ posoneero/ ituunzilá/ ndraani/ kana/ chisima/ siwo/ itakuyelo ka himá. ‘Omari his house the pit hole is dug deep like a well, it will not get filled quickly.’

ndraani/ kolko chisima ‘deeper than well’

Ndrata/ mi/ ningile ndrani ya ijuuniya/ mp^hate kuwa sultaani. ‘Let me get inside the sack so that I become sultan.’

waaliko shfateeme ndraani ya mivuungu [nt.] ‘we hid under beds’ wamo wafakeete ndraani ya tawala [nt.] ‘some fled deep into the sea’

rel.

ndraani mwa ndraani

Chingile maduriini/ ndraani/ mwa ndraani. ‘We entered deep into the forest.’ accent

Luu^lu/ hupatoowa/ bahariini/ ndraani/ mwa ndraani/ sharti/ kingiloowa/ khuusi. ‘Pearls are found in the depth of the sea, it is necessary to dive [i.e. to get them].’

chi-ndrimu (zi-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. ndimu SSED 332; Hind.] lemon chindrimu chisiṭa ‘a bitter lemon’

ndru

n. [cf. Sw. ndugu SSED 332] relative (This word is monosyllabic, i.e. consists of a single syllable that is initiated by the prenasalized voiced stop ndr. Consequently, when this word is located in phrase-final position, it has accent on its only syllable, the vocalic nucleus of which is u.)

Choondroka/ chimshorata mooyi/ karka ndruezé. ‘He went and consulted one of his relatives.’

ndruuwá ‘my relative’ ndruwa yaawo ‘their relative’ ndruwa yiinu ‘your (pl.) relative’

ndru(wa) yiitu ‘our relative’ ndruuwé ‘his/ her relative’

ndruuwó ‘your relative’ is this correct ndruuzá ‘my relatives’ (but also: ndruuzaza)

keendra ka moja yiitu al^l rahmaani/ na iyo ni haqi ndrueza kasaani [st.] ‘he is going to our God, the merciful, and this is something inevitable, my relatives, listen’

ndruuzé ‘his relatives’ (but also: ndruuzaze) ndruuzó ‘your relatives’ (but also: ndruuzazo)

ndruza zaawo ‘their relatives’ (but also: ndru zaawo) ndruza ziinu ‘your (pl.) relatives’ (but also: ndru ziinu)

ndruza ziitu ‘our relatives’ (but also: ndru ziitu)

rel.

u-ndru n. 14 the state of being relatives; [pron. undrú] kumera undrú/ na u^hahí ‘to seek undru and kinship’

chi-ne (zi-)

n. [cf. chi-nena ‘groin’] bladder

We/ fungaa chine/ cha ngoombe. Mi/ takhuyezeza maazi/ ya ngoombe.

Chimaliza/ wabjana awo/ wachiya/ mi/ takhtaala/ takhubiga apo/ mahala yaa chine/ kaa chisu/ takhutuumbula. Maazi/ yatakhtawanyikó. ‘You, tie the bladder of a cow [i.e. into a bag]. I will fill it up for you with the blood of a cow. Then when those young men come, I will take [semantically empty verb] I will strike you there at the place where the bladder is with a knife, I will pierce you. It’s blood that will come pouring out from you.’

rel.

chi-ji-ne (zi-ji-) n. /8 dim.

i-ji-ne (mi-ji-) n. 5/4 aug.

ma-ne

n. 6 urine; [pron. mane] (We have assumed that this noun has the morphological structure /ma-ne/ even though the noun is used only in [cl.6] and thus we do not see the stem appearing without the prefix ma-.)

chiuntu chilazilo karka ndila mbili/ ni nijisi hatta mane ya mwiimbili [st.]
'whatever is excreted from the two outlets [of the body] is impure, even a little boy's urine'

Fulaani/ ahdiye/ kama maneeyo. 'So-and-so's promise is like his urine.'
Hufaafisha/ mane yaawo/ ka mkila. 'They (referring to camels) spread their urine with the tail.'

khfungaa mane 'to be unable to urinate' kurebaa mane 'to be unable to urinate'

Hasani/ mwaanawe/ rebelee mane/ leelo/ taano/ peshele spitaale/ tomelaa mane/ ka kateetra. 'Hasani's child was unable to urinate; today, the fifth day/, he was sent to hospital and urine was extracted with a catheter.'

mane ya mwiimbili hufufiiloowa/ iluke maayi yo hu'amimoowa [st.]
'(anything that has on it) the urine of a boy (should) be sprinkled with water, over it (the unclean thing) water should be spread' mane yashitiindika shpata yaqini/ istanja laakini fadhiini [st.] 'when the urine stops (flowing) and you know for sure that it has, then clean up, but not in the same place'

Muunthu/ ha'ovi/ matuzi/ naa mane/ huletaa dhibu. [H'H!H!H||H] 'One does not get mixed up with shit and urine (i.e. mixed up in corrupt, evil matters), it brings difficulties.'

Nguwo ii/ inakunuunkha/ kanaa mane. 'This cloth is smelling like urine.'

ne'(e)ma n. [Sw. neema SSED 333; Ar. ni'ma W 980] blessing, comfort, abundance variant form: ni'(i)ma

Deekheka/ ka ne'ema/ zaa we/ peeto. 'Be satisfied with those blessings that you got.'

ka uliwe wa raaha/ na ne'ma za kujoowa [st.] 'with a comfortable bed and abundance (of good food) to be eaten'

Masku aya/ ni masku ya yani'ma/ masku ya furaha/ na masku ya uwiingi/ wa arzaakhi. 'That night (Ashuura) is a night of abundance, of joy, of plentifulness of food.'

Mteleza ni'ma/ nadarbatilee dhibu. 'Let the one who wastes abundance be prepared for difficulties.' (A proverb.)

Mwajiitu/ nampe ne'ema. 'May God give him comfort.'

Mwajiitu/ shpele ne'ema. 'May God give us comfort.'

Umo karka ni'ma. 'He is affluent (lit. he is in abundance).'

Umo karka ni'ma za mwajiitu. 'He is in God's grace.'

ku-ne'emeka

v. [Sw. neemeka 'live at ease, have plenty, be in comfortable circumstances, possess property, get profits' SSED 335] (ne'emeshela) have plenty

rel.

ku-ne'emesha v. caus. [Sw. neemesha SSED 335] (ne'emeshenze) ku-ne'emeshela v. caus. appl.

ku-ne'emeshelazanya v. caus. appl. rec.

neefu

n. [Som. neef "1. air contained in lungs and expelled, 2. asthma" DSI 464] breathing

Ali/ ha'ikhadiroowi/ warshadaani/ kaake/ khfanyowa kaazi/ neefu/hupati. 'Ali at his workshop cannot work, he is unable to breathe.'

khpanza neefu 'to breathe, pant' khtila mpiira/ neefu or khtila neefu/ mpiira 'to inflate a ball, to put air in a ball'

khtomola neefu 'to breathe'

Nimo maha/ iririini/ khtomola neefu/ sinakhadira. 'I am in such a tight place I cannot even breathe out.'

khtila mpiira/ neefu or khtila neefu/ mpiira 'to inflate a ball, to put air in
a ball'

kubiga neefu 'to breathe hard, rapidly, to pant'

- Mahabuusi/ bishile neefu/ nt^ho. ‘The prisoner breathed out hard.’
Sheekhi/ fakeete/ kaa nguvu/ hatá/ nakubiga neefu. [HH'H'H!H] ‘Sheekhi ran hard until he was panting.’
kuvuta neefu ‘to take (lit. pull) a breath’ Kuvuta neefu/ nt^ho/ tu/ kuumbuká. ‘Just remember to take a deep breath.’
qalbiya faza’a na neefu hundüüqa [nt.] ‘my heart is scared and I cannot breathe’
- chi-neema (zi-)* n. 7/8 [Sw. sinema SSED 432; Ital. cinema, where c is pronounced as Eng. ch; Eng. cinema] movie, cinema Chineema/ chiwalikooyi. ‘How was the movie?’
Mukhtaa mi/ nazo peesá/ hupeenda/ kendra chinemaani. ‘When I have money, I like to go to the cinema.’
Nakhsula kun^hukula chinemaani. ‘He wants to take me to the movies.’
Wa’oloshela zinemaani. ‘They went to the movies.’
- chi-nena (zi-)* n. 7/8 [Sw. kinena SSED 199] groin of man or woman
- nene* adj. [Sw. -nene SSED 334] fat chiluti chinene ‘dim. thick stick’ iluti inene ‘thick (aug.) club’
-nene/ kana iboori ‘lit. as fat as a pumpkin-- said in particular of plump girls’ Aamina/ wele mnene/ kana/ iboori/ nt^hangú/ nakujokujo niingi. ‘Aamina became fat like a big pumpkin since she started eating a lot.’ Wake/ wanene/ nt^hawakuuya. Women, fat ones, did not come.’ (The phrasal separation of wake and wanene is indicative that there is no contrast being made between fat women and women who are not fat.)
Ye/ loosele/ kuwaa ye/ wene ngoombe/ saba/ wanene/ nakuwajó/ ni ngoombe/saba/ wembaamba. ‘He dreamed that he saw seven fat cows and the ones who were eating them were seven thin cows.’
- u-nene* n. 14 [Sw. unene SSED 199] fatness
Omari/ hadiile/ Ali/ unenewe/ ni zaaydi/ mba maraði. ‘Omari said that Ali’s fatness is too much, it is of disease.’
Unene/ ni maraði. ‘Fatness is a disease.’ (A saying.)
- nenezi* n. [unknown etymology] condition of being dizzy variant form: chi-nenezi Nenezi gani/ khutukiiló. ‘Which dizziness/ confusion of mind carried you away? (This question is put to s.o. who appears again after a long absence.)’ Tukiila na chinenezi. ‘He was carried away by chinenezi (having lost his power of judgement he walked and walked without knowing where he was going to).’
- ma-neeno* n. 6 [Sw. nenó (ma-) SSED 333] words, talking, conversation, observations Aada/ ya mtaana/ maneeno/ ya mlungaana/ shteendro. ‘The custom of the mtaana is talk, (that of) the mlungaana is action.’
Khariibu/ ya muuyi/ mwaana/ chanza kiimba/ kama aada/ na maamá/ chimjiiba/ka maneeno/ yaayo/ ayo. ‘Near town, the boy began to sing as usual and mother answered him with the very same words.’
khfanya maneeno ‘to talk (lit. do talking)’ Hasani/ mwambiile/ Ali/ we/ sfaanyé/ maneno miingi/ hada/ yaa we/nakhsuuló kahimá. ‘Hasani said to him: Ali, you, don’t talk so much, say what you want quickly.’
- khshika maneeno ‘to always talk, talk too much’
Kulasku/ maneno yaayo/ ka yaayo. ‘Every day the very same words!’ Maneeno/ ni makali/ khshindra lpaanga. ‘Words are sharper than a sword.’ (A proverb.)

maneno ya khpeendeza ‘pleasing words’

Mi/ (n)nakhsulaa we/ kump^ha/ ma’ana/ ya maneeno/ yaa we/ koðelo ka sul^htaani/ na yaa ye/ khujibiiló. ‘I want you to tell me the meaning of the words that you spoke to the sultan and what he said back to you.’ (In this example, there is focus on (n)nakhsulaa we. The verb here is a final accent trigger and the final accent appears on the monosyllabic pronoun. Due to the Accentual Law of Focus, the accent does not project past this phrase to the following infinitive khump^ha.)

Muunt^hu/ ^hambiila/ maneeno. [H^hH!!H] ‘The man was told words.’ Cf. Maneeno/ ambiila/ muunt^hu. [H^hH!!H] ‘Words he was told, the man.’

muunt^hu mwenye maneeno ‘a man of words (i.e. but not deeds)’

Saydiyá/ mi/ nna’iwá/ ma’ana/ ya maneno aya. ‘My lord, I know the meaning of these words.’

Shtafsiriliilá/ maneeno/ yote. ‘All the words were explained to us.’

Wamwambile muunt^hu/ maneeno. [H!H] ‘They spoke to the man [lit. they spoke to the man words].’ Or: Muunt^hu/ wamwambile maneeno. [H!H]

neervo

n. nerve(s)

Hamadi/ na Omari/ wanazo neervo. ‘Hamadi and Omari (lit.) have nerves – i.e. they get angry quickly.’

Hamadi/ nazo neervo. ‘Hamadi (lit.) has nerves – i.e. he gets angry quickly.’

Vitamini “B”/ hinfa maradi ya neervo. ‘Vitamin B is good for nerve disease.’

We/ nayo maradaa neervó. ‘You have nerve disease.’ (There seems to be variation between maraoi and maradi. In the example here, maradi ya is contracted to maradaa.)

chi-ngalaawa (zi-) Gelani Mohamed.)

n. 7/8 [Sw. ngalawa SSED 334] an outrigger canoe (This word was not known to

Ngereenza

n. England

wilaya ya Ngereenza ‘the country of England’

rel.

chi-ngereenza n. 7 English

Aziizi/ muné/ somele chingereenza. ‘Aziizi’s younger brother studied English.’

Si/ nt^hashkusooma/ chingereenza. ‘We didn’t learn English.’

Kalima iyo/ yile ka chingereenza. ‘That word came from English.’

khsooma/ na kubarata chingereenza ‘to read and learn English’

m-ngereenza (wa-) n. 1/2 an Englishman; the English

Mngereenza/ mshinzile talyaani. ‘The English defeated the Italians.’

u-ngereenza n. 14 England

Nnakendra (u)ngereenza. ‘I am going to England.’

Nguuja

n. Zanzibar

Want^hu wa Mwiini/ nusu yaawo/ asli yaawo/ wa’ile ka Nguuja. ‘Half of the people of Miini originally came from Zanzibar.’

rel.

chi-nguja n. 7 the dialect of Zanzibar; in the manner of the people of Zanzibar ni + associative particle

mbwa [cl.1]

Hamadi/ mba Mkhodiisho. ‘Hamadi comes from Mogadishu (lit. is of Mogadishu).’

mbwa [cl.3]

Ni kaawo/ numbaani/ tu/ muundra/ mbwa bataata. ‘It just there at their house, a garden of potatoes.’

nch^ha [cl.7]’

Icho/ chisu/ chaa we/ chinaambilo/ nch^ha Faatima. ‘That basket that you told me about belongs to Faatima.’

nch^haaká ‘mine’

Cho/ nch^haaká. ‘It is mine.’

nch^haaké ‘his, hers, its’

nch^haakó ‘yours’

nch^haawó ‘theirs’

Shkapu ichi/ nch^ha naani. ‘Whose basket is this?’

nda [cl.5]

Nda naani/ koti iyi. ‘Whose coat is this?’

Yo/ ndaakó. ‘It is yours.’

ndani ‘it is of why?’

Yiko lila/ wanaafakhi/ ndani. ‘Since there is truth, why lie (lit. lie is for why)?’ (A proverb.)

nza [cl.8]

nza [cl.10]

Nza naani/ khufu izi. ‘Whose socks are these?’

Zo/ nziitú. ‘They (e.g. khufu) are ours.’

ni-

first person singular subject prefix (morphophonemic variants: n m)

Mi/ waliko nch^hiija mwaangi/ mukhtaa we/ iló. ‘I was eating mwaangi when you came.’

mp^hite ‘that I pass’

Niwalooselé. ‘I dreamed about them.’

nk^haaaja ‘if I had eaten’

nsoole ‘that I crush grain’

ni-

second person plural subject prefix (morphophonemic variant: n)

Huseeni/ chiiza/ tu/ chihada/ we/ na mwanaamkewó/ nimo kaaká/ shfungooni/ mi/ nnakhsuulá/ kuletelowa waant^hu/ won^he/ waa ni/ niwafuunziló.

‘Huseeni just refused, saying: you and your daughter are in my bonds (in my debt); I want all the men that you (pl.) have arrested brought to me.’

Ndo/ leelo/ maduriini/ ni/ nub^hleleni. ‘Come, today, in the country, what did you (pl.) kill?’

Njile liini. ‘When did you (pl.) eat?’

-ni-

first person object prefix (morphophonemic variants: m n)

Baaba/ chimwaambila/ basi/ isa/ mp^ha khabari suura. ‘Father said to him: so, now, give me the good news.’

kunija ‘to eat me’

Mbeene. ‘He saw me.’

Mi/ shkalaant^ha/ apa/ laazima/ sultaani/ takunub^hla. ‘If I stay here it is certain that the sultan will kill me.’

Nakhsula kunt^hukula chineema. ‘He wants to take me to a movie.’

Nakumbona. ‘He sees me.’

(Ye/ ka’oloká/ sul^ha kumbona. ‘If he went, he would see me.’

- ni- second person plural object prefix
Nk^ha'oloké/ suḷa kinwona. 'If I went, I would see you (pl.)'
- =ni interrogative enclitic: what?
Ali/ mbozeleni/ mwaalimu. 'What did Ali steal from the teacher?'
Ali/ patiliileni/ gaari. 'What did Ali get for the car.' (Possible answer: motoore 'an engine'.) (It should be pointed out that when =ni is encliticized to a benefactive verb, the =ni does not refer to the beneficiary but rather the logical object. Thus the sentence Ali/ patiliileni/ motore. can only mean: what was gotten for the engine? and cannot mean: what was the engine gotten for?)
Ambiilani/ we/ peḷa amri gani/ we/ amuriḷa kunfanyilizani/ we. 'What have you been told, you were given what orders, what were you ordered to do for me?'
Hadiileni/ sultaani. 'What did the sultan say?'
Hiinfani/ shahaada. 'What use is a degree (when you cannot get a job)?'
Huseeni/ fanyiizeni. 'What did Huseeni do?' Or: Fanyiizeni/ Huseeni. 'What did he do, Huseeni?' A possible answer to this question is Huseeni/ uzile chibuuku. 'Huseeni bought a book.' Or: Uzile chibuuku/ Huseeni. 'He bought a book, Huseeni.' Note that it would not be appropriate to respond: Huseeni/ uzile/ chibuuku. This would be inappropriate because it focuses on the verb, while the question calls for a response that verb phrase-oriented and not verb-oriented.
Isa/ nakhadira kunfanyilizani/ we. 'Now, what are you able to do for me?'
Jaama/ hukahaḷani. 'What does Jaama dislike?'
Jaama/ nakhfaḷilani. 'What does Jaama prefer?'
Jiḷiileni/ ikoombe. 'What did you eat with a spoon?' (See =ni + applied stem listing below for a second meaning: why did you eat with a spoon (if...).)
Mazá/ mwanaamke/ chihada/ waawé/ nakhsuḷa nfaanyeni. 'So, the girl said: My father, what do you want me to do?'
Mwekeleleni/ Nuuru/ nt^hini ya meeza. 'What did you put for Nuuru under the table?' (Although the sentence-final meeza may be realized with a raised-low pitch, there is also the possibility of some rise on the final syllable. In this example, the enclitic =ni has served to put focus on the verb and thus blocked the final accent triggered by the second person subject prefix from extending past the verb.)
Muke oyo/ cheendra/ shkalant^ha kaake/ nakhfikira/ nfaanyeni/ nfaanyeni. 'The woman went and stayed at her place thinking: what should I do, what is it that I should do?'
Muke/ veeteni/ Tuuma. 'The woman wore what, Tuuma?' Or: Tuuma/ muke/ veeteni. 'Tuuma, what did the woman wear?'
Mzele Simsini/ chizida kista'ajaba/ chimuza/ pakiileni. 'Old Simsini was more amazed and asked him: what have you loaded on it [the ship].'
Na'endre/ na mwambileni/ waawaye. 'What should he go and tell his father?'
Nakhfaanyani/ mbiga munt^hu fiiló. 'What are you doing to hit a man who is dead.?'
Check this example as on the tape the verb seemed to be nakhfanyaani and the accent not clear.
Nakhsuulani. 'What do you want?'
Naayoni/ mwanaa we. '[Lit.] what do you have -- what's wrong with you, you child.'
Ndro/ we/ naayoni/ we/ siwo/ mzima/ leelo. 'Come, you, what is wrong with you [lit. what do you have]; you are not all there [lit. whole] today.'
Nfaanyeni. 'What shall I do?'
Nt^haku/ nayo waadehé/ inafanyoowani. 'Nobody is clear what to do.'
Nuuru/ jiiileni. 'What did Nuuru eat?'
Nuuru/ weeneni. 'What did Nuuru see?' Variant form: Weeneni/ Nuuru.
Omaari/ bozeleni. 'What did Omari steal?' (A possible answer would be: Omari/ bozelee chisu. 'Omari stole a knife.' Note that a proper answer to this question phrases the 'what?' into a single phrase with the verb. As a consequence, a sentence like Omari/ bozelee/ chisu. is not an answer to the question.)
Omari/ vuzile kulu yani. 'Omari broke the leg of what?' (A possible answer: Omari/ vuzile kulu yaa chiti. 'Omari broke the leg of a chair.' Another person might then deny this by saying: ā'ā/ vuzile kulu yaa chili. 'No, he broke the leg of a bed.')
- Shfaanyani. 'What did he do?'
Suufi/ mpatiliileni/ Nuuru. 'What did Suufi get for Nuuru?'
Tindiliileni/ chisu. 'What did you cut with a knife?' Or: Chisu/ tindiliileni.
Tindiliileni/ nama. 'What did you use to cut the meat?' Or: Nama/ tindiliileni.

Tinzilení/ kaa chisu. ‘What did you cut with a knife?’ Or: Kaa chisu/ t̥inzilení.
We/ bozelení. ‘What did you steal?’ (A possible answer would be: Mi/ bozelee chisú. ‘I stole a knife.’ A sentence with the complement phrasally separated from the verb is not a possible answer to this question: Mi/ boozelé/ chisu.)
We/ t̥ukiilení. ‘What are you carrying?’ (There are variant ways of asking this question with an enclitic: T̥ukiilení/ we. ‘What carried, you?’ We/ t̥ukiilení/ yo. ‘You carried what it?’ For variants using nini, see under its entry.)
Watalishiizani/ waana. ‘What were they made to take, the children?’
We/ fanyiizení. ‘What did you do?’ or Fanyiizení/ we. Possible answers to these two questions: Mi/ nuzile chibuukú. ‘I bought a book.’ Or Nuzile chibuukú/ mi. ‘I bought a book, me.’ Another possible response would be: Mi/ nimuḽile Nuurá/ chibuukú. ‘I bought for Nuura a book.’ Or Mi/ nimuḽile chibuukú/ Nuurá. ‘I bought a book for Nuura.’ What these two answers have in common is that there is no focus internal to the verb phrase. It is ungrammatical to respond to the question with an internal focus: Nimuḽile Nuurá/ chibuuku. And Nimuḽile chibuukú/ Nuura. are both unacceptable responses.
We/ muḽilení/ Nuura. ‘What did you buy for Nuura?’ A possible answer to this question would be: Mi/ nimuḽile ʰchibuukú/ Núura. ‘I bought a book for Nuura.’
Weenení/ we. ‘What did you see?’ (Possible answers include: Mbene gari ya Hamadí/ uziló. ‘I saw the car that Hamadi bought.’ Or: Mbene gaarí/ ya Hamadí/ uziló. (These answers suggest that the phrasal separation of the head of the associative phrase in the second example has no bearing on whether the associative phrase can be used to answer the question ‘what?’) Weenziwe/ wachimuuza/ nakhfikirani/ we? ‘His friends asked him: what are you thinking about?’
Wo/ wanakihtaja khfikira/ tarafu ya khfanyoowani. ‘They need to think about what to do.’

=ni

interrogative clitic attached to the associative particle

Muusa/ mekelele Nuuru/ chibuuku/ nt̥ʰini yani. ‘Under what did Muusa put a book for Nuuru?’ (Phon. We recorded some variation in the intonation of this example; default accent is regularly placed on the penult syllable of yani, but the final syllable may be low in pitch or show some rise. If, however, the rise is extreme, then the sentence is conveying surprise or seeking confirmation.)
Nt̥ʰini yani/ mekelelo Nuurú/ chibuukú. ‘Under what did you put a book for Nuuru?’ (Phon. The initial phrase in this example clearly realizes yani with a raised-low pitch shape.)
We/ mekelele Nuurú/ chibuukú/ nt̥ʰini yani. ‘Under what did you put a book for Nuuru?’ (Phon. An exclamatory version of this sentence is possible where the =ni enclitic is extremely raised in pitch. It would be equivalent to the English sentence: You put a book for Nuuru under what!?)

=ni

interrogative enclitic used to ask a ‘why’ question in conjunction with the applied verb stem

Andikil̥il̥il̥eni/ khaṭi. ‘Why did you write the letter?’
Boleelení/ chiwaa we/ nt̥ʰukuwanaayo/ ndala. ‘Why did you steal if you were not hungry?’
Iḽil̥eni/ madrasaani/ chiwaa we/ hupeendi/ khsooma. ‘Why did you come to school if you do not wish to study?’
Jil̥il̥eni/ mkono/ chiwaa we/ nalo ḽkoombé. ‘Why did you eat with your hand if you had a spoon?’
Jil̥il̥eni/ zijo/ ka farkeeta. ‘Why did you eat zijo with a fork (if...)?’
Neleelení/ mataaza/ ka sufuriya. ‘Why did you drink the porridge from a pot (if...)?’
T̥indil̥il̥eni/ nk̥ʰuku. ‘Why did you slaughter the chicken?’ (Usage. A less preferred meaning for this sentence is: what did you slaughter the chicken with?') ni copula

Husoomeshó/ nii wake. 'The ones who teach are women.'
Mukeewá/ ni lila/ khfanya kaazi/ ni suura. 'My wife, it is true, to do work is good.'
Mwanaashke/ waa ye/ mpelo chibuukú/ ni msuura. 'The girl to who(m) he gave the book is nice.'
Ni apa/ yako mambo yaa mi/ nnakhsulo kuwa'oneyezá. 'It is here that there are matters that I want to show them.'
Ni ndrani ya shkapu icho/ yawalimo mi'ujizá. 'It was inside that basket that there were miraculous things.'
Ni tookayo. 'It is your turn.' Cf. Ni tookayo/ ni. 'It's your turn, that's what it is.'
Ni waajibu/ iluya. 'It is my obligation.'
Waawe/ (nii) mule. 'My father is tall' Cf. Waawe/ nii mule/ ni. 'My father is tall, that's what he is.'

ni interrogative particle: why?
Martí/ wachihada/ ni/ kuhada/ si/ shpee nama/ iyo/ chije. 'The guests said: why would we say anything [about where the meat came from]? give us this meat so that we may eat.'

ni second person plural independent pronoun; [pron. ni or ni] Huseeni/ chihada/ ndrāaani/ tu/ ni/ mu/ sítakhshindroowa/ mi/ hukhadira khteza matezoo saba/ ka sa'a mooyi/ na teená/ khshiindra. 'Huseeni said: just leave me be, you (pl.), I can play seven games (of cards) in one hour and then win.'
Nakhsulaa ni/ keendra. 'He wants you (pl.) to go.'
Ni/ humkahaṭa siimba/ ni/ nakhsulaa mi/ nimublé. 'You (pl.) hate the lion, you want me to kill him.'

niḍaamu n. [Ar. niḍām W 978] rule, regulation, order, system; var. niḍaamo
Kawa mbarakhá/ zīitú/ zaliko niḍaamó/ si/ suḷa kuwa chivuushilé/ ka paapo. 'If our documents had been in order we would have gone immediately.'
Kīla chiint^u/ suura/ khfanyowa ka niḍaamu/ bilaa niḍaamu/ bilaashi. 'Every thing must be made in an orderly (well-regulated) fashion, without order, it is useless.'
Weḷweli/ ya kakalīla/ ni kuwa niḍaamu/ yont^{he}/ inakuvuundika. 'The real worry is that the whole system is breaking down.'
Ziint^u/ schiwa sfunzīla ka niḍaamu/ huzubikake/ ni sahali. 'If things are tied up in a good manner, their folding is easy.'
rel.
niḍaamdara adj. without rules (Cf. adabdara for another example of the use of =dara in word formation.)
Harusiini/ ka Hasani/ niḍaamdara/ waant^u/ mahaḷa/ ya khkalaant^a/ waṭozele. 'At the wedding of Hasani there was no order, people could not find a place to sit.'

nifaaqi n. [Sw. unafiki SSED 292; Ar. nifāq W 988] hypocrisy
rel.
u-nifaaqi n. 14 hypocrisy
Ka diini/ ya Islaamu/ unifaakhi/ ni karka maḍambi/ makulu. 'With the Islamic religion, hypocrisy is among the major sins.'
u-nifaaqawe n. 14 his hypocrisy Hamadi/ siwo/ muunt^u/ msuura/ unifaakhawe/ miingi. 'Hamadi is not a good person, his hypocrisy is too much.'

nijaasa n. [Sw. najisi SSED 329; Ar. najis W 945, Ar. najāsa W 945] impurity variant forms: nijaasi, nijisi karka aḍaabu habaasa / nk^hulu ya wenye nijaasa [st.] 'in hell there is a big prison for the impure ones'

Mañe/ na matuzi/ ni nijisi/ ichidirkaa nguwo/ hutoza tahaara/ laazimu/ khfuloowa. 'Urine and feces are not pure, if they reach the clothing, they cause impurity, (the clothing) must be washed.'

nijisi iingine koshoowa waajibu/laakini mara mooyi we nt'una dhibu [st.]
'cleansing with water is required for any other impurity, but once [is enough], so it is easy for you'

nikaaha

n. [Ar. nikāh "marriage" W 997] the religious agreement between a man and a woman to marry, engagement to marry

Isa/ leelo/ masku/ yiiko/ nikaaha/ Safiya/ nakuloowa/ na muñli/ wa waawaye/ namsuñiñó. 'Now today at night there is an engagement, Safiya is being married by a man whom her father wants for her.'

Omari/ khubaliñle/ nikaaha/ kumnola Aamina. 'Omari agreed to marry Aamina.'

Sku ya nikaaha/ mwanaamke/ na mwiimbili/ wazazi wa mwanaamke/ na wazazi wa mwiimbili/ huviñla wenza waawo/ khshuhudila nikaaha. 'One the day of the wedding, the girl and the boy, the parents of the girl and the parents of the boy, invite their friends to witness the ceremony.'

ku-nikaahisha

v. [cf. Ar. nikāh "marriage" W 997] (nikahishiize) marry

Hunikaahishó/ ni khaði wa muuyi/ amó/ muunt^hu/ nayo uwakala wa khaaði. 'The one who performs the marriage is the town judge, or someone who has an appointment from the judge.'

rel.

ku-nikahishoowa v. pass. (nikahishiiza) be married (of the woman)

Qaaði/ chimwaambila/ Safiya/ uyu/ ni muñliwo/ we/ nikahishiizá/ na mukhta we/ nikahishiizá/ we/ qiriñlé. 'The judge said to Safiya: this (man) is your husband, you got married, and when you married, you accepted (this man as your husband).'

nima chidhu

n. a unit of measure that corresponds to ¼ of a chidhu or to ½ of a i-koopa; this measure was used by Bravanese who kept cows and sold their milk from home (Etym. The etymology of this item is unknown. There is no equivalent term in Tunni Somali.)

nini

interrog. {Sw. nini SSED 339] what? why? (Nini is generally found in pre-verbal position. One does not ordinarily say, for exmple, Nt^hakuleta nini., but rather the enclitic =ni is employed.)

Basi/ numa/ mwaana/ wele mkulu/ hattá/ leelo/ chimwaambila/ maamé/ kazi ya waawa/ nini. 'So then the boy grew up until (one) day he said to her: mother the work of father was what?'

Chimuza maamaye/ nini/ inaye. 'He asked his mother what his name was.'

Kanaa we/ nakhsuñla kiwa nini/ mp^hiyá/ iyi/ ni mahala/ ya kulangala. 'If you want to know what's new this is where to look.'

Malizopo khtomola salaamú/ baaba/ chimuza/ nini/ khabari za nt^heendre. 'After extending greetings, father asked him what is the news of the dates?'

Mazá/ isa/ nini/ jeza/ ya muunt^hu/ itakhpatowa kaaké/ ikopa iyó. 'So now what is the punishment/compensation (of, for) the man who that cup was found (with) him?'

Nch^hiwa nnazo peesá/ nini/ itakundreb o kula gaarí. 'If I have the money, what is it that will prevent me from buying a car?'

Nini/ hiisi/ so/ we/ kama alama yaa nvula/ ni mawiingú. 'Why, don't you know that the sign of rain is clouds?'

Nini/ hiisi/ so/ we/ kuwa uyu/ waliko mp^huundra/ wa doobí. 'What, did you not know that this one was the donkey of a washerman?'

Nini/ ikhupeetó/ we. 'What happened to you?'

Nini/ impeetó/ Omari. ‘What befell Omari?’ Or: Nini/ impeto Omari. (Interestingly, it is not possible to preface the question word nini with the copular: Ni nini/ impeto Omari.)

Nini/ ipoteeló. ‘What fell?’ (Cf. Ipoeteleeni. ‘What fell?’)

Nini/ ivundishiló. ‘What broke?’

Nini/ khabarizó. ‘What is your news?’

Nini/ kulaala. ‘Why did you lay down?’

Nini/ kundura ka baakoora. ‘Why did you poke me with a cane?’

Nini/ ma’anayé. ‘What is the meaning (of what you said)?’

Nini/ naayoni. ‘Why? What’s the matter [lit. what does he have]?’

Nini/ naayoni/ we/ manaa we. ‘What’s wrong, you child?’

nini/ sababu ya ‘why?’ (There is an implication of disapproval on the speaker’s part when he uses this expression to ask a “why” question.)

Nini/ sababu yaa mi/ chiza khpowa peesa. ‘Why wasn’t I given money?’

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ holokelelo madrasaani/ ka kuraagá. ‘Why do you always go to school late?’

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ jililo chakuja ichi. ‘Why do you eat this food?’

(Notice that the verb here is used in its applied form. One cannot say Nini/ sababu yaa we/ jilo chakuja ichi.)

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kendra madrasaani/ ka nguwoo nt^haka. ‘Why did you go to school with dirty clothes?’ (With a directional verb such as keendra, one can put the infinitive into the applied form: Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kendrela madrasaani/ ka nguwoo nt^haka. with the same meaning.)

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ khfakata. ‘Why did you run?’ (Although when the verb is finite, it is put into the applied form, the same does not generally hold true for infinitives like this. One does not say Nini/ sababu yaa we/ khfakata.)

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ khtukuza chibuuku. ‘Why did you send a book?’

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kuja chaakuja. ‘Why did you eat food?’

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kulaala/ apa. ‘Why did you lie down here?’

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kuleta chibuuku. ‘Why did you bring a book?’

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kumtukuliza Omari/ chibuuku. ‘Why did you send Omari a book?’

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kuraga kendra madrasaani. ‘Why are you late going to school?’

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kuya madrasaani. ‘Why did you come to school?’ (With the directional verb kuuya, one can put the verb into the applied form in the infinitive: Nini/ sababu yaa we/ kilila madrasaani. ‘Why did you come to school?’)

Nini/ sababu yaa we/ olokelelo madrasaani. ‘Why did you go to school?’ (Notice that when the verb is finite, a compared to the examples above where an infinitive verb was used, the verb must be put into a relative clause form. Moreover, the verb is put into the applied form.)

Nini/ sulṭaani/ khufanyiizeni. ‘Why? What did the sultan do to you?’

Nini/ tu/ ikhuleselo apá. ‘What (on earth) brought you here?’

Nini/ we/ kendra madrasaani. ‘Why did you go to school?’

Nini/ ya Ali/ mbozelo mwaajimú. ‘What is it that Ali stole from the teacher?’

Nini/ ya sababu/ yaa we/ kendra madrasaani. ‘Why did you go to school?’

Nini/ yaa we/ tukiiló. ‘What are you carrying?’ (There are a multitude of ways of asking this question with nini. All of these are possible: Nini/ iyo/ yaa we/ tukiiló. ‘What is that thing that you carried?’ Nini/ we/ tukiiló. ‘What you carried?’ We/ tukile nini. ‘You carried what?’ We/ nini/ tukiiló. ‘You what carried?’ Nini/ tukiiló/ we. ‘What carried, you?’ For additional ways using the enclitic =ni, look under the entry for =ni.)

Nini/ yaa ye/ mpelo Omari. ‘What did he give Omari?’

Nt^hakuleetani. ‘What didn’t he bring?’

Si/ ni waaðehé/ kiitu/ wajibu yiitu/ nini. ‘We are clear what our duty is.’

rel.

nii [a contracted form of nini with limited distribution]

Nii/ kendra/ we. ‘Why did you go?’ But not Nii/ sababu/ yaa we/ kendra madrasaani. And not Nii/ we/ kendra madrasaani.

nini

a “filler” word with no syntactic or semantic function

Ba’adaa ye/ kuzaala/ mwanaamke/ oyo/ hupendoowa/ nini. ‘After she gave birth, that girl (i.e. the girl who she gave birth to) was loved, what.’

ku-niinka

v. [etymology unknown] not in general use give, hand over to someone; [pron.

kuniink^ha]

Mgarwa/ sh^tomola/ iyo/ khati/ yaa ye/ andishiló/ chimnink^ha sultaani. ‘The fisherman took out that letter that he had written and gave it to the sultan.’

Mniink^he. ‘Give it to him! Let him have it! (said as an encouragement to a person in a fight).’

rel.

ku-niinkila v. appl. pass; [pron. kuniink^hila]

Ali/ chimnink^hila sultaani/ khati/ khsooma. ‘Ali handed the letter to the sultan to read.’

Chiwaniink^hila. ‘He handed it to them.’

Nimwambile kunnink^hijila mwaaná/ suukari. ‘I told him to pass the sugar to my child for me.’

ku-nink^hiloowa v. appl. pass. be handed

Mi/ nnink^hililaa munú/ na Hamadi. ‘I was passed salt by Hamadi.’

ku-niink^hila v. appl. (nink^hijile) pass s.t. to s.o.

Eelo/ shtalaa nguwo/ zaa ye/ leeseló/ chimnink^hila maskiini. ‘The gazelle took the clothes that he had bought and handed them over to the poor man.’

Hamadi/ nnink^hililee munu. ‘Hamadi passed me the salt.’

Mniink^hile. ‘Pass it to him!’

Myaana/ chimnink^hila eelo/ zint^hu zaa ye/ tukiiza. ‘The servant handed over to the gazelle the things that she had bought.’

Check into ku-nink^hoowa verb form.

rel. nom.

m-niinkilo (mi-) n. 3/4 the act of passing; [pron. mniink^hilo]

nishaati

n. [Ar. našāt W 966] energy (as opposed to laziness)

Ni muunt^hu/ mwenye nishaati. ‘He is an active, energetic person.’

Nt^haná/ nishaati. ‘He has no energy.’

niya

n. [Sw. nia SSED 338; Ar. nīya W 1013] intention, intention to perform an activity (such as prayer or fasting), will, will power

Chiint^hu/ hufanyowa kaa niya. ‘A thing is done with will, intention.’ (A proverb.)

Ichiwakoo niyá/ yikoo ndilá. ‘If there is a will, there is a way.’ (A proverb.)

Ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ nii niya/ bilaa niya/ chiint^hu/ haachiwi. ‘Every thing is will, without will nothing gets done.’

khtila niyaani ‘to have the intention to do s.t.’

Nt^hile niyaani/ leeló/ kendra kuwona meenzawá. ‘Today I intend to go and see my friend.’

Kilaa chiint^hu/ ni kaa niya. ‘Everything (done, accomplished) is with (i.e. due to) will, intention.’ (A proverb.)

kuletaa niya ‘to make the statement of intention’ kuguursha mataanga niya leete awali [st.] ‘(before) taking the sand (from its place to use to clean with) state the intention first’ kuvundaa niya ‘to discourage s.o., break his heart (e.g. by promising over and over to do s.t. but then not doing it, to the point that now he no longer wishes to do it) kuvundikaa niya ‘to have one’s heart broken, to give up on s.t. (e.g. after someone has promised and promised to do s.t., but always fails to carry through with the promise)’ Nvundishilee niyá. ‘I have given up (you always say we will do s.t., but then we never do).’

	kuvundikowaa niya ‘to have the heart broken (as above)’ Omari/ jawaabuze/ huvundikowaa niya. ‘Omari’s words always discourages people (e.g. he always talks about what bad things may happen if people do what they wish to do).’
	kuwanayoo niya ‘to have the intention’ Nnayoo niyá/ keendrá. ‘I intend to go.’
	Nnayo niya ya keendrá. ‘I have the intention of going.’
	Muke/ niyaani/ kaake/ iwaalimo/ kuzimila. ‘In the wife’s intentions was to run away.’
	Munt^hu uyu/ nt^haná/ niya saafi. ‘This man does not have good intentions.’
	na niya saafi khutila jannaani [st.] ‘and pure intentions will take you to Paradise’ niya ni shartí kuwanaayo awali [st.] ‘[the statement of one’s] intention [to pray] is obligatory to have at the beginning’ Niya njeema/ huṭabiiba/ niyaa mbovu/ hukhariba. ‘A good intention cures, a bad intention spoils.’ (A proverb.)
	Nt^haná/ niya. ‘He has no will power.’
	Ye/ nsaydiile/ mi/ ka peesa/ na kaa niyá. ‘He supported me with money and with moral support.’
niyaaba	[Ar. niyābatan “in place/ instead of” and niyāba “replacement, proxy” W 1007] representative ka niyaaba/ ya ‘on behalf of, in place of’ Niyaaba/ wa ra’iisi/ daa’imu/ huwó/ ni wandiinike. ‘The representative of the head is always his second.’
	Rasdenté/ karkaa shiri/ nt^hakuuya/ mfanyize niyaaba/ sindako. ‘The district commissioner did not come to the meeting, he had the mayor represent him.’
ma-niyi	n. 6 [Sw. manii SSED 259; Ar.] semen (Note that body fluids are regularly in [cl.6]: cf. ma-ne, ma-pula, ma-sila, m-aazi.)
	maniyi shṭomola baṭaala soomu [st.] ‘if semen is emitted, fasting is invalid’ maniyi yachilawapo kowoowa/ ni waajibu na taakufo koshoowa [st.] ‘when semen comes out, to be washed up is obligatory, and he who dies must be washed’
nizaa’a	n. [Ar. nizā ‘ W 955] argument
nḷa	[cl.11] agreement form of ni + a : is of, belonging to ḷuti ilí/ nḷa naani. ‘Whose stick is this?’
	Nḷa naani/ ḷimbo ilo. ‘Whose song is it?’
	rel.
	nḷaaká (or ndaaká)
	Lo/ ḷwaliko nḷaaká. ‘It [cl.11] was mine.’ (However, ndaaká seems to be preferred.)
	nḷaaké his/hers [cl.11] nḷaakó ‘yours [cl.11]’
	nḷaawó ‘theirs [cl.11]’
	nḷiinú ‘yours (pl.) [cl.11]’
	nḷiitú ‘ours [cl.11]’
-nne	adj. four; [pron. nne or ṅne] (Phon. Sometimes it is a bit difficult to be certain of the presence of gemination.)

Isa/ we/ mp^ha ma'ana/ ya mafungu manne. 'Now you give me the meaning of the four parts [in reference to the four parts of a character's explanation of what happened to his wealth].'

Ka muda/ waa sa'a/ mooyi/ Huseeni/ chishindra matezo/ ishiriini/ naa ne. 'In a period of one hour, Huseeni won twenty four games (of cards).'

rel.

-aane fourth (Phon. The accent, in the default case, falls on the aa, indicating that ne does not act as a prosodic word.)

Ifungu/ ya kaandra/ ilaṭila bahariini/ ya piili/ itilaa muḷo/ ya taatu/ ipasiza waant^hu/ walá/ haytakulipoowa/ na ifungu yaané/ ilipiḷila deeni/ na deenizé/ nt^haasá/ kumaliza kulipoowa. 'The first portuib was thrown into the sea, the second was put in fire, the third was lent to people, nor will it be returned, and the fourth part was used to pay debts, and his debts [he] never [will] finish repaying.'

Ifungu yaane/ takhpowa oyo muunt^hu/ naane/ napate khfulisha ahdiye. 'The fourth part [of the sea] will be given to that man so that he may drink it and thus get to keep his promise.'

Sku yaane/ ichanza ḍarba/ na lpepó/ ichivuma/ kaa nguvu/ naa nvulá/ ichaanza/ kunya. 'On the fourth day a storm began and the wind blew with force and rain began to fall.'

noo'i

n. 9/10 [Som. nooc DSI 467] kind, sort

Nt^ha'ukhpita/ wakhtⁱ/ mwiingi/ hattá/ wachiwona/ masiniya/ ya kila noo'i/ ya zaakuja. 'Not much time passed until they saw trays of every kind of food.'

Nuuhu/ shfanya jis'iyo/ chooloka/ shtalaa muke/ na muḷi/ karka kula/ noo'i/ karka anwaa'i/ za hayawaani. 'Noah did just that, he went and he took a female and a male from each kind of animal.'

Wahamari/ naawó/ hufaanya/ kaazi/ za noo'i/ niingi. 'The Wahamari as well do jobs of different kinds.'

nohsi

n. [Ar. naḥisa "be ominous, disastrous, ill-fated" W 947] disaster, calamity wenye kurasha ndila ya nohsi 'those who follow the path to perdition'

noka

n. 9/10 [Sw. nyoka SSED 346] snake; [pron. noka, but noka is also possible] (Phon. The dental nasal n is a relatively uncommon phoneme in Chimiini and thus in the practical orthography shown in the headwords it is not differentiated from the alveolar n. However, in words like noka and nama and muḷu which employ the sound, it seems to be consistently used in the speech of our consultants.)

Duḷ'eda/ chimuḷḷaa noka. 'The fox killed the snake.'

kanaa noka 'like a snake'

Hutaambala/ kanaa noka. 'He crawls like a snake.'

Ni kanaa noka '(S)he is like a snake (not to be trusted, will try to harm you).'

Shariifu/ chilana na muunt^hu/ humluma/ kanaa noka. 'When Shariifu fights with someone, he bites him like snake.'

khisa ya Hasiibu/ na sultani waa noká 'the story of Hasiibu and the sultan of snakes' (Phon. This pronunciation illustrates the possibility of the head of the associative phrase, sultaani, being phrased together with its complement, waa noká.)

khkala chiṭa chaa noka 'to stand on a snake's head' (said when one is trying to do s.t.very risky)

Luti/ limo mkonooni/ ndiló/ huḷoo noká. 'The stick which is in your hand is the very thing that kills the snake.' (A proverb.)

Mwana waa noka/ haatowi/ kuluma. 'A snake's child does not miss to bite.' Or: Mwana waa noka/ nii noka/ haatowi/ kuluma. 'The child of a snake is a snake, it never fails to bite.'

Mwanaashke/ ulushile/ ilu yaa noka. ‘The girl jumped over the snake.’
Noka/ hubigowaa chita. ‘A snake is hit on the head [in order to be killed].’
(A proverb.)

noka iyi (or uyu) ‘this snake’; noka izi ‘these snakes’ (not noka awa)

Noka/ koreelopó/ yu muunt^{hu}/ chimlata kumeramera numbaani.
‘When the snake grew up, this man allowed him to roam the house.’

noka za tawala ‘sea snakes’

Omari/ ni noka wa nt^{hi}iini. ‘Omari is [lit.] a snake of the underneath – i.e. he bites, does harm to you without your knowing it.’

Potele iboholi/ yaa noka. ‘He fell into a snake’s hole (said of s.o. who puts himself in a bad situation without any real justification).’

rel.

chi-noka (zi-) n. dim. 7/8 small snake; [pron. chinoka and zinoka]

Chinoka ichi/ ni chisuura/ nt^{ho}/ mi/ nt^{hakishkorsha}. ‘This little snake is very pretty, I will bring it up.’

i-noka (mi-) n. aug. [pron. inoka and minoka]

Cheendra/ chingila maduriini/ chiwona inoka/ ikulu/ nt^{ho}/ inoka chimuza/ we/ ni binaadamú/ nakeendrapí. ‘She went into the bush and she saw a very large snake; the snake asked her: you are a human being, where are you going?’

Chiwona inoka ikulu/ ileele/ nt^{hi}/ ifiile. ‘He saw a large snake lying on the floor dead.’

i-noka (mi-) n. 5/4 eel; [pron. inoka] ku-noolata v. [Som. nool "to live" DSI 467] (noleete) recover (from financial distress, ill health, lack of food, etc.); survive, get enough to get along, get the basic needs a person has Choloka Mkhodiisho/ we/ takunoolata. ‘If you go to Mogadishu, you will find s.t. to live on.’

rel.

ku-noolisha v. caus. restore s.o.’s spirits, health, financial well-being, etc.; provide the means for s.o. to live, survive; provide temporary means of subsistence (for a certain period of time), e.g. to someone traveling)

Sa’iidi/ mnolishize Suufi. ‘Sa’iidi provided Suufi’s sustenance.’

ku-nolishana v. caus. rec. provide sustenance for one another ku-nolishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-nolishiliza v. caus. appl.

Shaafi/ mnolishilize Nuuru/ mwaana. ‘Shaafi provided for Nuuru’s child.’

ku-nolishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Shaafi/ na Nuuru/ wanolishilizenye waana. ‘Suufi and Nuuru provided for one another’s children’s sustenance.’

chi-noolo (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kinoo SSED 340] a stone used for sharpening knives etc., whetstone chi-noolo (z-) n. (cf. Sw. kinolo, a kind of banana bread: mkate wa ndizi. An internet site describes it as follows: “Kinolo is a type of bread-like product that is made from ripe, sweet bananas and corn flour. Any local banana variety may be used. The bananas are peeled, placed into a kinu (mortar), mixed with corn flour, and pounded using a mchi (pestle). The paste obtained is rolled into its shape using banana leaves, and arranged in a cooking pot. Hot water is added to cover, and the covered pot is left to cook over a moderate fire. The resulting cooked breads may be purple, brown or pink in color, depending on the corn variety used to obtain the corn flour.”) banana bread

Waana/ wanakuja zinoolo. ‘The children are eating zinoolo.’ Or, with verb focus: Waana/ wanaakuja/ zinoolo. ‘The children are eating zinoolo.’ Or, with subject focus: Waana/ wanakujo zinooló. ‘The children are eating zinoolo.’ Or also: Waana/ wanaakujó/ zinoolo. ‘The children are eating zinoolo.’

Zinoolo/ hufanyowa ka mashata. ‘Zinoolo are made from from sesame seeds.’

Zinoolo/ waana/ wanaakuja. ‘Zinoolo, the children are eating.’ (Syn. If zinoolo is being focused, the verb must be put in the pseudo-relative form: Zinoolo/ waana/ wanaakujó. ‘Zinoolo, the children are eating [them].’

Zinoolo/ wanaakuja/ waana. ‘Zinoolo, they are eating, the children.’ (Syn. This sentence exhibits the left-dislocation of the object zinoolo as well as the right-dislocation of the subject waana. If, on the other hand, the fronted zinoolo is an instance of what we referred to as “clefting” in the introduction, then the verb must be put into the pseudo-relative form: Zinoolo/ wanaakujó/ waana. ‘Zinoolo they are eating, the children.’

m-nome	n. a kind of shark mp^hamp^ha wa mnome ‘a shark of the mnome type’
noongo	n. [Sw. nyongo SSED 347] bile haraarisi/ kana noongo ‘as bitter as bile’
chi-noongo	n. gall bladder
ku-nongona	v. [Sw. nong’ona SSED 340] whisper
ma-nongono	n. 6 [Sw. manong’ono SSED 340] whispering; complaints Ye/ ni muunt^hu/ mwenye manongono . ‘He is a man full of complaints.’
noota	n. 9/10 [Sw. nyota SSED 348] star; [pron. noota or also noota] Alamu ya Somaaliya/ inayo noota/ kati . ‘The flag of Somalia has a star in the center.’ Bandeera/ ya Somaaliya/ inayo nota nt^haano . ‘Somalia’s flag has five stars.’ ni noota yingiilo mwiini kaake skutakalama [song] ‘it is a star that entered Brava, and with her I did not speak’ Noota/ inakuwala . ‘The star is shining.’ noota/ ya iwele ‘nipple’ nota za kuzimu ‘stars in the sky’ walangala noota ‘astrologers’ Ye/ weene/ kuwa noota/ ikum na mooyi/ na mwezi wa iwá/ na mwezi wa weelú/ zinamsujudilaa ye . ‘He saw that eleven stars and the sun and the moon of light were prostrating to him.’ rel. chi-noota (zi-) n. 7/8 asterisk; “star” worn on a military uniform to indicate rank Nazo zinota ziwili . ‘He has two stars (of someone in the military).’
nowli for transportation)	n. [Sw. nauli SSED 330; Ar. naul and naulūn “freightage, freight” W 1910] fare (paid kh^htomola nooli ‘to pay a fare’ Msaafiri/ tomele nowli za chitaawo . ‘The traveler paid the bus fare.’ Nowli/ spaanzile . ‘The fare has gone up.’
ntaasa	particle [Sw. tasa SSED 455] not yet, before, especially (also khaansá is used for this meaning); [pron. nt^haasá] Baaba/ maraði/ yachimziida/ chifa/ nt^haasá/ mukeewe/ kuzaala . ‘Father’s illness increased (and) he died before his wife gave birth.’ Huhadaayi/ we/ jis’iyo/ naawe/ nt^haasá/ nt^humjaariba . ‘How can you say that when you haven’t yet tried him out?’ Kula waa mi/ nk^hoðelo naayé/ njibiile/ kuwa mtume/ uyu/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakuzaloowa . ‘Everyone that I spoke to answered me that this prophet had not yet been born.’

- Malizee kujá? Nt^haasá. ‘Have you finished eating? (Yes), I already have (finished eating).’
- Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ kanzaa kuja. ‘The guest has not yet begun to eat.’
- Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ nt^haakuja. ‘The guest has not eaten yet.’
- Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakumaliza/ kuja. ‘The guest has not yet finished eating.’
- Mi/ niwiilé/ khabari za inchidente/ nt^hasa ya kuya numbaani. ‘I found out about the accident before coming home.’
- Mi/ niwiilé/ khabari/ za inchidente/ nt^hasa yaa yé/ ilo numbaani. ‘I found out about the accident before she came home.’
- Mi/ nk^hoðeelé/ na Omari/ nt^hasa yaa mi/ kendra kaziini. ‘I talked to Omari before I went to work.’
- Mi/ nt^hosheze kuwaa wo/ nt^haasá/ nt^hawaakujá. ‘I thought that they had not yet eaten.’
- Mubli/ nt^hasaa ye/ kuya kaake/ shpita ka chizeele/ ichije. ‘The husband, before coming home, passed by that old woman.’
- Mukhtaa wo/ wapimiliila/ zoombo/ zaa kuja/ nt^hasaa wo/ khfunga mizigo yaawo... ‘When they were measured for the items of food before they packed their bags...’
- Mwaka yaana/ Haliima/ waliko nt^haasá/ ni mukeewa. ‘Last year Haliima was still my wife.’
- Mwaka yaana/ Hamadi/ waliko nt^haasá/ ni mubliwa. ‘Last year Hamadi was still my husband.’
- Nambiilá/ kuwaa ye/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakuzaloowa. ‘I was told that he had not yet been born.’
- Ndrasile maaliyá/ na mulkuwá/ na nt^haasá/ skumwona/ mtume uyu. ‘I left my wealth and my possessions and I haven’t yet seen this prophet.’
- Ndrasile numbaani/ nt^haasa/ Nuuru/ kulawa. ‘I left the house before Nuuru left.’ Cf.
- Ndrasile numbaani/ nt^haasa/ Nuuru/ lazile. ‘I left the house before Nuuru left.’ Review since did not mark final accent on complement sentence in my notes.
- Nndroshele nt^hasaa ye/ kuwasila. ‘I went away before he arrived.’
- Nt^haasá/ celo/ kumuuzá/ ya sultaani/ hadiiló... ‘Before the gazelle asked him what the sultan wanted (lit. said)...’
- Nt^haasá/ kanzoowa/ matezo/ ya taatu. The third game had not yet begun.’
- Nt^haasá/ nt^hukuja. ‘You (pl.) have not yet eaten.’
- Nt^haasá/ skaandika/ khati. ‘I haven’t yet written the letter.’
- Nt^haasá/ skuja. ‘I haven’t eaten yet.’
- Nt^haasá/ skumaliza/ kuja. ‘I haven’t yet finished eating.’
- Nt^hasaa we/ khkoma numbaani/ muo/ utakuwa uzuushile. ‘Before you arrive home, the fire will be revived.’
- nt^hasaa wo/ khkoma ka sultaani ‘before they reached the sultan’
- nt^hasaa ye/ kumjiiba ‘before he answered him’
- Nvete haanzuyá/ mp^hiyá/ nt^hasaa mi/ kendra festaani. ‘I put on a new dress before going to the party.’
- Omari/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakuuya. ‘Omari hasn’t yet come.’ Or: Omari/ nt^haasá. Or: Nt^haasá/ Omari/ nt^hakuuya.
- Ondroka/ nt^hasaa ye/ kuuya. ‘Leave before he comes!’
- Siwalaangé/ wanaank^huku/ nt^hasaa wo/ kuwanguoowa. ‘Don’t count the chicks before they are hatched.’
- Teena/ chizeele/ shchimwambila sultaani/ we/ nt^haasá/ nayo kuwaa we/ hushindroowi/ tu. ‘Then the old woman said to the sultan: do you still insist [lit. have that] you cannot be defeated?’
- Watakuruuda/ apo/ khpumula/ naa kujá/ nt^hasaa wo/ kuruda muyiini. ‘They would return there to rest and to eat before they returned to town.’
- Ya kaandra/ ni’iweené/ ya piili/ nt^haasá. ‘The first [warning that my father gave me on his death bed], I have seen it [come true], the second, not yet.’

Ye/ nt^haasá/ nakhsu_{la} khkoða naawe. ‘He’ll still want to discuss it with you.’

rel.

nt^huaso [we have a scarcity of data concerning this formation and have cited the only examples we have] [pron. nt^haasó]

Numbaani/ waawaye/ waliko nt^haasó/ koondroka/ chiliindra. ‘At the house, his father had not yet gotten up, so he waited.’

muu-nti (mii-)

n. 3/4 [cf. Sw. mchana "day as opposed to night (usiku), daytime, daylight" SSED 270] day; [pron. muunt^hi] (This word is not used in a locative form.)

Fakeṭe muunt^hi/ mzimawe. ‘He ran the whole day.’

Haalima/ safariye/ itete muunt^hi/ mzima. [HHH!H] ‘Haliima’s trip took the whole day’

Hasiibu/ munt^hi oyo/ chirashmanya na jiraani/ chendra khṭinda skunyi. ‘Hasiibu that day went with the neighbors to cut firewood.’

kana muunt^hi ‘like daytime’

Masku/ ya iidi/ mitala/ hashoowa/ kilaa mahala/ huwa weelu/ kana muunt^hi. ‘On the night of Iidi lights are lit every where, it gets clear/light like daytime.’

kilaa muunt^hi ‘every day’

Kilaa muunt^hu/ nayo muunt^hiwe. ‘Everyone has his day.’ (A proverb.)

Mi/ munt^hi oyo/ na sku ya piiliké/ skukhaadira/ kuja chiint^hu. ‘I, on that day and on the day following ([lit.] day its second) was not able to eat anything.’

mint^hi mitatu ‘three days’ munt^hi oyo/ mzimawe ‘that day its whole (that whole day)’

Muunt^hi/ wa mwanaashkewa/ zaazilá/ mi/ nfanyize kaazi/ fijiri. ‘On the day my daughter was born I worked in the morning.’

Muunt^hi/ wa mwanaashkewe/ zaazilá/ uwaliko muunt^hi/ wa furaha/ kabisá/ karka ma’iinshaya. The day my daughter was born was the happiest day of my life.

munt^hi waa we/ hukhaadiri ‘on the day that you were sick’

Nthezeze mp^hiirá/ munt^hi mzima. ‘I played football the whole day.’

Nthezeze mp^hiirá/ nt^ho/ munt^hi mzima. ‘I played football hard the whole day.’

Teena/ ichiwa/ ye/ heendra/ hadiqaani/ maraa nt^hatu/ ku_{la} muunt^hi. ‘Then it became (the case that) he went into the garden three times each day.’

muu-nti

n. [Sw. mchi "pestle" SSED 271] pestle; [pron. muunt^hi]

chinu/ na muunt^hi ‘mortar and pestle’

Haliima/ nakhsolaa gele/ ka muunt^hi/ naa chinú. ‘Haliima is grinding the maize with a pestle and a mortar.’ (The second of two conjoined noun phrases undergoes downdrift intonation just like successive arguments in a post-verbal environment.)

nta-

negative prefix; [pron. nt^ha-] (The negative prefix precedes the subject prefix in a transparent fashion, except that (a) in the first person singular, the expected nt^ha-n- is not found, but rather si-; (b) in the second person singular, nt^h-u- appears, reflecting an original subject prefix u- that is not otherwise found in Chimiini verbal morphology; and (c) in the case of a [cl.1] subject, nt^h-a- appears, this form being interpretable as either having a phonological null subject or representing the fusion of nt^ha- with the a- subject prefix that originally occurred in an earlier stage of the language.)

Laakini/ mwaana/ nt^hakhaadira/ kulaala. "But the child was not able to sleep.’

Nt^humjaariba. ‘You haven’t tested him.’

Nt^hunakuwona/ weenziwo/ wanakhfanyo kaazi? ‘Don’t you see your friends who are working?’

ntaku

there is no; [pron. nt^haku]

Laakini/ khalbi/ nt^haku. ‘But there is no courage.’

Na nt^haku/ mo/ uziló. ‘And there was not anyone who made a purchase.’

Nampeenda/ nt^ho/ Safiya/ walá/ yaa ye/ khfaanya/ kumpata Safiya/ nt^haku. ‘He loves Safiya very much but there is nothing to do to get Safiya.’

Nt^haku/ chiint^hu/ cha kureeba. ‘There is nothing that stops or blocks or constrains it.’

Nt^haku/ dhibu/ itampató. ‘There is no harm that will befall him.’

Nt^haku/ iló/ sho kuwa Ali. ‘No one came except Ali.’

Nt^haku/ itakundrudoo numa. ‘There is nothing that will make me change my mind.’

Nt^haku/ karka waant^hu/ awo/ khadiriiló/ khtafsirá/ ndroto izó. ‘There was no one among those people who was able to interpret those dreams.’ (Phon. This example from a story provides a nice illustration of the fact that in relative clauses, the Accentual Law of Focus is over-ridden. The final accent from the relative verb extends to the end of the relative clause regardless of whether non-canonical phrasal separation of a verb from its complement occurs.)

Nt^haku/ mwaana/ (yo wote) / madrasaani. ‘There isn’t any child in the school.’

Nt^haku/ na’iwo/ kuwaa we/ ni maskiini. ‘There is no one who knows that you are a poor man.’

Nt^haku/ nakhiwó. ‘There is no one who knows.’

Nt^haku/ nfuye/ maduriini. ‘There isn’t any monkey/ aren’t any monkeys in the bush.’

Nt^haku/ waana/ (wo wote) madrasaani. ‘There aren’t any children in the school.’

ntamu

there is not in; [pron. nt^hamu]

Laakini/ iyi/ nt^hamu/ mwishpa/ nt^hamu/ chiint^hu/ cha kureeba. ‘But this does not have in it a bone, there is nothing in it to stop, constrain it.’ (This sentence appears in a discussion of the proverb that says the tongue (limi) does not have a bone, meaning that the tongue freely tells lies etc. Notice that although the noun limi is a [cl.11] noun and would thus trigger the demonstrative ili, here the speaker uses the [cl.9] form iyi.)

Markabuuni/ nt^hamu/ mwaamubli/ sho kuwaa mi. ‘On the ship there is no man except me.’

Nakuwoná/ chijuumbá/ nt^hamuu nyunyí/ katiiké. ‘Do you see a nest with no birds in it?’

nt^hamu/ shaka/ kuwa... ‘there is no doubt that...’

ntana

there was no; [pron. nt^haná]

Baaba/ chiwa nt^haná/ yaa ye/ kuhada. ‘There was nothing that father had to say (i.e. he did not have an answer).’

Baaba/ chiwona nt^haná/ budi/ kuwapa Yuusufu/ wo/ kendra naaye. ‘Father saw that there was no alternative but to give Joseph to them so that they go with him.’

Maskiini/ uyu/ ichiwa nt^haná/ yaa ye/ khfaanya/ iyi/ ni kaaziye/ ye hufaanya/ kaazi/ iyi/ li’ajli ya kuwapatila/ waana/ arzaakhi. ‘This poor man, it became that he has nothing to do. This is his job [catching fish], he does this work in order to get for his children the means of subsistence.’

Na imweleele/ kuwa nt^haná/ budi/ ye/ kuuza/ chulungu cha kaandra.

‘And it became for him that there was no way out but for him to sell the first storey (of the house, having earlier in the story sold the second storey).’

ntangu

conj. [Sw. tangu SSED 452] since; [pron. nt^hangú] (This conjunction is phonologically marked: it is a phrasal isolate, has final accent, and the vowel in the first syllable is not lengthened in front of an apparently prenasalized consonant.)

Haliima/ na Omari/ nt^hangú/ walozeenyó/ takhriiban/ ni miyaaka/ ishiriini. ‘Since Haliima and Omari married is almost twenty years.’

Nt^hangú/ fijiri/ haṭá/ laakuja/ nimniinziló. ‘From morning until dusk I waited for him.’

nt^hangú/ mwaanza/ hattá/ aakhiri ‘from the beginning to the end’

Nt^hangú/ Nuuru/ ukó/ ni meezi. ‘It is one month since Nuuru has been here.’

nt^hangú/ Sheekhi/ iló ‘since Sheekhi came’

Nt^hangú/ sku iyo/ teena/ ichiwaa wo/ hawaṭindi teena/ skunyi. ‘After that day it was the case that they never cut firewood again.’

Nt^hangú/ we/ iló/ dhibu/ ziwele nüingi. ‘Since you came problems have increased.’

Nt^hangú/ we/ teto maali/ haṭá/ isa/ ni sku nt^haano/ tu/ huwaayi/ kuwa maali/ ayo/ yotte/ yamaliize/ ka sku nt^haanó. ‘Since you took the wealth until now it is five days only, how could all the wealth be exhausted in five days?’

Sa’aya/ nt^haykhsimama/ nt^hangú/ itila lfuunguló. ‘My watch has never stopped since it was wound up.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is khalbi or mooyo ‘heart’.)

Skumwona/ Nuuru/ nt^hangú/ ye/ anzizo khfanya kaazi. ‘I have not seen Nuuru since he began working.’

Skumwona/ Nuuru/ nt^hangú/ yuuzi. ‘I have not seen Nuuru since the day before yesterday.’

Ye/ waliko mweenza/ wa mwaana/ wa sultaani/ nt^hangú/ waawayé/ waliko hayi. ‘He was a friend of the son of the sultan since before his father (i.e. the sultan) had died.’

nto

adv. [no etymological source known] very; [pron. nt^ho] (Nt^ho has not been observed to group with a following word, but it may or may not phrase with a verb or adjective that it modifies. The examples below illustrate this variability.)

Chisu ichi/ ni shkalii nt^ho. ‘This knife is very sharp.’

Chiwafanyiliza waanawe/ hadiikha/ nk^hulu/ nt^ho. ‘He made a very large garden for his children.’

Hamiisi/ husooma/ nt^ho/ jisa waalimu/ kumpeenda. ‘Hamiisi reads a lot so that teachers will like him.’

Harun Rashiidi/ humpendaa nt^ho/ Abunawaasi. ‘Haruun Rashiidi loved Abunawaasi very much.’

Karkaa ndila/ mp^haamp^ha/ chihada/ mweenza/ mukeewa/ sku izi/ hakhaadiri/ nt^ho. ‘On the way, Shark said: my friend, my wife these days is very sick.’

Mbona/ Muusa/ nakulaa nt^ho. ‘Why is Muusa crying so much?’ (If nt^ho is relocated to pre-verbal position, it triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb: Mbona/ Muusa/ nt^ho/ naakuló.

Munth^u uyu/ nacho chisu shkali/ nt^ho. ‘This man has a very sharp knife.’

Muusa/ nakulaa nt^ho. ‘Muusa is crying a lot.’ Or: Muusa/ nt^ho/ naakuló. Or: Nt^ho/ Muusa/ naakuló. Or, with subject postposing: Nt^ho/ naakuló/ Muusa.

Mwaana/ impete murugu/ nt^ho. ‘The child was very worried.’ (Preposing nt^ho causes a shift of the main verb to pseudo-relative form: Mwaana/ nt^ho/ impeto murugú. ‘The child very much was worried.’ Also: Nt^ho/ mwaana/ impeto murugú. ‘Very much the child was worried.’ It is not possible to phrase nt^ho with a preceding noun: Mwaana/ impeto muruguu nt^ho. nor Mwanaa nt^ho/ impeto murugú.)

Naami/ nampeendá/ nt^ho. ‘And I love her very much.’

Nfanyize kaazi/ nt^ho. ‘He worked a lot, hard, etc.’

Nimpendelele mwaalimú/ mwaaná/ nt^ho. ‘I loved the teacher’s child very much.’ (Cf. Nimpendelelee nt^ho/ mwaalimu/ mwaana. As can be seen from this example, focus on nt^ho precludes the projection of final accent to the following complements: Nimpendelelee nt^ho/ mwaalimú/ mwaaná.)

Nimpenzele Haliimá/ nt^ho. ‘I loved Haliima very much.’ (If nt^ho is placed in immediate post-verbal position, it bears the focus and the final accent does not extend past it: Nimpenzelee nt^ho/ Haliimá, not Nimpenzelee nt^ho/ Haliimá. This observation holds, however, for a main clause. In a relative clause construction, the final accent triggered by a relative verb goes to the end of the relative clause regardless: munt^hu mpenzelo Haliimá/ nt^ho but also munt^hu mpenzelo nt^ho/ Haliimá ‘the person who loved Haliima very much’.)

Nnakhtarajaa nt^ho/ kuwa Jaama/ takuuya. ‘I hope very much that Jaama will come.’

Omari/ humpenda mukeewe/ nt^ho. ‘Omari loves his wife very much.’ Or, with verb focus: Omari/ humpeenda/ mukeewe/ nt^ho. Or: Omari/ humpendaa nt^ho/ mukeewe. Or: Omari/ humpeenda/ nt^ho/ mukeewe. Or: Nt^ho/ Omari/ humpendo mukeewé. Or: Omari/ nt^ho/ humpendo mukeewé. (In pre-verbal position, nt^ho triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb. Also, note that while nt^ho may be phrasally joined with a preceding verb, it does not join with a noun.)

Si/ hispeenda/ zo/ nt^ho. ‘We like them a lot.’

Wote/ washfurahaa nt^ho. ‘All were very happy.’

Ye/ daa’imu/ humpa salaamu/ kanaa mi/ mbaliko mweenzawé/ nt^ho. ‘She always greets me as if I were her best friend.’

Ye/ mpenzelee nt^ho/ mwaanawe. ‘He loved his child very much.’

chii-ntu (zii-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. kitu SSED 210] thing; (in negative contexts) nothing, not anything; [pron. chiint^hu]

Chint^hu chihaba/ humondrolo sultaani/ chitiini. ‘A small thing that makes a king rise from his chair.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is choolo, the need to defecate or urinate.)

Chint^hu chimooyi/ huzaloo miyá. ‘One thing which gives birth to a hundred.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is awuri ‘seed’.)

Humpo muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ ni mojiitu. ‘The one who gives a person something is God.’ (A proverb.)

khfanya chiint^hu ‘lit. to do s.t. -- deal with’; also: khfanyowa chiint^hu

Msiba uyu/ ufanyiza chiint^hu/ naayo. ‘This crisis was dealt with it.’ (This is a personal passive. The corresponding impersonal passive is Msiba uyu/ ifanyiza chiint^hu/ naayo. ‘This crisis was dealt with it.’)

Nt^haku/ chint^hu chaa mi/ nakhtiyó/ isa (or: isá). ‘There is nothing that I am afraid of now.’

Sfanye chiint^hu. ‘Do not do anything.’

Siwo/ chiint^hu. [Lit.] it is nothing -- meaning: it is of no importance, it doesn't matter.’ (A synonym of Haydhibi/ chiint^hu.) For example, person A says: Mbejele raaði/ nragiilé. ‘Please excuse me, I am late.’ Person B responds: Siwo/ chiint^hu (or: Haydhibi/ chiint^hu.) ‘It is all right, it doesn't matter.’

rel.

chi-jii-ntu (zi-jii-) n. 7/8 dim. [pron. chijiint^hu]

muu-ntu (waa-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mtu SSED 311] person; (in negative contexts) nobody, not anyone [pron.

muunt^hu] (The class prefixes mu and wa have a short vowel in their basic form, but this vowel lengthens before a stem-initial pre-nasalized consonant.

There are, however, only a couple examples: muunt^hu, muunt^hi.)

-a waant^hu ‘(lit.) of people – i.e. belonging to someone else’

Sangamizé/ zoombo/ za waant^hu. ‘Don't damage [these] things belonging to others (i.e. do not damage these things, they are not yours, they belong to someone else)!’

Simbigé/ mwaana/ wa waant^hu. ‘Don't beat [this] child of another family (i.e. this is not your child, don't beat him)!’

Simkooðishé/ muke/ wa waant^hu. ‘Don't speak to [this] woman who is not related to you.’

Chizeele/ ichije/ choondroka/ chendra maduriini/ mahaļa/ ya muunt^hu/ oyo/ leeló.

‘That old woman left and went to the country to the place where that man was sleeping.’

Fulaani/ ni muunt^hu. ‘So-and-so is a character, an odd guy.’

ito ya waant^hu ‘(lit.) the eye of people – i.e. the evil eye, the eye of envious people that is potentially harmful’

Ito ya waant^hu/ isikhudirké. ‘Do not let the evil eye reach (and therefore effect) you!’

munt^hu bakhili ‘a miserly person’

Ni ‘aadi/ muunt^hu/ khtiyaa noka. ‘It is common for one to be afraid of snakes.’

ni muunt^huwe [lit.] he is his person -- i.e. he is s.o.'s stooge, he knows all his secret deeds and plans, and does his bidding.’ (To the expression are added the names of the two persons concerned)’

Siwo/ muunt^hu. ‘He is not reliable (lit. he is not a man).’

Skumpata/ muunt^hu. ‘I did not find anybody.’

Wakomelopó/ waant^hu/ wa muuyi/ wont^he/ wachiskila tawala. ‘When they arrived [there], all the people of the town came down to the shore.’

Want^hu awa/ (ni) wawovu. ‘These people are bad.’

Want^hu gani/ awo. ‘What sort of people are these?’

rel.

chi-jii-ntu (zi-jii-) n. 7/8 dim. little person (but this same formation also means ‘little thing’) chi-muu-ntu (zi-waa-) n. 7/8 dim. little person

i-jii-ntu (mi-jii-) n. 5/4 aug. (disparaging) [pron. ijiint^hu, mijiint^hu]

Mijint^hu ayo/ (ni) miwovu. ‘These people are really bad.’

Mijint^hu gani/ ayo. ‘What kind of people are these?’

l-jii-ntu n. 11 aug. [pron. ljiint^hu]

u-muu-ntu n. 14 manhood

wuu-ntu n. 14 manhood

wunt^hu mzima ‘adulthood’

chi-nu (zi-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. kinu SSED 201] mortar

rel.

chi-ji-nu (zi-ji-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-ji-nu (mi-ji-) n. 5/4 aug.

- nufuudi n. [Ar. nufūd W 983] influence Shtumiḷa nufuudi/ zaa ye/ wanaazó. ‘She used all the influence that she had.’
- nuhsi adj. [Sw. nuhusi, nuksi SSED 341; Ar. naḥasa “bring bad luck” and naḥs, pl. nuḥūs “misfortune, calamity” WW 947] of being ill-omened munṭ^hi nuhsi ‘a day of ill-omen’
rel.
u-nuhsi n. bad luck
Ukaṣlaani/ ni alama ya unuhsi. ‘Laziness is a sign of bad luck.’
- Nuuhu n. Noah
Iyi/ nii qisa/ ya mtume Nuuhu. ‘This is the story of Prophet Noah.’
Nuuhu/ nt^hakuvuundika/ khalbi. ‘Noah never got disheartened.’
- numa adv. [Sw. nyuma SSED 348] later, then, coming; back Hujoo mbelé/ haaji/ numa. ‘The one who eats first does not eat later.’ (A proverb.)
kaamina ka qalbiini na ibaada [st.] ‘to believe it in your heart and to worship’ muḷoowe mbele na numa [st.] ‘fire (of hell) in front and behind him’ Nṭ^hakuja numake. ‘I will eat later.’
Nuuhu/ chihuzunika/ nt^ho/ numake/ chilekeza usowe/ kuzimu/ chihada/ moojá/ we/ mp^hele ahdí/ kunokolaa mi/ na ahliyá. ‘Noah became very sad, then he directed his face to the sky and said: O God, you promised me to save me and my relatives.’
numa ma’adaana yanakubigoowa [nt.] ‘then [you will hear] the calls to prayer’
Numa/ oyo mwaana/ enzele/ ye/ mwenewe/ ba/ nakuloomba/ nakuloomba. ‘Then that boy [the son of sultans] went himself begging and begging [for the boy’s mother to allow her son to eat with him].’
Numa/ wandrasile/ wa’olosehe. ‘Then they left me and went away.’
shari kiitu ilaziile ziko kheeri numa yiitu [nt.] ‘evil has left our place and there are good times to come’
rel.
numaanuma adv.
Komelopo zitaani/ naank^hó/ chiwawona ma’askari/ waawo/ waṭawanyishile/ ka apa/ na apá/ na wanakuruda numaanuma/ khpata jisaa wo/ ki’ichimbiḷiḷa. ‘When he reached [lit. the war -- i.e. where the fighting was], he saw their soldiers scattered here and there, returning back to get how to escape [for themselves].’
Muti/ ha’upandroowi/ numaanuma/ hupandroowá/ mbeleembele. ‘A tree is not climbed on your back (lit. back back), its being climbed is in front (facing it).’ (A saying.)
- numba n. 9/10 [Sw. nyumba SSED 64] house; [pron. numba usually, but may also be heard as nuumba] (On the basis of the augmentative form below, one can argue that morphologically this item is n-uumba, with a nasal prefix and a vowel-initial stem. However, we have opted not to segment this noun into a prefix and a stem for purposes of alphabetization in this dictionary due to the fact that the class 9/10 prefix would be expected to have the shape ny before a vowel-initial stem and not n. In other words, we consider the diminutive and augmentative forms to be synchronically irregular and not productively derived from a base /uumba/.)
duniya ni numba ya mwenye sho numba [st.] ‘the world is the house of one without a house’ Iyi/ ndiyó/ numba yaa mi/ niyuuziló. ‘This is the house that I bought.’
Izi/ ndizó/ numba zaa mi nizuuziló. ‘These are the houses that I bought.’
Without object marker on the relative verb: Izi/ ndizó/ numba zaa mi/ nuuziló.

kama nuumba/ ichivundoowa ‘if the house is destroyed’

kama nuumba/ izivundoowa ‘if the houses are destroyed’

karka nuumba ‘in the house’

kharibu ya nuumba ‘near the house’

Martí wíitu/ ile numbaani. ‘Our guest went into the house.’

Mbaliko numbaani. ‘I was at home.’ Or: Mbaalikó/ numbaani.

Mbalimo karka numbaa nk^hulú. ‘I was in the big house.’ (Cf. Mbalimo karka nuumbá/ nk^hulu. ‘I was in a big house.’) mlango wa numba iwashilá ‘the door of the house that was built’

Na’ingile/ nuumba/ ni nuumbaye. ‘Let him enter the house, it is his house.’

Niko numbaani. ‘I am at home.’ Or: Niikó/ numbaani.

Nk^halent^he na ^fmukeewá/ numbaani. ‘I stayed with my wife at home.’ Cf.

Nk^halent^he numbaani/ mukeewa. ‘I stayed at home with my wife.’

numba iburbushiizá ‘the house that was destroyed’

Nuumba/ inakhtetema. ‘The house was shaking.’

Nuumba/ ivuunzila. ‘The house was destroyed.’ Cf. Nuumba/ zivuunzila. ‘The houses were destroyed.’

Numba iyi/ hump^hendeza. ‘This house pleases me.’ Cf. Numba iyi/imp^hendeze. ‘This house pleased me.’ Cf. Numba izi/zimp^hendeze. ‘These houses pleased me.’

Nuumba/ mlaangowe/ ufanyiiza. ‘The house, its door was repaired.’ (Syn: It is unclear whether mlaangowe can be extraposed to the end: ?Nuumba/ ufanyiza mlaangowe.)

numba mooyi/ suura ‘one good house’ (Syn: It is not possible to locate suura next to the noun: *numba suura/ mooyi.)

Nuumba/ nt^haykuzoowa. ‘The house was not sold.’ Cf. Nuumba/nt^haskuzoowa. ‘The houses were not sold.’

numba suura/ iburbushiizá ‘the beautiful house that was destroyed’

numba/ ya mnango wa chuuma ‘a house with an iron door’

Nuumba/ yuziiza. ‘The house was sold.’ Cf. Nuumba/ zuziiza. ‘The houses were sold.’

numbani/ katiike ‘the house, in its middle’

Numbaani/ niikó. ‘At home I am.’

numbaya ‘my house’ (cf. nuumbayo ‘your house’; nuumbaye ‘his/her/its house’; numba yíitu ‘our house’; numba yíinu ‘your (pl.) house’; numba yaawo ‘their house’); nuumbaza ‘my houses’ (cf. nuumbazo, nuumbaze, numba zítu, numba zíinu, numba zaawo)

Nuumbayo/ ifanyiza mlaango/ na Hamadi.

Nuuru/ uko numbaani. ‘Nuuru is at home.’ Or: ^fNumbaani/ Nuuru/ ukó.

Or: ^fNumbaani/ ukó/ Nuuru. Or: Nuuru/ ^fnumbaani/ ukó.

Nuru za nuumba/ ni waana. ‘The light of a house is children.’ (A proverb.)

Nuzile numba ya Omari/ mp^hiyá/ suurá. ‘I bought Omari’s beautiful new house.’ Or: Nuzile numba ya Omari/ suurá/ mp^hiyá. ‘I bought Omari’s beautiful new house.’ (Note that the change in the order of the adjectives does not alter the pattern of accent assignment.)

Siná/ numba ya khkalaant^ha. ‘I do not have a house to live in here.’

Wa’ingile nuumba. ‘They entered the house.’

Walimo karka numbaa nk^hulú. ‘He was in the big house.’ (Cf. Walimo karka nuumba/ nk^hulu. ‘He was in a big house.’)

Wapete numba mooyi/ suura. ‘They found one good house.’ Or: Wapete nuumba/ mooyi/ suura. (Phon. It is not possible to bring both modifiers into a single PP with the noun: *Wapete numba moyi suura.)

Weenopó/ chibiga hoodi/ chiingila/ numbaani. ‘When he saw it (the house), he asked for permission to enter, and he entered into the house.'

Ye/ zazila kuwa mwana wa taatu/ na wa mwaisó/ karka nuumba. 'He was born the third and last child in the family.'

rel.

chi-j-uumba (zi-j-) n. 7/8 dim. small house

Chijumba ichije/ ni chelpe. 'That (dim.) house is white.'

Ori/ walimo karka chijuumba/ chaa nk^hbuku/ chilindra fijiri ya kaandra.

'The rooster was in the chicken coop waiting for dawn.'

Zijumba izije/ ni zelpe. 'Those (dim.) houses are white.'

i-j-uumba (mi-j-) n. 5/4 aug. large house

Ijumba iyije/ ni ikulu. 'That (aug.) house is big.'

Mijumba ayaje/ ni mikulu. 'Those (aug.) houses are big.'

ma-j-uumba n. 6 houses

Wawashile majuumba/ yaa mawe/ na majuumbá ya uzi. 'They built houses of stone and of mud.'

chi-nume

n. [Sw. kinume SSED 348] back, behind

Chimrashize eelo/ uyu/ ye/ nakhfakata/ naasi/ chinumeché/ hatá/shkomele tawalá. 'We followed this gazelle, him running, and we at his back, until we reached the sea.'

chinume cha 'behind'

Mbene chibuukú/ chinumechá. 'I saw a book behind me.'

Mp^hete chibuukú/ chinume cha Nuurú. 'I found the book behind

Nuuru.' (Cf. Mp^hete chibuukú/ chinumechá. 'I found the book behind me.')

Mukeewe/ simeme chinume cha Omari. 'His wife stood behind Omari.' (Cf. Omari/ isimema chinumeche. 'Omari was stood behind him.')

Nuuru/ weshele masanduukhu/ chinume cha kaabaati. 'Nuuru put the boxes behind the cupboard.'

Si/ choshele Daawú/ chinumeché. 'We went beyond Daawu.' Cf.

Daawu/ chinumeche/ yooshejá. 'Daawu beyond it was gone. Yosheja Daawu/ chinumeche. 'It was gone Daawu beyond it.'

Ye/ chinendra chinume cha waant^hu. 'He walked behind the people.'

ka chinume 'behind, from behind; in depth

Jawaabu/ izi zont^he/ stakhkoðelowa ka chinume/ nt^ho. 'All these matters will be discussed in depth later.'

Waziiri/ chimrasha mwaana/ ka chinume/ chimwambila khsimama. 'The minister followed the boy from behind and told him to stop.'

Ye/ na waaná/ sittá/ wachilawa/ kendra maduriini/ baaba/ kaa mbele/ na waaná/ ka chinumé. 'He and his six children went into the bush, father in front and the children behind.'

Yuusufu/ anzizopo kondroka ka apó/ muke/ chimshika haanzu/ ka chinume/ chimgüita/ hatá/ haanzu/ ichaatuka/ ka chinume. 'Joseph. when he began to move away from there, the wife grabbed him by his outer garment from behind and pulled until the garment tore from behind.'

ka chinume cha 'in the back of'

Ka chinume/ cha nuumbaye/ uwaliko mooro. 'In the back of his house there was a fenced enclosure.'

Nt^hale/ ilaziló/ hayruudi/ chinume. 'An arrow that has left does not come back.’ (A proverb.)

Wanaafakhi/ huruda waant^hu/ chinume. ‘Lies put people back (cause people to regress).’
Ziti za chinume/ siwo/ waasiⁱ/ kamba zaa mbele. ‘The seats at the back are not as roomy as those at the front.’

rel.
chi-numeenum adv. back, backwards

Wawene ma’askari/ wa sultaani/ wawaye mwanaamke/ wanakuruda chinumeenum. ‘He saw the soldiers of the sultan, the girl’s father, returning back [retreating from the fight].’

nuundru n. a kind of fish

ku-nuunka v. smell; [pron. kunuunk^ha]

Inakununk^ha l^yuundró/ nii nama. ‘What is smelling bad is the meat.’

kununk^ha masaajo ‘to inhale vapor rub’

kununk^haa ndala ‘to starve (lit. stink of hunger)’

Siimba/ uyu/ waliko mwembaamba/ ka khisa/ apo/ tu/ lazilo ka maraḍiini/ mzimawe/ chinunk^haa ndala. ‘This lion was skinny because at that time he had just recovered from illness and his whole body was starved.’

Nama/ inakununk^ha l^yuundro. ‘The meat is giving off a stench.’

rel.
ku-nuunsha v. cause to smell

Chifa/ nakhtalaa dawa/ mnuunsha/ maanzine/ maliize/ fiile. ‘She was dying, he was taking medicine to apply to her nose (lit. to make her smell), (but) she was already finished, she died.’

nuunu n. [?Som. cunug DSI 109] infant

rel.
chi-nuunu n. dim.

nuqsaani n. [Ar. nuqsān W 992] loss, damage, shortage, lack Hawaalipi/ nuqsaani. ‘They do not repay short of what is due from them.’

Nuuraḷeeni n. a name of the Prophet Mohammad hadīle tamwonapi Nuuraḷeeni [st.] ‘she said, where will I see the Prophet’ ku-nuurisha

v.
rel.
ku-nurishoowa v. pass.

Sheekhi shughuuli maliize/ teena nakunurishoowa [st.] ‘the work on the Sheikh is completed, now is the time to pray for him’

nuuru n. 9/10 [Sw. nuru SSED 342; Ar. nūr W 1009] light

Alí/ husoma qur’aani/ niingi/ usoowe/ unawo nuuru. ‘Ali reads/recites the Quran a lot, his face shines.’

ilmu ni nuuru jaahili ni booyi [st.] ‘knowledge is light, ignorance is worthless’ khupoza imaani/ khupa nuuru za duniyaani [song] ‘(it) strengthens (lit. heals) your faith and lights (lit. gives you lights) your way in the world’

nuuru za Mhamadi [st.] ‘the light of Muhammad’

Nuru za nuumba/ ni waana. ‘The light of a house is children.’ (A proverb.)

nuuruze zuunzila nt^haasa malaayka [st.] ‘his light was created before the angels'

- nusmani adj. no etymology found impotent; n. impotence
- nusra n. [cf. -nusura below] act of saving, protecting
- nusu [Sw. nusu SSED 342; Ar. niṣf, nuṣf W 971] half Darsi ziingine/ hanza sa'aa saba/ waa nusu/ lapiili. 'Other lessons begin at 1:30 p.m.'
Khaṭi/ ni nusu ya kuwonana. 'A letter is half of seeing one another.' (A proverb.)
Komelopo nusu yaa ndilá/ shkalaant^ha/ khpumula. 'When he reached half the way, he sat down to rest.'
Walá/ nt^hakhfikira/ kuwaa ye/ chimilka/ nusu/ tu/ ya duniya. 'Neither did he think that he owned only half of the world.'
Ye/ weshele mkono/ wa shpete/ mbeleze/ ka nusu/ sa'a/ Huseeni/ mshiinzile/ mwanaamke/ maṭezoo saba. 'He put the hand with the ring in front of her; in a half hour, Huseeni defeated the girl in seven games (of cards).'
- ku-nusuha v. [Ar. naṣaḥa W 969] admonish, give advice, advise Baaba/ ofetopo kumnusuhá/ chanza kumvunaanga/ na kumfuungá. 'When he got tired of admonishing him (the child), he began to beat him and tie him up.'
Dakhṭari/ hunusuha want^hu hawakhaadirí. 'The doctor advises the patients (lit. the people who are not well).' (Remember that a habitual verb like hununusuha does have any subject marking on it. The identity of the subject must be determined by context or by an over subject. Thus one says Mi/ hunusuha... 'I advise...', We/ hunusuha... 'You advise...', Ye/ hunusuha... '(S)he advises...', Si/ hunusuha... 'We advise...', Ni/ hunusuha... 'You (pl.) advise...', Wo/ hunusuha... 'They advise...', etc.
E/ we/ sulṭaani/ mi/ nakhunusuhá/ we/ chiza khfaanya/ zita/ ilu ya jahazi/ iyi. 'Oh, you, sultan, I advise you not to wage war against this ship.'
Ñnakhunusuhá/ mukḥṭaa we/ takuwo nakḥtezó/ maṭoyo/ yanawako/ ilu/ ya karaṭa/ tu/ simlangalé/ mwanaamke/ wa illa/ we/ takshindroowa. 'I advise you that when you will be playing (cards), your eyes, let them be on the cards only, don't look at the girl, if not (i.e. if you look at the girl) you will be defeated.'
Ñnakuwanusuha wanafuunzi. 'I am advising the students.'
Ñnamnusuha mwaanawá. 'I am advising my son.'
Ye/ ofeete/ kumnusuha/ laakini/ mwaana/ ize khkasa jawaabu/ za waawaye. 'He grew tired of admonishing him [his son], but the boy refused to listen to what his father said.'
- nusuhu n. advice
Nusuha/ nii du'a. 'Advice is a blessing.' Cf. Nusuha/ nii du'a/ ni. 'Advice is a blessing, that's what it is.'
- u-nusuka n. [Ar. nasaka "to lead a pious, devout life" and nusuk "piety, devotion" W 962] piety, devotion
- ku-nusura v. [Sw. nusuru SSED 342; Ar. naṣara W 970] (nusuriile) save from danger, protect; save (of God)
rel.
ku-nusurika v. p/s.
rel. nom.
m-nusura (wa-) n. 1/2 one who protects, saves from danger
- ku-nuwa v. [Ar. nawā W 1013] recite (verbally or mentally) the announcement of one's intention to pray a certain prayer or to fast; have the will or intention to do s.t.

Kilaa chiint^hu/ ni muunt^hu/ kunuwa. ‘Everything (that is done, accomplished) is (the result of) someone to have the will, the intention (to do it).’

Nt^hasaa muunt^hu/ khsala/ laazimu/ kunuwa. ‘Before praying one must have the intention of praying.’

rel.

ku-nuwisha v. caus. help someone recite the announcement of a prayer of fasting (e.g. someone who does not know Arabic) ku-nuwishoowa v. caus. pass.

ku-nuwoowa v. pass.

hija na umra mbilize nuwoowa [st.] ‘the intention to perform both the major and minor pilgrimages must be stated’

ku-nya

v. (i-nyeele) rain

kunyaa nvula ‘to rain’

Chimalizopo kumtⁱindá/ ichanza kuvuma lpepo/ naa nvula/ kunyá.

‘When we finished slaughtering it, the wind began to blow and rain to fall.’

Ichanza kunyaa nvula. ‘It began to rain.’ Or: Nvula/ ichanzaa kunya. Inyeele/ nvula. ‘It rained.’

Inyeele nvula/ yana. ‘It rained yesterday.’

Mukhtaá si/ shkomelo numbaani/ nvula/ ichinyoo nt^ho. ‘When we got home, it rained a lot.’ (In this example, nvula is focused, as can be seen clearly in the fact that the following verb is in pseudo-relative clause form.)

Nvula/ inakhsulaa kunya. ‘It’s about to rain (lit. it wants to rain).’

Nvula/ ireptemee kunya. ‘It stopped raining.’

Nvula/ kama inakhsuloo kunyá. ‘It seems that it is about to rain.’

Nvula/ niingi/ inyelo ilu ya magozi ayó. ‘It was much rain that fell on those hides.’

Sku mooyi/ masku/ walikoo nvula/ ichinya. ‘One night it was raining.’

rel.

ku-nyeelela v. appl. rain on

Nvula/ hu’isiifó/ ni munt^hu imnyeleeleó. ‘The one who praises the rain is the person for whom the rain has fallen.’ (A proverb.)

Nvula/ imnyeleele Sa’iidi. ‘The rain fell on Sa’iidi.’

ku-nyeesha v. make it rain

Mwajiitu/ nyeshzee nvula. ‘God made it rain.’

ku-nya

v. [Sw. nya SSED 342] (nyeele) defecate kunya maazi ‘to have blood in stool (lit. to defecate blood)’

Haliima/ miimba/ inamlaaza/ nakunya maazi. [H!H!H!H] ‘Haliima has a stomach ache, she has blood in her stool.’ (Although nakunya maazi is an independent clause, it seems to be downstepped relative to the preceding phrase, giving no evidence for being an independent IP.)

Maradi ya dizenteriya/ hunyowa maazi. [H!H] ‘Dysentery (if one has it) there is blood in the stool.’

rel.

ku-nyeeke v. p/s.

ku-nyeelela v. appl.

ku-nyeesha v. caus. assist (e.g. a child) to defecate ku-nyeesheka v. caus. p/s.

ku-nyeshleza v. caus. appl.

ku-nyeshlezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

m-nyakazi (wa-yakazi)

n. 1/2 prostitute

ku-nyakula

v. [Sw. nyakua "catch in the hands, snatch up, tweak, pluck with the fingers, twitch -- also filch, pilfer" SSED 343] (nyakiile) claw, scratch;

snatch, steal stealthily

Mp^haka/ mnyakilee mbwa/ miilu. ‘The cat scratched the dog on the legs.’

Mp^haka/ takhunyakula/ kanaa we/ chimgita mkilawe. ‘The cat will scratch you if you pull her tail.’

Tuuma/ mnyakile Omari/ uso. ‘Tuuma scratched Omari’s face.’

rel.

ku-nyakulila v. appl. (nyakuliile)

ku-nyakuloowa v. pass. (nyakiila)

Mbwa/ nyakila miilu/ naa mp^haka. ‘The dog was scratched on the legs by the cat.’

ku-nyakulana v. rec. (-nyakuleene) ku-nyakulanila v. rec. appl. (-nyakulaniliile)

rel. nom.

m-nyakula (wa-) n. 1/2 one who snatches

m-nyakuzi (wa-)

n. [Sw. mnyakuzi "(1) one who snatches, one who is quick at catching in the hands; (2) a filcher, a thief who grabs or snatches a thing and runs away with it, shop-lifter, pickpocket" SSED 343] a thief

rel.

u-nyakuzi n. 14 [Sw, unyakuzi SSED 343] snatching, stealing

i-nyala (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. nyaa SSED 343] claw, finger- or toe-nail chaala/ na inyalá ‘a finger and a fingernail’; zaala/ na manyalá ‘fingers and fingernails’ chaala/ na inyalayé ‘a finger and its fingernail’; zaala/ na manyalayé ‘fingers and their fingernails’ inyala ihuundru ‘red fingernail’ (cf. manyala mahuundru ‘red fingernails’) inyala ya kuulu (or: inyalaa kuulu) ‘toe nail’ inyala ya mkono (or: inyalaa mkono) ‘finger nail’

Manyalaye/ kambaa zisu. ‘His nails are like knives.’

khiinda inyala ow ishuungi hudhiba [st.] ‘to cut the nails or hair does harm’

ku-nyaala

v. [etymology unknown] (nyaazile) collapse, fall down (of something animate), come down

Sinyaleeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t fall down!’

rel.

ku-nyaalila v. appl. (nyaliile)

ku-nyaaza v. caus. (nyaziize) bring down (e.g. take someone by the shoulders and bring him down) kunyaza dawaara ‘to bring down a kite’

Sinyazeeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t bring it down!’

ku-nyaaliza v. caus. appl.

Ji/ mnyalize Ali/ mwaana. ‘Ji had Ali bring the child down.’

nyaambo

n. 9/10 octopus

rel.

chi-nyaambo (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-nyaambo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ku-nyamula

v. [etymology unknown] (nyamiile) scratch (of an animal such as a cat)

Chinyamula na wa piili/ na chinyamula na wa taatu. ‘(The cat) scratched the second and scratched the third (rat).’

Mi/ sinakeendra/ teena/ kaake/ ka sababu/ sku ije/ nnyamiile/ mbishile ka makoondre/ na ndumiile/ mi/ mzimawa. ‘I am not going again to his place because that day he scratched me, pounded me, and bit me all over.’

- rel.
ku-nyamulila v. appl. (nyamuliile)
ku-nyamuliloowa v. appl. pass.
ku-nyamuloowa v. pass. be scratched ku-nyamulika v. ps/.
ku-nyamulisha v. caus.
ku-nyamulishana v. caus. rec.
ku-nyamulishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-nyamulishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-nyamulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
ku-nyamulishoowa v. caus. pass.
- i-nyangarika* (mi-) n. 5/4 [Sw. -nyangalika SSED 343] someone who is a nothing, a nobody
- nyaanya* n. 9/10 [Sw. nyanya SSED 344] tomato
rel.
chi-nyaanya (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-nyaanya (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- nyaara* [etymology unknown] in the phrase:
kendra nyaara ‘to fly loose, off’ Duniya/ ni kama duwaara/ ichisuula/ hendra nyaara. ‘The world is like a kite; if it wishes, it flies off, loose.’ (A proverb.)
koloka nyaara ‘to go into a tailspin (of a kite when the string breaks)’
- nyaaw* ideo. of cat meowing; n. cat (There is nasalization of the vowel in this ideophone, but this nasalization does not appear to be contrastive and we have not indicated it.)
Mi/ nakhsula nyaaw. ‘I want a cat.’ (In this nominal usage, nyaaw is subject to down step intonation just like any other accented word.)
Mp^haka/ nakubigaa nk^heje/ naaku^hla/ nyáaw nyáaw. ‘The cat is making a noise, it is crying nyaaw nyaaw.’ (The vowel of the ideophone has a level high pitch and is not subject to downstep. Since there does not seem to be a contrast between level and falling pitch in ideophones, we write the vowel with just an acute mark over the first mora of the vowel. We are unaware of any evidence suggesting that a sequence of ideophones should be regarded as a single phonological phrase or a sequence of phonological phrases.)
- nyenyeghi* [possibly connected to Sw. nyenga and nyenya “urge, pump with questions” SSED 345]
Daðaleete/ hattá/ nyenyeghi/ imwiliile. ‘He tried hard until he became bothered.’
kuleta fulaani/ nyenyeghi ‘to bother s.o. greatly’
- chi-nyi* (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kiini SSED 192] the heart of s.t.
chinyi cha iyaank^huku ‘the yolk of an egg’
- nyiime* adj. [Sw. -nyimivu, -nyiminyimi SSED 346] not completely full chidhu cha nyiime ‘a chidhu that is not completely full’ hunda ya nyiime ‘a huunda not completely full’
- nyoki* n. 9/10 [Sw. nyuki SSED 348] bee
C hisula uki/ rasha nyoki. ‘If you want honey, follow bees.’ (A proverb.)
Ka’iwa yaa nyoki/ hujó/ (we)/ ska’onde/ uki. ‘If you knew what bees eat, you wouldn’t taste honey.’ (A proverb.)
kanaa nyoki ‘like bees’
Waant^hu/ kanaa nyoki/ wa’iló/ harusiini/ ya Hamadi. ‘People as many as bees came to the marriage of hamadi.’
Waant^hu/ waṭubeene/ apo/ kanaa nyoki. ‘People gathered there like bees.’ (Refers to a large number of bees congregating in a place.)

Mrashaa nyoki/ haakosi/ uki. ‘The one who follows a bee never lacks honey.’ (A proverb.)

Nyoki/ huzala uki. ‘Bees produce honey.’ (A proverb.)

Rashaa nyoki/ ja uki. ‘Go with bees and (you will) eat honey.’ (A proverb that implies you will adopt the behavior of the ones you associate with.)

rel.

chi-nyoki (zi-) n. dim.

i-nyoki (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

nyongoowa n. a large, dark blue dolphin/whale (False Killer Whale?)

chi-nyoozi n. 7/8 [Sw. kinyozi SSED 346] barber (MI observed that the singular form kinyoozi could sometimes be heard rather than chinyoozi, but this is perhaps a Swahilism. In any case, this noun seems to derive from a verb root *nyoo that is no longer in use in Chimiini, but occurs in Swahili as nyoa SSED 346.)

chi-nyuunya (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kinyunya SSED 202] a small cake made for children nyunyi n. 9/10 [Sw. nyuni SSED 349] bird

Ba’adi yaa nyunyi/ hazijoowi/ ka khisa ya kuwa nt^hawaná/ nama suura. ‘Some birds are not eaten because they do not have good meat.’

Ba’adi ya nyunyi ziingine/ hazijoowi/ ka khisa kuwaa zo/ hupenda wanaadamu/ na ziná/ kheeri/ kuwonowa kaawo. ‘Some other birds are not eaten because they love human beings and there is blessing for them to be seen. [i.e. if humans see them, they are blessed].’

Karkaa ye/ oloshelo kumrasha nk^haangá/ mundraani/ wa’ilee nyunyi/ wajile nt^heendre/ yote. ‘While he was chasing the guinea fowl, in the garden, birds came, and they ate all the dates.’

Kula/ nyunyi/ huluka ka lbawale. ‘Each bird flies with its own wing.’ (A proverb.)
kuuluka/ kana/ nyunyi ‘fly like a bird’

Hamadi/ hakalaant^hi/ mahala/ ka tartibu/ chiwonoowa/ nakhfakata/ nakuuluka/ kana/ nyunyi. ‘Hamadi does not sit calmly; whenever he is seen, he is running, flying, like a bird.’

Nimpete nyunyi uyú/ msuura/ nt^ho. ‘I caught this very pretty bird.’

Sababu za islaamu/ kuwa hawaaji/ ba’adi yaa nyunyi/ ni niingi. ‘The reasons that muslims do not eat some birds are many.’

Sku mooyi/ enzele maduriini/ kuwindaa nyunyi. ‘One day he went to the country to hunt for birds.’

Sultaani/ mpenzeloo nt^ho/ nyunyi/ oyo. ‘The sultan loved that bird very much.’

Wa piili/ chisanifa/ tu/ chihada/ kuwaa ye/ loosele/ ye/ tukiile/ maandra/ chitaani/ naa nyunyi/ zinaakuja/ karka maandra/ iyo. ‘The second just made up a dream, saying that he dreamed he was carrying bread on his head and birds were eating from that bread.’

Wachiwindaa nyunyi/ hatá/ ilooni. ‘They hunted birds until dusk.’

Wamtinzilee nyunyi/ chita. ‘They cut off the bird’s head.’ (cf. Nyunyi/ tinzila chita/ naawo. ‘The bird had his head cut off by them.’) (The animate noun nyunyi may govern human agreement on the verb when it is singular. It is, however, also possible for nyunyi to govern [cl.9] agreement on the verb: Nyunyi/ itinzila chita/ naawo. ‘The bird’s head was cut off by them.’)

We/ takuwona/ zijuumba/ zaa nyunyi/ ziingi. ‘You will see the nests of many birds.’

Ye/ shtiyaa nyunyi/ kuja nt^heendreze. ‘He was afraid of birds eating his dates.’

Zijiwoze/ kamba (or: kana) zaa nyunyi. ‘Her eyes are like a bird’s (i.e. small like a bird’s).’

Zilee nyunyi/ nt^hatu/ zidegeele/ kharibu yaa muto. ‘There came three birds, they alighted near the river.’

rel.

chi-nyunyi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

Cho/ chinyunyi/ chileele. ‘It, the little bird, slept.’

kuuluka/ kana chinyunyi ‘to fly, jump like a little bird’

Wam̄t̄nzile chinyunyi/ ch̄ṭa. ‘They cut off the little bird’s head.’ (cf.

Chinyunyi/ t̄nzilaa ch̄ṭa/ naawo. ‘The little bird had his head cut off by them.’ (Morph. In these examples chinyunyi governs human agreement on the verb: specifically, in the first example, the object prefix m, and in the second example, a phonologically null subject prefix. However, chinyunyi may also be treated as a [cl.7] noun; e.g. Chinyunyi/ sh̄t̄nzilaa ch̄ṭa/ (naawo).

i-nyunyi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

Ye/ nambiile/ kuwa inyunyi/ ikulu/ it̄akh̄tukulaa ngozi/ ka mlomowe/ it̄akh̄pandra naami/ ilu/ ya ijabali. ‘He told me that a big bird would carry that animal skin in its beak and would go up with me to the top of the mountain.’

nyuṭe

all of you (pl.)

nz-a

[cl.8] agreement form of copular: ni + AGR-a

Nza naani/ zombo izi. ‘Whose things are these?’

nzaaká ‘they are mine’

nzaaké ‘they are his, hers’

Ziti/ nza naani. ‘Whose chairs are these?’

nz-a

[cl.10] agreement form of copular: ni + AGR-a

Peesas/ nza naani. ‘Whose coins are these?’

Taala/ feḏa/ izi/ nzaakó/ ziwaliimo hundaani. ‘Take these coins, they are yours, they were inside the measuring cup.’

Zo/ nzaakó. ‘They (e.g. ndriimu) are yours.’

Zo/ nzaawó. ‘They (e.g. [cl.10] nuumba) are theirs.’

-o pronominal root

ch-o [cl.7]

Chiko na chijaana/ chihabba/ chileele/ naacho hashqaadiri. ‘And there is a small child asleep and he is sick too.’

Ndichó. ‘It is it [cl.7].’

Nt^hakuwanaacho/ choombo. ‘He did not have a vessel.’

Sh̄tukula chakuja chaa ye/ peelá/ choloka naacho/ chinume cha nuumba. ‘She carried the food that she had been given and went with it behind the house.’

Tetemesheze ch̄ṭaachó. ‘You shook your head.’

l-o [cl. 11]

w-o [cl.1]

mweenzawo ‘your friend’

w-o [cl.2]

w-o [cl.3]

w-o [cl.14]

y-o [cl.4]

y-o [cl.5]

y-o [cl.6]

y-o [cl.9]

Endrá/ mbele za sultaani/ na tumila/ akhili za mwajiitu/ khupeeló/ khpata kokola ruuhuyo. ‘Go in front of the sultan and use the wits that God has given you to get to save yourself.’

Mp^hete khat̄iyó/ na fahamiilé/ zotte/ zaa we/ niwishiizó/ karkaa khat̄í. ‘I received your letter and I have understood all that you informed me of in the letter.’

Muḅliwá/ amina nasiibuyo. ‘My husband, trust to your luck.’

z-o [cl.8]

Ndizó. ‘It is them [cl.8].’

zibuku za Nuuru/ naazó ‘the books that Nuuru has’

Zo/ nzaaká. ‘They [cl.8] are mine.

z-o [cl.10]

kuliindra/ nt^heendre/ hatá/ mukhta^a zo/ stakuvivó ‘to guard the dates until when they become ripe’

Ndizó. ‘It is them [cl.10].’

Ndruti/ Ziikopi/ zo. ‘The sticks, where are they?’

numba za Nuuru/ naazó ‘the houses that Nuuru has’

Zo/ nzaaká. ‘They [cl.10] are mine.

-o

final vowel of relative (active) verbs in a number of tenses relative of perfect stem:

mukhta^a ye/ mpeto mp^huundrá/ m’ajibiiló ‘when he found a donkey that pleased him’

We/ tumbile l^hutá/ nt^huundrú/ l^huta/ l^hrebelo l^hepó/ la kuusi/ khpitá/ l^hepo/ l^hvumiiló/ l^himpo^hteleze m^hwalimu Goosó/ iwuuyú/ iwuuyu/ imu^hlele m^hwaalimú. ‘You made a hole in the wall, the wall that stopped the south wind from passing through it, the wind that blew and caused the baobab to fall on Teacher Gooso, the baobab that killed the teacher.’

relative of the chi tense:

L^hiini/ shkhadiro khta^awalo ruuhuyé. ‘He was not able to control himself.’

relative of the na present tense:

M^hwajiitu/ ni awa/ waa si/ chinakuwa’abudiló/ walá/ nt^haku/ winginiwe. ‘(The only) god is those that we are worshipping, there is no other.’

relative of the habitual:

Husoomeshó/ nii wake. ‘The ones who teach are women.’

We/ ni mp^haka...hujoo mp^haná/ mp^hana/ hutumbulo l^hutá/ nt^huundrú/ l^huta/ hilrebo l^hepo la kuusi/ khpitá/ l^hepo la kuusi/ hupo^htezo mawuuyú/ mawuuyu/ hupo^htelele waanthú/ chitaani/ hu^hló.

‘You are the cat that eats the rat, the rat that makes a hole in the wall, the wall that blocks the south wind from passing through it, the wind that causes the baobab to fall, the baobab which falls on the head of people and kills them.’

-o

second person singular possessive enclitic

=ch-o [cl.7]

=l-o [cl.11]

=w-o [cl.1]

Mwaana/ chihada/ khabari suura/ ni kuwaa mi/ mwaanawo/ ndrudile numbaani/ salaamá. ‘The child said: the good news is that I, your child, returned home safely.’

=w-o [cl.2]

=w-o [cl.3]

=w-o [cl.14]

=y-o [cl.4]

=y-o [cl.5]

=y-o [cl.6]

=y-o [cl.9]

Da^haa^hliyo/ ta^hajiye/ ni najaahi/ na liwaaní. ‘Your effort, its crown is success and success.’

Iyi/ ni kaaziyo. ‘This is your job.’

nt^humeyo ‘your message’

=z-o [cl.8]

=z-o [cl.10]

Hufafisho ebuzo/ muun^hhi/ hata^hlami/ khutilaa mu^hlo/ masku. ‘The one who reveals your defects in the daytime does not hesitate to burn you at night.’ (A proverb.)

Huweekapi/ peesazo. ‘Where do you keep your money?’

-o	morphological element employed in the demonstrative system awo ‘those’ [cl.2] ayo ‘those’ [cl.4] ayo ‘those’ [cl.6] icho ‘that’ [cl.7] ilo ‘that’ [cl.11] iyo ‘that’ [cl.5] iyo ‘that’ [cl.9] izo ‘those’ [cl.8] izo ‘those’ [cl.10] oko omo owo oyo
o, ow	conj. or
oo	presumably the demonstrative o(y)o used in the expression of an “either-or” type of sentence Oo/ Hamiisi/ takandika zaaydi/ oo takhpotela imtihaani. ‘Either Hamiisi will read more or he will fail the examination.’ is oyo variant possible?
o’oo	interj. O’oo/ kuja iyi/ pishiló/ Haliima. ‘oo’o! this food, was the one who cooked it Haliima?’ O’oo/ Omari/ ndiyé/ vuzilo nuumbá. ‘oo’o, is it Omari who wrecked the house?’
odka	n. [Som. oodkac DSI 473] meat cut into tiny pieces and dried in the sun and then fried Hamadi/ kilaa fijiri/ quraa’a/ huja odka/ ka maandra. ‘Hamadi every morning for breakfast he eats odka with bread.’ Odka/ hukala wakhti miingi/ haťa/ mwaaka/ hukoma/ hayangamili. ‘Odka stays for a long time; it can stay up to a year and does not get bad.’ Odka/ ka wiingi/ hufanyowa ka nama ya ngoombe/ na mafta ya sehemú. ‘Odka is usually made with beef meat and ghee.’
odsi	n. request, offer Mi/ ndrinzile odsiyá/ khiroowá. ‘I waited for my request to be approved.’ Mi/ niizé/ odsi/ ya Hasani/ si/ khfanya kaazi/ pamooyi. ‘I rejected Hasani’s offer that we work together.’ k-oofata	v. [Tunni oof- Tosco 229] (ofeete) be tired Fanyize kaazi/ haťa/ ofeete. ‘He worked until he got tired.’ Fanyize kaazi/ haťa/ ofeete ntho. ‘He worked until he got very tired.’ Cf. Fanyize kaazi/ fanyiizó/ haťa/ ofeete ntho. ‘He did work, that’s what he did, until he got very tired.’ Maama/ ofeetopó/ chintokomeza. ‘When mother got tired, she left him.’ Mi/ ni muuntú/ nofeetó/ nakhadiraayi/ kujaa kuja. ‘I am a man who is exhausted, how am I able to eat food?’ Mmera chiint^hu/ ha’ofati. ‘The seeker of something never gets tired.’ (A proverb.) Mukhtaa we/ hufakató/ we/ hoofata. ‘When you run, you get tired.’ Munt^hu ofeto khfakatá/ nakhpumula. ‘The man who is tired from running is resting now.’ Mwaanawa/ hinendra munt^hi mzima/ walá/ ha’ofati. ‘My child walks all day but does not get tired.' (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa 'the sun'.)

Na choofata/ khsuuka/ hulaala. 'And if she gets tired knitting, she sleeps.'

Nofeeté/ noshele numbaani/ nfungile shaati/ ndreelé. 'I was (so) tired (that) I went home (and) took off my shirt (and) slept.'

Ofeeté/ so? 'Are you getting tired?'

Safiya/ nt'akuuya/ ipisile sa'a mooyi/ sa'aa mbili/ sa'aa n'atu/ Jeelaani/ waliko mwenye sabri/ kaleent'e/ liinzile/ walá/ nt'akoofata.
'Safiya did not come. One hour passed, two hours, three hours. Jeelaani was a man possessing patience. He sat down and waited, nor did he (ever) get tired.'

Sku mooyi/ eelo/ malizopo kudaakhá/ na ofeetopó... 'One day when the gazelle was finished grazing and was tired...'

rel.

k-ofatika v. p/s.

k-ofatila v. appl. (ofatiliile) make efforts that tire one out

k-ofatisha v. caus. make tired, tire out k-oofisha v. caus. (ofishiize) make tired, tire out (Observe that the causative suffix ish does not lower to esh after a mid vowel in this example, contrary to the usual situation. The failure to get koofesha would seem to be connected to the fact that the stem is /ofat/ and the vowel a is not one that would lower a following high vowel.)

Mwana uje/ maamboye/ yanofishiize. 'That child, his behavior tired me out.'

k-ofishan(y)a v. caus. rec.

k-ofishika v. caus. p/s.

k-oofisha

v. [Som. oofi DSI 473] fulfill, carry out variant form: ku'ofisha

kofisha ahdi 'to fulfill a promise'

Amri/ iyi/ we/ khulazima/ khfaanya/ kanaa we/ nakhsula muunt^hú/ oyó/ kofisha ahdiyé. 'This order, you must do it, if you want that man to fulfill his promise.'

Mi/ nofishiizé/ balaniye. 'I fulfilled my promise.'

Mithaali/ iyi/ inakhfarama/ waant^hu/ kudhoora/ na kofisha ahdi 'This proverb advises people to respect and to fulfill a promise.'

rel.

mw-oofisho n. 3

ofishaali

n. [Ital. ufficiale; cf. Sw. ofisa SSED 350; Eng. officer] officer variant form: ufishaali

ma'ofishaali or ma'ufishaali 'officers'

oofu

n. [Tunni oof- "get tired" Tosco 220] (cf. k-oofata above) tiredness

ogaari

n. [Som. ugaar "prey (of hunting), game" DSI 593] prey, victim; [pron. ogaari]

Mi/ ni hurri/ pashpo sfuungó/ amó/ ni ogaari/ wa quyuuudi. 'Am I free without bonds, or am I a prisoner of the bonds of life?'

ogaari

adj. warm; [pron. ogaari]

ku-'ogoomata

v. (ogomeete) lose a parent, be orphaned ogoomu

n., adj. [Som. agoon DSI 14] orphan; [pron. ogoomu] munt^hu ogoomu 'orphan'; want^hu ogoomu 'orphans' wana ogoomu 'orphaned children'

rel.

chi-'ogoomu (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. [pron. chi'ogoomu]

i-'ogoomu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. [pron. i'ogoomu]

m-'ooji (wa-) n. 1/2 a member of an ethnic group found in Miini; a kind of servant who assists at marriages, funerals (The term ooji is used in Somalia to refer to descendants of slaves brought mostly from Tanzania in the late nineteenth century. The word is said to derive from Italian oggi 'today', perhaps representing a stereotypical view that these people's thinking was restricted to the here and now or perhaps classifying these people as newcomers.)

Wa'ooji/ wa Mwiini/ wakali/ kubigaa zita. 'The Ooji tribe of Brava are good in fighting.'

k-ooka

v. [Sw. oka SSED 351] (oshele) fry (fish, meat) on a fire, grill Barka/ nakoka štata. 'Barka is grilling the fat from meat.'
koka inyi 'fry liver' kokaa nama 'fry meat' kokaa nsi 'to grill fish'
Shtaala/ chooka/ chija. 'She took it and grilled it and ate it.'

Sungura/ rudiilopó/ siimba/ chimwaambila/ siyoo nama/ taala/ yote/ endra yooke. 'When Rabbit returned, Lion said to him: Here is the meat, take all of it and go and grill it.'

rel.

k-ookeka v. p/s. (-okeshele)

k-ookela v. appl. (okeleele)

k-ookesha v. caus.

k-okoowa v. pass. (osheja) be fried

Apo/ zinakokowa štata. 'There fat is being grilled.'

rel. nom.

w-ooka n.

oko

loc. dem. [cl.17] there, away

Bulo iyi/ yiko oko. 'That village is far away.'

Chi'ivuukila/ chi'ikalant'ila oko. 'He went away (took himself off) and lived there.'

Kasa/ oko/ maha_{la} si/ chinakeendró/ ni... 'Listen, near where we are going is...'

Mbeshele okó. 'I put it far away.'

Na oko maduriini/ ziko hayawaani/ niingi/ na dughaaghi/ niingi. 'And there in the bush there are many animals and many beasts.'

Ni munt^u gani/ takhadiro khpanza zombo izó/ okó. 'Which man is the one who will be able to carry these things up there?'

Ni suura/ kuwaa we/ rudiilé/ ka okó. 'It is good that you have come back from there.'

Oko kiitu/ we/ shfanya kaazi/ ka da_{da}ali/ chida_{da}ala_{ta}/ ku_{la}wila wajibuye/ we/ hisaba_{to}owi/ kuwa muunt^u. 'There in my country, if you work hard, if you try hard to carry out your duties, you are not considered to be anyone (a person of importance).'

Oko/ maha_{la} mi/ nolosheló/ ni maha_{la} njeema/ nt^o. 'There where I went is a very good place.'

Wachendra oko/ sku iyo/ washkalaant^ha/ wachija oko. 'They used to go there on that day, and they stayed and they ate there.'

k-ookoka

v. intr. [Sw. okoka SSED 351] (okoshele) escape (danger), be saved

Okoshele naa mu_{lo}. 'He escaped from the fire.'

rel.

k-oko_{lo}owa v. tr. pass. (okeela) be saved

Waana/ wa'oke_{la} naasi. 'The children were saved by us.'

k-ookola v. tr. [Sw. okoa SSED 151] (okeele) save someone

Basi/ mzeele/ uyu/ maskiini/ kuwonapó/ kuwa mukeewe/ zazile mwiimbili/ msuura/ chimwambila mukeewe/ kheeri/ si/ choondroke/ ka apa/ si/ na mwana wiitú/ shpate kumookola/ mwaana/ uyu/ ka khisa askari/ wachimwona/ wa_{ta}mu_hla. 'So that poor old man, upon seeing that his wife had given birth to a handsome boy told his wife: it is better that we move from here, we and our son, in order to save this boy from the soldiers, if they see him, they will kill him.'

Chiwa'olokele waana/ naa muḷo. 'We saved the children from the fire.'

Dobla ya Aldo/ Mooro/ inakudaḍaalata/ khfanyiliza/ dawa/ na kiyookolá/ iqtisaadí/ ya muuyí. 'The government of Aldo Moro is trying its best to cure and to save the economy of the country.'

Endrá/ mbele za sultaani/ na tumila/ akhili za mwajiitu/ khupeeló/ khpata kokola ruuhuyo. 'Go in front of the sultan and use the wits that God has given you to get to save yourself.'

Jahazi/ iyi/ itakhokolaa we/ na hayawaani/ zaa we/ pakiiló/ wanaadamú/ woté/ ahliyó/ wakhaminiló. 'This boat will save you and the animals that you put on board and all the human beings, your relatives, who believed believed in you.'

Mwajiitu/ chimwaambila/ mi/ khupele ahdí/ khokolaa we/ na kuḷa muunt^hú/ takhurashoo we. 'God said to him: I gave you a promise to save you and every man who will follow you.'

rel. nom.

mw-ookola n. a name of God, the Savior

ooliyo

n. [Ital. olio] oil (of a car, e.g.)

Ali/ shpashile chigaari/ ooliyo. 'Ali applied oil to the cart.'

Laazimu/ kubadila ooliyo/ kiḷa/ mezi sitta. 'You should change oil every six months.'

k-oola

v. [etymology unknown] (ozele) write (especially on wooden planks, as children do in koranic schools)

Hasiibu/ tiḷa madrasaani/ kubarata koola/ na khsoomá. 'Hasiibu was put into school to learn to write and to read.'

N^hakóola. 'He did not write.'

Ya mojiitu/ ozeló/ ha'imgafi/ muunt^hu. 'What God prescribed does not miss one.' (A proverb.)

rel.

k-oolēla v. appl. (oleele) write with, decree for

...kuwelela raaḍi/ ya mwajiitu/ choleeló 'to be pleased by what God decreed for us'

Olelo qalamu. 'He wrote with a pen.'

k-oloowa v. pass.

k-oolēka v. p/s.

k-oolēza v. tr. appl.

k-olezanya v. tr. appl. rec.

k-ooza v. tr. teach writing koza waana 'to teach children how to write (in the koranic schools)' k-oozeka v. tr. p/s.

k-oozowa v. tr. pass.

ch-oolo (z-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. choo SSED 61] bathroom; urine, faeces, dung; the need to urinate, defecate

Chingila chooloni/ choowa. 'He went into the bathroom and bathed.'

Cholo chiimp^hi/ Hamadi/ weno chivundishiló/ numbaani/ ka Hasaní. 'Which toilet did Hamadi see broken at the house of Hasani?'

Ingile chooloni/ nakoowa/ oweele/ teena/ mzimawe/ mi'ivu. 'She went into the bathroom to take a bath; she bathed, then [she covered] her whole body [with] ashes.'

khshikowa choolo 'to need to urinate/defecate'

Ali/ shishiḷaa kunya/ tozele choolo/ rebele choolo/ mpaka/ peto mahaḷá/ kunyá. 'Ali needed to defecate, but he couldn't find a toilet (lit. missed a toilet); he held it in until he found somewhere to defecate.'

kureba choolo 'to be unable to defecate'

Haliima/ mwaanawe/ nyeele/ tomele goryaani/ niingi/ isa/nakhtiya/ kunya/ rebele choolo/ leelo/ tatu. ‘Haliima’s child defecated, he passed many worms, now he is afraid to defecate, he has not passed stool, today is the third day.’

Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakuława/ ka chooloni. ‘The guest has not yet come out of the bathroom.’

Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ umo chooloni/ nakoowa. ‘The guest is still in the bathroom bathing.’

Mi/ nshishiłá chooló/ ni laazima/ koondroka/ we/ kalaant^ha/ na mułliwo. ‘I need to use the bathroom; I must leave; you stay with your husband.’

Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakuława/ ka chooloni. ‘The guest still has not come out of the bathroom.’

Miimba/ inakungadisha/ inakunfanya choolo. ‘The stomach is disturbing me (lit. changing me), I feel like defecating (lit. it is making me defecate).’

Mwenzá wiitu/ takuruuda/ oloshéle chooloni/ tu. ‘Our friend will return; he just went to the bathroom.’

shkalaant^ha chooloni kistaránja laazimu [st.] ‘if you sit to defecate, then cleaning oneself is a necessity’

Tafađali/ takhaadira/ khtumikila chooló. ‘May I use the bathroom, please?’

rel.

chi-j-oolo n. dim. bathroom

Hutaloowa/ huwekowa mahałá/ kama chijoolo/ ibana nk^haani/ hutiloowa maayi/ hupowa sabuni zaawo/ hupowa makopa yaawo/ hambiloowa/ ingilaani/ walwiinu/ owaani. ‘They (the girls) are taken and put in a place like a small bathroom that is in the open (outside the house) and water is put there and they are given their soap and they are given their glasses and they are told to go in, both of them, and take a bath.’

k-ooloka

v. [etymology unknown] (oloshéle) go (we have recorded forms where the lo is elided in the perfective form: e.g. -oshéle)

Chilawe/ chooloke. ‘Let us leave so that we may go.’

Choondroka/ koloka kulangala. ‘He arose to go and look.’

Ha’oloki. ‘He won’t go (a declaration that something will not happen). Or: He doesn’t go (usually, as a habit).’

Jilee kúja/ oloshéle. ‘As soon as he ate, he left.’

Juma/ oloshéle ka muza mp^huundra/ kula mp^huundra. ‘Juma went to a donkey-seller to buy a donkey.’

Khamiisi/ na mukeewé/ wa’oloshéle muyiini. ‘Khamiisi and his wife went to town.’ Or: Khamiisi/ oloshéle muyiini/ na mukeewe. ‘Khamiisi went to town with his wife.’ If one says: Wa’oloshéle muyiini/ na mukeewe., the interpretation is: ‘They went to town with his wife.’
Check to see whether it is possible to say: Khamiisi/ wa’oloshéle muyiini/ na mukeewé. ‘Khamiisi and his wife went to town.’

koloka mwaayo ‘to yawn’

Lawa/ walwiitu/ chooloke/ chimolokele. ‘Let us both go, go to him!’

Madrasaani/ ye/ nt^hakooloka. ‘To school he did not go.’ (This left-dislocated sentence exhibits ordinary downstep intonation, with the pronominal subject lowered but not radically so. The negative verb does not have default focus, but rather is downstepped in this position like any other verb. It seems that default focus resides on the negative verb only when it is followed by a complement. The simple yes-no question derived from this sentence exhibits Q-Raising, but no accent shift. The exclamatory questions shifts accent both in the preposed complement and in the negative verb.)

Mi/ madrasaani/ skooloka. ‘I to school did not go.’ (A negative verb, when followed by a complement, is in the default case phrase-final and raised in pitch. However, in the absence of a following complement, the pitch raising is not present. Thus in the present example, where the complement has been left-dislocated, we observe downstep intonation in the sentence. The corresponding simple yes-no question exhibits pitch raising, of course, so the accent on the negative verb is raised, not downstepped. There is no shift of pitch, as the left-dislocated complement is not treated as “out-of-focus”. In the exclamatory question, downstep is present throughout the sentence, and the accent of both the preposed complement and the negative verb is shifted to the final syllable.)

Mi/ noloshele madrasaani. ‘I went to school.’ (This canonical sentence shows the usual downstep intonation, with the subject phrase mi substantially higher than the final accent in madrasaani. In the corresponding yes-no question, the final accent is raised in comparison to the statement: Mi/ noloshele madrasaani? The exclamatory question has downstep intonation like the statement, but in the speech of MI, the pitch register is lower than in the case of the statement.)

Muunt^hu/ nt^hakeendra/ numbaani. ‘The/a man did not go home.’ Or:

Nt^hakeendra/ muunt^hu/ numbaani. ‘No one went home.’

Muunt^hu/ oloshelo numbaani. ‘The/a man went home.’ Or: Oloshelo muunt^hu/ numbaani. ‘Someone went home.’

Mwaa^limu/ na mwaaná/ wa’oloshelo. ‘The teacher and the child left.’

mwaana/ oloshela naayé... ‘the boy who was gone with him...’

Mwana oloshelo Mwiini/ takuruda keesho. ‘The child who went to Brava will return to Brava.’ (The head noun maana is phrased with the relative verb in this example and the relative clause is understood to be a restrictive relative clause. A head that is phrased with the verb necessarily interpreted as a restrictive structure, but a head that is phrasally separated from the relative verb is not necessarily non-restrictive.)

mwana oloshelo na mwaalimú... ‘the child who left with the teacher’ mwana oloshelo sukhuuní ‘the child who went to the market’ mwana wa mwaalimu/ oloshelo naayé... ‘the child whom the teacher left with him’

Mwaana/ wa Omari/ oloshelo Mwiini/ yaná/ takuruda keesho. ‘Omari’s child, who went to Brava yesterday, will return tomorrow.’ (The relative clause in this example would be understood as non-restrictive.)

Mwaana/ wa Omari/ oloshelo Mkhodiishó/ ndiyé/ mbozelo Hamadí/ peesá. ‘The child of Omari’s who went to Mogadishu, he is the one who stole Hamadi’s money.’

Na mwaalimú/ oloshelo. ‘The teacher also has left.’ Or: Mwaalimu/ naayé/ oloshelo.

Naani/ olosheló. ‘Who went?’

Ndrata/ nooloke. ‘Let me go that I may go [to kill the lion].’

Ndru/ oloshelopó/ muke/ chimwaambila/ kuwaa ye/ ni tayaari. ‘When the relative went (there), the woman told him that she was ready.’

Ndruuwe/ choloka kaa muke. ‘His relative went to the woman.’

Nfaramile Jaamá/ na’oloké. ‘I advised Jaama that he should go.’

Nimwene choloka madrasaani. ‘I saw him going to school.’

Noloshele na gaarí. ‘I went by car.’ Or: Noloshele ka gaarí.

Noloshele numbaani/ kaaké. ‘I went to his house.’ (Foc. With verb focus: Noloshelé/ numbaani/ kaake. But it does not seem possible to focus on the locative here: Noloshele numbaani/ kaake.)

Noloshele sukhuuní. ‘I went to the market.’ Or, with focus on the verb: noloshelé/ sukhuuni.

Noloshele wowiini. ‘I went to the river.’ (Syn. The verb oloka marks its goal with the locative enclitic, as we see from this example. However, it is possible for the goal to be the head of a relative clause without any enclitic attached: wowi yaa mi/ nolosheló ‘the river that I went to.’)

Noshele kumzirata Nuuru/ oyo/ mwa^limu wa mwaanawá. ‘I went to visit Nuuru, who is my son’s teacher.’

Nt^hakooloka. ‘I will go.’ (Note that if someone utters this sentence, a child for example, someone else may respond: Hooloki. ‘You won’t go (I won’t let you).’ The verb form here is the negative habitual, but its use in this situation is not habitual, but declaring that something will not happen in the future.)

Nt^hanakoolóka. ‘He is not going.’

Nuuru/ waanawe/ wa’oloshelo. ‘Nuuru’s children went.’ Or: Wanawe Nuuru/ wa’oloshelo. (Syn: The second option here is characteristic of MI’s speech.)

Oloka. ‘Go!’

Oloki/ naawé. ‘Why don’t you go? -- this is a set expression that expresses surprise and disbelief at what someone has said, sort of like: Be off with you!’

Oloshela Mambasa. ‘He went to Mombasa.’

Olosheló/ (ni) naani. ‘The one who went is who?’

Omari/ maanawe/ oloshelo Miini/ ^hkeesho/ takuruudó. ‘Omari’s child, who went to Brava, tomorrow will return.’ (Note that one cannot phrase maanawe with the relative verb: Omari/ manawe oloshelo Miini/ takuruda keesho. ‘Omari’s son who went to Brava will return tomorrow.’)

Omari/ maanawe/ oloshelo Mkhodiishó/ ndiyé/ mbozele Hamadí/ peesá. ‘Omari’s son who went to Mogadishu, he is the one who stole Hamadi’s money.’

Peesa/ zoloshela. ‘The money is gone.’

^hSho/ kuwa muḷjiwa/ Nureeni/ oloshelo Miini. ‘Only my husband Nureeni went to Brava.’

Skoloka madrasaani/ ^hmi. ‘I did not go to school, me.’ (Notice that right-dislocation of the subject seems to eliminate the inherent focus from the negative verb, allowing it to form a prosodic phrase with the following complement. The right-dislocated subject is radically lowered in pitch in the statement, but this downstep disappears in the simple yes-no question due to Q-Raising: Skoloka madrasaani/ mi? In the exclamatory question, there is accent shift in the initial phrase, and the downstep of the dislocated subject is the one associated with ordinary downstep intonation rather than the radical lowering observed in the statement: Skoloka madrasaani/ mi!?)

Skooloka/ ^hmi/ madrasaani. ‘I did not go, I, to school.’ (The postposed subject pronoun in this example is radically lowered in pitch, indicated by the raised exclamation point in front of it. The following complement is lowered further. In the simple yes-no question, the complement undergoes accent shift. Furthermore, downstepping is eliminated, and – in the speech of MI – the complement is the pitch peak in the sentence: Skooloka/ mi/ madrasaani? In the exclamatory yes-no question, both the negative verb and the complement exhibit accent shift. The pronoun mi, being monosyllabic, cannot exhibit the shift, as it is vacuous in this situation. The exclamatory question does, of course, exhibit downstepping, but the radical drop on the pronoun is not present.)

Suufi/ oloshela numbaani. ‘Suufi went to the house.’ (Syn. One cannot make the goal into the subject of the passive version of this sentence: Numba/ yoloshela na Suufi.)

Sultaani/ oloshela miskiti waa jima/ khsala. ‘The sultan went to Friday mosque to pray.’

Sultaani/ oloshelipi. ‘Where did the Sultan go?’

Wa’oloshela na gari niingi. ‘They went by many cars.’

Wa’oloshelo Mwiini/ ni want^hu wazima. ‘The ones who left Brava are the adults.’

waana/ wa’oloshela naawó. ‘the boys who were gone with them’

Waana/ wa’oloshela Mwiini. ‘The children went to Brava.’ Or: [Mwiini/ wa’oloshela/ ^hwaana.]

Waant^hu/ wa’oloshela Mwiini. ‘People left Brava.’ Or: [Mwiini/

wa’oloshela/ ^hwaant^hu.] Or: Mwiini/ waant^hu/ wa’oloshela. Or:

[Wa’oloshela Mwiini/ ^hwaant^hu.]

We/ waliko cholokapi/ yana/ pamo na munó. ‘Where were you going yesterday with your younger brother?’ (Possible answer: Mi/ waliko nch^holoka sukhuuni/ yana/ na muná. ‘I was going to the market yesterday with my younger brother.’)

Ye/ nt^hakooloka/ madrasaani. ‘He did not go to school.’ (In the simple yes-no question, the out-of-focus madrasaani undergoes accent shift: Ye/ nt^hakooloka/ madrasaani? In addition, the pitch of madrasaani is raised by virtue of Q-Raising. In the emphatic question, the negative verb undergoes accent shift as well as the complement: Ye/ nt^hakooloká/ madrasaani!? In emphatic questions there is downstep, which affects even the focused elements of the input (in this case, the negative verb). The cited example here comes from MI, who does not pronounce the final syllable with the same clear fall as GM, but does apply register-lowering to the emphatic question.)

Ye/ oloshela madrasaani. ‘He went to school.’ (This canonical statement exhibits downstep intonation. The corresponding yes-no question raises the pitch of madrasaani. In the emphatic question, the accent of the second phrase is shifted to the end: Ye/ oloshela madrasaani!? ‘Did he really go to school!?’)

Ye/ oloshela/ naakuló. ‘She left crying.’

Ye/ waliko cholokapi/ yana/ pamo na muné. ‘Where was he going yesterday with his younger brother?’ (Possible answer: Ye/ waliko choloka sukhuuni/ yana/ pamo na muné. ‘He was going to the market yesterday with his younger brother.’)

rel.

k-olokeka v. p/s.

Numba iyi/ hayolokeki. ‘This house cannot be gone to.’

k-olokela v. appl. go to, go by means of Ijiliile/ yolokeleele. ‘(After waiting for you and you didn’t come, he ate and took himself off.’

Mi/ nch^himaliza khaambila/ jawaabuza/ nt^hatu/ nt^hakiyolokela. ‘When I finish telling you the three things (that I mentioned), I will take myself off.’

Muza eelo/ anzizopo kiineendra/ kumolokela uyu maskiini... ‘When the seller of the gazelle started walking towards the poor man...’

Na mukhtaa mi/ nimolokelelo maraa piili/ khiriile kundraasha. ‘And when I went to her a second time, she agreed to follow me.’

Nolokelele gaari. ‘I went by car.’

Nt^haku/ rukhsa/ sa’a izi/ muunt^hu/ kum(w)olokela Harun Rashiidi.

‘There is no permission at this time for anyone to go to see Harunrashiidi.’

Olokeleleni/ Mkhodiisho. ‘Why did you go to Mogadishu? By what means did you go to Mogadishu?’

Simolokelé. ‘Don’t go to him!’

sulani waa si/ chinamolokelo ‘the sultan whom we are going to him’

Ye/ chuuluka/ chiyolokela. ‘It (e.g. the hawk) flew off and went away.’

ku-y-olokela v. reflex. take oneself off

Fikiriini/ chilawa/ chiyolokela. ‘Fikiriini came out and went away.’

Ijiliile/ yolokeleele. ‘(After waiting and waiting,) he went ahead and ate on his own and took himself off.’

Mlape mukeewa/ nayolokele kaawo. ‘Just let my wife go to her parents.’

Wayolokeleele. ‘They took themselves off.’

Yolokeleele/ ijililee kuja. ‘He went and ate food (for himself).’

Yolokelele ki’ijililaa kuja. ‘He took himself to eat food (for himself).’

Yolokelele ki’ipikila (ruuhuye)/ chaakuja. ‘He went to cook the food for himself.’ (Our consultant MI judged it ungrammatical to say Yolokelele khpikila waana/ chaakuja. ‘He took himself off to cook for the children food.’ More research on this point needs to be undertaken, however.)

k-olokeloowa v. appl. pass. (olokeleela)

Gaari/ ya’olokelela naami. ‘A car was used to go by me.’

Gaari/ zolokelela madrasaani. ‘Cars were used to go to school.’

k-olokoowa v. pass. (-oloshela)

Gari niingi/ zoloshela naazó. ‘Many cars were gone by them.’ (This is an example of the promotion of the object of the preposition na to subject position in the passive, with a resumptive pronoun left behind. Impersonal passives are also possible: Yoloshela na gari niingi. ‘There was going by many cars.’ ‘Many cars were gone by them.’ And with the fronting of the object of the preposition with a resumptive pronoun left behind: Gari niingi/ yoloshela naazó. ‘Many cars, there was going by them.’)

Icholokoowa/ khtalowa zibaasi/ sabaze/ za mafta/ na shkooyá/ naachó/ shchitaloowa/ naa talá/ naayó/ ishtaloowa. ‘There went someone to take all seven of the clay jars of oil, and the necklace as well was taken and the lamp also was taken.’

Maayi/ yoloshela kuletoowa. ‘Lit. the water was gone to be brought.’

Sku ya piili/ icholokowa ka khaadi. ‘On the second day they went to the judge [lit. there was going to the judge].’ (Note the impersonal passive construction in this example.)

Yoloshela numbaani. ‘One cannot go to the house.’

Yoloshelapo ka sultaani/ mzele/ uyu/ chihada... ‘When they had gone to the sultan (lit. when there was having gone to the sultan), the old man said...’

ch-oloko (z-) n. 7/8 [etymology unknown] window (This noun is exceptional in that we would expect the vowel in the first syllable to be long: ch-ooloko, given the apparent underlying representation /chi-oloko/.)

Baana/ vuzile numba/ choloko. ‘Baana broke the window of the house (lit. the house the window).’

Cheendra/ ka cholokooni/ tu/ chimvila mwanamke wa sultaani/ chimwaambila/ nintukulile nsi iyi/ mooyi. ‘He went just as far as the window (of the house) and called the daughter of the sultan and said to her: I have carried to you (pl.) this one fish.’

choloko cha chuuma ‘iron, steel window’ choloko chaa mbawo ‘wooden window’ choloko cha numba ‘window of a house’

choloko cha ziloolo ‘a glass window’

Chondrosha maatoye/ ilu/ ye/ chimwona mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ nakhtungila choloko. ‘He raised his eyes up and he saw the daughter of the sultan peeping from a window.’

Ha’endri/ mahaJa/ haalawi/ hattá/ choloko/ hatuungili. ‘She does not go places, she does not go out, even she does not peep out of a window.’

hatta waako zolokooni/ barka watakpoowa [st.] ‘even those watching from the windows will receive this blessing’

Jaani/ vuzile choloko cha numba. ‘John broke the window of the house.’ (Cf. numba ya Jaani/ vuzilo cholokoche ‘the house that John broke the window of [lit. its window]’.)

khfunga choloko ‘to close a window’ khfungula choloko ‘to open a window’ khsimama cholokooni ‘to stand in front of a window looking out’ khfungula choloko ‘to peep out from a window’

Maama/ shtuungila/ ka cholokooni. ‘Mother peered out from the window.’

Mwaana/ vuzile choloko ichije. ‘The boy broke that window.’

Mwanaamke/ oyo/ iwaliko ni aadaye/ khsimama cholokooni/ kulangaJa/ ka darbiini/ ije inakhpito ndilaani. ‘That girl, as was her custom, was standing at the window looking with binoculars at whatever was happening on the road.’

Mzele/ mwuingine/ chilawa ka cholokooni/ chihada... ‘Another old man peeped from the window and said...’

Numba/ ivunzila choloko. ‘The house was broken the window (i.e. the window of the house was broken).’

numba/ na choloko ‘a house and a window’; numba/ na zoloko ‘houses and windows’ numba/ na cholokoché ‘a house and its window’; numba/ na zolokoze ‘houses and their windows’ numba/ ya zoloko skulu ‘house of big windows’

rel.

chi-j-oloko (zi-j-) n. dim. 7/8 little window

Chijoloko ichije/ ni shfunge. ‘That (dim.) window is shut.’

chijoloko shfungushilo ‘a (dim.) window that is open’; zijoloko sfungushilo ‘(dim.) windows that are open’

Zijoloko izije/ ni sfunge. ‘Those (dim.) windows are shut.’

i-j-oloko (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. big window

k-oolola

v. [cf. Sw. oleza ‘make straight’ SSED 351] (oleele) stretch out, lengthen Simooleelé/ mkono. ‘Don’t stretch your hand out to him (to give him s.t.).’

rel.

k-otolela v. appl.

Mololeje mkono/ nii ndru. ‘Stretch out your hand to him (i.e. to give him s.t.), he is a relative.’

k-ololeka v. p/s. be stretched, be straight; capable of being stretched Abú/ ololeshele chiliini. ‘Abu laid across the bed.’

k-ololekoowa v. p/s. pass.

Chili/ chiloloshela. ‘The bed was laid across.’

-oloolo adj. [Sw. -ororo SSED 356] soft, tender, pliable; (idiom.) depressed, low, down (in mood); [the [cl.9/10] form may be pronounced noloolo or oloolo] chinama choloolo ‘a piece of tender meat’

kuwa mwoloolo ‘to be lenient; to be spiritually dead’

Nuuru/ wele mwoloolo. ‘Nuuru was lenient; Nuuru became spiritually dead.’

kuwelela mwoloolo ‘to be lenient with’

Nuuru/ mwelele Ali/ mwoloolo. ‘Nuuru was lenient with Ali.’

mazu noloolo ‘over-ripe bananas’ mwoloolo/ kanaa nk'uku/ potelo mayiini ‘someone soft or weak like a chicken who has fallen into water’

Muke/ chiwelelowa moloolo/ khupandra chitaani. ‘If a woman/wife is shown softness, she will stand on your head.’ (A proverb.)

muti mwoloolo ‘a tree that can be easily bent’

nama noloolo ‘tender meat’

Nimene Hamadi/ maskiini/ ↑mwoloolo. ‘I have seen poor Hamadi, he is depressed, down, low.’

noloolo/ kamba toomu ‘soft as curdled milk’

-oloolo/ kana lbaani ‘as soft as frankincense (this expression derives from the use of lumps of frankincense as chewing gum; it can refer to a soft cloth like silk, or to tender meat, but it can also be used to refer to someone being depressed or down in mood)’ mwoloolo/ kana/ lbaani/ haṭá/ khkooḍa/nt'aná/ khaadira ‘soft as chewing gum, even to talk he is not able’

Omari/ khshindroowa/ wele mwoloolo/ kana lbaani. ‘Omari, being defeated, he became as (lit. soft) depressed, down as chewing gum.’

Wele mwoloolo. ‘He is (physically) weak.’

rel.

u-woloolo n. softness

Muke/ ha'onyoowi/ uwoloolo/ na naharisi. ‘A wife/woman is not shown softness and kindness.’ (A proverb.)

k-oolowa

v. [Sw. lowa SSED 249] (oloweele) get wet, soaked

Nguwo/ zoloweele. ‘The clothes were soaked.’

Zoloweeló/ nii nguwo. ‘What were soaked are the clothes.’

rel.

k-oolowana v. (-oloweene) get wet

Waana/ nguwo zaawo/ zoloweene/ kaa nvula/ ziwela fachakh! ‘The children’s clothes got wet with rain, they became fachakh!’ k-ololeza v. caus. appl. (ololeeze) soak for, by means of k-ooloza v. caus. (oleeze) make wet

Nvula ya deeri/ ha'imoolozi/ muunt'u. ‘The fall rain does not make a person completely wet.’ (The rain that occurs in the season of deeri is a type of rain where it might fall on a house, but not on a nearby road; i.e., there are pockets of rain here and there.)

k-olozoowa v. tr. pass. (oleeza) be made wet

ch-oombo (z-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. chombo SSED 59] thing, goods, utensil(s), container, vessel; sailing boat chombo chimooyi ‘one thing’; zombo ziwili ‘two things’ chombo chivundishiló ‘something broken’; zombo zivundishiló ‘things broken’

Chombo ichi/ ni shkulu. ‘This thing is big.’ (Cf. Zombo izi/ ni skulu. ‘These things are big.’) chombo shkulu ‘something large’; zombo skulu ‘large things’ chombo shkulu/ cha Haliima ‘Haliima’s big utensil’ (cf. zombo skulu/ za Haliima ‘Haliima’s big utensils’) gaari/ na zoombó ‘a truck and goods’; gaari/ na zoombozé ‘a truck and its goods’

Haṭaa we/ nakhkoḍo na Nuurú/ nakendra nṭhiini/ kuleta zoombozá. ‘While you are talking to Nuuru, I am going down to bring my things.’

khtumila zoombo za feḍa na ḍahabu [st.] ‘to use utensils made of silver and gold’ kubisha choombo ‘to follow a zigzag course in sailing a boat against the wind (SSED defines as “to work a ship to windward”) na zoombo ziinu kanaye fungaani [st.] ‘and you should cover all your containers’ (Observe that zoombo is a [cl.8] noun as demonstrated by the agreement on the possessive ziinu. At the same time, the possessive form kanaye shows what seems to be a [cl.9] agreement.)

Nanzize kosha zoombó. ‘I began to wash the dishes.’

Ndru/ shṭukula zoombo/ zaa ye/ peelá. ‘The relative carried the things that he had been given.’

Nuuru/ hupenda waanṭh u/ zoombo. ‘Nuuru likes to give people things.’

Panzize choombo/ mwaamba. ‘He ran the vessel onto the rock.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Shṭamwaambila/ ya kuwa mukṭaa si/ chenzelo khshindramana ka mafakaṭó/ chimṭasile Yuusufu/ mahaḷaa si/ chiweshelo zoombó. ‘We shall tell him that when we went to run a race, we left Joseph at the place where we put our things.’

Shṭomola amri/ zoombo/ izi/ zotte/ khpoowa/ Abunawasi. ‘He ordered that all these things be given to Abunawasi.’

Wamalizopo kishkizaa buní/ washpanza markabu/ zoombo. ‘When they finished unloading the coffee beans, they loaded the ship with goods.’

Wanafuunzi/ waṭakuleta zoombozo/ isa. ‘The students will bring your things now.’ Or: Wanafuunzi/ isa/ waṭakuleta zoombozo. ‘The students now will bring your things.’ Or: Waṭakuleto zoombozó/ isá/ ni wanafuunzi. ‘The ones who will bring your things now are the students.’

Ye/ nṭhakuwanaacho/ choombo/ chaa ye/ kumpeḷeḷa maayi. ‘He did not have anything for him (to use) to give him water.’

Ye/ shkhiira/ chiingila/ chiyeza uki/ zombo zaa ye/ peelá. ‘He agreed to enter (the hole) and fill honey into the container that he was given.’

zombo za hafiisa ‘office furniture’

zombo za mikooni ‘kitchen utensils’

zombo za nuumba ‘household furniture’

rel.

zoombo n. cl.9

Zoombo/ iyo/ ni aadi. ‘That thing is normal.’

omo

[cl.18] locative demonstrative: inside there (close to you)

Chimṭala maamaye/ wchiguura/ karka nuumba/ nḳhulu/ nṭh o/ wachịiisha/ omo/ karka raaha. ‘He took his mother and moved into the very big house and lived in there in comfort.’

Hasani/ nṭhakuwanaayo/ khabari/ kuwa omo/ numbaani/ walimo mwanaamke/ wa sultaani. ‘Hasani did not have the information that inside the house was the daughter of the sultan.’

moomo/ omo ‘in that same place where you are’

Omo/ hukaló/ ni muunṭh u/ mooyi/ maskiini/ mwenzawe Ali/ na Ali/ naa ye/ hukalo naa ye. ‘In that place, the one who lives (there) is a poor man, Ali’s friend, and Ali too lives (there) with him.’

Omo/ m̄tanaani/ umo munt^hu leele. ‘In there in the room there is someone asleep.’

Omo/ ye/ chimwona mwaarabu/ mooyi/ uje mjibilo hoodi. ‘Inside (e.g. the house) he saw an Arab, the one who had answered his request to enter.’

Siimba/ file omo numbaani. ‘The lion died there in the house.’

oomo

n. 9 washing powder, detergent

khfula ka oomo ‘to wash with detergent’ khfulaa nguwo/ ka oomo ‘to wash clothes with detergent’ kosha ka oomo ‘to wash with detergent’

kosha zijamu/ ka oomo ‘to wash plated with detergent’ omo iyi ‘this washing powder’ (Apparently only used as a [cl.9] noun. A phrase such as omo izi was rejected.)

oonda

n. 9/10 [Ital. onda] channel, radio band

onda mbili ‘two bands/channels’ onda mooyi ‘one band/channel’

k-oonda

v. [Sw. onja SSED 355] (ondeele) taste; taste difficulty/adversity

Ka’iwa yaa nyoki/ hujó/ (we)/ ska’onde/ uki. ‘If you knew what bees eat, you wouldn’t taste honey.’ (A proverb.)

Mutiwa/ wa nt^heendre/ uchizaala/ mara yiingine/ mi/ nakhsula konda nt^heendrezé. ‘My date tree, if it bears fruit another time, I want to taste its dates.’

Ndovu/ choonda/ chiwona/ kuwa maayi/ ya bakayle/ ni malada. ‘The elephant tasted it and saw that the water of the hare [which in fact was honey, not water] was sweet.’

Nondele mtuzi. ‘I tasted the soup.’

Ni laazima/ mi/ na mweenzawa/ siimba/ koonda/ namaye. ‘It is a must that I and my friend, Lion, taste its meat (the meat of a fat donkey that the speaker has seen).’

rel.

k-oondesha v. caus. (ondesheeze) make s.o. taste s.t.

Nimsifile mpiishi/ nondesheze chakuja chaa ye/ pishilo. ‘I praised the cook; he allowed me to taste the food that he had cooked.’

k-ondeshoowa v. caus. pass. (ondesheeza) be made to taste s.t.

k-ondoowa v. pass. (ondeela) be tasted chilada cho hondoowa, pamooyi yo hujooa [song] ‘something sweet it is tasted, together it is eaten’

rel. nom.

m̄-oonda n. one who tastes

Mwonda uki/ haakosi/ konda teena. ‘One who tastes honey never fails to taste it again.’ (A proverb.)

k-oondrola

v. tr. (ondreele) remove, take away; wake someone; lift

Alawi/ mwondrele Nureeni. ‘Alawi woke Nureeni up.’

