

Contributions to the Description of Chimiini #1

Charles W. Kisseberth
Emeritus Professor of Linguistics
Tel Aviv University

I have spent a substantial part of my professional career as a linguist documenting Chimiini, an endangered language closely related to Kiswahili, but radically different in terms of its prosody and in terms of the very significant impact that Somali has had on its lexicon particularly. The active elicitation of data occurred primarily in 1973-1978 and from 2009 until the present (2019). The late Mohammad Imam Abasheikh was my data source in the first period, while he was completing a Ph.D. in linguistics at the University of Illinois. Gelani Mohamed Diini has worked with me constantly during the second period. Whatever I have learned about Chimiini is a result of their knowledge of the language, their sensitivity to its complex prosodic patterns, and to the passion in their determination to help preserve the language and the culture that it embodies.

Although I have published on various topics concerning Chimiini, in recent years I have worked quite extensively on various projects and papers that remain unpublished. At the age of 79, I have to recognize that there is no certainty that I will see all or indeed any of these through to publication, whether in print or on the internet. It is with this truth in mind, that I decided to begin this series: "Contributions to the Description of Chimiini", which consists of (dated) drafts of various projects and papers. The reader must understand that they are drafts, and while sometimes very long, are only that. But they do offer a huge amount of data and analysis.

The first contribution is my rather massive dictionary and chrestomathy. It contains as much lexicon as I have been able to collect (as of 12-25-2019) and a vast body of sentences and phrases, all of which are prosodically analyzed (setting aside poetry and songs which do not display the same prosody as the spoken language).

Chimiini Dictionary and Chrestomathy (Draft dated 12-25-2019)

Charles W. Kisseberth
Emeritus Professor of Linguistics
Tel Aviv University

with the special assistance of Mohammad Imam Abasheikh
Gelani Mohamed Diini
and Sandra Vianello Abud
Brent Henderson

Preface

It seems fair to say that this book is unlike any other book that has ever been written. There are reasons for this; hopefully good reasons, even if not inevitable reasons.

There are a vast number of languages, many still spoken, and for some of them, we have dictionaries. These dictionaries vary considerably in scope and in comprehensiveness, but they have the same general goal: to document the lexical elements out of which words and sentences in a language are fashioned. Some languages have a considerable literature and this literature usually plays a central role in discovering the lexical resources a language possesses. Other languages are unwritten or lack a significant literature, and as a consequence, documenting its lexicon is primarily an elicitation task. Chimiini falls into this second category. There are of course different means by which lexicon may be elicited. A principal means of eliciting lexicon involves asking if the language has words which express ideas similar to a word in some other language. Chimiini is a Bantu language very closely related to Kiswahili that has had the same substantial Arabic impact, but in addition has been significantly impacted by Somali and Italian. We used all of these languages, as well as English, to elicit the Chimiini lexicon. In any case, when elicitation is the means for assembling the lexicon, there is no way to avoid a certain “hit-or-miss” aspect to the process.

The present book does undertake the essential task of documenting the Chimiini lexicon, not withstanding the difficulty of doing this in a comprehensive manner by mostly relying on elicitation, and relying on an extremely small number of consultants. It just tries to do a whole lot more. What are the additional things that it tries to do and why? Perhaps we should get to the essence of the why immediately. This book documents the Chimiini (originally pronounced Chimwiini) language, a language that originally was almost exclusively associated with the town of Brava or Baarawe (the indigenous name of which is Miini, originally Mwiini) in southern Somalia, but now is spoken in a diaspora that includes a significant population in the United Kingdom (London and Manchester) and the United States (particularly Atlanta and Columbus). Chimiini is what is commonly referred to as an endangered language. There are thousands of speakers at present, but in all of the communities where it is spoken today, its retention among the youth is at risk. This book seeks to preserve as much information about the pronunciation and construction of Chimiini sentences as possible, understanding full well that significant aspects of the language may effectively disappear over time.

It is not just the language that we wish to document, but also to some extent a unique aspect of the language: up until the 1970's, Chimiini was the language of Brava and only of Brava. Chimiini and Brava were interchangeable, one did not exist without the other. This began to change in the 1970s, when a significant number of Somalis were relocated to Brava by Said Barre. It changed entirely in the 1990s, when competing marauding Somali militias drove the majority of the Chimiini-speaking residents of Brava into exile and the town's population became predominantly Somali. Control of Brava by the terrorist group Al-Shabab, which ended only in 2015, served to isolate the town. The fear of violence on the road to Brava continues even now to discourage visits to the town, let alone reintegration, by those who fled. The memory of what life was like in the past is as much at risk as the language. In an entirely haphazard way, this book attempts to preserve aspects of the culture and social life of Miini as it once existed. Example sentences often revolve around people and practices that existed in the olden times (zamaani), but may not survive. These example sentences are an inadequate reflection of the past that was Miini, but they are there to remind us that language and culture are interwoven.

Let us discuss briefly some of the most significant ways in which this book differs from ordinary dictionaries. One major difference has to do with pronunciation. Most dictionaries record the way that the words listed in the dictionary are pronounced. To be more precise, they do not attempt to represent every detail of the pronunciation of a word, but rather the so-called “phonemic” contrasts, i.e. they try to represent those sound contrasts that distinguish one word from another. Some contrasting features of pronunciation may be omitted, but these are usually matters of “prosodic” contrasts like tone which may present special difficulties in terms of analysis and representation. Dictionaries typically represent the phonemic contrasts that a word exhibits when it is pronounced in isolation. They are not particularly concerned with whether words change their phonemic shape depending on their position in sentences. This is largely due to the fact that (setting aside prosody) words in many languages do not differ phonemically depending on the context in which they occur in a sentence, particularly in more careful speech.

Because dictionaries are focused on words in isolation, the extent to which sample sentences are provided varies. The motivation for providing example sentences may be to illustrate the use of a word or the different meanings it may have. The exemplary sentences in this work do have in part similar motivations. But a very large part of the motivation for the huge quantity of example sentences found here is that we wish to describe the prosody of words in Chimiini. By “prosody”, we mean the distribution of vowel length and the presence of accent, where accent is marked by high pitch. But in trying to describe the prosody of words in Chimiini, we come face to face with a critical fact: the prosody of a word varies significantly depending on its location in a sentence. Furthermore, a word located in a particular position in a sentence does not always exhibit the same prosody: there may be alternative options available. Thus the multiple exemplifications of a word in this dictionary is in a significant way motivated by the need to document the varying prosodies that the word exhibits. Although we describe, with considerable confidence, at least one possible distribution of vowel length and accent for most sentences in this dictionary (and often multiple possible realizations), it is not feasible to try to specify the precise relative levels of pitch on the accented syllables (i.e. intonation). There are general principles regulating relative pitch height: for example, accented syllables show a declination in pitch height across a sentence, but emphasis on a syllable may disrupt this declination. We do on occasion make comments about intonation, but in examples from normal speech (as opposed to poetry and songs) we always indicate vowel length and accent (though default penult accent is left unmarked and only final accent is actually marked).

Dictionaries are not repositories of syntactic structures as a rule. This is particularly true insofar as there are languages where words themselves exhibit little of what we can refer to as internal syntax. However, a Bantu language like Chimiini, with its very rich system of verbal morphology and its extensive agreement patterns, presents enormous difficulties for dictionary-making. What do you list in your dictionary? You cannot list all of the words in the language. After all, a single verb root may appear in an extremely large set of distinct word forms (numbering in the thousands) due to the multiple options available to mark subjects, objects, tenses, etc. In the absence of a detailed study of Chimiini syntax in the decades during which this book was compiled, we have often tried to illustrate aspects of Chimiini sentence structure by means of the exemplification of the words of the language. Our hope has been that this material will serve as a guide to the exploration of Chimiini syntactic structure.

This book is based almost entirely on the speech of two speakers. I worked with the first of these speakers, Mohammad Imam Abasheikh, from 1973 until 1978, during which period he completed a Ph.D. program in Linguistics at the University of Illinois. Mohammad Imam's knowledge of his native language (and of all the languages that are of significance to its development) was without parallel, and I could have had no better collaborator in my study of the language (almost totally undescribed at the point in time when our research began). After completing his Ph.D. degree, Mohammad Imam took a teaching position at King Abdulaziz University in Jeddah in Saudi Arabia, where he remained for a quarter of a century. He made two trips of a month each back to the United States in the 1980s, where we continued our work on Chimiini. Unfortunately, circumstances prevented continued collaboration. Mohammad Imam passed away in 2009, but not without having single-handedly provided a secure basis for linguistic research into Chimiini.

Shortly after Mohammad Imam's passing, I made contact with Gelani Mohamed Diini and began anew my research on Chimiini. Gelani Mohamed is part of the Bravanese diaspora living in Columbus, Ohio. His speech does not differ radically from Mohammad Imam, but there are certain points of difference (all of which are mentioned in the course of this book). In any case, the speech of Gelani Mohamed seems to be more similar to current Chimiini. I do not know whether Mohammad Imam's speech reflects an older generation, or a specific dialect, or a stronger Swahili connection (he was bilingual in Chimiini, his father's language, and Kitikuu, the Swahili dialect spoken in the Bajuni islands that his mother spoke).

I have worked with Gelani Mohamed from 2009 to the present. He has been an indefatigable collaborator, and while not linguistically trained like Mohammad Imam, he has proven to be extraordinarily sensitive to the ins and outs of Chimiini prosody and sentence construction.

Sandra Vianello Abud has provided very substantial assistance to this project in several ways. She checked and provided detailed corrections of an early instantiation of this book, The Chimwiini Language Exemplified (2004). She explored the etymologies of many of the Arabic and Somali loanwords in the language. She contributed notes on a variety of topics. Finally, she shared her work on Chimiini poetry, now published as Stringing Coral Beads: The Religious Poetry of Brava (c.1890-1975), edited by Alessandra Vianello, Lidwien Kapteijns and Mohamed Kassim (2018).

Brent Henderson was the key to my being able to renew my research on Chimiini. He informed me in 2009 of the existence of large Chimiini communities in Atlanta and Columbus (each consisting of some two thousand speakers) and asked me to join him as a consultant on his research proposal to study Chimiini as an endangered language. One of his consultants in Atlanta arranged my introduction to Gelani Mohamed in Columbus, resulting in the collaboration that long outlived the time frame of the original grant proposal. While our research was largely independent, Brent shared a variety of materials that were useful in the course of our lexical investigations.

Introduction

1. The representation of Chimiini words and sentences.

From the inception of our work on Chimiini, orthographic representation has been a fraught issue. Although historically there were efforts to use Arabic script to write Chimiini, it remained an essentially unwritten language. Arabic script is a poor vehicle to represent the essential sounds of the language. The Roman script used in writing standard Swahili and Somali are a better fit, but neither exhibit the same set of contrasting sounds. While the Somali script does provide the means to distinguish between long and short vowels (a hugely important element of Chimiini pronunciation), none of the scripts are helpful in capturing the complex accentual facts of the language.

In any case, the problem of writing Chimiini is not just finding the appropriate set of symbols to represent the sounds (whether segmental or prosodic), but also the more difficult problem associated with the fact that the pronunciation of essentially every word in the language varies in systematic ways depending on how that word is embedded in a sentence and how the speaker chooses among the options available to her to realize the sentence. There is usually not just a single way in which a word can be pronounced, nor is there usually a single way in which a sentence can be pronounced.

Our discussion of orthography will focus initially on the word in isolation.

The prosodic representation of example phrases and sentences.

Every example consists of one or more phrases. If the example consists of multiple phrases, a slash occurs at the end of every interal phrase. No slash mark occurs at the end of the last phrase. Therefore if the

- a verbal inflectional element, occurs at the end of an imperative affirmative Chimviila/ baduwi/ chimwaambila/ oloka/ uzá/ ikoofiya/ iyi/ ka sulṭaani/ takhpata peesa/ niingi. ‘He called the nomad and said to him: go and sell this hat to the sultan, you will get a lot of money.’
- a verbal inflectional element, occurs at the end of an habitual affirmative Kila/ fijiri/ mṭindaa mbuzi/ hutaala/ mbuzi/ mooyi/ na munt^hu mooyi/ huwaṭiinda/ hudanganya/ nama zaawo/ chimaliza/ hukalant^ha chizingitiini/ kaake/ huuza. ‘Each morning the goat-slaughterer takes one goat and one human being and slaughters them and mixed their meat together and then sits on his doorstep and sells it.’ (Morph. This example sentence contains four habitual verbs: hutaala, huwaṭiinda, hukalaant^ha, and huuza.)
- a associative particle
ch-a [cl.7]
chisima cha habaasa ‘the well of the prison’
Cho/ siwo/ chaako. ‘It is not yours.’ (Chaako is the fusion of cha and the second person singular possessive root =ako.)
Cho/ nii chiti/ cha naani. ‘Whose chair is it?’
Naani/ nakhsulo kula chita cha ngoombé. ‘Who wants to buy the head of a cow?’
Shkapu cha maame/ chiyelee gele. ‘My mother’s basket is full of corn.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is miino ‘teeth’.)
- l-a [cl.11]
lkandra laa ngozi ‘leather belt’ lkuta la nuumba ‘wall of a house’ lṭata laa chili ‘the part of the leg of the bed that extends above the bed’ luti la Ali ‘Ali’s stick’
- copular of the associative
- mbw-a [cl.1 copular] belongs to, is of, comes from Hamadi/ mbwa Mkhodiisho. ‘Hamadi comes from Mkhodiisho (i.e. that is where he was born etc.)’
Mbuzi/ uyu/ waa mi/ nt^hiinziló/ mbwa sulṭaani/ muunt^hu/ siiwe/ chiza sulṭaani/ shpata khabari/ ye/ takunubla. ‘This lamb that I slaughtered belongs to the sultan, no one should know, otherwise the sultan will get the news and he will kill me.’
- mbw-a [cl.3] poss. cop. belongs to, is of, comes from Muti uyu/ mbwaaká. ‘This tree is mine.’
Numba iyi/ na muyi uyú/ mzimawe/ mbwaa noka/ mooyi/ mkulu/ ka zita saba. ‘This house and this town in its entirety belong to a large snake with seven heads.’
- Walá/ nt^hakhtaala/ hattá/ musmari mooyi/ kuwa mbwaaké. ‘Nor did he take even one nail to be his (of the house).’
- mbw-a [cl. 14]
Omari/ hadiile/ Alí/ unenewe/ ni zaaydi/ mba maraḏi. ‘Omari said that Ali’s fatness is too much, it is of disease.’
- nd-a [cl.6 copular] belongs to, is of Ifungu ya kaandra/ kuwa nda mwajiitu/ ya piili/ kuwa nda sulṭaani/ ya taatu/ kuwa ndaa nsi/ zinapate ku’iisha/ katiike. ‘The first portion belongs to God, the second belongs to the sultan, the third belongs to the fish so that they may live in it.’
- nd-a [cl.9 copular]
Makhasi/ Omari/ tilangililo nguwo/ iwaaliko/ nda Haliima. ‘The scissors that Omari cut cloth with belonged to Haliima.’ (This example from Aweys allowed the head of the relative clause to be followed by the subject of the relative clause without an intervening -a link, which is usually found in the speech of our other consultants.)

Nambile waant^hu/ kuwa kiitu/ ziint^hu/ zotte/ nza ðahabu/ hattá/ nt^hi / nda ðahabu. ‘I told people that in our [my] country everything is of gold, even the earth is of gold.’

Numba iyo/ nda sulṭaani. ‘That house belongs to the sultan.’

nz-a [copular, cl.10]

Chiwona kooḏi/ zaa dafa/ nza liḷa. ‘It realized that the words of the hawk were the truth.’

Jawaabu/ zaa mi/ nikhambiiló/ nza liḷa. ‘The news that I told you is true.’

Nfanyize jis’iyó/ kiiwa/ kama kooḏi/ za waawe/ nza liḷa/ amó/ siwo. ‘I did things this way in order to know if the words of my father were true or not.’

w-a [cl.1]

Munt^hu simemo kharibu yaa ndila/ ni mwanafunzi wa jaama’a. ‘The man who was standing near the road is a student of the university.’

mwana wa mwaalimu ‘the teacher’s child’

w-a [cl.2]

wana wa mwaalimu ‘the teacher’s children’

w-a [cl.3]

muti wa paamba ‘cotton plant’

mwezi wa weelu ‘moon’

w-a [cl.14]

Chimaliza/ chamura shpeteche/ kumruuda/ jisaa ye/ waalikó/ mlusi/usoowe/ kama uso waa nfuye/ na mavaaziyé/ yotte/ mashepe.
‘Then he order his [magical] ring to return him to the way that he had been: black, his face like the face of a monkey, and all his clothes rags.’

Sulṭaani/ shfurahika/ nt^ho/ ka ushujaa’a/ wa Hasani. ‘The sultan became very happy with the courage of Hasani.’

y-a [cl.5]

Ikofiya yaa mi/ mp^heeṭó/ nda mwaana. ‘The hat that I found is the child’s.’

y-a [cl.6]

Mbene maluwa ya Haliima. ‘I saw Haliima’s flowers.’

y-a [cl.9]

darsi yaa mi/ nimweleezó ‘the lesson that I explained’ numba ya Huseeni ‘Huseeni’s house’

z-a [cl.8]

zisima za habaasa ‘the wells of the prison’

ziwo za qur’aani ‘koranic school’

z-a [cl.10]

Baaba/ ondroshelepó/ chimuza khabari za nt^heendre. ‘When father woke up, he asked him the news about the dates.’

dughaghi za maduriini ‘wild animals of the bush’ ndruti za Ali ‘Ali’s sticks’ nk^handra zaa ngozi ‘leather belts’ nk^huta za nuumba ‘walls of a house’

numba za Huseeni ‘Huseeni’s houses’

sku za uzeele ‘old age [lit. days of old age]’

-a relative clause particle (perhaps to be regarded as a special case of the associative particle)

ch-a [cl.7]

chiboonk^ho/ chaa ye/ uziló ‘the whip that he bought’ chisu chaa muke/ cha Nuuru/ azimiiló ‘the woman’s knife that Nuuru borrowed’ chisu cha Nuuru/ azimilo kaa muké ‘the knife that Nuuru borrowed from the woman’

Na kila shpandre chaa nama/ chaa ye/ weeshelo/ weshele be’iye. ‘And each piece of meat that he placed, he put its price.’

l-a [cl.11]

li/ nii luti/ laa mi/ chilmeeró. ‘This is the stick that I was looking for.’
luti laa ye/ vuunziló ‘the stick that he broke’

Mwanaamke/ jiile/ ka lpaandre/ laa ye/ nt^hakhtilaa dawá. ‘The girl ate from the side that she did not put the drugs.’

w-a [cl.1]

Munt^hu w-a Baana/ mweenó/ oloshela. ‘The man whom Baana saw left.’
mwana waa ye/ msomesheezó ‘the child whom he taught’

w-a [cl.2]

wana waa ye/ wasomesheezó ‘the children whom he taught’

w-a [cl.3]

Sku mooyi/ ile eelo/ panzile ilu/ yaa muti/ wa mwalimu Goosó/ chisomesho waaná/ nt^hiiniyé. ‘One day there came a gazelle; he climbed up the tree that Teacher Gooso/ tasught the children under [lit. its under].’

Waṭinzile makharba/ ya kulla muti/ waa wo/ waweenó. ‘They cut the leaves of every tree that they saw.’

y-a [cl.9] (also used for any unspecified head)

Mukhtaā we/ takumalizo khfanya yaa mi/ khufaramiilo/ ruda kaaka. ‘When you have finished doing what [cl.9] I advised you, come back to me.’

numba yaa we/ washiló ‘the house that he built’

We/ tala riyali yaa mi/ khurudijiilo/ weka ilu ya chiṭaache. ‘You take the riyaali [cl.9] that I returned to you and put it on his head.’

z-a [cl.8]

Ba’ada/ ya kuwona/ steendro/ za Hasani/ fanyiizó/ karka harbí/ Sulṭaani/ chimwambila waziiriwe... ‘After seeing the actions that Hasani had performed in the battle/ the sultan/ said to his ministers...’

ziboonk^ho/ zaa ye/ uziló ‘the whips that he bought’

z-a [cl.10]

Mwanaamke/ uyu/ nakuwona/ zotte/ za Hasani/ nakhfaanyó. ‘This girl sees everything that Hasani is doing.’

ndruti zaa ye/ vunziló ‘the sticks that he broke’ numba zaa ye/ washiló ‘the houses that he built’

pesa zaa ye/ leeselo madrasaani ‘the money that he brought to the school’

-a first person singular possessive enclitic

=ch-a [cl.7]

chibuukucha ‘my book’

Chisimacha/ hashṭiindiki/ maayi. ‘My well never stops yielding water.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is kana ‘mouth’.)

Mp^ha chakujaacha. ‘Give me my food.’

Nt^hetemesheze chiṭaachá. ‘I shook my head.’

=k-a [cl.15]

kubigoowaka ‘my being hit’

kulaalaka ‘my sleeping’

=l-a [cl.11]

lutiila ‘my stick’

=w-a [cl.1]

Baaba/ chighaḍibika/ chimwaambila/ we/ siwo/ mwaanawa/ we/ hiinfi/ shokuwaa kuja/ na kulaala. ‘Father became angry and said: you are not my son, you are good for nothing except to eat and to sleep.’

mweenzawa ‘my friend’

Endrá/ nvilila muḃjaana/ uje onyeshezo ushujaa’á/ mi/ nakhsuḷa kumloza mwanaamkewá. ‘Go and call for me that young man who showed courage, I want to marry him to my daughter.’

mwaanawa ‘my child’

Nini/ waawé/ kuwaḷata waant^huwo/ awa/ kunvangila mtumishiwa/ ka buure. ‘For what, my father, do you allow these your people to beat my servant [on me] for no reason?’

=w-a [cl.2]

Mp^haamp^ha/ chihada/ nḷaazima/ we/ leelo/ kundraasha/ koloka naami/ we/ khpata kumwona mukeewa/ kubaratana na waanawá. ‘Shark said: You must today accompany me to go with me so that you get to see my wife and become acquainted with my children.’

=w-a [cl.3]

Mutiwa/ wa nt^heendre/ uchizaala/ mara yingine/ mi/ nakhsuḷa konda nt^heendreze. ‘My tree of dates, if it bears fruit another time, I want to taste its dates.’

=w-a [cl. 14]

ungawa ‘my flour’

=y-a [cl.4]

milaangoya ‘my doors’

=y-a [cl.5]

itooya ‘my eye’

=y-a [cl.6]

matakoya ‘my buttocks’

=y-a [cl.9]

mbeleya ‘in front of me’

su’aaliya ‘my question’

=z-a [cl.8]

zibuukuza ‘my books’

=z-a [cl.10]

nuumbaza ‘my houses’

zoomboza ‘my things’

a’a

[pron. ā’ā]

interj. no; an expression of disapproval of s.t. that has been done (esp. by a child);

Ā’ā/ hadiile/ mi/ seendri. ‘No, he said, I won’t go.’

Ā’ā/ illa/ lawa kiitu. ‘No, you must come to my [lit. our] place.’

Ā’ā/ sinuulizi. ‘No, I won’t sell it to you (pl).’

Jiilé/ chaakuja/ ā’ā/ skichija. ‘[speaker A] Did you eat the food? [speaker B] No, I did not eat it.’

Ma’askari/ wachimjiiba/ ā’ā/ uyu/ siwo/ ye/ uje wa’ubḷelo ngoombé. ‘The soldiers answered him: no, this one is not him who killed the cattle.’

Uje/ mwambiile/ ā’ā/ we/ ni mwanaa masuḷtaani/ mi/ hutiya kiinu/ mi/ siisi/ kuja ziinu. ‘He told him: no [in the context of the story: I cannot accept your invitation to come to eat with you], you are the son of sultans, I am afraid [to go to] your place, I do not know about your (pl.) food.’

aa

interj.

Aa/ mḷate Omari/ jawuubuzé. ‘aa! forget all about Omari’s words!’

aa’uuḍu

in the expression aa’uuḍu billahahi mina sheḷtaani rahiim derived from Arabic meaning ‘I seek refuge in Allah from the accursed Satan’

Muunt^hu/ chishikowa shḷana/ hawanaazo/ miiri/ husuḷowa kuḷa’ana sheḷtaani/ kuhada aa’uuḍu/ billaahi/ mina sheḷtani rajiim. ‘When one is angry and loses his mind, it is required to expel/curse Satan by saying I seek refuge in God from the accursed Satan.’ (A proverb, derived from the Quran.)

- abadan adv. [Sw. abadan SSED1; Ar. abadan "always. for ever; (with neg.) never, not at all" W 1] never; [pronounced [abadán]
Hamiisi/ lasile masoomo/ iyo/ ma'anaye/ kuwaa ye/ haruudi/ skolaani/ abadán. 'Hamiisi has dropped out from his studies,, that is, he will not return to school anymore.'
Skukasa/ kaake/ mara yiingine/ abadán. 'I never heard from him again'
- abadi adv. [Sw. abada "continually, forever" M&N 2; Ar. abad "eternal duration" and abadi "everlasting" W 1] forever abadi + pronoun 'always'
Abadi yiitu/ hendra madrasaani/ kahima. 'We always go to school quickly.'
Abadiye/ hufanya kaazi/ nusunusu. 'He always does the work half-heartedly.'
Daari/ ya abadi/ ni dari ya jana. 'The house of forever is the house of paradise.'
We/ kapata mayi yaa noka/ we/ sula ku'isha abadi. 'If you would get the water of the snake, you would live forever.'
Wo/ abadi yaawo/ hendra sukhuuni/ fijiri. 'They always go to the market in the morning.'
- abadiya adv. forever, permanent
- abari n. 9 [Som. abbaare "approximately" DSI 6] about abari ya kilometri nt^haano 'about five kilometers'
- abaari adv. [Som. cabbaar "moment, instant", while the plural form cabbaarro has the adverbial meaning "recently" DSI 78] awhile, a short period of time Linzile abaari. 'He waited for a short while.'
- abdi n. [Sw. abd "n. servant, slave, but only used in such names as Abdullah, Abdulrahamani" SSED 1; Ar. 'abd W 586] subject(s) of God
abdi ni laazimu kuleeta towba/ shfaanya dhambi nkulu Mooje kumnoomba [st.] 'every servant [of God] must repent and beg for God's forgiveness if his sins are great' [SCB 556] na wo ni abdi hu'insha miyaaka [st.] 'and they (angels) are subjects of God, they live years and years'
- abi n. [Ar. ab W 2] poetic father (poetic only) mtume iisa [...] naayo maamaye, nt^hana abi [st.] 'the prophet Jesus has a (lit. his) mother, [but] has no father'
- aabidi (O, ma-) adj. one who worships devoutly chijana chi'aabidi 'a little boy who worships devoutly' (cf. zijana zi'aabidi 'little boys who worship devoutly') Hamadi/ ni munt^hu aabidi. 'Hamadi is a devout worshipper.'
ijint^hu i'aabidi 'a big man who worships devoutly'
- abiri n. [Som. cabbir DSI 78] measure(ment)
Fulaani/ nayo maali/ pashpo abiri. 'So-and-so has wealth without measure.'
Sanduukhu/ ileselapó/ Huseeni/ chihada/ mi/ nnayo maató/ lamna niingi/ laakini/ ni laazima/ mbele/ mi/ kumtomola/ ito/ ya piili/ mp^hate kiiwa/ lamnaye/ na abiriyé. 'When the box was brought, Huseeni said: I have eyes of many kinds, but it is necessary first for me to take out his second eye so that I get to know its type and its size.'

abiriya (O, ma-)

n. [Sw. abiria SSED 1; Ar. ʾabara "to cross, traverse" and ʾabr "crossing, transit" W 587] passenger abiriya msuura 'a nice passenger' (cf. ma'abiriya wasuura 'nice passengers') abiriya uyu 'this passenger' (cf. abiriya awa or ma'abiriya awa 'those passengers')

rel.

chi-'abiriya (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

chi'abiriya chisuura 'a nice dim. passenger' (cf. zi-'abiriya zisuura 'nice dim. passengers')

i-'abiriya (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

i'abiriya isuura 'nice aug. passenger'

ku-'abirsata

v. [Som. abbaar "head towards s.t., be aimed at s.t." DSI 6 and cabbir "to measure" DSI 78] (abirseete) be aimed at, be faced toward, beheaded toward s.t.; take someone's measurements, be fitted for clothes (Usage. Although MI used this verbs in both the sense of '33ace' and 'measure', it has been suggested that the sense of 'face' is usually conveyed by the verb ku'abaarsata, see below.)

Abirseete nuumba. 'He faced or headed towards the house.'

ku'abirsata kooḍi 'to reflect on someone's words'

Abirseete koḍi za mwaalimu. 'He reflected on the teacher's words.'

Nuuhu/ oloshale ka saarto/ ku'abirsataa nguwo. 'Nuuhu went to the tailor's to be fitted for clothes.'

Saarto/ m'abirseete Nuuhu. 'The tailor measured Nuuhu.'

rel.

ku-'abaarsata v. (abarseete) go in a certain direction, face ku-'abirsata'abirsata v. freq. (with a disparaging connotation)

Ali/ uko apaje/ naku'abirsata'abirsata waana. 'Ali is just there, fitting children for clothes.'

ku-'abirsatana v. rec.

Waana/ wa'abirsateene. 'The children faced one another.'

ku-'abirsatika v. p/s.

Muti uje/ haw'abirsatiki. '[Lit.] hat tree cannot be headed towards.'

Mwana uje/ ha'abirsatiki/ nguwo. '[Lit.] That boy cannot be fitted clothes (e.g. he moves around too much).'

ku-'abirsatila v. appl. (abirsatiliile) aim at s.t. for s.o.

N'abirsatiliile mwaana/ nguwo. 'He fitted my child for clothes.'

Tete meetiri/ ku'abirsatilaa nguwo. 'He took a measuring stick to use to measure for the clothes.'

ku-'abirsatilana v. appl. rec. aim at for one another; fit for one another ku'abirsatilana waana/ nguwo 'to fit the children for clothes for one another' ku-'abirsatisha v. caus. aim s.o. towards, face s.o. towards, head s.o. towards M'abirsatishize mwaana/ mutiini. 'He faced the child toward the tree.' (Morph. The cause verb is not used with reference to the concept of fitting someone for clothes.)

ku-'abirsatishan(y)a v. caus. rec. face one another toward; cause one another to aim at ku-'abirsatishika v. caus. p/s.

Nuuru/ ha'abirsatiki. 'Nuuru cannot be faced.'

ku-'abirsatishiliza v. caus. appl.

Jaama/ n'abirsatishilize mwaana/ mutiini. 'Jaama faced the child towards the tree for me.'

ku-'abirsatishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. face one another towards for

rel. nom.

u-'abirsato n. 14 aiming at s.t.

U'abirsatowe/ nt^ha'uwaaliko/ tamaamu. 'He was not faced perfectly toward something [lit. his facing toward was not complete].'

u-'abirsatiko n. 14 being able to be aimed at u-'abirsatilo n. 14 aiming at for, with u-'abirsatisho n. 14 act of causing someone to aim at s.t.

abitaani

n. cold drink
Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kuwanayo abitaani. 'Please, may I have a cold drink?'

ableeyi (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10, 6 [Som. abley DSI 7] dagger; [pron. ableeyi or ableeyi, ma'ableeyi or ma'ableeyi (pl.)] Ableyi iyi/ ivundishile. 'This dagger is broken.'
ableyi izi 'these daggers' ableyi ziinu 'your (pl.) daggers' Kanaye/ kama ableeyi. 'His mouth is like a dagger (this is said of someone who uses words efficiently).'

rel.

chi-'ableeyi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-'ableeyi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

abluusi
in Brava

n. (cf. fulusi) Mahi Mahi, found in huge numbers in kaskazi, but not traditionally eaten

absi

[Som. cabsi "danger" and cabso "to be afraid" DSI 79] [pron. apsi] in the expression:
khtila absi 'to frighten'

ku-'abuda

v. [Sw. abudu SSED 1; Ar. 'abada "to worship" and 'ubūda "adoration" W 586] (abudiile) worship God variant form: k-aabuda

Abuda. 'Worship God!'

chi'abuda 'if (s)he worships' ku'abuda fulaani 'to toady to someone, do someone's bidding servilely' ku'abuda mwajiitu 'to worship God'

Mwajiitu/ ni awa/ waa si/ chinakuwa'abudiló/ walá/ nt^haku/ wiinginewe.

'The only God is those we are worshipping, there is no other.' review

Want^hu awa/ hu'abuda sanamu. 'These people worship idols.'

rel.

ku-'abudika v. p/s. (abudishile)

ku'abudiloowa v. appl. pass. be worshipped

Hu'abudilowa khaalikhi/ ha'abudiloowi/ makhluukhu. 'It is the creator who should be worshipped, it is not worshipped the creation.' (A proverb.)

ku-'abudila v. appl. worship

Ka wamooyi/ daaba/ zina heshma/ na wenewé/ huzidhoora/ na huzi'abudila. 'For some [people], animals are respected [lit. have respect], and their owners protect them and worship them.'

Nt^haku/ mwajiitu/ mwajiitu/ ni awa/ waa si/ chinakuwa'abudiló/ walá/ nt^haku/ winginewe. 'There is no God; God is those that we worship, nor is there another God.'