Chendra numbaani/ kaako/ wa’ambiile/ watumishi/ wana’ondrole/ godoro/kama zimo nk^huungunyi/ meepe/ wanazuble. ‘When you go to your home, tell the servants that they should move the mattress and if there are some bedbugs in it, that they should kill them.’

Chimaliza/ choondrola/ ichoo chita/ chichiweeka/ mahala/ yiingine/nakumliindra/ munt^hu uziló. ‘After that he lifted the (cow’s) head and laid it in another place, waiting for the man who bought it.’

Chimwondrola mweenzawe/ maskiini/ chimwaambila/ kuwa uko muunt^hu/ ndilaani/ nakubiga mlaango. ‘He woke up his friend, the poor man, and told him that there was a man outside knocking on the door.’

Chint^hu chihaba/ humwondrolo sultaani/ chitiini. ‘A small thing that makes a king leave his chair.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is choolo ‘the need to urinate or defecate’.)

Chondroka kuzura numba. ‘He went to visit the house.’

Jaama/ mwondrele mwaana. ‘Jaama woke the child.’

kondrola chiina ‘to be able to read (lit. to lift, raise a word)’

Omari/ ni jaahili/ iize/ khadira kondrola chiina/ haṭá/ chimooyi ‘Omari is ignorant, he is not able to read even one word.’

kondrolaa chiṭa ‘to raise the head’ kondrolaa chiti ‘to lift a chair’ kondrola ruuhu) ilu...) ‘to give oneself airs, act arrogant (lit. to raise oneself up)’

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kondrola ruuhuye/ ilu ya waant^hu/ ni alaama/ ya uṭakaburi. ‘A person should not raise himself up (preen, puff himself up, etc.), it is a sign of arrogance.’

kondrola sheetaani ‘[lit.] to remove the devil -- i.e. to not let anger get the better of one, to be calm’

Hamadi/ mwambile Omari/ sishikoowá/ shtana/ ondrola sheetaani. ‘Hamadi told Omari: do not get angry, keep Satan away from you!’

Mojiitu/ hondrolo saant^hi. ‘Lit. it is God who lifts [one’s] footsteps -- said as justification for not going earlier somewhere (particularly to visit some people).’

Mwondrele mwaana/ ka mezaani. ‘He removed the child from the table.’

Ni laazima/ si/ khfaanya/ hiila/ mwewepe/ kumwoondrola/ Yuusufu/ kharibu ya waawaye. ‘It is necessary for us to make some sort of trick to move Joseph away from his father.’

Nondrele chibuukú/ mezaani. ‘I took the book off the table.’ With emphasis on the verb: Nondrele/ chibuuku/ mezaani. (Note that focus on the verb removes the complements from the scope of the final accent triggered by the verb.) With focus on chibuuku in situ: Nondrele chibuukú/ mezaani. (Note that focus on chibuuku has the effect of removing the following complement from the scope of the final accent.) With chibuuku focused by means of fronting: Chibuuku/ nondrelo mezaani. (Note that with the fronting of chibuuku, the verb is put in pseudo-relative form.) With focus on mezaani by means of fronting: Mezaani/ nondrelo chibuukú. (Note that once again the verb is put into pseudo-relative form.)

N^hanakoondrola. ‘He is not taking it away.’

Omari/ mshishile Hamadi/ garabu/ mondreele. ‘Omari took Hamadi by the shoulders and stood him up.’

Ondrola mifiniko/ chiyuundra/ chinapetee nvula. ‘Take away the coverings (that had been put over the vegetables) so that the garden gets some rainwater.’

Sa’iidi/ yolokelelopó/ uje mnaadisha/ ondrele riyaali/ iyo/ iweshela ilu/ yaa chiṭa/ cha ngoombe. ‘When Sa’iidi left, that auctioneer lifted that riyaali and put it on the cow’s head (in the context of the story: the riyaali had been used to purchase the cow’s head in the meat market).’

Simwoondrolé/ ifiriṭi leeló. ‘Don’t wake up a sleeping giant.’ (A proverb.)

Simwoondrolé/ munt^hu leeló/ chiiza/ takulaaló/ ndiwé. ‘Don’t wake up a sleeping man, otherwise the one who will sleep is you.’ (A proverb.)

Wa’ondrolopo ijuuniyá/ iyó/ ki’itukulá/ wachihada/ ewe/ Abunawaasi/ skuuzo/ apa/ duniyaani/ zimaliize. ‘When they lifted that sack and carried it, they said, O you, Abunawaasi, your days here in the world are finished.’

Wachondrola godoro/ wachimwonaa noka. ‘They moved the mattress (and) saw a snake.’

rel.

k-oondroka v. intr. [Sw. ondoka SSED 354] (ondroshele) wake up, get up, move from a place; take off on a trip, leave, rise [but this verb is often used in an auxiliary-like fashion, with very little of its core meaning retained]

Apa/ jahazi/ hayoondroki/ mpaka khtomolowa muḥjaana/ mo/ suura/ kulaṭilowa bahariini. ‘From here a boat does not take off until a boy, one, handsome, is taken to be thrown into the sea.’

Chimaliza/ wa’ondroshele. ‘Then they awoke.’

Chiizé/ si/ hachoondroki/ ka apa. ‘We refuse, we will not leave from here.’

Choondroka/ choloka khsimama nas mp^huundra/ ziingine. ‘He [the donkey] up and went to stand with the other donkeys.’

Faðuma/ ondroshele. ‘Fadhuma woke up/ got up/ left.’

Fijiri/ choondroka/ chendra numbaani. ‘In the morning, he woke up and went home.'

Ivuumbi/ bila lpepo/ hayoondroki. 'Dust without wind does not rise.' (A proverb which conveys the same idea as the English "there's no smoke without fire".)

Ivuumbi/ yondroshela. 'The dust rose up

Jahazi/ ichoondroka. 'The boat set sail.'

Ka dhibu/ kumwelela niingi/ mwaana/ chi'azima/ kondroka ka apo. 'Because there were many difficulties weighing on him, the boy decided to move from there.'

kondroka hima

Hamadi/ hima/ imwondroshela/ nakhsula khfungulaa duka.

'Hamadi is determined, has his mind set, he wants to open a shop.'

Mate/ haya'ondroki/ bila mtaanga. 'Spit does not get off the ground without having some sand in it.' (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ kila/ shpata pesa zaaydi/ husula zaaydi/ imaani/ humoondroka. 'When a person gets more money, he wants more, he is no longer content.' (A proverb.)

Munt^hu uyu/ mwanaamkewe/ choondroka/ chimwondrola waawaye/ ka usinziziini. 'This man's daughter went and woke up her father from sleep.'

Mwaana/ ondroshela. 'The child woke up.'

Ngoombe/ choondroka/ mbuzi/ hukalaant^ha. 'When the cow gets up, the goat sits down.' (A proverb.)

Nnayo wana watatú/ mooyi/ choondroka/ wawili/ hawa'infi/ chiint^hu. 'I have three children; if one leaves, two are of no use.' (A riddle, the answer to which is majiiko 'cooking stones'.)

Nt'akhaadira/ koondroka. 'He was not able to move.'

Ondroka/ ondroka/ ka apo/ we. 'Leave, get out of here, you.'

Ondroka ruuda/ ka mahaalaa we/ iljiló. 'Go back to the place where you came from.'

Ondrokaani/ ka apo. 'Move (pl.) from here!'

Ondroshelée ndila. 'He moved out of the way (showing respect).'

Ondroshelopó/ Hasiibu/ chiwona/ kuwaa ye/ mersheza na ma'askari. 'When Hasiibu woke up, he saw that he was surrounded by soldiers.'

Sarmala mooyi/ ondroshela/ lowelee muke. 'A carpenter up and took a wife.'

Sku mooyi/ ondroshela bakayle/ mooyi/ ingile maduriini/ kumera chaakuja. 'One day a rabbit went and entered the bush to look for food.'

Sultaani/ kondrokake/ ka khabriini/ ba/ chiwatuma khaadimu/ keendra/ kumleta muke wa mgarwa. 'The sultan, upon getting away from the tomb, sent servants to go to bring the wife of the fisherman.'

Sungura/ sku ya piili/ fijiri/ na mapeema/ choondroka/ choloka ka mp^huundra. 'Rabbit, early in the morning on the next day, awoke and went to the donkey.'

Walá/ mi/ skhaadiri/ koondroka/ kuwavila waant^hu/ kuwa'ambila/ ni/ lataani/ khfanya farqi iyi/ bena maskiini/ na taajiri. 'Nor can I just get up and summon people to tell them: you stop this discrimination between poor and rich people.'

Wanakhsulo koondroká khsala sala ya fijiri/ ni faayda/ ka kaawo/ na wanakhsulo kulaalá/ kuwika kiitu/ huwadhiba. 'Those who want to wake up to go to the morning prayers, it [the cock's crowing] is a profit for them, and those who want to sleep, our crowing bothers them.'

Yuusufu/ anzizopo kondroka ka apó/ muke/ chimshika haanzu/ ka chinume/ chimgiita/ hatá/ haanzu/ ichaatuka/ ka chinume.

‘When Joseph began to move away from there, the woman seized him by the outer garment from behind and pulled him until the garment tore in the back.’

k-ondrokeka v. intr. p/s.

Mukhta wa haaghaayi/ hayondrokeka/ na mapeema. ‘In winter time one cannot get up early.’

k-ondrokeoowa v. intr. appl. pass. lose one’s wits

Sultani ijiniile/ ondrokeleela/ sultani ilizi/ ondrokeleela. ‘The crazy sultan has lost his wits, the crying sultan is the one who has lost his wits.’

k-ondrokela v. intr. appl.

Abdukhaadiri/ mwondrokelele mwaalimu/ chiti. ‘Abdukhaadiri got up from his chair (out of respect for) his teacher.’

Gaari/ yize kumwondrokela. ‘The car wouldn’t start for him.’

Hamadi/ ize kumwondrokela chiti. ‘Hamadi wouldn’t stand up and free the chair for him.’

Mwondrokelele Muhyidiini/ ndila. ‘He moved out of the way for Muhyidiini.’

Nondrokela/ mbeleza. ‘Go out of my sight!’

k-ondrokeleka v. appl. p/s.

Mzele uyu/ ha’ondrokeleki/ chiti. ‘This elder cannot be shown respect by getting up from a chair for him.’

k-ondrokeoowa v. appl. pass. (ondrokeleela)

k-ondrokoowa v. pass. (ondoshela)

Leelo/ sultaani/ naank^o/ ijiniye/ ondrokeleela. ‘Today the sultan his madness has come to his head again.’ (Syn. The subject of the applied passive verb is sultaani, as indicated by the null subject marking on the verb ondrokeleela.)

k-ondrolela v. tr. appl. (ondrolele) wake s.o. up with, for; take s.t. away for; accuse

Huseeni/ chijiiba/ uyu/ mzele/ nondrolele/ jawaabu/ yaa mi/ siisi. ‘Huseeni answered: this old man accused me of matters that I do not know (anything about).’

Itakunondrolela ta’abu. ‘It will eliminate [lit. lift from me] troubles for me.’

kondrolela heshma ‘to disgrace’

Nondrolele heshma. ‘He disgraced me.’

Kuuyake/ inondrolele huzni. ‘His coming took away my sorrow.’

Ma’askari/ wachimuza/ khondroleleni. ‘The soldiers asked him: what did he accuse you of?’

Nondrolele mashakha. ‘He relieved me of financial difficulties.’

Nondrolele murugu. ‘He relieved my frustration.’

k-ondroleoowa v. tr. appl. pass.

Mooja nasamehe dambi/ nzito ka’ondroleoowa [st.] ‘may God pardon my sins/ which are heavy to remove’

k-ondrooowa v. pass.

Sultani waa noka/ chamura Hasiibu/ na’ondrooowa/ ka usenziini. ‘The king of snakes ordered that Hasiibu be woken from sleep.’

Ye/ chondrooowa. ‘He was awakened.’

k-ondrolana v. rec.

k-ondroleka v. p/s.

Mubiidi/ ha’ondroleki. ‘Mubiidi cannot be woken up (e.g. he is difficult to wake up, he is in a bad mood when awakened from sleep, etc.).’

Sandukhu iyi/ hayondoleki. ‘This box cannot be lifted, moved (e.g. it is too heavy).’

k-oondroscha v. caus. (ondrosheeze) wake s.o. up, make s.o. get up; raise up; remove, cause to move

Awuukari/ mwondrosheze mwaana. ‘Awuukari woke the child.’

kondroscha hima ‘to prod’ kondroscha hima ‘to be decided, determined to do s.t., want to do s.t. very much’

Omari/ ondrosheze hima/ nakhsula kuloola. [H’H!H] ‘Omari is determined, he wants to marry.’

Mwondrosheze mwaana/ ka mezaani. ‘He removed the child from the table; he induced the child to get off the table.’

Mwondrosheze mwaana/ ka usinziziini. ‘He woke up the child from sleep.’

Mubli/ chiya numbaani/ ondroshazopo maatoyé/ ilú/ chimwona noka. ‘The man came to the house; when he raised his eyes up, he saw a snake.’

Nthanakoondrosha. ‘He is not lifting.’

Ondrosheze chibuuku. ‘He removed the book.’

k-ondroshana v. caus. rec. (-ondrosheene) wake one another up

k-ondroshanana v. caus. rec. (-ondroshaneene) wake one another up k-ondroshananoowa v. caus. rec. pass. (-ondroshaneena)

k-ondroshanoowa v. caus. rec. pass. (-ondrosheena)

k-ondrosheka v. caus. p/s.

Baana/ ha’ondrosheki. ‘Baana cannot be woken up.’

Sandukhu iyi/ hayondrosheki. ‘This box cannot be lifted, moved away.’

k-ondrosheleza v. caus. appl. lift something at; wake up for, on Abú/ nondroshelezee luti. ‘Abu raised a stick at me (threateningly).’

chiluti chondrosheleza mwaaná ‘the stick (dim.) that was used to wake the child’

Jaama/ mwondrosheleze Awiikari/ mwaana/ kaa luti. ‘Jaama woke up Awiikari’s child with a stick.’

k-ondroshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Wa’ondroshelezenye waana/ ka usiziziini. ‘They woke one another’s children from sleep.’

k-ondroshelezoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

Chiikopi/ chiluti chondrosheleza mwaaná. ‘Where is the little stick that was used to wake up the child?’

Mi/ nondroshelezaa luti. ‘[Lit.] I was raised at a stick -- i.e. I was threatened with a stick.’

k-ondroshoowa v. caus. pass. (ondrosheeza) be woken up, be taken away

Mtomola amri/ chihada/ na’ondroshoowa/ ka apo/ nawekoowa/ mahala yiiingine. ‘The leader [lit. one who issues orders] said that he should be removed from there and placed in some other place.’

rel. nom.

ma-’ondrokelo n. 6 rising (from a chair, e.g.) out of respect for s.o.

ma-’ondroko n. 6

Ma’ondroko/ ni liini. ‘When is the departure?’

w-ondroko n. 14

Wondrokowe/ na mapeema/ (w)umlazishizee chita. ‘His waking up early caused him to have a headache.’ (A nominal form based on the infinitive, kondrokowe, can be used instead of wondrokowe.)

ma-’ondrolo n. 6 act of waking s.o. up

ongo

n. 9/10 [Sw. bongo SSED 486] brain

Amá/ we/ takulawa/ ka apa/ laakini/ takubloowa/ takhtundrikowa wa mutiini/ naa nyunyú/ s^taakuja/ karka ongoyo. ‘As for you, you will leave from here (prison), but you will be killed and you will be hung from a tree and birds will eat from your brains.’

kumbadila muunt^hu/ ongo ‘to change someone’s mind’

Ali/ mkali/ hubadila waant^hu/ ongo. ‘Ali is very good at changing people’s minds.’

khtumisha ongo ‘to use the brain – i.e. think well’ khtumikila ongo ‘to use the brain, think’

Muunt^hu/ jawaabu/ sula khtumikila ongo. ‘Someone for this matter must use his brains, think.’

Mi/ ka chihaba/ shpeenda/ kuja ongo. ‘I, when a child, used to like to eat brains.’

Nthaná/ ongo. ‘He does not remember things, he is stupid, he has no intelligence, etc. (lit. he has no brains).’

Omari/ mambile Hamadi/ we/ nt^huná/ ba/ ongo. ‘Omari told Hamadi: you do not have brains (i.e. you do not think, you are not intelligent, etc.).’

Ongo/ inakundraaza. ‘The brains are aching me (I have a headache).’

Ongoyo/ nt^ha’inakhfanya kaazi. ‘You are not thinking well (lit. your brains are not working).’

Ongoyo/ suura. ‘You think well, you are sharp (lit. your brains are good).’

Want^hu wa Miini/ huja/ ongo. ‘The people of Brava eats brains (of animals).’

Ye/ ongoye/ siwo/ ongo ya eelo. ‘His brain is not the brain of a gazelle.’

rel.

i-’ongo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

m-oongo (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mgongo SSED 278] back; pl: [miyoongo ‘backs’]; variant form: muungo

Chizeele/ choondroka/ chuuluka/ chooloka/ ilu/ nt^ho/ naachó/chimtukilo mwaaná/ mungooni. ‘The old woman got up and flew and went very high, carrying the boy on her back.’

Haliima/ namkuna maamaye/ moongo. ‘Haliima is scratching her mother’s back.’

khkuna moongo ‘to scratch the back’

kh^htuwa moongo ‘to rub the back, esp. during bathing’ kh^htukula ka moongo ‘to carry on the back’

kh^htukulana mungooni ‘to carry one another on the back’ kulala ka moongo ‘to sleep on the back’ kumpa moongo ‘to leave, abandon s.o. (lit. give s.o. the back)’

Hamadi/ mpele mukeewe/ moongo. ‘Hamadi left his wife.’ Or: Hamadi/ mpele moongo/ mukeewe.

Omari/ mara mooyi/ chikhupa moongo/ humoni teená. ‘Once Omari leaves you, you will never see him again.’ why final high here?

Omari) mi) namkoodishó) tu) mp^hele moongo. ‘Omari, while I was talking to him, just gave me his back, i.e. left me.’

Omari/ peesa/ zimpele moongo. [H!H!H] ‘Omari money left him (i.e. at one time Omari had money, but now it is gone).’

We/ simp^hé/ moongo/ mi. ‘You, do not show me your back (e.g. stay with me, I want to talk to you).’

kuskuma ka moongo ‘to push with the back’

Leelo/ muungowo/ keesho/ usowo. ‘Today your back, tomorrow your face – said to a departing person and meaning that, if today he is going away (turning his back to us), in a near future he will return (and we will see his face again); e.g. today you do not need me, but tomorrow you will).’ (A proverb.)

Moongo/ inakunjaaja. ‘My back is itching me.’

Moongowe/ mpaana. ‘He is very patient (lit. his back is wide).’

Mp^huundra/ waliko tukiile/ zaakuja/ za ajnasi niingi/ ilu ya moongowe. ‘The donkey was carrying many different kinds of food on his back.’

m^wishpa wa moongo ‘back bone’

Omari/ m^wishpa wa moongo/ umpaanzile. ‘Omari’s backbone has over-ridden him (i.e. he has become so thin).’

mishpa ya moongo ‘spine’

Ali/ mishpaa moongowe/ inamlaaza. ‘Ali’s spine is paining him.’

Omari/ mishpaa moongowe/ ni mpotofu. ‘Omari’s spine is curved, crooked.’

Omari/ vundishile mishpaa moongo. ‘Omari broke his spine.’

m^w-oongofu

n.1/2 [Sw. mwongofu SSED 355] a morally upright person; [pron. wa’ongofu (pl.)]

rel.

m-loongofu n. ibid.

ku-’ongola

v. [cf. Sw. ongoa ‘guide, lead’ SSED 355, but see also londea SSED 249, where the meaning seems to match Chimiini] do things to attract one of the opposite sex (esp. of women providing food for a man) review this gloss, too specific?

rel.

ku-'ongolela v. appl.

Pishile zaakuja/ zisurasuura/ ku'ongolela muḅliwe. 'She cooked many varieties of nice food to use to attract her man.'

ooni

n. [Som. oon DSI 474] thirst

Diini/ iwiile/ ya kuwa want^hu awa/ wafile ka ooni/ naa ndalá. 'Diini knew that these people had died from thirst and hunger.'

khshikowa ooni 'to be thirsty – [lit.] to be seized by thirst'

Apo/ zamaani/ hayawaani/ za maduuri/ washishiḷa ooni. 'Once upon a time, the animals of the bush country became thirsty.'

Nshishiḷa ooní. 'I was thirsty.' (Cf. Shishiḷa ooni. 'He was thirsty.' It should be noted that in the speech of GM, the n prefix for first person singular is omitted in front of a voiceless consonant and it is only the final accent that distinguishes 'I was thirsty' and 'he was thirsty'.)

khṭinda ooni 'to cut the thirst -- i.e. quench the thirst'

Mayi maḷada/ hayaṭiindi/ ooni. 'Sweet water (e.g. juice) does not quench the thirst.'

Maayi/ tu/ huṭindo ooní. 'Only water quenches thirst.'

kuwanayo ooni 'to be thirsty'

Mp^huundra/ ya Abunawaasi/ iwanayo ooni. 'Abunawaasi's donkey was thirsty.'

Nnayo ooní. 'I am thirsty.'

kuwona ooni 'to be thirsty – [lit.] to see thirst'

Maye/ hadiile/ leelo/ iwa/ zaaydi/ ooni/ nt^ho/ nakuwonó. 'Maye said: it is very hot today, (lit. I see thirst too much) I am very thirsty.'

ndalaye niingi ooniye siwo haba [st.] 'his hunger is great, his thirst is not small'

Omari/ file ka ooni. 'Omari died of thirst.' Also: Ka ooni/ ifiilá. 'From thirst there was dying.' Ooni/ ifiilá. 'Thirst was died from.'

Shṭinda kendraa mbele/ kaa ndala/ na ooní. 'He decided to go forward, with hunger and thirst.'

waana wasibeete ka ooni na ndala [nt.] 'children suffered thirst and hunger'

oono

n. UN (United Nations)

Dowḷa ya Soomaaliya/ nt^haasá/ nt^ha'iku'aqonsaṭoowa/ na Oono/ na duniyá. 'The government of Somalia is still not recognized by the United Nations and the world.'

-onte

[Sw. -ote SSED 357] see -ote

k-oonya

v. [Sw. onya SSED 353] (onyeeze) show something; allow to see

Abú/ onyeeze/ kuwaa ye/ mtiiḷe Omari/ voota. 'Abu revealed that he voted for Omari.'

Chimwonya nuumba. 'He showed her the house.'

Chizeele/ chimwonya eelo/ nuumba/ ilu/ na nt^hiini. 'The old woman showed the gazelle the house from top to bottom.'

Endrá/ mvile mwaana/ shpate kumwonya nt^huunziye. 'Go and call the daughter so that we may show her her dowry.'

Hamadi/ chonyeeze/ si/ jisaa ye/ huṭezo jisa surá/ mpiirá/ tu. 'Hamadi showed us just how well he plays football.'

hiskaṭilo diini Mooja hamoonyi yaa dhara [nt.] 'if one relies on God, he will not let him come to harm'

Isa/ mi/ nakhuloombá/ we/ noonya/ mzele oyo. 'Now, I beg you, show me that old woman.'

Maryamu/ khiyasishiize/ mukḥta waana/ chibuuku/ waṭamonyo mwaalimú. 'Maryamu guessed when the children would show the book to the teacher.'

Mbele/ Jawa khonye nuumba/ iyi. ‘First let me show you this house.’
Omari/ nonyezee mi/ Mombasa. ‘Omari showed me around Mombasa.’
Onyá. ‘Show it!’
ukali wa sakaraati/ Sheekhi ka chiza konyoowa [st.] ‘from the torturous agonies of dying/ may the Sheikh be spared’ Watumishi/ washta’ajaba/ wachimvila sultaani/ kumwooneza. ‘The servants were astonished, they called the sultan to come [for them] to show him [the pieces of gold].’
Ye/ nonyezee mi/ siri. ‘She revealed the secret to me.’
rel.
k-onyeleza v. appl.
Hamadi/ nonyeleze mwaana/ noka. ‘Hamadi showed my child a snake.’
k-onyelezana v. appl. rec.
Waant^hu/ wa’onyelezenye waana/ piicha. ‘People showed to one another’s children pictures.’
k-onyelezeka v. appl. p/s.
Baana/ ha’onyelezeki/ mwaana/ noka. ‘Baana can’t have his child shown a snake.’
k-oonyesha v. caus. (onyesheeze) show; seem Abubakari/ nakonyesha kuwa tambile mas’ala. ‘Abubakari is showing/indicating that he understands the question.’ (Note that an infinitival complement is not permitted: Abubakari/ nakonyesha khtambula mas’ala.)
Bakari/ ha’onyeshi/ kuwaa ye/ nayo maali. ‘Bakari does not appear to have money.’ Or: Hayoneshi/ kuwa Bakari/ nayo maali.
Hamadi/ ha’onyeshi/ kuwa maatozi/ yanamvuuya. ‘Hamadi does not seem to be crying.’
Honyesha (or: inakonyesha) kuwa Abubakari/ tambile mas’ala. ‘It seems that Abubakari understood the question.’
Hupenda koonyesha. ‘He likes showing off.’
Inakonyesha kuwa miyunda aya/ nt^hayakhpata/ nvula. ‘It seems that these farms did not get rain.’
Jaama/ honyesha kuwa nakhfaanyani. ‘What does Jaama seem to be doing?’ Or: Jaama/ nakonyesha kuwa nakhfaanyani. (The first sentence uses the habitual form of the verb while the second sentence uses the present tense.)
Nakonyesha kuwa nakumera chiint^hu. ‘He seems to be looking for something.’
Nonyesha huruma. ‘Show me pity!’
Nt^hanakoonyesha. ‘He is not showing it.’
Nt^haynakoonyesha. ‘It is unlikely (lit. it does not show).’
Nt^haynakoonyesha/ kuwaa we/ takhpita imtihaani. ‘It does not appear likely that you will pass the examination.’
Ye/ nakonyesha kuwa nakumera chiint^hu. ‘He seems that he is looking for something.’
k-oonyeza v. caus. (onyeeze) show, have s.o. see, let see Abunawaasi/ chimwambila ndo/ noonyeza. ‘Abunawaasi told her: come on, show me how.’
Chimonyeza mukeewe. ‘He went to show his wife.’
Chiwa’onyeza/ ndila/ suura/ na ndilaa mbovu. ‘He showed them the good path and the bad path.’
Chiya naaye/ muyiini/ ye/ chimwonyeza maamaye. ‘He came with it (e.g. the bird) to town and he showed it to his mother.’
konyeza chilolo ‘[lit.] to show a mirror -- i.e. entice by showing only the good, beautiful side of something’ Nonyeze chilolo. ‘He enticed me.’
konyeza ndila ‘to show the way’ konyeza ta’abu ‘to give s.o. difficulty’ konyeza ulaazo ‘to give pain’ mahaba ni dawa/ yo khoonyeza raaha [song] ‘love is a medicine, it shows you rest/comfort' na ushujaa'a/ waweenziwa/ wa'onyesheezó 'and the courage which my companions showed'

Noonyeza/ mi/ iyi/ jisaayo/ hufanyowa kaazi. 'Show me how this works.'

Noonyeza/ mi/ jisa hufanyowa iyi. 'Show me how this is done.'

Nonyezaa nguwo/ zaa we/ uziló. 'Let me see the clothes that you have bought.'

Nt'akhoonyeza. 'I'll show you (a threat).'

Nuuru/ mwonyeze mwaana/ chibuuku. 'Nuuru showed the child the book.'

k-onyezan(y)a v. caus. rec. (wa-'onyezeene) show one another something

Osmaani/ na Nuuru/ wa'onyezene piicha. 'Osmaani and Nuuru showed one another pictures.' (MI did not accept "reciprocal shift" in this structure: Osmaani/ onyezene na Nuuru/ piicha. 'Osmaani showed pictures with Nuuru.') k-onyezan(y)oowa v. caus. rec. pass.

Piicha/ zonyezenya na waant^hu. 'Pictures were shown to one another by people.'

k-onyezeka v. caus. p/s. be capable of being shown Maashe/ ha'onyezeki/ ndila. 'A blind man cannot be shown the way.'

k-onyezoowa v. caus. pass. (onyeeza) be shown

Chija/ chilaala/ na fijiri/ chonyezowaa ndila/ chiyolokela. 'He ate and slept and in the morning was show the way and went away.'

Waant^hu/ wa'onyeza piicha. [H!H] 'The people were shown pictures.' (A verb ordinarily only has a single 'primary' object and this primary object is the one that can be the subject of a passive version of the sentence. But in the case of the verb onyeza, in addition to the sentence where waant^hu is the passive subject, we also record a sentence where piicha is the passive subject: Piicha/ zonyeza waant^hu. [H!H] 'Pictures were shown to people.'

Zonyeza waant^hu/ ni piicha. [HH] 'What were shown to people were pictures.'

k-onyoowa v. pass. (onyeeza) be shown something

Hamadi/ onyeza chibuuku/ na Nuuru. 'Hamadi was shown a book by Nuuru.' (One cannot make chibuuku the subject of the passive verb: Chibuuku/ chonyeza Hamadi/ na Nuuru.)

Mi/ huwa msuura/ nch^honyowa zeema. 'I am generally nice if I am shown kindness etc.'

Muunt^hu/ ha'ambi^loowi/ oloka/ honyowa yaake/ kolokela. 'A man is not told, Go away!, he is shown how he should go.' (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ nayo maató/ ha'onyoowi/ ndila. 'The man who has eyes is not shown the road.' (A proverb.)

Mzeele/ ha'onyoowi/ chiint^hu/ huwona/ zaaydiyo. 'An old man is not shown (told) things, he sees more than you.' (A proverb.)

Nt'akonyoowa/ kuja zaawo. 'They were not shown their food (i.e. they were deprived of their food).'

Sho kuwona ka yeeye/ hattá/ chonyoowa/ haawoni. 'The one who does not see by himself, even if he is shown, he won't see.' (A proverb.)

rel. nom.

ch-oonya (z-) n. 7/8 indicator (that which shows s.t.)

chonya daqiiqa 'minute hand of a clock' ch-oonyo n. the act of showing ma-'onyo n. 6

m(w)-oonyo n. 3

m(w)-oonyezo n. 3

w-oonyezo n. 14

ch-oonza (z-)

n. a knot of a rope

khtila choonza ‘to block, create an obstacle’

- operasiyoone n. 9/10 [Ital. operazione] operation
- oora n. [Ar. ‘aura W 656; Som cawro DSI 96] genital organs, private parts, with reference to both male and female variant form: owra
Farji/ ni karka mooyi/ owra/ muhimu/ yaa wake. ‘The vagina is one of the important private parts of women.’
- orgi n. [Som.] billygoat variant form: orji
- ori n. 9/10 [Tunni dialect of Somali ór Tosco 230] rooster, cock kuwiika/ kana ori ‘to crow like a rooster’
Ori/ chiwiika/ ni sala ya fijiri. ‘When the cock crows, it is morning prayer.’ (A proverb.)
Orii mbili/ hawaakali/ karka moro mooyi. ‘Two roosters cannot live inside the same fenced enclosure.’ (A proverb.)
Ori wa mundraani/ hawiiki/ muyiini. ‘A farm rooster does not crow in town.’ Or: Ori/ wa mundraani/ hawiiki/ muyiini. (A proverb.)
oriwa ‘my rooster’
oriza ‘my roosters’
- orijinaale adj. original Alí/ mulíle mwaanawe/ surwaani/ ya jiiinsi/ orijinaale. ‘Ali bought for his son the original jeans.’
- ooro n.[Som. ooro DSI 474] pus from the ear
- ku-’ororata v. (ororete) gather together, concentrate things in one place hadiithi/ i’ororetó/ ka Abu Hureerá ‘the sayings [of the Prophet] which have been collected together by Abu Hureera’ Hadithi iyi/ i’orereṭe ka Abu Hureera. ‘These sayings [of the Prophet] were collected by Abu Hureera.’
- Orupa n. Europe
Khutubiile/ hadiile/ ya kuwaa si/ want^{hu} wa Orupa/ doḅla/ za chi’orupa/ na sha’ abuyé/ wotte/ laazima/ si/ khsimama kuunganya/ maali/ kumpeleka doḅla/ ya ṭalyaani/ ku’isaaydila. ‘He gave a speaking saying that we the people of Europe, the governments of Europe and their people, all, we must stand (together) to collect money to send to the government of Italy to help it.’
- k-oosha v. [Sw. osha SSED 356] (osheeze) wash, wash the body Aamina/ nakosha zijamu/ ka oomo. ‘Aamina is washing the plates with detergent.’
Bahari/ nakoshaa nguwo. ‘Bahari is doing the laundry.’
Chala chimooyi/ hachooshi/ uso. [H’H!!H] ‘One finger does not wash the face.’ (A proverb.)
Chosha mtele/ chanza khpika. ‘She washed some rice and began to cook.’
Ee/ faṭuura/ nosheezé. ‘Yes, the car, I did wash (it).’
Isa/ nnakosha usowá. ‘Now I am washing my face.’
ka maayi ow ka majiwe hutosha/ laakini maayi ndiyo zaaydi kosha [st.] ‘(to clean oneself after defecating) with water or with stones suffices, but water is better to wash with’ kosha mtuungi ‘to wash a water pot’
Mwaana/ osheze faṭura ya Omari. ‘The child washed Omari’s car.’ Or, with focus on faṭuura: Mwaana/ osheze faṭuura/ ya Omari. Or, with focus on the verb: Mwaana/ osheeze/ faṭura ya Omari.
Muke/ mwosheze mwaana. ‘The woman washed the child.’
Muke/ mwosheze mwaana/ mkono. ‘The woman washed the child’s arm.’

Muke/ mwosheze mwaana/ ka saabuni. ‘The woman washed the child with soap.’

Mukhtaa wo/ wa’osheze mikonó/ khaadimu/ naayó/ chiya/ chija/ makombo yaseeló/ hatá/ chiikuta. ‘When they washed their hands, the servant (lit. and he) came and ate the leftovers until he was satiated.’

Mwosheze mwaana/ uso (/ka sabuuni). ‘She washed the child’s face (with soap).’

Nanzize kosha zoombó. ‘I began to wash dishes.’

Nnakosha mikonó. ‘I am washing my hands.’ Or: Nnakosha mikonoyá.

Nnakosha usó. ‘I am washing my face.’ Or: Nnakosha usowá.

Nnakosha usowá/ kahimá. ‘I am washing my face quickly.’ Or: Nnakosha usowá/ kahimaahimá.

Nosheze fațuurá. ‘I washed the car.’ Or with verb emphasis: Nosheezé/ fațuura. Or with complement preposing: Fațuura/ nosheezé. Or with focus on preposed complement: ˈFațuura/ nosheezó.

Nosheze fațura ya Omari. ‘I washed Omari’s car.’ Cf. Nosheze fațura ya Omari/ nosheezó. ‘I washed Omari’s car, that’s what I did.’ But cannot say: Nosheezé/ fațura ya Omari/ nosheezó. ‘I washed Omari’s car, that’s what I did.’ What this means is that the Verb Copy strategy of focusing on the verb is not combined with locating a PP break after the verb. It is important to point out that that there is no internal focus in the sentence Nosheze fațura ya Omari. As a consequence, one does not continue this sentence with siwo ‘not’ plus a contrasted element in the sentence: Nosheze fațura ya Omari/ siwo/ ya Hamadi. Rather one continues the sentence with, for instance, Skosha ya Hamadi. ‘I did not wash (the car) of Hamadi.’

Nosheze fațuurá/ ya Omari. ‘I washed the car of Omari.’ (Observe that in this example there is focus on ‘car’, as indicated by the fact that the final accent does not project onto the AP-phrase following. In this sentence where there is focus on ‘car’, one can continue the sentence: Siwo/ baskiili. ‘Not (Omari’s) bicycle.’ One cannot also locate a Verb Copy after ‘car’: Nosheze fațuurá/ nosheezó/ ya Omari. ‘He washed car, that’s what he did, of Omari.’

Nosheze mzimawe. ‘He washed me all over.’

Ntʰanakoosha. ‘He is not washing it.’

Omari/ osheze Hamadi/ fațuuraye. ‘Omari washed Hamadi’s car.’

Oshá. ‘Wash!’

Tuuma/ mwosheze mwaana/ uso. ‘Tuuma washed the child’s face.’ (The simple yes-no question exhibits Q-raising but no accent shift. The exclamatory yes-no question shifts the accent in the VP: Tuuma/ mwosheze mwaaná/ usó!?)

Tuuma/ mwosheze mwaaná/ usó. ‘Tuuma washed the child’s face.’ Or, with focus on maana rather than the subject: [Tuuma/ mwosheze ˈmwaana/ uso]. (This sentence differs from the simple statement cited in the previous example in that mwaana is not downstepped but rather raised in pitch. The yes-no question version of the sentence with focus on mwaana shifts the accent in the out-of-focus uso: Tuuma/ mwosheze mwaana/ usó?)

Tuuma/ mwosheze mwaana/ ˈuso. ‘Tuuma washed the child’s face.’ (The simple yes-no question does not shift the accent since there is no out-of-focus phrase following the focus.)

Tuuma/ osheze uso wa mwaana. ‘Tuuma washed the face of the child.’ (There is no accent shift in the simple yes-no question. The exclamatory yes-no question does shift accent in the VP: Tuuma/ osheze uso wa maaná!?)

Uso wa mwaana/ Tuuma/ osheezó. ‘It’s the child’s face that Tuuma washed.’ Or: Mwaana/ usowe/ Tuuma/ osheezó. ‘It’s the child his face that Tuuma washed.’ Or: Mwaana/ usowe/ osheezó/ Tuuma.

‘It’s the child his face that washed, Tuuma.’

Wamalizopo kosha mikonó/ wachanzaa kuja. ‘When they finished washing their hands, they began to eat.’

rel.

k-oshakosha v. freq. wash and wash

Choondroka/ choshachosa ruuhuye/ chimaliza/ chishikaa ndila/ chendra kaawo. ‘He got up and washed himself off and then followed the road to his home.’

k-oshanya v. rec. (wa’osheenyé) wash one another

Nuuru/ na Baaná/ wa’osheenyé. ‘Nuuru and Baana washed each other.’ (Reciprocal shift does not appear to be allowed for this verb: *Nuuru/ oshenyé na Baana. ‘Nuuru washed one another with Baana.’)

Wa’oshenye mikono. ‘They washed one another’s hands.’

Waana/ wa’osheenyé, ‘The children washed each other.’

k-oosheka v. p/s.

Mwana uyu/ ha’osheki/ ka sahali. ‘This child cannot be easily washed.’

Zijamu izi ya/ hazoosheki/ na waana. ‘Plates of this type cannot be washed by children.’

k-ooshekela v. p/s. appl.

Mwaana/ mwoshekelele Baana. ‘The child was able to be washed for k-osheleza v. appl.

Baana.’

Baana/ mwosheleze Nuuru/ shkoombe. ‘Baana washed the cup for Nuuru.’

Mwaana/ mwosheleze Omari/ faṭuura. ‘The child washed the car for Omari.’ Or, with focus on the subject: Mwaana/ mwosheleze Omari/ faṭuurá.

Mwaana/ wa Aasha/ mwosheezo sabuuní/ fakeete. ‘The child whom Aasha washed with soap ran away.’ (Although MI was uncomfortable with the relative head functioning as the direct object in an instrumental applied verb construction, other consultants accepted a sentence such as the present one.)

Muke/ mwosheleze mwaana/ saabuni. ‘The woman used soap to wash the child.’ (In the instrumental applied construction, the instrument, here saabuni, cannot be focused in the speech of MI. In the pronunciation of this sentence, there is a radical drop in the pitch of saabuni relative to the preceding focused item.)

Sabuuni/ muke/ mwosheleze mwaana/ mkono. ‘Soap, the woman used it to wash the child’s arm.’

Saabuni/ mwosheleze mwaana/ uso. ‘With soap, she washed the child’s face.’

Tete saabuni/ kumwosheleza mwaana. ‘She took soap to wash the child with.’

k-oshelezanya v. appl. rec. (-oshelezeenyé) wash s.t. for one another (One can also hear koshanyiliza.)

sabuni yaa wo/ wa’oshelezeenyó ‘the soap that they washed one another with’

Wa’oshelezenye waana/ mikono. ‘They washed the children’s hands for one another.’

Waana/ wa’oshelezenye saabuni. ‘Children washed one another with soap.’ (A possible sentence, but preferred is Wa’oshenye ka saabuni. ‘They washed one another with soap.’)

Waana/ wa’oshelezen ye waant^u. ‘The children washed the man for one another.’ (This sentence cannot mean ‘the children washed one another for the man’.)

Watete saabuni/ koshelezanya waana/ mikono. ‘They took soap to wash the children’s hands with for one another.’

k-oshelezanyoowa v. appl. rec. pass..

k-oshelezeka v. appl. p/s.

Mayi aya/ haya'oshelezeki/ mwaana. 'This water cannot be used to wash the child.'

Mubiidi/ ha'oshelezeki/ chiint'u. 'Mubiidi cannot be washed for anything (he is so demanding, one can never do it the right way etc.)'

k-oshelezoowa v. appl. pass.

Saabuni/ yosheleza mwaana/ uso. 'Soap was used to wash the child's face.' (Observe that the instrument is the passive subject when the verb is an instrumental applied verb. Promotion of the other complement to passive subject is not permitted if saabuni remains post-verbal, at least in the speech of MI: Mwaana/ osheleza saabuuni. 'The child was washed using soap.' The simple form of the verb would be used in this situation: Mwaana/ osheza uso/ ka sabuuni. '[Lit.] the child was washed the face with soap.')

Yiikopi/ sabuni ya mwaana/ osheleza usó. 'Where is the soap that the child was washed the face with?' Or: Yiikopi/ sabuni osheleza mwaaná/ usó. (same meaning) (Note that in both of these sentences, mwaana is the subject of the instrumental applied verb, a situation that is not possible when the instrument is post-verbal. These two sentences are preferred to Yiikopi/ sabuni yoshele mwaaná/ usó. 'Where is the soap that was used to wash the child's face?' This latter sentence, where the instrument is the subject of the passive verb, is a grammatical sentence however.)

k-oshoowa v. pass. (osheeza) be washed manyi yachilawapo kowoowa/ ni waajibu na takufo koshooa [st.] 'when semen comes out, to be washed up is obligatory, and he who dies must be washed'

Mwaana/ osheza mkono. 'The child was washed the arm.' (The body part may not be the subject of the passive verb: Mkono/ wosheza mwaana.)

Mwaana/ osheza naa muke. 'The child was washed by the woman.'

Mwosha mayti/ hoshooa. 'The washer of a corpse is washed.' (A proverb.)

nama koshwake stoshe ni sahali [st.] 'meat, its proper washing, do not think that it is easy'

Nguwo/ zosheeza. 'The clothes were washed.'

rel. nom.

m(w)-oosha n. one who washes

Ebu ya mayti/ hiiwó/ mosha mayti. 'The one who knows the defect of a corpse is the washer of the corpse.' (A proverb.)

Mwosha mayti/ hoshooa. 'The washer of the corpse will be washed.' (A proverb.)

m(w)-oosho n. 3 washing

w-oosho n. 14 washing

m-ooshi, ma-yooshi n. 3,6 [Sw. moshi SSED 295] smoke chimiza mwooshi mwiingine hujuza [st.] 'if you ihale (lit. swallow) a scent (lit. smoke) other (than tobacco) it is permitted (during fasting)' markabu ya mayooshi 'steamship' mayoshi haba 'a little smoke' (or mayooshi/ haba) mayoshi malusi 'black smoke' (or mayooshi/ malusi) mayoshi melpe 'white smoke' (or mayooshi/ melpe)

mayoshi miingi 'a lot of smoke' (or mayooshi/ miingi)

Mooshi/ ha'upiki/ chuungu. 'Smoke does not cook the pot (i.e. the food in the pot).' (A proverb.)

moshi waa mujo 'the fire's smoke'

ostriika

n. ostrich mussels (like mooskolo, but larger)

Mafakhaani/ hupatikana mooskolo/ na ostriiká/ niingi. 'At Mafakhaani one can find a lot of mussels and ostriika.'

-ote

[Sw. -ote SSED 357] all (with plural nouns); whole (with singular nouns); [pron.

-ote or -otte] (We have not observed a locative form such as mote or ka mote or mo mote parallel to kote, ka kote, ko kote. Also, we have only observed po pote, and not pote or ka pote.)

variant form: -onte [pron. -ont'e]

cho choṭe

Wawalimo karka ḏiṭiqi/ nt^ho/ ka sababu/ wo/nt^hawakuwanaayo/ hattá/ /peesa/ mooyi/ yaa wo/ kulila chaakuja/ cho choṭe. ‘They were in great difficulty because they did not have even one coin for them to buy any food with.’

choṭe [cl.7]

Muusa/ somelee chiwo/ chont^he. ‘Muusa read the whole book.’ (Phon. Notice that in this example, chont^he is not included in the same phrase as the noun it modifies. This seems to indicate that it is out of focus, as can be seen from the data from a final-accent triggering verb: Mi/ (n)somelee chiwó/ chont^he. ‘I read the whole book.’

ka koṭe

Nichimereje chibuukuchá/ ka koṭe/ skishpata. ‘I looked everywhere for my book, (but) I didn’t find it.’

ko koṭe

Ko koṭe/ we/ takeendró/ takhpata kaazi. ‘Wherever you go, you will get a job.’ review whether koṭe is PP-final here always or whether final vowel could lengthen in front of /we/

koṭe/ kont^he Humero zont^hé/ huṭowa kont^he. ‘The one who searches for (or: demands) all misses all ([lit.] everywhere).’ (A proverb.)

Koṭe/ maháala ye/ olosheló/ nt^hakhpandoowa. ‘Every place that he went, he was not loved.’ Or: Maháala ye/ olosheló/
 koṭe/ nt^hakhpandoowa.

Koṭe/ ni bahari/ tu. ‘Everywhere it is just the sea.’

Nmereeḷé/ koṭe/ skishpata. ‘I looked for it all over, (but) I did not find it.’

Omari/ mereje zibuuku/ kont^he. ‘He looked for the books everywhere.’

po poṭe

Ziweke po poṭe. ‘Put them anywhere!’ Or: Ziweeke/ po poṭe.

wo woṭe

Sultaani/ amri iyi/ nii nk^hulu/ naami/ nt^haku muunt^hu/ wo wotte/ takhaadiró/ kawanya tawalá/ jis’iyó. ‘Sultan, this order is too big for me, there is no one whatsoever who would be able to divide the sea in this way.’

wote [cl.2]

kashṭanda wotté/ wiitú ‘ifhe insulted all of us’; but also:
 kashṭaandá/ wotte/ wiitu (where wotte/ wiitu is a kind of afterthought) or kashṭanda wotté/ wiitu (where wiitu is a kind of afterthought)

Mwaarabu/ wote/ wamalizopoo kuja/ chimpa khaadimu/ amri/shikaa luti/ ili/ kumbiga/ ndruttii miya/ na khamsiini/mwanaamke. ‘The Arab, when they had all finished eating, ordered the servant: take this stick and strike the girl one hundred and fifty blows.’

Niwachimbize waaná/ wotte. ‘I expelled all the children.’ Or:
 Niwachimbize waaná/ wotté. Or: Niwachimbize wotté/waana. But not: *Niwachimbize wotté/ waaná.)

Si/ wote/ chisimeeme. ‘We all stood up.’ Or: Si/ chisimeeme/wote. ‘We stood up, all (of us).’ Or: Si/ chisimeeme wote.
 ‘We stood up all.’ (Phon. Notice that in the last example,
 -ote phrases with the verb. Note also that -ote does not trigger the lengthening of the preceding word-final vowel.

Another point that needs mentioning is that we did not note final accent being triggered by the first person plural subject prefix.)

Waana/ wotte/ wa'ile. 'All the children came.' (Phon. It is not acceptable to join waana into a phrase with wotte:

Wana wotte/ wa'ile.) (Syn. It is possible for wotte to be postposed after the verb, in which case it forms a phrase with the verb: Waana/ wa'ile wotte. It is possible for wotte to precede waana: Wotte/ waana/ wa'ile. If waana is postposed to sentence-final position, it seems to be an afterthought: Wotte/ wa'ile/ waana. 'All came, (it's the children I am speaking of).'

Waanthu/ wont'e/ hawaawi/ wasuura. 'All people cannot be good.' (A proverbial saying.)

Waanthu/ wote/hawaawi/ wawovu. 'All people cannot be bad.' (A proverbial saying.)

Waanthu/ wotte/ wa'ile. 'All the people came.'

Wo/ washtaanzile/ wotte/ wiitu. 'They insulted all of us.' Or: Wo/ washanzile wotte/ wiitu. (Phon. The latter example illustrates that it is possible for pre-nominal -otte to be phrased with an immediately preceding verb.)

wotte/ wawili 'both' wotte/ waawo 'all of them' (This construction is only used for [cl.2]; one cannot say zotte/ zaawo 'all of them', referring for example to a [cl.10] noun.)

wotte/ wiinu 'all of you'

Wotte/ wiitu/ choloshelé. 'We all went.' Or: Choloshelé/ wotte/ wiitu. (It is not acceptable for wiitu to precede wotte:

Wiitu/ wotte/ choloshelé. Postposing wotte is also unacceptable: Wiitu/ choloshele wotté.)

wote [cl. 14]

Bakayle/ chiingila/ chimpa ngombe waa gisi/ uki habbamó/ chimwambila ngoombe/ uyu/ kamaa we/ nakhsula uki wote/ mbele/ nikhufuunge/ miilu/ na mikonó/ chimaliza/ nikhupe. 'Hare entered and gave Buffalo a little bit of honey and told this buffalo: if you want all the honey, first, let me tie your legs and arms, then I will give it to you.'

Nifunzile milaangó/ yotté. 'I closed all the doors.'

yote [cl.4]

miti/ yotte 'all the trees'

yote [cl.6]

Ahdi/ ya maraa piili/ iwaaliko/ ya kuwa takshindroowá/ takuna maayi/ ya tawala yotte. 'The promise of the second time was that the one who was defeated would drink all of the water in the sea.' (Phon. Although -otte is often isolated from a preceding word, in this example we did not observe a phrasal break in front of yotte.)

Chimwaambila/ ya kuwa magozi/ yotte/ yawozele. 'He told him that all the skins got rotten.'

Kamaa we/ hukhaadiri/ kawanya tawala/ jis'iyó/ lete maaliyo/ yotte/ mpe uyu islaamu/ shpate kumaliza/ amri iyi. 'If you cannot divide the sea in this way, bring all your wealth and give it to this Muslim so that we get to finalize this matter.'

majiwe/ yotte 'all the stones'

yote [cl.9]

Mahala iyi/ yote/ ndaaká. 'This whole place is mine.'

Nt^hakhusameha/ laakini/ ka sharti/ mooyi/ we/ ni laazima/ kundripila khasaara/ imp^hetó/ yotte. ‘I will forgive you but on one condition: you must repay me the loss that befell me, all.’
Numba iyi/ yote/ ndaaká. ‘This whole house is mine.’ Or: Numba iyi/ ndaaká/ yote. ‘This house is mine, all of it.’
nuumba/ yotte ‘the whole house, all of the house’

zote [cl.8]

Ali/ boozele/ so/ zibuuku/ zotte. ‘Has Ali stolen all the books?’ Or: Ali/ boozele/ zibuuku/ zotte/ so. Or: Ali/ bozele zibuuku/ zotte/ so. Or: Ali/ zibuuku/ bozele zotte/ so. (But it does not appear to be acceptable to located so between zibuuku and zotte: Ali/ bozele zibuuku/ so/ zotte.)

Chimwambila waawaye/ kuwaa ye/ chiwona/ schitulukó/ zotte/ ka darbiniyé. ‘She told her father that she had seen all the things that happened with her binoculars.’ did not hear final accent on zotte, need to check into this further mbele ya zont^he ‘first of all [lit. before all (things), where the noun ziint^hu is implicit]’

Mi/ (n-)somelee ziwó/ zont^he. ‘I read all the books.’

Muusa/ somelee/ zibuuku/ zont^he. ‘Muusa read all the books.’

Mwanaamke/ huwono zotté/ zinakhtulukó/ weene/ zimpeto Hasani. ‘The girl sees all [the things] that have happened, [the things] that have befallen Hasani.’

Nimpele Nafiisá/ zibuuku/ zotte. ‘I gave Nafiisa all the books.’ (Phon. Observe that the final accent cannot extend past the first complement to the verb in this example: Nimpele Nafiisá/ zibuukú/ zotté. and Nimpele Nafiisá/ zibuukú/ zotte. are both unacceptable.

Nuzilee zisú/ zont^he. ‘I bought the books, all of them.’ Or: Nuzilee zisú/ zont^hé. ‘I bought all the books.’ Or: Nuuzilé/ zisu/ zont^he. ‘I bought all the books.’

Nuzilee zítí/ zotté. ‘I bought all the chairs.’

Nuuzilé/ zont^he. ‘I bought all of them.’ Or: Nuzile zont^hé. ‘I bought all of them.’

Shtungulu chimooyi/ huwoza zont^he. ‘One onion can spoil all (the others).’ (A proverb.)

Zibuuku/ zotte/ spiile. ‘All the books burned.’ (Phon. It is not grammatical for zibuuku to be joined into the same phrase as zotte: Zibuku zotte/ spisile.)

Zibuuku/ zotte/ ziboozele. ‘All the books were stolen.’

Zont^he/ uziló. ‘All of them, he bought.’ (Cf. Zont^he/ nuuzilé. ‘All of them, I bought.’) (Syn. Fronting of zont^he seems generally to involve focusing on zont^he, hence the use of the pseudo-relative verb form. Left-dislocation of zont^he, without pseudo-relativization, is acceptable: Zont^he/ uzile., but our consultant was not so happy with its use in such a bare-bones sentence as this.)

zote [cl.10]

munt^hu bozelo peesá/ zotté ‘the man who stole all the money’ (In the case of a relative clause, it is normal for -otte to be in the scope of the final accent associative with such clauses. The following are unacceptable: munt^hu bozelo peesá/ zotte or *munt^hu boozeló/ peesa/ zotte.)

ngoombe/ zotte ‘all the cows’

Nizijile ndrriimú/ zotté. ‘I ate all the lemons.’

piicha/ zotte ‘all the pictures’

Wajile nt^heendre/ zotte/ wajiiló. ‘They had eaten all the dates, that’s what they had done.’ Or: Wajile nt^heendre/ wajiiló/ zotte. ‘They had eaten the dates, that’s what they had done, all.’

Ye/ chiwaa dawa/ zotte/ na chiwa maraði/ yotte. ‘He was all medicine and sickness (i.e. he was concerned with nothing but medicine and sickness).’

ye/ kampa Aweesú/ peesá/ zotté ‘if he gave Aweesu all the money’, but also: ye/ kampa Aweesú/ peesá/ zotte and ye/ kumpa Aweesú/ peesa/ zotte.

Zijile ndrriimú/ zotté. ‘You ate all the lemons.’ Cf. Zijile ndrriimu/zotte. ‘He ate all the lemons.’

Zote/ wanaafakhi. ‘All lies!’ (An answer, for example, to the question: Nazooyi/ kooðize? ‘How do you see/ take what he said?’)

k-ootela

v. (oteele) cover oneself with a cloth in the application of bukhuuri (a vapor made from burning certain herbs and used for medicinal purposes or as a scent); fumigate, smoke (e.g. m^htuungi ‘a large pot for carrying and storing water’) rel.

rel.

k-otelelela v. appl. (otelelele)

k-oteleloowa v. appl. pass.

k-oteleloowa v. pass.

k-oteza v. caus. make breathe in the fumes from the cheetezo, a small clay receptacle in which a fire is put and aromatic leaves are burnt (the cheetezo is passed around at a wedding or funeral, as part of the traditional customs of the Bravanese); fumigate s.t.

koteza m^htuungi/ ka lbaani ‘to fumigate a large water pot with lbaani, a kind of incense’ koteza nuumba/ ka lbaani/ ka cheetezo ‘to fumigate, smoke the house with lbaani using a cheetezo – this is done early in the morning traditionally in the belief that this will deny entrance to the devil, while opening the house for angels and blessings to enter; the smoke from the cheetezo is said to rise up to the sky’

k-otezoowa v. caus. pass.

Muke/ naayé/ huveshoowa/ nguwo/ nelpe/ naðiifa/ hotezoowa/ jisa suura. ‘The woman also will be dressed with new clothes, white, clean, [and] will be fumigated with incense thoroughly.’

k-ooova

v. [cf. Sw. lowa "get wet, be soaked (drenched, saturated), be damp" SSED 249] roll out dough; mix (e.g. cement)

Abdalla/ sh^htomola makharba/ haba mooyi/ shpoondra/ chova ka maayi/ chimpa mwanamke hakhaadiri. ‘Abdalla took out a few leaves and crushed them and mixed them with water and gave them to the girl who was sick.’

kova matuzi ‘to join in and participate in a corrupt situation; to “do as the Romans do”, but with a connotation of doing something corrupt, evil’

Hamadi/ mwambile waawaye/ siingilé/ jawabu za Omari/ na

Sheekhi/ soové/ matuzi. [H!HH!H'H||H!H] ‘Hamadi told his father: do not interfere in the argument between Omari and Sheekhi, do not get involved in a corrupt situation.’ (The main aspects of the intonation of this sentence is clear. The pitch of the negative imperative siingilé is raised a bit above the preceding accent syllable, hence the lack of any symbol for lowering here. It is clear that the clause soové/ matuzi represents an independent IP, where the initial accent is clearly raised above the final accent in the preceding IP. This situation is represented by the symbol ||. The only minor issue is whether there is downstep between the conjoined phrases in jawabu za Omari/ na Sheekhi. There is some pitch lowering in na Sheekhi, but it is not much. We are however not confident of distinctions between downstep and declination in post-verbal phrases.)

Muunthu/ ha'ovi/ matuzi/ naa mané/ huletaa dhibu.

[H'H!H!H||H] 'One does not get mixed up with shit and urine (i.e. mixed up in corrupt, evil matters), it brings difficulties.' (The second clause in this example is an independent IP, since it resets the pitch range clearly above the final accent in the preceding IP. It is not, however, returned to the pitch height of the sentence-initial accented syllable.)

Nakova naawó/ matuzi. 'I am doing as they do.'

rel.

k-oovana v. does this verb exist

-oow-

passive suffix

Hukahaŋoowa. 'x is hated.'

Hupelekoowa/ chiwooni. 'He is sent to koranic school.'

k-oowa

v. [Sw. oga SSED 350] (oweele) bathe

Chimwamura Sa'iidi/ koowa/ muda/ wa skuu saba. 'She ordered Sa'iidi to bathe for a period of seven days.'

Hambiloowa/ ndooni/ endraani/ wanawake awo/ wawiliwe/ wanakoowó. 'They (the children) are told: come, go (where) those girls, the two of them, are bathing.'

Karka sa'aa ne/ za masku/ wake/ na wabli/ waana/ na wazeelé/ wofe/ hendra ŋawala/ koowa. 'At the [lit.] fourth hour of the evening, women and men, children and adults, all, go to the beach to bathe.'

malizopo koowá 'when he finished bathing'

Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ nakoowa. 'The guest is still bathing.'

Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakumaliza/ koowa. 'The guest has not finished bathing.'

Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ umu chooloni/ nakoowa. 'The guest is still in the bathroom bathing.'

Nakhsulaa ni/ (n)soowe. 'He wants that you (pl.) not bathe.' (Note that it is not possible for the second person plural subject marker to follow the negative subjunctive element in this active verb: Nakhsulaa ni/ sinoowe. The passive verb is different. One may have either Nakhsulaa ni/ (n)soshoowa. or Nakhsulaa ni/ sinoshoowa. 'He wants that you (pl.) not be washed.' We have no explanation for this variation in the passive.)

Nch^howa wowiini. 'I was bathing in the river.' Or (with the location outside the focus): Nch^hoowa/ wowiini.

Nt^hanakoowa. 'He is not bathing.'

Nimene choowá/ wowiini. 'I saw him bathing in the river.' Or: Nimene chowa wowiini. Or, emphasizing the location: Nimene wowiini/ choowa.

Nnakoowá/ isa. 'I am taking a bath now.' Cf. Nnakoowa/ isa. 'He is taking a bath now.'

Nnakoowá/ leelo. 'I am taking a bath today.' Cf. Nakoowa/ leelo. 'He is taking a bath today.'

Nowele wowiini. 'I bathed in the river.' Or (with the location outside the focus): Noweelé/ wowiini.

Oloshela ŋawala/ koowa. 'He went to the beach to bathe'

Owá. 'Take a bath!'

Owá/ isa. 'Take a bath now!' (Cf. Owa isa. 'It's now that you should take a bath!')

Owá/ leelo. 'Take a bath today!' (Cf. Owa leelo. 'It's today that you should take a bath!')

Wake awa/ wa'ingile mutooni/ koowa. 'These women entered the river to bathe.'

Waana/ wa'oweele. 'The children washed themselves.'

rel.

k-oosha v. caus. (osheeze) bathe s.o.

Nosheze kaa nguvu. ‘He washed me by force.’

Nosheze mzimawa. ‘He washed me all over.’

k-oowela v. appl. [Sw. ogea SSED 350] (oweleele) bathe in, with Munt^{bu} uyu/ oweleele tawala. ‘This man bathed in the sea.’ Or: Munt^{bu} uyu/ oweleele/ tawala.

Sultaani/ chamura moojé/ khfanyilizowa mayi mamulo/ koowela. ‘The sultan ordered for his master to be prepared hot water to bathe with.’

k-oowesha v. caus. [Sw. ogecha SSED 350] cause to bathe

Nowesheze kaa nguvu. ‘Forcefully he made me wash up.’

Nowesheze mzimawa. ‘He made me wash all over (thoroughly).’

k-owoowa v. pass.

Kowowa tawala/ masku aya/ inayo ma’ana ma’aluumu/ laakini/ mi/ isa/ skuumbuki. ‘For bathing to be done at the beach this evening (Ashuura) has a specific meaning, but I do not remember now what it is.’

k-oowela

v. [Sw. ogelea SSED 350] (oweleele) swim (with the arms coming out of the water)

E/ we/ mweenza/ mi/ khurasheeyi/ mi/ ni/ hayawani wa maduuri/ siisi/ koowela.

‘O, you, friend, how am I to go with you, I am an animal of the bush, I do not know how to swim.’

koowela/ kana mp^haamp^ha ‘to swim like a shark’

Wagarwa/ wakali/ koowela/ hoowela/ kana mp^haamp^ha/ chilaani/ hukoma/ ka dakhikha ikumi. ‘Fishermen are good in swimming, they swim like sharks, they reach Chilaani in ten minutes.’

koowela/ kanaa nsi ‘to swim like a fish’

Ali/ hoowela/ nthangú/ Maafakha/ hatá/ nthí/ kana/ nsi/ ka dakhikha nth^haano/ hukoma ifuwooni. ‘Ali can swim from Maafakha like a fish, he reaches the coast in five minutes.’

kowelake ‘his/ her/ its swimming’

Maryamu/ oo hu-khadiro k-oowelá/ ni mweenzawa. ‘Maryamu, who can swim well, is my friend.’

Mi/ siisi/ koowela. ‘I do not know how to swim.’

Mp^haamp^ha/ naa nfuye/ ilu ya moongó/ chanza koowela. ‘The shark, with the monkey on its back, began to swim.’

Muunt^{bu}/ mara mooyi/ shpotela mayiini/ ni koowela/ tu. ‘Once a person has fallen into water, there is (nothing to do but) just swim.’ (A proverbial saying somewhat akin to the English “sink or swim”, advising that once one gets drawn into some issue, situation, one just must deal with it.)

Nch^howela chisarwani chigobe. ‘I used to swim in short pants.’ (Note that the stem -owela is used here as an applied verb, although it lacks the applied morphology. There is an applied verb form k-oweleele, see below. Interestingly, the applied verb forms its perfect in an identical way to the perfect of the simple verb. This has perhaps led to some falling together of the simple and the applied verb.)

Nimpele lwawó/ koowelá. ‘I gave him a board to swim (with).’

Noloshela Duudé/ ka koowelá. ‘I swam to Duude (lit. I went to Duude by swimming).’

Noweelele wowiini. ‘I swam in the river.’ (Cf. wowi yaa mi/ noweelele ‘the river that I swam in’.)

Omari/ howela tawala/ ye/ ha’oweli/ mahala yyingine. ‘Omari swims in the sea, he does not swim any other place.’

Oweleele ka lwawo. ‘He swam with a board.’

Oweleele kanaa nt^hupu. ‘He swam naked.’

Oweleele munt^hi mzima. ‘He swam the whole day.’

Tete chisarwaani/ kowela tawala. ‘He took shorts to swim in the sea (with).’

Tete lwawo/ koowela. ‘He took a board to swim (with).’

- Wachoowela/ ka himaahima/ kudirka jaziira. ‘They swam quickly to reach the island.’
- Wanaashke/ awo/ hukhadiro koowelá/ wanakhteza wowiini. ‘The girls who can swim are playing in the river.’
- Wanaashke/ hukhadiro koowelá/ wanakhteza kharibu ya wowiini. ‘The girls who can swim are playing by the river.’
- Wanaashke/ wa Maryamu/ waweenó/ wanakendra koowela. ‘The girls who Maryamu saw are going swimming.’
- rel.
- k-oweleka v. p/s. [Sw. ogeleka SSED 350] (owelekeshele, a form based on a doubling of the p/s. extension) be swimmable
- k-owelela v. appl. (oweleele – a form that is indistinguishable from the perfect of the simple verb stem)
- lwawo/ oweleele. ‘A board, he swam with.’
- Nakowelela kamardaariyo. ‘He is swimming with an inner tube.’
- Nimpele lwawó/ kowelelá. ‘I gave him a board to swim with.’
- k-oweeloowa v. pass. (-oweleela)
- rel. nom.
- ma-’owelo n. 6 the act of swimming
- ma’owelewe masuura ‘his good swimming’
- owla [Sw. aula SSED 21; Ar. ūlā W 35] better
- hujuzā laakini owla ni khkamila [st.] ‘it is permitted (to not perform acts of worship) but better to complete them’
- owla kula ka qalbiya/ kuwa kalili sabriya [st.] ‘[but] it is better to cry with my heart, for my patience has diminished’
- owo dem. [cl.3] that one near you
- Uvundishiló/ (ni) muti owo. ‘What broke is that tree.’
- Uvundishiló/ muti owo/ Omari. ‘What broke is Omari’s tree.’
- woowo/ owo ‘that same one near you’
- muti woowo/ owo ‘that very same tree’
- owtamaatika adj. automatic
- khori owtamaatika ‘an automatical gun’
- ox ideo. [cf. qux “to cough” cited in Dhoorre & Tosco, p. 150] of coughing
- Hamadi/ nakhkolola/ ox ox. ‘Hamadi was coughing oxox.’
- oyo [cl.1] demonstrative pronoun; this pronoun may be realized as {oo} as well as {oyo}
- Ba’adaa ye/ kingila ndraani/ chiwa teena/ nakhkoðakoða na oyo mwaarabu. ‘After he went inside, he began then talking with that Arab.’
- Basi/ haṭá/ leelo/ oyo muḅli/ chiwa hakhaadiri/ chifa. ‘So, until one day the man became sick and died.’
- Basi/ oyo mwiimbili/ naank^{hó}/ shfakaṭa/ cheendra/ shṭukula oyoo nsi/ naank^{hó}/ shpeleka/ chimwambila oyo mwanaamke/ oyo mwanaamke/ chimwambila waawaye/ izo jawaabu. ‘So that boy, again, he ran and went and carried that fish, again, and took it and told that girl, and that girl told her father about those matters.’
- Chibigoowa/ ndrutize khamsiini/ oyo mkulu wa mawaardiya. ‘He was struck his fifty blows, that head of the guards.’
- Hasiibu/ munt^{hi} oyo/ chirashmanya na jiraani/ chendra khtinda skunyi. ‘Hasiibu that day followed his neighbors and went to cut firewood.’
- Mp^{hu}undra/ si oyo naakulá/ naawé/ nakuhada kuwaa ye/ nt^haaakó. ‘That donkey, isn’t he the one who is braying, and you are telling me that he is not here?’
- Munt^hu oyo waa we/ mweenó/ ni Nuuru. ‘That man that you saw is Nuuru.’

Muunt^hu/ oyo/ mwalimu wa mwaanawá/ ni Nuuru. ‘The man who is my son’s teacher is Nuuru.’

Muunt^hu/ oyo/ waliko mwalimu wa mwaanawá/ mwakaa yaná/ ni Nuuru. ‘The man who was my son’s teacher last year is Nuuru.’

Muti oyo/ ni chigobe/ kolko muti uyu. ‘That tree is shorter than this tree.’
Muti oyo/ nii mule. ‘That tree is tall.’

Mwaana/ shtukulaa nyunyi/ oyo/ chimpelekela sulṭaani. ‘The boy took that bird and took it to the sultan.’

Mwanamke oyo/ ni msuura. ‘That girl is beautiful.’

Mwaarabu/ oyo/ chimweegsha/ chimwaambila/ nakalaant^he. ‘That Arab welcomed him and told him that he should sit down.’

Namfanyaayi/ maskini o(y)o. ‘What do you want from that poor fellow (i.e. quit harrasing him).’

Namfanyaayi/ oyo. ‘What do you want from him?’

Oo/ ngoombe/ mbaakó. ‘That one, the goat, is yours.’ (Note the use of [cl.1] demonstrative for a singular animal.)

Oyo (or: oo) maskiini/ fiile. ‘That poor fellow has passed away.’ Or, with focus on the subject: Oo maskiini/ fiiló.

oyo muunt^hu ‘that man’

Oyo/ nakhuviiḷó/ ni muunt^hu/ nt^haná/ hattá/ yaa ye/ kuja. ‘That man who is calling you has nothing even to eat.’

Oyo/ nii muná. ‘That one is my younger brother/sister.’

Uje muunt^hu/ chihada/ mp^huundra/ si oyo/ naakuḷó/ naawé/ nakuhada kuwaa ye/ nt^haako. ‘That man said, is the donkey not this one who is braying, and you are saying that he is not here?’

Waziiri/ oyo/ naayé/ oloshale naaye. ‘That minister also went with him.’ (Phon. Notice how the conjunction na triggers final accent when it forms a prosodic word with the pronoun, while na ‘with’ does not.)

oyo [cl.3] demonstrative pronoun

Mkono oyo/ ni mpotofu. ‘That arm is bent, crooked.’

mṭana oyo ‘that room (near you)’

Mṭungi oyo/ ni mwelpe. ‘That large pot is white.’

Muti oyo/ ni chigobe/ kolko muti uyu. ‘That tree is shorter than this tree.’

Shfunga safari/ chilawa/ karka muuyi/ oyo. ‘He set out on a journey and left from that town.’

oyo [cl.14] dem.

Mubjaana/ ni maskiini/ nt^hana maali/ na apó/ karka wakhtí oyo/nt^haykuwaaliko/ sahali/ munt^hu maskiini/ kumlola munt^hu taajiri. ‘The young man was poor, he did not have money, and there at that time it was not easy for a poor person to marry a rich person.’

pa- locative element (Many Bantu languages retain robustly the three locative elements pa ku mu from Proto-Bantu. Apart from the demonstratives apa, apo, and apaje and their strengthened forms, Chimiini does not utilize pa to any great extent. It appears in the phrase pamo(oyi) ‘together’. We recorded it in one example poloshelepi ‘where did you take it to?’, but this seems to be rare and marginal at best. Similarly rare, marginal is the form: Panaa nfuye/ maduriini. ‘There are monkeys in the bush.’

kh-pa

v. [Sw. pa SSED 358] (peelee) give (The infinitive prefix ku regularly changes to kh in front of verb stems that begin with a voiceless obstruent consonant (p t t s ch sh k); however, it retains its vowel in front of a verb stem with just one syllable -- cf. kufa ‘to die’. The stem -pa is irregular in that it induces the loss of the vowel in the infinitive and other prefixes.)

Abunawaasi/ shṭomolaa khaṭi/ chimpa Harun Rashiidi. ‘Abunawaasi took out the letter and gave it to Harun Rashiidi.’ (A sequence of verbs in the chi-narrative past tense often can be translated by introducing the conjunction ‘and’ between them.)

Hamadi/ hupeenda/ khpa waant^hu/ peesa. ‘Hamadi likes to give people money.’

Hamadi/ kampa Omari/ peesá/ (Omari/) suła kuwa oloshela. ‘If Hamadi had given Omari money, (Omari) would have gone.’ It is possible to reverse the order of the clauses: Omari/ suła kuwa oloshela/ Hamadi/ kampa peesá. ‘Omari would have gone if Hamadi had given him money.’)

Hamadi/ mpele mwaana/ chibuku cha Nuuru. ‘Hamadi gave the child Nuuru’s book.’ Or (at least in the speech of MI): Hamadi/ mpele mwaana/ chibukuche Nuuru. Or: Chibukuche Nuuru/ Hamadi/ mpele mwaana. Or: Nuuru/ chibuukuche/ Hamadi/ mpele mwaana. (But for some reason, MI did not accept: Hamadi/ mpele mwaana/ Nuuru/ chibuukuche. This point needs further research.)

kawapá/ peesa/ waana/ Omari ‘if he had given the children money, Omari’ (In this example, the subject has been postposed to the end of the clause, and the verb has been emphasized; the verb is a ka-tense verb, which triggers final accent, but the emphasis on the verb prevents the final accent to be realized on the complements due to the effects of the Accentual Law of Focus. The postposed subject would in any case be outside the scope of final accent derived from the verb. It should be noted, however, that GM does accept: kawapá/ peesa/ waana/ Omari. The final accent on the postposed subject seems connected to the unexplained final accent at the end of the clause shown in other examples below.)

Keesho/ nt^hakhupaa nguwo/ na riwú/ kumpeleka. ‘Tomorrow I will give you clothes and gifts to take to her.’

khpaa ndila ‘to continue to act as though one is right, even though one knows he is wrong’ khpa ruuhuye/ ndila ‘to justify oneself (lit. to give oneself the way, path)’

Khpa sadakha/ ni suura. ‘To give charity is good.’

kumpa bakhsha huundru ‘to fire s.o. (lit. to give someone a red envelope)’ – this expression is derived from the Italian practice of “bustagialla”, where written notification of dismissal is required and this notification would typically come in a yellow envelope; the term was particularly in use about 1964 when new Somali Prime Minister Abdirizak dismissed many civil servants, but is now obsolete and not recognized by younger speakers)

madrasa yaa mi/ mp^helo zibuukú ‘the school that I gave books to’ or madrasa yaa mi/ ni^hipelo zibuukú ‘the school that I gave it books’

Mwaalimu/ mpele mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘The teacher gave the child a book.’ (Cf. It is possible for the subject of this sentence, mwaalimu, to be the head of a corresponding relative clause: mwaalimu mpelo mwaaná/ chibuukú... ‘the teacher who gave the child a book...’ It is also possible for mwaana to be the head of a corresponding relative clause: mwana wa mwaalimu/ mpelo chibuukú... ‘the child whom the teacher gave a book...’ And it is also possible for chibuuku to be the head of a corresponding relative clause: chibuku cha mwaalimu/ mpelo mwaaná ‘the book that the teacher gave the child...’)

Mwaana/ chiiza/ kumpa. ‘The boy refused to give it to him.’

Mwana gani/ mpelo chibuukú. ‘Which child did you give a book?’

Mwaana/ peła peesa/ peelá. ‘The child was given money, that’s what he was given.’

Mi/ siná/ ^hchiint^hu/ khpa. ‘I do not have anything to give.’

Mp^hele balani/ keendra. ‘He gave me a promise (that he would) go.’ (cf. Nimpele balani/ keendrá. ‘I promised him (that I would) go.’)

Mp^hele zibuukú/ madrasá. ‘I gave books to the school.’

Mpeelé/ Tuumá/ peesá? ‘Did you give Tuuma money?’ (A possible answer: Ee/ nimpeelé/ Tuuma/ peesa. ‘Yes, I gave Tuuma money.’)

Mp^hele zibuukú/ madrasá. ‘I gave books to the school.’ (Note that the direct object cannot control an object marker on the verb: Nispele zibuukú/ madrasá. ‘I gave them (the books) to the school.’)

Mpeeleni/ maana. ‘What have you given the child?’ Or: Maana/ mpeeleni.

- Mpeete/ munt^hu (oyo) mpelo Omari/ peesá. ‘He found the man who gave Omari money.’ Or without focus on higher verb: Mpete munt^hu (oyo) mpelo Omari/ peesá.
- Muké/ chimpá/ maaná/ peesá/ teená. ‘If the woman gives the child money, what then?’ Or: Teená/ muké/ chimpá/ maaná/ peesá.
- mukhta Haliima/ wapele waaná/ peesá [H!H!H] ‘when Haliima gave the children money’ (This example represents the canonical prosody where there is downstep between the subject and the VP, as well as downstep between the two complements to the verb. One can put some emphasis on the subject by raising its pitch, which then induces a stronger downstep on the VP: [↑H!H!H]. Focus on waana would alter the prosody significantly, but it may be the case that some emphasis on waana can be achieved by manipulating the degree of downstep after it but without otherwise altering the prosody. This point requires further study.)
- mukhta Haliima/ wapeeló/ waana/ peesa [HH!!H!H] ‘when Haliima gave the children money’ (Emphasis on the verb changes the prosody of the sentence given immediately above: the verb is now not downstepped relative to the subject, and there is a radical lowering of the complement after the emphasized verb. Note also that the Accentual Law of Focus comes into play and bars final accent from extending to the complements of the verb.)
- Munt^hu mpelo Jaamá/ peesá/ ni Nuuru. ‘The man who gave Jaama money is Nuuru.’ (Examples like this show that a phonological phrase cannot be identified with a syntactic phrase, since the first PP in this example: munt^hu mpelo Jaamá ‘man (who) gave Jaama’ is obviously not a syntactic unit. It is also possible to have the phrasing: Muunt^hu/ mpelo Omari/ peesá/ ni Nuuru.)
- Munt^hu oyo mpelo Omari/ peesá/ ni Nuuru. ‘That man who gave Omari money is Nuuru.’ Or: Muunt^hu/ oyo/ mpelo Omari/ peesá/ ni Nuuru.
- Munt^hu wa Jaani/ mpelo chibuukú/ ile. ‘The man whom John gave a book came.’
- munt^hu wapele waant^hú/ woté/ peesá ‘the man who gave all the people money’
- Muusa/ mpele maana/ chibuuku. ‘Muusa has given the child a book.’ Or: Muusa/ mpele chibuuku/ maana. (Both of these sentences have a variant where the post-verbal noun is focused: Muusa/ mpele ^fmaana/ chibuuku. And: Muusa/ mpele ^fchibuuku/ maana. The presence of focus on the post-verbal noun is revealed by the corresponding simple yes-no questions where the out-of-focus complement undergoes accent shift: Muusa/ mpele ^fmwaana/ chibuukú? and Muusa/ mpele ^fchibuuku/ maaná? It is possible to focus a complement even if it is not in post-verbal position: Muusa/ mpele mwaana/ ^fchibuuku.)
- Muusa/ mpeepe/ maana/ chibuuku. ‘Muusa has given the child a book.’ (This sentence involves verb focus. Both complements are out-of-focus. In the corresponding simple yes-no question, both complements undergo accent shift: Muusa/ mpeepe/ maaná/ chibuukú?)
- Muusa/ nt^hakuwapa/ waana/ maandra. ‘Muusa did not give the children bread.’ Or, putting focus on the subject: Muusa/ nt^hakuwapa waaná/ maandrá. ‘Muusa did not give the children bread.’ (In main clauses, a negative verb is ordinarily phrase-final, as in the first example. However, in relative clauses – even pseudo-relative clauses – this phrasing is not operative. The first complement to the negative relative verb joins it in a phonological phrase. In the second sentence, it is only the final accent that reveals the pseudo-relative structure in the verb phrase; while affirmative active verbs end in the vowel –o in relative clauses, the negative verbs retain their final vowel.)
- Muusa/ wapele waana/ maandra. ‘Muusa gave the children bread.’ Or, with topicalization of the indirect object: Waana/ Muusa/ wapele maandra. ‘Bread, Muusa gave the children.’ Or, with a preposed focused indirect object: Waana/ Muusa/ wapele maandrá. ‘Children, Muusa gave them bread.’ Observe that when the preposed object is focused and not topicalized, then the verb is put into the pseudo-relative form. It is possible to make the focus very explicit by locating the copular ni in front of the focused element: Ni waana/ Muusa/ wapelo maandrá. ‘It is the children whom Muusa gave bread.’

Muusa/ wapelo waaná/ maandrá. ‘Muusa gave the children bread.’ (Syn. Focus may be put on the subject by converting the verb to a pseudo-relative form. The focus may be made more explicit by preceding the subject with the copula ni: Ni Muusa/ wapelo waaná/ maandrá.)

Na mp^ha majiibu/ kahima. ‘And give me the answer quickly.’

Nama/ jaani/ mishpa/ mp^haani. ‘Meat, you (pl.) eat! Bones, you (pl.) give to me!’ (A proverb.)

Naani/ mpelo Jaamá/ chibuukú. ‘Who gave Jaama a book?’ (Syn. The relative form of the verb is required. It is ungrammatical to say: Naani/ mpele Jaama/ chibuuku.)

Naani/ nt^h ampa Omari/ peesá. ‘Who did not give Omari money?’ (Observe that in the question, the immediately following complement may phrase with the negative verb. The answer to this question has the same phrasing, with the verb in what we refer to as the ‘pseudo-relative’ form: Nuuru/ nt^h ampa Omari/ peesá. ‘It is Nuuru who gave Omari money.’)

Naani/ nt^h ampá/ Omari/ peesa. ‘Who didn’t give Omari money?’

Naani/ mi/ simpe peesá. ‘Who shouldn’t I give money?’ (There is declination between the pre-verbal elements, but clear downstepping of the verb phrase.) Or: Naani/ mi/ peesa/ simpé. ‘Who I money should not give him?’ (Again, declination in the preverbal elements, but the verb is downstepped.)

Ni’ipele madrasá/ zibuukú. ‘I gave the school books.’

Nimeené/ oo muunt^hu/ mpelo Hamadí/ peesá. ‘I saw the man who gave Hamadi money.’ (The relative clause in this example has no internal focus, and is downstepped relative to muunt^hu, which itself does not exhibit radical downstepping.)

Nimeené/ (oo) muunt^hu/ mpeeló/ Hamadí/ peesá. ‘I saw the man who gave Hamadi money.’ (The prosody of this example sentence is somewhat complex. The main verb is focused, hence the phrasal separation of the main verb from its complement muunt^hu. This focus also explains why the final accent from the main verb does not extend to the complement. However, it is also the case that the complement is not radically downstepped. This contrasts with a sentence like Nimeené/ Omari. ‘I saw Omari.’, where the complement is radically downstepped. Furthermore, notice that the relative verb mpeeló is also focused, as indicated by its phrasal separation from its complements. The effect of this focus seems to be that while the first complement may fail to exhibit the final accent triggered by the relative verb, the second complement nevertheless exhibits this final accent. Further research is required as to whether this pattern is Nimeené/ muunt^hu/ mpelo Hamadí/ peesá. ‘I saw the man who gave Hamadi money.’ (The failure of Hamadi to undergo radical downstepping indicates that it bears focus. The next complement nevertheless did exhibit the final accent associated with the relative verb.

Nimpele balani/ kuwaa mi/ nt^hakeendra. ‘I gave him a promise that I would go.’ (Phon. In this example, there is emphasis on balani, which accounts for the fact that the final accent triggered by the main verb does not extend to the end of the complement clause.)

Nimpele Fardoosá/ tu/ peesa. [HH!H] ‘I gave only Fardoosa money.’

Nimpele Fardoosá/ peesá/ tu. [H!HH] ‘I gave Fardoosa only money.’

Nimpele peesá/ fardoosá/ tu [H!HH] ‘I gave money to only Fardoosa.’

Nimpele peesá/ tu/ Fardoosa. [HH!H] ‘I gave only money to Fardoosa.’

Nimpele Hamadí/ chibuukú. ‘I gave Hamadi a book.’ (In this sentence, chibuuku would be understood as being indefinite.) Cf. Nimpele Hamadí/ chibuuku. ‘I gave Hamadi a book.’ (In this sentence there is focus on Hamadi, as shown by the failure of the final accent triggered by the verb to project past Hamadi. As for chibuuku, it would still be interpreted as indefinite.) Cf.

Chibuuku/ nimpele Hamadí. ‘The book, I gave to Hamadi.’ (The preposing of chibuuku indicates that this noun is definite. Note that although an object marker can be used to indicate that a noun is definite, this strategy is not available for chibuuku in this example since it is the indirect object Hamadi that controls an OM on the verb, not the direct object chibuuku.)

Nimpele Jaamá/ kujá. 'I gave Jaama food.'

Nimpele mwaaná/ chibuukú. 'I gave the child a book.' (The verb -pa takes two objects: the indirect object functions as "primary" object and governs agreement on the verb, while the logical direct object functions as a "secondary" object. We should note that a reflexive pronoun must function as the primary object, thus one cannot say: Nimpele mwaaná/ ruuhuyá. 'I gave myself to the child.' The word order of the complements may be inverted without affecting the prosody: Nimpele chibuukú/ mwaaná. 'I gave a book to the child.')

Nimpele mwaaná/ chibuuku. 'I gave the child money.' Cf. Nimpele chibuukú/ mwaana. 'I gave a book to the child.' (In these two examples, the first complement after the verb is focused; as a result, the final accent triggered by the verb may not project to the second complement.)

Nimpeelé/ mwaana/ chibuuku. 'I have given the child a book.' (This example differs from the one immediately above in that the verb is focused and thus has a phrase break after it. Note that the final accent triggered by the first person singular past tense verb does not project past the verb onto the complement(s). We refer to this as the Accentual Law of Focus.)

Nimpele mwaaná/ chibuukú/ skolaani. 'I gave the child a book at school.' But it is perhaps more common to put the locative outside the scope of the final accent: Nimpele mwaaná/ chibuukú/ skolaani. With focus on maana:

Nimpele mwaaná/ chibuuku/ skolaani. It is possible to put the locative into the IAV position, in which case the final accent does not extend past it:

Nimpele skolaani/ mwaana/ chibuuku. Or: Nimpele skolaani/ chibuuku/ mwaana.

Nimpele maaná/ peesá. 'I gave the child money.'

Nimpele maaná/ peesa. 'I gave the child money.' (In this sentence, the noun peesa is focused in situ. Its pitch is raised and thus contrasts with a sentence such as: Nimpele maaná/ peesa. 'I gave the child money.' In this latter sentence, peesa is downstepped while maana bears the higher pitch associated with focus.)

Nimpele maaná/ peesa/ yana. 'I gave the child money yesterday.' (In this example peesa is focused in situ by being raised in pitch. But notice that despite the final-accent triggering verb, peesa is not in the scope of this final accent. The time adverb yana, as usual, is downstepped in pitch. However, our consultant also gave: Nimpele maaná/ peesá/ yana. It needs to be whether this is also a valid option.)

explored

Nimpele muunt^hú/ deení. 'I paid the man the debt.' Or: [Deeni/ nimpeelé/ ↓muunt^hu.]

Nimpele muunt^hú/ zawaadí. 'I gave someone a gift.' Or: Muunt^hu/ nimpele zawaadí. Or: Zawaadi/ nimpeelé/ muunt^hu.

Nnakhsu_la khupa peesá. 'I want to give you money.'

Npeelení. 'What did you pl. give?' (A possible answer: Shepele peesá. 'We gave money.')

Nt^hakhupaa dawa. 'I will give you medicine (for that).'

Nt^hampa mwanaamke/ chibuuku. 'I will give the girl a book.' Or: Nt^hampa chibuuku/ mwanaamke.

Nt^hawampa. or Want^hampa. 'They did not give him it.'

Nuuru/ mp^hele bałani/ kuwaa ye/ takeendra. 'Nuuru promised me that he would not go.'

Nuuru/ mpele maana/ peesa. 'Nuuru gave the child money.' (Note that this example, where peesa is focused in situ by means of pitch raising, contrasts with Nuuru/ mpele maana/ peesa. In this latter sentence, where maana is focused, peesa is downstepped.)

Nuuru/ mpele mwaana/ peesa/ mpeeló. 'Nuuru gave the child money, that's what he did' the focus.

triggers

- Nuuru/ mpele maana/ ^fpeesa/ niingi. ‘Nuuru gave the child a lot of money.’ (This example illustrates focus, in the form of high pitch, on peesa in an in situ position. It should be noted that niingi, which is phrasally separated from peesa, is not downstepped, but rather itself somewhat raised in pitch.)
- Nuuru/ mpele maana/ ^fpeesa/ yana. ‘Nuuru gave the child money yesterday.’ (The noun peesa is focused in situ by raising its pitch. The following time adverbial is downstepped.)
- Nuuru/ mpele Omari/ peesa. ‘Nuuru gave Omari money.’ (This sentence has canonical downstep intonation. In the simple yes-no question, there is no accent shift. In the exclamatory question, we find shift in the two phonological phrases that constitute the VP: Nuuru/ mpele Omari/ peesá!?)
- ^fNuuru/ mpelo Omari/ peesá. ‘It’s Nuuru who gave Omari money.’
- Nuuru/ nt^hampa/ Omari/ peesa. ‘Nuuru did not give Omari money.’ (Both of the complements to the negative verb are out-of-focus. This is verified by the corresponding yes-no question: Nuuru/ nt^hampa/ Omari/ peesá. Out-of-focus complements in yes-no questions undergo a shift of the accent to the final syllable. In the exclamatory question, the verb also undergoes accent-shift: Nuuru/ nt^hampá/ Omari/ peesá!?)
- Nuuru/ (waliko) shpa waana/ zibuuku. ‘Nuuru/ was giving children books.’
- Oloka maamo/ nakhubaanishe/ nakhupe chakuja chisuura. ‘Go to your mother (and) let her nourish you and give you good food.’
- Omari/ kawapa waaná/ peesá ‘if Omari had given the children money’ or, with verb emphasis: Omari/ kawapá/ waana/ peesa, where the Accentual Law of Focus explains the absence of final accent on the post-verbal complements (GM does accept the pronunciation: Omari/ kawapá/ waana/ peesá, but the explanation for this form is not apparent: it is not simply a failure of ALF to be enforced, since the phrase waana lacks a final H tone.)
- Peesa/ mi/ ^fmwaana/ simpe. ‘Money I the child don’t give (i.e. I shouldn’t give money to the child.’ (The raised pitch on ‘child’ indicates that it is the focus. The verb is downstepped. The focused pre-verbal element typically pseudo-relativization of the verb. The verb simpe is a negative subjunctive verb form with a null subject marker for first person in GM’s speech, as opposed to MI who has n- as the subject marker. In this example it has final accent due to be subject to pseudo-relativization triggered by focus on mwaana. One can also say: ^fMwaana/ mi/ peesa/ simpe. ‘The child I money I should not give him.’ (The verb is downstepped. The pre-verbal elements show some declination.) Or: ^fMwaana/ simpe peesá/ mi. ‘The child I shouldn’t give him money, me.’ (It is clear that the initial preposed complement is focused, since it is this focus that draws focus away from the verb and allows the verb to be in the same phrase as peesa.)
- Peesa/ mi/ simpe naani. ‘Money, me, whom should I not give?’ (The focus on naani explains why the negative imperative verb is not phrase-final: the default focus of a negative verb gives way to the focus on the complement.)
- Peesa/ nimpelē Tuumá. ‘Money, I gave to Tuuma.’ Or: ^fPeesa/ Tuuma/ nimpeló. ‘Money to Tuuma I gave.’ Or: ^fTuumá/ nimpeló/ peesa. ‘Tuumá I gave money.’
- ^fPeesa/ simpe Tuumá. ‘Money don’t give to Tuuma!’
- peesa/ Omari/ kawapa waaná ‘money, if Omari had given the children’ or, with verb emphasis: peesa/ Omari/ kawapá/ waana, where ALF puts waana outside the scope of the final accent associated with the ka-tense verb (GM does allow peesa/ kawapá/ waaná, but as noted above, it is not clear that this form involves simply the failure of ALF to hold.)
- ^fPeesa/ simpe Tuumá/ mpee kuja. ‘Money don’t give to Tuuma, give food!’
- pesa zaa mi/ nnakhsulo khupá ‘the money that I want to give you’ (Phon. Notice that although a word-final vowel typically lengthens inside a phrase in front of a CVCV, this does not happen in front of khupa. There is some evidence that this lengthening never occurs before a verb word, rather only before the other word classes.)

intonation
There

Omari/ chaakuja/ mpele Jaama. ‘As for the food, Omari gave it to Jaama.’
(Observe that the topicalized object chaakuja may be located between the subject and verb.)

Omari/ mpele Nureeni/ peesa. ‘Omari gave Nureeni money.’ Or, with verb-focus: Omari/ mpeele/ Nureeni/ peesa. (Phrasing alone does not reveal all prosodic contras. For instance, the transcription: Omari/ mpele Nureeni/ peesa. fails to capture the difference between two prosodic realizations of this sentence. Specifically, there is one pronunciation where there is no narrow focus; in this pronunciation, there is simply downstep across the sentence. The second pronunciation is somewhat different. is focus on Nureeni. This noun is followed by a slight pause, and the following word peesa is somewhat more radically lowered than in the downstep intonation case. It should be noted that Nureeni does not necessarily receive raised pitch and thus the drop in pitch after it is not so clear as when there is raised pitch associated with the Nureeni.)

Omari/ waant^hu/ wampele chaakuja. ‘As for Omari, the people gave him food.’ (Syn. The verb agreement establishes that Omari is a topicalized object, since it controls the object prefix m on the verb, on the verb.)

Omari/ wapele waant^hu/ chaakuja. ‘Omari gave people food.’ (Syn. In this sentence, the object waant^hu can be topicalized to a position between the subject and the verb: Omari/ waant^hu/ wapele chaakuja. This topicalization position is allowed since the object prefix wa on the verb clearly identifies waant^hu as the object. The subject Omari governs a phonologically null subject prefix on the verb. The object chaakuja could be topicalized rather than waant^hu: Omari/ chaakuja/ wapele waant^hu.

Shpe/ chendra naaye. ‘Give it to us so that we may go.’

Si/ shpeelé/ peesa. ‘We gave money.’

Sikhupi/ peesa. ‘I won’t give you the money.’

Simpé/ mwaana/ peesa. ‘Don’t give the child money!’ Or: Simpé/ peesa/ mwaana.

(There is a pattern of downstep across these sentences. The difference in word order of the complements has no effect on the pattern.) Or: Mwaana/ simpé/ peesa. ‘The child, do not give him money!’ (There is no downstep between the preposed complement and the verb, although there is some lowering of the verb. There is downstep between the verb and the following complement.) Or: Mwaana/ peesa/ simpé. ‘The child, money, don’t give him!’ (There is declination between the preposed complements, but the verb is downstepped.)

Simpé/ mukeewo. ‘Don’t give it to your wife.’ (In the default case, a negative imperative verb is phrase-final and thus phrasally separated from its complement. The negative imperative verb triggers final accent, but due to the default phrasing, this final accent normally appears on the verb form itself. However, it is possible for the complement to be phrased with the negative imperative verb and thus for the final accent to have wider scope. An example is: Simpe mukeewó/ haṭá. ‘Don’t give it to even your wife!’ In this example, default phrasing is not permitted: Simpé/ mukeewo/ haṭá. Another example where there is wide phrasing is in the exclamatory yes-no question: Simpe mukeewô!? ‘Don’t give it to your wife!?’)

Simpé/ Tuuma/ peesa. ‘Don’t give Tuuma money!’ Or: Peesa/ simpé/ Tuuma. ‘Money don’t give Tuuma!’ Or: Tuuma/ simpé/ peesa. ‘Tuuma, don’t give her money!’

Simpé/ Tuuma/ peesa/ mpe Nuura. ‘Don’t give Tuuma money, give Nuura.’ Or: Peesa/ simpé/ Tuuma/ mpe Haliima. ‘Money don’t give Tuuma, give Haliima!’

Simpé/ ye. ‘Don’t give it to her!’

Tabaru’i/ ni’ipele madrasá. ‘A contribution, I gave to the school.’

Taahá/ mpelee muke/ maandra. ‘Taaha gave the woman bread.’ (Cf. mandra ya Taahá/ mpeloo muké ‘the bread that Taaha gave the woman’ and muke wa Taahá/ mpelo maandra ‘the woman whom Taaha gave bread’.)

Tuuma/ simpe peesá/ nguwo/ mpe. ‘Tuuma, don’t give her money, clothes give her!'

Wake/ waant^hu/ wawapele chaakuja. 'As for the women, the people gave them food.' (Syn. In this example, the verb agreement is not sufficient to identify whether wake or waant^hu is subject. In this situation, the first interpretation (perhaps the only interpretation) is that the first noun is the topicalized object. Similar to this example is: Omari/ Jaama/ mpele chaakuja. 'As for Omari, Jaama gave him food.')

Wapeele/ 'wo. 'They gave (something) to them.'

Waspee. 'They gave [cl.8] to someone.' (It is apparently possible for the verb to agree with a logical object if the recipient is not present in the sentence.)

Waspee/ 'wo. 'They gave [cl.8].' (GM considered it possible for the right-dislocated wo in this example to be either the subject of the sentence or an unspecified recipient. More research is required to verify this ambiguity.)

Waspee/ 'zo. 'They gave (someone) them [cl.8].'

Wawapele. 'They gave (something) to them.'

We/ kampa Omari/ peesá/ (Omari) skafaanye/ jawabu izo. 'If you had given Omari money, he wouldn't have done those things.' (This is a sentence where there is no internal focus in the ka-clause, thus the final accent associated with the verb appears both on Omari and peesá.)

We/ kampa' Omari/ peesa/ skafaanye/ jawabu izo. 'If you had given money to Omari, he would not have done those things.' (Note that in this example with focus on the ka-tense verb, there is no final accent on the complements, due to the effect of the Accentual Law of Focus. However, an alternative pronunciation exists: We/ kampa' Omari/ peesá/ skafaanye/ jawabu izo. In this pronunciation, whereas the first complement displays default accent, the second displays final accent. This same pattern has been observed in relative clauses. We have never observed it in the case of the final accent associated with first/second person in the present and past tenses. Perhaps the difference is that in the ka-tense and in the relative clause, the final accent is associated with all forms and is not making a contrast between first/second and third person.)

We/ kampa peesá/ 'Omari/ suḷa khusaayda. 'If you had given money to Omari, he would have helped you.' (The focus on Omari in this sentence is conveyed by its failure to be downstepped relative to peesá.)

We/ kampa 'peesá/ Omari/ suḷa kuwa oloshole. 'If you had given money to Omari, he would have gone.' (Observe that in this example, there is focus on peesá, which accounts for the absence of final accent on Omari due to the effect of the Accentual Law of Focus.)

rel.

kh-panana v. rec. (-paneene) give one another

Walwaawo/ washpanana salaamu. 'Both gave one another greetings.'

Waana/ wapanene zawaadi. 'The children gave one another gifts.'

kh-pananika v. rec. p/s.

Zibuku izi/ haspananiki. 'These books cannot be given to each other.' (Syn.

One cannot say: Wana awa/ hawapananiki/ zibuuku. '[Lit.] these children cannot be given each other books.') kh-pananoowa v. rec. pass.

Ipanena zawaadi. 'There was giving of gifts to one another.' (The passive verb may have an impersonal subject; when it does so, the logical object follows the verb. is it possible to say Zawaadi/ ipaneena. One can have the logical object promoted to passive subject and govern the subject marker on the verb: Zawaadi/ spanena na waana. 'Gifts were given to one another by the children.'

Kuwaviḷa waant^hu/ kudirkamanoowa/ kuwonanoowa/ khpanana salaamu/ na kubadilana ra'yi. 'To call people to meet and to see one another and greet one another and exchange ideas.'

Spanena zoombo. 'Things were given to one another.' (Syn. The subject of this sentence is zoombo, but the subject is postponed after the verb.)

Zawaadi/ spanena na waana. 'Gifts were given to one another by children.' (The possibility of the logical object, i.e. the thing given, to be subject of a passive verb seems to be confined to the reciprocal. It is not possible to say Zawaadi/ spela waana. 'Gifts were given to the children.')

Zibuuku/ spaneena. 'Books were given to one another.'

kh-paapa v. freq.

Mp^helepele peesa. ‘He gave and gave me money.’ Or: Mp^helempele peesa. (The second form, where the object marker is repeated in both parts of the reduplication of the verb, is more emotive than the first form, which seems to be flat, neutral. The possibility of repeating the object marker is not restricted to the first person: Xupele(khu)pele peesa. ‘He gave and gave you money.’ Mpele(m)pele peesa. ‘He gave and gave him money.’ Shpele(sh)pele peesa. ‘He gave and gave us money.’ Npele(n)pele peesa. ‘He gave and gave you (pl.) money.’ Wapele(wa)pele peesa. ‘He gave and gave them money.’) kh-peejele v. appl.

Ye/ nt^hakuwanaacho/ choombo/ cha ye/ kumpejele maayi. ‘He did not have a vessel with which to give him water.’

kh-peelega v. p/s.

Nuuru/ hupeelega. ‘Nuuru can be given things (i.e. he does not refuse to accept things when offered).’

kh-poowa v. pass. (pele) be given

Ali/ pele bakhsha huundru. ‘Ali was fired (lit. was given a red letter).’

Chibuuku/ pele maana/ na maalimu. ‘The book, the child was given it by the teacher.’ (Syn. This is a rearrangement of the basic sentence:

Maana/ pele chibuuku/ na maalimu. ‘The child was given a book by the teacher.’ The subject of the passive verb is maana and not chibuuku.)

chibuku pele maana/ na maalimu ‘the book that the child was given by the teacher’

Fardoosa/ nt^hakhpoowa/ peesa. ‘Fardoosa was not given money.’ (Phon.

The simple yes-no question shifts the accent in the out-of-focus complement: Fardoosa/ nt^hakhpoowa/ peesa? The emphatic version also shifts the accent of the negative verb: Fardoosa/ nt^hakhpoowa/ peesa!?) Fardoosa/ nt^hakhpoowa peesa. ‘It was) Fardoosa (who) was not given money.’

Fardoosa/ pele peesa. ‘Fardoosa was given money.’ Or: Fardoosa/ pele/ peesa. (Phon. The simple yes-no questions: Fardoosa/ pele peesa? and Fardoosa/ pele/ peesa? The only natural exclamatory version: Fardoosa/ pele peesa!?)

Fardoosa/ pele peesa. ‘Fardoosa was given money.’ Or: Fardoosa/ peela/ peesa. ‘Fardoosa was given money.’

Fardoosa/ peela/ ni. ‘What was Fardoosa given?’ Possible answers: Fardoosa/ pele peesa. ‘Fardoosa was given money.’

Fardoosa/ peesa/ peela. ‘Fardoosa, money, was given.’

Hamadi/ pele peesa? ‘Was Hamadi given money.’ (This is a simple yes-no question, hence there is no downstepping of the accented syllable in the second phrase and it seems that the pitch of the sentence may be raised in comparison to the corresponding statement. A possible answer to this question would be: Ee/ Hamadi/ pele peesa. ‘Yes, Hamadi was given money.’ In this response, the pitch is a bit lowered and there is downstepping of the accented syllable in the second phrase.)

FHamadi/ pele peesa? ‘Was it Hamadi who was given money?’ (The corresponding statement, where focus is on Hamadi, is: FHamadi/ pele peesa. ‘Hamadi was given money.’ The difference in pronunciation is that the statement involves a downstepping of the accented syllable in the second phrase.)

Hamadi/ peela/ peesa? ‘Was Hamadi given money?’ (In this simple yes-no question, the verb is focused and thus phrasally separated from its complement. The complement, being out of focus, undergoes shift of accent to the final syllable. A possible answer to this question would be: Ee/ Hamadi/ peela/ peesa. ‘Yes, Hamadi was given the money.’ Notice that in the statement, the out of focus complement does not undergo accent shift; accent shift affects only the question.)

FHamadi/ peesa/ peela. ‘Hamadi money was given.’

Hamadi/ (ni) peesa/ peela. ‘Hamadi, money he was given.’

Hamadi/ (ni) peesa/ peela/ khfanya jawabu iyo. ‘Hamadi, money he was given to do that thing.’

Jaama/ peela/ kuja/ naami. ‘Jaama was given food by me.’ Or: Kuja/ pele Jaama/ naami. ‘Food, Jaama was given by me.’ (But it is not grammatical for kuja to be the passive subject: Kuja/ ipela Jaama/ naami. ‘Food was given to Jaama by me.’)

Jaama/ pele peesa. ‘Jaama was given money.’ (Note the ungrammaticality of Peesa/ pele Jaama. ‘Money was given to Jaama.’)

Khamsiiniza/ mp^heeeté/ isa/ mi/ nakhsuulá/ ye/ kuviloowa/ khpoowa/ ndrutize khamsiini. ‘My fifty blows, I have received; now I was him to be called and to be given his fifty blows.’
Madrasa/ ipela tabaru’i/ naami. ‘The school was given a contribution by me.’

Madrasa/ ipela zibuuku. ‘The school was given books.’ (Cf. the ungrammaticality of *Zibuuku/ spela madrasa/ naami. ‘Books were given the school by me.’
maskiini wa Maka nama hupoowa [st.] ‘the poor people of Mecca are given meat’

Maana/ pela chibuuku/ na maaḷimu. ‘The child was given a book by the teacher.’

mana pela chibuukú/ na maaḷimú ‘the child who was given a book by the teacher’

Mi/ spoowi/ chaakuja/ chisuura. ‘I am not given good food.’

Mp^hela balani/ na Nuuru/ kuwaa ye/ takeendra. ‘I was given a promise by Nuuru that he would go.’ (Phon. The position of the agent phrase in this example requires that emphasis be put on it, which explains why the final accent triggered by the main verb does not extend past it into the complement sentence. Note also that the agent phrase does not come between the verb and balani.)

Muda waa ye/ peelá/ kuwaka numba iyo/ ni skuu nt^hatu. ‘The period of time that he was given to built the house was three days.’

Muunt^hu/ pela deeni/ naami. ‘The man was paid the debt by me.’

Muunt^hu/ pela peesa. ‘The man was given money.’ Or: Peesa/ pela muunt^hu.

Muunt^hu/ pela zawaadi/ naami. ‘The man was given a gift by me.’ Or: Zawaadi/ pela muunt^hu/ naami.

Mwaana/ pela chibuku cha Nuuru. ‘The child was given Nuuru’s book.’ Or: Mwaana/ pela chibukuche Nuuru/ na Hamadi. But MI did not like: Mwaana/ pela Nuuru/ chibukuche/ na Hamadi. It is possible to prepose the possessive phrase: Chibuku cha Nuuru/ pela mwaana/ na Hamadi. ‘Nuuru’s book, the child was given it by Hamadi.’ Observe that the subject of the passive verb is mwaana. The subject cannot be chibuuku: Chibuku cha Nuuru/ shpela mwaana/ na Hamadi. Also, it is best to prepose the simple possessive phrase chibuku cha Nuuru. It is possible to have the restructured possessive preposed: Nuuru/ chibukuche/ pela mwaana/ na Hamadi. Our consultant MI was less inclined to accept: ?Chibukuche Nuuru/ pela mwaana/ na Hamadi. Notice that these preferences are opposite to the case where the restructured possessive is post-verbal.)

Mwaana/ leelo/ nakhpowa ina. ‘Today the child is being given a name.’

Mwaana/ pela chibukuche Nuuru/ na Hamadi. ‘The child was given Nuuru’s book by Hamadi.’ (Syn. The "restructured" possessive phrase chibukuche Nuuru ‘[lit.] his book Nuuru = Nuuru’s book’ is one that our consultant MI employed.)

Mwanaamke/ takhpowa chibuuku/ naami. ‘The girl will be given a book by me.’ Or: Chibuuku/ takhpowa mwanaamke/ naami. (Note that in the alternative version of the sentence, the subject of the passive verb is postposed into IAV position, but continues to control the SM on the verb.)

nama mbiti maskiini yote khpoowa [st.] ‘all the raw meat (of the slaughtered animal) is to be given to the poor’

Naani/ pela chibuukú/ na mwaalimú. ‘Who was given a book by the teacher?’

Ndru/ shtukula zoombo/ zaa ye/ peelá. ‘The relative took the things that he had been given.’

Pela peesa/ Fardoosa. ‘She was given money, Fardoosa.’

Pela peesa/ Hamadi. ‘He was given money, Hamadi.’ (The postposed subject is radically lowered, indicating its out of focus nature. Such a sentence might be a response to a question like: Hamadi/ peelani. ‘What was Hamadi given?’ In a simple yes-no question, the postposed subject would undergo accent shift: Peļa peesa/ Hamadi?

Peļa peesá/ (ni) Hamadi. ‘The one who was given money is Hamadi.’

Peļa peesá/ ni muunt^hu. ‘The one who was given money is the man.’

Peesa/ Fardoosa/ peelá. ‘Money, Fardoosa was given.’

Peesa/ Hamadi/ peelá. ‘Money, Hamadi has been given it.’ Or: Hamadi/

peesa/ peelá. ‘Hamadi, he has been given the money.’ (In these two examples, the verb is not put in pseudo-relative form, thus it is not the case that there is focus on either pre-verbal noun phrases. GM labelled both sentences as confirmations that Hamadi had been given money. In the first sentence, it seemed that Hamadi is the pitch peak, albeit not raised as when focused. Perhaps the gloss should be ‘as for the money, Hamadi was given it’.)

Peesa/ Hamadi/ peelá. ‘Money Hamadi was given.’ Or: Ni Peesa/ Hamadi/

peelá.

Peesa/ naani/ peelá. ‘Who was given money?’ Possible answer: Peesa/ peļa

Fardoosa. ‘Money was given to Fardoosa.’ Or: Peesa/ Fardoosa/ peelá ‘Fardoosa was given money.’

Peesa/ (ni) Hamadi/ peelá. ‘Money, Hamadi was given.’

Peesa/ (ni) Hamadi/ peelá/ kumsayda mana oyo. ‘Money, Hamadi was given to assist that boy.’

Peesa/ Hamadi/ peelá/ khtumba khabri. ‘Money Hamadi was given to dig the grave.’

Peesa/ Hamadi/ peelá/ kumlipa Omari. ‘Money Hamadi was given to pay Omari.’

Peesa/ Hamadi/ peelá/ kumsayda mana oyo. ‘Money Hamadi was given to assist that boy.’

Peesa/ peļa Fardoosá. ‘Money Fardoosa was given.’

Peesa/ peelá/ Fardoosa. ‘(It was) money (that) was given to Fardoosa.’

Peesa/ peļa Hamadi. ‘Money was given to Hamadi.’ (This sentence, where the subject is postposed and phrased with the passive verb, answers the question: Peesa/ peļa naani. ‘Money was given to whom?’)(The simple yes-no question version of this sentence has no accent shift: Peesa/ peļa Hamadi? The emphatic question, as usual, does shift the accent of the verb phrase: Peesa/ peļa Hamadi!? It is possible to focus the initial NP in this sentence: Peesa/ peļa Hamadi. ‘Money was given Hamadi.’) Peesa/ peelá/ Hamadi. ‘Money he was given, Hamadi.’ (In this example, there is focus on peesa, but also on the verb, with the subject Hamadi postposed and radically lowered.)

Peesa/ peļa naani. ‘Money was given to whom?’ A possible answer: Peesa/ peļa Fardoosa. ‘Money was given to Fardoosa.’ (Phon. The simple yes-no question version of this answer is: Peesa/ peļa Fardoosa?

while the exclamatory version is Peesa/ peļa Fardoosá!?)

Shkoma skuu nt^hatu/ wanapowa izo/ uje/takhfakaťó/ takhtiindó/ ka himahimá/ takendroo kujá/ ndiyé/ hihabba. ‘When three days have passed, let them (the goats) be given those (the husks and the hay); the one who will run, who will break (his restraining ropes) quickly, who will go and eat, that is the one who is the younger one.’

Waana/ watakhpowa zibuuku/ naami. ‘The children will be given books by me.’ Or: Zibuuku/ watakhpowa waana/ naami. (Syn. Notice that although zibuuku has been fronted in the second sentence and waana placed in post-verbal position, it is waana that is the subject of the passive verb and not zibuuku, as is seen from the subject agreement prefix wa.)

Wé/ hupowaa zijo/ kaa nama/ naami/ hupowa makooko/ makavu/ bilaa shtoowelo. ‘You are given zijo with meat, and I am give the crust of rice, dry, without relish.’

Ye/ nt^hakhpowa chiint^hu. ‘She was not given anything.’

rel. nom.

m-pa (wa-) n. one who gives (Phon. This word is exceptional in that the [cl.1] prefix mu generally retains its vowel when followed by a monosyllabic root. In this example, the vowel unexpectedly elides, and we get mpa rather than mupa.)

mpaa kuja ‘one who gives food’ mpaa tele ‘one who gives advice’ wu-po n. 14 the act of giving m-poowa n. 1/2 one who is given mpowaa kuja/ na waanthu ‘one who is given food by people’

pa ideo.
Masku/ si/ nthashkukhaadira/ kulaala/ ka kulaṭilowa bundukhu/ pa pa pa pa!
 ‘At night we could not sleep because of gun shots pa pa pa pa!’ pa na pu fixed expression: of great magnitude Fanyiliza haruusi/ ya pa/ na pu. ‘For her was made a great wedding.’

pa’ ideo.
Muke/ shereele/ potelee nt’i/ pa’! ‘The woman slipped and fell on the ground pa’!’ kh-paga v. [Ital. paga] (pagiile) pay kh-paka v. [Sw. paka SSED 360] (pashile) coat with paint, apply, smear, rub on; pass on a communicable disease

-a khpaka ‘[lit.] of coating -- meaning: 1. used for a relative by marriage; 2. said when a person shows a quality (friendship, religious devotion, etc.) that is just a veneer, while it is not felt deeply inside.’
amiyá/ wa khpaka ‘the man married to my aunt from father’s side (lit. uncle of coating)’ islamu wa khpaka ‘a superficial Muslim’ khpakaa dawa ‘to apply medicine externally’
Hamadi/ mpashile Ali/ ijarah/ dawa. ‘Hamadi rubbed medicine on Ali’s wound.’
Hamadi/ mpashile ijarah/ dawa. ‘Hamadi applied medicine to the wound.’
Haliima/ mpashile mwaana/ dawa. ‘Haliima rubbed medicine on the child.’
Hamadi/ pashile ijarah/ dawa. ‘Hamadi applied medicine to the wound.’
ye/ kampaka mwaaná/ dawá ‘if he rubbed medicine on the child’ ye/ kampaka mwaaná/ dawá/ mkonooni ‘if he rubbed medicine on the child’s arm’ ye/ kampaka mwaaná/ dawá/ mkonooni/ ka chiguwó ‘if he rubbed medicine on the child’s arm with a rag’ khpaka mafta ‘to apply oil’ mashuungiye khpaka mafta haraamu [st.] ‘to apply oil to his hair is forbidden’ Mpashile Nuuru/ mafta/ ka chiguwo. ‘He rubbed oil on Nuuru with a rag.’

khpaka maraḍi etc. ‘to pass on, communicate a disease etc.’
Mp^hashile hargabu. ‘He passed on the cold to me.’
Mp^hashile maraḍi. ‘He passed on the disease to me.’

khpaka miskhi ‘to apply perfume’ (Note that Eastern perfumes have oil as base (not alcohol) and are not applied as a spray.)

khpaka ranji ‘to paint’

Mp^hashile ^franj/ faṭuura. ‘I painted the car. (There is focus on ranji, which accounts for the default accent on faṭuura.) Or with emphasis on the verb: Mp^hashilé/ ranji/ faṭuura. ‘I painted the car.’ (The emphasis on the verb accounts for the failure of the accent to project onto the following complements. A sentence like this answers the question: Pashilé/ ranj/ faṭuura?) Or with preposing of faṭuura: Faṭuura/ mp^hashile ranj. Or with preposing and focusing of ranji: ^fRanj/ mp^hashiló/ faṭuura.
Nuuru/ pashile lkuta/ ranji. ‘Nuuru painted the wall.’

Pashile nuumba/ ranji/ ka burashii nk^hulu. ‘He painted the house with a big brush.’

Pashile nuumbaye/ ranji /nelpe. ‘He painted his house (the color) white.’

Shaghaale/ pashile nuumba/ ranji. ‘The workman painted the house.’ (Cf. ranji ya shaghaale/ pashilo nuumbá ‘the paint that the applied to the house’.)

khpaka saabuni ‘to butter someone up -- [lit.] put soap on’ khpaka zilaatu/ ranji ‘to polish shoes’

Khupashilo waandá/ simpaké/ pilpili. ‘One who applies eye-makeup to you, don’t apply pepper to him.’ (A proverb.)

Mp^hashile hargabu. ‘He passed on the cold to me.’

rel.

kh-pakana v. rec. apply to one another (-pakeene) khpakana maraði ‘to communicate a disease to one another’

Waana/ wapakenee dawa. ‘The children rubbed medicine on one another.’

kh-pakanika v. rec. p/s.

kh-pakanoowa v. rec. pass.

Ipakenaa dawa. ‘There was rubbing on of medicine to one another.’

maraði/ hupakanoowá ‘a contagious disease (lit. a disease which is passed from one to another)’ kh-pakaapaka v. freq.

Basi/ ye/ shfakata/ teena/ chiya numbaani/ shpakapaka ruuhuye/ mi’ivu. ‘So she [“Cinderella”] ran, then she came to the house, and she rubbed ashes all over herself.’

Mp^hashilepashilee dawa. ‘He rubbed and rubbed me with the medicine.’ Or:

Mp^hashilemp^hashilee dawa. (The second form, with a repeated object marker, has a similar meaning, but is more emotive than the first formation, which is flat, neutral in its usage. All object markers may exhibit the same behavior as the first person singular: Khupashile(khu)pashilee dawa. ‘He rubbed and rubbed you with the medicine.’ Mpashile(m)pashilee dawa. ‘He rubbed and rubbed him with the medicine.’)

Shpakapaka ruuhuye/ mi’ivu. ‘She rubbed ashes all over her (body).’

kh-pakika v. p/s. (-pakishile)

Dawa iyi/ haypikiki/ ka mkono. ‘This medicine cannot be applied by hand.’

Dawa izi/ haspakiki/ waana. ‘These medicines cannot be rubbed on the children (e.g. they smell too bad).’

Dawa izi/ hupakika waana. ‘These medicines can (only) be rubbed on children.’ Cf. Dawa izi/ hupakika/ waana. ‘These medicines can be rubbed on children.’

Dawa/ spakishile waana. ‘Medicines were able to be rubbed on the children.’ (Syn. Note that both the direct and the indirect objects in the simple sentence are able to function as the subject of the passive/stative verb. This contrasts with the passive form where only the indirect object may function as the subject.)

Mwaana/ pakishilee dawa. ‘The child was able to be applied to the medicine.’

Mwana uyu/ hapakiki/ dawa. ‘This child cannot have medicine rubbed on him (e.g. he won’t stay still so that one can apply the medicine).’

Wana awa/ hupakikaa dawa. ‘These children can be rubbed medicine on kh-pakikila v. p/s. appl. (-pakikiliile)

Mwaana/ mpakikiliile maamaye/ dawa. ‘The child was able to be applied medicine to for his mother.’

kh-pakiloowa v. appl. pass. (pakiliila)

Burashii nk^hulu/ ipakiliila nuumba/ ranji. ‘A large brush was used to paint the house.’ (Syn: Notice that the instrument is the subject of this applied passive verb. One can also have the instrument be the subject of the passive relative verb: Yiikopi/ burashi ipakiliila nuumbá/ ranji/ na Nuuru. ‘Where is the brush that was used to paint the house by Nuuru?’)

Chiguwo/ shpakiliila Nuuru/ mafta. ‘A rag was used to rub oil on Nuuru.’ (Syn: Our consultant MI rejected having Nuuru as the subject of the passive applied verb in this sentence: Nuuru/ pakiliila chiguwo/ mafta. or Nuuru/ pakiliila mafta/ chiguwo. However, he did accept this construction in the relative clause form: Chiikopi/ chiguwo cha

Nuuru/ pakilila mafta. ‘Where is the cloth that Nuuru was rubbed on oil with?’ Though one can also say Chiikopi/ chiguwo shpakilila Nuuru/ mafta. ‘Where is the cloth that was used to rub oil on Nuuru?’

kh-pakila v. appl. (pakiliile) apply with, for Burashii nk^hulu/ pakiliile nuumba/ ranji. ‘A large brush, he used it to paint the house.’

Chiguwo/ mpakiliile Nuuru/ mafta. ‘He used a rag to rub oil on Nuuru.’ (Syn: It is preferred for the instrument to be preposed when the verb is in the applied instrumental form. If it is not preposed, then its appearance in the verb phrase is similar to what in English is called an afterthought: Mpakiliile Nuuru/ mafta/ chiguwo. ‘He used it to rub oil on Nuuru, a cloth.’)

Chiikopi/ chiguwo chaa ye/ mpakiliilo Nuuru/ mafta. ‘Where is the cloth that he used to rub oil on Nuuru?’ (Syn: One would not use in this sentence the basic verb: Chiikopi/ chiguwo chaa ye/ pashilo Nuuru/ mafta/ kaa cho. The simple verb and a ka-phrase is used to introduce new information.)

Na shpakila/ kuja/ niingi/ ntho/ kuja/ husuloowa/ khtoshá/ waanthú/ na hayawaani/ stakuwaamó/ karka jahazi. ‘And he loaded a lot of food (on the ark), food that should be sufficient for the people and animals that will be aboard the ship.’

Yiikopi/ burashi ya Nuuru/ pakiliilo nuumba/ ranji. ‘Where is the brush that Nuuru used to paint the house?’ (Syn: In this construction one does not use the simple verb plus ka-phrase in the relative clause: Yiikopi/ burashi ya Nuuru/ pashilo nuumba/ ranji/ kaa yo.)

kh-pakisha v. caus. (pakishiize)

Boora/ mpakishize mwaana/ lkuta/ ranji. ‘Boora had the child paint the wall.’

Suufi/ mpakishize mwaalimu/ mwaana/ dawa. ‘Suufi had the teacher rub medicine on the child.’

kh-pakishanya v. caus. rec. (pakisheenyee)

Suufi/ wapakishenye waana/ dawa. ‘Suufi had the children apply medicine to one another.’ (In many instances, the presence of a reciprocal extension precludes the appearance of an object marker on the verb. In this example, however, the OM and the reciprocal co-occur.)

Waalimu/ wapakishenye dawa. ‘The teachers had one another apply medicine (first interpretation: on one another).’

Waalimu/ wapakishenye mwaana/ dawa. ‘The teachers had one another rub medicine on the child.’ (Note that this sentence does not carry the interpretation ‘the teachers had the children rub medicine on one another’.)

Waalimu/ wapakishenye waana/ dawa. ‘The teachers had one another rub medicine on the children.’ (This sentence cannot mean that the teachers had the students rub medicine on the teachers. Nor can it mean that the teachers had the children rub medicine on one another.)

kh-pakishiliza v. caus. appl. (pakishiliize)

Boora/ mpakishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ ranji. ‘Boora caused Suufi’s child to apply paint.’

kh-pakishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Boora/ wapakishilizenye waana/ lkuta/ ranji. ‘Nuuru and Boora had one another’s children paint the wall.’

kh-pakoowa v. pass. (pashila) (Ordinarily, double object verbs do not allow both objects to be promoted to be the passive subject; it is only the primary object, the indirect object, that is the passive subject. The verb -paka seems to be different, as the examples below attest.)

Chigaari/ shpashila ooliyo/ na Ali. ‘The car was oiled to by Ali.’

Dawa/ spashila waana. ‘The medicine [cl.10] was applied to the children.’ (Cf. the relative clause: dawa spashila mwaaná ‘the medicine that was applied to the child’.) (It is also possible for dawa to be initial, but for the verb to have agreement with the indirect object: Dawa/ pashila mwaana. ‘The medicine, the child had it applied to him.’ The relative clause form: dawa ya mwaana/ pashila... ‘the medicine that the child had applied to him.’)

Ijaraha/ ipashilaa dawa/ na Hamadi. ‘The wound was applied medicine to by Hamadi.’

khpakowa ranji ‘to be painted’

Ipashilá/ ni ranji. ‘What was applied is paint.’

Lkuta ili/ lpashila ranji. ‘This wall was painted.’ (A right-dislocated version is possible: Lpashila ranji/ lkuta ili. ‘Was painted, this wall.’ The dislocated subject is radically lowered in pitch. This radical lowering is obvious when the sentence above is compared with, say: Lpashila ranji/ ni lkuta ili. ‘What was painted is this wall.’ In this sentence, the usual downstep intonation applies, but the lowering ni lkuta ili is not nearly as radical as in the dislocation case.)

Lpashila ranji/ ni lkuta. ‘What was painted is the wall.’

Nuumba/ ipashila ranji/ nelpe. ‘The house was painted white.’

Ranji/ ipashila. ‘Paint was applied to the wall.’

Mwaana/ pashilaa dawa/ na Haliima. ‘The child had medicine rubbed on him by Haliima.’

Waana/ wapashilaa dawa. ‘The children had medicine applied to them.’

m-paka

n. 9/10 [Sw. paka SSED 360] cat; [pron: mp^haka] (Several of the examples below illustrate that the initial element in this noun is a pre-nasalized stop, i.e. a sound unit that counts as a single consonant. Phrase-final words of the shape CV and CVCV induce the lengthening of a preceding word-final vowel in the same phrase. The noun mp^haka systematically shows this lengthening behavior.)

Chilaweeni/ chimmerenii mp^haka. ‘Let us go out and look for a cat.’

Hamadi/ na Huseeni/ hawakhaadiri/ karka mahala mooyi/ ni kana/ mp^haka/ na mp^haná. ‘Hamadi and Huseeni cannot stay in one place, they are like a cat and a rat.’

Hawawonaani/ kanaa mp^haka/ naa mphaná. ‘They cannot see each other, like a cat and a rat.’

Kamaa mp^haka/ naa mp^haná. ‘Like a cat and a rat.’ (A proverb.)

...kiwa/ mukhtaá mp^haka/ nakhtolezó ‘to know when the cat is approaching’ kublaa mp^haka ‘to kill a cat’

kulaa mp^haka ‘to buy a cat’

Llaakini/ ye/ chimwonaá mp^haka/ hufakaṭa/ -- kuulu/ nt^homoza--/ humera salaama/ na amaani. ‘But when he (e.g. a rat) sees a cat, he runs away -- (my) leg, take me to a safe place! -- he seeks security and peace.’

Mbishilee mp^haka. ‘He hit the cat.’

Mp^haka/ haani/ maayi/ chishikowa shkosi. ‘The cat does not drink water if grasped by the throat.’ (A proverb. The action described is that of grabbing a cat by the neck and forcing its mouth to the water. Similar to ‘One can lead a horse to water, but not make him drink.’)

Mwenee mp^haka. ‘He saw the cat.’ (Notice that a [cl.9/10] noun referring to an animal controls [cl.1], or ‘human’, agreement on the verb. In this case, the agreement indicates a definite cat. If it is an indefinite cat, the object marker may be omitted: Wenee mp^haka. ‘He saw a cat.’)

Nini/ mp^haka/ khufanyiizeni. ‘What did the cat do to you?’

rel.

i-paka (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ipaka iyi ‘this aug. cat’

mipaka aya ‘these aug. cats’

Wa’ineenzele/ masaafa/ makulu/ hattá/ wachidirkamana/ na ipaka/ ya maduriini/ ya lamna yingine/ mwaana/ chimubla/ na wataaná/wachi'ikookota/ haṭá/ muyiini. 'They walked a long distance until they encountered a wild bush cat of a different kind. The boy killed it and the servants dragged it up to the town.' (Morph. The object agreement in this passage is interesting. When the ipaka is considered as a live, animate thing, it controls a [cl.1] object prefix in chimubla, but when the carcass is being dragged back to town, the agreement is [cl.9], wachi'ikookota.)

l-paka (mi-) n. 11/4 aug.

lpaka ili 'this aug. cat'

m(w)-aampaka n. kitten; [pron. m(w)aamp^haka]

ch-anaampaka n. kitten; [pron. chanaamp^haka]

Cho/ chanaamp^haka/ chileele. 'It, the kitten, slept.'

sh-paka (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

m-paka (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mpaka SSED 362] boundary, limit

Kilaa chiint^hu/ chinayo mpaka. 'Everything has its limit.' (A proverb.)

mipaka yaa nt^hi 'borders of the country'

Mp^hendo za waawaye/ spisilo mpaká/ nt^haskumwiinfa/ Suufi/ na zimpoṭeeze. 'The love of his father which passed beyond any boundary, was not useful to Suufi, and it lead him astray.'

Pisile mpaka. 'He went beyond, crossed the boundary.' (This example provides a clear example of the difference between the [cl.3] noun class prefix and the [cl.9/10] nasal prefix. The [cl.3] prefix is underlyingly mu-, but elides its vowel in front of a consonant. In mpaka, the resulting word has a sequence of a nasal consonant m followed by a voiceless stop p. This structure is a consonant cluster, and such consonant clusters do not allowing a preceding word-final vowel to lengthen. In contrast, a noun like mp^haka 'cat' has a nasal prefix that assimilates to the following stem-initial consonant and forms a pre-nasalized consonant with it. A pre-nasalized consonant is a single consonant, but one with two components: the nasal onser to the consonant and its oral release. When a voiceless stop is part of a prenasalized consonant, it is aspirated in Chimiini. Word-final long vowels are lengthened in front of CV and CVCV words that are final in a phrase. Thus there is lengthening in front of mp^haka.)

Wene mpaka. 'He saw the boundary.'

m-paka

prep. [Sw. mpaka SSED 362] until (There is no morphophonemic evidence that this preposition should be analyzed as /m-paka/; nevertheless such an analysis seems likely. First, there is the obvious semantic connection with m-paka 'boundary, limit'. Second, the pronunciation mp and not mp^h shows that /mp/ in this word is not a prenasalized stop, but rather a sequence of m and p. Such sequences in Chimiini are generally the result of combining a prefix mu with a stem-initial p.)

Abdalla/ kama oyo/ shṭukulaa nt^hupa/ iyo/ chendra naayo/ mpaka numbaani/ ka sultaani/ kumfanyiliza mwanaamke/ dawa. 'Abdalla, like that, carried that bottle and went with it up to the house of the sultan's to administer medicine to the girl.'

kumlindra mpakaa ye/ na Sultani Daraayi/ wachiruda ka muyiini 'to wait for him until he and Sultan Daraayi returned from town' mpaka keesho 'until tomorrow'

Mzeele/ chanza khfanyaa nk^he/ mpaka/ wachiya/ askari/ wa sultaani. 'The old man began shouting until the sultan's soldiers came.'

Wachilaala/ mpaka fijiri. 'They slept until morning.'

Waant^hu/ awo/ wachi'itukula/ sanduukhu/ iyo/ mpaka/ Ifuwooni. 'Those people carried that box up to the shore.' (This example illustrates that although in most of our data, we recorded the preposition mpaka phased with its complement, it is possible to put some emphasis on mpaka and phrase it separately from the complement.)

We/ nakhsula waaná/ wanakale kaa ndalá/ mpaka mukhta we/ takuuyó. 'Do you want the children to stay hungry until you come?'

Ye/ hukoða Chiswahili/ jisa suura/ haali/ nt^hakhsoomá/ mpaka/ ye/ welo mzeelé. 'He speaks Kiswahili well even though he did not learn it until he was old.'

i-pakacha

n. [Sw. pakacha "a light basket – used for carrying fish or fruit, etc., made by plaiting part of a coco-nut leaf" SSED 362] basket (As in the Swahili definition, it is a basket made of coconut-palm leaves that is used (only once) to carry fruit and vegetables to the market; it is different from shkapu, which is a basket made of plaited milala and used repeatedly.)

Karkaa ndila/ Alfaani/ chimwambila Buluukhiya/ kumsaayda/ khfanya ipakacha. 'On the road, Alfaani asked Buluukhiya to help him make a basket.’

Mi/ mbeenopó/ ningile ipakachaani. ‘When I saw it, I entered into the basket.’

kh-pakata

v. [Sw. pakata SSED 361] (pakeete) hold a child or anything on the knees

kh-pakila

v. [Sw. pakia SSED 361] (pakiile) load (e.g. a truck)

Ali/ mpakile hamaali/ ijuuniya. ‘Ali loaded a sack onto the porter.’

Ali/ mpakile mwaana/ gariini. ‘Ali loaded the child onto a truck.’

Ali/ pakile gaari/ majiwe. ‘Ali loaded the truck with stones’

Ali/ pakile gari ya Nuuru. ‘Ali loaded Nuuru’s truck (i.e. a truck that Nuuru owns or drives).’

Gaari/ inakhpakila chimento. ‘The truck is carrying cement.’

Gaari/ ipakile chimento. ‘The truck is loaded with/ carrying cement.’

Ipakile gaari/ majiwe. ‘He loaded the truck with stones.’ (The object prefix i is governed by gaari. It is not possible for majiwe to govern the object prefix, regardless of word order: Yapakile gaari/ majiwe. Nor: Yapakile majiwe/ gaari. It is possible to have majiwe govern the object prefix if gaari is put into a locative form: Yapakile majiwe/ gariini. ‘He loaded the stones into the truck.’)

Jahazi/ iyi/ itakhokolaa we/ na hayawaani/ zaa we/ pakiiló/ na wanaadamu/ woťé/ ahliyó/ wakhaminiiól. ‘This boat will save you and the animals that you put on board and the human beings, all, your family who believed in you.’ (We have not worked out the explanation for the accentual pattern of na wanaadamu/ woťé/ ahliyó.)

Mp^hakilee buni. ‘I have loaded it (e.g. the ship) with coffee.’

Mwaana/ nimpakile gaari. ‘The child, I sent him in the truck.’ Or: Mwaana/ nimpakile gariini.

Mwaana/ uyu/ shpakila/ ngoombe/ na mbuzi ya matakó/ jahaziini. ‘This boy loaded a cow and a sheep on the dhow.’

Pakile gaari/ majuniya. ‘He loaded sacks onto the truck.’

Pakile gaari/ waant^hu. ‘He loaded the truck with people.’ (Although the verb -pakila takes a ‘location’ as its primary object, the strong preference in Chimini for the verb to agree with a human renders the following sentence well-formed as well: Nakuwapakila gaari/ waant^hu. ‘He is loading people into the truck.’ This preference for human agreement also seems to exclude marking the verb with an object prefix agreeing with gaari: Naki’ipakila gaari/ waant^hu. ‘I am loading people onto the truck.’)

Pakiileni. ‘What have you loaded it (e.g. the ship) with?’

ye/ nakhpakilo gaari ‘while he was loading the truck’ or, with verb emphasis: ye/ nakhpakiló/ gaari (The latter form shows the effect of the Accentual Law of Focus. Another pronunciation appears possible: ye/ nakhpakiló/ gaari. It is not clear whether this shows the failure of ALF to be applied, or whether it represents an independent optional principle.)

rel.

kh-pakiliila v. appl. (pakiliile)

kh-pakiliiloowa v. appl. pass. (pakiliila)

kh-pakiloowa v. pass. (pakiila)

Gaari/ ipakila mwaana. ‘The truck had a child loaded (on it).’

Gaari/ spakila mazu. ‘Trucks were loaded with bananas.’

Hamaali/ pakila ijuuniya. ‘(On) the porter was put a sack.’ (Cf. the unacceptability of Ijuuniya/ ipakila hamaali. ‘The sack was loaded on the porter.’)

Mazu/ yapakila gariini. ‘Bananas were loaded onto the truck.’ (Syn: It is not possible for mazu to be the passive subject if gaari is unmarked: Mazu/ yapakila gaari. ‘Bananas were loaded onto the truck.’ But it is possible for a human NP to be the passive subject:

Waant^hu/ wapakila gaari. ‘People were loaded onto/ sent in trucks.’ It is not so certain whether gaari can be the passive subject if it is humans being loaded onto the truck: ?Gaari/ spakila waant^hu. ‘Trucks were loaded with people; trucks people were sent in.’) Mwaana/ pakila gariini. ‘The child was loaded onto the truck.’

ngamiila/ schiwa spakiila/ mizigo ‘when camels are loaded with things’ Ngamiilayo/ nt^hayikhpikiloowa/ mizigo/ yo yote? ‘Is your camel not carrying anything?’

Waant^hu/ wapakila gariini. ‘Children were put on trucks.’

kh-pakilisha v. caus. cause s.o. to load s.t. on gari ya Suufi/ mpakilishizo hamaali/ mizigo... ‘the lorry that Suufi had the porter put the luggage in...’

Gari ya Suufi/ mpakilishizo hamaali/ waana/ ivundishile. ‘The lorry that Suufi had the porter put the children in has broken down.’

gari ya Suufi/ pakilishizo mizigo... ‘the lorry that Suufi had the luggage put in...’

Munt^hu wa Suufi/ mpakilishizo Nuuru/ gariini/ oloshole. ‘The man whom Suufi had Nuuru put on the lorry left.’ Is this sentence in fact ambiguous between who is the causee and who has been loaded onto the lorry?

Mwana wa Suufi/ mpakilishizo hamaali/ gariini/ oloshole. ‘The boy whom Suufi made the porter put on the lorry left.’ (The OM on the verb shows human singular agreement and thus fails to make clear whether it is mwaana or hamaali, both of which govern human singular agreement, who is the causee. The pragmatics of the sentence, however, makes it clear that is the porter who is the causee and the boy who is the logical object.)

Suufi/ mpakilishize hamaali/ mwaana/ gariini. ‘Suufi caused the porter to put the child on the lorry.’

Suufi/ mpakilishize naani/ mwaana/ gariini. ‘Suufi made who put the child in the lorry?’

Suufi/ mpakilishize naani/ Nuuru/ gariini. ‘Suufi made who put Nuuru in the lorry?’ Cf. Suufi/ mpakilishize Nuuru/ naani/ gariini. ‘Suufi made Nuuru put who in the lorry?’

Want^hu wa Suufi/ mpakilishizo Nuuru/ gariini/ wa’oloshole. ‘The people whom Suufi made Nuuru put them on the lorry left.’ (The object marker on the relative causative verb identifies Nuuru as the causee, leaving waant^hu to be understood as the logical object.)

Want^hu wa Suufi/ wapakilishizo Nuuru/ gariini/ wa’oloshole. ‘The people whom Suufi made them put Nuuru on the lorry left.’ (The object marker on the relative causative verb identifies waant^hu as the causees, leaving Nuuru to function as the direct object.)

kh-pakiza v. (pakiize) load

Hasani/ mpakize gaari/ choombo/ pashpo msaa’ada. ‘Hasani put goods on the truck without help.’

Huseeni/ pakize gaari/ gele. ‘Huseeni loaded the truck with maize.’ Or:

Huseeni/ pakiize/ gaari/ gele. (The corresponding yes-no questions for these two sentences: Huseeni/ pakize gaari/ gele? and Huseeni/ pakiize/ gaari/ gele?)

Majuuniya/ mawiliye/ mp^hakize gaari. ‘Both bags I loaded onto the truck.’ (In the construction majuuniya/ mawiliye ‘bags their both’, there is no downstep between the two phrases, although the second may be a bit lower in pitch.)

Mp^hakize gaari/ majuuniya/ mawiliye. ‘I loaded both bags onto the truck.’ Or: Mp^hakiizé/ majuuniya/ mawiliye/ gaari. ‘I loaded both bags onto the truck.’ (The construction majuuniya/ mawiliye seems to not be subject to the strong downstep that ordinarily follows a focused verb. The noun gaari, on the other hand, is strongly downstepped.)

Mp^hakize gaari/ suukari. ‘I loaded onto the truck sugar.’

Mp^hakize suukari/ gaari. ‘I loaded sugar onto the truck.’

Nureeni/ pakize gaari/ suukari. ‘Nureeni loaded the truck with sugar.’ Or: Nureeni/ pakize suukari/ gaari. (Each of these two sentences have two distinct prosodic structures; namely, one where neither NP is focused, and a second where the first NP is focused. Four different simple yes-no questions are the result: Nureeni/ pakize gaari/ suukari? ‘Did Nureeni load the truck with sugar?’ and Nureeni/ pakize suukari/ gaari? ‘Did Nureeni load sugar onto the truck?’ lack focus. Nureeni/ pakize gaari/ suukari? ‘Did Nureeni load the truck with sugar?’ and Nureeni/ pakize suukari/ gaari? ‘Did Nureeni load sugar onto the truck?’ have focus on the first argument, causing the second argument to undergo accent shift. Emphatic yes-no questions have no means for showing a contrast between focus and its absence since in all cases, there is a shift in accent in the VP: Nureeni/ pakize gaari/ suukari!? and Nureeni/ pakize suukari/ gaari!? are the only options.)

Nuuru/ pakize gaari/ majiwe. ‘Nuuru loaded the truck with stones.’ Or: Nuuru/ pakize majiwe/ gaari.

Nuuru/ pakize majiwe/ gariini. ‘Nuuru load stones onto the truck (in this case, the stones are only part of the load).’

Pakize gaari/ gele/ Huseeni. ‘He loaded the truck with maize, Huseeni.’

kh-pakizika v. tr. p/s.

Majiwe aya/ hayapakiziki/ gaari/ na waana. ‘These stones cannot be loaded on the truck by the children.’

kh-pakizisha v. tr. caus. (pakizishiize)

Suufi/ mpakizishize mwaana/ gaari. ‘Suufi had the child load the truck.’

kh-pakizishiliza v. tr. caus. appl. (pakizishiliize)

Suufi/ mpakizishilize Nuuru/ mwaana/ gaari. ‘Suufi had Nuuru’s child load the truck.’

kh-pakizishilizanya v. tr. caus. appl. rec. (-pakizishilizeenye)

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wapakizishilizenye waana/ gaari. ‘Nuuru and Suufi had one another’s children load the truck(s).’

kh-pakizoowa v.tr. pass. (-pakiiza)

Gaari/ ipakiza majiwe. ‘The truck was loaded with stones (by someone).’

Gaari/ spakiiza. ‘The trucks have been loaded.’ Cf. Chigaari/ shpakiza. ‘The cart has been loaded.’ Cf. Shpakiza chigaari. ‘A cart has been loaded.’

Ipakiiza/ gaari. ‘There has been a truck loaded.’ (It is likely that in this word order, the verb is understood as an impersonal passive rather than a personal passive agreeing with gaari. The unclarity on this matter is due to the fact that gaari ‘truck’ [cl.9] requires the same agreement as an impersonal passive. But notice that when we change the noun to magaari, a [cl.6] noun that has ya as its subject agreement, we get a clear indication that the structure is an impersonal passive: Ipakiiza/ magaari/ majiwe. ‘There has been stones loaded onto trucks.’)

Majiwe/ yapakiza gariini. ‘Stones were loaded into the truck.’ (This example was preferred by MI over Majiwe/ yapakiza gaari.)

Spakiza gaari/ majiwe. ‘The trucks have been loaded with stones.’

rel. nom.

m-pakila (wa-) n. 1/2 one who loads

Pakistaani

n. Pakistan

Skiizi/ waant^u/ wiingi/ hupeenda/kuvala hanzu za Pakistaani/ ni raaha/ nafasi. ‘These days people like to wear Pakistani hanzu, they are loose and comfortable.’

rel.

m-pakistaani* (ma-) n. a Pakistani paaku

n. packet, parcel

rel.

sh-paaku (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

kh-pakula

v. [Sw. pakua SSED 361] (pakiile) dish out food from a pot to a plate Ali/ pakilee zijo. ‘Ali dished out zijo.’

Haliima/ nakhpakulaa zijo. ‘Haliima is dishing out zijo.’
Muke/ shpakula chaakuja/ chileeta. ‘The woman dished out the food and brought it.’
Shpakula/ chaakuja/ chaa ye/ pishiló/ chooloka/ shkalaant^ha/ naacho/ barzaani/ kaake. ‘She dished out the food that she had cooked and went and sat down with it in her hall.’

rel.

kh-pakulila v. appl. (pakuliile) dish out for, with

Ali/ mpakulile mwaana/ zijo. ‘Ali dished out zijo for the child.’

Ali/ pakulilee zijo/ lkoombe. ‘Ali dished out zijo with a lkoombe.’

lkombe laa muke/ pakuliloo zijó ‘the spoon that was used to dish out zijo’

(Note that a bare noun like lkoombe, when being used to indicate an instrument, requires the applied form of the verb. One cannot say either lkombe laa muke/ pakilee zijo ‘the spoon that the woman dished out zijo’ nor lkombe laa muke/ pakilee zijo/ kaa ló ‘the spoon that the woman dished out zijo with it’, where a resumptive pronoun is used with the preposition ka.)

Muke/ chimpakulilaa zijo. ‘The woman dished out zijo for him.’

Muke/ shpikaa zijo/ zivivilopó/ chiwapakulila waana. ‘The woman cooked zijo and when it was done, she dished it out for the children.’

Omari/ mtile Nuuru/ kumpakulila mwaana. ‘Omari made Nuuru dish out food for the child.’

mwana waa muke/ mpakuliloo zijó/ ka lkoombé ‘the child for whom the woman dished out zijo with a spoon’ (MI did not permit the preposition ka to be elided in this example; if it were omitted, the applied verb would have to be doing “double duty”, licensing both a beneficiary and an instrumental. But MI did not like an instrumental to be part of the focus of the verb phrase.)

zijo zaa muke/ mpakulilo mwaaná/ ka lkoombé ‘the zijo that the woman dished out for the child with a spoon’ (Like the preceding sentence, MI did not permit the preposition ka to be elided.)

kh-pakulilana v. appl. rec. dish out for one another

Nuuru/ watile khpakulilanaa zijo. ‘Nuuru had them dish out zijo for one another.’

kh-pakulilika v. appl. p/s.

Mwana uyu/ hapakuliliki/ zijo. ‘This child cannot have zijo dished out for him.’

kh-pakuoowa v. pass. be dished out

Zijo/ zinakhpakuoowa. ‘Zijo is being dished out.’

kh-pakulika v. p/s. able to be dished out

Zijo izi/ haspakuliki. ‘This zijo cannot be dished out (e.g. it is too sticky or the pot has too small an opening to get it out).’

kh-pakulikila v. p/s. appl.

Zijo/ zimpakulikilile Ali. ‘The zijo has been able to be dished out for Ali.’

kh-pakulisha v. caus. (pakulishiize) cause to dish out

Mpakulishize Haliima/ zijo/ ka lkoombe. ‘He caused Haliima to dish out zijo with a spoon.’

kh-pakulishanya v. caus. rec. cause one another to dish out kh-pakulishika v. caus. p/s. able to be dished out

Mwana uyu/ hapakulishiki/ chiint^hu/ (na Ali). ‘This child cannot be made to dish out anything (bY Ali).’

kh-pakulishikila v. caus. p/s. appl.

kh-pakulishiliza v. caus. appl. cause to dish out ‘on’ (The primary object of this verb cannot be a true beneficiary. To express a true beneficiary, a periphrastic causative is employed. See above under ku-pakulila.)

Hereedho/ mpakulishilize Haliima/ mwaana/ chaakuja/ ka lkoombe. ‘Hereedho caused Haliima’s child to dish out food with a spoon.’

kh-pakulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. cause to dish out on one another (Note that one would not use this verb in the true beneficiary sense of the verb; instead, a periphrastic verb construction would be

- employed: Nuuru/ watile khpakulilanaa zijo. ‘Nuuru caused them to dish out zijo for one another.’
kh-pakulishilizika v. caus. appl. p/s.
Boora/ hapakulishiliziki/ mwaana/ chaakuja. ‘Boora’s child cannot be made to dish out food for/on Boora.’
kh-pakuliza v. tr. appl. (pakuliize) Nuuru/ mpakulize Suufi/ maana/ zijo. ‘Nuuru had Suufi’s child dish out zijo.’ kh-pakulizanya v. tr. appl. rec. (-pakulizeenye) Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wapakulizenye waana/ zijo. ‘Nuuru and Suufi had one another’s children dish out zijo.’ kh-pakuza v. caus. (pakiize) make dish out Nuuru/ mpakize mwaana/ zijo. ‘Nuuru had the child dish out zijo.’ kh-pakuzanya v. caus. rec.
kh-pakuzika v. caus. p/s.
rel. nom.
m-pakulo n.3 act of dishing out food
u-pakulo n.14 act of dishing out food
- palastika n. plastic chijamu cha palastika ‘plastic plate’
- i-pala n. thatch, reed, grass stick Ipala/ ha’imubli/ noka. ‘A reed does not kill a snake.’ (A proverb.)
Mayi mamulo/ hayapiishi/ ipala. ‘Hot water does not burn thatch.’ (A proverb.)
- l-pala (m-p^hala) n. 9/10 [Sw. paa SSED 359] one side of a roof; the re-enforcing rods (mp^hoondro) on a roof; forehead
- m-palaa muḷo n. 1/2 one who goes to get fire in order to start a fire
- kh-pala v. [Sw. paa SSED 359] (pazile) scrape, scratch, claw the earth khpalaa muḷo ‘to ask for, get fire for making a fire’ Haliima/ pazilee muḷo/ ka Aamina/ kaawo. ‘Haliima got a small fire (to use to start a fire) at Aamina’s house.’
khpalaa nsi ‘to scale a fish’
Mi/ shpalaa nsi. ‘I was scraping the scales off the fish.’
Washpala nsi izo/ washṭinda makaapaye. ‘They scaled those fish and cut off the fins.’
Mwaank^huku/ habarshoowi/ khpalaa nt^hi. ‘A chick is not taught to scratch the ground.’ (A proverb.)
Nk^huku/ nakhpalaa nt^hi. ‘The chicken is scratching the ground.’
rel.
kh-paloowa v. pass.
Masku/ ha’ipaloowi/ muḷo. ‘One does not get fire for starting a fire at night.’
(A superstition.)
- rel. nom.
m-pala (wa-) n. 1/2 one who gets fire to start a fire mpalaa muḷo ‘a person who goes to get fire in order to start a fire’
- i-palapala (ma-) n. 5/6 skull; forehead??
rel.
sh-palapala (s-) n. dim.
- kh-palaza v. [Sw. paaza SSED 359] (paleeze) crush dry, unhusked maize with two round stones, where stone on the top has a hole in the middle and a handle which is moved in a circular fashion to crush the maize inside the hole

Hupalaza/ hufanya unga. ‘She crushes (maize), she makes flour.’
Ijiwe iyi/ haypalazi/ gele. ‘This stone will not grind the maize.’
Nuuru/ palezee gele. ‘Nuuru crushed grain.’

rel.

kh-palaliza v. appl. (palaliize) grind for, with kh-palalizika v. appl. p/s. able to be ground for Omari/ hapalaliziki/ gele. ‘Omari cannot be ground maize for.’ (Syn: In this construction, Omari can be the subject of the verb but not gele, thus the ungrammaticality of Gele iyi/ haypalaliziki/ Omari.) kh-palazika v. p/s.

Gele iyi/ haypalaziki. ‘This maize cannot be ground.’

Gele iyi/ ipalazishile. ‘This maize was able to be ground.’

kh-palazikila v. p/s/ appl.

kh-palazisha v. caus.

Nuuru/ mpalazishize mwaana/ gele. ‘Nuuru had the child grind the maize.’

kh-palazishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mpalazishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ gele. ‘Nuuru had Suufi’s child grind the maize.’

kh-palazishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wapalazishilizenye waana/ gele. ‘Nuuru and Suufi had each other’s children grind the maize.’

kh-palazoowa v. (paleeza)

paale

n. coral rag; paale is burned into a powder called nt^huwaakala

paamba

n. [Sw. pamba SSED 362] cotton

muti wa paamba ‘cotton plant’

noloolo/ kana paamba ‘as soft as cotton’

Tila mashkiloyo/ paamba/ ka ku^la ya eelo/ takhaambiló. ‘Put cotton in your ears (i.e. don’t listen) to each (thing) that the gazelle will tell you.’

rel.

sh-paamba (s-) n. 7/8 dim. a bit of cotton

kh-paamba

v. [Sw. pamba SSED 362] (pambiile) decorate, arrange, put in order; thatch (a house)

Wawashi/ wanakhpamba nuumba/ ka nt^huwaakala. ‘The builders are painting limestone on the house.’

rel.

kh-paambila v. appl. (pambiliile)

kh-pamboowa v. pass.

Nuumba/ inakhpambowa ka nt^huwaakala. ‘The house is being painted with limestone.’

kh-paambula v. rev. (pambiile) remove adornment

rel. nom.

ma-paambo n. 6 adornments; the act of thatching a house

mapambo yaa chike ‘female adornments’

u-paambo n. 14 the act of adorning, decorating ma-paambulo n. 6 the act of removing adornments u-paambulo n. 14 the act of removing adornments

kh-pamba’uka

v. [cf. Sw. pambazuka SSED 363] (-pamba’ushile) dawn

kh-paambana

v. [Sw. pambana SSED 363] (-pambeene) meet pamo na

together with review whether should be pamó/ na throughout

Chingile ka mukeewe/ pamo na mwanaamke. ‘He went to his wife together with her daughter.’

Eelo/ ishize sku niingi/ pamo na Sultani Daraayi. ‘The gazelle stayed many days together with Sultan Daraayi.’

Iize/ kuuwa pamo na mp^hundra za kaazi. ‘He refused to be together with the working donkeys.’

Juma/ chimtaala/ chisimika pamo na mp^hundra za kaazi. ‘Juma took him and put him with the working donkeys.’