Want^hu awa/ hu'abudila sanamu. 'These people worship idols.'

ku-'abudisha v. caus. (abudishiize)

Banafuunzi/ m'abudishize mwaana/ sanamu. 'Banafuunzi caused the child to worship idols.'

ku-'abudishana v. caus. rec. (wa-'abudisheene) ku-'abudishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-'abudishiliza v. caus. appl. (abudishiliize)

Banafuunzi/ m'abudishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ sanamu. 'Banafuunzi caused Suufi's child to worship idols.'

ku-'abudishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (wa-'abudishilizeenye)

Want^hu awa/ wa'abudishilizenye waana/ sanamu. 'These people caused

- one another's children to worship idols.'
- rel. nom.
m-'abuda (wa-) n. 1/2 one who worships
- ma-'abuudu* n. the one who is worshipped, the object of worship variant form: ma'abuudi chimnoombe ma'abuudi/ rabbi rahiimu waduudi [st.] 'let us implore the One to be worshipped/ the Lord, compassionate [and] favorably disposed' Nfungulila mlaango/ mi/ niingile/ numbaani/ nt^h akhulombela ma'abuudu/ nakhutile rahaani. 'Open the door for me so that I can enter into the house; I will pray to the one who is worshipped to put comfort (in you).'
ukopi fir'ooni...waqinziilo waana waawo/ waaliko ma'abuudi yaawo [st.] 'where is Pharaoh...who slaughtered their children [and] was the object of their worship?'
- abuusa* adj. [Ar. 'abūs "frowning, scowling, melancholy" W 588] meaning chijana chi'abuusa (cf. zijana zi'abuusa) Ni munt^hu abuusa. meaning (cf. Ni want^hu abuusa.)
- abuseefu* n. [Ar. abū "father of, the one with" and saif "sword"] swordfish (=mp^hamp^ha lpaanga) abusefu uyu/ iyi 'this swordfish' (cf. abusefu izi 'these swordfish')
rel.
i-'abuseefu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- achaari* n. 9/10 [Sw. achali SSED 2; Hind., Pers.] pickles, chutney made of mango mixed with chillies, lemon, and pepper Achari iyi/ iwozele. 'This chutney has gone bad.'
- m(w)-aachisi* (w-) n. 1/2 bastard, illegitimate child (lit. child of odd number – i.e. only one of the parents, the mother, is recognized in religious terms) contraction of: mwana waa chisi variant form: mw-aazisi (w-) n. 1/2 ibid.
Finika shkoombe/ mwaachisi/ napite. 'Cover the cup (until) the bastard goes away.' (A proverb.)
Maachisi/ haleeti/ kheeri. 'A bastard won't bring blessing.' (A proverb which conveys the general view that illegitimate children are always problematic and not good people.)
Mahaḷaa we/ tamtiló/ hattá/ nt^hupaani/ mwaachisi/ takhtomola chaala. 'Wherever you put him, even in a bottle, a bastard will stick out his finger.' (A proverb.)
Mwaachisi/ haafi/ pashpo kulisa aari ya maamaye. 'A bastard does not die without revenging his mother (i.e. by making another woman pregnant).' (A proverb.)
We/ ni maachisi/ so. 'You're a bastard, aren't you? The way you are behaving, I am guessing that you must be a bastard.' Or: Ni maachisi/ so/ we. (Prosody. Pitch is raised on the word preceding so, and so is itself raised, not undergoing downstep. In the second example, even we continues the string of high-pitched syllables.)
- aada* n. 9/10 [Sw. ada SSED 23; Ar. 'āda W 654] custom, way, tradition; manners, behavior
Aada/ ya mtaana/ maneeno/ ya mlungaana/ shteendro. 'The custom of the mtaana is talk, (that) of the mlungaana is action.' (A proverb.)
Ada zaawo/ mbovu. 'Their traditions are bad.'
Fijiri/ mkulu/ wa makhaadimu/ kama aadaye/ choondroka/ kulangaḷa muundra. 'In the morning, the head of the servants, as was his habit, came and surveyed the garden.'

Isa/ teena/ Abunawaasi/ kilasku/ kama aadaye/ hufanya mzaaha/ na khtezeza waant^hu. 'Now, then, Abunawaasi every day, as is his habit, teases and kids people.'

Iyi/ siwo/ ada suura. 'This is not a good tradition.'

jisa aada 'as usual' = kama aada 'as usual'

Khariibu/ ya muuyi/ mwaana/ chanza kiimba/ jisa aada. 'Near town, the bou began to sing as usual.'

khfanya aada 'to make s.t. a habit'

Maama/ chimpa chaakuja/ makooko/ tu/ kama aada/ kumpelekela. 'Mother gave her food, just the hard crust of the rice, as take to her.'

mambo ya aada 'traditional matter, affair'

Munt^hu uyu/ aadaye/ (nii) mbovu. 'This man's behavior is bad.'

Ni aada/ ka Nuuru/ kuraaga. 'It is normal, customary for Nuuru to be late.'

Cf. Nuuru/ kuraaga/ ni aadaye. 'For Nuuru to be late is his custom.' Cf. Ni aadaye/ Nuuru/ kuraaga. 'It is his custom (for) Nuuru to be late.' But not with the preposition ka: Ni aadaye/ ka Nuuru/ kuraaga. It is probably grammatical, but unusual, to say: Ka Nuuru/ kuraaga/ ni aada. 'For Nuuru to be late is customary.'

Ni aada/ ya nuumba/ muhji/ chiya ka kaziini/ kumwuzo mukeewe/ kula yaa ye/ nakhsulo kiiwa. 'It is a custom in the family for the husband, when he comes home from work, to ask his wife whatever he wants to know.'

Ni aadaye/ kuraaga. 'It is his custom to be late.'

Waana/ hawabarshoowi/ adaa mbovu. 'Children are not taught bad manners.'

Wene chita cha sulṭaani/ ilu ya meeza/ chinakuhokoma kama aada/ na mweene/ uje ijini/ waa ye/ tezezo naa yé/ khamaari/ nampa sulṭaani/ salaamu. 'He saw the head of the sultan on the table passing judgement as usual and he saw the djinn whom he had played games of chance (with him) greeting the sultan.'

adabdara

n. (cf. dara 'lacking, without') bad manners, ill-nature, lack of discipline

Mi/ sinakhsuula/ waana/ kubarshowa adabdara. 'I do not want the children to be taught bad manners.'

Ni 'aadi/ waana/ kuwa adabdara/ mukhta wo/ wa'ofeeto. 'It is common for children to behave badly when they are tired.'

Omari/ maamaye/ mvunaanzile/ khisaa ye/ ni adabdara. 'Omari's mother beat him because he was badly behaved.'

Omari/ ni adabdara. 'Omari is ill-natured; Omari is misbehaved.'

Waana/ wachiwa adabdara/ hubarshowa adabu. 'When children lack discipline, they should be taught discipline/good manners.'

rel.

u-'adabdara n. 14 misbehavior

Ye/ kamulukila mwaaná/ ye/ sula kulata/ u'adabdara. 'If she had scolded the boy, he would have stopped misbehaving.'

ku-'adabisha

v. caus. [Sw. adibisha SSED 2; Ar. adab W 9] (adabishiize) punish (esp. a child) for a wrongdoing with the intention of teaching by means of this punishment

Hamadi/ mkali/ kuwa'adabisha waana. 'Hamadi is good at disciplining children.'

Mwaalimu/ nt'akuwa'adabisha/ waana. [H'H!!H] 'The teacher has not disciplined the children.' (The simple yes-no question based on this does not appear to be much different intonationally-speaking, but accent is shifted in the complement in the question as opposed to the statement. Furthermore, the statement involves a small pause between the negative verb and the complement; this pause is absent in the question. The emphatic yes-no question involves accent shift in both the negative verb and the complement: Mwaalimu/ nt'akuwa'adabishá/ waaná!? [H!H!H].)

Mwaalimu/ nt'akuwa'adabisha waaná. [H!H] 'The teacher has not disciplined the children.' (Focus on the subject is formally marked by the switch of the verb to pseudo-relative form: in the case of the negative verb, it is only the final accent that overtly indicates pseudo-relativization. That pseudo-relativization is present is also signalled by the fact that the negative verb is not phrase-final.)

Mwaalimu/ nt^hakuwa'adabishá/ waana. [H!H!!H] 'The teacher disciplined the children.' (The fact that the negative verb in this example is pseudo-relativized is indicated in two ways. First, the final accent is triggered by pseudo-relativization. Second, the emphasized verb is subject downstepped. In its main-clause form, a negative verb typically is declined rather than downstepped.)

Mwaalimu/ nt^hakuwa'adabisha waaná/ ni Omari. [H!H!H] 'The teacher who disciplined the children is Omari.' (The downstep between the head of the relative clause and the relative clause is unambiguous. The lowering in the copular phrase is not as clear cut, since in general we find it difficult to distinguish between downstep and declination after a phrase that itself has been downstepped. We have employed the downstep symbol in such situations. The simple yes-no question based on this sentence seems to involve only the replacement of downstep by declination: [H'H'H]. The emphatic question retains downstep, but shifts accent in the final phrase: Mwaalimu/ nt^hakuwa'adabisha waaná/ ni Omari? [H!H!H].)

Mwaalimu/ nt^hakuwa'adabishá/ waaná/ ni Omari. 'The teacher who has not punished the children is Omari.' (Verb emphasis in the relative clause is possible if not preferred. The Accentual Law of Focus tends not to be maintained in true relative clauses (in contrast to pseudo-relative clauses), but GM did seem to allow ALF to be enforced: Mwaalimu/ nt^hakuwa'adabishá/ waana/ ni Omari. This matter needs to be explored in ordinary speech rather than the elicitation sessions that we were forced to rely on.)

Mwaalimu/ wa'adabishize waana. [H!H] 'The teacher has disciplined the child.' (The simple yes-no question removes the downstep associated with the statement, replacing it with simple declination in GM's speech. The emphatic yes-no question involves accent shift in the VP: Mwaalimu/ wa'adabishize waaná!? [H!H].)

Mwaalimu/ wa'adabishiize/ waana. [H'H!!H] 'The teacher has disciplined the children.' (The intonational pattern observed here is clear. The emphasized verb is not downstepped, but rather simply declined in its pitch level. The complement, on the other hand, is radically downstepped. In the corresponding simple yes-no question, accent shift affects the out-of-focus complement: Mwaalimu/ wa'adabishiize/ waaná? [H'H!!H] The complement in the question did seem to be still radically downstepped. GM did offer an emphatic question version of this sentence: Mwaalimu/ wa'adabishiize/ waaná!? [H!H!H]. Note that accent shift affects not only the complement, but also the emphasized verb, in contrast with the simple question.)

Omari/ maamaye/ ham'adabishi. 'Omari's mother does not discipline him.'

rel.

ku-'adabishiliza v. caus. appl.

Mwaalimu/ m'adabishilize muunt^hu/ mwaana. 'The teacher punished the child for/on someone.'

ku-'adabishoowa v. caus. pass. be punished

Wana adabidara/ wa'adabishoowa. 'Badly behaved children should be disciplined.'

rel. nom.

m-'adabisha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who punishes

m-'adabisho n. 3 the act of punishing

M'adabisho wa Hamadi/ ni mkali. 'Hamadi's disciplining (of children) is severe (lit. hot).'

m-adabishoowa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who is being punished

adabu

n. [Sw. adabu SSED 2; Ar. adab W 9] good manners, good character; discipline, punishment

Ghaðabu/ nt^hayná/ adabu. 'Anger has no courtesy.' (A proverb.)

Haṭá/ kanaa we/ humpeendí/ we/ nt^haasá/ takhaadira/ kuwanayo adabu/ naaye. 'Even if you don't like him you can still be polite.'

Humwaambila/ we/ skooðé/ na waant^hu/ adabu/ inakhuṭoshe/ nt^haasá/nt^hukhkoma. '[The step-mother] tells her: You, do not speak to people. Behave [lit. good manners should suffice for you]! Not yet have you [lit. arrived].'

kumarsha adabu 'to discipline s.o.'

kumtila adabu 'to discipline s.o.'

munt^hu mwenye adabu 'a man of good character, manners'

Mwaambile/ nabarate adabu. ‘Tell him that he should learn good manners.’
napate kubarata adabu ‘so that he learns good manners’
Nchikoma/ nt^hi izo/ endraani/ ka masultaani/ wa nt^hi izo/ na koḏaani/ naa wo/ ka adabu/ na ka zeema. ‘When you (plural) reach these lands, go to the kings of these lands and speak with them respectfully and nicely.’
Ni laazima/ ye/ kubarshowa adabu. ‘It is a must that he be taught manners.’
Nimbishile ka khisa nabarate adabú. ‘I hit him so that he learn to behave.’
Nt^haná/ adabu. ‘He has no manners.’
Tomele salaamu/ ka adabu. ‘He extended greetings with good manners.’
uso kulekeza qibla ni adabu [st.] ‘to direct one’s face towards qibla is good manners’ Wachimwaambila/ iyi/ ni adabuyo/ mara iyi/ nda piili/ si/ hendra kubigaa zita/ we/ huzimila. ‘They told him: this is your punishment. This time is the second (time) we go to fight a war and you hide [from it].’
Waana/ wa sku izi/ nt^hawana/ adabu. ‘Children these days do not have good manners.’
Ye/ muzizee ye/ bilaa adabu. ‘Her asked him without good manners.’

adadi

n. 9 [Ar. ’adad W 595] number, amount, quantity adadi ya want^hu wa muyi uyu ‘the number of people in this town’
As.habu_l kahfi/ wawaaliko/ ni waant^hu/ adadi yaawo/ saha/ hayisoowi. ‘The companions of the cave were people whose whose number is not exactly known.’
Barzaani/ ka sulṭaani/ waant^hu/ shokuwana adadi/ wawaliko wakaleent^he/ wanamlinda Ali. ‘In the royal hall of the sultan people without number were seated waiting for Ali.’
bilaa adadi ‘countless, numberless’ (In general, a long vowel is not permitted in a syllable that is more than two syllables from the end of a phrase. This principle does not hold in the case of bilaa adadi where the long vowel is the result of a contraction of bila ya. This sort of contraction is common in Chimiini and the contracted long vowel escapes the usual shortening of vowels that are too far from the end of the phrase.)
Chiwona makhluukhu/ nt^hawaná/ adadi. ‘He saw human beings without number.’
inaaye Ja’data Alkani/ peela maali ka adadi [st.] ‘her name is Ja’data, she was given an agreed sum of money’ Ipisile miyeezi/ nt^hayaná/ adadi/ jisaa mi/ kumwona nt^haku. ‘Countless months passed with there being no way for me to see her.’
ka muda ya miyaaka/ miingi/ nt^ho/ ya sho kiwoowa/ adadiye. ‘for a period of very many years the number of which is not known’ na maluwa nt^hayna adadi ‘and countless flowers’ pashpo adadi ‘without number’ want^hu awa/ adadi yaawo/ ni... ‘these people, their number is...’
Ye/ peḷa maali/ bilaa adadi. ‘He was given wealth without limit.’
Zombo izo/ nt^haziná/ adadi. ‘Those things are countless (lit. have no number).’

adaala

n. [Ar. ’adāla W 596] justice
Ameerika/ yiko adaala. ‘In America there is justice.’
Munt^hu mwenye adaala/ hupendowa na waant^hu. ‘A just man is loved by people.’
Waant^hu/ hingilo siyaasá/ hawafaanyi/ adaala. Men who enter politics are not just.’
want^hu wenye adaala ‘just men’
rel.
u-’adaala n. 14 justness

khfanya u'adaala 'to treat fairly, justly, equally' U'adaala/ ni sifa njeema. 'Justness is a good attribute.'

Aadamu

n. Adam Aadamu waanawe ni arba'iini [st.] 'Adam's sons were forty (in number)' kana Haawa/ na Aadamú 'like Eve and Adam -- said of a married couple who are always seen together and are an example of conjugal bliss' (Note that in Chimiini speech as well as literature it is always "Eve and Adam", never "Adam and Eve".)

m-w-aadamu (w-)

n. 1/2 [see m-w-anaadamu] human being adaawa

n. enemy
Mlata aada/ ni adaawa. 'One who quits tradition is an enemy.' (A proverb.)
Variant: Muunt'u/ kulata aada/ ni adaawa. 'For one to abandon (his) tradition, culture is to be an enemy.'
rel.
u-'adaawa n. 14 enmity U'adaawaye/ ha'umali. 'His enmity never ends (said of someone who holds grudges).'

adeeni

n. evidence
Chiint'u/ ichiza kuwako adeeni/ hayeendreki/ shari'aani/ sharii'a/ husuła adeeni. 'If there is no evidence for something, then one cannot go to court, law needs evidence.'
Mi/ nayo adeeni/ kuwa Hamadi/ bozele bangi. I have evidence that Hamadi robbed the bank.

adeesi

n. [Som.]
Haliima/ namtilila mubliwe/ chaayi/ adeesi. 'Haliima is pouring for her husband tea with milk.' Also: Haliima/ namtilila mubliwe/ chayi cha adeesi.

aadi

adj. [Som. caadi DSI 73] normal, usual, common (This word is much used in ordinary speech.)
Abú/ chiza kuuya/ siwo/ aadi. 'Abu's not coming is not normal.'
Haliima/ kuła niingi/ siwo/ aadi. 'Haliima's crying so much is unusual.'
Hasani/ khsurufa peesa/ niingi/ siwo/ aadi. 'Hasani's spending so much money is unusual.'
Kilaa chiint'u/ (ni) aadi. 'Everything is fine, normal (a response to the question: how are you?).'
ndila ya aadi 'main (or normal) road, as opposed to ndila ya bardunaale, which is used when the main road is impassable' Ni 'aadi/ Maryamu/ kumamala kabisá. 'It is usual for Maryamu to be very quiet.'
ni kana aadi nvula ileesela / laakini baraka kati itomeela [st.] 'the rain arrived (lit. was brought) as usual, but blessing was taken out of it.' (Meaning: this rain did not help the harvest, instead it caused floodings, etc.)
Omari/ naa ye/ fanyiizó/ ni aadi. 'What Omari has done is normal.'
Siwo/ aadi/ kuwa Faatima/ iize/ khsaayda. 'It is not normal that Faatima refused to help.'
Ye/ ni 'aadi/ kanza fijiri/ ka khuraa'a/ niingi. 'He typically begins the morning by having a big breakfast.' (This item is derived from Somali, where it has an initial glottal stop which is written q in Somali. In Chimiini, the glottal stop does not appear when the word lacks a prefix. When a prefix is added, as in the [cl.7] form listed below, the glottal stop emerges. In the present example, we see that the copular ni is apparently sufficiently bound to the noun to trigger the appearance of the glottal stop.) zinanaande/ za aadi 'the normal zinanaande pastry'
rel.
chi-'aadi n. 7 traditional way Lamna/ yaa ye/ himbo limbo ilí/ ni chi'aadi. The way she sings this song is very traditional.'

- adiibu adj. inv. [Sw. adibu SSED 2; Ar. adīb W 10] (a person) of good manners, behavior, cultured, refined; (rarely) a man of letters, writer, author munt^hu adiibu 'a person of good manners and behavior' (cf. want^hu adiibu 'people of good manners', but chijana chi'adiibu and zijana zi'adiibu 'dim. child/children of good manners') Mwana uyu/ adiibu. 'This child is well-mannered.'
Sheekh Qaasimu waaliko adiibu mkulu [st.] Sheikh Qasim was a great author/ man of letters' Wana awa/ (ma')adiibu. 'These children are well-mannered.'
wana ma'adiibu 'well-mannered children'
- ku-'adila v. [Sw. adili "be impartial, just, righteous, etc." SSED 3; Ar. ʿadala "be balanced, moderate" W 596] use beautiful words and sentences, choose words well; (of judge) to be just, impartial in his judgement; to be expert in doing s.t. (e.g. driver); (of teacher) to keep discipline; (of parent) not to discriminate among children Shuferi uyu/ hu'adila. 'This chauffeur drives expertly.'
Mzaazi/ hu'adila. 'The parent does not discriminate among his children.'
- aadili (Ø, ma-) adj. [Ar. ʿādil "just, upright, righteous" W 597] ama kuwona mweezi muunt^hu aadili [st.] 'or if a just person sees the moon (if on the twenty-ninth day of the month prior to Ramadhan a reliable person sees the crescent moon, fasting begins the next day)' munt^hu aadili 'just person' (cf. want^hu aadiliu or ma'aadili 'just people', but chijana chi'aadili and zijana zi'aadili 'just dim. child/children') muunt^hu sho kiiwa namuuzze jo aadili [st.] 'a man who does not know [the regulations] should ask one who is knowledgeable' Wa'ambile waant^hu/ ya kuwa waant^hu/ wanakinenzo hukuma iyí/ ni waant^hu/ ma'aadili/ ni waant^hu/ wenye ilmu/ ni waant^hu/ wana'iwó/ killa chiint^hú. 'Tell people that the people who are running this government are just people, are people of knowledge, are people who know everything.'
Wanakumera muunt^hu/ aadili/ na faahimú/ kuwawejelela sultaani. 'They are looking for a person just and intelligent to be (for them) the sultan.'
- k(u-)'adilisha v. caus. [Sw. adilisha SSED 3; Ar. ʿadala W 596] make just, correct
rel.
k(u-)'adilika v. p/s.
k(u-)'adilishana v. caus. rec. correct one another k(u-)'adilishika v. caus. p/s.
Ba'aði ya waana/ hu'adilishika ka sahali. 'Some children are easy to correct.'
k(u-)'adilishiliza v. caus. appl. (adilishiliize) Mwaalimu/ hachi'adilishiza/ waana. 'A teacher cannot correct the children for/ on us.' review the verb form, had hi- in "Lexicon"
k(u-)'adilishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-(')adilishizeenye) correct someone for one another Weenza/ hu'adilishilizanya waana. 'Friends do correct children for one another.'
k(u-)'adilishoowa v. caus. pass.
rel. nom.
m-'adilisha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who corrects
m-'adilishoowa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who is corrected m-'adilishilizoowa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who is corrected for

- adli n. [Sw. adili SSED "right, righteous, just, impartial" SSED 3; Ar. ʿadli W 596] justice, right ka adli 'in right. justice' hufaanya kuḷa chiint^hu ye ka adliye [st.] ' [God] does everything [according] to its rightness' khfanya adli 'to treat fairly, justly, equally' Haakimu/ humlazima khfanya adli/ bena ya waant^hu. "A ruler is obliged to treat people fairly [lit. make justice among people]."
kuwa ni muunt^hú/ waliko mwenye adli/ liini/ chilawanganyo bena taajiri/ na maskiini 'that you were a just person who never distinguished between rich and poor'
- Adnaani n. a name for the Prophet Mohammad
- aduwi (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. adui SSED 3; Ar. ʿadūw W 599] enemy; [pron. ma'aduwi 'enemies']
Aduwi aakhili/ ni kheeri/ kolko mweenza/ jaahili. 'A wise enemy is better than a foolish friend.' (A proverb.) A variant of this proverb: Kheeri/ aduwi aakhili/ kama mwenza jaahili. 'Better a wise enemy than a foolish friend.'
Aduwi/ mpeende. 'Love (your) enemy.' (A proverb.)
Aduwi/ khufuundrisha/ mweenza/ khuzuulisha. 'An enemy teaches you, a friend destroys you.' (A proverb.)
aduwi izi or ma'aduwi awa 'these enemies' aduwii mbovu or ma'aduwi mawovu 'bad enemies' aduwi mwovu 'a bad enemy'
Aduwi ump^hi. 'Which enemy?'
Aduwi zimp^hi. or Ma'aduwi waamp^hi. 'Which enemies?'
aduwi uyu 'this enemy'
Aduwiya/ nshiinzile. 'My enemy defeated me.'
Aduwiza/ zinshiinzile. 'My enemies defeated me.' Or: Ma'aduwiya/ yanshiinzile.
...kuwakoo noka/ mweepe/ amó/ aduwi mweepé 'there might be a snake or some other enemy'
Mi/ siwo/ aduwi nakhumero khuḍurú. 'I am not an enemy who wants to harm you.'
Mshinzile aduwi/ ka hiila/ na basará. 'He defeated the enemy with tricks and astuteness.'
Mwajiitu/ mwingile garabuuni/ na mshiinzile/ aduwi. 'God helped him and he defeated the enemy.'
Peesa/ ipasiiza/ aduwi/ ifanyiiza. 'Money has been lent, an enemy has been made.' (A proverb.)
rel.
chi-'aduwi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-'aduwi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
u-'aduwi n. 14 [Sw. uadui SSED 3] enemy Hamadi/ nt^haná/ u'aduwi/ na Omari. 'Hamadi does not have enmity with Omari.'
- aduwinimo n. [Som. cadownimo Ab 5] enmity (Morph. nimo is a nominalizer of Somali origin. It seems here to be added to chimiini aduwi rather than Somali cadow.)
- aḍabdara adj. undisciplined
Hamadi/ ni aḍabdara/ waawaye/ nt^hamtila/ adabu/ ka chihaba. 'Hamadi is undisciplined, his father did not discipline him while he was a child.'
- aḍaabu n. 9 [Sw. adhabu SSED 2; Ar. ʿaḍāb "torture, punishment" W 600] hell, fire, pain

Aḍaabu/ nda want^hu aasi. ‘Hell is for disobediant people.’

Aḍabu ya khabri/ hiiwó/ mayti. ‘The one who knows the pain of the grave is the corpse.’ (A proverb.)

Hasiibu/ mukhta aḍaabu/ imwelelo niingi/ shkhiira/ kuwapeleka/ mahala ya sultani waa noka/ hupatikanó. ‘When the pain became great for Hasiibu, he agreed to send them to a place where the king of snakes could be found.’

Ishqi/ ni aḍaabu. ‘Love is hell.’

kingila aḍabuuni ‘to enter hell’

Mooja/ nakhokola na aḍabu iyi. ‘May God save you from this hell.’

Muḷo wa aḍaabu/ ni mkali. ‘The fire of hell is fierce.’

Limiiḷo/ aḍabuuni/ khutila/ na janaani/ khtila. ‘Your tongue puts you in hell, and it puts you in paradise.’ (A proverb that conveys the idea that the words you speak may bring you great happiness, but they can also cause you real problems and inflict great damage to you.)

ndila ya aḍaabu ‘the road to hell’

Waant^hu/ hum’aso mwajiitú/ waṭakhtilowa aḍabuuni/ keesho/ aakhera.

‘People who disobey God will be put in hell in the life hereafter.’

aḍabuḷ akbar n. great hellfire

Waant^hu/ munaafiqi/ keesho/ akhera/ hu’aḍiboowa/ aḍabuḷ akbar. ‘Hypocrites tomorrow, in the hereafter will be punished with great hellfire.’

aḍama n. [Sw. adhama SSED 3; Ar. ‘az?ama W 623] greatness (This item was not known to our consultant GM, but was offered by MI.)

Fulaani/ ni munt^hu mwenye aḍama. ‘So-and-so is a great man.’

aḍaana (ma-) n. [Sw. adhana SSED 3; Ar. aḍān W 11] the call to prayer (announced through a megaphone, some fifteen or twenty minutes prior to prayer)

Aaḍana/ huhadiḷoowa/ nt^hasa yaa sala/... khabla yaa sala/ kharibuu sa’a... ‘The call to prayer is called before the prayer, before the prayer, near the hour...’

aḍaana na iqaama sunna akmalī [st.] ‘the call to prayer and the announcement that it is time to pray are sunna (i.e. preferred but non-obligatory) acts’ ikum na keendra kilma za aḍaana [st.] ‘nineteen are the words of the aḍaana’ kubiga aḍaana ‘to make the call to prayer’ ichigargariḷo ni kubiga aḍaana [nt.] ‘making the aḍaana helped us -- lit. that which helped us was making the call to prayer’ (Note: the call to prayer is also made when a natural disaster occurs, as a cry for help.)

numa miskitini takhkasa ma’aḍaana [nt.] ‘then from the mosques you will hear the aḍaana’ ku-’aḍiba v. [Sw. adhibu SSED 2; Ar. ‘aḍaba W 599-600] (aḍibiile) torture, inflict pain (whether physical or mental)

rel.

ku-’aḍibika v. intr. (aḍibishile) suffer pain ku’aḍibika kaa ndala ‘to suffer from hunger’ ku’aḍibika ka ooni ‘to suffer from thirst’ ku-’aḍibisha v. caus. (aḍibishiize) torture, inflict pain ku-’aḍiboowa v. pass.

Kiḷa/ muunt^hu/ hu’aḍibowa ka ḍambize. ‘Everyone is punished according to his sins, crimes.’ (A proverb.)

sho kiiwa waajibu hu’aḍiboowa [st.] ‘the one who does not know what the religious obligations are is punished'

	rel. nom. m-'ađiba (wa-) n. 1/2 one who tortures ma-'ađibo n. 6 torture
ku-'ađimisha glorify, respect someone	v. [Sw. adhimisha SSED 3; Ar. ' azuma and ' azama W 623] (ađimishiize) exalt, rel. ku-'ađimoowa v. pass. nazidiłoowa daraja/ nk^hulu ku'ađimoowa [st.] 'may his position be enhanced/ increased and exalted'
ađiimu (O, ma-)	adj. [Ar. ' ađim W 623] great, exalted Nuuru/ ni munt^hu ađiimu. 'Nuuru is a great man.' Wo/ ni want^hu (ma')ađiimu. 'They are great men.'
k-aađina	v. [Sw. adhini SSED 3; Ar. ađina W 11] (ađiniile) call to prayer kađina bałasiini 'to air grievances secretly, not out in the open [lit. to call to prayer in a bałasi -- this expression is derived from religious tradition, where the first Muslims, afraid of being persecuted, are said to have called people to prayers in a bałasi rather than openly]' muke kaađina awali haraamu [st.] 'for a woman to make the call to prayers, the beginning, is unlawful' review the meaning rel. k-ađiniłoowa v. appl. pass. be called for; upon the birth of a child, immediately a call to prayer is made for the child k-ađinila v. appl.
mw-aađiini (wa-)	n. 1/2 [Sw. mwadhini SSED 3] the one who calls for prayers; [pron. wa'ađiini (pl.)] sharti ya mwađiini kuwa islaamu [st.] 'it is necessary for the one who calls to prayer to be a Muslim'
aafa	n. 9 [Sw. afa SSED 3; Ar. āfa "defect, disease, undesired consequence" W 34] damage, disaster, defect, disease afa iyi 'this disaster' Andishile chiluuğu/ cha piili/ nuumbaye/ chimaliza/ ilesele aafa. 'He built a second storey to his house, [but] afterwards a defect appeared (lit. it brought a defect).' Bali/ mwaka uyu/ spete aafa/ fasali/ itakuwaa mbovu. 'This year the corn plants were affected by (lit. caught) a disease [so] the harvest will be bad.' kudirka aafa 'to suffer damage, disaster' Jahazi/ idirshile aafa/ nk^hulu. 'The boat suffered great damage.' Naambila/ nini/ aafaye / mwana uyu. 'Tell me what is the problem with this child.'
afaari	n. affair Ni fayda dara/ Faađima/ khfanya ruuhuye/ chiza kiiwa/ afaari/ za mułjiwe. 'It is useless for Faatima to pretend not to know about her husband's affairs.'
afashi	n. something without value rel. mi-'afashi n. 4 odds and ends, things without value Mi'afashi/ ba/ miizi/ boozele. 'Even the odds and ends the thief stole (he didn't leave anything behind).' Miizi/ hatá/ mi'afashi/ boozele. 'The thief even the odds and ends stole.'

- afbiḷaawo n. breakfast; review 1
- Ye/ ni 'aadi/ kanza fijiri/ ka afbiḷaawo/ nk^hulu. 'He typically begins the morning by having a big breakfast.'
- afḍali adv. [Sw. afadhali SSED 3, 89; Ar. afḍal W 718] better, rather
- Afḍali/ inamp^hate/ ije itakump^ható/ kama keendrá/ kunsiba ghaḍabu za mwajitú. 'Better that it befalls me, whatever will befall me, than to go and have the wrath of God strike me.'
- Afḍali/ kuweeka/ maali/ kama khtumila yoṭé. 'Better to set aside money than to use it all.' (As above, kama seems to trigger final accent. If kama is replaced by koḷko, then the final accent is missing: Afḍali/ kuweeka/ maali/ koḷko khtumila yoṭe.) review phrasing and yoṭe
- Afḍali/ khkalaanṭ^ha/ kuiliindra/ kama keendra/ kuḷana naawo. 'It is better to stay and wait than to go and quarrel with them.' review accent on keendra and naawo
- Ali/ wene kuwa iwaliko afḍali/ ye/ chiza/ kuwa'ambila. 'Ali saw that it was better not to tell them.'
- Basi/ chiweene/ ni afḍali/ si/ kumubḷa. 'So we saw that it was better for us to kill her.'
- Isa/ mi/ nnakuwoná/ kuwa ni afḍali/ we/ kuruuda/ karka nṭ^hi yinu/ na mruudile/ sultaani/ mwanaamkewe/ naayé/ sultaani/ nakhurudile maaliyo/ yotte. 'Now I see that it is better for you to return to your country and return to the sultan's daughter and also let the sultan return all your wealth.'
- Mi/ mbene kuwa... iwaliko afḍali/ mi/ kumwambila...lilá. 'I saw that...it was better that I tell him... the truth.' accent
- Mwaana/ chihada/ kuwa ni afḍali/ wo/ kuḷaṭa zombo zaawo/ apo/ na kendra nṭ^hiini/ na ala zaawó/ tu. 'The boy said that it was better that they leave their things there and go down with their weapons only.'
- Ni afḍali/ kuloola. 'He is better off getting married.'
- Ni afḍali/ ye/ kooloka. 'It is better for him to go.' Or: Ni afḍali/ ye/ na'oloke.
- Nimkasize Omari/ kuwa haali/ Mwiini/ ni suura/ isa. 'I heard from Omari that conditions are better now in Brava.'
- We/ ni afḍali/ kuloolá. 'You are better to marry.'
- afgaawani adj. untalkative, does not talk much (lit. from Somali "short mouth") Huseeni/ ni afgaawani. 'Huseeni does not talk much.'
- Afgooye n. a large city, about seventy kilometers north of Shalaambood on the road to Mogadishu, which is located some thirty kilometers further north
- afiifa(Ø, ma-) adj. [Ar. 'afif W 624] loyal, honest, respectful (of women in relationship to their husbands and family); [pron. (ma')afiifa (pl.)]
Amá/ mi/ nimwene kuwa nii muke/ msuura/ na afiifá. 'As for me, I have found her to be a woman good and loyal.' accent does not appear right, recheck
muke afiifa 'a loyal woman' (cf. wake afiifa or wake ma'afiifa 'loyal women', but chijike chi'afiifa and zijike zi'afiifa 'loyal woman/women' and ijike i'afiifa and mijike mi'afiifa woman/ women')
- dim.
'loyal aug.
- ku-'afisha, k-aafisha v. caus. [Sw. afu SSED 4; Ar. 'afw "pardon, forgiveness" W 625] (afishiize) pardon, forgive, excuse someone, give one's share to another Afisha. 'Forgive!' (The imperative form, without an object marker present, does not distinguish between the two different stems: /afisha/ and /'afisha/ since a word-initial glottal stop is deleted in Chimiini. A stem initial glottal stop will only be visible when the stem is preceded by a prefix.)
kafishaka 'my forgiving someone' kumaafisha 'to forgive someone'

Sultaani/ husuloowa/ kuwa ni muunt^hu/ hukhadiro khsamehá/ na kaafishá/ kama mo/ mweepe/ karka waanawe/ ambó/ ra'iyawe/ ambó/ wataanawé/ shfanya makosa. 'A sultan should be a man who is able to forgive and pardon if someone among his children or his subjects or his servants makes a mistake.'

rel.

k-afishan(y)a v. caus. rec. (afisheeny)

k-afishanoowa v. rec. pass.

raaði hulombanoowa wont^he/ jamii'a kafishanoowa [st.] 'all are beginning each other's forgiveness and seek a general pardon'

k-afishika v. caus. p/s. (afishile) be forgivable

Ingile ðambi/ sho kafishika. 'He committed a sin that is unforgiveable.'

k-afishiliza v. caus. appl. (afishilize) forego a debt

k-afishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (afishilizeeny)

k-afishoowa v. caus. pass. be forgiven

Baana/ nakulomba kafishoowa. 'Baana is begging to be forgiven.'

k-afoowa v. pass. (afiila) be pardoned, forgiven; recover

Anshuura somuye hafoowi mwaaka [st.] '(one who) fasts on Anshuura is forgiven his sins for a year' muunt^hu hijiilo ðambize hafoowa [st.] 'the one who goes on pilgrimage, his sins are forgiven'

Ye/ afila na maraði. 'He has recovered from his sickness.'

k-afishoowa, ku-'afishoowa v. caus. pass. be pardoned, forgiven kafishoowaka 'my being forgiven'

na mi ka barka zaawo/ huloomba ku'afishoowa [st.] 'and through their blessings/ I beg to be forgiven'

rel. nom.

mw-aafisha (w-) n. 1/2 one who forgives

mw-aafisho n. 3

afisi

n. apology

Hamadi/ nayoo ndila/ kuhada/ kuwa we/ laazimu/ kumera afisi/ ka Faaṭima.