Mi/ nile apa/ pamo na sultaani/ wiitu. ‘I came here together with our sultan.’

mloombe jana pamo na mtume Haadi [st.] ‘pray to God for paradise together with the prophet Haadi’

Muda oyo/ wotte/ upisiló/ hattá/ sku mooyi/ Safiya/ nt^hakeendra/ chiliini/ pamo na mubliwe. ‘All that time which passed, not even one day did Safiya go to bed with her husband.’

Oloshela koowa/ pamo na want^hu wiingine. ‘He went to bathe together with other people.’

Sarmala/ chiingila/ ka mukeewe/ pamo na mwanaamkewe. ‘The carpenter entered into the (place of) his wife together with her daughter.’

Ushfaanya/ biyaashara/ pamó/ na nt^hi za wa’arabu/ na pamó/ na nt^hi za Afrika ya mashariqi. ‘It (Brava) used to do business with the Arab countries and the countries of East Africa.’

look into the matter of conjoining this entry with below entry pamooyi adv. [Sw. pamoja SSED 364] together

Chisafireni Mkhodiisho/ pamooyi. ‘Let us travel to Mogadishu together.’
Or, with emphasis on the verb: Chisafireni/ Mkhodiisho/ pamooyi.

Fanyiize/ jahazi/ pamooyi/ na msaa’ada/ wa waant^hu/ wamwaminiloo ye/ na mwajiituwé. ‘He made a boat together with the help of people who believed in him and his God.’

Nuuru/ na Hasani/ wa’ile pamooyi. ‘Nuuru and Hasani came together.’

Pamooyi/ wajiló/ waana. ‘Together the children ate.’

Sku mooyi/ mp^huundra/ naa mbwa/ wachisaafira/ pamooyi. ‘One day a donkey and a dog were traveling together.’

Wajate wanjeteze numbaani/ pamooyi. ‘Let them play at home together.’

Waana/ wawena pamooyi. ‘The children were seen together.’

Ye/ yutiliile/ kuwaa ye/ fanyize mkaataba/ kama uyu/ pamooyi/ na Abunawaasi. ‘He regretted that he had made a contract like this together with Abunaawasi.’

m-paampa n. 9/10 [Sw. papa SSED 366] shark; [pron. mp^haamp^ha]

Apo/ ichiwa ziko mp^haamp^ha/ niingi. ‘It was the case that there were many sharks at that place.’

Kila muunt^hi/ chiya mp^haamp^ha/ mooyi/ kuja matuundra/ yashpoteló/ ka nt^hanziini. ‘Each day a shark came to eat the fruit that fell from its branches.’

mp^haamp^ha aswadi ‘[lit.] black shark, a small shark (one to two meters in length) with white on the belly, exact type unknown’ mp^haamp^ha huundru ‘a type of shark, with red meat’ mp^haamp^ha lpaanga ‘a swordfish’ mp^haamp^ha mapeembe ‘[lit.] horned shark, a large hammerhead shark’ mp^haamp^ha matete ‘tiger shark’

Siimba/ kaa hima/ dirka ruuhuyo/ mp^haamp^ha matete/ nakuuya/ ka chinumecho/ chihadó/ Diini. ‘Siimba, quickly, save yourself! a tiger shark is coming from behind you, the one who spoke was Diini.’

mp^haamp^ha melpe ‘[lit.] white shark – small shark, white in color’ mp^hamp^ha mgoomba ‘a type of smaller shark [the name refers to a plant called igoomba, which has a color similar to the fish]’ mp^hamp^ha mlome (or: mnome) ‘a kind of shark, not dangerous to man, with a small mouth and without teeth, crunches what it eats’ mp^hamp^ha m̄noka ‘[lit.] snake shark – a very long, but small shark’ mp^hamp^ha wowiini ‘[lit.] river shark – a kind of small shark, exact type unknown, fished during June-August when the river flows into the sea; like a small reef shark, but no black tips, dark in color’ mp^hamp^ha wa fantu ‘a type of shark, much preferred in Brava for eating’ mp^hamp^ha ya maazi ‘lit.] blood shark, a kind of hammerhead shark with reddish meat, brownish in color (perhaps a bonnethead shark?)’ mp^hamp^ha yaa nt^hi ‘[lit.] shark of the sea floor, a greyish colored shark with white flesh that lives on the sea floor; exact type is unknown, could be any number of small sharks’

Mwana wa waziiri/ jila na mp^haamp^ha/ na mooyi/ karka watumawé/ teta na maayi. ‘The son of the minister was eaten by a shark and one of his servants was drowned.’

Wo/ washpeleka Afrika ya mashariqi/ ngoonda/ mp^hamp^haa nk^havu/... ‘They sent to East Africa dried fish, dried sharks...

rel.

i-paampa n. aug. large shark; [pron. ipaamp^ha]

Leelo/ ipeta ipaamp^ha/ ikulu/ kana iyama. ‘Today a big shark has been caught, as big as a whale.’

pana

existential verbal form (This form was provided by MI, but is unknown to GM and other speakers consulted; most likely it represents a Swahilism due to MI also speaking Swahili natively, but of course one cannot rule out that the form existed in Chimiini as well at some stage in its history.)

Panaa nfuye/ maduriini. ‘There is a monkey/are monkeys in the bush.’ Or: Maduriini/ panaa nfuye.

-paana

adj. [Sw. -pana SSED 364] wide chibatera shpaana ‘a wide boat’ idila ipaana ‘a wide (aug.) road’ khfanya paana ‘to widen’

lkuta lpaana ‘a wide wall’ midila mipaana ‘wide (aug.) roads’ numba mphaana ‘a wide house’

rel.

ma-paana n. 6 width

u-paana n. 14 width

m-pana

n. 9/10 [Sw. panya SSED 366] rat; [pron. mp^hana] (Phon. Observe that the dental n in Chimiini corresponds to ny in Standard Swahili.)

chambo chaa mp^hana ‘bait for catching rats’

Chilaweeni/ kaa mp^hana. ‘Let’s go to the rats.’

Chitaache/ kana chaa mp^hana. ‘His head is like that of a rat (i.e. small).’

Iize/ mujaa mp^hana. ‘He [the cat] refused to eat the rat.’

Kamaa mp^haka/ naa mp^hana. ‘Like a cat and a rat.’ (A proverb.)

kana/ mp^hana ‘like a rat/mouse’

Haliima/ nakuzala waana/ wiingi/ kanaa mp^hana. ‘Haliima is giving birth to children as many as mice.’

Hamadi/ chitaache/ chihaba/ kana/ chaa mp^hana. ‘Hamadi’s head is small like that of a rat/mouse.'

Omari/ chiya dukaani/ ka Ali/ hufatishafatisha zoombo/ kana mp^hana. 'Omari when he comes to Ali's shop he searches and searches things like a rat.'

kola yaa mp^hana 'sticky substance used to catch rats'

Mahala uko mp^haká/ mp^hana/ hawaako. 'Where there are cats, there are no rats there.'

matuzi yaa mp^hana 'rat droppings'

Mi/ nk^hawa ni hukhadiro khfanya yaa mi/ nnakhsuuló/ mazá/ mp^hana/ sula khaadira/ so/ kunt^humbula nt^huundrú/ kanmake/ kingila numbaani/ khfanya zaa wo/ wanakhsuuló. 'If I am able to do whatever I want [a mud wall is the speaker in the story from which this comes], how come a rat is able to make a hole in me and enter the house to do whatever they want.'

Mp^haka/ naa mp^haná/ hawoonani. 'Cats and rats do not see one another – i.e. they do not dwell together amicably.' (Phon. The verb form hawoonani would seem to be a contraction from the expected hawawonani.)

Mp^haka/ na'ondroke/ nakhfakata/ nakhsula kendra kumujaa mp^hana. 'The cat left and ran and wanted to go to eat the rat.'

Mp^hana/ haalawi/ ndilaani/ muunt^hi. 'A rat does not go outside during the day.'

Mp^hana/ khufanyiizeni. 'What did the rat do to you?'

Mp^hana/ uyu/ jawaabuze/ nza lila. 'This rat, his words are truthful.'

Omari/ na Ali/ nii mp^haka/ naa mp^haná. 'Omari and Ali are [like] cats and rats (i.e. they fight with one, don't get along).'

Shishilee mp^hana. 'He caught a rat.'

Sku mooyi/ mp^hana/ ziweshelee fadhi. 'One day the rats held a meeting.'
sumu yaa mp^hana 'rat poison'

Ublelee mp^hana. 'He killed a rat.'

Wacheendra/ kummeraa mp^hana/ wamweenopó/ wachingila kumvunaanga. 'They went and searched for a rat; when they saw one, they began to beat him.'

Wasakha/ huletoo mp^haná. 'It is dirt that brings rats [to a place].'

Wenee mp^hana. 'He saw a rat.' (Cf. Mwenee mp^hana. 'He saw the rat.')

rel.

i-pana (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. a large rat; [pron. ipana] sh-pana (s-) n. dim. 7/8 a little rat; [pron. shpana]

sh-pana (s-)

n. [Sw. panya SSED 366 cites the example panya ya mkono 'lit. rat of arm' and comments: "children stretch out their arm and strike quickly the muscle of the upper arm, and a movement is seen, this is called panya ya mkono"] muscle; [pron. shpana]

kh-paandra

v. [Sw. panda SSED 364] (paanzile) mount, climb, go up, ascend, get on or in any kind of vehicle (car, airplane, etc.), ride, embark, step on; increase (as of prices)

Abunawaasi/ shpaandra/ haṭá/ chendra ka Haruun/ Rashiidi.

'Abunawaasi climbed up the stairs until he went to Harun Rashiidi.'

Ba'ada ya kula mp^hundra ikumi/ mo/ paanzile. 'After buying ten donkeys, one he rode.'

Bakayle/ hakhaadiri/ spandraa miti/ khukhada'iile/ khambila jis'iyo. 'A rabbit cannot climb trees; it deceived you by telling you that (i.e. it would climb up the tree and kill you).'

Cheendra/ shpandra ilu ya magome. ‘He went and climbed up the rocks.’
Chimaliza/ washpandra chibateera. ‘Then they got on a boat.’
Chimpaandra/ choloka naaye/ numbaani. ‘He climbed up on (e.g. the donkey) and went with it to his home.’

Chimviija/ waziiriwe/ chimwaambila/ mi/ nnakhsula khtumaa nt^humé/ kumera rukhsa/ si/ khpaandra/ jahaziini. ‘He called his minister and told him: I want to send a message to seek permission for us to embark on the boat.’ (Note the NP+infinitive complement sentence following kumera rukhsa ‘to seek permission’.)

Gaari/ uzilo Haaji/ spaandri. ‘The truck that Haaji bought, I will not ride in it.’

Hamadi/ panzilee muti. ‘Hamadi climbed a tree.’

Hupandra mooyi. ‘He rides one (of the donkeys).’

Jahazi/ ipanzile mwaamba. ‘The dhow went aground on the rock.’

khpandra baaro ‘to be, get moldy’

Maandra/ ipanzile baaro. ‘The bread got moldy.’

khpandra chiliini ‘to confine oneself to bed (as of a sick person)’

Mama yaawo/ naayé/ chishikowa maraði/ shpandra chiliini.

‘Their mother also fell sick and confined herself to bed.’

khpandra chiṭaani ‘lit. to climb on the head -- to take advantage of someone’

Waṭakhupandra chiṭaani. ‘They will take advantage of you.’

khpandra farasi ‘to mount a horse’

Pandra farasi/ chilawe. ‘Mount a horse and let us go.’

khpandra gaari ‘to take a car’ khpandra ibuuri/ iburiini ‘to climb a hill’

khpandra jahazi ‘to go on board a boat’

Nuuhu/ shpandra jahazi. ‘Noah went on the boat.’

khpaandra kishkila ‘to go up and down (e.g. stairs, hill)’ khpandra miriri ‘to be rusty’

Chisu/ shpanzile miriri. ‘The knife got rusty.’

khpandraa muti ‘to climb a tree’

Bakayle/ hakhaadiri/ khpandraa miti/ khukhada’iile/ khambila jis’iyo. ‘A rabbit cannot climb trees; he deceived you telling you that (i.e. that he would climb the tree and kill you).’

Suufi/ panzilee muti. ‘Suufi climbed a tree.’

Omari/ panzile ilu ya lkuta. ‘Omari climbed over the wall.’

Mwaka uyu/ chaakuja/ shpaanzile/ nt^ho. ‘This year [the prices of] foodstuffs increased very much. Or: foodstuffs became much more expensive.’

Mbona/ panzile chulunguuni/ leeló. ‘I see that you came upstairs today.’

Mi/ nnakhsaandra/ so/ amó/ nnakishkila. ‘Am I climbing up or coming down?’

Mooshi/ upaanzile. ‘The smoke rose.’

Mukhta wo/ walazilo chibulooni/ mzeele/ chimpantra mp^huundra. ‘When they left the village, the old man rode the donkey.’

Mwaanawe/ chimwaambila/ la/ waawé/ mi/ siná/ haaja/ ya khpaandra/ jahaziyo. ‘His son said to him: no, my father, I have no need to board your ship.’

Mpandraa ngazi/ mwiishowe/ hishkila. ‘The one who climbs a ladder, his end is he comes down.’ (A proverb.)

Mp^hanzilee muti/ yuuzi. ‘I climbed the tree the day before yesterday.’

(Phon. Note that in the default case, a time adverb is out of focus and the final accent triggered by the verb does not extend to it. It is possible however to put the focus on the time adverbial:

focus

Mp^hanzilee muti/ yuuzi. ‘It is the day before yesterday that I climbed the tree.’)j

Mukhta wo/ walazilo chibulooni/ mzeele/ chimpantra mp^huundra. ‘When they left the village, the old man rode the donkey.’

Nofete khpandra kishkilá/ munt^{hi} mzimá. ‘I am tired of going up and down all day long.’

Nuuhu/ chimwona/ mwaanawe/ karka maayi/ chimviiḷa/ chimwaambila/ ndo/ pandra naasi. ‘Nuuhu saw his son in the water and he called to him saying to him: come, climb aboard with us.’

Omari/ mwishpa (w)a moongo/ umpaanzile. ‘Omari’s backbone has over-ridden him (i.e. he has become so thin).’

Paandra/ mloongoti/ uyu. ‘Climb this mast!’

Sku mooyi/ muke/ shpata maraḏi/ shpandra chiliini. ‘One day the woman fell sick and was confined to bed.’

Uzilopo mp^huundrá/ chimpaandra/ choloka naa ye/ kaake. ‘When he had bought the donkey, he climbed on it, and went with it to his place.’

rel.

kh-paandrana v. rec. (-pandreene) carry each other on the shoulder

kh-pandranisha v. pile things on one another kh-pandrappaandra v. freq.

Takhpandrapandra mishaka. ‘I will walk over shrubs.’

kh-paandrika v. p/s.

kh-pandriloowa v. appl. pass. (pandriliḷa)

Igazi iyo/ yile/ haṭá/ chilungu cha taano/ hukhadiroowa/ khpandriloowa. ‘That big ladder is so tall, even five storeys are able to be climbed up.’

kh-paandriḷa v. appl. (pandriliḷe) go up for, with, using; climb on Chimera kaa wo/ iḏni/ yaa ye/ kumpandriḷa Harun Rashiidi. ‘He asked from them permission to go up to see Harun Rashiidi.’

Mleete/ mwaana/ mooyi/ na chiza kump^há/ nthakhupaandriḷa/ khuja. ‘Bring to me one chick (the speaker in this text is talking to a pigeon) and if you refuse to give me what I ask for, I’ll climb up for you to eat you.’

Mwaana/ nakhupandriḷa muti. ‘The child is climbing up the tree on you (putting himself in danger and thus to your detriment).’

Takump^haandriḷa/ apa/ mahaḷaa mi/ niikó. ‘It will come up here to the place where I am.’

Wakomeelopó/ nfuye/ chuuluka/ chi’ipandriḷa mutiini/ kaake/ chimpa mp^haamp^ha/ waraadi. ‘When they reached [the tree], the monkey jumped [off Shark] and climbed up his tree/ and said goodbye to Shark.’

kh-pandrisha v. caus. (pandrishiize) cause someone to go up (by persuasion, instruction, etc., not by physically taking him up)

Mpandrishize mwaana/ muti(ini). ‘He caused (persuaded, instructed, etc.) the child to climb (onto) the tree.’

Mpandrishize Zahara/ chaakuja/ chulunguuni. ‘He caused (persuaded, instructed, etc.) Zahara to take food upstairs.’

muti wa Suufi/ mpandrishizo mwaaná... ‘the tree that Suufi made the boy climb...’

kh-pandrishan(y)a v. caus. rec. (-pandrisheen(y)e) cause one another to ride

Wapandrishenye gaari. ‘They caused one another to take a car.’

kh-pandrishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-pandrishiliza v. caus. appl. (The only use that we have observed for this applied verb is a ‘benefactive’ one, as seen in the example below.)

Muusa/ mpandrishilize mwaalimu/ mwaana/ chaakuja/ chulunguuni. ‘Muusa caused the teacher’s child to take the food upstairs.’ (In a sentence such as this, mwaalimu is a benefactive noun, in the broad sense of that term discussed in the introductory material. This sentence cannot mean: ‘Muusa caused the child to take the food up to the teacher.’)

Suufi/ mpandrishilize Nuuru/ mwaana/ chulunguuni. ‘Suufi persuaded Nuuru’s child to go upstairs.’

kh-pandrishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-pandrishilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

Mwaalimu/ pandrishiliza mwaana/ chulunguuni. ‘The teacher’s child was caused to go upstairs.’

kh-pandrishoowa v. caus. pass. (pandrishiiza) be caused to go up kh-pandroowa v. pass. (paanzila) be boarded, gotten on (of any kind of vehicle), be ridden, ascended Lkuta/ lpanzila iluke. ‘The wall was climbed over it.’ But also: Lkuta/ lpaanzila. ‘The wall was climbed.’

kh-paanza v. tr. [Sw. panza SSED 364] (panziize) raise, cause to ascend, take up, make climb/ride; run (a vessel) to ground

Ali/ mpanzize mwaana/ muti. ‘Ali took the child up the tree.’

Ali/ mpanzize mwaana/ mutiini. ‘Ali lifted the child onto the tree.’

Chishkila ka ilu ya mp^huundra/ chimpanza mwaana. ‘He climbed down from on the donkey and made the child ride.’

khpanza itaanga ‘to hoist a sail’

Khpanzizee we. ‘I made you ride.’

khpanza mahkama ‘to try in court’

khpanza maayi ‘to pump water’

kumpanza m^wanaamke/ chilini ‘[lit.] to put a girl on the bed -- this is the first ceremony of the wedding of want^hu wa Miini: the bride is ceremonially put on a bed before the celebration of the marriage contract’

Panzize choombo/ mwaamba. ‘He ran a vessel onto the rocks.’ (A saying meaning: he ruined the plan, scheme.)

rel.

kh-panziliza v. appl. run aground on Simwaaminé/ oyo/ takhupanziliza choombo/ mwaamba. ‘Don’t trust that one (near you), he will ruin the plan for you (lit. run the vessel aground for you).’

kumpanza muunt^hu/ noongo ‘lit. to cause s.o.’s bile rise -- meaning: to make fun of s.o. with ironic repartees’ (but very often used in the passive reciprocal form, see below)

Nimpanzize noongó/ attá/ lizile. ‘I made ironic remarks to him until he wept.’

Muusa/ panzize chaakuja/ chulunguuni. ‘Muusa took the food upstairs.’

Nimwambilopo kuwa nakhsula kujaaribá/ Ali/ mpanzize farasiye.

‘When I told him that I want to try, Ali permitted me to ride his horse.’

Panzize choombo/ mwaamba. ‘He ran the vessel onto the rock.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Washpanza sanduukhu/ naawó/ washpaandra/ wachendra markubuuni. ‘They carried the box and they went on (e.g. boat) and went to the ship.’

kh-paanzanya v. tr. rec. (panzeenye or panzanyiize) stack khpanzanya miilu ‘to cross the legs’ kh-panzanyanoowa v. tr. rec. pass.

khpanzanyanoowa noongo ‘said of friends who make (ironical, verbal) jokes at each other’s expenses’

kh-paanzika v. tr. p/s.

kh-panziliza v. tr. appl. (panziliize) raise for, on kh-panzilizanya v. tr. appl. rec.

Somo/ mp^hanzilizee be’i. ‘Somo raised the price on me.’

Muusa/ mpanzilize Zahara/ chaakuja/ chulunguuni. ‘Muusa took the food upstairs to Zahara.’

Suufi/ mpanzilize Nuuru/ mwaana/ chulunguuni. ‘Suufi took Nuuru’s child upstairs.’

kh-panzilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass. (panziliiza)

kh-paanzisha v. tr. caus. cause s.t. to go up

Suufi/ mpanzishize mwaana/ maayi/ chulunguuni. ‘Suufi caused the child to take water upstairs’ kh-panzishiliza v. tr. caus. appl.

kh-panzishilizanya v. tr. caus. appl. rec.

kh-panzoowa v. tr. pass. (panziiza)

Keesho/ manaamke/ takhpanzowa chiliini. ‘Tomorrow the girl will be put on the bed -- i.e. be wed (see under khpaanza)’

Sanduukhu/ ipanziizapó/ markabuuni/ mwaana/ chamura inatiloowa/ kaake/ mțanaani. ‘When the box was loaded on the ship, the boy ordered it to be put in his room.’

rel. nom.

m-paandra (wa-) n. 1/2 one who rides

Mpandra farasii mbili/ hatuka tuusi. ‘One who rides two horses splits his ass.’ (A proverb that counsels against being too ambitious, trying to do too many things at once.)

Mpandraa ngazi/ mwiishowe/ hishkiĵa. ‘The one who climbs a ladder, his end, he comes down.’ (A proverb.)

m-pandrampaandra n. 9/10 [Sw. panda SSED 364] a kind of horn used in a local dance and also used in formal announcements of government decisions; [pron. mp^handrem^haandre]

ĵ-paandre (m-) mp^haandre n. 11/10 [Sw. upande SSED 202] side, direction, region, portion; [pron. pl. mp^haandre]

Chiwona/ naambila/ chiiko/ ĵpandre gani/ mi/ nt^hakhpita/ ĵpandre ilo/ na shpitá/ we/ chidafkule/ chijumba icho. ‘When you see it, tell me on which side it is, and I will pass by that side, and when I pass, snatch that nest!’

Karkaa ndila/ mukhtaa wo/ wanakiineendró/ ĵpaandre/ mbilize/ zaa ndila/ waliko waant^hu. ‘On the street when they were walking, on both sides of the road there were people.’

ĵpandre ĵa maandra ‘a half loaf of bread’ ĵpandra ĵa mlima ‘the side of a hill’

Mi/ na makhaadimú/ saba/ choloshele ka ĵpandre ĵiinginé/ ĵa mdauriini. ‘I and my seven servants went to the other side of the bush country.’

Mwanaamke/ ĵiile/ ka ĵpaandre/ ĵaa ye/ nt^hakhtilaa dawá. ‘The girl ate from the side that she did not put the drugs.’ (Phon. Observe that in the negative relative clause, the verb is not phrasally isolated from its complement, as it would ordinarily be in a main clause.)

Sultaani/ uyu/ naa ye/ kiĵa shpisa/ hukumu/ hulangaĵa/ ka kubĵlike/ chimaliza huteka/ kanmake/ hulangaĵa/ ĵpaandre/ ĵa kusooĵo/ huĵa. ‘This king [lit. and he] whenever he passes judgement, he looks to his right and then laughs, then he looks to his left, and he cries.’

...ya kuwa muuyi/ uyu/ wiiko/ ka ĵpaandre/ wineeme ‘that this town was tilted on one side’

rel.

u-paandre 14 direction

Oloshole upandre uyu. ‘He went in this direction.’

upandre wa kubĵi ‘the right side, direction’ upandre wa kusooĵo ‘the left side, direction’ sh-paandre (s-) some time ago n. 7/8 [Sw. kipande SSED 202] slice, piece, some amount of time; adv. for a while, to buy for him thread and a piece of cloth.’ review accent here

Chimwaambila/ kumulĵlaa ĵuzi/ na shpaandré/ chaa nguwó. ‘He told him kumera spandre za maandra ‘to look for pieces of bread’

Maatoye/ yawele mahuundru/ kana spaandre/ za maazi. ‘His eyes became as red as pieces of blood.’

Mbele/ mizize shpandre cha nt^hiini/ kaa numa/ rudiile/ mizize shpandre cha ilu. ‘First it [the shark] swallowed the lower piece, then it returned and swallowed the upper part.’

Nimliinzilé/ shpaandre. ‘I waited for him for a while.’

Omari/ nt^hangú/ olosheló/ ni shpaandre. ‘Since Omari has been gone, it is quite some time.’

Shpaandre/ skumona. ‘I have not seen him for some time.’

Siimba/ owejele ka himaahima/ hattá/ dirshile igome/ laakini/ mukhtaaya/ anzizo khpandra igomé/ mp^haamp^ha/ mdirshile/ mbishile spandre ziwili. ‘Siimba swam quickly until he reached the rock, but when he started to climb up the rock, the shark reached him and tore him into two pieces.’

Siimba/ owejele ka himaahima/ hattá/ dirshile igome/ laakini/ mukhtaaya/ anzizo khpandra igomé/ mp^haamp^ha/ mdirshile/ mbishile spandre ziwili. ‘Siimba swam quickly until he reached the rock, but when he started to climb up the rock, the shark reached him and tore him into two pieces.’

shpandre cha maandra ‘a slice of bread’

rel.

s-pandre spaandre n. pieces

Malizopo khtinda ngoombé/ tete iyoo nama/ tinzile spandrespaandre. ‘When he finished slaughtering the cow, he took that meat and cut it into pieces.’

m-paandru

n. 9/10 [Sw. panju SSED 366] a kind of fish; [pron. mp^haandru]

kh-paanga

v. [Sw. panga SSED 365] obsolete put in order, arrange; rent (The past tense form of this verb is uncertain. If it is pangiile, then it would be the same as the past tense of khpaangula; if the past tense form is paanzile, then it would be the same as the past of khpaanda ‘to go up’. Thus there is no available form that would keep this verb distinct from all other verbs. We have not, however, observed which available form is actually used due to the fact that the verb seems to be obsolete.)

rel. nom.

m-paango n. 3 [Sw. mpango ‘act of arranging’ SSED 366] plan of (future) action, program; arrangement, arranging, putting in order; meeting, appointment

khfanya mpaango ‘to make a plan (to go somewhere, to do something in the future, esp. of two or more persons together)

Mi/ nonyeezé/ kuwa mpaango/ wa Omari/ ha’u-fuuzi. I showed that Omari’s plan would not be successful.

Muke/ uzilo muundrá/ nakhfanya mpaango/ mosimu uyu/ kalaa gele. ‘The woman who has bought the farm is planning to cultivate this season.’

ma-paango n. 6 act of leasing or renting something from someone

l-paanga (m-)

n. 11/10 [Sw. panga SSED 365] sword; [pron. mp^haanga ‘swords’]

...ka mp^hanga zaawo/ na gashani zaawó ‘...with their swords and their shields’ kubiga lpaanga ‘to cut ([lit.] hit) with a sword’

Ile mwimbili/ mooyi/ mbishile ka lpaanga/ nt^hinzile kuulu/ nt^hiinziló.

‘There came a young man and he struck me with a sword, he cut off (my) leg, that’s what he did.’

limiile/ kana/ lpaanga ‘his tongue like sword (he shouts, talks bad)’ lpaanga/ la maskuu kati ‘lit. sword of midnight, i.e. a troublemaker, s.o. who is always creating problems, making difficulties’

Hamadi/ ni lpaanga/ la maskuu kati. [H¹H!H] ‘Hamadi is a troublemaker.’

Muke/ zimiile/ mtanaani/ kaake/ na lpaangá/ mkoononi/ namlindaa mp^hisi. ‘The woman hid in her bedroom with a sword in her hand, she was waiting for the hyena.’

Na khadimuyá/ naayé/ chiya/ ka lpaangale/ la maso mawili/ chimtinda chitaache.

‘And my servant, also, came with his two-edged sword and cut off (e.g. the assailant’s) head.’

Ndo/ noka uyu/ naayo/ so/ lpaangá. ‘Come, does this snake have a sword?’ (The final accent on lpaangá is triggered by this being a yes-no question.)

Sulhu/ hayiyi/ ıla ka nt^ha ya lpaanga. ‘Peace does not come except at the point of a sword.’ (A proverb.)

Wamaanga/ wankubigana ka mp^haanga. ‘Arabs are striking one another with swords.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is daank^hu ‘popcorn’.)

Ye/ mtosheze kuwa ni siimba/ waa ye/ nammeeró/ chimbiga/ kalpaanga/ chimubla. ‘He thought that it was the lion that he was searching for, [so] he struck him with a sword and killed him.’

Ye/ mtete farasiye [or: farasiwe]/ mpaanzile/ lpaangale/ tukile mkoononi/ na ijambiyayé/ funzile mimbaani. ‘He took his horse and mounted him, his sword he carried in his hand, and his dagger he tied to his stomach.’

rel.

i-paanga (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. machete

sh-paanga (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

m-paangu (mi-)

n. 3/4 plan

khfanya mpaangu ‘to plan’

Mi/ nfanyize mpaangú/ fadhi/ kumal khabla/ ya masku. ‘I planned for the meeting to end before evening.’

Mi/ nfanyize mpaangú/ kumnola Haliimá. ‘I planned to marry Haliima.’

Si/ shfanyize mpaangú/ kudirkamana shpiindri. ‘We planned to meet each other at noon.’

Wo/ wafanyize mpaangu/ kulawa fijiri. ‘They planned to leave in the morning.’

Mi/ nk^hodele mpaangú/wont^hé/ na mukeewá. ‘I discussed the whole plan with my wife.’

Mi/ nt^hete balani/ chiza kuđuhurisha/ naani/ nambiiló/ tarafu ya mpaangu/ ya Abú. ‘I promised not to reveal who told me about Hamidi’s plan.’

Mpangu wiitu/ ni kulawa masku/ Mwiini. ‘Our plan is to stay overnight in Brava.’

kh-paanguka

v. intr. (-pangushile) fade (of colors); be erased, be erasable

Alama izi/ zinakhpanguka. ‘These marks can be erased.’

Chiguwo ichi/ haspaanguki. ‘This cloth won’t fade.’

Ranji iyi/ haypaanguki. ‘This paint won’t scratch off.’

Sabuura/ ipangushile. ‘This blackboard has been erased.’

Sabura iyi/ hupanguka ka sahali. ‘This blackboard erases easily.’

rel.

kh-pangukila v. appl.

Sabuura/ impangukiliile. ‘The blackboard erased for him.’

kh-pangulila v. tr. appl. (panguliile)

Ali/ pangulile sabuura/ chiguwo. ‘Ali erased the blackboard with a piece of cloth.’ Or: Chiguwo/ Ali/ pangulile sabuura. ‘A piece of cloth, Ali used it to wipe the blackboard clean.’ (An instrument, in an instrumental use of the applied verb, is commonly fronted. The instrument does not appear to be naturally focused in the applied construction, and thus does not so easily appear in the position immediately after the verb, which is typically a position where focused elements may be placed. We have recorded examples like Pangulile chiguwo/ sabuura. ‘He wiped the blackboard with a piece of cloth.’, but they do not seem to be favored. The instrumental applied verb does not have an object prefix agreeing either with the instrument or the logical object: * Ipangulile sabuura/ chiguwo. nor * Shpangulile sabuura/ chiguwo.)

Tete fasaleeta/ khpangulila mwaana/ mapula. ‘He took a handkerchief to wipe the child’s nose with.’

kh-panguliloowa v. tr. appl. pass.

Chiguwo/ shpangulila sabuura. ‘A piece of cloth was used to wipe the blackboard.’

Fasaleeta/ ipangulila mapula. ‘A handkerchief was used to wipe (someone’s) nose.’ (Syn. Our data is unclear with regard to whether the instrument can be the passive subject in a sentence like ?Fasaļeeta/ ipangūļa mwaana/ mapula. ‘A handkerchief was used to wipe the child’s nose.’)

Muke/ pangūļa mwaana/ mapula. ‘The woman had the child’s nose wiped for her.’

kh-pangūloowa v. tr. pass.

Mwaana/ pangļa mapula/ ka fasaļeeta. ‘The child had his nose wiped with a handkerchief.’ (Syn. It should be noted that mapula cannot be the subject of the passive verb: Mapula/ yapangļa mwaana. ‘The nose was wiped the child.’)

kh-paangula v.tr. (pangiile) erase, wipe clean

Ali/ pangile sabuura/ ka chiguwo. ‘Ali wiped the blackboard clean with a piece of cloth.’

Chiguwo ichi/ hashpaanguli/ sabuura. ‘This rag doesn’t erase the blackboard,’ Haliima/ nakhpangula zilolo. ‘Haliima is wiping clean the mirrors.’

khpangula mapula ‘to wipe the nose’ is this used for one’s own nose

Maamé/ pangula maatoyo/ jisa suura/ ndrangaļa. ‘My mother, wipe your eyes nicely and look at me.’

Mpangile mwaana/ mapula/ ka fasaļeeta. ‘He wiped the child’s nose with a handkerchief.’

Nuuru/ pangile ziina. ‘Nuuru erased the (lit.) letters (of the alphabet).’

Omari/ pangiile/ ziinaze. ‘Omari erased his (lit.) letters (of the alphabet).’

Zeema/ hupangula ziwovu. ‘Good deeds/things cancel/clear bad deeds.’ (A proverbial saying.)

kh-pangulika v. tr. p/s.

Sabura iyi/ haypanguliki. ‘This blackboard cannot be erased.’

Sabura iyi/ hupangulika ka sahali/ (na mwaana). ‘This blackboard can be easily erased (by the child).’

kh-pangulisha v. tr. caus. (pangulishiize)

Ali/ mpangulishize Sa’iidi/ ruuhuye/ ivuumbi. ‘Ali caused Saiidi to dust himself off.’

kh-paanguza v. caus. (-pangiize)

Nuuru/ mpangize mwaana/ sabuura. ‘Nuuru had the child wipe the blackboard.’

paapa

locative strong demonstrative hachilati muuyi wiitu shtiloowa papa kafani [nɛ.] ‘we won’t leave our town, we will die here -- lit. let us be put in a shroud here’

paapa/ apa

locative emphatic demonstrative, first position [Sw. papa hapa SSED 366] just here, at this very place (used by MI as well as present-day speakers)

Chibuuku/ chiko paapa/ apa/ numbaani. ‘The book is right here somewhere in the house.’

Mi/ nakhsuulá/ chiruuda/ khudirkila paapa/ apa. ‘I want, when I return, to find you right here.’

paapa/ apa/ numbaani ‘at this very house’; or: paapa/ numbaani/ apa ‘ibid.’; or: apa/ paapa/ numbaani ‘ibid.’

kh-papa

v. [Sw. papa SSED 336] (papiile) have a strong desire for s.t., accumulate things to the point of being greedy

Nakhpapa. ‘He is being greedy.’

paapa

[cl.16] strong demonstrative, first position

paapa/ apa [Sw. papa hapa SSED 366] ‘just here, this very place’

Chibuuku/ chiko paapa/ apa/ numbaani. ‘The book is here somewhere in the house.’

Mi/ nakhsuulá/ chiruuda/ khudirkila paapa/ apa. ‘I want, when I come back, to find you right here.’

- paapaje [cl.16] strong demonstrative, third position (used by MI but not the present-day speakers we consulted) paapaje/ apaje ‘that very place over there’
- kh-papaant^ha v. (papeent^he) mold, shape dough into a round shape to make bread khpapant^ha maandra ‘to shape maandra into a round mass’
rel.
kh-papaant^hila v. appl. (papant^hiliile)
- kh-papasa v. [Sw. papasa SSED 367] caress
- m-p^hapaasi n. 9/10 [Sw. papasi ‘the Spirillum tick, Ornithodoros moubata, which infects with tick fever’ SSED 367] tick; [pron. mp^haapasi]
Mi/ nk^hawa hukhadira khfanya kila/ yaa mi/ nnakhsuuló/ mazá/ mi suḷa...kumḷaṭa/ mp^haapasi/ kunaambaṭa. ‘If I [in the story, a cow is speaking] were able to do everything that I want, how come I let a tick stick to me?’
Mp^haapasi/ chihada/ mi/ nk^hawanazoo nguvú/ khfanyiliza yaa mi/ nnakhsuuló/ mi/ suḷa kujoowa/ so/ na eeló. ‘The tick said: if I have the power to do whatever I want, would I be eaten by a gazelle?’
Nt^hakhaambaṭa kama mp^hapaasi. ‘I will stick to you like a cow tick (i.e. like glue).’
We/ ni mp^haapasi/ humwambaṭo ngoombé/ huno maazi/ ngoombe/ huno maayi...; You are the tick that sticks to the cow [and who] drinks his blood, the cow that drinks the water...’
- m-papaayu (mi-) n. 3/4 (=muti wa mapaapayu) [Sw. mpapai SSED 296, mpapayu SSED 297; Hind.] papaya tree
rel.
i-papaayu (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. papai (ma-) SSED 296] papaya variant form: ipapaaya
Ipapaaya/ ni itundra ije yaa we/ naki’iwono mezaani. ‘A papaya is that fruit that you see it on the table.’ Cf. Mapapaaya/ ni matundra ayaje yaa we/ nakiyawono mezaani. ‘Papayas are those fruits that you see them on the table.’
- m-paapi n. a type of snapper, perhaps the Yellow Tail Snapper; it is baked in a clay oven (nt^hanu); [pron. mp^haapi]
- kh-papisha v. [?Sw. papa SSED 366] read or talk fast khpapisha kooḍi ‘to talk fast’ khpapishaa sala ‘to pray quickly, perfunctorily’
Spapishé. ‘Don’t talk fast!’
- paapo [cl.16] strong demonstrative second position [Sw. papo SSED 367] right there, right then (Although originally a second position form, among present-day speakers it can be used in conjunction with the third position weak demonstratives.)
Basi/ ichiwa/ nfuye uyu/ hukalaant^ha/ mutiini/ apo/ na hulala paapo. ‘Well, (the fact) was this monkey used to sit in that tree there and sleep right there.’
ka paapo ‘at the same place or time, instantly’ Hamiisi/ nakhsoma chibuuku/ na ka paapó/ nakulangala mpiira.
‘Hamiisi is reading a book, and simultaneously, he is watching football.’
Isa/ mp^huundra/ ka paapo/ chiwa nakubigaa nk^hele. ‘Now the donkey at

- the very same time was braying [lit. hitting noise].’
- Jima ijje/ Hamiisi/ somele niingi/ ka paapó/ ye/ fahamiile/ darsi. ‘Last Friday, Hamiisi studied a lot. Immediately, he understood the lessons.’
- Ka paapo/ sultaani/ shtuma ma’askari/ kendra kumvīla mbiga mnaado. ‘Instantly, the sultan sent policemen to go to call the one who makes public announcements.’
- Kawa mbarakhá/ zītú/ zaliko nīdaamó/ si/ sula kuwa chīlazilé/ ka paapo. ‘If our documents had been in order we would have gone immediately.’
- Ma’askari wa Simsini/ wachiya ka paapo/ washpandra markabu/ wachimtukula mwanaamke/ na mwaana/ naayé/ chishkīla/ chendra Ifuwooni. ‘The soldiers of Simsini came immediately and boarded the ship and took the girl away and the boy also disembarked and went to the shore.’
- Nama/ nusu/ hupikoowa/ hujowa ka paapo. ‘Half of the meat is cooked and eaten right there.’
- We/ oo olosheló/ Hamadi/ ka paapo/ ile. ‘When you went, Hamadi immediately came.’ (The optional oo is the [cl.14] demonstrative referring to [cl. 14] wakh̄ti ‘time’.)
- ka paapo/ apo ‘at that very place, right then and there’
- Mi/ nt^hakhupaandri/ khuja/ ka paapo/ apo. ‘I will come up for you and eat you at that very place.’
- Nfuye uyu/ hukalaant^ha/ mutiini/ apo/ na hulala paapo. ‘This monkey used to stay in the tree there and sleep right there.’
- paapo/ apaje ‘right there (away from us)’ (cf. the possibly older form used by MI: paapaje/ apaje)
- Chibuuku/ chiko paapo/ apaje. ‘The book is still there (away from us).’
- paapo/ apaje/ numbaani ‘at that very house’; or: apaje/ paapo/numbaani or: paapo/ numbaani/ apaje
- paapo/ apo [Sw. papo hapo SSED 367] at that very place, there, at that very moment, then
- Chibuuku/ chiko (or: chipo) paapo/ apo/ mahaḷaa we/ chiweesheló. ‘The book is still there where you put it.’
- Chibuuku/ chiweshela paapo/ apo/ mahaḷaa we/ suliiló. ‘The book was put there at the place where you wanted (it to be put).’
- Laazimu/ tubaaku/ yiko paapo/ apo/ tu. ‘The tobacco must be just there at that very place.’
- Muunt^hu/ uje/ chilaala/ paapo/ apo/ maduriini. ‘That man slept at that very place in the bush.’
- Niko paapó/ apo. ‘I am still at the very same place.’ (cf. Uko paapo/apo. ‘He is still at the very same place.’) (The final accent triggered by the first person form niko lands on the final syllable of paapo, indicating that there is a phrasal break between paapo and apo and that paapo is focused.)
- Nt^hakhsimama/ paapo/ apo. ‘He did not stand right there.’ Or: Paapo/ apo/ nt^hakhsimama. Or: Paapo/ apo/ nt^hasimamó.
- Nt^hakuweeka/ zibuuku/ paapo/ apo. ‘He did not put the books in that very place.’ Or: Paapo/ apo/ nt^hakuweeka/ zibuuku. Or: Paapo/ apo/ nt^hakuweeka zibuukú.
- paapo/ apo/ numbaani ‘right at this house’; or: numbaani/ paapo/ apo or: numbaani/ apo/ paapo
- Paapo/ apo/ wotte/ wachiletoowa. ‘Immediately all were brought.’
- Simeeme/ paapo/ apo. ‘He stood right there.’ Or: Paapo/ apo/ simeemó. Or: Paapo/ apo/ simeeme.
- Uko paapo/ apo/ mahaḷaa we/ mlasiló. ‘She is still there at the same place where you left her.’ (Note that while this demonstrative form would ordinarily be taken as indicating a place near the addressee, it is clear from this example that this is not necessarily the case; rather it seems to involve the person addressed in some way, e.g. the person addressed has been at the place earlier.)

Uzize chiṭa mooyi/ cha ngoombe/ na tomele riyaali/ mooyi/ laakini/ chiṭa/ icho/ ye/ chilasile paapo/ apo. ‘He bought one cow’s head and paid one riyaali/ but/ that head/ he/ left it right there.’

Weshele zibuuku/ paapo/ apo. ‘He put the books right there at that very place.’ Or: Paapo/ apo/ weshelo zibuukú. (In the speech of GM, the preposing of paapo/ apo preferably triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb; he found ?Paapo/ apo/ weshele zibuuku. to be questionable.)

Paapo/ ichimweeleḷa/ ya kuwa taajiri/ huusha/ maaliye/ nḡhini yaa muti. ‘Right then it became clear to him that the rich man was hiding his money under the tree.’

paapo ka paapo it is the same thing as before, there is no change in the situation, there is no difference; we are at the same point as before; at the same spot; immediately after Chiiko/ paapo/ ka paapo. ‘We are at the same point as before.’

Paapo/ waant^hu/ washkumaangana/ mbele/ ya chizeele. ‘At once people gathered together in front of the old woman.’

kh-papuka gotten from

v. intr. (-papushile) be detached from, peel off (of paint), splinter off (of wood); be Chidaank^hu/ shpapushile. ‘A piece of the roof has broken off.’

Lkuta/ lnakhpapuka. ‘The wall has pieces detaching from it.’

Omari/ hapapuki. ‘One cannot get anything out of/ from Omari.’

Omari/ shiliingi/ hayimpapuki. ‘One cannot get even one shilling from Omari.’

rel.

kh-papukika v. p/s. (-papukishile) able to be gotten from Omari/ leelo/ papukishile/ ba. ‘Today something has been able to be gotten from Omari.’

kh-papukila v. intr. appl. break off on, for someone kh-papukoowa v. pass.

Apo/ ha’papukoowi/ chiint^hu/ ba. ‘There (at that place) nothing can be gotten (from the people there).’

Chiza khpapukowa chiint^hu/ siwo/ suura. ‘If nothing can be gotten, it is not good.’

Leelo/ laazimu/ khpapukoowa. ‘Today it is a must that something be gotten.’

kh-papulila v. tr. appl. (papuliile) break something off for, with kh-papulilana v. tr. appl. rec. break off for one another kh-papulilika v. tr. appl. p/s. able to be broken off for kh-papuloowa v. tr. pass.

Ziski/ zinakhpapuloowa. ‘Ears of maize are being broken off.’

kh-papula v. tr. (papiile) break a piece of something off

Ariplaano/ idameṭe chidaank^hu/ ishpapiile. ‘The airplane struck the roof slightly and broke off a piece of it.’

Omari/ nakhpapula ziski. ‘Omari broke the ears of maize off.’

kh-papulisha v. tr. caus/ have someone break off a piece of something kh-papuzza v. caus. (papiize)

Papize chidaank^hu. ‘He broke off a piece of the roof.’

paramendo

n. peppermint

ndruza na loozi paramendo khatari/ kuwamo khamri ni haqūqa khabari

[st.] ‘my brothers, and candies of peppermint are not allowed, it is certain (lit. certain news) that there is (a drop of) liquor inside them’

- parfuuma n. (=barafuumo) perfume (of Western type)
- kh-parpata v. (parpeete) rummage through things looking for s.t.
rel.
kh-parpatoowa v. pass.
si shchiparpatoowa mithaali ya nt^huungu [nt.] ‘we were hunted down everywhere as if we were ants’
- partiita n. a political party
- kh-pasa v. (pasiize) borrow, lend (perishable goods – sugar, money – not things)
Ali/ pasize peesa/ ka Muusa. ‘Ali borrowed money from Muusa.’
Ifuungu/ imooyi/ m i/ mp^hasize waant^hu/ na sinakuliindra/ kulipoowa. ‘One share I lent to people and I did not expect to be repaid.’
Hamadi/ kampasa Omari/ peesa/ su^la kuwa oloshole. ‘If Hamadi had lent Omari money, he (i.e. Omari) would have gone.’ Or: Omari/ su^la kuwa oloshole/ Hamadi/ kampasa peesa. ‘Omari would have gone if Hamadi had lent him money.’
Hamadi/ kampasa peesa/ Omari/ su^la kuwa oloshole. ‘If Hamadi had lent money to Omari, he (Omari) would have gone.’
Khpassa/ haruusi/ kulipa/ mataanga. ‘To borrow something is a wedding; to repay is days of mourning.’ (A proverb.)
Khpassake/ peesa/ ka Ali/ imkirihishize waawaye. ‘His borrowing money from Ali displeased his father.’
Khusudilileni/ we/ ka kuhada/ kuwa ifuungu/ ya taatu/ we/ pasize waant^hu/ na hutakulipoowa. ‘What did you mean by saying that the third portion [of the wealth you squandered] you lent to people and it you will not be paid back?’
Kumpasake/ Ali/ peesa/ imkirihishize waawaye. ‘His lending money to Ali displeased his father.’
Mi/ kawa nayo khariita/ su^la khupasa. ‘If I had a map I would loan it to you.’
Mi/ nimtahaadarishiize/ Omari/ chiza kumpasa/ peesa/ Huseeni. ‘I warned Omari that he should not lend money to Huseeni.’
Mpassize naani/ peesa. ‘Whom did you lend money?’ (Possible answers: Nimpasize Tuuma. ‘I lent to Tuuma.’ Or: Nimpasize Tuuma/ peesa. ‘I lent money to Tuuma.’) Mp^hasiize. ‘I borrowed something.’
Mpassiizeni/ Tuuma. ‘What did you lend Tuuma?’ (Possible answer: Nimpasize peesa. ‘I lent money.’ Or: Nimpasize peesa/ Tuuma. ‘I lent money to Tuuma.’)
Nakhsuula/ khpassa peesa. ‘I want to borrow money.’ (In this example, the final accent from the main verb projects past the emphasized verb in violation of the Accentual Law of Focus. Although ALF seems to regularly apply in the case of an emphasized verb, there is no doubt that pronunciations such as the present one are possible. We have not identified a meaning difference associated with the variation between whether ALF is respected or not.)
Nakhsuula khpassa/ peesa (or: peesa). ‘I want to borrow money.’ (This example involves the emphasis of an infinitive in a complement clause. Our consultant accepted the Accentual Law of Focus either being respected or violated: the complement to the infinitive shows default accent in the former case and final accent in the latter case.)
Nakhtosha Fardoosa/ haapasi/ peesa. ‘I think Fardoosa is not borrowing money.’ (The negative complement verb in this example seems to show the effect of the Accentual Law of Focus, with the final accent not projecting past the negative verb.) do more research on this point Nimpasiize. ‘I lent him something.’
Nimpasize Tuuma/ peesa. ‘I lent money to Tuuma.’ Or: Nimpasize peesa/

Tuumá.

Omari/ suḷa kuwa oloshela/ Hamadi/ kampaśa/ peesa (or: peesa). ‘Omari would have gone if Hamadi had lent him money.’ (Notice that when the ka-tense verb is focused, the following complement may or may not exhibit final accent. We are unsure whether any difference in meaning is involved.)

Uyu maskiini/ kiḷa choloka ka ṭajiri bakhiili/ khpasa peesa/ amó/ kumera kaazi/ shchimbizoowa/ ka maṭaando. ‘This poor man, every time he went to the miserly rich man to borrow money or to look for work, he was sent away with insults.’

rel.

kh-pasan(y)a v. loan one another something

Jirani izi/ hupasanya kuḷa chiint^hu. ‘These neighbors borrowed everything from one another.’

Wapasene peesa. ‘They loaned each other money.’

kh-pasanyana v. rec. (-pasanyeene)

Jirani izi/ hupasanyana kuḷa chiint^hu. ‘These neighbors borrow everything from one another.’

kh-pasanyika v. rec. p/s.

Zint^hu izi/ haspanyiki. ‘These things can’t (or shouldn’t) be borrowed from one another’ kh-pasiliza v. appl. (pasiliize) borrow for; hold against someone Ali/ mpasilize Muusa/ peesa/ (ka Nuuru). ‘Ali borrowed money for Muusa (from Nuuru).’

Simpasilizé/ oyo/ ni ijiniile. ‘Don’t hold it against that one, he is crazy.’

kh-pasika, kh-pasikika v. p/s. (-pasishile, -pasikishile)

Ali/ hapasiki/ chiint^hu. ‘One cannot lend anything to Ali (e.g. he does not pay it back).’

Ali/ haypasiki/ chiint^hu/ kaake. ‘One cannot borrow anything from Ali (he’s always reclaiming it right away, etc.).’

Haspasiki/ peesa/ ka Ali. ‘One cannot borrow money from Ali (e.g. he won’t do it or he charges too much interest).’

kh-pasilizika v. appl. p/s.

Hapasiliziki/ chiint^hu. ‘You cannot borrow things for him (he’ll let you down and not pay you back).’

kh-pasisha v. caus. cause someone to lend or borrow Nuuru/ mpasishize mwaana/ peesa. ‘Nuuru caused the child to borrow money.’

kh-pasishana v. caus. rec.

kh-pasishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-pasishiliza v. caus. appl. (-pasishiliize)

Nuuru/ mpasishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ peesa. ‘Nuuru caused Suufi’s child to borrow money.’

kh-pasishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wapasishilizenye waana/ peesa. Nuuru and Suufi caused one another’s children to borrow money.’

kh-pasoowa v. pass.

Awa/ wapasiza maandra. [H!H] ‘These ones were lent bread.’ Or:

Maandra/ wapasiza awa. [H!H] ‘Bread, they were lent.’

Peesa/ ipasiiza/ aduwi/ ifanyiiza. ‘Money has been lent, an enemy has been made.’ (A proverb.)

Tuumá/ pasiza peesa. ‘Tuuma was lent money.’ Or: Peesa/ pasiza Tuumá.

Wapasiza maandra/ ni awa. [H!H] ‘The ones who were lent bread were these ones.’

rel. nom.

m-p^haso n. borrowing review this and following

Ni munt^hu waa mp^haso. ‘He is a man who borrows (repeatedly).’

m-paso n. 3 borrowing

Jiraani/ wamkirihile ka mpasoye. ‘Neighbors are disgusted with him because of his borrowing (all the time).’

ma-paso n. 6

Jiraani/ wamkirihile ka mapasoye. ‘The neighbors are disgusted with him because of his repeatedly borrowing things.’

pasaporta

n. passport

Mi/ kuwa ni mashghuuli/ tu/ siwo/ na pasaportayá/ ba/ ipoteele. ‘It is not only that I am too busy, but also my passport is out of date.’

pash

ideo. of striking with the hand

Haliima/ mbishile mwaanawe/ ipi ya tuusi/ pash. ‘Haliima struck her child with a blow of the buttocks.’

Mwana/ waliko shpandraa muti/ mukhta₂ ye/ mweno mwenewé/ ulushile/ potelee n₂hi/ mtangaani/ pash! ‘The child who was climbing a tree, when he saw the owner, he jumped and fell down into the sand pash!’

pashpo

prep. [Sw. pasipo SSED 368] without

Ali/ nandikishizee khatí/ pashpoo ye/ kiiwa. ‘Ali made me write a letter without him knowing/realizing (it).’

amali pashpo ilmu hurudoowa [st.] ‘for deeds unsupported by knowledge are rejected’

Chiloho/ pashpo chaambo/ hashpati/ nsi. ‘A hook without bait does not get a fish.’ (A proverb.)

Hasani/ nsafirishize pashpoo sehe. ‘Hasani made me travel without provisions.’

Hula/ pashpo kubigoowa. ‘He cries without being beaten.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is: munt₂u nayo ma₂to mtuzi ‘a man who has ‘soup eyes’, a disease of the eyes where the sufferer continually has tears in the eyes).’

Nandishilee khatí/ pashpo Mubiidi/ kiiwa. ‘I wrote a letter without Mubiidi knowing.’

pashpo kumwona Abunawaasi ‘without seeing Abunawaasi’

Siimba/ chanza khfakata/ pashpo/ kiiwa/ maha₂laa ye/ nakeendró. ‘The lion began to run without knowing where he was going to.’

We/ pata kendra kaziini/ pashpo fikiri. ‘You get to go to work without worrying.’

paasi

n. [Sw. pasi SSED 368] iron (instrument for ironing clothes); passport kubiga paasi ‘to iron’

Bishilee nguwo/ paasi. ‘He ironed the clothes.’ Or: Bishile paasi/ nguwo. (Cf. Mbishile nguwo/ paasi. ‘I ironed the clothes.’

Or: Mbishile paasi/ nguwo. Note that the change in word order does not alter the projection of the final accent from the verb.)

Mi/ mbishile paasi/ jisa suurá. ‘I ironed well’ (Phon. The word paasi in this idiom is non-referential and one cannot put focus on it, hence the ill-formedness of Mi/ mbishile paasi/ jisa suura. In this ill-formed sentence, the accent stops at paasi and does not pass on to the unfocused phrase following.)

Mi/ mbishile paasi/ leelo. ‘I ironed today.’ (Phon. In the default case, a time adverb is out-of-focus and the scope of the final accent does not extend to it. It is possible to put emphasis on the preceding phrase, but the pitch level is significantly raised then: [Mi/ mbishile ↑ paasi/ leelo.] It is possible to put the time adverb into focus and then the final accent will extend to it: Mi/ mbishile paasi/ leeló. ‘It is today that I ironed.’ One can also focus on the time adverbial by putting it in post-verbal position: Mi/ mbishile leeló/ paasi. ‘It is today that I ironed.’ Notice that in this case the final accent triggered by the verb cannot extend past the focused element to paasi. In this sentence, leelo is raised in pitch, but a more exaggerated raising: [Mi/ bishile ^hleeló/ paasi.] would lead to an interpretation like ‘It is today (not any other time) that I ironed.’) ironing that I am doing.’

Mi/ nakubiga paasi. ‘I am ironing.’ Or: Mi/ paasi/ nakubigó. ‘It’s nakubiga paasi/ nguwo.

Mi/ nakubigaa nguwo/ paasi. ‘I am ironing clothes.’ Or: Mi/

kubiga paasi. ‘I am going to iron.’

Nakendra kubiga paasi. ‘I am going to iron.’ Or: Nakeendr/

Naani/ nakubigo paasi. ‘Who is ironing?’

Naani/ nakubigo paasi/ nguwo. ‘Who is ironing clothes?’

Ni mkali/ kubiga paasi. ‘He is good (lit. sharp) at ironing.’ Or: Ni hodaari/ kubiga paasi.

Ye/ bishilee nguwo/ paasi/ jisa suura. ‘He ironed the clothes well.’

Cf. Mi/ mbishilee nguwo/ paasi/ jisa suurá. ‘I ironed the clothes well.’ (Phon. One can locate paasi immediately after the verb, but by doing so one does not put focus on it since basi is non-referential and cannot be focused.

Final accent will extend throughout the verb phrase even in that word order: Mi/ mbishile paasi/ nguwo/ jisa suurá. If, on the other hand, one puts the adverbial position, this order focuses on the adverb, and final accent may not extend past it: Mi/ mbishile jisa suurá/ nguwo/ paasi. ‘I ironed well the clothes.’)

Ye/ bishilee nt^ho/ paasi. ‘She ironed a lot (or for a long time).’

(Phon. Compare with a final-accent triggering verb: Mi/

bishilee nt^ho/ paasi. ‘I ironed a lot.’ There is no difference in the accent due to the fact that nt^ho is monosyllabic and cannot reveal any difference between default and final accent. Furthermore, since nt^ho is the focus in this sentence, final accent from the verb may not extend past it to paasi.)

Ye/ bishile paasi/ leelo ‘She ironed today.’ Or: Leelo/ ye/ bishile paasi. ‘Today she ironed.’) kubigila paasi ‘to iron for’

Mbigilile Hamadi/ nguwo/ paasi. ‘He ironed clothes for Hamadi.’

Mi/ nimbiligile Nuurú/ nguwo/ paasi. ‘I ironed clothes for Nuuru.’

Mukeewe/ mbigilile paasi/ nguwoze/ za kulaalila. ‘His wife ironed for him his pajamas.’ Or: Mukeewe/ mbigilile nguwoze/ za kulaalila/ paasi.

kubigowa paasi ‘to be ironed’

Nguwoze/ za kulaalila/ zibishila paasi/ na mukeewe. ‘His pajamas were ironed by his wife.’ Or: Zibiishila paasi/ na mukeewé/ ni nguwoze/ za kulaalila. ‘What was ironed by his wife were his pajamas.’

paasta

n. pasta

khpika paasta ‘to cook pasta’

kuja paasta ‘to eat pasta’ suugo/ ya paasta ‘pasta tomato sauce’

kh-pasula

v. [Sw. pasua SSED 368] (pasiile) skin (an animal)

Mtinda hoola/ haṭalami/ khpasula. ‘One who slaughter animals does not hesitate/ to skin (them).’ (A proverb.)

Nuuru/ pasilee mbuzi. ‘Nuuru skinned a goat.’

Omari/ nampasulaa mbuzi/ igozi. ‘Omari is skinning the goat.’

Ye/ mtete ngamiila/ mtiinzile/ na maliizopó/ kumpasulá/ chinaambila/ kuwaa

rel.

kh-pasulila v. appl. skin for, with

Uzilee chisu/ khpasulilaa mbuzi. ‘He bought a knife to skin the goats with.’ (Syn. The applied verb in the lower clause may not have an object prefix in agreement with the logical object mbuzi: Uzilee chisu/ kispasulilaa mbuzi.)

Uzilee chisu/ kumpasulilaa mbuzi. ‘He bought a knife to skin the goats for him with.’ (Syn. Notice that the applied verb stem permits the instrument to appear without a preposition even though at the same time it is expressing a beneficiary, which appears as the object prefix m.)

kh-pasuliloowa v. appl. pass.

kh-pasuloowa v. (pasiila) be skinned

Mbuzi/ nakhpasulowa igozi. ‘The goat is being skinned (the skin).’

kh-pasulika v. p/s.

kh-pasulisha v. caus. (pasulishiize)

Mpasulishize mwaana/ mbuzi. ‘He had the child skin the goat.’ (It is possible for the “causee” to be omitted from this sentence, though of course the OM still indicates that the causee is a [cl.1] noun: Mpasulishizee mbuzi. ‘He had him skin the goat.’ Notice that while a [cl.9] like mbuzi ordinarily triggers [cl.1] agreement on a verb when it is the primary object, here it is clear that mbuzi does not control the OM since mbuzi is not a semantically appropriate causee. The logical object of the verb ‘skin’ may be omitted: Mpasulishize mwaana. ‘He had the child skin s.t.’ It is possible to omit the causee entirely, so that there is neither an OM nor an overt noun identifying it: Pasulishizee mbuzi. ‘He had a goat skinned.’ It is not possible for mbuzi to govern an OM, even in the absence of the causee: Ipasulishizee mbuzi. ‘He had the goat skinned.’) kh-pasulishana v. caus. rec.

kh-pasulishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-pasulishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mpashulishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ mbuzi. ‘Nuuru had Suufi’s child skin as goat.’

kh-pasulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Suufi/ na Nuuru/ wapasulishilizenye waana/ mbuzi. ‘Suufi and Nuuru had one another’s children skin goats.’

kh-pasulishoowa v. caus. pass.

m-pata

n., adj. [Sw. pacha SSED 360] twin; [pron. mp^hata]

Hufaanana/ kanaa mp^hata. ‘They look like one another as though they were twins.’

mwanaa mp^hata ‘twin’ (cf. wanaa mp^hata ‘twins’)

mwana mp^hata uyu ‘this twin’ (cf. wana mp^hata awa ‘these twins’)

mwana mp^hata uyu ‘this twin’ (cf. wana mp^hata awa ‘these twins’)

Zazilee mp^hata. ‘She gave birth to twins.’

rel.

m-p^hataamp^hata n. sets of twins mp^hataamp^hata ka miimba ishiriini [st.] ‘sets of twins from twenty pregnancies’

Zazile mp^hataamp^hata. ‘She gave birth to (several) sets of twins.’

patente

n. [Ital. patente] driver’s license

kh-patika

v. [Sw. pachika SSED 360] (patishile) put on a hook, hang; put on without buttoning (e.g. a shirt); insert a knife in a sheath

Ali/ patishile shaati. ‘Ali put on a shirt without buttoning it.’ (Syn. A passive version of this sentence is not permitted.)

khpatikaa chisu/ ijaliini ‘to insert a knife in a sheath’ khpatika kooti ‘to put on a coat without buttoning it’

Patika shaatiyo/ ineendra. ‘Throw [lit. hang] on your shirt and go for a walk!’

Paṭika/ tu. ‘Just put it on (don’t worry about putting it on properly)!’
Paṭishile shaati/ musmaari. ‘He hung the shirt on a nail.’

rel.

kh-paṭikika v. p/s.

kh-paṭikila v. appl. hook for, with Mpaṭikilile shaati/ musmaari. ‘He hung the shirt for me on a nail.’

Tete shaatiya/ kump^haṭikila musmariini. ‘He took my shirt to hang it on a nail for me.’

kh-paṭikilika v. appl. p/s.

Hapaṭikiliki. ‘(For) him it is not possible to hang s.t. on a hook.’

kh-paṭikisha v. caus.

kh-paṭikoowa v.

Shaati/ ipaṭishila na Ali/ musmariini. ‘The shirt was put on the nail by Ali.’

rel. nom.

m-paṭiko n. 3

ma-paṭiko n. 6

u-paṭiko n. 14

m-paatu n. 9/10 kind of fruit which grows in bunches on a shrub; this shrub grows (spontaneously, in the wild) in the outskirts of Brava [pron. mp^haaṭu] muti wa mp^haaṭu ‘the shrub on which mp^haaṭu grow’

kh-pata

v. [Sw. pata SSED 368] (peete) get, obtain, find; catch an animal by trapping

Ali/ hupata shilingi ikumi/ muunt^hi. ‘Ali earns ten shillings a day.’

Ali/ impete iwa. ‘The sun really affected Ali.’ Or: Iwa/ impete Ali.

Ali/ petee nsi. ‘Ali caught some fish.’

Baana/ pete chibuku cha naani. ‘Baana found whose book?’ Or: Baana/ pete naani/ chibuukuche. A possible answer to the second sentence is: Baana/ pete Omari/ chibuukuche. ‘Baana found Omari’s book.’

Chishpeeté. ‘We have found/gotten it [cl.7].’

Gari iyi/ hupata shilingi alfu. ‘This car is worth a thousand shillings.’

Fulaani/ impete ito iwovu. ‘The evil eye has gotten so-and-so.’

Hamadi/ nt^hakhpata/ khsaafira/ hattá/ maramó. ‘Hamadi never had a chance to travel, not even one time.’

Hapati/ senti mooyi. ‘He isn’t worth a penny.’

Hasani/ oloshela khpataa nyunyi. ‘Hasani went to trap birds.’

Hatá/ sku mooyi/ skupata/ kuwona muunt^hu/ dokhaani/ kama uyu.

‘Never [lit. even one day] have I had a chance to see a person as stupid as this one.’

Isa/ pete mukeewe. ‘Now he’s gotten himself a wife!’

Isa/ pete usiinzi. ‘Now he’s (finally) gotten some sleep!’

Iwaliko imp^heteni/ tu/ mi/ koondroka/ kumlaṭaa muke/ naayé/nakump^heendo jis’iyi. ‘What just possessed me to up and divorce [this] woman while she is loving me this way?’

Kaḍiḍo/ impete jisa suura. ‘Fever really laid him low.’

Kamaa we/ chiwona chiint^hu/ chiza kuhada chiint^hu/ haykhopati/chiint^hu. ‘If you see something but do not say anything, nothing will happen to you.’ (A proverb.)

khpata faayda ‘to profit’

khpata khasaara ‘to suffer a financial loss’

Hamadi/ impete khasaara. ‘Hamadi suffered a financial loss (lit. a financial loss got Hamadi).’

khpata maato ‘to close the eyes of a dying person’

Mwaana/ mpete waawaye/ maato. ‘The child closed his father’s eyes (upon his death).’

khpata miimba ‘to get pregnant’

Muke/ chidirkamana na mubli/ hupata miimba. ‘If a woman meets with a man, she gets pregnant.’

khpataa nsi ‘to go fishing’ (does not necessarily mean one caught any fish)

Hasani/ nakhpataa nsi. ‘Hasani is fishing.’ (Cf. Mi/ nakhpataa nsi. ‘I am fishing.’ Notice that the usual accentual contrast between a third person present tense subject and a first person present tense subject is absent in this example. The reason is that although third person requires a penult accent while first person requires a final accent, this contrast cannot be realized when the last word in the phrase is monosyllabic. The accent falls on the only syllable there is in the final word nsi.)

khpata ruuhu ‘to attend a dying person, closing his eyes for him when he died’ khpatowaa nt^hi ‘[lit.] to be gotten on the ground -- i.e. to be a nobody, someone who cannot trace his ancestry’

Nakhtoshaa mi/ mp^hetaa nt^hi. ‘“Do you think I am “a nobody”?”’

Koði izi/ skupata/ mwaanzowe. ‘This talk, I did not get its beginning -- i.e. I did not hear what was said at the beginning.’

Limiiile/ hupata waant^hu. ‘His tongue (speech) affects people.’

Lpandre ili/ nt^halkupata/ ranji. ‘This part did not get painted.’

Luzi ili/ hupata yardii nne. ‘This string is about four yards.’

Leelo/ nimpeeté/ Ali. ‘Today I really put one over on Ali, beat Ali badly.’

Leelo/ petee khati. ‘Today he got a letter.’

Maali/ hupatoowa/ ruuhu/ haypatoowi. ‘Wealth is acquired, the soul is not acquired.’ (A proverb.)

Maambo/ yampeetó. ‘What happened to him is amazing!’

Mi/ nakendra khpatapi/ inyi yaa nfuye. ‘Where am I going to get a monkey’s liver from?’

Mp^hete Baaná/ chibuukuché. ‘I found Baana’s book.’ (Note that it is ill-formed to say: Mp^hete Baaná/ chibuukuche. But one can say: Mp^hete chibuukuché/ Baana. This would answer the question: Peetení/ ya Baana. ‘What did you find of Baana’s?’)

Mp^heeeté/ chibuku cha Baana. ‘I got Baana’s book.’ Or: Mp^heeeté/ chibuuku/ cha Baana. Or: Mp^hete chibuku cha Baaná. Or: Mp^hete chibuukú/ cha Baaná. Or: Mp^hete chibuukú/ cha Baana. (In the last example, the emphasis is on chibuuku and conveys the idea that the book was finally found, perhaps after people had given up looking for it, etc.) (It is ungrammatical to have possessor raising: Mp^hete Baaná/ chibuukú. Or Nimpete Baaná chibuukú. ‘I found Nuuru the book.’)

Mp^hete chibuku cha Muusá. ‘I found Muusa’s book.’ (Also: Chibuku cha Muusa/ mp^heeetó. ‘I found Muusa’s book.’)

Mp^hetee chisú/ chaa muké. ‘I found the woman’s knife.’

Mp^heeeté/ cho. ‘I got it.’

Mp^heeeté/ cho/ chibuuku. ‘I got it, the book.’

Mp^hetee cho/ chibuuku. ‘I got it, the book.’

Mp^hetee muké/ chisuuché. ‘I found the woman’s knife.’ (Notice that the noun muke in this sentence cannot link to an object marker on the verb: Nimpetee muké/ chisuuché. In the possessive expression muke/ chisuuche ‘woman her knife’, is it chisu ‘knife’ that may occupy a thematic role, not muke ‘woman’.)

Mukeewe/ waliko maanzine/ pete khabari/ kuwa... ‘His wife had already received the news that...’ review

Mukhta wazuungu/ wa’iló/ wa’anzize khfanya miyuundra/ na wanaa nt^hi/ wapete kubarata kulima. ‘When the Europeans came, they began to farm, and the natives had an opportunity to learn to cultivate.’

mukhta ye/ mpete mp^huundra/ m'ajibiiló 'when he found a donkey that pleased him'

Mwana uyu/ pete ka waawaye/ mp^hula iyi. 'This boy got his nose from his father.'

Naayé/ nakhpenda khpataa nsi. 'He likes to catch fish.'

Nishpeeté. 'I got it [cl.7].'

Nishpeeté/ cho/ chinyunyi. 'I got it, the bird.' Or: Nishpetee cho/ chinyunyi.

Nt^hayimpata/ chiint^hu. 'Nothing happened to him.'

Pete Baana/ chibuukuche. 'He found Baana's book.' (Phon. In the yes-no question version of this sentence, there is no accent shift, only pitch raising: Pete Baana/ chibuukuche? This indicates that chibuukuche is not out of focus.)

Peete/ Baana/ chibuukuche. 'Baana found his (i.e. someone else's) book.' (In this sentence, the subject Baana is postposed after the verb and is not part of a syntactic unit that includes chibuukuche, hence the lack of co-reference between the two. In this situation, chibuukuche is out-of-focus and thus undergoes accent shift in the corresponding yes-no question: Peete/ Baaná/ chibuukuché?)

Pete chibuuku/ chinume cha mlaango. 'He found the book behind the door.'

Peeteni/ Hamadi. 'What did he get, Hamadi?' A possible answer: Pete chibuuku/ Hamadi. 'He got a book, Hamadi.'

Teena/ chendra khpataa nsi/ cheendró/ chendra khpataa nsi. 'Then he went to catch fish, that's where he went, he went to catch fish.'

Yaa mi/ chisuuló/ mp^hheeté/ basi/ nakendra muyiini. 'That which I wanted, I have gotten, so I am going to town.'

Yaa ye/ hupató/ humtela sultaani/ jis'iyo/ jis'iyo/ hatá/ leelo/ chint^hu mwaape/ cha mazaaydi/ chaa ye/ hupató/ chisuura/ hi'iwekela kaake. 'That which he gets, he brings to the sultan, like this, like this, until one day (lit. today) something else of profit that he got, something nice, he puts aside for himself at his place.'

rel.

kh-pataapata v. freq.

Cheendra/ nakhpatapataa nsi/ nakhpató/ chileeta/ chuuzá. 'He went and made it his habit to fish, that's what he was doing, and he brought [the fish] and sold [them].'

Heendra/ hupatapataa nsi. 'They go to catch fish.'

Kazi ya waawo/ ni khpatapata skunyi. 'The work of your father was to collect firewood.'

Shpatapata skunyi/ shpató. 'He collected firewood, that's what he did.'

kh-patika v. p/s. be obtainable, catchable

Khpatika peesa/ siwo/ sahali. 'Getting money is not easy.' Or: Peesa/ khpatika/ siwo/ sahali. 'Money to be gotten is not easy.'

Nsi/ haspatiki/ ka mkono. 'Fish cannot be caught by hand.'

Nsi/ hupatika ka sahali. 'Fish are easily caught.'

kh-patikana v. be discoverable, obtainable; happen

Chilazila Ifuwooni/ hupatikana bahariini. 'That which is left on the shore is found in the ocean.' (A proverb.)

Chula zoombo/ hupatikano nt^hi izó/ chondroka naazo/ chendra nt^hi mooyi/ nk^hulu huhokomó/ ni sultaani. 'He bought things that are found in those lands and took off with them and went to a large country that is ruled by a sultan.'

Hasiibu/ mukhta aḍaabu/ imwelelo niingi/ shkhiira/ kuwapeleka/ mahala ya sultani waa noka/ hupatikano. 'When the pain became great for Hasiibu, he agreed to send them to a place where the king of snakes could be found.'

Ipatikene ya kuwa... 'It happened that...'

Karkaa nt^hi/ iyi/ buni/ ni ghaali/ nt^ho/ na ka wiingi/ buni/ haspatikani/ na schipatikani/ huzowa ka almaasi. ‘In this country coffee beans are expensive and most of the time cannot be found, and if they are found, they are sold in diamonds.’

Kila chiint^hu/ hupatikana ka sabri. ‘Everything is achievable with patience.’ (A proverb.)

Na muyiini/ khpatikana deeni/ siwo/ sahali. ‘And in the town, to obtain a loan is not easy.’

Nama/ ipatikeene. ‘The meat was obtained, was obtainable.’

Nsi/ hupatikana sukhuuni? ‘Fish, can they be obtained in the market?’

Peesa/ sku izi/ haspatikani. ‘Money these days is not able to be gotten.’

Siriye/ haypatikani. ‘His secret cannot be discovered.’

Sku mooyi/ wawayee muke/ shpatikana na maraḍi. ‘One day the woman’s father fell ill.’

Ye/ nambile kuwa mzele oyo/ takunoonyeza/ nt^hi/ hapatikano mayahuudi. ‘She told me that that old woman would show me the land where one can find Jews.’

Zijumba/ zaa nyunyi/ za lamna iyo/ haspatikani/ ila/ karkaa nt^hi/ mooyi/ tu. ‘The nests of birds of that type cannot be found except in just one country.’

kh-patiloowa v. appl. pass.

Zombo izi/ hupatilowa peesa. ‘Those things you can get money from them.’

kh-patila v. appl. get for Baana/ mpatilileni/ Nuura. ‘What did Baana get for Nuura?’ A possible answer to this question: Baana/ mpatilile chibuuku/ Nuura. ‘Baana got a book for Nuura.’

Maamé/ leelo/ shpatilileni/ kishpaa kuja. ‘Mother, today, what did you get for us to give us to eat.’

Mgarwa/ nakumera chaambo/ khpatilaa nsi. ‘A fisherman is searching for bait to get fish.’

Nuuru/ patilile gaari/ shufeeri. ‘Nuuru got a driver for the car.’ (Observe that the logical object is a human being but cannot control an object marker on the verb since the object marker can only agree with the indirect object.) Cf. Nuuru/ mpatilile shufeeri/ gaari. ‘Nuuru got a car for the driver.’

Wa/ leelo/ ninpatililee kujá/ nt^haziná/ ba/ adadi. ‘Wa! Today I got for you (pl.) food that cannot be counted.’

We/ chiza kump^hatila/ mi/ nt^hakhuṭinda chitacho. ‘If you do not get her for me, I will cut off your head.’

kh-patilapatila v. appl. freq.

Basi/ oyo mwiimbili/ abadiye/ hutukula chijisu/ chaa ye/ keendra/ khpatilapatilaa nsi. ‘So that boy always carries a knife with which he goes to get fish.’

kh-patisha v. caus.

kh-patishiliza v. caus. appl. cause to get for

Baana/ patishilize gaari/ shufeeri. ‘Baana had someone get a chauffeur for the car.’ (Observe that an overt causee may not appear in this sentence, where both of the arguments of the benefactive applied are retained in the verb phrase: cf. Omari/ patilile gaari/ shufeeri. ‘Omari got a chauffeur for the car.’)

Omari/ patishilize gaari/ moṭoore. ‘Omari caused someone to get a motor for the car.’ (When the causative verb has both the beneficiary and logical object expressed in post-verbal position, it is not grammatical to express the causee: Omari/ patishilize gaari/ Nuuru/ moṭoore. ‘Omari caused Nuuru to get a motor for the car.’ Repositioning the causee in the VP does not improve the sentence. There is also no possibility of adding an object prefix to the verb that agrees with the causee. Only the beneficiary can govern an object prefix.)

Omari/ patishilizeni/ moṭoore. ‘What did Omari cause someone to get a motor for?’

Omari/ patishiliizeni/ Nuuru/ mofoore. ‘What did Omari cause Nuuru to get a motor for?’ (Note that in this example the causee is allowed to appear in the verb phrase since there is no beneficiary argument present.)

kh-patoowa v. pass.

Chibuuku/ shpeta chinume cha mlaango. ‘The book was found behind the door.’

Chimvīla khadimuye/ Juuma/ chimuuzā/ mahala ya Ali/ hupatoowá. ‘He called his servant Juuma and asked him where Ali could be found.’

chisu chaa muke/ shpeta na Nuurú ‘the knife of the woman that was found by Nuuru’ (The subject marker on the relative verb makes it clear that it is the knife, chisu, that was found and not the woman, muke. Cf. the main clause: Chisu chaa muke/ shpeta na Nuuru. ‘The knife of the woman was found by Nuuru.’ Cf. also: Muke/ chisuuche/ shpeta na Nuuru. ‘The woman, her knife was found by Nuuru.’)

Fulaani/ peta na iṭo iwovu. ‘So-and-so was gotten by the evil eye.’

Gaari/ ipatīlīla shufeeri. ‘The car was gotten (for it) a driver.’

Shufeeri/ patīlīla gaari. ‘The driver was gotten a car (for him).’

Si/ shkoḏele jisa khpatowa peesá/ khsafira Ameeriká. ‘We discussed how to get money to travel to America.’

zote hupatoowa naazo siwo chiint^hu [nt.] ‘all this can be recovered and does not matter’

nom. rel.

ma-patano n. 6 agreement

Ni mapatano bena yaa muke/ na mubli/ wanakhsulo ku’isha pamooyi/ ka muda ya hayati yaawo. ‘It [i.e. marriage] is an agreement between a man and a woman who want to live together for the period of their life.’

kh-pata

v. aux. (When pata is followed by a verb in the same clause, the meaning of ‘get’ is considerably diluted. We refer to this as the auxiliary use of the verb, but admit that there is probably no definite point at which the lexical verb turns into an auxiliary verb.)

Chidaḏalateeni/ shpate khshiindra. ‘Let us try hard so that we may win.’

Chisu ichi/ hupata khtjiinda. ‘This knife is sharp [lit. can cut].’

Daḏalataani/ shpate khshiindra. ‘Try hard so that we may win.’

Fanya bidi’i/ khfahama/ upate kuwa’eleza waanawo. ‘Make an effort to understand so that you can explain (it) to your children.’

Fungula mlaango/ mwaana/ napate kiingila. ‘Open the door so that the child can enter.’

Ifiile/ khpata skuu nt^hatu. ‘He died three days ago.’

Kheeri/ mi/ mmeree muke/ nimloole/ napate kumlangala mwaana. ‘It is best that I look for a woman so that I marry her so that she can look after the child.’

Khuletelele chibuukú/ we/ pata khsooma. ‘I brought you the book so that you could read it.’

Kooḏa/ bila steendro/ nt^haskupata/ kuwaka nt^hi. ‘Words without actions can never build a country.’

Leelo/ spati/ kuuya. ‘Today I won’t be able to come.’ Or: Leelo/ sitakhpata/ kuuya. ‘Today I won’t be able to come.’

Oloshale Mkhodiisho/ khpata kula gaari. ‘He went to Mogadishu in order to get a car (e.g. there are no car dealers where he lives).’ (Cf. Oloshale Mkhodiisho/ kula gaari. ‘He went to Mogadisho to buy a car (it has all been arranged, the car is there and he just needs to go and get it).’)

Pete kuwona chineemá? ‘Did you get to see the movie?’

Sooloké/ sukhuuni/ wee/ peeke/ seendre/ wa’uzaa nsi/ kawapata khukhada’a. ‘Don’t go to the market alone lest the fish-sellers cheat you.’

Spati/ khkooḏa/ mbele za waant^hu. ‘I cannot speak in front of people.’

We/ ndrasilee mi/ numbaani/ khpata khulangalila waana. ‘You left me in the house to look after your children.’

We/ wana fahamu/ upate kuwa’eleza waanawo. ‘You be with understanding so that you can explain (it) to your children.’

kh-patana

v. {Sw. patana SSED 369] (pateene) agree, be reconciled

Jiraanize/ washpatana kumlaṭa paapo/ apo/ chimaani. ‘His neighbors agreed among themselves to leave him right there in the well.’

khatana na ‘to be reconciled with’

Nuuru/ patene na Suufi. ‘Nuuru reconciled with Suufi.’

Makaraayle/ washpatana/ masku yahaani/ huzimila/ ka apo/ kendra mahala ba’iidi. ‘The crows agreed during the night to flee from there to go to another place far away.’

Omari/ na Ali/ wanakhpatana/ ba’adi yaa wo/ kuḷaana. ‘Omari and Ali are reconciling after they fought.’

Sku mooyi/ washpatana/ keendra/ khfanya muundra. ‘One day they agreed to go and make a garden.’

Uko mweenzawa/ naayé/ mooyi/ shpateené/ mi/ naaye/ kuwa yaa mi/ nt^hakhpató/ yotte/ kaawanya/ naaye/ sawasawa. ‘There is my friend and he is the one who we agreed, me with him, that (whatever) I will get, all to divide with him equally.’

Waana/ wapatene keendra. ‘The children agreed to go.’

Waanawa/ wawili/ huḷaana/ muunt^hi/ ishkoma masku/ hupatana. ‘My children quarrel during the day, when night comes, they agree.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is mlaango ‘door’, the two parts of which are closed together at night.)

rel.

kh-patanika v. p/s.

Haypataniki/ apa. ‘There cannot be harmony, reconciliation here (s.o. keeps preventing it).’

kh-pataniloowa v. appl. pass.

ambó/ jisa hupataniloowá ‘or whatever is agreed upon’ kh-patanila v. appl. (pataniliila) agree to, on; reconcile for Ba’ada/ ya khshindroowa/ Sa’iidi/ choondroka/ shfanya kama muunt^hu/ nakendro kiyana maayi/ tawalá/ yotté/ jisa ipataniliilá. ‘After he lost/was defeated, Sa’iidi got up and acted as though he was a man who was going to drink all the water in the sea as had been agreed upon.’

Sishpatanila khtomola naqdi. ‘We agreed upon paying in cash.’

Waana/ wampataniliile. ‘The children reconciled for him.’

kh-patanisha v. caus. reconcile s.o.

Huseeni/ wapatanishize waana. ‘Huseeni brought about a reconciliation among the children.’

Nuuru/ mpatanishize mwaana/ na Suufi. ‘Nuuru brought about the child’s reconciliation with Suufi.’

kh-patanishana v. caus. rec.

kh-patanishika v. caus. p/s.

Wana awa/ hawapatanishiki. ‘These children cannot be reconciled (i.e. they keep on fighting).’

kh-patanishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mpatanishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ na Muusa. ‘Nuuru brought about reconciliation of Suufi’s child with Muusa.’

kh-patanishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wapatanishilizenye waana. ‘Nuuru and Suufi brought about one another’s children with someone.’

kh-patanishilizika v. caus. appl. p/s.

Hapataniliziki/ waana. ‘For him, one cannot reconcile the children.’

kh-patanoowa v. pass. (pateena)

Teena/ ichiwa imlazimiile/ oyo ijini/ khtomola maaliye/ yotte/ kumpa Sa’iidi/ jisa ipateená. ‘Then it became bound to him that the djinn give all his wealth to Sa’iidi as was agreed.’

rel. nom.

m-patanisha (wa-) n. 1/2 peacemaker

kh-pataana

v. (-pateene) coagulate

Iziwa/ ipateene. ‘The milk coagulated.’

is it correct that this verb exists with a long penult vowel kh-pataana... in the perfect, it is identical to the perfect stem of kh-patana....

i-pataane n. yoghurt

kh-patika v. put on a hook
rel. nom.
m-patiko (mi-) n. 3/4 the act of putting on a hook

ma-pato n. profit

Mapato/ yako Mkhodiisho/ leelo. ‘There is profit (to be made) in Mogadishu today.’

sh-pavuungu (s-) n. 7/8 our consultant MI originally identified this word as referring to a small container used for keeping eye make-up that consists of burnt incense, saying that sometimes this container may be made from gold or silver. More recently, several Bravanese women agreed that shpavuungu is not the container, but a small padded pouch used to preserve the container (which could be precious or fragile, being made sometimes of glass. SA, on the other hand, observed the use of shpavuungu in the sense of the “metal stick” that was usually inserted in the container and with which the black substance (waanda) was applied to the eyes. This seems also to be the use in the shteenzi cited below, since the stick would touch the woman’s body and thus pollute. The use of the term to refer to a pouch seems to be at the root of the extensions of the word’s use cited below.

Chili/ chinacho shpavuungu. ‘The bed has a box/pocket (in which things may be placed).’

hata shpavuungu cha muke ni khatari [st.] ‘even a woman’s shpavuungu is dangerous (with respect to ritual cleanliness)’ shpavungu cha meeza ‘a small space in a table where something may be put’

shpavungu cha tuusi ‘anus’

l-pawa n. [Sw. upawa SSED 504] wooden implement, similar to a small paddle, used to stir food (rice, meat) in very large cauldrons, for example, for wedding feasts;
variant form: pawu

lpawa la maṭaaza ‘a stirrer for porridge’ lpawa laa zijo ‘a stirrer for zijo’

rel.

sh-pawa (s-) n. 7/8 dim. wooden spoon, smaller than lpawa; variant form: sh-pawu

pazila n. 9/10 [Sw. pazia SSED 370] screen or curtain (dividing a room into parts, e.g. separating a bed from the rest of the room) kubiga pazila ‘to divide a room with a screen’

Maato/ nt^hayná/ pazila. ‘Eyes have no screen.’

pedaalya n. 9/10 pedal peeke [Sw. peke ‘condition of being single, singular, alone, lonely, isolated, unique, different from every thing else. Used only with a possessive adjective following, and attaching to ab object, state of action, the attribute of singleness, loneliness, uniqueness, e.g. mimi peke yangu I alone, I only, I myself’ SSED 371] alone, only (Notice that Chimiini contrasts with Swahili in that peeke does not require a possessive element to follow.)

Mi/ mbaliko mwaana/ peeke. ‘I was a child alone (i.e. an only child).’

Msoma peeke/ haagafi. ‘One who reads alone does not make a mistake.’ (A proverb. This proverb conveys the idea that it is better to hear both sides of a story rather than just the version of one of the participants.)

munt^hu peeke ‘a solitary man’

Muskila/ peeke/ yaaliko ni khatika na Omari/ kinenza ka tartiibu. ‘The only problem was to get Omari to drive slowly.’

Nii dhibu/ kuwa ni mwaana/ peeke. ‘It is difficult being an only child.’

Nt^haná/khaadira/ ku'iisha/ peeke. 'He cannot live alone any longer.'

Peeke/ ni mojiitu. 'God is alone.' (A proverb.)

Taha/ peeke/ impeto murugú. 'Only Taha got worried.'

Waant^hu/ hujo peeké/ na kuharbishá/ huwa laazima/ huharbishisha peeke. 'People who eat alone and then fight, they are obliged to fight alone.'

rel.

choo peeke [cl.7] only, all by itself, on its own'

Chibuuku/ choo peeke/ shpo^teeló. 'The book, on its own, fell down.'

loo peeke ' [cl.11] only, all by itself, on its own'

Luti/ loo peeke/ lpo^teeló. 'The stick, on its own, fell down.'

mii peeke 'only me, all by myself, on my own, me alone'

Mi/ ni mii peeke/ tu/ apa. 'Only I am here, all alone.'

Mi/ noloshele mii peeké. 'I went by myself.' Or, with preposing and focus:

Mii peeke/ nolosheló. 'By myself, I went.' (Note that one cannot say in Chimiini *noloshele peeké.)

Ngulgulile kendra mii peeké. 'I threatened to go alone.'

Nseeló/ ndi mii/ peeke. 'The one who remained was me alone.'

sii peeke 'only us, all by ourselves, on our own'

wee peeke only you, all by yourself, on your own

Kamaa ye/ chihada/ kuwaa we/ nt^hukeendra/ kaake/ kumera majiibu/ we/ ko^odele li^lá/ naasi/ apa/ sh^takiwa/ kuwaa we/ tambii^lé/ maneno yⁱitu/ ka wee peeke. 'If he says that you did not go to his place seeking answers, then you spoke the truth and we here will know that you understood the meaning of our words all by yourself.'

woo peeke [cl.2] only them, them alone, all by themselves' kawa'oloka woo peeké 'if they had gone alone'

Wa'oloshele woo peeke. 'They went alone.'

woo peeke [cl.3] only them, etc.'

Muti/ woo peeke/ upo^teeló. 'The tree, on its own, fell down.'

woo peeke [cl.14] only, etc.'

Tumikila uki/ woo peeke. 'Use only honey.'

yee peeke [cl.1] only, alone, all by himself, on his own

Ali/ mpeleshele mwaana/s sukhuuni/ ka yee peeke. 'Ali sent the child to the market by himself.'

Ali/ mwene mwaana/ ka yee peeke. 'Ali saw the child by himself.'

Hasiibu/ kalent^he mahala/ yee peeke. 'Hasiibu sat in a place by himself.'

Ka yee peeke/ chibigaa zita/ chub^lá/ ma'aduwiye/ wotte/ sho kuwa mooyi. 'All alone, he fought the battle, killing all his enemies except one.'

Skhaadiri/ kum^lata numbaani/ ka yee peeke. 'I cannot leave her alone by herself.'

Sultaani/ mooyi/ karkaa nt^hi/ za wahiindi/ zalila mwiimbili/ mooyi/ yee peeke. 'A sultan in India had only one child.'

Taha/ yee peeke/ impeto murugú. 'Only Taha got worried.'

Ye/ ha^taakufa/ yee peeke. 'It will not die alone.'

yoo peeke [cl.4] only them, etc.'

Miti/ yoo peeke/ yapo^teeló. 'The trees, on their own, fell down.'

yoo peeke [cl.5] only it, etc.'

Ijiwe/ yoo peeke/ ipo^teeló. 'The stone, on its own, fell down.'

Mi/ hutumila iziwa yoo peeke/ karka kahawa. 'I use milk alone in my coffee.'

yoo peeke [cl.6] only them, etc.'

Majiwe/ yoo peeke/ yapo^teeló. 'The stones, on their own, fell down.'

yoo peeke [cl.9]

Apo/ ise^le mp^huundra/ tu/ yoo peeke. 'There remained just an ass only.'

Numba/ yoo peeke/ ipo^teeló. 'The house, on its own, fell down.'

zoo peeke [cl.8]

Mi/ mukhta mi/ mbaliko mwaaná/ sh-kasa wazeze/ wachihada/ kamaa we/ nakhsula amaani/ ka mwaadamu/ simfaanyé/ zeema/ zoo peeke/ mfanye na ziwovú 'and when I was a child, I heard elders say: if you want peace from a human being, don't do only goos, do bad also.'

- Sfaanyé/ zeema/ zoo peeke. ‘Don’t do good deeds only.’
Zibuuku/ zoo peeke/ s-poteeló. ‘The books, on their own, fell down.’
zoo/ peeke [cl.10]
- Hulo chiinthú/ siwo/ peesa/ zoo peeke. ‘That which buys things is not money alone.’ is this a proverb?
Ndruti/ zoo peeke/ spoteeló. ‘The sticks, on their own, fell down.’
Numba/ zoo peeke/ spoteeló. ‘The houses, on their own, fell down.’
- m-peeke* (mi-) n. 3/4 clitoris
rel.
sh-peeke (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- m-peeke* (mi-) n. 3/4 [Sw. mpekwe SSED 37] a tree with long, straight branches from which sticks are obtained
- kh-peela* v. [Sw. pea SSED 371; the more common Sw. verb fagia is not used in Chimiini] (peezele) sweep Ali/ pezelee nt^hi/ ka lpeelo. ‘Ali swept the floor with a broom.’
Kama mahaḷa/ mweepe/ ivundishile/ kama yako mataandru/ wa’ambile watumishi/ wanapeele. ‘If there is some place that is broken, if there are cobwebs, tell the servants that they should sweep there.’
Khadiija/ nakhpelaa nt^hi. ‘Khadiija is sweeping the floor.’
rel.
kh-peeḷeḷa v. appl. (peleeḷe) sweep with Ali/ peleeḷe nt^hi/ lpeelo. ‘Ali swept the floor with a broom.’
kh-peḷeḷoowa v. appl. pass. be swept with; run aground (of a boat) Liikopi/ lpelo lpeḷeḷaa nt^hi. ‘Where is the broom that was used to sweep the floor?’
Lpeelo/ lpeḷeḷaa nt^h/ naami. ‘The broom was used to sweep the floor.’ (MI rejected the direct object as the subject of the passive verb: *Nt^hi/ ipelḷeḷa lpeelo/ naami. If one wishes to make the object the subject of the passive verb, then the prepositional instrumental phrase is used: Nt^hi/ ipela ka lpeelo/ naami. ‘The floor was swept with a broom by me.’) kh-peḷoowa v. pass. (peezeḷa)
Masku/ ha-’i-peḷoowi. ‘At night there is no sweeping.’ (A superstition.)
Muke/ peḷeḷaa nt^hi/ na Nuuru. The woman was swept for the floor by Nuuru.’ (A passive form with nt^hi being subject is not possible: *Nt^hi/ ipelḷeḷaa muke/ na Nuuru.)
Nt^hi/ inakhpelḷoowa. ‘The floor is being swept.’
Nt^hi/ inakhtahaja khpeḷoowa. ‘The floor needs sweeping.’
Shpata mahaḷa/ suura/ wukoo muti/ suura/ nt^hiiniye/ muti/ uyu/ naḷiifa/ kama apo/ tu/ ipeezeḷá. ‘She found a nice place, there was a nice tree, and it was clean under this tree, like [a place that] had just been swept.’
kh-peeḷeka v. (pelekeshele) capable of being swept Nt^hi/ haypeeḷeki. ‘The floor cannot be swept.’ (Syn. One cannot say: *Lpeelo/ halpeḷeki/ nt^hi. ‘The broom cannot sweep the floor.’ In order to have lpeelo the subject, one would have to use the simple verb: Lpeelo/ halpeeli. ‘The broom doesn’t sweep.’) kh-peeḷesha v. caus. (pelesheeze) cause to sweep kh-peḷesheleza v. caus. appl. (pelesheleeze) make sweep on Mpelesheleze mwaana/ nt^hi. ‘He made my child sweep the floor.’
- kh-peleka* v. [Sw. peleka SSED 372] (peleshele) send (a letter, e.g.), take, take or lead to (It should be noted that -peleka cannot elide the l and become -peeka*, but the past tense verb -peleshele may elide the l and become -peeshele; this long ee vowel shortens when in an environment that requires shortening.) Ahmadi/ peleshele gaari/ madrasaani. Ahmadi drove [lit. took] the car to school.’

Ahmaduna/ mpeleshele mwaana/ madrasaani. ‘Ahmaduna sent the child to school.’

Basi/ mgarwa/ shtala icho shpete/ chilawa/ chiraasha/ ndila/ hupeleko nt^hi ya wanyaasa. ‘So the fisherman took that ring and left and followed the road that leads to the land of the Wanyaasa.’

Chaamura/ watumishi/ kumkookota/ kumpeleka muyiini. ‘He ordered the servants to drag him to take him to the town.’

Cheendra/ chiwapeleka. ‘He went and sent them.’

Chimuuliza/ shtaala/ shpeleka numbaani. ‘(Someone) sold it to him and he took it and he sent it to his house.’ (Note that this example is from a story and it is a donkey that has been bought and sent to the house, but there is no object marking on the verb ‘take’ or ‘send’ referring to the donkey and of course no overt mention of the donkey in the entire sentence. This illustrates the common omission of arguments in Chimiini clauses.)

Chiraasha/ hatá/ ichimpeleka karka numba mooyi. ‘He followed (the road) until it led him to a house.’

Hamadi/ mpeshele mwaana/ maduriini. ‘Hamadi took the boy to the bush.’

Hasani/ mukhta^ha ye/ onyezaa ndilá/ humpeleko ka sultaani aduwi/ chishikaa ndila/ iyo/ kendra ka sultaani/ oyo. ‘When Hasani was shown the way that takes him to the enemy sultan, he followed that way and went to that sultan.’ (In texts, it is very common to find a noun separated into a different phrase from a demonstrative that refers to this noun. In elicitation, demonstratives normally form a phrase with the noun they modify.)

Hima/ lawa/ mp^heleka/ ka mu^hliwa. ‘Hurry, let us go, take me to my husband!’

khpeleka mkono ‘to stretch the hand (reach for)’

Peleshelopo mkonó/ khteka maayí/ mzele igobeegobe/ chimshiika/ chimreba paapo/ hatá/ mukta hayawani ziinginé/ zirudiiló. ‘When he stretched out his hand to fetch the water, the old tortoise grabbed him and kept him right there until the time when the other animals returned.’

Uje/ shpeleka mkono/ naayé/ hupeleka mkono. ‘If that one reaches for [food], [the other one] also reaches for [food].’

Maliizopó/ Hasiibu/ maamaye/ mpeleshele charkhaniini/ kubarata khshomaa nguwo. ‘When he finished, Hasiibu’s mother sent him to a tailor to learn to sew clothes.’ (Syn. All Chimiini speakers seem to accept the construction: Hasiibu/ maamaye ‘Hasiibu’s mother’, with the possessor in a separate phrase and preceding the possessed noun phrase. Our consultant MI, however, has a variant mamaye Hasiibu, where the possessed noun precedes the possessor and is in the same phonological phrase with it.)

Mi/ nakhsulaa we/ kump^heleka/ maha^haa ye/ ukó. ‘I want you to take me to the place where he is.’

Mp^heelé/ mali miingi/ nt^ho/ niyatukiilé/ niyapeleshele kiitú. ‘I got very much wealth and I took it and I sent it home.’

Na oyó/ takhoonyeza/ ndila/ itakhupeleko ka mayahuudí. ‘And that one will show you the road to take you to the Jews.’

Nsi mo/ shpeleka ka sultaani/ chimwaambila/ nsi iyi/ ndimi/ ndeeseló. ‘One fish he takes to the sultan and tells him: this fish, it is me who brought it.’

Peleshelee khati/ ka Aasha. ‘He sent/ took a letter to Aasha.’

Poliisi/ hu’aðiba wiizi/ nt^hasaa wo/ kuwapeleka mahkamaani. ‘Police torture thieves before they take them to trial.’

Shpeleka icho chilaatu/ ka sultaani. ‘He took that shoe to the sultan.’

Suufi/ mpeleshele mwaana/ kaawo. ‘Suufi sent the child home.’

Suufi/ peleshelee khati. ‘Suufi sent a letter.’

Sultaani waa dafa/ chimpelekela/ khati/ ya piili. ‘The king of the kites sent a second letter.’

Uje/ shkooḏa/ hukooḏakoḏa naaye/ uje/ shpeleka mkono/ naayé/ hupeleka mkono/ uje/ chidaara/ naayé/ hudara jis'iyó/ tu/ jis'iyó/ hattá/ wachimalizaa kuja. 'If that one [the sultan's son] speaks, he [the poor man's son] speaks with him; if that one stretches his hand out [for food], he does as well; if that one touches [the food], he also touches it like that, just; like that, until they finished eating.'

rel.

kh-pelekela v. appl. send to Abunawaasi/ chimpelekela sultaani/ khabari. 'Abunawaasi sent a message to the sultan.'

Jeelaani/ chooloka/ chimera peesa/ izo/ chimpelekela Safiya/ maamaye. 'Jeelaani went to look for the money and took it to Safiya's mother.' Phon. This example illustrates how phonological phrasing is from syntactic phrasing. Safiya/ maamaye is a syntactic unit meaning 'Safiya's mother', but it is phonologically separated, with Safiya being in a different phrase from maamaye. Furthermore, Safiya is incorporated into the same phonological phrase as the verb chimpelekela, while maamaye remains in a separate phrase.)

Mpelekelele Aasha/ khatí. 'He sent a letter to Aasha.'

Mpelekelele Aasha/ khatí postaaani (or: ka postaa). 'He took a letter for Aasha to the post office; he sent a letter to Aasha by mail.'

Nayo majiibú/ kump^ha/ mp^hate nimpelikelé. 'Do you have an answer to give me so that I can take it to him?'

Nimpete nyunyi uyú/ msuura/ nt^ho/ nt^hampelekela sultaani. 'I caught this very beautiful bird. I will take it to the sultan.'

kh-pelekoowa v. pass. (peleshela) be sent (Note that the passive perfect behaves like the active perfect and allows the elision of /t/; thus one can have -peeshela. This long vowel will shorten when in an appropriate environment.)

Chimaliza/ peleshela chiwandraani/ kubarata khfula ḏahabu/ na feḏá/ kaḏalika/ iize/ kubarata/ hirfa iyi. 'Then he was sent to a smithy to learn to forge gold and silver; similarly he did not learn this skill.'

Hupelekoowa/ chiwooni/ kubarata qur'aani/ na maambó/ ya diini. 'He is sent to school to study the Quran and religious matters.' review phrasing and accent

Mi/ mp^heshela spitaalé/ na mukeewá. 'I was taken to the hospital by my wife.' (This is a grammatical sentence in Chimiini, but does not constitute the usual way the idea would be conveyed. Preferred would be one of the following: Mukeewa/ mp^heshelo spitaalé. 'It's my wife who took me to the hospital.' Mi/ mp^heshelo spitaalé/ mi mukeewa. 'Me, the one who took me to the hospital is my wife.'

Moomo/ mbujé/ peshela spitaale. 'Moomo's sister was taken to the hospital.' (In this sentence, Moomo must be the name of a boy, since a different word is used for the sister of a girl.) Or: Peshela spitaale/ Moomo/ mbujé. Or: Spitaale/ peeshela/ Moomo/ mbujé. And with focus on spitaale: Spitaale/ peeshela/ Moomo/ mbujé.

Mwaana/ peshela maduriini. 'The boy was taken to the bush.' Or:

Maduriini/ peshela mwaana. 'To the bush the boy was taken.'

Nakhsula chakujaache/ mpelekelowa morooni/ mahalaa ye/ ukó. 'She wants her food to be brought to the backyard where she is.'

Nt^hawakhaadira/ kiiwa/ mahalaa ye/ peleshela. 'They did not know the place where he was sent.'

Nusu/ hupelekowa muyiini/ kawanyilizowa masaakiini. 'Half is sent to the town to be distributed to the poor.'

Peleshela madrasaani. 'You were sent to school.'

Shpelekowa ka sultaani. 'She was taken to the sultan.'

Shtaaloowa/ ye/ na mzeelé/ washpelekoowa/ ka sultaani. 'He was taken, he and the old man, they were sent to the sultan.'

Washpelekowa kaawo. 'They were taken to their homes.'

rel. nom.

m-peleka (wa-) n. 1/2 one who sends peelo (m-)

n. 11/10 broom; [pron. mp^heelo]

kubiga lpeelo 'to sweep clean (lit. hit the broom)'

Khadiija/ nakubiga lpeelo/ nt^hi. 'Khadiija is sweeping the floor.'

lpelo lkulu 'a big broom' (cf. mp^heloo nk^hulu 'big brooms') lpelo lpiya 'a new broom' (cf. mp^heloo mp^hiya 'new brooms')

Lpeelo/ mp^hejelee nt^hi. 'A/the broom, I swept the floor with.' (MI rejected marking a definite instrument with an object marker, hence the unacceptability of Lpeelo/ nilpejelee nt^hi.)

Lpeelo/ ni-l-vuunzilé. 'The broom, I broke it.'

l-peembe (m-)

n. 11/10 [Sw. peembe SSED 372] angle, side, edge; horn; [pron. pl. mp^heembe] ka lpembe ili 'on this side' mp^hembee nt^hatu 'a triangle [lit. three sides]'

Simeme lpembeeni. 'He stood at the edge.'

rel.

i-peembe (ma-) n. 5/6 horn of an animal, tusk of an elephant kumdufila ka lpembe 'to push hard with a horn' mapembe yaa ndovu 'tusks of an elephant' mp^hamp^ha wa mapeembe 'a kind of shark, which looks like it has two horns'

We/ nayo mapeembé/ kudurila waant^hú. 'You have horns with which to pierce people (said of someone who is arrogant).'

i-peembe (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

sh-peembe (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

kh-peenda

v. [Sw. penda SSED 373] (peenzele) like, love, want (This verb is widely used in the negative for "not to want". In fact, speendi is much more common than sisuuli to express "I do not want".)

Aduwi/ mpeende. 'Love (your) enemy.' (A proverb.)

Baazi/ mpenzele mwana uyu. 'Baazi loves this boy.' (This simple sentence can be used to illustrate some aspects of Chimiini phrasing. The phrasing shown is no doubt the canonical one. It is possible also to put emphasis on the verb: Baazi/ mpenzele/ mwana uyu. Both of these sentences exhibit the default phrasing whereby the demonstrative and the noun if modifies are grouped together. It is quite possible, however, to phrasally separate the demonstrative from the noun. This can occur whether or not the verb is emphasized: Baazi/ mpenzele mwaana/ uyu. Or: Baazi/ mpenzele/ mwaana/ uyu. In both cases, uyu is downstepped relative to mwaana. A first person subject clarifies to some extent the nature of the phrasing. The canonical sentence is Nimpenzele mwana uyú. There is a single phrase and the final accent triggered by the first person subject verb form is heard at the very end of the sentence. If the verb is emphasized, the final accent appears at the end of the verb. Default accent is heard to the right of the verb. Nimpeenzelé/ mwana uyu. Or even: Nimpeenzelé/ mwaana/ uyu. But now consider the case where a phrasally separated mwaana is grouped with the verb: Nimpenzele mwaaná/ uyú. What we notice here is that the final accent extends not just to mwaana but also uyu. This suggests strongly that mwaana is not focused, with uyu being outside this focus and not receiving the final accent because of this. Our consultant did not reject a pronunciation like ?Nimpenzele mwaaná/ uyu. However, its status remains unclear.)

Fardoosa/ enzele Mwiini/ tu? [HH!H] 'Did Fardoosa go to Miini only?' (But also:

Fardoosa/ Mwiini/ tu/ enzeló? [HH!H!H] Notice that contrary to the usual case in yes-no questions, tu and the pseudo-relativized verb are both downstepped. See below for discussion of the general absence of downstep in yes-no questions.)

Fardoosa/ tu/ enzele Mwiini? [HHH] ‘Did only Fardoosa go to Miini?’ (But one could also say: Mwiini/ enzele Fardoosa/ tu? [HH!H]). The intonation of this latter question is interesting. Simple yes-no sentences typically exhibit what we have referred to as Q-Raising, which minimally involves the suspension of downstep in the sentence. In MI’s speech, Q-Raising raises the final accented syllable to the pitch peak of the sentence. In GM’s speech, this does not happen. Rather the sentence tends to show some declination across the question, but without the pitch drops associated with downstep intonation. However, in the example just cited, the tu is markedly lowered in pitch.

Hamadi/ kawa munt^hu msuurá/ waant^hu/ wont^he/ sula kumpeenda. ‘If Hamadi had been a good person, everyone would have loved him.’ (In this example, waant^hu is not downstepped and neither is the quantifier wont^he.)

Hapendi kuyuut^hilá/ nashike mlaango(we)/ mfuunge. ‘The one who does not want to regret anything, let him keep (his) door closed.’ (Ordinarily, a negative verb such as hapeendi ‘he does not want’ would stand at the end of a phonological phrase, since a negative verb seems to have inherent focus. However, when the negative is a relative verb, it is not at the end of a phonological phrase, as in the present example. That it is not at the end of a phrase is shown by the shortening of the root vowel of hapeendi and the absence of accent on this word.)

Hupeenda/ kuwa nkhadirile khkumbuka inayé. ‘I wish I could remember her name.’

Hupeenda/ kuwa nkhadirile khuwona weé/ peeké. ‘I wish I could see you alone.’ (In the speech of GM, the nasal prefix for first person singular is elided in front of kh. It is of interest that nevertheless he habitually writes the nasal in this position, but does not do so when the same prefix elides in front of the present tense marker na.)

Hupeenda/ kuwaa we/ hufaanyi/ iyo. ‘I wish you would not do that.’

khpenda waant^hu ‘[lit.] to love people -- meaning: to be sociable, to keep close social relations’

Mi/ hupeenda/ jaka iyo. ‘I like that jacket.’ (In a sentence like this, where the verb is phrasally separated from its complement, the verb is focused and thus is raised in pitch (i.e. not downstepped relative to the preceding accented syllable). There is a strong downstep on the following complement. However, this downstepping seems variable when there is separation of the noun from the demonstrative: Mi/ hupeenda/ jaaka/ iyo. The prosody associated with phrasings like jaaka/ iyo needs extensive research.)

Mi/ hupeenda/ khsoma chibuuku. ‘Me, I like reading a book.’ Or: Mi/ khsoma chibuuku/ hupeenda. Or: Khsoma chibuuku/ mi/ hupeenda. Or: Khsoma chibuuku/ mi/ hupeenda. Or: Khsoma chibuuku/ hupeenda/ mi.

Mi/ khsoma zibuuku/ hupeenda/ mi. ‘I to read books like me.’ Or: Zibuuku/ khsooma/ hupeenda/ mi. Or: Mi/ zibuuku/ hupeenda/ khsooma.

Mi/ mp^henzelé/ shati iyo. ‘I liked that shirt.’ Cf. Mi/ mp^henzele shati iyó. ‘I liked that shirt.’

Mi/ Safiya/ nampeendá/ nimpeenzelé/ nnampeendá/ na nt^hampeendá.

‘Safiya, I love her, I loved her, I love her, I will love her.’ review the final accent in the future tense example

Mi/ simpendi teena/ mubli uyu. ‘I do not love this man anymore.’

Mi/ speendi/ kuwa Fardoosa/ tu/ kendra Mwiini. [HH!H!H!H] ‘I do not want only Fardoosa to go to Miini.’

Mi/ speendi/ we/ kufa. ‘I don’t wish you dead!’

Mi/ speendi/ we/ kulana na mukeewo. ‘I do not want you to fight with your wife.’

Mi/ speendi/ yo yote/ ka kaake. ‘I do not want anything from him.’

Mi/ zibuuku/ hispeenda/ khsooma. ‘I books like them to read.’ Or: Mi/ zibuuku/ hispeenda/ kizisooma. ‘I books like them to read them.’ Or: Zibuuku/ kizisooma/ mi/ hispeenda. ‘Books to read them I like them.’ Or: Hispeenda/ kizisoma zibuuku/ mi.

Mp^henzele jaka iyó. ‘I like(d) that jacket.’

Mp^henzele jaaká/ iyo iwaliko cholokooní. ‘I liked (that) jacket, the one that was on the window.’

Mp^heenzelé/ jaka iyo. ‘I like(d) that jacket.’ Or: Mp^heenzelé/ jaaka/ iyo. (In the first example, the focus on the verb is indicated by its phrasal separation from the following complement. The complement is strongly downstepped in this configuration. We observed downstepping in the second version as well, but our impression is that there may be variability in pronunciation when the noun is phrased separately from the demonstrative.)

Mp^heenzelé/ mi/ jaakayo. ‘I like your jacket.’ (The postposed subject mi is strongly downstepped following the focused verb.)

Mp^heenzelé/ jaka ya Charles. ‘I like Charles’ jacket.’ Or: Mp^heenzelé/ jaaka/ ya Charles. (A loanword like Charles, which our consultant pronounced with two syllables, must exhibit default accent in the present example. This accent appears on the first syllable. In the first example cited, a strong downstep of the first complement following the focused verb is usually found. In the second example, we did not observe this downstep. There may be some variability on this matter.)

Mukhtaa mi/ mbaliko chihabá/ shpeenda/ chineema. ‘When I was a child, I used to like to go to the cinema.’

munt^hu mpenzelo Haliimá/ nt^ho ‘the person who loved Haliima very much’ or:
munt^hu mpenzelo nt^ho/ Haliima

Muunt^hu/ shpenda chiint^hu/ tala/ hashá kaa mate. ‘When one loves/likes something, he lights the lamp with spit (i.e. he can do/tolerate every thing).’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ waa we/ nampeendó/ ndiyé/ khuletelo dhibu. ‘The one that you love is the one who brings you problems.’ (A saying.)

Mwambile mamaye Hasiibu/ kuwaa wo/ wanakendra maduriini/ khinda skunyi/ na watakhpenda Hasiibu/ kendra naawo. ‘They told Hasiibu’s mother that they were going to the forest to cut firewood and that they wanted Hasiibu to go with them.’

na mtume Mhammadi peenzelo soomuye [st.] ‘and the Prophet Mohammad is the one who loved its fasting [i.e. fasting on that day]’

Nama/ hupeenda/ Omari. ‘Meat, likes Omari.’ (There is no focus on the preposed nama in this example; if there were, the verb would have to shift into pseudo-relative clause form. In the simple yes-no question, Omari undergoes accent shift: Nama/ hupeenda/ Omari? In the exclamatory question, both verb and postposed subject undergo accent shift: Nama/ hupeendá/ Omari!?)

Nama/ Omari/ hupeenda. ‘Meat, Omari likes.’ (In this example, there is no focus on either of the pre-verbal nouns. The simple yes-no question keeps the accents in tact, while the exclamatory question exhibits accent shift in the subject and in the verb: Nama/ Omari/ hupeendá!? The accent shift, however, in the subject does not seem to be obligatory, whereas it is obligatory in the verb phrase.)

Nzaaká/ mi/ hispeendi/ nt^ho. ‘They are mine, I like them at lot.’

Omari/ hupeenda/ nama. ‘Omari likes meat.’

Omari/ nama/ hupeendó. ‘Omari meat likes.’ (In this example, nama is focused and thus the verb is shifted into pseudo-relative clause form.)

Si/ hupeenda/ kiwa lila. ‘We wish to learn the truth.’

Speendi. ‘I do not want it.’

Speendi/ kuwa Fardoosa/ tu/ takendro Mwiini. I don’t like (it) that only Fardoosa will go to Miini.’ With verb emphasis in the complement clause: Speendi/ kuwa Fardoosa/ tu/ takeendró/ Mwiini. I don’t like (it) that only Fardoosa will go to Miini.’

Sultaani/ mpeenzele/ mwaana/ uyu/ kolko waanawe/ wawili. ‘The king loved this boy more than his own two children.’

Sultaani/ mpenzeloo nt^ho/ nyunyi/ oyo. ‘The sultan loved this bird very much.’

Wana awa/ hupenda zinoolo. ‘These children like zinoolo.’ Or, with verb emphasis:
Wana awa/ hupeenda/ zinoolo. ‘These children like zinoolo.’ (The corresponding simple yes-no questions in the first example Q-raises zinoolo: Wana awa/ hupenda zinoolo? while in the second example, the out-of-focus zinoolo undergoes accent shift: Wana awa/ hupeenda/ zinooló?)

Watahpenda Hasiibu/ kendra naawo. ‘They want Hasiibu to go with them.’

Waawe/ shpendraa nt^ho/ kuwiinda/ shpendó. ‘My father loved very much to hunt, that’s what he loved.’

Ya khalbi inakhpendó/ ni dawaye. ‘What the heart likes is its medicine.’ (A proverb.)

Ye/ mpenzelee nt^ho/ mwaanawe. ‘He loved his son very much.’

Zijo/ pishiloo muké/ mi/ speendi. ‘The food cooked by the woman, I do not like it.’ rel.

kh-peendana v. rec. (-pendeene) love, like one another Si/ ni weenza/ hupeendana. ‘We are friends, we like one another.’

Ye/ na mukeewé/ wapendeene/ nt^ho. ‘He and his wife loved one another very much.’

kh-peendeka v. p/s. able to be loved kh-peendela v. appl. love for Humpeendela/ Hamadi/ kuliwaana/ nt^ho. I wish Hamadi great success.

Mi/ humpeendela/ Abú/ kila nasibu ya duniya. ‘I wish Abu all the luck in the world.’
Si/ chimpendeleele/ Omari/ zeema/ ka kaaziye/ mp^hiya. ‘We wish Omari well in his new position/job.’

kh-peendesha v. caus. (pendesheeze) Nuuru/ mpendesheze mwaana/ mwanaamke. ‘Nuuru (somehow) brought it about that the boy loved the girl.’

kh-pendesheleza v. caus. appl. (pendesheleeze) Nuuru/ mpendesheleze Suufi/ mwaana/ mwanaamke. ‘Nuuru (somehow) brought it about that Suufi’s child loved the girl.’

kh-pendeshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-pendeshelezeenye) Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wapendeshelezenye waana/ wanaashke. ‘Nuuru and Suufi somehow brought it about that (their) sons loved the girls.’

kh-peendeza v. tr. please someone Jawaabu/ izi/ nt^haskumpeendeza/ mubli. ‘These words did not please the man.’

kh-pendezana v. tr. rec. please one another kh-pendoowa v. pass. (penzele) be loved Abunawaasi/ waliko shpendoowa/ nt^ho/ na Harun Rashiidi.

‘Abunawaasi was liked very much by Harun Rashiidi.’
Mukeewe/ shpendoowa. ‘His wife was loved.’
Siwo/ ipeenzela. ‘It is not that it is liked (or wanted, desired).’

Suufi/ penzeleaa nt^ho/ na wazeelewe/ ka khisaa ye/ kuwa mwana wa miiso/ na teená/ kuwa mwiimbili. ‘Suufi was loved very much by his parents. because he was the last child and moreover he was a boy.’

Zibuuku/ haspendoowa/ khsomoowa. ‘Books are not liked to be read.’
Zibuuku/ hupendoowa/ khsomoowa. ‘Books are liked to be read.’

kh-peenza v. ? [only recorded in the extended form below] kh-penzeleza v. appl. (penzeleeze) like for; mean by, intend, indicate Kilaa muunt^hu/ mahmaahi/ iyi/ hupenzeleza/ lamnaye/ ye/ jisaa ye/ keeló/ haabahi. ‘Each person, this proverb means, his type, his form, how he looks, cannot be lost.’

Penzeleezeni/ we/ kuhada kuwa ifungu imooyi/ we/ lafile bahariini.
‘What did you mean by [lit. like for] saying that one part [of your squandered wealth] you threw into the sea?’

Welele raadi/ ka ije ya waawaye/ mpenzeleezó. ‘She agreed to whatever her father liked for her.’

kh-penzelezanya v. appl. rec.

Waant^hu/ washpendana ka lilaahi/ hupenzelezanya kilaa chiint^hu. ‘When people truly love each other, they love for each other everything.’

kh-penzelezoowa v. appl. pass. be liked for, be meant by Inakhpenzelezoowa/ ka kuwaa limi/ nt^haliná/ mwishpa/ limi/ ma’anaye/ ni sahali/ kuhada/ kilaa chiint^hu/ ni loloolo/ nt^haliná/ mwishpa. ‘What is meant by that the tongue has no bone, for the tongue, it means, it is easy to say anything, it is soft, it has no bone.’ (This is a discussion of the proverb: Limí/ nt^haliná/ mwishpa. ‘The tongue has no bone.’ The tongue says whatever it wants, true or false. It is soft, boneless, there is nothing to stop it from going in whatever direction it likes.)

rel. nom.

m-peenda (wa-) n. 1/2 one who loves ma-peendano n. 6

ma-peendelo n. 6

ma-peendezo n. 6

m-peendo n. 10 love, liking; [pron. mp^heendo]

Mp^heendo/ haaziyi/ ka kambilowa peenda. ‘Love [cl.10] does not come by being told: love!’ (A proverb.)

wataale ka mpeendo wa’iwe ka lilla [st.] ‘give them your love (lit. take them with love) and learn (lit. know) their true (story)’

ma-peendo n. 6 love

Mapendo ya maskiini/ hayawonekani (or: haya’onyeshi). ‘The love of a poor man cannot be seen (i.e. is not visible).’ (A proverb.)

mapeendo ya nafsi ni òambi l’akbari [st.] ‘love of self is a major sin’

Wa’ishiize/ pamooyi/ ka mapeendo/ na mahabá/ pashpo ikraahi/ haṭá/ sku mooyi. ‘They lived together in love and affection without discord, not even one day.’

sh-peendo (s-) n. lover, loved one review

Mgeeni/ uyu/ wele shpeendoche. ‘This foreigner became her lover.’

Ni shpeendocho/ nt^humiiló/ nakhsulá khuwona. ‘It is your lover who sent me, he wants to see you.’

m-pendoowa (wa-) n. the one who is loved m-peenzi (wa-) n. 1/2 lover (The Chijini form [nzímp^hé] establishes that nzi is a prenasalized consonant.)

Maṭo ya mpeenzi/ hayaawoni/ ebu (za shpeendo). ‘The eyes of the lover do not see the defects of the loved one.’ (A proverb.)

mpenzi mooyi ‘one lover’

wapenzi wawili ‘two lovers’

ma-peenzi n. 6 love

Mapeenzi/ hayuloowi/ ka peesa. ‘Love is not bought with money.’ (A proverb.)

Mapeenzi) ni kama sh-kololo/ haya’ushiki. ‘Love is like coughing, it cannot be hidden.’ (A proverb.)

Mapeenzi/ ni mapenzi ya khalbi/ siwo/ ya maali. ‘Love is love from the heart not from wealth.’ (A proverb.)

Mapeenzi/ nt^hayaná/ dawa. ‘Love does not have medicine (for it).’ (A proverb.)

sh-penene

n. chance

khpata shpenene ‘to have a chance to do s.t.’

Karkaa wo/ wanakuharbishanó/ siimba/ shtuluka/ na mp^huundrá/ shpata shpenene/ khfakata. ‘While they were fighting one another, Lion fell down and Donkey had a chance to run away.’

Siná/ khpata/ shpenene. ‘I am not getting a chance.’

l-peengele (m-)

n. 11/10 [Sw. kipengee, kipengele SSED 203] outside (of the house);

[pron. mp^heengele (pl.)]

hummoni muunt^hu karka lpeengele [nt.] ‘you don’t see anybody in the streets’ huhuzuniko mp^heengele/ kuttá schinendroowa [st.] ‘the pathways along which he

- walked daily will feel sad' kulanga lpeengele 'to look outside'
Mp^hete lpengeleeni. 'I got it outside.'
Uko lpengeleeni. 'He is outside.'
- l-peengo (m-) adj. 11/10 [Sw. pengo SSED 373] broken, chipped par of the edge, rim, mouth, etc., of a pot or cup mino mp^heengo 'partly broken teeth' yino lpeengo 'a partly broken tooth'
- sh-penyenyo (s-) n. 7/8 [likely connected to Sw. verb penya SSED 373-4 and related nouns] very narrow space; opportunity
- peepe
mp^hamp^ha wa peepe 'a type of shark'
- l-pepe (m-) n. 11/10 lightning; [pron. mp^hepe]
ka hima/ kana lpepe 'as quick as lightning' kubigaa mp^hepe 'to lightning'
Zinakubigaa mp^hepe. 'It is lightning.'
Mp^hepe/ hutala waant^hu/ maato. 'Lightning blinds people.'
Pisile kana lpepe. 'He passed like lightning (i.e. quickly).'
- m-pepe n. 10 eyelashes review whether there is a singular form in use Haliima/ mp^hepeze/ ndre. 'Haliima's eyelashes are long.'
Haliima/ nakubigisha mp^hepeze. 'Haliima made up her eyelashes.'
Haliima/ pashile mp^hepeze/ ranji. 'Haliima painted her eyelashes.'
- kh-pepela v. [Sw. pepea SSED 374] (pepeele) fan, wave (e.g. a flag); cool s.t.
khpepela maandra 'to cool bread (by fanning) -- in contrast with khpoza maandra 'to cool bread by letting it sit, opening a window, etc.'
khpepelaa mu^{lo} 'to make a current of air using a fan or anything else to revive a fire' Nakuliindra/ nini/ nakhpepela/ nakudhaksha. 'She was waiting, what, she fanning (the fire), she was making it (tea) in a hurry.'
Nuuru/ mpepele mwaana. 'Nuuru fanned, cooled the child.'
rel.
kh-pepele^{le} v. appl. (pepelele)
Hamadi/ bandeeraye/ inakhpepele^{lo}. 'Hamadi's flag is waving (i.e. he is getting everything that he wants, e.g. he is getting help from many places so that he gets whatever he wants).' (The use of the pseudo-relative form of the verb in this sentence indicates that there is focus on the possessive subject Hamadi/ bandeeraye 'Hamadi his flag'; the pitch on the penult of both parts appear to be raised, although the initial pitch is higher. It is interesting to note that the applied form of the verb is used here in what is essentially an intransitive meaning.)
kh-pepele^{le}lana v. appl. rec. fan for one another kh-pepele^{lo}owa v. pass.
kh-pepelana v. rec.
kh-pepelesha v. caus. (pepelesheeze)
Biibi/ mpepelesheze Suriya/ ruuhuye. 'Biibi caused Suriya to fan herself.'
kh-pepeleshana v. caus. rec.
kh-pepelesheka v. caus. p/s.
kh-pepelesheleza v. caus. appl.
Manaasha/ mpepelesheleze Maasiti/ mwaana/ ruuhuye. 'Manaasha had Maasiti's child fan himself.'
kh-pepeleshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.
Manaasha/ na Maasiti/ wapepeleshezenye waana/ ruhu zaawo. 'Manaasha and Maasiti had one another's children fan each other.'

- kh-pepeenta* v. [Sw. pepeta SSED 374] (pepeensele, pepeent^he) separate husk from crushed grain (by quickly raising and lowering a winnowing tray, l-telo); [pron. khpepeent^ha]
rel.
kh-pepentela v. appl. (pepent^heleele) [pron. khpepeent^hela] kh-pepentoowa v. (pepeent^ha) [pron. khpepent^hoowa]
- peepepe* in the expression:
kendra peepepe ‘to sway from side to side (of a boat)’
- kh-pepeza* v. [Sw. pepeza "blink" SSED 374] blink check meaning with GM khpepeza maato ‘to blink’ Sitiina/ pepeze maato. ‘Sitiina blinked.’
rel.
kh-pepezsha v. caus.
kh-pepezshenzeza v. caus. appl.
kh-pepezshenzezanya v. caus. appl. rec.
kh-pepezoowa v. pass.
khpepezoowa/ maato ‘to be blinked’
Iseeló/ khpepezowa maato. ‘What remains is to blink (i.e. nothing remains to be done but blink).’ Or: Iseeló/ khpepezoowa/ maato.
- Spepo (m-pepo)* n. 11 [Sw. upepo SSED 375] wind; polio; [in plural] a kind of partial facial or motor paralysis; [pron. pl. m^hepo]
Hamadi/ chiwonoowa/ nakhfakata/ kana/ lpepo / hakhadiroowa/ khshikoowa. ‘Hamadi, whenever you see him, he is running, like the wind, you cannot catch him.’
Ivuumbi/ hayoondroki/ bila lpepo. ‘Dust does not go up without wind.’ (A proverb that indicates that if there is a rumor, then there is likely some truth to it, equal to the English "where there's smoke, there's fire".)
Jahazi/ hurasha lpepo. ‘A dhow follows the wind.’ (A proverb which is used to convey the idea that those who are wealthy control the fate of others. For example, if a poor man marries a rich woman, he will be under her control and rule.)
ka hima/ kana lpepo ‘as quick as the wind’ khchimbila kana lpepo ‘to run like the wind’ Wachimbil kana lpepo/ wachiimbiiló. ‘They ran like the wind, that’s what they did.’
kubiga lpepo ‘to hit the breeze – i.e. of not selling’ Leelo/ sukhuuni/ mazu/ yanakubiga lpepo/ nt^hakunakuuló/ yabariile. ‘Today at the market bananas are (lit. Hitting breeze) not selling, no one is buying, they have no value (cannot attract buyers).’
kuuluka/ kana lpepo ‘to fly, jump like the wind’ Lpepo/ mahala yaa yo/ Inakeendró/ Iraashé. ‘The wind, (the direction) where it is going, you should follow it.’ (A proverb.) (We do not currently have an explanation for the final accent in the final phrase, but it was unambiguously present in our recording of this proverb.)
maraði ya lpepo ‘polio’ Maraði ya lpepo/ yawafanya waana/ zigulu. [H!H!H] ‘Polio cripples children (makes them crippled).’
maraði yaa mp^hepo ‘partial facial or muscular paralysis’ lpepo la matanga mawili ‘[lit.] the wind of two sails -- i.e. the time of year when sailing boats can go in either direction with the wind’ Lpepo/ Inakuvuma. ‘The wind is blowing hard.’
Muti/ bila lpepo/ ha’tetemi. ‘A tree without wind does not shake.’ (A proverb.)

mukhta lpepo lanzizo kuvuma ka wiingi ‘when the wind began to blow with force’

Mwaana/ impete lpepo. ‘The child is afflicted by rheumatism.’

Oyo/ ni kana/ lpepo/ hashiikiki. ‘That one is like wind, he cannot be caught.’
rel.

i-pepo n. aug.

Chimalizopo kumtiindá/ ichanza kuvuma ipepo/ naa nvulá/ kunyá.
‘When we finished slaughtering it, the wind began to blow and rain to fall.’

Ye/ ineenzele/ karka ipepo ya bardi/ keendra/ khkumaangana/ na mowtiwe/ ka khisa chiza kuwaraagisha/ jamaa’aye. ‘He walked in a blizzard to go to meet his death in order not to delay his companions.’

Ye/ shfikira/ kumwambila waawaye/ kuwa masku/ ivumile ipepo/ kaa nguvu/ na nt^heendré/ spoteele/ mutiini. ‘He thought about telling his father that during the night a big wind blew with force and the dates fell from the tree.’

m-pepo

n. 9/10 spirit; [pron. mp^hepo]

khpataa mp^hepo ‘to be possessed by spirits’ maraði yaa mp^hepo ‘[lit.] disease of spirits -- a kind of disease’ mwenyee mp^hepo ‘crazy’

sh-pepo (s-)

n. 7/8 [cf. Sw. kipepeo SSED 374] fan; a kind of fish shpepo cha majini ‘butterfly (lit. the spirits’/ jinns’ fan)’

peera

n. a solid sweet made by boiling water and sugar, then forming small round balls of it, similar to fudge; MI described as adding sugar and spice to milk, then cooking to point of solidifying; a sweet given especially to children

peesa

n. 9/10 [Sw. pesa, mapesa SSED 375] coin; (pl.) money

Abunawaasi/ sku mooyi/ sulile kula mp^huundra/ na nt^hakuwanaazo/

peesa. ‘One day Abunawaasi wanted to buy a donkey, but he did not have money.’

attá/ peesa/ mo ‘[lit.] not even one cent) -- said to dismiss s.o.’s fears and doubts about a future event that the latter sees as difficult or dangerous (e.g. an examination, a journey, giving birth, etc.)’

awaje wanazo peesá ‘those who have money’

Chiwanapo peesá/ taala/ ka kaake. ‘If he has money, take it from him!’ Cf.

Chiwanazopo peesá/ taala/ ka kaake. ‘If he has the money, take it from him!’

Hasani/ furahile khpata peesa. ‘Hasani was pleased to get money.’ But if one wished to emphasize the main verb: Hasani/ furahiile/ khpata peesa. If one wished to emphasize the subject of the main verb: Hasani/ furahilo khpata peesá.

Huseeni/ nt^hampa/ mwaana/ peesa. ‘Huseeni did not give the child money.’ (In this negative sentence, both complements to the verb are out-of-focus and thus show accent-shift in the simple yes-no question: Huseeni/ nt^hampa/ mwaaná/ peesá? In the exclamatory question, the negative verb also shows accent-shift: Huseeni/ nt^hampá/ mwaaná/ peesá!?)

Jaama/ peja peesa/ naami. ‘Jaama was given money by me.’

khakanya peesa ‘to change money (coins, bills) into different denominations’ khteleza peesa ‘to waste, squander money’; also: khtelezowa peesa (passive)

Alí/ wanazo peesa/ niingi/ steleeze/ leelo/ hatá/ shaati/ mooyi/hakhaadiri/ kuula. ‘Ali had a lot of money, he squandered it, and today he cannot buy even a single shirt.’

- Muunt^hu/ peesaze/ kh^hteleza/ siwo/ suura/ sku mooyi/ hum^wiinfó. ‘For someone to squander his money is not good, one day it will be useful to him.’
- Peesa/ kh^htelezoowa/ akhiriye/ hushala^toowa. ‘For money to be wasted, at the end it will be repented.’
- Peesa/ kh^htelezoowa/ siwo/ suura/ sku mo/ st^hakhiinfó. ‘For money to be wasted is not good, one day it will be useful.’
- Ki^laa chiint^hu/ ni ka peesa. ‘Everything is with money.’ (A proverbial saying.)
- kuvunda peesa ‘to change money (into smaller denominations)’
- Mpeeleni. ‘What did he give him?’ Possible answers: Peesa. ‘Money.’ Or: Mpele peesa. ‘He gave him money.’ Or even: Peesa/ mpeeló. ‘Money (is what) he gave him.’
- Muunt^hu/ hufanya kaazi/ chisula kuwanazo peesa. ‘A man should work if he wants to have money.’
- Munt^hu mpe^la Jaamá/ peesá/ ni Nuuru. ‘The man who gave Jaama money is Nuuru.’
- Muunt^hu/ mpelo Omari/ peesá/ ni Nuuru. ‘The person who gave Omari money is Nuuru.’
- Muunt^hu/ pe^la peesa. [H!H] ‘The man was given money.’ Or: Peesa/ pe^la muunt^hu. (Notice that even though muunt^hu and peesá have exchanged positions in the word order, the former remains the subject of the sentence. However, observe that it phrases with the preceding verb, just like any post-verbal complement.)
- Mwaana/ shtala peesaze/ choloka naazo. ‘The boy took his money and went away with it.’
- Nacho chiint^hu/ hula ka peesaze/ na sho kuwanaachó/ haatowi/ munt^hu wa kumpa. ‘Someone who has the means buys (e.g. new clothes) with his money; and the one who does not have anything does not fail to find a person to give him (something).’
- Naani/ mbozelo peesá. ‘Who stole the money?’ Or: Naani/ boozeló/ peesa. (The question word naani, when pre-verbal, triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb, a signal that naani is focused. It is possible for the verb to phrase with the complement peesá or to be phrasally separated. Phrasal separation puts some emphasis on the verb and triggers the Accentual Law of Focus, which prevents the final accent associated with pseudo-relativization extending to the complement.)
- Nink^hirile kuwaa mi/ mbozele peesá. ‘I denied that I stole the money.’
- Nimpele chibuukú/ khalamu/ skumpa. ‘I gave him a book, a pen, I did not give him.’ Or: Chibuuku/ nimpeelé/ khalamu/ laakini/ skumpa. ‘A book I gave him, a pen however I did not give him.’
- Nt^hakuwanaazo/ peesa. ‘(S)he did not have money.’
- Nt^haná/ pesa zaa ye/ kunulilaa nguwo. ‘He does not have money to buy me clothes.’
- Nuzile gaari/ ka peesá. ‘I bought a car with the money.’ It is also possible to focus on the direct object, in which case the final accent does not project past the focused noun: Nuzile gaari/ ka peesa. It is also possible to bring the prepositional phrase to IAV position, in which case it is focused: Nuzile ka peesá/ gaari. If the prepositional phrase is left-dislocated, GM preferred to treat it as focused and therefore with the verb in pseudo-relative form: Ka peesa/ nuzilo gaari.
- Omari/ fanyiizeni. ‘What did Omari do?’ A possible answer to this question: Mpele peesa. ‘He gave him money.’ Note that it would not be appropriate to reply: #Peesa/ mpeeló. ‘Money (is what) he gave him.’
- Pe^la peesá/ ni muunt^hu. [H!H] ‘The one who was given money is the man.’

Peesa/ ha'ipati/ kilaa chiint^hu. 'Money cannot get everything.' (A proverbial saying.)

Peesa/ hazuuli/ ruuhu. 'Money does not buy life, the soul.' (A proverb.)

Peesa/ ibeele. 'The coin is lost.' Cf. Ibele peesa. 'A coin is lost.'

Peesa/ ipasiiza/ aduwi/ ifanyiiza. 'Money has been lent, an enemy has been made.' (A proverb.)

Peesa/ khupoteza. 'Money spoils you.' (A proverbial saying.)

Peesa/ nuliile gaari. 'Money, with it I bought a car.' Or: Peesa/ nuliile/ gaari. (In these examples, the instrument has been topicalized/ left-dislocated to initial position. If the left-dislocated instrument is focused, as is permitted by our recent consultants, then the verb must shift into pseudo-relative form: Peesa/ nuliilo gaari. The verb may be phrasally separated at the same time: Peesa/ nuliiló/ peesa.)

Peesa/ nza Omari/ zaa mi/ mp^hheetó. 'The money belongs to Omari that I found.' Or: Nza Omari/ pesa zaa mi/ mp^hheetó/. 'It belongs to Omari, the money that I found.'

Peesa/ Omari/ peetó/ nzaaká. 'The money Omari found is mine.' (Note that the relative particle has been omitted, but the sentence is still well-formed; cf. Pesa za Omari/ peetó/ nzaaká. 'The money that Omari found is mine.')

Peesa/ pela muunt^hu. [H!H] 'Money, the man was given.'

Peesa/ sh^htakaawanya. 'The money, we will divide it up.'

Peesa/ stubeeme. 'Money is abundant, i.e. there is a lot of money.'

Peesa/ muunt^hu/ hazikiloowi. 'One is not buried with money.' (A proverb.)

Pesa za duniya/ hula^htoowa/ tu. 'Money in this world is only left behind.' (A proverb, commenting that money is left behind when one dies.)

Pesa za duniya/ hupatoowa/ hubashoowa. 'Money in this world is made and is lost.'

Pesa zaa mi/ mp^hheetó/ nza Omari. 'The money that I found belongs to Omari.' Or: Peesa/ zaa mi/ mp^hheetó/ nza Omari.

Peesazo/ khutilo janaani/ khutilo a^habuuni. 'It is your money that takes you to heaven and hell.' (A proverb.)

Peesazo/ khutilo janaani/ khutilo mu^hlooni. 'It is your money that takes you to heaven and hell.' (A proverb.)

rel.

ma-peesa n. 6 money

Abaa^hde/ lazile (ka) karka ahli/ nt^hawana mapeesá/ miingi. 'Abaa^hde comes from among people who do not have much money.'

sh-peesa (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

Wachendra sukhuuni/ wachimuza/ ka speesa/ habamó. 'They went to the market and sold him for a little money.'

-peesi

adj. [Sw. -epesi SSED 86] quick, swift, agile, hasty mpeesi/ kana lpepo 'someone quick (in doing s.t.) as the wind' mpeesi/ kana makiina 'someone quick (in doing s.t.) as a machine'

Ni munt^hu mpeesi. 'He is a man who acts hastily.'

want^hu wapeesi 'quick people'

rel.

u-peesi n. 14 [Sw. upes SSED 86] speed, quickness

Fanya upeesi. 'Hurry up!'

ka upeesi 'quickly, at once'

Chimbila ka upeesi. 'Run away quickly!'

Nchimpata/ ndretelaani/ ka upeesi. 'If you (pl.) get him, bring him to me at once.'

Ndro ka upeesi. 'Come quickly!'

Nt^hume/ chimwambilaa muke/ kumv^hila mu^hjiwe/ ka upeesi. 'The messenger told the woman to call her husband quickly.'

u-peesi upesi adv. quickly, in a hurry

Apo/ ye/ chigedika/ na ka upesi upesi/ chendra zitaani. 'Then he changed [transformed] and quickly went into the war.’

Nfanyize upesi upeesi. ‘I did it in a hurry.’

- Pesiina n. A new tarmac road was built in the 1980’s connecting Mogadishu to the southern port of Kisimayu. This road bypassed Mudun (Muduni), which was the place where previously one turned off in order to get to Brava. The new side road to Brava (which was also paved) started at a location called Pesiina or Pasiina (from the name of the Italian road contractor Pessina) and ended near the market-place in Brava.
- kh-peteka v. (peteshele) tickle someone; rummage through things variant form: kh-poteka
rel.
kh-petekana v. rec. tickle one another Wanaashke/ wanakhpotekana. ‘The ladies are tickling one another.’
kh-petekesha v. caus. (petekesheeze) Suufi/ mpetekesheze mwaana/ ruuhuye. ‘Suufi made the child tickle himself (implies physical manipulation).’
kh-petekoowa v. pass.
Haliima/ nakhtekaateka/ kana nakhpotekoowa. ‘Haliima is laughing and laughing as if she is being tickled.’
rel. nom.
m-peteko n. 3
ma-peteko n. 6
- petrooliyo n. [Sw. petroli SSED 376; Eng.] gasoline, petrol variant form: betrooli
chisima cha petrooliyo ‘an oil well’
Gaari/ hinendra ka petrooliyo. ‘Trucks run on petrol.’
Gaari/ za diizali/ nii nguvu/ kolko gari za betrooli. ‘Diesel trucks are stronger than petrol trucks.’
Somaaliya/ ipeta petrooliyo/ niingi. ‘A lot of petrol is found in Somalia.’
- sh-pete (s-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kipete SSED 375] ring chala cha shpete ‘ring finger (finger next to the little finger)’ Hasani/ na shpeteche cha ajabu ‘Hasani and his ring of wonders’ kama chaala/ na shpeté ‘like a finger and a ring (used to describe fast, inseparable friends)’ kama shpete/ shchipatoowa ‘if the ring is found’ kama spete/ schipatoowa ‘if the rings are found’ khkula shpete ‘to take off a ring’ khomola shpete ‘to take off a ring’ khtila shpete ‘to put on a ring’ kuvala shpete ‘to wear a ring, to have a ring on’
Mp^hete shpete cha Nuuru. ‘I found Nuuru’s ring.’
Mwanaamke/ chihada/ ichiwa/ sharti/ ndiwé/ takeendró/ basi/ taala/ shpete/ ichi chivaale/ mukhtaa we/ taakuwó/ nakhteza naayé. ‘The girl said: if it is necessary for you to go, then take this ring and wear it when you are playing (cards) with her.’
Omari/ mulile Tuuma/ shpete cha ðahabu. ‘Omari bought for Tuuma a gold ring.’
shpete cha chuuma ‘an iron, steel ring’ shpete cha ðahabu ‘a ring of gold’ shpete cha feða ‘a silver ring’ shpete cha hakhiikha ‘a ring with a valuable gem, usu. worn after having made the pilgrimage to Mecca’ shpete cha haruusi ‘a wedding ring’ shpete cha luulu ‘a pearl ring’ shpete cha waana ‘a ring for a child’ shpete chelpe ‘a white ring’ shpete chihuundru ‘a red ring’ shpete chilusi ‘a black ring’

shpete/ kuleela ‘a ring to be loose’ shpete/ kuwajana ‘a ring to be tight’
Si/ shchipata/ kumwona/ mtume Suleemaani/ shtakhtala shpeteche. ‘If we get to see the prophet Suleemeeni, we will take his ring.’
Ye/ naawé/ kuwa nakulangala/ shpete/ tu. ‘Her, let her be looking at the ring only.

=pi

encl. where?

Basi/ ndo/ we/ waliko zimiilepi. ‘So, come, (tell me) where you were hidden.’

Chiikopi/ chakuja cha mwaana/ pikililila. ‘Where is the food that the child was cooked for?’

Chiikopi/ chisu/ shtindililaa namá. ‘Where is the knife that was used to cut the meat?’ (Note that one cannot say: Chikoopi/ chisu/ tindililaa namá. ‘Where is the knife that the meat was cut with?’ This ungrammatical sentence is one where the passive subject is the direct object of the corresponding active verb and not the instrument. MI restricted passivization in the applied instrumental construction to the instrument.)

Chuuza/ sultaani/ olosholepi. ‘He asked: where did the sultan go?’

Huweekapi/ peesazo/ we. ‘Where do you keep your money?’ Or: Peesazo/ we/ huweekapi. Or: Huweekapi/ we/ peesazo. Or: We/ peesazo/ huweekapi. Or: Peesazo/ huweekapi/ we. (This example illustrates the flexibility of word order in Chimiini.)

Jeeli/ huwanaazopi/ peesa. ‘Where does Jeeli have (his) money?’ (MI did not accept a verb form like huwanaapi.)

Liikopi/ luti la mwaana/ bigililila. ‘Where is the stick that the child was hit with?’ (Note that in MI’s speech it is unacceptable to say Ukopi/ mwaana/ bigililaa luti. ‘Where is the child who was beaten with a stick.’ MI rejected sentences where the instrument appears as the post-verbal NP in an instrumental applied verb construction.)

Liikopi/ luti/ (l)bigilila mwaaná. ‘Where is the stick that was used to beat the child? where is the stick that the child was beaten with?’ (These two different interpretations are correlated with the presence or not of l as the subject marker on the verb. If present, the meaning is that the stick was used to beat the child. If not present, then the meaning is that the child was beaten with a stick.)

Lazile ka numbaani/ pashpo kiiwa/ nakeendrapí. ‘He left the house without knowing where he was going.’

Majiwe/ itiila=pi? ‘Where has there been putting stones?’

Majiwe/ yatiila=pi? ‘Where have the stones been put?’

Mbona/ lazilepi/ maskiini. ‘Say, where did he come from, the poor man?’ (In this book, we do not usually indicate intonational raisings and lowerings, some of which are predictable, others of which are not. The postposed subject in this example is radically lowered in pitch and it is difficult to say whether there is a true accentual contrast in this case. In narrow transcription, we write [Mbona/ lazilepi/ maskiini.]

Meenepí. ‘Where did you see him?’ (An appropriate answer: Nimene wowiiní. ‘I saw him in the river.’)

Mi/ nakendra khpatapi/ inyi yaa nfuye. ‘Where am I going to get a monkey’s liver from?’

Muusa/ mekeleelepi/ Nuuru/ chibuuku. ‘Where did Muusa put the book for Nuuru?’ (We have not done a systematic study of the intonation of so-called “wh”-questions like this. In eliciting the present example, we did note an intonational rise on the final syllable of the sentence. If the rise is extreme, then the sentence seems to convey surprise or seeks confirmation about where the book was put.)

Nakeendrapí. ‘Where are you going?’

Ndo/ nimlatiilepi. ‘Come, where have you thrown him?’

Nfaanyépi. ‘Where shall I do it?’

Nfaanyépi/ kaazi. ‘Where shall I work?’

Nt^hampatapi/ nyunyi/ mwiingine/ kama uyu. ‘Where will I get another bird like this one?’

Nt^hakhpatapi. ‘Where will I get it?’

Omari/ andishilepi/ zoombo. ‘Where did Omari put things?’ (A possible answer:

Omari/ andishile zoombo/ gariini. ‘Omari put the things in the lorry.’)

Siisi/ hulawapi/ amó/ heendrapí. ‘I don’t know where it comes from or where it goes to.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is lpepo ‘the wind’.)

Sulataani/ malizopo khsomá/ chimuza baduwi/ peetepi/ ikofiya iyi.

‘When the sultan finished reading [the words on the hat], he asked the nomad where he obtained this hat?’

Takuwanaayopi/ nuumba/ Mkhodiisho. ‘Where will you have a home in Mogadishu (i.e. where will you buy a house, where will you live, etc.)?’ (MI did not accept the verb form: takuwanaapi.)

Tuuma/ muke/ olosholepi. ‘Tuuma, where did the woman go?’ Or: Muke/ olosholepi/ Tuuma. ‘The woman went where, Tuuma?’

Uzilepi/ Nureeni/ jaka iyo. ‘Where did Nureeni buy that jacket?’

Wanaayopi/ nuumba/ Mkhodiisho. ‘Whereabouts in Mogadishu did you have a house?’ (MI did not accept a verb form wanaapi.)

Walikopi/ we/ si/ pamó/ na waant^hu/ wotte/ wa muuyi/ chenzele kubiga harbí/ we/ izimilililé. ‘Where were you? We, together with all the people of the town, went to fight the war; you hid yourself.’

Wesholepi/ zibuuku. ‘Where did you put the books?’ (Phon. cf. the accent in Wesholepi/ zibuuku. ‘Where did (s)he put the books?’)

Yiikopi/ khalamu/ yandikililaa khatí. ‘Where is the pen that was used to write the letter?’ (Note that it is ungrammatical to say: Yiikopi/ khatí/ yandikilila khalamú. ‘Where is the letter that was written with a pen?’ In MI’s speech, an instrument could not be the post-verbal NP in an instrumental applied construction.)

Yiikopi/ nama/ itinzila kaa chisú. ‘Where is the meat that was cut with a knife?’ (One cannot use the applied verbal form: Yiikopi/ nama/ itindililaa chisú. ‘Where is the meat that was cut using the knife?’)

piicha

n. 9/10 [Sw. picha SSED 376; Eng.] picture, photograph khtala piicha ‘to take a photograph’

kubiga piicha ‘to take a photograph’

Nonyeza piicha/ iyo. ‘Show me that photograph.’ Or: Noony(ez)a/ mi/ picha iyo.

Piicha/ ilawililile. ‘The picture has come out good.’

piicha/ ya teesara ‘identity picture’

Waant^hu/ wa’onyeza piicha. [H!H] ‘The people were shown pictures.’

Zonyeza waant^hu/ ni piicha. [HH] ‘What were shown people were pictures.’ (Our transcription of the pitch pattern of sentences of this structure has wavered between [H!H] and [HH]. It may be that there is simply some variation with respect to the extent of the emphasis on the predicate phrase in this structure, or perhaps there is not a definite contrast in the case of such sentences.)

pichoori

n. a type of aromatic long grain white rice (called pishori in Kenya) mpunga wa pichoori ‘a kind of rice (aromatic long grain white rice)’ pijaama

n. pyjamas

Masku/ muunt^hu/ suura/ kulaala/ ka pijaama/ sababu/ nguwo/ hukhadira mfakaṭa. ‘At night it is good for a person to sleep with pyjamas because the cloth (i.e. sheet or blanket) can run off him (i.e. slide off).’

kh-pika

v. [Sw. pika SSED 377] (pishile) cook; idiom. betray, tell on Chaakuja/ mp^hishilé. ‘Food, I cooked.’ (In order to make the preposed noun phrase clearly definite, one would put an object marker agreeing with it on the verb: Chaakuja/ nishpishilé. ‘The food, I cooked it.’)

Chooloka/ chimpika/ oyoo noka. ‘She went and she cooked that snake.’

Faatma/ nakhpikó/ kilaa muunt^hi. ‘It is Faatma who is cooking every day.’ (The subject of the sentence is focused in this example, which induces the pseudo-relativization of the verb. Observe that the relative verb is focused here as well, and the final accent associated with the relative verb does not extend to the complement in pseudo-relativization. In ordinary relativization, even if the verb is phrasally separated from a complement, final accent does extend to the end of the relative clause.)

Faatma/ pishilee nama/ laakini/ Haliima/ pishilee nsi. ‘Faatma cooked meat, but Haliima cooked fish.’ (In this example, Haliima is focused in the sense of being raised in pitch, but does not trigger pseudo-relativization of its verb.)

Faatma/ pishile/ nama. ‘Faatma cooked meat.’ (The speaker of a sentence such as this, with focus on the verb, might continue: ...laakini/ mi/ skuja. ‘But I didn’t eat any.’ Or: ...laakini/ tawanyiize. ‘But she threw it away.’ Or: ...laakini/ nt^haku/ jiióló. ‘But there’s no one who ate.’ It would not be felicitous, however, for the speaker to continue: #na Haliimá/ pishilee nsi. ‘And Haliima cooked fish.’ This addition is infelicitous since it is unrelated to the assertion that Faatma did cook meat. A different speaker might say: ā’ā/ nt^hakhpika. ‘No, she did not cook (fish).’ Or: ā’ā/ pishilee nsi. ‘No, she cooked fish.’)

Haliima/ pishilee zijo. ‘Haliima cooked zijo.’ (The simple y/n question displays Q-Raising but no other alteration of the prosody. The exclamatory question shifts accent in the verb phrase: Haliima/ pishilee zijô!? If the subject is right-dislocated: Pishilee zijo/ ^hHaliima. ‘She cooked zijo, Haliima.’ In the simple y/n question, one would expect the right-dislocated subject to undergo accent shift; it is apparently possible for accent shift to not occur, as we recorded: Pishilee zijo/ Haliima? The emphatic question however requires accent shift in both phrases: Pishilee zijô/ Haliimâ!? The right-dislocated subject may come between the verb and the complement: Pishile/ ^hHaliima/ zijo. In the simple y/n question version of this sentence, accent shift affects both the subject and the complement: Pishile/ Haliimá/ zijô? In the emphatic question, the verb also undergoes accent shift: Pishilé/ Haliimá/ zijô!?)