'Hamadi is right to say that you should apologize to Faaṭima.'

afiya

n. 9 [Sw. afya SSED 4; Ar. 'afiya "[good] health, well-being" W 625] health

Afiya/ imbeele 'he lost his health -- [lit.] health was lost him.'

afiyaa mbovu 'bad health'

Afiya/ ha'itelezoowi. 'Health is not played with (i.e. you better take care of it).' (A proverb.)

Afiya/ ni maali. 'Health is wealth.' (A proverb.)

afiya suura 'good health'

Boora/ afiya/ kolko maali. 'Better health than wealth.' (A proverb.)

humwiinf mwenye afiya na mleele [st.] 'it (referring to the Quran) is useful to the healthy and to the sick (as well)' isa ni afiya latakunt^heleza [song] 'now (there is) health, stop making a joke of me'

Maayi/ siwo/ afiya/ kunoowa. 'The water is not safe (lit. healthy) to drink.'

mbuzi mbili ya matako za afiya [st.] 'two healthy sheep' (Notice the agreement pattern in this example. The associative phrase mbuzi ya matako means literally 'goat of buttocks', i.e. a sheep, and the ya associative particle is due to the fact that mbuzi in this construction is a [cl.9] noun. However, the modifier mbili 'two' is located immediately after mbuzi and serves to make the phrase plural, i.e. two sheep. This now makes the entire phrase plural, which is reflected in the associative particle za.)

Mi/ haamina/ kujowa kuja ya afiya. 'I believe in eating healthy.'

Moojá/ nampa afiya. '[Lit. may God give him/her health.]' (In addition to being a wish for s.o.'s health, this expression is used when criticizing a person. In a certain way it expresses the idea that the speaker does not mean any harm, and it counteracts the weight of the criticism.)

	Mwana uyu/ moojá/ nampa afiya/ hakasi/ jawaabu. ‘This child (may God give it health) does not listen to anything (warning, advice, prohibition).’ Muunth^u/ chiwanayo afiya/ tu/ hujó. ‘Only when one is healthy does he eat.’ (A proverb.) mwenye afiya ‘someone healthy’; wenye afiya ‘healthy people’ Nt^haná/ afiya suura/ sku izi. ‘He does not have good health these days.’ Wanayo afiya. ‘They have good health.’
afkhari	adj. [Ar. afkar “more splendid, more magnificent” W 699] expensive, beautiful afkhari yaa nguwo ‘the best clothes’ na nguwo afkhari huundru na akhóari [st.] ‘and clothes, beautiful, red and green’ Omari/ nayo afkhari/ ya nuumba. ‘Omari has the best house.’
afo	n. 9/10 [Som. af “mouth” DSI 10] fever blister, lesion, crack in the mouth afo iyi ‘this blister’ afoya ‘my blister’ Omari/ nayo afo. ‘Omari has lesions in the mouth.’ rel. i-’afo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
Aafrika	n. Africa Mi/ na mukeewá/ shtakhsaafira/ Aafrika/ ayamu iyi. ‘My wife and I will travel to Africa this week.’ Mi/ skeendra/ Aafrika/ nthaasá. ‘I have not gone to Africa yet.’
afahi	v. [? Ar. fataha W 693] vacation given to the pupils of the koranic schools because of some event Sku iyo/ wanafuunzi/ hutomolowa aftahi. ‘On that day the students are set free [do not have to attend classes].’ Waana/ leelo/ wanayo aftahi. ‘The children have off today from school.’
aftaali	n. 9/10 a dangerous, thorny fish, not eaten mwiwa/ wa aftaali ‘thorn of the aftaali’ Omari/ imdurile mwiwa wa aftaali. ‘Omari has been stung with the thorn of an aftaali fish.’
afiiini	adj., adv. [Som. iftiin “light, splendour, clear sky” DSI 322] clear, light; variant form: iftiini, which apparently can be used as a noun as well Iftini iyi/ hutosha khsomeoowa. ‘This light is sufficient to be used to read with.’ khfanya afiiini ‘to make clear’ Fanya ruuhuyo/ afiiini. ‘Make yourself clear!’ Khutbaye/ afiiini. ‘His speech is clear.’ Koodize/ zivaliko ifiiini. ‘His words were clear.’ Mtana uyu/ afiiini. ‘This room is clean.’ Omari/ hadile jawaabu/ afiiini. ‘Omari spoke the words clearly.’ Omari/ kódele jawaabu/ afiiini. ‘Omari spoke the words clearly.’ Omari/ kooðize/ siwo/ afiiini. ‘Omari’s words are not clear.’
afu	n. 9/10 fever blister afu iyi ‘this blister’ afuya ‘y blister’ rel. chi-’afu (zi-) n. dim.
-’aafu	v. pardon huloomba Mooja kun’ aafu/ ðambi kughafiriloowa[st.] ‘I implore God to obliterate my sins/ may God pardon my sins’

- Muunthu/ suura/ kum’afu mweenziwe. ‘It is good for a person to pardon another person.’
- Mwajiitu/ nakhu’aafu. ‘May God relieve you of your ailing.’
- rel.
- ku-’afoowa v. pass.
- Omari/ nakhsuḷa ku’afoowa. ‘Omari wants to be pardoned.’
- m(u)-’aafu adj. forgiven, excused; n. someone who pardons
- ka shartize na dambize mu’aafu [st.] ‘under these conditions (with reference to the requirements for the pilgrimage) and his sins will be forgiven’
- M’aafu/ ni mojiitu. ‘The one who pardons is God.’
- Omari/ ni m’aafu. ‘Omari is someone who pardons.’
- We/ m(u)’aafu. ‘You are forgiven, pardoned.’ Or ‘You are one who pardons, forgives.’
- ku-’afura v. [Som. v. affur DSI 11] (but kh-futura is more common in Chimiini than ku-’afura) eat the first meal of the day after fasting
- Leelo/ Omari/ naku’afura ka Hamadi. ‘Today Omari is going to break his fast at Hamadi’s place.’
- afuri n. [Som. n. affur DSI 11] the first meal of the day after fasting
- Leelo/ Hamadi/ nayo afuri. ‘Today Hamadi is having the breaking fast meal (i.e. he is having people come to break the fast).’
- Leelo/ ka Hamadi/ yiko afuri. ‘There is the breaking fast meal at Hamadi’s place.’
- afwu n. 9 [cf. Sw. afua(a) SSED 4; Ar. ʾafw W 625] forgiveness
- afwu ya mwajiitu ‘the forgiveness of God’
- afyuuni n. 9 [Sw. afyuni SSED 4; Ar. afyūn W 21] opium
- afyuni iyi ‘this opium’
- aaga n. rubber, plastic
- aaga/ ya maayi ‘a plastic water container’
- chijamu cha aaga ‘a plastic plate’
- lkaandra/ la aaga ‘plastic belt’
- shṭana cha aaga ‘a rubber, plastic comb’
- zilaatu/ za aaga ‘plastic shoes’
- aghaarsho n. [Som. cagaarshow DSI 81] jaundice, hepatitis; [pron. aghaarshó]
- Omari/ pete aghaarshó. ‘Omari got jaundice.’
- Uki/ ni dawa ya aghaarshó. ‘Honey is a remedy for jaundice.’
- aghlabiya n. [see etymology immediately below for aghlabu] the majority, mostly
- Aghlabiya ya waanthu/ ni wasuura. ‘The majority of people are good.’
- Waanthu/ aghlabiya (or: aghlabu yaawo/nt^hawakuuya. ‘The majority of the people did not come.’
- Ye/ pete sooti/ (ya) aghlabiya. ‘He got the votes (lit. voice) of the majority.’
- aghlabu adv. [Sw. aghalabu SSED 5; Ar. aḡlab ‘the majority’; adv. expressions meaning “most likely, probably, in most cases” formed with aḡlab followed by other words, W 680] often, usually; n. the majority
- variant form: ghaalibu
- Aghlabu ya waanthu/ ni wasuura. ‘The majority of people are good.’
- Mi/ aghlabu/ hendra chinemaani/ naaye. ‘I often go to the cinema with him.’
- Wana awa/ aghlabu/ huraaga/ kuya madrasaani. ‘These children often delay going to school.’
- Want^hu wa maduriini/ aghlabu/ hujani. ‘What do people from the bush usually eat?’ (A possible answer: Hujaa nama. ‘They eat meat.’) agosto n. August Leelo/ karka gazeeti/ yandishi/ kuwa ra’iisi/ wa Keenya/ nakuya Somaaliya/ Agosto/ mwezi/ ikumi. ‘Today in the newspaper it is written that the president of Kenya will come to Somalia on August 10.’

ah interj.
Ah/ chilawé/ chilawé/ oo/ jawaabuze/ mi/ skupeenda. ‘Ah! let’s go, let’s go, that guy, his words, I do not like.’

mu-’aahada n. 3 [Ar. mu’ahada W 652] agreement mu’ahada uyu ‘this agreement’

ah(a)di n. 9/10 [Sw. ahadi SSED 5; Ar. ’ahd W 651] promise, appointment Ahadi/ muunt^hu/ laazimu/ khfulisha. ‘A promise, a person must fulfill.’
Ahadi/ ni kana deeni. ‘A promise is like a debt.’ (A proverb.)
Ahdi/ ni deeni/ ka muunt^hu/ nawo diini. ‘A promise is a debt for the man who is religious.’ (A proverb.) Ahdi/ ya maraa piili/ iwaaliko/ ya kuwa takhshindroowá/ takuna maayi/ ya tawala yotte. ‘The promise of the second time was that the one who was defeated would drink all of the water in the sea.’ (Phon. Although -otte is often isolated from a preceding word, in this example we did not observe a phrasal break in front of yotte.)

Ahdi yiitu/ iwaaliko/ ya kuwa takhshindroowá/ takhtomola maaliye/ yotte/ kumpa munt^hu shiinzió. ‘Our promise was that the one who was defeated would give away all his wealth to the man who won.’

Iyi/ iwaliko ahdi/ ya maraa kandra. ‘This was the promise [made] the first time.’

khfanya ahdi ‘to make an appointment’ khfulisha ahdi ‘to fulfill a promise’ khpa ahdi ‘to give a promise’ kh^htomola ahdi ‘to give a promise’ khurashiize ka tama’ahdiyo nt^heete mi skiiza [song] ‘I followed you with hope, I took your promise, I did not refuse’ ku^hlawa karka ahdi ‘to break [lit. withdraw] a promise’ kuvunda ahdi ‘to break a promise’

Mithaali/ iyi/ inakuharama/ waant^hu/ kudhoora/ na kofisha ahdi. ‘This proverb warns people to respect and to fulfill a promise.’

Munt^hu sho (kudhoro) ahdi/ si muunt^hu. ‘A person who does not respect a promise is not a man.’

Naayé/ baaba/ mpele ahdi/ mu^hli mwiingine. ‘And he, father has already promised her to another man.’

Ni muunt^hu/ nt^haná/ ahdi. ‘He is man who does not keep promises.’
Washfanya ahdi. ‘They made an appointment.’

We/ laazimu/ khfulisha ahadiyo. ‘You must fulfill your promise.’

ahamiya n. [Ar. ahammīya W 1033] importance Chiwaa we/ peesa/ nt^haziná/ ahamiya/ kaako/ teena/ sababu gani/ yiiko/ yiingine/ yaa we/ nakuhadó/ kuwa mu^hjaaná/ ha^htakhaadirá/ kundroolá. ‘If it be that for you money has no importance, then what other reason is there that you say the young boy can not marry me?’

Jawabu iyi/ ina ahamiya/ nt^ho. ‘This matter has a lot of importance.’

Jawabu iyo/ ha'ina/ ahamiya. 'That matter does not have importance.'
Hamadi/ nt^hakhpa/ ahamiya/ jawabu iyo. 'Hamadi is not giving importance to that matter.'

ahaani [Som. ahaan, from ahaw "to be, to become" DSI 15] a word postposed to nouns and adjectives to give an idea of approximation or 'like' chigobe ahaani or chigobeeni 'shortish' hundru ahaani or hundruuni 'reddish' lada ahaani or ladaani 'sweetish' masku ahaani '(at an unspecified time) during the night'
Omari/ masku ahaani/ choondroka/ chizimila. 'During the night Omari woke up and hid.'

Siimba/ chanza kuya muyiini/ masku aahaani/ na kublá/ ije ichimwiliilo mbeleyé. 'The lion began to come into the town during the night and to kill whatever came in front of him.'

Miizi/ muunt^hi/ ile kamba msaafiri/ ahaani/, masku/ ingiile/ bozele. 'The thief came by day pretending to be a traveler, (then) at night he entered to steal.' review phrasing nelpe ahaani or nelpeeni 'white-ish' Nimweshela Ali/ kaaká/ waardiya/ ahaani. 'I put Ali to act as a kind of watchman at my house.' phrasing and accent needs to be checked, example was given in writing nyulusi ahaani or nyulusiini 'blackish' Shfanya kaazi/ kamba wardiya ahaani. 'He was working as a watchman (but this means that he was not a professional watchman, just acting like one).'

siṭa ahaani or siṭaani 'sourish' ahbali (Ø, ma'-) adj., n. [Som. ahbal DSI 15; Ar. ahbal "dim-witted, weak-minded" W 1017] stupid, irresponsible person ahbali uyu 'this stupid person'; ahbali awa 'these stupid ones'

Hamadi/ ni ahbali. 'Hamadi is stupid.'

Ni munt^hu ahbali. 'He is a stupid person.'

Wo/ ni want^hu (ma')ahbali. 'They are stupid people.'

ahdiya ?

aṭa qiyaama ahdiya [poem] 'until the end of time'

ku-'ahida v. [Sw. ahidi SSED 5; Ar. ahida W 651] (ahidiile) promise chibuku chaa mi/ nim'ahidilo Nuuru 'the book that I promised Nuuru' munt^hu waa mi/nim'ahidilo chibuukú 'the man whom I promised a book' Nim'ahidile 'chibuukú/ Nuuru. 'I promised a book to Nuuru.' Nim'ahidile Nuuru/ chibuukú. 'I promised Nuuru a book.'

rel.

ku-'ahidana v. rec. (-ahideene) promise one another

Si/ chi'ahideené/ ya kuwa takhshindroowá/ takhtomola maaliye/ yotte. 'We promised one another that who was defeated would give over all his wealth.'

ku-'ahidila v. appl. (ahidiliile) promise to Chi'ahidiliila kishpa deeni. 'He promised to lend us money.'

ku-'ahidisha v. caus. (ahidishiize)

ku-'ahidoowa v. pass. (ahidiila)

Nuuru/ ahidila chibuuku/ naami. 'Nuuru was promised a book by me.'

ahlal beyti n. the people of the house of the Prophet Mashariifu/ huhadoowa/ kuwa ni ahlal beyti. 'The mashariifu are said to be the people of the house of the Prophet.'

ahlan [Som. ahlan] a greeting
rel.
ahlan wa sahlán [Ar. ahlan wa-sahlan "welcome" W 33] a greeting

ahli	n. 9/10 [Sw. ahali; Ar. ahl "relatives, kinsfolk, family" W 33] one's clan, a relative or member of one's clan ahli infariqiile mi nakhkooda na nafsiya [nt.] 'my relatives have left me and I talk to my soul' Ahliza/ wa'oloshese. 'My relatives went.' Or: Ahliza/ zoloshese. (In the former example, the plural noun triggers [cl.2] agreement, while in the latter example it triggers [cl.10] agreement.) Ali/ lazile karka ahli/ nt'awana mapeesa/ miingi. 'Ali comes from a family which does not have much money.' Ba'adi yaa sala/ kuja mooyi/ humlazima kendra kuzura wazaaziwe/ ahliye/ na weenzawé. 'After the prayer (on the idi ya wamuusi) everyone is obliged to go to visit his parents, his relatives, and his friends.' hatá/ ichiwa ziwovu izo/ zinakhudirkaa we/ na ahliyó 'even if these evil deeds affect you and your relatives' Isa/ we/ endrá/ sultaani/ nakhuloole/ mi/ nnakhfunga zoombozá/ nakendra kiitú/ ku'iishá/ na ahliyá. 'Now you go to the sultan so that he may marry you, and I am going to pack my things and go to our place and live with relatives.' kuzuura/ ba'aði ya ahliye 'to visit some of his clan' Munt'hu uje/ ni ahliye. 'That man is my relative.' Wawaliko waant'hu/ weema/ ka ahli yaawo/ na winginiwe/ ba. 'They were people good to their relatives and others as well.' Ye/ sulije kumloola/ mwanaamke/ lazilo ka ahli. 'He wanted to marry a girl who came from his clan.' Yiko khatari/ yaa zita/ za ahli. 'There is a danger of civil war.' rel. u-'ahli n. 14 kinship kumera undrú/ na u'ahli 'to seek relatedness and kinship' Wawaliko waant'hu/ weema/ ka ahli yaawo/ na winginiwé/ ba. 'They were people good to their relatives and others as well.'
ahlul badri	n. [Ar. expression, where ahl + genitive = "the people, members, inhabitants, etc. of" ; W 33; here it means the "people of Badr", i.e. those who fought and died at the battle of Badr] a group of fighters who died on jihad
ahlul banadiri	n. [see etymology above] the people of Banadir ahlul banadiri hujuuza hirima/ karka Judá hadiilo Sheekhi'llama [st.] 'the people of Banadir are permitted to state their intention to make pilgrimage in Jeddah, the one who said this is the Scholar of Scholars [a name for Ibnu Hajari]'
ahlul fitna	n. people of chaos, discord
ahlul ilmu	n. people of knowledge
ahlul jana	n. [see etymology above] Arabicism the people of paradise weene ahlul jana wotte wasuura [st.] 'he saw the people in paradise, all nice'
ahlul kheeri	n., adj. [see etymology above] someone who does good deeds islaamu ahlul kheeri wenye baraka [st.] 'a Muslim who does good deeds and has blessing'
ahlul naari	n. people of hellfire Makaafiri/ ni ahlul naari/ hingila adabuuni. 'Infidels, those who do not follow God's commandments, are the people of hellfire, they go to hell.'
ahlul sadaqa	n. people of charity, who give charity
ahlul sunna	n. people of sunna , i.e. people who follow the Prophet's path

ahmaqi (Ø, ma-) adj. [Ar. aḥmaq W 206] usu. stupid, foolish; [pron. ahmakhi] Ahmakhi/ hataambuli/ suura/ hataambuli/ mbovu. ‘A stupid or foolish person does not understand good and does not understand bad.’ (A proverbial saying.)
Hamadi/ ni ahmakhi. ‘Hamadi is foolish.’
Mi/ na’iwá/ kuwa iyi/ ni fikra ahmakhi. ‘I am aware that this is a stupid idea.’
Mi/ nakuyaawaṭá/ naani/ takuwo ahmakhi/ nt^ho/ kuweka masharti/ naaye/ khshiindra. ‘I wonder who would be foolish enough to bet against him winning.’
Mi/ siwo/ ahmakhi. ‘I am not foolish, stupid.’
want^hu ahmakhi or want^hu ma’ahmakhi ‘stupid people’ Want^hu awo/ ni (ma’)ahmakhi. ‘Those people are stupid.’
We/ ni ahmakhi. ‘You are stupid.’
Wo/ siwo/ ahmakhi. ‘They are not stupid.’
 rel.
u-’ahmaqi n. 14 stupidity; [usu. pron. u’ahmakhi] Kuvukowavukowa mahaḷa/ nt^ha’ina faaydá/ ni u’ahmakhi. ‘To keep going to a place that is not beneficial, useful is foolishness.’