Haliima/ pishileni. ‘What did Haliima cook?’ (The =ni enclitic does not trigger any shift of the verb to the pseudo-relative form; consequently, in this example default accent occurs on the third-person past tense verb form. There does seem to be some intonational raising of the final syllable, but this intonational feature has not been explored in detail.)

Haliima/ pishilee zijo. ‘Haliima cooked zijo.’

Haliima/ pishilee zijo/ so. ‘Haliima cooked zijo, didn’t she?’

Haliima/ pishiló. ‘It is Haliima who cooked.’

Haliima/ ^htakhpika mataaza/ ^htakhpikó. ‘Haliima will cook porridge, that’s what she will do ‘

Hamadi/ mpishile Ali/ ka sarkaali. ‘Hamadi betrayed Ali to the government.’

Iyaank^huku/ ipishila ka maayi. ‘The egg was boiled (lit. cooked with water).’

Jaama/ pishilee nama/ ka sufuriya. ‘Jaama cooked meat with a pan.’ (Cf. Mi/ mp^hishilee namá/ ka sufuriyá. ‘I cooked meat with a pan.’)

Ji/ spishile/ zaakuja. ‘Ji cooked the food.’

Kaaziya/ ni khpika. ‘My work is to cook.’

Kuja/ pishilo Haliimá/ mi/ sidaari. ‘Food that has been cooked by Haliima, I will not touch [i.e. eat] it.’ (Observe the possibility of locating the subject of the relative verb in IAV position in this example.)

Kuja/ pishilo Haliimá/ simeeré/ kuwa ladda. ‘Food that has been cooked by Haliima, don’t [try] to search out [whether] it is sweet – i.e. don’t even dream that it might be sweet.’

Liini/ Haliima/ pishiló. ‘When did Haliima cook?’ A possible answer Haliima/ pishile fijiri iyi. ‘Haliima cooked this morning.’ (When a time adverb is out-of-focus and follows the verb, it would be phrased separately from the verb. But in this answer, obviously the time adverb is being focused and thus phrases with the verb.)

Liini/ Haliima/ pishiloo zijó. ‘When did Haliima cook zijo?’ A possible answer to this question: Haliima/ pishilee zijo/ fijiri iyi. ‘Haliima cooked zijo this morning.’ (In this answer, the time adverbial is obviously not “out-of-focus” and thus when one forms a yes-no question version of this sentence, there is no accent-shift, as occurs with out-of-focus phrases: Haliima/ pishilee zijo/ fijiri iyi?)

Mp^hishilé. ‘I cooked.’

Mpishile chakuja cha Nuuru. ‘I cooked food for Nuuru (to eat); I cooked food that Nuuru was supposed to cook.’

Mpishilee namá/ ka sufuriyá. ‘I cooked meat with a pan.’

Mubli/ oloshelopo kaziini/ shpikaa zijo. ‘When the husband went to work, she cooked zijo.’

Muke/ nakhpiko kilaa muunt^hi/ ni Faatma. ‘The woman who is cooking every day is Faatma.’)

Muke/ pishile. ‘The woman cooked.’ Or, with subject postposing: Pishile/ muke. (The corresponding simple yes-no questions: Muke/ pishile?, with no accent shift, and: Pishile/ muké?, with accent shift in the out-of-focus complement. The emphatic yes-no questions: Muke/ pishilé!? and Pishile/ muké!?) (Shifting the subject to IAV position is not possible: Pishilee muke., unless the clause is elaborated upon, as in: Pishilee muke/ kuja/ ladda/ hattá/ takuluma zaalazo. ‘The woman cooked food so sweet until [the point is reached that] you will bite your fingers.’ The elaboration necessary for putting the subject in IAV position is not provided by elements internal to the verb phrase: Pishilee muke/ kuja. ‘Cooked the woman food.’ is unacceptable.)

Muke oyo/ pishilee zijo. ‘The woman cooked zijo.’ Or, with focus on the verb: Muke oyo/ pishile/ zijo. (Phon. When the verb is focused, it is raised in pitch rather than exhibiting the default downstep intonation. The lack of focus on zijo is reflected in the yes-no question, where zijo undergoes accent shift: Muke oyo/ pishile/ zijó? In this yes-no question, the verb undergoes Q-raising, discussed in the introduction, while the out-of-focus zijo is much lower in pitch.)

Muke pishiló/ ni Faatma. ‘The woman who cooked was Faatma.’ (One cannot say: *Pishiloo muke/ ni Faatma.)

muke oyo/ shpika ‘if that woman cooks’ muke oyo/ shpikaa zijo ‘if that woman/ cooks zijo’

Muusa/ haapiki/ maandra. ‘Muusa doesn’t cook bread.’ Or: Muusa/ hapiki maandra. ‘Muusa doesn’t/won’t cook bread.’ Or: Muusa/ maandra/ haapiki. ‘Muusa doesn’t cook bread.’

Nakhpika mataaza/ Haliima/ nakhpikó. ‘She is cooking porridge, Haliima, that’s what she is doing.’

Naani/ pishiló. ‘Who cooked?’ A possible answer to this question: Haliima/ pishiló. ‘Haliima cooked.’ (Observe that in both the question and the answer, the verb is put into a pseudo-relative clause form.)

Naani/ pishiloo kujá. ‘Who cooked food?’

Pika. ‘Cook!’ (cf. Pikaa zijo. ‘Cook zijo!’ Pikaani. ‘You (pl.) cook!’ Pikani nsi. ‘You (pl.) cook fish!’ Spiké. ‘Don’t cook!’ Spiké/ zijo. ‘Don’t cook zijo!’ Spikeení. ‘You (pl.) don’t cook!’ Spikeení/ zijo. ‘You (pl.) don’t cook zijo!’)

Pishile mataaza/ pishiló. ‘She cooked porridge, that’s what she did.’ (The repetition of the main verb in a relative form, as seen in the present example, is a common strategy in spoken Chimiini. The repetition is always the verb only, never the subject or the complement as well. Thus one does not say Haliima/ pishile mataaza/ Haliima/ pishiló. (where the subject is repeated) nor Haliima/ pishile mataaza/ pishilo mataazá. (where the object is repeated as well as the verb).)

Pishiló/ ni Faatma. ‘The one who cooked is Faatma.’

Wake/ wapishiloo zijó/ wa’oloshéle. ‘The women who cooked zijo went away.’ (We have not seen any evidence that the phrasal separation of the head of a relative clause and the relative verb is necessarily an indication of a non-restrictive relative clause. On the other hand, the absence of separation seems to clearly convey a restrictive interpretation.)

Zijo/ pishile/ Faatima. ‘[Lit.] zijo cooked Faatima.’ (In this example, the object is preposed and the subject postposed. The postposed subject does not, however, phrase with the verb. The preposing of zijo could trigger pseudo-relativization of the verb, but pseudo-relativization is not obligatory. Indeed, in the speech of MI, it was not observed except in overt cleft structures and in the case of pre-verbal question words.)

Zijo/ pishilo Haliimá/ haaziwi/ zilada. ‘Zijo Haliima cooked is not sweet/good.’

Zijo/ pishilo Haliimá/ nt’askujoowa. ‘The zijo Haliima cooked was not eaten.’

Zijo/ pishiló/ muke. ‘[Lit.] zijo cooked the woman.’ (This example illustrates how the preposing of zijo may trigger pseudo-relativization.)

Zijo/ pishiloo muké/ mi/ siji. ‘The food that the woman cooked, I won’t eat it.’ (Notice that this example involves a true relative clause with a head, zijo, that is followed immediately by the relative verb, with the subject of the relative verb postposed after it. Observe that the subject is included in the same phrase as the verb and is in the scope of the relative verb’s final accent.)

rel.

kh-pikana v. rec. (lit.) cook one another – i.e. betray or tell on one another kh-pikaapika v. freq.

Chiwonoowa/ Haliima/ nakhpikaapika/ tu. ‘Whenever Haliima is seen, she is just cooking and cooking [not necessarily well]’ kh-pikika v. p/s. (-pikishile) be cooked; able to be cooked

Chaakuja/ chinakhpikika. ‘The food is beginning to cook (now).’

Chaakuja/ shpikishile. ‘The food is cooked.’

Mpunga uyu/ ha’upikiki/ ka sufuriya iyi. ‘This rice cannot be cooked with this pot.’

We/ mabori ayo/ andika mu’looni/ isa/ yat’akhpikika. ‘You, those pumpkins, (if you) put them in the fire, they will cook immediately.’

kh-pikikila v. p/s. appl.

Chaakuja/ chimpikikilile. ‘Food was able to be cooked for him (after some effort on his part).’

kh-pikiloowa v. appl. pass. (pikilila) be cooked for, be cooked with Baana/ ni sahali/ khpikilowa chaakuja. ‘Baana is easy to be cooked food for.’

Chuungu/ shpikilila nama. ‘The pot was used to cook the meat.’

Fija iyi/ ipikilila waana/ chaakuja/ (naa muke). ‘This stove was used to cook food for the children (by the woman).’

Hamadi/ pikilila chaakuja. ‘Hamadi was cooked food for.’ (Syn. It is not possible for chaakuja to be the subject of the passive verb:

Chaakuja/ shpikilila Hamadi. ‘Food was cooked for Hamadi.’)

Khpiḱilowa Hamadi/ ha’itasawari. ‘Hamadi to be cooked for is impossible.’

Khpiḱilowa Hamadi/ siwo/ sahali. ‘To cook for Hamadi is not easy (lit. Hamadi to be cooked for is not easy).’

Kuja/ yaliko sahali/ khpiḱilowa Hamadi. ‘Food is easy to cook for Hamadi.’

Mp^hikilila chaakujá/ na Hamadií ‘[Lit.] I was cooked for food by Hamadi.’ (Cf. It is possible to prepose the noun chaakuja:

Chaakuja/ mp^hikilila na Hamadií. ‘[Lit.] food, I was cooked for by Hamadi.’ But is it not possible for food to be the passive subject: Chaakuja/ chimp^hikilila na Hamadi. ‘Food was cooked for him by Hamadi.’)

Muḱli/ pikilila chaakuja/ na mukeewe. ‘The man was cooked for food by his wife.’

mwana pikilila chaakujá/ naa muké ‘the child who was cooked for food by the woman’

Naani/ pikililaa kujá. ‘Who was cooked for food?’ Or: Kuja/ pikilila naani. (This latter question could be answered by: Kuja/ pikilila mwaana. ‘(Lit.) food, (he) was cooked for the child.’)

Ni misufuriya/ hupikilowaa noka zaakujá. ‘It is the aug. pans that are to be used to cook food for the snake.’ (Note that in this example two bare nouns are licensed by the applied extension: the instrument mi-sufuriya and the beneficiary noka.)

Pikilila na naani/ chaakuja. ‘You were cooked for food by whom?’ Cf.

Pikilila na naani/ chaakuja. ‘He was cooked for food by whom?’

Pikilila naani/ chaakuja. ‘Who was cooked for food?’

Pikilila naani/ kuja iyi. ‘Who was this food cooked for?’ (One cannot put naani last: Pikilila kuja iyi/ naani. The question word naani is focused, and a focused element in post-verb position must immediately follow the verb and be phrased with it. One can say: Pikilila kuja iyi/ ni naani. ‘The one who was cooked for this food is whom?’)

Shpiḱilowa chaakuja/ shpowa mahala/ chilaala/ hatá/ fijiri. ‘He was cooked food for, he was given a place [to sleep], and he slept until morning.’ review

Sufuriya/ ipikililaa nama/ naami. ‘A pan was used to cook the meat by me.’ (Note that the instrument may be the subject of the passive of an instrumental applied verb, but the logical object cannot be: Nama/ ipikilila sufuriya/ naami. ‘The meat was cooked using a pan by me.’)

Sufuriya/ ipikilila waana/ zijo. ‘A pan was used to cook zijo for the children.’ (Note that the applicative verb in this example permits three unmarked nouns, sufuriya, w-aana, and zi-jo to appear in the sentence.)

Sufuriya/ ipikililaa zijo. ‘A pan was used to cook zijo.’

Zakuja izi/ schisuḱlowa kuwa pikilila Hamadi/ shpiḱindri. ‘These foods were supposed to have been cooked for Hamadi at noon (and now it is after noon).’

kh-pikila v. appl. (pikiliile) cook for, with

Ali/ pikililee nama/ skunyi. ‘Ali cooked the meat using firewood.’ (Our consultant MI preferred for the instrument in an instrumental applied construction to be out of focus, as in the present sentence. He rejected ?Ali/ pikilile skunyi/ nama. We have not determined to what extent other speakers display this preference.)

Ali/ pikiliileni/ skunyi. ‘What did Ali cook using firewood?’ (The sentence Ali/ pikililee nama/ skunyi. is an appropriate answer to this question.)

Boyesawo/ takhupikila. ‘Your maid will cook for you.’

Faatma/ mpikilile Khaje/ zijo/ chimaliza mpakuḱile. ‘Faatma cooked zijo for Khaje and then served it to him.’ (Note that the conjoined sentences can be relativized: zijo za Faatma/ mpikililo Khajé/ chimaliza mpakuililo... ‘the zijo that Faatima cooked for Khaje and served him...’) Haliima/ mpikilile naani/ zijo. ‘Haliima cooked zijo for whom?’ (Phon.

The post-verbal question word naani does not trigger a shift of the verb to pseudo-relative for; however, naani is focused and thus the following complement undergoes pitch lowering. A possible answer to this question is: Haliima/ mpikilile maana/ zijo.

‘Haliima cooked for the child zijo.’ The same pitch drop occurs on zijo in this situation. Of course, a sentence with the same word order and phrasing but no “narrow” focus on maana is pronounced with the canonical downstep intonation.)

Haliima/ wapikilile waanawe/ zijo. ‘Haliima cooked zijo for her children.’

(The simple y/n question exhibits Q-Raising but no accent shift. The exclamatory question shifts accent in the verb phrase: Haliima/ wapikilile waanawé/ zijó!? The subject may be right-dislocated: Wapikilile waanawe/ zijo/ Haliima. In the corresponding simple y/n question, the subject undergoes accent shift: Wapikilile waanawe/ zijo/ Haliimá? The exclamatory question has accent shift throughout: Wapikilile waanawé/ zijó/ Haliimá!? The subject may be dislocated between the two complements of the verb: Wapikilile waanawe/ Haliima/ zijo. In the simple y/n question both the subject and the complement undergo accent shift: Wapikilile waanawe/ Haliimá/ zijó? In the exclamatory question, the entire verb phrase undergoes accent shift: Wapikilile waanawé/ Haliimá/ zijó!?)

Hamadi/ ipikilile ruuhuye/ chaakuja. ‘And so Hamadi cooked food for himself.’ (It may be possible to omit the reflexive pronoun ruuhuye, but in any case the verb form can only mean the cooking was done for oneself and not for anyone else. One cannot say Hamadi/ ipikilile waana/ chaakuja. ‘And finally Hamadi cooked food for the children.’)

Hamadi/ mp^hikilile chaakuja. ‘Hamadi cooked food for me.’

Ipikilile chaakuja/ ijilile. ‘He cooked the food and ate it.’

Ipikilile chaakuja/ yolokelele. ‘He cooked the food and went.

Jaama/ pikilile nama/ sufuriya. ‘Jaama cooked meat with a pan.’

Lüini/ Haliima/ wapikililo zijó/ waaná. ‘When did Haliima cook zijo for the children?’ A possible answer to this question: Haliima/ wapikilile zijo/ waana/ fijiri iyi. ‘Haliima cooked zijo for the children this morning.’ (Phon. Since fijiri iyi is not out-of-focus in this response, a yes-no question version does not undergo accent shift: Haliima/ wapikilile zijo/ waaa/ fijiri iyi?)

Mp^hikilile sufuriyá/ namá. ‘I cooked meat with a pan.’ (Although this example derives from work with MI, he usually expressed skepticism about the grammaticality of having the instrument in an instrumental applied verb construction appear in post-verbal position. GM, on the other hand, did not reject sentences with the instrument in post-verbal position.)

Mwaambile/ nakhupikile chaakuja. ‘Tell him to cook food for you.’

Mwana mpikililo mwaalimú/ chaakujá/ leele. ‘The child who cooked food for the teacher is sleeping.’

Ni sahali/ kumpikila Mubiidi/ chaakuja. ‘It is easy to cook food for Mubiidi.’

Nimpikilile muḅliwá/ Nureení/ zijó. ‘I cooked zijo for my husband Nureeni.’

Nimpikilile Nureení/ muḅliwa/ zijo. ‘I cooked zijo for Nureeni my husband.’

Nt^haná/ nt^hanu ya kump^hikilaa kuja. ‘He does not have a stove to cook food for me with.’ (Syn. The applied verb in this example permits an unmarked instrument and beneficiary at the same time due to the fact that the instrument is not overtly present post-verbally.)

Omari/ Jaama/ mpikilileni. ‘As for Omari, what did Jaama cook for him?’ (Syn: Observe that both Omari and Jaama would govern the same subject agreement on the verb. In this case, the noun immediately preceding the verb is understood to be the subject of the sentence, while the noun occurs initially is understood to be the topic of the sentence. This contrasts with a sentence like Omari/ chaakuja/ mpikilile Jaama. ‘Omari, the food he cooked for Jaama.’ Here the pre-verbal noun cannot be interpreted as the subject of the verb, thus allowing Omari to be assigned this role.)

cook

Skunyi/ mp^hikilīlee kujá. ‘Firewood, I cooked food with it.’ (Syn. MI preferred not to topicalize the logical object in the instrumental applied verb construction: ?Kuja/ mp^hikilīle skunyí.)

Skunyi/ spikilīlani. ‘Firewood, what was cooked with it?’ (A possible answer: Skunyi/ spikilīlaa kujá. ‘Firewood was used to cook.’)

Uzile mafta/ khpikilaa kujá. ‘He bought oil to cook food with.’ (An instrument does not control an object marker on an applied verb stem. Thus it is ill-formed to say: Uzile mafta/ kiyapikilaa kujá. ‘He bought oil to use it to cook food.’ MI also did not like having the verb agree with the logical object: Uzile mafta/ kiⁱipikilaa kujá.)

Uzile mafta/ kumpikilaa kujá. ‘He bought oil to cook food for him.’

Wo/ humpikilaa kujá. ‘They cook food for her.’

ye/ nakuwapikilo waaná/ mpuungá ‘while she was cooking rice for the children’ or with verb emphasis: ye/ nakuwapikiló/ waana/ mpuunga (The latter example shows the effect of the Accentual Law of Focus; however, GM did accept: ye/ nakuwapikiló/ waana/ mpuungá. We do not think that this actually shows that ALF is optional. Notice that it is only the final phrase that has a final accent, not both the post-verbal phrases. If ALF were simply not in effect, we would expect: ye/ nakuwapikiló/ waaná/ mpuungá. Further research is required.)

‘Zijo/ Haliima/ (wa)pikilīlo waanawé. ‘Zijo, Haliima cooked it for her children.’ (In our recording of this example, GM omitted the object marker wa, although it is not clear to us how common this omission is. In our work with MI, we cannot recall the absence of the OM in such a sentence, where the object is definite. Turning to the y/n question versions of this sentence, the simple question involves only Q-raising. In the exclamatory question, GM did not shift accent in either of the initial two phrases, and shift in the last phrase is vacuous: Zijo/ Haliima/ (wa)pikilīlo waanawé!?)

kh-pikilana v. appl. rec. (-pikileene) cook for one another Nt^hawana chakuja chaa wo/khpikilana. ‘They do not have food to cook for one another.’

Waana/ wapikilene chaakuja. ‘The children cooked food for one another.’

Waana/ wapikilene chaakuja/ ka sufuriya. ‘The children cooked food for one another with a pan.’ (Syn. It seems to be marginally possible to use the instrument without a preposition, allowing the applied verb to do double duty so-to-speak. But this usage seems to be restricted to environments where an instrument is “old” or “given” information. For example, MI accepted as possible the sentences: Waana/ wapikilene^f chaakuja/ sufuriya. and Sufuriya/ waana/ wapikilene chaakuja. In the former sentence, the focus (indicated here, for purposes of clarity, by the superscript ^f) on ‘food’ serves to identify ‘food’ as the new information and the subsequent noun ‘pan’ as old information. In the second sentence, left-dislocation in MI’s speech is associated with old information, thus it is possible to find the instrument appearing in initial position.)

kh-pikilika v. appl. p/s.

Hamadi/ hapikiliki/ chaakuja. ‘Hamadi cannot be cooked food for.’ (The subject of the p/s. verb here must be Hamadi and cannot be chaakuja: Chaakuja/ hashpikiliki/ Hamadi. ‘Food cannot be cooked for Hamadi.’ This same asymmetry holds with respect to the passive verb -pikiloowa.)

kh-pikisha v. caus. (pikishiize) make/have cook

Ali/ mpikishize Haliima/ chaakuja. ‘Ali had Haliima cook food.’

Muusa/ mpikishize Faatima/ kaa dhibu. ‘Muusa caused Faatima to cook with difficulty.’ (It is interesting that, as MI noted in his Ph.D. dissertation on Chimiini causative verbs, that the manner adverb kaa dhibu differs from a number of other manner adverbials in that it has scope only over the act of causation and not over the action performed by the causee. Thus this sentence means only that it was difficult for Muusa to make Faatima cook and not the he made Faatima’s cooking difficult. Other manner adverbials with this same restriction to higher scope include ka sahali ‘easily’, ka khada’a ‘deceitfully’, kaa zita ‘violently’.)

Ni sahali/ kumpikisha Suufi/ chaakuja. ‘It is easy to make Suufi cook food.’

Shpikishize waana. ‘We made the children cook.’

Suufi/ mpakishize Haliima/ nama/ ka skunyi. ‘Suufi had Haliima cook meat with firewood.’ (In the case of a true causative verb, i.e. one where there is a "causee" who performs some action, a ka- instrumental phrase can refer either to the act of causation or to the action performed by the causee. In the present sentence, the instrumental phrase indicates how the cooking was done. Similarly: Haliima/ mpikishize muné/ chaakuja/ ka sufuriya. ‘Haliima caused her little sister to cook with a pan.’ On the other hand, in Haliima/ mpikishize muné/ chaakuja/ kaa nk^hele (or: ka kumloomba or kaa dhibu or ka kumpa peesa). ‘Haliima caused her younger sister to cook by shouting/ by begging her/ with difficulty/ by giving her money.’, the instrumental phrases refer to the act of causation.)

kh-pikishanya v. caus. rec. (-pikisheenye)

Shpikisheenyé. ‘We made each other cook.’

Wapikisheenye. ‘They made each other cook.’

kh-pikishika v. caus. p/s.

Safiya/ hapikishiki/ chiint^hu. ‘Safiya cannot be made to cook anything.’

(Note that it is not possible for the logical object of ‘cook’ to be the subject of this verb: Chaakuja/ hashpikishiki. ‘Food cannot be made to be cooked.’) kh-pikishikila v. caus. p/s. appl.

kh-pikishiliza v. caus. appl. make cook for, on, with Ali/ mpikishilize mwaalimu/ muke/ nama/ ka skunyi. ‘Ali made the teacher’s wife cook meat with firewood.’ (In this sentence, where the applied verb functions to permit the appearance of a beneficiary NP, the preposition ka cannot be deleted, leaving a bare instrumental NP.)

Ali/ pikishilizeni/ skunyi. ‘What did Ali cause to be cooked with firewood?’ (A proper answer to this question is: Ali/ pikishilizee nama/ skunyi. ‘Ali caused meat to be cooked with firewood.’ This example illustrates that in the absence of a beneficiary NP, it is possible for the instrumental noun to appear without a preposition. In MI’s speech, however, the instrument must be out of focus.)

Ali/ wapikishilize wazeele/ mwanaamke/ chaakuja. ‘Ali had the parents’ girl cook the food.’

Boora/ wapikishilize waant^hu/ mwanaamke. ‘Boora had the girl cook for the people.’

Boora/ wapikishilize wazeele/ mwanaamke/ chaakuja. ‘Boora had the girl cook food for (her) parents.’

Mp^hikishilize mwaana. ‘He made the child cook on me.’

Osmaani/ mpikishilize mubli/ muke/ chaakuja. ‘Osmaani made the husband’s wife cook food.’ (The causative applied verb in this example is understood as establishing a possessive relationship between the man and his wife; it is not interpreted as having a benefactive reading: ‘Osmaani made the wife cook food for the husband.’ In order to obtain this benefactive reading, a periphrastic construction would be used: Osmaani/ mtile muke/ kumpikila mubli/ chaakuja. ‘Osmaani put in (caused) the woman to cook food for her husband.’)

Skunyi/ Osmaani/ mpikishilizee muke/ nama. ‘Firewood, Osmaani had the woman cook meat using it.’ Or: Osmaani/ skunyi/ mpikishilizee muke/ nama. (Our consultant MI preferred the instrument in an instrumental applied verb construction to not appear inside the VP. As a consequence, preposing the instrument yields an acceptable sentence. The instrument is particularly banned from being immediately after the verb; thus the ungrammaticality of the sentence where the causee is preposed:

Muke/ Osmaani/ mpikishilize skunyi/ nama. ‘The woman, Osmaani made her cook meat with firewood.’ The ungrammaticality of this sentence is not due to any constraint against preposing the causee, but rather resides in the location of the instrument after the verb.

The data on an instrument inside the VP, but not immediately after the verb, is less clearcut. MI rejected *Nama/ Osmaani/ mpikishilizee muke/ skunyi. ‘Meat, Ali had the child cook it using firewood.’ but accepted Muke/ Osmaani/ mpikishilizee nama/ skunyi. ‘The woman, Osmaani had her cook meat using firewood.’

skunyi za Osmaani/ mpikishilizoo muké/ namá... ‘the firwood that Osmaani had the woman cook the meat with...’ (Relativizing the instrument yields an excellent sentence, but relativizing the causee or the logical object yields an ungrammatical sentence for MI, since it leaves the instrument in post-verbal position:

*muke wa

Osmaani mpikishilizoo namá/ skunyi... ‘the woman whom Osmaani had cook the meat with firewood’ and *nama ya Osmaani/ mpikishilizoo muké/ skunyi... ‘the meat that Osmaani had the woman cook using firewood’.)

wanthu wa Ali/ wapikishilizo mwanaamké/ chaakujá ‘the people whose girl Ali made (for them) cook food’ (Note the ungrammaticality of * wantthu wa Ali/ mpikishilizo mwanaamké/ chaakujá ‘the people who Ali made their girl cook food’; in other words, the verb must agree with the beneficiary and not the person who actually did the cooking.)

kh-pikishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Shpikishilizenye waaná. ‘We made the children cook for one another.’

kh-pikishilizika v. caus. appl. p/s.

Nuuru/ hapikishiliziki/ muke/ chaakuja. ‘One cannot make Nuuru’s wife cook food (but Nuuru is the subject of the verb).’

kh-pikishilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

Nuuru/ pikishiliza mwaana/ nama. ‘Nuuru’s child was made to cook meat.’

Skunyi/ spikishiliza mwaana. ‘Firewood was made the child to cook with it.’ (The structure here invites the interpretation of skunyi as a beneficiary, but since this is not possible, it is assigned an instrumental interpretation.)

kh-pikishoowa v. caus. pass. (-pikishiiza)

Aasha/ pikishizaa nama. ‘Aasha was made to cook meat.’ (Note that one cannot say *Nama/ ipikishiza Aasha. ‘Meat was made to be cooked Aasha.’

Mwaana/ pikishizaa nama/ ka skunyi. ‘The child was made to cook meat with firewood.’

Suufi/ ni sahali/ khpikishowa chaakuja. ‘It is easy for Suufi to be made to cook food.’

kh-pikoowa v. pass.

Apo/ zinakhpikowa státa. ‘There fat is being cooked.’

Chaakuja/ shpishila na Hamadi. ‘Food was cooked by Hamadi.’

Ipishila maangi/ ka Nuuru/ numbaani. ‘Maangi has been cooked at Nuuru’s house.’

Ipishila numbaani. ‘There was cooking at the house.’

Ipishila mpuunga. ‘There was rice cooked.’ (An impersonal passive.)

Ipishilaa zijo. ‘There was cooking of zijo.’ (It is no doubt grammatical to include an agent in a na-phrase, but probably not common at least in the case of an identified, specific agent, e.g. Ipishilaa zijo/ na wake awaje. ‘There was zijo cooked by those women.’)

Nama/ ipishila ka sufuriya/ na Jaama. ‘Meat was cooked with a pan by Jaama.’ Or: Nama/ ipishila na Jaama/ ka sufuriya. ‘Meat was cooked by Jaama with a pan.’)

Shchiwasila/ muyiini/ mi/ nt^hakhtindoowa/ na namayá/ itakhpikoowa. ‘When we arrive in town, I will be slaughtered and my meat will be cooked.’

kh-pikowapikoowa v. freq. pass.

Inakhpikowapikowa mikuja. ‘There is a lot of mikuja being cooked and cooked [where mikuja is a disparaging augmentative form].’

rel. nom

m-pika (wa-) n. 1/2 one who cooks

m-piko (mi-) n. 3/4 act, way of cooking

Mpiko/ waa we/ hupikoo zijó/ ni ghalta. ‘The way that you cook zijo is wrong.’

Mpikowe/ nt^ha’ukuwaliko msuura. ‘His cooking was not good.’ review phrasing; would verb here be at the end of a phrase ordinarily?

ma-piko n. 6

u-piko n. 14

m-pishi (wa-) n. 1/2 professional cook

Ajirile mpishi. ‘He hired a cook.’

Mchimbize mpishi. ‘He fired, sent away the cook.’

Mpete mpishi. ‘He found the cook.’

Walwaawo/ wawaaliko/ wapishi/ wa mmamulaṭaa nṭi. ‘Both of them were cooks for the caretaker of the land.’

Wapishi wiingi/ hangamiza mṭuzi. ‘Many cooks spoil the broth.’ (A proverb.)

pilaawu

n. [Sw. pilao SSED 378] pilaf – rice with meat and vegetables mixed together

piili

[Sw. pili SSED 378] second

Cheendra/ naank^hó/ chimleta mwana wa piili/ wa wanziiri. ‘He went and again he brought a second child, [a son] of a minister.’

Chimnyamula na wa piili. ‘He snatched also the second one.’

Hamadi/ anzize khfanya kazi ya piili/ jisaa ye/ khpata peesa/ zaaydi. ‘Hamadi began working a second job in order to make more money.’

ka piili ‘next time’

Haye/ ka piili/ sisoongé. ‘OK, next time I will not go near [the sultan’s house].’

mara piili ‘the second time’

Nnaxhsoma mara piili/ chibuku ichi. ‘I read a second time this book.’ Or:

Nnaxhsoma chibuku ichi/ mara piili. ‘I read this book a second time.’ Or:

Nnaxhsoma chibuku ichi/ mara piili. ‘I read this book a second time.’

munt^hu wa piili/ chihada... ‘the second man said...’

Shṭezeze maraa piili/ mara ya isa/ chi’ahideené/ ya kuwa takhshindroowá/ itamlaazima/ kuna maayi/ ya tawala/ yotte. ‘We played (gambled) a second time, this time we promised one another that the one who will be defeated must drink all the water from the sea.’

sku ya piili ‘the next day’

sku ya piili/ fijiri/ na mapeema ‘early on the morning of the next day’

Wachisaafira/ sku ya kaandra/ sku ya piili/ sku ya taatu/ sku yaane/ haṭá/ sku ya ikumi. ‘They travelled the first day, the second day, the third day, the fourth day, until the tenth day.’

pilpili

n. hot pepper; variant form: pilipili

Khupashilo waandá/ simpaké/ pilpili. ‘One who applies eye-makeup to you, don’t apply pepper to him.’ (A proverb.)

kaaka/ kana/ pilipili ‘to burn like peppers’

Masku/ mawili/ skulaala/ isa/ maato/ yanakunaaka/ kana/ pilipili. ‘For two nights I have not slept, now my eyes are burning me like chili peppers.’

Maato/ yanakunaaka/ kana/ pilipili. ‘My eyes are burning me like chili peppers.’

Maato/ yanakunaaka/ kana/ pilipili/ usiinzi/ la’aani. ‘My eyes are burning me because of lack of sleep.’

mkali/ kana/ pilpili ‘hot, sharp as hot peppers’

Wana awo/ wo/ wakali/ kana/ pilipili. ‘Those children, they are hot like chili peppers (i.e. they are quick to anger, impatient, etc.).’

piima

n. [Sw. pima]

kh-piima

v. [Sw. pima SSED 378] (pimiile) weigh, measure, evaluate, judge

Abunawaasi/ shfaanya/ jis'iyoy/ mara thalaathiini/ kama muunt^hu/ nakhpimo peesá. 'Abunawaasi did that way thirty times, like a man who was weighing coins.'

Ali/ pimile suukari. 'Ali measured sugar.'

Baana/ nakhpimaa gele. 'Baana is weighing maize.'

Chimaliza/ shtalaa chisu/ chimwambila mzeele/ kalaant^ha/ mi/ khuṭiinde/ kuulu/ iyi/ ya piili/ mp^hate khpiima/ kulu iyi/ na yaa mi/ nakhulipiló. 'After that he took a knife and told the old man: sit so that I may cut off this second leg so that I can measure this leg against the one that I am going to repay you.'

Saarto/ mpimile mwaana/ nguwo. 'The tailor measured the child for clothes.'

Spimeeni. 'You (pl.) don't weigh it!'

rel.

kh-pimiloowa v. appl. pass. (pimiliila)

mukhtaa wo/ wapimiliila/ zoombá/ zaa kujá/ nt^hasaa wo/ khfunga mizigo yaawo 'when they had the items of food weighed for them before they packed up their bags' need to review for accent

kh-pimila v. appl. (pimiliile)

kh-pimisha v. caus.

Sudo/ mpimishize mwaana/ suukari. 'Sudo had the child measure the sugar.'

kh-pimishiliza v. caus. appl.

Ali mpimishilize Bay/ mwaana/ suukari. 'Ali had Bay's child measure the sugar.'

kh-pimishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Bay/ na Sudó/ wapimishilizenye waana/ suukari. 'Bay and Sudo had one another's children measure sugar.'

kh-pimoowa v. pass. (pimiila)

Inakhpimoowa/ na masarmala/ inakulanga^oowa/ inakandikowa apa/ nt^haku/ nt^hanakhtaambula. 'There was measuring by carpenters (of the poles, trying to see if there was any difference between the two poles), there was being carefully observed, there was being put here, but no result, he (the sultan) could not see any difference.'

ka ḍahabu mashuungiye khpimoowa [st.] 'with gold its hair is weighed (i.e. gold is used as the weight against which the hair is balanced)'

Omari/ nakhpimowa surwaani. 'Omari is being measured for trousers.'

Sultaani/ shkuumbuka/ kuwaa ye/ masku/ yapisiló/ kasize peesa/ niingi/ zinakhpimoowa. 'The sultan remembered that during the night that had passed he heard many coins being measured.'

rel. nom.

m-piimo n.3 act of measuring

m-piima

n. (cf. kh-piima) a unit of measure for length, taken across a person's body with arms outstretched, and equivalent to the distance between his right middle finger and his left middle finger; sub-measures of mpiima are: taaka, the distance from tip of middle finger across extended hand to tip of thumb; and manda, width of one finger; these measures were used esp. by women in connection with the sizes of makoofiya (skullcaps), but mpiima was also a nautical measure review is this mp^hiima

sh-piimo

used to measure with

n. a unit of measurement; the act of weighing, measuring; measurement, estimation; s.t.

Kaazi/ isho shpiimo/ mwiishowe/ hulanya waant^hu. 'Work without measure its end is people fighting.' (A proverb.)

Pela maali/ pashpo shpiimo. 'He was given wealth without measure.'

kh-piindra

v. [Sw. pinza SSED 380; pinga SSED 378] (piinzile) oppose, contradict hamraashi ḍaalimu illa humpiindra [st.] 'he does not follow a wrongdoer but opposes him'

Omari/ mkali/ khpiindra. 'Omari is an expert (lit. sharp) in opposing, denying.'

- Simp^hiindré. ‘Don’t oppose me!’
- Suufi/ mpinzile Abooke/ kooði. ‘Suufi contradicted what Abooke said.’
rel.
- kh-piindrana* v. rec. (-pindreene) contradict one another
- kh-piindrika* v. p/s. be contradictable
- Hapiindriki. ‘He cannot be contradicted (e.g. without getting angry).’
- kh-piindrila* v. appl.
- Nt^haná/ ushuja’a waa ye/ khpindrilo waant^hú. ‘He does not have the courage for him to contradict people.’
- kh-piindrisha* v. caus.
- kh-pindrishana* v. caus. rec.
- kh-pindrishika* v. caus. p/s.
- kh-pindrishiliza* v. caus. appl.
- kh-pindrishilizanya* v. caus. appl. rec.
- Ji/ na Alí/ wapindrishilizenye waana/ mwaalimu. ‘Ji and Ali caused one another’s children to contradict the teacher.’(The beneficiary is expressed in the verb by the reciprocal extension.)
- kh-pindroowa* v. pass. (piinzila)
- Mtume Mhamadi/ piinzila/ na Abu Jahali. ‘Prophet Mohammad was opposed by Abu Jahali.’
- rel. nom.
- m-piindra* (wa-) n. 1/2 one who contradicts
- mpindra waant^hu ‘one who contradicts people’
- ma-pindrano* n. 6 act of contradicting one another
- u-piindrano* n. 14 act of contradicting one another
- ma-piindro* n.6 act of contradicting someone
- u-piindro* n. 14 act of contradicting someone
- m-pindraani* (wa-) adj. (of human beings) contradictory
- want^hu wapindraani ‘contradictory people’
- m-piindri n. [pron. mp^hiindri]
- Mi/ mp^hiindri yaa mi/ nch^hifa/ usultaani/ natawalishowa mwaana/ uyu. ‘At the time when I die, this boy should be installed as sultan.’
- Weenza/ ni weenza/ mp^hiindri/ yaa we/ chidekheka naawo. ‘Friends are friends as long as you are not dependent on them.’
- sh-piindri* n. [Sw. kipindi SSED 378] mid-day, noon
- Kharibu ya shpiindri/ chiwona alaama/ za muuyi. ‘Around noon he saw signs of a town.’
- khsala shpiindri ‘to say the noon prayers’
- Mi/ hubadilika luumbo/ ku^lla shpindri cha wakhtⁱ/ shchipita. ‘I change shape when each noon passes.’
- sala ya shpiindri ‘prayer at mid-day’
- Shpiindri/ mub^li/ ile ka kaziini. ‘At noon the man came home from work.’
- l-piindro* (m-) n. 9/10 [Sw. pindo SSED 379] edge; hem (of a cloth); side; [pron. mp^hiindro ‘edges’]
- ka lpiindro ‘sideways’
- kendra ka lpiindro ‘to go sideways’
- lpindro la kub^li ‘right side’
- lpindro la kusooto ‘left side’
- lpindro laa nguwo ‘edge of a piece of cloth’
- lpindro la nuumba ‘corner of the house’
- lpindro laa wowi ‘river bank’
- Lpiindrooni/ yandishi^la/ ina/ ya waawaye. ‘At the edge (of the cloth) there was written the name of her father.’

	Simeme mp^hindrooni. ‘He stood at the corner, edge of something.’ rel. i-piindro (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. sh-piindro (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
m-piindro	adj.,n. cross-eyed, contradictory; [pron. mp^hiindro] chijana shpiindro ‘a cross-eyed child’ kulangała ka mp^hindrooni ‘to look out of the corners of one’s eyes’ mp^hindro uyu ‘this cross-eyed one’ mwana mp^hiindro ‘a cross-eyed child’ Ni munt^hu mwenye mp^hiindro. ‘He is a man who contradicts people too much.’
kh-piindraka	v. intr. [Sw. pinduka SSED 378] (-pindrushile) overturn, turn over Gaari/ ipindrushile. ‘The truck overturned.’ rel. kh-pindruliła v. tr. appl. overturn s.t. for, with kh-piindrula v. tr. overturn s.t. kh-piindrusha v. caus. (pindrushiize) turn s.t. over
kh-piinga	v. [Sw. pinga SSED 379] contradict, oppose, say no to Muunt^hu/ hampiingi/ waawaye. ‘A person should not contradict his father.’ Omari/ hupeenda/ khpinga waant^hu. ‘Omari likes to contradict people.’ rel. kh-piingika v. p/s. Omari/ hapiingiki. ‘Omari cannot be contradicted (i.e. he cannot easily be contradicted).’ kh-piingila v. appl. Hamadi/ nt^haná/ sababu ya kumpingila Omari. ‘Hamadi does not have a reason to contradict Omari.’ kh-pingoowa v. pass. be contradicted Maałimu/ siwo/ suura/ khpingoowa. ‘It is not good for a teacher to be contradicted.’ Mzeele/ siwo/ suura/ khpingoowa. ‘It is not good to contradict an old man.’
ł-piingo (m-piingo)	n. 11/10 rim; [pron. mp^hiingo] (Not a word known to GM.) rel. i-piingo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. sh-piingo (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
m-piingo (mi-)	n. 3/4 [Sw. mpingo SSED 297] ebony tree (Not a word known to GM.) mlusi/ kama mpiingo ‘someone as black as ebony’ nyulusi/ kana mpiingo ‘something as black as ebony’
m-piingu	n. 9/10 [Sw. pingu SSED 380] a steel chain, particularly with reference to a chain used to arrest or imprison someone (in reference to former practice of chaining people up); [pron. mp^hiingu] Chimwambila kumletela mp^hiingu/ na khpalá. ‘He told him to bring to him chains and a padlock.’ khfungula mp^hiingu ‘to unchain’ khřinda mp^hiingu ‘to cut the chain (i.e. unchain)’ khtilowa mp^hiingu ‘to be put in chains’ We/ husułoowa/ khtilowa mp^hiingu. ‘You ought to be chained up.’ khtila mp^hiingu ‘to put in chains’

kubiga mp^hiingu ‘to chain up, handcuff, tie up’; also: hubigowa mp^hiingu

Muunt^hu/ mwiizi/ askari/ chimshiika/ hubigowa mp^hiingu/ mp^hiingu(=z-e). ‘A person, a thief, if the police arrest him, he is handcuffed.’

Mwiizi/ shiishiila/ bishiila mp^hiingu/ tila habaasa. ‘The thief was caught, handcuffed, and jailed.’

Omari/ mwaanawe/ chiwooni/ bishiila mp^hiingu/ fuunzila/ ka khisa/ waliko zimiile/ chi-woo=ni. ‘Omari’s son at religious school was handcuffed, he was tied up, because he ran away (lit. hid) from school.’

kumbiga mp^hiingu ‘to chain him’ kumbigila mp^hiingu/ ya mkono ‘to chain his hand’ kumfunga ka mp^hiingu ‘to lock him with a chain’ kumfunga mp^hiingu/ ya kuulu ‘to chain his leg’

kumtila mp^hiingu ‘to put him in chains’ mp^hiingu chigobe ‘a short chain’ mp^hiingu iyi ‘this chain’; mp^hiingu izi ‘these chains’ mp^hiingu ndre ‘a long chain’ mp^hiingu ya chuuma ‘iron chain’

Teena/ chiwa mwaana/ uyu/ nakineenza/ amri/ za dowla/ naayé/ umo mp^hiinguuni. ‘Then it became that this boy was conducting the affairs of government while he was in chains.’

Waziiri/ leselopo mp^hiingú/ mwaana/ chimwaambila/ nfunga mikono/na mülü/ ka mp^hiingu izi. ‘When the minister brought the chain, the boy told him: tie my arms and legs with these chains.’

rel.

i-piingu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ipingu ikulu ‘a big chain’

sh-piingu (s-) n. handcuff kubiga shpiingu ‘to handcuff’

Sultaani/ shkumanganya askarii miya/ chiwa’ambila/ kendra ka baduwi/ kumshiika/ kumbiga spiinguze/ na kuya naayé/ ye/ na waant^h ú/ wotte/ wamo kaaké. ‘The sultan gathered one hundred soldiers and told them to go to the nomad to arrest him and handcuff him and to come with him and all the people at his place.’

shpingu chihaba ‘a small chain’

pinichiliina

n. [Ital. penicillina] penicillin

Pinichiliina/ nii dawa/ ya ziloondra. ‘Penicillin is a cure for syphyllis.’

piinsa

n. 9/10 pincer, pliers

Piinsa/ mp^hotolele musmaari. ‘Pliers, I used them to bend the nail.’ (MI disfavored topicalizing the logical object in the instrumental applied construction: ?Musmaari/ mp^hotelele piinsá. In order to topicalize the logical object, he preferred to use the basic verb: Musmaari/ mp^hotele ka piinsá. ‘The nail, I bent it with the pliers.’)

rel.

i-piinsa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

sh-piinsa (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

m-pinyi (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. pini SSED 380] handle (of a knife or tool)

Chisu/ chivundishile mpinyi. ‘[Lit.] the knife is broken handle.’

Chisu/ mpinyiwe/ uvundishile. ‘The knife, its handle broke.’ (It is dubious whether one could say Chisu/ uvundishile mpinyiwe. It is also not possible to say: Mpinyiwe/ uvundishile chisu.)

Mpinyi waa chisu/ uvundishile. ‘The handle of the knife broke.’

Shishile mpinyi. ‘He grasped the handle.’

rel.

i-pinyi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-pinyi (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

sh-piipa (s-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. pipa SSED 380] tin container used for storing paraffin, oil Bigileene/ kana shpiipa. ‘He is as compact (short, strong, solid) as a tin storage drum.’
Chiruuda/ ba/ khtala shpipa cha mafta/ oyo maashe/ nt^haako/ na shpiipaché/ cha maftá. ‘When she returned to take the tin of oil, that blind person was not there, and the tin of oil as well (was not there).’
Miimbaye/ kana shpiipa. ‘His stomach is large like a tin storage container.’
shpipa cha mafta ‘storage container for oil’ shpipa cha maayi ‘storage container for water’ shpipa chihaba ‘a small container tin’

rel.

i-piipa (mi-) n. aug.
ipipa ikulu ‘a big storage tin’

m-piira (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mpira SSED 297] rubber, rubber ball (and other objects made of rubber), soccer ball, soccer (the game)

khshika mpiira ‘to catch a ball’ khtēza mpiira ‘to play soccer’
ye/ nakhtēzo mpiirá... ‘while he was playing soccer...’
khtila mpiira/ neefu ‘to put air in a ball, inflate a ball’ kubiga mpiira ‘to kick a ball’ Bishile mpiira. ‘He kicked the soccer ball.’
kuḷatila mpiira ‘to throw a ball’ kumbiga/ kana mpiira ‘to kick, hit him like a football – i.e. hard’

Mi/ nimbishile Hamadí/ ka maṭeké/ kana mpiira. ‘I kicked Hamadi like a ball.’ (Notice that kana mpiira is treated as outside the scope of the final accent triggered by the verb.) Or with focus on the verb: Mi/ nimbishilé/ Hamadi/ ka maṭeke/ kana mpiira. And with focus on Hamadi: Mi/ nimbishile Hamadí/ ka maṭeke/ kana mpiira. If focus is on kana mpiira, the pitch is raised on mpiira, but there is no shift of accent to the final vowel.

Omari/ mbishile Hamadi/ ka maṭeke/ kana mpiira. ‘Omari kicked Hamadi hard (like a ball).’ (In the simple yes-no question version of this sentence there is no accent shift in the verb phrase. In the exclamatory version, there is accent shift across the VP: Omari/ mbishile Hamadí/ ka maṭeké/ kana mpiirá!? Interestingly, when we elicited a version of this sentence with focus on the verb, Omari/ mbishile/ Hamadi/ ka maṭeke/ kana mpiira., the corresponding simple yes-no question still did not involve accent shift.)

mpira chihaba ‘a small ball’ mpira mkulu ‘a big ball’
Mpiira/ nakumeera. ‘The ball is rolling.’
mpira uyu ‘this ball’; mipira aya ‘these balls’ mpira (w)a aaga ‘a rubber ball’ mpira (w)a gooma ‘rubber ball’ mpira (w)a kamardaariyo ‘an inflatable, leather ball’ mpira (w)a kuulu ‘foot ball’ mpiira/ wa mayi mamulo ‘a hot water bottle’ mpira (w)a mkono ‘hand ball (a ball used with the hands)’ mpira (w)a plaastika ‘a plastic ball’
Mpiira/ utumbushile. ‘The ball is punctured.’
Mpiira/ yimo nt^huundru. ‘The ball has a hole in it.’
mpiraani ‘football stadium’
mpiirawa ‘my ball’
mpiiraya ‘my balls’

rel.

i-piira n. balloon
Bur’i/ nakuvuzila ipiira. ‘Omari is blowing up the balloon.’

i-piira (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

sh-piira (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

m-piisha

adj. 9/10 a person who brings calamities all around him, a person who whatever he does goes wrong; s.o. evil, s.o. believed to be a bad omen; s.o. cursed; [pron. mp^hiisha]

Ambaani/ uje mp^hiisha/ mwishkizize baayé/ nt^hi. ‘Probably that cursed [girl] caused her older sister to come down.’

ambiila mtume oyo muke mp^hiisha [st.] ‘the Prophet was told that this woman was evil’ munt^hu mp^hiisha ‘an evil person’ (cf. want^hu mp^hiisha ‘evil people’)

m-pishi

n. cook

Chisu cha mpishi/ chibeele. ‘The cook’s knife is lost.’

Marti/ wachiya/ mbujá/ huwo mpishi. ‘When visitors come, it is my sister who is the cook.’

his knives’

mpishi/ na chisuuché ‘a cook and his knife’; mpishi/ na zisuuzé ‘a cook and m-pisi

n. 9/10 [Sw. fisi SSED 97] hyena; [pron. mp^hisi]

Apo/ zamaani/ siimba/ mooyi/ naa mp^hisi/ na sungurá/ wawaliko weenza. ‘Once upon a time, a lion and a hyena and a rabbit were friends.’

Awa/ hawapatani/ kamaa mp^hisi. ‘These ones do not reconcile, like hyenas.’ (The hyena is characterized by the fact that members of the clan frequently fight one another.)

Huja/ kambaa mp^hisi. ‘He eats like a hyena.’

Ilee mp^hisi/ mjiile/ naa si/ nt^hachiikó. ‘A hyena came and ate him while we were not there.’

kublaa mp^hisi ‘to kill a hyena’

Mahaala ziko ngoombé/ nt^haku/ mp^hisi. ‘Where there are cows there is no hyena.’ (A proverb.)

mp^hisi chigulu ‘a limping hyena (referring to the fact that the hyena’s back legs are short)’

Omari/ nakendra kana mp^hisi chigulu. ‘Omari is walking like a limping hyena.’

Mp^hisi/ haawi/ wahali. ‘A hyena does not become a companion.’ (A proverb.)

Mp^hisi/ hujaa mbuzi/ na ngoombé. ‘Hyenas eat goats and cows.’

Mp^hisi/ mjiile. ‘The hyena ate him.’

nakhkasa mp^hisi kubiga inaye [nt.] ‘I [just] hear the hyenas mentioning them [in the context of the poem, doolari]’ (Note: Here, the Somali looters and rapists are referred to as mp^hisi. In this same poem, the Somali word for hyena is also used: hiingila weeraro huuya ka magaari [nt.] ‘the hyenas enter [the city], arriving with their [armored] cars’-- cf. weraar ‘hyenas’ DSI xxx. This word however has not actually entered Chimiini.)

Nakhtiyá/ mi/ seendré/ mp^hisi mweepe/ kamuja. ‘I am afraid lest some hyena eat him.’

Ndo/ mwaanawá/ peteeyi/ ndrevu zaa mp^hisi. ‘Come, my daughter, how did you [manage to] get the hyena’s beard?’

Nvula/ ka iwa/ mp^hisi/ huzaaló. ‘Rain with sunshine, a hyena is giving birth.’ (A saying used to refer to a situation where it is raining, but there is also sunshine. This phenomenon is rather rare, but our consultant did not know exactly why the proverb references hyenas giving birth. Perhaps it has to do with the fact that a female hyena has a large “pseudopenis” through which she urinates, copulates, and gives birth.)

Wanakujanana/ kanaa mp^hisi. ‘They are fighting one another like hyenas.’

sh-piso (s-)

n. 7/8 s.t. done, s.t. done as a surprise

v. [Sw. pita SSED 380] (pisile) pass by, pass (an examination), get through a period of time (Notice that stem-final t is mutated to s in the perfective, with the perfective extension ii then losing a mora of vowel length.)

Apo/ siimba/ chanza kubla/ kila/ hupito khariibuzé. ‘There the lion began to kill everyone who passed by him.’

Chufkujila nt^huundru/ haṭá/ ichiwa kuwaa ye/ hukhaadira/ khpita. ‘He dug a hole until he was able to pass through it (and get out).’

Hamadi/ kachiza khpita apó/ skaafe. ‘If Hamadi had not passed there, he would not have died.’

kapita imṭihaani/ Muusá ‘if he had passed the exam, Muusa’ (The final accent on the postposed subject in this example seems to be the consequence of the phenomenon noted below.)

kapitá/ imṭihaani/ Muusa ‘if he had passed the exam, Muusa’ (But it appears also possible to have a final accent on the postposed subject: kapitá/ imṭihaani/ Muusá.) kapita Muusá/ imṭihaani ‘if Muusa had passed the exam’ (Further research on this example is required. If the postposed subject Muusa is focused, then the Accentual Law of Focus would be expected to block final accent on the following complement. However, there seems to be some phenomenon that can assign final accent to the last phrase, though the attested examples seem always to be linked to a final-accent triggering verb. Further research is needed.)

kapita Tuumá/ imṭihaani ‘if Tuuma had passed the examination’ or imṭihaani/ kapitá/ Tuumá or imṭihaani/ kaapitá/ Tuuma ‘if the examination she had passed, Tuuma’ (The last example has an interesting alternative form: imṭihaani/ kaapitá/ Tuumá. The final accent on the postposed subject does not arise from its being in the scope of the final accent of the ka-tense verb.)

kapita Tuumá/ tu/ imṭihaani ‘if only Tuuma (and no one else) had passed the examination’ or imṭihaani/ kapitá/ Tuumá/ tu khpita hukumu ‘to sentence, pass judgement’

Sultaani/ uyu/ naayé/ kila shpisa/ hukumu/ hulangaḷa/ ka kublike/ chimaliza huteka/ kanmake/ hulangaḷa/ lpaandre/ la kusooto/ huḷa. ‘This king [lit. and he] whenever he passes judgement, he looks to his right and then laughs, then he looks to his left, and he cries.’

Sultaani/ walimo barzaani/ nakhpisa hukumu. ‘The king was in the audience hall passing judgement.’

khpita mbele ‘to precede, go in front’

Mubli/ nakhpita/ kendra miskitiini. ‘The man was passing by [the woman’s house] going to the mosque.’

Muusa/ kaapitá ‘if Muusa had passed...’ Or: kaapitá/ Muusa (The postposed subject in this latter example is not included in a phrase with the verb. But we did record as possible: kapita Muusá ‘if Muusa had passed...’) Muusa/ kaapita imṭihaani ‘if Muusa had passed the exam...’ (No matter what the subject prefix is, this verb tense triggers final accent.) Or: Muusa/ kaapitá/ imṭihaani (This pronunciation suggests that the Accentual Law of Focus is not necessarily applicable in this tense.

Mwiizi/ mpisile Omari. ‘The thief ran past Omari.’

na Tuumá/ kaapitá/ imṭihaani ‘if Tuuma also had passed the examination’ or imṭihaani/ na Tuumá/ kaapitá

Nnaayó/ ndala/ laakini/ chaakuja/ hachimp^hiti. ‘I am hungry but food does not pass through me.’ review

Nt^ha’ukhpita/ wakhtí. ‘Not much time passed.’

Nt^hamu/ shaka/ amri ya mojiitu/ khpita. ‘There is no doubt that whatever God has ordained will come to pass.’

Pisileeyí. ‘How did you manage to get through (some situation)?’

Shiingo/ haypiti/ chiṭa. ‘The neck does not go above the head.’ (A proverb.)
Siiimba/ pisile/ mbele/ ya nuumba/ ya sulṭaani. ‘The lion passed in front of the house of the sultan.’

Sku mooyi/ Hasani/ pisile khariibu/ ya nuumba/ ya sulṭaani. ‘One day, Hasani passed near the house of the sultan.’

Sku niingi/ spisile jis’iyi. ‘Many days passed in this way.’

Sku nt^haano/ spisile jis’iyi. ‘Five days passed this way.’

Spisile skuu nt^hatu. ‘Three days have passed.’

Spisiló/ haziruudi/ darbaṭila/ ziko mbeleyó. ‘The things that went by never come back, be prepared for the things that are ahead of you.’ (A proverb.)

Suufi/ pisile imṭihaani. ‘Suufi passed the examination.’

Sulṭaani/ walimo barzaani/ nakhpisa hukumu. ‘The king was in the audience hall passing judgement.’

Tuuma/ haṭá/ kapita imṭihaani ‘if even Tuuma had passed the exam’ or, with verb emphasis: Tuuma/ haṭá/ kaapitá/ imṭihaani, where the Accentual Law of Focus bans the final H tone triggered by the ka-tense verb from extending to the complement noun imṭihaani (GM does allow, however, Tuuma/ haṭá/ kaapitá/ imṭihaani, although the analysis of this phenomenon is not yet entirely clear.)

Tuuma/ kapita imṭihaani ‘if Tuuma had passed the examination’ or, with verb emphasis: Tuuma/ kaapitá/ imṭihaani, where the Accentual Law of Focus has blocked final accent on the nominal complement (GM accepts Tuuma/ kaapitá/ imṭihaani, though the precise analysis of this pronunciation is unclear at present.)

Upisile mwezi wa kaandra/ wa piili/ wa taatu/ mubjaana/ ujé/ ofeete.

‘The first month passed, the second, the third, (and) that young man got tired.’ review whether final accent here valid

Waliko ni Nuuru/ oyo mwaḷimu wa mwaanawá/ mwakaa upisiló. ‘It was Nuuru who was my son’s teacher last year.’

Yapisile miyaaka/ miingi/ jis’iyi. ‘Many years passed this way.’ (Observe the postposing of the subject miyaaka ‘years’ in this example. Observe also the phrasal separation of the modifier miingi ‘many’ from the noun that it modifies.)

rel.

kh-pisa v. caus. [Sw. pisha SED 381] (pisiize) let someone pass (through); let someone pass an examination; make s.t. come out or pass successfully; get through a period of time; attain s.t., have s.t. implemented khpisaa mbele ‘to cause to pass first -- i.e. to do s.t. the first thing; to have someone precede’ khpisa haruusi ‘to make a wedding feast pass successfully (e.g. said of organizers)’

Moojá/ we/ yaako/ hupisa. ‘O God, you make pass/you attain your aims (what is in God’s mind will come to pass).’

Shpisa kulla jawaabu/ kana aqiida/ na waalí. ‘I managed to attain everything I wanted like a military commander and a governor do.’

ka nt^heendre khpisa mbele ndrúuza afḍali [st.] ‘it is better for dates to be the first thing eaten (to break fast), my brothers’ pisa mbele kusooto karka kiingila [st.] ‘first (put forward) the left (leg when) entering (a bathroom)’

Laakini/ sulṭaani/ oyo/ umo karka khpisa hukumu/ tu. ‘But that king was in the process of passing sentences only.’

Mwenyee nguvu/ mpise. ‘Let a strong man pass.’ (A proverb.)

Suufi/ mpisize mwaana/ imṭihaani. ‘Suufi let the child pass the examination.’

kh-pisanya v. caus. rec.

kh-pisanyoowa or kh-pasanyanoowa v. caus. rec. pass. archaic be caused by each other to pass kh-pisika v. caus. p/s.

kh-pisiliza v. caus. appl. (pisiliize) let pass for Mahmuudi/ mpisilize Nureeni/ mwaana/ mlangooni. ‘Mahmuudi let Nureeni’s child pass through the door.’
Nureeni/ mpisilize Suufi/ mwaana/ imtihaani. ‘Nureeni allowed Suufi’s child to pass the examination.’

kh-pisilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wapisilizenye waana/ imtihaani. ‘Nuuru and Suufi allowed one another’s children to pass the examination.’
Skuwadra/ ya Mwiini/ washiinzila/ hawa’isi/ khpisilizanya mpiira/ jisa suura. ‘The Miini team was defeated because they don’t know how to pass to each other the ball well.’

kh-pisoowa v. caus. pass. to be passed, to be completed successfully Haruusi/ ipisiiza. ‘The wedding was gone through successfully.’
Ye/ shpisowa ndraani/ shpowa mahala/ khkalaant^ha. ‘He was allowed to enter inside and he was given a place to sit down.’

kh-pitanana v. rec. (-pitaneene) pass one another kh-pitanoowa v. rec. pass. (-pitaneena) Ndilaani/ ipitaneena. [H’H] ‘On the road there was passing of one another, i.e. unspecified people passed one another on the road.’

kh-pitikila v. (-pitishile) befall kh-pitila v appl. (pitiliile) pass for; pass by someone’s place for a visit Muunt^hu/ chi’ipitila ka zaake. ‘The man went on his way.’ (Note the combination of the archaic reflexive prefix and the applied stem.)
Munt^hi oyo/ mzimawe/ uwapitilile jis’iyo. ‘The whole day passed in that way for them.’

kh-pitisha v. caus. =khpisa
kh-pitishana v. caus. rec.
kh-pitishika v. caus. p/s.
kh-pitishiliza v. caus. appl.
kh-pitishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
kh-pitoowa v. pass. (pisila) be passed; (in the impersonal passive, e.g. inakhpitoowa) going on as well as one can (despite difficulties)
Ipisila. ‘We managed to get through some situation (lit. there was passing through).’
Ipisila jisa suura. ‘It has been gotten through very well.’
Ipisilaayi. ‘How was it (some situation) gotten through.’
Ndila hupitowa kila sku/ laakini/ nt^hayna alaama. ‘A road that is passed over each day, but had no sign (that it has been passed over).’ (A riddle, the answer to which is tawala ‘sea’.)
Ndila iyi/ inakhpitoowa/ kilasku/ laakini/ nt^hayna alaama. ‘This road is being passed every day, but it has no tracks [lit. signs].’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ndila ya mweezi ‘the course of the sun or moon’.)
Omari/ pisila. ‘Omari was run past.’
Wapisila ndilaani. ‘They were passed on the road.’ Or: wapasila karkaa ndila.

-piya

adj. [Sw. -pya SSED 392] new Apo/ jaziraani/ waant^hu/ kumwona/ ni muunt^hu/ mpiya/ wachingila kumrasha ka chinume. ‘There, on the island, the people seeing that it was someone new (i.e. a stranger to the island) began to follow him from behind.’
Chendra ka oyo muke mpiya/ muke chihaba/ chimwaambila/ nakhsuulani. ‘Then he went to the new wife, the younger wife, and said to her, what do you want?’ (It is important to note that in mpiya [cl.1] new’, the m and p are separate consonants, and the vowel at the end of the preceding word in the phrase cannot lengthen because it is followed by a consonant cluster. Compare the example below, mp^hiya '[cl.9/10] car', where mp^h is a single prenasalized aspirated consonant, and the vowel that precedes it appears in a lengthened form.)

chisu shpiya 'a new knife'; zisu spiya 'new knives' fa^tuuraya/ mp^hiya 'my new car'

Hasani/ uzile fa^turaa mp^hiya. 'Hasani bought the new car.' Or: Hasani/ uzile fa^tuura/ mp^hiya. 'Hasani bought a new car'

Ku^la muunt^hu/ huvala nguwoo mp^hiya. 'Everyone wears new clothes.'

(Although putting a noun and adjective into the same phrase is often used to convey definiteness, it does not seem to be the case that such a phrasing is always a mark of definiteness. This example sentence is in the habitual tense and the noun nguwo, which is in the same phrase with the adjective mp^hiya, is obviously not definite.)

lpanga lpiya 'a new sword'

lpelo lpiya 'a new broom'

Mi/ ni mpiyá/ amó/ ni qadiimú/ karka wujuudi. 'Am I new or am I old in existence?'

Miizi/ bozele fa^turaa Omari/ mp^hiya. 'The thief stole Omari's new car.'

(Observe that fa^tura ya Omari may contract to fa^turaa Omari.) Or: Miizi/ bozele fa^turaa mp^hiya/ ya Omari. 'The thief stole the new car of Omari's.' (The simple yes-no question suggests that when the adjective is phrased with the head, nothing is out-of-focus in the verb phrase: Miizi/ bozele fa^turaa mp^hiya/ ya Omari? When the adjective modifies the associative phrase, however, the associative phrase seems to be out of focus: Miizi/ bozele fa^turaa Omari/ mp^hiya? The emphatic questions, of course, show accent shift: Miizi/ bozele fa^turaa mp^hiyá/ ya Omari!? and Miizi/ bozele fa^turaa Omari/ mp^hiyâ!?)

Miizi/ bozele fa^tura ya mukeewa/ Barka/ mp^hiya. 'The thief stole my wife Barka's new car.' (Notice that the initial element in this structure forms an associative phrase with the possessed noun fa^tuura: fa^tura (y-)a mu-kee=w-a. The noun Barka does not, of course, phrase with the following adjectival modifier since the adjective does not modify Barka but rather fa^tuura.) (The simple yes-no question version of this sentence does not involve any shift in accent, indicating that the structure mukeewa/ Barka 'my wife Barka' does not have any out-of-focus element. The exclamatory question has the usual shift of accent throughout the verb phrase: Miizi/ bozele fa^turaa mukeewá/ Barká/ mp^hiyâ!?) mp^hanga mp^hiya 'new swords'

mp^heloo mp^hiya 'new brooms'

Nimu^lile Nuurú/ gaari/ mp^hiya. 'I bought a new car for Nuuru.' (Phon.

This example is instructive with regard to accent and phrasing. The verb is a final-accent trigger and it is followed by two syntactic phrases. The second of these syntactic phrases is indefinite, and the noun is phrasally separated from the adjective in order to indicate this indefiniteness. What we see is that the final accent triggered by the verb stops at the first complement Nuuru and does not continue to the next phrase. The separation of the indefinite noun from the adjective means that it cannot be brought into the scope of the final accent. It is ill-formed to say Nimu^lile Nuurú/ gaari/ mp^hiya. However, in the noun-modifier structure immediately follows the verb, the accent does extend to the noun: Nuzile gaari/ mp^hiya. 'I bought a new car.')

Numba iyi/ (nii) mp^hiya. 'This house is new.' Or: Numba iyi/ mp^hiyá.

'It's this house that is new.' Or: Ni numba iyi/ mp^hiyá.

numbaa mp^hiya 'new house'

shtoka shpiya 'the new axe'

Uyu/ na Alí/ wachendra barzaani/ ka sultani mpiya. 'This one [the former sultan] and Ali went to the parlor of the new sultan.'

Wamó/ humletela mwaalimu/ nguwoo mp^hiya. 'Some bring to the teacher a new piece of clothing.' (It is clear in this sentence that nguwo is indefinite. Notice that the adjective is phrased with nguwo. Even though there are environments where phrasing the adjective with the noun seems to indicate definiteness, while separation indicated indefiniteness, this example shows that this pattern is by no means true for all contexts.)

Zisu/ ni spiya. ‘The knives are new.’

rel.

u-piya n. 14 newness

upiyawe ‘its newness’

-piya -piya adj. new pl.

zisu spiyaspiya ‘new knives’ (alternative to zisu spiya ‘new knives’)

kh-piya

v. [cf. Proto-Sabaki pi-* (py-) “=be burnt” N&H 604] (-piile) burn up, be on fire (Because in Swahili intervocalic glides are not written in words like pia and fua, one might ask why we write the glides in Chijiini. The answer to this question is that these glides behave like organic elements rather than merely transitional sounds triggered by successive vowels. The language game Chijiini supports this point of view. A word like piya ‘burn up’ has the Chijiini form [yáɸ], where the y onset in the final syllable is transposed to initial position like another onset consonant. If the y were not an actual constituent of the word, we would expect a Chijiini form like [áɸ] since the y would no longer be needed since there is not a sequence of two vowels.)

Haaji/ mkono/ umpiile. ‘Haaji’s hand got burned.’

Haaji/ pile mkono. ‘Haaji burned his hand.’

Nt^hile mandra gani/ kapiya mkonó. ‘What bread did I put in fire that I burn my hand?’ (A proverb.)

Numba/ ipiile. ‘The house burned up.’

Piya. ‘Burn!’ Piyaani. ‘(Pl.) burn!’

Spiyé. ‘Don’t burn!’ Spiyeeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t burn!’

rel.

kh-piisha .v. caus. (pishiize) burn s.t. (This verb cannot be used to convey the idea “cause someone to burn something”; a periphrastic construction must be used to convey this meaning.)

Abdalla/ shpowa ruksha/ khpisha numba/ iyó. ‘Abdalla was given permission to burn that house.’

Bay/ pishize lwarakha. ‘Bay burned a piece of paper.’

Haaji/ mpishize Nuuru/ mkono. ‘Haaji burned Nuuru’s hand.’

Hamadi/ pishiize/ zo/ zibuuku. ‘Hamadi burned them, the books.’ (A less preferred option would be to have the pronoun after the noun to which it refers: Hamadi/ pishiize/ zibuuku/ zo.

khpisha kanaa muḷo ‘to burn like fire (said when someone is feeling hurt over another person’s bad words or talk about him)’

Omari/ humpiisha/ jawabu ya Hamadi/ kanaa muḷo. ‘Hamadi’s words, issues etc. are burning Omari like fire – i.e. Omari is feeling the sting of these words’

Lila/ hupiisha/ laakini/ ni lila. ‘Truth burns, but it is truth.’ (A proverb.)

Mayi mamuḷo/ hayapiishi/ ipala. ‘Hot water does not burn thatch.’ (A proverb.)

muḷo wa mahabayo unakumpiisha [song] ‘the fire of my love for you is burning me up’

Muunt^hu/ impishizoo muḷó/ haṭá/ ivuye/ hutiya. ‘A person who is burned by fire, he is afraid even of its ashes.’ (A proverb.)

Naani/ hupisho ruuhuyé/ kuwaza waant^hu. ‘Who is the one who burns himself in order to light others?’ (A riddle, the answer to which is l-taambi ‘a wick’.)

Spisheeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t burn it.’

Suufi/ pishize waant^hu. ‘Suufi burned people (i.e. caused great hardship for people).’

kh-piishana v. caus. rec.

kh-piishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-pishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mpishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ chaala. ‘Nuuru burned Suufi’s child’s finger.’

kh-pishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wapishilizenye waana/ zaala. ‘Nuuru and Suufi burned one another’s children’s fingers.’

kh-pishoowa v. caus. pass. (pishiiza) be burnt by s.o. (This verb is, in addition to its general usage, may refer to a traditional medical remedy where a skilled practitioner burns the skin of the patient on the focal point of the illness, which is called in Chimiini ito ‘eye’. This kind of therapeutical burning was widely practised in Brava for a variety of ailments (vomiting, sciatica, headache, etc.) on many parts of the body (belly, wrists, soles of the feet, lower back, etc.). If the ailment was not cured, people said that the healer had not found the “ito”.)

Mafta/ yachilatilowa tawala/ na zibalaasi/ naa talá/ na shkooyá/ chivunziló/ yatomeela/ mishpa/ yashpishoowa. ‘The oil was spilled on the beach, and the jars, and lamp, and necklace [e.g. containing the snake’s bones] were broken open, and the bones were taken from it, and they were burned.’

Mayti/ haypishoowi. ‘The corpse is not cremated (burned).’ (Cremation is not practiced in Miini.)

Na kila peesa/ isurufiilá/ karkaa kujá/ naa nguwo/ ni kama peesa/ ipishiizá/ hayruudi/ ka mwenewe. ‘And each coin that has been spent on food and clothes is like money that has been burned, it does not come back to its owner.’

Numba/ ipishiiza. ‘The house was burned down (by someone).’

Yashpishoowa. ‘It (cl.6) was burned.’

kh-piyoowa v. pass. (piila)

Ipila kaa mufo. ‘There was burning by fire (i.e. burning took place).’

rel.

m-piisha (wa-) n./adj. one who burns s.t.; a person who brings calamities all around him; a person who is accompanied by things going wrong muntu mpiisha ‘a person who burns things’

m-piya (wa-) n. 1/2 one who burns

plaaatika

n. [Eng. plastic] plastic

=po

enclitic [Sw. SSED 381, which cites its use (a) “as a relative, with verb-forms generally, referring to mahala understood, (b) of place, time, or circumstances, where, when, as, if, supposing, in case”] if, when (The =po enclitic triggers relativization of the verb and the final accent associated with relativization when encliticized to the perfect stem. However, =po may be encliticized to the infinitive without triggering relativization/final accent. See examples below. It does not seem to be common to use this enclitic with a present or future or habitual verb form. One example in our text collection showed the final vowel of the present not changing to o, but with final accent. We are uncertain as to the status of this example, since our present consultant does not use the =po enclitic at all. This enclitic occurs quite often in examples constructed by MI, but is seldom heard in present-day Chimiini and is even rare in the steenzi composed at the turn of the twentieth century.)

Ali/ malizopoo kujá/ oloshole. ‘When Ali finished eating, he left.’

Chilaalapó/ sfaanye/ nkhele. ‘If he sleeps, don’t make noise!’

Chiwanapo kaazi/ simviile. ‘If he is busy, don’t call him.’

Chiwanapo peesa/ taala/ ka kaake. ‘If he has money, take it from him.’

handikapó ‘when you write’

Bakayle/ kasizopo zaa dafá/ hadiiló/ chanza khetemesha mkilawe.

‘When the hare heard what the dafa had said, it began to shake its tail.’

Ilopo Faatma/ Omari/ chimbiile. ‘When Faatma came, Omari ran away.’

Ilopo Muusa/ mi/ nchandikaa khati. ‘When Muusa came, I was writing a letter.’

Ilopo Muusa/ we/ shfaanyani. ‘When Muusa came, what were you doing?’

Ingilopo numbaani/ sultani daalimu/ chimwaambila/ mubjiwo/ndeteleele/ khabari suura/ zilazilo ka nti za wanyaasa/ na isa/ nimtumiile/ ka waawé. ‘When she entered the house, the unjust sultan said to her: your husband has brought me good news from the land of the Wanyaasa, and now I have sent him to my father.’

kila mooyi/ nimwambilopo khima ya eeló... ‘each time I told him the price of the gazelle...’

chimweegsha. ‘When he arrived [at the sultan’s royal parlor], he extended greetings and the sultan answered him and welcomed him.’

Malizopo khtinda ngoombé/ tete iyoo nama/ tinzile spandre spaandre.
‘When he finished slaughtering the cow, he took that meat and cut it into pieces.’

Malizopo kulangalá/ ishkiile/ ka mlongotiini. ‘When he finished looking, he climbed down from the mast.’

Mbeenopó/ negesheeze/ chimaliza/ mp^hele chaakuja/ na maayi. ‘When he saw me, he welcomed me, and then he gave me food and water.’
mubliwe/ muzizopo waakopi/ waaná.. ‘when her husband asked where were the children...’

Muusa/ ilopó/ mi/ nch^handikaa khati. ‘When Muusa came, I was writing a letter.’ (MI expressed some hesitation about the following sentence: ?Mi/ nch^handikaa khati/ ilopo Muusá. ‘I was writing a letter when Muusa came.’ but considered it clearly better than ??Mi/ nch^handikaa khati/ Muusa/ ilopó. More research is required with respect to =po clauses, but our current consultant, GM, does not use this construction.)

Sultaani/ kasizopo qisa za Abunawaasi/ chimwaambila/ kuwaa ye/ msameheele. ‘When the sultan heard Abunawaasi’s stories, he told him that he forgave him.’

Sultaani/ kumwona mwanaamkewe/ khadirilee kuja/ na kulawa ndilaani/ shfuraha/ nt^ho. ‘The sultan, on seeing that his daughter was able to eat and to go outside was very happy.’

uzilopo mp^huundra/ chimpaandra/ choloka naa kaake. ‘When he had bought the donkey, he mounted him and went home with him.’

Wakomelopo muyiini/ Hasiibu/ shfaanya/ jisa mweenzawe/ sultani waa noka/ ambiiló. ‘When they arrived in the town, Hasiibu did just as his friend, the sultan of snakes, told him (to do).’

Wanakhkokotapó/ ifanyizee nk^hele/ niingi. ‘While they were pulling it, it made a lot of noise.’

In the preceding examples, =po has the shape of a relative clause, in cluding final accent. The examples below do not. All these examples involve the chi conditional tense.

Chiwapo nakaandika/ mliindre/ hatá/ chimaliza. ‘If he is writing, wait for him until he finishes.’

cholokapo ‘if he goes’ ichiwapo Nuuru/ takaandika... ‘it is be the case that Nuuru writes...’

Muusa/ chiwapo/ mpe peesa. ‘If Muusa comes, give him money.’ (But the suggestion is that you do not think he will come.)

Nuuru/ chizapo/ kandikaa khati ‘if Nuuru refuses to write a letter...’

-po copular verb, but not extensively used now

Ali/ uko numbaani? La/ nt^hapo. ‘Is Ali in the house? No, he is not there.’

Apo/ndipó/ mukhtaa mi/ nanzizo khtuhumá. ‘That’s when I started to suspect.’

Chipo ilu ya meeza. ‘It’s on the table.’

Chisu/ nt^hachiipo/ mezaani. ‘The knife is not on the table.’

chiwanapo kaazi ‘if he has work/ a job, if he is busy’

Chiwanapoo luti/ simsoonge. ‘If he has (his) stick, don’t go close to him.’

Or: Chiwanalopoo luti/ simsoonge.

chiwanapo peesa ‘if he has money’

Chiwanayopo kaazi/ simdhibé. ‘If he is busy, don’t bother him.’ (The inclusion of yo seems to indicate less doubt that he is busy than Chiwanapo kaazi/ simdhibé.)

Chiwanayopo kaazi/ simviiélé. ‘If he is busy, don’t call him.’

Chiwanazopo peesa/ taala/ ka kaake. ‘If he has money, take it from him.’ (The inclusion of zo indicates less doubt that he has money than Chiwanapo peesa/ taala/ ka kaake.)

Hamadi/ upo. ‘Hamadi, how are you?’

mahaŋaa mi/ niipó ‘the place where I am’

Mwaana/ upopi. ‘Where is the child?’ Possible an swer: Mwaana/ upo sukhuuni. ‘The child is at the market.’ (It should be noted, however, that while these forms were accepted by MI, he preferred -ko to -po: Mwaana/ ukopi. ‘Where is the child?’ Mwaana/ uko sukhuuni. ‘The child is at the market.’)

Ndipó/ apa. ‘It is here.’ Ndipó/ apo. ‘It is there (near you).’ Ndipó/ apaje. ‘It is over there.’

Nipo numbaaní. ‘I am in the house.’

Upopi/ mwaana. ‘Where is the child?’ A possible answer: Upo sukhuuni. ‘He is at the market.’ Better: Ukopi/ mwaana. ‘Where is the child?’ Uko sukhuuni. ‘He is at the market.’

pooda

n. 9/10 [Eng. powder] talcum powder

poda huundru ‘red powder (=rouge)’ poda iyi ‘this powder’; poda izi ‘these powders’

poda nelpe ‘white powder’

poda ya maluungo ‘powder for the body’

poodaya ‘my powder’

poodaza ‘my powder (pl.)’ khpaka pooda ‘to put talcum powder on’

Haliima/ nakhpaka pooda/ uso. ‘Haliima is putting powder on her face.’ (The simple yes-no question involves no accent shift. The emphatic yes-no question shifts the accent in the two non-initial phrases: Haliima/ nakhpaka poodá/ usó!?)

Haliima/ nakhpaka/ pooda/ uso. ‘Haliima put powder on the face.’ (In the simple yes-no question the accent shifts on the out-of-focus complements: Haliima/ nakhpaka/ poodá/ usó? No exclamatory version of this sentence was offered, as is usual when the verb is focused.)

Mi/ nakhpaka poodá/ usó. ‘I am putting powder on (my) face.’ Or, with verb focus: Mi/ nakhpaká/ pooda/ uso.

Nimpashile Haliimá/ poodá/ usó. ‘I applied powder to Haliima’s face.’ Or: Nimpashile Haliimá/ usó/ poodá. (Notice that the variation in word order in these two examples does not signal a difference in focus: in both examples, the final accent from the verb projects to the end of the verb phrase.)

Tuuma/ mpashile Haliima/ uso/ pooda. ‘Tuuma applied powder to Haliima’s face.’

poda ya uso ‘powder for the face’ pooda/ ya waana or poda ya waana ‘children’s powder’

Tuuma/ mpashile Haliima/ uso/ pooda. ‘Tuuma applied powder to Haliima’s face.’

kh-poka

v. [Sw. poka ‘take by violence, steal away, rob (of), abduct’ SSED 383] (poshele) take away from someone by force, snatch (Note that the indirect object is necessarily human, although the logical direct object is not selectionally restricted.)

Ba’ada ya shpoka/ zoṭe/ zaa si/ shṭukiiló... ‘After they took from us everything that we were carrying...’

Laakini/ kamaa we/ chiza/ khtaambula/ ma’ana/ ya kooḍi/ za Ali/ ka aqilizo/ mi/ nt^hakhupoka kuḷa yaa we/ humiḷkó. ‘But if you do not decipher the meaning of the words of Ali with your own wits, I will take from you all that you own.’

Mposhelee muke/ mwaana. ‘He took the children from the woman.’

Mposhele mwaana/ chilozi. ‘He snatched candy from the child.’

Muke uyu/ skakhaadire/ mp^hoka badiikhiya. ‘This woman would not be able to take my melon from me.’

Mwanafuunzi/ mposhele mwaalimu/ chibuuku. ‘The student grabbed from the teacher the book.’

Nimposhelé. ‘I took it from her.’ (The verb stem poka does not allow the thing taken to be the only expressed object: Mwanafuunzi/ poshele chibuuku. ‘The student grabbed the book.’)

Shaafi/ mposhele mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘Shaafi snatched a book from the child.’ (Note that either of the objects in this sentence may be relativized: mwana wa Shaafi/ mposhelo chibuukú ‘the child whom Shaafi snatched a book from’ and chibuku cha Shaafi/ mposhelo mwaaná ‘the book that Shaafi snatched from the child’.)

rel.

kh-pokana v. rec. [Sw. pokana SSED 383] (-pokeene) steal, snatch from one another Hamadi/ na Osmaani/ wapokene ziḷoozi. ‘Hamadi and Osmaani snatched sweets from one another.’ (MI did not accept “reciprocal shift” with this verb: Hamadi/ pokene na Osmaani/ zילוּזי. ‘Hamadi snatched with Osmaani sweets.’) kh-pokanoowa v. rec. pass.

Ni zילוּזי izi/ spokena na waana. ‘It is these candies which were snatched from one another by children.’

kh-pokeka v. p/s. able to be snatched

Chילוּזי ichi/ hashpokeki/ mwaana. ‘This candy cannot be snatched from the child.’

Ji/ hapokeki/ chiint^hu. ‘Nothing can be stolen from Ji (lit. Ji cannot be stolen from anything).’

Mwana uyu/ hapokeki/ chילוּזי. ‘The child cannot have candy snatched from him (e.g. he guards it too closely).’

kh-pokela* v. appl. [This form is not in use in Chimwiini; the same holds true for Swahili, as SSED 383 notes: "Prep. not in use, as the direct form has a prepositional meaning, also, there is a verb pokea, derived from another root, poka, receive." Chimwiini also has the form pokela, see below.]

kh-poksha v. caus. (poksheeze)

Muumini/ mpoksheeze mwaalimu/ wanaashke/ waana. ‘Muumini made the teacher take the children away from the girls.’ (Syn. It is word order alone that makes it clear that the children are being taken away from the girls rather than that the girls are being taken away from the children. For this reason, it is not possible to omit wanaashke in this sentence. The resulting sentence: Muumini/ mpoksheeze mwaalimu/ waana. can only be understood as meaning that Muumini made the teacher snatch something from the children; it cannot mean that Muumini made the teacher snatch the children from someone.)

Muumini/ mpoksheeze mwaalimu/ wanaashke/ zibuuku. ‘Muumini made a teacher snatch some books from the girls.’ (Syn. In his Ph.D. thesis on Chimiini, MI discusses the issue of which of the verb complements in this sentence can be omitted either because they are identified by the context or are not necessarily specified. The noun zibuuku can be omitted, and wanaashke also; indeed both can be omitted at the same time: Muumini/ mpoksheeze mwaalimu. Because of the presence of the object prefix on the verb, mwaalimu is also omissible. If there is no object marking on the verb, then the “causee” is understood as indefinite. We can have, for instance, a sentence Muumini/ poksheeze. ‘Muumini made someone snatch something from someone.’, though this sentence would only be used in a context that identifies what was snatched (since there are no selectional restrictions on what was snatched and thus the nature of what was snatched requires context for it to be established). One can also have Muumini/ poksheeze zibuuku. ‘Muumini made someone snatch books from someone.’ One can have Muumini/ poksheeze mwaalimu/ (zibuuku). ‘Muumini made a teacher snatch (books) from someone.’ However, a sentence like Muumini/ poksheeze wanaashke. cannot be understood as meaning that Muumini made someone snatch something from the girls; it can only mean that Muumini made some girls snatch something from someone. In other words, when the verb is unmarked with an object prefix, then a single human noun after it must be interpreted as the causee, though a non-human noun is interpreted as being the thing snatched.)

kh-pokshoowa v. caus. pass. (poksheeza)

kh-pokoowa v. pass. [Sw, pokwa SSED 383]

mubli waa ye/ mposhelo muké.. ‘the man whom he took from the woman’

(The OM on the verb agrees with the indirect object and not the direct object. But in the present example, this agreement does not clarify whether the man or the woman is the indirect object since both of these nouns belong to [cl.1] and require the same OM. The most natural reading of this relative clause is one where the head is understood to be the direct object and the NP after the verb is understood to be the indirect object. Thus a sentence like muke waa ye/ mposhelo mubli... would be understood to mean ‘the woman whom he took from the man...’.

Muke/ poshela waana. ‘The woman had the children snatched from her.’ Or:

Waana/ poshela muke. (In the second sentence, the null SM on the passive verb makes it clear that muke is the subject and not waana, even though waana appears in a position usually associated with a subject. One cannot make the logical object the subject of the passive. Waana/ waposhela muke. can only mean that the woman was taken from the children, not that the children were taken from the woman.)

muke waa ye/ mposhelo waana... ‘the woman whom he took the children from...’; wana waa ye/ mposhelo waana... ‘the children whom he took from the woman...’

muke waa ye/ waposhelo waana... ‘the woman whom he took from the children...’; wana waa ye/ waposhelo muké... ‘the children from whom he took the woman...’

Mwaalimu/ poshela chibuuku/ na mwanafuunzi. ‘The teacher had a book snatched from him by the student.’

Mwaana/ posheja chiloozi. ‘The child had candy snatched from him.’ (Syn. Note that only the person snatched from can be the passive subject, not the thing snatched: Chiloozi/ shposheja mwaana. ‘Candy was snatched from the child.’)

Na killa chishindroowá/ hupokowa mwana mo. ‘And each time he was defeated, one child was taken from him.’

rel. nom.

m-poka (wa-) n. 1/2 one who snatches

kh-pokela

v. [Sw. pokea ‘(i) receive, accept, take in the hand; (ii) take in, welcome, entertain, receive as a guest; (iii) fig. accept, assent to, agree with’ SSED 383] (pokeele) (i) receive, get; (ii) take a child as it is being born (of a midwife)

khpokela rashwa ‘to receive a bribe’

khpokela salaamu ‘to return a greeting’

Mp^huundra/ shpokela salaamu/ na chimweegsha. ‘Donkey returned the greeting and welcomed him.’

Kila/ mara/ mwanaamke/ chimletela chaakuja/ Hasani/ humpokela/ na mwanaamké/ chondroka ka apó/ Hasani/ hutumba iboholi/ hichiziika/ icho chaakuja. ‘Each time the girl brings him food, Hasani takes it from her and when the girl leaves from there, Hasani digs a hole and buries that food.’

Mp^hokelee khatí. ‘I received a letter (originally this meant by hand).’

Mp^hokele mshahará. ‘I drew a salary.’

Mpokele mwaalimu/ chibuuku. ‘He received the book from the teacher.’

Mp^hokele sanduukhú. ‘I took the box (which was handed to me).’

Muke/ shpokele riwu/ naa nguwo. ‘The woman received the gifts and the clothes.’

mwaalimu wa mwanafuunzi/ pokelo chibuukú/ kaaké ‘the teacher whom the student received a book from him’

Mwanafuunzi/ pokele chibuuku/ ka mwaalimu. ‘The student received the book from the teacher.’

Mwanafuunzi/ mpokele mwaalimu/ chibuuku. ‘The student received, took from the teacher a book.’

mwanafunzi mpokelo mwaalimú/ chibuukú ‘the student who received, took from the teacher a book’

Nuuhu/ pokeele/ risaala/ ya moojé/ oloshela/ kubaligisha. ‘Noah received the message of his Lord and went to convey the Lord’s message to the people.’

Pokele chibuuku ka mwaalimu. ‘He received a/the book from the teacher.’

Shpokele mizigo wa wageeni. ‘We received the luggage of the guests.’ Or: Shpokele wageeni/ mizigo yaawó. ‘We received the guests their luggage.’

Tafaðali/ bwana sultaani/ mp^hokela feða izi/ ni zawaadi/ mi/khuletelelee we. ‘Please, Mr. Sultan, accept these coins, they are a gift, I have given them to you.’

rel.

kh-pokelela v. appl. (pokelele)

kh-pokeleloowa v. pass. [Sw. pokewa SSED 383] (pokeela)

Chibuuku/ shpokelela mwaalimu/ na mwanafuunzi. ‘The book was received from the teacher by the student.’

chibuku shpokelela mwaalimú/ na mwanafuunzi ‘the book that was received from the teacher by the student’

Mwaalimu/ pokela chibuuku/ na mwanafuunzi. ‘(From) the teacher was received a/the book by the student.’ (This passive is derived from the active Mwanafuunzi/ mpokele mwaalimu/ chibuuku. Note that one cannot say Mwaalimu/ pokela chibuuku/ kaaye/ na mwanafuunzi. In the active sentence that would correspond to this: Mwanafuunzi/ pokele chibuuku/ ka mwaalimu, the noun mwaalimu is not an argument, but rather part of a prepositional phrase. It cannot be made into the subject of a passive sentence.)

mwaalimu pokela chibuukú/ na mwanafuunzi ‘the teacher from whom the book was received by the student’

Mwaalimu/ shpokeja chibuuku/ kaake/ na mwanafunzi. ‘The teacher, a/the book was received from him by the student.’ (Note that the subject in this sentence, chibuuku, has been put in IAV position. The noun in ka mwaalimu ‘from the teacher’, is preposed to initial position, but a resumptive pronoun is left behind in kaake.)

kh-pokeleloowa v. appl. pass. [Sw. pokelelea SSED 383]

kh-pokeleka v. p/s.

kh-pokeleza v. caus. app. [Sw. pokeleza SSED 383] (pokeleeze) cause to receive for; help to deliver baby for Haliima/ mp^hokeleze mukeewa. ‘Haliima helped my wife deliver the baby.’

kh-pokelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-pokeza v. caus. [Sw. pokeza] (pokeeze) cause to receive, give to, put in the hands of; help deliver a baby, act as a midwife

Mizigo/ yapokeeza. [H!H] ‘The luggage was received.’

Wageeni/ wapokeza mizigo. [H!H] ‘The guests they were given luggage.’

Wapokeze mgeeni/ mizigoye. [H!H] ‘They gave the guest his luggage.’

(The pitch lowering in this example is very clear and we regard it as an instance of downstep, it is still worth noting that the downstep between a pre-verbal PP and a following PP initiated by the verb is typically significantly greater than in a case like this.)

Wwapokeze wageeni/ mizigo yaawo. [H!H] ‘They handed the guests their luggage.’ (With respect to the intonational pattern, the pitch drop in this example is somewhat more pronounced than in the immediately preceding example. Our suspicion is that the precise extent of downstep may be affected by the length of a phrase, with the shorter mizigoye being not quite as lowered as the longer mizigo yaawo. This is at best a hypothesis that we think would be worth pursuing in a controlled experiment with multiple speakers.)

kh-pokezanya v. caus. rec. [Sw. pokezanya SSED 383] (pokezeenye) take turns variant form: kh-pokezanyana (-pokezanyeene)

Wote/ washpokezanya kuvula maayi/ laakini/ maayi/ yazidiile/ kiingila/ ka ilu/ na nt^hiini. ‘All took turns bailing water but the water increased, entering from above and below.’

kh-pokezanyoowa v. caus. rec. pass. (i-pokezeenya) variant form: kh-pokezanyanoowa (i-pokezanyaneena)

kh-pokezeka v. caus. p/s.

kh-pokezoowa v. caus. pass. (pokeeza) be caused to receive something Mizigo/ yapokeeza. ‘The luggage was handed over.’

Wageeni/ wapokeza mizigo. ‘The guests were handed the luggage.’

rel. nom.

ma-pokelo n. 6

u-pokelo n. 14

sh-pokelo (s-) n. 7/8 that which is received

m-pokezi (wa-) n. 1/2 a midwife mpokezi khpoowa kuulu nzima afðali [st.] ‘for the midwife to be given a whole leg (of the slaughtered animal) is best’

ma-pokezo n. 6

u-pokezo n. 14

kh-pokonya

v. [Sw. pokonya SSED 383] (pokeenye) obs. take something by force

polpolo

n. [Sw. poopoo SSED 385] areca nut

Polpoloo mbili/ huguðatoowowi. ‘Two areca nuts which cross a river.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is maato ‘eyes’.)

kh-pola

v. [Sw. poa SSED 381] (pozele) get well, be cured, recover from sickness, heal; get cool, cold

Ali/ chita/ chimpozele. ‘Ali’s head hurt him.’

Ali/ ijarah/ impozele. ‘Ali’s wound healed.’ (But one can also say: Ali/ pozele ijarah. ‘[Lit.] Ali healed the wound.’)

Ali/ miimba/ impozele. ‘Ali’s stomach hurt him.’
Ali/ pozelee chitta. ‘Ali’s head hurt.’
Ali/ pozele miimba. ‘Ali’s stomach hurt.’ Or: Pozele/ Ali/ miimba. Or: Pozele miimba/ Ali.
Apo/ Aamina/ chimshika muḅliwe/ mkono/ chendra naaye/ ba’iidi/ na waant^hu/ chimwaambila/ wa’ambile/ awa waant^hu/ kuwaa mi/ nt^hakujaariba/ kumfanyiliza mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ dawa/ heendra/ ye/ kaapolá. ‘There Aamina held her husband’s hand and went with him far from people and told him: tell these people that I will try to administer medicine to the sultan’s daughter; maybe she will get well.’
Chaayi/ chinakhpola. ‘The tea is getting cold.’
Chilaala/ takhpola. ‘If you sleep, you will get better.’
Chitta/ chimpozele Ali. ‘The head, it hurt Ali.’ Or: Ali/ chitta/ chimpozele.
khpola miimba, etc. ‘to heal, get better, become cured etc.’
Ali/ chiṭa/ chimpozele. ‘Ali’s headache got better.’
Ali/ miimba/ ipozele. ‘Ali’s stomachache got better.’
Ali/ pozelee chiṭa. ‘Ali’s headache got better.’
Ali/ pozele miimba. ‘Ali’s stomachache got better.’
Kuja/ ipozele/ ^hbardi/ kana/ barafu. ‘The food became as cold as ice.’
Laakini/ mwaana/ chiza khpola/ muunt^hu/ uyu/ fanyizoo dawá/ takhtindowa chiṭaache. ‘But if the child does not recover, this man who gave him the medicine, his head will be cut off.’
Maraḍi aya/ ni makulu/ laakini/ hukhadiroowa/ khfanyilizowaa dawa/ hupola. ‘This disease is serious but it can be cured (lit. it heals).’
Maayi/ yapozele. ‘The water got cold.’
Miimba/ impozele Ali. ‘The stomach, it hurt Ali.’ Or: Ali/ miimba/ impozele. (Note that one does not say Ali/ pozeḷa na miimba. ‘Ali was pained by the stomach.’)
Nnakhtaraja napole kahimá. ‘I hope that he gets well soon.’ Cf. Nnakhtaraja khpola kahimá. ‘I hope to get well soon.’ Cf. Nnakhtaraja Baaná/ khpola kahimá. ‘I hope for Baana to get well soon.’
Sultani wa muuyi/ pozelopó/ mpeenzele/ Hasiibu/ na mfanyiize/ dakhtari/ wa muuyi. ‘When the sultan of the town recovered, he loved Hasiibu and made him the doctor of the town.’
Waanawá/ mi/ skhaadiri/ walá/ sitakhpola/ maraḍi aya. ‘My children, I am sick, nor will I recover from this sickness.’
Ye/ pozele maraḍi. ‘He recovered from his illness.’
Zijo/ spozele. ‘The zijo has cooled.’
rel.
kh-poleḷa v. appl. (poleeḷe)
Maambo/ yampoleeḷe. ‘Matters have improved for him.’
Mp^hele dawa/ khpoleḷa. ‘He gave me medicine to help me recover.’
kh-poloowa v. pass. (-pozeḷa) be recovered from Kaḍiḍo izi/ haspoloowi. ‘These fevers cannot be recovered from.’
Maraḍi ya saraṭaani/ hayapoloowi. ‘Cancer is incurable.’
Naayo/ maraḍi/ mi/ hayapoloowi. ‘I have a disease that one does not recover from.’
kh-poleza v. tr. appl. (poleeze) heal, cool with Chijamu/ poleze chaayi. ‘He used a saucer to cool the tea.’
Mp^holeze chaayi/ ka kijamu. ‘He cooled the tea for me with a saucer.’ (In Brava, a saucer is used to cool tea quickly for children.)
Mwajiitu/ namp^holeza mwaana. ‘May God heal my child for me!’ (Although MI used mwajiitu, present-day speakers use mojiitu.)
kh-polezanya v. tr. rec. (-poleezenye) Nuuru/ na Boorá/ wapolezenye waana/ ziṭa. ‘Nuuru and Boora cooled down one another’s children’s fighting.’
kh-polezoowa v. tr. pass.
Chijamu/ shpoleza chaayi. ‘A saucer was used to cool the tea.’ (Note that one cannot make chaayi the passive subject: Chaayi/ shpoleze kijamu. ‘The tea was cooled with a saucer.’ In order to have chaayi the subject, the prepositional instrumental construction must be used: Chaayi/ shpozeza ka chijamu. ‘The tea was cooled with a saucer.’) kh-poza v. [Sw. poza SSED 382] (poseeze) heal, cool, make s.t. cold, calm someone Dawa/ impozeze Ali/ ijaraha. ‘The medicine healed Ali’s wound.’

Dawa yaa we/ mpeeló/ impozeze. ‘The medicine that you gave him cured him.’

Hamadi/ ile/ mp^hozeze. ‘Hamadi came and calmed me down.’

Ikopa ya maayi/ yaa we/ mp^heeló/ imp^hozeze. ‘The glass of water that you gave me cooled me off.’ (Note that there is no passive sentence like: Mp^hozeza na ikopa ya maayi/ yaa we/ mp^heeló. ‘I was cooled off by the glass of water that you gave me.’) khpoza maandra ‘to cool bread (by opening a window, by letting it sit)’

khpoza khalbi ‘to comfort’

Ile/ mp^hozeze khalbi. ‘He came and comforted me.’

Mwanaamke/ oyo/ fanyiliza dawa/ na madakhtari wiingi/ na nt^hakhpola/ na wont^hé/ wabishila mp^hanga zaawo/ ka chiza khaadira/ kumpoza mwanaamke. ‘That girl was administered medicine by many doctors and she did not get well, and all were beaten [lit. their swords] for not being able to cure the girl.’

Nishpozeze chaakujá/ napate kuja kahima. ‘I cooled off the food so that he could eat it quickly.’ (MI found it dubious to omit the verb pata from this construction: ?? Nishpozeze chaakujá/ naje kahima. ‘I cooled down the food so that he could eat it quickly.’)

Pozeze maayi. ‘He made the water cold.’

Wa^tampoza mgeeni/ mkonowe. [H’H] ‘They will heal the guest’s arm.’

we karka khalbi ijaraha kumpoza ize [song] ‘you refused to heal the wound in my heart’

kh-pozanya v. tr. rec.

kh-pozeza v. tr. p/s.

kh-pozoowa v. tr. pass. (pozeza) be made to recover; be made cold

Chaayi/ shpozeza ka chijamu. ‘The tea was cooled down using a saucer.’

Maayi/ yapozeza. ‘The water was cooled down.’

Mgeeni/ takhpozowa mkonowe/ naawo. [H!H!H] ‘The guest will have his arm healed by them.’

Nama/ ipozeza. ‘The meat has been made cold.’

rel. nom.

m-poza (wa-) n. 1/2 one who calms, heals

poliisi (Ø,ma-)

n. 9/10,6 [Sw. polisi SSED 383; Eng.] police; var. forms: piliisi, bulisiya, boliisi askari poliisi ‘policeman’

Ichiwa muunt^hu/ mwaape/ nakhsula kunkhiyaansa^ta/ tamwambila boliisi. ‘If someone tried to blackmail me I would tell the police.’

Keenya/ poliisi/ wont^he/ huja laaluushi. ‘In Kenya all police accept (lit. eat) bribes.’

Liini/ mapoliisi/ wamshishilo miizi. ‘When did the police catch the thief?’ (When the question word liini ‘when’ precedes the verb, the verb must be put into a relative clause shape.)

Majiraani/ wa’iize/ khkoða na boliisi. ‘The neighbors avoided talking to the police.’

Mapoliisi/ wamshishile mwiizi/ yana. ‘The police caught the thief yesterday.’ (There are aspects of the pronunciation that we do not indicate. For example, a time adverb such as yana is, in the neutral case, outside the focus and the pitch pattern reflects this fact. But we make no attempt to specify pitch relationships in sentences. We attempt only to specify phrasing and the features that are dependent on it, i.e. vowel length and accent. Interestingly, in the yes-no question corresponding to Mapoliisi/ wamshishile miizi/ yana, the accent on the out-of-focus yana is shifted to the final vowel: Mapoliisi/ wamshishile miizi/ yaná? ‘Did the police catch the thief yesterday?’)

Mapoliisi/ wamshishile naani/ yana. ‘Whom did the police catch yesterday?’

Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ ^fbulisiya/ wamshiishiló. ‘The man who ran away, (it is) the police who caught him.’ (The focus on bulisiya is indicated by the pseudo-relativization of the verb. The subject may be similarly raised in pitch but not focused: Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ bulisiya/ wamshiishile.

Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ shishila na mapoliisi. ‘The man who ran away was caught by the police.’

mwaalimu wa poliisi/ mshishilo mwaanawé ‘the teacher whom the police arrested his son’

Nakhtaambulá/ kuwa poliisi/ wa’ile /kahima. ‘I understand that the police came quickly.’

Poliisi/ hu’adiba wiizi/ nt^hasaa wo/ kuwapeleka mahkamaani. ‘Police torture thieves before they take them to trial.’

Poliisi/ mshishile mwana wa mwaalimu. ‘The police arrested the son of the teacher.’

Skotland/ Yaad/ na piliisi/ ba/ waamo/ karka kumeera/ muunt^hu/ amó/ waant^hu/ wa...sabibiiló/ dhibu iyí. ‘Scotland Yard and the police as well are in the process of searching for the person or persons who caused this mishap.’

kh-polomoka

v. intr. (-polomoshele) break up, break down, collapse, hurt oneself

Mwana wa Omari/ potele shkutaani/ polomoshele. ‘Omari’s child fell down from the wall and hurt himself.’

rel.

kh-polomeka v. (polomeshele)

kh-polomekoowa v. pass.

Ikuta iyo/ muunt^hu/ shpotela/ hupolomekoowa. ‘That big wall, if someone falls from it, he gets hurt.’ (In a second rendering of this sentence, GM substituted shpoteloowa for shpotela.)

kh-polomola v. tr. (polomeele) break s.t. up, down

kh-polomoleka v. tr. p/s. (polomoleshele)

Hee/ mwaana/ we/ lata/ matezo mawovu/ takhpolomoleka. ‘Hey, you child, I warn you, stop/quit playing bad games, you will be badly hurt.’

Omari/ takhsaara/ ba/ potele chidank’aani/ mzimaye/ polomoleshele. ‘Omari, no part of his body was spared, he fell from the roof, his entirety was badly hurt.’

pom

ideo.

Mfanya kaazi/ mukhta ya/ anzizo kaazi/ naazi/ spoteele/ pom pom pom! ‘When the worker began working, the coconuts fell pom pom pom!’ poombono

n. 9/10 a kind of fish; considered a low quality of fish and thus only eaten by the poorest people in Brava

rel.

i-poombono (mi-) n. a kind of fish

Ipoombono/ hayjoowi. ‘Ipoombono is not eaten.’

Leelo/ mipoombono/ miingi/ yapeeta. ‘Today a lot of mipoombono have been caught.’

Mipoombono/ hufanya chaambo. ‘Mipoombono are used as bait.’

Mipoombono/ hujoowa/ na masaakiini/ tu. ‘Mipoombono is eaten only by poor people.’

kh-pomoka

v. intr. [Sw. bomoka, pomoka SSED 38] (-pomoshele) break to pieces, come to harm

Mwaana/ we/ tahaðara/ nt^hasaa we/ khpomoka. ‘You, child, take care, before you come to harm.’

Shkoombe/ shpomoshele. ‘The cup broke.’

rel.

kh-pomokela v. appl. (-pomokeleele) break on, for Chimp^homokeleele. ‘It broke on me.’

kh-pomokoowa v. pass.

Matezo mawovu/ hupomokoowa. One gets hurt from bad games.’

kh-pomolela v. appl. (pomolelele) break s.t. on (i.e. to someone's detriment)

Ali/ mp^homolele shkoombe. 'Ali broke my cup.'

kh-pomoloowa v. tr. pass. (-pomeela) be destroyed, demolished

Nk^huta za numba iyi/ spomeela. 'The walls of this house were demolished.' (The fact that nk^huta controls the plural subject marker on the verb establishes that the head of the associative construction controls verb agreement.)

Numba iyi/ ipomelaa nk^huta. 'This house was demolished the walls.' (Cf. the ungrammaticality of Nk^huta izi/ spomeela nuumba. Also note the ungrammaticality of Numba iyi/ ipomela nk^hutaze. In this sentence, nk^huta and numba iyi do not constitute a phrasal unit. Notice that it is the singular noun nuumba which controls the subject marker on the passive verb. One does not say Nk^huta izi/ spomeela nuumba. 'These walls were demolished the house.')

Numba iyi/ nk^hutaze/ spomeela. 'This house its walls are destroyed.' (Observe that the possessed NP in this construction controls the subject marking on the passive verb. It is ungrammatical to say Numba iyi/ nk^hutaze/ ipomeela. The possessor may not be the subject in a NP NP-possessed construction. The same agreement facts hold in the NP-possessed NP construction that MI accepts: Nk^hutaze numba iyi/ spomeela. Not Nk^hutaze numba iyi/ ipomeela.)

Numba iyi/ spomela nk^hutaze. 'This house they were destroyed its walls.'

review this sentence

kh-pomola v. tr. (pomeele) break off a piece of s.t., destroy, break

Pomele nuumba. 'He destroyed the house.'

Ye/ pomele nk^huta za numba iyi. 'He demolished (the) walls of this house.' Or, with object marker on the verb: Ye/ spomele nk^huta iyi. 'He demolished the walls of this house.' (The fact that nk^huta may control a [cl.10] object marker on the verb establishes that in the associative construction, it is the head of the associative that controls agreement on the verb.)

Ye/ pomele numba iyi/ nk^hutaze. 'He destroyed this house its walls.' (MI allows an alternative construction: Ye/ pomele nk^hutaze numba iyi. 'He destroyed its walls this house.' In this construction, the possessed noun precedes the possessor and is in the same phrase with it. Our present-day consultants do not seem to be familiar with this construction. Note that in the sentence with the structure NP NP-possessive, the possessor cannot control an OM on the verb: Ye/ ipomele numba iyi/ nk^hutaze. 'He destroyed it this house the walls.' MI was uncertain whether the possessed could control an OM: ?Ye/ spomele numba iyi/ nk^hutaze. 'He destroyed them this house the walls.' He was more accepting of agreement when the structure NP-possessive NP was utilized: Ye/ spomele nk^hutaze numba iyi.) kh-pomoleka v. tr. p/s. in the negative: to be indestructible, not able to be destroyed

kh-pomolesha v. tr. caus. [this causative form does not seem to be in use, a periphrastic construction being preferred]

rel. nom.

m-pomolo n. 3

ma-pomolo n. 6

u-pomolo n. 14

pompeelmo

n. 9/10 [Ital. pompelmo] grapefruit

kh-poondra

v. [Sw. ponda SSED 384] (poonzele) pulverize (esp. coffee beans), pound (with mortar and pestle)

Abdalla/ shtomola makharba/ haba mooyi/ shpoondra/ chova ka maayi/ chimpa mwanamke hakhaadiri. 'Abdalla took out a few leaves and crushed them and mixed them with water and gave them to the girl who was sick.'

Muke/ poonzele. 'The woman pounded it.'

Zeena/ ponzelee gele. 'Zeena pounded the maize.'

rel.

kh-poondreka v. p/s. [Sw. ponddeka "(1) be crushed, beaten down, pulverized; (2) capable of being broken into pieces" SSED 384] (pondreshele) kh-pondreloowa v. appl. pass.

kh-poondrela v. appl. [Sw. pondea SSED 384] (pondreleele)

kh-poondresha v. caus. (pondresheeze)

Huseeni/ mpondresheze Zeena/ mwaana/ gele. 'Huseeni had Zeena's child pound the maize.'

kh-pondreshana v. caus. rec.

kh-pondresheka v. caus. p/s.

kh-pondresheleza v. caus. appl. (pondresheleeze)

Muusa/ mpondresheleze Nuuru/ mwaana/ gele. 'Muusa caused Nuuru's child to pound maize.'

kh-pondreshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-pondresheleezenye)

Muusa/ na Huseeni/ wapondresheleezenye waana/ gele. 'Muusa and Huseeni caused one another's children to pound maize.'

kh-pondroowa v. pass. [Sw. pondwa SSED 384] (poonzele)

rel.nom.

m-poondro n. 3 act of pounding ma-poondro n. 6 act of pounding

m-poondro

n. 9/10 [Sw. pondo "a punting pole, for pushing a boat or canoe along shallow water" SSED 384] a long pole, thin and strong, used to move a jahazi in shallow water; mangrove pole (traditionally used as beams in buildings);[pron.

mp^hoondro pl.]

wagunya wa'ile waleesele mp^hoondro (a traditional rhyme) 'the Bajunis came and brought mangrove poles'

rel.

i-poondro (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

l-poondro (m-) n. 11/10 pole (for moving the jahazi but also a pole used in building);

[pron. mp^hoondro (pl.)]

sh-poondro (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

kh-ponola

v. [Sw. ponoa SSED 384] (poneele) rub s.o.'s body with special herbs (e.g. when one marries, the married couple remains indoors for a week and invite friends to the house in the evening; at these times, one invites masseurs to come in and rub the backs of the visitors)

rel.

kh-ponolele v. appl.

rel. nom.

m-ponolo n. 3

u-ponolo n. 14

m-ponompono

n. a kind of fish; [pron. mp^honomp^hono]

porobleema

n. 9/10 problem

Iyi/ ma'anaye/ ichiwaa we/ ingile dhibuuni/ ichiwaa we/ nayo porobleemá/... 'The meaning of this is that if you get into difficulty, if you have problems...'

porobleema iyi 'this problem'; porobleema izi 'these problems' porobleemaa nk^hulu 'a big problem, big problems' porobleemayo 'your problem'

poropoganda

n.

Alí/ mtíjile Omari/ muyiini/ poropoganda/ kuwaa ye/ ni m-iizi. 'Ali circulated on Omari the charge (lit. propoganda) that he is a thief.'

l-poororo (m-)	n. 11/10 a procession, line, group, herd, flock; adv. in succession, one after the other; [pron. in pl. mp^hoororo ‘lines, groups, etc.’] lpororo la waanthu ‘a procession of people’
portageezi (ma-)	n. a Portuguese person
portakoranta	n. 9/10 electric plug, outlet
posoneero	n. [Ital.] pit hole (commonly used in Brava although there is also the Bantu word m-fuumbi) Omari/ nuumbaye/ posoneero/ ituunzilá/ ndraani/ kana/ chisima/ siwo/ itakuyelo ka himá. ‘Omari his house the pit hole is dug deep like a well, it will not get filled quickly.’
posta	n. [Sw. posta SSED 386; Eng.] post hafisa ya posta ‘post office’ khpelekaa khati/ ka posta ‘to send a letter by post’ Mpelekelele Aasha/ khati/ postaani. ‘She took a letter for Asha to the post office.’ Nt^hakhpata/ chiint^hu/ postaani. ‘He did not get anything at the post office.’
posteejo	n. a car, bus, or lorry station, where people take transport and where they arrive Mi/ nakendra postejooni/ leelo/ kumlindra mkulá/ nakuuya/ ka chitaawo. ‘I am going to the station today to wait for my brother coming by bus.’ Muunt^hu/ chendra postejooni/ ya chitaawo/ laazimu/ kuviringika/ ka Galwaani. ‘If one goes to the bus staging area, he must go around galwaani.’ Posteejo/ ya chitaawo/ zamaani/ yaliko ibanya ya Galwaani. ‘The bus station in old times was at the open area of Galwaani.’ Posteejo ya magaari/ nii kule. ‘The lorry station is far away.’
poosto	n. position, place Hamadi/ leelo/ nt^hakhsaafira/ tozele poosto/ chitaawo. ‘Hamadi did not travel today, he could not find a place in the bus.’ Mi/ nimdorsete Omari/ koloka poostoyá. ‘I chose Omari to go in my place.’
kh-potela interfere	v. [Sw. potea SSED 386] (poteele) fall; roll; be corrupted, go astray; be out of date; Chibuuku/ chikhupoteele. ‘The book fell from you – i.e. you dropped the book (but accidentally, not on purpose).’ chijiwe shpoteeló ‘the pebble that fell’ Chisu/ chimpoteele. ‘He dropped the knife (lit. the knife fell from him).’ Chiti/ shpoteele. ‘The chair fell.’ Ijiwe/ hupotela khariibu/ kooði/ hukomaa kule. ‘A stone falls nearby, talking reaches far away.’ (A saying.) iwa ishpotela ndrúza ni maghribi [st.] ‘when the sun sets, my brothers, it is [the time of] maghribi (i.e. when one can perform the maghribi prayers)’ Karkaa ye/ nakingilo numbaani/ Abdalla/ shpotelaa nt^hi/ chuuluka/ shkomela mlaango/ ka ndilaani. ‘While he [the lion] was entering the house, Abdalla fell on the ground and jumped up and locked the door from the outside.’ Khalamu/ ikhupoteele. ‘You dropped the pen (lit. the pen dropped from you).’ Khpotela iboholiini/ ni sahali/ kulawa/ nii dhibu. ‘To fall into a hole is easy, to get out is difficult.’ (A saying.) khpotela kilaa mahala/ kanaa nzi ‘to intrude everywhere like a fly (of someone who gets involved in every issue, matter)’ khpotelaa ndila ‘to lose one’s way’ maazi ya uðhiya shete shchipotela [st.] ‘if a drop of the blood of the uðhiya sacrifice falls’

Mbeené/ ijabali/ inakhpotelo iburiini. ‘I saw the rock roll(ing) down the hill.’
Mi/ kuwa ni mashghuuli/ tu/ siwo/ na pasaportayá/ ba/ ipoteele. ‘It is not only that I am too busy, but also my passport is out of date.’

Munt^hu humtumbilo iboholi/ mweenziwé/ ndiyé/ hupoteló. ‘One who digs a hole for his friend it is he who falls in.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ mara mooyi/ shpotela mayiini/ ni koowela/ tu. ‘Once a person has fallen into water, there is (nothing to do but) just swim.’ (A proverbial saying somewhat akin to the English “sink or swim”, advising that once one gets drawn into some issue, situation, one just must deal with it.)

Na kuḷa mubli/ shpoteloo ndilá/ chiyo chisiwa cha Waqwaaqi/ shfanyowa mtaana. ‘And each man who lost his way and who came to the island of Waqwaaqi was made a slave [by the women who inhabited this imaginary island].’

Sa’iidi/ ishpotela/ kaake/ khalbiini/ yaa kuwa/ wake/ awa/ watatuwe/ si/ wanaadamu/ wo/ ni majini. ‘Sa’iidi’s heart dropped (from realizing) that all these three women were not humans, they were jinns.’

Suufi/ akhili/ zimpoteele. ‘Suufi lost his head (lit. the wits fell from Suufi).’

Wakhtí/ ukhupoteele. ‘Time was lost to you – i.e. you wasted time.’

We/ kajaaribá/ sula khpotela. ‘If you had tried, you would have failed.’

Ye/ potele tawala. ‘He fell into the sea.’

Ye/ shfikira/ kumwambila waawaye/ kuwa masku/ ivumile lpepo/ kaa nguvu/ na nt^heendré/ spoteele/ mutiini. ‘He thought about telling his father that during the night the wind blew hard and the dates fell from the tree.’

rel.

kh-potelela v. appl. (potelele) fall on Chimpotelelaa nge/ mkulu. ‘A large scorpion fell on him.’

ijiwe/ inawapotelele ‘that the stone fall on them’; majiwe/ yanawapotelele ‘that the stones fall on them’

Ituundra/ imp^hotelele chiṭaani. ‘A fruit fell on my head.’

Kalaant^ha/ chizingitiini/ ilu ya mlaango/ mubliwa/ chiya/ khpita/ kingila numbaani/ mpotelele/ mlume shkosi. ‘Sit at the threshold, above the door, and when my husband comes to pass through to enter the house, drop down on him, stinging him on the neck.’

Muti/ upotelele nuumba. ‘A tree fell on the house.’

Sku mooyi/ mwanaamke/ naa ye/ kaleent^hó/ nt^hi/ nakhsuko msalá/ chimpotelela chinoka/ iluke. ‘One day while the girl was sitting on the ground plaiting a mat, a little snake fell on her.’

kh-poteleloowa v. pass.

Tawala/ ipoteela. ‘The sea was fallen (into).’

ya baatili ilateeni/ ndilaye hupoteleloowa [st.] ‘reject deception and lies, which lead to eternal damnation’ kh-poteleza v. caus. appl.

Ali/ mpoteleze Huseeni/ muti. ‘Ali felled the tree for Huseeni.’

Baana/ mpoteleze Hamadi/ mwaana. ‘Baana corrupted Hamadi’s child.’

Eelo/ chimpoteleza mwaalimu/ iwuuyu/ ichimbigaa chiṭa/ na mwaalimú/ chifa/ ka paapo/ apo. ‘The gazelle dropped a baobab on the teacher and it hit him on the head and the teacher died right then and there.’

Mp^hoteleze mwaana. ‘He corrupted my child (on me).’

Shpoteleze nuumba/ muti. ‘We caused the tree to fall on the house.’

kh-potelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-potelezoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

kh-poteza v. caus. drop s.t., abort, corrupt, spoil (This causative form cannot be used to form a causative of khpotela aqili ‘to lose one’s head’ – cf.

Harameeni/ mpoteze Suufi/ aqili. ‘Harameeni caused Suufi to lose his head.’, which is ungrammatical.)

khpoteza miimba ‘to have an abortion’

Dakhtari/ mwambile Haliima/ mimba iyi/ we/ takhpoteza. ‘The doctor told Haliima: this pregnancy, you will abort it.’

- Haliima/ poteeze/ miimba(ye). ‘Haliima had an abortion.’
khpoteza mwaana ‘to miscarry, abort a child’
Haliima/ poteze waana/ maraa mbili. [H!H!H] ‘Haliima aborted children twice.’ (Observe that there is no object marker on the verb when the object is human but indefinite.)
Muke/ shpata shuruwa/ ye/ nayo miimbá/ hupoteza mwaana. ‘If a woman gets measles while she is pregnant, she aborts the child.’
khpoteza peesa ‘to lose, squander money’
Muunt^{bu}/ khpoteza peesaze/ akhiriye/ hushalaayata. ‘For someone to squander his money, its end is to regret.’
Omar/ peesaze/ poteeze/ isa/ chiint^{bu}/ nt^{anaayo}. ‘Omari his money squandered, now he has nothing.’
- khpoteza ruuhu ‘to jump, throw oneself’
Mp^hoteze ruuhuyá/ ibirkaani. ‘I threw myself into the water tank.’ (Note that an unmarked form of ibirkaani can serve as the head of a relative clause: ibirka yaa mi/ mp^hotezo ruuhuyá ‘the water tank that I threw myself into’.)
Mp^hoteze ruuhuyá/ iboholiini. ‘I jumped into the hole; I exposed myself to troubles, difficulties (e.g. I got myself into a jam).’
Mp^hoteze ruuhuyá/ ka chidank^{haani}. ‘I jumped from the roof.’ (An unmarked form of chidank^{haani} cannot be the head of a relative clause based on this sentence: chidank^{ha} chaa mi/ mp^hotezo ruuhuyá/ (kaa cho).)
- khpoteza wakhti ‘to waste time’
Poteze wakhti. ‘You wasted time.’
khpotezoowa/ wakhti ‘time to be wasted’
Wakhti/ ni ghaali/ ha’upotezoowi. ‘Time is precious, it is not to be wasted.’
Mwaanawá/ awa/ wanakhsula khupoteza/ laakini/ haydhibi. ‘My son, these ones want to bring forth your destruction, but it does not matter.’
Ni Chimwiini/ tu/ sh-potezáz/ khpata waant^{bu}/ hawa’iisi/ noo’i/ ya koði izi/ wastaambule/ inakhkoðoowa. ‘It is just Chimwiini that has been twisted to get people not to know the meaning of these words so that they do not understand what is being said (a sentence describing Chijini, the “talking backwards” language based on Chimwiini).’
Poteze chibuukú. ‘You dropped a/the book (it could either be accidentally or on purpose).’
Uhuriya/ mwiingi/ hupoteza waant^{bu}. ‘Too much freedom spoils people.’
Ujahli/ umpoteeze. ‘Ignorance led him astray.’
Uyu/ ndiyé/ potezo iwuyú/ ije impotelele mwalimu Goosó/ chitaani/ imubleeló. ‘This is he who caused the baobab to fall, [the baobab] which fell on Teacher Gooso’s head and killed him.’

kh-potezanya v. caus. rec.

kh-potezeka v. caus. p/s.

kh-potezoowa v. caus. pass.

Yuusufu karka chisima poteza [st.] ‘Joseph was thrown in the well’

-potevu

adj. spoiled, corrupted, a wrong-doer mpotevu ‘someone corrupted, spoiled’; wapotevu ‘pl. corrupted, spoiled’

Nnamsomesha mwana mpotevú. ‘I am teaching a spoiled child.’ (Cf.

Nnamsomesha mwaaná/ mpotevu. ‘I am teaching a spoiled child.’)

u-potevu

n. wrong-doing

Diini/ ya Islaamu/ jawaabu/ za upotevu/ haykhiiri. ‘Islamic religions does not accept wrong doings.’

Nuuru/ wabarshize waanawe/ jawaabu/ za upotevu/ kana khtelega peesa/ khkoða wanaafakhi/ na jawabu zinginé/ kana izó. 'Nuuru taught his children bad things, like wasting money, telling lies and other things like those.'

-potofu

adj. bent, crooked

itundru ipotofu 'a ragged, rough, uneven hole' luti lpotofu 'a crooked stick'

munt^hu mpotofu 'a crooked or spoiled person'

Munt^hu mpotofu/ harashoowi. 'A crooked man is not followed.' (A proverb.)

mzele mpotofu 'a bent old man'

Muti/ ukorelopo ipotofú/ ha'ikhadiroowi/ khtosishoowa. 'A tree that grows up crooked is not able to be straightened.' (A proverb.)

ndila potofu 'a windy road'

Yaaquubu/ wawaye Yuusufu/ ni mooyi/ karka mitume/ watumila na mwajiitu/ keendra/ konyeza waant□u/ ndila toosani/ wanapate ki'iraasha/ na kuwa'onyeza ndila mp□otofu/ wanapate kiyeepuka. 'Jacob, Joseph's father, was one among the prophets who were sent by God to go and show people the straight path so that they might follow it and to show them the wrong path so that they might avoid it.'

kh-potoka

v. intr. (-potoshele) be bent, twisted

Muti/ upotosheló/ ha'utoshishiki. 'A tree that is bent cannot be straightened.' (A proverb.)

Muti/ ushpotoka/ ha'utoshishiki. 'When a tree is bent, it cannot be straightened.' (Variant of the preceding proverb.)

Umí/ potoshele/ ka khkolola. 'Umi bent over coughing.'

rel.

kh-potolela v. tr. appl. (potoleele)

kh-potoloowa v. tr. pass. be bent, twisted

Ni chimwiini/ tu/ shpoteelá. 'It is just Chimwiini twisted.'

kh-potola v.tr. [Sw. potoa SSED 386] (poteele) bend, twist s.t.

Ali/ mpotele mkono. 'Ali twisted his (someone else's) hand.'

Potele ruuhuye/ mkono. 'He twisted his (own) hand.'

Shaafi/ mpotele mwaana. 'Shaafi twisted the child.'

Shaafi/ potele chuuma. 'Shaafi bent the piece of iron.'

kh-potosha v. caus. (potosheeze) bend, twist s.t. (This verb is not actually a causative verb as such, but an equivalent of the transitive verb -potola.)

Baazi/ mpotosheze mwaana. 'Baazi twisted the child.' (Naturally, the periphrastic causative cannot be used here: Baazi/ mtile mwaana/ khpotoka. 'Baazi instilled in the child to be twisted.')' khpotoshaa kana 'to twist the mouth (indicating opposition, dislike, etc.)'

Muunt^hu/ wa mojiitú/ mpotosheezó/ hukhaadiri/ kumtoosisha. 'A person whom God has bent him, you cannot make him straight.' (A proverb.)

Nimptosheze Nuurú/ mkonó. 'I twisted Nuuru's arm.'

Potosheze ruuhuye/ mkono. 'He twisted his own hand.'

Wa mojiitú/ mpotosheezó/ hatosishiki. 'One who God has bent cannot be straightened.' (A proverb.)

kh-potoshana v. caus. rec.

kh-potesheka v. caus. p/s.

kh-potosheleza v. caus. appl. (potosheleeze)

Baazi/ mpotosheleze Shaafi/ mwaana. 'Baazi twisted Shaafi's child.' (Again, a periphrastic causative construction cannot be used here: Baazi/ mtijile Shaafi/ mwaana. 'Baazi instilled in Shaafi's child to be bent.')' kh-potoshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-potosheleezenye)

Baazi/ na Shaafi/ wapotosheleezenye waana. 'Baazi and Shaafi twisted one another's children.' (Once again, the periphrastic causative is not available since it is used only for indirect causation: Baazi/ na Shaafi/ watijilene waana/ khpotoka. 'Baazi and Shaafi instilled in one another's children to be bent.’

profesoore n. professor Nimene Osmari profesoore. ‘I saw Omari the professor (where the reference to “professor” contrasts him with some other Omari).’
Nimene Osmaani/ profesoore. ‘I saw Osmaani the professor.’ Or: Nimene Osmaani/ profesoore. ‘I saw Osmaani the professor.’
Nimene profesoore Osmaani. ‘I saw Professor Osmaani.’
Osmaani/ profesoore/ ingile mṭanaani. ‘Osmaani the professor entered the room.’ Or: Profesoore Osmaani/ ingile mṭanaani. ‘Professor Osmaani entered the room.’
Tuuma/ waawaye/ ni profesoore. ‘Tuuma’s father is a professor.’

pu labial sound.) ideo. (This ideophone involves sticking the tongue out while articulating the initial labial sound.)
Masheekhi/ wanakhtufila maayi/ pu pu. ‘The religious people are “spitting” in the water (while reading the Quran) pu pu.’

i-pu (ma-) n. 5/6 boil; infected wound variant form: ipu (ma-’ipu) Ipu/ itumbushile. ‘The boil broke open.’
shuumbula ipuya wo watakununsha [song] ‘if my boil breaks open, they will smell it’ Ni dhee’aani/ niingi/ Hamadi/ yanamlawó/ ipuuni. ‘A lot of secretion is coming out from Hamadi’s infected wound.’

puḷoovari n. [Eng. pullover] sweater variant form: poḷoovere
Leelo/ ni bardi/ nvete poḷooveré. ‘Today is cold, I wore a sweater.’
Omari/ vete poḷoovere/ ya laana. ‘Omari wore a silk sweater.’

m-pula n. 9/10 [Sw. pua SSED 387] nose; [mp^hula] khfinikaa mp^hula ‘to cover the nose (so as to not smell s.t. or not inhale smoke)’ khfungaa mp^hula ‘[lit.] to close the nose -- i.e. to hold the nose (so that it does not smell a bad smell)’ khkoða kaa mp^hula ‘(lit.) to speak from the nose – i.e. to speak haughtily, to be puffed up with self-importance’ Omari/ hukoða kaa mp^hula. ‘Omari speaks arrogantly.’
khshumula kaa mp^hula ‘to sneeze with the nose’ khtaḡaa mp^hula ‘to widen the nose to smell better’ khtumbulaa mp^hula ‘to pierce the nose’ kubufishaa mp^hula ‘to spray s.t. in the nose’ kufkulaa mp^hula ‘to pick the nose’ kuḷawa maazi/ mp^hula ‘to bleed from the nose’ kunaḋifishaa mp^hula ‘to clean the nose’ kununk^ha kaa mp^hula ‘to sniff, smell with the nose’ ka l^yuundo/ haṭá/ nfunzilee mp^hulá ‘with a bad smell, until I held my nose’ Mp^hula/ indremelee kana. ‘(My) nose is on (my) mouth.’ (A proverb; this is said when you are not able to tell the truth about what a person has done or said wrong, though you know the truth, because the person involved is a relative or someone you fear.)
mp^hula kana lpaanga ‘lit. a nose like a sword -- said of a thin and straight, “Arab” nose’ mp^hula/ kuḷawa mapula ‘for the nose to have mucous come out’ Omari/ inamlawa mapula/ mp^hula. ‘Mucous is coming from Omari’s nose.’
mp^hulaa ndre ‘a long nose’

- rel.
- i-pula* (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. noses
ipula ikulu ‘a big nose (of the Bantu type, not the Arab type, which is referred to as “long”); mipula mikulu ‘big noses’ ipula itawa ‘a big nose (referring to the Bantu type of nose, as opposed to the Arab ‘long’ nose) (lit. a pot nose)’
- sh-pula* (s-) n. 7/8 dim. nose shpula chihaba ‘a small nose (wher of the Bantu or Arab type)’ shpula shṭawa ‘a small (lit. pot) nose (referring to a Bantu type of nose, not the “long” Arabic nose)’
- chi-m-pule* (zi-m-) n. 7/8 nasality in speaking Omari/ ni chimpule. ‘Omari talks with nasality.’
Wo/ hukoḏa chimpule. ‘They speak with nasality.’
Wo/ ni zimpule. ‘They speak with nasality.’
- i-pule* n. someone with a big nose
Omari ipule ‘that Omari with a big nose’
- sh-pule* n.
khkoḏa shpule ‘to talk with a nasal voice’
- ma-pula* n. 6 mucous from the nose khṭomola mapula ‘to blow out mucous from the nose’ kuvuta mapula ‘to sniffle’ kh pangula mapula ‘to wipe or blow the nose’
- kh-pulula* v. (puliile) shell corn, remove kernels from the ear of corn
rel.
kh-pululila v. appl. (pululiile)
kh-pululilana v. appl. rec. shell for one another kh-puluḷoowa v. pass.
kh-pululeka v. able to be shelled
rel. nom.
m-pululo n. 3 the act of shelling
- sh-pululu* (s-) n. 7/8 [related to ?Sw. pululu (ma-) "wilderness, uninhabited country, forest" SSED 383] (i) alley; (ii) corridor, passage in a house
(i) shpululu cha Mp^haayi ‘A famous alleyway in Brava which has a bridge above it connecting houses on the two sides of the alley. This alley ends on the west side at the Mosques of Abubakari and Omari, and on the east side it leads to the square in front of the Mosques of Abdurahman and Atiq. The houses linked by the bridge probably belongḏaed to the same family of Mashariifu of Mp^haayi.’
- kh-puluzā* v. [related to ?Sw. puliza "blow with the mouth, puff -- and with an object, blow up, fill with air" SSED 388 -- cf. Eng. "be full of hot air"] talk a lot but say nothing, ramble; tell lies Nuuru/ nakhpuluzā waant^hu. ‘Nuuru tells people about his adventures etc. adding a lot of lies, embellishing on the truth.’
rel.
kh-puluzana v. tell one another stories etc.
kh-puluzoowa v. pass. (puliiza) talk in one’s sleep, be delirious Nuuru/ nakhpuluzoowa. ‘Nuuru is talking in his sleep.’
Nuuru/ puliiza. ‘Nuuru talked in his sleep.’
Nuuru/ shpuluzowa na Haawa. ‘Nuuru spoke in his sleep about Haawa.’
rel. nom.
m-puluzā (wa-) n. 1/2 one who speaks a lot, saying nothing ma-puluzo n. 6.
- m-puluzi* (wa-) adj. 1/2 talkative

Hamadi/ ni mpuluzi. ‘Hamadi is talkative.’

Wake/ wana’iwoowa/ kuwa ni wapuluzi. ‘Women are known to be talkative.’

u-puluzi

n. 14 foolish words or actions

Kalaant^ha/ mwaanawá/ laṭa/ upuluzi. ‘Stay, my son, give up this foolishness.’

Maama/ chimwambila mwaana/ kuṭa upuluziwe. ‘Mother told the boy to stop his foolish actions.’

Mubliwá/ yaa we/ nakuhadó/ nt^hayná/ ma’ana/ mi/ simpeendi/ muunt^hu/ sho kuwaa we/ ndraṭila upuluziwo. ‘My husband, what you are saying has no meaning, I do not love anyone except you, leave for me your nonsensical words.’

Sultaani/ mukhtaay/ kasizo kodi za Abunawaasi/ mtete ngoombe/ oyo/ mtiinzile/ ka khisa koonyesha/ ya kuwa koodi/ za Abunawaasi/ nza upuluzi. ‘The sultan, when he heard the words of Abunawaasi, he took that cow and slaughtered it in order to show that the words of Abunawaasi were nonsensical.’

pumaata

n. [Ital. pomata] ointment

variant form: pomaata

Haliima/ mpashile mwaanawe/ pomaata/ ipuuni. ‘Haliima put ointment on her child on the infected wound.’

-pumbaavu

adj. foolish

mpumbaavu ‘a foolish person’

We/ ni mpumbaavú/ nt^ho. ‘You are a great fool.’

m-pumu

n. asthma; [pron. mp^humu]

variant form: m-p^huume

maradi ya mp^huume ‘asthma’

kh-pumula

v. [Sw. pumua SED 388] (pumiile) rest

Apo/ wajiile/ chimaliza/ walaṭiize/ khpumula. ‘There they ate and then they lay down to rest.’

Ba’adaa ye/ khpumula/ habamó/ chilawa/ ka kaake/ chendra kumpa sultaani/ wa muuyi/ salaamu. ‘After he rested a little while, he left his place and went to greet the sultan of the town.’

Ba’adaa ye/ khpumula/ kaake/ shtukulaa khati/ choloka naayo/ ka sultaani. ‘After he rested at his place, he carried the letter and went with it to the sultan.’

Chiwona/ kuwa ni kheeri/ ye/ na farasiyé/ khpumula/ apo/ muyiini. ‘He saw that it was better for him and his horse to rest there in town.’

Kalaant^ha/ pumula/ sidhibé/ ruuhuyo/ mi/ keesho/ na mapeema/ nt^hakhuleetela/ nama/ matuuri/ mi/ naa we/ shtakisterehela. ‘Sit down, rest, don’t bother yourself, early tomorrow I will bring you fat meat and you and I will enjoy it.’

Kaa muda/ wa skuu nt^hatu/ iwele muunt^hi/ hiineendra/ na maskú/ hupumula. ‘For a period of three days it became that in the day, he walked, and at night, he rested.’

Kalent^hopo khpumulá/ kaa kule/ chiwona ziint^hu/ zelpe. ‘When he sat down to rest, in the distance he saw white things.’

Mi/ sinakhfanya chiint^hu/ maamé/ sinakhfanya yo yotte/ nk^haleent^hbé/ nnakhpumulá. ‘I am not doing anything, mother, I am not doing anything at all; I have just sat down to rest.’

Munt^hu malizo khpumulá/ anzize khfakata. ‘The man who finished resting began to run.’

Munt^hu ofeetó/ nakhpumula. ‘The man who is tired is resting.’

Nk^halen^he hosiini/ khpumula. ‘I sat in the shade to rest.’

Nt^hangú/ chuunzi/ chinakhfakata/ nt^hashkupata/ khpumula/ hatá/ sku mooyi.
‘Since it was created, it is running and never gets to rest, (not) even one day.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa ‘sun’.)

Peteeyi/ we/ khkalan^ha khpumula. ‘How can you sit down to rest?’

Pumiilopó/ shfunga safari/ kuruuda/ ka moojé. ‘After he rested, he prepared for a journey to return to his master.’

Wakh^hi uyu/ waant^hu/ hupumula. ‘At this time people rest.’

rel.

kh-pumulila v. appl. (pumulile)

kh-pumuza v. caus. allow, permit to rest

Nt^hashkuwanaayo/ wak^hi/ wa khpo^hteza/ laakini/ chiwenopo kuwa chofeeté/ mwaalimu/ shpumuuze. ‘We did not have time to waste, but when he saw that we were tired, the teacher permitted us to rest.’

kh-pum(u)zika v. (pumuzishile) breathe, pant, rest

Nakhpumuziká. ‘I am resting.’

m-pum(u)zi

n. breath, breathing, panting; [pron. mp^humuzi]

khtomola mp^humzi ‘to exhale’ kuvuta mp^humzi ‘to inhale’

Tozele mp^humzi. ‘He was out of breath.’

i-pumziko

n. rapid or difficult breathing

i-pundra ya magome

n. [lit. big donkey of the rocks] a kind of striped fish

m-puundra

n. 9/10 [Sw. punda SSED 398] donkey; [pron. mp^huundra]

Ba’ada ya kula mp^huundra ikumi/ mo/ paanzile. ‘After buying ten donkeys, one he rode.’

Bareto mp^huundrá/ hapaandri/ farasi. ‘A person accustomed to riding a donkey does not ride a horse.’ (A proverb.)

Juha/ oloshole sukhuuni/ kula mp^huundra. ‘Juha went to the market to buy a donkey.’

khfanya kaazi/ kana mp^huundra ‘to work like a donkey -- said of person who works very hard and diligently when performing material tasks (e.g. cleaning, carrying stones, etc.)’

Alí/ ha’ofati/ hufanya kaazi/ kana mp^huundra. ‘Ali does not get Tired, he works like donkey.’

kubiga mp^huundra ‘to drive donkeys’

Chimwona muunt^hu/ nakubiga mp^huundra/ mbili. ‘He saw a man driving two donkeys.’

mp^huundra mliya [cf. Sw. punda milia SSED 389] ‘zebra’

Ye/ na wamrashiizó/ wa’ineenzele/ masaafa/ hattá/ wachidirkamana/ na mp^huundra mliya. ‘He and those who followed him walked some distance until they encountered a zebra.’

mp^huundra mubli ‘a he-donkey’ mp^huundraa muke ‘a she-donkey’

Mp^huundra uyu/ siwo/ takunfanyilizo kaazi. ‘This donkey is not one who will work for me.’

mp^huundraya ‘my donkey’ (cf. mp^huundrayo ‘your donkey’, mp^huundraye ‘his or her donkey’, mp^huundra yiitu ‘our donkey’, mp^huundra yiinu ‘your (pl.)

donkey’, mp^hundra yaawo ‘their donkey’; mp^huundraza ‘my donkeys’, mp^huundrazo ‘your donkeys’, mp^huundraze ‘his or her donkeys’, mp^hundra ziitu ‘our donkeys’, mp^hundra ziinu ‘your (pl.) donkeys’, mp^hundra zaawo ‘their donkeys’) but can have cll agreement as well, correct?

Mukhta wo/ walazilo chibulooni/ mzeele/ chimpandra mp^huundra. ‘When they left the village, the old man rode the donkey.’

Uzile mp^hundra ikumi/ uziló. ‘He bought ten donkeys, that’s what he did.’

We/ ni mp^huundra. ‘You are a donkey (i.e. you are an ingrate).’

rel.

i-puundra (ma-) n. 5/4 aug. large donkey

ipuundra/ ya magome ‘a type of striped fish’

m(w)aa-mphuundra or m(w)-anamphuundra n. a small donkey sh-puundra (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

Chimaliza/ shpandra shpuundrache/ chishikaa ndila/ kendra ka sultaani. ‘Then he mounted his little donkey and took the way to go to the sultan.’

Hasani/ naayé/ shpaandra/ shpuundrache/ chiicho/ icho/ chaa ye/ panzilo maraa kaandra. ‘Hasani also rode his little donkey, the very same one that he had ridden the first time.’

spuundra/ za magome ‘[lit.] zebras of the rocks – a reef fish that is green with black stripes’

s-pundra za magome

n. [lit.] zebra of the rocks, a reef fish that is green with black stripes

m-puunga(mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mpunga SSED 298] rice

Halo nt^holokó/ haavuni/ mpuunga. ‘The one who sows beans does not harvest rice.’ (A proverb.)

ijuniya ya mpuunga ‘a sack of rice’ khpika mpuunga ‘to cook rice’

kuja mpuunga/ kaa nama ‘to eat rice with meat’ mataza ya mpuunga ‘a thin porridge made of ground rice, with sugar and cardamon added’ mkate wa mpuunga ‘a rice cake’ mpunga hufuuro ‘rice that swells (increases in size) when cooked’

Mpuunga/ ni chakuja cha masultaani/ siwo/ chakuja cha hoola. ‘Rice is food for sultans, not food for animals.’

Mpuunga/ uviviile. ‘The rice is cooked.’

mpunga wa aluraayi a kind of (bad-smelling) rice’ mpunga wa baazara ‘a kind of rice’ mpunga wa pichoori ‘a kind of rice (aromatic long grain white rice)’

mtele wa mpuunga ‘uncooked rice’

Muunt^hu/ leselo mpuungá/ ni Nuuru/ muné. ‘The person who brought rice is Nuuru’s younger brother.’ (Phon. It is not very usual to put emphasis on the relative verb, separating it from the complement, but it seems possible. The final accent goes to the end of the relative verb phrase: Muunt^hu/ leseló/ mpuungá/ ni Nuuru/ muné.)

Naamí/ neenzelé/ njiilé/ mipuunga. ‘And I went and I ate large quantities of rice.’

Omari/ huja mpuunga. ‘Omari eats rice.’

Omari/ lesele mpuunga/ numbaani. ‘Omari brought rice to the house.’ (The simple yes-no question involves no change in accent location, just Q-raising: Omari/ lesele mpuunga/ numbaani? The exclamatory yes-no question has downstep intonation and accent shift in the final two phrases: ↓Omari/ lesele mpuungá/ numbaani!?)

ye/ nakhpiko mpuungá ‘while she was cooking rice’ or ye/ nakhpikó/ mpuunga (The latter form illustrates that emphasis on the verb in the case of an adverbial relative clause construction triggers the Accentual Law of Focus;. It might appear that ALF is not obligatory, as GM also accepted ye/ nakhpikó/ mpuungá. However, more complex data involving double object constructions suggest that perhaps this unexpected final H is restricted to the last NP and does not reflect an optional suspension of ALF. See, for example, the discussion under -pikila ‘cook for’ and -wakila ‘build for’.)

zijo za mpuunga ‘cooked rice’

-puungufua

adj. short of something, incomplete miyezi mipuungufu ‘incomplete months, i.e. months of twenty-nine days’

(cf. mwezi mpuungufu ‘incomplete month’)

mpungufu wa aqli ‘someone short of intelligence’ munt^hu mpungufu wa maali ‘a person short of money’

kh-puunguka

v. [Sw. puunguka SSED 390] (pungushile) decrease, diminish, become less

Bardi/ itakhpuunguka. ‘The cold will diminish.’

Maayi/ yanakhpuunguka. ‘The water is getting less.’

Waant^huwe/ wanakhpuunguka. ‘Its people (referring in this case to Brava) are decreasing in number.’

rel.

kh-pungukiloowa v. appl. pass.

Pungukilila na peesa. ‘He became short of money (lit. he was decreased on money).’

kh-pungukila v. appl. [Sw. puunguka SSED 390] (-pungukiliile)

Ajabu/ nt^haykuwapungukila/ kumwona celo/ khkooða/ ka fasaaha.

‘They were amazed (lit. wonder was not decreased to them) to see a gazelle speak so eloquently.’

Leelo/ mi/ furaha/ hazimp^hungukili. ‘Today happiness is not missing for me.’

Maali/ yampungukiliile. ‘I was short of money.’

Maayi/ yamp^hungukiliile. ‘The water diminished/decreased (on) me.’

Mwaana/ waliko hodaari/ na akhili/ liini/ shchimpungukila. ‘The boy was clever and wits never were less with him.’

Peesa/ zimpungukiliile. ‘I was short of money.’

Peesa/ zinamp^hungukila. ‘I haven’t enough money (lit. money is less to me).’

kh-pungulila v. appl.

Nakhtiya/ jisaayi/ ye/ kendra numbaani/ nt^haná/ nt^holoko/ mooyi/nampungulilo. ‘He was afraid, there was no way that he could go home without the one bean that was missing from him.’

kh-puungula v. [Sw. pingua SSED 390] (pungiile) lessen, decrease, be less than required; be missing

Amá/ ni/ wanaadamu/ hanpuunguli/ kuwa mijiinga. ‘O, you humans, you are stupid [lit. you do not decrease to be stupid].’

Akhili/ zimpungiile. ‘He had a mental lapse (at that time).’

Chilanga/ hadiiqa/ chiwona/ kuwaa miti/ ya nt^heendre/yanakhpuungula. ‘He surveyed his garden and saw that date trees were missing.’

Chiletelowa wanaashke/ wawili/ sawasawa/ nt^haku/ ba/ nampungulo mweenziwé. ‘He was brought two girls, alike one another, no one at all has something (more or) less than the other.’

Iwa/ ipungiile. ‘The sun has decreased (i.e. it is less bright).’

- Lpepo/ lpungiile. ‘The wind has let up some.’
- Nnayo wana watatu/ mooyi/ shpuungula/ kaazi/ hayfaanyiki. ‘I have three children, (if) one is missing, the work is not able to be done.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is majiiko ‘cooking stones’.)
- Peesa/ spungile. ‘The money is not as much (as needed).’
- Peesa/ zinakhpuungula. ‘The money is not as much as needed.’
- Ulaazo/ upungiile. ‘The pain has decreased.’
- Wo/ wamereje mwaana/ nakhpuunguló. ‘They searched for the missing child.’ Or: Mwaana/ nakhpuunguló/ mereela. ‘The missing child was searched for.’
- kh-punguliza v. caus. appl. (punguliize) lower, reduce for
- Ali/ mp^hungulizee be’i. ‘Ali lowered the price for me.’
- kh-pungulizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- kh-pungulizoowa v. caus. appl. pass.
- Ali/ punguliza mshahara. ‘Ali had his salary reduced (on him).’
- kh-puunguza v. caus. [Sw. punguza SSED 390] (pungüize) take s.t. from s.t., reduce, decrease s.t.
- khpunguzaa be’i ‘to reduce the price’
- Puunguza. ‘Decrease it!’ (cf. Punguzaani. ‘(Pl.) decrease it!’)
- Punguzani peesa. ‘(Pl.) decrease the money!’
- Spunguzeení. ‘(Pl.) don’t decrease it!’
- Spunguzeení/ chaakuja. ‘(Pl.) don’t reduce the food!’
- kh-punguzany(an)a v. caus. rec. (-punguzeenye, -punguzanyeene)
- kh-punguzanyoowa v. caus. rec. pass. (-punguzeenya, -punguzanyeena)
- kh-puunguzika v. caus. p/s.
- kh-punguzoowa v. caus. pass. (-pungüiza)
- rel. nom.
- sh-puunguko n. deficit
- sh-puungulo n. reduction
- sh-puunguzo n. s.t. that reduces
- shpunguzo cha koranta ‘transformer (lit. reducer of electricity)’
- kh-punuka known to GM.) v. intr. (punushile) capsize (of a boat) (This verb was provided by MI, but is not known to GM.)
- rel.
- kh-punuŋoowa v. tr. pass.
- kh-punula v. tr. (puniile) turn (a boat) over
- rel. nom.
- m-punuko (mi-) n. capsizing (of a boat)
- m-puunzi n. [cf. Sw. pumzi SSED 388] [pron. mp^huunzi] breath variant of m-p^hum(u)zi
- kubiga mp^huunzi ‘to breathe, pant’
- Nt^haná/ mp^huunzi. ‘He has no rest.’
- i-pupa n. [Sw. pupa SSED 390] strong desire, overeagerness
- khfanya ipupa [Sw. fanya pupa SSED] ‘to be eager to do s.t.’
- khtila ipupa ‘to urge, instill in someone a strong desire to do s.t.’
- Nayo ipupa yaa kuja. ‘He has a very strong desire to eat.’
- rel.
- l-pupa n. hastiness
- kuwanayo lpupa ‘to be hasty’
- Mwenye lpupa/ hadiriki/ kuja lada. ‘A hasty person does not succeed in eating sweet things.’ (A proverb.)
- m-pupu (mi) n. 3/4 a fragrant ointment of ground herbs to which water is added; when one gets married, one invites friends to dinner and special people are hired to come and apply mpupu to the guests before dinner; after the guests shower, dinner is served
- kh-puzila v. [Sw. puzia SSED 391] be silly, foolish, talk about s.o. in a silly way

pweeke n. and adj. [see peeke] [Sw. pweke SSED 392]

Q

- qa'* ideo. [usually pron. kha']
Hamadi/ tuushile/ vundishile mkono/ kha'. 'Hamadi fell and broke (his) hand, kha''
- qa'ida* n. [Sw. kaida, kawaida SSED 180; Ar. qā'ida W 780] a regulative principle kurasha kha'ida 'to follow the recognized custom, the usual practice'
- qa'isha* v. (kha'ishiize) convince; [usu. pron. kha'isha]
Mi/ hutosha/ kuwaa mi/ hutasawara/ kuda'aa jeza/ yaa mi/ nimkha'ishizoo ye/ kichisaydaa si. 'I think I may claim the credit (lit. reward) for having convinced him to help us.'
- m-qaabala* in the phrase:
mkitabala ya (or: wa)... 'in front of, opposite to'
- qabaa'ili* (ma-) n. [Sw. kabila (ma-) SSED 163; Ar. qabā'il, plural of qabila "tribe" W 741] a man of high birth, an important man
rel.
u-qabaa'ili n. 14 high position, importance
- qabihi* adj. [Ar. qabīḥ W 737] repulsive, foul, mean; [usually pron. khabiihi]
Sheekhi/ ni muunt'u/ qabihi. 'Sheekhi is a mean person.'
- qaabila* v. [Sw. kabili SSED 164; Ar. qabila W 739-40] (khabiliile) approach someone; welcome, embrace someone; be near, close to (of death); confront, oppose, defy, be contradictory Khaadimu/ chimwaambila/ keendra/ kumkhabila waawaye/ na kumwambila jilá. 'The servant told him to go and approach his father and tell him the truth.'
Nimkhabiliile. 'I approached him.'
Khabiliile kufa. 'He was close to death.'
kumkhaabila 'to embrace someone'
Shkhabiliile/ ka ihtaraamu. 'He received us with compassion.'
rel.
qabiliila v. appl. (khabiliile)
qabiloowa v. pass.
Khasaara/ humpato mooyi/ huqabiloowa/ na qabiila/ nzimaye/ na iyi/ huleta waant'u/ pamooyi/ na huleta kpendanoowa. 'The losses that befall one [member of the tribe] are faced, dealt with by the whole tribe, and this brings people together and brings about the loving of one another.'
qabilana v. rec. (khabileene) qabilika v. p/s. be approachable qabilisha v. caus. (khabilshiize) make someone face something else
m-qabila (wa-) n. 1/2 one who faces, confronts Naani/ nakendro mkhabila baabá. 'Who is going to face the father (and tell him that his daughter wants to marry a poor man)?'
- qabiila* (∅, ma-) n. [Sw. kabila SSED 164; Ar. qabila W 741] clan, tribe; [pron. qabiila or khabiila] Khabiiilaye/ chihaba. 'His clan is small.'
Kulawanganyowa waant'u/ ka khabiila/ amá/ ka maali/ amá/ kaa nguvu/ siwo.

‘People are not (should not be) differentiated by clan nor by wealth nor by power (but rather by the level of their knowledge, as a Chimiini proverb states).’

Mfaano/ wa want^hu awa/ ni ba’aōi ya makhabiila/ hukalo n^hi ya wahiindi. ‘An example of such people is some of the tribes who live in the land of the wahiindi.’

Ni khabilaa nk^hulu. ‘It is a large clan.’

Want^hu wa qabila mooyi/ huta^lowa kuwa ni waant^hu/ as^li yaawo/ mooyi/ na wa^lazilo ka chizazi chimooyi. ‘People who belong to a single clan/ tribe, they are taken to be people with a single origin and who come from one ancestry.’

We/ hiisi/ so/ we/ kuwaa si/ khabiila/ yaa nfuye/ hash^ttukuli/ khal^bi ziitu/ mukhta^a si/ huwo chinakhsaafir^a. ‘Don’t you know that we, the tribe of monkeys, do not carry our hearts when we are traveling?’

rel.

u-qabiila n. 14

Karka faayda/ za ukhabiila/ ni kuwa want^hu wa khabila mooyi/ hiiwana/ ka ki^la amri/ wo/ husaaydana/ dhibu ya munt^hu mooyi/ wa khabiila/ ni dhibu ya wote/ na raahayé/ nda wote. ‘Some of the advantages of tribalism are that people of one tribe know one another in all matters; they help one another, the difficulty of one person in the tribe is the difficulty of all, and his happiness belongs to all.’

Uqabiila/ unaawe/ u^lazile ka wanaadamu/ wo/ wenewe/ amó/ ka mahala yingineye/ ba/ unayo faayda/ na khasaar^a. ‘Tribalism, whether it comes from human beings themselves or from some other place, has advantages and disadvantages.’

qabla

prep. [Sw. kabla (ya) SSED 164; Ar. qablan W 740] before (in time); [usu. pron. khabla]

Huseeni/ jile khabla ya Omari. ‘Huseeni ate before Omari [did].’ Or: Huseeni/ jiile/ khabla ya Omari. (The first sentence has both a simple yes-no question version, where there is only Q-raising, and an emphatic form: Huseeni/ jile khabla ya Omari!? The second example only has a simple yes-no question version in GM’s speech: Huseeni/ jiile/ khabla ya Omari? Notice that the complement to the verb undergoes Accent Shift.)

khabla ya isa ‘before now’ khabla ya kulla chiint^hu ‘before everything else’

khabla (y)a leelo ‘before today’

Khabla yaa sala/ ni laazimu/ khta^lowa uu^o. ‘Before praying it is necessary to take ablution.’

Muunt^hu/ laazima/ khfikira/ khabla yaa ye/ khfanya chiint^hu. ‘A man must think before he does something.’

Ndrazole (ka) numbaani/ khabla ya Nuuru. ‘I left the house before Nuuru.’ (This example illustrates a final-accent trigger in the verb. Cf. the default accent in:

Lazile (ka) numbaani/ khabla ya Nuuru. ‘He left the house before Nuuru.’)

Ni ’aadi/ kuzowa khpowa peesa/ khabla. ‘It is common to ask for payment in advance.’

Nile khabla ya Ali. ‘I came before Ali.’

Nile khablayé. ‘I came before him.’

Nvete haanzuyá/ mp^hiyá/ khabla kendra festaani. ‘I put on my new dress before going to the party.’

Ondroka khabla yaa ye/ kuuya. ‘Leave before he comes.’

Yuusufu/ chanza khfatisha/ mizigo/ ya mkulaze/ khabla ya mzigo/ waa muné. ‘Joseph began to inspect the bags of his older brothers before the bag of his younger brother.’

qabri (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. kaburi SSED 164; Ar. qabr W 738] grave, tomb; [usu. pron. khabri] Apo/ itunzila khabri/ nk^hulu/ nt^ho. ‘There a very large tomb was dug.’

Ba'ada/ ya skuu mbili/ sulṭaani/ chirashmana/ ye/ na mukeewé/ na waanawé/ na ahlizé/ wotte/ wachendra makhabriini. 'After two days the sultan went together, he and his wife, and his children, and his relatives, all, they went to the graveyard.'

Basi/ mukhta mayti/ huletowa makhabriini/ huṭomolowa janazaani/ ka kafani/ yoo peeke/ kutilowa khabriini. 'So, when the dead person is taken to the graveyard and taken out of the funeral bier [wrapped] only in a shroud, he is put into the grave.'

hatta mtuumba khabri ye lasila liini [nt.] 'not even the grave digger was spared -- lit. when was even the grave digger spared?'

ilmu humsaayda saahibe khabriini [st.] 'knowledge helps the one who possesses it, (even) in the grave' kamu mi nk'aleent'ho na wenye fakhari/ na wotte waweelo karka maqabri [st.] 'how many important people I sat with, and all finished in the grave'

Khabri/ inamniindra/ kilaa muunt'hu. 'The grave is waiting for every body.'

khtumba khabri 'to dig a grave'

kumzika khabriini 'to bury him in a grave'

Mart'i ziitu/ skomele khabriini. 'Our guests reached the graveyard.' (Observe that mart'i in the plural behaves as a [cl.10] noun in triggering the subject marker zi- on the verb; zi- of course is reduced to s- in front of a voiceless stop.)

Masheekhi/ na ma'aaḷimú/ ni waajiba/ kuzuroowa/ khabri zaawo/ kila mwaaka. 'Religious scholars and knowledgeable people their tombs must be visited each year.'

Mtumba khabri/ mwiishowe/ huṭumbilowaa ye. 'The gravedigger's end is that somebody will dig [his graver] for him.' (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ chilata chakujaache/ shfakata/ choloka khabriini/ ka maamaye. 'The child left her food and ran to the grave of her mother.'

nt'aangú/ leeló/ hatá/ mi/ nch'hendra khabriini 'from today until I go to my grave (i.e. all my life)'

Sku yaa saba/ mtaana/ oyo/ chufkula khabri. 'On the seventh day the servant dug up the grave.'

Sulṭaani/ na winginiwé/ wamrashiizó/ wachingila khabriini/ wachizumbizowa mtaanga. 'The sultan and the others who followed him entered the tomb and they were covered with sand.'

Uko ḷpindro la khabri. 'He is near death [lit. he is at the edge of the grave].'

Wamalizopo kuzumbiza khabri/ sulṭaani/ na khadimuzé/ wachiyolokela. 'When they finished covering the grave, the sultan and his servants went away.'

ma-qabri=ni n. graveyard makhabriini/ ka Dada Maasiti 'the graveyard of Dada Maasiti'

Makhabriini/ ka Dada Maasiti/ huzikowa mashariifu/ tu.

'Only mashariifu are buried in the graveyard of Dada Maasiti.'

Makhabriini/ ka Dada Maasiti/ ni kharibu muskiti wa Aṭiikhi/

Abdurahmaani. 'The graveyard of Dada Masiiti is near the mosque of Atiikhi Abdurahmaani.'

makhabriini/ ka Shekh Abdulkhadiri 'Shekh Abdulkhadiri's graveyard'

(This is the largest graveyard in Brava and is located in Mp'aayi. It is not restricted to any particular clan.)

Makhabriini/ ka Shekh Abdukhaadiri/ huzikowa waant'hu/

wont'he. 'All people are buried in the graveyard of Shekh Abdukhaadiri (i.e. it is not restricted to people of a certain clan, like makhabriini/ ka Dada Masiiti).'

Makhabriini/ ka Shekh Abdukhaadiri/ khariibuye/ yiko muskit' aa Shekh Khaasimu. 'The graveyard of Shekh Abdukhaadiri is near the mosque of Shekh Khaasimu.' (Note the contraction of muskiti wa to muskit' aa. This contraction of the associative particle only occurs, of course, when the associative particle is phrased with the head of the associative construction.)

makhabriini/ ka Shekh Mahmuudi 'Shekh Mahmuudi's graveyard' (A small graveyard in Brava.)

Makhabriini/ ka Shekh Mahmuudi/ huzikowa waant'hu/ haba/

tu. 'Only a few people are buried in Shekh Mahmuudi's graveyard.'

Makhabriini/ ka Shekh Mahmuudi/ ni kharibu ya Spartiwooni.

'Shekh Mahmuudi's graveyard is near the sports stadium.'

- qabuuli n. [Ar. qabūl W 740] acceptance, approval, welcome
Hamadi/ qabuuli/ kaake/ itozeela. ‘Omari, permission, from his side, is lacking.’
Omari/ zoombo/ izo/ hadile qabuuli/ takuula. ‘Omari, those things, said: (I) agree, I will buy (them).’
- qadima v. [Ar. qadama "give an advance" W 747-8] (qadimiile) give an advance
rel.
qadimisha v. caus. (qadimishiize) [in usage, this verb is the same as the simple form qadima]
- qadiimu adj. [Ar. qadīm W 749] old (in terms of time), ancient; [pron. qadiimu or khadiimu]
Mi/ ni mpiyá/ amó/ ni qadiimú/ karka wujuudi. ‘Am I new or am I old in existence?’
Mwiini/ ni muuyi/ chihaba/ laakini/ qadiimu/ nt^ho. ‘Brava is a small town, but a very old one.’
Qabiila/ ni kalima/ qaadimu/ nt^ho. ‘Tribe is a very old word.’
- l-qadiimu n. in the expression: qowli lqadiimu ‘in the previous, earlier sayings’ laakini soomu ka qowli lqadiimu/ mfuungile mayti mloombele kariimu [st.] ‘but the fasting, according to the old sayings of the Prophet, fast for the dead person and pray for him to God’
- qadira v. [Ar. qadara W 745] (of God) to destine someone; [pron. qadira or khadira] Mwajitu/ mkhadirile Nuuru/ khshiindra. ‘God destined Nuuru to win.’
rel.
qadirila v. appl. (qadiriliile) (of God) to destine someone Mwaajitu/ mkhadiriliile Nuuru/ khshiindra. ‘God destined Nuuru to win.’
Mwaajitu/ mkhadiriliile khpata maali. ‘God destined him to acquire wealth.’
Mwaajitu/ khukhadiriliile we/ khtowa maato. ‘God destined you to lose your sight.’
qadiriloowa v. appl. pass. (khadiriliila) Khshiindrake/ ikhadirila na mwaajitu. ‘His winning was destined by God.’
qadiroowa v. pass. (qadiriila) be destined Khshiindrake/ ikhadirila na mwaajitu. ‘His winning was destined by God.’
- qaadira v. [Ar. qadara W 745] (qadiriile) [pron. qaadira or khaadira] be able to, manage;
in the negative habitual (skhaadiri, hukhaadiri, hakhaadiri, etc.): be sick, ill Mzele uyú/ khadirileeyi/ kumpandra mp^huundra/ na kumlaṭa mwaaná/ chihaba uyú/ kiineendrá. ‘This old man, how could he ride the donkey and let this small child walk?’
munt^hu hakhaadiri ‘a sick person (lit. a person who is not able to do)’ Nuuru/ khadirile khshiindra. ‘Nuuru managed to win.’
rel.
qadirika v. p/s.
Koodize/ haskhadiriki. ‘His language is unintelligible; you can’t believe his words (i.e. he lies); he speaks obscenely (lit. his words cannot be estimated).’
qadirisha v. caus. (qadirishiize) enable qadiroowa v. pass. (qadiriila)
- Qadiriya .n. a Sufi order that follows Shekh Abdul Qadiri alamu ya Khadiriya ‘the flag of the Qadiriya, a Sufi order’

qadri

n. [Sw. kadiri SSED 165; Ar. qadr W 745] estimation, measure, value, amount, extent; [pron. qadri or khadri] variant form: qadari or khadari

Baaba/ ka kumtiyila khpata ijini/ shkhubaḷa/ na chimpa peesa/ khadari yaa ye/ ṭulubiiló. ‘Father, because he was afraid for him to go crazy, agreed and gave him the amount of money that he had asked for.’

Bakayle/ chimfunga miilu/ na mikonó/ chimaliza/ shtaala/ ukiiwe/ chiwuje/ ye/ mwenewe/ naa ndovú/ nakulangaló/ chimaliza/ bakayle/ shteka maayi/ qadri/ yaa ye/ suḷiiló. ‘Hare tied the legs and arms of the elephant, and then took his [own] honey and ate it himself, and while Elephant was looking, then Hare fetched the amount of water that he wanted.’

khadri gani ‘what amount?’

khadri ya ‘about, around, up to’

Khadri ya want^hu waṭaano/ wa’ile. ‘As many as five people have come.’ Or: Khadri ya want^hu waṭaano/ wa’iló. ‘(There are) as many as five people who have come.’

khfanya qadri ‘to make an estimate’

Khushikiililé/ khadari ya mwaaka/ isa/ imaliize/ basi/ oloka/ mera kaazi/ yaa we/ khfaanya/ na wanawakewo. ‘I gave you a period of time of one year, now, it is finished, so go and look for work that you can do together with your daughters.’ (Observe the absence of the first person singular subject marker ni in front of the khu object marker. The absence of the SM here does not represent a phonological process; prefixes do not elide their high vowel when they stand in front of an OM. Phonologically, we would expect nikhushikiililé. The null subject prefix that we observe here is a morphologically-conditioned variant.)

Mpeende/ muunt^hu/ ka khadri yaa ye/ takhupeendó. ‘Love him to the same extent as he loves you.’

Sultaani/ chimwambila Huseeni/ nt^hakhupa peesa/ khadri/ yaa we/ nakhsuuló. ‘The sultan told Huseeni: I will give you money in the amount that you want.’

qaaḍa

adj. [cf. Ar. qaḍā "to decide, impose as a duty" W 771] obligatory, unavoidable; of a prayer whose prescribed time has passed’ [pron. qaaḍa or khaaḍa] mowṭi ni qaaḍa ni amri ya haakimu [st.] ‘death is obligatory, it is an order of God) sala hayjuuzi shfarama kundripila/ wala qaaḍa mayṭi chifa kumsaḷila [st.] ‘it is not allowed to ask someone to pray for you at a later time, neither (is it allowed) to pray a prayer (whose time has passed) if a person (lit. a corpse) dies’

sala qaaḍa ‘perform a prayer’

qaaḍi (ma-)

n. [Sw. kadhi SSED 165; Ar. qāḍin W 772] judge; [pron. qaaḍi or khaaḍi]

Cheendra/ chimleta mwaana/ chimleetó/ wa khaaḍi. ‘He went and brought a boy, that’s who he brought, (the son) of a judge.’

Choloka ka khaaḍi/ chimwishtaka. ‘He went to a judge to sue her.’

Khaaḍi/ chimwaambila/ Safiya... ‘The judge said to Safiya...’

Makhaaḍi/ na ma’akhyaari/ wa muuyi/ wote/ sultaani/ wapele khabari/ wa mowṭi wa eelo/ na wambiile/ khfunga safari/ ka himaa hima/ kendra naaye/ ka mwanaamkewe. ‘The judges and the chieftains of the town, all, the sultan gave them the news of the the death of the gazelle and told them to prepare for a journey to go quickly with him to his daughter.’

Mwaanawá/ kanaa we nakhsuḷa kuloolá/ waako/ waana/ wa mawaziiri/ na wa maqaaḍi/ waako/ wanaashke/ wa want^hu wa mataajiri/ nini/ kumlola mwanamke uyu. ‘My son, if you want to get married, there are daughters of ministers, and of judges, there are daughters of rich men, why do you want to marry this girl?’

Sultaani/ cheendra/ kumvīla qaaḍi/ kuuya/ kumloza mwanaamke. ‘The sultan went and invited the judge to come and marry him to the girl.’

Wote/ wachiwafikhana kumtumila qaaḍi/ nt^hume/ naayé/ nawalooze.
‘All agreed to send a messenger [to bring] a judge to marry them.’

- qafasi n. 9/10 cage; [pron. qafasi or khafasi]
Hamadi/ fanyize khafasi/ ya chuuma/ kuwatīla nk^hukuze. ‘Hamadi made an iron cage to put his hens in.’
Omari/ stile ndiwa/ khafasiini. ‘Omari put pigeons in the cage.’
Omari/ uzile khafasi/ yaa nyunyi. ‘Omari bought a bird cage.’
rel.
sh-qafasi (s-) n. 7/8
Shpeleshelopo numbaani/ shfanyilize shqafasi/ natetee dhibu/ ya kichiliisha/ ka waqti. ‘When he took it [the little snake] home, he made for it a little cage, and he took the trouble to feed it on time.’
- qahira v. [Ar. qahara W 794] (qahiriile) force someone to do something Nqahirile khtomola peesa. ‘He compelled me to pay money.’
Omari/ hupeenda/ kuqahira waant^hu. ‘Omari likes to give people a hard time.’
rel.
qahirisha v.
Jawabu iyo/ inakukhahirisha waant^hu. [H!H] ‘That thing is giving people a hard time.’
- qahri n. [Ar. qahr W 794] coercion, compulsion (Ar. qahr, Wehr p. 794)
ka qahri na huuri na wana umbukhu/ kaa ndruti tayaari shchitiya bundukhu [nt.] ‘overpowered, sweating, suffocating/ ready with sticks, we were fearing guns’ Waant^hu/ wa Mwiini/ wapisile qahri/ niingi/ hera ya qahooti/ Mambasa.
‘The people of Brava endured a lot of hardship/ coercion etc. in a refugee camp in Mombasa.’
- qaja’ ideo.
Mwenye/ vuzilee luti/ qaja’. ‘Menye broke the stick, qaja’!’
- qajajaq ideo.
Omari/ jawaabu/ ka tartaibu/ ba/ hafaanyi/ kaaziye/ ni qajajaq! ‘Omari does not do things calmly, his job (i.e. his way of doing, his behavior) is hectic/rapid/unorganized.’
- qakhooti n. [Som. qaxooti "refugees" (collective noun) DSI 495] refugee; [pron. qakhooti or khakhooti] Waant^hu/ wa Mwiini/ wa’ile Ameerika/ kamba qahooti. ‘The people of Brava came to the United States as refugees.’
- qalbi n. [Ar. qalb W784] heart; [pron. qalbi or khalbi] Baaba/ chiskitika ka khalbiini. ‘Father felt sad.’
dawa ya khalbi ‘medicine for the heart’
Qur’aani/ ni dawa ya khalbi. ‘The Quran is medicine for the heart.’
Uki/ ni dawa ya khalbi. ‘Honey is medicine for the heart.’
dhibu ya khalbi ‘a heart problem’ Omari/ nayo dhibu ya khalbi. ‘Omari has a heart problem.’
hali ya khalbi ‘condition of the heart’
Hasani/ nayo maraḍi ya khalbi. ‘Hasani has heart disease.’

Hasani/ khaḷbi/ inambiga. ‘Hasani’s heart is beating hard.’ (Syn. This is a common sort of construction in Chimiini. The word order given here is the default word order and has the default intonational pattern. There are two alternative word orders that should be mentioned: Hasani/ inambiga/ khaḷbi. and Khaḷbi/ inambiga Hasani. In both of these constructions, the verb is somewhat raised in pitch and the following element is strongly lowered.)

Hasani/ khaḷbi/ imsimeeme. ‘Hasani’s heart has stopped -- i.e. he has had cardiac arrest, a heart attack.’

hinzizi ya qaḷbi ‘vessel or nerve of the heart’

Huṭomoló/ ni khaḷbi/ siwo/ uṭaajiri. ‘That which gives is the heart, not wealth.’ (A proverb.)

kangamila qaḷbi ‘to suffer, get hurt (inside one)’ katuḷowa khaḷbi ‘a heart operation (lit. cutting of the heart)’

Omari/ nakatuḷowa khaḷbi. ‘Omari is having a heart operation.’

khaḷbi/ khfakata ‘heart to run’

Khaḷbiye/ nakhfakata. ‘His heart is racing.’

khaḷbi/ khsimama ‘heart to stop’

Khaḷbi/ imsimeeme. ‘His heart stopped.’

khaḷbi noloolo ‘a soft heart (e.g. easily affected)’

khaḷbi nyulusi ‘a black heart (said of someone whose heart is not good, someone who wishes to do bad etc.)’

Khaḷbiye/ ða’iifu. ‘His heart is weak’

Khaḷbiye/ miinza. ‘His heart is dark (i.e. he is gloomy, depressed).’

Khaḷbiye/ ni furhaani. ‘His heart is happy.’

Khaḷbiye/ ni mahazuuni. ‘His heart is sad.’

Khaḷbiye/ nuumu. ‘His heart is hard (i.e. he is not kind).’

Kheeri/ kufa maato/ kama kufa khaḷbi. ‘Better to lose one’s eyes than to die in the heart.’ (A proverb.)

khfunga khaḷbi ‘to tighten the heart – i.e. to check one’s emotions’

Maamo/ fiile/ Haliima/ funga khaḷbiyo. ‘Your mother has died, Haliima, tighten your heart (do not cry etc.)’ khkoða na khaḷbi ‘to speak to oneself’

Omari/ nt^hangú/ mukeewe/ fiiló/ hukooða koði na khaḷbiye/imwingile waswaasi. ‘Omari, since his wife died, talks to himself, he has become suspicious, hesitant, uncertain.’

khsimika khaḷbi ‘to not be afraid, lift up one’s courage’

Omari/ mambile Hamadi/ simika khaḷbi/ stiyé/ buisness iyo/ingila/ faanya. ‘Omari told Hamadi: don’t be afraid, don’t be scared, that business/work/ job, go in and do it!’

Simika khaḷbiyo/ ondroka/ faanya/ kazi iyo. ‘Take courage, stand up and do that job.’

khṭufa khaḷbi ‘lit. to spit the heart – i.e. dare, have the courage to do s.t.’

Muunt^hu/ chisuḷa khfanya chiint^hu/ haṭalamitaḷami/ huṭufa khaḷbi/ mara mooyi/ hufaanya. ‘If one wants to do s.t., he does not hesitate, he finds the courage (lit. spits heart) one time and does it.’

Omari/ tufile khaḷbi/ uzile/ nuumba/ iyo/ ya Hamadi. ‘Omari has dared, he has bought that house of Hamadi’s.’

khtila qaḷbiini ‘(lit.) to put into the heart, i.e. to have the intention to do s.t.’

Nṭhile qaḷbiini/ kendra hijjá/ mwaka uyú. ‘I have the intention of going to the pilgrimage this year.’

kulla mo waswaasi khkooða na qaḷbiye [nt.] ‘every one is prey to fear and talks to his heart’

kubiga qaḷbi ‘to race (of the heart)’

Khaḷbi(ya)/ inakumbiga. ‘My heart is beating me – i.e. is racing.’

Khaḷbi(ye)/ ina(ku)mbiga. ‘His heart is beating him – i.e. is racing.’ (Phon. Notice that the infinitive prefix ku usually elides in front of the [cl.1] object prefix, but does not elide in front of the first person singular object prefix. Actually, the orthography that we employ does not capture the fact that m-b is a consonant sequence when the m is the [cl.1] object prefix, but a prenasalized stop when it is the first person object prefix. The phonetic contrast was noted by our consultant GM, though he noted that it is a somewhat subtle difference.)

Mwaana/ qalbi/ imbishile. ‘The child’s heart beat (from fear or excitement or expectation).’

Omari/ khalbi/ inambiga zaaydi. ‘Omari’s heart is beating quicker.’

kubla khalbi ‘to discourage (lit. kill the heart)’; also: kubleka khalbi Hamadi/ ni mintjidi/ mwenye go’aani/ ha’ubleki/ khalbi/ shjinda go’aani/ hufaanya. ‘Hamadi is a tough, stubborn man, decisive, he cannot be discouraged, if he decides to do something, he does it.’

kufa khalbi ‘[lit.] to die heart – i.e. to be unhappy, in despair’ kuhada qalbiini ‘to talk to oneself (lit. to speak in the heart)’

Chihada/ ka qalbiini/ kaake/ kuwa nthaku/ shaka/ uyu/ ndiyé/ mbozelo mwanaamkewé. ‘He said to himself that there was no doubt that this is the one who stole his daughter.’

kuḷawa qalbiini ‘[lit.] to go out of the heart -- said of s.t. that was formerly liked, but now has become unpleasant, either because the situation has changed or (especially) because one has tired of it through habit and repetition’

Nama/ indrazile qalbiini. ‘I am tired of [eating always] meat.’

kumsimika qalbi ‘to encourage someone’ (also: khsimikowa qalbi, khsimikika khalbi)

Hamadi/ msimishile mwaanawe/ khalbi/ kingila imtjhaani. ‘Hamadi encouraged his son to enter/take the exam.’

Hamadi/ ni moloolo/ hakhaadiri/ chiint’u/ hasimikiki/ khalbi/ hatá/ shfanyaayi. ‘Hamadi is soft, he is not able to do anything, he cannot be encouraged even (lit.) if you do how – i.e. whatever you do.’

Muunt’u/ chisimikowa khalbi/ hukhaadira/ khfanya chiint’u. ‘If one is encouraged he is able to do something.’

Muunt’u/ suura/ kumsimika walaaliwe/ khalbi. ‘It is good for one to encourage his brother.’

kumtila qalbi ‘to encourage someone (to do s.t.)’

Hamadi/ mtile Ali/ khalbi/ ye/ kuwaka nuumba. ‘Hamadi encouraged Ali to build a house.’

kurasha qalbi ‘to follow one’s desires’ kuvunda qalbi ‘to discourage’

Ali/ hashoratoowi/ chiint’u/ daa’imu/ huvunda waant’u/ khalbi. ‘Advice is not sought from Ali, he always discourages people.’ (Notice that with a plural [cl.2] indefinite noun like waant’u, there is no object marking on the verb. In the case of a singular [cl.1] indefinite noun like muunt’u, the object marker must occur. In this example sentence, one could also say humvunda muunt’u, and the object marker would be used.)

kuvundika qalbi ‘to be discouraged, give up hope, have one’s heart broken’; also: kuvundikowa khalbi

Jawaabu/ ya manfa’a/ muunt’u/ chisula khfaanya/ hufanyowa ka hima/ nth’aasá/ ya kuvundikowa khalbi. ‘If one wants to do something useful, it should be done quickly, before one is discouraged (by naysayers).’

Mfanya kaazi/ vundishile qalbi. ‘The worker was discouraged.’

Siwo suura/ kuvundowa muunt’u/ khalbi. ‘It is not good to break s.o.’s heart.’ Or: Siwo suura/ kuvundoowa/ muunt’u/ khalbi.

Waliko qalbi/ imvundishile. ‘He was discouraged.’

kuwaamo/ qalbiini ‘to have the intention, wish, resolution (to do something)

Iwaalimo/ qalbiini/ kaaka/ keendra/ hija. ‘I had the intention to go on pilgrimage.’

kuwanayo qalbi ‘lit. to have the heart, meaning: to have courage’

Hamadi/ ntʰaná/ khalbi/ ya kooweja. ‘Hamadi does not have the courage to swim.’

Ntʰaná/ qalbi. ‘He does not have courage, he is not brave.’

Lawa/ khurude mutini/ pata khtala khalbiyo. ‘Let’s leave and take you back to the tree to get your heart (in the story that this example comes from, the shark believes that the monkey has left his heart in the tree where he lives).’

mapenzi ya khalbiini ‘love from the heart, true love’ maraði ya khalbi ‘heart disease’ mi nikhaminiile khupeete qalbiya [song] ‘I trusted you and gave my heart to you’ mbigo wa khalbi ‘heart beat’; mabigo ya khalbi ‘heart beats’

=mo khalbiini ‘be interested in, have an interest in (lit. s.t. be in the heart)’

Mi/ jawabu iyo/ ʰhayimo/ khalbiini/ kaaka. ‘That thing (lit.) is not in my heart – i.e. I am not interested in that thing.’

Muuntʰu/ yimo kaaké / khalbiini/ ntʰaku/ hiiwó/ shokuwa mojiitu. ‘What is in a person’s heart no one knows except God.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Na madakhṭari/ wote/ wamwaambile/ ya kuwa ntʰaku/ itamweleloo dawa/ shokuwa/ khalbi/ yaa nfuye. ‘And the doctors all told him that there was no medicine for him except the heart of a monkey.’

nafasi ya qalbi ‘[Lit.] space of the heart -- meaning: one always find the space to accommodate a guest, even in a small house, if one’s heart is generous and loving’

Omari/ khalbiye/ ha’inahi. ‘Omari’s heart does not get scared.’

qalbi/ noloolo ‘soft heart – i.e. faint-hearted, lacks courage’

Hamadi/ khalbiye/ noloolo/ hakhaadiri/ khfanya chiintʰu. ‘Hamadi, his heart is soft – i.e. he is faint-hearted, lacks courage – to do anything.’

Qalbiye/ nuumu/ kana chuuma. ‘His heart is as hard as iron (i.e. he is unkind, merciless).’

Qalbi/ imbishile/ mwaana. ‘The child’s heart raced.’ Or: Qalbi/ mwaana/ imbishile. (In this construction, mwaana cannot be the subject of the sentence: Mwaana/ bishile qalbi.) qalbiya faza’a na neefu hundiiqa [nt.] ‘my heart is scared and I cannot breathe’

Qalbiyo/ iskirihe. ‘May your heart not resent it -- this phrase is used to apologize in advance for (future) behaviour or request that might displease.’

ubigo wa khalbi ‘heart beat’

waleelo ka miimba qalbi mahzuuni [nt.] ‘lying on their bellies with heavy hearts’

Wana zihaba/ khupa maraði yaa chita/ wana wazima/ maraði ya khalbi. ‘Small children give you a headache, big children heartbreak.’ (A saying.)

welu wa khalbi ‘light of heart (i.e. someone open, happy as oppose to dark and gloomy)’

Ya khalbi inakhpeendó/ ni dawaye. ‘What the heart likes is its medicine.’ (A proverb.)

qalamu

n. 9/10 [Sw. kalamu SSED 168; Ar. qalam W 788] pen, pencil; [usu. khalamu]

Chiwaa we/ nakandikaa khaṭi/ ka khalamu ya rasaasi/ mp^haa mi/ khalamu yaa dawa. ‘If you are writing the letter with the lead pencil, (why not) give me the fountain pen.’

Khalamu gani/ nyulusi/ zibeeló. ‘Which black pens are lost?’

khalamu iyi ‘this pen’ (cf. khalamu izi ‘these pens’)

Khalamu/ ivunziḷa na Omari. ‘The pen was broken by Omari.’

Khalamu izo/ nyulusi/ ni suura. ‘Those black pens are nice.’

Khalamu iyi/ ndaakó. ‘Is this pen yours?’

Khalamu/ niyushiizé. ‘The pen, I hid it.’

Khalamu ya Aziizi/ ivundishile. ‘Aziizi’s pen broke.’

khalamu ya biiro ‘ballpoint pen’ khalamu yaa dawa ‘fountain pen’

khalamu ya maṭiṭa ‘pencil’ khalamu yaa mate ‘[lit.] pen of saliva -- meaning: pencil’ (This is the most common name for pencil. Less common is qalamu ya rasaasi, which is the translation of Arabic qalam ar-raṣāṣ W 788.)

khalamu za kaloora ‘crayons’ khalamuya ‘my pen’ (cf. qalamuza ‘my pens’)

Khalamuza/ nyulusi/ zont^he/ zibeeló. ‘All my black pens are lost.’

Muke/ kasiizopó/ tete lwarakha/ na khalamú/ kumwandikila waawaye/ khaṭi. ‘When the woman heard (this), she took a piece of paper and a pen to write her father a letter.’

Nakhaadirá/ khtumikila khalamuyo? ‘Can I use your pen?’

Nimpatilile Haliimá/ khalamuyé. ‘I got for Haliima her pen.’ (In the possessive construction Haliima/ khalamuye ‘Haliima, her pen’, the third person singular enclitic $\Rightarrow y-e$ must refer to Haliima, it cannot refer to some other individual.) review this point

Nyunzile khalamu ya Aziizi. ‘I broke Aziizi’s pen.’

Omari/ andishilee khaṭi/ ka khalamu. ‘Omari wrote a letter with a pen.’

Vunzile khalamu. ‘He broke the pen.’

Ye/ nakhsulá khalamu nyulusi/ mbili. ‘He wants two black pens.’

rel.

i-qalamu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. (disparaging)

Ikhalamu gani/ iyi. ‘What kind of a pen is this?’ (cf. Mikhalamu gani/ aya. ‘What kind of pens are these?’) sh-qalamu (s-) n. 7/8 dim. (disparaging)

Shkalamu gani/ ichi. ‘What kind of a pen is this thing?’ (cf. Skhalamu gani/ izi. ‘What kind of pens are these things?’)

Shkalamu ichije/ ni chigobe. ‘That (dim.) pen is small.’

Skhalamu izije/ ni zigobe. ‘Those (dim.) pens are small.’

qaliili

adj. [Ar. qalil W 783] little, few

Mazu/ sku izi/ sukhuuni/ qaliili. ‘Bananas nowadays at the market are few.’

wafarama haqi na wo qaliili [st.] ‘those who counsel righteousness, and they are few’

i-qaama

n. (cf. qiima, below) call to prayer: when the congregation has assembled in the mosque, having been called to prayer by the aḏaana (diffused by loudspeaker), the faithful are invited to stand and start prayers; this invitation is called iqaama and is uttered inside the mosque and in a lower (normal) voice; [pron. iqaama or ikhaama]

qamari

n. an attribute, name for the Prophet (usually found in poetry); moon (again, usually only used in poetry)

huwoni noota na shamsi na qamari [st.] ‘you do not see stars nor the sun nor the moon’ khaansa Abubakari khaansa Omari/ awo waziishila na Mtume qamari [st.] ‘(visit) especially Abubakar and Omar/ who were buried next to the Prophet’ rebeelo mtume wiitu mweema qamari [st.] ‘the one who prohibited it is our good Prophet qamari’

Waruusi/ wa'ulushiize qamari sinaa'i. 'The Russians launched a satellite [lit. an artificial moon].'

qamaari

n. [Sw. kamari SSED 170; Ar. verb qamara "to gamble" and noun qimār "gambling" W 789] gambling; [pron. qamaari or khamaari]

variant form: qumaari

haraamu maali khpata ka qamaari [st.] 'it is unlawful to get money through gambling' kheteza qamaari 'to gamble'

Masku ayo/ chilawa/ chendra mahala/ ya majini/ wanakheteza khamaari. 'That night he left and went to the place where the djinns were gambling.'

Omari/ sheteza khamari/ mukhetaa ye/ mweno askari/ fakeete/ fagax!/ mahala ye/ ingiilo/ tozela. 'Omari was gambling; when he saw police (coming), he ran away fast, fagax! whatever place he went into, he was not seen (i.e. he could not be found).'

Ye/ chiwona majini/ miingi/ yakumangeene/ kheteza khamaari. 'He saw many djinns gathered together to gamble.'

ma-qaamu

n. 6 [cf. Sw. makamu SSED 166, but not with the same meaning as in Chimwiini; Ar. maqām W 800] high position, rank; great dignity

Apo/ zamaani/ waaliko/ taajiri/ mooyi/ mkulu/ mwenye maali/ na maqaamu. 'Once upon a time there was an important businessman having wealth and high social position.'

Maqaamu ya Ibraahiimu yiiko Makka/ takuhijo takhata niingi Baraka [st.] 'the sacred place of Abraham is in Mecca (and) the pilgrims (lit. the one who will go on pilgrimage) will obtain many blessings'

Nayo maqaamu makulu/ ka sarkaali. 'He has a high position in the government.'

Ni mwenye maqaamu. 'He is a person of high rank.'

We/ zaa we/ namfaanyo/ siwo/ maqaamuyo/ wala/ eelo/ hastaahili. 'What you are doing to him is not becoming to you nor does the gazelle deserve it.'

qaamuusi

n. 9/10 [Sw. kamusi SSED 171; Ar. qāmūs W 736] dictionary qamusi ya chingereenza 'an English dictionary' (Phon. Observe that while at the lexical level the antepenult syllable of qaamuusi retains its length even though the general principles of the language would lead to its being short, at the phrasal level the length is missing in both the antepenult and the penult syllables of qaamuusi.)

qamusi ya chingereenza/ ka chaarabu 'an English-to-Arabic dictionary' qamusiini 'in the dictionary'

qani'a

v. [Ar. qani'a W 793] (khani'iile) persuade; [usu. pron. khani'a]

rel.

qani'isha v. caus. (khani'ishiize) persuade; [usu. pron. khani'isha]; variant forms:

khana'isha, khan'isha

Nimjaribiile/ kumkhan'isha/ Omari. 'I tried to persuade Omari.'

Nimkhan'ishiize/ Hamadi/ tu/ kuwa Haliima/ kodele wanaafakhi. 'I persuaded only Hamadi that Haliima had lied.'

Nimkhan'ishiize/ Hamadi/ tu/ kuwaa ye/ laazimu/ kuya festaani. 'I persuaded only Hamadi that he should come to the party.'

Nimkhan'ishiize/ Hamadi/ tu/ kuya festaani. [HHH!H] 'I persuaded only Hamadi to come to the party.' (Typically the complement of an emphasized verb would exhibit radical downstepping. But in this example, Hamadi is not downstepped. This is presumably a consequence of the fact that Hamadi is tu-marked.)

Nimkhani'ishize Nuuru/ kooloka. 'I persuaded Nuuru to go.' (Cf. default accent: Boora/ mkhani'ishize Nuuru/ kooloka. 'Boora persuaded Nuuru to go.'

Nimkhani'ishize Nuurú/ kuwaa ye/ ʔakhpita imʔihaani. 'I persuaded Nuuru that he will pass the examination.' (The cited pronunciation is one where there is focus on Nuuru. If there were no internal focus, then the sentence would be pronounced with the final accent extending to the complement: Nimkhani'ishize Nuurú/ kuwaa ye/ ʔakhpita imʔihaaní.)

Waalimu/ wamkhana'ishize Muusa/ leelo/ mi/ kingila skooʔa. 'The teachers persuaded Muusa today (to allow) me to enter school.'

Wazelewe/ wamkhana'ishize Muusa/ leelo/ kingila skooʔa. 'His parents persuaded Muusa today to enter school.' (It is possible for a pronoun co-referential to Muusa to precede the infinitival complement: Wazelewe/ wamkhana'ishize Muusa/ leelo/ ye/ kingila skooʔa. 'His parents persuaded Muusa today for him to enter school.') qani'ishoowa v. caus. pass.

Nqani'ishiza kooloká. 'I was persuaded to go.'

Nqani'ishiza kuja naayé. 'I was persuaded to eat with him.' (cf.

Nqani'ishizaa kujá/ naaye. 'I was persuaded to eat by him.')

Nqani'ishiza na Nuurú/ kooloka. 'I was persuaded by Nuuru to go.'

Nqani'ishiza naayé/ kuja. 'I was persuaded by him to eat.'

qaanuuni

n. 9/10 [Sw. kanuni SSED 173; Ar. qānūn W 737] custom, rule, law, regulation of a civil nature as opposed to religious; [usually pronounced: khaanuuni] (This is one of a number of loanwords that have a long vowel in both the antepenult and the penult syllable of the word in the isolation form of the word. Of course, in phrase-medial position, these long vowels will shorten.)

Khanuuni/ laazimu/ kuwa waaðehe/ na kilaa muunt^hu. 'The rules should be clear to everyone.'

khanuni yaa nt^hi 'the laws of the land'

Mi/ hukahaʔa/ khanuni iyi. [HH!H] 'I hate this custom.' Or: Khanuni iyi/ mi/ hi'ikahaʔa. [H'H'H] 'This custom, I hate it.' (Notice that the habitual prefix hu is altered to hi in front of the object prefix i. This parallels the behavior of the infinitive prefix ku.)

Ni chiint^hu hukhusano na diini/ na akhlaakhi/ sharii'á/ na qaanuuni. 'It [i.e. marriage] is something that is concerned with religion, and morals, laws, and customs.'

qap

ideo. [Som. qab "to slam shut (door)" cited in Dhoorre & Tosco, p. 148] of slamming door shut (In word-final position, Somali b is pronounced p. This realization is the same in Chimiini.)

Hamadi/ lazile numbaani/ ka shtana/ bishile mnaango/ qap. 'Hamadi went out of the house angrily, he slammed the door shut qap!'

Hamadi/ funzile mnaango/ kaa nguvu/ bishile/ qap. 'Hamadi closed the door with force, he hit it qap!'

qaaq

ideo. [pron. qaaq! or khaakh!]

Haliima/ kaawo/ numbaani/ icholokoowa/ ba/ nk^heje za waana/ wanaakuʔa/ qaaq!/ ha'ikaʔaant^hiki/ ba. 'Haliima's house, whenever you go, there is noise, children are crying qaaq! You cannot sit, rest, relax.' (A bimoraic, monosyllabic ideophone like qaaq! is like its monomoraic counterpart raised in pitch and phrasally separated from the word preceding and the word following. What is most notable prosodically is that the high pitch is sustained over both moras of the ideophone: [qááq].)

qaraaba

n. [Ar. qarāba "relation, kinship" W 754] family; a more distant relative than that covered by the term ahji; [usu. pron. kharaaba]

Ahji/ na kharaabá/ woʔe/ wako haaðiri. 'Relatives, close and distant, were all there.'

Kharaaba/ hegemeshoowa. 'Relatives are welcome.' (A saying.)

Omari/ kharaabaze/ (ni) wiingi. ‘Omari, his relatives are many.’
Siwo/ suura/ muunt^hu/ khtinda kharaaba. ‘It is not good for one to cut off relatives.’
 rel.
u-qaraaba n. 14

qar(a)ði

n. [Sw. karadha SSED 174; Ar. qardo "loan of money or food" DSI 490] loan of money; [usu. pron. khar(a)ði] Kharaði/ ni waajibu/ kulipoowa/ ka wakhtiwe. ‘A loan must be paid back in due time.’
khpa khar(a)ði ‘to give a loan’ Omari/ mpele Hamadi/ kharaði/ kulipa ba’adi ya mwaaka. ‘Omari gave Hamadi a loan to pay back after a year.’
khtomola khar(a)ði ‘to give a loan’ khtala khar(a)ði ‘to take a loan’

qaribila

v. (kharibiliile) go near to, go close to; be almost; [usu. pron. kharibila]
Kamaa we/ shishiġaa ndalá/ amó/ nakuwamereġa waanawó/ chaakujá/ ruda mukhta mi/ nt^h akharibilaa kufá. ‘If you are hungry or are looking for food for your children, come back when I will be about to die.’
Kharibiliġee kufa. ‘He was almost dead.’
Si/ shchipata kumwona/ sultani waa noka/ shġakuwa shkharibiliġé/ mradi wiitu. ‘If we get to see the king of snakes we will have neared our goal.’
Uki/ ukharibiliġe kumala. ‘The honey was almost finished.’
 rel.
qaribisha v. caus. welcome; [usu. pron. kharibisha]
Chilawa ndilaani/ chimkharibisha muunt^hu. ‘He went outside and welcomed the man.’
Chimkharibisha Yuusufu. ‘He welcome Joseph; he brought Joseph close.’
Kharibisha. ‘Welcome!’
Sultaani/ chilawa kumkharibisha Sultani Daraayi. ‘The sultan went out to welcome Sultan Daraayi.’

qariibu

n. 9/10 [Sw. karibu SSED 175; Ar. qarīb W 754] near, close; just recently; [pron. qariibu or khariibu]
Awa/ ni khariibuza. ‘These are my (close) relatives.’ (While this construction is possible in Chimwiini, the more widely used form is akharaba rather than khariibu.)
Chichiweeka/ khariibuye. ‘She put it near her (e.g. friend).’
Chimleze mwaaná/ khariibú. ‘We put the child to sleep just recently (or close by).’
Chimleze kharibu ya maamayé. ‘We put him to sleep near his mother.’
Chiya kharibu yaa wo. ‘She came near them.’
Gaari/ isimeme kharibu ya nuumba. ‘The lorry stood near the house.’ (The simple yes-no question involves no accent shift, while the exclamatory question has the usual shift in the verb phrase: Gaari/ isememe kharibu ya nuumbâ!?)
Gaari/ isemeeme/ kharibu ya nuumba. ‘The lorry stood near the house.’ (The simple yes-no question shows the expected shift of accent in the complement: Gaari/ isemeeme/ kharibu ya nuumbá?) ichiwa ka qariibu hiingila khfakata [nt.] ‘if they are close I start running’ ka maamaye khariibuye/ na Abbasa jiraaniye [st.] ‘near his mother’s grave and with Abbas as his neighbor’
Kalent^he kharibu ya nuumba ‘He sat near a/the house.’ Or, with verb focus:
Kaleent^he/ kharibu ya nuumba.
kharibu izi ‘these environs’ khariibu/ kanaa mp^hula/ na mnómó ‘as close as the nose and the lip’ kharibu na [Sw. karibu na “near” SSED 175] kharibu naami ‘near me’; kharibu naasi ‘near us’ khariibu/ naa duka ‘near the shop’ khariibu/ na nuumba ‘near the house’ kharibu/ na skoolā ‘near the school’

kharibu ya [Sw. karibu ya “near” SSED 175] Apo/ khariibu/ ya muuyi/ ziwaaliko/ zisima/ ziingi/ ntho/ za maayi. ‘Near the town there were very many wells of water.’
khariibu/ yaa duka ‘near the shop’ Kharibu ya ^fmasku/ Omari/ laziló. ‘Near night-time, Omari left.’ Or:
Kharibu ya ^fmasku/ laziló/ Omari.
Kharibu ya ^fmasku/ lazilo Mkhodiishó/ Omari. ‘Near night-time, Omari left for Mogadishu.’ Or: Kharibu ya ^fmasku/ laziló/ Mkhodiisho/ Omari.
kharibu ya muuyi ‘near the city’
Khariibu/ ya muuyi/ mwaana/ chanza kiimba/ jisa aada. ‘Near the town, the boy started to sing, as usual.’ (The variability in the phrasing of khariibu as head of an associative phrase can be seen from the following example: Kharibu ya muuyi/ mwaana/ chanza kiimba. Notice also that in these examples, the preposed phrase is not focused, hence there is no pseudo-relativization of the verb.)
kharibu ya nuumba or khariibu/ ya nuumba ‘near the house’ Kharibu ya nuumba/ isimeemó/ gaari. ‘Near the house stood the lorry.’ Or:
Kharibu ya nuumba/ gaari/ isimeemó.
khariibu/ ya skoola ‘near the school’ khariibuya ‘near, close to me’; khariibuyo ‘near you’; khariibuye ‘near him’;
kharibu yiitu ‘near, close to us’; kharibu yiinu ‘near you pl.’; kharibu yaawo ‘near them’ Komelo khariibuyé/ shomola salaamu. ‘When he reached near (the donkey), he extended his greetings.’
Mbaliko Keenyá/ khariibu. ‘I have been to Kenya recently.’
Mi/ nt^hakhpata chibuuku/ khariibuya. ‘I will find a book near me.’ (Cf. We/ takhpata chibuuku/ khariibuyo. ‘You will find a book near you.’ Ye/ takhpata chibuuku/ khariibuye. ‘(S)he will find a book near her/him.’ Si/ sh^takhpata chibuuku/ kharibu yiitu. ‘We will find a book near us.’ Ni/ nt^hakhpata chibuuku/ kharibu yiinu. ‘You (pl.) will find a book near you.’ Wo/ w^takhpata chibuuku/ kharibu yaawo. ‘They will find a book near them.’)
Mi/ siná/ shaka/ kuwa poliisi/ w^takuuya/ khariibu. ‘I have no doubt that the police will arrive soon.’
Mp^hete chibuukú/ kharibu ya Nuurú. ‘I found a book near Nuuru.’ (Cf. Mp^hete chiboukú/ khariibuyá. ‘I found a book near me.’) Muti/ uwaliko khariibu/ naa wowi. ‘The tree was close to the river.’
muti uwaliko kharibu naa wowi ‘a tree that was near the river’ mwana waa mi/ simemo kharibu naa yé... ‘the child whom I stood near him...’
 (This is an acceptable relative clause, but MI preferred: mwana waa mi/ simemo khariibuyé...) Nakhtarajá/ kumwona maame/ khariibu. ‘I am looking forward to seeing my mother soon.’
ndila ya khariibu ‘a nearby road’ Nii ndruwa/ ka khariibu. ‘He is my close relative.’
ndru wa qariibu ‘near relative’ ngombe yaa mi/ nsimemo khariibuyé... ‘the cow that I stood near it...’ (The alternative version of this is ngombe yaa mi/ nsimemo kharibu naayé... It is important to emphasize that the ye here is the [cl.1] pronoun and not the [cl.1] possessive enclitic. The example below makes this point clear.)
ngombe zaa mi/ nsimemo khariibuzé... ‘the cows that I stood near them...’ (Note that the alternative version of this is: ngombe zaa mi/ nsimemo naazó... ‘the cows that I stood near them’, where the pronoun zo is employed, not the possessive enclitic: ngombe zaa mi/ nsimemo kharibu naazé...) Ni khariibu/ Omari/ kuuya. ‘It is soon Omari will come.’ Or: Omari/ ni khariibu/ kuuya. (Prosody. It is striking that even though khariibu is preceded by the copular verb, the following verb is not put into a pseudo-relative form. This contrasts with the example below where khariibu is used to form a locative expression rather than a time expression.) (Prosody. In the simple yes-no question we observed accent shift only in the verb: Ni khariibu/ Omari/ kuuyá?)

(Ni) kharibu ya nuumba/ kaleent^hó. ‘(It is) near the house he sat.’

Nk^halent^he kharibu ya nuumbá. ‘I sat near a/the house.’ Or, with verb focus: Nk^halent^hé/ kharibu ya nuumba. Or with focus on kharibu: Nk^halent^he kharibú/ ya nuumba. Or it is even possible to focus on both the verb and kharibu: Nk^halent^hé/ kharibu/ ya nuumba. (Observe the effects of the Accentual Law of Focus in these examples.)

Nondroshelopó/ nimwene Alí/ (uko) khariibuyá. ‘When I woke up, I found Ali near me.’

Nuumba/ ni khariibu/ ya kumaliza. ‘The house is nearly finished being built.’

Numba yaawo/ yiko kharibu ya numba yiitu. ‘Their house is near our house.’

Omari/ khariibu/ kuuya. ‘Omari is going to come shortly.’ Or: khariibu/ Omari/ kuuya. (It is interesting that although khariibu in these sentences is raised in pitch, nevertheless the infinitive verb is not put in a pseudo-relative form, as usually happens when a pre-verbal element is focused. We noted accent shift in the simple yes-no question: Khariibú/ Omari/ kuuyá? The exclamatory question shows the same shifts: Khariibú/ Omari/ kuuyá!?)

Omari/ komeele/ khariibu/ sa’a ya sala ya fijri. ‘Omari arrived about the time of the morning prayers.’

Omari/ komele kharibu ya muskiti. ‘Omari arrived near the mosque.’ Or: Omari/ komele khariibu/ ya muskiti. ‘Omari arrived near the mosque.’ Or, with verb focus: Omari/ komeele/ kharibu ya muskiti. or Omari/ komeele/ khariibu/ ya muskiti. (The first person forms of these phrases are instructive: Nk^homele kharibu ya muskiti. Or: Nk^homele khariibú/ ya muskiti. Or: Nk^homeelé/ kharibu ya muskiti. Or: Nk^homeelé/ khariibu/ ya muskiti. These examples show that it is possible to focus the head of the associative phrase: kharibu ya muskiti, and when it is focused, what follows is outside of the scope of final accent. The verb may be focused as well, and when it is, the verb is phrase-final and final accent from the verb does not go past that verb. It should be noted that if the verb is focused, and khariibu is also focused, there is special raising on khariibu, though this is not revealed by our transcription.)

Omari/ kuuya/ khariibu. ‘Omari is coming soon.’ (The pitch on khariibu is raised.)

Omari/ lazile kharibu ya masku. ‘Omari left near night time.’ (The simple yes-no question involves no accent shift, while the exclamatory question shifts the accent of the verb phrase: Omari/ lazile kharibu ya maskú!?)

Omari/ lazile/ kharibu ya masku. ‘Omari left around night-time.’ (Despite the focus on the verb in this example, the simple yes-no question seems to vary as to whether the adverb phrase shifts its accent: Omari/ lazile/ kharibu ya masku (or: maskú?))

Omari/ lazile Mkhodiisho/ kharibu ya masku. ‘Omari left for Mogadishu around night-time.’ (In the simple yes-no question version of this sentence, there is no accent shift. The exclamatory question exhibits the expected shifts: Omari/ lazile Mkhodiishó/ kharibu ya maskú!?)

Omari/ lazile/ Mkhodiisho/ kharibu ya masku. ‘Omari left for Mogadishu about night-time.’ (Ordinarily, when the verb is focused, as in this example, the subsequent phrases are out-of-focus and are subject to accent shift in the simple yes-no question. But this accent shift does not occur here: Omari/ lazile/ Mkhodiisho/ kharibu ya masku?)

Sisoongé/ kharibu ya nuumbaya. ‘Don’t come near my house.’

Suufi/ ondrosheze chaakuja/ kharibu ya siimba. ‘Suufi took the food away from near the lion.’

Wabjaana/ hufanyo kaazi/ Mkhodiishó/ amó/ mahala ziinginé/ kharibu khariibú/ kila arkhamiisi/ huya Mwiini/ kuzuura/ wazele waawo/ ndruza zaawo/ na wenza waawó. ‘Young people who work in Mogadishu or other places nearby go each Thursday to Brava to visit their parents, their relatives, and

- their friends.’
- waant^hu/ watatu/ wawaliko khariibuyé ‘three people who were near them’
- wowi yaa mi/ ninenzelo khariibuyé ‘the river that I walked near (it)’ (cf. Ninenzelo kharibu yaa wowi. ‘I walked near the river.’)
- wowi yaa muti/ wiko khariibuyé ‘the river that the tree is near’ (cf. Muti/ wiko kharibu yaa wowi. ‘The tree is near the river.’)
- mu-qariibu n. stranger
Zahara/ nakhkooḍa/ ṭarafu ya mukhariibu. ‘Zahara is talking about the stranger.’
- qariha
qariha or khariha v. tr. or intr. [Som. qarxi "to make s.t. explode" DSI 492] (qarihiile) explode; [pron. qarira]
- qarira v. [?Sw. kariri SSED 175; Ar. qarra W 751] decide on; [pron. qarira or kharrira]
Apa/ wazele/ na wazaazi/ hukharira sku ya nikaaha/ ya haruusi/ na pesa za mwiimbili/ humlazimo khtomola khfanyilizowa haruusi. ‘Here, the clan elders and the parents decide on the day of the marriage ceremony, of the wedding celebration, and the money that the boy must pay for the wedding.’
Shkharira koondroka/ ka apo/ koloka ba’iidi/ na wazelewe/ na ndruezazé/ wofé. ‘He decided to move from there to go far away from his parents and all his relatives.’
- qarni n. [Sw. karini SSED 175; Ar. qarn W 760] century, one hundred years; [pron. qarni or kharni] Karni mooyi/ ni miyakaa miya. [H!H] ‘One century is a hundred years.’
Pesa izo/ schitumikiḷoowa/ kharni za zamaani. [H!H!H] ‘Those coins were used in earlier centuries.’
- qartaasi n. [Sw. karatasi SSED 175; Ar. qartas W 757] a piece of paper; [pron. qartaasi or khartaasi]
Omari/ andishile inaye/ ilu ya khartaasi. [H!H!H] ‘Omari wrote his name on a piece of paper.’
Hamadi/ tukile khalamu/ na khartaasi. [H!H!H] ‘Hamadi carried a pen and paper.’
- qasabu n. 9/10 [cf. Sw. verb kashabi "press sugar cane" SSED 175, with a suggested origin in Persian; Ar. qaṣab "sugar cane" W 766] sugar cane (though muuwa is the much more common word for sugar cane); [pron. qasabu or khasabu] Miyuundra/ ya qasabu (or muuwa/ miingi/ yachalowa Johari). [H!H!H!H] ‘Many sugar cane farms were cultivated in Johari (a town near Mogadishu).’
Suukari/ hufanyowa ka qasabu (or muuwa or miyuuwa). [H!H] ‘Sugar is made of sugar cane.’
- qasiida [Ar. qaṣīda W 767] a poem in Arabic or Chimiini, usually with a religious them (a synonym for shṭeenzi); [pron. qasiida or khasiida]
Haliima/ nakuleta khasiida/ za Daada Maasiṭi. [H!H!H] ‘Haliima is singing/ reciting/ reading (lit. bringing) poems of Daada Masasiṭi.’ (In this example, we did not hear any evidence of accent on Daada, but at the same time it did seem that there was some length on the first vowel, contrary to the usual principle of Vowel Shortening in Chimiini.) Mowliidi/ huletoowa (or husomoowa/ khasiida/ za mtume). [H!H!H!H] ‘At the Prophet’s birthday celebration are sung the poems of the Prophet.’ (The intonational pattern of this example is of some interest. The critical aspect of the sentence is that the syntactic phrase khasiida za mtume is the postposed subject of the main verb huletoowa or husomoowa. Observe that this postposed subject is not phrased with the verb. What follows from that observation is that the verb is not at the end of the Phonological Phrase due to emphasis on the verb, but rather due to the fact that the postposed subject is not treated as part of the VP. This lack of emphasis on the verb explains why it is downstepped relative to the initial word mowlīidi. An emphasized verb would not be downstepped. Note that we regard there to be downstep between the verb and the head of the Associative Phrase khasiūda and between this head and the AP za mtume.)

qasiidaya iṭimiile/ faatāha inasomoowa [st.] ‘my poem is completed, let us recite the faatāha’ qaasimu n. [Sw. kasimu SSED 176; Ar. qāsim W 763] divider; [pron. qaasimu or khaasimu] Khaasimu/ laazimu/ kawanya hakhi. [H'H!H] ‘One who divides things up must distribute things justly/ equally.’ (The predicate laazimu is regularly a PP isolate and subject to declination rather than downstep when it is preceded by its subject.)

qaasiri [cf. Ar. qaṣura "to be short" W 767 and qaṣr "shortening, diminution" W 768; note that Ar. qāṣir has a different meaning] minus, less, short by; [pron. qaasiri or khaasiri] variant form: qaasi or khaasi

sa'aa mbili/ khaasi/ robo ‘7:45 a.m. (lit. a quarter before the second hour of the day)’ (but also: khaasiri/ robo)

sa'a moo(yi) / khaasi/ robo ‘a quarter to one (i.e. seven o'clock)’ (but also: khaasiri/ robo) sa'aa nt^hatu/ khaasiri/ thuluthi ‘8:40 a.m. (lit. the third hour of the day minus a third)’ qasri n. [Ar. qaṣr W 768] palace, castle; [pron. qasri or khasri] Apo/ wachendra karka qasri/ ya sulṭaani. ‘There they went to the palace of the king.’

kana qasri ‘like a palace’

Omari/ washile numba/ kana qasri/ nakhfakhara/ kana sulṭaani. ‘Omari built a house like a castle, he is as proud as a king.’

Nuuru/ numba yaawo/ suura/ ḥikulu/ kana/ khasri. [H!H'Hḥ!H!H] ‘Nuuru, their house (i.e. Nuuru’s family’s house) is good, big, like a castle.’

rel.

i-qasri (mi-) n. aug.

Hafa iyo/ yawashiḷa/ ḥmijuumba/ mikulumikulu/ kama/ mikhasri. [H!Hḥ!H!H] ‘That neighborhood, big houses have been built (there), like castles.’ (In this example, the syntactic phrase mijuumba mikulumikulu ‘big houses’ is the postposed subject of the verb yawashiḷa ‘[cl.4] were built’. This subject does not form a PP with the preceding verb. Although this verb is at the end of a PP, it does not constitute an emphasis-phrase. It is thus subject to downstepping, like any simple ϕ -phrase. The Head-R phrasing principle separates the head noun mijuumba from its modifier mikumikulu.)

qaati n. [Sw. katu SSED 179; Ar. qāt "Catha edulis Forskal" W 795] the leaves of a certain plant that are used as a narcotic; also called jaati; [pron. qaati or khaati]

Khaati/ inayo markhaani. [H!H] ‘Khaati has an euphoric effect.’

Khaati/ ni mamnuu'u/ Ameerika. [H'H!H] ‘Khaati is prohibited in America.’

kuja khaati ‘to chew [lit. eat] qaati’

Khaati/ hujowa Somaaliyá/ niingiye/ huya ka Keenya.

[H!Hḥ!H!H] ‘Most of the Khaati eaten in Somalia comes from Kenya.’

Omari/ jile khaati/ markhaani. [H!H!H] ‘Omari ate khaati; he is hyper.’ (Although this example consists of two clauses: Omari jile khaati and markhaani, the latter being a predicate adjective with both a null subject and a null copular verb ni, nevertheless the two clauses are treated as a single Intonational Phrase. If markhaani were a separate IP, then its pitch level would be roughly the same as the preceding accented syllable; however, in fact, it is downstepped, at least in this particular implementation of the sentence.)

qati'utariiqi n. [Ar. qaṭ' al-ṭariq "highway robbery", see under qaṭ' W 776] brigand Si/ shkumangeené/ na qati'utariiqi/ wiingi. ‘We met with many brigands.’

sandra says this word is not used check

- qaatila v. [Sw. katili SSED 179; Ar. qatala W 742] kill, murder
rel.
qaatilila v. appl.
qaatiloowa v. appl. pass.
qaatiloowa v. pass.
qaatika v. p/s.
- qaatili n., adj. killer
Isa/ majini/ ayaje/ ya tawala/ yasulilo kumshika Sa'iidi/ naayo/ ya'ile mbele ya sulṭaani/ yamlesele mayti/ yamlonzele sulṭaani/ naṭomole amri/ ku'aqibowa qaatili. 'Now those djinns at the sea who wanted to catch Sa'iidi also came in front of the sultan and brought the dead man and begged the sultan to give an order for the killer to be punished.'
na muunt^hu qaatili tomeelo maazi [st.] 'and a murderer who has shed blood' Wanamwaambila/ simama/ we/ qaatili/ simama/ we/ qaatili/ laakini/ Sa'iidi/ chizida mafakato. 'They were telling him: stop, you killer, stop, you killer, but Sa'iidi ran faster.'
- qawaawa n. 9/10 skillet, frying pan; [pron. khawaawa or qawaawa] khawaawa/ ya maandra 'bread pan' khfula khawaawa 'to meld a frying pan'
rel.
mi-khawaawa n. 4
- qazamu n. [Ar. qazam W 761] dwarf
rel.
i-qazamu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-qazamu (s-) n. 7/8 dim. dwarf
- qazdi n. [cf. Sw. kusudi SSED 231; Ar. qaṣd W 767] intention variant form: qasti ka qazdi [cf. Sw. kwa kusudi SSED 231] 'intentionally, deliberately' Fanyize ka qazdi. 'He did it deliberately.'
Vunzile ka qazdi. 'He broke it on purpose.'
Qazdiye/ ni khpata maali. 'His intention is to get money.'
- gene'a v. [Sw. kinai SSED 198; Ar. qani'a W 793] (gene'eele) be satisfied, esp. with food
rel.
gene'eka v. p/s. be convinced Mubli/ shkhene'eka. 'The husband was convinced.'
gene'esha v. caus. [Sw. kinaisha SSED 198] (gene'esheeze) persuade Ni muhaali/ kumkhene'esha Abooke. 'It is impossible to persuade Abooke.'
Or: Kumkhene'esha Abooke/ ni muhaali.
gene'esheka v. caus. p/s.
gene'esheleza v. caus. appl.
gene'eshoowa v. caus. pass.
Abooke/ khene'eshoowa/ ni muhaali. 'For Abooke to be persuaded is impossible.' Or: Khene'eshowa Abooke/ ni muhaali. Or: Abooke/ ni muhaali/ khene'eshoowa.
Abooke/ khene'eshoowake/ ni muhaali. 'Abooke's being persuaded is impossible.'
- qibla n. [Sw. kibla SSED 186; Ar. qibla W 740] the direction to which Muslims turn in praying (towards the Ka'aba in Mecca)

Iyi/ nii du'a/ sheekhi/ humsoomó/: (hu)mwambila mayti/ kuwa isa/ tamiiló/ ni malaayka/ s̄takumuuz̄a/ su'aali/ izi/ naani/ moojó/ naani/ mtumewo/ niini/ diiniyo/ niini/ khiblayo. 'This is the du'a that the sheikh reads to him: he tells the dead person that now the ones who will come to him are angels and they will ask him these questions: who is your God? who is your Prophet? what is your religion? what is your direction for praying?'

Khibla yaa sala/ ni kulekeleowa/ ká'aba. 'The direction of praying is to be directed toward the ka'aba.'

uso kulekeza qibla haraamu [st.] 'for the face to be directed towards qibla is unlawful (while taking care of bodily needs)'

Qibt̄iya

n. a Copt; [pron. Qibt̄iya or Khibt̄iya]
chuzoowa maamaye hadaani Mariya/ uje hunasabiloowa Qibt̄iya [st.] 'if you are asked who was his mother, say: Mariya, who was a Copt by descent'
Waant̄u/ awa/ ni Khibt̄iya. [H!H'H] 'Those people are Copts.' Wazuungu/ wa Misra/ huviḷowa Khibt̄iya. [H!H!H] 'The infidels of Egypt are called khibt̄iya.'

qiḍa

[pron. qiḍa or khiḍa]

v. [Sw. kidhi SEED 188; Ar. qaḍā W 771] (khiḍiile) reach, fulfill, accomplish a goal; left.'

Fulaani/ khiḍile haajaye/ yolokeleele. 'So-and-so reached his goal and then left.'

Nile [ku]khiḍa wakht̄i/ naawé. 'I came in order to spend time with you.'

Or: Nile [ku]khiḍá/ wakht̄i/ naawe. (The infinitive prefix ku is obligatorily elided in front of a stem-initial q or kh in the speech of MI, and apparently other speakers as well. However, GM permitted its retention.)

qiḍa deeni 'to repay a debt' qiḍa haaja 'to satisfy, achieve, resolve a need, accomplish a goal'

Khiḍile haajaye. 'He achieved his need.'

Nile [ku]khiḍa haajá. 'I came to accomplish a goal.'

qiḍa sala 'to perform an obligatory prayer after the appointed time'

qiḍa soomu 'to fast after the end of Ramadhan, in order to complete the required days of fasting (e.g. if you missed fasting in Ramadhan because of illness)'

Wachondroka/ washkhiḍa haja zaawo/ chimaliza/ washkalan^haa kuja. 'They woke up and washed [lit. did the necessary things] and then sat down to eat.'

rel.

khiḍoowa v. pass.

Inakukhiḍowa haaja. 'The need is being resolved, achieved.' (Morph.

Although Mohammad Imam did not employ the infinitive prefix ku in front of a stem beginning with kh or q, in the speech of Gelani Mohammed the ku may be retained.)

q̄ila

n. a statement (or religious tradition) not supported by strong evidence or reference laakini qabri ya Ali i'ushiiza/ q̄ila huhada kuzimu panziza [st.] 'but Ali's grave was hidden; an unsupported tradition says that he was taken up to heaven'

q̄ima

v., n. [Sw. kimu SSED 198; Ar. qāma "perform ritual prayer" W 798-9] (q̄imiile) announce the beginning of prayer in the mosque while people are standing (as compared to aaḍana); [pron. q̄iima or khiima] aḍina ka l̄kele q̄ima ka hasili [st.] 'call to prayer loudly but announce the approaching of the time to pray in a low voice'

Khiima/ na aaḍaná/ siwo/ sawa. [H!H'H!H] 'khiima and aaḍana are not the same.'

khimaa sala ‘to announce the beginning of prayers’

Sala ya shpiindri/ Hamadi/ khimiiló. [H!H!H] ‘Noon prayer, Hamadi called for it.’ (The intonation recorded for this example is one where there is downstep between the preposed object salaya shpiindri and the subject Hamadi. Ordinarily a pre-verbal sequence of Phonological Phrases exhibits declination rather than downstep. The downstep seen here indicates that sala ya shpiindri is focused. This is confirmed by the fact that the verb is in pseudo-relative form.)

rel.

khimoowa v. pass. for a prayer to be called for Khiima/ hukhimowa mukhtạa sala/ isimeemá. [H!H!H] ‘khiima is called for when a prayer is being stood (i.e. while those about to pray are still standing).’

Sala/ nt^hasa ya khsaloowa/ hukhimoowa. [H!H!H] ‘Prayer, before being prayed, it must be called for.’

rel. nom.

m-qima (wa-) n. 1/2 one who announces the beginning of prayer mqimaa sala ‘one who announces the beginning of prayer’

qiima

n. [Sw. kima SSED 196; Ar. qīma W 800] value, price; [pron. qiima or khiima]

Eelo/ uyu/ qimaaye/ nch^haache. ‘The price of this gazelle was small.’

khpa qiima ‘to value s.t., hold s.t. dear’ khila qiima ‘to put value in’

Kịla mooyi/ nimwambilopo khima ya eeloó... ‘Every time I told one the price of a gazelle..’

Marṭi/ ile/ uzilee chịta/ ka kaako/ na qiimayé/ weshele/ ilu / ya chịtaacho/ naawé/ ka apo/ khiriilé/ na isá/ nakuneelezá/ izi. ‘The guest came and bought a (cow’s) head from you and its price, he place on your (cow’s) head, and you at that moment agreed, and now you are explaining these things to me.’

Omari/ koọdize/ nt^haziná/ khiima. [H!H!H!H] ‘Omari’s words do not have value/ meaning.’ (The intonational pattern exhibited in this example is interesting. The declination between the first two Phonological Phrases is the usual one between the two phrases constituting the NP+NP=poss construction (“so-and-so his such-and-such”, “such-and-such its such-and-such” when it occurs in initial position in the clause. The downstep exhibit by the negative ‘have’ verb ntazina is in contrast with the negative form of other verbs, which, when main clause verbs, typically show declination rather than downstep. The downstep shown by the complement to the negative verb is regular.)

rel.

qiimisha v. caus. value s.t.

Ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ huqiimisha/ chaake. [H!H!H!H] ‘Everyone values his thing.’

qimishilizoowa v., caus. appl. pass.

Haliima/ peshele shtakiche/ cha ðahabu/ dukaani/ khimishilizoowa. [H!H!H!H!H] ‘Haliima took her gold necklace to the shop to have it be evaluated for her.’

qimishoowa v. caus. pass.

Haliima/ peshele shtakiche/ cha ðahabu/ dukaani/ khimishoowa. [H!H!H!H!H] ‘Haliima took her gold necklace to the shop to be evaluated.’

qiiq

ideo.

Sheekhuná/ shishile gaari/ fariina/ kaa nguvu/ qiiq!/ khariibu/ kumbiga muunt^hu. ‘Sheekhuna pushed the car’s brakes with force, qiiq! he almost hit a man.’

qisa

n. 9/10 [Sw. kisa SSED 205; Ar. qiṣṣa W 765] story, tale, matter; [usu. pron.

khisa; on occasion we observed gemination of the s as in the Arabic original, but this gemination is not a necessary aspect of the pronunciation of this item]

Chimwambila suḷtaani/ waa noka/ kumfungụḷịla khisaze. ‘He asked the king of snakes to tell him his story.’

Chimwaambila/ khisa/ impeetó. ‘She told him what happened to her.’

Iyi/ nii qisa/ ya mtume Nuuhu. ‘This is the story of the prophet Noah.’ (The lengthening of the vowel in front of khisa supports the proposition that gemination is not a lexical property of the s in this word. If khisa were in fact khissa lexically, we would not expect lengthening to occur in front of it.)

khisa ya Hasiibu/ na sultani waa noká ‘the story of Hasiibu and the king of snakes’ khisa/ ya Yuusufu. ‘the story of Joseph’

khisa/ za Abunawaasi ‘stories of Abunawaasi’

Khisa/ zineenzele/ jis’iyi/ muda/ wa sku niingi/ hattá/ teena/ mubli/ chaanza/ khfikira. ‘The matter went on this way for a period of many days until then the man began to think.’

Khisaze/ kana za Banawaasi. ‘His stories are like those of Banawaasi (i.e. he tells stories that are strange or make you laugh).’

Mi/ nanzize kuwa’ambila waaná/ khisá. ‘I began telling the story to the children.’

Mwanaamke/ chimweleza waawaye/ khisa za mwaana. ‘The girl explained to her father the story of the boy.’

mwaarabu/ na mwanaamkewé/ na qisa ziinginé ‘the Arab and his daughter and other tales’

Neeleza/ khisa/ za mwana uyu. ‘Explain to me the story of this boy.’

Nini/ khisa ya mp^hundra wa doobi. ‘What is the story of the washerman’s donkey?’

Si/ shtakanza ka Abú/ khfungulaa khisa. ‘We will begin with Abu telling us a story.’

Sint^hindé/ muze mwanamkewe/ khisaza. ‘Don’t slaughter me! ask your daughter my stories [i.e. what is going on with respect to me].’

Sultani waa noká/ chimwaambila/ kuwa khisaze/ nii ndre/ nt^ho. ‘The king of snakes told him that his story was very long.’

qisaasi

n. [Sw. kisasi SSED 206; Ar. qiṣāṣ "settlement of account, punishment" W 766] revenge kulapa kulipa khisaasi ‘to swear revenge’

Lasile kulipa qisaasi. ‘He swore to get revenge.’

kulipa khisaasi ‘to revenge’

Lisile khisasi yaa ndruwe. ‘He revenged his relative.’

Ndrisile khisasi yaa ndruwá. ‘I revenged my relative.’

qishi

n. copying, cheating (on a test, e.g.)

khfanyaa khishi ‘to copy, cheat’

Hamadi/ fanyizee khishi/ pisile imtihaani. ‘Hamadi copied/ cheated and passed the exam.’

qisma

n. [cf. Ar. qisma W 763] share; division (in arithmetic); [pron. qisma or khisma] var. qismu ‘ibid.’ [usu. pron. khismu]

Hamadi/ peḷa khismu/ nk^hulu. ‘Hamadi was given a bigger share.’

Kiḷaa muunt^hu/ takhpata khismuye. ‘Everybody will get his share.’

Nama/ yawanyiiza/ Hamadi/ tete khisma/ nk^hulu. ‘The meat has been divided up, Hamadi has taken a big share.’

We/ khismuyo/ huḡowi. ‘You your share you won’t miss it.’

Zoombo/ zawanyiiza/ kiḷaa mooyi/ tete khismaye. ‘Things have been divided up, everyone has taken his share.’

qiyaama

n. [Sw. kiyama "the general resurrection of the dead, as conceived by Muhammadans" SSED 213; Ar. qiyama W 800] the hereafter (Note that this noun is not used in a locative form.)

karka qiyaama hawoni nazaa’a [st.] ‘in the hereafter he will not encounter difficulty’ wacheendra khkuumbuka qyaama afḍali [st.] ‘it is better if they go to remember (remind themselves) of the life hereafter’

- qiyaasi n. [Sw. kiasi SSED 184; Ar. qiyās "measurement" W 804] measurement, estimation; [pron. qiyaasi or khiyaasi] variant form: qi'aasi
khiyasi gani 'how many?'
qi'asi gani 'how much?'
- qiyaasisha v. caus. [Ar. qāsa "to measure, weigh" W 804] (khiyasishiize) measure, estimate, guess, give the value of qiyasisha na... 'to measure against, compare'; [usu. pronounced khiyaasisha]
Mwaana/ khiyasishiize/ kuwa waant^hu/ waṭakiwa/ jawaabu. 'The boy guessed/thought that people would know the answer.'
Nuuru/ khiyasishiize/ ya waana/ wa'iwiló. 'Nuuru guessed what the children knew.'
- rel.
qiyasishiliza v. caus. appl.
- qoodi n. [Sw. kodi SSED 215; Hindi. or Pers. origin] personal (head) tax
- qoomu n. [Ar. qaum "fellow tribesmen, kinfolk, race, nation" W 800] kinfolk, race, nation
Anshuura fuunzilo Muusa na qoomuye [st.] 'the one who fasted on Anshura was Muusa and his people'
- qoowli n. [Ar. qawl W 797; Som. qawl "one's word" DSI 494] word, a verbal expression, a version of what happened, promise or one's word; [pron. qoowli or khoowli] Chirasheni khoowli/ ya mwaalimu. 'Let's follow the words of the teacher.'
khowlii nt^hatu 'three versions of something' khpa khoowli 'to promise, give one's word' Nimpele khoowli. 'I gave him my word.'
Maadaama/ mi/ nt^heto khoowli/ skhaadira/ kuḷawa. 'Since I gave my word, I cannot break it.'
- Nt^haná/ qoowli. 'He does not keep his word.'
qowli lqadiimu 'previous, earlier sayings' sadiqa qoowli ya mtume amiini [st.] 'believe the sayings of the Prophet' Siwo/ wa qoowli. 'He is not a man of his word.'
- ma-qsadi n. [Ar. qasḍ W 767] aspiration, aim, intention
- mu-qtafa adj. [Ar. verb qatafa W 778] the chosen one (said of the Prophet)
- quba n. [Sw. kuba SSED 224; Ar. qubba W 737] dome; [pron. quba or khuba] (Note the absence of lengthening in front of a phrase-final occurrence of this noun, apparently a reflection of the gemination that occurs in the Arabic source but which is not maintained in the Chimiini pronunciation of the word.)
Kilaa muskiti/ inayo khuba/ na ka wiingi/ ni khuba akthari. [H!H!H!H] 'Every mosque has a dome, and most of the time it is a green dome.'
- qubala v. [Sw. kubali SSED 225; Ar. qabila W 739] (khubaliile) accept, approve, agree; [usu. pron. khubala] (The examples below illustrate this this verb allows an infinitival complement. It does not permit a subjunctive complement:
Khubaliile na'oloke numbaani. 'He agreed that he should go home.' Nor:
Khubaliile Hamadi/ na'oloke numbaani. 'He agreed that Hamadi should go home.')
Bwaana/ shkhubala/ chiingila/ chija chakujaache/ maliizopó/ chilawa/ kendra mwiskitiini. 'Bwaana agreed and went inside and ate his food, and when he finished, he left to go to the mosque.'
Ichiwaa we/ hukhubali/ mi/ naawé/ shtakulaana. 'If you do not consent, I and you will fight one another.'

Khubalīle koloka numbaani. ‘He agreed to go home.’ (The limitations on where a long vowel may occur in the phrase explains the multiple examples of vowel shortening in a sentence such as this; cf. khubalīile ‘he agreed’, kooloka ‘to go’, and numba ‘house’.)

Khubalīle kula chibuuku. ‘He agreed to buy a book.’

Khubalīle kumwosha mwaana. ‘He agreed to wash the child.’

Majini/ kama awo/ washkhubala. ‘The jinns, like them, agreed.’

Mi/ skukhaadira/ khubala. ‘I was not able to accept it.’

Mweenzawe/ shkhubala. ‘His friend agreed (to his proposal).’

Niskhubalīle zibuukú/ kuuzá. ‘I agreed the books to sell.’ confirm

Nk^hasiizé/ na nkhubalīilé. ‘I heard and I accept.’

Nkhubalīilé/ kula numba. ‘I agreed to buy the house.’ Or: Nkhubalīilé/ nuumba/ kuula. Or: Nuuma/ kuula/ nkhubalīilé. Or: Nuumba/ nkhubalīilé/ kuula. (We did not hear the first person nasal prefix in front of kh in GM’s speech. The examples of various word orders are just ones volunteered by GM, and do not constitute all the word orders/phrasings possible. They are given only to illustrate the extreme flexibility of word order in Chimiini.)

Nkhubalīle kumlola Tuumá. ‘I agreed to marry Tuuma.’

Nkhubalīle kuza zibuukú. ‘I agreed to sell the books.’

Nkhubalīle Nuurú/ kumlola Tuumá. ‘I agreed for Nuuru to marry Tuuma.’ Or with verb emphasis: Nkhubalīilé/ kumlola Tuuma. But also with object agreement on the main verb: Nimkhubalīle Nuurú/ kumlola Tuumá. ‘I agreed for him Nuuru to marry Tuuma.’ Or with verb emphasis: Nimkhubalīilé/ Nuueu/ kumlola Tuuma.

Nkhubalīle zibuukú/ kuuzá. ‘I agreed the books to sell.’

Omari/ khubalīle Hamadi/ kooloka. ‘Omari agreed to Hamadi going.’ (This would be a possible answer to the question: Omari/ khubalīileni. ‘What did Omari accept/ agree to?’)

Sa’iidi/ shkhubala/ sharti iyi. ‘Sa’iidi accepted this condition.’

Sitakhubala/ khpowa amri/ na eloo/ waa mi/ nimuzilo ka thumaani. ‘I will not accept being given orders by a gazelle that I purchased for an eighth of a riyal.’

Siwo/ mbovu/ nkhubalīilé. ‘That’s not bad, I accept (your offer).’

Sultaani/ shkhubala. ‘The sultan agreed.’

Yaa mi/ nhadiiló/ yaliko kuwa nt^haku/ muunt^hu/ yaliko kulawá/ bilaa yaa mi/ khubala. ‘What I said was that no one was to le without my permission.’

rel.

qubalīka v. p/s.

Uđuri uyu/ hawqubalīki. ‘This excuse is not acceptable.’

qubalīla v. appl. (qubalīilé) qubalīsha v. caus. (qubalīshiize) qubalīshana v. caus. rec.

qubalīshika v. caus. p/s.

qubalīshiliza v. caus. appl.

qubalīshilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

qubaloowa v. pass. (qubalīila) be agreed to Mwaana/ qubalīla koshoowa. ‘The child was agreed to/ accepted to be washed (by someone).’ (MI accepted the cited sentence, but expressed some hesitancy with respect to others: e.g., Magaari/ yaqubalīla kulowa na Ali. ‘The cars were agreed to be bought by Ali.’ Chibuuku/ shqubalīla kua kulooowa. ‘The book was agreed to be bought.’ On the other hand, our consultant GM was not hesitant about accepting such sentences: Zibuuku/ shkhubalīila/ khpishoowa. ‘Books were agreed to be burned.’)

Nuuru/ khubalīla kumlola Tuuma. ‘Nuuru was accepted to marry Tuuma.’

Tuumá/ khubalīla kulolowa na Nuuru. ‘Tuuma was accepted to be married by Nuuru.’

Tuumá/ khubalīla Nuuru/ kumlola. ‘Tuuma was accepted for Nuuru to marry her.’

Uđuriwe/ nt^hawqubaloowa. ‘His excuse was not accepted.’

Waqubalīla na sultaani. ‘They were accepted by the sultan.’

- Zibuuku/ skhubajila kuzoowa. 'The books were agreed to be sold.'
Zibuuku/ skhubajila/ mi/ kuuza. 'The books were agreed for me to sell.'
 rel. nom.
ma-qubalo n. 6 approval
- qubalo n. act of accepting
- qudra n. [Sw. kudura "strength, power, might -- but only in reference to God" SSED 225; Ar. qudra W 746] destiny, fate, divine will; willpower; [pron. qudra or more commonly khudra]
Ijtihaadi/ hayoondroli/ khudra. 'Effort cannot undo fate.' (A proverb.)
Ijtihaadi/ hayreebi/ khudra. 'Effort cannot stop fate.' (A proverb.)
Iyi/ ni khudra ya mwajitu. 'This is God's will.'
ni mooyi qudra ya mwajitu ndruuza [st.] 'God's divine will is unique, my brothers' Nt^haná/ khudra. 'He has no will power.'
- qufuli n. 9/10 [Sw. kufuli SSED 225; Ar. qufi W 782] padlock; [pron. qufuli or more commonly khufuli] khfunga qufuli 'to lock' khfungula qufuli 'to open a lock' kubiga qufuli 'to lock with a padlock' kubigila qufuli 'to lock'
kuvunda qufuli 'to break a lock' lfungulo la qufuli 'lock key'
Omari/ tile lfuungulo/khufuliini/ l'vundishile. 'Omari put the key in the lock and it broke.'
Qufuli/ iwaliko ikomejele mlaangó/ iwaliko nda ðahabu. 'The padlock that was used to lock the door was of gold.'
qufuli ya mnaango 'door lock'
Qufuliini/ l'walimo lfuungulo/ la luulu. 'In the lock there was a pearl key.'
- qumani adj. [cf. Som. verb qumman "to be upright, honest, correct; to be sensible, reasonable" DSI 505] straight, upright (of character); sensible, reasonable munt^hu qumani 'an upright man, a man of good character'
- qumbuluq ideo. check the l
 variant: tumbuluq
Hamadi/ yana/ masku/ hafaani/ potele iboholiini/ qumbuluq!/ vundishile kuulu. 'Hamadi last night in the neighborhood fell into hole/ditch, qumbuluq! and broke the leg.'
- quuni n.
- qunuuti n. [Ar. qunūt W 792] obedience and humility towards God chiskatīle diini na khsooma qunuuti [nt.] 'let us rely on our faith and pray with humility'
- quuq ideo. [pron. qquuq! or khuukh!]
Haliima/ kaawo/ numbaani/ icholokoowa/ ba/ nk^heje za waana/ wanaaku^hla/ quuq!/ ha'ika^hlaant^hiki/ ba. 'Haliima's house, whenever you go, there is noise, children are crying quuq! You cannot sit, rest, relax.' (A bimoraic, monosyllabic ideophone like quuq! is like its monomoraic counterpart raised in pitch and phrasally separated from the word preceding and the word following. What is most notable prosodically is that the high pitch is sustained over both moras of the ideophone: [qúúq].)
- qur'aani n. [Sw. korani, kurani SSED 222; Ar. al-qur'ān W 753] Quran kuhafīða/ kana qur'aani 'to memorize as (one does) the Quran'

Mwaaḷimu/ msomesheleze Saahibu/ mwaana/ qur'aani. 'The teacher taught the child the Quran for Nuuru.'
qur'aniini 'in the Quran'

- qural'eyni n. the ladies of heaven msuura/ kana qural'eyni 'as beautiful as the ladies of heaven'
- qusudila v. [Sw. kusudi(a) SSED 231; Ar. qasada W 766] (qusudiliile or qusudiile) intend, aim to do s.t.
Khusudiliileni/ we/ kuhada kuwa ifuungu/ imooyi/ we/ itile muḷooni. 'What did you mean by saying that you put one part [of your squandered wealth] in the fire?'
(N)naqusudila keendrá. 'I am intending to go.'
Qusudiliile keendrá. 'He intended to go.' Cf. Nqusudiliile keendrá. 'I intended to go.'
Skukhusudila/ imbejele raaḷi. 'I did not mean it, forgive me!'
- qusuuru n. [Ar. qusūr, pl. of qasr "castle, palace" W 768] [not in common use in Chimiini] building
- qutbi n. [Ar. qutb W 773] pole (astronomical, geographical) qutbi ya kusiini 'South Pole'
- qutbu n. [Ar. qutb W 773] leading (religious) personality [used particularly in steenzi]
- quyuudi n. [Ar. quyūd, pl. of qaid W 804] bond, tie Mi/ ni hurí/ pashpo sfuungó/ amó/ ni oghaari/ ya quyuudi. 'Am I free, without bonds, or am I am prisoner of the bonds (of life)?'

R

- Raa Mashaanga n. one of the sub-clans of the Biida, whose origin is said to be in Kenya
- Raa Waali n. one of the clans that form the Biida; the second major clan is the Wako Haatimu chimini cha Raa Waali 'the Chimiini spoken by the Raa Waali' Mi/ ni Raa Waali. 'I am a member of the Raa Waali clan.'
- ku-raa'a v.
Mi/ fijiri/ huraa'a/ huja inyi. 'In the morning for breakfast I eat liver.'
- review this word
- ra'adi n. [Sw. radi SSED 393; Ar. ra'd "thunder" W 345] uncommon peal of thunder
- ra'afaani n. an appeal (in a court case)
khinda ra'afaani 'to make an appeal at court' Omari/ hokomeela/ laakini/ tinzile ra'afaani. 'Omari has been sentenced, but he has made an appeal.'
- ra'asulmaali n. capital
chita cha diini ni sala timaamu/ sala ni ra'asulmaali ya islaamu [st.] 'the fundamental point (lit. head) of religion is complete prayer, prayers are the capital of Islamic religion' (The metrical treatment of a'a in steenzi is interesting; a V'V structure can be treated as a single long syllable if the syllabic count of the line requires it. For example, the paired lines in the present example are each eleven syllables, with the even-numbered syllables being lengthened in the recitation. The structure ra'a counts as the second syllable of its line and is pronounced as a long aa.)

- ku-ra'isa* v. [Sw. rai SSED 394; Ar. ra'isa W 317] (ra'isiize) preside, be the head of
- ra'iisi* n. [Ar. ra'is W 318] president
Leelo/ ra'isi Nikson/ ba'adaa ye/ kuwona kuwa ni njeema... 'Today, President Nixon, after realizing that it was better...'
Ra'iisi/ peja zawaadi/ barzaani. 'The president was given a gift in the meeting hall.'
Ra'isi wiitu/ haliwa_{lo}owi. 'Our president will not be forgotten.'
Wanakahabari/ wanakuhada/ ya kuwa ra'iisi/ nakhfilatiloowa/ khfaanya/ mukaataba/ pamó/ na ba'a_oi/ yaa nt^hi/ zaa ye/ takuzuuró. 'The newsmen say that the president is expected to make an agreement with some of the countries that he will visit.'
...ya kuwa ra'iisi/ nakhfilatiloowa/ khfaanya/ mukaataba 'that the president is being expected to make an agreement'
- ra'iya* n. [Sw. raia SSED 395; Ar. ra'iya W 346] citizen Sultaani/ hisabato waant^hu/ wotté/ ra'iyawé/ sawasawá. 'A sultan who considers all people, his subjects, to be equal.'
Ye/ sulile mkulaze/ kumwingla garabuuni/ kumsaayda/ kawanya naa wo/ mas'uliya/ ya muuyi/ na ra'iyaye. 'He wanted his elder brothers to come to his side and to help him divide with them the responsibility for the town and its citizens.'
- ra'si* n. 91/0 [Sw. rasi SSED 397; Ar. ra's W 317] cape, head (geographical term)
- ra'yi* n. [Ar. ra'y W 319] idea, opinion, view, suggestion variant form: ra'ayi
khpa ra'yi 'to give an opinion'
Chimpa ra'yi/ chimbarsha/ jisa ku'amilatana/ na waant^hu. 'She expressed her opinions to him and taught him how to deal with people.'
kh_omola ra'yi 'to give an opinion' kuleta ra'yi 'to make a suggestion (lit. bring a suggestion)'
Kila/ mooyi/ chileta ra'yi. 'Each one brought a suggestion.'
Mazá/ nayo ra'yi gani/ we. 'Now, what idea do you have?'
Ra'ayi izi/ sta'al_uqeene. 'These ideas are interrelated.'
Ra'yi suura/ iyi. 'This is a good idea.'
- m-raba (mi-)* n. 3/4 [Sw. mraba (mi-) SSED 298; Ar. murabba ' "quadrangular, square" W 323] rectangle, square
-a miraba min_e 'rectangular, four-sided, square' meza ya miraba min_e 'a square table' miraba mineeye khsa_loowa ni mi_la [st.] 'to pray from its (the ka'ba's) four corners is allowed'
- rabi* n. [Sw. rabi SSED 393; Ar. rabb "lord, master" W 320] God as Lord; [pron. rabi or often rabbi] rabi chiruzuqe keendra ziyaara [st.] 'O God, make it possible for us to go visiting' ya rabi 'O God'
- rabsha* n. [Sw. rabsha SSED 393 (which gives a conjectural etymo not found in Wehr's dictionary); Som. rabash, variant rabshad DSI 512] quarreling, trouble, confusion; [pron. rabsha]
Ba'adi ya ayaamu/ mbili/ nt^hatu/ rabsha/ schoondroka/ beena/ Safiya/ na mub_liwe. 'After two, three days, quarreling started between Safiya and her husband.’

	khfanya rabsha ‘to cause confusion, quarreling, trouble’
	Ali/ chiya numbaani/ ka Huseeni/ hufanya rabsha. ‘When Ali comes to Huseeni’s house he makes disturbances.’ Isa/ nini/ rabsha izi/ zaa we/ nakhfaanyó. ‘Now why this quarreling that you are causing?’
	mwenye rabsha ‘troublemaker’
rabshoole	adj. troublesome; [pron. rabshoole] Omari/ ni rabshoole/ tamhimila/ tu. ‘Omari is troublesome; I will just tolerate/put up with him.’
raadi	in: wa raadi [possibly from Ar. arādiya kairan "to wish s.o. well" W 366] goodbye wa radiini ‘goodbye to you (more than one person)’
m-raadi	n. 3/4 [Sw. mradi SSED 299; Ar. murād W 366] purpose, goal, thing desired, need Baazi/ ni waaðehe/ nt^ho/ kaake/ na mraadiwe. ‘Baazi is quite clear in his intentions.’ Mraadiwe/ uwaliko kumkhada’aa dafa. ‘Its purpose was to deceive the kite.’ Muunt^hu/ humamino mojiitú/ haatowi/ mraadiwe. ‘The one who believes in God does not miss his objective.’ (A proverb.) Mwusha siriye/ hupata mraadiwe. ‘The one who hides his secrets achieves his goal.’ (A proverb.) Kakhtarajá/ kuwa Omari/ pete mraadiwe. ‘I hope that Omari got his objective/ what he wanted.’ Nayo mraadi. ‘He has a need.’ Si/ shchipata kumwona/ sultani waa noka/ shakuwa shkharibiilí/ mradi wiitu. ‘If we get to see the king of snakes, we will have neared our goal.’ Siná/ mraadi. ‘I do not have a need.’ Teena/ apo/ we/ takhpata mraadiwo. ‘Then at that time you will get your wish.’ Walwaawo/ wachirashmana/ Alfaani/ mraadiwe/ khpata shpete/ cha mtume Suleemaani/ khpata kuhokoma majini/ na Buluukhiyá/ mraadiwe/ kumwona mtume Suleemaani. ‘The two of them left together, Alfaani’s goal to get the ring of the prophet Suleemaani so that he (would get to) rule the jinns, and Buluukhiya’s goal to see the prophet Suleemaani.’
ku-raadika	v. Omari/ haraadiki. ‘Omari cannot be pleased.’ rel. ku-radikiiloowa v. appl. pass. Jawabu iyo/ ha’iradikiiloowi. ‘That thing cannot be pleased with.’ Koða jawaabu/ yakuradikiiloowa. ‘Say something that could be pleased with.’
radiyaatoore	n. 9/10 [Ital. radiatore] radiator (of a car) raadiyo	n. 9 [Eng. and Ital. radio] radio Ibozeļa raadiyo/ ka Hamadi/ numbaani. ‘A radio has been stolen from Hamadi’s house.’ Or: Ka Hamadi/ numbaani/ ibozeļa raadiyo. (These sentences are actually ambiguous between a personal passive construction, where raadiyo triggers a [cl.9] agreement on the verb, and an impersonal passive, where there is also [cl.9] agreement on the verb.) Iyi/ ni raadiyo/ isho wenewe. ‘This is free radio (i.e. radio that has no owners).’ kubulbulika/ kana raadiyo ‘to talk like the radio – i.e. to talk non-stop, like the radio’ kudaldalamata/ kana raadiyo ‘to talk like the radio – i.e. to talk non-stop, like the radio’ Leelo/ nkhasize iimbó/ lsuura/ radiyooni. ‘Today I have heard a nice song on the radio.’

maneeno/ kana raadiyo ‘too much talking, like the radio’ Raadiyo/ mwiizi/ boozeló. ‘[It was] the radio [that] the thief stole.’
Raadiyo/ ya mwiizi/ boozeló/ ipeeta. ‘The radio that the thief stole was found.’

raađi

n. 9 [Sw. radhi SSED 39; cf. Ar. rađiya "to satisfy, conciliate, appease" W 344] approval, satisfaction, and blessings of a parent (extended to obedient children); apology, forgiveness, pardon; var. raađi n. [Som. raalli "satisfaction (noun); satisfied (adj.) DSI 510] (but not considered as good as raađi)

Apo/ wo/ wachilomba Yuusufu/ raađi. ‘Then, they asked Joseph for forgiveness.’

Baaba/ chilomba raađi. ‘Father begged forgiveness.’

chiwa nkhada’iile nt’unaayo raađiya [song] ‘if you have deceived me [then know that] you do not have my blessing’

Chiwelele raađi. ‘Forgive us!’

Iyo/ ha’iwelele/ raađi/ iyo itulushilo ba’adiyé. ‘That does not excuse what happened next.’

Ka raađiya/ oloka mwaambile/ muđli/ naaye/ munt’i wa arabiya. ‘With my blessing, go and tell the man that he should come on Wednesday.’

khtila raađi ‘to forgive’

Omari/ namtile Ali/ raađi. ‘Omari is seeking forgiveness from Ali.’

Khuwelele raađi. ‘I forgive you; I am pleased with you (I bless you).’

Kulomba raađi ‘to ask for forgiveness, to apologize’

Kumraađi. ‘Forgive me!’

kuwa raađi ‘to acquiesce’

Mi/ siwelele/ raađi/ hađa/ haba mo/ zaa we/ nakhfanyoowá. ‘I cannot approve even a little of what is being done to you.’

Muđliwe/ chimlomba mukeewe/ raađi. ‘The man begged his wife forgiveness.’

Mumathili mwiingine/ hadiile/ ya kuwaa si/ hachiwelele/ raađi/ dobla za ch’arbu/ ka sababu ya steendro/ zaa wo/ washfanyoozó. ‘Another representative said that we are not pleased with the Arab governments because of the actions that they have taken against us.’

Muunt’u/ chilomba raađi/ hafishoowa. ‘When one begs for pardon he is pardoned.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaanawá/ mbelela raađi/ ka yaa mi/ khuteenzeló. ‘My child, forgive me for what I did to you.’

naami/ shpata/ raađi/ ya mwajiitu ‘and if I obtain the approval of God’

Nayo rađi ya waawaye. ‘He has the blessing of his father.’

Raađi/ nii nk’ulu/ kolko maali. ‘Blessings are better than wealth.’ (A proverb.)

rađi ya mwajiitu ‘the blessing of God’

Raađiya/ mi/ nikhupeelé/ nt’angú/ leelo/ hattá/ keesho/ qiyaama. ‘My blessings, I have given them to you from today until tomorrow, the resurrection day.’

Si/ chinakhsula maali/ raađi/ ni chint’u gani. ‘We want wealth; what sort of thing is raađi [implying it is something of no value at all]?’

Si/ hashkhaadiri/ kuwelele raađi/ Baazi/ tabi’aze. ‘We cannot excuse Baazi’s behavior.’

Wa raađi. ‘Be forgiving!’

Wa raađi/ mi/ ndrivelee tu. ‘Forgive me, I just forgot.’

Waanawá/ mi/ skhaadiri/ walá/ siđakhpola/ marađi aya/ basi/ ni/ nnakhsula raađi/ amó/ nnakhsula maali. ‘My children, I am sick, not will I recover from this sickness, so, do you want [my] blessing or do you want wealth?’

Waawé/ mi/ ni raađi/ ka yaa we/ nfanyiizó/ yotte. ‘Father, I forgive you for what you did to me, all of it.’

Waawé/ mi/ nnakhsula raađi. ‘Father, I want [your] blessings, approval etc.’

Welele raađi/ ka ije ya waawaye/ mpenzelezó. ‘She agreed with whatever her father wanted for her.’

raađiya

adj. obedient, quiescent (used to refer to women, descriptive of being obedient to her husband, quiet, not making any trouble or extravagant demands muke ka muđliwe muđii’i raađiya [st.] a woman (=Fatima) obedient and acquiescent to her husband'

- raf'aani n. [Sw. rufani "legal appeal" SSED 402; Ar. fafa'á "to make an appeal to a court" W 349-50] appeal (in a court of law)
khtala raf'aani 'to make an appeal to the court'
- rafaadi n. hardship, suffering, troubles, miseries; chaos, confusion Numba ya Omari/ rafaadi. 'Omar's house is chaotic (messy, disorganized).'
- ku-rafaadika v. [Som. rafaad "to experience difficulties for a long time" DSI 513] (rafadishile) be poorly off (financially), be in difficulty, hardship; be in shambles; be spoiled Mwaana/ rafadishile. 'The child was in bad shape [lived so miserably that his physical shape deteriorated].'
Waana/ wanakurafaadika/ apo. 'Children are suffering there.'
rel.
ku-rafadikoowa v. pass. be in shambles, spoiled, damaged Apo/ itakurafadikoowa. 'There [everything] will be in shambles.'
ku-rafaadisha v. caus. [Som. rafaadi DSI 513] (rafadishiize) cause mental pain (e.g. by failing to care for one's family); make a mess, put topsy turvy etc.; cause damage, destruction, hardship, problems; spoil s.t.'
Mp^hana/ na'endre ka sul'taani/ na'endré/ nakhsul'a kurafadishaa dali.
'Let the rat go to the sultan, that's what he should do, he wants to make a mess of the place.'
Omari/ nakurafaadisha/ zoombo. 'Omari is damaging, spoiling things.'
ku-rafadishoowa v. caus. pass.
Siwo/ suura/ kurafadishoowa/ kuja. 'It is not good for food to be spoiled.'
- ku-rafata v. [Som. rafo "to have spasms, cramps, contractions" DSI 513] (rafeete) toss around in bed
Ahmadi/ masku/ mazima/ chirafata/ ka ulaazo/ wa miimba. 'Ahmadi all night tossed and turned from stomach pains.'
Ali/ chisu/ chimtiinzile/ chaala/ nakurafata/ ka ulaazo/ kana/ nsi/ tomela mayiini.
'Ali, the knife cut his finger and he is shook up with pain, like a fish that has been taken out of water.'
rel.
ku-rafatisha v. caus.
- raafu n. 9 [Som. raaf DSI 510] forcible draft into the army liimbo la raafu lmalize ka apa [nt.] 'the raafu's song ends here'
Solokeeni/ Mwiini/ yiko raafu/ leelo. 'Don't go to Brava, there is forcible drafting (going on) today.'
Wakhti/ wa Siyaad Barre/ sh'tersho Somaaliya/ yaliko raafu/ niingi/ waant^hu/ wachishikoowa/washfanyowa mi'itaare/ kubiga harbi. 'At the time when Siyad Barre ruled Somalia, there were many kidnappings, people were caught and made to join the military to fight.'
- ku-raaga v. [Som. raag DSI 510] (ragiile) be late, delay Ali/ ragile kuuya. 'Ali was late coming.' (Cf. Ali/ nt^hakuraaga/ kuuya. 'Ali was not late coming.')
- Bila/ kuraaga/ Hamiisi/ tete chibuuku/ anzize khsooma. 'Without delay, Hamiisi took a book and began reading.'
Chimuza mukeewe/ mbona/ ragiile/ leelo. 'He asked his wife, how come you are so late today?'
Gaari/ iragiile. 'The car is late (in arriving).'
Huyo ka wakhti/ hupataa nama/ huraago/ hupata mishpa. 'The one who comes on time gets meat; the one who is late, gets bones.' (A proverb.)
ka kuraaga 'with lateness'

- Nini/ sababu/ yaa we/ holokelelo madrasaani/ ka kuraaga. ‘Why do you always go to school late?’
- Kheeri/ kuraaga/ kama chiza khkoma. ‘Better to be late than to not arrive at all.’ (A proverb.)
- Kilaa jawaabu/ ichiraaga/ ni kheeri/ tu. ‘If a matter is delayed, (that) is just a blessing.’ (A proverb that conveys the idea that perhaps God intended the delay so that the person may in fact experience something better.)
- Mukhtaa mi/ huraagó/ we/ hushikowa shšana. ‘Whenever I am late, you get angry.’
- Nt^hakuraaga/ kuuya. ‘He did not delay coming.’
- Nt^humila m(w)aana/ kanaa mi/ nch^hiraaga. ‘Send the child for me if I am late.’
- Omari/ ta’akhariile/ kuraga kaa shiri. ‘Omari delayed (lit.) to be late to the meeting.’
- Raaga. ‘Delay!’ Ragaani. ‘(pl.) delay!’ Ragani keendra. ‘(Pl.) delay going!’
- Sirageeni, ‘(Pl.) don’t be late!’ Sirageeni/ keendra. ‘(Pl.) don’t delay going!’
- Ragiilopó/ mp^haamp^ha/ chimviila/ mweenza/ mweenza/ mboni/ we/ ragiile. ‘When he (the monkey) delayed (returning), the shark called out to him: my friend, my friend, why have you delayed (coming back)?’
- Siraagé. ‘Don’t be late!’ Sirageeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t be late!’
- Waant^hu/ waragiile/ kuya numbaani. ‘People are late coming home.’ (The yes-no question corresponding to this sentence is: Waant^hu/ waragiile/ kuya numbaani?)
- rel.
- ku-raagika* v. p/s.
- Hayraagiki. ‘One cannot be late. There is no being late.’
- ku-raagila* v. appl.
- Mwaana/ ndragiile. ‘My child is late.’
- ku-raagisha* v. caus. (ragishiize) delay s.o.; delay in responding
- Ali/ mragishize mwaana/ kendra madrasaani. ‘Ali delayed the child’s going to school.’
- Raagisha. ‘Cause a delay!’ Ragishaani. ‘(Pl.) cause a delay!’
- Ragishanii kuja. ‘(Pl.) cause a delay in eating!’ Siragisheeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t delay in responding!’ Siragisheeni/ kuja. ‘(Pl.) don’t cause a delay in eating!’
- Siwaraagishé/ waana/ chiwooni. ‘Do not delay the children from going to school.’
- ku-ragishan(y)a* v. caus. rec. delay one another
- ku-ragishika* v. caus. p/s.
- Mwana uyu/ haragishiki/ koloka kaawo. ‘This child cannot be made late in going home.’
- ku-ragishiliza* v. caus. appl. delay someone on or for
- Taahiri/ mragishilize Iisa/ mwaana/ kuuya. ‘Taahiri delayed Iisa’s child coming.’
- ku-ragishilizanya* v. caus. appl. rec.
- Taahiri/ na Iisá/ waragishilizenye waana/ kuuya. ‘Taahiri and Iisa caused one another’s children to be late coming.’
- ku-ragishilizika* v. caus. appl. p/s.
- Waawaye/ haragishiliziki/ mwaana. ‘His father cannot have his child delayed (e.g. he goes into such a rage that no one would cause the child to be late).’
- ku-ragishoowa* v. caus. pass. (ragishiiza)
- Waana/ waragishiiza/ chiwooni. ‘The children have been delayed going to school.’ (In the yes-no question version of this sentence, the final phrase undergoes accent-shift: Waana/ waragishiiza/ chiwooni? ‘Did the children get delayed going to school?’)
- ku-ragoowa* v. pass. (ragiila)
- Inakuragoowa/ chiwooni. ‘It is getting late for school.’ (Phon. The yes-no question version of this sentence is: Inakuragoowa/ chiwooni?)
- Inakuragoowa/ kolokowa skulaani. ‘There is being late going to school’

(going on).’

Iragiila/ chiwooni/ kabasá. ‘It is too late to go to school.’

Siwo/ suura/ kuragoowa/ skolaani. ‘It is not good to be late for school.’

rel. nom.

u-raago n. 14

Urago miingi/ siwo/ suura. ‘Frequent delays are not good.’

raghba

n. [Ar. raġba W 347] desire kuwanayo raghba ‘to have a desire’

Muunt^u/ shfanya chiint^u/ husuloowa/ kuwanayo raghba/ kaandra. ‘If a person is going to do something, he must first have a desire (to do it).’

raaha

n. [Sw. raha SSED 394; Ar. rāḥa W 365] rest, comfort, ease

Hamadi/ kana/ nt^hana raahá. ‘It seems that Hamadi is not enjoying himself.’

Hasiibu/ ishiize/ karka raaha/ na amaani/ hatá/ mowti. ‘Hasiibu lived in comfort and peace until (his) death.’

Husulo raahá/ laazima/ kuwona ta’abu. ‘The one who wants comfort must see difficulties (first).’ (A proverb.)

Itakunzidila raaha. ‘It will increase my comfort.’

Janaani/ ni mahaḷa ya raaha. ‘Paradise is a place of rest.’

ka raaha/ mustarehe ‘in comfort and peace, joy’

Alí/ naakuja/ ka [↑]raaha/ mustarehe. ‘Ali is sleeping with pleasure and joy.’

Hamadi/ leele/ ka [↑]raaha/ mustarehe. ‘Hamadi slept with pleasure and comfort.’

khkala raaha/ mustarehe ‘to live in comfort and ease’ kuwona raaha ‘to see (i.e. experience) rest, comfort, ease, happiness’; also:

kuwoneka raaha, kuwoneka raaha, kuwoneka raaha

Alí/ hadiile/ salaḷa iyi/ noloolo/ muunt^u/ huwoneka raaha/ khkalaant^hila.

‘Ali said: this couch is soft, a person experiences comfort/pleasure with/by sitting on it.’

Alí/ hadiile/ spendi/ ba/ kondroka salaḷaani/ apa/ nakuwona raahá/ khkalaant^ha. ‘Ali said I don’t want to get up from the couch here, I feel relaxed sitting.’

Hamadi/ numba iyo/ huwona [↑]raaha. ‘Hamadi in that house feels happy/contented/ comfortable.’

Hamadi/ numba iyo/ nakuwona [↑]raaha. ‘Hamadi in that house feels happy/contented/ comfortable.’ (This and the above example illustrates the variation between the habitual and the present tense verb to convey a present state.)

Mahaḷa/ wako wana wiingi/ ha’iwoneki/ raaha/ ka nk^ele. ‘Where there are many children, comfort/relaxation is not experienced because of the noise/shouting.’

Mi/ sina kuwona/ raaha/ na wana awa. ‘I do not feel at ease with these children.’

Omari/ hadiile/ mi/ sinakuwona raaha/ ka muke uyu/ waa mi/ naayo/ isá/ nakhsula mlaḷá/ kumnola muke mwiingine. ‘Omari said: I do not have comfort/ joy with this wife that I have now, I want to divorce her and marry another wife.’

Mwaadamu/ hupeenda/ ismu ya chiint^u/ huwoneka raaha. ‘A human being likes anything from which he finds pleasure.’

Mi/ sinaayo/ raaha/ na wana awa. ‘I do not feel at ease with these children.’

ndila ya raaha ‘an easy road – i.e. one that one can travel on comfortably’

Nfungulila mlaango/ mi/ niingile/ numbaani/ nt^hakhulombela ma’abuudu/nakhutile rahaani. ‘Open the door for me so that I may enter the house, I will pray to the one who is worshipped to put you in comfort.’

raaha sinaayo [song] ‘I have no comfort’

Tile ruhuye/ karka khatari/ khutilaa we/ karka raaha. ‘He put himself in danger in order to put you in comfort.’

Wa'ishiize/ karka barwaakhi/ na raahá. 'They lived in prosperity and comfort.'
Wotte/ wa'ishiize/ karka raaha. 'All lived in comfort.'

rahani

n. [Ar. rahn W 363] bond, bail, collateral, a guarantee duka ya rahani 'pawnshop' khshika rahani 'to hold as a security, collateral' Haliima/ pasize peesa/ ka Omari/ mpele ðahabu/ khshika rahani. [H!H!H!H!H] 'Haliima borrowed money from Omari, she gave him gold to hold as collateral' khtila rahani 'to pawn s.t., use s.t. as bail, collateral, a guarantee' Hamadi/ hadiile/ stili/ rahani/ nuumbaya/ kumtomola Sheekhi/ habasaani. 'Hamadi said: I refuse to use my house as bail to get Sheekhi out of prison.'
kuweka rahani 'to pawn s.t., use as collateral, etc.'; also: kuwekowa rahani Haliima/ pasize peesa/ dukaani/ ka Nuuru/ weshele rahani/ shtakiche/ cha ðahabu. 'Haliima borrowed money from Nuuru's shop, she put her gold necklace as bond.'
Omari/ tomeela/ habasaani/ iweshela rahani/ doolari/ alfu. 'Omari has been released from prison, a bond has been paid of a thousand dollars.'
Omari/ weshele gaariye/ rahani/ khpowa deeni. [H!H!H!H] 'Omari put his car up as collateral for being given a loan.'

ku-rahiba

v. [Ar. rahiba W 330] (rahibiile) welcome

Mumathili/ wa nṭhi za ch'arabu/ ba'adi yaa ye/ kurahiba/ na kuwapa salaamú/ mumathili/ wa nṭhi za chi'aafriká/ hadiile/ karka khuḡbaye/ ya kuwa nṭhi za ch'arabu/ ziko ṭayaari/ khpaa nṭhi/ za chi'áfrika/ dolari/ miḡyooni/ miyaa mbili. 'The representative of the Arab countries. after he had welcomed and greeted the representative of the African countries said in his speech that the Arab countries are ready to give the African countries two hundred million dollars.'

Waanṭḥu/ walazile kumrahiba ra'iisi. 'People went out to welcome the president.'

rel.

ku-rahibana v. rec. (-rahibeene) welcome one another (This verb does not seem to permit the "reciprocal shift" noted as possible for many other reciprocal verbs.)

Waanṭḥu/ hupeendanó/ hurahibana jisa suura. 'People who love one another welcome one another nicely.'

ku-rahibanoowa v. rec. pass.

Kurahibanoowa/ ni waajibu. 'To welcome one another is an obligation.'

ku-rahibisha v. welcome

Ni waajibu/ muunṭḥu/ kumrahibisha walaaliwe. 'It is an obligation for a person to welcome walaaliwe.'

ku-rahiboowa v. pass. (rahibiila) be welcomed

Omari/ furahiile/ kurahiboowa. 'Omari was pleased to be welcomed.'

rahiimu

adj. [Sw. rahimu SSED 394; Ar. rahīm W 332] generous, merciful; used as a name for God, in which case it is usually translated as "the Compassionate" and coupled with rahmaani "the Merciful" hayi hupeendawaayawe rahiimu [sṭ.] '[God is] alive, he loves his creatures, he is merciful'

Mojiitu/ ghafuru rahiimu/ ndiyé/ hulombowa kilaa chiinṭḥú. 'God ghafuru rahiimu is the one who is asked/requested for every thing.'

munṭḥu rahiimu 'a generous person'

Rabbi Rahmaani Rahiimu/ rahmaye hulomboowa [sṭ.] 'our Lord is the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful/ and for his mercies we implore'

rahma

n. 9/10 [Sw. reHEMA SSED 398; Ar. rahma W 332] mercy, acts of mercy (by God)

Dhibu/ iwele niingi/ skiizi/ mojiitu/ nachishkiliza rahma. ‘Nowadays hardships have become a lot, may God bring us mercy.’
ka rahmaze humnaharisa shaa’ibu [st.] ‘(God) in his compassion is generous to the old’ malaayka za rahma apo hazishkili/ sharri heepuka kheeri ha’ishkili [st.] ‘the angels who bring (God’s) mercy do not descend there, (as) this evil keeps them afar and no blessing is bestowed from on high’ Rabbi Rahmaani Rahiimu/ rahmaye hulomboowa [st.] ‘our Lord is the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful/ and for his mercies we implore’

rahmaani

n. [cf. Sw. rahimu SSED 394; Ar. al-rahmān W 332] a name of God - the Merciful One mwaanzo wa waajibu ndruuza kasaani/ kumwiiwa moojo khuunzilo rahmaani [st.] ‘listen my friends: the beginning of [all] religious obligations is to know God, the Compassionate, who created you’ na mtume mpeenzelo mooja rahmaani [st.] ‘and the Prophet, the one who loved him, my merciful Lord’ nahrizi nda mojiitu na amaani/ ilu ya mtume mtale wa rahmaani [st.] ‘may God’s mercy and peace be upon the Prophet, the one chosen by the Compassionate’

Rabbi Rahmaani Rahiimu/ rahmaye hulomboowa [st.] ‘our Lord is the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful/ and for his mercies we implore’

raja

n. 9 [Ar. rajā’ W 330] hope

Chinayoo rajá. ‘We have hope.’

Chinaayó/ raja/ suura. ‘We have good hope (that we will get something).’ Or:

Chinaayó/ raja suura.

khṭindaa raja ‘to give up hope’; also: khṭindowaa raja

Ka mojiitu/ ha-’i-tindoowi/ raja. ‘(Lit.) from God hope is not lost.’

Mwaadamu/ haṭṭindi/ raja/ ka mojiitu. ‘A human being does not (should not) lose hope (lit.) from God (because there is God, one should never give up hope).’

Omari/ jisaa ye/ namliindró/ Abú/ kumsaayda/ khfungulaa duka/ miyaaka/ haṭá/ ṭindishilee raja. ‘Omari was waiting for Abu to help him open a shop for years until he reached a point where he gave up hope.’

khṭozaa raja ‘to cause someone to lack hope, to give up’

Alí/ muunṭhu/ chimrasha kooḍize/ humṭoza muunṭhu/ raja. ‘If one follows Ali’s talk (i.e. listens to what he is saying), it makes one lose hope.’

Muunṭhu/ chifa/ rajaye/ imaliize. ‘When one dies his hope is finished.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Nayoo raja. ‘He has hope.’

Nt^haná/ raja. ‘He has no hope.’

nṭ^haasa nimo karka raja [song] ‘I am still living with hope’

Raja/ ka mojiitu. ‘Hope is from God.’ (A proverb.)

raja la’aani ‘without hope’

Mojiitu/ sichiweeke/ raja la’aani. ‘May God not let us be in a hopeless condition.’ (A kind of prayer.)

rajabu

n. [Sw. rajabu "the seventh month of the Muhamadan year, regarded as especially sacred account of being the month of the Prophet’s journey to Jerusalem and thence to heaven. The 27th day of Rajabu is Miraj, which is observed as the anniversary day of the journey" SSED 395; Ar. rajab "the 7th month of the Muslim year" W 326] the tenth month of the Bravanese calander (wa ikumu ‘the tenth month)

masku ya mi’raaji mweezi wa rajabu [st.] ‘the Night of the Ascension is in the month rajabu’

ku-rajima Islamic law)

v. [Ar. rajama W 329] (rajimiile) throw stones at (for punishment of violation of

- variant form:
kurujuma [Sw. rujumu SSED 403]
- rajistratoore n. 9/10 [Ital. registratore] tape-recorder
- raka'a n. 9/10 [Sw. rakaa SSED 395; Ar. rak'ū W 358] the act of bowing with the hands on the knees in Muslim prayer; there is a fixed set of bowings and prostrations that form a part of a formal Islamic prayer; the prayers to be performed at various hours of the day consist of different numbers (two, three, etc.) of raka'a du'a y-a raká'a 'the prayer recited while bowing', which must be spoken in Arabic: subhaana rabbi al adhiim wa bihamdihi 'Glory be to my Lord, the Almighty' Sala ya fijri/ inayo raka'aa mbili. 'The morning prayer has two raka'a.'
- mu-rakabu adj. [cf. Ar. verb rakiba W 356, which among other meanings has "to commit foolish mistakes, to commit a folly"] very ignorant and foolish mlate humpiindro jaahili murakabu [st.] 'leave alone (do not bother with) the one who contradicts [this], he is very ignorant and foolish'
- rakhi n. [Ar. riqq "quality or condition of being a slave, bondage" W 352] slave
- rakhiisi adj. [Sw. rahisi SSED 394; Ar. rakīṣ W 332] cheap Chaakuja/ siwo/ rakhiisi/ apa. 'Food is not cheap here.'
khfanya rakhiisi 'to make s.t. cheaply' kuwa rakhiisi 'to be cheap' nguwo rakhiisi 'cheap clothes'
Omari/ kashifile mahaḷa huḷowa gaari/ rakhiisi. 'Omari discovered where to buy inexpensive cars.'
Uza ghaali/ suuzé/ rakhiisi. 'Sell at a high price! Don't sell cheap!'
- ku-rakiba v. [Ar. rakiba W 356] (rakibiile) assemble, install (machine, car, etc.), fix Omari/ nakurakibaa chili. 'Omari is assembling the bed.'
rel.
ku-rakibisha v. caus. [Sw. rakibisha SSED 395; Ar.] (rakibishiize) assemble, fix ku-rakibishoowa v. caus. pass. (rakibishiiza) be assembled, fixed Chili/ chirakibishiiza. 'The bed was assembled.'
Nii dhibu/ kurakibishoowa/ chili ichi. 'It is difficult for this bed to be assembled.'
ku-rakiboowa v. pass. (rakibiila) be assembled, fixed Chili/ chinakurakiboowa. 'The bed is being assembled.'
Chili/ chirakibiila. 'The bed was assembled.'
Nii dhibu/ kurakiboowa/ chili ichi. 'It is difficult for this bed to be assembled.'
- raakibu (ma-) n. [Sw. rakibu SSED 395; Ar. rākib W 357] uncommon passenger
- raaliya adj. a woman who (a) is obedient (to husband) and therefore quiet, not troublesome or (b) accepting whatever God sends her with goodwill and resignation variant forms: raaḍiya, raadiya Maasiti meema raaliya/ shfaanya ibaaḍa ka niya [st.] 'Masiiti, good and resigned to God's will, performed her worship with intention' muke ka mubliwe mutii'i raaḍiya [st.] 'a woman (=Fatima) obedient and acquiescent to her husband' muke raaliya 'a good, polite, respectful woman' muke raaliya muke afiifa/ shpeendo cha mtume binti khaliifa [st.] '(Aisha) a woman obedient and loyal [to her husband], the Prophet's beloved, the daughter of the Caliph' wahafidē kamu awo maraaḍiya [st.] 'memorize how many are those obedient and loyal wives [of the Prophet] wake hupeendo raadiya/ awo mba kuziyaratoowa [st.] ‘the women who choose a proper behavior are those worthy to be visited’ watakeendro ni raadiya/ weema wanakhsifoowa [st.] ‘those who will go there [to paradise] are the women who are praised for their quiet and good behavior’

- ramaḏaani n.[Sw. ramadhani SSED 395; Ar. ramaḏān "9th month of the Muslim year" W 360] the month of Ramadhan (the last month of the calander year in the Bravanese calandar, the month of fasting) darsi ya ramaḏaani/ na qur’áan ‘a lesson concerning Ramadhan and the Quran’ (In Chimiini, the sound q found in Arabic loanwords is usually pronounced kh, and the word for the Quran is not different in this regard. Also note that consonant-final loanwords receive an epenthetic vowel at the end when they are Chimiini-ized. Thus qur’aani ordinarily ends in the vowel i. In the example cited here, the epenthetic vowel did not appear. The point we wish to make note of is this: the preposition na ‘and’ triggers final accent. In the absence of the epenthetic vowel, final accent falls on the final syllable aan. But it is important to point out that default penultimate accent would appear on the very same syllable; it would not shift back the preceding syllable: *[qúraan].) huwaajiba soomu ya ramaḏaani [st.] fasting during Ramadhan is obligatory’ ramaḏaani/ na qur’aani ‘Ramadhan and the Quran’ Ramaḏaani/ ni mweezi/ wa khfungoowa. ‘Ramadhan is the month of fasting.’
Ramaḏaani/ ni mwezi wa soomu. ‘Ramadhan is the month of fasting.’
- ku-raamba v. [more restricted in usage than khkoomba] [Sw. ramba, variant of lamba SSED 240] (?rambiile) lick some food left over (e.g. of a cat)
- ramli n. [Sw. ramli SSED 396; Ar. raml "divination by means of figures or lines in the sand" W 360] divination kubiga ramli [Sw. piga ramli SSED 396] ‘to divine by means of figures drawn in the sand, on paper, etc.’
mbiga ramli [Sw. mpiga ramli SSED 396] ‘one who divines by means of figures drawn in the sand, on paper, etc.’
- raanda n. [Sw. randa SSED 396; Pers.] carpenter’s plane
kubiga raanda [Sw. piga randa SSED 396] ‘to plane’
- raani n. [Som. raani; Hind. raanee] queen (with reference to playing card)
- ranji n. 9/10 [Sw. rangi SSED 396; from Hindiand Persian] color; paint khpaka ranji ‘to paint, apply paint’ khpaka nuumba/ ranji/ nelpe ‘to paint a house white’ Pashile nuumba/ ranji/ ka burashii nk^hulu. ‘He painted the house with a big brush.’
khpakowa ranji ‘to be painted’
Nuumba/ inakhtahaja khpakowa ranji. ‘The house needs painting.’
Nuumba/ ipashila ranji/ nelpe. ‘The house was painted white.’
Ranji/ ipashila. ‘Paint was applied.’ Cf., Ipashila/ ni ranji. ‘What was applied is paint.’
kubiga ranji ‘to paint’; also: kubigowa ranji ‘to be painted’ Nuumba/ inakhtaja kubigowa ranji. ‘This house needs to be painted.’
lkuta/ ranjiye ‘the wall, its color’ nk^huta/ ranjize ‘the walls, their color’

- ranji ya chuuma ‘paint for iron’ ranji ya lkuta ‘the color of the wall’ (cf. ranji yaa nk^huta ‘the color of the walls’) ranji yaa mbawo ‘paint for wood’ ranji ya zilaatu ‘shoe polish’
Ranjiye/ siwo/ huundru. ‘It is not red.’ Or Siwo/ huundru/ ranjiye.
- raqamu n. [Ar. raqm W 355] number Hamadi/ m^waanawe/ skolaani/ lazile rakhamu ya piili. ‘Hamadi his son at school became number two (second ranked student).’
Huhadoowa/ rakhamu/ yaa saba/ ni rakhamu/ ya nasiibu. ‘It is said that the number seven is a lucky number.’
khsoma rakhamu ‘to read the numbers’ rakhamu suura ‘a good number’
rakhamu/ kamu ‘how many numbers’
- ku-rara v. [Som. rara DSI 515] (rariile) load (This form of the verb is apparently not as acceptable as the form below where the extension at is appended to the stem.)
Rara mp^huundra/ m^taanga. ‘Load the donkey with sand.’
rel.
ku-rara^ta v. (rareete) load (e.g. a truck), carry (of a truck)
Gaari/ inakurara^ta suukari. ‘The truck is loaded with/ carrying sugar.’
Hamaali/ wanakurara^ta gaari. ‘The porters are loading the truck.’
ku-rara^toowa v. pass.
Gaari/ inakurara^toowa. ‘The truck is being loaded.’
ku-rari^la v. appl.
Omari/ nakurari^la Hamadi/ mp^huundra/ m^taanga. ‘Omari is loading sand on the donkey for Hamadi.’
ku-raroowa v. pass.
Mp^huundra/ nakuraroowa. ‘The donkey is being loaded.’
- rasaasi n. [Ar. rasās "bullets" W 342] lead, graphite, bullet, cartridge chiwaa we/ takandikaa kha^ti/ ka khalamu ya rasaasi ‘if you will write a letter with a pencil’ Ka nasibu yaawo/ kuwaa mbovu/ rasaasi/ zotte/ nt^haskumsiiba/ ndovu. ‘Because their luck was bad, all the bullets missed the elephant.’
ka ndruti tayaari shchitiya rasaasi [nt.] ‘ready with sticks, we feared bullets’ khalamu ya rasaasi ‘lead pencil’ kubiga rasaasi ‘to shoot a gun’
Masku/ si/ nt^hashkukhaadira/ kulaala/ ka ku^lat^lilowa rasaasi/ pa pa pa pa! ‘At night we could not sleep because of gun shots pa pa pa pa!’
M^wana/ sh^tomola amri/ na rasaasi/ schi^lawa/ zote/ ka mara mooyi. ‘The boy gave the order and the bullets all left [the rifles] at the same time.’
Wote/ wachi^lat^lila rasaasi/ ka mara mooyi. ‘All fired their guns (lit. bullets) at one time.’
Zinakubigaa nk^huwa/ kana rasaasi. ‘It is thundering like bullets.’
- rasdente n. district commissioner commissioner
Ma’ajnabi/ wako muyiini/ wont^he/ wavi^liila/ hafisaani/ ka rasdente. ‘All strangers in the city are called to the commissioner’s office.’
Rasdente/ mtumile Abú/ Maringuwaayi/ kuleta hakhiikha/ yaa zita/ stushiló/ apo. ‘The commissioner sent Ali to Maringuwaay to get the facts about the fighting that happened there’
- kh-raasha money) v. [Som. raac DSI 509] (rashiize) follow s.o., chase s.o., accompany; be owed (e.g.
Chi^laweeni/ chimraashe/ chiwoneeni. ‘Let us go and follow him so that we may see (what happens.)’ Chiraasha/ chiraasha/ ha^ta/ chiwona/ ruuhuye/ uko karka ibanya/

ikulu. ‘She followed (the opening), she followed until she found herself in a large open space.’

Chiraasha/ hatá/ ichimpeleka karka nuumba/ mooyi. ‘He followed [the street] until it led him to a large house.’

Karkaa wo/ wanakurudo kaawó/ wachirasha ndila yaa wo/ wa’iiló. ‘While they were returning to their home, they took the road that they had come from.’

kurasha alaama ‘to follow signs’ kurasha chiṭaawo/ shṭaawo ‘to take the bus’ kurasha deeni ‘to have someone be in debt to one’

Ali/ humrasha Omari/ deeni. ‘Ali has Omari in debt to him.’

kurasha lpindooni ‘to walk along the edge, on the edge’ kurasha kooḍi/ zaa wake ‘to follow women’s talk’ kurasha ndilaa mbovu ‘to follow a bad course’ kurasha saan^hi ‘to follow tracks, trail; follow steps, i.e. follow an issue’ ma’askari/ na makhaadimú/ wamrashizoo muké ‘the soldiers and the servants who escorted the women’

Maha_laa mi/ heendró/ hundraasha. ‘Wherever I go, it follows me.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is chib_li ‘shadow’.)

Mapoliisi/ wamrashize miizi/ yana. ‘The police followed the thief yesterday.’

Mara (y)a kaandra/ nt^haku/ mrashiizó. ‘The first time there was no one who followed him.’

Mrashaa lufa/ hufa. ‘The one who follows a crack dies.’ (A proverb indicating that one who takes risks, does s.t. dangerous, dies as a consequence.)

Mraashe/ maduriini/ muḅle. ‘Follow him into the bush and kill him!’

Mtiyaa kufa/ kufa/ humraasha. ‘One who is afraid to die, death follows him.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ huraasha/ ndila/ ipisila mbeleké. ‘A man follows the path that has passed before him.’ (A proverb.) need to get data on pronunciation

Mwaana/ chirasha jawaabuze/ chilaala. ‘The child followed his advice and slept.’

Mwaana/ mrashize Ali. ‘The child followed Ali.’

Ndraasha. ‘Follow me!’

Nimrashize Nuuru. ‘I followed Nuuru.’

Rashaa nyoki/ ja uki. ‘Follow bees and you will eat honey.’ (A proverb.)

Sirasheení/ lfuwo. ‘You (pl.) don’t follow the shore!’

Suufi/ namrasha Ali/ peesa. ‘Suufi is owed money (by) Ali.’

Takhaadira/ mtaambula/ kuhada mwana^fuyu/ mbwa Omari/ mwana^fuyu/ maaziye/ nda Omari/ hisaabuye/ maazi/ hayaabahi/ mazi ya muunt^hu/ ma’anaye/ mwaaanawo/ takhurashaa we/ maaziyo/ mwiikulo/ takhurasha mazi yiinu/ ma’anaye. ‘You can recognize him and say this boy is Omari’s, this boy his blood is of Omari, meaning blood is not lost (a proverb), the blood of a person, it means, your son follows (takes after) you, your blood, your grandchild follows your (pl.) blood, it means.’

Wana khabari/ wamrashizo Niksoní/ wanakuhada/ ya kuwa... ‘The newsmen who are accompanying Nixon are saying that...’

Wanakinraasha. ‘They are following you (pl.).’ (Note the shift of the infinitive marker ku to ki in front of an object marker containing a palatal element. Note also that the second person plural object marker does not form a prenasalized stop with the stem-initial r. Thus we get nr and not ndr.)

Wanakumraasha. ‘They are following [c l. l].’

Wanakundraasha. ‘They are following me.’

Waant^hu/ wiingi/ wachiraashó/ markabu izó. ‘(It was) many people who boarded these ships [following the ones who had gone first].’

Waraashe/ wabaashe. ‘Go with them and make them get lost.’ (A proverb. This proverb instructs one to pretend to go along, agree with someone, but then undercut them by ignoring what they want you to do.)

Wo/ huraasha/ kulla ya sarkaali/ nakhsuuló/ inawe suura/ inawee mbovu. ‘They follow (agree to, accept, go with) what the government wants, be it good, be it bad.’

rel.

ku-raashan(y)a v. rec. owe one another, be indebted to one another (Notice that this causative form is restricted to one meaning of the base form kuraasha. The verb kuraashman(y)a is used for the meaning ‘follow one another’.)

kurashanya deeni ‘to owe one another, to be indebted to one another’ ku-raashika v. p/s.

Ali/ haraashiki ‘Ali cannot be followed.’

Omari/ haraashiki/ deeni. ‘Omari cannot be lent money.’

Omari/ kooðize/ ni huuhaa!/ nt^haziná/ ma’ana/ haziraashiki. ‘Omari his talks are huu haa!, they have no meaning, they cannot be trusted (lit. followed).’

ku-rashiliza v. appl. escort, accompany, go with, follow after; cause to accompany Baana/ ndrashilize mwaana/ khtala chibuuku. ‘Baana had the child follow me (so as) to get/take a book (from me).’

Haliima/ nakhshoma stezo/ nakurashiliza alaama/ ya fuunzi/ fanyiizó. ‘Haliima is sewing buttons following the line that the artist made.’

Khurashilize mwaaná. ‘Shall I have the child follow you?’

Mbwa/ ndrashilize mwaana. ‘The dog chased my child (on me).’

Ndrashiliza mwaana. ‘Have the child follow me (so that he can bring back s.t. that I will give him).’

someelo ilmu rashiliizo amali [st.] ‘for those who have learned ilm and act accordingly’

Sultaani chimrashiliza muunt^hu/ wacheendra/ wachiya naa mbuzi. ‘The sultan had someone follow him and they went and came with the lamb.’

Sultaani/ shkhiira/ chimrashiliza askari. ‘The sultan agreed and he had the soldiers accompany him.’

sultaani/ sulilopo kumrashiliza ma’askari ‘when the sultan wanted soldiers to follow him’ ku-rashilizika v. appl. p/s.

Tayiibu/ harshiliziki/ mwaana. ‘One cannot follow for/on Tayiibu his child (i.e. to get s.t. from the child).’

ku-rashmanika v. (used only in the impersonal construction)

Hayrashmaniki/ ba. ‘One cannot leave together.’

ku-raashman(y)a v. (-rashmeene, -rashmeenye) leave, go together

Abinawaasi/ nakiineendra/ rashmene na weenzawe. ‘Abinawaasi was walking together with his friends.’

Baaba/ na maamá/ wachirashmanya/ wacholokela ka Jeełani/ chibiga mlaango. ‘Father and mother went together to Jeelaani’s (place) and knocked on the door.’

Baana/ rashmenye Hamadi. ‘Baana left with Hamadi.’

Chirashmeene/ choloshele mgahawaani. ‘Together we went to a coffee shop.’

Hasiibu/ munt^hi oyo/ chirashmanya na jiraani/ chendra khtinda skunyi. ‘On that day Hasiibu followed the neighbors and went to cut firewood.’

kurashmanya deeni ‘to owe one another’

Sirashmanyé/ na wenza wawovu/ khupozeza iboholiini. ‘Do not go with bad friends, they put you in a hole/ditch.’ (A proverb.)

Wachiraashmana/ wachingila maduriini. ‘They followed one another and went into the forest.’

Walwaawo/ wachirashmana koloka kaa muke. ‘The two of them left together to go to the woman.’

Walwiitu/ chirashmeenye/ choloshele kaaké. ‘The two of us left together and we went to his place.’

Waana/ warashmeenye. ‘The children left together.’

Wotte/ wachiraashmana/ wachendra ka sultaani. ‘All of them followed and went to the sultan.'

Wotte/ wachirashmanya kendra ka waziiri. 'All of them followed one another to go to the minister's place.'

Wotte/ wachirashmana lpoororo. 'All followed in succession (one after the other).'

Wotte/ warashmeenye/ kendra maduriini. 'All went together into the bush country.'

ku-rashoowa v. pass.

Huseeni/ nakurashowa deeni/ na Omari. 'Huseeni is in debt to Omari.'

Kilaa muunt^u/ hurashowa na maayiye. 'Everyone is followed with his water; i.e. everyone is dealt as he is.'

rel. nom.

m-raasha n. 1/2 one who follows, goes with

Maðhubu ya Shaafi'i/ hayreebi/ warasha maðhabu iyi/ kudhakhalataa mbwa/ ka jis'iyo/ want^u walima miyuundra/ hukorshaa mbwa/ na hisabaata/ mbwa/ kuwa ni karka daaba/ haminiko/ na hukhadorpwa kaminilowa nuumba. 'The sect of Shaafi'i does not forbid its followers from raising dogs, for this reason, people who cultivate farms raise dogs and consider dogs to be among the animals that are trustworthy and the house can be trusted to them.'

Mrasha n^h oongo/ huwa n^h oongo. 'One who goes with a one-eyed person becomes one-eyed.' (A proverb.)

m-raashmany n. 3

Mrashmany gani/ owo/ waa ni/ nnakuraashmanyó. 'What type of going together is this going together that you (pl.) are doing?'

u-raasho n. 14

Mrashiize/ kana uraasho wa siimba. 'He chased him like the chase of a lion.'

Takurashoowa/ uraasho/ wa harusiini. 'You will be followed (like) the following of a wedding.' (This example is from a poem by Sheikh Mohamad, who was the first director of the elementary school in Brava in the 1960's.)

ma-raashi

n. [Sw. marashi "scent, liquid perfume" SSED 396] rose water wala mashuungiye mafta hadaarshi/ uudi na ambari hatta maraashi [st.] 'neither may she rub her hair with oil, (nor perfume it with) sandalwood, ambergris, or rose water'

ku-rashiha

v. [Ar. rašaha W 340] (rashihile) nominate a candidate, approve the candidacy of a member of one's party

Abú/ waawaye/ rashihile ruuhuye/ kuwa dibutaato. 'Abu's father nominated himself to be a member of parliament.'

Want^u wa Mwiini/ wamrashihile Shekh Nuuru/ kuwa wakiili/ wa Mwiini/ tarafu ya diini. 'The people of Brava have nominated Shekh Nuuru to be the representative for Brava in religious affairs.'

raashini

n. 9 [Eng. ration] ration

Haaji/ pesa zaa ye/ peja kula raashini/ teleze khamaari. 'Ali, the money that he was given to buy food with, he gambled with it.'

Ma'askari/ leelo/ wanakhpowa raashini/ wont^e/ wako haaðiri. 'Soldiers are today being given food, they are all present.'

rashiiniye 'his ration'

rashwa

n. 9/10 [Sw. rashwa SSED 403; Ar. rašwa W 342] bribe variant form: rishwa

Hamadi/ pete posto iyo/ ya hisaabiye/ tomele rishwa. 'Hamadi got a position as an accountant, he gave a bribe.'

Keenya/ hafisaani/ ish^tomolowa rashwa/ kilaa chiint^u/ huwa. 'In Kenya, in an office, if there is a bribe given, everything is (i.e. everything can be gotten).'

Rashwa/ khtomojoowa/ ni haraamu/ ka dini ya islaamu. ‘Giving a bribe is impure/illegal in the Islamic religion.’

rasiidi n. 9/10 [Som. rasiid DSI 516, from Eng. receipt] receipt ku-rasima v. (rasimiile) draw

Ali/ mrasimile muunt^hu/ kana/ waawaye. ‘Ali drew a person that looked like his father.’

Omari/ mwaanawe/ mkali/ kurasima/ mrasimile waawaye/ kana/ piicha.
‘Omari’s son is good at drawing, he drew his father like (as accurately) as a photograph.’

ku-rasimu v. [Sw. rasimu SSED 397; Ar. rasama "to mark, indicate" W 339] (rasimiile) make the first bid at an auction, used mainly for auctions of mangrove poles brought by Bajunis to Brava (the auctioneer asked, in Arabic: kam yarsim? ‘how much do you indicate/ would pay?’ (Phon. Notice that this item is rather exceptional in that it has a final u vowel, whereas almost all other verbs derived from Arabic end in the usual a vowel in the infinitive.)

Raasiini n. name of an island off the coast of Kenya, where our consultant MI’s mother was born; the language of the island is Tikuu, which is also spoken further north in the Bajuni islands off the Somali coast and thus also referred to as Bajuni

Mi/ hukumbuka (kuwa) nch^hinendra koloka Raasiini/ ku^la fijiri. ‘I remember that I used to walk going to Raasiini every morning.’

rasmī adj. [Sw. rasmī SSED 397; Ar. rasmī W 339] official, correct, right
-a rasmī ‘official’

nguwo ya rasmī [Sw. nguwo za rasmī SSED] ‘official dress, uniform’ khabari rasmī ‘official news’

Mi/ kuwa aajizi/ tu/ siwo/ na khalabú/ rasmī/ sinaayo. ‘It is not just that I am lazy, but also I do not have the right equipment.’

nguwo rasmī ‘official dress, uniform’

Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ rasmī. ‘Nureeni bought an official uniform.’ (Notice the prosodic separation of jaaka and rasmī in this sentence. This separation gives some emphasis to rasmī. The intonational pattern of the sentence is that jaaka is downstepped relative to Nureeni, but rasmī and jaaka are at a similar pitch level. The corresponding simple yes-no question establishes that neither jaaka nor rasmī are out-of-focus since neither undergoes the accent shift associated with out-of-focus complements in these questions: Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ rasmī?)

rasmu [Ar. rasm "drawing, sketch, illustration" W 339] drawing

Hasani/ mwaanawe/ skolaani/ mkali/ rasmu/ lazile rakhamu/ mooyi. ‘Hasani’s child at school is an expert at drawing, he became number one (ranked).’

khfanya rasmu ‘to draw’

rasuulu (ma-) n. messenger, apostle oyo ni qowli ya Rasuuli Mhamadi/ na Ahmadi inna iwiilo Samadi [st.]

‘these are the words of Prophet Muhammad or (lit. and) Ahmad – verily, it is God, the Eternal, who knows’

Mitume/ yont^he/ ni marasuulu) wa mojiitu. ‘All prophets are messengers of God.’

Mtume Mhamadi/ ni rasuulu/ ya mojiitu/ tumi^la khkomeza risaala waant^hu/ duniyaani. ‘Prophet Mohamed is a messenger of God, sent to make the message reach all the people of the world.’

rasu^lmaali n. [Ar. ra’s māl W 318] capital (money) variant form: ra’asu^lmaali

Waqti oyo/ Sa’iidi/ rasu^lmaaliye/ yote/ iwaliko ni riyaaali/ nt^hatu/ tu. ‘At that time, Saiidi’s entire capital was just three riyalis.’

rasuulaLLaahi n. [Ar. rasūl Allāh, W 338] the Prophet Mohammad RasuulaL Laahi/ ndirka. ‘Reach me, O Prophet of the Lord.’

- raṭali n. 9/10 [Sw. ratli, ratili SSED 307; Ar. raṭl W 345] pound (unit of weight)
- raaṭi ?
- ku-raṭiba v. [Sw. ratibu SSED 397; Ar. ratiba W 324] (raṭibiile) put in order, arrange kuraṭiba zibuuku ‘to arrange books’
rel.
ku-raṭibisha v. caus. (raṭibishiize) Omari/ mkali/ kuraṭib isha. ‘Omari is good in arranging things.’
ku-raṭiboowa v. pass.
kuraṭiboowa/ jisa suura ‘to arrange well’
rel. nom.
u-raṭibisho n. 14
u-raṭibo n. 14
- ku-raaṭiba v. [cf. Ar. noiu rawātib, plural of rātib W 325] perform repeatedly certain devotions kuda’a’ima kuraaṭiba maulūidi / ayaamu ya jima khshabiha iidi [st.] ‘if you are constant in reading always the Mawlid, the days of Friday are like a great holy day’ (Note that in this example, the verbs are all in the infinitive.)
- raaṭibu (ma-) n. [Ar. rātib “supererogatory exercise of devotion” W 325] doing s.t. (religious) on a regular basis, therefore also worship regularly at a particular mosque; devotion beyond what is required khsoma raaṭibu ‘to go beyond what is required in exercise of devotion’
- ku-raawusa v. [Ar. raṣṣa “fit tightly together, join together” W 342] (rawusiize) arrange in order; sew the pieces of the Bravanese hats together (Phon. MI gave this verb as kuraawisa, but our present consultants consider kuraawusa as more correct.)
variant forms: kurusa Rawusize makoofiya. ‘He sewed hats together.’
- ku-reeba v. [Som. reeb DSI 516] (rebeele) stop, forbid, refuse, keep in place, block, support Ijiko mooyi/ ha’ireebi/ chuungu. ‘One cooking stone does not support a pot.’ (A proverb.) (We sometimes write a form like ha’ireebi as hayreebi. Perhaps there are two variant ways of pronouncing the sequence ai and au before a consonant, or perhaps we just did not succeed in determining the precise pronunciation.)
Ikoofiya/ imrebele iwa. ‘The hat protected him from the sun.’
Ṛkhurebele kumpa peesá. ‘I stopped you from giving him money.’
kumreba kiingila ‘to prevent him from entering’ kureba choolo ‘to be constipated’ kureba ruuhu ‘to restrain oneself’
Chizeele/ ka furaha/ nt^hakhaadira/ kureba ruuhuye. ‘The old woman, out of joy, could not restrain herself.’
Mzeele/ lazilopó/ mi/ skukhaadira/ kureba ruuhuya. ‘The old man, when he left, I was not able to restrain myself.’
kureba saant^hi ‘lit. to stop [one’s] footsteps (note that saant^hi is used as a singular noun in this idiom) -- this expression is used with different meanings: to stay in a place, delaying leaving it; to stay away from somewhere/someone; to stop while walking in a certain direction) Nize kuwatambulatabula want^hu awó/ niyrebelele saant^hiyá.
cannot understand those people, I stopped seeing them.’
Noloshale ta’azyaañi/ ndrebele saant^hiyá/ attá/ mayṭi/ shṭomoloowa. ‘I went to present my condolences’

(where there had been a death), I delayed leaving until the corpse was taken out.’

Reba saant^{hi}/ apa/ ni khatari/ dali/ nzimaye/ minoka. ‘Stop, here it is dangerous, the place is full of snakes.’

Maamaye/ chimreeba/ laakini/ iize/ mkasa/ mnowelee. ‘Her mother forbid it (i.e. forbid him to marry a woman), but he refused to listen to her, and he married her.’

Mi/ nrebeelé. ‘I stopped you (pl.).’ (The first person singular subject prefix ni- was elided in this example, but its elision cannot be analyzed as being the result of phonological processes. This cannot be a phonological phenomenon due to the fact that prefixes do not elide their vowel when placed in front of an object prefix. Therefore the elision of the subject marker must be viewed as a special morphological alternation. We have not, however, determined precisely the contexts where this elision can be found. The present example comes from the speech of our first consultant, MI. Our second primary consultant, GM, commonly elides the first person subject prefix in front of the TAM marker na, as well as in front of various voiceless consonants.)

Mwaana/ chiiza/ chihada/ kuwaa ye/ nt^haku/ itamreebó. ‘The boy refused saying that there was nothing that would stop him [from looking for the lion].’

Nch^hiwa nnazo peesá/ nini/ itakundrebo kula gaarí. ‘If I have the money, what (is it that) will prevent me from buying a car (i.e. it is only money and nothing else that can prevent me from buying a car).’

ndimi khurebeelo [song] ‘it was me who stopped you’

Ndrebeelé. ‘I stopped.’ Cf. Rebeelé. ‘You stopped.’ Rebeele. ‘(S)he stopped.’ Chirebeelé. ‘We stopped.’ Nrebeelé. ‘You (pl.) stopped.’ Warebeele. ‘They stopped.’

Ndrebele khtomolowa peesá. ‘I stopped money from being paid.’

Ndrebele peesá. ‘I refused (to pay) money.’

Ndrebelee ye/ khpowa peesá. ‘I refused for him to be given money.’

Nimrebeelé. ‘I stopped him.’ Cf. Wandrebeele. ‘They stopped me.’

Nimrebeelé/ Hamadi/ kula gari iyo. ‘I prevented Hamadi from buying that car.’

Nimrebele kuwabigá. ‘I stopped him from hitting them.’

Nimrebele khupa peesá. ‘I forbade him to give you money.’

Nondroshelé/ nfungile mtaaná/ wa mzeele/ ndebelo khfuungulá. ‘I arose and unlocked the room that the old man had forbidden me to unlock.’

Nrebeelé/ ruuhuya/ kendra festaani. ‘I prevented myself from going to the party.’

Nt^haku/ chiint^hu/ hureebó. ‘There is nothing that stops, constrains it.’

Rebaani! ‘You (pl.) stop!’

Rebele gaari. ‘He stopped the car (e.g. the driver brought the car to a stop).’

Sirebení. ‘You (pl.) don’t stop!’

Siri/ iyo/ irebeele/ kaake/ mimbaani. ‘That secret he kept in his stomach.’

Sku mooyi/ muke/ sheetaani/ mshiinzile/ nt^hakhaadira/ kureba ruuhuye/ chimwambila Yuusufu/ ni laazima/ we/ kulala naami. ‘One day satan overcame the wife and she was not able to stop herself and she told Yuusufu: it is necessary that you sleep with me.’

Skukhaadira/ kumreba maatozi. ‘I could not hold back the tears.’

Warebe/ waana/ seendré/ kawaalawá/ ndilaani. ‘Stop the children, otherwise they might go outside.’

Warebe/ waana/ wasilawe/ ndilaani. ‘Stop the children from going outside.’

Ye/ mrebeele/ Hamadi/ kendra festaani. ‘He prevented Hamadi from going to the party.’

Yuusufu/ chiiza/ chihada/ iyi/ ni ma’asiya/ mwajütu/ rebeele/ khfanyoowa. ‘Joseph refused, saying, this is a sin, God prohibited it from being done.’

rel.

ta v. (rebeete) stop

ku-reebeka v. p.s, ku-rebe_loowa v. appl. pass.

Mtumba chisima/ harebe_loowi/ maayi. ‘The digger of a well is never denied water.’ (A proverb.)

Wawa yiitu/ si/ chinakurebe_loowá/ zombo zaa kuja/ si/ shchiza keendra/ na muna yiitu. ‘Our father, we are not going to be given any more containers of food if we do not go their with our younger brother.’

ku-reebela v. appl. (rebe_leele) stop for

Ikoofiya/ imrebele iwa. ‘The hat protected him from the sun.’

Isa/ mi/ nikhurebele_lé/ maayi. ‘Now I won’t give you water.’ (Phon. Observe that the first person singular subject prefi ni retains its vowel when it stands in front of an object prefix, whereas in most other cases the vowel is elided.)

Sa’iidi/ vete ikoofiya/ kumrebela iwa. ‘Saiidi put on a hat to protect himself from the sun.’

Wanakinreebela. ‘They are stopping for you (pl).’

Wanakumreebela. ‘They are stopping for [cl.1].’

Wanakundreebela. ‘They are stopping for me.’

ku-rebelana v. appl. rec. (-rebeleene) stop for one another

*ku-reebesh*a v. caus. make stop

Rebesheze gaari. ‘He caused the car to stop (e.g. by signalling to the driver of the car).’

ku-reboowa v. pass. (rebe_la)

Gaari/ irebe_la/ khpakowa ranji. ‘The car was prevented from being painted.’

Gaari/ irebe_la/ khpelekowa numbaani/ ka Hamadi. ‘The car was prevented from being taken to Hamadi’s house.’

Hamadi/ rebe_la/ koloka numbaani. ‘Hamadi was prevented from going home.’

Hamadi/ rebe_la/ koloka skolaani. ‘Hamadi was prevented from going to school.’

Mtumba chisima/ hareboowi/ maayi. ‘The digger of a well is not denied water.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ yaa ye/ nakhsu_ló/ hakhadiroowi/ kureboowa. ‘When someone wants something, he cannot be stopped (from getting it).’ (A proverb.)

mwenye ihraamu rebe_la ziint^hu saba [st.] ‘someone in the state of ihraamu is forbidden seven things’

Peesa/ zirebe_la/ khtomoloowa. ‘Money was prevented from being released.’

ku-reeptama v. (repteeme) abstain from, stop (The transcription of this item is not clear-cut. On morphological grounds, one could justify ku-reebtama. However, both in Chimiini and Somali, a sequence bt would naturally be devoiced to pt. However, careful phonetic evidence would be needed to determine whether this devoicing fully merges b with the phoneme p.)

Gaari/ irepteeme. ‘The car stopped.’

Nvula/ irepteeme. ‘The rain stopped.’

Repteeme/ ku_la. ‘He stopped crying.’

Sichireptameeni/ ndilaani/ na takureeptamó/ najoowa. ‘Let us not stop along the way, and the person who stops, let him be eaten.’

Sireptameeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t stop!’

Sultaani/ chimwaambila/ reeptama/ la_ta/ kumbiga jis’iyo/ ni ebu/ kumbiga mwanaamke/ namna iyo. ‘The king said to him: stop, let off beating her this way, it is a shame to beat a girl in that way.’

ku-rehema

v. [Sw. rehemu SSED 398; Ar. rahima ‘love and respect one another’ W 331] (rehemeele) have mercy on, compassion for; be generous Ali/ mrehomele Iisa. ‘Ali had compassion for Iisa.’ mtume chirehema kulla maskiini [st.] ‘the Prophet used to be generous to each poor man’

rel.

ku-rehemesha v. caus. (rehemesheeze)

Ali/ mrehemeseheze Iisa/ mwaana. ‘Ali caused Iisa to have compassion for the child.’

ku-rehemesheleza v. caus. appl. (-rehemesheleeze) ku-rehemeshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-rehemesheleezenye) ku-rehemu v.

Muuntu/ humrehemu ukoo ntu/ naayé/ humrehemu uko kuzimú. ‘One who helps/gives mercy to one on earth, he will be given mercy by one who is in sky.’ (A proverb.)

rehemu

n. in the phrase:

khtinda rehemu ‘to sever relationship with one’s relatives’

Khtinda rehemu/ ni jawaabu/ siwo/ suura. ‘To cut oneself off from family is not good.’

m-rehemu(la) (wa-)

adj. [Ar. marhūm W 332] the late so-and-so (lit. the one who has found mercy)

Wana wawili/ wa mrehemula sultaani/ wachimpeenda/ ntho/ mwana uyu/ tawalilo usultaani. ‘The two children of the late sultan loved very much this boy who had taken over the sultanship.’