ahmiya

Hamadi/ nt^hakoonya/ ismu/ ya ahmiya/ ya fikraza. ‘Hamadi did not show any interest in my ideas.’

ahsanṭa
 you, thanks honored me’

interj. [Sw. a(h)sante SSED 19; cf. Ar. aḥsanta “well done!, bravo!” W 178] thank ahsanṭa khushukura we nsharifile [song] ‘thanks, I thank you, you have Mukewe mgarwa/ chimjiiba/ chimwaambila/ ahsanṭa/ saydiyá/ nkhiriilé/ laakini/ chiliindre/ sku sitta zimó. ‘The fisherman’s wife answered him saying to him: thanks, my master, I accept, but let us wait some six days.’

Sultaani/ chimwaambila/ ahsanṭa/ mwaanawá. ‘The sultan said: thank you, my son.’

ahwaali

n. (cf. haali) [Ar. pl ahwāl W 216]

ku-’ajabisha

v. [Sw. ajabisha SSED 6, but said to be little used; Ar. ‘ajab W 591] surprise ajabu n. 9/10 [Sw. ajabu SSED 6; Ar. ‘ajab W 591] surprise, amazement, marvel, wonder (The penult syllable of this word is extra-high in pitch in some examples we have given. We have indicated this fact with an upwards-pointing arrow in front of the vowel.)

Aj[↑]abu. ‘Amazing!’

ajabu iyi ‘this marvel’; ajabu izi ‘these marvels’

Ajabu/ nt^haykuwapungulika/ kuwona eelo/ khkooḍa/ ka fasaander was not reduced to them) to see a gazelle speak so eloquently.’

chint^hu cha ajabu ‘something amazing’

Duniya/ iyele ajabu. ‘The world is full of wonders.’

kuleta ajabu ‘to surprise (lit. bring surprise)’

Kuwa Hamadi/ pisile imṭihaani/ ilesele ajabu. ‘That Hamadi passed the examination surprised me.’

mwenye ajabu ‘someone who does amazing things’

Ni munt^hu mwenye ajabu. ‘He is an amazing man.’

Ni ajabu gani/ nk^hulu/ hushindro iyi. ‘What great wonder surpasses this?’

Ni ajabu/ mp^huundra/ khkooḍa chaarabu. ‘It is a wonder for a donkey to speak Arabic.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Nuuru/ fanyize jawaabu/ za aj[↑]abu. ‘Nuuru made things of wonder.’

Sa'iidi/ oweele/ muda/ wa skuu saba/ mukhta skuu saba/ stimiiló/ ujé/muke/ ile/ mteete/ oloshela/ monyeze ziint^hu/ zenye ajabu.
 'Sa'iidi bathed for a period of seven days, and when the seven days were completed, that woman came and took him and went and showed him things possessing wonders.'
Shpete ichi/ ni shpete cha ajabu. 'This ring is a wonderful ring.'

ajala

n. [Sw. ajali SSED 6; Ar. ajal W 6] fate; time of death; accident, emergency, something unexpected that happens; variant form: ajali Ajala/ ichiingila/ nt^haku/ hukhaadiró/ kureebá. 'When ajala is coming, there is nothing that one can do to stop it.'
Ajala/ ichiya/ ha'ireebeki. 'When the time to die comes, it cannot be stopped.'
Ajala/ ishpita/ ha'iruudi. 'If an emergency happens, it does not return back.' (A proverb.) Ajala/ nthayná/ mas'ala. 'You cannot question fate (it just happened, there is no room for argument, etc.)' Ajaliyo/ ikomeele. 'Your time of death has come.'
Dakhtari/ hareebi/ ajala. 'A physician does not stop fate.' (A proverb.)
ghafila/ kana/ ajali 'as unexpected, sudden as death' Mi/niwiilé/ khabari/ za ajala/ mukhta yé/ ilo numbaani. 'I found out about the accident when she came home.'
Omari/ ajalaye/ yiile (or: yiingile). 'Omari's time of death has come (or lit.
 has entered).' Tahaðari/ ha'ireebi/ ajala. 'Being careful does not stop one's fate.' (A proverb that says if it has been ordained to happen by God, it is going to happen, there is nothing you can do, no care that you can take to prevent it.)

m-'ajami (wa-)

n. 1/2 [Ar. 'ajam W 593] someone who is not Arab ajabu

adj. strange Jaama/ kooloka/ ni ajabu. 'For Jaama to go is strange.' (It is possible to put Jaama after the infinitive verb, but it does not phrase with the verb: Kooloka/ Jaama/ ni ajabu. 'For Jaama, as opposed to someone else, to go is surprising.')

Jaama/ kolokake/ ni ajabu. 'Jama's going is strange.'

Kuwa Jaama/ nt^hakuuya/ ni ajabu. 'That Jaama did not come is strange.' Or:
Jaama/ kuwa nt^hakuuya/ ni ajabu.
Kuwa Jaama/ oloshela/ ni ajabu. 'That Jaama went is strange.' Or: Jaama/ kuwa oloshela/ ni ajabu.
Ni ajabu/ kuwa Jaama/ nt^hakuuya. 'It is strange that Jaama did not come.' Or: Ni ajabu/ Jaama/ kuwa nt^hakuuya.

ku-'ajiba

v. [Ar. 'ajiba "to please, delight, appeal" W 591] (ajibiile) please Basi/ we/ mwene/ mmerejaa muke/ mweema/ takhu'ajibó. 'Therefore you yourself should look for a good wife for me who pleases you (i.e. meets with your approval).'
mukhta ye/ mpeto mp^huundrá/ m'ajibiiló 'when he found a donkey which pleased him'
Ni muuyi/ utakhu'ajibó. 'It is a town that will please you.'
Nuumba/ im'ajibile Nuuru. 'The house suited, pleased Nuuru.' Shaati/ im'ajibiile. 'The shirt pleased him.'

ku-'ajibisha

v. surprise review semantics of this and above Itakun'ajibisha/ mi/ kana ni Fardoosa/ tu/ hendro Mwini. 'It would surprise me if only Fardoosa is going to Miini'

ajili

ku-zuuba ajili = lit. to roll/wind a cassette. Meaning: to record on cassette (e.g. songs, voice).

ajini

n. [Som.] dough (In Chimiini, the word maandra is used to refer both to the raw dough and the cooked bread. It has borrowed the Somali word ajini to refer specificall to the dough.)

Nk^hanzile ajini/ nt^hile maandra. ‘I kneaded the dough and cooked bread.’

ku-’ajira

v. [Sw. ajiri SSED 7; Ar. ajara W 5] (ajiriile) rent, hire, employ; variant form: kaajira

Chajira nuumba/ chiingila/ ye/ na/ farasiyé. ‘He rented a house and moved in, he and his horse.’

Nuuru/ ajiriile gaari. ‘Nuuru rented a car.’

Nuuru/ mtile Suufi/ kajira gaari. ‘Nuuru had Suufi rent a car (from someone else).’

rel.

ku-’ajirika v. p/s.

ku-’ajirila v. appl. (ajiriile) rent s.t. for variant form: kaajirila

Ajiriile gaari/ garaacha. ‘He rented a garage for the car.’

ku-’ajirisha v. caus. rent (to someone), rent something; convince, persuade someone to rent something; variant form: kaajirisha kajirisha baskiiji ‘to rent a bicycle’ (In the old days in Brava, people used to go to the port area to rent bicycles to ride as a means of relaxation, entertainment. Bicycles were not used as a means of transportation. Goods were moved by camel, donkey, or truck; human beings were transported by truck, bus, etc.)

Najirishize garacha ya Omari. ‘He convinced me to rent Omari’s garage.’ or ‘He rented Omari’s garage to me.’

Najirishize gaari. ‘He rented a car.’

Osmaani/ mwajirishize mwaana/ gaari. ‘Osmaani rented a car to the boy.’ (The “causee”, mwaana, controls the OM on the verb. The causee may be omitted, while still being present as an OM on the verb: Osmaani/ mwajirishize gaari. ‘Osmaani rented a car to him.’ The logical object may be omitted while the causee remains: Osmaani/ mwajirishize mwaana. ‘Osmaani rented it to the boy.’ Our consultant accepted a sentence where the causee is removed from the sentence: Osmaani/ ajirishize gaari. ‘Osmaani rented out a car.’ Sentences where the causee is omitted and the verb agrees with the logical object are of dubious acceptability: ?? Osmaani/ yajirishize gaari. ‘Osmaani rented out the car.’) ku-’ajirishana v. caus. rec.

variant form: kajirishana

ku-’ajirishika v. caus. p/s.

variant form: kajirishika

ku-’ajirishiliza v. caus. appl.

variant form: kajirishiliza

Najirishilize gaari. ‘He rented a car for me.’

ku-ajiroowa v. pass.

Peesa/ zote/ stumikilila kajirowa nuumba. ‘All the money has been used to rent the house.’

rel. nom.

m-’ajiro n. 3 the act of renting

ajiri, ajri

n. [Ar. ajr W 5] s.t. praiseful, productive; recognition, reward (but non-material in nature)

- khtala ajiri ‘to take praise, i.e. be praised’ Muunt^hu/ shfanya zeema/ hupata ajiri. ‘If one does good things, one gets praise.’
pashpo kuuza ajiri/ amó/ ijaará ‘without asking you for reward or salary’ soomu zinaayo ajiri niingi na jeza [st.] ‘fasting has many rewards and compensations’ Ukhuba/ numbáani/ ajiri/ ibanyaani. ‘At home, bad [behavior], outside, good [behavior].’ (A proverb, commenting on someone who is very poorly behaved at home, but outside the home everyone thinks he is wonderful etc.)
- mw-ajiitu n. 1 (see mojiitu, currently the more common pronunciation) God
- ku-’ajiza v. [cf. Ar. ‘ajaza “to be weak, incapacitated” W 592] (ajiziize) be hesitant, be unable to do s.t., give up, fail to complete s.t. that one has started khaansa Abade msuura Maana Faatima/ si’ajize Madiina mzuure ka hima [st.] ‘and in particular the good Lady Fatima/ do not delay, visit here soonest in Medina’ ku’ajiza kuwakuza/ na kuwasharifá/ awo/ wafilo ka khisaa si/ na khisa nt^hi yúutú ‘to fail to honor and respect those who died for us and for our country’ Naku’ajiza kendra kaziini. ‘I am feeling reluctant, hesitant, lazy to go to work.’
Naku’ajiza khpikaa kujá. ‘I am reluctant to cook food.’
Naasi/ chiko hayi/ husuloowa/ chiza ku’ajiza kuwakuza/ na kuwasharifa awo wafilo ka khisaa si/ na khisa nt^hi yúutú. ‘And we who are alive are wanted to not fail to honor and respect those who died because of us and because of our country.’
si’ajize Madiina mzuure kahima [st.] ‘don’t hesitate, visit her quickly in Medina’
- rel.
ku-’ajiza’ajiza v. freq.
Muke/ naku’ajizo’ajizo/ nini/ shtalaa chisu/ chimdura. ‘His wife is hesitating [to do what he told her to do], what, [and] he took a knife and pricked her [with it].’ (The word nini in this example is semantically empty filler.)
ku-’ajizisha v. caus. (ajizishiize) baffle, bewilder (e.g. of a problem that one cannot solve) ku-’ajizoowa v. pass.
Kaazi/ ha’i’ijizoowi. ‘Work is not something to feel hesitant or be lazy to do.’
Sala/ ha’i’ajizoowi. ‘Praying is not hesitated or felt lazy about.’
- aajizi (Ø, ma-) adj. [cf. Ar. ‘ajiz “weak, incapable” W 592] lazy, lax, remiss, idle, slow of action Al’akhalí/ haṭá/ inawe haba/ Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ wana wiingine/ ni ma’aajizi. ‘At least Hamisi likes to read, the other students are very lazy.’
Ni/ hakhiikha/ Omari/ kuwa ni aajizi. ‘It is a fact that Omari is lazy.’
Omari/ ni aajizi. ‘Omari is reluctant, sort of lazy.’
umatiyo ni aajizi da’ifu [st.] ‘your people are lazy (and) weak’ Want^hu ma’aajizi/ haliwaani. ‘Lazy people do not succeed.’
Wele aajizi. ‘He became lazy.’
- rel.
u-’aajizi n. laziness
ajzi n. laziness, laxness, remissness
u-’ajzi n. ibid.
- ajli [Ar. li-ajli W 6] in expression ka ajli ‘because of, for the sake of’
ka ajliye Mooja duniya unzile [st.] ‘for his sake God created the world’ Mwanaamke/ ufungile mlaango/ ka ajli ya mwaajimu. ‘The girl closed the door because of the teacher.’
- ajnabi (Ø, ma-) adj. [Ar. ajnabī W 139] not closely related by blood (e.g. in Islamic practice, a male may not touch a woman other than his mother or sister on the skin after having taken ablutions – all other women are ajnabi and touching them would result in nullifying the ablutions); s.o. available to one for marriage; foreigner, stranger (s.o. not belonging to this place) ajnabiyo ‘someone who is ajnabi to you’ ajnabizo ‘people who are ajnabi to you’

lugha za ajnabi ‘foreign languages’

Ma’ajnabi/ wako muyiini/ wont^{be}/ waviliila/ hafisaani/ ka rasdente. ‘All strangers in the city are called to the commissioner’s office.’

Mi/ muḅli uyu/ simpeendi/ kuwa ni muḅli/ na nch^hilazimoowa/

khkalan^ha naaye/ nt^hakhkalan^ha naaye/ kama ajnabi. ‘This man, I do not want him to be (my) husband, and if I must live with him, I will live with him as someone unmarried to him.’

Mkhodiisho/ ma’ajnabi/ wiingi/ waako. ‘In Mogadishu there are many strangers.’

Omari/ siwo/ ajnabi/ ni mkala muuyi. ‘Omari is not a stranger, he is a resident of the city (a city-dweller).’

rel.

chi-’ajnabi adj. foreign nt^hi za chi’ajnabi ‘foreign countries’

ma-’jnabi n. strangers

We/ laazimu/ kumdigilaa ye/ chiza khtaala/ zawaadi/ ka ma’jnabi. ‘You have to warn her about not accepting gifts from strangers.’

ajnaasi

n. [Ar. ajnās pl. of jins ‘kind, sort, variety’ W 141] kind, different kinds

Mashariifu/ naawó/ hufanya kaazi/ za ajnaasi. ‘The mashariifu as well do jobs of different kinds.’

Mp^huundra/ waliko tukiile/ zaakuja/ za ajnaasi/ niingi/ ilu ya moongowe. ‘The donkey was carrying foods of many different kinds on his back.’

Tunne/ hukalo muyiini/ hufanya kaazi ajnaasi. ‘The Tunni who live in town do jobs of different kinds.’

Waant^hu/ awa/ ajnaasi/ wakomelopo mahaḷa zikoo ziti/ na meezá/ wachisimama. ‘When these different kinds of people reached the place where there were chairs, they stopped.’

ajjuza (ma-’ajjuza)

n., adj. [Ar. ajūz W 592] a very old person (usu. a woman)

muḅli ajuuza ‘an old man’

muke ajuuza ‘an old woman’

...na kumlaṭa mzeele/ uyu/ ajuuza/ kiineendrá ‘...and leave this old man to walk?’ review accent, phrasing

rel.

chi-’ajjuza (zi-) n. 7/8 a very old woman; in the manner of an old person

Basi/ chi’ajjuza/ shchifungafunga zoomboze/ shchiruda kaawo. ‘So the old woman packed up her things and returned [lit. to their] home.’

Nakinendra chi’ajjuza. ‘He is walking in the manner of an old person.’

=aaka

first person singular possessive root chibuku chaaka ‘my book’ (cf. chibuukucha ‘my book’) (Note that ch-aaka is an independent word while =ch-a is an enclitic. The talking backwards language Chijiini reveals this difference: [kuchibu/ kách^a] versus [kuchachib^a].)

Mayaank^huku/ yawozeló/ ndaaká. ‘The eggs that went bad are mine.’

mwana waaka ‘my child’ (cf. the encliticized first person singular possessive: mwaanawa ‘my child’) (The contrast between w-aaka and =w-a is demonstrated by the treatment in Chijiini: [námwa/ káw^a] and [nawámw^a].)

Shkapu chaaka/ chibeele. ‘My basket is lost.’ cf. shkapucha ‘my basket’ wana waaka ‘my children’ (cf. waanawa ‘my children’) zibuku zaaka ‘my books’ (cf. zibuukuza ‘my books’)

k-aaka

- v. (ashile) be lit, on (of a light), be burning Fulaani/ nakaaka. ‘So-and-so is burning up with greed.’
Fulaani/ nakaka kaa ndala. ‘So-and-so is very hungry.’
ka maraōi aya niwiile kufaaka/ na kulatta speendo qalbi hunaaka [st.]
‘from this illness I got aware of my death, and my heart burns me in leaving those whom I love’ kaaka/ kuzima ‘to flash (lit. to burn and to go out)’ kaka miimba ‘to be extremely sorry, grieved -- lit. burn the stomach’ Miimba/ hunaaka. ‘I am very sorry.’
Miimba/ inakunaaka. ‘I am very sorry.’
Miimba/ inakunaaka/ Omari/ kufa. ‘I am very sad about Omari’s dying.’
Lizile munt^h u oyo/ haṭá/ miimba/ itakhaaka. ‘That man cried until [lit.] the stomach will burn you.’
Malungo/ yanakunaaka/ kana pilpili. ‘My body is burning me like hot chili peppers.’
Mulo/ unakaaka. ‘The fire is burning.’
Mulo/ unakaka kati kaawo. ‘Fire is burning between them – i.e. they hate one another fiercely.’
Sigareeti/ inakaaka. ‘The cigarette is lit.’
Tala/ inakaaka. ‘The lamp is on.’
Sku mooyi/ masku/ sultaani/ naayé/ nakinendo’inendo karka ndilaani/wene nuumba/ mooyi/ inakakaa tala/ katiike. ‘One day, at night, while the king was taking a stroll, he saw a house burning a lamp in it.’
Zibiriti izi/ hazaaki. ‘These matches won’t light.’
Zibiriti/ zinakaaka. ‘The matches burn, light.’
- rel.
k-aakana* v. rec. This verbal form does not appear to be in use.
k-aakika* v. p/s. This verbal form does not appear to be in use.
k-aakila v. intr. appl.
Mulo/ unamwaakila. ‘A fire is burning for him.’
Mulo/ wize kumwaakila. ‘The fire wouldn’t start for him.’
k-akoowa v. pass.
Mi/ nakakoowá/ maluungó. ‘I am very sad.’
k-aasha v. caus. (ashiize) light s.t., put a light on, burn s.t.
Ashá. ‘Burn it!’
Ashaani. ‘You (pl.) light it!’
Ashani nt^h a. ‘You (pl.) light a candle!’
kasha maato ‘to be awake’ kashaa mulo ‘to get a fire going, to light a fire (by adding s.t. to it rather than starting from scratch, which would be khfanyaa mulo ‘to make a fire); to create differences, discord among people’ kasha muunt^h u ‘to do everything possible to get someone arrested’ kashaa nt^h a ‘to light a candle’ kasha sugareeti ‘to light a cigarette’ kashaa tala ‘to put on a lamp’
Takaasha. ‘He will burn it.’
Takashaayi. ‘How will he light it?’
k-aashanya v. burn one another (for example, do everything to get one another arrested)
Hamadi/ na Ali/ wa’ashenye ka sarkaali. ‘Hamadi and Ali lit. burned one another to the government (tried to get one another arrested by the government).’
k-aashika v. caus. p/s. able to be lit haashikó ‘that which is flammable’ Mulo/ hawaashiki/ apa/ ka lpepo. ‘A fire cannot be lit here because of the wind.’

Sandukhuuni/zimo zint^u haashikó (or: haakó). ‘Things that are flammable are in this box.’

k-ashikila v. caus. p/s. appl.

Muĵo/ wize kumwashikila. ‘The fire wouldn’t start for him.’

k-ashiliza v. caus. appl. (ashiliize) light for, with k-ashilizika v. caus. appl. p/s.

Ji/ ha’ashiliziki/ muĵo. ‘Ji cannot be started for a fire.’ (Observe that in the potential/stative form, the subject is the beneficiary in a benefactive applied causative verb construction.)

Zibiriti izi/ hazashiliziki/ muĵo. ‘These matches cannot be used to light a fire (perhaps they burn too fast).’ (Observe that it is the instrument that is the subject of the potential/stative form of an instrumental applied causative verb.)

k-ashoowa v. caus. pass. be burnt, lit miskiti huwa miinza hatta tala ichashoowa [st.] ‘the mosque will be dark even when it is lit’

rel. nom.

ch-aasha n. something that lights something chasha sigareeti ‘a cigarette lighter’

mw-aako n. the act of burning mw-aasho n. burning; (bodily) temperature

Nele maayi/ ka mĵuungi/ ka khisa wanayo mwaasho. ‘He drank a full jar of water because he was hot.’

mwa-aka (m(i)y-)

n. 3/4 year; [pron. mwaaka or maaka in the singular, myaaka or miyaaka in the plural]

Baaba/ ishiize/ miyaka miingi. ‘Father lived for many years.’

Mahamuudi/ shfanya Mkhodiisho/ kaazi/ miyaaka. ‘Mahamuudi worked in Mogadishu for years.’ Or: Miyaaka/ Mahamuudi/ shfanyo kaazó. ‘For years Mahamuudi worked in Mogadishu.’ Or: Mkhodiisho/ Mahamuudi/ miyaaka/ shfanyo kaazi.

miyaka miwili ‘two years’

muda/ wa mwaaka/ mzima ‘for a period of an entire year’ (The phrasing shown here is that employed in the text that this example is extracted from; there are other variations, including one where this word sequence to be pronounced as a single phrase: muda wa mwaka mzima.)

mwaka mooyi ‘one year’

Ndrinzile/ majiibu/ miyaka mitatu. ‘I waited for an answer for three years.’

Ndriinzile/ miyaka mitatu. ‘I waited for three years.’

Ngurile/ Columbús/ mwaka upisilo. ‘I moved to Columbus last year (lit. the year that has passed).’

Ngurile/ Columbús/ mwakaa yana. ‘I moved to Columbus last year?’

Nimlinzile/ waawé/ miyaka mitatu. ‘I waited for my father for three years.’

Noloshele/ Mambasá/ makaa yana. ‘I went to Mombasa last year.’

Nt^hashkuwona/ chineema/ makaa yana. ‘We have not seen a movie this year (lit. last year).’

Shaati/ iyi/ chiguwoche/ chuuma/ juk!/ hachihadi/ takuvaala/ miyaaka/ na miyaakayé. ‘This shirt, its cloth is hard/strong, juk! it does not say (i.e. it does not get torn or wornout); you will wear it years and years (lit. years and its years).’

We/ yiko kendra kulindra miyaaka/ miwili/ amá/ miyaka mitatu. ‘You may have to wait for two or three years.’

rel.

mwa-akaani n. next year

Sultaani/ liinzile/ hatta/ mwakaani. ‘The sultan waited until the next year.’

l-’ akbari

[Ar. akbar W 810] have only observed this item in the steenzi line:

mapeendo ya nafsi ni dambi l’akbari [st.] ‘love of self is a major sin’

rel.

	akaabiri [Ar. akābir W 810] wamiinzilo akaabiri/ ni Bur'i na Buusiri [st.] 'the greatest ones who sang his praises (lit. him) are Bur'i and Buusiri'
-aake	his, her Chaako/ chiwovu/ si cha muunt^hu/ chisuura. 'The bad that is yours is not (i.e. is better than) the good of another.' (A proverb that says that one should rely on oneself, not on others.) Fiiló/ yaake/ imaliize. 'He who has died, his (affairs, issues, concerns, etc.) are finished.' (A proverb.) Kilaa mooyi/ yaake/ imshishile. 'Everyone's catches him (i.e. everyone has his own problems etc.).' Or: Kilá/ mooyi/ yaake/ imshishile. Muunt^hu/ humfunguloo nguwó/ walaaliwé/ mojiitu/ humfungula yaake. 'The one who takes the cloth off his companion/brother, God takes his (clothes) off him.' (A proverb.) Muunt^hu/ hushika zaake. 'A man takes care of his (business, affairs).' (A proverb.) Omari/ yaake/ imaliize. 'Omari is dead (lit. Omari, his is finished).' Sho khkasa ya waake/ huwona yaake. 'The one who does not listen to his (i.e. the people close to him, family and friends) will see his (i.e. the unfortunate consequences of ignoring these people).' (A proverb.)
aake	n. Kalashnikov assault rifle ("AK-47") khori aake 'AK rifle'
akh	interj. of smelling bad, or a negative reaction to something Akh/ ni kuja gani/ awo/ yanakunuunk^ha. 'Akh! what kind of food is that, it smells bad!' Haliima/ mw-ambile mw-aana=w-e/ akh!/ tufa kuja iyo si-mizé/ i-wozéle. 'Haliima told her child, (it is) akh! , disgusting, spit it out, do not swallow that food, it is rotten' Hasani/ hadiile/ Alí/ mara mara/ hukoða mikooði/ maala yá'ani/ akh!/ haṭá/ itakhufanya matapika. 'Hasani said: Ali sometimes talks and talks without meaning, akh! until it will make you want to vomit.' Umí/ mwambile Haawa/ akh!/ laṭa khkoða mijawabu ayo/ ufiskhi. 'Umi told Haawa: akh! Stop talking those talks of bad things.'
akharaba	n. 9 one's relatives is q possible? Awa/ ni akharabaya. 'These ones are my relatives.'
akhbaari	n. cl. 10 (cf. khabari 'news') news (Examples provided by Meikal Mumin.) akhbari za Baana 'news of/from Baana' Da'iimu/ hulangaḷa akhbaari/ humurugsaṭila. 'Generally I look at the news and worry about it.'
akhðari	adj. [Ar. akdar W 243] green chibuku chi'akhðari/ cha mwaana 'the child's green book' (cf. zibuku zi'akhðari/ za mwaana 'the boy's green books') Chibuku ichi/ ni chi'akhðari. 'This book is green.' (Cf. Zibuku izi/ ni zi'akhðari. 'These books are green.')
	Na weene/ ziski/ saba/ akhðari/ zoloolo/ na ziskí/ sabá/ skavú. 'And he saw seven ears of green corn and seven ears of dry corn.'
aakhera	[Sw. ahera SSED 5; Ar. al-ākira W 8] the hereafter] (Note that a locative form with the enclitic =ni is not possible.) aakhera/ na lminguuní 'in the hereafter and in this world' kendra aakhera 'to go to another life, i.e. to the life after death'

Ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ takeendra/ aakhera. ‘Everybody will die.’
Nt^haku/ husulo kendra aakherá. ‘No one wants to die.’

Omari/ kamba munt^hu nakendro aakherá. ‘Omari (looks) like a man who is dying.’

kesho aakhera ‘the life hereafter’

Mtume Mhamadi/ takhshafiya umaṭiye/ kesho aakhera. ‘Prophet Mohamad will forgive his people in the other world, the afterlife.’

aakhiba

n. [Sw. akiba SSED 7; Ar.] future; something held in reserve for the future, savings; variant form: aaqiba, aaqibi, aakhibi

Aakhibi/ ha’iwoli. ‘Something set aside as a reserve does not go bad.’ (A proverb.)

kuweka aakhiba ‘to keep something for the future, to save money or other things for future use’

Muunt^hu/ shpata peesa/ ha’isuloowi/ zont^he/ kuja/ kumala/ husuloowa/ habamooyi/ kuweka aakhiba/ ya keesho. ‘When one gets money, one should not eat and finish all, he should put in some aside for tomorrow.’

Mwana uyu/ nt^haná/ aakhiba. ‘This child has no future (nothing good will come to him in the future).’

ku-’akhirira

v. [Sw. ahiri SSED 5; Ar. akira W 8] (akhiriiile) delay, postpone Awuukari/ akhiriiile fadhi. ‘Awuukari postponed the meeting.’

Baana/ akhiriiile majlisi. ‘Baana postponed the meeting.’

Nuuru/ akhiriiile safari. ‘Nuuru postponed the trip.’

rel.

ku-’akhirika v. p/s. able to be postponed

Majlisi aya/ haya’akhiriki. ‘This meeting cannot be postponed.’

ku-’akhirikila v. p/s. appl.

Huseeni/ majlisi/ yam’akhirikiiile. ‘Huseeni, the meeting was able to be postponed for him.’

ku-’akhirisha v. [Sw. ahirisha] (akhirishiize) delay, postpone Hamadi/ m’akhirishize mwaana. ‘Hamadi delayed the child.’

Nuuru/ m’akhirishize mwaana/ kuya sukhuuni. ‘Nuuru delayed the child coming to the market.’

ku-’akhirishana v. caus. rec.

Waana/ wa’akhirishene kuya madrasaani. ‘The childrn delayed coming to school (lit. delayed one another, although the meaning does not seem to imply that they each caused the other to delay).’

ku-’akhirishika v. caus. p/s.

Mwaana/ ha’akhirishiki. ‘The child cannot be delayed.’

Mwaana/ ha’akhirishiki/ kuya sukhuuni. ‘The child cannot be delayed going to the market.’

ku-’akhirishikila v. caus. p/s. appl.

Mwaana/ n’akhirishikiiile. ‘The child was able to be delayed for, on me.’

ku-’akhirishiliza v. caus. appl.

Baazi/ m’akhirishilize Omari/ majlisi. ‘Baazi postponed the meeting for/on Omari.’

Nuuru/ m’akhirishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ kuya sukhuuni. ‘Nuuru delayed Suufi’s child coming to the market.’

ku-’akhirishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Want^hu awa/ wa’akhirishilizenye waana/ kendra madrasaani. ‘These people delayed one another’s children going to school.’

ku-’akhirishilizika v. caus. appl. p/s.

Awiikari/ ha’akhirishiliziki/ majlisi. One cannot postpone a meeting for, on Awiikari.’

ku-’akhirioowa v. pass. [Sw. ahiriwa] be delayed taraawehe sunna ku’akhirioowa [st.] ‘it is better for the Ramadhan prayers to be delayed’

- akhiiran adv. finally Akhiiran/ kana mwana wa skoola/ chimaliza khsooma/ ye/ hukhaadira/ kulangala mpiira. ‘Finally, if a student finishes studying, he may watch football.’
- aakhiri n. [Sw. aheri SSED 5; Ar. ākīr W 8] end, last aakhiri ya koođi kuliindra majibu [song] ‘the end of talk is to wait for an answer’ Chimooyi/ chiseeló/ cha aakhiri/ chingiile/ mahala/ maape/ mutiini. ‘The last remaining one [lit. one which remained of last] entered a place inside the tree.’
Chiineendra/ muda/ wa sku[†] niingi/ nt^ho/ hatá/ aakhiri/ shkoma nt^hi mooyi. ‘He walked for a period of many days until at last he reached a land.’
Islaamu/ wote/ hufuunga/ nt^h angú/ awali ya mweezi/ hatá/ akhiriye. ‘All Moslems fast from the first day of the month (of Ramadhan) until its end.’
Mahala/ yaa si/ hupendo keendrá/ akhiri ya ayaamú/ ni kharibu ya tawala. ‘The place where we like to go on weekends is by the sea.’
Mi/ nile aakhiri. ‘I came last.’ (cf. Ye/ ile aakhiri. ‘He came last.’) Mi/ skukashifa/ Abú/ kunkhiyaansaata/ mi/ mpaka/ aakhiri/ ya wakhti. ‘I did not discover Abu’s cheating me until much later.’
Munt^h mwovu/ akhiriye/ mbovu. ‘A bad man, his end is bad.’
Na ifungu ya aakhiri/ ilete apa/ uyu islaamu/ nayine. ‘And the last part, bring it here so that this Muslim may drink it.’
ndiye mufti wa aakhiri zamaani [st.] ‘he is the mufti of the last days’
- aakhiri adv. [see above] at last, in the end Akhiri iyi/ Hamadi/ akhilize/ zangamiile/ hakoođi/ jawaabu/ suura. ‘In these last times, Hamadi’s mind has worsened, his talk (the things he says) are not good.’
Aakhiri/ kana mwana wa skoola/ chimaliza khsooma/ ye/ hukhaadira/ kulangala mpiira. ‘Finally, if a student finishes studying, he may watch football.’
Aakhiri/ wo/ washpatana/ kumtukula/ Yuusufu/ kendra kumtila/ karka chisima mweepe. ‘In the end, they agreed to carry Joseph and go and put him in some well.’
aakhiriye ‘at its end’
Chiineendra/ jis’iyo/ pisile/ wakhti/ na ba’adaa wakhti/ miyaaka/ na miyaaká/ aakhiri/ mwajiitu/ chimwaambila... ‘He went on that way, time passed and after time, years and years, and at last God said to him...’
- akhlaaqi n. 10 [cf. Ar. aklāqī “moral” and aklaqīya “morality” W 259] morals, good manners or behavior; the total behavior or moral character of a person; [pron. akhlaaqi or akhlaakhi] Akhlaakhize/ mbovu. ‘His morals are bad.’
Akhlaqi suura/na aqli/ liini/ schimpungukiló. ‘Good morals and wits he never lacked.’
Ama/ muke/ uje/ walimo numba iwaliko lpandre la kusootó/ waliko nii muke/ msuura/ ka akhlaakhi/ mwenye naharisi/ na heshimá. ‘As for the wife who was in the house on the left hand side, she was a woman beautiful with good manners and respect.’
Fulaani/ nt^h aná/ akhlaakhi suura/ waant^h u/ wote/ hum’awaađa. ‘So-and-so does not have good character, everyone complains about him.’
Husomeshowa diini/ akhlaaqi/ toohiidi. ‘They are taught religion, civics, theology.’
Mwanamke oyo/ chivilowa Safiya/ naayé/ waliko mwanaamke/ msuura/ mwenye akhlaakhi/ kađaalika. ‘That girl was called Safiya and she was a girl beautiful, having good morals as well.’
- akhfiyaari + poss [Ar. ikhtiyār “choice, preference, free will” W 267] a warning expression (lit. it is your decision)

Akhtiyaariyo/ choloka oko. ‘Be warned if you go there – i.e. don’t go there (if you go, you have been warned and you will be blamed for what happens).’