Ye/ waliko muke wa mrehemula Saalehe. ‘She was the wife of the late Saalehe.’

rehema

n. [Sw. rehema ‘mercy, pity, compassion, fellow feeling’ SSED 398] mercy

Amma/ waana/ wa sku izi/ nthawaná/ nahrisi/ walá/ adabú/ walá/ rehmá. ‘Truly, children these days do not have pity nor manners nor generosity.’

reeli

n. 9/10 [Sw. reli SSED 398; Eng. rail] train; variant form: rayli

Mizigo/ yatakhsaafira/ ka rayli. ‘The loads will travel by rail.’

ndila ya reeli ‘train track’

chi-reenza (zi-)

n. [Eng. razor] razor

Atile ka chireenza/ shaati. ‘He used a razor to cut the shirt.’ (Phon. In this example, the instrumental prepositional phrase ka chireenza has been moved from its canonical position following the logical object and placed immediately after the verb. In this structure, the focus is on chireenza, which is pronounced with a pitch that is raised above the normal. Shaati has a pitch which may be lowered more radically than in the usual downstep intonation of neutral statements, but we had not actually done any detailed phonetic study of this matter. In any event, shaati is clearly accented. In the corresponding simple yes-no question, the out-of-focus shaati undergoes accent-shift: Atile ka chireenza/ shaati? In the emphatic yes-no question, both phrases undergo accent-shift: Atile ka chireenza/ shaati!? We found it difficult in GM’s pronunciation to determine whether there is actually any substantial difference between the simple and the exclamatory question in terms of the presence or absence of downstep intonation. This may be due to the fact that word order in the statement itself leads to an absence of downstep-intonation as such, even though as indicated there is lowering of the out-of-focus shaati.)

Atile shaati/ ka chireenza. ‘He cut the shirt with a razor.’ (Phon. The pitch of the accented syllable ree is downstepped with respect to the accented syllable shaa in this statement. The downstep is not present in the yes-no question: Atile shaati/ ka chireenza? In the exclamatory yes-no question (in GM’s speech), the downstep intonation is preserved, but there there is accent shift in both phrases. The pitch is clearly falling in sentence-final position: Atile shaati/ ka chireenza!?)

Atile shaati/ ka chireenza. ‘He cut the shirt with a razor.’ (Phon. Notice that our transcription does not distinguish the present sentence from the sentence above. Our transcription only indicates phrasing and the location of accents (since accent on the last word in the phrase is overtly marked, while the default penult accent can be inferred from the absence of a mark on the final vowel); it does not indicate precise pitch levels. In the present example, where there is focus on shaati, the pitch level on shaati is raised. Although in some cases, we have noted a radical lowering of a phrase following the focused phrase, we did not perceive the lowering to be radical here, though there is clearly lowering. In any case, the corresponding yes-no question to this sentence is clearly different from the sentence earlier: Atile shaati/ ka chireenzá? ‘Did he cut the shirt with a razor?’ The accent-shift in the last phrase shows that it is out-of-focus.)

Atiile/ shaati/ ka chireenza. ‘He cut the shirt with a razor.’ (Phon. This is a version of the preceding example where focus is on the verb. In a situation like this, where it is the initial phrase in the sentence that bears the focus, it is not clear to us how exactly how to characterize the prosody. There certainly is lowering of each of the two following phrases, but the overall prosody does not seem to us to be the same as a simple statement with downstep intonation. Furthermore, while often a phrase following a focused phrase seems radically lowered, this was not observed in the present example. More research is required on these prosodic matters. In the simple yes-no question, there seems to be accent-shift in both of the post-verb phrases: Atiilile/ shaati/ ka chireenzá?)

Ka chireenza/ atilo shaati. ‘It is with a razor that he cut the shirt.’ Or, with the addition of verb focus: Ka chireenza/ atiiló/ shaati. ‘It is with a razor that he cut the shirt.’ (Phon. It seems doubtful whether the preposed instrumental phrase can be used without pseudo-relativization of the verb: ??Ka chireenza/ atile shaati.) kana chireenza ‘like a razor’

Natile ka chireenzá/ shaati. ‘I cut with a razor the shirt.’ (Phon. The final accent triggered by the first person past tense verb does not extend past ka chireenza due to the fact that this phrase has been focused by being placed in Immediately After the Verb position. It is incorrect to pronounce this sentence Natile ka chireenzá/ shaati. It is possible to focus on the verb, in which the case the final accent does not extend beyond the verb: Natiilé/ ka chireenza/ shaati.)

Shfiniko ichi/ cha chigaango/ chinayoo maso/ kana chireenza/ tahaðara/ sichikhuúinde. ‘This lid of a tin has sharpness like razor, be careful not to cut you.’

reeri

n. 9/10 [Som. reer DSI 517] family, lineage

chibashirile kheeri/ chiweeke karka reeri [st.] ‘bring us news of happiness, keep us in the bosom of the family’

File Muusa/ reeri/ ivundishile. ‘As soon as Muusa died, the family broke up.’

Mahala yaa we/ beeló/ reeri/ nt^haku. ‘The place where you became lost, there is no family there.’ (A proverb, used to indicate that a person is just doing things that are fruitless, flailing about getting nowhere in his efforts.)

Muke/ nt^haná/ reeri. ‘A wife does not have a lineage/tribe.’ (A proverb.)

Naayé/ weele/ teena/ ni mooyi/ karka wa reeri. ‘And he became then one of the family.’ is this example correct karka wa reeri?

Ni habba/ want^hu wa mwiini/ hulooló/ ka reeri/ ziinginé. ‘It is small [the number of] people of Brava who marry into another family.’

reeri iniize [song] ‘the family rejected me’ reeri chihaba ‘a small family’

reerii mbovu ‘a bad family’

Omari/ ile ka reerii mbovu. ‘Omari came from a bad family.’

reerii nk^hulu ‘a large family’

reeri suura ‘a good family’

Hamadi/ ile ka reeri suura. ‘Hamadi came from a good family.’

Safiya/ lazile karka reeri/ inayo maalí. ‘Safiya comes from a family that has money.’

Takhaadira/ khpata mzelewe/ takhaadira/ khpata reeriye/ takhaadira/ kiiwa/ uyu/ ni m^wana wa fulaani/ ambó/ uyu/ ni reeri fulaani/ jisaa mi/ nam^wono maaziyé/ maaziye/ kana...reeri fulaani. ‘You can get his parent, you can get his family, you can know this is so-and-so’s child, or this is from so-and-so’s family, as I see him, his blood is like so-and-so’s family.’ (Said in explaining the proverb, Maazi/ ya muunt^hu/ hayaabahi. ‘The blood of a person is not lost.’ This proverb conveys the idea that a person’s characteristics can be seen in those related to him.)

Tamlangala/ takuhada uyu/ maaziye/ waawaye/ ni ^fkana/ fulaani/ fulaani/ tu/ ambó/ takuhada uyu/ ni ^fkana/ reeri fulaani/ ni ^fkana/ reeri fulaani/ maaziye/ uyu/ ni ^fkana/ fulaani/ ambó/ maaziye/ ni ^fkana/ Abdulkhadiri fulaani/ ndiyé/ so/ mzaaziló. ‘You will see someone, you will say this one his blood, his father is like so-and-so, so-and-so just. Or you will say this one is like such-and-such family, he is like such-and-such family, his blood is like so-and-so. Or his blood is like such-and-such Abdulkhadiri. Is he the one who gave birth to him?’ (Continuing the discussion of the proverb cited above.) (Notice how the noun fulaani ‘so-and-so’ forms a phonological phrase with a preceding noun: reeri fulaani, Abdukhadiri fulaani. This phrasing explains the lack of accent on the preceding noun and the shortening of the vowel in the noun reeri.)

Wabjaana/ wa leelo/ hawapeendi/ kuloola/ karka reeri/ zaawo. ‘Youth today do not like to marry inside their own clan.’

Want^u wa reri mooyi/ huloola/ ka reri yiyo/ iyo. ‘The people of one clan marry from this very same clan.’

resiiti

n. [Eng. receipt] receipt

Muunt^u/ chiwanayo resiiti/ ya chiint^u/ hukhaadira/ kuruda chint^u ichi. ‘If someone has a receipt for something, he can return this thing back.’

Naayó/ resiiti/ yaa yo/ uzilo zombo izi. ‘You have a receipt for which you have bought these things.’

Shati iyi/ mbashiizé/ resiitiye. ‘This shirt, I lost its receipt.’

chi-reeza

n. 7/8 (cf. chi-reenza) [Eng. razor] razor blade

Chireza ichije/ ni shkali. ‘That razor is sharp.’ (Cf. Zireza izije/ ni skali. ‘Those razors are sharp.’) chireza shkali/ cha Jee^laani ‘Jeelaani’s sharp razor’ (cf. zireza skali/ za Jee^laani ‘Jeelaani’s sharp razors’)

Inayoo maso/ kama chireeza. ‘It has sharpness like a razor.’

Uzile chireeza/ kuwamwole^la waana. ‘He bought a razor to shave the children(‘ heads) with.’

riba

n. [Sw. riba SSED 399; Ar. riban W 324] usury, high interest hujo riba mwene karka a^oabu [st.] ‘he saw in hell s.o. who charged excessive interest’ khpa^a riba ‘to pay interest’

Karka diini/ ya islaamu/ muunt^u/ kumpa muunt^u/ riba/ ni haraamu. ‘In Islam, for one to pay interest to someone is forbidden.’

Omari/ kaaziye/ yont^he/ ni khpa waant^u/ riba. ‘Omari, his entire job (all that he does) is to pay people interest.’

kh^tomolaa riba ‘to lend money at a high interest rate’ khtalaa riba ‘to lend money with interest’

Bangi/ zont^he/ schimpa muunt^u/ deeni/ hutalaa riba. ‘All banks, if they give a loan, charge interest.’

Komelopo ka ujee muké/ Sa’iidi/ chambiloowa/ chimwaambiló/ nii muke/ we/ tetee ribá/ umriwo/ hutakiikuta. ‘When he reached that woman, Sa’iidi was told, the one who told him was the woman, you have taken usury, in all your life you will not be satisfied.’

ribhi

n. [Ar. ribh W 321] gain, profit, benefit (This word is not used by GM and we did not record it during our research with MI.)

shpe ribhi ya tijaara/ cheepushe na khasaara [st.] ‘grant us profit from trade, keep us away from losses’

ri^oa n.[Sw. radhi SSED 393; Ar.] blessing, act of blessing or approving ri^owaana

n. approval

Mooja nawaape wo ri^owaana [st.] ‘may God grant them his approval’

ri^owaani

n. [Ar. ri^owān W 344] pleasure, delight (esp. in heaven)

Ma’ahsaaba/ na masheekhi/ ri^owaani/ ya mojiitu/ inawe ilu yaa wo/ wafafishiize/ risaala/ ya mojiitu/ ba’adi ya mtume Mhamadi.

‘Companions and scholars, may God’s satisfaction be on them, they spread God’s message after the Prophet Mohamed.’

ku-riðika v. [cf. Sw. ridhika SSED 393; Ar.] (riðishile) be content, pleased; agree to, with; be approved Abdurahiimu/ riðishile. ‘Abdurahiimu was pleased.’
Riðika. ‘Agree!’ Cf. Riðikaani. ‘(Pl.) agree!’ Siriðiké. ‘Don’t agree!’
Siriðikeeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t agree!’

ku-ri?ika (Ar. ra?iya, Wehr p. 344)

NOTE: Sw. does not have ridhika (given as etymo in CLE), but only the forms ridhi, ridhia, ridhisha, see SSED p. 393.

rel.

ku-riðikila v. appl. (riðikiliile) approve, be content with

Maamaye/ nt^hakuridhikila/ jisa Suufi/ shkorshowa na waawaye/ na kilasku/ chihada/ mwaana/ mpende chilaala/ choondroka/ mlumile chaala. ‘His mother was never content with the way that Suufi was being raised by his father, and every day she used to say: love a child if he is sleeping, if he is awake, bite your finger for him.’

ku-riðisha v. tr. (riðishiize) cause to be content, win the approval of Abdelaziizi/ mriðishize mwaana. ‘Abdelaziizi pleased the child.’

Daðalete kumriðisha waawaye. ‘He tried hard to win his father’s approval.’

Harusi iyi/ kama chiza kuwariðisha/ waant^hu/ wanaadamu/

itamriðisha muunt^hu/ mooyi/ tu/ na munt^hu oyó/ ndiyé/ mwajiitu. ‘This marriage, if it does not please people, human beings, it will please just one person and that person is God.’

Siwo/ mwana huriðishó. ‘He is not a child who would please.’

ku-riðishana v. tr. rec.

ku-riðishika v. tr. p/s.

ku-riðishiliza v. tr. appl.

Nt^haku/ yaa we/ takhfanyo kuwariðishilizá. ‘There is nothing that you can do to please them.’ review use of applied verb here

Omari/ mriðishilize Abdulwahaabi/ mwaana. ‘Omari pleased Abdulwahaabi’s child.’

ku-riðishilizanya v. tr. appl. rec.

Abdinuur/ na Ahmadi/ wariðishilizenye waana. ‘Abdinuur and Ahmadi pleased one another’s children.’

rel. nom.

u-riðikilo n. act of approving riiha

n. [Sw. riha SSED 399; Ar. rīḥa W 365] smell

variant form: riihi

Hasani/ hadiile/ ka Omari/ numbaani/ choolo/ chinakunuunk^ha/ rihi/ ya maṭuzi/ siwo/ naðiifa/ chooloche. ‘Hasani said at Omari house the toilet is smelling the smell of feces, it is not clean, his toilet.’

rihaani

n. sweet basil

chileteḷoowa miskhi na rihaani/ pokela siize izo nza jannaani [st.] ‘if you are brought a perfume or sweet basil, accept them, do not refuse; those are from Paradise’

mafta ya riháani ‘oil made from basil’

Rihaani/ ishkabilowi mṭuziini/ hununk^ha miskhi/ rihaani/ na mafta ya mshuungi/ hufanyilizoowa. ‘If basil is added to soup, it smells good; basil is also used to be make shoe polish.’

riihi

n. [Som. riix "rheumatism" DSI 519] rheumatism

Omari/ maamaye/ miilu/ na magoonji/ humḷaaza/ ka wiingi/ oshele ka dakhtari/ ambiila/ nayo rihi/ andikiila/aspero/ kilaa muunthi/ kunaa mbili. ‘Omari’s mother’s legs and knmees always ache her, she went to the doctor and was told you have rheumatism and was prescribed two aspirins a day to drink.’

- rihi n. [Ar. rīḥ "wind" W 364] flatulence, burping, and generally gas in the stomach
Alí/ waawaye/atila bawaasiri/ rihi/ ntʰamlawa/ skuu ntʰatu/ hatá/ dakhtari/ chivelwelata. ‘Ali’s father was operated on for hemorrhoids, gas did not come out of him for three days, even the doctor got worried.’
- rijaali adj. [Sw. rijali SSED 399; cf. Ar. verb rajila "to behave like a man" W 329] manly, a real man, brave, intelligent, clever Alí/ ni rijaali/ humsaayda/ waake/ ka dhibu. ‘Ali is a real man, he helps his fellow man in hardship.’
Hamiisi/ mara mara/ ni rijaali. ‘Hamiisi is at times a man.’
- ku-rima v. [Som. rimi "to make [a female animal] pregnant" and rimman "to be pregnant (animal)" DSI 519] (rimiile) conceive, get pregnant (esp. of animals)
Haliima/ rimiile. ‘Haliima got pregnant.’
Ngoombe/ Miini/ wakhti wa aarani/ schipelekowa maduriini/ kurima/ chimaliza/ ba’adi ya kuzaala/schirudoowa. ‘Cows in Miini, during the prosperous/productive season, are taken upcountry to get pregnant, and then after delivery are brought back.’
Ngoombe/ rimiile. ‘The cow got pregnant.’
Ngoombe/ zinakurima. ‘Cows are being conceived.’
Rima. ‘Get pregnant!’ Rimaani. ‘You (pl.) get pregnant!’
Sirimé. ‘Don’t get pregnant!’ Sirimeeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t get pregnant!’
- rel.
ku-rimana v. copulate (esp. of animals)
ku-rimisha v. tr. (rimishiize) impregnate Diwi/ na(ku)mrishiza ngoombe. ‘The bull copulated with the cow.’
Nuuru/ mrimishize Haliima. ‘Nuuru made Haliima pregnant.’
ku-rimishana v. copulate (esp. of animals)
ku-rimishika v. tr. p/s.
ku-rimishiliza v. tr. appl. (rimishiliize) make pregnant for, on Nuuru/ mrimishilize Suufi/ mwanaamke. ‘Nuuru got Suufi’s daughter pregnant.’
ku-rimishilizanya v. tr. appl. rec.
Nuuru/ na Omari/ warimishilizenyee wake. ‘Nuuru and Omari impregnated one another’s wives.’
ku-rimishoowa v. tr. pass.
Isa/ ni wakhti/ ya ngoombewa/ kurimishoowa. ‘Now is the time for my cows to be impregnated.’
Ngoombe/ nakurimisha. ‘The cow is being impregnated.’
ku-rimoowa v. pass.
Isa/ ni wakhti/ ya ngoombe/ kurimoowa. ‘Now is the time for cows to get pregnant.’
- rel. nom.
m-rimo n. 3
u-rimo n. 14
u-rimisho n. 14
- rimi n. pregnancy
- rimoorkiyo n. 9/10 [Ital. rimorchio] a truck with trailer for carrying goods
Alí/ lesele zoombo/ bidaa’a/ niingi/ ka gaari/ na rimoorkiyó/ zishkiziiza. ‘Ali brought a lot of goods, a truck and its trailer have been offloaded.’
- ripooti n. [Sw. ripoti SSED 400; Eng. report] report

- khpa ripooti ‘to give a report’
 Askari/ chishkila waardiya/ fijiri/ humpa ripooti/ mkuluwe/ khabari/ za masku/ stuushiló. ‘A policeman when coming off (lit. getting down) from guard in the morning reports to his superior about what happened during the night.’
- kh̄tomola ripooti ‘to issue, give a report’
 Askari/ chishkila waardiya/ fijiri/ hūtomola ripooti/ mkuluwe/ khabari/ za masku/ stuushiló. ‘A policeman when coming off (lit. getting down) from guard in the morning reports to his superior about what happened during the night.’
- kubiga ripooti ‘to make a report’
 Omari/ ripooti/ yaa ye/ peshelo steeshini/ ka poliisi/ ya kuwa Nuuru/ boozele/ iwele wanafaakhi. ‘Omari, the report that he took to the police station that Nuuru stole something was lit. became, a lie.’
- i-r̄iri in the expression:
ndila iriiri ‘a narrow or congested road’
- risaala n. 9/10 [Sw. risala SSED 397; Ar. risāla W 338] message chileeta risaala ndrat̄ila daghaali [song] ‘when you send a letter, complaining stops for me’ Mtume Nuuhu/ waliko tumiila/ na mojiitu/ keendra/ khkomeza/ risaala/ ka makh̄luukhu/ wa nt̄i izo/ karka wakht̄i/ oyo. ‘Prophet Noah was sent by God to go to take a message to the people of those countries at that time.’
nsomeelo risaala mbele mahuzuni [song] ‘when I read the letter I became sad’
- ku-ritha cf. ku-waritha [Sw. rithi SSED 400; Ar. warīta W 1060] inherit
- ku-riiwata v. [possibly connected to Som. reeb “to stop s.o. from doing s.t., to prevent s.o. from doing s.t.” DSI 516] (riweete) give a gift (i.e. riiwu, see below)
 rel.
ku-riwatoowa v. pass. (riweeta) (of a woman) to be given a gift (i.e. riiwu, see below)
- riiwu n. a gift a man gives to a widowed or divorced woman during the idda period (when she cannot remarry), as a token of his intention to marry her as soon as it becomes possible Keesho/ nt̄hakhupaa nguwo/ na riwú/ kumpelekela. ‘Tomorrow I will give you clothes and gifts to take to her.’
- riyaahi stomach) n. [Sw. riyahi SSED 399; Ar. riyāh, plural of rīh “wind, fart, smell” W 364] gas (in the
- riyaali found in stories) n. 9/10 [Sw. riyali SSED 399; Ar. riyāl W 370] riyal, a unit money (but now only Nuzilee chittá/ ka riyaali/ mooyi/ na riyaaliyé/ ni’iweshelé/ ilu/ ya chileembache/ chitaani. ‘I bought a [cow’s] head for one riyaali and his riyaali I put it on top of his turban on his head.’
Sa’iidi/ chimpa chizeele/ riyali mooyi. ‘Sa’iidi gave the old woman one riyal.’
Shpata thumuni ya riyaali. ‘He found an eighth of a riyal.’
- Siwo/ mbovu/ mp^h a riyaali/ mooyi/ nt̄^h akhupikila chaakuja/ na nt̄^h akhupa/ mahaJa/ yaa we/ kulaala/ haJa/ fijiri. ‘Not bad! give me one riyal, and I will cook food for you and give you a place to sleep until morning.’
- ku-riziqa v. provide for someone
 var. ku-’arzuqa
KiJa/ muunt̄u/ hum’arzukhó/ ni mojiitu. ‘Each person, the one who

- provides for him is God.’ (A proverb.)
Kiḷa/ muunt^hu/ humrizikhó/ ni mojiitu. ‘Each person, the one who provides for him is God.’
- rizqi [Ar. rizq W 336] means of living, sustenance, daily bread, food, edible things, anything that can be obtained (The z is probably devoiced immediately in front of the voiceless kh.)
Rizkhi/ ni makhsuumu. ‘Provisions are distributed by God.’ (A religious proverb that assures people not to worry, every one will get what God has prescribed for him as provision of food or money. The word makhsuumu is an Arabic word (although Chimiini speakers substitute kh for the original q in Arabic and add the final vowel) that is not generally used in Chimiini.)
Rizkhi/ naazó/ mojiitu. ‘Food or other resources, it is God who has them.’ (A proverb.)
Ye/ ondroshela/ oloshela nt^hakaani/ ki’imereḷa rizqi. ‘He got up and went to the garbage pile to look for his daily sustenance for himself.’
rel.
arzaaqi n. [Ar. arzāq W 336] sustenance (note that this Arabic plural form is used with the same general meaning as rizqi)
- robo n. [Sw. robo SSED 400] one-fourth, a quarter
robokiilo ‘a fourth of a kilogram’ Zinakuzoowa/ mbili/ ka robo riyali. ‘They are sold two for a quarter of a riyal.’
- robo[Ar. rub? W 322]
- rooḍa n. 9/10 [Ar. rauḍa W 367] Arabacism garden variant form: rowḍa
ma beina qabri ya Mtume na minb ari/ ni rowḍa ya janna janna kasaani khabari [st.] ‘between the Prophet’s tomb and the minbar/ there is the garden of paradise, listen ye to the story’
- roohaani n. sandalwood miskhi/ kana roohaani ‘as good smelling as roohaani’
- romatismo n. [Eng. rheumatism] rheumatism
- u-roongo n. [Sw. urongo SSED 506, sometimes heard for uwongo “falseness, falsehood, a lie, lies, untruth, deception, sham, fraud, delusion, pretence” SSED 532]
Liḷa/ ichiya/ uroongo/ huṭeenga. ‘If truth comes, lies stay away.’ (A proverb.)
- rooti n. 9/10 [Hind.] wheat bread
Chiwa’ulila rooti. ‘He bought bread for them.’
Fardoosa/ muzize Hamadi/ kula iziwa/ na rooti. ‘Fardoosa asked Hamadi to buy milk and bread.’
Kanaa we/ nakhsuḷa kishkiza uzitó/ we/ laazimu/ kuja haba/ rooti. ‘If you want to lose weight you must eat less bread.’
kuja rooti ‘to eat bread’ unga wa rooti ‘flour for bread’
- mu-rsali (mi-) n./adj.? 1/2 [Ar. mursal W 339] “messenger” prophet (It is not clear whether mursali is an appositive noun in the expression mtume mirsali or an adjective.)
Mitume mirsali/ ni ikum na nt^haano. ‘The messenger prophets are fifteen (in number).’
Mooja ka jaaha ya mitume mirsali/ hija ya mwaaka uyu faanya sahali [st.] ‘O God, for the sake of your messengers, make the pilgrimage easy this year’ mtume mursali ‘a messenger prophet’, mitume mirsali ‘messenger prophets’ (references a prophet chosen by God and given instructions in religion to communicate to the people; a prophet sent by God) ya piili amina mitume mirsali [st.] ‘the second (pillar of Islam) is believe in the sent prophets’

- ru'ya* n. [Sw. ruya SSED 403] dream
- ru'yatu hilaali* n. the sighting of the new moon
Ramaḏaani/ hufungoowa/ soomu/ sharti/ ka ru'yatu hilaali/ ya mweezi/ wa ramaḏaani. ‘In Ramadhan there is fasting, but the new moon of Ramadhan month must be sighted (before fasting begins).’
- rubta* n. [Ar. rabta "bundle" and rubt "binding" W 322] bundle (of cloth) variant form: rupta
- ku-ruuda* v. [Sw. ruda SSED 402; Ar. radda W 333] (rudiiile) return, come back; shrink Baaba/ rudiiile. ‘Father returned.’
Baana/ rudile chibuuku. ‘Baana returned the book.’
Baana/ mrudile mwaana/ kaawo. ‘Baana returned the child home (lit. To theirs – i.e. his parents).’
Chamura shpeteche/ kumruuda/ jisaa ye/ waaliko/ mukhtaa ye/ ilo nt^hi iyi. ‘He ordered his [magical] ring to return him to the way he was when he came to this land.’
Chiguwo/ chirudiile. ‘The cloth shrunk.’
Chikhutukulapó/ hakhuruudi. ‘When it takes you, it does not bring you back.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is: qabri ‘the grave’.)
Chilawopo numbaani/ kuruudake/ ni masku/ tu. ‘When he left home, his return was late in the evening.’
Chimtukula/ chimruda ka mwenewe. ‘He took him and returned him to his owner.’
Chiwona kuwaa nfuye/ ndiyé/ namrebo muhliwé/ kuruda numbaani. ‘She saw that this monkey was the one keeping her husband from returning home.’
Chizeele/ na mwaaná/ wachiruuda/ muyiini/ ka mamaye mwaana. ‘The old woman and the boy returned to the town of the boy’s mother.’
Dhibu ikhupisiló/ mojiitu/ sikhuruudile. ‘A difficulty that has passed you, may God not bring it back to you.’ (A saying.)
Endra kuzimu/ ruuda/ hupati/ jawabu iyo. ‘Go to the sky and come back, you won’t get anything.’
Haruudi. ‘He doesn’t come back (usually, as a rule). He wouldn’t come back. He won’t come back.’
Kheeri/ keendra/ kolko ikumi/ endra/ ruuda. ‘Better nine than ten (if it means) go and come back (to get the tenth).’ (A proverb.)
kuruda (chi)nume ‘to go backwards; to turn back’ Baaba/ rudile chinume. ‘Father changed his mind (lit. turned back).’
kurudaa numa ‘to put back, delay’ kuruda ka kaziini ‘to get back from work’
Mi/ ndrudile kiitú. ‘I returned home (lit. to ours).’
mp^haka/ ye/ nakurudo muyiini ‘while the cat was returning to the town’, or: mp^haka/ ye/ nakurudó/ muyiini (the latter example shows the effect of the Accentual Law of Focus which generally holds for pseudo-relative clauses and adverbial relative clauses but not for true relative clauses, i.e. head-modifier relative clauses)
Mp^hana/ schifakata/ schiruuda/ ka winginewe. ‘The rats ran away and returned to the others.’
Muke/ kumwona/ muhliwe/ rudiiile/ chihuzunika. ‘The woman, seeing that her husband had returned, grew sad.’
Mwiingine/ chihada/ la/ sichimuble/ walá/ sichimrude chisimaani. ‘Another one said, No! let us not kill him, neither let us return him back into the well.’
Ndru/ chiruda ka sarmala. ‘The relative returned to the carpenter.’
Ndruwé/ rudiilopó/ chimwona sarmala/ uko mlangooni/ namliindra. ‘When his relative returned, he found the carpenter there at the door waiting for him.’

Nguwo/ irudiile. ‘The cloth has shrunk.’
Nt^hale/ ilaziló/ hayruudi/ chinume. ‘An arrow that has left does not come back.’ (A proverb.)
Ruuda. ‘Return, go back!’ Rudaani. ‘(Pl.) go back!’ Rudani kiinu. ‘Go back to your place!’ Sirudeeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t to gabk!’ Sirudeeni/ kiinu. ‘(Pl.) don’t go back to your place!’
Rudani aqili ziinu/ ni/ waana. ‘Regain your senses, you children.’
Rudile peesa. ‘He returned the money.’ (Cf. Nt^hakuruuda/ peesa. ‘He did not return the money.’)
Sa’iidi/ chishkila/ ka mlongotiini/ chiruda kaa muke/ nuumbaani. ‘Sa’iidi climbed down the mast and went back to the woman’s house.’
Sirudeeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t come back!’
Spisiló/ haziruudi/ darbaṭila/ ziko mbeleyó. ‘The things that went by never come back, be prepared for the things that are ahead of you.’ (A proverb.)
Wachiruda na skunyi ziingi. ‘They returned with much firewood.’
Wachiruda waanthu/ wotte/ wanakhfuraha. ‘People all came back pleased.’

rel.

ku-ruudika v. p/s. able to be returned kurudikaa numa ‘to be delayed’

Haliima/ haruusiye/ irudishilee numa/ ka sababu/ kaawo/ yingile ta’aziya. ‘Haliima’s wedding has been delayed because at their house someone has died and people are coming to express condolences etc.’

Safariya/ mi/ irudishilee numa. ‘Me, my journey has been delayed.’

Zibuku izi/ haziruudiki. ‘These books cannot be returned.’

ku-rudiḷoowa v. appl. pass.

Munt^hu mzima/ harudiloowi/ limi. ‘An elder is not talked back to (lit. is not returned the tongue).’

Mweenzawe wa kaandra/ chirudiḷoowa/ kaaziye. ‘His first friend was returned to his job.’

Naank^hó/ ichirudiḷowa jisiwo/ hattá/ ichendroowa/ mahaḷa/ huviḷowa Iboholi yaa Waké. ‘Then it (a song) was repeated like this until they reached a place which is called the Pool of the Women.’ (Syn: Observe the two impersonal passive verbs in this sentence: ichirudiḷoowa ‘there was repeating’ and ichendroowa ‘there was going’.)

Su’ali iyo/ irudiḷiḷa. ‘That question was returned to.’

Yaa mi/ nk^hasiizó/ siwo/ hukhadirowa kurudiḷoowa. ‘What I heard is not something that can be repeated.’

ku-ruudila v. appl. return to, bring to, come back, repeat

Basi/ chizeele/ choondroka/ chi’irudila kaake. ‘Then the old woman got up and took herself back to her place.’

Chimruudila/ wachi’iisha/ karka raaha. ‘He remarried her [lit. returned to her] and they lived in comfort.’

Hadiileni/ ruudilá. ‘What did you see, say it again!’ Compare: Hadiileni/ ruudilá. ‘What did he say, say it again!’ (Observe the final accent in the imperative verb in these sentences; we have not explored this phenomenon.)

Hamadi/ mruudile/ salamu iyo/ mbujó. ‘Hamadi, return that toy/doll to your sister.’

Jeelaani/ chi’irudila kaake. ‘Jeelaani returned [himself] home.’

kurudilaa limi ‘to talk back’

Waana/ liini/ wachirudilo want^hu wazimá/ limí. ‘Children did not talk back to old people.’

kurudila mkono ‘(lit.) return the hand, i.e. hit back’

Haliima/ ni mtuuvu/ haṭá/ chibigoowa/ haruudili/ mkono/ degani/ kana maayi. ‘Haliima is calm, even if she is hit, she does not (lit.) return the hand (i.e. hit back), she stays as calm as water.'

Mubli/ chi'irudila kaziini. 'The man went back to work (lit. returned himself to work).'

Mwaana/ chi'irudila kaawo/ naa nyunyi. 'The boy returned [himself] to his home with the bird.'

Nakhaadirá/ khtumikila khalamuyo? Nthakhuruudila/ ba'ada ya imfhaani. 'Can I borrow your pen? I will return it to you after the examination.'

Ndrudilile chibuuku. 'He brought the book back to me.'

Nimrudilile ziina. 'I repeated the reading for him.'

Niwarudilile wenewé. 'I returned it to its owners.'

Shiinda/ kumruudila/ na kumlaṭa muke uje mwiinginé. 'He decided to remarry her [lit. return to her] and divorce that other wife.'

Si/ shtakanza ka kurudila kulangala darsi yaa yana. 'We will begin by reviewing yesterday's lesson.'

Sindruudilé/ ka numba iyi. 'Don't come back to me at this house!'

Sultaani/ chimrudile Sa'iidi/ maaliye/ yotte. 'The sultan returned to Sa'iidi all his wealth.'

Wachi'iruudila. 'They came back.'

Waawé/ mi/ niilé/ khurudila mwanaamkewo/ naawé/ nrudila maaliya/ yotte/ yaa mi/ khupelo kuwa ni mahari. 'My father, I have come to return to you your daughter, and you, give me all my wealth that I gave to you as dowry.'

We/ nfulahishizee nt^ho/ kaa we/ kundruudila. 'You have pleased me very much by your returning to me.'

Ye/ rudilile su'ali iyo. 'He returned to that question.'

ku-ruudisha v. caus. (rudishiize) have s.o. return s.t. (The causative form of the verb -ruuda is not used in connection to the meaning 'shrink'; one cannot say Hamadi/ rudishize chiguwo. 'Hamadi shrunk the cloth.')

Nuuru/ mrudishize mwaana/ chibuuku. 'Nuuru had the child return the book.'

ku-rudishana v. caus. rec. (wa-rudisheene) cause one another to return s.t.

ku-rudishiliza v. caus. appl.

Hamadi/ mrudishilize Iisa/ mwaana/ chibuuku. 'Hamadi had Iisa's child return a book.'

ku-rudishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (wa-rudishilizeenye)

Omari/ na Hasani/ warudishilizenye waana/ zibuuku. 'Omari and Hasani had one another's children return books.'

ku-rudoowa v. pass. (rudiiḷa) amali pashpo ilmu hurudoowa [st.] 'deeds (done) without knowledge are rejected (returned)'

Hadiya/ ha'irudoowi. 'A gift is not returned.'

Isa/ ni waqti wa kurudoowa. 'Now is the time to return.' (Phon. It is possible to put focus on the adverb without shifting the verb to pseudo-relative form: [issa/ ni waqti wa kurudoowa]. It is also possible to convey the focus on the adverb by putting the verb into pseudo-relative form: Isa/ ni waqti wa kurudoowá. 'Now is the time to return.' However, when the pseudo-relative form is used, there is no extreme emphasis on the adverb.)

Kolokowa mahaḷa/ ni sahali/ kurudoowa/ ni ta'abu. 'To go somewhere is easy, but to come back is difficult.'

kurudowaa numa 'to be put back, delayed'

Fadhi/ ya wazeele/ irudilaa numa. 'The meeting of the elders has been delayed.'

Mwaana/ chamura wote/ kurudoowa/ ilu ya mlima. 'The boy ordered everyone to return up the hill.'

safari isho kurudoowa 'a trip from which there is no returning'

rel. nom.

ma-ruudo n. return, the act of returning safari isho maruudo 'a trip from which there is no return' ma-ruudilo n. repeating, bringing back up ruuhaani (ma-)

n. [Ar. rūḥānī "spiritual, immaterial" W 365; Som. rooxan "beneficial spirit at the service of pious or holy persons" DSI 521] invisible angelic creature

ruuhu

n. 9/10 [Sw. roho SSED 400; Ar. rūḥ W 365] self, soul, spirit; oneself

Cheema/ huza ruuhuye/ chiwovu/ humershoowa. 'Something good sells itself, something bad has to be advertised.' (A proverb.)

Husuḷo khsaydoowá/ husimika ruuhuye. 'He who wants to be helped should put himself on his feet.' (A proverb.)

ka ruuhu/ na maalí 'with soul and money'

Mi/ tākhusaayda/ ka ruuhu/ na maalí. 'I will help you with soul and money – i.e. I will help you with everything I have, even my life.'

kana ruuhu 'like the soul'

Hamadi/ humpenda/ Khadija/ nakhsuḷa kumloola/ kana ruuhu. 'Hamadi loves Khadija, he wants to marry her very much (lit. like the soul).'

Humpeenda/ kana ruuhu. 'He loves her like (his) soul.'

khfanya ruuhuye 'make oneself'

Huseeni/ nakhfanya ruuhuye/ kana nthaku/ kanaa ye/ nakhfakarisha peesaze. 'Huseeni is making himself like there is no one like him, he is showing off his money.'

Omari/ nakhfanya ruuhuye/ taajiri/ naayé/ shiḷiingi/ nthaanayo. 'Omari is making himself out to be rich and he does not have a shilling.'

khfanyiliza ruuhu 'to pretend'

Bakayle/ ondroshele/ oloshele/ leele/ iwaani/ fanyilize ruuhuye/ kuwaa ye/ fiile. 'The rabbit left and went and slept in the sun, pretending that it was dead.'

khfilila ruuhu 'to die for something' khṭeleza ruuhu 'to play with oneself -- i.e. to deceive oneself, not behave responsibly etc.'

Muunt^hu/ shṭeleza ruuhuye/ hushalaayata/ aakhiriye. 'If someone (lit.) plays with himself (deceives himself, does not behave responsibly etc.), in the end he will have regret.'

khtilila ruuhu 'to revive someone's spirit for'

Mtilile Umurow/ mwaana/ ruuhu. 'He revived the child's spirits for Umurow.' (Syn. It is not possible to reorder ruuhu.)

khṭinda ruuhu 'to die [lit. to cut the soul]' khṭindika ruuhu 'to die [lit. the soul be cut]'

Omari/ ruuhu/ imṭindishile/ sa'a ikumi/ (za) masku/ ya arabiya. 'Omari died on Wednesday night at ten o'clock.'

khṭowa ruhu zaawo/ apa 'to lose their lives here' khtila ruuhu 'to revive someone's spirits'

Mtile Umurow/ ruuhu. 'He revived Umurow's spirits.'

khutaala ruhuuyo bila ya sababu [nt.] 'they take your life without any reason' kingila ruuhu 'to revive in spirits'

Imwingile ruuhu. 'He revived in spirits.'

kufa ka ruuhu 'to die for something' kurebela ruuhu 'to keep alive with'

Omari/ shshilaa ndala/ nthakuja/ chiint^hu/ nthangú/ fijiri/ ingile mgahawaani/ petee kuja/ habamooyi/ kurebela ruuhuye. 'Omari was hungry, he had not eaten anything since morning; he went to a restaurant and got a little food to keep him alive with (lit. keep his soul with).'

Liini/ shkhadiro khtawala ruuhuyé. 'He was not able to control himself.'

Maali/ hupatoowa/ ruuhu/ haypatoowi. 'Wealth is acquired, the soul is not acquired.’ (A proverb.)

mfanyiliize fidiya ruuhu na maaliye [st.] ‘[Abubakar] sacrificed for him [the Prophet] his self and his wealth.’

Mp^haka/ chooloka/ chilaaza/ ruuhuye/ mahaḷa yiiyo/ iyo. ‘The cat went and pretended to be asleep in the very same place (where he had before).’

Mp^haka/ fanyize ruuhuye/ leele. ‘The cat pretended to be asleep.’

Muunt^hu/ chimera chiint^hu/ humereḷa ruuhuye. ‘When one searches for something, he searches for himself.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ huḷḷa ruuhuye/ ka kanaye. ‘A man kills himself by his mouth.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ chiwa’ambila waant^huwe/ kistawisha ruhuzaawo/ kuvala nguwo suura. ‘The boy told his people to make themselves look nice, to put on nice clothes.’

Naawé/ leze ruuhuyó/ salaama/ chiliini. ‘And you put yourself to sleep peacefully on the bed.’

ndimi niiko naa we ka ruuhu na maali [song] ‘I am with you totally (with my self and my wealth)’

Omari/ mambile Hamadi/ chiza kuḷaṭa jawabu izo/ takhtukula ruuhuyo. ‘Omari told Hamadi don’t keave those things (or) I will take your soul out (i.e. kill you).’

ruuhu ichilawa nt^haku badiliye [nt.] ‘if you lose your life there isn’t another one’

Ruhuu mbovu/ niyubleeló/ dughaaghi/ muja waant^hu/ khuleteleelé. ‘The evil spirit, I killed it, the beast, the eater of people, I brought it to you.’

ruuhu/ na maali ‘soul/self and wealth’ (This phrase is used in expressions like kumsa’ida muunt^hu/ ka ruuhu/ na maali ‘to help s.o. with all one has, i.e. with personal efforts and with one’s money’. This expression is much used in Chimiini poetry; in this expression, ruuhu does not mean spirit, but life, the physical person, e.g. khtowa ruhu zaawo ‘to lose their lives’.)

ruuhu na maali mooja m’iptiliile [st.] ‘God afflicted him [Job] in his person/body (with many diseases) and in his property (wealth, which he lost)’

Ruuhuya/ iyele huz(u)ni. ‘My soul is filled with grief.’

Ruuhuye/ kamba yaa nk^huku. ‘His soul, spirit is like that of a chicken (i.e. weak, timid, soft).’

Ruuhuye/ nuumu/ kana yaa mp^haka. ‘His soul, spirit is hard like that of a cat (i.e. he does not die easily, like the proverbial cat with nine lives in English).’

Si/ shtamhafiḍa/ na shtamdhoora/ jisa muunt^hu/ humdhoru ruuhuyé/ na zaaydí. ‘We will protect him and we will guard him just as a person does to protect himself and more [than that].’

Skuwona/ ruuhu. ‘I haven’t seen a soul.’

Wake/ waturiza ruuhu. ‘The women were comforted in spirit.’

wanarude ruuhu ‘so that they get their strength back’

We/ laazimu/ kubarata kulangala ruuhuyo. ‘You must learn to take care of yourself.’

Wo/ hufanya kaazi/ khpata khsaayda/ wabli waawo/ na ruhu zaawó. ‘They (e.g. women) do jobs so as to get to help their husbands and themselves.’

Yaako/ ichikhushiika/ tomoza ruuhuyo. ‘When yours catches hold of you, get yourself out!’ (A proverb.)

ruhumu

n. mercy

raaḍi hulomboowa waana/ ruhuma ya kuzaloowa [st.] ‘they beg the children’s forgiveness and mercy for having brought them to life’

- ku-rujuma* v. [Sw. rujumu SSED 402; Ar. rajama W 329] (rujumiile) stone someone, especially for adultery; damn, revile, curse variant form: ku-rajima kumrujuma miizi ‘to stone the thief’ Ma’siyooole/ kurujumoowa/ ni diini/ haandikó. ‘The one who commits adultery is to be stoned, it is religion that prescribes (this).’
rel.
ku-rujumoowa v. pass.
chirujumoowa ye chilapizoowa [st.] ‘he was reviled (and) he was cursed’
- ku-rukhisisha* v. explore this verb
We/ hatá/ china habamooyi/ tu/ wo/ watakurukhisisha/ kaziini. ‘Even if you drink just a little, they will fire you.’
- rukhsa* n. [Sw. ruhusa SSED 402; Ar. rukṣa W 332] permission, authorization, permit, leave of absence Apo/ zamaani/ sulṭaani/ Harun Rashiidi/ tomele/ amri/ kuwa nt^haku/ rukhsa/ karka muuyiwé/ kashoowa/ mibeebe/ yaa muḷo/ walá/ kuḷaṭowaa ṭalá/ kaaká/ maskú. ‘Once upon a time king Haruun Rashiidi issued an order that there was no permission in the town for mibeebe of fire to be lit nor for lamps to be permitted to be lighted at night.’
khpa rukhsa [cf. Sw. pa ruhusa] ‘to authorize, give permission’ Chiwapa rukhsa. ‘He gave them permission.’
Mwanaamke/ chimpa rukhsa. ‘The girl gave him permission.’
Nakhsuulá/ we/ kump^ha rukhsa/ mi/ kugura kaaka/ mi/ na mukeewá. ‘I want you to give me permission to move to my own place, me and my wife.’
Sulṭaani/ chimpa rukhsa/ mwaana/ khkooḥa. ‘The sultan gave permission to the boy to talk.’
khpata rukhsa ‘to get authorization’ khṭomola rukhsa [cf. Sw. toa ruhusa] ‘to give permission’ kumera rukhsa ‘to seek permission’
Chimlaṭaa ndruwé/ kiingila/ kaa muke/ kumera rukhsa. ‘He sent his relative in to the woman to seek permission (to enter the house).’
Chisimama/ chimera rukhsa/ khkooḥa. ‘He stood up and sought permission to speak.’
Wachimera rukhsa/ ka sulṭaani/ khfunga safari. ‘They asked permission from the sultan to prepare for a journey.’
Nayo rukhsa/ kuvuta sigareeti. ‘He has permission to smoke.’
Nt^haná/ rukhsa/ kuvuta sigareeti. ‘He does not have permission to smoke.’
Nt^haku/ rukhsa/ sa’a iyi/ muunt^hu/ kumwolokela Harun Rashiidi. ‘There was no permission at this time for a person to go to Haruun Rashiidi.’
Shchipoowa/ rukhsa. ‘She [chizeele ‘old woman’] was given permission.’
Shpoowa/ rukhsa. ‘He was given permission.’ (Phon. The narrative past tense prefix chi is reduced to sh in front of a voiceless obstruent. This example contrasts with the preceding example, which derives from /chi-chi-poowa/, where the first chi is the subject prefix agreeing with a noun like chizeele ‘old woman’ and the second chi is the narrative past tense prefix. In this construction, the subject prefix reduces to sh in front of a voiceless obstruent, but the past marker cannot reduce since it is both preceded and followed by a consonant once the subject prefix has lost its vowel.)
- rukni* n. [Ar. rukn "support" W 359] pillar rukni ya taatu zaka ṭomolaani / na rukni yaa nne khfuunga Ramaḥaani [st.] ‘the third pillar [of the faith] : pay the zaka, and the fourth pillar is to fast during Ramadan'

Note: for difference between rukni = pillar and rukuni = customer, see my Etymos R

- ku-ruku'a* v. [Sw. rukuu SSED 395; Ar. raka'a, rukū' W 358] (ruku'iile) (cf. raka'a) stoop in prayer with hands on the knees
rel.
ku-ruku'isha v. caus. (ruku'ishiize)
- rukuu'u* n. [Sw. rakaa SSED ] the act of stooping in prayer with hands on the knees kendra ruku'u 'to stoop in prayer'
- rukuni* n. [cf. Ar. rukūn "reliance, trust, confidence" W 359; Som. rukun "1. habitual supplier; 2. habitual customer" DSI 522, which relates to Ar. rukūn "trust"] customer, client (synonym of maamili)
- ruum* n. rum
Khamrii mbili/ schifanyoowá/ Johaari/ dry gin/ na rúum. [H!H!H!H!H]
'Two kinds of liquor were made in Johaari (from the sugar cane grown there): dry gin and rum.' (That the initial phrase, khamrii mbili, is focused is shown by (a) the radical downstep on the next phrase and (b) the pseudo-relativization of the verb schifanyoowá. Why do we say that the radical downstep is evidence of focus on the initial phrase? The phrasal separation of the verb schifanyoowa from Johaari represents an emphasis on the verb. A non-relative emphasized verb is not downstepped, but rather exhibits declination. An emphasized relative verb does exhibit downstep.)
- rumaani* n. 9/10 [Sw. ramani SSED 395; Ar. rummān W 360] map
- rumaani* n. pomegranate
- rumaani* n. a kind of donut (buru), which may be either square-shaped or triangular-shaped
- chi-rumbiizi* (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kirumbizi SSED 205] a kind of game in which dancers 'fight' with sticks;
this word is nowadays replaced by chibangu
- rupiya* n. [Sw. rupia SSED 403; Hind.] rupee
- ku-ruruma* v. make a loud noise
Gari ya Omari/ chibuumbuche/ hururuma. 'Omari's car, its horn makes a loud noise.'
Gari ya Omari/ chibuumbuche/ hachirurumi. 'Omari's car, its horn does not make a loud noise.'
- rurumu* n. 9/10 [cf. Som. duddun, plural duddumo, with the variant duddumo 'termite nest' DSI 196] termite variant form: ndrundrumu
rurumu uyu/ iyi 'this termite' (cf. rurumu izi 'these termites') Ziwo/ zote/ zivaliko zijiila/ na rurumu. 'All of the books had been eaten by termites.'
- ku-rusa* v. [Ar. raṣṣa W 342] (rusiize) pile in order, place in order, stack up one on top of the other; crowd s.t. into variant form: ku-rasa kurusa majuuniya 'to pile sacks on top of one another in an orderly fashion' Muusa/ rusize majuuniya. 'Muusa stacked up the sacks.'
kurusa mipaaku 'to stack packages' Rusize waana/ mṭanaani. 'He crowded the children into the room.'
rel.
ku-rusika v. p/s.

- Majiwe/ hayarusiki. ‘The stones cannot be stacked.’
Mipaaku/ hurisika jisa suura. ‘Packages can be stacked well.’
ku-rusiliza v. appl. (rusiliize)
ku-rusisha v. caus. (-rusishiize) Muusa/ mrusishize mwaana/ majuuniya. ‘Muusa had the child stack up the sacks.’
ku-rusishana v. caus. rec.
ku-rusishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-rusishiliza v. caus. appl. (-rusishiliize) Muusa/ mrusishilize Nuuru/ mwaana/ majuuniya. ‘Muusa had Nuuru’s child stack up the sacks.’
ku-rusishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-rusishilizeenye) Muusa/ na Omari/ warusishilizenye waana/ majuuniya. ‘Muusa and Omari had one another’s children stack up the sacks.’
ku-rusoowa v. pass.
Mipaaku/ yanakurusoowa. ‘Packages are being stacked.’
- rushaani* (ma-) n. [Sw. roshani SSED 401; Pers.] balcony variant form: roshaani
Omari/ kalent^he roshaani. ‘Omari sat on the balcony.’
- ruusi n.
m-ruusi (wa-,na-) n. Russian chi-ruusi n. manner, way of the Russians; language of the Russians Laakini/ jisa aada/ ya chiruusi/ sababu/ walá/ ghardi/ ya waruusi/ kulusha qamari sinaa’i/ iyi nt^h aykiwishoowa. ‘But as is the custom of the Russians, neither the reason nor the goal in launching this satellite [lit. artificial moon] was made known.’
- Ruusya n. Russia
Breshnev/ leelo/ karka khuḡbaye/ wa’ambiile/ maruusi/ ya kuwa...ba’ada/ ya miyaaka/ miwili/ ruusya/ takhshiindra/ naṭakhpita/ ameerika/ ka killa chiint^hu. ‘Brezhnev today in his speech told the Russians that after two years Russian will surpass and overtake America in all things.’
- ruṭuuba n. [Sw. rutuba SSED 403; Ar. ruṭuūba W 345] dampness, moisture, fertility, humidity of the air; adj. fertile, moist nt^hi ruṭuuba ‘fertile, wet land, good for farming’
- ku-ruṭubika* v. be damp, moist, fertile
rel.
ku-ruṭubisha v. caus. (ruṭubishiize) make damp
- ruuya n. [Ar. ru’yā "vision, dream" W 320] dream variant form: ru’ya
kuwona ruuya ‘to dream’
- ku-ruzuqa* v. [Sw. ruzuku SSED 400; Ar. razaqa W 336] (ruzuqiile) supply with food, means of subsistence, a child, etc. (of God); grant as a favor (of God)
chiruzuqe khfakaṭa marwa na safu [st.] ‘allow us to run (between) Marwa and Safa’ mooja chiruzuqe sabri [st.] ‘may God grant us patience’ mooja chiruzuqe ziyaara zaawo [st.] ‘may God grant us [to celebrate] their anniversary days’ mooja ka jaaha ya mtume na Faaṭima/ chiruzuqe shahaada karka khaaṭima [st.] ‘may God, for the sake of the Prophet and Fatima, grant us [the opportunity to recite] the confession of faith at the time of death’ Mwajiitu/ mruzukhiile/ mtume Ya’aquuba/ waana/ ikum na mooyi. ‘God provided the prophet Jacob with eleven children.’

Mwajiitu/ nakhuruzuqa mwaana. ‘May God give you a child.’

mu-rzaamu (mi-) n. 3/4 [Sw. mizamu SSED 291; Ar. mizrāb "spout" W 375] drainpipe (The morphology of this and other examples parallel to it are contradictory. The fact that the plural form has the prefix mi- would indicate that this item consists of a class prefix and a stem -rzaamu. However, the diminutive and augmentative forms listed below indicate that murzaamu is the stem.)

murzamu mule ‘a long drainpipe’ murzamu uyu ‘this drainpipe’

rel.

chi-mu-rzamu (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-mu-rzaamu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

sa’a

n. 9/10 [Sw. saa SSED 404; Ar. sā’a W 441] hour, clock, watch, time (In Chimiini, a day (sku), when considered as a period of 24 hours, starts at 6:00 p.m. Therefore sa’a mooyi ‘one o’clock’ is equivalent to 7:00, either a.m. or p.m.)

Huwaakopi/ sa’a izi. ‘Where are they usually at this time?’

Ipisile sa’a mooyi/ sa’aa mbili/ sa’aa nt^hatu. ‘One hour passed, two hours, three hours.’

Isa/ ni sa’a nt^hatu za masku. ‘Now it is nine (lit. three) at night.’ Or: Isa/ ni sa’aa nt^hatu/ za masku.

Isa/ ni sa’aa nt^hatu/ za masku/ ni. ‘Now it is nine (lit. three at night), that’s what it is.’ Or: Isa/ ni sa’aa nt^hatu/ ni/ za masku. ‘Now it is three, that’s what it is, at night.’

kubigaa sa’a ‘to strike the hour’

Isa/ chinakuliindrá/ sa’a/ ya študiyo yíitu/ kubiga sa’aa nt^hatu/ za masku. ‘Now we are waiting for the clock of our studio to strike nine (lit. three) at night.’

kubiga/ kanaa sa’a ‘to tick, strike, throb like clock’

Chíta/ chinakumbiga/ kanaa sa’a. ‘My head is throbbing like a clock.’

kulla mo qalbiye yíiko kamba sa’a [nt.] ‘everybody’s heart beats like a clock’

Langaḷaa sa’a/ štakuraaga. ‘Look at the time, we will be late.’

maḷḷooya mawaazi sa’a na daqiiqa [nt.] ‘my eyes stay open for hours and minutes’

Mi/ nsomeelé/ sa’aa mbili. ‘I have read for two hours.’

Nch^hifanya kaazi/ sa’a/ ikum na naane/ kulla muunt^hi. ‘I used to work fourteen hours every day.’

Ndrinzile sa’aa nzimá. ‘I waited for a whole hour.’

Nimlinzile Jeeli/ muḷa waa sa’a. ‘I waited for Jeeli for an hour.’

ruuhu huliindra (ka) sa’aye na waqtí [st.] ‘the soul awaits its hour and time (i.e. its appointed time for dying)’

Sa’aa kamu. ‘What time is it?’

sa’a siḷa ‘noon (lit. sixth hour)’

sa’a siḷa za masku ‘midnight (lit. sixth hour of night)’ sa’a ya chiwovu pocket watch’

sa’a ya lkuta wall clock’

sa’a ya meeza ‘alarm clock’

sa’a ya mkono ‘wristwatch’

Sa’aya/ nt^haykhsimama/ nt^hangú/ itila lfuunguló. ‘My watch never stopped since it was wound up.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is khalbi or mooyo ‘heart’.)

kh-saa’ada

v. (cf. the more common Chimiini fom: khsaayda) help

m-saa’ada (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Ar. musā’ada W 411] help

Hupata msaa’ada/ ka wana waawo/ wako ndilaani/ khfanya kaazi. ‘They obtain help from their children who are away working.’

	Msa'ada waa mi/ mp^h eetó/ uwaliko mkulu/ kolko waa mi/ shfilaṭiló. 'The help that I got was greater than I expected.'
sa'ari	n. 9/10 [Sw. saari SSED 404; Ar. si'ri W 411] price; variant (apparently preferable) form: si'iri n. 9/10 Baabu/ mtile musaaji/ khpunguza sa'ari. 'Baabu made the seller reduce the price.' Chimuuza/ sa'ari ya eelo. 'He asked him the price of the gazelle.' Chuula/ ka Abunawaasi/ ka sa'ari/ yaa ye/ Abunawaasi/ sujiiló. 'He bought it from Abunawaasi at the price that he, Abunawaasi, wanted.' khpa sa'ari 'to set a price' khtila sa'ari 'to set a price' kuzida sa'ari 'to raise the price' Mgarwa/ wa'uziize/ watumishi/ nsi/ ka sa'ari/ yaa ye/ peenzeló. 'The fisherman sold the fish to the servants at the price that he liked.' Nthangú/ izidiila/ sa'ari/ ya nafta/ si/ shpeete/ khasara niingi/ na iwaaliko/ ahdi/ ilu yaa nthi/ za ch'arabu/ khsaaydila/ nthi za chi'aafrika/ ka ruuhu/ na maalí. 'Since the price of oil was increased, we have suffered a great loss, and it was a (binding) promise on the Arab countries to help the countries of Africa with soul and money.'
ma-saa'iba	n. [Ar. maṣā'ib W 529] calamities duniya nuumba ya masaa'iba na dhibu [st.] 'the world is the abode of calamities and hardships'
m-sa'iida	n. help Mi/ mbaliko nakulindra msaa'idá/ sa'a mooyi/ zaaydi. 'I have been waiting for over an hour for help.' Mi/ nakhtahaja msaa'idawo. 'I need your help.'
sa'iidi	adj. [Ar. sa'īd "happy, blissful, lucky" W 410] blessed, characterized by good things, good hopes, etc., good, nice Ali/ ni sa'iidi. 'Ali is good.' Na skuu nt^h atú/ ni ayamu sa'iidi. 'And three days are blessed days.' ni ayaamu sa'iidi, leelo muunt^hi wa iidi [song] 'it is days of goodness/good hopes, today iidi day' Numba iyi/ Omari/ imwelele sa'iidi. 'This house, Omari, it brought him good things/hopes etc. (e.g. this house that Omari bought recently has been something good, positive etc. for him).' Omari/ ni muunt^hu/ sa'iidi. 'Omari is a good man.' rel. -sa'iidi n. goodness Omari/ pete usa'iidi. 'Omari is a good man, has the best characteristics.'
sa'iiri	n. [Ar. sa'īr "blazing flame, hell" W 411] 'the fourth of the seven hells of Islam' sa'uudi	n. Saudi Arabia amiri ya sa'uudi 'the emir of Saudi Arabia' mamlaka ya sa'uudi 'the kingdom of Saudi Arabia' sab'iini	adj. [Sw. sabini SSED 404; Ar. sab'ūni W 394] seventy ab'ina keendra or sab'iini/ na keendrá 'seventy nine' sab'ina naane or sab'iini/ na naané 'seventy eight' sab'ina nthaaano or sab'iini/ na nthaanó 'seventy five' sab'inaa saba or sab'iini/ naa sabá 'seventy seven' sab'ina sitta or sab'iini/ na sittá 'seventy six'

sab'iini

n. a substance used traditionally used to treat hijaabu (rheumatism)

saba

adj., n. [Sw. saba SSED 404; Ar. sab'á W 394] seven, seventh

Apo/ zamaani/ waliko sultaani/ mooyi/ na sultaani/ oyo/ waaliko/ zaliila/ waana/ sabba. 'Once upon a time there was a sultan, and this sultan [lit.] was born to seven children.' (In this example, there was clear gemination of the b. However, this item does not behave like a CVCCV word: it regularly induces lengthening of the final vowel of a preceding word when it occurs phrase-final. CVCCV words do not induce such lengthening. This indicates that the gemination in the present example does not represent an inherent attribute of this lexical item.)

askarii saba 'seven soldiers'

ikumi naa saba 'seventeen'

muda wa skuu saba 'a period of seven days'

skuu saba/ kulla ayaamu 'seven days every week'

skuu saba/ stjimiilopó 'when seven days passed'

Sku yaa saba/ chiza kuðihira/ mi/ ni uje nt^hakhiliiló/ tu. 'On the seventh day, if he does not appear, I am the one who will just come to you.'

sku yaa saba/ karka wo/ wanakhindo skunyi 'on the seventh day while they were cutting firewood'

Sultaani/ wapeenzele/ waanawe/ wote/ shokuwa waa saba. 'The sultan loved all his children except the seventh.'

Wawaye mwanaamke/ wanaawo/ waana/ sabba/ wana sitta/ wateeta/ na sultaani/ oyo/ humkaható. 'The girl's father had seven children; six [of these] children had been taken away by that sultan who hated him.'

Ye/ loosele/ kuwaa ye/ wene ngoombe/ saba/ wanene/ nakuwajó/ ni ngoombe/ saba/ wambaamba. 'He dreamed that he saw seven fat cows and it was seven thin cows who were eating them.'

rel.

saba^{ta}ashara n., adj. seventeen

saba

n. review meaning

khfanyaa saba 'to perform, celebrate saba'

sababu

n. 9/10 [Sw. sababu SSED 404; Ar. sabab W 392] reason, cause

bila sababu 'without reason'

Chimaliza/ rudaani/ mp^hate kinaambila/ sababu yaa mi/ nfungiilo ruuhuyá. 'Then you (plural) come back so that I can tell you the reason that I have tied myself up.'

Chimindra Safiya/ sababu/ ye/ tamaniile/ na suliile/ nt^ho/ Safiya/ kuwa mukeewe. 'He waited for Safiya because he desired and wanted very much for Safiya to become his wife.'

Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ iyi/ ni sababu/ ye/ takhpito imtihaani. 'Hamiisi likes to read, this is the reason that he will pass the examination.'

Isa/ si/ chinaayo/ kuwa sababu/ ya mwaalimu/ kufa/ ndiwé. 'Now we believe [lit. have it] that the reason that the teacher died is you.'

Iyi/ yaliko ni sababu/ yaa mi/ ndraziló. 'This was the reason that I left.'

ka sababu 'because, for the reason'

Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ ka sababu iyi/ takhpita imtihaani. 'Hamiisi likes to read, for this reason he will pass the exam.'

ka sababu mweepe 'for some reason'

Siimba/ chighaðibika/ nt^ho/ ka sababu imkalile kuwa... 'Lion became very angry because it seemed to him that...'

ka sababu ya 'because of'

Ka sababu ya Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ ye/ takhpita imtihaani. 'Because Hamiisi likes to read, he will pass the exam.'

ka sababu ya mwanaamkewa 'because of my daughter'

Nakuḷa ka sababu ya uje nyunyí. ‘I am crying because of that bird.’
khutaala ruhuuyo bila ya sababu [nt.] ‘they take your life without any reason’ Mukhta mwaana/ komelo lfuwooni/ sultani Simsini/ sulile kumtinda chitache/ ka sababu zaa ye/ fanyiizó. ‘When the boy reached the shore, Simsini wanted to cut off his head because of what he had done.’
Nakuḷa ka sababu ya uje nyunyí. ‘I am crying because of that bird.’
Nt^haku/ sababu/ ya kaminoowa/ ya Hamadi/ huhadó. ‘There is no reason to believe what Hamadi says.’
Nt^hashkuwanaayo/ sababu yaa si/ ku’awaaóila. ‘We did not have reason to complain.’
Pashpo/ sababu/ mbishile/ nt^humbile ito iyi. ‘Without a reason, he hit me and perforated me this eye.’
sababu gani ‘why?’
Sababu/ ni mayti/ ya muunt^hu/ hurudoowa/ ka mojiitu/ jisaa yo/ yiikó. ‘The reason [why the dead are not cremated] is that the corpse of someone should be returned to God just as it is [no alterations are to be made].’
Sababu yaa mi/ khfuraha/ kila/ nch^hilangaḷa/ ka kuḷi/ ni ka khisa/ mi/ huwona/ kuwaa dhibu/ ije/ inepushile. ‘The reason that I rejoice each time I look to the right is because I see that those troubles (e.g. caused by the wife who had lived there) have avoided me.’
Sababu/ yaa ye/ ililo apá/ ni kumwona maamaye. ‘The reason that she came here for is to see her mother.’
Sababuye/ nini. ‘What is the reason?’
Siisi/ sababu gani/ uzizo gaariyé. ‘I do not know for what reason he sold his car.’
Ziwovu izi/ zotte/ stulushiló/ sababu ndimí. ‘All this evil that has happened is because of me.’

rel.

asbaabu n. [Ar. asbāb, W 392, the Ar. plural of sabab] pretext, justification, false reason

kh-sabiba

v. [Ar. sabba W 392] cause

Sababu/ ya safari/ iyi/ itaakuwa/ ni kumeera/ kuhila/ ba’adi/ ya mashaakili/ yasabibiiló/ makosanyó/ benaa nt^hi/ izii mbilí. ‘The reason for this trip will be to seek to solve some of the problems that have caused misunderstandings between these two countries.’

Takhsabiba mootiwa. ‘You will cause my death.’

rel.

kh-sabibila v. appl.

Chimaliza/ ba’ada ya maraḍi/ kumfanya ḍa’iifu/ na bardí/ kumsabibila maraḍi miinginé/ kaptani/ Ortes/ nt^hakuvuundika/ qalbi. ‘Then after sickness made him weak and cold caused him (to suffer) other diseases, Captain Ortes [still] did not become discouraged.’

Majini/ wamwenopo Sa’iidi/ wafurahiile/ nt^ho/ wafurahiile/ ka khisa/ wo/ wapeete/ fursa/ kumwangamiza/ na kumsabibila kharaabú. ‘When the djinns saw Sa’iidi, they were very happy, they were happy because they had gotten an opportunity to harm him and to cause him destruction.’

kh-sabibisha v. caus. (-sabibishiize) cause s.t. to happen

Yont^he/ yaa we/ takendro khfaanyá/ ni khsabibishiza wereeri/ niingi. ‘All you’re going to do is cause a lot of confusion.’

rel. nom.

m-sabibisha (wa-) n. 1/2

u-sabibisho n. 14

kh-sabiq

v. [Ar. sabaqa W 394]

saabiri

adj. patient

sabraani	n. patience Mi/ daa'imu/ ni sabraani/ mukhtaa mi/ nakihtajoo kuwá. 'I am always patient when I need to be.'
sabri	n. 9/10 [Sw. saburi SSED 405; Ar. ṣabr W 501] patience; alternative form: sawari (but this form from MI has not been confirmed) chiza sabri lawa nḡiini ya kuzimu [st.] 'if you do not (want to be) patient, get out from under the sky (i.e. this world)' Isa/ siná/ sawari/ yo yote. 'Now I have no patience whatsoever.' Iyi/ ndiyó/ yaa ni/ nsuliió/ tu/ laakini/ sabri/ ni suura. 'This is just what you (pl.) wanted, but patience is good.' Jeelaani/ waliko mwenye sabri. 'Jeelaani was patient.' ka sabri numa fanyūza sultaani [st.] 'due to patience, later he was made king' laazima sabri daa'imu/ amri ya Mooja Haakimu [st.] 'to always have patience is a must/ for it is the will of the Almighty' Matuundra/ humvivila mwenye sabri. 'Fruits ripen for the one who has patience.' (A proverb.) Nazo sabri za mtume Ayuubu. 'He has the prophet Job's patience.' Sabri/ huzala suukari. 'Patience produces sugar.' (A proverb.) Sabri/ ni lfungulo la faraji. 'Patience is the key to (lit. of) relief.' (A proverb.) Sabri/ ni sibiri. 'Patience is as bitter as sibiri .' (A proverb.)
kh-sabrisha	v. caus. (cf. sabri) Nafsi sabrisha. 'Cause the soul to be patient!'
saabuuni	n. [Ar. ṣābūn W 502] soap Saabuuni/ hufanyowa ka maftaatala. 'Soap is made from fat.'
sabuura	n. [Ar. sabbūra W 394] blackboard Nda naani/ sabura iyi. 'Whose blackboard is this?' Omari/ nakhpangula sabuura. 'Omari is erasing the blackboard.' Sabuura/ ipangushile. 'This blackboard has been erased.' sabura yaa ye/ andishiló 'the blackboard that he wrote on'
sabuuri	adj. most patient iyó ni tabii'a ya muunt'u sabuuri [st.] 'that is the behaviour of a most patient person'
sadaqa	n. [Sw. sadaka SSED 405; Ar. ṣadaqa W 509] alms, charity Chilomba sadakha/ chiloombó. 'She begged for alms, that's what she did.' Chingila kuloomba/ sadakha. 'He started to beg for alms.' Hupikaa zijo/ za sadakha. 'They cook zijo as sadaqa for the poor.' Huṭomola sadakha/ waant'u/ wotte. 'He gave alms to all the people.' khkomezā sadakha 'to give alms to the poor so that they may have the Quran read for their dead relatives' Mi/ ni muunt'u/ nakulombo sadakhá. 'I am a person begging for alms.' Mwaana/ chikhṭima qur'aani/ hufaanya/ sadakha. 'When a child completes the Quran (at school) he prepares food as sadakha .' Waana/ wachiruda kawo ziwooni/ naa mbuzi/ oyó/ ishanyowa sadakha. 'The children went back to their schools and that goat was given as charity.'
u-sadaqa	n. 14 [Ar. ṣadāqa W 509] friendship; [pron. usaadaqa or usaadakha]
sadaati (ma-)	(cf. sadiyi) [from Ar. plural form sādāt W 440] a synonym for mashariifu (= descendants of the Prophet)
kh-sadifa	v. [Sw. sadifu SSED 405; Ar. ṣadafa W 508] (sadifiile) coincide Haruusiye/ isadifile haruusiya. 'His wedding coincided with mine.'

kh-sadiqa	v. [Sw. sadiki SSED 405; Ar. ṣadaqa W 508] (sadiqiile) believe; [pron. khsadiqa or khsadikha] Abubakari msadiqiile Qumari [st.] ‘Abubakari believed the Prophet’ makhluuqu kuwa haadithi we khsadiqa [st.] [that] creatures are not eternal, believe [that]’ sadiqa qowli ya mtume Amiini [st.] ‘believe the sayings of Prophet Mohammad’ ya taano amri ya qiyaama sadiqa [st.] ‘the fifth point, believe the fact of the life hereafter’
saadiqi	adj. [pron. saadiqi or saadikhi] munt^hu saadiqi ‘one who tells the truth’ Ye/ waliko saadiqi/ ka yaa ye/ hadiiló. ‘He was truthful in what he said.’
Safa	n. one of two hills, now located in the Masjid al-Haram in Mecca, between which Muslims go back and forth seven times during the pilgrimages Hajj and Umrah (the other hill is Marwa) chiruzuqe khfakata Marwa na Safa [st.] ‘allow us to run (between) Marwa
l-safa (safa)	n. [Ar. ṣaff "aligning or arranging in a line or row" W 516] line, row kingilaa safá or kingila safaaani ‘to get in line’ kubiga lsafo ‘to form a row, line’ kubigaa safá ‘to form rows, lines’ kulawaa safá or kulawa safaaani ‘to come out in lines’ Ma’askari/ wamoo safá (or: wamo safaaani). ‘The soldiers are in rows.’ Safa/ ni chiogobe. ‘The lines are short.’ Safa/ nii ndre. ‘The lines are long.’
ma-saafa	n. [Ar. masāfa "distance" W 442] distance Apa/ haṭá/ Miini/ ni masafa chihaba. ‘From here to Brava is a short distance’ Apa/ haṭá/ Miini/ nt^hamu/ masaafa. ‘From here to Brava there is no distance – i.e. it is just a short distance from here to Brava.’ Apa/ haṭá/ Miini/ yimo masaafa. ‘From here to Brava there is a distance – i.e. it is a long distance to Brava.’ Ba’ada yaa si/ kiineendra/ masaafa/ chimwene eeló/ mkulu/ msuura. ‘After we walked some distance, we saw a gazelle, large and beautiful.’ Bila khfikira/ Haaji/ chirasha chidila cha hoola/ na ba’ada ya kinendra masaafa/ malé/ ofeetopó/ shpandra ilu yaa muti/ khpumula. ‘Without thinking, Haaji followed the path for animals and after walking a long distance, when he got tired, he climbed a tree to rest.’ khṭinda masaafa ‘to run, walk for a long time’ Ba’ada ya khṭinda masaafa/ sungura/ chireptama teena. ‘After walking for a long time, Rabbit stopped again.’ Muunt^h/ oyo/ waṭiinzle/ masaafa/ makulu/ hattá/ wakomeele/ mahala/ iwaalikó/ mlima/ mkulu/ na wachiwonaa ndila/ inakeendró/ ndani mwandaani. ‘That day, they walked a long distance until they reached a place where there was a large hill and they saw the road that was going in and in.’ Omari/ tinzile masaafa/ miingi. ‘Omari walked for a long distance.’ masafa miingi ‘a long distance’ Ndovu/ ba’ada ya khṭinda masaafa/ tulushile/ file. ‘The elephant, after running for a long time, fell down and died.’ Masaafa/ benna Mkhodiisho/ na Mwiini/ ni kilometri 200. ‘The distance between Mogadishu and Brava is 200 kilometers.’ masafa chihaba or masaafa/ chihaba ‘a short distance’ Masaafa/ hinendroowa. ‘It is some distance that is required to be walked.’ masafaa male or masaafa/ male ‘a long distance’ masafa miingi or masaafa/ miingi ‘a long, great distance’ masaafa/ yiimo ‘there is a distance in between’

Mp^haamp^ha/ chanza koowe^la/ owelee^le/ naa nfuye/ mungooni/ kaake/ muda wa masaafa. ‘The shark began to swim; he swam with the monkey on his back for some distance.’

Niineenzelé/ masaafa/ ha^tá/ nk^homeelé/ maha^la/ iwaliko nuumba/ mooyi/ tu. ‘I continued walking some distance until I reached a place, there was just one house there.’

N^hamu masaafa. ‘There is not much distance.’

Wachiineendra/ jis’iyo/ muda/ wa masaafa. ‘They walked that way for quite a distance.’

safaara

n. [Ar. sifāra W 413; cf. Som. safaarad DSI 530] embassy safari

n. 9/10 [Sw. safari SSED 406; Ar. safar W 413] trip, journey, traveling

Ba’adi yaa ye/ kumnoola/ uko/ uko/ ichimshika safari/ kendra maha^la. ‘Some time after marrying her, he had to take a trip to go somewhere.’

Endrá/ mwaambile/ kuwaa we/ rudilo ka safariini. ‘Go and tell him that you have returned from the trip.’

Haliima/ safariye/ itete muunt^hi/ mzima. [HHH!H] ‘Haliima’s trip took an entire day’ kendra safari ‘to go on a trip’

Mgeeni/ takendra safari. ‘The stranger/guest will go on a trip.’

kendrowa safari ‘(for) a trip, journey to be gone on’

Safari/ itakendrowa na mgeeni. ‘A trip will be gone on by the guest.’

khfanya safari ‘to go on a trip’

khfunga safari ‘to set out on a journey’

Huseeni/ na mwanaamké/ washfunga safari/ wachisaafira. ‘Huseeni and the girl set out on a journey, they took off.’

Shfunga safari/ chilawa/ karka muuyi/ oyo. ‘He set out on a journey and got out of that town.’

kuwamo safariini ‘to be ready to travel, to be traveling shortly’

Mp^ha peesa/ ningilile safari. ‘Give me money so that I can get provisions for the trip.’

Miini/ ha^tá/ Mkhodiisho/ ni sa’aa kamu/ safariye. ‘Brava to Mogadishu is how many hours its travel?’

Muunt^hu/ mooyi/ funzile safari/ kooloka/ muyi mwiingine. ‘A man got ready to travel to another town.’

Na khfanyilizoowa/ zaakuja/ zaa wo/ kingilila safari. ‘And to be prepared for them food to use as provisions on the journey.’

Oyo/ sirize/ ¹niingi. ‘That one, his secrets are too many! (He does not share what is inside him.)’

safari iyi ‘this trip’

Safari/ sku izo/ iwaliko suura/ ghaaya/ naawó/ wotte/ wa’istereheele. ‘Traveling those days was very good and they all enjoyed themselves.’

Safari/ ya kuraaga/ nda tijaara. ‘A delay in traveling (may be) a blessing (lit. a profitable commercial transaction).’ (A proverb that takes the point of view that perhaps when one is delayed in undertaking some action, God meant that delay to happen, and something good will arise from it.)

Safari ya Makka inaayo faa’ida/ kulanga^loowa Ka’ba ni ibaada [st.] ‘the journey to Mecca is beneficial, just looking at the Ka’ba is an act of worship’ safari yiingine ‘another trip, another time’

Safariya/ mi/ irudishilee numa. ‘My journey, me, has been delayed.’

Safari yituu/ ituykile sku niingi. ‘Our trip took many days.’

safariyo ‘your trip’; safarizo ‘your trips’

Safarizo/ ¹niingi/ we. ‘Your travels are too many, you.’ (The superscript upwards pointing arrow in this example indicates that the predicate adjective niingi is radically raised in pitch, such that its pitch is clearly higher than the initial accented syllable, which is usually the pitch peak. The pronominal element we is radically lowered in pitch, which we do not specifically mark, as it would seem to be predictable from the extreme raising on the preceding phrase.)

	Sk u yaa tatu/ mzeele/ rudiile/ ka safariini. ‘On the third day, the old man returned from his trip.’
safha	n. page of a book
saafi	adj. [Sw. saafi SSED 405] clean, pure, clear, good kumkhuduma mwaana/ na ikhlaasi/ na niya saafi ‘to obey the boy with loyalty and pure intention’ Limi/ ni chinama/ chisaafi/ yaa ye/ nakhsuuló/ huhada. ‘The tongue is a small piece of pure (lit. clean) flesh, whatever it wants, it says.’ (The speaker here is explaining the proverb: Limi/nth^haliná/ mwishpa. ‘The tongue does not have a bone.’ The speaker is saying that the tongue consists of just flesh and says whatever it like, true or false. If the tongue had a bone in the flesh, it would be constrained in what it could say.) (Observe the use of the [cl.1] pronoun ye and the null subject marker on the relative verb nakhsuuló which the ye triggers. In other words, the sentence personifies the tongue: whatever he wants, he says.) mafta saafi ‘pure oil’ mafta ya sehemu/ masaafi ‘clear, pure ghee’ mayi saafi ‘clean water’ Maayi/ ya chisima/ ichi/ masaafi/ kana/ ya bomba. ‘The water of this well is as clear as tap water.’ Maayiye/ masaafi/ na maladá. ‘Its water (of a river) was clean and fresh.’ na niya saafi khutila jannaani [st.] ‘and pure intentions will take you to Paradise’ saafi/ kamba uki ‘as pure as honey’ saafi/ kana chilolo ‘as clean, clear as glass’ saafi/ kana chisiinga ‘as clean, clear as a chisiinga (a type of plate, bowl)’ Uki msaafi/ nii dawa. ‘Pure/clear honey is a remedy.’ rel. u-saafi n. 14 cleanliness, purity
safihi	adj. [Sw. safihi "impudent, bold, shameless" SSED 405; Ar. safih “foolish, silly, incompetent” W 414] s.o. who has a loose tongue; a squanderer; s.o. abusive, disrespectful, insulting, insolent (Note that while Sw. has a verb safihi related to this adjective, there is no such verb used in Chimiini.) kuwa safihi ‘to be a squanderer’ Mi/ kila/ cheendra/ numba/ iwaliko lpandre la kubli/ nch^hiwonaa dhibu/ ka khisa mukeewa/ walimo numba uyó/ waliko muke mwovu/ safihi/ limiile/ lwovu. ‘Every time I went to the house that was on the right side, I used to see difficulties, because my wife who was in that house was an evil woman, insolent, her tongue was bad.’ munt^hu safihi ‘a loose-tongued person’; want^hu (ma)safihi ‘loose-tongued people’ Simpé/ maaliyo/ munt^hu safihi. ‘Don’t give your wealth to a squanderer.’
u-safihi	n. 14 khfanya usafihi ‘to have a loose tongue, to insult people shamelessly’ khfanyiliza usafihi ‘to insult someone shamelessly’
kh-saafira	v. [Sw. safiri SSED 406; Ar. safara W 412] (safiriile) travel (Phon. This verb is one of many which illustrates a major difference between Swahili and Chimiini; whereas a verb borrowed from Arabic in Swahili routinely ends in a vowel other than a , in Chimiini the final vowel is regularly a , just as in native words.) Haaji/ mweenzawe/ Abdi/ husafira ka wiingi. ‘Haaji’s friend Abdi travels a lot.’ Or: Haaji/ mweenzawe/ Abdi/ husafira niingi. Or: Haaji/ mweenzawe/ Abdi/ husafira ntho. Husaafira. ‘They travel.’ Mi/ sinakishkila/ nth^hakhsafira na Huseeni/ kendra naaye/ mahalaa ye/ takeendró/ kumera mkulé. ‘I will not disembark (from the ship), I will travel with Huseeni to go with him where he will go to look for his older brother.’

Mubli/ chimwambila mukeewe/ basi/ chisaafire/ cheendre/ nt^{hi} iyo. ‘The husband said to his wife: so, let us travel and go to that land.’

Mukhtaa ye/ leesejá/ sultani ðaalimu/ chimwaambila/ mubliwo/ safiriile/ na hachiisi/ ye/ takuruda liini/ laakini/ we/ leelo/ takisterha naami/ apa/ numbaani. ‘When she was brought, the unjust sultan said to her: your husband has travelled and we do not know when he will return, but you today will rest here with me in my house.’

nchisuḷa khsaafira ‘if you (pl.) want to travel’

Nnakhsaafirá/ leelo. ‘I am leaving on a trip today.’ (Cf. Nakhsaafira/ leelo. ‘He is leaving on a trip today.’)

Sho khsaafira/ ni Shekh Abu Gaawo. ‘The one who never travelled is Sheikh Abu Gaawo.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Si/ chisafirile Mwiini. ‘We traveled to Brava.’

Sultaani/ mukhtaa ye/ iwiiól/ kuwa mgarwá/ safiriilé/ shtuma/ watumishiwe/ keendra/ kumtukulaa muke/ wa mgarwa/ kumleta kaake. ‘When the sultan knew that the fisherman had travelled, he sent his servants to go to carry the wife of the fisherman and bring her to his place.’

Wachisaafira/ nt^ho/ nt^{hi} zingine. ‘They used to travel a lot to other countries.’

Waana/ wasafirile na wawa yaawo. ‘The boys travelled with their father.’

Ye/ safirile sku niingi. ‘He travelled many days.’

rel.

kh-safirila v. appl.

ki’isafirila ‘to take oneself off on a journey’ (Phon. Observe that the infinitive prefix ku is altered to ki in front of the reflexive prefix.)

kulundra jahazi/ khsafirila ‘to build a boat to travel with’

kh-safirisha v. caus. (safirishiize) make someone depart, travel; help, provide the means for someone take a trip; send, provide a load for a vehicle to take someplace; drive a car or truck (as a job)

Burhaani/ msafirishize Ali. ‘Burhaani provided the means for Ali to travel, or persuaded/ coerced etc. Ali to travel.’ (A periphrastic causative may be used as an alternative, but only in the sense of persuade/ coerce: Burhaani/ mtile Ali khsaafira.)

Fulaani/ humsafirishó/ ni Huudi. ‘The so-and-so who made him travel (and trade so that they might get a profit) was Huudi.’

Fulaani/ husafirisha gaari. ‘So-and-so drives acar (as his job).’

Ji/ msafirishize mwaana/ maduriini. ‘Ji sent the child to the country.’

kumsafirisha Hindo ‘to cause Hindo to travel (e.g. by providing assistance of some sort to her)’

Msafirishize na waanawe. ‘He made him depart with his children.’

Safirishize gaari. ‘He drove a truck (i.e. that was his job).’ or ‘He provided a load for the truck.’

kh-safirishana v. caus. rec.

kh-safirishiliza v. caus. appl.

Hinda/ msafirishilize Abdallah/ mwaana. ‘Hinda help Abdallah’s child to take a trip.’

kh-safirishoowa v. caus. pass. (safirisiiza) kh-safiroowa v. pass. (safiriila) be travelled Isafirila na mapeema. (There is no English sentence that corresponds well with this type of sentence, which we can refer to as an impersonal passive, lit. ‘It was travelled early.’)

Masku/ mazimaye/ washfanya kaazi/ jisa fijiri/ khsafiroowa. ‘The whole night they worked so that in the morning they could travel [lit. to be traveled].’

Mi/ nt^haasá/ laazimu/ khkasa kana ni amaani/ khsafirowa Miini. ‘I have yet to hear (still must hear) whether it is safe to travel to Brava.’

Mwiini/ isafirila. ‘Brava was traveled to.’

rel. nom.

- u-saafiro* n. 14 [Sw. usafiri xxx] journeying, traveling
- safiiri* n. [Ar. safir W 413; cf. Som. safiir DSI 530] ambassador; embassy Tafaðali/ nakhsula kendra ka safiiri/ wa Amerikanó. ‘Please, I need to go to the American embassy.’
- m-saafiri* (wa-) n. 1/2 [Sw. msafiri SSED 406] traveler
Ishondre ikulu/ nda msaafiri. ‘The large lump of faeces is from the traveler.’ (A proverb.)
Msaafiri/ ni maskiini/ hatá/ chiwa sulṭaani. ‘A traveler is a poor person even if he is a king.’ (A proverb.)
Mwenye ngamiila/ chimuza msaafiri. ‘The owner of the camel asked the traveler.’
Na waant^hú/ wasaafiri/ daa’ima/ chiwa wanakhpita/ hukalaant^ha/ apo/ khtala maayi/ na kunsha hola zaawó/ maayi. ‘And people, travelers, every time when passing, they stay there to fetch water and to give their animals water to drink.’
Ni mzeelé/ msaafiri/ ða’iifu/ nt^ho/ maskiini. ‘I am an old man, a traveler, very weak, poor.’
Sa’iidi/ mfuturishize msaafiri. ‘Sa’iidi provided food for the traveler to break fast.’
- u-saafiro* n. 14 [Sw. usafiri SSED 406] journeying, traveling
- kh-saafisha* v. [Sw. safisha SSED 405; Ar. ṣafa W 519] (safishiize) clean, purify Chisu cha Hasani/ nakhsaafishó. ‘It’s Hasani’s knife that I am cleaning.’ Answers the question: which knife are you cleaning?)
Nnakhsafisha chisu cha Hasani. ‘I am cleaning Hasani’s knife.’ (Answers the question: what are you doing?)
Nnakhsafisha chisú/ cha Hasani. ‘I am cleaning Hasani’s knife.’ (Answers the question: what thing of Hasani’s are you cleaning?)
Nnakhsaafishá/ chisu cha Hasani. ‘I am cleaning Hasani’s knife.’
Nnakhsaafishá/ chisu cha Hasani/ chaa mi/ hupeendó. ‘I am cleaning the knife of Hasani that I like.’
Nnakhsaafishá/ chisu cha Hasani/ waa mi/ hupeendó. ‘I am cleaning the knife of the Hasani that I like.’
Nnakhsafisha chisu chaa mi/ hupeendó/ cha Hasani. ‘I am cleaning the knife that I like of Hasani’s.’
Nnakhsafisha chisu=ch-é/ Hasani. ‘I am cleaning Hasani’s knife.’ (Our consultant GM accepted the order NP-possessive NP, with the two NP’s being in separate phonological phrases. He did not accept Nnakhsafisha chibukuche Hasani. This construction, where the possessive NP precedes the possessor in the same phonological phrase is one that Mohammad Imam used. It was also observed in texts that he collected, probably from relatives.)
Nnakhsafisha chisuu=ch-é/ Hasani. ‘I am cleaning his knife, Hasani’s.’ (Notice that in this example, there is focus on chisuuche, which prevents the final accent from projecting onto Hasani. This contrasts with the case where Hasani precedes chisuuche, where Hasani cannot be focused. See below for discussion. It appears that in the construction Hasani/ chisuuche or its variant chisuuche/ Hasani, it is only the possessed NP or the entire construction that can be focused.)
Nnakhsafisha chisuuché/ Hasani/ chaa mi/ hupeendó. ‘I am cleaning his knife (the one of) Hasani which I like.’
Nnakhsafisha Hasani/ chisuuché. ‘I am cleaning Hasani’s knife.’ Or:
Nnakhsaafishá/ Hasani/ chisuuche. (It does not appear grammatical to say: Nnakhsafisha Hasani/ chisuuche. In other words, in the construction Hasani/ chisuuche it is not possible to focus Hasani to the exclusion of chisuuche. Notice that this contrasts with the construction chisu cha Hasani, where one may focus on chisu to the exclusion of Hasani. See examples above.)
Nnakhsafisha Hasani/ chisuuché/ chaa mi/ hupeendó. ‘I am cleaning Hasani’s knife (the one) that I like.’

- Nt^hakhsaafisha/ nuumba. ‘She did not clean the house.’
Saafisha. ‘Clean!’ Safishaani. ‘(Pl.) clean!’ Sisafisheeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t clean!’
Safishani khalbi. ‘(Pl.) purify the heart!’ Sisafisheeni/ khalbi. ‘(Pl.) don’t purify the heart!’
Safishize nuumba. ‘She cleaned the house.’
Wa’ingile kaziini/ khsafisha nuumba. ‘They began to clean the house.’
rel.
kh-safishoowa v. pass.
nuumba/ imalizopo khsafishoowá ‘when the house was finished being cleaned’
- safiito n. [Ital. soffitto; cf. Som. safiito "sheet of plywood used to line ceilings" DSI 530] plywood sheets to line ceilings; variant form: sofiito
- saghaare n. [Som. sagaaro "small antelope, dik-dik" DSI 530] a type of gazelle check whether gh is velar fricative
- kh-saghiirata v. [Som. saqiir "to die in infancy" DSI 536] (saghiirete) die at an early age (of a child); variant form: khsakhiirata
rel. nom.
u-saghiirato n. the death of a child
- saghiiri n. [cf. Sw. saghiri "small, little, youngest" SSED 406; cf. Ar. ṣagīr "little" W 516] an infant who has died in childbirth saghiiri mzelewe sho khtjinda wakhlaali [st.] ‘the parents of a dead child who do not perform the wakhlaali ceremony’ taala sabri chifa mwaana saghiiri [st.] ‘be patient if you have a child who dies in childbirth’
- kh-sagula v. [??Sw. sugua "scrub, clean by rubbing" SSED 438] (sagiile) steal or come and eat someone’s share of s.t.; (e.g. a visitor coming and eating s.t. that was set aside for another) kumsagula Nuuru ‘to eat Nuuru’s share’
rel.
kh-sagulika v. p/s. able to have one’s share taken from one Nuuru/ hasaguliki. ‘Nuuru cannot be robbed of his share.’
- saha adj. [Sw. sahih SSED 407; Ar. ṣahḥa "to be correct, true" W 503] correct, exact, right Abú/ ni saha/ kuwaa si/ ni laazimu/ kulindra habamooyi/ dakhikha/ zaaydi. ‘Abu is right that we should wait for a few more minutes.’
As.habul kahfi/ wawaaliko/ ni waant^hu/ adadi yaawo/ saha/ hayisoowi. ‘The companions of the cave were people whose whose number is not exactly known.’
Hamadi/ ni saha/ kuhada/ kuwaa we/ laazimu/ kumera raaði/ ka Faaṭima. ‘Hamadi is right to say that you should apologize to Faaṭima.’
Hamadi/ ni saha/ kuwa Haliima/ nayoo ndila/ khtala wakhtjiwe. ‘Hamadi is correct that Haliima has the right to take her time.’
Iyo/ ni saha. ‘That’s right.’
koði ya saha ‘exact words’
Mi/ haamina/ ziint^hu/ khfanyowa kaa ndila/ saha. ‘I believe in doing things the right way (lit. things being done the right way).’
Mi/ ni sahá/ kuwa nt^hachiná/ ndila yiingine. ‘I am right that we have no alternative.’
Ni saha/ kuwaa si/ laazimu/ khtuluba/ pesa ziitu/ kurudiloowa. ‘It is only right that we should demand our money back.’
Omari/ jawaabuye/ ni saha. ‘Omari’s answer is correct.’
Omari/ kooðiye/ ni saha. ‘Omari’s words are correct.’
majibu siwo sahá ‘an answer that is not correct’ ṭarikhi ya saha ‘exact date’

We/ kheerí/ kuwa saha/ kuwa Abú/ nakichirudilaa si. ‘You had better be right that Abu is coming back for us.’

We/ ni sahá/ kumtahaðara Huseeni. ‘You are right to avoid Huseeni.’

We/ ni sahá/ kuwa ntʰaku/ sababu/ si/ kooloka. ‘You are right that there is no reason for us to go.’

We/ waliko ni sahá/ tarafu ya Maryamu. ‘You were right about Maryamu.’

kh-saha

v. [Sw. sahihi SSED 407; Ar. ṣaḥḥa "to be correct, true" W 503] (sahiile) correct an assignment, an exercise in school

Sahile insha za wanafuunzi. ‘He corrected the students’ compositions.’

Ye/ nakhsaha jawaabu. [H!H] ‘He is checking his answers.’

rel.

kh-sahika v. p/s.

kh-sahila v. appl.

nom. rel.

u-saho n. act of correcting sahaaba

n. pl. [Sw. sahaba M&N 2078; sahibu SSED 438; Ar. ṣāḥib has several possible plurals: aṣḥāb, ṣaḥb, ṣaḥāba, ṣuḥba W 504 as well as aṣ-ṣaḥāba "the companions of the Prophet" W 504] followers, companions of the Prophet variant forms: sahaabu, suhuuba, masahaaba

Ahmada longelo ka ndila njeema/ pamo na nduuzi na sahaaba weema [st.] ‘Ahmad who led us onto the right path/ and upon his relatives and his righteous Companions’

Sheekhi na sahaabuze/ watakuḥiwanishoowa [st.] ‘the Sheikh and his companions/ will be granted eternal bliss’ zita spisilo karka masahaaba/ maamala chiza takkosa ijaaba [st.] ‘the fighting among the Prophet’s followers, be quiet about, otherwise you will fail to achieve success’

m-sahaafu (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. msahafi SSED 300; Ar. maṣḥaf “copy of the Koran” W 505] the text of the Quran, the Quran

Baana/ atile ʿchibuuku/ ʿIwarakhale/ siwo/ msahaafu. ‘Baana tore off a page of the book (lit. the book its page), not (of the) Quran.’ (There is focus in this sentence on chibuuku. The evidence for this is twofold. First, the pitch on chibuuku is raised, whereas in the absence of focus it would be downstepped (in canonical intonation, there is always a major downstep between the phrase preceding the verb and the phrase containing the verb. Second, focus on chibuuku is reflected in the continuation of the sentence by siwo/ msahaafu. The word msahaafu is being contrasted with chibuuku. One would not continue the sentence with siwo/ jalaada* ‘not the cover’. If there is no focus on chibuuku, the facts are reversed. One would say Baana/ atile chibuuku/ ʿIwarakhale/ siwo/ jalaada. ‘Baana tore off a page of the book, not the cover.’ It would be incongruous to say #Baana/ atile chibuuku/ ʿIwarakhale/ siwo/ msahaafu. ‘Baana tore off a page of the book, not (of the) Quran.’)

Maali/ mi/ speendi/ haṭá/ habamó/ sho kuwa msahaafuwa/ mp^ha raaði/ maamé/ speendi/ chiint^hu/ chiingine. ‘[Your] wealth, I do not want it, not even a little of it, except my Quran; give me [your] blessings, mother, I don’t want anything else.’

Takubiga msahaafu/ ka chilapo. ‘I will swear on the Holy Quran (lit. hit the Quran for my swearing).’

sahali

n. [?Ar. sāḥil "seashore" W 400] a kind of shore bird that lives off fish and can dive deep into the water to catch them

Sahali/ huzala ikodho. ‘A sahali gives birth to an ikodho (a kind of shore bird that survives on the left-overs of the sahali).’ (A proverb, which warns one not to take something too lightly; taking something that is really difficult and considering it easy will lead to a bad result. The proverb refers to the belief that while it is possible for a sahali to give birth to an ikodho, an ikodho cannot give birth to a sahali.)

sahali

adj. [Sw. sahala SSED 406; Ar. sahl W 437] easy

chibuku chivaliko sahali/ khsomoowá ‘that book which was easy to be read’

Chibuku icho/ ni sahali/ khsomoowa. ‘That book is easy to be read.’
Chibuku icho/ ni sahali/ khsomoowake. ‘That book its being read is easy.’
chibuku khsomoowake/ iwaliko sahali ‘this book which its reading was easy’ chibuku ni sahali/ khsomoowá ‘the book that is easy to be read’ chibuku ni sahali/ khsomoowaké ‘the book that is easily read’ Khfanya Jaani/ mabsuuti/ ni sahali. ‘For John to be pleased is easy.’ Or:
Khfanyowa mabsuuti/ Jaani/ ni sahali. Or: Jaani/ khfanyowa mabsuuti/ ni sahali. Or: Jaani/ ni sahali/ khfanyowa mabsuuti.
khfanya sahali ‘to make easy’
Limi/ kilaa chiint^hu/ huhada/ ni sahali. ‘For the tongue to say anything (true or false) is easy.’
Mi/ ni sahali/ ka kaaka/ kuruuda/ kiitu. ‘For me it is easy to go back home.’
Ni sahali. ‘That’s not a problem. That’s easy.’
Ni sahali/ khfungula mlango wa numba iyi. ‘It is easy to open the door of this house.’
Ni sahali/ khsomowake chibuuku. ‘It is easy its being read the book.’ Or: Ni sahali/ chibuuku/ khsomoowake. ‘It is easy the book its being read.’ (While MI accepted both of these sentences, he rejected Ni sahali/ khsoma chibuuku. He also doubted *?Ni sahali/ kichisoma chibuuku. ‘It is easy to read the book.’
Ni sahali/ kumfanya Jaani/ mabsuuti. ‘It is easy to please John.’ Or: Ni sahali/ kumfanya mabsuuti/ Jaani. Or: Kumfanya Jaani/ mabsuuti/ ni sahali. Or: Kumfanya mabsuuti/ Jaani/ ni sahali.
N^hosheze ni sahali/ khfanyoowa/ gaariya. ‘I thought that it would be easy for my car to be fixed.’ Or: N^hosheze ni sahali/gaariya/ khfanyoowa.
Sadiiqi/ iwaliko sahali/ khpikishowa chaakuja. ‘Sadiiqi was easy to be made to cook food.’ Or: Iwaliko sahali/ Sadiiqi/ khpikishowa chaakuja.
Sultani waa noka/ takishpaa dawa/ itakishfanyiliza sahali/ khkoma maha^la mtume Suleemaani/ ukó. ‘The king of snakes will give us medicine that will make it easy for us to reach the place where the prophet Suleemaani is.’
Tahaðari/ wabjaana/ wa leelo/ siwo/ sahali. ‘Be careful! The young men of today are not easy (to deal with).’
Ye/ takiwaayi/ mwambiile/ (ni) jawaabu/ sahali/ tu. ‘How will he know? She told him: it is something that’s just easy.’

sahamu

n. [Sw. sehemu SSED 412; Ar. sahm "portion, share" W 438] share of an inheritance Ye/ tete sahamuye. ‘He took his share.’

sahani

n. 9/10 [Sw. sahani SSED 406; Ar. ṣaḥn W 505] plate

Kamaa we/ chimp^hikila sahani mooyi/ ya mpuunga/ kila muunt^hi/ itamfanya Sultani Daraayi/ faqiiri. ‘If you cook for me one plate of rice each day will it make Sultan Daraayi poor?’ (The shift of accent in the final phrase is due to the yes-no question nature of this example.)

Sahani yiinu/ na ya mwaanawe/ ye/ tilee zijo. ‘On your (pl.) plate and on that of her child she put zijo.’

sahaniini ‘on the plate’

Sahaara

n. the Sahara desert

sahari

n. difficulty

Umo karka sahari. ‘He is in (e.g. financial) difficulty.’

rel.

sahariiri n. [Som. saxariir "suffering, torment" DSI 539, but in the Tunni dialect it is used in the sense of "having a difficult time"] difficulties, suffering iluhuma/ ka sahariiri ‘hardship and suffering’ kuwona sahariiri ‘to see, experience difficulties’

Abdulrahmaani/ wene sahariiri/ ka iluhuma/ safari iyi.

‘Abdulrahmaani experienced hardship and suffering on the journey.’

- Umo karka sahariiri. ‘He is in difficulty (e.g. financial, but could be any sort).’
- sahawu n. 10 forgetfulness; var. sahwu
Haliima/ sahawuze/ niingi/ hakuumbuki/ ba/ chiint^hu. ‘Haliima, her forgetfulness is a lot, she does not remember anything.’
Sala/ muunt^hu/ hafishoowa/ ka sababu ya sahwu. ‘Prayers, a person is forgiven if forgotten (lit. because of forgetfulness).’
rel.
u-sahawu n. 14 forgetfulness
Hasani/ mwambile mukeewe/ usikhutaale/ usahawu/ ka ibada ya mojiitu. ‘Hasani told his wife: let forgetfulness not take you away from worshipping God.’
- sahbi n. [Ar. ṣaḥb, one of the possible plurals of ṣāḥib W 504] (variant of sahaaba, ma-sahaaba) = companions na ndruuze na sahabi na mu’miniina/ wenye kuloongola na khkiza diina [st.] ‘and upon his relatives, his companions, and the believers, those who guide people onto the right path and honor religion’ na ndruuze na sahabi wenye sidqi [st.] ‘and his (=the Prophet’s) relatives and the sincere companions’
- saahera n. [Ar. sāḥra W 400] witch; var. saahiri (ma-)
Jirani wiitu/ ni saahera. ‘Our neighbor is a witch.’
Omari/ badijila/ fanyiza chuula. ‘Omari was turned into a frog (lit. was changed and made a frog).’
Saahera/ mbadile Omari/ mfanyize chuula. ‘The witch turned Omari into a frog (lit. changed Omari and made him a frog).’
Saheera/ watishize waant^hu. ‘The witch frightened people.’ (cf. Waant^hu/ watishiza na saahera. ‘People were frightened by the witch.’ Also cf. Watishizo waant^hu/ ni saahera. ‘Who frightened people was the witch.’)
- kh-saahiba v. [Ar. ṣaḥiba W 503] (sahibiile) befriend someone Mwana uyu/ wasahibile want^hu wawovu. ‘The child befriended bad people.’
rel.
kh-sahibana v. rec. [Sw. suhubiana SSED 438] (-sahibeene) be friends
- saahibu (Ø, ma-) n. [Sw. sahibu SSED 438; Ar. ṣāḥib W 504] friend; possessor Mooja chiloongole chiraashe diini/ ilmu humsaayda saahibe qabriini [st.] ‘may God guide us and make us follow the [percepts of the] faith; knowledge helps those who possess it when they are in the grave’ (Note that sahibuye, from /saahibu=ye/, has a variant form saahibe.)
rel.
as.habu pl. poetic
sahaaba (ma-) pl.
sahbi pl. poetic
sahbu n. comrades
na ilu ya mtume sala na salaamu/ na ndruuzaze wotte na sahb dawaamu [st.] ‘and on the Prophet may be prayers and greetings, and on all his relatives and comrades, for ever’
- saahibuḥmaali n. owner of the property Saahibuḥmaali/ gadimishize da’wa. ‘The owner filed a suit.’
- Saahibuḥmi’raaji n. the man of the ascension, i.e. Mohammad
- sahiifa (ma-) n. [Sw. sahifa SSED 407; Ar. ṣaḥīfa W 505] newspaper; page of a book

sahiiha from this root] signature	n. 9/10 [Sw. sahiha SSED 407; we did not find an Arabic noun meaning "signature" khtila sahiha 'to sign, put one's signature on ' Basi/ isa/ nandikilaa khaṭī/ ka mkonowo/ kuwa ziint^{bu}/ zaa we/ humiḷkó/ zotte/ ni muḷkuwa/ na chimalizá/ tila sahiha/ na biga muhuriwo. 'So now write a letter for me by hand [saying] that everything that you own is my property and then put your signature on it and put your seal on it.'
sahiiha	adj. certain, true, correct Ni sahiha/ kuwa waawo/ ilé. 'Is it true, certain that your father came?' review pronunciation of this yes-no question... shift
kh-sahiiha	v. [Ar. ṣahḥa "to attest, to sign" and ṣahīḥ "authentic, valid" W 503] to final accent in the last phrase is the only case of accent shift?
kh-sahiiha	v. [Sw. sahihi SSED 407; Ar.] sign; [rarely] correct rel. kh-sahiihila v. appl. sign with, for; transfer khsahihila muḷki 'to transfer one's possessions to' kh-sahiihisha v. caus. (sahihishiize) verify kh-sahihishiliza v. caus. appl. kh-sahihishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. rel. nom. u-sahiiho n. 14
kh-sahila	v. [Ar. sahula "to provide" W 437] (sahiliile) bless with Mwajiitu/ nakhusahila mwaana. 'May God bless you with a child.'
saahibuḷ ihraamu	=mwenye ihraamu miskhi hadaari saahibuḷ ihraamu [st.] 'one does not touch perfume when in the state of ihraamu '
saahiri (ma-)	n. [Ar. sāḥir W 400] witch rel. u-saahiri n. meaning and example
m-saaji (mi-)	n. 3/4 [Sw. msaji (mi-) SSED 399; Ar. sāj W 391] teak tree; in Brava, any hard wood of reddish color (also called muti mhuundru)
kh-sajila	v. [Ar. sajila W 398] (sajiliile) record rel. kh-sajilila v. appl. (sajiliile) nom. rel. u-sajilo n. meaning and example
saajima	n. 9/10 [Sw. shemeji SSED 419] brother- or sister-in-law saajimá 'my brother- or sister-in-law' (cf. sajimaza 'my brother/sister-in-laws')
sakaraaṭi death dying!'	n. [Ar. sakarāt [al-maut] "agony of death" W 417] death throes; time, moment of death Hamadi/ hadile/ sakaraaṭi/ sakaraaṭi. 'Hamadi said: (I am) dying! (I am) dying! Qur'aani hiinfa karka sakaraaṭi [st.] 'the Quran is useful at the moment of death' ukali wa sakaraaṭi/ Sheekhi ka chiza konyoowa [st.] 'from the torturous agonies of dying/ may the Sheikh be spared'

- sakharaani adj. drunk Khamri/ khufanya sakharaani. ‘Liquor makes you drunk.’ (Observe that the habitual prefix {hu} elides before the second person object prefix {khu}. This elision does not take place before a [cl.1] object prefix, for example: Khamri/ humfanya sakharaani. ‘Liquor makes him drunk.’ or Khamri/ humfaanya/ sakharaani.
Humkina/ kuwa...ni muunt^hu/ mweepe/ sahkraani/ laakini/ ni kheeri/ chiliindre/ ye/ nabige teena/ mlaango. ‘It is possible that there is some drunkard (there), but it is best that we wait so that he knock again at the door.’
Mbe;e sakharaani/ mbeeló. ‘I was drunk, that’s what I was.’
- sakhaawa adj. [Ar. noun sakāwa “generosity” W 402] liberal, generous (Since this word derives from the fricative in Arabic, in Chimiini it is always pronounced as kh and may never have the variant q.)
amiyé müingine sakhaawa gaasi/ na inaye Sayyidina Abbaasi [st.] ‘his [the Prophet’s] other uncle was liberal [and] brave, and his name is Sayyidina Abbas.’
rel.
u-sakhaawa n. 14 [Ar. sakāwa W 402] generosity wakopi wenye khalāawa / na zeema na usakhaawa [st.] ‘where are those who practised retirement from the world, good deeds, and generosity?’
- sakhiyi (Ø, ma-) adj. [Ar. sakīy W 402] generous, indifferent to the material things of the world (but can also be used in the opposite sense of a miser); [pron. sakhiyi or sakhiyyi] Ijint^hu iyi/ ni isakhiyi. ‘This big fellow is generous.’ (Morph. This adjective is used with reference to human beings. If the noun is non-derived, then we have the agreement pattern: munt^hu sakhiyi and want^hu (ma)sakhiyi. Augmentative and diminutive nouns require agreement, as seen in the example above and also: mijint^hu misakhiyi.)
rel.
u-sakhiyi n. 14 generosity; lack of interest in the material things of the world
- saakiti adj. [cf. Sw. sukutu “be silent” SSED 439; Ar. sākit W 417] silent
- kh-sala v. [Sw. sala SSED 408; Ar. ṣala W 524] (saliile) say prayers (at the prescribed times)
aṭa chisala peeke pashpo wahali [st.] ‘even if one prays alone without companions’ Hasani/ saliile/ ka himaahima/ maliize/ mbele ya waant^hu/ wotte/ oloshela/ tete chibaṭeera/ bishile/ makasiya/ mpaka jahaziini. ‘Hasani prayed quickly; he finished before all the people and went and took a small boat and rowed to the ship.’
Huseeni/ malizopo khsalá/ chiwona/ kuwa jahazi/ mbilize/ yaake/ ba/ na ya mkulé/ zondroshele. ‘When Huseeni finished praying, he saw that both of the ships, his as well as that of his older brother, had moved.’
khsala fijiri ‘to pray the morning, dawn prayer’ khsala laakuja ‘to pray the prayer of sunset’ khsala lapiili ‘to pray the afternoon prayer, between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m.’
khsala laatulo ‘to pray the evening prayer’ khsala shpiindri ‘to pray the noon prayer’ khsala shtaanga ‘to pray shtaanga’
Omari/ husala muskitiini. ‘Omari prays at the mosque.’
Sho khsala/ ni mkaafiri. ‘One who does not pray is an infidel.’
Wamalizopo khsalá/ wachilawa/ wachendra ka sultaani. ‘When they finished praying, they left and went to the sultan.’
Watile ngiisha// bahariini/ wachishkila/ ka chibaṭeera/ wachendra funguuni/ khsala. ‘They put the anchor in the sea and they disembarked on a small boat and they went to the shore to pray.’
rel.
kh-salika v. p/s.

kh-salīla v. appl. (salīlile) pray with, for khsalīla mayti ‘to pray for the corpse -- after someone has died, he is ritually washed and enshrouded in a kafani and taken to the mosque; there the body is placed in front of people and the imaamu leads prayer asking God to forgive the deceased’ tamsalīlo Mtume nayo shifaa’a [st.] ‘the one who prays for the Prophet has [the Prophet’s] intercession [on his behalf]’ kh-salīloowa v. appl. pass.

iidi du’a hulomboowa, mtume husalīloowa [song] ‘on iidi, du’a is implored, the Prophet is prayed to’

kh-salīsha v. caus. lead in prayers

Muskitiini/ ka Maftaaho/ husalīshó/ ye/ mwenewe/ Sharif Muftaaho. ‘In the mosque of Maftaaho, the one who leads the prayers is Sharif Muftaaho himself.’

kh-salīshana v. caus. rec.

kh-salīshiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-salīshilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-salōowa v. pass. be prayed masku nt^haasa fijiri yo khsalōowa [st.] ‘in the evening before morning prayers are said’

Muskitiini/ isalīila. ‘At the mosque there is being prayed at.’

ndruuza khsalōowa wakhtī nt^haano laazimu/ za farōi hu’ink^hiro ni mzuungu daalimu [st.] ‘our brothers must pray five times, the one who denies the obligatory prayers is an infidel, a wrongdoer’
(These two lines contain each twelve syllables. In the second line, u’i is counted as one syllable.)

Shtaanga/ ni sala husalōwa fijiri ya sku ya iidi. ‘Shtaanga is a prayer that is prayed on the morning of iidi (ya wamuusi).’

m-sala (mi-) n. 3/4 [Sw. msala SSED 408] mat made of milala leaves (To make a msala, the vegetable fibers (milala) are cut longitudinally into thin strips and plaited, no loom or other implement is required; these plaits, 2 to 3 cm. wide, are then sewn together.)

Abunawaasi/ chala msala/ nt^hi. ‘Abunawaasi spread the mat on the floor.’

Husuka msala. ‘She plaits a mat.’

kana msala ‘like a mat’

Wakhtī/ wa jilaali/ tawala/ hudega/ kana msala/ mayiimbi/ huwa naadira. During summer time, the sea gets calm like a mat, waves become rare.’

msala mtaka ‘a dirty mat’; misala mitaka ‘dirty mats’

Msala uje/ ni mnasha. ‘That mat is smooth.’

mwaalimu/ na msalá ‘a teacher and a mat’; mwaalimu/ na misalá ‘a teacher and mats’ mwaalimu/ na msalawé ‘a teacher and his mat’; mwaalimu/ na misalayé ‘a teacher and his mats’

Sku mooyi/ mwanaamke/ naayé/ kaleent^hó/ nt^hi/ nakhsuko msalá/ chimpotelela/ chinoka/ iluke. ‘One day while the girl was sitting on the ground plaiting a mat a small snake fell down on her.’

rel.

chi-sala (zi-) n. 7/8 [cf. Sw. msala "prayer rug" SSED 408] prayer rug

i-sala (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

isala ipaana/ ya mwiskiti ‘the wide mat of the mosque’; misala mipaana/ ya mwiskiti ‘the wide mats of the mosque’

saalihi

Waloombele wabli watuuvu weema/ na waana saalihi wateendra zeema [SCB:588] ‘Pray that they may find good and gentle husbands and have upright children who act virtuously.’

kh-salīma
past tense

v. [Sw. salimu SSED 409; Ar. salima "to surrender, resign oneself" W 424] check for khsalīma amri ‘to give oneself up (e.g. to the police); to recognize a failure’ khsalīma amri/ ka mwaajitu ‘to commit one’s cause to God, resign oneself to the will of God’ kh-salīmila v. [Sw. salimia SSED 409; cf. Ar. salām "Islamic greeting" W 425] check for past tense say hello to someone for; give one’s regards to Chandikaa khaṭī/ nsalīmila Muusa. ‘If you write a letter, say hello for me to Muusa.’

kh-salīsha v. [etymology unknown] (salīshiize) lose one’s money (which he has given for the purpose of getting a profit through trading)

Ali/ msalīshize Hamadi. ‘Ali lost Hamadi’s money (e.g. he did not invest it wisely, or he spent the money instead of using it for the purpose of engaging in trading activities).’

Ali/ salīshize ruuhuye. ‘Ali lost his (own) money (e.g. by giving it to someone whom he should not have depended on to engage successfully in trading activities).’

salīiṭa adj. slippery ndila ya salīiṭa ‘a slippery road’

kh-salīṭa v. (salīṭiile) [Sw. saliti SSED 409; cf. Ar. salāṭa “lack of restraint in one’s language” and salīṭ “viciue” W 422] report, incite, turn someone against someone, cause friction between people

Ali msalīṭile Nuuru/ ka askari. ‘Ali reported Nuuru to the police.’

rel.

kh-salīṭila v. appl. (salīṭiiliile) talk someone into doing harm to another kh-salīṭiloowa v. appl. pass. (salīṭiliila) sho khsala husalīṭiloowa minoka/ chifa hupondroowa ka ndruundo na ṣṭoka [st.] ‘one who does not pray is sent snakes (to do harm to him); when he dies, he is beaten with hammers and axes’

kh-salīṭika v. be crazy for, fall in love

rel.

kh-salīṭoowa v. pass. (salīṭiila) be hung up on (e.g. in love with)

Ali/ salīṭila na Haliima. ‘Ali is hung up on Haliima.’

saḷwa na manna [Ar. salwa “comfort” W 427 and mann “boon” W 925] a fixed expression: ‘high on the hog’; [pron. saḷwa/ na manná] keesho takulishoowa saḷwa na manna [st.] ‘tomorrow he will be fed sumptuously’

Ni munt^hu hujo saḷwa/ na manná. ‘He is a person who eats high on the hog.’

salīṭinaari n. [Som. saliid naar "iodine [lit. oil of fire]", Italian-Somali Dictionary, p. 687, probably from Arabic verb ṣaly "to burn" W 524 + nār "fire" W 1009] iodine

saḷoota n. couch, sofa

Ali/ hadiile/ saḷota iyi/ noloolo/ muunt^hu/ huwonela raaha/ khkalaant^hila.

‘Ali said: this couch is soft, a person experiences comfort/pleasure with/by sitting on it.’

Mi/ nakhtahaja kaaḷmeyó/ kondrola saḷota iyi. ‘I need your help in moving this sofa.’

saḷuuti n. salute

kubiga saḷuuti ‘to salute’

sala n. 9/10 [Sw. sala SSED 408; Ar. ṣalāh "Islamic official prayer ritual" W 524]

Islamic official prayer ritual

Ba’adi yaa sala/ kuḷa mooyi/ humḷazima kendra kuzura wazaaziwe/ ahḷiye/ na weenzawé. ‘After the prayer (on the idi ya wamuusi) everyone is obliged to go to visit his parents, his relatives, and his friends.’

khfungaa sala ‘lit. to close a prayer -- meaning: to start a prayer (one of the five fixed daily Islamic prayers)’ khfungula sala ‘lit. to open a prayer -- meaning: to end a prayer, or to interrupt it (usually only for emergency reasons)’

Mwaana/ chimwambila waawaye/ mi/ ndrĩnzilé/ nt^heendre/ hatá/ kharibu yaa sala/ ya fijiri. ‘The boy told his father, I watched over the dates until near the time of the morning prayers.’

na ilu ya mtume sala na salaamu/ na ndrũuzaze wotte na sabũ dawaamu [st.] ‘and on the Prophet may be prayers and greetings, and on all his relatives and comrades forever’

Sala/ husalowa ka wakhtuwe. ‘Prayer is done/prayed at its time.’ (A proverb.)

Sala/ ni nt^haano. ‘There are five prayers (prayed each day).’

Sala/ ni waajibu. ‘Prayers are a must.’

sala salaamu [used only in steenzi] prayer for peace for the Prophet sala na soomu ilmuye ni farõ [st.] ‘prayer and fasting, their knowledge, is obligatory’ sala ya fijiri ‘morning prayers’

sala ya mayti ‘the prayer for the dead’

Ba’adi ya khsalilowa/ sala ya mayti/ hurudowa janazaani/ hutukuloowa/ khpelekowa makhabriini. ‘After being prayed for the prayer of the dead, [the corpse] is returned to the funeral bier and it is carried and taken to the cemetery.’

Shtaanga/ ni sala husalowa fijiri ya sku ya iidĩ. ‘Shtaanga is a prayer that is prayed on the morning of iidĩ (ya wamuusi).’

wakhti waa sala ‘time for prayer’ ya piĩli ni sala ya tatu soomu [st.] ‘the second (pillar of faith) is prayer, the third is fasting’

rel.

salawaati [Ar. ṣalawāt W 524] in expression:

munt^hu khamisa salawaati ‘lit. a person of five prayers, i.e. who prays regularly five times a day’

kh-saala

v. [Sw. saa SSED 404] (seele) remain, stay

Basi/ mzele igobegebe/ chisaaló/ ni yee peeke/ tu. ‘So the old tortoise was the one who remained, just him alone.’

Chĩta cha ngoombe/ chiseele. ‘The head of a cow remained.’

Hasani/ chisaala/ na mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ uje mkhada’ilo karka maṭezó. ‘Hasani remained with the daughter of the sultan, the one who had cheated him in the (card) games.’

Hasiibu/ sele iboholiini/ sku ya kaandra/ ya piĩli/ na sku ya taatú. ‘Hasiibu remained in the hole the first day, the second, and the third day.’

Ichiwa/ Hasani/ sele chinume/ cha waant^hu/ wotte. ‘It became that Hasani remained behind all the people.’

Isa/ sala paapo/ we/ mi/ hump^hati. ‘Now stay there, you cannot get me.’

Karaayle/ weene/ kuwaa dafa/ zoṭe/ hendra kanisaani/ na nt^haku/ mooyi/ husalo muyiini. ‘Crow saw that all the kites went to church and there was not one who remained behind in town.’

maadamu nt^hakhsaala ye muuyi wa Miini [nt.] ‘no one remained in the town of Brava’ minginiwe seelo kabisa hasaali [st.] ‘while (in contrast to God the Eternal) the rest (of us) (lit. others who remain) will definitely perish (lit. not survive)’

Mukhtaawo/ wa’oshezo mikonó/ khaadimu/ naayé/ chiya/ chija/makombo yaseeló/ haṭá/ chiikuta. ‘When they washed their hands, the servant (lit. and he) came and ate the leftovers until he was satiated.’

muyiini waseelo ni wake na waana [nt.] ‘in the town remained women and children’ -- lit. in the town, those who remained were women and children’

Nseeló/ ndimi/ peeke. ‘The one who remained was me alone.’

Nt^hakhsaala/ muunt^hu. ‘Not one person remained [alive].’

Nt^haku/ iselo khfanyoowá. ‘Nothing remains to be done.’

Nt^heende/ zijiḷa/ naa nyunyi/ nt^hayikhsaala/ haṭá/ nt^heende mooyi/ mutiini. ‘The dates were eaten by a bird, not even one date remained in the tree.’

Sa’iidi/ tomele riyaliye/ mooyi/ imsaaliló/ chimpa oyoo muke. ‘Sa’iidi paid the one riyal that he had remaining and gave it to that woman.’

Saala. ‘Remain!’ Salaani. ‘(pl.) remain!’ Salani numbaani. ‘Remain in the house!’ Sisaleení. ‘(Pl.) don’t remain!’ Sisaleeni/ numbaani. ‘Don’t remain in the house!’

Shalaayi/ husalaa numa. ‘Regrets remain to the end.’ (A proverb.)

Sisaleeni/ numbaani. ‘(Pl.) don’t remain in the house!’

Wachimwaambila/ kingila khtomola uki/ useeló. ‘They told him to enter [the hole] and bring out the honey that remained.’

Wachisala maskiini. ‘They became [lit. remained] poor.’

Waant^hu/ wapanziloo miti/ nt^hawakishkiḷa/ muunt^hi/ oyo/ mzimawe/ na maskuyé/ waseele/ ilu yaa miti/ kaa ndala/ na ooní. ‘The ones who had climbed trees [in fear] did not come down, that whole day and its night they remained in the trees, hungry and thirsty.’

Wasele numbaani. ‘They stayed in the house.’ Cf. Nt^hawakhsaala/ numbaani. ‘They did not stay in the house.’

Wasele watupu. ‘They stayed naked.’ Cf. Nt^hawakhsaala/ watupu. ‘They did not stay naked.’

Wasele woo peeke. ‘They stayed alone.’ Cf. Nt^hawakhsaala/ woo peeke. ‘They did not stay alone.’

Ye/ seele/ karka jazira iyi/ miyaka matatu. ‘He remained on this island for three years.’

zaakuja/ za kiikusa/ na za khsaalá ‘food which satisfies and is sufficiently much to have some left over’

rel.

kh-saalila v. appl. remain to, for Ikhusaliló/ ni sabri/ na khsawaraṭá. ‘What remains to you is patience and to be patient.’

Peesa/ schimaliza kujoowa/ mwenewe/ humsaaliló/ ni kubiga magoonjo/ ki’iilila. ‘Once the money is gone (lit. eaten by someone) what remains for the owner is to sit on his knees and cry for himself.’

Zinsalile dolarii mbili. ‘Two dollars remained to me.’

kh-saaliza v. caus. appl. (saliize) leave behind for kh-saaza v. (seeze) leave s.t. behind; save, store up

Isa/ teena/ Yuusufu/ peete/ jisaa ye/ kumsaaza/ Bin.yaameeni/ khkalanṭ^ha naaye. ‘So then Joseph found the way to keep Benjamin to stay with him.’

Karkaa ye/ walimo usinziini/ ilee nyunyi/ jile nt^heende/ yotte/ nt^hakhsaaza/ haṭá/ haba mooyi. ‘While he was sleeping, a bird came and ate all the dates and did not leave behind even a single one.’

Makoombo/ yaa ye/ seezó/ chimpaa mbwa. ‘The leftovers that he did not eat he gave to the dog.’

Naayé/ chija/ chiikuta/ chisaaza. ‘And he (e.g. the dog) ate and got satiated and left some of the food behind.’

Nt^hakhsaaza/ chiint^hu. ‘He did not leave anything (i.e. he spent everything he had).’

Saaza. ‘Leave some behind!’ Sazaani. ‘(Pl.) leave some behind!’ Sazani maandra. ‘(Pl.) leave some bread.’ Sisazeeni. ‘Don’t leave behind!’ Sisazeeni/ maandra. ‘Don’t leave bread behind!’

kh-sazoowa v. pass. be left behind

Nᵀakhsazoowa. ‘Lit. he was not left, i.e. he was thoroughly beaten or completely robbed.’

rel. nom.

m-saala (wa-) n. the one who remains, stays behind

Msalaa numa/ huwona iluhuma. ‘He who remains last sees hardships.’ (A proverb.)

m-salaba (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. msalaba] cross

salabu

n. [not as commonly used as msalaba. above] cross

u-salaaha

n. goodness, rightness

saalafu

n. [Sw. siafu "a small reddish-brown ant which bites fiercely. They travel in large swarms and attack all living creatures alike." SSED 428] red (safari) ant

Mkate/ wa Faatima/ pishiló/ zingile nᵀhuungu/ za saalafu. ‘The cake that Faatima made has been entered by safari ants.’

Zoloko/ numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ zingila na nᵀhuungu/ za saalafu/ zinaakuja.

‘Windows at Hamadi’s house are being invaded by ants, they are eating them.’

salaama

adv. [Sw. salama SSED 408; Ar. salāma W 425] safely, peacefully; n. safety

Baaba/ zimkomelopo khabari/ kuwa mwaana/ rudiile/ salaama/ na ile/ na bakhᵀi/ ya dughaaghi/ shfuraha/ nᵀho. ‘Father, when the news reached him that the boy had returned safely and had come with the corpse of the beast, was very pleased.’

khpata salaama ‘to get salvation, escape’

Nfuye/ iwiilopó/ yaa ye/ nakhelekelowa numbaani/ shfikira jisa khpata salaamaye. ‘The monkey, when he realized why he was being taken to [the shark’s] home, thought how to escape.’

Sulᵀaani/ shfurahika/ nᵀho/ kuwaa ye/ pete salaama. ‘The sultan was very pleased that he had escaped death [lit. gotten salvation, safety].’

kuᵀawa salaama ‘to be unharmed (after an accident) – lit. to come out unharmed’

Mwana wa sulᵀaani/ lazile salaama/ ye/ na mtumawé/ mooyi.

‘The son of the sultan emerged safely [from the storm], he and his servant.’

Mojiitu/ khupele salaama. ‘Did God grant you safety?’ (Said to a woman who has just given birth to a child, after a safe delivery. Obligatory reply: alhamdujilla ‘praise be to God’.)

Mwaana/ chihada/ khabari suura/ ni kuwaa mi/ mwaanawo/ ndrudile numbaani/ salaamá. ‘The child said: the good news is that I, your child, returned home safely.’

Naawé/ leze ruuhuyó/ salaama/ chiliini. ‘And you put yourself to sleep peacefully on the bed.’

shpe kheeri na salaama/ duniyaani na qiyaama [st.] ‘give us happiness and safety, in this world and in the hereafter’ uhaqi wa nafi kumeera salaama [nt.] ‘it is one’s right to seek safety’ ya Rasuul Allahi ... mpa iziwa ya suruuri na salaama [st.] ‘O Prophet of God, give me the milk of happiness and safety.’

salamaki

n. [Sw. sanamaki "senna, a laxative" SSED 410; Ar. sanāmakᵀ W 436] (=senna) a plant used as a laxative; leaves are crushed and boiled in water and the concoction is drunk as tea

salaamu n. 9/10 [Sw. salamu SSED 408; Ar. salām W 425] greeting (The greetings referred to by this term are assalaamu aleekum (the greeting extended) and wa aleekum salam (the greeting returned).)

Ba'ada ya salaamu/ chimwaambila/ sulṭaani/ mi/ nnakhsuḷa khteza karaṭá/ na mwanaamkewó. 'After the greeting, he said to the sultan: I want to play cards with your daughter.'
khpa salaamu 'to greet'

Mukhtaḷa ye/ komeloo mbelé/ za Harun Rashiidi/ nt^hampa/ salaamu/ Harun Rashiidi. 'When he arrived in front of Haruun Rashiidi, he did not greet Haruun Rashiidi.'

nch^himwona/ ndilaani 'if I see him on the road'; or, mukhtaḷa mi/ nt^hamwona/ ndilaani 'when/if I will see him on the road'; or, kanaa mi/ nch^himwona/ ndilaani 'if I see him on the road'

Nch^himwona/ ndilaani/ nt^hampa salaamu. 'If I see him on the road, I will greet him.' Or: Nt^hampa salaamu/ nch^himwona/ ndilaani. Or: Ndilaani/ nch^himwona/ nt^hampa salaamu.

khpanana salaamu 'to exchange greetings'

Ba'adaa wo/ khpanana salaamu/ baaba/ chimwaambila/ we/ ndreteleelé/ khabari/ mbovu/ za mwaanawa/ na isá/ naami/ nt^hakhupa khabari suura/ zaa nduwó. 'After they exchanged greetings, father said to him: you brought me bad news about my son, but now I will give you good news about your relative.'

khpata salaamu

khpokela salaamu 'to return a greeting'

khṭomola salaamu 'to extend greetings'

ba'ada ya khṭomola salaamu 'after extending greetings'

Dul'eda/ ḍhiriilopó/ shṭomola salaamu/chihada/ salaamu/ ya mwajiitu/ inaawe/ iluko/ we/ ori. 'When the fox appeared, he extended greetings, saying, greetings of God be on you, rooster.'

Malizopo khṭomola salaamú/ baaba/ chimwuuzá/ nini/ khabari za nt^heendre. 'After he extended greetings, father asked him what the news was concerning the dates.'

kumpa salaamu 'to greet someone' kendra kumpa mkewe salaamu 'to go and greet his in-law'

Ye/ daa'imu/ humpa salaamu/ kana mweenzawe/ wa kaandra. 'She always greets me as if I were her best friend.'

kuruda salaamu 'to return a greeting' salawaati (cf. sala) [Ar. ṣalawāt W 524] in expression:

munt^hu khamṣa salawaati 'lit. a person of five prayers, i.e. who prays regularly five times a day'

saalehe

Amali saalehe/ huḷiwanoowa/ humtila muunt^hu/ janaani. 'Good deeds succeed, they take one to paradise.'

kh-saliba

v. [Sw. sulibi SSED 440; Ar. ṣalaba W 521] crucify

rel.

u-salibo n. 14 crucifixion; var. usalibu

saalihi

adj. [Sw. salih SSED 409; Ar. ṣāliḥ W 523] correct, well-behaved, well-mannered, virtuous, pious mwana saalihi ‘a well-mannered child’

Salihya	n. a Sufi order alamu ya Salihya ‘the Salihya flag’
saliimu	adj. [Sw. salamu SSED 408; Ar. salīm W 426] healthy and without defect (of an animal) tiinda saliimu wakhlaali na aarafa [st.] ‘slaughter a healthy animal for wakhlaali and aarafa [two celebrations]’
saluuku	n. behavior Si/ leelo/ wa’aafrika/ siwo/ raaði/ pamooyi/ na saluuku/ na mweendrö/ waa nt’hi/ za ch’arabú. ‘Today we Africans are not pleased with the behavior and the treatment of the Arab countries.’
sam’an waṭaa’an	a fixed expression from Arabic meaning ‘I hear and I obey’ samadi	n. [Ar. ṣamad W 525] an attribute of God (Lord eternal, everlasting)
samadi	n. [SW. samadi SSED 409; Ar. samad W 428] fertilizer, manure xtila samadi ‘to spread manure’ check vowel length
saamaani	n. 10 [Sw. samani SSED 410; Hindi and Pers.] household furniture, utensils samani izi ‘this furniture’ samanii mp’hiya ‘new furniture’ saamaanize ‘his furniture’ samanii=ni ‘among the furniture’
saambavu	n. 9/10 [Som. Sambab DSI 534] lung kumpaa mba/ saambavu ‘to give lungs to the dog(s)’ kuvuta neefu/ ka saambavu ‘to breathe in air with the lungs’ maraði ya saambavu ‘lung disease’ Omari/ nayo maraði ya saambavu. ‘Omari has lung disease.’ Mp’haka/ hujo saambavú. ‘(It’s) cats who eat lungs.’ =Omari/ nayo sambavu mooyi/ tu. ‘Omari has only one lung.’ Saambavu/ ha’ijoowi. ‘The lung (of an animal) is not eaten.’ Want’u wa Miini/ hawaaji/ saambavu. ‘The people of Brava do not eat lungs.’
sambuusa	n. 9/10 [Sw. sambusa SSED 410; Pers.] samoosa= a small triangular shaped pie filled with minced meat or minced fish (usually shark or tuna), with spices, onions and other vegetables added, and fried in oil Mi/ nakhtaraja Faatimá/ kumfanyiliza Charles/ sambuusa. ‘I need Faatima to make samoosas for Charles.’ sambusa ya khudaari ‘a vegetable samoosa’ sambusa yaa nama ‘a samoosa with meat filling’ sambusa yaa nsi ‘a samoosa with fish filling’
kh-saameha	v. [Sw. samehe SSED 410; Ar. samuḥa W 428] (sameheele) forgive Ba’adiye/ Abunawaasi/ pete khabari/ ya kuwa sulṭaani/ msameheele. ‘After that, Abunawaasi got the news that the sultan had forgiven him.’ Iyo/ ha’isaamehi/ iyo itulushilo ba’adiyé. That does not excuse what happened next. kumsaameha ‘to forgive someone’ Mbaliko nshishilaa nt’ho/ shṭana/ na Abunawaasi/ laakini/ isa/ shṭana/ chinondroshela/ na isá/ Abunawaasi/ chiruuda/ chiwonekana/ mi/ nt’hamsaameha. ‘I was taken by anger very much with Abunawaasi, but now anger left me and now, if Abunawaasi comes back, if he is seen, I will forgive him.’ Mooja nasamehe ḍambi/ nzito ka’ondroleloowa [st.] ‘may God pardon my sins/ which are heavy to remove’

Mwajiitu/ takinsaameha. ‘God will forgive you (pl.).’
Namnomba mojiitú/ kumsaameha/ ðambiza. ‘I am begging God to forgive my sins.’

ni mwenye msaameha ðambi na hooba/ ka jaaha ya mtume chinakuloomba [st.]
‘he is the one who remits all sins, for the glory of the Prophet we beg him’

Nt^hakhsaameha/ wenye ðambi. ‘He did not forgive sinners.’

Nt^hakhsaameha/ laakini/ ka sharti/ mooyi/ we/ ni laazima/ kundripila khasaara/ imp^heeetó/ yotte. ‘I will forgive you but on one condition: you must repay me the loss that befell me, all.’

Peesa/ zimtile mwaalimu/ kumsameha mwaana. ‘Money induced the teacher to forgive the child.’

Saameha. ‘Forgive!’ Samehaani. ‘(Pl.) forgive!’ Samehani waant^hu. ‘You (pl.) forgive people!’

Samehele wenye ðambi. ‘He forgave sinners.’

Si/ hashkhaadiri/ khsameha Baazi/ tabi’aye. ‘We cannot excuse Baazi’s behavior.’

Sisameheeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t forgive!’ Sisameheeni/ waant^hu. ‘You (pl.) don’t forgive people!’

Sultaani/ chimsaameha/ mwaana/ chendra numbaani/ ba’ada ya apo/ ye/nt^hamwaminila teena/ mukeewe/ siri. ‘The sultan forgave him, and the boy went home, and after that instant, he never again entrusted a secret to his wife.’

rel.

kh-samehana v. rec. forgive one another

Khsamehana/ ni suura. ‘To forgive one another is good.’

Nt^hawana raghba/ yaa wo/ khsamehana. ‘They do not have the desire to forgive one another.’ Review phrasing

kh-samehananoowa v. rec. pass.

Khsamehananoowa/ ni suura. ‘To be forgiven by each other is good.’

kh-samehela v. appl.

kh-samehoowa v. pass.

illa mashuungi ya chiintu hujoowa/ mishpa na mbawaze husamehoowa [st.] ‘only the hair of edible things, their bones and wings are allowed’

Mi/ nakhsuulá/ khsamehoowa/ na ðambi/ zaa mi/ nfanyiizó. ‘I want to be forgiven for the sins that I have committed.’ Or: Mi/ nakhsuula khsamehoowá/ ni ðambi/ zaa mi/ nfanyiizó.

m-saameha (wa-) n., adj. 1/2 one who forgives samiini adj. [Ar. samīn W 431] corpulent, stout

Izra’iili [...] humlaṭa daharishiilo chiḷiini / humtala muunt^hu jadiidi samiini [st.] Izra’il [the angel of death] leaves the one who is sick in bed [and] takes a young, stout person’ sampuuli n. [Eng. sample] sample, kind, type no aspiration? noun class: 9-10?

san’a n. [Sw. sanaa SSED 410; Ar. ṣan’á W 526] art, handicraft, manmade, etc.

Chiint^hu/ chunziḷa na mojiitú/ na chiint^hú/ cha san’á/ haayiwi/ sawa/ cha mojiitu/ unziḷó/ huwo chisuurá. ‘A thing created by God and a manmade thing are not the same, that which God created is better.’

Oyo/ san’aye/ nini. ‘This one, what’s his work?’

sanamu n. [Sw. sanamu SSED 410; Ar. ṣanam "idol, image" W 527] idol, doll

Hamadi/ mruudile/ sanamu iyo/ mbujó. ‘Hamadi, return that doll to your sister.’

mtumila sanamu siwo islaamu [st.] ‘one who uses idols is not a Muslim’

- Want^hu awa/ hu'abuda sanamu. 'These people worship idols.'
- rel.
- i-sanamu* (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
enzele mtume Ibrahiimu kaawo/ vuunzile miingi misanamu yaawo [st.]
 'the prophet Abraham went to their place/ [and] destroyed many of their great idols'
- Waana/ wa'uzile misanamu ya majini/ khtishilizana. 'Children bought jinn-idols to frighten one another with.'
- sanda n. [Sw. sanda SSED 410; Ar. may be the source of this item, but we did not locate it in Wehr's dictionary] shroud chimala koowa na kuuma/ sanda takulabisoowa '[st.] after he has been washed and wiped, he will be clothed in a shroud'
- saandali n. 9/10 [Sw. sandali SSED 410; Ar. ṣandal W 526] sandal; the sandalwood tree chilatu cha saandali 'a sandal' sandali iyi 'this sandal' (cf. sandali izi 'these sandals') Mwiini/ zamaani/ waant^hu/ nt^hawachivaala/ skaarpa/ wachivala saandali/ na da'asi. 'In Brava in old days people did not wear shoes, they wore sandals and flip-flops.'
Saandali/ huvaloowa/ wakhti wa hari/ miilu/ hingila lpepo. 'Sandals are worn during hot times, the legs get air.'
Sandali izo/ goomaye/ (ni) suura. 'Those sandals, their rubber is good.'
sandali ya khpaṭika 'thong sandal, flip-flop' (cf. sandali za khpaṭika 'thong sandals, flip-flops')
- sanduuqu n. 9/10 [Ar. ṣandūq W 526] box; [usu. pron. sanduukhu]
Hamadi/ tile maandra/ sandukhuuni. 'Hamadi put the bread in a box.'
Jaama/ andishile gaari/ sanduukhu. 'Jama loaded the box into the truck.'
 Or: Jaama/ andishile sanduukhu/ gariini.
kumtila muunt^hu/ sandukhuuni 'lit. to put s.o. in the box -- i.e. to outwit s.o. (by being smarter than him and possibly by cheating)'
Lesele ijiwé? 'Did you bring the stone?' (Possible answers to this question: Ee/ yimo sandukhuuni. 'Yes, it is in the box.' Or: Ee/ yimo sandukhuuni. 'Yes, it is in the box.' Or: ee/ nnayo sandukhuuni 'Yes, I have it in the box.')
- Lesele majiwé? 'Did you bring the stones?' (Possible answers: Ee/ nnayo sandukhuuni. 'Yes, I have them in the box.' Or: Ee/ nnaayó/ yamo sandukhuuni. 'Yes, I have them; they are in the box.')
- Lesele zibuukú? 'Did you bring books?' (Possible answers to this question: Ee/ zimo sandukhuuni. 'Yes, they are in the box.' Or Ee/ nnacho sandukhuuni. 'Yes, I have them in the box.' These sentences are acceptable because the noun zibuuku is provided by the context of the question. If the context does not identify the noun, one would say Nnazo zibuukú/ sandukhuuni. 'I have books in the box.')
- Maandra/ itila sandukhuuni. 'Bread was put into the box.' (Cf. It is not possible to use the bare noun here: Maandra/ itila sanduukhu.) masandukhu aya 'these boxes'
- Mzele uzilo sandukhuu nk^hulú/ mpele mwaanawe. 'The old man who bought a big box gave it to his child.' (cf. Mzele/ uzile sandukhuu nk^hulu/ mpele mwaanawe. 'The old man bought a box and gave it to his child.')
- Nnaksuulá/ we/ kunfanyiliza/ sanduukhu. 'I want you to make a box for me.' (Phon. The focus on the main verb blocks the final accent from extending beyond that verb, due to the Accentual Law of Focus.)
- Numbaani/ iwaliko sanduukhu/ naami/ ni'ifungilé. 'In the house there was a box and I opened it.'

Peesa/ stiḷa sanduukhhu. ‘Money was put in the box.’ (Cf. Sandukhu iyi/ itiḷa peesa. ‘This box, there was money put (in it).’ Besides this impersonal passive, one can also have: Sandukhu iyi/ stiḷa peesa. ‘This box, money was put (in it).’ The passive verb in this latter sentence agrees with peesa. It needs to be reviewed again whether a sentence like: Sandukhu izi/ stiḷa majiwe. ‘These boxes had stones put in them.’)

Sanduukhu/ imo nthuundru. ‘The box has a hole in it; there is a hole in the box.’

Sanduukhu/ itiḷa maandra. ‘The box had bread put into it.’ (Cf.

Sanduukhu/ stiḷa maandra. ‘The boxes had bread put into them.’) sandukhu iyi ‘this box’

sandukhuuni ‘in the box’

sanduukhuya ‘my box’

rel.

chi-sanduuqu (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

Ndrani ya sanduukhu/ chivalimo chiwovu/ na ndrani ya chiwová/ chivalimo chisanduukhu/ chihaba/ cha shaba. ‘Inside the box was a bag, and inside the bag was a small copper box.’

kh-sanifa

v. [Sw. sanifu SED 411; Ar. ṣanifa W 527] (sanifiile) invent, compose Naani/ sanifilo markabú. ‘Who invented this ship?’

Sanifiile wanaafakhi. ‘He fabricated lies.’

Wa piḷi/ chisanifa/ tu/ chihada/ kuwaa ye/ losele/ ye/ tukiile/ maandra/ chiḷaani/ naa nyunyi/ zinaakuja/ karka maandra/ iyo. ‘The second just made up (a dream), he said that he dreamed he carrying bread on his head and birds were eating from that bread.’

was review

rel.

kh-sanifoowa v. pass. (sanifiḷa) be invented

Ni zint^hu zisanifiḷa yuziyuuzi. ‘These are things which were recently invented.’

sanjaari

n. [Sw. sanjari SED 411; Pers.] column of vehicles or ships

Jhazi/ zisafirile sanjaari. ‘The dhows travelled in a column.’

sansa

without

Fulaana/ sansa maaniko/ huvalowa ndraani/ ka ilu/ huvalilowa shaati. ‘A sleeveless undergarment is worn inside and on top a shirt is worn.’

saanti

n. 9/10 [Som. saan DSI 526, Tunni sáan Tosco 234, apparently added to n-t^hi ‘ground’; but also cf. Bajuni sati in Nurse’s Bajuni wordlist] footprint, footstep, foot; [pron. saant^hi] khtila saant^hi ‘lit. to put [one’s] footsteps in -- i.e. to attend briefly a ceremony (but usually on sad occasions, like mourning) to show that one has been present’

kondrola saant^hi ‘to move’

Saant^hi/ hoondrolo/ mojiitu. ‘It is God who moves our footsteps, i.e. who decides when we go to some place.’ (Used as a justification for not going somewhere earlier.)

Sultaani/ wawaye mwanaamke/ naayé/ chilawa/ na askarizé/ kendra kubiga harbi/ laakini/ Hasani/ maraa isa/ nt^hakoondrola/ saant^hi/ kaleent^he/ kumlindra mwanaamke. ‘The sultan, the girl’s father, also went out, and his soldiers, to go to fight the war, but Hasani this time did not move foot [leave footprint], he stayed to look after the girl.’

kubadila saant^hi ‘lit. to change [one’s] footsteps -- i.e. to marry a new wife (while keeping the first one, or the previous ones’ (less common than kubadila chizingiiti/ cha mnaango) kurasha saant^hi ‘to track’ kureba saant^hi ‘to stop the footsteps – i.e. not go’

Omari/ mwambile Sheekhi/ sooloké/ ka Abú/ numbaani/ skumbili izi/ ziko rabsha/ kheerí/ reba saant^hiyó.

‘Omari told Sheekhu: don’t go to Abu’s house, these days there is trouble there, better to (lit. stop your steps) not go.’

Nakhkasa sant^hi za muunt^hú. ‘I can hear someone’s footsteps.’

Ngamiila/ schiwa spakiila/ mizigo/ saant^hize/ hingila mtangaani. ‘When camels are carrying loads, their footprints are deep in the sand.’

sant^hi ya mbuuni ‘a bad omen [lit. footprints of an ostrich]’

Uyu/ ni sant^hi ya mbuuni. ‘He is a bad omen.’

Sí/ ka kaako/ chinakhsulaa dawá/ yaa si/ khpaka saant^hi/ ziitu/ khpata kinendra ilu ya tawala/ kendra mahala/ si/ chinakhsuuló. ‘We want medicine from you (so that) we rub it on our feet (so that we) get to walk on the sea to go to whatever place we want.’

santuuri

n. [Sw. santuri SSED 411] gramophone, phonograph kubiga santuuri ‘to play a phonograph’

sapaatu

n. [Sw. sapatu SSED 411; Port.] kind of leather shoe, locally made, worn by women (but now no longer used); they were shaped like slippers, closed in front and open on side of the heel zilatu za sapaatu ‘shoes of the sapaatu type’

saqafu

n. 9/10 [Sw. sakafu SSED 407; Ar. saqf "roof, ceiling" W 415] concrete floor; [pron. saqafu or sakhafu]

saqara

n. [Ar. saqar W 414] hell; [pron. saqara or sakhara]

kh-sara

(with the point of s.t.)

v. [Som. sar DSI 536] (sariile) vaccinate, scratch, make a small incision, scrape off igonjooi. ‘The old man sat down and Huseeni took out a knife to cut the old man at the knee.’

Nimsariile kaa chisu. ‘I scratched him with a knife.’

Nsariile ka chireeza. ‘He scratched me with a razor blade.’

rel.

kh-sarana v. rec. (-sareene)

kh-sarika v. p/s.

Mkonowa/ usarishile. ‘My arm is scratched.’

kh-sariila v. appl. (sariile)

Nimsariile/ chisu. ‘I scratched him with a knife.’ (Phon. This phrasing is used in response to a question such as Fanyilizeni/ chisu. ‘What did you do with the knife?’)

kh-sariiloowa v. app. pass/ (sariila)

Chisu/ chisariila. ‘A knife was used to scratch someone with.’

kh-sarisha v. caus. (sarishiie)

Haliima/ msarishize Ali/ ruuhuye/ mkono. ‘Haliima caused Ali to scratch himself on the hand.’ (Observe that while the reflexive pronoun ruuhu+pronoun ordinarily must be the primary object of the verb, in the causative it may refer to the "causee", which functions as the primary object of the causative verb.)

Suufi/ msarishize dakhtari/ mwaana/ kaa chisu. ‘Suufi caused the doctor to cut the child with a knife.’

kh-sarishiliza v. caus. appl. (sarishilize) (The applied form of the causative would not generally be used to incorporate an instrument into the argument structure of the verb, as witnessed by the unacceptability of Suufi/ msarishilize dakhtari/ mwaana/ chisu. ‘Suufi caused the doctor to cut the child with a knife.’ It is possible, however, to use a bare instrumental noun when it is not overt in the verb phrase; for example, chisu cha Suufi/ msarishilizo dakhtari/ mwaaná... ‘the knife that Suufi made the doctor use to cut the child'. Perhaps even ?Suufi/ chisu/ msarishilize dakh̄tari/ mwaana. 'Suufi, the knife, he caused the doctor to cut the child with it.')

Jeeli/ msarishilize Ali/ mwaana/ mwaalimu/ mkono. 'Jeeli caused Ali's child to cut the teacher on the arm.' (The verb form requires a beneficiary, a causee, and an individual who receives the action of the causee. Although all three of the nouns in this sentence trigger the same [cl.1] agreement, the OM on the verb necessarily refers to the beneficiary, here Ali. One cannot omit the beneficiary noun; a sentence of the shape Jeeli/ msarishilize mwaana/ mwaalimu/ mkono. cannot be understood as 'Jeeli caused his child to cut the teacher'; if the noun following the verb is of the same class as indicated by the OM, then it must in fact be interpreted as a beneficiary. Compare the acceptable Jeeli/ msarishilize waana/ mwaalimu/ mkono. 'Jeeli caused his children to cut the teacher's arm.' Here waana 'children' is a [cl.2] noun and thus cannot be the [cl.1] beneficiary indicated by the OM m.) kh-sarishilizoowa v. caus. appl.

Chisu/ chisarishiliza dakh̄tari. 'A knife was caused to be used by the doctor.' Mohammad Imam accepted this sentence, though noted that the structure invites an interpretation where chisu is a beneficiary, but this does not seem possible understanding.

kh-saroowa v. pass. (sariila)

do some work on the syntax of the extended verbs here

rel. nom.

m-sara (wa-) n. 1/2 one who vaccinates

m-saro n. a scratch; a vaccination mark sarafa

n.

skutila mkonooni kiiwa sarafaye [nt.] 'I have not had them in my hand to know their value [lit. their exchange rate]'

sarafu

n. [Ar. sarf "money changing" W 513] small, loose change (money)

Siná/ sarafu/ isa/ ruda kaa numa. 'I do not have any change now, come back later.'

saraara

n. [Som. sarar "sirloin" DSI 527] sirloin; alternative form: saraana ?

sarataani

n. [Ar. saratān W 407] cancer

Maraḍi ya sarataani/ hayapoloowi. 'The disease of cancer is incurable.'

sarbi

n. [Som. serbi DSI 542] a thin pliable cane

Shtala sarbi/ chimvunaanga. 'He took the stick and beat her.'

sarfu

n.[Sw. sarufu "grammar" SSED 411; Ar. sarf W 513] morphology (in grammar)

saari

n. a kind of dress worn by Indian women

Wako wake/ hupeenda/ saari/ kuvaala/ kolko/ hanzu za aadi. 'There are women who prefer wearing saris rather than regular dresses.'

l-saari

n. [Som. saar DSI 527] crawler (bot.)

lsaari lchitaambala ndilo hufiito [st.] 'when a plant crawls it will blossom' sariigi

n. 9 respect, deference

Mwaadamu/ laazimu/ kuwamo sariigi. 'A human being must be respectful, deferential.'

Omari/ ntʰaná/ sariigi. 'Omari does not show respect, deference.'

Omari/ sariigiye/ haba. 'Omari his respectfulness/ deference is little.'

Soddo/ nayo sariigi. 'A brother-in-law deserves respect.' (A proverb.)

sarjente

n. sergeant (Note that the nt in this example is not aspirated, indicating that it counts as a nasal-consonant sequence rather than a pre-nasalized ɲ.)

sarkaali

n. [Sw. serikali "government, public authority" SSED 414; Persian] government variant form: salikaari

Basi/ ichiwa/ ntʰi/ nda sarkaali/ naa muti/ mbwa sarkaali. 'So, if the earth belongs to the government and (then also) the tree belongs to the government.'

Bonṭa/ zivunziḷa ka sarkaali/ sfanyiiza. 'The bridges that were destroyed by the government were repaired.'

dali ni dibiḷi nt^hako sarkaali [nt.] 'the country is bereft, there is no government'

Haṭá/ skola za sarkaali/ sfuunziḷa. 'Even the government schools have been closed.'

Nuuru/ andishilee khaṭi/ ka sarkaali. 'Nuuru wrote a letter to the government.'

sarkali iyi 'this government'; sarkali izi 'these governments'

Sarkaali/ mkonowe/ nii mule. 'The government, its arm is long.' (A proverb. Cf. the English "the long arm of the law".)

sarkali suura 'a good government, good governments'

Sarkaali/ ṭomele i'laani. 'The government issued a proclamation.' (Notice that we did not record a [cl.9] subject marker on the verb. It seems to control [cl.1] agreement on the verb.)

sarkali yiimp^hi 'which government?'; sarkali ziimp^hi 'which governments?'

Sarkaari/ nakunashira sirri/ zaa zita. 'The government is spreading the secrets of the war.'

Waant^hu/ wa khabiiḷaye/ hupata kiḷa yaa wo/ wanakhsuuḷó/ ka sarkaali/ hupata kaazi/ suura/ za sarkaali/ wachisuḷa deeni/ ka bangiini/ wo/ hupata pashpoo dhibu/ walá/ endrá/ ruuda. 'People from his tribe [i.e. the one ruling the government] get everything that they want from the government, they get good jobs from the government, if they want to take a loan from the bank, they get it without difficulty, nor do they [waste time] coming and going.'

Wotte/ wana'iwe/ kuwaa we/ ni munt^hu wa sarkaali/ ni muunt^hu/ hupeendó/ sarkaali. 'All know that you are a man of the government, a man who loves the government.' (Note the use of the subjunctive as a main verb in this example.)

sarmadi adj. [Ar. sarmadi "eternal, without beginning or end" W 408] poetic eternal haayaṭi daa'imu nda mooja sarmadi [st.] 'everlasting life belongs to the eternal God' sarmala (ma-) n. [Sw. seremal SSED 414; Persian] carpenter Inakhpimoowa/ na masarmala/ inakulangaloowa/ inakandikowa apa/ nt^haku/ nt^hanakhtaambula. '(In order to find some difference between two pieces of wood) there is measuring done by carpenters, there is careful inspection, there is putting (the wood) here, (but) there is nothing, he cannot distinguish (between the two pieces of wood).'

Iize/ keendra/ mbaramisha sarmala. 'He refused to go and talk to the carpenter.'

Muti/ sarmala/ nakhsuḷa kḥtindaa muti/ kḥtomola sḥtolokocha. 'Tree, carpenter, I want [him] to cut down the tree to get my little bean.'

Sarmala mooyi/ ondroshele/ lowelee muke/ na ishiize/ naaye/ miyaaka/ miingi. 'A carpenter went and took a wife and lived with her for many years.'

Sarmala/ mi/ nakhsuḷa kḥtindilowaa muti/ kḥtomola sḥtolokocha. 'As for the carpenter, I want to have the tree cut down in order to get out from it my little bean.'

sarsaaro n. no etymology found a large stinging fly that builds a clay nest variant forms: sarsoore, sansoora

saarto (ma-) n. [Ital. sarto] tailor saaruji n. [Sw. saruji SSED 411; the Ar. etymo given in SSED (ṣārūj) was not found in Wehr's dictionary] a kind of lime mixed with red clay and sand used in construction of buildings kh-sasa v. no etymological source found (sasiile) get, grow thin (The perfect stem for this verb is irregular. One would have expected sasiize.)

khsasa/ kanaa luti 'to become as thin as a stick' review khsasa/ kanaa luti 'to become as thin as a thread'

Ahmadi/ sasiile/ ka murugu/ ya waawaye/ khfungoowa/ wele mambaamba/ kanaa luzi. 'Ahmadi became thin from the distress of his father being imprisoned, he became thin like thread.'

Kuwaa ye/ nakhsasa/ inakanza koonyesha. 'That he is losing weight is beginning to show.'

Mbona/ sasiile/ we. 'How come you have lost weight?'

Mwana wa sultaani/ ka murugu/ chisasa/ nt^ho. 'The sultan's son grew very thin from worrying.'

Nakuwoná/ jisaa mi/ nsasiiló. 'Do you see how I have grown thin?'

Yaayi/ mboni/ we/ nakhsasá. 'How come you are losing weight?'

m-saasa (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. msasa SSED 301] sandpaper

kubiga msaasa 'to sandpaper s.t.'

Mbishile msaasa/ lwawo. 'He sandpapered a plank of wood.' Or: Mbishile lwawo/ msaasa.

saatiri

n. [cf. Ar. verb satarā "to hide" and as-sattār "God as the Veiler" W 397] a name for God (one who keeps all things hidden)

sawa

[cl.2] there they are; [pron. sawá]

Sawá/ waaná. 'Here are the children.'

sawa

[Sw. sawa SSED 412; Ar. sawā 'equal, equality, sameness' W 444] level, even, same

Ka kaake/ waant^hu/ wotte/ ni sawa. 'For him, all people are the same.'

khfanya sawa 'to straighten things, put in order; level, flatten'

Ifanyize sawa. 'It was flattened.'

Mbujaze/ ni sawa/ ka suura/ na kaa wulé. 'His sisters are similar in beauty and height.'

Mwana mwovu/ chibiga/ ba/ na chimkooðisha/ ni sawa/ tu. 'A bad child, whether you strike him or you talk to him, he is just the same.' (A saying.)

Nakuza waant^hu/ nakulangala apa/ mbuzi mbilize/ sawa. 'He was asking people, he was looking here [at the goats, trying to see how they were different, but] the goats were both the same.'

Nuuru/ shaati/ ni sawaye. 'Nuuru's shirt fits him.'

rel.

sawa/ sawa ok, alright review whether other uses have the same phrasing as observed

in this usage

sawasawa adj. [Sw. sawasawa SSED 412] equal, the same

Chibiga mafungu matatu sawasawa. 'He divided it up into three equal share.'

Ka mwajitu/ munt^hu faqiiri/ na munt^hu taajiri/ mwaana/ chihaba/ na munt^hu mzimá/ ni sawasawa/ nt^hamú/ farqi. 'For God, a poor man and a rich man, a small child and an adult, are the same; there is no difference.'

Ka sharti/ mooyi/ ya kuwa yaa we/ takhpató/ yotte/ takaawanya/ naami/ sawasawa. 'On one condition, that whatever you will get, you will divide it all with me equally.'

Kaaka/ ni sawasawa. 'It is all the same to me.'

kuwa sawasawa/ jisaa we/ taku'amilaṭanó/ na faqiiri/ ku'amilaṭana/ na munt^hu taajiri 'to be the same in the way that you deal with the poor as in dealing with a rich man'

Letelelaa mbuzi/ mbili/ sawasawa. ‘He was brought two goats both alike.’
sawa/ sawa/ kana maandra/ lpaandre ‘as similar as a loaf of bread made into two halves’ review the pronunciation sawa/ sawa
Sultani mwiingine/ mkulu/ chimleetelo/ chimletelaa mbuzi/ mbili/ sawasawa. ‘Another, more powerful sultan, that’s what he did, he brought to him two goats (that) look alike.’
Wanaadamu/ ni watana wa mwajiitu/ wotte/ ni sawasawa. ‘Human beings are the servants of God, all are equal.’
sawasawa n. the level of s.t.
sawasawa ya tawala ‘the level of the sea’

u-sawa n. 14 level of s.t.; equality, likeness usawa wa tawala ‘the level of the sea’ sawaje [cl.2] dem. there they are (over there); [pron. sawajé] Sawajé/ waaná. ‘There are the children (far from us).’

kh-sawala v. [Ar. sawala "entice, seduce" W 444] (saweele) reflect light on someone; possess, enchant, charm, persuade, convince; get a child to sleep (by rocking or singing) variant form: khsawa (sawiile)
Ali/ ijini/ msaweele. ‘A jinn has possessed Ali (made him crazy).’
Ali/ nsawele ka chilolo. ‘Ali reflected the light (of the sun) on me with a mirror.’
Haliima/ msaweele. ‘Haliima has enchanted him.’
khsawala kana sheetaani ‘to persuade like satan’ khsawala waant^hu ‘to mislead, confuse, entice, enchant people’ kumsawa ‘to persuade him’ na Iblisi la’iini nakuwasawo [st.] ‘and Iblis (= the devil), the accursed, charms them into temptation’ Naani/ msawilo Omari/ kula nuumbá. ‘Who persuaded Omari to buy a house?’ Or with verb emphasis: Naani/ msawiilo/ Omari/ kula nuumba. Also: Naani/ msawiilo/ Omari/ kuula/ nuumba. (Although final accent on the last phrase was accepted as well: Naani/ msawiilo/ Omari/ kula nuumbá. Also: Naani/ msawiilo/ Omari/ kuula/ nuumbá.
Omari/ ijini/ msaweele. ‘A jinn has possessed Omari (made him crazy).’
rel.
kh-sawaloowa v. pass.
Ali/ saweele. ‘Ali was possessed, enchanted, etc.’
kh-sawalika v. p/s.
Suufi/ hasawaliki. ‘Suufi cannot be misled, etc.’
kh-sawalisha v. caus.
Sa’iidi/ msawalishize Suufi/ mwaana/ ka chilolo. ‘Saiidi caused Suufi to reflect light on the child with a mirror.’
kh-sawaliza v. tr. appl.
kh-sawalizanya v. tr. appl. rec.
kh-sawaza v. tr. make lose wits and perceptions Simsawazé/ mweenziwo. ‘Don’t make your friend lose his wits etc. (e.g. with deceitful words)!’
kh-sawazanya v. tr. rec.
kh-sawazika v. tr. p/s.
Hasawaziki. ‘He’s not easy to make lose his wits, etc.’

kh-sawarata v. [Som. sabar DSI 528; Ar. sabr W 501] (sawareete) be patient, exercise patience (The extension at in Chimiini is ordinarily attached to words of Somali origin rather than Arabic origin. This fact suggests that Somali and not Arabic is the source of the present verb. It should be pointed out that an intervocalic b in Somali is pronounced as a continuant and not a stop; in Chimiini this sound is sometimes retained, in which case we write b, but sometimes is altered to w, as in the present example.)

Husawarató/ huliwaanó. ‘The one who exercises patience is the one who succeeds.’ (A proverb.)

Nsawareeté/ maamé/ niingi. ‘I was patient, mother, for a long time.’ (Or: Nsawarete niingi/ maamé. ‘I was patient for a long time, mother.’) sawarataani tulaani/ Sheekhi siwo wa kupatoowa [st.] ‘calm down and be consoled, the Sheik is out of reach’

We/ laazima/ khsawarata. ‘You must be patient.’

rel.

kh-sawaratika v. p/s.

kh-sawarata v. appl. (sawaratiile) bear, tolerate s.o.

Msawaratiile mwaana. ‘He tolerated the child.’

Omari/ waliko saha/ chiza khsawarata/ tabi’a/ ya Abú. ‘Omari was right in refusing to tolerate Abu’s behavior.’

kh-sawar(at)isha v. caus. console, induce patience kh-sawar(at)ishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-sawarishana v. caus. rec. console one another kh-sawarishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-sawar(at)ishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-sawar(at)ishilizeenye)

Ji/ na Alí/ wasawarishilizenye waana. ‘Ji and Ali consoled one another’s children.’ (It is apparently possible to leave unexpressed who was consoled: Ji/ na Alí/ wasawarataishilizeenye. ‘Ji and Ali consoled for one another.’)

rel. nom.

m-sawarata (wa-) n. 1/2

m-sawasrisha (wa-) n. 1/2

m-sawarisho n. 3

kh-sawira

v. [Sw. sawiri SSED 412; Ar. sawara W 529] (sawiriile) draw/ make a picture variant form: kh-sawirata khsawir(at)a nuumba ‘to draw a house; to take a picture of a house’

rel.

kh-sawirika, kh-sawiratika v. p/s.

Numba/ ha’isawiratikiki. ‘The house cannot be drawn, pictured.’

Numba/ husawaratika. ‘The house can be drawn, pictured.’

kh-sawiroowa v. pass.

Isawirila nuumba. ‘A house has been drawn, pictured.’

Numba/ inakhsawiroowa. ‘A house is being drawn, pictured.’

Numba/ isawiriila. ‘A house has been drawn, pictured.’

sawo

there are ([cl.2] close to you); [pron. sawó]

Sawó/ waana. ‘There are the children (close to you).’

say’aatí

n. pl. [Ar. sayy āt W 439] sins, offences, misdeeds

saya

here are ([cl.4] close to me); [pron. sayá]

Mikate/ sayá. ‘Here are the cakes.’

saya

here are ([cl.6] close to me); [pro. sayá]

Makoopa/ sayá. ‘Here are the glasses.’

sayaje

there are ([cl.4] away from us); [pron. sayajé]

Mikate/ sayajé. ‘There are the cakes over there.’

Sayajé/ mikaté. ‘There are the cakes over there.’

sayaje

there are ([cl.6] away from us); [pron. sayajé]

Sayajé/ makoopa. ‘There are the glasses over there.’

- v. [Sw. saidia SSED 407; Ar. sa'ida W 410] (saydiile) help
- Isa/ nnakhsuulá/ mi/ teena/ kunsaaayda. 'Now I want again (you) to help me.'
- Iwá/ waa we/ tamsaaydó. 'Know the one who you help!' (A proverbial saying warning that one should be careful with respect to the person one chooses to help.)
- Jeneraale/ waliko apo/ khsaaayda/ tu. [HHH!!H] 'The general was there just to give his support.'
- Karkaa ndila/ Alfaani/ chimwambila Buluukhiya/ kumsaaayda/ khfanya ipakacha. 'On the road, Alfaani asked Buluukhiya to help him make a basket.'
- Khaliifa/ msaydiile. 'Khaliifa helped him.'
- khsayda wazeelewe 'to help his parents'
- Mi/ sinakhtosha/ kuwa Omari/ takhsaaayda. 'I don't believe that Omari will help.'
- Mpa riyaali/ mooyi/ naami/ nt^h akhsaaayda/ ka khupikila chaakuja. 'Give me one riyal and I will help you by cooking food for you.'
- Muunthu/ husaydo ruuhuyé/ na mwiingine/ humsaaaydó. 'He who helps himself is the one who helps another.' (A proverb.)
- Muusa/ msaydiile Hamadi/ khfunga mlaango. 'Muusa helped Hamadi to shut the door.'
- Mwana wa Khaliifa/ msaydiile. 'Khaliifa's son helped him.' (Simple yes-no question: Mwana wa Khaliifa/ msaydiile? Exclamatory yes-no question: Mwana wa Khaliifá/ msaydiilé!? Notice the possibility of shifting the accent in the initial phrase in the emphatic yes-no question.)
- Ni laazimu/ we/ kunsaaayda. 'You must help me.'
- Nimsaydiilé/ Omari/ khpikaa zijo. 'I helped Omari to cook zijo.' Or: Omari/ nimsaydiilé/ khpikaa zijo. Or: Zijo/ khpika/ Omari/ nimsaydiilé. Or: Khpikaa zijo/ Omari/ nimsaydiilé. Or: Khpikaa zijo/ nimsaydiilé/ Omari. (Note that one cannot omit the object marker on the main verb: Nsaydiilé/ zijo/ Omari/ khpika. Nor is it possible for a passive subject of the infinitive to be promoted to be the passive subject of the main verb: Zijo/ zisaydiila/ khpikoowa. 'Zijo was helped to be cooked.'
- Nimsaydiilé/ Omari/ zijo/ khpikoowa. 'I helped Omari for zijo to be cooked.' Or: Zijo/ khpikoowa/ nimsaydiilé/ Omari. Or: khpikowaa zijo/ nimsaydiilé/ Omari. Or: Zijo/ khpikoowa/ Omari/ nimsaydiilé.
- Sayda waantthu/ naawé/ takinfoowa. 'Help people and you will be helped.' (A proverb.) A variant of this proverb: Sayda waantthu/ naawé/ takhsaydoowa. Help people and you will be helped.'
- Tafaðali/ isa/ nsaayda/ jisa khpata/ muðliwa/ kundruudila. 'Please now help me to get my husband to remarry [lit. return to] me.'
- Uqabiila/ ha'usaaydi/ kulesanya wantthu wa nt^hi mooyi. 'Tribalism does not help bring together the people of one country.'
- Waliko chiwasayda khtukula skunyi. 'He was helping them to carry firewood.'
- Wazeele/ wamsaydiile. 'The elders helped him.'
- Wo/ hufanya kaazi/ khpata khsaaayda/ wabli waawo/ na ruhu zaawó. 'They (e.g. women) do jobs so as to get to help their husbands and themselves.'
- Ye/ takhsaaayda. 'She will help you.'
- rel.
- kh-saaydana* v. rec. help one another
- Chimaliza/ waantthu/ wotte/ husaaydana/ kuyeza/ khabri/ mtaanga. 'Then all [the other] people help [lit. one another] to fill the grave with sand.'
- Wasaydeene. 'They helped one another.'
- Wawanayo fursa/ yaa wo/ khsaaaydana. 'They had the chance for them to help one another.'
- kh-saaydika* v. p.s. able to be helped
- kh-saaydila* v. appl. help with, for
- Nt^haná/ aqli/ za kichisaaydila. 'He does not have the wits to help us with.'
- kh-saydilana* v. appl. rec.

- N^hawaná/ nguvu/ zaa wo/ khsaydilana. ‘They do not have the strength for them to help one another with.’
- kh-saaydishá v. (This verbal form does not seem to be used.)
- kh-saydoowa* v. pass.
- Hamadi/ saydila khfunga mlaango. ‘Hamadi was helped to shut the door.’
- Husu_{lo} khsaydoowá/ husimika ruuhuye. ‘He who wants to be helped should put himself on his feet.’ (A proverb.)
- wazaazi hukumbukoowa, na maskiini husaydoowa [song] ‘parents are remembered, the poor are helped’
- rel. nom.
- m-saa’ada* n. help
- Fanyiize/ jahazi/ pamooyi/ na msaa’ada/ wa waant^hu/ wamwaniloo ye/ na mwajiituwé. ‘He made a boat together with the help of people who believed in him and his God.’
- m-saayda* (wa-) n. 1/2 one who helps
- sayidi n. [Sw. saidi; Ar. sayyid W 440] owner, master; honorific title prefixed to personal names, particularly of Mashariifu, or to the name of a person who is called after an Islamic sheikh (e.g. Sayid Ahmadi); note that in these cases, the final vowel is deleted
- variant form: saydi [pron. saydí]
- Bin^ti sultaani/ mukewe mgarwa/ chimjiiba/ nkhubajilé/ sayidiyá/ laakini/ chiliindre/ muda wa sku sitta. ‘The sultan’s daughter, the wife of this fisherman, replied to him: I agree [to this proposal], my master, but let us wait for a period of six days.’
- Khaadimu/ chishikaa luti/ ilo/ chibiga sultaani/ jisaa ye/ amuriilá/ na saydiyé. ‘The servant took the stick and struck the king just as he was ordered to by his master.’
- saydiyá or saydiwá ‘my master’
- rel.
- sadaati (ma-) [Ar. sādāt W 440] a synonym for mashariifu (= descendants of the Prophet)
- sayi’aatí n. [Ar. sayyi’āt, pl. of sayyi’a “offence, misdeed” W 439] those things that are bad from a religious point of view
- sayo there are ([cl.4] close to you); [pron. sayó]
- Mikate/ sayó. ‘There are the cakes close to you.’
- sayo there are ([cl.6] close to you); [pron. sayó]
- Makoopa/ sayó. ‘There are the glasses close to you.’
- kh-sawa v. (sawiile) persuade, convince
- Haliima/ msawile maanawe/ yana. ‘Haliima persuaded her child yesterday.’ Or: Haliima/ msawiile/ maanawe/ yana. ‘Haliima persuaded her child yesterday.’
- Maana/ maamaye/ msawiiló. ‘The child’s mother persuaded him.’
- kh-sayira v. [Ar. sāra, sair W 446] (sayiriile) talk s.o. into doing s.t.
- N^hamsayira/ ha^tá/ ye/ shkhiira. ‘I will talk to him until he agrees.’
- rel.
- kh-sayirasayira* v. freq. make several attempts to talk s.o. into doing s.t.
- seega n. [Som. seego “male masturbation” DSI 540] masturbation
- kubiga seega ‘to masturbate’
- segretaariyo n. secretary
- Abu wa Boosiri/ zamaani/ waliko segretaariyo/ ya rasdenté/ Miini. ‘Abu wa Boosiri was secretary of the district commissioner in Brava in old times.’

Segreṭaariyo/ laazimu/ kuwa muunt^hu/ na'iwo khsoomá/ na kaandiká. 'A secretary should be a person who knows how to read and write.'

- sehe n. 9/10 [Som., Tunni dialect, sehó "provisions, supplies" Tosco 235] provisions Naawó/ wachishindroowa/ na ichiwa^llaazima khfakaṭa/ zombo zaawo/ na sehe zaawó/ ṣṭakuwa ziiko/ mahaḷaa wo/ hukhadiro khkomá. 'And if they were defeated and must flee, their supplies and their rations would be there where they could reach them.'
Sehe/ hutululowaa mbele. 'Something done in preparation for doing some activity is prepared first.' (A proverb.)
seheye kuwa haraamu siwo suura [st.] 'it is unseemly for him (a pilgrim) to have unlawful provisions' Wachunganyaa sehe/ niingi/ washpakila jahaziini. 'They collected a large amount of provisions and loaded them on the dhow.'
Washkalaant^ha/ wachija/ sehe zaa wo/ waṭukiló. 'They sat down and ate the provisions that they had carried.'
- sehemu [Sw. shahamu "animal fat", SSED 415; Ar. saḥm W 457] animal fat variant form: sehemu
mafta ya sehemu 'ghee'
- u-seeja n. a silver or golden necklace with small beads in the shape of cardamon seeds
- sekertaariyo (ma-) n. [Ital. segretario] secretary or minister in the government
- sekondo n. second Gaari/ ichineendra/ hubadiḷowa maarsha/ kaandra/ hutilowa biriima/ chimaliza sekondo/ chimaliza teersa/ chimaliza kuwaarta/ chimaliza kuwinta.
'When a car runs, you change the gears, first gear one, then gear two, then gear three, then gear four, and then gear five.'
- seendre [see s-eendre] lest, otherwise, so that not; [pron. seendré]
Ushaa kuja/ seendré/ waana/ kawaaja. 'Hide the food so that the children do not eat it.'
Usha peesa/ seendré/ miizi/ kaboola. 'Hide the money so that the thieves do not steal it.'
- seneeki n. 9/10 a small kingfish (ngulu), exact species unknown, long and thin and edible ngulu wa seneeki 'a kingfish of the seneeki type'
- chi-seengene (zi-) n. 7/8 palm
- seeni n. [Eng. sign] sign khtila seeni 'to sign'; also khtilowa seeni, khtilika seeni, khtilila seeni Alí/ tiliila/ rukhsa/ seeni/ ka munichiiṭiyo/ kuwaka nuumbaye.
'Ali has gotten signed permission to build his house.'
Hamadi/ mmerseheleze mwaanawe/ nuumbaye/ tiile/ mbarakha/ seeni. 'Hamadi has turned over his house to his son, he has signed the papers.' Or: Hamadi/ mmerseheleze nuumbaye/ mwaanawe/ seeni/ mbarakha.
Khaaḍi/ tiile/ lwarakha/ seeni/ la Hamadi/ khtomolowa habasaani. 'The judge signed the paper for Hamadi to be released from jail.'
Omari/ mwambile Huseeni/ simtililé/ Alí/ seeni/ lwarakha la khtalila peesa/ bangiini. 'Omari told Huseeni don't sign for Ali the paper to take money from the bank with.'
Rasdente/ hadiile/ lwarakha/ lchiwa siwo/ fasiha/ khsoomeka/ haṭtiliki/ seeni. 'The district commissioner said that if the paper is not clearly readable, it cannot be signed.'

Seeni/ lwarakha/ hutilika/ ichiwa kilaa chiint^u/ ni kaamili. ‘A paper can be signed if everything is complete.’

- seenyo n. signal
(I)tala ya Manaweera/ hupa markabu/ zinakhpita twala/ seenyo. ‘Tala ya Manaweera gives signals to ships which are passing in the sea.’
- senṭi n. [Sw. senṭi SSED 414; Eng. cent]
Wamó/ huleta senṭi ikumi. ‘Some bring ten cents.’
- kh-seseegata v. [cf. Som. seegseeg "lazy person, never-do-well" DSI 540] (sesegeete) go, wander about jobless, be a vagabond; [pron. khseesegata] confirm Somali velar fricative g Nakhseegata bilaa kaazi. ‘He is wandering about jobless.’
rel.
kh-seseegisha v. caus. [pron. khseesegisha]
rel. nom.
u-seseegato n. 14 [pron. useesegato]
m-seseegisha (wa-) n. 1/2 vagabond; [pron. mseesegisha]
- seseegi adj. [Som. seegseeg "lazy person, never-do-well" DSI 540] vagabond, one who wanders around jobless (or refuses to do any work); [pron. seseegi]
- kh-seeta v. [Sw. seta SSED 414] (seteele) run over something, stamp on someone Gaari/ imsetele Haaji. ‘The car ran over Haaji.’
Haaji/ msetele mwaana/ ka gaari. ‘Haaji ran over the child with a car.’
khseta maank^hale ‘to reduce sesame seeds to paste with the hands’ Nsetele kuulu. ‘He stamped me on the leg.’
rel.
kh-seeteka v. p/s. (-seteshela) be stamped on kh-seetsha v. caus. (-seteshiize) Ali/ mseteshela Nuuru/ mwaana/ ka gaari. ‘Ali caused Nuuru to run over the child with a car.’
kh-setoowa v. pass. (-seteele) be run over Mwaana/ setele ka gaari/ na Haaji. ‘The child was run over with a car by Haaji.’
Mwaana/ setele na gaari. ‘The child was run over by a car.’
- sfañji n. [Ar. safañj W 414] sponge
- sfeeli n. race; competition (e.g. in dancing)
Zamaani/ ramaḏaani/ Mwiini/ masku ya sfeeli/wachiletowaa wake/ ka Bulu Mareer/ wawaliko wakali/ khṭinda makiindri. ‘During old times, in Ramadhan, on the night of competition, women were brought from Bulu Mareer; they were expert in dancing.’
- sh interj. keep quiet!
- sha’abaani n. [Ar. sa’bān W 473] lunar month before Ramadan, the eighth month of the Islamic calendar (but the eleventh month of the Bravanese calendar)
- sha’abu n. people, in the sense of the nation as a whole (e.g. if you speak of a national assembly or of people’s vote); more restrictively, it applies to people of the same town or of the same tribe, when you speak of them in a general sense (e.g. popular feelings or the will of the people)
Nṭ^haasá/ ni yaabu/ jisa ra’iisi/ bashizo iná/ kahimá/ ka sha’abú. ‘It remains astonishing how quickly the president lost popularity (lit. lost name with the people).’

- sha'abuye 'its people'
- sha'ani n. 9 [Ar. ša' n "matter, affair, concern" W 449] (i) affair, event; (ii) high position, standing, consequence, worth variant form: shaani
(i) Leelo/ ra'isi Niksoni/ ba'adaa ye/ kuwona/ kuwa ni njeema/ kuliwala/ sha'ani/ za Watergate/ na faðiihazé... 'Today, President Nixon, after realizing that it was best to forget about the events of Watergate and its scandals...'
Ndraṭaani/ mi/ na sha'anizá. '(Pl.) leave me alone, me and my affairs!'
Si/ sha'ani yiiu/ nii mbali/ si/ shfile ka ooni/ naa ndalá. 'We, our case was different, we died from thirst and hunger.'
(ii) Sheekhi shaaniye ađiimu [st.] 'the Sheikh's position is an exalted one' iwilo ya Sheekhi [st.] 'whoever knew the Sheikh's worth'
- shaa'ibu n. [Sw. shaibu SSED 415; Ar. sā'ib W 496] not used in ordinary speech a very old person; honorific title for town elder, member of Brava's council formed by the "toddoba tol" (the seven groups represented on the council) ka rahmaze humnaharisa shaa'ibu '[God] in his compassion is generous to the old'
- shaa'iri (ma-) n. [cf. Sw. shairi (ma-) "a song, a line of poetry" and mshairi (wa-) "a poet, a writer or composer, of songs" SSED 415; cf. Ar. verb sa'ara, si'r "compose poetry" W 473] composer, poet, reciter
- sha'iiri n. 9 [Ar. sa'ir W 474] barley
- shaba n. 9 [Sw. shaba SSED 414; Ar. sabah W 454] copper, brass
Lurma laa shaba/ nla naani/ laa mi/ mbekelela kaayi. 'That copper bracelet belongs to whom, the one that for me has been put away safely?' (A proverb.)
Ndrani ya sanduukhu/ chivalimo chiwovu/ na ndrani ya chiwovú/ chivalimo chisanduukhu/ chihaba/ cha shaba. 'Inside the box was a bag and inside the bag was a small box of copper.'
- shabaabu (ma-) n., adj. [Sw. shababi SSED 414; Ar. sabāb W 451] youth, young; variant form: shaabu Want^hu awa/ shabaabu/ washerehele ruuhu zaawo. 'These young people have explained themselves.'
- Shabaabu n. a terrorist group operating in Somalia that occupied Brava for a considerable period of time before finally being driven out at the end of 2014
Ma'askari/ wa Shabaabu/ wamaliiza/ dakan dakan! 'The Shabaab soldiers have been annihilated.'
- kh-shabiha v.
kudaa'ima kuraatiba mauḷiidi / ayaamu ya jima khshabiha iidi [st.] 'if you are constant in reading always the Mawlid, the days of Friday are like a great holy day'
rel.
kh-shabihana v. [cf. Sw. shabihana SSED 414; Ar. šabiha W 453] look alike, resemble
- shadda n. [Ar. sadda W 460] the mark of gemination in the Arabic script is this word actually used in speaking chimiini; if so, get examples otherwise delete
- shadiidi (O, ma-) adj. [Sw. shadidi SSED 415; Ar. sadīd W 460] strong, strict, rude, hot, fierce munt^hu shadiidi 'a tough man' (with a negative connotation)

	nakheepushe aḍabuye shadiidi [st.] ‘so that he keep you away from his hot hell’
m-shaaḍara (mi-)	n. 3/4 the white, headband part of the skullcap that is made and worn in Brava
kh-shafa	v. [Som. shaf DSI 544] harvest, reap, gather crops Alaani/ miyaaka/ saba/ fululizaani/ na yaa ni/ nt^hakhshafó/ laṭaani/ karka ziskize/ shokuwa habamó/ yaa ni/ nt^haakujó. ‘Plant for seven years successively and what you (pl.) will plant, let it remain in its cobs, except for a little that you will eat.’ Kiḷa chimaliza kuza yaa ye/ shafiiló/ peesa/ chizizika nt^hini yaa muti/ uwaliko mbele ya mlaangowé. ‘Whenever he finished selling that which he harvested, the money, he buried it under a tree that was in front of his door.’ Kuḷa muunt^hu/ hushafa yaa ye/ aziló. ‘Every man harvests what he sows.’ (A proverb.) Or: Kiḷaa muunt^hu/ yaa ye/ aziló/ hushafó. ‘Everyone, what he plants is what he reaps.’ Muunt^hu/ yaa ye/ haaló/ hushafó. ‘What one grows is what he harvests.’ (A proverb.) rel. kh-shafoowa v. pass. Inakhshafowa muundra. ‘The farm is being harvested.’ Uyu/ ni meezi/ wa khshafowa. ‘This is the month of harvesting.’
shafa’a	n. intercession nt^hana shafa’a ḍaalimu/ mbele ya Mooja Haakimu [st.] ‘there is no intercession, or mercy, for a tyrant, or treacherous, person before God, the Ruler’
kh-shafi’a	v. [Ar. ṣafa’u W 478] heal, cure, but usually used with a religious reference: forgive, give relief variant form: khshafiya Mtume Mhamadi/ takshafiya umaṭiye/ kesho akhera. ‘Prophet Mhamadi will forgive his people in the other world, the afterlife.’ washafi’e ma’aalimu na menye shṭeenzi Maalimu [st.] ‘intercede for the religious scholars and for the author of the poem, Maalimu [Nuuri]’ rel. kh-shafi’ila v. intercede for, give mercy to Takhshafi’ilo waant^hú/ ni mtume Mhamadi. ‘The one who will intercede for/ give mercy to people is Prophet Mhamadi.’ ṭamshafi’ila kuḷa muunt^hu mpeenzelo [st.] ‘he (Mohammad) will intercede for any one who has loved him’
shaafi’i	n. one of the schools of Islam Ibnu Hajari iḷmuye ni waasi’i/ maḍhabuye ni kamba yiitu shaafi’i [st.] ‘Ibnu Hajari’s knowledge was broad, his sect was like ours, Shaafi’i.’
shafu (ma-)	n. chest
shaghaale (ma-)	n. [Ar. ṣaḡḡāl W 476, but the usual pronunciation of this word, shakhaale , comes from the Som. word shaqo “work” and shaqaale “workers, laborers” DSI 545] worker, workman, laborer variant form: shakhaale Choloka muyiini/ chiwameera/ mashaghaale/ wiingi/ chiya/ naawo/ numbaani. ‘He went to town and searched for many he came with them to (his) house.’ Kaziini/ tomeela/ shaghaale. [HH!!H] ‘From work was fired the worker.’
workers and (Observe the extreme downstepping, symbolized as !, on a postposed subject.)

Mashakhaale/ leelo/ wape!a mishahara. ‘Workers today are paid salaries.’

Mashakhaale/ leelo/ waragiile/ kaziini. ‘Today the workers were late for work.’

Mashakhaale/ wanakhpunguzoowa/ kaziini. ‘Workers are being laid off from their jobs.’

Mashakhaale/ wanakhtuluba mshahara miingi. ‘The workers are demanding higher salaries.’

Shaghaale/ tomee!a/ kaziini. [HH!H] ‘The worker was fired from his job.’

Or: Kaziini/ tomee!a/ shaghaale. (A postposed subject, like shaghaale. in the second example, is lowered in pitch, indicative of being out-of-focus.)

Shaghaale/ vundishile qalbi. ‘The worker was discouraged.’

Tomela kaziini/ ni shaghaale. [H'H] ‘The one who was fired was the worker.’

shahaada

n. [Sw. shahada “the Muhammadan creed, confession of faith” SSED 415; Ar. shāhāda W 489] the first pillar of Islam: the acceptance of the oneness of God; diploma, school certification. certification; testimony

Hiinfani/ shahaada. ‘What is the use of a degree (if one cannot get a job)?’

imaani khsihake sharti shahaada [st.] ‘for your faith to be valid, you must [recite] the Shahādah’ kubiga shahaada ‘to witness, certify, testify to the truth of something; recite the shahaada’

Mi/ nayo shahaada/ ya jaami’a. ‘I have a university degree ([lit.] certification of university).’

Nayo shahaada. ‘He has a degree.’

kh-shahaada

v. recite the shahaada

shahamu

n. fat, grease

munt^hu mwenye shahamu ‘a fat man (implies prosperity etc.)’

m-shahara (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mshahara SSED 301; Ar. mušāhara W 490] salary, wages, pay

Hu’insha ka mshahara. ‘He lives on a salary.’

khtala mshahara ‘to take a salary’

khtinda mshahara ‘to get a salary’

Nt^hindilile mshahará/ kilaa meezi. ‘I get salary each month.’ (The accentual pattern shown here – with the final accent from the verb not extending to the sentence-final phrase kilaa meezi – seems to be the preferred pronunciation. Our consultant was doubtful of ?*Nt^hindilile mshahará/ kilaa meezi.)

Omari/ tindilile mshahara/ kilaa meezi. ‘Omari is getting a salary every month.’

khtomola mshahara ‘to pay wages’

Tomele mshahara. ‘He paid the wages.’

kumpa shahara ‘to pay him a salary’ mshahara mkulu ‘a large salary’

mshahara wa meezi ‘a monthly salary’

Nt^haaasá/ skutaala/ mshahara/ wa mezi uyu. ‘I have not yet gotten my salary for this month.’

mshahara wa nuumba ‘rent (to be paid)’

Saalaha/ bakhete kaazi/ sku niingi/ tindilila feða/ mshaharaani. ‘Saalaha has been absent from work many times, he had had his salary cut.’

shahaari

n. womanizer

shahawa	n. 9 semen
shahawaati	n. desires
shaahidi (ma-)	n. [Sw. shahidi SSED 415; Ar. šāhid W 489] one who testifies, certifies (like a witness in court); a witness; martyr (but this usage primarily from steenzi)
	Mi/ ni shaahidi/ kuwa Nuuru/ vnzile mnaango. ‘I can testify that Nuuru broke the door.’
you are a witness (to that)’	na Mhamadi ni mtumewe ni shaahidi [st.] ‘and Mohammad is his prophet, Shahidi mzuuri/ ni munt^hu wa muḷooni. ‘A person who gives false testimony is a person of hellfire.’ (A saying.)
	shaahidi wa harbi ni oyo hawoli [st.] ‘a martyr of war is the one who does not decay (upon dying)’
shahiiri	adj. famous; pl: mashahiiri munt^hu shahiiri ‘someone famous’ Shuhra/ ha’iduumi/ walá/ shahiiri. ‘Fame does not last nor does the famous person.’ (A proverb.) want^hu mashahiiri ‘famous people’
shaahiri	adj. true khu’ink’iro ni kaafiri/ nt’ana imaani shaahiri [poem] ‘whoever rejects you is an unbeliever who lacks true faith’
kh-shahirika	v. (shahirishile) be(come) famous Hasani/ shahirishile/ ka zeemaze. ‘Hasani became famous for his good deeds.’
	Omari/ shahirishile/ ka fanya zeema. ‘Omari became famous for doing good deeds.’
shaka	n. 9 [Sw. shaka SSED 425; Ar. šakk W 481] doubt (Examination of the examples below show that this word allows the lengthening of the preceding vowel in the phrase, a phenomenon associated with CVCV and CV words. In this respect, the gemination observed in the Arabic source has no role to play in Chimini phonology. However, we also recorded the word with gemination, shakka , and in this case there was not lengthening in front of it.)
	bilaa shaka ‘without doubt, certainly’ Bilaa shaka/ Abú/ takuraaga. ‘Without a doubt Abu will be late.’
	kh^hilowa shakka ‘to be doubted’ Hamadi/ nakhtilowa shakka/ kuwaa yé) Ø-ta-kh-shiindra. Hamadi is kh^hilaa shaka ‘to doubt -- lit. put doubt in’
	Mi/ nakhtilaa shaká/ kuwa Nuuru/ takhteza. ‘I doubt that Nuuru will play.’ (In the event that there is no narrow focus in the sentence, the final accent triggered by the main verb extends through the end of the embedded complement clause, as seen here. Narrow focus prevents the accent from extending beyond the focus. For example, in the following sentence shaka is focused: [Mi/ nakhtilaa shaká/ kuwa Nuuru/ takhteza.] The final accent does not affect either of the phrases following shaka . The focused element has a higher pitch than ordinary. It does not, for example, undergo the usual default downstepping. In this book, we do not typically show the heightening of the pitch of the focused element.)
	Mi/ siná/ sababu/ khutilaa we/ shaka. I have no reason to doubt you.
	Nnakhtila shakká/ kuwa Hamadi/ takhshiindra. ‘I doubt that Hamadi will win.’ Also: Nnakhtila shakká/ Hamadi/ kuwa takhshiindra. Also: Nnakumtila shakká/ Hamadi/ kuwa takhshiindra. ‘I doubt (him) Hamadi that he will win.’ Also: Nnakumtila shakká/ Hamadi/

- kuwaa ye/ takhshiindra. ‘I doubt Hamadi that he will win.’
- Omari/ kilaa chiint^hu/ hutilaa shaka. ‘Omari doubts everything (lit. Omari puts in doubt to everything).’
- kingilaa shaka ‘to doubt’
- Ali/ imwingilee shaka/ kuwa mwaana/ bozele peesa. ‘Ali doubted that the child stole money.’
- Nuuru/ imingilee shaka. ‘Nuuru doubted it.’
- Nuuru/ maanawe/ imingilee shaka. ‘Nuuru’s son doubted it.’
- kuwanayoo shaka ‘to have doubt’
- Chiboodo/ chihada/ kuwaa ye/ nt^haná/ shaka/ kuwa uje/ ndiyé/ dughaaghi/ waa wo/ wanammeeró. ‘Flea said that he had no doubt that that one was the wild animal that they were looking for.’
- Mi/ nayoo shaká/ kuwa Hamadi/ takhfaanya/ jawabu izo. ‘I doubt that Hamadi will do that thing.’
- Mi/ nayoo shaká/ kuwa Omari/ takhadira kuuya. ‘I doubt that Omari will be able to come.’
- Mi/ nayoo shaká/ kuwa Omari/ takuuya/ keesho. ‘I doubt Omari will come tomorrow.’
- Mi/ nayoo shaká/ na Hasani. ‘I have doubts about Hasani.’
- Nt^hamu/ shaka/ amri ya mojiitu/ khfulata. ‘There is no doubt that whatever God has ordained will happen.’
- Nt^haku/ shaka/ ye/ naacho/ chijuumba/ chaa nyunyi. ‘There is no doubt that he has a nest of (these) birds.’
- Sa’iidi/ kooðize/ nt^haziná/ shaka. ‘[lit.] Saiidi’s words do not have doubt -- i.e. one does not have to doubt Ali’s words, they are true.’

i-shaka (ma-) n. 5/6 [there is a locality at the border between Kenya and Somalia which is called Ishakaani; the word ishaka has been recorded in the Tikuu and Siu dialects of Swahili, and reconstructed as isaka* “thicket, brush” for Proto-Sabaki in N&H 623] tree, bush, plant rel.

chi-shaka (zi-) n. 7/8 bush

Hasani/ chilawa/ cheendra/ chishakaani/ mahaḷaa ye/ husho zoombozé. ‘Hasani left and went to the bush to the place where he hides his things.’

m-shaka (mi-) n. 3/4 tree, bush

Itanzi la mshaka or Itaanzi la mshaka ‘the branch of a tree’ (cf. nt^hanzi za mshaka or nt^haanzi/ za mshaka ‘the branches of a tree’)

Mi/ ndraṭile mpiirá/ chinume cha mshaká. ‘I threw the ball behind the tree.’

mshaka/ nt^haanzi ‘the trees, their branches’ mshaka/ Itaanzi ‘the tree, its branch’ (cf. mshaka/ nt^haanzi ‘the tree, its branches’) mshaka wa embe ‘mango tree’ mshaka wa ndrimumu ‘lemon tree’

ma-shakaani n. loc. in the bush, jungle, trees

Hasani/ chiineendra/ chiineendra/ hattá/ shkoma apo/ mashakaani/ mahaḷaa ye/ zishile zoombozé. ‘Hasani travelled and travelled until he reached there in the bush the place where he had buried his things.’

Omari/ oloshela mashakaani/ kumeraa mbuzi. ‘Omari went to the bush to look for the goat.’

Siimba/ apa/ wakali/ wazimile mashakaani. ‘Lions here are fierce, hiding in the bushes.’

kh-shakaba v. [no etymology known] (shakabiile) accuse someone of something (without direct evidence)

Mzeele/ uyu/ nakunshakaba/ tu/ ka khisa waawe/ hayiisi/ nt^hbi iyi/ walá/mzeele/ uyu/ hamwiisi/ waawe. ‘This old man is falsely accusing me because my father does not know this land nor does this old man know my father.’

Omari/ mshakabile Hamadi/ kuwa bozele chibuukuche. ‘Omari accused Hamadi of stealing his book [lit. accused Hamadi that he stole his book].’ (The verb requires the subject of the complement sentence to be its object. It is ungrammatical to say: Omari/ shakabile kuwa Hamadi/ bozele chibuukuche. Also it should be noted that the complement clause is always a kuwa-clause and not an infinitive or gerund or subjunctive.)

rel.

kh-shakaboowa v. pass.

Hamadi/ shakabiḷa na Omari/ kuwa bozele chibuuku. ‘Hamadi was accused by Omari of stealing a book.’ (Syn. The preferred word order is the one shown, where the agent phrase immediately follows the main verb. It is possible, however, for the agentive phrase to be at the end.)

Nshakabiḷa na Omari/ kuwa mbozele chibuuku. ‘I was accused by Omari of stealing a book.’

rel. nom.

m-shakabo n. the act of charging someone with wrongdoing

m-shakabano n. the act of charging one another with wrongdoing

ma-shakha

n. 6 [Ar. ṣiqqa W 480] difficulties, hardships, problems duniya nuumba ya bala na mashakha [st.] ‘the world is the abode of troubles and hardships’ shakhiyi

adj. of bad character, not good

Hamadi/ ni shakhiyi. ‘Hamadi is of bad character.’

rel.

u-shakhiyi n. bad character

kh-shakisha

v. tr. [Ar. ṣakka “to doubt, have misgivings” W 481] (shakishiize) doubt s.t.

Hasani/ nakhshakisha/ kuwa Nuuru/ takhsaafira. ‘Hasani doubts that Nuuru will travel.’ Or without focus on the higher verb: Hasani/nakhshakisha kuwa Nuuru/ takhsaafira. (The verb shakisha allows the subject of the embedded finite clause to be ‘raised’ to be its object: Hasani/ namshakisha Nuuru/ kuwa takhsaafira. [lit.] Hasani doubts Nuuru that he will go.’

Mi/ nakhshakishá/ kuwa Omari/ takhadira kuuya. ‘I doubt that Omari will be able to come.’

Mi/ siná/ sababu/ khushakisha/ we. ‘I have no reason to doubt you.’

Mi/ sinaayo/ sababu ya khshakisha/ kuwaa ye/ fanyize jisa husuḷoowa. ‘I have no reason to doubt that he acted properly.’

Shaafi’i/ shakishize kuwa Huseeni/ fungile mlaango/ ka yee peeke. ‘Shaafi’i doubted that Huseeni closed the door by himself.’

Wo/ nt^hawakhaadira/ kiiwa/ khadaraayi/ mi/ hushakisho ruuhuyá/ mara maape. ‘They could not know how much I sometimes doubt myself.’

Zubeeri/ shakishize kooḷi. ‘Zubeeri doubted the news.’

rel.

kh-shakishana v. tr. rec.

kh-shakishika v. tr. p/s.

Sa’iidi/ kooḷize/ hazishakishiki. ‘Sa’iidi’s news cannot be doubted (e.g. because he is so truthful, or because he cannot take criticism).’

kh-shakishiliza v. tr. appl.

kh-shakishilizanya v. tr. appl. rec.

shakli

n. form, appearance, the way s.t. looks or is made etc.

Hanzu iyo/ shakliye/ skupeenda. ‘That dress, its form (i.e. the way it looked, the way it was made) I did not like.’

Khanziiri/ shakliye/ nii mbovu. ‘The way a pig looks is bad.’

Maazi/ ya muunt^hu/ hayaabahi/ kiḷaa muunt^hu/ mahmaahi/ iyi/ hupenzeleza/ kiḷaa muunt^hu/ ma’anaye/ lamnaye/ shakliye/jisaa ye/ keeló/ haabahi. ‘The blood of a person is not lost [a Chimiini proverb]... Each person, this proverb intends [to communicate], each person, it means, his type, his physical form, how he looks, cannot be lost.’

Numba/ iyo/ jisaa yo/ iwashilá/ shakliye suura. ‘That house, how it was built, its form, is good.’

kh-shalaayata

v. [Som. verb shallaa and noun shallay DSI 544-5] (shalayeeṭe) regret (esp. a lost opportunity)

Chimdara mana oyo/ takhshalayata maamo/ khuzaala. ‘If you touch that boy, you will regret that your mother has given birth to you!’

Mi/ nshalayeeṭé/ chiza kenda skolaani. ‘I regretted not going to school.’

Mi/ nshalayeeṭé/ kuwaa mi/ nrashize Omari/ teleyé. ‘I regretted that I followed Omari’s advice.’

Mkasa waake/ hashalaayati. ‘The one who listens to his relative does not regret it.’

Nshalayete kingila shirká/ na Omari/ kula gaari. ‘I regretted entering into a partnership with Omari to buy a car.’ (Observe that when there is no internal focus, the final accent triggered by the main verb extends all the way to the end of the sentence. The final accent stops, however, when there is an internal focus. For example, in the following pronunciation there is focus on Omari: Nshalayete kingila shirká/ na Omari/ kula gaari.)

Shalayete keendra. ‘He regretted going.’ Or: Shalayete/ keendra.

Shalayete/ kingila heshiisi/ na Omari/ kula gaari. ‘He regretted entering into an agreement with Omari to buy a car.’

We/ shkala karka nt^hi iyi/ takhshalaayata/ na umriwó/ huzni/ haytakhulata. ‘If you stay in this land, you will have regret, and during your whole life, sadness will never leave you.’

rel.

kh-shalayaṭila v. appl. regret for Omari/ nakhshalayaṭila chiza kumpa maana/ peesa. ‘Omari is regretting not giving the child money.’

kh-shalayaṭiloowa v. appl. pass.

Chint^hu shpisiól/ hachishalayaṭiloowi. ‘Things that have passed are not regretted.’

Nasiibu/ ha’ishalayaṭiloowi. ‘Luck is not regretted (for).’ (A proverb.)

Umri/ upisiól/ hushalayaṭiloowi. ‘Life that has passed is not regretted (it has passed, it is gone).’

kh-shalayaṭoowa v. pass. be regretted

Ishalayeeta/ chiza kujowaa zijo. ‘Not eating was regretted.’

kh-shalaayata

v. (shalayeeṭe) leap

Fikira/ nt^hasaa we/ khshalaayata. ‘Think before you leap.’ (A proverb.)

shalaayi

n. 9/10 [Som. shallay DSI 545] regret

Shalaayi/ husalaa numa. ‘Regrets remain to the end.’ (A proverb.)

Shalaayi/ ni mwanaharaamu. ‘Regret is a bastard (i.e. the result of a mistake).’ (A proverb.) ( shalayi iyi ‘this regret’

shalayi niingi ‘many regrets’ ziiko shalaayi niingi na maayi [st.] ‘(in hell) there are plenty of regrets, more than water’ shalabeela

adj. haphazard, disorganized; adv. haphazardly, disorderly munt^hu shalabeela ‘a disorganized person’

Ziweshele shalabeela. ‘He put the things in a haphazard fashion.’

- shaali n. [uncertain noun class] locally-woven cloth used as a shawl haanzu mpeeni qamiisi/ na shaali ya khtandrikoowa [st.] ‘give him a tunic and a shawl to wrap him in’ kumzuba shaali ‘to wrap someone with a shawl’ Tandrishile shaali. ‘He put on a shawl.’
- kh-shaama v. (shamiile) have sexual intercourse, fuck Omari/ hupeenda/ khshaama. ‘Omari likes to have intercourse.’
rel.
kh-shamoowa v. pass.
Haliima/ nakhshamoowa. ‘Haliima is being fucked.’ (Syn. Observe that this verb is a transitive verb where it is the male mating with the woman in the active sentence, and in the passive sentence, it is the woman being fucked.)
rel. nom.
m-shaamo n. 3 sexual intercourse
- shamaali n. [?Ar. šaml "gathering" W 487] musical instruments, in the form of wooden boat-shaped clappers, approx. 30 cm. long; played by men to accompany large drum in musical contests (two orchestras playing) kubiga shamaali ‘to jump and sing loudly’ Haliima/ furahiile/ mwaanawe/ khpita imtihaani/ haṭá/ bishile shamaali. ‘Halima got happy her son passed the exam until she jumped and loudly ululated.’
kubiga shamaali stoshe hujuuza [st.] ‘do not think that it is permitted to jump and sing loudly’
- i-shambara (mi-) n. 5/4 a kind of grouper, light blue in color, lives in rocky places in the high sea
- i-shambaati (mi-) n. 5/4 sp. fish (Red Grouper)
- i-shaambi (ma-) n. 5/6 a piece of cloth used for mopping, dusting; a wornout cloth ready to be discarded, in worse shape than i-shepe ishambi imooyi ‘one wornout rag’ mashambi mawili ‘two wornout rags’
rel.
chi-shaambi (zi-) n. 7/8
Shṭomola shpetechē/ chichiloomba/ chihada/ mi/ nakhsuḷa kuwa ḍaliilī/ na looniḷá/ linabadilike/ na nguwozá/ zinawe zishaambi. ‘He took out his ring and implored it saying: I want to be poor, and my complexion, let it be changed, and my clothes, let them be rags.’
- kh-shamira v. (shamiriile) tie, lock firmly; join a group of people and make them laugh and enjoy themselves (i.e. "be the life of the party")
- shamsi n. sun
huwoni noota na shamsi na qamari [st.] ‘you do not see stars nor the sun nor the moon’ shamsi na zuhura mariikhi mushṭari/ uṭaaridi na zuhali na qamari [st.] ‘the sun and Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Mercury, Saturn and the moon’
- shaamu n.
nt^hi ya shaamu ‘Syria’
- i-shaana n. a sp. fish, white, but of uncertain species; however, one consultant identifies it with the what in Italian is referred to as rombo (scientific name Rhombus, with several sub-species, with the English names brill and turbot) check vowel length

- kh-shangaala v. (shangeele) be astonished; hesitate
rel.
kh-shangaa'ika v. (shanga'ishile) be perplexed, confused; remain agape, with one's mouth wide open kh-shangaalika v. hesitate kh-shangaalisha v. cause to hesitate kh-shangaaza v. (shangaziize, shangeeze) confuse someone
rel. nom.
ma-shangaalo n. 6 hesitation
- Shangamaas n. an alternative name for the five Somali clans known collectively as the Tunni
- shaani n. [Ar. ša'n W 449-50] character, quality; standing, prestige, consequence; coupled with jalla (= great, exalted, see Ar. jalla, W 128) it is an attribute of God (= the Sublime)
jalla ađiimu shaani [st.] 'Exalted and Sublime' sheekhi shaaniye ađiimu [st.] 'the sheikh's standing is very high'
- Shanlo n. an individual who is referred to in proverbial sayings – a rich man known as a miser Omari/ ni Shanlo. 'Omari is (like) Shanlo, i.e. he will not give away anything.'
Sho kuja chaake/ ni Shanlo. 'The one who does not eat his is Shanlo.' (A proverbial saying.)
- shab ideo.
Hamadi/ shishiła shtana/ mtile Sheekhi/ maayi/ ya uso/ shab! 'Hamadi got angry, he splashed water on Sheekhi face, shab!'
- shaqa n. [Sw. shake "grief"] grief wachigadika kuruuda/ (shaqa) watakingiloowa [st.] 'and when they turn back, they will be pierced by grief'
- ma-shaqa n. 6 worries, troubles, hardships, difficulties kuwanayo mashakha 'to be in trouble' kuwona mashakha 'to be in trouble' Mashakhaye/ niingi. 'His troubles are many.'
- m-shaqaale n. [Som.] worker; pl: mashaqaale (This term is the usual word for 'worker'; there is another word shawaala that is now rarely used.)
Inakoonyesha/ kuwa Omari/ ni mshakhale msuura. 'Omari seems to be a good worker.'
Mshakhale msuura/ kabisá/ ni kana/ Omari. 'The best worker seems to be Omari.'
Or: Omari/ kana mshakhale msuura/ kabisá.
Nyaanya/ izi/ zihalaaweete/ ziseteshele/ ka khisa/ mashakhaale /awo/ wafukile bilaa tahađari/ hobeła hobeła! tu. 'These tomatoes were spoiled because those workers carried them carelessly.'
- shaqiyi adj. [Ar. šaḳīy "wretched, damned, rogue" W 481] ?Arabicism s.o. cursed, wretched
- shar'a n. [cf. Ar. šara ' and related forms, W 465] rules, regulations chiraasha shar'a yitu ya islaamu [st.] 'follow our Muslim laws, regulations' ibaada pashpo shar'a zote baatili [st.] 'acts of worship without (following) the rules and regulations are all invalid, nullified' sowti ya ngoma nk'ulu shar'a hiiza [st.] 'the loud sound of a drum,...'
Shar'a/ laazimu/ kuwa waađehe/ na kilaa muunt'u. 'The rules should be clear to everyone.'

i-shaara	n. a signal, a sign (e.g. a sign or revelation as to what God wants done) kh-pa ishaara ‘to signal’
sharabu	n. flank (referring to part of an animal)
sharaabu	n. a cold drink; [pron. sharaabú] review pronunciation Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kuwanayo sharaabú. ‘Please, may I have a cold drink?’
sharafa	in the expression: ndevu sharafa ‘a long flowing beard’
i-sharafa (ma-)	n. 5/6 round mat made of a certain kind of grass used to put food on (when eating all together) rel. chi-sharafa (zi-) n. 7/8
sharafu	n. 9 respect, dignity, honor kuvunda sharafu ‘to embarrass, disgrace’; also: kuvundowa sharafu (passive), kuvundana sharafu (reciprocal), kuvundanowa sharafu (reciprocal passive) Hamadi/ vunziḷa sharafuye. ‘Hamadi was disgraced.’ Kuvundanowa sharafu/ nt^haku/ faayda/ huletaa zita/ tu. ‘To bring disgrace on one another is not beneficial to anyone, it just brings fighting.’ Maneno miingi/ humvunda muunt^hu/ sharafuye. ‘Too much talking undermines (lit. breaks) one’s respect (i.e. the respect people have for one, the esteem that people hold one in, etc.).’ (A proverb.) Mvunzile Hamadi/ sharafu. ‘He embarrassed Hamadi.’ (Note that sharafu cannot be made the subject of the corresponding passive sentence: * Sharafu/ ivunziḷa Hamadi.) Omari/ mvunzile Nuuru/ sharafuye/ shiriini/ mṭaanzile. ‘Omari disgraced Nuuru at the meeting, he insulted him.’ Mp^huundra/ shfuraha/ shtosha kuwa iyi/ ni sharafu/ nk^hulu/ kuwaa muke/ wa sult^haani/ ya maduuri. ‘Donkey was very happy, thinking that it was a great honor to be the wife of the king of the forest.’ muunt^hu/ mwenye sharafu ‘a man having dignity, honor, etc.’ rel. sharafa n. honor wake keendra kufa Mustafa/ wapeenzeḷa wo ka sharafa [st.] ‘when he died, the Prophet had nine wives, who were loved and honored’ u-sharafu n. Wo/ wanayoo shaka/ nk^hulu/ tarafu ya usharafu/ ya Omari. ‘They have cast serious doubt about Omari’s honesty.’
sharaara	n. [probably from Ar. šar’a W 466] musical instrument, similar to a guitar, which was played during the tumbura dances
sharbaati	n. [Sw. sharabeti SED 417; Ar. šarba "drink", plural šarbāt W 462] a sweet, colored drink (like kool-aid) drunk mostly in Ramadhan when the fast is broken around sunset Ichendrowa apo/ ishtukuloḷwa sharbaati/ mazu/ embe. ‘They used to go there bringing sharbaati , bananas, mangoes.’ Kuḷa mwaana/ huṭukula chibeeramu/ zaakuja/ za namna ka namna/ na nt^hupa ya sharbaati. ‘Every child carries a banner, foods of various kinds, and a bottle of kool-aid.’

sharhi

n. 9/10 explanation, comment; decoration

shari

n. [Ar. šarr W 461] an evil, wicked, or bad thing; mischief, maliciousness; [pron. sharri or shari] (Phon. There are a number of words deriving from Arabic words containing a geminate consonant which, in Chimwiini, may be pronounced with or without gemination. These words, on the basis of this gemination, ordinarily prevent the lengthening of a preceding word-final vowel in the same phrase. The examples below show, however, that shari allows lengthening in front of it.)

...khuṭaanda/ khuletelaa shari ‘to insult you, bring evil to you’

Moojá/ chihafiðe/ naa shari/ zaa sheetaani. ‘Oh God, protect us from the evils of Satan.’

with their evil doing.’

Mojiitu/ nashkifila awo/ na shari yaawo. ‘May God protect us from those ndila yaa shari ‘the road to evil, bad deeds’

Omari/ tukilee shari. ‘(Lit.) Omari is carrying evil – i.e. Omari is harboring evil intentions inside him and is someone who wants to make problems.’

shari kiitu ilaziile ziko kheeri numa yiitu [nt.] ‘evil has left our place and there are good times to come’

Shari/ na kheeri/ hulawa na mojiitu. ‘Evil and good come from God.’ (A proverb.)

shari/ walá/ kheerí ‘neither evil nor good – anything at all’

Laakini/ ntʰangú/ si/ chiwasiliiló/ ye/ ntʰakunuzaa shari/ walá/ kheerí. ‘But since we have arrived here, he has not asked me anything at all (lit. neither evil nor good).’

Sheetaani/ sharize/ ni niingi. ‘Satan’s evil deeds are many.’

Shiri yaa wake/ ichiwa niingi/ nii shari. ‘Women’s meetings, if they become many, are a problem.’

Sho kuyaa shari/ shifa/ hayiyi. ‘Unless something bad happens, a good thing does not come.’ (A proverb.)

u-shari

n. 14

wenye mabunduqu huuya ka ushari [nt.] ‘men armed with guns come with evil intentions’

sharii’a

n. [Sw. sheria, sharia SSED 419, 417; Ar. šarīʿa W 466] canonical law of Islam, law, rule, regulation (tends to be used for religious law, but can be used more widely) variant forms: shari’a, shariya, shar’a

Ada ya muuyi/ ni sharii’a. ‘The tradition of the town is sharii’a law.’

chisuula khtumila sharii’a nafasi [st.] ‘if you wish to use (water that has been used to clean something (nijisi), sharii’a law is flexible (has space, room to accommodate)’

ka sharii’a legally

Waant^hu/ hukalo Mwiini/ wote/ ni wasoomaali/ ka sharii’a/ laakini/ chimeera/ asli yaawo/ wo/ hulawaangana/lamnaa nt^hatu. ‘All the people who live in Mwiini are Somalis legally, but if one traces their ancestry they are divided into three groups.’

kendra shari’aani ‘to litigate, to go to law’; also: kendrowa shari’aani, kendreka shari’aani, kendrelowa shari’aani

Chiint^hu/ ichiza kuwako adeeni/ hayeendreki/ shari’aani/ sharii’a/ husuḷa adeeni. ‘If there is no evidence for something, then one cannot go to court, law needs evidence.’

Huseeni/ muzize Hamadi/ mwambiile/ we/ naazó/ mbarakhá/ za kendrelowa shari’aani/ kuda’awatiḷoowá. ‘Huseeni asked Hamadi, he said to him: do you have papers to be gone with to court to sue with.’

Muunt^hu/ chimera hakhiye/ hendra shari’aani/ kumeera. ‘If one is seeking what is due to one, he goes to court to seek it.’

Waant^hu/ wachiza khpatana kati kaawo/ hendrowa shari'aani. 'If people do not reconcile (differences) between themselves, they go to court.'
khfulisha shariya 'to carry out the law' Shariya/ hufuulishó/ ni mahkama. 'Law, who implements it is the court.'
khpeleka shari'aani 'to take to court, prosecute'; also: khpelekowa shari'aani (passive), khpelekeka shari'aani (potential/stative) Alí/ nampeleka mkulé/ Nuuru/ shari'aani/ kumdawata dhahali. 'Ali is taking his brother Nuuru to court to sue over inheritance.'
Omari nakhpelekowa shari'aani/ bozelee duka. 'Omari is being prosecuted, he stole from a shop.'
Omari/ nayo awoodi/ nawa'iwa/ zita/ wont^he/ hapelekeki/ shari'aani/ hatá/ shpelekoowa/ hashindroowi. 'Omari has power, he knows all the bosses, even if he is taken to court, he cannot be defeated.'
kuweka shariya 'to enact laws' Dobla/ husulowa kuweka shariya/ ya kinendreloowa. 'The government is required to enact laws to be abided by, followed.'
mooja ondrosheeze shar'a na shuruuti [nt.] 'God has taken away law and order' mwenye sharii'a 'lawyer'
Nt^hi/ ichiza kuwako shari'a/ guraani. 'On earth if there is no law, move away!' (A proverbial saying.)
shar'a yaa chuwo 'written laws' shari'a yaa nt^hi 'the law of the land' shari'aani 'at a law court'
Somaaliya/ nt^haku/ shari'a. 'Somalia has no law.'

shaaribu n. 5/6 [Sw. sharubu SSED 417; Ar. šārib W 463] moustache maapa tilaanga puunguza n shaaribu/ izo ni sunna na khtinoowa waajibu [st.]
 'shave your armpits, trim your moustache, as these [acts] are part of approved custom; circumcision is also obligatory'

Nayo shaaribu (or: mashaaribu). 'He has a moustache.'
sharibu shiiri 'a dirty moustache'

shaaribu n. one who drinks, esp. alcoholic beverages Nayo shaaribu. 'He drinks (esp. alcoholic beverages).'

shaaribu_l khamri n. one who drinks a lot of alcohol Omari/ (ni) shaaribu_l khamri. 'Omari drinks a lot of alcohol.'
Omari/ tu/ ni shaaribu_l khamri. 'Only Omari drinks a lot of alcohol.'

kh-sharifa v. [Sw. sharifu SSED 417; Ar. šarufa W 466] (sharifile) respect, honor Hamsharifi/ waawaye. 'He does not respect his father.'
ku'ajiza kuwakuza/ na kuwasharifá 'to fail to honor and respect them' kumsharifa/ kana mzelewa 'to respect someone like one's parent'
 rel.
ku-sharifila v. appl. (sharifile)

shariifu (Ø, ma-) n. adj., n. [Sw. -sharifu SSED 417; Ar. šarīf W 467] someone who respects others and himself; a member of a clan claiming to be descended from the Prophet Mooja ka jaha ya Mtume Shariifu [st.] 'God, because of the Prophet Shariifu' Mwiini/ zamaani/ mashariifu/ washfanya makashaṭa/ wachuuzi. 'In Brava during old times, mashariifu used to make makashaṭa and sell them.'

Sheekhi/ chiya/ shariifu/ hooloka. 'If a sheekhi comes, a shariifu goes away.' (A proverb.)

rel.
shurafa pl. [Ar. šarafā W 467]

- shariita n. tape
Iwatilo waant^hú/ khoofú/ na shaká/ ni/ ye/ kiiza/ khtomola/ shariita/ za muhadathaati/ spsiló/ benaa ye/ na ba'a^hi/ ya waant^hu/ washfanyo naayé/ kaazi. 'It put fear and doubt in people: why has he refused to release the tapes of conversations between him and the people working with him?'
- i-sharka (ma-) n. 5/6 [no etymological source found] jaw, cheek; gill (of a fish) isharka yaa nsi 'gill of a fish'
 rel.
ma-sharka n. 6 mumps (which involves swelling of the jaw area)
- sharmuuta (ma-) n. [Ar. šarmūta W 469] prostitute
Chiwaa ye/ nakhsulaa muke/ mi/ nii muké/ laakini/ chiwaa ye/ nakhsulaa muke wa masku na mooyi/ masharamuuta/ wayeele/ t^helle/ muyiini. 'If he wants a wife, I am a woman, but if he wants a woman for one evening, prostitutes fill in abundance the town.'
Iyo/ ni ifuungu/ yaa mi/ nsurufiiló/ ilu ya masharmuuta. 'That is the portion [of my squandered wealth] that I spent on prostitutes.'
- sharqi n. 9 [cf. Sw. mashariki SSED 26; Ar. šarq W467] east Safiriile/ ka ariplaano/ khaasá/ kooloka/ kuzuura/ nt^hi za sharqi/ yaa kati. 'He travelled by his special airplane to go to visit the countries of the Middle East.'
- kh-sharta v. [Sw. shuruti SSED 427; Ar. šarata W 464] (shartiile) impose a condition
Basi/ naayé/ mubjaana/ uyu/ huviilowa Fikiriini/ chiwona/ kuwa ni afóali/ naayé/ kulangala/ nasiibuye/ keendra/ kummeera/ mwanaamke/ uyu/ naksharto waant^hú. 'So this young man named Fikiriini saw that it was better to also try his luck: to go to seek this daughter who was putting men under conditions.'
Humsharta/ ye/ chiza khsoma ikele. 'He must not read loudly.' The subjunctive verb may not be used here: Humsharta/ ye/ sisome ka ikele. 'He must not that he read loudly.'
Humsharta/ ye/ keendra. 'He must go.' A subjunctive verb is not used: Humsharta/ ye/ na'endre. 'He must that he not go.'
Mi/ namsharta/ ye/ khtokosa maayi. 'I require of him to boil the water.'
 Instead of an infinitive, a subjunctive may be used: Mi/ namsharta/ ye/ natokose maayi. 'I require of him that he boil water.' Negative verbs in the sentential complement: Mi/ namsharta/ ye/ chiza khtokosa maayi. 'I require him to not boil water.' And: Mi/ namsharta/ ye/ stokose maayi. 'I require of him that he not boil water.'
- rel.
kh-shartana v. rec.
kh-shartisha v. caus. (same in usage as the simple verb)
kh-shartishana v. caus. rec.
kh-shartishika v. caus. p/s.
kh-shartishiliza v. caus. appl.
kh-shartishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
kh-shartika??
kh-shartila??
kh-shartoowa v. pass.
Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ khshartoowa/ khfanya chiint^hu. 'It is not good for someone to be compelled to do something.'
- kh-shartana v. (sharteene) bet, wager
- sharti (Ø, ma-) n.[Sw.sharti SSED 427; Ar. šart W 465] obligation, requirement, condition

Hasani/ naayé/ shkhubala/ sharṭi iyó. ‘Hasani agreed to that condition.’
Huseeni/ chuuza/ masharṭi gani. ‘Huseeni asked: what conditions?’
Imaani/ haa’iwi/ kaamili/ sharṭi/ ka shahaada. ‘Faith is not complete unless it has shahaada (i.e. acceptance of the oneness of God).’
ka masharṭi ‘on condition’
ka sharṭi ‘on the condition’
Abunawaasi/ nt^hakhupa rukhsa/ kumwolokela Harun Rashiidi/ laakini/ ka sharṭi/ mooyi/ ya kuwa yaa we/ takhpató/ yote/ takaawanya/ naami/ sawasawa. ‘Abunawaasi, I will give you permission to go to Harun Rashiidi, but on one condition: that you, whatever you get (from him), you will share all of it with me equally.’
Kamaa we/ nakhsula maayiyá/ yotté/ mi/ nt^hakhupa/ laakini/ ka sharṭi mooyi/ we/ ndraṭa/ mi/ khufunge miilu/ na mikonó. ‘If you want all my water, I will give it to you, but on one condition: you let me tie you legs and arms.’
kuweka (ma)sharṭi ‘to put condition(s) on; to make a wager, bet’ Laakini/ Sa’iidi/ iize/ masharṭi ayo. ‘But Sa’iidi refused (to accept) these conditions.’
Mi/ nakuweka masharṭi/ Omari/ takuya khabla/ ya maskuu kati. ‘I bet Omari will come before midnight.’
Mi/ nakuweka masharṭi/ we/ nt^hukulangaḷa/ chibuuku. ‘I bet you did not look for the book.’
Mi/ nakuweka masharṭi/ ye/ hakhaadiri/ kumala ka wakḥti. ‘I bet he cannot finish in time.’
Muusa/ weshele (ma)sharṭi/ peesa/ niingi. ‘Muusa bet a lot of money.’
Siweeké/ masharṭi/ na awo. ‘Don’t bet against them.’
Yont^he/ yaa we/ nakhsulo kiiwá/ ni jisaayi/ yaa we/ takuweko sharṭiyó. ‘All you really need to know is how to place your bet.’
Mi/ sharṭi/ khsooma/ chibuku icho. ‘It is necessary for me to read that book.’ (The location of the pronoun mi, which establishes for whom it is necessary that he read the book, is rather flexible. Some other possible locations: Sharṭi/ mi/ khsooma/ chibuku icho. Sharṭi/ chibuuku/ icho/ mi/ khsooma. Sharṭi/ chibuku icho/ khsooma/ mi. Alternatively to the latter example: Sharṭi/ chibuuku/ icho/ khsooma/ mi.
Na kila muunt^hu/ husulo kumlolá/ ha’ilizoowi/ laakini/ hupoowa/ masharṭi. ‘And every man who wants to marry her is not refused, but he is given conditions (that must be met).’ (We recorded hupoowa with a final accent, but do not at present understand whether this pitch pattern is correct.)
ngoombe na mbuzi ya be sharṭi miwili [st.] ‘a cow and a goat must be two years of age (to be slaughtered)’
Ni sharṭi/ ye/ chiza khsoma ka lkele. ‘It is necessary for him not to read loudly.’ Or with a subjunctive verb: Ni sharṭi/ ye/ sisome ka lkele. ‘It is necessary that he not read loudly.’
Ni sharṭi/ ye/ keendra. ‘He must go.’ Or, with a subjunctive verb instead: Ni sharṭi/ ye/ na’endre.
Ni sharṭi/ ye/ kuuya. ‘It is necessary that he come.’
sharṭi + verb (this expresses the necessity of doing s.t., the fact that there is no other way but to do so) Waaliko/ wererseete/ sharṭi/ fanyiliza tumbura. ‘He was in serious trouble, it became necessary to make tumbura for him.’
Sharṭi ya mara ya isa/ iwaaliko/ kuwa takhshindroowá/ itamlaazima/ kuna maayi/ ya tawala/ yotte. ‘The condition this time was that sharṭi za koowa we chisuula kiiwa [st.] ‘the conditions, requirements of washing (ritual cleaning), if you want to know them
rel.
shuruuti n. [from Ar. plural form ṣurūt W 465]

kh-sharuba

v. [Ar. ṣariba W 462] (sharubiile) absorb water (of a crack or hole, e.g. in a roof)

shaashi	n. reef shark
i-shata (ma-)	n. 5/6 [Sw. shata SSED 417] a sweet made from coconut, sesame, sugar, etc., in the shape of a cookie
i-shaatara (ma-)	n. umbrella
ma-shaatara	in the expression: dank^hu za mashaatara ‘popped corn’
u-shataara	n. [Ar. saṭāra W 471] cleverness khfanya ushataara ‘to be clever’
shaatiri(ma-)	adj. clever, skillful, smart, cunning
shatranji	n. 9/10 [Sw. sataranji SSED 411; Ar. saṭranj W 471] the game of chess; a chess piece (Phon. Although in words of Bantu origin, vowels are regularly lengthened in front of a prenasalized consonant inside a stem, no such lengthening occurs in borrowed words. This suggests that the lengthening may no longer be an active rule of Chimiini phonology and that long vowels in front of prenasalized consonants should be regarded as underlying. There is, of course, a different approach possible. Perhaps the nj in the present word should be analyzed as a sequence of two consonants and not a prenasalized consonant.) explore the chijini evidence
shaati (Ø, ma-)	n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. shati SSED 417; Eng. shirt] shirt Faatima/ ndretelelee mi/ shati naōiifa. ‘Faatima brought me a clean shirt.’ Ka Omari/ dukaani/ huzowa shaati/ zaa wake/ suura/ rakhiisi. ‘At Omari’s shop women’s dresses are sold, good, inexpensive.’ kubadila/ kana shaati ‘to change [as often] as a shirt’ Omari/ hubadilaa wake/ kana shaati. ‘Omari changes wives [as often] as a shirt.’ mashaati (exaggerated plural) Nk^huzile shaatiyá. ‘I took my shirt off.’ Omari/ shaati/ ni chihabache. ‘Omari, the shirt is too small for him (lit. is his small).’ Omari/ tundrishile shaatiye/ musmariini. ‘Omari hung his shirt on a nail.’ Shaati/ atile ka chireenza. ‘The shirt, he cut it with a razor. (Or, with focus on the preposed shaati : Shaati/ atilo ka chireenza. ‘It is the shirt that he cut with a razor.’ One can also simultaneously put focus on the verb: Shaati/ atilól/ ka chireenza. Notice that when the verb is focused, the relative final accent does not extend beyond the verb. This is characteristic of the pseudo-relative construction as opposed to true relatives.) Shaati/ atulile chireenza. ‘The shirt he cut with a razor.’ (In GM’s speech, one can prepose the logical object in the instrumental applied construction, or the instrument: Chireenza/ atulile shaati. ‘With a razor he cut the shirt.’ Furthermore, either of these preposed elements will allow pseudo-relativization: Shaati/ atulilo chireenza. ‘It is the shirt that he cut with a razor.’ Or Chireenza/ atulilo shaati. ‘It is a razor that he used to cut the shirt.’) Shaati/ chireenza/ atulilól. ‘The shirt, a razor he used to cut.’ Or: Chireenza/ shaati/ atulilól. ‘With a razor, the shirt he cut.’ (It does not seem possible to fail to pseudo-relativize the verb if both object and instrument are preposed.) Shati iyi/ nda naani. ‘Whose shirt is this?’ Shaati/ ka chireenza/ atilól. ‘A shirt, with a razor, he cut.’ (Syn. Observe that in this sentence, both the logical object and the prepositional instrumental phrase can be preposed in front of the verb. But in such a case, the verb must be put into the pseudo-relative form. One cannot say * Shaati/ ka chireenza/ atilile.) shaati/ ya laasi ‘wool shirt’ shaati/ ya mikonoo mile ‘a long-sleeved shirt’

	shaati/ ya mikono zigobe ‘a short-sleeved shirt’ shaati/ zaa wake ‘dresses for women’ Ye/ uzile shaati/ iyi/ kuvaala/ muunt̃hi/ waa ye/ zaazilá. ‘He bought this shirt to wear it on his birthday.’
shaw	ideo. Hamadi/ numba yaawo/ yiko kharibu ya tawala/ masku/ hukasowa mayiimbi/ yanaakuló/ shaw! ‘Hamadi’s house is near the sea, in the night waves are heard, shaw!’
i-shawakha (ma-)	n. 5/6 [Som.] fishing net Ishawakha/ yaliko ndani ya maayi. ‘The fishing net was in the water.’ Or: Ishawakha/ yaaliko/ ndani ya maayi. Or: Ishawakha/ iwaliko ndani ya maayi. Or: Ishawakha/ iwaaliko/ ndani ya maayi. Kingilowa ishawakhaani/ ni sahali/ kulawoowa/ ni ta’abu. ‘To get into a net is easy, to get out is difficult.’ (A proverb.) Kingila ishawakhaani/ ni sahali/ fikira jisaa we/ kulawa. ‘To get into the net is easy, think of how to come out.’ (A proverb.) Mashawakha/ yawaliko ndani ya maayi. ‘The fishing nets were in the water.’ Or: Mashawakha/ yawaaliko/ ndani ya maayi. shawakha ya gooli ‘the goal net in soccer’ shawakha ya mpiira ‘net for ball (e.g. volleyball net)’ shawakha yaa nsi ‘net for fish’
shawaala	n. [dialectal Arabic source?] rare porter Shawaala/ tomeela/ kaziini. ‘The porter was fired from his job.’
kh-shawisha	v. [?Ar. šawīha "to distort, deface, defame" W 495] worry someone; interfere with a radio signal by broadcasting over it review both the etymology and the Chimwiini gloss
shawri	n. 9 [cf. the more common form shoori] advice; business Iyo/ siwo/ shawri yiinu. ‘That is not your (pl.) business.’ Shawriyo/ ni suura/ nt̃o. ‘Your advice is very good.’
shaawuri	n. 9/10 advice, consultation, suggestion, plan; idea, opinion kht̃inda shaawuri ‘to decide’ kuleta shaawuri ‘to make a suggestion’ Nayo shaawuri? ‘Do you have a suggestion?’ Wamaliizopó/ mwaana/ chiwa’uza/ nini/ shaawuri/ isa. ‘When they finished [eating], the boy asked them: what is your advice now?’ Wamrashiizó/ wachimjiiba/ kuwa shaawuri/ yiko kaake. ‘Those who followed him answered him that the advice is with him [i.e. it is up to him].’ rel. ma-shaawuri n. 6 consultations, plans Kila/ mooyi/ nayo mashaawuri/ mbaḽmbali. ‘Everyone has different ideas, opinions.’ Madimaamu/ na Sa’iidi/ mashawuriyaawo/ mamooyi. ‘Madimaamu and Sa’iidi, their plans were one (i.e. everything they do, they do together).’
m-shaawuri	n. [Sw. mashauri SED 418; Ar. mušāwar W 493] advisor Apo/ stendro izi/ zinakh̃t̃ulukó/ mshaawuri/ wa mmamulaṭa muuyi/ waliko nakhpita/ ka apo/ chiwona. ‘There where these happenings were taking place, the advisor of the administrator of the town was passing by that place and saw (everything that happened).’
shaawushi	n. a military title: a petty officer of the Zanzibari garrison, commanding ten soldiers

sheeba	n. king (in cards), but also mzeele is used
kh-sheegata	v. [Som.] (shegeete) claim; [pron. kh-sheegata] Baazi/ shegete kuwaa ye/ waliko maskiini. ‘Baazi claimed that he was poor.’ Faatima/ shegete kuwa Omari/ chimhadgudbatila/ ye. ‘Faatima claimed Omari was abusive to her.’ Omari/ nshegetee mi/ kuwaa mi/ ni mweenzawé/ msuurá/ kabisá. ‘Omari claimed me as his best friend.’
shehena	n. [Sw. shehena SSED 418; Ar. sah □ na W 458] cargo khpakila shehena ‘to load a cargo’ Markabu/ itukile shehena ya suukari. ‘The ship is carrying a cargo of sugar.’ Na shehena/ inawe/ buni/ ipoonzela. ‘And the cargo should be coffee that has been ground.’
Shekh Abu Gaawo	n. an individual who appears in a proverbial saying Sho khsafira/ ni Shekh Abu Gaawo. ‘The one who does not travel is Shekh Abu Gaawo.’
Shekh Abdu Qadiri	n. the founder of the Qadiriya, a Sufi order
Shekh Aaweeso	n. one of the three main religious leaders in Brava Sekkh Aaweeso/ zishile Biyoole. ‘Sheikh Aaweeso is buried in Biyoole.’
Shekh Khaasimu	n. one of the three main religious leaders in Brava
Shekh Mohammud	n. Makhabriini/ ka Shekh Mohamuud / ni kharibu ya Spartiwooni. ‘Sheikh Mohamuud’s graveyard is near the stadium.’ Makhabriini/ ka Shekh Mohamuud Waesle/ ni kharibu ya Ka Mabaadiri. ‘The graveyard of Sheikh Mohamuud Waesle is near Ka Mabaadiri.’
Shekh Nureeni	n. one of the three main religious leaders in Brava check whether this is Shekh Nuraani or whether both may be used
kh-sheekhata	v. [Som. n. sheegato "person who denies belonging to a certain tribe" DSI 548] (shekheete) repudiate one’s tribe, team, etc., and join another
sheekhasho	n. the act of repudiating one’s affiliation
sheekhi (ma-) a saint	n. 1/2, 9/6 [Sw. sheik(i) SSED 418; Ar. šaiḳ W 496] a learned person, esp. in religion, Karamuuni/ wa’azimiila/ masheekhi/ walangaḷa noota/ na ma’akhyari wa muuyí. ‘To the feast were invited learned men, astrologers, and gentlemen of the town.’ Masheekhi/ hudirkamana muskitiini. ‘Religious people meet in the mosque.’ (A saying.) masheekhi matatu or masheekhi watatu ‘three learned people’ ([cl.6] and [cl.2] agreement) masheekhi wa Miini or masheekhi ya Miini ‘learned people of Brava’ ([cl.2] or [cl.6] agreement) Masheekhi/ wa’ile. ‘Learned people came.’ ([cl.2] agreement) na wiingine masheekhi yote aadili [st.] ‘and all other learned men who are just’ Sheekhi/ ni muunt’u. ‘A religious scholar is a man.’ (A proverb.) sheekhi yiitu or sheekhi wiitu ‘our sheekhi ’ ([cl.9] or [cl.1] agreement) sheekhiya ‘my learned man’ ([cl.9] agreement)

Tuuma/ waawaye/ ni sheekhi. ‘Tuuma’s father is a religious scholar.’
Waa we/ namtoshō sheekhi/ ndiyé/ huwo sheetaani. ‘The one you think is a saint is the one who becomes satan.’ (A proverb.)
Watakendra ka sheekhi/ kulātana. ‘We will go to a learned man to divorce.’

rel.
u-sheekhi n. 14 learnedness

sheelara

n. accelerator
khkala sheelara ‘to press down on the accelerator’ Omari/ nakhkala sheelara/ zaaydi/ gaari. ‘Omari is accelerating the car too much.’
kulata sheelara ‘to release the accelerator’

-sheenzi chi-sheenzi n/adj. [Sw. kishenzi SSED 419; Pers.] in a barbarous, uncivilized manner

m-sheenzi (wa-) n/adj. 1/2 a barbarous, uncivilized, uncouth, stupid person u-sheenzi n. 14 [Sw. ushenzi SSED 419] stupidity; the condition of being barbarous, uncivilized

m-sheenzi

n. a kind of grouper; var. isheenzi

-shepe

adj. worn-out, old Chita/ weshelee feeli/ nshepe/ mtanaani. ‘The chief kept old files inside the room.’
garii nshepe ‘an old car’
Hanzu iyi/ ni ishepe. ‘This dress is old.’ (Observe the possibility of using the agreement prefix i- for [cl.9] rather than the nasal n-.)
Nguwo/ iwelee nshepe. ‘The clothes became worn out.’
nguwo nshepe old clothes’ numbaa nshepe ‘an old house’ shtoka chishepe ‘worn-out axe’
We/ inenzeze garii nshepe/ ambó/ garii mp^hiyá? ‘Did you drive the new car or the old car?’ (Although yes-no questions in general are formed by suspending

the downstepping ordinarily associated with statements, we have not studied the more complex sentences such as this one.)

rel.
chi-shepe (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kichepe "worn out, threadbare cloth" SSED 187] a piece of old, worn-out cloth
i-shepe (ma-) n. 5/6 worn-out cloth

Ishepeya/ sii mp^hiya/ ya waant^hu. ‘My worn-out cloth is not a new one of (other) people. (i.e. it is better).’ (A proverb that counsels preferring what is your own, not what belongs to others.) The adjective -piya agrees apparently with the omitted noun nguwo ‘cloth/es’.)

kh-sheera

v. [no etymological source found] (shereele) slide, slip (e.g. on a wet spot); slide down something

Ali/ shereele. ‘Ali slipped.’
Gaari/ ishereele. ‘The car rolled down (the hill, e.g.)’
Huuri/ zimshereele usooni. ‘Sweat slid down his face.’
Huuri/ zinamsheera. ‘Sweat is coming down his face.’ (The prefix ku in the present tense is commonly elided in front of the [cl.1] object prefix, as in this example. Compare Huuri/ zinakunsheera. ‘Sweat is coming down my face.’)
Kaa kule/ mi/ chikhuwona/ itozi/ hunsheera. ‘When I see you from a distance, I shed a tear – [lit.] a tear flows from me.’
Mi/ nshereele nt^hini ya imooró. ‘I slid under the fence.’
ndila ya khsheera ‘a slippery road’

- Nguwo/imshereele. ‘The cloth slid down him.’
Wo/ wafakeete/ ka khsheera/ ikambalaani/ nt^hiini. ‘They escaped by sliding down a rope.’
 rel.
kh-sheerasha v. caus. (sheresheeze)
Ali/ sheresheze chigaari/ ndilaani. ‘Ali rolled the cart along the road.’
Mi/ nsheresheze ifuungulo/ nt^hiini ya mnaangó. ‘I slid the key under the door.’
kh-shereshoowa v. caus. pass.
 Ifuungulo/ I-sheresheza nt^hiini ya mnaango. ‘The key was slid under the door.’ Also: Nt^hiini ya mnaango/ ifuungulo/ isheresheezá. ‘Under the door the key was slid.’
kh-sheroowa v. pass. be slippery Husheroowa/ kana chimento. ‘It is slippery like cement.’
Imooro/ isherela nt^hiinike. ‘The fence was slid under it.’
Nt^hi iyi/ nasha/ husheroowa. ‘This floor is smooth, it is slippery.’
- shere [Sw. shere SSED 419] in the expression:
khteleezaa shere ‘to make fun of someone’ ([cf. Sw. kucheza shere])
- kh-shereha v. [cf. Sw. noun sherehe "show, pomp, display" SSED 419 (but the Ar. etymology given in SSED has the meaning "to be happy" and is not applicable to Chimwiini; Som. sharrax "to decorate" DSI 547 and sharax "to explain" DSI 546) (sherehele) decorate, adorn; explain with more detail and more elaborately than in the case of keeleza, embellish khshereha darsi ‘to explain the lesson’ khshereha jawaabu ‘to explain the issue’ khsherehaa lugha ‘to explain the language’ khshereha nuumba ‘to decorate a house’
 rel.
kh-sherehela v. appl.
kumsherehela chiint^hu ‘to explain something to him’
kh-sherehesha v. caus.
 rel. nom.
m-shereho n. 3 act of decorating, adorning
- sherehe (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Som. sharax DSI 546] explanation; variant form: sherehe Khur’aani/ inayo sherehe (or: masherehe) niingi (or: miingi). ‘The Quran has many explanations.’
- sheetaani n. [Ar. saiṭān W 497] devil, satan, fallen angel who attempts to lead humans astray Chizeele/ icho/ ni sheetaani. ‘That old woman is a devil.’
Chimrasha sheetaani/ khupoteza. ‘If you go with satan, he will make you fail.’ (A proverb.)
Heendra/ kuwa sheetaani/ ingile kati kiinu. ‘It is possible that the devil has gotten between you (e.g. causing you to quarrel).’
Mwoondrole sheetaani/ ndata nk^hooðe. ‘Remove the devil (i.e. be calm, don’t let anger get the better of you), allow me to speak.’
Nahishiize/ kana sheetaani. ‘He terrified him as if he were the devil.’
Sheetaani/ humpata moomini. ‘The devil gets the faithful man.’ (A proverb.)
Sheetaani/ hupowaa male. ‘The devil is given a longer time.’ (A proverb.)
Sheetaani/ khutomola nuumbayo/ khulata ibanyaani. ‘The devil takes you out of your house and leaves you outside (i.e. nowhere).’ (A proverb that conveys the idea that bad people will mislead you, they will tell you good things that do not in fact exist.)
Shpandra muunt^hu/ kulanga/a/ chimwona mwanaamke/ msuura/ ye/ chimuuz/ ndo/ we/ naani/ sheetaani. ‘A man climbed up [the tree] to tak a look; he saw the pretty girl; he asked her: come, who are you? a devil?’

Sku mo/ muke/ sheetaani/ mshiinzile/ nt^hakhaadira/ kureba ruuhuye chimwambila Yuusufu/ ni laazima/ we/ kulala naami. ‘One day satan overcame the wife, she was not able to stop herself, she told Joseph: it is necessary that you sleep with me.’

- i-sheetara (ma-)* n. 5/6 [etymology unknown] umbrella
- i-shevu (ma-)* n. 5/6 [Sw. shavu SSED 418] the gill of a fish Nsi/ huvuta neefu/ ka ishevuuni. ‘A fish respire by means of the gills.’
- ma-shghuli* n. 6 [Sw. shughuli SSED 426; Ar. šūġl W 476] state of being busy; adj. busy Ka khisa Tuuma/ waliko mashghuli. ‘Because Tuuma was busy working.’
(A possible answer to the question: Ka khisani/ Tuuma/ nt^hakhpiká. ‘Why did Tuuma not cook?’) Makhaadimu/ wake/ na wabli/ wachiwa mashghuli/ wanakudarbisha zaakuja/ za namna mba^lmbali. ‘Servants, male and female, became busy preparing foods of different kinds.’
munt^hu mashghuli ‘a busy person’; want^h mashghuli ‘busy people’;
chijint^hu chimashghuli ‘busy dim. person’
- kh-shi’ira* v. compose a poem
yaaka nikhshi’ira ichinsiba chiint^hu [song] ‘mine (i.e. my role, what I am able to do) is to express in poetry the thing(=s) that happen to me’
- shi’iri* n. [Ar. šī’ir W473] verse, poem
Ikofiyaani/ andishile shi’iri/ ka chihindi. ‘On the hat, he wrote a poem in Hindi.’
khtunga shi’iri ‘to compose poetry’
Shi’iri iyi/ yandishiġa na Iliya Abumaadi/ na itafsiriġa na Madimaamu. ‘This poem was written by Iliya Abumaadhi and was translated by Madimaamu.’
- shibhi* n. (cf. verb kh-shibiha) resemblance ni msuura nt^hako mithliye / ni nuuru naani shibhiye [st.] ‘(the Prophet) is beautiful, there is not his equal, he is a light: who resembles him?’
- kh-shibiha* v. [Ar. šabiha W 453, and šibh "resemblance, similarity, ibidem"] (shibhiile) be alike, look alike, impersonate variant form: khshabiha hushibiha mwaaka mzima hadiile [st.] ‘it (fasting those six days) is equal to a whole year of fasting, he (i.e. the Prophet) said’ mubli kumshibiha muke haraamu/ karka mavaaloye haġa kalaamu [st.] ‘for a man to impersonate a woman is forbidden, in his garb, even in speech’ (MI rejected kalaamu as a word used ordinarily used in Chimiini) muke kumshabiha mubli taħadari/ haġa karka mineendro ġambi ġ’akbari [st.] ‘for a woman to impersonate a man, beware; even in gesture or movement (lit. walking) is a big sin’
- rel.
kh-shibihana na v. resemble, look like variant form: khshabihana
- shibiri* n. 9/10 [Sw. shibiri SSED 420; Ar. šibr W 451] a span, the distance from the thumb to the little finger if the hand is opened (this term is used mostly in religious contexts by learned me; its more used synonym is taaka, a span used in particular in measuring makoofiya)
- shiibu* n. beauty
chuuma cha miriiri china shiibu ġiini [song] ‘when did a rusty piece of iron ever have beauty?'

shida n. 9/10 [Sw. shida SSED 420; Ar. šidda W 460] hardship, difficulty (Observe that although this item is of the structure CVCV, it does not allow the lengthening of the final vowel of the preceding word in the phrase, as is usual for CVCV words. This behavior is presumably a reflection of the geminate in the Arabic source. We have observed this item with gemination even in Chimiini.)

khpatikana na shida 'to be in difficulty – lit. to be found in difficulty' kingila shidaani 'to enter into difficulty' kingiza shidaani 'to expose to difficulty'

Nimwingize shidaani. 'I exposed him to difficulty.'

Lada ya haruusi/ ni saba ayaamu/ na shidayé/ ni dawaamu. 'The sweetness of marriage is seven days and its hardship is everlasting.' (A proverb.)

Nayo shidda. 'He has difficulty.'

Shida/ ikathiriile/ zamani izi. 'Hardship has increased these days.'

Siná/ shida. 'I am fine (i.e. I have no difficulty).'

Umo karka shidá. 'You are in difficulty.'

Umo karka shida ya peesá. 'You are in financial difficulty.'

shifa

inaye ni dawa shifa/ ka uhayaati na kufa [st.] 'his (i.e. Muhammad's) name has healing powers during your life and at the time of death'

Sho kuyaa shari/ shifa/ hayiyi. 'Unless something bad happens, a good thing does not come.' (A proverb.)

shifaa'a

n. 9 [Ar. šafā'ā W 478] healing, curing, helpfulness, intercession (on the part of the Prophet for someone who has died, e.g. a saghiiri -- a child who has died near birth), peace, ease, rest, etc.

Dawa/ na shifaa'i/ ni ka mojiitu. 'Medicine and healing are from God.'

Dawa/ na shifaa'i/ hulombowa mojiitu. 'Medicine and healing are begged from God.'

munt^hu mwenye shifaa'a 'someone helpful' munt^hu nt^hana shifaa'a 'a man who will offer no help' shifaa'a ndaako aakhera/ neesha miito ya Kowthara [st.] 'mercy is yours in the hereafter, water the plants of Kowthara'

Sho kuya shari/ shifaa'a/ hayiyi. 'Unless evil comes, peace/ease does not come.' (A proverb.)

yiiko shifaa'aye lata waswasi [st.] 'there is his [the Prophet's] intercession [available], abandon doubts!'

shifa'u_l
walideeni

a set expression borrowed from Arabic used to express condolences to a parent whose minor child has died; these words, "mercy for the parents", are spoken when one goes to the home of the parent after the child's death

Nuuru/ molokelele Hasani/ shifa'u_lwalideeni. 'Nuuru went to Hasani's place to give condolences.' (Phon. It is interesting that Chimiini prosodic principles hold even when the sentence contains obvious Arabicisms. This is seen in the first person form of the present sentence, where the accent is final: Nimokolele Hasani/ shifa'u_lwalideeni. 'I went to Hasani's place to give my condolences.')

Omari/ nt^hamolokela/ Nuuru/ shifa'u_l walideeni. 'Omari did not go to Nuuru's place to express condolences.'

shiihi

n. 9 [Som. sheex DSI 548] shame, shyness munt^hu mwenye shiihi 'a shy person, a shamed person'

shiihiye 'his shyness'

- shiihoole* adj. [Som. sheex + poss. leh] timid, easily embarrassed
- kh-shiika* v. [Sw. shika SSED 420] (shishile) grasp, seize, catch, grab, hold, have a grip on, reach for; keep; arrest, capture; trap an animal; maintain, insist; regard as, accuse, hold to be
- Ali/ nshishile mwiizi. ‘Ali accused me of being a thief [lit. Ali held me to be a thief.]’
- Askari/ mshishile mwiizi. ‘The policeman arrested the thief.’
- Askari/ wachimmera mwaana/ kumshiika. ‘The soldiers searched for the boy to arrest him.’
- Baaba/ chimshika mwaana/ mkono. ‘Father held the child by the hand.’
- Chizeele/ chimwaambila/ mshiike. ‘The old woman told him: catch it!’
- Fijiri/ muke oyo/ chimshika Sa’iidi/ mkono/ chilawa naaye. ‘In the morning that woman grasped Sa’iidi’s hand and left with him.’
- Hamadi/ shishile ruuhuye/ kuulu. ‘Hamadi grasped his (own) leg.’
- Hamadi/ mshishile mkono. ‘Hamadi held him by the hand.’ (Review the interpretation of Hamadi/ mshishile mkonowe. MI suggested it would indicate one’s own hand.)
- Hasani/ nakhshika zanaa nk^huku. ‘Hasani caught the small hens.’
- Hawashiiki/ mbwa/ numbaani. ‘They do not keep dogs in the house.’
- khshiika ‘to hold, keep, care for, look after’
- Ko/ nshikila mwaaná. ‘Here, keep my child for me.’
- Nshikila mwaaná/ mara mooyí. ‘Keep my child for me for a little while.’
- Nshikila pesa izi/ mara mooyí. ‘Keep the money for me for a little while.’
- khshikaa be’i ‘to name a price, make a bid’ (but khtilaa be’i is more common)
- khshikaa chiṭa idiom?
- khshika deeni ‘to ask someone to repay a loan’
- Hamadi/ namshika Omari/ deeniye/ mniinzile/ wakhti miingi. ‘Omari is demanding/asking Omari to pay back his loan, he has waited for him to pay for a long time.’
- Taha/ nshishile deeniye. ‘Taha asked me to repay the money I borrowed from him [lit. his loan].’
- khshika gaari/ ka chinume ‘to jump onto the tailgate of a car’
- khshika hapti ‘to mind one’s own business, affairs’
- Oloka/ shika habtizo. ‘Go and mind your own business!’
- khshika magoonjo ‘to beg, go down on one’s knees to someone [lit. hold someone’s knees]’
- khshika maneeno/ ka waant^hu ‘to listen to, heed the words of others’
- Sishiiké/ maneno ya waant^hu. ‘Don’t pay attention to what people say!’
- khshika miilu ‘to beg, go down on one’s knees to someone [lit. hold someone’s legs]’
- Nakhsuḷa khushika miilú. ‘Do you want me to beg you?’
- khshika miimba ‘to conceive, become pregnant (lit. catch stomach)’
- Mukeewe/ shishile miimba. ‘His wife became pregnant.’ Cf. Mukeewe/ nt^hakhshiika/ miimba. ‘His wife did not become pregnant.’)
- Uko/ uko/ chishika miimba/ chizaala/ mwaana/ mwanaamke/ inaye/ Sittjanna. ‘She stayed, she stayed, (and) she became pregnant; she gave birth to a child, a girl; her name was Sittjanna (“lady of paradise”).’
- khshika mimbaani ‘lit. hold in the stomach’
- Omari/ hushika kooḍi/ mimbaani/ haliwali/ haṭá/ miyaka
- khamsiini. [H’H!H|| HH!H] ‘Omari keep talk/words in his stomach (i.e. holds onto s.t., e.g. a grudge), he does not forget for even fifty years.’ (The evidence for the double vertical line before haliwali is that the pitch in this word is raised above the pitch of the last accented syllable in the preceding clause.)
- khshika mkono ‘to catch red-handed’, to catch s.o. with his hand in the bag
- Hamadi/ mshishile Baana/ naa ye/ nakubooló. ‘Hamadi caught Baana red-handed while he was stealing.’
- khshika mwaana ‘to babysit, care for a child’

khshikaa ndala ‘to be hungry’

Imshishilee ndala/ mub̂li. ‘The man felt hungry.’ (Phon. It is out impression that in a sentence of this type, the noun mub̂li is more radically lowered in pitch than in the usual downstep intonation pattern, or at least the contrast between it and the preceding ndala is more marked than usual. We take this intonation to indicate that mub̂li is out-of-focus. The corresponding yes-no question reflects this fact in that the out-of-focus element undergoes accent shift: Imshishilee ndala/ mub̂li?)

Mub̂li/ ndala/ imshishile. ‘The man felt hungry.’ (Phon. The yes-no question corresponding to this sentence involves no accent shifts, just Q-raising: Mub̂li/ ndala/ imshishile? Comparison, then, of the present example with the immediately preceding one, supports the proposition that the movement of mub̂li to the end of the sentence is a means of putting it out-of-focus. Its neutral position is sentence-initial.)

khshikaa ndila ‘to leave; to follow the road, keep to a course of action, a path; to follow one’s own way, not listening to others, but holding to one’s own beliefs etc.’

Baana/ shishile ndilaze. ‘Baana left, went on his way.’

Chimaliza khsooma/ khat̂i/ iyi/ shikaa ndila/ ndo. ‘When you read this letter, follow the road and come!’

Hamadi/ mwambile Sheekhi/ chiint̂u/ sikhupi/ shika ndilazo.
‘Omari told Sheekhi, I will not give you anything, go! leave! take your way!’

Muunt̂u/ uyu/ chishika ndilaye/ chiyolokela. ‘This man left and took himself off.’

Omari/ kōdeele/ koôdi/ zimooyi/ nt̂azina ma’aná/ hat̂á/ waawaye/ shishîla sĥtana/ shishile ndilaze. ‘Omari spoke nonsense till his dad got angry and walked away.’

Shika ndila iyi/ mooyi/ ka mooyi. ‘Keep straight ahead on this road.’

Shika ndilazo. ‘Follow your own path!’

Wachishikaa ndila/ kendra mundraani. ‘They departed and went to the garden.’

khshika safari ‘to intend to take a trip’

Sku mooyi/ mzeele/ nambiile/ kuwaa ye/ imshishile safari. ‘One day the old man told me that he intended to take a trip.’

khshika uûdu ‘to maintain the validity of one’s ablutions (by avoiding the various prohibited things – e.g. in Shaafi’i school one cannot touch the bare skin of a sexually available woman; one cannot touch one’s genitals; one cannot urinate, defecate, or fart)’

Mi/ hukhaadira/ khshika uûdu/ munt̂i mzima. [H(̂)H!H!H] ‘I can keep my ablution valid all day.’

wazele ha wakhaadiri khshuika uudu wakhti miingi ka sabababu hu nala niingi (old people cannot keep uudu for long because they pee often) khshika utuungu ‘to go into labor’

Muke/ wakĥti ukomeelopó/ chishika utuungu/ chizaala. ‘When the time came, the woman went into labor and gave birth.’

khshika wakĥti ‘to set, fix a time’

khshikaa zîlo ‘to cry’

Waana/ wa Omari/ hawadaariki/ ka paapo/ hushikaa zîlo. ‘Omari’s children cannot be touched, immediately they start crying.’

khshika ziwovu ‘to hold a grudge, have rancour’

Kîlaa muunt̂u/ yaake/ imshishile. ‘Every one is caught with his (i.e. with his problems and issues).’ (A proverbial saying.)

Liini/ mapoliisi/ wamshishilo miizi. ‘When did the police arrest the thief?’
Langala ikhushiishilo. ‘Mind your own affairs [lit. look after that which holds you]!’

mapoliisi/ kawamshika miizi/ yana ‘if the police had arrested the thief yesterday’ (Phon. The ka counterfactual conditional tense triggers final accent whatever the nature of its subject. In this example, the time adverbial is included in the scope of this final accent. This does not seem to be an invariable property of the ka tense and may indicate that in this example yana is not out of focus.)

Mapoliisi/ wamshishile miizi/ yana. ‘The police arrested the thief yesterday.’ (Phon. The noun miizi bears the default penult accent by virtue of being the final word in a phrase. There are aspects of pronunciation, however, that are not revealed by our system of transcription. We refer to these features as intonational. For instance, time adverbials like yana, when final in the verb phrase, typically show a kind of pitch lowering that is characteristic of out-of-focus elements. This is not revealed by the above transcription. The out-of-focus nature of the time adverbial is shown by the simple yes-no question, where out-of-focus phrases are subject to a shift of the accent to final position: Mapoliisi/ wamshishile miizi/ yana? ‘Did the police arrest the thief yesterday?’ Furthermore, sentences with “canonical” word order and phrasing typically exhibit a “downstep” intonation whereby the initial accented syllable is highest in pitch and subsequent accented syllables are progressively lowered. Thus in the present example, miizi would be lower in pitch than mapoliisi. However, it is possible to put focus/emphasis on miizi, which raises its pitch. The extent of this raising is variable. The following yana in this case is radically lower in pitch.)

Mapoliisi/wamshishile naani/ yana. ‘The police arrested whom yesterday?’ (Phon. Once again, our transcription does not reveal significant intonational facts about this sentence. A question word such as naani ‘who(m)?’ is focused and therefore raised in pitch. Interestingly, we did not observe a pitch drop on yana. This lack of a pitch drop is presumably connected to the intonation of so-called “wh-questions”, but we have not explored this intonation in any detail.)

Mapoliisi/ yana/ wamshishile miizi/ so. ‘The police yesterday arrested the thief, didn’t they?’ (Phon. We have not studied the intonation of the so “tag-question” construction, but from this example it is clear that there is no down-step intonation and the sentence-final so is raised in pitch.)

Mi/ nimshishile miizi/ yana. ‘I arrested the thief yesterday.’ (Phon. Time adverbials are typically out-of-focus, as can be seen from the fact that the final accent triggered by the verb does not pass onto yana. The simple yes-no question shifts the accent to the final syllable on an out-of-focus phrase: Mi/ nimshishile miizi/ yana? The same shift occurs in the emphatic yes-no question, but here it is not linked to being out-of-focus: Mi/ nimshishile miizi/ yana!?)

Mp^haka/ chuuluka/ chimshika mooyi/ kaa kana. ‘The cat jumped and caught one [of the rats] in his mouth.’

Mshishile Hamadi/ mkono. ‘He held Hamadi’s hand.’ (Syn: One does not say Mshishile mkono Hamadi. One also does not say Mshishile mkonowe Hamadi. nor Shishile Hamadi/ mkonowe., i.e. with a possessive enclitic on mkono. It is also odd to say: ??Shishile mkono wa Hamadi. ‘He held the hand of Hamadi.’ One prefers to have a human object prefix, which is not possible with the associative phrase mkono wa Hamadi, since mkono is the head of this phrase and would have to control object agreement.)

Muusa/ mshishilo miizi/ yana. ‘(It is) Muusa who caught the thief yesterday.’ (Syn. It is possible to put emphasis on the preverbal subject of a sentence by recasting the verb into a relative shape. This recasting of the verb is particularly common in present-day Chimiini. We did not record it in the speech of MI.)

Mwanaashke/ ulushile/ shishile mpiira. ‘The girl jumped and caught the ball.’

Naani/ mshishilo miizi/ yaná. ‘Who arrested the thief yesterday?’ A possible answer to this question: Muusa/ mshishilo miizi/ yaná. ‘Muusa arrested the thief yesterday.’ (Phon. The question word naani, when pre-verbal, triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb. It is interesting that in this case, the final accent projected to the end of the pseudo-relative clause. The answer to the question involves focusing on the subject, and this also triggers pseudo-relativization and the accent again extends onto the time adverbial.)

Nshishile chibuukú. ‘I reached for the book.’

Nshishile shaati. ‘He grabbed ahold of my shirt.’

Nvula/ ishiishile. ‘It has started to rain heavily.’

Oo muunt^hu/ shiishilá/ waliko Nureeni. ‘That man who was caught was Nureeni.’ Or: Muunt^hu oo/ shiishilá/ waliko Nureeni.

Omari/ shishile chinyunyi. ‘Omar caught a bird.’ Or: Omari/ shiishile/ chinyunyi. ‘Omari caught a bird.’ Or: Omari/ shishile cho/ chinyunyi. ‘Omari caught it, the bird.’ Or: Omari/ shiishile/ cho/ chinyunyi. ‘Omari caught it, the bird.’ (Phon. The yes-no question version of the first example exhibits no accent shift, just pitch raising: Omari/ shishile chinyunyi? The yes-no question versions of all the other examples cited involve shift of accent to the final syllable of chinyunyi as well as pitch raising: Omari/ shiishile/ chinyunyi?, Omari/ shishile cho/ chinyunyi?, and Omari/ shiishile/ cho/ chinyunyi? Notice that in the last example, cho is monosyllabic and thus there is no possibility for it to exhibit accent shift, even though it is out-of-focus and would thus be a candidate for accent shift in the yes-no question.)

Shika ka mikono miwili/ yaa mi/ kaambiló. ‘Believe what I say to you; depend on what I say to you [lit. hold with both hands what I say to you].’

Shishile celo. ‘He caught a gazelle.’

Shishile kuulu yaa mbwa. ‘He held the leg of the dog.’ Or: Mshishile mbwa/ kuulu.

(Syn: It is not grammatical to say: Mshishile kuulu/ mbwa. where kuulu is immediately post-verbal. It is also ungrammatical to say: Mshishile kulu yaa mbwa. In other words, when the object is an associative phrase like kulu yaa mbwa, agree-nebt must be with the head of the phrase and not the complement.)

Shshile kuwaa mi/ skhaadiri/ khfanya kazi iyi. ‘He maintained that I am not able to do this job.’

Shishile mi/ illa/ kumaliza kazi iyi. ‘He insisted that I must finish this job.’

Shishile mlaango. ‘He held onto the door.’

Shishile mpiira. ‘He caught the ball.’

Sishikeeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t hold it!’

Sultāani/ chishikowa shṭana/ nt^ho/ chiwaviḷa askarize/ kendra kumshiika. ‘The sultan became very angry and called his soldiers to go to arrest him.’

rel.

kh-shikamana v. (shikameene) stick together (e.g. wet papers sticking together); be united; hold together, be firm, be solid

Awo/ ni waant^hu/ washikameene. ‘Those are people who are really united.’

khshikamana mkono ‘to hold one another’s hand’

Washikamene mkono/ wa’olosehe. ‘They joined hands and left.’

Mbarakha/ nt^haskushikamana. ‘The papers did not stick together.’

Mbarakha/ zishikameene. ‘The papers stuck together.’

Numba iyi/ ishikameene. ‘This house is holding together (not falling apart).’

Shikamanaani. ‘(Pl.) unite!’

Ulongo uyu/ hawshikamani. ‘This clay won’t hold together.’

kh-shikamanisha v. unite

Endrá/ shikamanisha chizaazi. ‘Go and unite the family!’

kh-shikashiika v. redup. keep holding

Khshikashika ziwovu/ mimbaani/ siwo/ suura. [H!H!HH!H!H] ‘To keep holding bad things inside the stomach is not good.’

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ khshikashika koḏi za waant^hu. [H!H!H!H] ‘It is not good for one to hold onto (e.g. trust) the words that people have said.’

kh-shiikika v. p/s.

kh-shiikila v. appl.

Chimaliza/ chi’ishikila ndilaye [or: ndilaze]/ chiyolokela. ‘Then he kept himself on his way and went away.’

khshikila shṭana ‘to be mad, angry at someone’

Mshikilile Omari/ shṭana. ‘He was angry at Omari.’

mwana mshikililo ye/ shṭaná ‘the child who was mad at him’ khshikila wakht̃i ‘to set, fix a time for’

Hamadi/ mwambile Omari/ nshikila wakht̃i/ nakhsuulá/ peesaza. ‘Hamadi told Omari: fix/set a time for me, I want my money back.’

Hamadi/ mi/ nimpele deeni/ skumshiikila/ wakht̃i. ‘Hamadi, I gave him a loan, but I did not set a date for him (to repay the loan).’

ku’ishikila hapt̃i ‘to take oneself on one’s own business’

Sheekhi/ chilawa/ ka apo/ chi’ishikila hapt̃ize. ‘Sheekhi left from there and went about his own business.’

Numa/ oyoo muke/ sulṭaani/ chimshikila peesa/ chimshiikiló. ‘Then that woman took money for the sultan, that’s what she took.’

Nshikila pesa izi. ‘Keep this money for me.’

kh-shikilana v. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ mwambile Ali/ nakshshikilani/ pesa za waant̃u/ warudiile/ wenewe. ‘Nuuru said to Ali: for what are you holding people’s money, give it back to the owners.’

kh-shiikisha v. caus.

Mshikishize mwaana/ noka. ‘He made the child hold a snake.’

kh-shikishana v. caus. rec.

kh-shikishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-shikishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-shikishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-shikoowa v. pass. (shiishiḷa)

Baaba/ chshikowa na maraḍi/ chifa. ‘Father was seized by illness and died.’

Chibuuku/ chishiishiḷa. ‘The book was reached for.’

khshikowaa chita ‘to have a headache’

Shishiḷaa chita. ‘He has a headache.’

khshikowa choolo ‘to have to go to the bathroom’ khshikowa hargabu ‘to have a cold’ khshikowa iwa ‘to have a solar eclipse’ (This expression derives from the traditional belief that something is snatching/catching the sun or moon and that the eclipse shows that God is angry. When this phenomenon occurred, all the children of the koranic schools and their teachers went round town imploring God for deliverance and special prayers were said.)

meezi ikumi ajabu / khshikoowa iwa sababu / kubloowa qutbu arabu/ Mooja shkiziize ghaḍabu [st.] ‘on the tenth of the month there was a wonder / the sun was eclipsed because / of the killing of the leader of the Arabs / God sent down his wrath’ khshikowa kaḍiido ‘to have a fever’

Shishiḷa kaḍiido. ‘He had a fever.’

khshikowa khoofu ‘to be fearful, afraid’

Omari/ wene waant̃u/ wiingi/ wafiló/ ka taa’uuni/ shishiḷa khoofu. ‘Omari saw many people died of cholera it made him fearful.’ (Note that in this pronunciation, even though ka taa’uuni is clearly part of the relative clause, the final accent of the relative verb was not extended to it. This does not seem to be the norm, although we have certainly observed such cases. Of course, the exclusion of ka taa’uuni from the scope of final accent is dependent on it not being phrased with the relative verb. GM also gave the pronunciation Omari/ wene waant̃u/ wiingi/ wafilo ka taa’uuni/ shishiḷa khoofu. In this pronunciation, ka taa’uuni phrases with the relative verb and receives the final accent.)

khshikowaa kunya ‘to feel the need to defecate’ ndilá?

khshikowaa mane ‘to feel the need to urinate’ khshikowa meezi ‘to have a lunar eclipse’ khshikowa miimba ‘to have a stomach ache’

Shishiġa miimba. ‘He has a stomach ache.’

khshikowa mimbaani ‘to keep, hold in the stomach’

Khshikowa kooġi/ mimbaani/ ni maraġi. [H!H!H] ‘To keep talk/words in the stomach is a sickness.’ (a saying) khshikowa mkono ‘to be caught red-handed’

Suufi/ shishiġa mkono/ naa ye/ nakubooló. ‘Suufi was caught red-handed stealing.’

khshikowa mkono ‘to be held (by) the arm’

Mkono wa mwaana/ ushiishiġa. ‘The child’s arm was held.’

Mwaana/ mkonowe/ ushiishiġa. ‘The child, his arm was held.’

Mwaana/ shishiġa mkono. ‘The child was held by the arm.’

Shishiġa mkonó/ ni mwaana. ‘The one who was held by the arm is the child.’

Ushiishiġá/ ni mkono wa mwaana. ‘What was held was the child’s arm.’

khshikowaa ndala ‘[lit.] to be held by hunger -- i.e. to be hungry’

...chshikowaa ndala/ khpata keendra/ khtiiinda ‘...(so that) if I should become hungry, I might go and pick them’

Mi/ ntʰakuja mukhtaa mi/ ntʰakhshikowaa ndalá. ‘I will eat when I am hungry.’

Shishiġaa ndalá. ‘You are hungry.’ (Phon. The corresponding yes-no question just involves Q-raising: Shishiġaa

The exclamatory yes-no question does not have Q-raising, but does make the final accent clearly falling in nature:

Shishiġaa ndala!?)

washishiġapoo ndalá ‘when they become hungry’ khshikowa ooni ‘to be thirsty’ khshikowa shtana ‘to be angry’

Muke/ chshikowa shtana/ ntʰo. ‘His wife was very angry.’

Nuuru/ shishiġa shtana. ‘Nuuru was angry.’

khshikowa usiinzi ‘to be sleepy’

Sooloké/ chinemaani/ masku/ takshikowa usiinzi. ‘Don’t go to the cinema at night, you will get sleepy.’

Hamadi/ shishiġa kuulu/ na Ali. ‘Hamadi was held by the leg by Ali.’

(Syn: It is less common to say Hamadi/ shishiġa kuuluye/ na Ali.

And it is ungrammatical to say: Kuulu/ ishishiġa Hamadi/ na Ali.

Mbwa/ shishiġa kuulu/ na Ali. ‘The dog was held by the leg by Ali.’

Mwaana/ shishiġa mkono. [H!H] ‘The child was held by the hand.’ Cf.

Shishiġa mkonó/ ni mwaana. [H!H] ‘The one who was taken by the hand is the child.’ Cf. Mkono wa mwaana/ ushiishiġa. [H!H] ‘The hand of the child was held.’ Cf. Mwaana/ mkonowe/ ushiishiġa. [H!H!H] ‘The child, his hand was held.’ Cf. Ushiishiġá/ ni mkono wa mwaana. [H!H] ‘What was held is the hand of the child.’

Mwanaamke/ chshikoowa/ chiletowaa mbele/ ya sulṭaani. ‘The young woman was caught and brought in front of the sultan.’

mwiizi/ oyo shishiġaa yaná ‘the thief who was arrested yesterday’ or mwiizi/ shishiġaa yaná ‘the thief who was arrested yesterday’

rel.

m-shiika (wa-) n. one who holds mshika waana ‘babysitter’

u-shikamano n. 14 unity

m-shiiko n. 3 way of keeping, holding, etc.

Fulaani/ ntʰaná/ mashiiko. ‘So-and-so is not dependable.’

Mshiiko/ waa we/ hushiko waaná/ ni khatara. ‘The way [of keeping, of caring for, tending] that you keep children is dangerous [this might be said, for example, to someone who is operating a daycare facility for children and the speaker thinks that the owner’s practices put the children in harm’s way].’

- ma-shiiko* n. 6 catching Omari/ nt^haná/ mashiiko. ‘Omari (lit.) does not have catching – i.e. he is not reliable.’
- shilingi* n. 9/10 [Sw. shilingi SSED 421; Eng. shilling] shilling Chooloka/ chimwambila mubliwe/ mp^ha shilingi khamisiini. ‘She went and told her husband: give me fifty shillings.’ maskiini/ hatá/ shilingi/ nt^hanaayo ‘so poor that he does not have a shilling’ Mp^ha shilingii miya. ‘Give me one hundred shillings!’
Mubli/ shomola/shilingi/ khamisiini/ ka chiwovuuni/ chimpa. ‘The husband/ took out fifty shillings from (his) pocket and gave it to her.’
Sultaani/ mpenzelee nt^ho/ nyunyi/ oyo/ chimpa mwaana/ shilingi thalaathiini. ‘The sultan loved that bird very much and gave the boy thirty shillings.’
- shiima* n. 9 [Sw. cf. shime SSED 421] vigor, enthusiasm, inspired effort ka shiima ‘with enthusiasm, vigor’ khfanya shiima ‘to make an enthusiastic effort’ khtila shiima ‘to inspire’
Nt^haná/ shiima. ‘He has no enthusiasm, vigor.’
- shimaaḷi* [Ar. shimāl W 487] Arabicism north (This item, used in opposition to januubi ‘south’, is an Arabicism which is understood in Brava because it is used in some specific contexts (e.g. when indicating in a document the boundaries or measurements of a plot of land or of a building. The Chimiini terms for ‘south’ and ‘north’ are kuusi and kaskaazi respectively.)
- shiimo* n. [Sw. shimo SSED 421] hole in a rock in the depth of the sea; this hole is really dark and one does not know where it ends shiimo/ ya nt^heleewa ‘a type of fish (cherna, a type of grouper)’ Ituundru iyi/ miinza/ kamba shiimo/ ya nt^heleewa. ‘This hole is dark like the rock hole of cherna.’
- rel.
i-shiimo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
khtila ishimooni ‘to put in a hole – i.e. to do s.t. to get someone in trouble’ Mtile ishimooni. ‘He put him in a hole (i.e. got him in trouble).’
Nt^heleewa/ umo karka ishimo. ‘The cherna are in the hole of the sea rock.’
- i-shina* (ma-), (mi-) n. 5/6,4 [Sw. shina SSED 421] root of a tree; base of s.t.; origin of s.t.
ishina yaa muti ‘tree’s root’ khkula ishina ‘to extract, take out the root’ Mishaka aya/ mishinaye/ yakuushile. ‘These trees, their roots have come out.’
Nt^hukile mijint^hu mizito/ attá/ kushile ishina. ‘I carried heavy things until I had my roots removed (i.e. became like a dead person).’ need to confirm morphology
- i-shinaamo* n. essence variant form: ishinaamu
Ishinaamo/ ink^huushiló/ nt^haykunruuda. ‘The essence/core (of my being) that had come out (of my body, due to fright) did not return to me (i.e. I got so scared that I am still not over it).’ (A proverbial saying.)
Munt^hu uyu/ nahishiize/ attá/ nk^huzile ishinaamu. ‘This person frightened me until he uprooted me (extracted my essence, made me like a dead person).’
Zeena/ nahiile/ hatá/ ishinaamo/ imkuushile. ‘Zeena got so scared/’ terrified to the point that the essence (of him) was extracted (from him).’

kh-shiindra

v. [Sw. shinda SSED 421] (shiinzile) (i) defeat, win, surpass; (ii) spend the day at someone’s place

(i) Ajabu/ washiinzile. ‘They were amazed [lit. surprise defeated them].’
Hasani/ takhshindra muuntʰi/ kiitu/ keesho. ‘Hasani will spend the day at our place tomorrow.’

Iwashiinziló/ ni kazi iyi. [H!H] ‘What defeated them is this job -- i.e. they could not do the job.’

Kazi iyi/ iwashiinzile. [H!H] ‘This job defeated them -- i.e. they could not do the job.’

Mi/ nshiinzilé/ mara mbilize/ laakini/ ijini/ iize/ khubala/ kuwaa mi/ nshiinzilé. ‘I won two times, but the djinn refused to accept that I had won.’

Nnakhtamanaa wo/ wanashiindré. ‘I wish for them to win.’

Shinzile kharbiini. ‘He won a victory in the war.’

Sku mo/ muke/ sheetaani/ mshiinzile/ ntʰakhaadira/ kureba ruuhuye/ chimwambila Yuusufu/ ni laazima/ we/ kulala naami. ‘One day Satan overcame the wife, she was not able to stop herself, she told Joseph: it is necessary for you to sleep with me.’

Taahiri/ hunshindra kaa nguvu. ‘Taahiri is stronger than me.’

Turki/ iwaliko khshiindra/ laakini/ ntʰakhshiindra. ‘Turkey was winning (the game), but did not win.’

Uyu/ khushiinzile. ‘This one defeated you.’

We/ chinshiindra/ mi/ ntʰakhuʰii’a/ naami/ nchʰikhushiindra/ we/itakhulaazima/ kuntʰii’a. ‘If you defeat me, I will obey you, and if I defeat you, it is a must that you obey me.’

We/ nshiindri/ ka khada’á. ‘You do not surpass me in tricks.’ (The final accent in ka khjada’á derives from an intonational use of final accent that we have not studied in detail.)

We/ khshindra matezo/ iwaliko suura. ‘For you to win the game was good.’ (Note that the sentential subject, we/ khshindra matezo, governs the [cl.9] SM i. Changing the subject of the sentential complement does not affect the SM on the verb: Mi/ khshindra matezo/ iwaliko suura. ‘For me to win the game was good.’ And: Muusa/ khshindra matezo/ iwaliko suura. ‘For Muusa to win the game was good.’)

(ii) Haʰa/ ichiwa teena/ Harun Rashiidi/ hakhaadiri/ khshiiindra/ sku mooyi/ pashpo kumwona Abunawaasi. ‘It came to the point that Haruun Rashiidi was not able to pass even one day without seeing Abunawaasi.’

Takhshindra muuntʰi/ kiitu/ keesho. ‘He will spend the day at our place tomorrow.’

rel.

kh-shindramana (na) v. compete (with)

Markabu za sultaani/ Simisini/ ntʰaskukhaadira/ khshindramana/ na markabu ya mwaana. ‘The ships of the sultan, Simisini, could not compete with the ship of the boy.’

Shtamwaambila/ ya kuwa mukhtaa si/ chenzelo khshindramana ka mfakató/ chimlasile Yuusufu/ mahaalaa si/ chiweshelo zoombó. ‘We shall tell him that when we went to run a race, we left Joseph at the place where we set down our things.’

Waana/ wanakhshindramana. ‘The children are competing with one another.’

kh-shindramanila v. appl.

kh-shindramanisha v. caus. cause to compete kh-shindramanoowa v. pass.

Ahmakhi/ ha’ishindramanoowi/ naaye. ‘Stupid cannot be competed with.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Jaahili/ ha’ishindramanoowi/ naaye. ‘Ignorance cannot be competed with.’ (A proverbial saying.)

kh-shiindrana v. rec. (shindreene)

Washindreene/ tu. '[Lit. they beat each other only] they each beat the other some of the time, no one wins all the time.'

kh-shindranila v. rec. appl.

Wanakhshindranila peesa. 'They are competing for money.'

Wanakhshindranilani. 'What are they competing for?'

kh-shindranisha v. rec. caus. match against one another khshindranisha ori 'to match cocks in a cock fight' khshindranisha waana 'to match children (e.g. in a foot race)' kh-shiindrika v. p/s. (shindrishile, shindrikishile) able to be defeated

Chiviḷa ruuhuye/ Hashiindriki. 'He called himself He Can't Be Defeated.'

Ji/ hashiindriki. 'Ji cannot be defeated.'

Shindrishile. 'He was beaten (e.g. finally, after having boasted that he could not be defeated).'

kh-shiindrila v. appl. (shindriḷile)

Nshindriḷile maṭezo. 'He won the game for me (i.e. he played in my place and won).'

Nṯaná/ aqili zaa ye/ khshiindrila. 'He has no intelligence with which to win.'

kh-shiindrisha v. caus. (i) make, help win; (ii) make s.o. spend the day

(i) Nimshindrishize Baaná/ karaṭá. 'I helped Baana to win at cards.'

kh-shindrishan(y)a v. caus. rec. help one another win in turns kh-shindrishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-shindrishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-shindrishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-shindroowa v. pass. (shiinzila) be defeated

Chishindroowa/ we/ ṭakubasha kiḷa yaa we/ peeto. 'If you are defeated, you will lose everything that you got.'

khshindrowa maṭezo 'to lose [lit. be defeated] a game'

Mwanaamke/ chishindroow/ mara ya kaandra/ na mara ya piiḷi. 'The girl was defeated the first and the second time.'

Sho khira khshindroowa/ si mshindraani. 'The one who does not accept being beaten is not a fighter.' (A proverb.)

Shṭezeze maraa taatú/ mara iyi/ mi/ nshiinzilá. 'We played a third time and this time I was defeated.'

Sultani wa karaayle/ chishindroowa. 'The king of the crows was defeated.'

Washinzila kaazi/ ni awa. [H!H] 'The ones who could not do the job are these.'

Wo/ washiinzila/ na kazi iyi. [HH!H] 'They were unable to do the job [lit. they were defeated by the job].' (There is no pitch drop between the pronominal subject and the emphasized verb. The verb in fact is a bit higher in pitch. The drop on the agent phrase na kazi iyi, raising the issue whether the pitch drop that follows the emphasized verb should be regarded as distinct from ordinary downstep. We tentatively judge it to be distinct from the extreme downstepping, symbolized by !!, that precedes a postposed subject.)

Wo/ washiinzile/ na chimaliza washiinzila. 'They conquered and then they were conquered.'

rel. nom.

m-shiindra (wa-) n. 1/2 a winner

m-shindramana (wa-) n. 1/2 one who engages in competition ma-shindramano n. 6 competition mashindramano ya mfakato 'a foot race'

m-shiindrana (wa-) n. 1/2 one who competes with i-shiindrani (ma-) n., adj. one who contradicts, argues incessantly, pointlessly

m-shindraani (wa-) n. 1/2 a fighter

Sho khira khshindroowa/ si mshindraani. 'One who does not accept being beaten is not a fighter.' (A proverb.)

m-shindranisha (wa-) n. 1/2 'one who promotes competition, races'

m-shiindro n. 3 winning

- ma-shiindro* n. 6 the act of winning, winning
m-shindroowa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who is defeated
- m-shindraaji* (wa-) n. 1/2 one who wins
- m-shindraani* n. fighter
- chi-shiindro* (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kishindo SSED 422] (i) a physical shock, a noise; (ii) the name of a kind of dance where people stomp on the ground with their feet; this was originally a victory dance, with stomping of feet, performed after winning a game of nk^hoonk^ho; the accompanying song said: ‘be defeated, be defeated, we have defeated them’, thus the noun is closely associated with the verb khshiindra; later the term came to be used for any loud music with dancing
- (i) kubiga chishiindro ‘to beat hard (e.g. on the ground with the feet)’ kubiga zishiindro ‘to jump up and down, clapping, ululating, etc.’
Haliima/ furahiile/ maanawe/ khshiindra/ nakubiga zishiindro. ‘Haliima is happy her child won, she is jumping up and down clapping etc.’
Numba ya ulongo/ hayhimili/ zishiindro. ‘A house of mud cannot withstand shocks.’ (A proverb.)
- (ii) Nakhteza chishiindro. ‘He is dancing the chishiindro dance.’
- m-shiindro* (mi-) n. 3/4 [Sw. mshindo “used to describe any any act (process, effect) characterized by suddenness, force, violence, etc., and so translated variously by ‘shock, blow, stroke, explosion, noise, bang, sensation, burst, thump, crash, outbreak, tumult, roar, etc.’” SSED 423] noise etc.
- Dhibu/ huya ka mshiindro/ naharisi/ itako ya siindanu. ‘Hardship comes with a bang, relief, slowly, little by little (lit. the bottom of a needle).’ (A proverb.)
- ka mshiindro
Ali/ ile ka mshiindro. ‘Ali came all excited.’
Hamadi/ nakendra ka mshiindro. ‘Hamadi is walking quickly, heavily, angrily.’
Maayi/ ya’ile ka mshiindro. ‘The water came in a torrent.’
Nvula/ yile ka mshiindro. ‘It rained in torrents.’
Mshindro uyu/ ulazilepi. ‘What is the source of this noise?’
mshindro wa bundukhu ‘the sound of a gun discharging’ Nnakhkasa mshindro waa ngomá/ kaa kule. ‘I hear the sound of drums from far off.’
- ma-shiindro* n. 6
kubiga mashiindro ‘to stamp, hit the ground with the legs hard’ Hamadi/ ile apa/ shishiila shšana/ nakubiga mashiindro. ‘Hamadi came here, he was angry, he is stamping the ground.’
rel.
mi-shiindro n. 4
zi-shiindro n. 8
kubiga zishiindro ‘to stomp on the ground’
Waana/ wa skoolá/ wafurahiile/ khshindra mpiira/ wabishile zishiindro. ‘School children were happy to win the ball game, they were lit. hitting zishiindro, stomping on the ground in joy.’
- shiingo* n. 9/10 [Sw. shingo SSED 423] neck
khfunga shiingo ‘to accuse (lit. tie the neck);
khfunguza shiingo ‘to clear one’s name of a false accusation’ kuwamo shingooni ‘[lit.] to be on the neck -- meaning that an obligation is still existing and it is s.o.’s responsibility; if the subject is a woman, the meaning is: to be dependent on s.o., to be still married to s.o.’
Deenizo/ zimo shingooni/ kaaka. ‘Your debts are on my neck, i.e. I have the obligation to pay them, I am burdened with paying them.’

- Umo kaake/ shingooni. ‘She is still married to him.’
- Ltakila/ nii lile/ laakini/ halvaaliki/ shingooni. ‘My necklace is long but it cannot be worn around the neck.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is siyaafu ‘safari ants’.)
- Mojitu/ khufungile shiingo/ ka kheeri. ‘Has God freed your neck with blessings (or: happiness)?’ (Said to a woman who has just given birth to a child, after a safe delivery. The obligatory reply is: alhamdulillah ‘praise be to God’.)
- Mzeele/ chimzuba eelo/ shiingo. ‘The old woman embraced the gazelle’s neck.’
- na shiingo zaawo nt^hiiniya/ ata qiyaama ahdiya [poem] ‘and their bent heads are under me until the end of time’
- Shiingo/ haypiti (or: ha’ipiti) / chiṭa. ‘The neck does not go above the head.’ (A proverb.)
- Si/ laazima/ kumfuunga/ mp^haka/ chijarsi/ shingooni. ‘It is necessary for us to tie a bell on the cat’s neck.’
- shiingya n. 9/10 [Ital. cinghia] fan-belt on a car
- shin(y)eeri n. zipper hanzu ya shinyeeri ‘a haanzu with a zipper (as opposed to buttons)’ Nakhfunga shinyeeri/ surwaani. ‘I am zipping up my trousers.’ Or:
Nakhfunga surwaani/ shinyeeri.
- ship ideo. of being silent variant form: shup
Omari ile/ kaleent^he/ shup/ nt^hakhkooḍa/ ba. ‘Omari came in and sat down, ship! he did not say anything at all.’
- m-shipa n. [Sw. mshipa SSED 302] elephantiasis of the scrotum
NOTE: Never heard in Chim., but names of various illnesses not yet checked.
- shiiq ideo. of frying; [pron. shiiq or sheikh] Haliima/ nakokaa nsi/ ka mafta/ shiiq!/ arfuye/ haṭá/ ka ibanyaani/ inakhkasoowa. ‘Haliima is frying fish with oil, shiiq, its smell is (lit. heard) smelled from outside.’
- shiqaaqi n., adj. [Ar. ṣiqāq "disunity, dissension" W 480] problematic and complicated situation; contentiousness, argumentativeness; s.o. who is a troublemaker maluungo huwola laṭa shiqaaqi [st.] ‘the body rots (after death), abandon being argumentative’ munt^hu shiqaaqi ‘a troublemaker’
Soomaaliya/ na Keenya/ wanakuḷaana/ kati kaawo/ zimo shiqaaqi.
‘Somalia and Kenya are fighting, between them there are problems.’
- kh-shiirata v. [Som. shiiir "to have bad smell of dirt or sweat" DSI 549] (shireete) smell, stink (of a person, of meat, etc.)
Shaati/ inakhshiirata. ‘The shirt is smelling.’
rel.
kh-shiraṭoowa v. pass.
Apa/ inakhshiraṭoowa/ mbona/ ijiilani. ‘Here it is smelling, what was eaten?’
- shiri n. 9/10 meeting
Leelo/ yikoo shiri. ‘Today there is a meeting.’
Mbujá/ Moomo/ ile naami/ shiriini. ‘My sister Moomo came with me to the meeting.’ (The name Moomo may refer to either a man or a woman; here it refers to a girl, but the use of the term mbujá shows that it is a male who is speaking.) Or: Moomo/ mbujá/ ile naami/ shiriini. ‘Moomo my sister came with me to the meeting.’ Or: Moomo/ mbujá/ shiriini/ ile naami. ‘Moomo my sister to the meeting came with me.’ (Note that fronting shiriini does not necessarily trigger pseudo-relativization of the verb.) Or: Ile naami/

shiriini/ Moomo/ mbujá. ‘She came with me to the meeting, my sister.’ (This sentence involves the right dislocation of the subject Moomo/ mbujá ‘Moomo my sister’; a right-dislocated subject is radically downstepped in the examples we have observed.)

Mi/ niizé/ khiira/ Abú/ kingila shiriini. ‘I objected to allowing Abu to participate in the meeting.’

Ni lila/ kuwa Nuuru/ bakheete/ shiri. ‘It is true that Nuuru missed the meeting.’

Ni lila/ kuwa Nuuru/ shiri/ imgafiile. ‘It is true that Nuuru missed the meeting (lit. the meeting missed him).’

shiri iyi ‘this meeting’ (cf. shiri izi ‘these meetings’)

Shiri yaa wake/ ichiwa niingi/ nii shari. ‘Women’s meetings, if they become many, are a problem.’ (A proverb.)

shiiri

n. [Som. shiir "bad smell due to dirt or sweat" DSI 549] dirt; smell; adj. dirty (of clothes but also animates) chijana chishiiri ‘dirty little child’ (cf. zijana zishiiri ‘dirty dim. children’) ijana ishiiri ‘dirty aug. child’ (cf. mijana mishiiri ‘dirty aug. children’) mṭawo shiiri ‘dirty pillow’ (cf. mṭawo shiiri or mishiiri ‘dirty pillows’) munt^hu shiiri ‘dirty person (physically)’ (cf. want^hu shiiri ‘dirty people’) ngombe shiiri ‘dirty cow(s)’ ngwo shiiri ‘dirty clothes’

Shiri ya mwaana/ imdhibiile. ‘The boy’s smell bothered me.’

Si/ shchitaraja/ kuwa sindako/ kuya shiriini/ laakini/ wa nt^hiinike/ tu/ iló. ‘We hoped that the mayor would come to the meeting, but just his second-in-command came.’

mu-shiriki (wa-)

n. one who claims divine qualities

shirka partner

n. 9/10 [Sw. shirika SSED 424; Ar. širka W 468] company, business, enterprise;

kingila shirka na ‘to enter into partnership with’

ndiwo wamfanyilizo mooja shirka[st.] ‘it is them (i.e. white men, unbelievers) who make for God a partner (i.e. by treating Jesus as a partner in the holy trinity of Christianity)’

Nureeni/ shalayeete/ kingila shirka/ na Abdurahiimu/ kula gaari.

‘Nureeni regretted entering into a partnership with Abdurahiimu to buy a car.’

Siwé/ shirka/ na jaahili. ‘Do not become a partner with an ignorant person.’

(A proverb.)

rel.

m-shirka (wa-) n. 1/2 [Se. mshirika SSED] partner

Tajiri uyu/ ni mshirkawa. ‘This merchant is my partner.’

kh-shirka

divine qualities Chim meaning to be changed.

rel.

kh-shirkana v. rec. (shirkeene) share; associate (with) ka waant^hu/ waa ye/ hushirkana naawó ‘by people whom he associates with’ does habitual not take the final vowel -o in the relative

kh-shirkisha v. caus. give a share to mu-shirki (wa-)

n. 1/2 a person who claims that God has a partner or partners (most common meaning), or a person who claims that he or she is a partner of God (less common meaning)

Munt^hu uyu/ ni mshirki. ‘This person is a mshirki (i.e. a person who believes that God has a partner or partners, or a person who believes himself or herself to be a partner of God)

Want^hu awa/ ni washirki. ‘These people are washirki (i.e. people who believe that God has a partner or partners, or people who claim to be partners with God).’

Shirombooto

n. Until the mid-1980's, when a new tarmac road was built linking Mogadishu to the southern port of Kisimayu, the route from Mogadishu to Brava consisted of an old tarmac road for the first 100 kms. running from Mogadishu to Shalaambood, near Merka. In Chimini, Shalaambood is Shirombooto, although a consultant GM used the pronunciation Shalaamboot.

ma-shizi

n. 6 [Sw. masizi SSED 262] the black soot on the outside of a cooking pot kumpaka uso/ mashizi 'to embarrass someone by not doing what the person asks one to do or has said one would do [lit. smear s.o.'s face with soot]'
We/ takump^haka uso/ mashizi. 'You will [lit.] smear my face with soot -- i.e. embarrass me.'
mashizi ya mooshi 'the soot from smoke' nyulusi/ kana mashizi 'as black as soot'

u-shizi (mi-)

n. 14/4 [Sw. ufizi SSED 489] gum (of tooth)
mishiziya 'my gums'
Ushizi/ umfuriile. 'His gum is swollen.' Or: Ushizi/ imfuriile.
Ushizi/ unamlawa. 'His gum is bleeding.' Or: Ushiza/ inamlawa.
Ushizi/ unamlaaza. 'His gum is paining.' Or: Ushizi/ inamlaaza.
ushiziwa 'my gum'

i-shkilo (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. shikio "a thing to hold by, handle, (in a ship) rudder" SSED 421] ear, source of information; cloth or rope handle (of a basket); tiller, rudder (of a boat)

Awa/ wachimshiika/ wanamgita mashkilo/ hattá/ Hasani/ chiwona ulaazo/ nt^ho. 'These (people) grabbed him and were pulling him by the ears until Hasani felt a lot of pain.'
Baaba/ nt^hashtila/ ishkilooni/ maneno ya maama/ ba/ chizida kumpeenda. 'Father did not pay heed to the words of mother, on the contrary, he loved [the child] even more.'
ishkilo ya jahazi 'tiller of a jahazi' khfungula mashkilo 'to open the ears -- i.e. to listen well to s.o.'
mashkilo mazito '[lit.] heavy ears = deaf' Mashkiloye/ kana nk^haanga. 'His ears are like a guinea fowl.'
Mi/ spendi/ chiint^hu/ karka nama iyi/ shokuwa mashkilo/ na khalbí. 'I do not want anything from this meat except the ears and the heart.'
Ndo/ nt^huná/ so/ mashkiló. 'Come, don't you have ears?' shkapu/ na ishkiló 'a basket and a handle'; skapu/ na mashkiló 'baskets and handles' shkapu/ na ishkiloyé 'a basket and its handle'; skapu/ na mashkiloyé 'baskets and their handles' Stilé/ ishkilooni/ ije ya chizeele/ takuhadó. 'Don't listen (lit. don't put into the ear) to what the old woman says.'
Ye/ nayo maluungo/ ya eelo/ milu ya eelo/ mafo ya eelo/ mashkilo ya eelo/ laakini/ ye/ khalbiye/ siwo/ khalbi ya eelo. 'He has the body of a gazelle, the legs of a gazelle, the eyes of a gazelle, the ears of a gazelle, but his heart is not the heart of a gazelle.'

sho

prep. [unknown etymology] without (At present the use of this item is restricted in everyday speech, while it is found extensively in poetry, where it is used as opposite to jo 'having, with'.)

chiso shoo masu 'a knife without an edge -- i.e. a blunt knife' ka mudda ya miyaaka/ miingi/ nt^ho/ ya sho kiwoowa/ adadiye 'for a period of very many years of which the number is not known' ku'isha karkaa dhibu/ na ta'abú/ sho mwiisho 'to live in difficulty and hardship without end' ngamiila uðhiya miṭaano sho khkoma [st.] 'a camel [to be slaughtered as] uðhiya must not have reached the age of five' sho khsala 's.o. who does not pray' sho kuwa 'except'

Masku ayo/ nṭakuja/ chiintḥu/ sho kuwa ikopa ya maayi. 'That evening he did not eat anything except a glass of water.'
Nṭakuwanaayo/ kaazi/ yiingine/ sho kuwa khpataa nsi. 'He did not have any other work except to catch fish.'
Nṭakuwanaayo/ majiibu/ miingine/ sho kuwa aya. 'He did not have any other answer than this.'
Nṭakuwanaayo/ sho kuwa zuwo/ zaa dawa. 'He did not have anything except medical books.'
Sulṭaani/ wapeenzele/ waanawe/ wotte/ sho kuwa waa saba. 'The sultan loved all his children except the seventh one.'
ya kuwaa we/ dawayo/ siwo/ chintḥu chiingine/ sho kuwa inyi yaa nfuye 'that your medicine is nothing except the liver of a monkey' Ziwo/ zotte/ zivaliko zijiila/ na rurumu/ sho kuwa lwarakha/ mooyi. 'All the books were eaten by termites except for a single page.'

rel.

-sho without chintḥu chisho ma'ana 'something without meaning'; zintḥu zisho ma'ana 'things without meaning' iberamu isho lkaambala 'flag without a rope'; maberamu yasho nkḥaambala 'flags without ropes' Iyi/ ni raadiyo/ isho wenewe. 'This is Free Radio [lit. radio without owners].'

lkuta lisho jidari suura 'a wall without a good foundation, base'; nkḥuta zisho jidari suura 'walls without a good foundation, base' muntḥu sho ma'ana 'a man without importance'; wantḥu washo ma'ana 'men without importance' (Notice the null agreement in the case of a [cl.1] nominal.)
muti usho nṭaanzi 'a tree without branches'; miti yasho nṭaanzi 'trees without branches' Nṭaku msiiba/ usho mwenewé. 'There is no misfortune without its companions.' (A proverb.)

numba isho zoloko 'a house without windows'; numba zisho zoloko 'houses without windows' (Notice the singular agreement form isho where one might have expected yisho on the basis of the monosyllabic nature of the root.)
washo hadali na sowṭi [st.] 'those who have no voice (i.e. are silent = the dead)' shokuwana+pronoun who does not have

Na shokuwanaachó/ cho chotté/ halazimoowi/ khtala deeni. 'And he who does not have anything at all is not obliged to go into debt.'

shoobu

n. 9/10 [Som. shoob DSI 551] (cf. -showaata) ornament

Haliima/ hupeenda/ shoobu. 'Haliima likes ornaments.'

Shoobu/ hazijoowi. 'Ornaments are not eaten.' (A proverb.)

i-shoga (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Som. shuko DSI 552] black outer garment worn by Bravanese women when going out of doors

Haliima/ vete ishoga. 'Haliima wore ishoga.'

ishoga ilusi 'a black ishoga'; mashogi malusi 'black mishoga'

Ishoga/ ka wiingi/ ni ilusi. 'The ishoga is mostly black.'

wablī ka mashoga waṭomeele tele/ wamereele ruuhu ki'ipelekaa mbele/ Mooja wa'ilize hiidi na mawe [nt.] 'men decided to wear women's black wraps trying to save themselves, [but] God did not give them a woman's shape [lit. menstruation and breasts] Wake wa Miini/ huvala mashoga malusi. 'Brava women wear black mashoga.'

- shogamaano (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10 [Ital. asciugamano] towel khfinika shugamaano 'to cover with a towel' kh pangula maayi/ ka shogamaano 'to wipe water with a towel'
- shookhi n. passion
ka shockhi hutuluka [song] 'with passion I fall down'
Nt^haná/ shookhi. 'He has no passion.'
Shookhi/ imteete. 'Passion has taken him.'
shokhi ya mtume 'the passion, love of the Prophet'
- kh-shoma v. [Sw. shoma SSED 424] (shomeele) sew Abunawaasi/ chishomaa kana/ ya ijuuniya/ iyó/ ka himaahima/ na chi'ilata/ paapo/ apo/ ifuwooni/ chiyolokela. 'Abunawaasi sewed the opening of that sack quickly and left it right there at the seashore and went away.' (Phon: The final accent on iyó is at present unaccounted for.) kubarata khshomaa nguwo 'to learn how to sew clothes'
rel.
kh-shomeka v. p/s. (shomeshele) kh-shomekeka v. p/s. (shomekeshe) kh-shomeleloowa v. appl. pass. (shomeleela) charkhani chishomelela shaati... 'the sewing machine that was used to sew the shirt...'
Mwaana/ shomelela shaati/ ka charkhaani. 'The child was sewed for a shirt with a sewing machine.' But also: Charkhaani/ chishomelela mwaana/ shaati. 'A sewing machine was used to sew a shirt for the child.'
kh-shomela v. appl. (shomelele) sew with, for Aasha/ mshomelele mwaana/ shaati/ ka charkhaani. 'Aasha sewed a shirt for the child with a sewing machine.' (The ka in front of charkhaani is obligatory in this example. However, if the instrument is topicalized, then it may occur without a preposition: Aasha/ charkhaani/ mshomelele mwaana/ shaati. And also: Charkhaani/ Aasha/ mshomelele mwaana/ shaati. The topicalized bare instrument is possible, however, only with an applied verb; in the present example the applied verb is present so as to allow a benefactive NP.)
Chimshomelaa nguwo/ za waant^hu/ mataajiri. 'He tailored for him clothes of rich people.'
Hula zarkhaani/ khshomela waant^hu/ nguwo/ ka peesa. 'They buy sewing machines to use to make clothes for people for money.'
sindano ya khshomela 'a sewing needle' kh-shomesha v. caus. make sew khshomeshaa nguwo 'to make s.o. sew clothes' kh-shomoowa v. pass. (shomeela) be sewn Majuuniya/ ayo/ yotte/ yachishomowaa kana/ na askari. 'All those sacks had their openings sewed shut by the soldiers.'
Muusa/ nakhtahaja surwaaniye/ khshomoowa. 'Muusa needs his trousers mended.'
rel. nom.
m-shoma (wa-) n. 1/2 one who sews mshoma charkhaani 'a tailor' mshomaa nguwo 'a tailor'
m-shomaaji (wa-) n. Swahilism weaver ma-shomo n. 6
- i-shoondre (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. shonde (ma-) SSED 424] a ball of excrement; s.t. useless
Ishondre ikulu/ nda msaafiri. 'A big ball of excrement belongs to the traveler (i.e. it is easy to put blame on the traveler).' (A proverb.)
ishondre ya ngoombe 'cow's dung'
Ni shoondre. 'He is useless.'

Ondrele ishoondre. ‘He removed the excrement (from someplace).’

Weshele ishoondre. ‘He put the excrement somewhere.’ (Note that in Chimiini, the verb -weka ‘put’ does not require one to express where something was put. Thus this example is just as grammatical as, say, Weshele ishoondre/ chiliini. ‘He put the excrement on the bed.’)

shooqi

n. 9/10 [Ar. šauq W 494] eagerness, yearning; [usu. pron. shookhi]

Apa/ muiyini/ kiḷa/munt^hu kasizo qisa za jasira ya Wakhwaakhi/ imwingile shookhi/ na ṭamanile kendra kuzura jasira iyi/ laakini/ nt^haku/ jasiriḷó/ kiḷa/ mooyi/ shtiya keendra/ shfanyowa mtaana. ‘Here in town, each person who heard the stories about the island of Waqwaaqi yearned and longed to go and visit this island, but there was no one who dared, each one was afraid to go there and be made a slave.’

ka shookhi ‘eagerly, with enthusiasm’ kingila shookhi ‘to become enthusiastic, eager, fervent’

Mi/ nsomelopo sifa za mtume uyu/ iningile shookhi/ na nt^hinzile amri/kuḷawa/ kummeera/ mtume uyu/ mahaḷaa ye/ ṭakuwaakó.

‘When I read about the praises of this prophet, I became enthusiastic and I decided to leave to search for this prophet wherever he might be.’

Mi/ nsomelopo sifa za mtume uyú/ ingile shookhi/ na nt^hinzile amri/

kuḷawa/ kummeera/ mtume uyu/ mahaḷaa ye/ ṭakuwaakó.

‘When I read about the character of this prophet I became enthusiastic and I decided to leave to search for this prophet wherever he might be.’

Nayo shookhi. ‘He is eager.’

kh-shoorata

v. [Som. shawr "to consult secretly" DSI 547, cf. Sw. shauri SSED 418; Ar. šūra "take counsel, deliberate" W 492] (shoreete) consult, confer secretly

Apo/ mwaana/ shkalaant^ha/ kuwashorata askarize/ na wiinginé. ‘There the boy sat down to consult with his soldiers and others.’

Choondroka/ cheendra/ kumshorata mukeewe. ‘He arose and went to consult his wife.’

Choondroka/ chimshorata mooyi/ karka ndruezé. ‘He went and consulted one of his relatives.’

Karaayle/ wachishoorata/ keendra/ khtila/ muḷo. ‘The crows decided to go and burn the church down.’

Mataanga/ ya ondrosheezapó/ mwaana/ chiwaviila/ mkuḷaze/ kuwashoorata. ‘When the wake ended, the boy called his elder brothers to consult with them.’

Mi/ shifilaṭila/ ye/ kunviila/ kunshoorata/ amó/ kunuza haaliyá. ‘I expected him to call me to consult with me or to ask me my condition (i.e. how I am).’

Nfuye/ washoreete/ kunfanyaa mi/ sultani waawo. ‘The monkeys conferred to make me their king.’

rel.

kh-shorata v. rec. consult one another

Wotte/ wachisimama khshorata. ‘All stopped to consult with one another.’

kh-shorata v. appl. (shoratiile) conspire, plot against kh-shoorisha or kh-shorata v. caus.

kh-shorata v. caus. rec.

kh-shorata v. caus. p/s.

kh-shorata v. caus. appl.

kh-shorata v. caus. appl. rec.

nom. rel.

m-shoori (wa-) n. 1/2 confidant, one you can resort to for consultation and advice

shoori

n. 9 consultation; private, secret talks

	Inaawe/ jis'iyo/ shooriyo/ ni suura/ nt^ho. 'Let it be that way; your suggestion is very good.'
	kh̄inda shoori 'to ignore advice' kuwamo shoori/ mooyi 'to be in something together; to have previous secret understanding about a common course of action' ni shoori/ mooyi '[lit.] are one counsel -- meaning: two people have been discussing or plotting s.t. (good or bad) and are in agreement.' (Usually said when one does not openly acknowledge his own involvement.)
	Muunt^hu/ na muné/ ni shoori/ mooyi/ karka mambo ya haruusi. 'The two brothers (lit. person and his younger brother) have decided together and are in full agreement about the matter of the wedding.'
	Shoori/ ndaakó/ tu/ mubliwá/ chizimile/ ka apa. 'The decision is only yours, my husband; let us escape from here. (as you have suggested).'
m-shoori (wa-)	n. 1/2 consultant Na chimfanya mshooriwe/ chiwa humshoorata/ ka killa/ yaa ye/ azimilo khfaanyá. 'And he made him his consultant, and it became that he consulted him for everything that he planned to do.'
shorofo	n. tape Alí/ nakhsula shorofo/ kuzubila zilaatu. 'Ali wants tape to wrap around shoes.'
kh-shoowata	v. [Som. shoob "to be elegant" DSI 551] (showeete) put on new or fancy clothes rel. kh-showatila v. appl. dress elegantly for s.o. fulaani ni mubliwa mi humshowatila kuta [st.] 'so-and-so is my husband [and] I dress elegantly for him always' kh-showatiloowa v. appl. pass. janna hushowatiloowa [st.] 'for paradise one dresses elegantly, people make themselves elegant' kh-shoowisha or kh-showatisha v. caus. cause s.o. to put on nice clothes, help s.o. put on nice clothes, put nice clothes on s.o.
m-shpi (mi-)	n. 3/4 [Sw. mshpi SSED 302] fishing line khtila mishpi/ kaasi 'to twist a fishing line' kubiga mishpi 'to make a fishing line' Tayiiibu/ mishpi aya/ patililee nsi. 'Tayiiibu used these lines to catch fish.'
shsh	ideo. of blood flowing, sliding Hamadi/ maazi/ yanamshera mkonooni/ shsh. 'The blood is flowing from Hamadi's hand shsh.' Maayi/ yanakhsheera/ lkutaani/ shsh. 'Water is sliding along the wall shsh.'
ma-sh̄taka	n. 6 [Sw. mashtaka SSED 262; Ar. šakā "to complain" W 483] complaints mashtaka aya 'these complaints' muunt^hi wa mashtaka mwaana na mzelewe [st.] '[hereafter] is the day for complaints between a child and his parents' check had mashtako
ma-sh̄taayta	n. [cf. Sw. mashata SSED 26] sesame Huyala mashtaayta. 'They grow sesame.' mafta ya mashtaayta 'sesame seeds' (Sesame oil is commonly mafta ya maansara .) Saalé/ mashtaayta/ mahala/ zikoo nk^hukú. 'Don't spread sesame seeds where there are chickens.'
mu-sh̄tari (wa-)	n. [cf. Ar. šarā "to buy" W 470] buyer Meera/ washtari/ mahala yiingine. 'Look for buyers elsewhere.' Mukhta nuumba/ iwelo tayaari/ lazile/ oloshole/ kumera mush̄tari/ kiyuula/ iyo. 'When the house was ready (i.e. finished being built), he left and went to look for a buyer to buy it, that (house).’

- mu-shṭari* n. [Ar. m iṣṭara W 410] a ruler to measure with kubiga mushṭari ‘to make a line’
rel.
chi-mu-shṭari (zi-mu-) n. 7/8 dim. ruler
- i-shu* adj. fresh (camel’s milk’)
iziwa ishu ‘fresh milk’
meḷpe/ kana iziwa ishu ‘someone as white as fresh milk’
- shu’uuni* n. [Ar. ṣu’ūn, pl. of ṣa’n "affair, matter" W 449] affairs, matters
Chimuuló/ ni muunt^hu/ apo/ chimamulaṭo shu’uni zaa nt^hi/ siwo/ fir’ooni/ nafiye. ‘The one who bought him (speaking of Joseph in the biblical story) was a man there (in Egypt) who took care of the affairs of the country, it was not Pharaoh himself.’
Hadiile/ kuwa iyi/ ni shu’uuni/ daakhiliya/ za muuyi/ mooyi/ walá/ hayshkhusi/ si/ keendra/ kumera peesa/ kuwapelekela. ‘He said that this is an internal affair of one country and not one that concerns us to go and seek money to send to them.’
Iyi/ ni shu’uuni/ daakhiliya. ‘This is an internal matter.’
- shu’uuri* n. 9/10 [Ar. ṣa’ara, ṣu’ūr "to feel" W 473] emotion
Nt^haná/ shu’uuri. ‘He is indifferent, he has no emotions.’
- shubini* n. diarrhoea; [pron. shubini]
- shufeeri* (Ø, ma-) n. chauffeur Gaari/ ipatijila shufeeri. ‘The car was gotten a driver for it.’
gaari/ na shufeeri ‘a car and a chauffeur’ gaari/ na shufeeriwé ‘a car and its chauffeur’ (Note that in this example, shufeeri governs [cl.1] agreement on the possessive enclitic.)
Jaama/ nakumerela gaari/ shufeeri. ‘Jaama is looking for a driver for the car.’
Nimpatijile shufeeri/ gaari. ‘I got a car for the driver.’ Cf. Mpatijile gaari/ shufeeri. ‘I got a driver for the car.’ (In the first example, we have a driver, but no car for him to drive. In the second example, we have a car, but no one to drive it.)
shufeeri/ na gaari ‘a chauffeur and a car; chauffeurs and cars’ shufeeri/ na gaariyé ‘a chauffeur and his car’; shufeeri/ na gaarizé ‘chauffeurs and their cars’ (The behavior of shufeeri in the second example here is interesting. Note the form gaarizé and not gari zaawó to convey the meaning ‘their cars’. The possessive root -aawo is used only for third person plural nouns triggering [cl.2] agreement. All other plural nouns use the enclitic -e, which is identical to the third person singular nouns of all classes. Shufeeri, in its plural use, does not govern a [cl.2] possessive root.) Shufeeri/ patijila gaari. ‘The driver was gotten a car.’
- shufta* (ma-) n. [Som. shufto ‘gang of robbers’ DSI 552] bandit Karkaa ndila/ wachimlawila waant^hu/ wawili/ wawaliko shufta. ‘On the way two men appeared to him, they were bandits.’
- shughuli* (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10 [Sw. shughuli SSED 426; Ar. ṣuḡl W 476] work Makhaadimu/ wote/ wachingila mashughuliini. ‘All the servants began doing jobs, working.’
Shughulize/ niingi. ‘He has much work.’
- kh-shughulika* v. [Sw. shughulika SSED 426] (shughulishile or shughulikishile) be busy with, be interested in Naani/ hushughulikó/ ka taariikhí. ‘Who is interested in history?’ (The pseudo-relative verb often shows the effects of the Accentual Law of Focus, but in this example final accent was extended past the verb even though the verb was emphasized.)

Shughulikishile ka kaaziye. ‘He was busy with his work.’

rel.

kh-shughulikila v. appl. be interested in Ā’ā/ Huseeni/ tu/ hushughulikiló/ taariikhí. ‘No, only Huseeni is interested in history.’

Huseeni/ na Omarí/ wawiliwe/ ba/ hushughulikila/ taariikhi/ so. ‘Are both Huseeni and Omari interested in history?’

kh-shughulisha v. caus. [Sw. shughulisha SSED 426] keep someone busy, preoccupy someone, worry someone, interest s.o.

Koði za waant^hu/ hazinshughulishi. ‘What people say doesn’t worry me.’

Njaribile khshughulisha ruuhuyá. ‘I tried to (seem to) be busy.’

kh-shughulishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-shughulishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-shughulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

shuhra

n. 9 [Ar. šuhra W 490] fame

Shuhra/ hayduumi/ walá/ shahiiri. ‘Fame does not endure, neither do the famous.’

Wawaliko wazeele/ wasuura/ wenye shuhra/ na murwá. ‘They were good parents, possessing fame and dignity.’

kh-shuhudila
witness

v. [Sw. shuhudia SSED 415; Ar. šahida, šuhūd W 488] witness something, be a mtume mwambiile Faatima shuhudila [st.] ‘the Prophet told Faatima, be a witness!’

rel.

kh-shuhudiḷoowa v. pass.

kh-shuhudisha v. caus.

kh-shuhudishoowa v. caus. pass.

kh-shuhudishana v. caus. rec.

kh-shuhudishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-shuhudishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-shuhudishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-shuhurika famous, well-known

v. [Ar. šuhira "to become famous", passive of šahara W 490] (shuhurishile) be shujaa’a (Ø, ma-)

adj. courageous, brave; n. courage

Habba/ nhadile habbá/ ka sababu habba/ tu/ wanayo ushujaa’á/ khambila jilá. ‘Few, I said few because it is just a few who have the courage to tell you the truth.’

Hamadi/ imwingile shujaa’a. ‘Hamadi became brave (lit. courage entered Hamadi).’

khfanya shujaa’a ‘to make courageous’

Nuuru/ mfanyize mwaana/ shujaa’a. ‘Nuuru made the child feel courageous.’

khtila shujaa’a ‘to instill courage’

Ali/ mtile mwaana/ kuwa shujaa’a. ‘Ali instilled the child with courage.’

kh-shujaa’ata

v. [Ar. šaju’a W 456] be courageous (Morph: The at verbal extension ordinarily suggests a Somali origin for a verb, but we have not found a Somali item which could have give rise to the present example.)

Hamadi/ shuja’ete nt^h angú/ mi/ nk^h odelo naayé. ‘Hamadi was emboldened after I talked with him.’

rel.

	kh-shuja'ika v. p/s. Ali/ mtilé mwaana/ khshuja'ika. 'Ali instilled in the child to be courageous.'
	kh-shuja'isha v. caus. Hamadi/ mshuja'ishize mwaana/ khtala imtijaani. 'Hamadi encouraged the child to take the examination.'
	kh-shuja'ishoowa v. caus. pass. kh-shuja'ishika v. caus. p/s. kh-shuja'ishiliza v. caus. appl. Ali/ mshuja'ishilize Iisa/ mwaana. 'Ali instilled courage in Iisa's child.'
	kh-shuja'ishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
u-shujaa'a courage	n. 14 [Sw. ushujaa SSED 426; Ar. šujā ' "bold, courageous" W 456] Hamadi/ umwingile ushujaa'a. 'Hamadi became courageous.' Mwanaamke/ mwenye ushujaa'a/ na ma'rifá. 'The girl possessed courage and knowledge.' Nt^haná/ ushujaa'a waa ye/ khkooðela. 'He does not have the courage to speak.'
kh-shukaamisha	v. [Som. shukaami "to court s.o., to trap or ensnare" DSI 552] talk into, seduce, talk with a woman concerning marriage or intimate relationship, court Ali/ m̄tindilile Haliima/ ito/ ka nt^hiini/ nakhsula kumshukaamisha. 'Ali has winked at Haliima secretly, he wants to talk to her about getting together for sex etc.' Chimshukaamisha/ hatá/ Sa'iidi/ shkhiira/ chi'upaandra/ oyo mloongofi. 'She talked him into it until Sa'iidi agreed and climbed that mast.' kumshukamishaa muke 'to talk to a woman (regarding love, marriage)' rel. kh-shukamishoowa v. pass. Haliima/ shukamishiiza. 'Haliima has been spoken with (e.g. a suitor has spoken with her).'
shukaani	n. 9/10 [Som. shukaan DSI 552] steering wheel, wheel (of a car or a jahazi)
shukri	n. 9 thanks
shuukulu	only in the expression: ka shuukulu 'before daybreak, between dawn and sunrise' Dul'eda chihada/ mi/ ni mooyi/ karka want^hu hondroko ka shuukulú/ khsala jamaa'á. 'The fox said: I am one of the people who get up before daybreak to go to community prayers.' ka shuukulu arabiya zishila kheeri lanbiya [st.] 'before daybreak, on Wednesday, the best of Prophets was buried' ka shukuluuni 'at shuukulu'
i-shukuni (mi-)	n. a large group of something ishukuni ya nt^heendre 'a big bundle of dates'
kh-shukura	v. [Sw. shukuru SSED 426; Ar. šakara, šukr W 482] (shukuriile) thank, give thanks ahsanta khushukura we nsharifile [song] 'thanks, I thank you; you have honored me’

Chimshukura maama/ chirashmana naaye/ atá/ muiini. ‘He thanked the mother and he walked with her up to the town.’ (Phon. We assume that (h)atá is a phrasal isolate with final accent, as this is its usual pronunciation; but in this example the pitch of the following word was raised under emphasis and the pronunciation of (h)atá obscured.)

Chimshukura mwajiitu. ‘He thanked God.’

Fikiriini/ chimshukura/ waawaye/ nt^ho. ‘Fikiriini thanked his father very much.’

jima ni zaydi takhpato ni khshukura [st.] ‘Friday is even better [for performing the pilgrimage], he who gets [i.e. succeeds in doing this] should give thanks’

Komelepo kaawó/ Sa’iidi/ ka furaha/ chimshukura mwajiitu. ‘When he reached home, Sa’iidi happily thanked God.’

Shukura ka chaa we/ naachó. ‘Give thanks for what you have.’

Waziiri/ chimshukura Ali. ‘The minister thanked Ali.’

Ye/ chimshukura mwajiitu. ‘She thanked God.’

rel.

kh-shukurika v. p/s.

kh-shukurisha v. caus.

kh-shukurishana v. caus. rec.

kh-shukurishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-shukurishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-shukurishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-shukurishoowa v. caus. pass.

kh-shukuroowa v. pass.

Mwajiitu/ nashukuroowa. ‘God be thanked.’

rel. nom.

m-shukura (wa-) n. 1/2 one who thanks

shukuru n. 9 thanks

shuma’a n. 9/10 [Som. shumac ‘candle’; Ar. šama ‘W 486] (=nt^ha) candle

Omari/ ashize shuma’a. ‘Omari lit a candle.’

shuma’a iyi ‘this candle’; shuma’a izi ‘these candles’

kh-shumula v. [Sw. chemua SSED 54] (shumiile) sneeze

Khshumula/ hufungulaa mbavu. ‘Sneezing opens the sides/chest.’

Omari/ hushumua zaaydi. ‘Omari sneezes a lot.’

rel.

kh-shumu^loowa v. pass. (shumiila)

Hargabu/ hushumu^loowa. ‘A cold causes sneezing.’

Mayoshi miingi/ apo/ hatá/ hushumu^loowa. ‘There is so much smoke there that people will sneeze.’

kh-shumuza v. caus. (shumiize)

Dawa iyi/ inshumiize. ‘This medicine made me sneeze.’ (While this appears to be a possible sentence, apparently the periphrastic version is preferred: Dawa iyi/ int^hile kshumula. ‘This medicine caused me to sneeze.’)

Mayooshi/ humshimuza muunt^hu. ‘Smoke causes one to sneeze.’

kh-shumu^zoowa v. caus. pass.

dawa ya kshumu^zoowa ‘medicine for sneezing’

i-shuungi (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. shungi SSED 426] a strand of hair, (pl.) hair (of the head)

Abdalla/ ka shtiisho/ shpotela ilu ya siimba/ chimshika mashuungi/ ichiwa/ teena/ kama muunt^hu/ panzilo farasi. ‘Abdalla, from fear, fell on the lion, grabbing him by the hair; it became then like a man riding a horse.’

Akhili/ ni kama mashuungi/ kiila mooyi/ nayo yaake. ‘Brains are like hair, everyone has his own.’ (A proverb.)

Basi/ shtaala/ ayaje/ mashuungi/ ya chizeelé/ mpeeló. ‘So he took those strands of hair that the old woman had given him.’ (Note that the subject of the relative clause in this example has accent on the final syllable, this is not an invariant property of the subject.)

ishungi ilusi ‘a (single) black hair’ khteza ka mashuungi ‘[lit.] to dance with hair -- a type of dance by women, during which they let down their long hair and move the head rhythmically; this dance originates from Arabia and was performed in Brava during weddings of the waarabu/ wa Mwiini’ khĩinda inyala ow ishuungi hudhiba [st.] ‘to cut finger/toe-nail or hair is harmful’ kiska mashuungi ‘to wash or shampoo the hair’ komezā maayi mashuungi ni farōi [st.] ‘to make water reach the hair (in doing ablutions) is an obligation’ kumola mashuungi ‘to shave the hair’

Leyla/ nayo ishungi ilusi. ‘Leyla has black hair.’ (Although ishuungi is typically singular, referring to a strand of hair, it is possible to use it to refer to hair, as in this example.)

Leyla/ nayo mashuungi/ male/ laakini/ mashungi ya baayé/ ni zigobe/ na ni malusi. ‘Leyla has long hair, but her sister’s hair is short and black.’

mashungi makavu ‘dry hair’ mashungi malaasi ‘long, soft, silk hair’ mashungi yaa chĩta ‘hair of the head’

mashungi ya maapa ‘underarm hair’

mashungi ya maato (or if contracted: mashungaa maato) ‘eyelashes’

Haliima/ nakubigisha mashuungiye/ ya maato. ‘Haliima made up her eyelashes.’

mashungi ya mkono ‘hair on the arm’ mashuungiye khpaka mafta haraamu [st.] ‘his hair, to apply oil to it, is unlawful’

Nayo mashuungi/ male/ malusi. ‘She has long black hair.’

Nimĩnzile Hamadi/ mashuungĩ. ‘I cut Hamadi’s hair.’ (Observe that it is not necessary to mark morphologically the possessive relationship between Hamadi and mashuungĩ.)

Tuuma/ mĩnzile Hamadi/ mashuungi. ‘Tuuma cut Hamadi’s hair.’ (The simple yes-no question version of this sentence only involves pitch raising and no accent shift; the exclamatory question, however, involves accent shift in the VP: Tuuma/ mĩnzile Hamadi/ mashuungĩ!?) Or: Tuuma/ mĩnzile mashuungi/ Hamadi. ‘Tuuma cut the hair [of] Hamadi.’) (Note that mashuungi may be put in post-verbal position, but the verb still agrees with the possessor.)

Tuuma/ mĩnzile/ Hamadi/ mashuungi. ‘Tuuma cut Hamadi’s hair.’ (In this example, where there is focus on the verb, the simple yes-no question shifts the accent on the two complements: Tuuma/ mĩnzile/ Hamadi/ mashuungĩ. Our consultant, MG, was not comfortable trying to make this into an exclamatory question.)

Tuuma/ mĩnzile Hamadi/ mashuungi/ ka makhasi. ‘Tuuma cut Hamadi’s hair with scissors.’ (The yes-no question version of this sentence does not involve any accent shifting, while the exclamatory question shifts the accent throughout the VP: Tuuma/ mĩnzile Hamadi/ mashuungi/ ka makhasi!?) Or with the applied verb being used to absorb the preposition: Tuuma/ mĩndĩlĩle makhasi/ Hamadi/ mashuungi. ‘Tuuma cut Hamadi’s hair with scissors.’ (Observe that even though the applied form of the verb makes it possible to omit the preposition ka, the verb still agrees with Hamadi. Also note that this example comes from GM, who in contrast to MI does not place severe restrictions on the instrument in an instrumental applied construction. In MI’s speech, the instrument in this construction cannot be focused and thus could not be placed in the IAV position.) Or, with preposing of the instrument: Tuuma/ makhasi/ mĩndĩlĩlo Hamadi/ mashuungi. (Note that the preposing of makhasi puts focus on it, triggering the pseudo-relativization of the verb.) Or: Tuuma/ ka makhasi/ mashuungi/ mĩnzilo Hamadi. ‘Tuuma, with scissors, hair cut Hamadi.’ Or: Ka makhasi/ Tuuma/ mĩnzilo Hamadi/ mashuungi. ‘With scissors

- Tuuma cut Hamadi the hair.’
- Tuuma/ m̄tinzilo Hamadi/ mashuungí. ‘It is Tuuma who cut Hamadi’s hair.’ (If Hamadi is focused but remains in post-verbal position, there is no shift to a pseudo-relative: [Tuuma/ m̄tinzile Hamadi/ mashuungí.])
- Tuuma/ t̄inzile mashungi ya Hamadi. ‘Tuuma cut Hamadi’s hair.’ (Note that when mashuungí is made the head of a possessive phrase, the verb no longer is marked with an object prefix in agreement with the possessor. It is ungrammatical to say *Tuuma/ m̄tinzile mashungi ya Hamadi.) Or: Tuuma/ t̄inzile Hamadi/ mashuungíye. ‘Tuuma cut Hamadi his hair.’
- Taala/ mashuungíya/ yolokele/ chiniht̄aja/ ka jawaabu/ mw̄eep̄e/ tila mashuungíya/ karkaa mūlo/ ka paapo/ mi/ nt̄h̄akhiil̄il̄a. ‘Take my hair and take yourself off; if you need me for some matter, put my hair in fire and at once I will come to you.’
- Wasuura/ mashungi yaawo/ malaasi/ lamna mmooyi/ welpe/ sura zaawo/ mooyi. ‘(The two were both) beautiful, their hair was silken, (just) one kind, white, their appearance, the same.’
- shuuni n. [Som. shuun "pubic hair" DSI 553] pubic hair, body hair (on arms and legs) (This word is not commonly used now, mbulu being more common.)
- shuunsa n. [? Chinese zhu sha “cinnabar”] a type of incense mooshi wa lbani haydhibi na shuunsa [st.] the smoke of incense does not matter and also shuunsa (for these things to be smelled is not forbidden)’
- shup ideo. of silence (The final consonant is devoiced, though in Somali would be written with a b.)
variant form: ship
Omari/ ile/ kaleent̄h̄e/ shup!/ nt̄h̄akhkoōda/ ba. ‘Omari came and sat down and shup! He did not say anything.’
Waant̄h̄u/ wont̄h̄e/ imameēla/ shup! ‘There was stopping of talking by everyone; silence!’ (It should be noted that the pitch on shup is higher than the pitch of the accented elements in the sentence proper.)
- chi-shupa (zi-) n. 7/8 umbilicus (navel, “belly button”)
Muke/ vete l̄kaandra/ chishupaani. ‘The woman wore a belt on her waist.’
- shupu adj. quiet
shupu/ kana khabri ‘as quiet as a grave’
Omari/ numba yaawo/ muunt̄h̄u/ nt̄h̄aku/ shupu/ kana khabri. ‘Omari’s house, there’s nobody there, it is as quiet as a grave.’
shupu/ kana khabriini ‘as quiet as a grave (loc.)’ shupu/ kana mahala ifiil̄á ‘as quiet as a place where someone has died’
- shurafa pl. (cf. shariifu) [Ar. šurafā W 467] #1.4
- shurba n. 9 [Ar. šorba "soup" W 463] a thick soup made from special grains cooked with meat until soft, then flour added and meat, served during Ramadhan kuna shurba/ ramādaani ‘to drink shurba during Ramadhan’ shurba yaa nama ‘shurba with meat’ shurba yaa nk̄h̄uku ‘chicken soup’
- shuruuti n. 10 [Sw. n. sharti and v. shurutí SSED 427; Ar. surūt, pl. of sart "condition" W 465] conditions Husūloowa/ muunt̄h̄u/ na’iwó/ shuruut̄izé/ na nayo khibrá. ‘It is wanted [for a washer of corpses for burial] a man who knows its rules/regulations and who has experience.’
kafaara sfaanye shuruuti [song] ‘don’t resort to offerings’
Mooja ondrosheeze shar’a na shuruuti [nt̄.] ‘God has taken away law and order’ shuruuti sfaanye falaki [song] ‘don’t resort to astrology’

- shuruwa n. 9 [Sw. shurua SSED 427, surua SSED 441; Pers.] measles Mwaana/ chiwanayo shuruwa/ husulowa koshoowa/ ka wiingi. [H!H!H] ‘When a child has measles, he needs to be bathed a lot of times.’
Nayo shuruwa. ‘He has measles.’
Shuruwa/ hubla waana. [H!H] ‘Measles kills children.’
Shuruwa/ hubla waana/ wiingi. [H!HH] ‘Measles kills many children.’ (In our intonational transcriptions, we write HH in cases where there is neither declination or downstep between the successive accented syllables, but neither is there a radical upstep, which we symbolize as [↑]. Instead, the second H may be a bit higher than the first. In the present example, this intonational is associated with some emphasis on wiingi.)
Shuruwa/ ni maraḍi/ khatari/ ya waana. [H!H!H!H] ‘Measles is a dangerous disease for children.’ (The downstep on maradi and waana in this example was clear. The declination between maradi and khatari apparently reflects the presence of some emphasis on khatari, i.e. the speaker is observing that it is a dangerous disease.)
Shuruwa/ yublele waana/ wiingi/ mwaka waa yana. ‘Measles killed many children last year.’ (The subject marker y- on the verb establishes that the noun shuruwa is [cl.9].)
Waana/ hupata shuruwa. [H!H] ‘Children get measles.’
- kh-shutuma v. [Sw. shutumu SSED 427; Ar. ṣatama W 455] (shutumiile) uncommon insult
- shuwaari adj. [Sw. shwari SSED 427] calm, without wind, quiet (of the sea)
Bahari/ iwaliko shuwaari. ‘The sea was calm.’
Fijiri ya sku mooyi/ iwaliko shuwaari/ wa’ondroshele. ‘On the morning of one day when it was calm, they set out [on their journey].’
Leelo/ yiko shuwaari. ‘Today it is calm.’
Skuu nt^h atu/ za kaandra/ bahari/ iwaaliko/ shuwaari/ na lpepó/ lsuura. ‘The first three days, the sea was calm and the wind favorable.’
Tawala/ shuwaari. ‘The sea is calm.’
- kh-shuwaṭa v. [Som. noun and verb shuban DSI 551] (shuweeṭe) to have diarrhoea like water from a pipe) khshuwaṭa/ kana bomba ‘to have diarrhoea like a water pipe (gushing out pipe.’
Nakhshuwaṭa/ kana bomba. ‘He is having diarrhoea like a water pipe.’
khshuwaṭa maayi ‘to have watery diarrhoea’ khshuwaṭa maazi ‘to have bloody diarrhoea’ Omari/ nakhshuwaṭa. ‘Omari is having diarrhoea.’
- rel.
kh-shuwaṭiloowa v. appl. pass.
Dighlo/ hushuwaṭiloowa. ‘A laxative causes diarrhoea.’
kh-shuwaṭoowa v. pass.
Inakhshuwaṭoowa/ kana bomba. ‘People are having diarrhoea like a water pipe.’
- kh-shuwisha v. cause diarrhoea dawa ya khshuwisha ‘purgative’
- shuwini n. [cf. Som. shuban] diarrhoea Shuwini/ hubla waana. ‘Diarrhoea kills children.’
- shuwu n. [Som. shub DSI 551] concrete (cement conglomerate)
Jasi yaa shuwu/ hukalaant^ha/ qaali/ kolko yaa mbawo. ‘A concrete roof costs more than a wooden roof.’
Shuwu/ hufanyowa ka chimento/ na zuumá. ‘Concrete is made of cement and steel.’
- i-shuzi (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. shuzi SSED 427] fart

Jezaa mp^huundra/ mashuzi. ‘The compensation (you get) from a donkey is farts.’ (The phrase jeza ya mp^huundra may contract to jezaa mp^huundra, thereby creating an otherwise unpermitted sequence of long vowels.)

sinegative element in the negative subjunctive choloko/ sichiwabige ‘that the window not hit [cl.2]’; zoloko/ siziwabige ‘that the windows not hit [cl.2]’ ijiwe/ isiwapotelele ‘that the rock not fall on [cl.2]’; majiwe/ yasiwapotelele ‘that the rocks not fall on [cl.2]’ lpaanga/ lsiwaṭiinde ‘that the sword not cut [cl.2]’; mp^haanga/ siziwaṭiinde ‘that the swords not cut [cl.2]’ muti/ usiwaburbukile ‘that the tree not fall on [cl.2]’; miti/ yasiwaburbukile ‘that the trees not fall on [cl.2]’

Nakhsuḷa chijaana/ sichibigoowa. ‘He wants that the (dim.) child be beaten.’ Cf. Nakhsuḷa zijaana/ sizibigoowa. ‘He wants that the (dim.) children be beaten.’ (Note that [cl.7/8] nouns, including diminutives, govern a subject marker in the negative subjunctive which is located after the negative element, in contrast to most noun classes.)

Nakhsuḷaa chisu/ sichivundoowa. ‘He wants that the knife not be broken.’

Cf. Nakhsuḷaa zisu/ sizivundoowa. ‘He wants that the knives not be broken.’ (Observe that in the case of [cl.7/8] subjects, the agreement morpheme follows the negative element, in contrast with several other classes.)

Nakhsuḷa ijaana/ isibigoowa. ‘He wants that the (aug.) child be beaten.’

Cf. Nakhsuḷa mijaana/ yasibigoowa. ‘He wants that the (aug.) children be beaten.’

Nakhsuḷa ijiwe/ isilatiloowa. ‘He wants that the stone not be thrown.’ Cf.

Nakhsuḷa majiwe/ yasilatiloowa. ‘He wants that the stones not be thrown.’

Nakhsuḷaa luti/ lsivundoowa (but also possible: silvundoowa). ‘He wants that the stick not be broken.’ Cf. Nakhsuḷaa ndruti/ sizivundoowa. ‘He wants that the sticks not be broken.’

Nakhsuḷa muunt^hu/ sambiloowa. ‘He wants that the man not be told.’ Cf.

Nakhsuḷa waant^hu/ wasambiloowa. ‘He wants that the men not be told.’

Nakhsuḷaa muti/ usiburbushoowa. ‘He wants that the tree not be cut down.’ Cf. Nakhsuḷaa miti/ yasiburbushoowa. ‘He wants that the trees not be cut down.’

Nakhsuḷaa ni/ (n)sambiloowa. ‘He wants that you (pl.) not be told.’ (In the case of a passive verb, it is possible for the second person subject marker in this tense to follow the negative: Nakhsuḷaa ni/ sinambiloowa. This variation does not seem to be possible in the active: Nakhsuḷaa ni/ (n)sooloke. ‘He wants that you not go.’ Not: Nakhsuḷaa ni/ sinooloke. We need to double check whether it is the passive of all verbs or just vowel-initial verbs that allow this variation.

Nakhsuḷaa ni/ (n)seendre. ‘He wants that you (pl.) not go.’ (Cf. the unacceptability of Nakhsuḷaa ni/ sineendre. The subject marker agreeing with a second person plural subject may not follow the negative in the negative subjunctive of an active verb.)

Nakhsuḷa nuumba/ isuzoowa. ‘He wants that the house not be sold.’ Cf.

Nakhsuḷa nuumba/ sizuzoowa. ‘He wants that the houses not be sold.’ (Observe that while the [cl.9] subject marker precedes the negative element in the negative subjunctive, the [cl.10] subject marker follows it.)

naazi/ isiwapotelele ‘that the coconut not fall on [cl.2]’; naazi/ siziwapotelele ‘that the coconuts not fall on [cl.2]’ nsisoom ‘that I, you (pl.) not read’ nsiwabige ‘that I not hit them [cl.2]’ (Cf. other human subject markers:

siwabige ‘that you not hit [cl.2]’ or ‘that (s)he not hit [cl.2]’; sichiwabige ‘that we not hit [cl.2]’; nsiwabige ‘that you (pl.) not hit [cl.2]’; wasiwabige ‘that [cl.2] not hit [cl.2]’.)

sichisoom ‘that we not read’

sisoome ‘that you, [cl.1] not read’ uki/ usiwaṭawanyikile ‘that the honey not spill on [cl.2]’ wasisoome ‘that they not read’

si- first person subject prefix in the negative present and past Laakini/ wake/ awo/ skuwaweeka/ numba mooyi. ‘But those wives I did not put in a single house.’
Sinakhfanya chiint^hu. ‘I am not doing anything.’
Sinakhtaambula/ chint^hu icho. ‘I cannot figure this thing out.’

si interrogative particle added at end of a sentence which asks for (and expects) confirmation of what has been stated (like in English: isn’t it? haven’t you? etc.)
Chibuku chaa we/ nakichimeeró/ si icho. ‘The book that you are looking for, isn’t it that one?’ (According to one consultant, this sentence implies that the speaker is quite sure it is the book. If he is less certain, he would say: Chibuku chaa we/ nakichimeeró/ siwo icho.)
Leelo/ takenda kaziini/ si. ‘Today you will go to work, won’t you?’
Uzile gaari/ si. ‘You did buy the car, didn’t you?’

review intonation

si negative copula particle
Mp^huundra/ si oyo/ naakujó/ naa we/ nakuhada kuwaa ye/ n^haakó. ‘The donkey, isn’t he the one who is braying, and you are saying that he is not here.’
Si/ ndiwé. ‘Is it not you?’
Si/ wanaadamu/ wo/ ni majini. ‘They are not human beings, they are jinns.’

si first person plural independent pronoun Mukhtaa si/ chilazilo ka chinemaani ‘when we came from the cinema...’
Mwiizi/ bishiḷa naasi. ‘The thief was beaten by us.’ (Observe that we write the independent pronoun si together with the preposition na. The preposition is lengthened in front of si, a fact lead us to write the two elements separately, since Chimiini has a phenomenon of word-final lengthening that affects a word-final vowel when the following word is phrase-final and has the structure CVCV or CV. However, naasi has penult accent, which would not at all be expected if si were an independent word. Phrase-final monosyllabic words always bear accent, regardless whether the accent predicted in penult or final. Thus naasi behaves as though it is one word.)

Nakhsulaa si/ keendra. ‘He wants us to go.’
Naasi/ bishiḷa mwiizi. ‘By us the thief was beaten.’
sababu yaa si/ ku’awaaðila ‘reason for us to complain’
Si/ chimbishile mwiizi. ‘We beat the thief.’ Or: Mwiizi/ chimbishilé/ si.
(The reader is reminded that this lexicon does not in general provide transcriptions that detail significant facts about intonation. For instance, in the first sentence here, the (accented) pronoun si is pronounced at the highest pitch level and the noun mwiizi, which has penult accent, is clearly downstepped. In the second sentence, the verb is focused and is not downstepped relative to mwiizi. On the other hand, the sentence-final pronoun si is radically lowered in pitch.)

Si/ chinakhsulaa maalí. ‘We want wealth.’
Si/ ni weenzá. ‘We are friends.’
Si/ shtile ruhu ziitu/ karka khatari. ‘We put ourselves in danger.’

si+dem. here is, there are sawá ‘here are [cl.2]’ from /si+awa/
Sawá/ waaná. ‘Here are the children.’
sawó ‘there are [cl.2]’ from /si+awo/Sawó/ waaná. ‘There are the children (near you).’
there they [cl.2] are – need the form
sayá ‘here are [cl.4]’ from /si+aya/
Mikate/ sayá. ‘Here are the cakes.’
sayá ‘here are [cl.6]’ from /si+aya/

Makoopa/ sayá. ‘Here are the glasses.’
sayajé ‘there are [cl.4], far from us’ from /si+ayaje/Mikate/ sayajé. ‘There are the cakes.’
sayajé ‘there are [cl.6], far from us’ from /si+ayaje/Makoopa/ sayajé. ‘There are the glasses (far from us).’
sayó ‘there are [cl.4] (near you)’ from /si+ayo/Mikate/ sayo. ‘There are the cakes (near you).’
sayó ‘there are [cl.6] (near you)’ from /si+ayo/Makoopa/ sayó. ‘There are the glasses (near you).’
sichí ‘here [cl.7] is’
Chibuuku/ sichí. ‘Here’s the book.’ (It is possible to raise the pitch on chibuuku, but this has no consequences for the location of accent: ¹Chibuuku/ sichí.) Sichí/ chibuukú. ‘Here’s the book.’ (There is a variant of sentences of this type where there is emphasis on sichí and the nominal has default penult accent: ¹Sichí/ chibuuku.) sichijé ‘there [cl.7] is (far from us)’ Sichijé/ chibuukú. ‘There the book is.’
sichó ‘there [cl.7] is (near you)’ Sichó/ chibuukú. ‘There the book is.’
silí ‘here [cl.11] is’
Silí/ lutí. ‘Here the stick is.’
silijé ‘there [cl.11] is (far from us)’ Silijé/ lutí. ‘There the stick is.’
siló ‘there [cl.11] is (near you)’ Siló/ lutí. ‘There the stick is.’
siyí ‘here is [cl.5]’ Ikoopa/ siyí. ‘Here is the glass.’
siyí ‘here is [cl.9]’
Numba/ siyí. ‘Here is the house.’
Siyí/ haanzuyé. ‘Here is his haanzu.’ Siyí/ nawanyüzé. ‘Here it is, I have divided it up.’
siyijé ‘there is [cl.5] (far from us)’ Ikoopa/ siyijé. ‘There is the glass.’
siyijé or sijé ‘there is [cl.9] (far from us)’ Numba/ siyijé. ‘There is the house.’
siyó ‘there is [cl.5] (near you)’
Ikoopa/ siyó. ‘There is the glass.’
siyó ‘there is [cl.9] (near you)’
Numba/ siyó. ‘There is the house.’
Siyó/ mahmaahi/ inakuhada jis’iyo/ ma’anaye/ kilaa chiint^hu/ ha’ipatowa ka matezo. ‘(Summing up an explanation of the meaning of a proverb) so there it is, the proverb says like that, it means, each thing (that you desire), it cannot be gotten by playing around (you must work hard in order to get it).’
sizí ‘here are [cl.8]’
Sizí/ zibuukú. ‘Here are the books.’
Sizí/ zoombó. ‘Here are the things’
sizí ‘here are [cl.10]’
Numba/ sizí. ‘Here are the houses.’
Sizí/ ndrutí. ‘Here are the sticks.’
sizijé ‘there are [cl.8] (far from us)’
Sizijé/ zibuukú. ‘There are the books.’
sizijé ‘there are [cl.10] (far from us)’
Numba/ sizijé. ‘There are the houses.’
Sizijé/ ndrutí. ‘There are the sticks.’
sizó ‘there are [cl.8] (near you).’
Sizó/ zibuukú. ‘There are the books (near you).’
sizó ‘there are [cl.10] (near you)’
Numba/ sizó. ‘There are the houses (near you).’
Sizó/ nk^hele z-a m-p^huundrá. ‘Here are the brays of a donkey.’
Sizó/ ndrutí. ‘There are the sticks (near you).’
soyó ‘there is [cl.1] (near you)’

Soyó/ mwaaná. ‘There is the child (near you).’
soyó ‘there is [cl.3] (near you)’
Mkate/ soyó. ‘There is the cake (near you).’
soyó ‘there is [cl.14] (near you)’
sujé ‘there is [cl.1] (far from us)’
Hamadi/ sujé. ‘There’s Hamadi (e.g. people have been looking for Hamadi and the speaker sees him and says this).’
Sujé/ nakuuya. ‘There he is coming.’ (Note that a verb after suyú etc. does not undergo final accent shift; cf. Sujé/ Hamadí. ‘Here comes Hamadi.’
suyú ‘here is [cl.1]’
Nuuru/ suyú. ‘Here’s Nuuru.’
Suyú/ mwaaná. ‘Here is the child (e.g. perhaps Nuuru was late in coming and the speaker observes that he is finally coming and says this in relief that he has arrived).’
Suyú/ Nuurú. ‘Here’s Nuuru (e.g. speaker has been sent to get Nuuru and he comes back with Nuuru and says this, suggesting that “see, he wasn’t difficult to find”).’
suyú ‘here is [cl.3]’ Mkate/ suyú. ‘Here is the cake.’
suyú ‘here is [cl.14]’
suyujé or sujé ‘there is [cl.1] (far from us)’ Suyujé/ mwaaná. ‘There is the child.’
suyujé ‘there is [cl.3] (far from us)’
Mkate/ suyujé. ‘There is the cake.’
suyujé ‘there is [cl.14] (far from us)’

chi-si (zi-)

n. 7/8 [Som. kisi DSI 369] odd number nambari zaa zisi ‘odd numbers’

n-si

n. 9/10 [Sw. nswi SSED 341, noted as being an older word for ‘fish’] fish Á’á/ ye/ shishilee nsi/ mooyi/ tu. [HHHH!!H] ‘No, he just caught one fish.’
Akhili izo/ endrá/ mbarshee nsi/ mayiini. ‘That intelligence, go and teach the fish in the water.’
Basi/ wawa yaawo/ hupatapataa nsi/ ni muunt^hu/ maskiini/ ma’anaye. ‘So, their father used to catch fish, he was a poor man, that means.’
boroodo/ yaa nsi ‘fish broth’ chambo chaa nsi ‘fish bait’ chiguma chaa nsi ‘a big club for hitting a fish’ chilaavi/ chaa nsi ‘fish trap, bait’ chilaave?
chiloho chaa nsi ‘fish hook’
Chiloho/ pashpo chaambo/ hashpati/ nsi. ‘A hook without bait does not catch a fish.’ (A proverb.) Or: Chiloho/ bilaa chaambo/ hashpati/ nsi.
chiṭa chaa nsi ‘fish head’ igozi yaa nsi ‘skin of fish’ ijarfa yaa nsi ‘fish net’ khfurshaa nsi/ ka maayi ‘lit. to swell the fish with water, to cook in water but not well cooked’ khkalangaa nsi ‘to fry fish’ khpasulaa nsi/ mbawa ‘to take the scales (lit. feathers) off a fish’ khpataa nsi ‘to catch fish’ khpikaa nsi/ ka maayi ‘to cook fish with water’ khṭindaa nsi ‘to cut fish’ kokaa nsi ‘to fry fish’
koshaa nsi ‘to wash fish’ kugazaa nsi ‘to attempt to catch fish’ kumgṭaa nsi ‘lit. to pull fish – reel in, land a fish’ kumpa saawi/ nsi ‘lit. to give cheat a fish, i.e. to pull a fish in and then let it back out’ mafta yaa nsi ‘fish oil’ makaapa/ yaa nsi ‘fins (lit. wings) of a fish’ maandra/ kaa nsi ‘bread with fish’ matuumbo/ yaa nsi fish intestines’ mayaank^huku/ yaa nsi ‘fish eggs’ mbawa zaa nsi ‘lit. feathers of fish’ what does this mean??

Mbeleye/ chiwona/ nsi/ mbili/ nk^hulu/ nt^ho/ zinakuuya/ khariibuye. ‘In front of him he saw that two very large fish were coming near him.’
miiwa/ yaa nsi ‘fish thorn (bone)’ mkila waa nsi ‘caudal fin (lit. tail) of a fish’
m^tuzi waa nsi ‘fish soup’ mwishpa yaa nsi ‘fish bone’
Na chijamu cha taatu/ tile makooko/ na chita chaa nsi/ kumpa mwana wa mub^liwe. ‘And on the third place she put the crust of rice and a fishhead to be given to her husband’s child.’ check accent
Nsi/ chiloho/ chimkuushile. ‘The fish has been hooked.’
Nsi/ ha’ijowi ka iziwa/ hushowatoowa. ‘Fish is not eaten with milk, it causes diarrhoea.’
nsi inakunuunk^hó ‘fish which smell bad’ nsi/ isa/ tu/ s-tumela mayiini ‘fish just not taken out of water, i.e. very fresh’ nsi iwozeló ‘rotten fish’ nsi iwozeló/ muunt^hu/ shkala/ ni noloolo. ‘A rotten fish, if you press it, it is soft.’ (A saying.) Nsi iyi/ ndimi/ ndreeseló. ‘This fish, it is me who brought it.’
nsi/ kingila chilohooni ‘for a fish to get hold of the hook’
Nsi/ nt^haná/ khshiika/ chiloho. ‘The fish are not biting on the hook.’
Nsi/ nt^hazinakiingila/ chambooni. ‘The fish are not taking the bait.’
nsi ya waarabu ‘[lit.] Arab fish – sp. fish (Sergeant Fish)’ nsi za magome ‘lit. fish of undersea rocks’ nsi za mbaawa (“feathered fish”) any fish with scales (as opposed to sharks); cf. lbaawa ‘feather’ nsi zaa mufu ‘lit. fish of mufu’ nsi zaa munu ‘salted fish’ nsi zaa muto ‘river fish’
nsi zaa wowi ‘river fish’
nt^huumbulu/ yaa nsi/ ya mp^haamp^ha ‘shark granules (lit. granules of fish of shark)’ Omari/ nayo ulaazo/ nakhtapa/ kana nsi tumela mayiini. ‘Omari has pain, he is moving like a fish taken out of water.’
sambusa zaa nsi ‘fish samoosa’ zijana zaa nsi ‘baby fish’ zijo/ kaa nsi ‘zijo with fish’

rel.

chi-n-si (zi-) n. dim. small fish; [pron. chinsí and zinsí]

Hukalan^ha apo/ hubashala^habashaala^ha/ hupatapata zinsí. ‘He sits there, entertaining himself, and catches small fish.’

Ndrani ya itiki/ yawalimo maayi/ na katiiké/ zivalimo zinsí/ ziwili/ schitezootezó. ‘In the watermelon there was water and in this there were two small fish playing.’

si ka

[apparently a contraction of si ka khisa] is it not because of?

Si ka kuwaa we/ dokhaani. ‘Isn’t it because you are stupid?’

Si kaa we/ kuwa dokhaani/ tu/ bashizo peesá. ‘Isn’t it just because you are stupid that you lost [your] money?’

Si kaa we/ kuwa dokhaani/ we/ mlasilo eeló. ‘Is it not because of your stupidity that you let the gazelle go?’

si’iri

n. cost

Si’iri/ ya mpuunga/ nt^haasá/ ni ghaali. ‘The cost of rice remains high.’

kh-siiba

v. [Sw. sibu "(1) afflict, bring misfortune (ruin, damage) upon; (2) sometimes used for happen (to), take place, come to pass" SSED 428; Ar. uštba "to be stricken, afflicted" W 528 and wašab "hardship, suffering" W 1072] (sibiile) (i) do correctly, right; (ii) be afflicted, befall, happen to

(i) We/ sibiile/ na yaa we/ hadiiló/ ni ka kalíla. ‘You are correct and what you have said is true.’

(ii) Afðali/ inampate/ ije itakumpató/ kama keendra/ kunsiba ghaðabu za mwajütü. Better that it befalls me, whatever is going to befall me, than to go and the anger of God strike me.’

Ka nasibu yaawo/ kuwaa mbovu/ rasaasi/ zote/ nt^haskumsiiba/ ndovu.

‘Because their luck was bad, none of the bullets hit the elephant.’

Nini/ imsibiiló. ‘What misfortune befell him?’

Rasaasi/ zote/ zimsibiile/ na shfaarú/ chí’ifilíla ka paapo/ apo. ‘All the bullets hit th rhino and it died insantly.’

yaaka nikhshi’ira ichinsiba chiint^hu [song] ‘mine (i.e. my role, what I am able to do) is to express in poetry the thing(=s) that happen to me’

rel.

kh-sibaṭa v. (sibeete)

waana wasibeete ka ooni na ndala [nt.] ‘children suffered thirst and hunger’

kh-siibisha v. caus. (A causative form is not used, as the verb does not express a meaning that human beings are viewed as being able to cause.)’

kh-siboowa v. pass. (sibiila) be befallen

Ali/ sibiila na ni. ‘What misfortune befell Ali?’

m-siiba (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. msiba SSED 428; Ar. Ar. usiba "to be stricken, afflicted" W 528 and wasib "hardship, suffering" W 1072] calamity, difficulty, misfortune, problem chiwona msiiba kuumbuka/ kubloowa weenye Baraka [st.] ‘if you see calamity, remember the killing of the people of baraka’

Msiiba/ ushtuluka/ kiila/ mo/ humdirka. ‘When disaster happens it affects every one.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Msiba wa munt^hu mooyi/ ni haruusi/ ya mwiingine. ‘The misfortune of one man is the marriage of another.’ (A proverb.)

Mzele wa muuyi/ nt^haná/ ilmu/ ya khfanya chiint^hu/ na msiiba/ uyu. ‘The mayor is not competent to deal with this crisis.’

Nt^haku/ msiiba/ usho mwenewé. ‘There is no misfortune without its companion.’ (A proverb.)

Waant^hu/ muyiini/ wawanayo msiiba/ laakini/ mukhtaawo/ waweno markabú/ wote/ washfurahaa nt^ho. ‘People in the town had suffered a calamity, but when they saw the ship, they all were very happy.’

sibiri

n. [Sw. subili SSED 438; Ar. ṣabir W 501] aloe; a very bitter resin soluble in water, used as (1) a laxative, to drink in infusion with water, and (2) a resin to be applied hot on boils and wounds haraarisi/ kana sibiri ‘as bitter as sibiri’ sibyaani

adj. [Ar. sibyānī "boyish, childish" W 503] stupid, intellectually weak, childish (in behavior)

nüko kama sibyaani na su’aalize nofeete [song] ‘I am here like a child and I am tired of her questions’

sichi

[cl.7] here it is; [pron. sichí]

sichije

[cl.7] there it is; [pron. sichijé]

sicho

[cl.7] there it is; [pron. sichó]

sidiiqi

adj. [Ar. siddīq W 509] one who tells the truth

ka sabri Yuusufu sidiiqi peeḷa [st.] ‘because of patience, Joseph the truth-teller was given’

- sidiriya* n. [Sw. sidiria SSED 428; Ar. Ar. sidra and sidairī "bodice" W 507] brassiere
- sidqi* n. [Ar. ṣidq W 509] truth, sincerity
- sifa* n. [Ar. sifa W 1072] praise; attribute, characteristic, good characteristics; description; modifier (in grammar) Kibri/ siwo/ sifa za mluungana. 'Arrogance is not an attribute of a person good breeding.'
kuḍukura sifaze 'to mention his praises (i.e. his good qualities)' Maama/ wa waana/ waliko nii muke/ mwenye sifa njeema. 'The mother of the children was a woman having good attributes.'
Mazá/ iwileeyi/ we/ sifa za ngamiila/ uyu. 'Well, how did you come to know the description of this camel?'
Mi/ nsomeelopó/ sifa za mtume uyú/ yaningile mahabba/ ya mtume uyu. 'When I read the praises of this prophet, love of this prophet entered me.' (Observe that in the =po adverbial relative clause, even though the verb is focused, the final accent that it triggers extend to the complement. This is the general pattern in true relative clauses, in contrast to pseudo-relative clauses.)
Mi/ skuuya/ apa/ kumeraa sifa. 'I did not come here looking for praise.'
munt^hu mwenye sifa suura 'a man with good qualities' Mweendro/ na sifa za muunt^hú/ hukhadiroowa/ kiwoowa. 'The behavior and character of a man can be known.'
Nazoo sifa/ za khpendelaowa. 'He has characteristics which one can love him for.'
sifaa mbovu 'a bad reputation, notoriety' sifa suura 'a good reputation'
Waant^hu/ wammereele/ muunt^hu/ oyo/ nazo sifa izó/ karka nt^hi ya sultaani/ nzimaye/ laakini/ nt^hawampata. 'The people looked for that man who has that [lit.those] description in the entire land of the sultan but they did not find him.'
- siifa* n. act of praising; variant form: siifu
- kh-siifa* v. [Sw. sifu SSED 429; Ar. waṣafa W 1072] (sifiile) praise, describe Fungula maatoyo/ wona ziwovu/ laakini/ kanayo/ isisiife/ zint^hu izo/ kuwa ni ziwovu/ inazisiife/ kuwa ni ziint^hu/ zisuura. 'Open your eyes, see evil things, but [if you want to be considered to be "somebody"] do not describe these thing as evil deeds, describe them as good things.'
muunt^hu/ humsifo hayawaani/ jis'iyí 'a man who praises an animal in this way' (Phon. This example illustrates the possibility of the head of a relative clause being phrasally separated from the relative verb. The indefinite nature of the head noun in this example may facilitate phrasal separation, but further research on this aspect of phrasing is required.)
Nvula/ hu'isiifó/ ni munt^hu imnyeleeleó. 'Rain, the one who praises it, is the man for whom the rain has fallen.' (A proverb.) (This example contains two headless relative clause structures. The first, hu'isiifó 'the one who praises', has its complement preposed. This complement is not phrased with the verb since it is not the head of a relative clause. In the case of imnyeleeleó, on the other hand, we are dealing with a case of object relativization, and we see that the head noun muunt^hu (the beneficiary of the rain falling) is phrased with the relative verb. Observe also that in this example, there is no overt subject noun between the head and the relative clause. If there were an overt subject, then the head would have to be to the subject by means of the -a link.)
Sisifeeni. 'You (pl.) don't praise!'
- joined

soomu za sku sitta Mtume sifüle [st.] ‘the Prophet praised the fasting of [those] six days’

We/ husuloowa/ khsiifa/ waant^{hu}/ wako ilukó/ haṭá/ ichiwa ni waant^{hu} wawovu. ‘You are required to praise people who are your superiors, even if they are bad people.’

We/ jisaa we/ msifilo ngamiilayá/ nt^hamu/ shakka/ kuwaa we/ mweené. ‘You, from the way that you have described my camel, there is no doubt that you have seen him.’

rel.

kh-süifika v. p/s.

kh-sifiloowa v. appl. pass. (sifiliila)

Ni lila/ kooḍi/ zaa we/ ambiilá/ laakini/ mi/ ndimí/ mzele/ waa we/ sifiliilá/ naamí/ ni mzeelé/ kolko mzele uje/ waa we/ waliko naayé/ fijiri iyi. ‘They are true the words that you were told, but I am the old woman that was described to you [lit. that you were described to]; I am older than the old woman you were with (her) this morning.’

kh-süifila v. appl. (sifiliile) describe to Waziiri/ chimsiifila. ‘The minister described him (in the story, a person whose identity was in question) to him (i.e. the person asking for an identification).’

kh-süifisha v. caus. (sifishiize)

Choloka khsimama na mp^huunda/ ziingine/ wasifishilo ka ukaslaaní. ‘He went to stand with the other donkeys known for their laziness.’

kh-sifishana v. caus. rec.

kh-sifishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-sifishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-sifishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-sifoowa v. pass. (sifiila)

sifilüto

n. syphilis

Maraḍi/ ya sifilüto/ huhadoowa/ muke/ farji/ humjaaja. ‘It is said that the disease of syphilis [causes] a woman’s vagina to itch her.’

sigareeti

n. 9/10 [Sw. sigareti SSED 429; Eng. cigarette] cigarette kasha sigareeti ‘to light a cigarette’ kuvuta sigareeti ‘to smoke a cigarette’

kh-süigata

v. survive, be saved

Mara mo/ chisiigata/ mara piili/ husiigati. ‘If you get saved, survive once the second time you will not survive.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ maraa mbili/ chisiigata/ mara ya taatu/ hasiigati. ‘If a person survives two times, the third time, he does not survive.’

siha

n. [Sw. siha SSED 429; Ar. ṣiḥḥa W 503] health (This noun is not as commonly used as afiya.)

Muunt^hu/ humlomba Mojiitu/ kumpa siha suura. ‘One begs God to give good health.’

Nt^haná/ siha. ‘He has no health, i.e. he is sick.’

Omari/ sku mbili izi/ nt^haná/ siha suura. ‘Omari these days does not have good health (i.e. he is not feeling well).’

siha suura ‘good health’

kh-siha

v. [Sw. sihi SSED 429; Ar. ṣaḥḥa W 503] (-sihiile) be valid, correct, befitting

Haysihi. ‘It is not valid.’

husiha we sin’aaqibe/ ndo mp^haangula iṭoziya [song] ‘it befits you that you don’t punish me, come and wipe away my tear drop’

	imaani khsihake shartī shahaada [st.] ‘for your faith to be valid, you must [recite] the Shahādah’
	khṭayamuma husiha waqti chiingila ‘it is permitted to take ablutions using sand when the time [for prayers] approaches’
kh-sihira	v. [Sw. sihiri SSED 429; Ar. saḥara, siḥr W 400] (sihiriile) charm, bewitch, practice witchcraft rel. kh-sihirika v. p/s. kh-sihiriḷa v. appl. kh-sihirisha v. caus.
sihiri	n. [Sw. sihiri SSED 429; Ar.] witchcraft, black magic hashkasi sihiri na miḷa ya diini [song] ‘we are not affected by black magic, (we) have the traditions of religion’ khfanya sihiri ‘to practice witchcraft’ Tahaḍari/ Ji/ ni munthu mfanya sihiri. ‘Be careful! Ji is a man who practices witchcraft.’ munt^hu mwenye sihiri ‘a man of witchcraft (i.e. one who practices witchcraft or is involved in it)’
sihiroole (ma-)	n. [Som. sixiroole, sixirrow DSI 558] witch
ku-sijila	v. [Ital. sigillare] (sijiliile) seal with a stamp
siiki	n. 9 [Sw. siki SSED 429; Pers.] vinegar khamri ka nafsiye ichiwa siiki/ hada tahaara tila karka milki [st.] ‘when an alcoholic drink changes to vinegar by natural means, you can say it is pure and keep it among your possessions’ mkali/ kana siiki ‘as sour as vinegar’
sikiini	n. [Som. sakiini or sikiin "razor blade" DSI 532] razor blade khṭinda sikiini ‘to shave the back of the neck with a razor (formerly, this phrase may have been used to refer to cutting the hair in the style of a European, but this meaning has now been taken over by khṭinda jeega)’
siji	[cl.11] here it is; [pron. siḷi] Ḳutiilo/ siḷi. ‘Here’s your stick.’ Siḷi/ ḷuti. ‘Here’s the stick.’
silije	[cl.11] there it is; [pron. silijé] Silijé/ ḷuti. ‘There’s the stick (far from us).’
silo	[cl.11] there it is; [pron. siló] Siló/ ḷuti. ‘There’s the stick (close to you).’
silisila	n. [Sw. sitsila SSED 430; Ar. sitsila W 421] chain sultaani/ funzilo ruuhuyé/ mikonó/ ka silsilá ‘the sultan who tied his hands with a chain’
ma-sila	n. 6 no etymological source found pus kuḷawa masila ‘to suppurate’ ni mu’afu maazi ya mapu na masila [st.] ‘it is forgiven, the blood from boils and pus (i.e. those do not invalidate prayers)’
silaaha	n. [Sw. silaha SSED 430; Ar. silāḥ W 420] weapon Chiint^hu/ ni chimo chiwovuuni/ silaaha/ ni yimo mkonooni. [H!H H!H] ‘Possessions, money, etc. [lit. thing] is in the pocket, a weapon is in the hand.’ (A proverb.)

kuweka silaaha/ nthiini ‘to lay weapons down’

Mukhtaa ye/ komelo mashakaaní/ sh^tuumba/ sh^tomola silaahaze/ kanmake/ chichilomba shpeteche/ kumbadila kumfaanya/ m^waarabu/ ka nguwo suura/ uso msuura/ mwelpe/ ka lpaangale/ na ijamiyayé. ‘When he reached the bush, he dug and took out his weapons, and then he begged his ring to change him and make him into an Arab with nice clothes, a nice face, white, with his sword and his dagger.’

kh-silima

v. [Sw. silimu SSED 430; Ar. salima W 424] (silimiile) become a Muslim

Is^laamu/ ni muunt^hu/ khsilima ka limi^le/ na ka mkonowé. ‘A Muslim is someone who is a Muslim with his tongue and with his hand.’

Khsilima/ ni muunt^hu/ kumamina mojiitu/ na mtumewé. ‘To be a Muslim is to believe in God and the Prophet.’

Muunt^hu/ hakhasboowi/ khsilima/ husilima ka khalbiye/ na miirizé/ khiirá. ‘One is not forced to become a Muslim, he becomes a Muslim by his heart and his mind to accept.’

rel.

kh-silimisha v. caus.

kh-silimishana v. caus. rec.

kh-silimishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-simishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-simishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

siima

n. sp. fish, a sort of snapper, fished seasonly

chi-sima

n. 7/8 [Sw. kisima SSED 207] water well

Chiko chisima chimó. ‘There is a well (at a place).’

Chiko chisima chimó/ chiikó. ‘There is a well (at a place), that’s what there is.’

chisima cha Abuudi ‘Abuudi’s well (one of the wells in Brava), which was much used for watering animals’ chisima cha A^tiikhi/ Abdurahmaani ‘the well of Atiikhi Abdurahmaani’ (There seems to be a contraction of khi/a to áa)

Chisima cha A^tiikhi/ Abdrahmaani/ ni ndraani. ‘The Atiikhi Abdurahmaani well is deep.’

Wake ^fwiingi/ hupato maayi/ masku/ chisima cha a^tiikhi/

Abdurahmaani. ‘Many women fetch water at night from Atiikhi Abdurahmaani’s well.’ (Same contraction of khi+A.) chisima cha E^l Hiindi ‘the El Hiindi well (one of the wells in Brava), which is much used for human consumption due to its soft water’ chisima/ cha mayi maharaarisi ‘a well that yields sour, bitter, salty water’ chisima/ cha mayi malada ‘a well which yields sweet, fresh water’ chisima cha ndraani ‘a deep well’ chisima cha khariibu ‘a shallow well (lit. a well of close, i.e. the bottom of the well is close)’

Chisima/ ichi/ nt^hashkuwaaliko/ ndranii nt^ho. ‘This well was not very deep.’

Chisimacha/ hashtiindiki/ maayi. ‘My well never stops (yielding) water.’ (A riddle.)

Maayi/ yaamo/ chisimaani. ‘There is water in the well.’ Or: Chisimaani/ yaamo/ maayi. Or: Yaamo/ maayi/ chisimaani.

ndraani/ kana/ chisima ‘deep like a well’

Omari/ nuumbaye/ posoneero/ ituunzilá/ ndraani/ kana/ chisima/ siwo/ itakuyelo ka himá. ‘Omari his house the pit hole is dug deep like a well, it will not get filled quickly.’

Uki/ umaliizopó/ Hasiibu/ chiwa’ambila weenziwe/ wawaliko ilú/ kumlatilila lkaambala/ ye/ khpata kulawa/ ka chisimaani. ‘When the honey was finished, Hasiibu asked his friends who were up above to throw him a rope so that he could get out of the well.’

Wake/ huteka maayi/ chisimaani. ‘Women fetch water from the well.’ Or:
Wake/ huteka chisimaani/ maayi. ‘Women fetch from the well water.’
Waṭunzilopó/ wachiwona/ iboholi/ kama chisima/ na iyele uki. ‘When they dug, they found a hole like a well and it was filled with honey.’
We/ amurile nalaṭilowa chisimaani. ‘You ordered that he be thrown into the well.’

kh-simama

v. [Sw. simama SSED 430] stand, be standing; stop Chimwambila khsimama. ‘He told him to stop.’
Chimwona eelowe/ simeme chizingitiini. ‘He saw his gazelle standing on the steps.’
Chisimama ndilaani/ nakubigaa nkʰele/ namvīla ṭajjiri. ‘He stood outside shouting, calling to the rich man.’
Chisimama/ ntʰini yaa muti/ chivaala/ icho shpete/ chiruda numbaani/ ka mweenzawe/ mahala uko mukeewé. ‘He stopped under a tree and put on that ring and returned to the house of his friend, the place where his wife was.’
Chiwaa we/ ni dakhtari/ simama. ‘If you are a doctor, stand up.’
Choloka khsimama na mpʰuundra/ ziingine. ‘He went to stand with the other donkeys.’
Jeelaani/ waaliko/ simeeme/ ilu/ ya chilima. ‘Jeelaani was standing up on a little hill.’ (This sentence is the opening line in a narrative that Mohammad Imam constructed very early on in our research. It is instructive in that its isolative phrasing here seems unconnected to notions of focus or contrast and seems more a matter of style and emphasis.) ka simama ‘in a hurry, without even sitting down’ khsimama kaa chiṭa ‘to stand on the head’ khsimama ka mikono ‘to stand on the hands’
Mwanaskoolā/ simeeme. ‘A/the student stood up.’ Or, with right-dislocation: Simeeme/ mwanaskoolā. (The simple yes-no question of the first sentence involves only Q-raising, while in the case of the second sentence there is accent-shift on the dislocated subject: Simeeme/ mwanaskoolá? The exclamatory questions are quite different as well: Mwanaskoolā/ simeemé!? and Simeemé/ mwanaskoolá!?)
Mkulu/ wa mawaardiya/ chisimama. ‘The head of the guards stood up.’
Muke/ chihada/ chisimame apa. ‘The woman said: let’s stop here.’
Mukhtạa muke/ iló/ Jeelaani/ chisimama/ chimpa salaamu. ‘When the woman came, Jeelaani stood up and greeted her.’
Mwaana/ simeeme. ‘The child stood up.’
Mwaana/ simeemopó/ waziiri/ chimwambila... ‘When the boy stopped, the minister told him...’
mwana wa mwaalimu/ simeemó/ mshishiló... ‘the child who the teacher stood up and siezed...’
Naani/ ntʰakhsimamá. ‘Who didn’t stand up?’ (One cannot fail to use the pseudo-relative form of the verb here: Naani/ ntʰakhsimama.)
Naani/ simeemó. ‘Who stood up?’ (One cannot fail to use the pseudo-relative verb in this structure: Naani/ simeeme.)
Si/ chisimeemé/ apo/ ka khisa/ si/ chofeeté. ‘We stopped there because we were tired.’
Si/ chisimeemé/ apo/ ka khisa/ yaliko miinza/ kinendroowa. ‘We stopped there because it was too dark to go on.’
Simama. ‘Stand up!’ Simamaani. ‘(Pl.) stand up!’ Sisimamé. ‘Don’t stand up!’ Sisimameení. ‘(Pl.) don’t stand up!’
Simeemopó/ waziiri/ chimwaambila/ leete/ mpʰa shilingi ikum(i) na nt^haano. ‘When he stopped, the minister told him: bring and give me fifteen shillings.’

Sungura/ chihada/ mi/ nsimeemé/ khfikira/ tu. Rabbit said: I stopped (walking) just to think.’

Washishilapoo ndalá/ wachisimama. ‘When they became hungry, they stopped.’

Weenziwe/ wamweenopó/ simeemé/ wachihada/ sungura/ repteeem/ basi/ najoowa. ‘When his friends saw that he (Rabbit) stopped, they said: Rabbit has stopped, so he should be eaten.’

rel.

kh-simamika v. p/s. (simamishile)

Apa/ haysimamiki/ ka iwa. ‘One cannot stand here because of the sun.’

kh-simamiloowa v. appl. pass. (simamiliila)

Muunt^hu/ kaleent^hó/ hasimamiloowi. ‘He who is sitting, one should not stand up for him.’ (A proverb.)

kh-simamila v. appl. (simamiliile) supervise; stand up (in respect of s.o.); stand on; give support, do things for someone Mukhta sultaani/ ingiiló/ wotte/ wamsimamiliile. ‘When the sultan entered, all stood up for him.’

na mtume Ibraahimu ka’ba washile/ ijiwe khsimamila apo weshela [st.] ‘also the prophet Abraham built the ka’ba/ and erected the stones that stand there’

Simamila kaazi. ‘Supervise the work!’

Siná/ nguvu za khsimamila. ‘I do not have the strength to stand with.’

Ye/ simamiliile chiti. ‘He stood on the chair.’

kh-simamisha v. caus. (simamishiize) make stand; stop s.t. in motion

Msimamishize mwaana/ mezaani. ‘He stood the child up on the table.’

Msimamishize Taha/ ndilaani. ‘He made Taha stand in the road.’

Omari/ msimamishize mwaana. ‘Omari caused the child to stand up.’

Simamishize gaari. ‘He caused the car to stop.’

kh-simamishan(ya) v. caus. rec.

Waana/ wasimamishilizenye ilu ya barmiili. ‘The children made one another stand on a barrel.’

kh-simamishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-simamishiliza v. caus. appl.

Boobo/ msimamishilize Nureeni/ mwaana. ‘Boobo made Nureeni’s child stand.’

kh-simamishoowa v. caus. pass. (simamishiiza)

kh-simamoowa v. pass. (simeema)

Mukhta ye/ ofeetó/ shomola amri/ khsimamoowa. ‘When he became tired, he ordered that they stop (lit. there be stopping).’

rel. nom.

u-simamilo n. supervision

m-simamisha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who makes stand

m-simamo n. 3

Chisimeme msimamó. ‘We stood standing.’

m-simamishi (wa-) n. 1/2 supervisor

m-simamizi (wa-) n. 1/2 supervisor (of a job)

n. 9/10 [Sw. samba SSED 431] lion (Despite being a [cl.9/10] noun, siimba may govern human agreement, as is typical for animate nouns in Chimwiini, particularly in its singular form.)

kubiga lkele/ kana la siimba ‘to shout like a lion’s shout’

Laakini/ Hasani/ chuuluka/ kama siimba/ chiingila/ katikati ya majeeshi/ ya aduwi/ ka lpaangale/ chiwa’ubla/ ma’askari/ wa aduwi/ wiingi/ nt^ho/ pashpo adadi. ‘But Hasani jumped like a lion and entered in the middle of the armies of the enemy with his sword and killed very many soldiers of the enemy, without number.’

Ikele la siimba ‘the roar of a lion’

Maama/ chimjiiba/ ka ndriimbo/ kuwaa ye/ nt^hakuuya/ na siimba.

‘Mother answered him singing [lit. with song] that he had not come with the lion [that he was seeking].’

Mchimbile siimba. ‘He ran away from the lion.’

Mi/ nshishila na siimba/ ndilaani. ‘I was siezed by a lion on the road.’ Cf.

Mwenzi wiitu/ shishila na siimba/ ndilaani. ‘Our friend was siezed by a lion in the road.’

Mi/ nshishila na simba waliko ndilaani. ‘I was siezed by the lion who was in the road.’

Mwana wa siimba/ ni siimba. ‘The child of a lion is a lion.’ (A proverb.)

Omari/ nazoo nguvu/ kana za siimba. ‘Omari has strength [cl. 10] like that of a lion.’

Nazoo nguvu/ kana siimba. ‘He is as strong as a lion.’

Shfakata/ cheendra/ kumkhubura siimba. ‘He ran and went to inform Lion.’

Siimba/ apa/ wakali/ wazimile mashakaani. ‘The lions here are fierce, hiding in the bush.’

simba fiilo ‘a dead lion’ (Notice that siimba triggers a phonologically null subject prefix on the verb, which is indicative of a [cl.1] subject.)

Siimba/ haaji/ bakhti. ‘A lion does not eat dead animals/carrion.’ (A proverb.)

Siimba/ hatezoowi/ naaye. ‘A lion is not played with.’ (A proverb.)

simba mkulu ‘a large lion’ (Morph. Notice that siimba triggers the [cl.1] adjective agreement prefix m on the stem -kulu ‘large’.)

Siimba/ mublele. ‘A lion killed him.’ (The verb has a null subject prefix, indicating that siimba is treated as a [cl.1] human subject.)

simba ubleela ‘a lion that was killed’

Sku mooyi/ siimba/ mp^huundra/ na bakayle/ wazazile kuwiinda. ‘One day Lion, Donkey, and Hare left to go hunting.’

Waant^hu/ wachimletelela sultaani/ khabari/ wanakhsuula/ siimba/ na’ubloowa. ‘The people brought the news to the sultan, they wanted the lion to be killed.’

Wazelewe/ wachimwaambila/ kumtokomeza siimba. ‘His parents told him to forget about the lion [that he was looking for].’

kh-simika

v. [Sw. simika SSED 431] (simishile) erect, raise or lift up, make someone or something stand up; stop something in motion

Husulo khsaydoowa/ husimika ruuhuye. ‘The one who wants to be helped should put himself on his feet.’ (A proverb.)

Juma/ chimtaala/ chimsimika pamo na mp^huundra/ za kaazi. ‘Juma took him and put him among the working donkeys.’

khsimika qalbi ‘to not be discouraged [lit. to lift the heart]’

Chisimika khalbiye/ chiineendra/ chiineendra/ ka ooni/ hattá/ shkoma/ mahaala/ chiikó/ chisima/ chihabba. ‘He held up his heart (i.e. was not discouraged) and went and went with thirst until he reached a place where there was a small well.’

Hasani/ naayé/ chisimika qalbiye/ chimbiga/ ijini/ oyo/ lpaanga/ lmooyi/ chimubla. ‘Hasani lifted his heart and and hit that djinn with one stroke of his sword and killed him.’

Na simika/ khalbiyo/ ka khisa nt^hi/ iyi/ ni nt^hi ya majini. ‘And hold up your heart (i.e. do not be discouraged) because this land is the land of jinns.’

Sa’iidi/ ka kalila/ simishile/ khalbiye/ paanzile/ mloongoi/ na weene/ nt^hi/ ya majini. ‘Sa’iidi truly lifted his heart [i.e. did not get discouraged] and climbed up the mast and saw the land of the jinns.’

Msimishile Ali/ ndilaani. ‘He made Ali stand outside.’

Msimishile mwaana. ‘He raised/lifted the child (causing him to stand).’

Simishile gaari. 'He stopped the car.'

Ye/ mereje kuwasimika qalbi/ wiinginewe. 'He sought to lift the spirits of others.'

rel.

kh-simikika v. p/s.

Muti/ usimikishile. 'The tree was able to be made erect.'

kh-simikisha v. caus.

Msimikishize shufeeri/ gaari. 'He made the driver stop the truck.'

kh-simikoowa v. pass.

Gaari/ apa/ haysimikoowi. 'A truck cannot be stopped here (it is prohibited, e.g).'

Isimishiḷa pashpoo nguzo. 'It is raised without a pillar.' (A riddle, the answer to which is iwiingu 'a cloud'.)

rel. nom.

m-simika (wa-) n. 1/2 one who stops

Msimika muunt^hu/ msaafiri/ ndilaani/ kumboola/ ni munt^hu wa aḏabuuni. 'He who stops someone on the road to rob him is a person of hell.'

simista

n. [Eng. semester] semester

Amina/ umo simista/ ya taano/ jaami'a. 'Amina is in the fifth semester at the university.'

siimo

n. 9/10 [Sw. simu SSED 432; Pers.] cable, telegram

kubiga siimo 'to cable, telegram, telephone'

Omari/ mbigiḷile mwaanawe/ siimo/ Ameerika/ kumwiiwisha/ kuwa maamaye/ hakhaadiri. 'Omari made a phone call to his son in America to inform him that his mother was sick.'

simo iyi 'this cable' (cf. simo izi 'these cables')

sina

I do not have, have no, there is nothing; [pron. siná]

Mi/ siná/ haaja/ na mp^hundra uyu. 'I have no need for this donkey.'

Mi/ siná/ shaka/ itamletelaa dību. 'I have no doubt that it will cause him trouble (lit. bring trouble to him).'

Siná/ chiint^hu. 'Nothing's the matter.'

Siná/ kuwaa mi/ khfaanya/ laazima/ kuvunda chuluungucha.

Siná/ shaka/ itamletelaa dhibu. 'I have no doubt that it will bring him trouble.'

sinaa'a

n. technology, discovery

Chiint^hu/ chunziḷa na mojiitú/ na chiint^hú/ cha sinaa'a/ haayiwi/ sawa/ cha mojiitu/ unziḷó/ huwo chisuurá. 'A thing created by God and a thing (created) artificially are not the same, that which God created is better.'

Madobḷa/ skiizi/ hushindramana/ ka sinaa'a. 'Nations nowadays compete with technology.'

sinaa'i

[Ar.] only recorded in the following sentence:

Waruusi/ wa'ulushiize/ qamari sinaa'i. 'The Russians launched an artificial moon (i.e. satellite).'

sinaa'i (Ar. ?ina?i, Wehr p. 526)

sindako

n. [Ital. sindaco] mayor

Mwiini/ zamaani/ ishfanyowa voota/ kudorsatowa sindako. 'In old times in Brava there used to be voting to choose a mayor.'

Sindako/ kalent^he wakhti haba/ tu/ kanumake/ vuushile. [H!HH!H!H] 'The mayor just stayed for a short time and then left.’

Sindako/ koðele dakhikha haba/ tu. [H!HH] ‘The mayor spoke for just a few minutes.’

Sindako/ na mukeewe/ wa’iló/ laakini/ sindako/ tu/ koðeeló. [HH!H!HHH!!H] ‘The mayor and his wife came, but just the mayor spoke.’

Sindako/ wa Mwĩini/ ma’aruufu/ ni Nureni Khaasimu. ‘A famous mayor of Brava is Nureeni Kaasimu.’

siindanu

n. [Sw. sindano SSED 432] needle, syringe, injection

Ali/ tete siindanu/ kumdurila Hamadi. ‘Ali took a needle to give Hamadi an injection.’

kubiga siindanu ‘to give an injection, a shot’ sindanu ya khshomela ‘a sewing needle’

kh-siindrika

v. [Sw. sindika "apply force to, but mostly with special sense, e.g. sindika mafuta, extract oil by pressing, sindika miwa, crush sugar cane, sindika mlango, partly close the door, but not fasten, set ajar" SSED 421] (sindrishile) squeeze, extract oil from seeds; leave a door ajar

Ali/ nakhsindrikaa chinu. ‘Ali is operating the oil press (e.g. making sure that the sesame seeds are properly distributed).’

khsindrika mafta ‘to extract oil’ khsindrika mlaango ‘to leave the door ajar’

Ali/indrishile mlaango. ‘Ali left the door ajar.’

rel.

kh-siindrikika v. p/s.

kh-sindrikila v. appl. extract with, for kh-sindrikisha v. caus. (sindrikishiize)

kh-sindrikishana v. caus. rec.

kh-sindrikishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-sindrikishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-sindrikishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-sindrikoowa v. pass. (sindrishila)

Mlaango/ usindrishila na Ali. ‘The door was left ajar by Ali.’

kh-siindrikiza

v. [Sw. sindikiza SSED 432] (sindrikiize) see a visitor off (by accompanying him part of the way on the journey home)

Ali/ namsindrikizaa muke. ‘Ali is seeing the woman off.’

rel.

kh-sindrikizisha v. caus.

kh-sindrikizishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-sindrikizishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-sindrikizoowa v. appl.

rel. nom.

m-sindrikizo (mi-) n. 3/4

u-sindrikizo n. 14

m-siindriko

adj. ajar

Mlaango/ (ni) msiindriko. ‘The door is ajar.’

Mlaango/ uwaliko msiindriko. ‘The door was ajar.’

chi-siindru (zi-)

n. 7/8 heel (This word not known to GM.)

chisindru cha kuulu ‘the heel of a foot’ chi-siindru NOTE: Sw. has kisigino, SSED p. 207. Is it possible to relate this Chim. word to Sw. sindika = to apply force in pressing s.t., SSED p. 421?

- siinfa n. [Sw. sifa SSED 429; Port.] grease made from the fat of a shark's liver, kept for a month or two and used to caulk ships
Mwaana/ hatá/ chiwa mwaana/ muke mweema/ huwa siinfa. 'Until a child becomes (fully a child), a good woman is (like) the caulking (that holds the child together).' (A proverb which conveys the idea that raising a child is a difficult task, that the mother is the glue that holds everything together.)
- chi-siinga (zi-) n. 7/8 [unknown etymology] basin, bowl Lesele mtuzi? 'Did you bring soup?' (Possible answers: Ee/ wumo chisingaani. 'Yes, it is in the bowl.' Or Ee/ nnayo (or: nnawo) mtuzi/ chisingaani. 'Yes, I have some soup in the bowl.'
Mtuzi/ nnawo chisingaani. 'The soup, I have it in a bowl.'
na mtuzi/ ka chisiinga 'and soup in a bowl'
- siniini/ na miniini [a set phrase from Arabic] years and years siniini (Ar. sinun, plural of sana = year, Wehr p. 433)
- siiniya n. 9/10 [Sw. sinia SSED 432] a kind of large tray Haliima/ mpele Hamadi/ kuja/ ka isiiniya/ ikulu. 'Haliima gave Hamadi food with a large plate.'
Haliima/ wawekelele marti/ zijo/ ka isiiniya. 'Haliima put zijo for the guests in a big dish.'
mkate wa siiniya 'a kind of cake made from flour and very little oil'
rel.
chi-siiniya (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
ma-siiniya n. 6 trays
Waana/ wotte/ wachiyaa kuja/ laakini/ wamalizopoo kujá/ nt^hawakhaadira/ kuwawona/ khaadimu/ waleselo zaakujá/ walá/ awaje/ wa'ondrolo masiiniyá. 'All the children ate food but when they finished eating, they were not able to see the servants who had brought the food nor those who had removed the trays.'
- kh-siinziila v. [Sw. sinzia SSED 432] (sinziile) feel sleepy na keesho aakhera ziiko su'aali/ Mooja hasiinziili Mooja halaali [st.] 'and tomorrow, in the afterlife, you will be questioned; God never feels sleepy nor does he sleep'
rel.
kh-sinziilila v. appl. (sinziilile)
Ondroka/ sinsinziililé. 'Get up! Don't fall asleep on me!'
- u-siinziizi n. 14 [Sw. usinziigi SSED 507] sleepiness, drowsiness, sleep
Chilangala t.v./ niingi/ hushikowa usiinziizi. 'If I watch a lot of t.v., I get sleepy.'
Karkaa ye/ walimo usinziziini/ ilee nyunyi/ jile nt^heendre/ yote/ nt^hakhsaaza/ hatá/ haba mooyi. 'While he was sleeping, a bird came and ate all the dates and did not leave behind even a single one.'
khтила ruuhu/ usinziziini 'to pretend to sleep' Mp^haka/ shtila ruuhuye/ usinziziini. 'The cat pretended to be asleep.'
khтила usiinziizi/ usinziziini 'to induce sleep' Ziboori/ huhadoowa/ muunt^hu/ chija/ humtila usiinziizi. 'It is said of ziboori that if one eats it, it helps him to sleep.'
kondroka ka usinziziini 'to awake from sleep' kondrola ka usinziziini 'to wake up from sleep'
Chimondrola waawaye/ ka usinziziini. 'She woke her father up from sleep.'
Sultaani/ ondroshelopo ka usinziziini/ chunganya ma'askariwe/ wotte/chiwapa amri/ chiwa'ambila/ olokaani/ safiraani/ kiḷa muuyi/ wimo karka nt^hiyá/ na kiḷa mwaamuḅlǐ/ takuzaloowá/ muḅleni/ ka paapo/ apo. 'When the sultan got up from sleep, he gathered all his soldiers, and he issued an order, telling them: go and travel to every town that is in my land, and each boy that is born, kill him right then and there.'

usinzizi habba 'a little sleep' usiinzizi/ kubaha 'of sleep to be lost—i.e. not be able to sleep'

Mi/ waliko nshishiḷa usiinzizi/ Hamadi/ jisaa ye/ shtilo maneno miingi/ haṭá/ usiinzizi/ umbeelee. 'I was feeling sleepy, (but) Hamadi was speaking too much (to me) to the point that sleep was lost (I was unable to sleep).'

usinzizi la'aani 'insomnia'

usinzizi miingi 'a lot of sleep'

Usiinzizi/ umbeelee. [H!H] 'Sleep was lost to him -- i.e. he was not able to sleep.' Or with the same meaning: Umbele usiinzizi. Or: Umbeloo ye/ (ni) usiinzizi. [H!H] 'What was lost to him was sleep.'

Usiinzizi/ umbeelee/ Hasani. 'Hasani could not sleep.' (There is a clear drop in pitch between the verb and Hasaani, a drop that differs from canonical downstep intonation in our judgment. This is confirmed by the simple yes-no question, where Hasani undergoes accent-shift: Usiinzizi/ umbeelee/ Hisani? In the exclamatory question, the verb also undergoes accent-shift: Usiinzizi/ umbeelé/ Hasani!?)

Wachiimba/ washteza/ haṭá/ sa'a ikumi/asku/ ba'ada ya apo/ dhokhookhi/yaawo/ itozela/ wote/ usiinzizi/ uwateete/ walaṭize/ nt^hini ya mteendre.

'They sang, they danced, until the hour of ten at night [i.e. 4 a.m.], after that no sound was heard from them, sleep took them all, so that they lay under the date tree.'

siraaji

n. [Ar. sirāj "light, lamp" W 406] a name of the Prophet apa wanamzuure mtume siraaji [st.] 'so that they visit the Prophet Siraaji here' Qaasimu waawaye mtume siraaji [st.] "Qaasimu's father is the Prophet Siraaji" zotte ni qissa za mtume siraaji [st.] 'all are stories of the Prophet Siraaji' siraati

n. [Sw. sirati SSED 433; Ar. sirāṭ "way, path" W 405] the narrow path leading to heaven or to hell

Muunt^hu/ chinendre siraṭi mustakhiim/ huliwaana. 'If a person walks on the straight path he succeeds.'

siri

n. 9/10 [Sw. siri SSED 433; Ar. sirr W 404] secret; [pron. siri or sirri] (The noun siri fails to condition the lengthening of a preceding word-final vowel in the same phrase; this failure reflects the geminate origin of the medial consonant in this word.)

Chint^hu cha piḷi/ siriyo/ simwambile mukeewó. 'The second thing [that I wish to advise you]: don't tell your secret[s] to your wife.'

ka siri 'secretly'

Baduwi/ lazilopó/ sulṭaani/ chamura askari/ kumraasha/ ka siri/ haṭá/ mahala ya/ takiingiló/ chimaliza/ kuya kumkhubura. 'When the nomad left, the sultan ordered his soldiers to follow him secretly up to the place where he went in, then to come and inform him.'

Muke/ ka siri/ chamura makhaadimu/ watatu/ khtukulaa khaṭi/ kumpelekela waawaye/ pashpo/ muunt^hu/ wowote/ kiiwa. 'The woman secretly ordered three servants to carry the letter and take it to her father without anyone at all knowing.'

Oloshela ka siri. 'She went secretly.'

khfanya siri 'to consider, make s.t. a secret' proverb.) Khupeendó/ khupo siriye. ‘Who loves you gives you his secret.’ (A

Kila/ muunth^u/ siriye/ na’iwó/ mojiitu. ‘Everyone’s secret is known by God.’ (A saying.)

secret’ ...kuwaa ye/ nayoo nt^hume/ na ni siri ‘that he had a message and it was a

Mgarwa/ na’iwa/ kuwa sultaani/ uyu/ ni ðaalimu/ nt^ho/ laakini/ ye/nt^hakhaadira/ kiiwa/ siri/ ya safari/ iyi/ yaa ye/ tumiilá. ‘The fisherman knows that this sultan is very unjust, but he could not know the secret [purpose] of this trip that he was being sent on [by the sultan].’

M[w]usha sirriye/ hupata mraadiwe. ‘The one who hides his secrets achieves his goal.’ (A proverb.)

Oyo/ sirize/ niingi. ‘That one, his secrets are many (i.e. he keeps things hidden inside).’

Sho kiwa siriyo/ khubishile safariyo. ‘The one who does not know your secrets hits you [on] your journey.’ (A proverb which conveys the idea that someone who does not know your real condition, situation may harm you out of his ignorance. For example, a manager who has a position to offer does not offer it to someone because he does not know that person needs the work.)

Siri/ hiiwó/ mojiitu. ‘The one who knows a secret is God.’ (A proverb.)

Siri/ hudhoroowa/ ha’itomojoowi/ ibanyaani. ‘A secret is guarded, kept safe,, it is not put outside, i.e. out in the open.’ (A proverb.)

Siri/ ishpita wawili/ siwo/ siri. ‘A secret that passes beyond two (people) is not a secret.’ (A proverb.) Or: Siri/ ichilata wawili/ siwo/ siri.

proverb.) Siri yaa wake/ ha’ipatikani. ‘A secret of women cannot be discovered.’ (A Siri za mojiitu/ zimo karka makhluuquye. ‘The secrets of God are in his creatures.’ (From an Arabic proverb. God works through his servants. Only God knows a person’s real heart.)

siriyo ‘your secret’; sirizo ‘your secrets’

Sultaani/ chamura askari/ kumraasha/ ka siri. ‘The sultan ordered the soldiers to follow him secretly.’

waziiri/ chimwaambila/ kuwaa ye/ takhpeenda/ wo/ keendra/ kaake/ ka sababu ya ye/ ililó/ ni amri ya siri ‘the minister told him that he would like for them to go to his place because the reason he had come for was a secret matter’ sita adj., n. [Sw. sita SSED 433 ; Ar. sitta W 397] six; [pron. sita or sitta] (This item, although apparently CVCV in shape, does not trigger lengthening of a preceding word when it is phrase-final. This suggests that the gemination of the Arabic source is reflected in Chimiini. There is a variant pronunciation in Chimiini with gemination, but this may be associated with focus on it.)

askari sita ‘six policemen’

ikumi na sita ‘sixteen’

Ka muda wa sku sita/ wachiwa fijiri/ hendra maduriini/ khtinda skunyi. ‘For a period of six days, whenever it became morning, they went to the bush to cut firewood.’

Mgarwa/ kaleent^he/ numbaani/ sku sitta. ‘The fisherman stayed home six days.’

Mkulazo/ sittawe/ nt^hawakinfa chiint^hu. ‘Your older brothers, the six of them, were of no use.’ (Although a negative verb is typically phrase-final, a semantically empty noun like chiint^hu is commonly drawn into the same phrase as the negative verb.)

ni sita mwaanzo mwaamine rahmaani [st.] ‘(the pillars of faith) are six, the first is that you should believe in God’

Nile kaakó/ nnakhsulaa we/ kump^ha waana/ sittawe/ wa sultaani/ waa we/ bigeno naa ye/ harbí. ‘I have come to you; I want you to give me the children, the six of them, of the sultan with whom you have been warring with.’

Sku ya sita/ mgarwa/ chilawa/ ka numbaani/ naayé/ veto shpeté. ‘On the sixth day, the fisherman left the house wearing the ring.’

wana sita ‘six children’

- Ye/ chiwaviḷa wanawabli sittawe/ chiwa'ambila... 'He called the boys, the six of them, to come and said to them...'
rel.
siṭaashara n., adj. sixteen
- siiṭa adj. sour, bitter chindrimu chisiiṭa 'a sour lemon' iziwa isiiṭa 'sour camel's milk' Iziwa/ iwele isiiṭa. 'The milk turned sour.'
...laakini/ manyi/ maleemale/ yotte/ apo/ yawaliko masiiṭa 'but all the grass there was tall and bitter' siiṭa/ kana chindriimu 'as sour as a lemon/lime' Omari/ nakhsonda chiloozi/ chisiiṭa/ kana chindriimu. 'Omari is sucking on candy as sour as lemon.'
siiṭa/ kamba ukwaayu or siiṭa/ kana ukaawu 'as sour as tamarind' Haliima/ uzile iziwa/ isiiṭa/ kana ukaawu. 'Haliima bought milk as sour as tamarind.'
Omari/ lesele embe/ mbiti/ siiṭa/ kana ukaawu/ nṭazinamuzikila. 'Omari brought ripe mangoes sour like tamarind, they are not getting sold.'
- siṭaara n. [Ar. sitara "veil, screen, cover" W 397 and verb satara "to hide, conceal" W 397] hiding place, a place of concealment Mahala iyi/ nṭayná/ siṭaara. 'This place is exposed (it has no place for hiding things).'
- siṭaashara adj. sixteen Jeelaani/ waliko mubjaana/ wa miyaka siṭaashara. 'Jeelaani was a boy of sixteen years.'
- siṭaashara n. a game played involving throw sea shells up in the air Nakhteza siṭaashara. 'He is playing siṭaashara.'
- siti n.
Sultaani/ chiwa'ambile wayaana/ endraani/ mwambilee siti/ chihaba/ kuwa ile/ mubjaana/ marti/ nakhsulo kuwonana naawé. 'The sultan told the maids: go, tell the little girl that a young man, a guest has come who wants to see you.'
- sitiini n., adj. [Sw. sitini SSED 433 ; Ar. sittun W 397] sixty ndruuza ni waajibu amri ya diini/ khaansa kiwoowa mas'ala sitiini [st.] 'O my brothers, it is obligatory (to know) the matters of religion, especially for sixty questions to be known' Si/ hupoowa/ miya nṭaano/ na sitiini/ doolarí/ mweezi. 'We are paid five hundred and sixty dollars per month.'
siṭina keendra or sitiini/ na keendrá 'sixty nine' siṭina naane or sitiini/ na naané 'sixty eight' siṭina nṭaano or sitiini/ na nṭaanó 'sixty five' siṭinaa saba or sitiini/ naa sabá 'sixty seven' siṭina sitta or sitiini/ na sittá 'sixty six'
- chi-siwa (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kisiwa SSED 207] island variant: chiziwa
Chisiwa ichi/ nṭashkuwaaliko/ chisiwa/ chaa wo/ walazilo kendra. 'This island was not the island that they had left to go to.'
Chiswaahili/ ni lugha la kaandra/ la wanṭu wakalo zisiwa za wabaajuuni/ na zisiwa za Tanzaniyá. ‘Swahili is the first language of the people who live on the Baajuuni islands and the islands of Tanzania.’

Karka chisiwa ichi/ nt^haku/ chi’iishó. ‘On this island there was no one who was living.’

Wabjaana/ wane/ washoreete/ khsaafira/ koloka chisiwa cha Waqwaaqi. ‘Four young men decided to take a trip and go to the island of Waqwaaqi [an imaginary island].’

siwo

invariable negative copular verb

variant form: suwo

Aasha/ siwo/ tu/ kuwa pishile asha/ na zijamú/ osheeze. ‘Aasha not only cooked dinner, she also washed the dishes (lit. Aasha, it is not only that she cooked dinner, also dishes she washed).’ (In this construction, siwo is not lowered in pitch, but tu is lowered, as it generally is when modifying a verb.)

Aya// siwo/ mambo ya waant^hu/ akhyaari. ‘This is not the behavior of gentlemen.’

Faatima/ tu/ siwo/ enzelo Mwiini/ na Fardoosá/ enzele. ‘Not only Faatima went to Mwiini, Fardoosa also went.’

Humlazima kendra ka maama/ siwo/ ka baaba. ‘She must go to her mother, not her father.’

La/ kubloowa/ siwo/ suura. ‘No, to be killed is not good.’

Mi/ siwo/ mule. ‘I am not tall.’ But not: Mi/ siwoo mule.

Mi/ siwo/ mwaana. ‘I am not a child.’

Mi/ siwo/ nna’iwó. ‘I am not the one who knows.’

miimbili/ siwoo mulé ‘the boy who is not tall’

Munt^hu waa mi/ nimbishiló/ siwo/ uyu. ‘The man whom I hit is not this one.’

Muusa/ nii mule/ siwo. ‘Muusa is tall, isn’t he?’ (Phon. In this sentence, siwo is raised in pitch.)

Muusa/ siwo/ mule. ‘Muusa is not tall.’

Muusa/ tu/ siwoo mule. ‘Only Muusa is not tall.’ Or: Muusa/ tu/ siwó/ mulé. but not sure about the tone on mule

Mwaanawá/ uyu/ siwo/ ye/ siwo/ mubla/ muja waant^hu/ uyu/ siwo/ uje siimba/ ubleejó/ malizo waant^hú. ‘My son, this one is not him, he is not the killer, the eater of people, this one is not the lion that killed and finished people off.’

Ni Ali/ iló/ siwo/ Iisa. ‘It is Ali who came, not Iisa.’

Ni Muusa/ siwoo mulé. ‘It is Muusa who is not tall.’

Siwo/ ichi/ chibuuku. ‘This is not a book.’ Cf. Siwo ichi chibuukú? ‘Isn’t this the book?’

Siwo ichi chibuku cha Nuurú/ uziló? ‘Isn’t this the book that Nuuru stole?’

Siwo/ icho. ‘It is not that one.’ (Cf. Siwo ichó? ‘Isn’t it that one?’ Notice the shift of the accent on icho in the yes-no question, as well as the lack of a phrase break after siwo.)

Siwo/ mi. ‘It’s not me.’ (One doesn’t say Si/ mi. All the independent pronouns are parallel: Siwo/ we. ‘It’s not you.’ Siwo/ ye. ‘It’s not him/her.’ Siwo/ si. ‘It’s not us.’ Siwo/ ni. ‘It’s not you (pl.)’ Siwo/ wo. ‘It’s not them.’ Siwo/ cho. ‘It’s not it [cl.7].’ Siwo/ zo. ‘It’s not them [cl.8].’

Siwo/ mooyi/ karkaa wo. ‘He is not one of them.’

Siwo uyu mwaaná? ‘Isn’t this the child (that was previously discussed)?’

Sultaani/ shkasa khabari izo/ ye/ suliiile/ kiiwa/ kama khabari/ izi/ ni lila/ amó/ siwo. ‘The sultan heard those reports and he wanted to know if these reports were true or not.’

Ye/ siwo/ mule. ‘He is not tall.’

Zisu izi/ suwo/ skali. ‘These knives are not sharp.’

Siyaama

n. a coastal location north of Brava

Siyaama/ haṭá Mwiini/ ni takhriibu/ kilomeṭiri thalathiini/ ka miilu/ nii kule.

‘From Siyaama to Brava is about thirty kilometers, it is far to be walked by

- foot.’
waana wafakeete Daawu na Siyaama [nt.] ‘young people fled to Daawu and Siyaama’
- siyaasa* n. [Sw. siasa SSED 428; Ar. siyāsa W 441] politics
Muunt^hu/ hingilo siyaasá/ huwa miizi. ‘Men who enter politics become corrupt (lit. thieves).’
- siyi* [cl.5] here it is; [pron. siyí]
- siyi* [cl.9] here it is; [pron. siyí]
Kana/ siyí/ inajililoovani. ‘Here is the mouth, what to be eaten with it?’ (A proverb which conveys the idea that talking is easy, but action is not.)
Siyí/ mi/ maliizé/ khfanya jahazi/ nini/ teena. ‘Here it is, I have finished building the dhow. What next?’ (Note that the first person SM is elided in maliizé, which is underlyingly /ni-maliizé/).
Na siyí/ khatí/ yaa ye/ andishiló/ ka mkonowé. ‘And here is the letter that he wrote with his own hand.’
Numba/ siyí. ‘Here’s the house.’
- siyije* [cl.5] there it is; [pron. siyijé]
variant form: sijé
Numba/ siyijé (or: sijé). ‘There’s the house (far from us).’
- si(y)üje* [cl.9] there it is; [pron. siiyé]
- siyo* [cl.5] there it is; here it is; therefore, thus; [pron. siyó] siyó/ numayó ‘lit. here it is, there it is, therefore, next you’
Siyó/ numayó/ khiriile. ‘Therefore, after you, he accepted (suggests that you somehow played a role in his accepting, perhaps persuaded him to do so).’
Siyó/ numayó/ chiruuda. ‘Therefore, after you, he returned (suggests that you somehow played a role in his returning).’
Siyó/ numayó/ mi/ nfulishiize/ ahdiya. ‘Here it is, now it is up to you, I have kept my promise.’
- siyo* [cl.9] there it is; here it is; [pron. siyó]
Mahmaahi/ yingine/ siyó/ yaa mi/ nhadiiló/ muunt^hu/ kaleent^hó/ haani/ chaayi. ‘Here is the other proverb that I said: a man who is seated does not drink tea.’
Siyó/ huṭasawara/ kuwa ziiint^hu/ ziwele suura/ laakini/ mi/ siweeki/ masharti/ na iyo. ‘So maybe things have improved, but I wouldn’t bet on it.’
Siyó/ mahmaahi/ inakuhada jis’iyo/ ma’anaye/ kilaa chiint^hu/ nt^ha’ipatowa ka maṭezo. ‘Thus, the proverb is saying that way, it means, each thing, it is not gotten with playing (i.e. you must work for anything that you want).’
Siyó/ mahmaahi/ ni jis’iyo/ ma’anaye. ‘Thus, the proverb is like that, its meaning.’
Numba/ siyó. ‘There’s the house (near you).’
- sizi* [cl.8] here they are; [pron. sizí]
Chibiga hoodi/ shfungulilowa mlaango/ chihada/ daadá/ sizi/ ndrevu zaa mp^hisi. ‘She asked permission to enter and was opened for the door; she said: my grandmother, here they are, the [hairs of the] beard of the hyena.’

sizi	[cl.10] here they are; [pron. sizí] Ndrutizo/ sizi. ‘Here are your sticks.’ Ngoombe/ sizi. ‘Here are the cows.’ (Or: Ngoombe/ sawó.) Nuumba/ sizi. ‘Here are the houses.’ Sizí/ ndruti. ‘Here are the sticks.’
sizije	[cl.8] there they are; [pron. sizijé]
sizije	[cl.10] there they are; [pron. sizijé] Ngoombe/ sizijé. ‘There are the cows (far from us).’ Or: Ngoombe/ sawajé. Nuumba/ sizijé. ‘There are the houses (far from us).’ Sizijé/ ndruti. ‘There are the sticks (far from us).’
sizo	[cl.8] there they are; [pron. sizó]
sizo	[cl.10] there they are; [pron. sizó] Ngoombe/ sizó. ‘There are the cows (close to you).’ Or: Ngoombe/ sawó. Nuumba/ sizó. ‘There are the houses (close to you).’ Sizó/ ndruti. ‘There are the sticks (close to you).’
skaarpa	n. [Ital. scarpa] shoe of the western type Alí/ vete skaarpa/ Itaaliya/ zilusi. ‘Ali wore black Italian shoes.’ Skaarpa/ hufakharoowa/ za Itaaliya. ‘Shoes from Italy are praised.’
chi-ski (zi-)	n. 7/8 [etymology unknown] ear (of maize) Na weene/ ziski/ saba/ akhõari/ zoloolo/ na ziskí/ sabá/ skavú. ‘And he saw seven green tender ears of corn and seven dry ears of corn.’ Omari/ nakhpapula ziski. ‘Omari is detaching the ears of corn.’
skiifari	n. 9/10 ikaandra/ na skiifari ikaandra/ na skifariyé nkhaandra/ na siifari nkhaandra/ na skifarizé
chi-skita (zi-)	n. [etymology unknown] stripe; the plural form ziskita is commonly used for thin strips of fish or meat that are put under the sun to dry – ziskita of meat can then be used to make odka Fanyize nguwoye/ ziskita. ‘He tore up (lit. made) his cloth in stripes.’ ziskita zaa muto ‘thin stripes of fresh-water fish’
mu-skiti	n. see under mw-iskiti
skoola	n. school khariibu/ na skoola ‘near, close to the school’ khariibu/ ya skoola ‘near, close to the school’ Mi/ ni mwaalimú/ wa skoolá/ yiko muyiini. ‘I am a teacher of the school that is in town.’ Mwaalimu Rufaa’i/ zamaani/ skolaani. chisomesha jograafiya. ‘Teacher Rufaa’i in the old times at school taught geography.’ Ni skoola/ yiko muyiini. ‘It is the school that is in town.’ Skoola/ itakhfanya koncheerto/ khpata peesa. ‘The school will put on (lit. make) a concert in order to raise (lit. get) money.’ Skoola/ yiko muyiini. ‘The school is in town.’ Skoola/ yiko muyiini/ yiikó. ‘The school is in town, that’s where it is.’

rel.

mwaanaaskoolā (w-) n. 1/2 student = mwaana/ wa skoolā

many students.'

Fardoosa/ nt^hanaayo/ wanaaskoolā/ wiingi. 'Fardoosa does not have Mwaalimu/ nt^hanayo wana wiingi/ wa skoolā/ ni Fardoosa. 'The teacher who does not have many students is Fardoosa.'

Namwiiwá/ mwaalimu/ nayo wanaaskoolá/ waṭaanó. 'I know a teacher who has five students.'

Namwiiwá/ mwaalimu/ nayo wanaaskoolá/ waṭaanó/ namwiiwó. 'I know a teacher who has five students, that's what he has.'

Ni Fardoosa/ nt^hana wana wiingi/ wa skoolá. 'It is Fardoosa who does not have many students.'

Ni Osmaani/ nayo wana waṭaanó/ wa skoolá. 'It is Osmaani who has five students.' (Apparently, wana wa skoolā can be used as an alternative to wanaaskoolā; in this usage, an adjectival modifier may be placed after the head of the associative phrase, resulting in...wana waṭaano/ wa skoolā.)

Ni Osmaani/ nayo wana waṭaanó/ wa skoolá naayó. 'It is Osmaani who has five students, that's what he has.'

Osmaani/ nayo wanaaskoolā/ waṭaano/ naayó. 'Osmaani has five students, that's what he has.'

Osmaani/ nayo wana waṭaano/ wa skoolá. 'Osmaani has five students.'

Skoolā/ za Misra n, the Egyptians' schools; Egyptian teachers ran schools in Brava (and other Somali towns); they taught all subjects in Arabic; these schools were located near the market

skoortā

n. [Ital. scorta] spare, extra

Mi/ daa'imu/ huṭukula kuulu/ skoortā/ maadamu/ kana kulu ya gaari/ ichint^humbukila. 'I always carry a spare tire in case I have a puncture.'

sku

n. 9/10 [Sw. siku SSED 430] day(s), as in a twenty-four hour period, as opposed to muunt^hi 'daytime'

Abdurahmaani/ sku mbili izi/ skumona/ ba. 'Abdurahmaani, these days I never see him.' (The word order in this sentence is quite free. Notice the following variants, none of which involve focus and the shift of the verb to pseudo-relative form: Sku mbili izi/ skumona/ ba/ Abdurahmaani. Or: Sku mbili izi/ Abdurahmaani/ skumona/ ba. Or: Skumona/ ba/ Abdurahmaani/ sku mbili izi. Or: Skumona/ ba/ sku mbili izi/ Abdurahmaani.) haṭá/ sku mooyi 'not even one day'

Ishpita sku ya kaandra/ sku ya piili/ sku ya taatu. 'The first day passed, the second day, the third day.'

Kalent^he/ sku/ Hamadi/ numbaani/ ka Omari. 'Hamadi stayed days in Omari's house.' Or: Kalent^he sku) Hamadi) numbaani) ka Omari.

Masku/ ya sku ya piili/ waziiri/ naayé/ lazile/ oloshale kinendra'ineendra/ muyiini. 'The night of the second day, the minister [lit. and he] left and went to take a stroll in town.'

Maṭezo/ ya sku iyo/ nakhkuumbuká/ we? 'The game of that day, do you remember it?'

Maṭezo/ ya sku/ yaa we/ chihadó/ yawaliko masuura. 'The game of that day that you spoke of was a good game.'

maṭezo/ ya sku za Ramaḍaani 'games of the days of Ramadhan'

Ni skú/ Hamadi/ kalent^ho numbaani/ ka Omari. 'It is days that Hamadi has stayed in Omari's house.'

Nt^haskupita/ sku niingi/ maali/ yachimḷaṭa. 'Not many days passed before the money was gone (lit. money left him).'

skizi 'these days, nowadays' (contracted from sku izi)

Sku izi/ haypatikani/ kaazi/ ka sahali. 'These days it is not easy to get a job.'

Sku izi/ nama/ hupatikanana ka shidda. ‘These days meat is found with difficulty.’
Sku mo/ chiya muunt^hu/ kazima mp^huundra. ‘One day a man came to borrow the donkey.’

sku mooyi ‘one day’

Sku ¹niingi/ Hamadi/ nt^hakuuya/ numbaani/ ka Omari. ‘(It is so) many days that Hamadi has not come to Omari’s house.’ (In this example, niingi was extremely raised in pitch and the syllable ni exaggeratedly lengthened.)

Sku niingi/ spisile jis’iyi. ‘Many days passed this way.’

Sku niingi/ spisile jis’iyo/ haṭá/ sku mooyi/ mp^haamp^ha/ chimwambilaa nfuye...
‘Many days passed that way until one day the shark said to the monkey...’

¹Sku/ skujaa nama. ‘Days I haven’t eaten meat.’ (Note that the focus on sku triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb, which is revealed in the final accent. The focus on sku also allows the negative verb to be phrased with the complement nama.)

sku ya iddi ‘the day of Eid’ sku za Hamidi (or: Hamadí)/ waliko kiinú ‘the days that Hamadi was at your house’; or: Hamadi/ sku zaa ye/ waliko kiinú ‘Hamadi, the days that he was at our house’

sku za kuwalaanga ‘days to be counted (for example, when one has a fixed number of days for a journey, a holiday, etc.)’ sku za zamaani ‘the days of old’

Skuja/ sku izi/ nama. ‘These days I haven’t eaten meat.’

Skuja/ ¹sku/ nama. ‘I haven’t eaten meat for days.’

Skumona/ sku izi/ Hamadi. ‘I haven’t seen Omari these days.’

ya sku gani ‘of which days?’

matezo ya sku gani ‘games of which days?’

ziyara ya sku gani ‘visit of which days?’

ma-sku

n. 6 (in the) night, evening (Note: this word is not used in the locative: maskuuni.)
chiwaa ye/ nakhsulaa muke/ wa masku mamooyi ‘if he wants a woman for one evening’

Chilawopo numbaani/ kuruudake/ masku/ tu. ‘Whenever he left home, his return was at night only.’

Isa/ ni sa’a nt^hatu za masku. ‘Now the time is nine o’clock.’

Khaadimu/ washfunga safari/ washfakaṭa masku/ na muunt^hi/ haṭá/ washkoma muuyi/ wa wawayee muke. ‘The servants set off on the journey and they ran night and day until they reached the town of the wife’s father.’

masku aya ‘this night’

Masku ayo/ nt^hakuja/ chiint^hu. ‘That evening he did not eat anything.’

Masku ayo/ wote/ wachilaala/ ka amaani. ‘That evening everybody slept peacefully.’

masku/ khfanya muunt^hi ‘lit. to make night daytime, i.e. to stay up during the night without sleeping’ maskuu kati ‘midnight’

Maskuu kati/ waziiri/ chivalaa nguwo/ chilawa/ ye/ na mooyi/ karka makhadimuyé/ keendra/ ka Ali. ‘At midnight the minister got dressed and went, he and one of his servants, to go to Ali.’

Wakomele nt^hi iyo/ maskuu kati. ‘They arrived in that land at midnight.’

masku/ mukṭa yakomeeló ‘when night arrived’ masku/ na muunt^hi ‘night and day’ (preferred to saying “day and night”)

Masku/ shpanzile ilu yaa muti/ kulaala. ‘At night we climbed up a tree to sleep.’

Masku/ wa’ingile wiizi. ‘Thieves entered during the night.’

Masku/ simpeendi/ muunt^hi/ simpeendi. ‘I do not want him either by night or by day (i.e. absolutely never) -- e.g. said by woman who refuses to continue living with husband’

masku/ tu ‘only at night’

Mi/ husoma masku/ tu. ‘I study only at night.’

Mwaalimu/ handikisha waana/ khati/ masku/ tu. ‘The teacher makes the children write letters only at night.’

	masku ya + day of the week = night before the day in question, e.g. masku ya arabiya ‘lit. night of Wednesday, i.e. Tuesday night in Western characterization of time; in Brava, the day – as in a twenty-four hour period – begins at 6p.m.’
	masku ya miinza ‘[lit.] night of darkness, i.e. the moonless night(s) near the beginning and the end of a lunar month’ masku ya weelu ‘[lit.] night of light, i.e. the night(s) when the moon is full or nearly full’
	Munt^{hi} oyo/ na maskuyé/ washkalaant^{ha}/ apo. ‘That day and its night, they remained there.’
	Mwanaamke/ shkalaant^{ha}/ haṭá/ masku. ‘The girl stayed until night.’
	Nakhsuulani/ masku kati aya. ‘What do you want in the middle of the night?’
skuuli	n. [Sw. skuli SSED 434; Eng. school] Swahilism school Skujiini/ waana/ husomeshowa darsi za ajnaasi. ‘At school children are taught a variety of lessons.’ Waana/ wachimbiza ka skujiini. ‘Children were sent away from the school.’ Waana/ washkoma miyaaka/ siṭa/ ya umri/ hupelekoowa/ skujiini. ‘When children reach six years of age, they are sent to school.’
skuola	n. [Ital. scuola] st. school
skuruu	n. screw driver review Omari/ nakhsula khfungula miilu/ daada/ ka skuruu. ‘Omari wants to open the nuts of the tires with a screwdriver.’
skuwaadra	n. team, squad Ka paapo/ skuwaadra/ ya Hamiisi/ watile chigooli/ cha kaandra. ‘Suddenly, Hamiisi’s team scored the first goal.’ Nṭ^haasá/ huṭasawara/ skuwaadra/ kunajiha. ‘It remains possible for the team to be successful.’
mu-smaari (mi-)	n. 3/4 [Sw. msumari SSED 305; Ar. mismar W 429] nail kubiga musmaari ‘to make biting, stinging remarks’ Omari/ ile numbaani/ nimbishile musmaariyé/ nt^hukoona ‘Omari has come home; did you not see that I have given biting, stinging words?’ Omari/ mbishile Hamadi/ musmaari (or: musmaariye)/ ka ajabu iyo need gloss Omari/ mkali/ kubiga waant^{hu}/ musmaari. ‘Omari is good at making stinging, biting remarks about people.’
mu-smiino (mi-)	n. 3/4 [Sw. msumeno SSED 305] a saw (for cutting) khtiinda/ kana musmiino ‘to cut as a saw cuts’ Mino ya ngeena/ makali/ yaṭakhuṭiinda/ kana musmiino. ‘The teeth of a crocodile are sharp, they cut like a saw.’
i-smu (ma-)	n. 5/6 [Sw. isimu or ismu ‘(1) name; (2) a person himself, or thing itself’ SSED 144; Ar. ism W 427] any one, no one, none at all; everyone, everything; name; noun (in grammar) chizaliloowa maana ismu mtaliile [st.] ‘when a child is born to you, choose a name for him’ Hamadi/ lasile/ ka ismu/ ya mojiitu. [H’H!H!H] ‘Hamadi swore in the name of God.’ Hamadi/ nayo ismu/ ikulu/ Mwiini. [H’H!H!H] ‘Hamadi has a great name in Brava.’ (Note how the modifier ikulu is phrased separately from the noun ismu .)

The noun is not downstepped relative to Hamadi, but the adjective is downstepped, as well as the following noun.)

ismu iwovu ‘a bad name’

Ismu/ ya ariplaano/ leelo/ nthaykuuya/ Mkhodiisho. ‘No plane came to Mogadishu today (lit. any of airplane today did not come to Mogadishu).’

ismu ya chiint^hu ‘anything (lit. name of something)’

Ismu/ ya insi/ simpeendi/ kumwona apa. ‘No one do I want to see here.’

Ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ nayo su’aali/ na’uze. ‘Anyone who has a question, let him ask it.’

Ismu ya muunt^hu/ nt^hakuuya. ‘There is no one who came.’ (Note that one cannot say: Kilaa muunt^hu/ nt^hakuuya. ‘Each person did not come.’)

Ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ siye/ kaaka/ numbaani. ‘No one should come to my house.’

Ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ takeendra/ aakhera. ‘Everybody will die.’

Ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ takuyo muskitiini/ takhpowaa chiwo. ‘Anyone who will come to the mosque will be given a religious book.’

Makhabriini/ ka Shekh Abdukhaadiri/ huzikowa ismu/ ya waant^hu. ‘Anyone can be buried in the graveyard of Shekh Abudukhaadiri.’

Mbujazá/ ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ skumwaambila/ yaa ni/ fanyiizó. ‘My sisters (a male is speaking), anyone I did not tell what you did.’ Cf. Baayazá/ yaa ni/ fanyiizó/ ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ skumwaambila. ‘My elder sisters (a female speaking) what you did, anyone I did not tell.’

miya mbili na waahidi masmu ya mtume [st.] ‘two hundred and one are the names of the Prophet’

Muunt^hu/ chivanazo peesa/ ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ chiko lminguuni/ hupata. ‘When one has money everything in this world one gets (will get).’

Nt^hakuuya/ ismu/ ya maana/ skolaani. ‘No child came to school.’

Simpeendi/ kumwona ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ apo. ‘I do not want to see anybody here.’ (The word kila would not be found in this environment.)

Siná/ ismu ya dakhli. ‘I have no income whatsoever.’

Sinaayo/ ismu/ ya doodi. ‘I do not have any complaint.’

Sinaayo/ ismu/ ya peesa. ‘I do not have any money.’

wa piili ni Abdalla naayo masmu Taa’ib na Taahir [st.] ‘the second [son of the Prophet] is Abdallah who has [also] the names Ta’ib and Tahir’

so part. [Som. soo as in soo ku ma dhehin ‘didn’t I tell you?’] interrogative element that is used similarly to the English tag question, i.e. to confirm the truth of the proposition or, in the case of a negative verb, to deny the negation, or more generally as a yes-no question

Ali/ leele/ so. ‘Is Ali asleep?’ (The speaker expects him to be asleep and is trying to confirm this, or the speaker has been led to think he is asleep, and wants to be sure.)

Ali/ waliko leele/ so. ‘Was Ali sleeping? e.g. is that why something happened?’ (MI rejected locating so between the auxiliary verb and the verb: Ali/ waaliko/ so/ leele.)

Baana/ jiile/ so. ‘Baana ate, didn’t he?’

Basi/ ye/ kawa nayo khalbi/ na mashkiló/ sula kuruuda/ so. ‘So, if she had a heart and ears, would she have come back?’

Fardoosa/ hukahata/ so/ khsomá/ ismu ya mada yiinginé/ shokuwa ya hisaabú. ‘Does Fardoosa hate studying anything else beside math?’ (Notice that when so is located immediately after the verb, the phrases following all shift their accent to the final vowel.)

Fardoosa/ nakendra khpika asha/ naa kujá/ so. [HH!HH] Is Fardoosa going to cook and eat dinner? (The phrase nakendra khpika asha ‘she is going to cook dinner’ does not undergo the usual downstep intonation, but the conjunction naa kaja ‘and eat’ is downstepped and so is realized at roughly the same height.)

Fiile/ so/ ye. ‘He died, didn’t he?’ Or: Fiile/ ye/ so. (In the second example, all three accented syllables are raised in pitch, i.e. there is no downstepping.)

Hamadi/ boozele/ so/ chibuuku. ‘Has Hamadi stolen the book (that he was expected to steal)?’ Or: Hamadi/ boozele/ chibuuku/ so. (But it is not possible for so to be preverbal: So/ Hamadi/ boozele/ chibuuku. Also: Hamadi/ so/ boozele/ chibuuku.

Hamadi/ huna mbilize/ so/ khamri/ na wiinó. [HHH!HH] ‘Does Hamadi drink both beer and wine?’ (In this example, so is located between mbilize ‘both’ and the conjoined NP. The conjoined NP is downstepped.)

Hiisi/ so/ we. ‘Don’t you know?’

Hiisi/ so/ we/ kama mzele/ msaafiri/ ndilaani/ nakubloowa. ‘Don’t you know, you, that an old man, a traveler on the road, is being killed?’

Hukhaadiri/ so/ we. ‘Are you tired (unable), you?’

Ile/ so/ Hamadí. ‘Hamadi came, didn’t he?’

Jiilé/ so. ‘Did you eat?’ (Cf. Jiile/ so. ‘Did he eat?’)

Leelé/ so. ‘Are you sleeping?’ (Cf. Leele/ so. ‘Is he sleeping?’)

Mi/ anakhpaandrá/ so/ amó/ anakishkilá. ‘Am I climbing up or coming down?’ (But in this example so is not being used to confirm the truth of a proposition, suggesting that so has a wider scope of applicability.)

Mi/ skooloka/ so. ‘Didn’t I go (e.g. you omitted mentioning me as one of the people who went, but I did go, so why didn’t you mention me)?’

Mi/ skufanya kaazi/ so. ‘Didn’t I work (e.g. I worked, so why didn’t you pay me)?’ (Observe that the negative verb is not separated from its complement in this example.)

Ndimí/ so/ nnakiineendró/ ilu yaa nthi. ‘Is it me who is walking on the ground?’

Ndro/ we/ pete wazimú/ so. ‘Come, have you gone crazy?’

Nini/ hiisi/ so/ we/ kama alama yaa nvula/ ni mawiingú. ‘Why do you not know, you, that the sign of rain is clouds (referring to a Chimiini proverb)?’

Noka uyu/ naayo/ so/ lpaangá. ‘This snake, does he have a sword?’

Nt^hakhfaanya/ so/ ye/ kaazi. ‘Didn’t he do the work (e.g. so why are you not paying him)?’ Or: Ye/ nt^hakhfaanya/ so/ kaazi. Or: Nt^hakhfaanya/ ye/ kaazi/ so. (But not Nt^hafaanya/ ye/ so/ kaazi., suggesting that so appears either immediately post-verbal or clause -final.)

Nt^huukuja/ so. ‘(After all) didn’t you eat (presupposes the person indeed did eat)?’ (Cf. Nt^haakuja/so. ‘He ate, didn’t he?’)

Nuuru/ oloshale numbaani/ yana/ so. ‘Did Nuuru go home yesterday (is that why something happened)?’ Or: Nuuru/ oloshale numbaani/ so/ yana. ‘Did Nuuru go home (I think this may be the case but I want to confirm that he did) yesterday?’

Nuuru/ oloshale/ so/ numbaani/ yana. ‘Did Nuuru go home yesterday (as he was expected to do)?’ But also: Nuuru/ oloshale/ numbaani/ yana/ so. This has the same interpretation. (These two sentences involved putting emphasis on the verb and separating it from the following complement. MI rejected putting so between numbaani and the time adverbial: Nuuru/ oloshale/ numbaani/ so/ yana.)

Ofeete/ so/ we. ‘Are you tired?’

Oloshelé/ so ‘Did you go?’ (Cf. Oloshale/ so. ‘Did he go?’)

Omari/ gaari/ so/ pakiiló. ‘The truck, Omari loaded it, didn’t he?’ (The noun which so follows is focused; since in this example, this noun is pre-verbal, the verb must be put into pseudo-relativeform.)

Omari/ gaari/ so/ pakiloo gelé. ‘Omari the truck loaded maize onto it, didn’t he?’

Omari/ gele/ so/ pakilo gaarí. ‘Omari maize loaded on the truck, didn’t he?’

Omari/ huwakahata wana wa Nuuru/ so. ‘Does Omari hate Nuuru’s children?’ (The accent on the penult syllable of Nuuru is raised and not downstepped as in the declarative default intonation. However, the pitch on so is raised even higher. The last syllable of Nuuru continues the high pitch from the penult.)

Omari/ ile/ so/ ka Mkhodiishó. ‘Omari came from Mogadishu, didn’t he?’ (Observe that the phrase to the right of so undergoes accent shift. When so is final, accent shift does not occur: Omari/ ile ka Mkhodiisho/ so. ‘Omari came from Mogadishu, didn’t he?’)

- Omari/ jiile/ so/ namá. ‘Omari ate the meat, didn’t he?’ Compare: Omari/ jilee nama/ so. ‘Omari ate the meat, didn’t he?’
- Omari/ pakile gaari/ gele/ so. ‘Omari loaded the truck with maize, didn’t he?’
- Omari/ pakile gaari/ so. ‘Omari loaded the truck, didn’t he?’ (A sentence with so does not have ordinary downstep intonation. The word which so follows is raised in pitch, and the so itself is perhaps lower in pitch, but not significantly downstepped.)
- Omari/ pakilee gele/ so/ gaari. ‘Omari loaded maize onto the truck, didn’t he?’ (Notice that the noun which so follows is the focus, the subsequent noun undergoes accent shift.)
- Omari/ pakiile/ so/ gaari/ gele. ‘Omari loaded maize onto the truck, didn’t he?’ (The verb is focused in this example, and both of the subsequent phrases undergo accent shift.)
- Omari/ so/ pakilo gaari/ gele. ‘Omari loaded maize onto the truck, didn’t he?’
- Omari/ teete/ so/ imtihaani/ na tomeele. [HHHHH] ‘Has Omari taken the exam and turned it in?’ (Observe that the nominal complement to the first of the conjoined verbs undergoes Accent Shift, but the second conjoined verb does not shift its accent.)
- Skukhaambila/ so. ‘Didn’t I tell you? (Now you will have to pay the consequences of not listening to me.)’
- Sultaani/ chimuza Ali/ mbele za waantu/ wotte/ ndo/ Ali/ ni lila/ so/ za waantu/ wanakuhadó. ‘The sultan asked Ali in front of all the people: come, Ali, is it true what people are saying (about you)?’
- Waana/ wanakulangala tiivi/ so. [HHH] ‘Are the children watching TV?’ (The particle so suppresses the usual downstep intonation of canonical sentences. This does not mean that there is not some declination of the accent on the phrase wanakulangala tiivi, but the lowering is not to the same degree as in downstep intonation. Note that so is of the same pitch height as the preceding phrase.)
- Waawe/ jiile/ so. ‘Father already ate, I suppose? (This sentence indicates the speaker’s regret that he did not arrive in time to eat with his father.)’
- We/ mbishile maaná/ so. ‘You hit the child, didn’t you? did you hit the child (what I saw makes me think you hit the child)?’
- We/ nayo ijini/ nakunt^h oshaa mi/ ni mphundra wa doobi/ so? ‘You are crazy, do you think that I am a washerman’s donkey?’
- Yaayi/ we/ huchaminili/ so/ we/ muna yiitú. ‘How come you do not trust us (with him), you, our younger brother?’

n-so

n. 9/10 [Sw. nso SSED 34] kidney

Hamadi/ nayo maraði yaa nso. ‘Hamadi has kidney disease.’

Hamadi/ nayo nso mooyi/ tu. ‘Hamadi has only one kidney.’

khtilowaa nso ‘(for) a kidney to be put in’ khtomolowaa nso ‘(for) a kidney to be taken out’ maraði yaa nso ‘kidney disease’

Nso/ hujoowa. ‘Kidneys can be eaten, are edible.’

soddo

n. 1/2 brother-in-law (One does not always observe clear gemination in this item, but the intervocalic d is always heard as a very strong stop consonant. In Somali, a single d in intervocalic position would be realized as a fricative, while a geminate dd would be heard as a stop.)

Muuntu/ ha’ebishi/ ruuhuye/ ka soddowe. ‘One does not disgrace himself in front of his brother-in-law.’ (A proverb.)

Omari/ soddowe/ iló. ‘Omari’s brother-in-law came.’ (It is clear from the pseudo-relative form of the verb that there is focus to its left. It is not

Soddo/ hujeroowa. ‘A brother-in-law is respected.’ (A proverb.)

Soddo/ nayo sariigi. ‘A brother-in-law deserves respect (one should be deferential to one’s brother-in-law).’ (A proverb.)

soddowa ‘my brother-in-law’; soddoza ‘my brothers-in-law’

- sogooti n. the act of seeing off; [pron. sogooti]
- kh-sogootisha v. [Som. saagooti "to accompany s.o. who is leaving to say goodbye" DSI 526] (sogotishiize) see off; [pron. kh-sogootisha] Fikiriini/ shpowa khaadimu/ wiingi/ kumsogootisha/ hattá/ nusu yaa ndila. 'Fikiriini was given many servants to escort him half way.' kumsogotisha Sultani Daraayi/ na mukeewé 'to see Sultan Daraayi and his wife off' Omari/ namsogotisha Ali/ nakhsaafira. [H'H!H] 'Omari is accompanying, saying goodbye to Ali, (Ali) is travelling.' (In this example, the complement to the first verb is not downstepped, but instead shows just some declination. The second verb is downstepped. It is noticeable that the second verb is not treated as though it is separated from what precedes by an Intonational Phrase boundary: there is no pitch resetting as normal in such cases.)
rel.
kh-sogotishiliza v. caus. appl. (sogotishiliize) kh-sogotishoowa v. pass. (sogotishiiza) be seen off by Hamadi/ iize/ khsogotishoowa/ numbaani/ kaake/ hadiile/ takendra mii peeke. [H'H!H!H||H!H] 'Hamadi refused to be accompanied to his house; he said: I will go by myself.' (The verb hadiile does not undergo simple pitch resetting, as would be the case if we had a (IP)IP); rather its accented syllable is raised above the preceding accented syllable, indicating a structure (IP)(IP).)
- kh-sookota v. [Sw. sokota SED 434] (sokete or sokosele) twist khsokotaa luzi 'to make thread from combed cotton' Harameni/ sokete luzi. 'Harameni twisted it into thread.'
khsokota mkono 'to twist the hand or arm' khsokota shiingo 'to twist the neck'
Moomini/ msokete mwaana/ mkono. 'Moomini twisted the boy's arm.'
Muunt'u/ khsokotowa mkono/ ni khatari/ hukhadira kuvuundika. [H!H!H!H] 'It is dangerous for one to twist his hand, he may break it.' (Although this example consists of two independent clauses, and in the pronunciation there is a clear pause between these clauses, nevertheless from an intonational point of view there is no clear indication that the first clause is at the end of an Intonational Phrase. Specifically, the second clause does not appear to involve either resetting or raising.) Omari/ msokete mwaana/ mkono/ kaa nguvu/ hatá/ mvuunzile. [H!H!H'HH!H] 'Omari twisted the child's hand with force until he broke him (i.e. broke his hand).'
rel.
kh-sokoteka v. p/s.
kh-sokotela v. appl. (sokoteleele)
kh-sokotesha v. caus. (sokotesheeze)
Awuukari/ msokotesheze mwaana/ luzi. 'Awuukari had the child twist the cotton into thread.'
Baana/ msokotesheze mwaana/ mweenzawe/ mkono. 'Baana made the child twist his friend's arm.'
kh-sokoteshana v. caus. rec.
kh-sokoteshaka v. caus. p/s.
kh-sokotesheleza v. caus. p/s.
kh-sokoteshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.
rel. nom.
m-sookota (wa-) n. 1/2
m-sookoto n. 3

-khsokotela; hamadi nakhsokotela luzi chiguwo (Hamdi is twisting thread a piece of cloth).

-khsokotiloowa; Omari lesele lkaambala khsokotiloowa (Hamadi brought rope to be twisted for him)

-khsokoteka; filo iyi nuumu ha i sokoteki (this wire is hard cannot be twisted)

- soksi n. 9/10 [Sw. soksi SSED 434; Eng. socks] swahilism socks (Although this item was used by our primary consultant, MI, other speakers consider it a Swahilism and not typically used in Chimiini.)
jogi ya soksi ‘pair of socks’
- soola n. the bottom or sole of a shoe Soola/ yaa ngozi/ na soolá/ ya goomá/ siwo/ sawa/ yaa ngozi/ suura/ ngozi/ haayiwi/ imulo. ‘A leather sole and a rubber sole are not the same, the leather one is better, leather does not get hot.’
- kh-soola v. [unknown etymology] (soozele) pound, crush (usu. with a pestle and mortar) in order to separate grains from husks
Chisula mtele/ wiiko/ nganu/ yiiko/ maftaa sehemu/ yaako/ ka khisani/ we/ nakhsulo khsoolá/ mtamá/ kama shkhaadimú. ‘If you want crushed maize, it is there; wheat is there; ghee is there; why do you want to grind corn like a servant?’
Husolaa gele. ‘She crushes maize.’
Mamaye mubli/ chimuuzá/ ka khisani/ we/ nakhsulo khsoolá/ nini/ nt^hawaako/ makhaadimú. ‘The husband’s mother asked her: why do you want to pound, why are there no servants?’
Miini/ gele/ husooló/ nii wake. ‘In Brava it is women who pound maize.’
Mwanaamina/ sozelee gele. ‘Junior Aamina pounded maize.’ Or with verb focus: Mwanaamina/ soozele/ gele. (The simple yes-no question for these two inputs: Mwanaamina/ sozelee géle? and Mwanaamina/ soozele/ géle? GM has an exclamatory version of the sentence without verb focus: Mwanaamina/ sozelee géle!? but is hesitant to offer an exclamatory version of the sentence with verb focus. Data from MI suggests that the expected pronunciation is Mwanaamina/ soozelé/ géle!?) Sozelee gele/ ka muunt^hi. ‘She ground the maize with a pestle.’
Wake/ wanakhsolaa gele/ khtomola wiisha/ khpowa ngoombe. ‘Women are pounding maize to get out the husks to be given to the cows.’
rel.
kh-soolela v. appl. (soleele) pound with Solelee gele/ muunt^hi. ‘She pounded maize with a pestle.’ Or: Muunt^hi/ soleloo géle. ‘It’s with a pestle that she pounded maize.’
kh-soloowa v. pass. (soozela)
Gele/ husolowa kaa chinu/ na muunt^hi. ‘Maize is pounded with a mortar and a pestle.’
- solooli n. [cf. Som. verb salool "to roast s.t., esp. maize" DSI 533] any kind of meat that is dried, then roasted
- kh-sooma v. [Sw. soma SSED 434] (someele) read, read aloud, study
Attá/ leelo/ naayé/ mwanaa masultaani/ naayé/ husoma naaye/ chiwo/ mahala mooyi. ‘Until one day [and he] the son of a sultan [and he] studies with him at the same school.’ (This sentence, from a tale recorded by an unidentified female speaker, illustrates the pervasive use of the phrase naayé ‘and (s)he’ in spoken Chimiini.)
Chibuku icho/ mwaana/ nakhsooma. ‘That book, the boy is reading (it).’ (This example illustrates the left-dislocation of an object. The focus of this sentence is on the verb. If the focus is on an object that has been located in initial position, then the verb must be put into a pseudo-relative form: Chibuku icho/ mwaana/ nakhsoomó. ‘That book, the boy is reading (it).’

If focus is on the subject, the verb is again in the pseudo-relative form:

Chibuku ichi/↑maana/ nakhsoomó. ‘That book, the boy is reading (it).’

Hamadi/ hasoomi. [H!H] ‘Hamadi does not read’ (In sentence-final position, the negative verb is downstepped. This downstep is eliminated in the simple yes-no question: Hamadi/ hasoomi? [HH]. If emphasis is placed on the subject, it is raised in pitch, in comparison to the normal pitch height of an initial phrase, and this raising results in a much more extreme difference in pitch height between the subject and the following negative verb: Hamadi/ hasoomi. [H!!H] ‘Hamadi does not read.’ This sort of emphasis does not constitute focus, as focus would require putting the verb into pseudo-relative form.)

Hamadi/ tu/ nakhsoomó. [HH!!H] ‘Only Hamadi is studying.’

khsoma shteenzi ‘to read a steenzi’

Maryamu/ oyo/ wa Abú/ mpelo chibuukú/ hupeenda/ khsooma. ‘Maryamu, to who(m) Abu gave the book, loves reading.’

Mwaana/ somele chibuuku/ someeló. ‘The child read a book, that’s what he did.’
Cf. Mwaana/ chisomele chibuuku/ chisomeeló. ‘The child read the book, that’s what he did.’

Mi/ waliko nch^hisoma chingereenza/ mukṭaa we/ iló. ‘I was studying English when you came.’

Nakhsooma. ‘(S)he is reading (it).’ (Note that one cannot put this stand-alone verb in the pseudo-relative form: Nakhsoomó. However, if an object prefix is included, as in Nakichisooma. ‘(S)he is reading it.’ then pseudo-relativization is possible: Nakichisoomó.)

Nakhsoma chibuukú. ‘I am reading a book.’ Or: Nakhsoma chibuukú/ nakhsoomó. ‘She’s reading a book, that’s what she is doing.’ But not: Nakhsoomá/ chibuuku/ nakhsoomó. ‘She’s reading a book, that’s what she is doing.’ (The infelicity of this last sentence derives from the fact that the phrasal separation of the main verb puts focus on it, and as a consequence supplants Verb Copy, which is also a device for focusing on the verb.)

Naani/ someeló/ chibuuku. ‘Who read the book?’ (Observe that in a pseudo-relative, the final accent does not extend beyond the focus, which in this case is the pseudo-relative verb.)

Naank^hó/ nakhsooma/ nakhsooma/ nakhsooma/ naank^hó/ uje ikodho/ chiya/ chiingila. ‘Again, he was reading and reading and reading, and again that seagull came and entered in (where he was in the rocks in the sea).’

nk^hachisoomá ‘if I had read it’ (cf. nk^hachisoma chibuukú ‘if I had read the book’)

Nakhsoma zibuuku. ‘He is reading books.’

Naani/ somelo chibuukú. ‘Who read a book?’

Nt^hakhsooma/ zibuuku. ‘He didn’t read books.’

Nt^hawakhsooma/ buuku. ‘They did not read a book.’

Nt^hawakhsooma/ chiwo. ‘They did not read a (religious) book.’

Nuuru/ somelee khaṭi. ‘Nuuru read the letter.’

Omari/ hasoomi/ chibuuku. [HH!!H] ‘Omari is not reading a book.’ (The simple yes-no question version: Omari/ hasoomi/ chibuukú? [HHH].) tense?

Omari/ hasoomi/ chibuuku/ chaa we/ mpeló. ‘Omari is not reading the book that you gave him.’

Omari/ nakhsooma. [H!H] ‘Omari is studying.’

Shfungulaa chiwo/ chisooma. ‘He opened the book and read it.’

Sooma. ‘Read it!’ Somaani. ‘(Pl.) read it!’ Somani khur’aani. ‘Read the Quran!’

Sisoomé. ‘Don’t read it!’ Sisomeeni. ‘(Pl.) Don’t read it!’ Sisomeeni/ khur’aani. ‘(Pl.) don’t read the Quran.’

sultaani/ malizopo khsomaa khaṭi... ‘when the sultan read the letter’

Sultaani/ shpokela/ khaṭi/ iyo/ chi’isooma. ‘The sultan received that letter and read it.’

Waana/ wanakhsooma/ so. [HHH] ‘Are the children studying?’

We/ waliko chisoomani/ mukṭaa mi/ niiló. ‘What were you studying when I came?’
(Possible answer: Mi/ waliko nch^hisoma chingereenza/ mukṭaa we/ iló. ‘I was studying English when you came.’)

Ye/ waliko chisoomani/ mukh̄ta waana/ wa'iló. 'What was he studying when the children came?' (Cf. Ye/ waliko chisoma chingereenza/ mukh̄ta waana/ wa'iló. 'He was studying English when the children came.')

rel.

kh-somasooma v. freq. how do you form the past tense?

Hukalaant^ha/ husomasoma chijuwoche. 'He sits, he reads his book.'

Nakhsomasooma/ apo. 'He went on reading there.'

kh-soomeka v. p/s. (someshele) be readable kh-somekela v. p/s. appl. (somekelele) able to be read for Khati/ imsomekelele ka sahali. 'The letter read easily for him.'

kh-someḷoowa v. appl. pass. (somesheḷa) be read to kana isomeḷeḷa 'lit. as if prayers had been said over it -- said (esp. by women) when water is late in boiling or food is late in getting cooked'

(Mi) nsomeḷeḷa chibuukú/ na Nuurú. 'I was read a book by Nuuru.'

(Mi) nsomeḷeḷaa chuwo/ na Nuurú. 'I was read a religious book by Nuuru.'

(Mi) nsomeḷeḷaa chuwo/ naayé. 'I was read a religious book by him.'

kh-soomela v. appl. (somelele) read to, for, with chibuku chaa mi/ nimsomelelo mwaaná 'the book that I read to/for the child' kumsoomela 'to read to/for him' miwani ya khsomela 'reading glasses (lit. glasses of/for reading)' mwana waa mi/ nimsomelelo chibuukú 'the child to/for whom I read a book'

Nimsomelele mwaaná/ chibuukú. 'I read a book to or for the child.'

Nimsomelele Nuurú/ chibuku cha Alí. 'I read Alí's book to Nuuru.'

Nuuru/ nsomelele chibuuku. 'Nuuru read a/the book to me.'

Siná/ miwani ya khsomela. 'I do not have glasses to read with.'

Skusomeḷoowa. 'I was not read to.'

kh-someleka v. appl. p/s. (someshele)

Hasomeleki/ khati. 'He cannot be read to a letter (e.g. he will keep stopping you, asking questions, etc., making it difficult to get through the letter).'

kh-soomesha v. caus. (somesheeze) teach (Although causative in form, the meaning of this verb is "teach" not "cause to learn". In order to express the latter concept, a periphrastic causative construction would be used: Nuuru/ mtile mwaana/ khsoma chingereenza. 'Nuru persuaded etc. the child to learn English'.)

Chimsoomesha/ oyo mwaana/ numa/ teena/ maamaye/ chimsoomesha/ chibarata qur'aani/ chibarato/ attá/ chiwa mkulu. 'She taught that child and then after his mother taught him, he began to learn the Quran, that's what he learned, until he grew up.'

Chingereenza/ mwaalimu/ wasomesheze waana/ ka chibuuku. 'English, the teacher taught the children with a book.' Or: Waana/ mwaalimu/ wasomesheze chingereenza/ ka chibuuku. 'The children, the teacher taught them English with a book.' (Syn. Topicalization of either chingereenza or waana precludes the use of the instrumental applied verb: Chingereenza/ mwaalimu/ wasomesheze waana/ chibuuku. And also not: Waana/ mwaalimu/ wasomesheze chibuuku/ chingereenza.)

Hasani/ msomesheze mwaana/ bilaa msaa'ada. 'Hasani taught the child without help.'

Lugha la mwaalimu/ someshezo mwaaná/ ka chibuukú/ ni chingereenza. 'The language that the teacher taught the child with a book is English.' (Syn. Note that it would not be possible to use the instrumental applied verb in this construction: Lugha la mwaalimu/ somesheze mwaaná/ chibuukú/ ni chingereenza.)

Mwaalimu Gooso/ chisomesha waana/ nt^hini yaa muti/ wa mawuuyu. 'Teacher Gooso used to teach children under a baobab tree.'

Niwasomesheze waaná/ chingereenza. 'I taught the children English.' Or:

Niwasomesheze chingereenzá/ waaná. Cf. Niwasomesheze waaná/ chingereenza. ‘I taught the children English.’ Or: Niwasomesheze chingereenzá/ waana. Or: Niwasomesheze chingereenzá/ waana. ‘I taught English to the children.’ (These data establish that the order of the objects is not necessarily connected to focus, since final accent can project to the end of the verb phrase regardless of word order. However, it is also possible to put focus on either object complement when it follows the verb immediately. In this case, final accent does not cross over the focused object.)

Nt^hakhsomesha/ waana. ‘(S)he did not teach children.’

Nuuru/ wasomesheze waana/ chingereenza. ‘Nuuru taught the children English.’

Sisomesheeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t teach!’

Sisomesheeni/ waana. ‘(Pl.) don’t teach children!’

Somesha. ‘Teach!’ Cf. Someshaani. ‘(Pl.) teach!’

Someshani waana. ‘(Pl.) teach children!’

Takunsoomesha. ‘He will teach me.’ Other object markers:

Takhusomesha. (Note the elision of ku in front of the second person OM khu.) Takumsomesha. ‘He will teach him.’ (But this could also be: Tamsomesha., with the elision of the infinitive prefix in front of the [cl.1] object marker.) Takichisomesha. (Note the shift of ku to ki in front of the 1 pl. object marker.)

Takinsomesha. (Note the shift of ku to ki in front of the 2 pl. OM.)

Takuwasomesha. ‘He will teach them.’

kh-someshan(y)a v. caus. rec. teach one another kh-someshan(y)ika v. caus. rec. p/s. able to teach each other

Mbele ya wana awa/ haysomeshanyiki. ‘In front of these children, there is no teaching one another (e.g. the children make too much noise, are disruptive).’ (Syn. Observe the impersonal form of the verb, so much used in the passive construction in Chimiini, is used here in the potential/stative form.)

kh-someshan(y)oowa v. caus. rec. pass. (-somesheeny)

Apa/ isomeshenya wanaafakhi. ‘Here there was teaching one another lies.’

kh-somesheka v. caus. p/s.

Somo/ hasomesheki. ‘Somo cannot be taught.’

kh-somesheleza v. caus. appl. teach for, with

Ali/ msomesheleze mwaalimu/ mwaana. ‘Ali taught the teacher’s child.’ Or: ‘Ali taught the child for the teacher.’

Ali/ msomesheleze naani/ mwaana. ‘Who did Ali teach the child for?’

whose child did Ali teach?’ (It is doubtful whether one can use naani in post-verbal position to ask who was taught: *?Ali/ msomesheleze mwaalimu/ naani. ‘Whom did Ali teach for the teacher?’ One would rather say: Ni naani/ wa Ali/ msomesheleze mwaalimú. ‘It is whom that Ali taught for the teacher.’ But look into an example where the beneficiary and the logical object

Chibuku cha mwaalimu/ msomeshelezo mwaaná/ chingereenzá/ ndaaká. ‘The book that the teacher used to teach the child English is mine.’

Chibuuku/ mwaalimu/ wasomesheleze waana/ chingereenza. ‘The book, the teacher used it to teach the children English.’

Chikoopi/ chibuku cha mwaalimu/ wasomeshelezo waaná/ chingereenzá. ‘Where is the book that the teacher used to teach the children English?’ (Notice that it is not possible to say *Waakopi/ wana wa mwaalimu/ wasomeshelezo chibuukú/ chingereenzá. ‘Where are the children whom the teacher taught English with a book?’ Rather, one would use the non-applied verb: Waakopi/ wana wa mwaalimu/ wasomesheze chingereenzá/ ka chibuukú. ‘Where are the children whom the teacher taught English with a book?’

ᶜChingereenza/ nimsomeshelezo Nuurú/ waaná. ‘English I an teaching the children for Nuuru.’ Or: ᶜChingereenza/ nimsomeshelezo waaná/ Nuurú. Or, with two complements preposed: ᶜChingereenza/ waana/ nimsomeshelezo Nuurú. ‘English the children I taught for Nuuru.’ And: ᶜChingereenza/ Nuuru/ nimsomeshelezo waaná. ‘English (for) Nuuru I taught the children.’

Mwaalimu/ msomesheleze Nuuru/ waana/ chingereenza. ‘The teacher taught Nuuru’s children English.’

Mwaalimu/ nakhsomesheleza chibuuku. ‘The teacher is teaching using a book.’

Mwaalimu/ nakuwasomesheleza wanafuunzi/ chibuuku. ‘The teacher is teaching the students using a book.’ (Compare the alternative formation with the simple causative verb and a prepositional phrase: Mwaalimu/ nakuwasomesha wanafuunzi/ ka chibuuku. ‘The teacher is teaching the students with a book.’)

Mwaalimu/ namsomesheleza ra’iisi/ mwaana. ‘The teacher is teaching the child for the president, the president’s child.’

Mwana wa mwaalimu/ msomeshelezo ka chibuukú/ ni Mzamiilu. ‘The child whom the teacher taught with a book is Mzamiilu.’ (Note that one cannot use the instrumental applied verb in this construction: Mwana wa mwaalimu/ msomeshelezo chibuukú/ ni Mzamiilu.)

Mwana wa mwaalimu/ namsomeshelezo ra’iisi/ ni mweenzawa. ‘The child whom the teacher is teaching for the president is my friend.’ Cf. also: Ra’isi wa mwaalimu/ namsomeshelezo mwaaná/ ni mweenzawa. ‘The president for whom the teacher is teaching the child is my friend.’ (The interpretation of these two sentences is determined by pragmatics: a child is taught for a president and a president is not taught for a child. Grammatically, either the beneficiary or the logical object position can be relativised into, and if the two NPs govern the same agreement, the grammar does not tell us whether the head of the relative is the beneficiary or the logical object.)

Naani/ msomeshelezo mwaalimú/ mwaaná. ‘Who taught the teacher’s child [lit. who taught for the teacher the child].’

Nimsomesheleze ᶜchingereenzá/ Nuuru/ waana. ‘I taught English to the children for Nuuru.’ (We did not record a pronunciation with this word order where there is not focus on chingereenza. When there are just two complements to the verb, we did record both word orders with normal downstep intonation. It needs to be reviewed whether the same holds for verbs that take three complements.)

Nimsomesheleze Nuurú/ waaná/ chingereenzá. ‘I taught the children English for Nuuru.’ (Note that in this structure there is no internal focus and the final accent from the verb projects to the end of each phrase in the verb phrase.)

Nimsomesheleze waaná/ chingereenzá/ Nuuru. ‘I taught for him the children English, Nuuru.’ (In this example, the beneficiary Nuuru, which controls the object marker on the verb, is right dislocated to the end of the verb phrase. This right dislocated noun phrase is out of the scope of the final accent triggered by the verb.)

Uzile chibuuku/ khsomesheleza mwaana. ‘He bought a book to use to teach a child.’ (The noun mwaana is interpreted here as indefinite due to the absence of an object marker in agreement with it on the verb. Cf. Uzile chibuuku/ kumsomesheleza mwaana. ‘He bought a book to use to teach the child.’)

Uzile chibuuku/ kumsomesheleza muuntʰu/ mwaana. ‘He used a book to teach a/the child for the man.’

kh-someshelezeka v. caus. appl. p/s.

Somo/ hasomeshelezeki/ waana. ‘Somo cannot have children taught for him (i.e. there is something about his behavior that makes it difficult to teach his children, e.g. he interferes too much, he cannot be satisfied, etc.).’

kh-someshelezoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

Chiikopi/ chibuku cha mwaana/ somesheleza chingereenzá. ‘Where is the book that the child was taught English with?’

Chiikopi/ chibuku chisomesheleza mwaaná/ chingereenzá. ‘Where is the book that was used to teach the child English?’

Chiikopi/ chibuku somesheleza mwaaná/ chingereenzá. ‘Where is the book that the child was taught English with?’ (In this sentence, the head of the relative clause immediately precedes the relative verb; the subject of the relative verb has been postposed immediately after that verb. The head, the relative verb, and the postposed subject are all joined together into a single phonological phrase: chibuku somesheleza mwaaná.)

Hamadi/ somesheleza waana/ na mwaalimu. ‘Hamadi’s children were taught by the teacher.’ (Note that only the “beneficiary” may be the subject of the passive of the causative applied verb. Waana cannot control a subject marker: Waana/ wasomesheleza Hamadi/ na mwaalimu. Of course, because of the inversion found extensively in passive sentences, it is possible for waana to be sentence-initial and Hamadi in post-verbal position, but Hamadi still controls the subject marking: Waana/ somesheleza Hamadi/ na mwaalimu.

munt^hu somesheleza mwaaná/ khur’aani/ na mwaalimú ‘the man for whom the child was taught the Quran by the teacher’

Ra’iisi/ nakhsomeshelezowa mwaana/ na mwaalimu. ‘The president is being taught for the child by the teacher.’ (The subject of the passive of an applied benefactive verb must be the beneficiary. A sentence like Waana/ wanakhsomeshelezowa ra’iisi/ na mwaalimu. cannot mean that the children are being taught for the president, but only that the president is being taught for the children.)

Ukopi/ munt^hu somesheleza waaná. ‘Where is the man who had his children taught [for him]?’

Waakopi/ want^hu wasomesheleza waaná/ chingereenzá. ‘Where are the people whose children were taught English?’

kh-someshoowa v. caus. pass. (somesheeza) be taught by; be called after another person, i.e. be given that person’s name

Ali/ somesheza waank^hule. ‘Ali was called after his grandfather, i.e. he was given his grandfather’s name.’

Mwaana/ oo somesheza darsi/ ni Nuuru. ‘That child who was taught the lesson is Nuuru.’ But also: Darsi/ iyo isomesheza mwaaná/ ni sahali. ‘That lesson was taught to the child is easy.’

Mwaana/ somesheza darsi. ‘The child was taught the lesson.’ But also: Darsi/ isomesheza mwaana. ‘The lesson was taught to the child.’ zina zisomesheza waaná/ na mwaalimú ‘passages that were taught the children by the teacher’

kh-somoowa v. pass.

Chiwo/ mahaḷa hachisomoowí/ hashfunguloowi. ‘A book where it is not read should not be open.’ (A proverb.)

Isomeḷa qur’aani. ‘The quran has been read.’ (An impersonal passive. Cf. other impersonal passives where the thing read belongs to various noun classes: Isomeḷaa du’a. ‘Supplication has been read.’ Isomeḷa zibuuku. ‘Books have been read.’ Isomeḷaa ziwo. ‘Religious books have been read.’ These answer the question: Isomeḷani. ‘What has been read?’)

Khaṭi/ haysomoowa. ‘The letter has not been read.’

qasiidaya itimiile/ faataha inasomoowa [st.] ‘my poem is completed, let us recite the faataha’

rel. nom.

m-sooma (wa-) n. 1/2 one who reads

ma-soomo n. 6 studies, reading

Haadi/ t̄imishize masoomoye. ‘Haadi completed his studies.’
Hamiisi/ l̄asile masoomo/ iyo/ ma’anaye/ kuwaa ye/ haruudi/ skolaani/ t̄eena. ‘Hamiisi has dropped out from his studies,, that is, he will not return to school anymore.’
Malizopo masoomoyé/ ize kurasha kooði/ za maamaye/ khkalan^ha numbaani/ khfanya kaazi. ‘When he finished his studies, he refused to follow the words of his mother to stay home and work.’
Masoomoye/ (ni) masuura. ‘His reading is good.’ (Cf. masomoye masuura ‘his good reading’.)

Soomaal̄iya

n. Somalia; [pron. Soomáaliya]
Bandeera/ ya Soomáaliya/ ni bulú. ‘The flag of Somalia is blue.’
Ma’askari/ wa Soomáaliya/ ba’adi yaa wo/ khshiindra/ chiwa’amura ma’aduwi/ kuweka silaha zaawo/ nt̄hiini. ‘The Somali military, after winning (the war), ordered the enemies to lay down their weapons.’
‘Soomáaliya/ inqilaabu/ ituushiló. ‘Revolution happened in Somalia.’
Soomáaliya/ nt̄haku/ adaala. ‘In Somalia there is no justice.’
 rel.

chi-soomaal̄i n.7 the Somali language Ni ’aadi/ waant̄hu/ wa Mw̄iini/ khkoða chisoomaal̄i. ‘It is common for the people of Brava to speak Somali.’

m-soomaal̄i (wa-) n. 1/2 a Somali person
Wasomal̄i leeni/ kapitale yaawo/ ni Hargeysa. ‘The capital of the Somaliland people is Hargeysa.’
Wasomal̄i leeni/ wakali/ khfanya odka. ‘People of Somaliland are very good at making odka.’
Wotte/ ni wasoomaal̄i/ ka sharii’a. ‘They are all legally Somalis.’

some

n. [Sw. somo SSED 435] s.o. named after s.o., namesake review accent etc somá ‘someone named after me’ somó ‘someone named after you’ somé ‘someone named after him, her’ somo waawo ‘someone named after them’ somo wiinu ‘someone named after you (pl.)’ somo witu ‘someone named after us’

soomu

n. [Sw. saumu SSED 411; Ar.] fasting
Mi/ nayo soomú/ skooði/ wanaafakhi. ‘Me, I am fasting, I do not tell lies.’
Muunt̄hu/ chiwanayo soomu/ hakooði/ koðii mbovu. ‘When one is fasting (lit. has fasting) he should not utter bad words, nonsense, etc.’
muunt̄hu hukhadiro soomu wajibu [st.] ‘for a person who is able fasting is obligatory’
na Mtume Mhammadi peenzelo soomuye [st.] ‘and the Prophet Mohammad is the one who loved its fasting (i.e. fasting on that day).’
ni niingi soomu za sunna [st.] ‘the non-obligatory fasts are many’ Soomu/ ramaðaani/ ni farði. ‘Fasting Ramadhan is prescribed.’
soomu za sku sitta Mtume sifiile [st.] ‘the Prophet praised the fasting of (those) six days’

kh-soonda

v. [etymology unknown] (soonzele) suck khsonda miino ‘to suck the teeth (i.e. be so stingy that he sucks his tongue)’
Oyo/ husonda miinoye. ‘That one is so stingy that he sucks his tongue.’
Waana/ wanakhsonda sukari yaa mawe. ‘The children are sucking on rock sugar.’
Ziloozi/ ziko za khsoonda/ na za khtafuná. ‘There are candies for sucking and for chewing.’
 rel. nom.
m-soonda ‘one who sucks’

	m-soondo n. act of sucking
	u-soondo n. act of sucking
chi-soondo (zi-)	n. 7/8 [etymology unknown] paw of an animal (This item is unknown to GM.)
m-soondro (mi-)	n. 3/4 a kind of large, long drum rel. chi-soondro (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. i-soondro (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