Haye/ de/ akhtari yiinu/ baṭaṭa izi/ muunt^hu/ sidaaré/ waló/ sisubut^é/ khtiiinda/ haṭá/ si/ shchiya laakuja. ‘I warn you, don’t anyone dare touch these potatoes nor dare to collect (lit. cut) any until we come at dawn.’

Mi/ ni sahá/ kuwa nt^hachiná/ akhtiyari yüingine. ‘I am right that we have no alternative.’

akhwaani (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10,6 brother(s) (in religion, i.e. fellow Muslims)

akhwaaniwa ‘my brother’

akhwaaniza ‘my brothers’

akhwaaniza laṭaani niingi kibri [st.] ‘my brothers, abandon excessive pride’

Awo/ ni akhwaani. ‘Those are brothers.’

Awo/ ni akhwaaniza. ‘Those are my brothers.’

Awo/ ni ma’akhwaani. ‘Those are brothers.’

Awo/ ni ma’akhwaaniwa. ‘Those are my brothers.’ (Note that one cannot have [cl.10] agreement when the prefix ma- is employed: Awo/ ni ma’akhwaaniza.)

Oyo/ ni akhwaani. ‘That one is a brother.’

akhwanuḥmusḥimiina

n. Muslim Brotherhood

variant form: akhwaanīḥmusḥimiina

akhyaari (Ø, ma-)
noble person

adj. [Ar. akyar “better, superior” W 267] gentle, kind, docile (of human beings); n.

Mi/ nt^humila kaakó/ na muunt^hu/ mweema/ na akhyaari. ‘I have been sent to you by a good and kind man.’

munt^hu akhyaari ‘a gentle man’ (cf. want^hu (ma’)axyaari ‘gentle men’, chijint^hu chi’akhyaari, zijint^hu zi’akhyaari)

Sultaani/ chiwaviḷa mawaaziri/ wotte/ na ma’akhyaari/ wa muuyi/ pamó/ na qaḍi/ kumlooza/ Hasani/ mwanaamkewe. ‘The sultan called all his ministers and the nobility of the town together with the judge to marry Hasani to his daughter.’

rel.

chi-’akhyaari n. 7 civilization, gentleness

Siwo/ mambo ya chi’akhyaari. ‘It is not the behavior of a civilized, gentle person.’

ku-’akida

v. [Ar. akada W 21] (akidiile) affirm, assert, recommend, emphasize (Verb stems that we write with an initial glottal stop do not realize this glottal stop when there is no prefix to the stem, but when there is a prefix, then the glottal stop appears. This glottal stop is treated like any other consonant, and thus a preceding [cl.1] object prefix is heard as m-, eliding its underlying vowel.)

Akidile (ya) kuwa... ‘He asserted that.’

Chi’akidilee si/ khfanya kaazi/ ka bidi’i. ‘He recommended to us to do the job with effort.’

M’akidile mwaana/ khfanya kaazi. ‘He reaffirmed to the child that he should do the work.’

Mi/ n’akidile khfanyowa kaazi/ ka juhdi. ‘I emphasized working hard.’

Mi/ n’akidiilé/ kuwaa mi/ nakhsuḷa kula nuumbá. ‘I emphasized that I wanted to buy a house.’

Mi/ n’akidiilé/ muhimu/ ya kuwowa tahaḍari. ‘I emphasized the importance of being careful.’

N’akidiilé/ kuwa madrasa/ itakhfungoowa/ kahima. ‘I affirmed that the school would be closed soon.’

rel.

- ku-'akidila* v. appl. (akidiliile) N'akidiliile. 'He assured me.'
- ku-'akidilana* v. appl. rec.
- ku-'akidisha* v. caus. (akidishiize)
- ku-'akidishanya* v. caus. rec.
- rel. nom.
- u-'akido* n. 14 assertion
- mu-'akidi* adj. recommended variant form with gemination: mu'akiddi ziyaara za mtume sunna mu'akiddi [st.] 'visiting the Prophet is something recommended'
- ku-'akisa* v. [Ar. akasa W 63] (akisiize) oppose Killa/ mi/ shkooða/ ye/ hun'akisa. 'Whenever I talk, he opposes me.'
rel.
ku-'akisana v. rec. (-akiseene)
- akmali* adj. [Ar. akmal W 841] poetic complete, better, good aðaana na iqaama sunna akmali [st.] 'the call to prayer and the announcement that it is time to pray are preferred (but non-obligatory) acts' owa Maka chiingila ni akmali [st.] 'wash if you enter Mecca, it is better' imaamu yitu Shafi'i na Hambali Maliki na Hanafi wote akmali [st.] 'our leaders Shafi'i and Hambali, Maliki and Hanafi (are) all good'
- =aako your(s)
Chimo kaakó/ mkonooni/ ndichó/ chaako. 'What is in your hands is what is yours.' (A proverb.)
kendra zaako 'to follow your (affairs, business, etc., do not pay attention to others)' khshika zaako 'to follow your (affairs, business, etc., do not pay attention to others)' Shika zaako/ liwale/ Omari/ habtize. 'Follow your affairs, forget about Omari and his stuff (arguments, words).'
Kuja/ kamba siwo yaakó/ miimba/ ndaakó. 'Food if it is not yours, the stomach is yours.' (A proverb.)
Mayaank^huku/ yawozeló/ ndaakó. 'The eggs that went bad are yours.' (cf. Ndaakó/ mayank^huku yawozeló. 'Are yours the eggs that went bad.')
- Shkapu/ chaako/ chibeele. Your basket is lost.' (Cf. shkapu chaako or shkapu=cho 'your basket'.)
- akthari* adj. green zilatu zi'akthari 'green shoes'
- akthari* n. [Ar. aktar W 815] majority Ilooni/ jahazi/ ichizaama/ na waant^hu/ akthari yaawo/ wachifa. 'At dawn the dhow sank and the majority of the people died.'
Laakini/ leelo/ akthari ya waant^hu/ hawakalaant^hi/ zaaydi/ ya sku mooyi/ ambo skuu mbili. 'However, today most men do not stay inside (after the wedding ceremony) for more than one or two days.'
Tunne/ ni waant^hu/ akthari yaa wo/ wakaziló/ baadiya Mwiini. 'The Tunne are people the majority of whom live in the country around Brava.'
Wabjaana/ akthari yaa wo/ heendra/ humaliza masoomo/ yaawo/ Mkhodiisho. 'Most of the young men go to Mogadishu to finish their studies.'
Waant^hu/ akthari yaa wo/ wachifa. 'The majority of the people died.'

Zombo izi/ akthari/ nii nshepe. ‘Most of these things are old.’

- aktoore n. actor
fakhari/ kana aktoore ‘as proud as an actor’
- ch-aakuja (z-) n. food (This noun is derived from the associative phrase ch-aa kuja ‘of food’.)
Chaakuja/ nichijiilé. ‘The food, I ate it.’ (In this example, the left-dislocated object of the verb governs an object marker on the verb, indicating the definiteness of this noun phrase. Cf. Chaakuja/ njiiilé. ‘Food, I ate.’)
- ch-aakuna n. drink
Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kuwanayo chaakuna/ bardi. ‘Please, may I have a cold drink?’
- al’akhañi adv. [Arabic] at least Al’akhañi/ hañá/ inawe haba/ Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ wana wiingine/ ni ma’aajizi. ‘At least Hamisi likes to read, the other students are very lazy.’
- al-rahmaani n. the Merciful keendra ka mooja yiitu al-rahmaani [st.] ‘he is going (lit. to go) to our God the Merciful’
- al’uraayi n. a type of rice that smells bad, but swells to become a large quantity mpunga wa al’uraayi ‘rice of the al’uraayi type’ Omari/ ni al’uraayi. ‘Omari is a person who does not bathe and smells bad etc.’
- alafu n. luck
Alafu/ ha’ilanyilizoowi. ‘Luck is not something that can be fought for/ over.’ (A proverb.)
Chiint’u/ siwo alafú/ ha’ijoowi/ bilaa ajali/ ha’ifoowi. ‘Something which is not luck is not eaten, unless it is the prescribed time, one does not die.’ (A proverb.)
Kilaa muunt’u/ huja alafuye. ‘Everyone eats (i.e. gets) his luck.’ (A proverb.)
- albakhara n. a suura in the Quran Suura/ ndre/ kabisá/ karka khur’aani/ ni suura/ albakhara. ‘The longest chapter in the Quran is the albakhara chapter.’
- Albaamba n. [origin uncertain; possibly from Somali ceel “well” plus baamba, from boomba ‘water pump’] One of the four main quarters in Brava. Extending south of Biruuni, along the beach, and consisting mainly of huts made of wood and mud, it came into existence in the early years of the 20th century, when the Italians decided to remove the poorer population and their huts from the main quarters of Mp^haayi and Biruuni. This was part of a general town-planning scheme, which also saw the cutting of an avenue, lined by coconut palms, linking Biruuni with Baghdaadi.
Muskit’ aa Shekh Nureeni/ wi-ko Albaamba. ‘Shekh Nureeni’s mosque is in Albaamba.’ Spitale ya Miini/ yiko Albaamba. ‘Barawa’s hospital is located in the Albaamba section of Barawa.’
- albaazi n. [Ar. article al + bāzin “falcon” W 57] a medium-sized bird of prey, believed to be a good omen and bring good luck to those who see it, as in popular lore it is connected with the presence of Sheikh Abdulqadir Al-Jilaani; this bird has an almost mythological status, as several people consulted were quite familiar with the name but had not actually ever seen one; as a consequence, views varied as to what it actually looks like: one person thought that it must be white and green since the followers of Sheikh Abdulqadir wear turbans of this color; another consultant thought it was the same size and color as dafa; SA saw one which had a uniform gray color

Ka mfaano/ want^hu wa Mwiini/ chiwa wamo safariini/ wachiwona albaazi/ hufurahika/ na haamina/ ya kuwa watakhkoma mahala wo/ wanakeendró/ ka salaama. ‘For example, if people of Brava are travelling, if they see albaazi, they rejoice and they believe that they will reach the place where they are going safely.’

albergo

n. [Ital.] a hotel

Omari/ lele albergooni. ‘Omari slept at a hotel.’ (Phon. A sentence such as this has what we refer to as canonical word order, with no inherent emphasis. Its pronunciation involves a lowering of the pitch of the second phrase as opposed to the first phrase. We refer to this as "downstep intonation". The corresponding simple yes-no question involves no alteration in the location of accents, just a raising of the pitch of the second phrase. We indicate this raising with a question mark: Omari/ lele albergooni? The exclamatory yes-no question, on the other hand, lacks the pitch raising but involves a shift in accent: Omari/ lele albergooni!? We indicate the lack of raising in exclamatory yes-no questions by writing "!?" at the end, and we show the accent shift(s) connected with this form. When the shifted accent is sentence-final, it has a very noticeable falling character, indicated by the circumflex sign over the vowel.)

alfabeeta

n. alphabet

Muunthu/ chisuḷa kubarataa lugha/ biriima/ hubarata alfabeeta. ‘If one wants to learn a language, first he learns the alphabet.’

alfu

n., adj. [Sw. alfu SSED 9; Ar. alf W 23] thousand alfu mara ‘a thousand times’

Bandeera/ ya Somaaliya/ ipanziiza/ luulyo/ mezi muusi/ maaka/ wa alfu/ na miya keendrá/ na siḷiini. ‘Somalia’s flag was raised (for the first time) on July 1, 1960.’

maru alfu ‘a thousand times’

na zo ni alfu dirhamu/ kubloowa meema faahimu [st.] ‘it was a thousand dirhams/ to have the virtuous scholar killed’

Ndraḷilani/ mi/ mwanaamke/ uyu/ mi/ takinpa/ kiḷa mooyi/ riyali alfu.

‘You (pl.) leave for me this girl and I will give each one (of you) a thousand riyals.’

nt^hakhupa dinaari/ alfu/ kumi. ‘I will give you ten thousand dinaari.’

rel.

alfeeni n.,adj. two thousand ku-’alhamu

v. [Som. alxan DSI 18] (alhamiile) weld

rel.

ku-’alhamika v. p/s. (alhamishile)

ku-’alhamila v. appl. (alhamiile)

ku-’alhamilana v. appl. rec. (alhamileene)

ku-’alhamisha v. caus. (alhamishiize)

rel. nom.

u-’alhamu n. 14

u-’alhamisho n. 14

u-’alhamilano n. 14

alhamu

n. 9 solder

Alhamu iyi/ siwo/ yaaka. ‘This solder is not mine.’

alhamdulillah

praise to God! (One use of this expression is as the obligatory reply to the greeting: mojiitu/ khugargariile ‘has God assisted you?’, which is said when visiting or speaking to a member of a household where a wedding ceremony has recently taken place. More generally it is employed to express satisfaction, for example after eating, or after any enquiry as to your well-being etc.)

Hamadi/ hadile alhamdulillah/ humshukura mojiitu/ ka afiya/ yaa ye/ mp^heeló. ‘Hamadi said thanks to God for the health that he has given me.’ (Note that alhamdulillah may be phrased with the preceding verb. It is, as always, also possible to phrasally separate the verb: Hamadi/ hadiile/ alhamdulillah/...)

Muunt^hu/ laazimu/ kuhada alhamdulillah/ kaa ndala/ na wiikutó/ kaa dhibu/ na raahá. ‘One must say alhamdulillah, in hunger and prosperity, in hardship and in luxury.’

alhaasili

adv. [Ar. al-hāsil "briefly, in short" W 182] in conclusion, in short, the final result Alhaasili/ we/ washkhiira (or: wakhiriile). ‘Finally, you know, they agreed.’

Waawaye/ chilola muke mwiingine/ chizaala/ mwanaamke/ mooyi/ naank^hó/ uko/ chizala waana/ sabba/ alhaasili/ we/ wanaashke/ sabba. ‘Her father married another woman [after her mother’s death] and she gave birth to a girl, again, she stayed, she gave birth to seven children, the final result, you know, [was] seven girls.’

alimentaare

in expression: duka ya alimentaare ‘food shop’

Nuuru/ pete garabu/ suura/ ka weenzawe/ fungilee duka/ nk^hulu/ ya alimentaare. ‘Nuuru got great support from his friends, he opened a large food shop.’

mwaalimu (w-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mwalimu SSED 318; Ar. mu ‘allim W 637] a teacher in a koranic school; [pron. mwaalimu or maalimu, the former pronunciation used by MI while currently the latter pronunciation is used]

Apo/ zamaani/ waliko mwaalimu/ mooyi/ chivilowa Gooso. ‘Once upon a time there was a teacher who was called Gooso.’

Huseeni/ na Hamadi/ ndiwó/ waalimu. ‘It’s Huseeni and Hamadi who are teachers.’

Huseeni/ ndiyé/ mwaalimu. ‘It is Huseeni who is a teacher.’

Muunt^hu/ mwaalimu wa mwaanawá/ ni Nuuru. ‘The man who is my son’s teacher is Nuuru.’ (When a null copula verb is the basis of a relative clause, there is a final accent triggered.)

Mwaalimu/ mkulu. ‘The teacher is big.’

mwaalimu mkulu ‘a big teacher’

mwana mkulu/ wa mwaalimu ‘the big son of the teacher’; wana wakulu/ wa mwaalimu ‘the big sons of the teacher’; wana wakulu/ wa waalimu ‘the big sons of the teachers’ mwana wa mwaalimu ‘the son of the teacher’; wana wa mwaalimu ‘the sons of the teacher’; wana wa waalimu ‘the sons of the teachers’ (The language game Chijini gives some evidence that the associative particle wa in this example should be regarded as a proclitic to mwaalimu. The game moves the final syllable of the word in front of the first syllable; the game version of the present example is: namw^a/ muwamwaalⁱ. Notice that the final syllable of mwaalimu is moved in front of the associative particle, not the noun itself, indicating that the particle is proclitic to the noun.)

mwana wa mwaalimu mkulu ‘the son of the big teacher’; wana wa mwaalimu mkulu ‘the sons of the big teacher’; wana wa waalimu wakulu ‘the sons of the big teacher’

Naani/ mwalimu wa mwaanawo. ‘Who is your son’s teacher?’ (Notice that in this question, there is no overt copular verb. The pre-verbal question word naani induces the pseudo-relativization of the following verb, but in the absence of a verb there is no pseudo-relativization and thus no final accent arising from pseudo-relativization. An appropriate answer to the question here is: Nuuru/ ni mwalimu wa mwaanawa. ‘Nuuru is my son’s teacher.’ In this answer, the copular verb is overt, but again there is no pseudo-relativized form of the copular.)

Ni Fardoosa/ siwo mwaalimú. ‘It is Fardoosa who is not a teacher.’
Ni Nuuru/ mwalimu wa mwaanawa/ siwo/ Ali. ‘It’s Nuuru who is my son’s teacher, not Ali.’ (Note that the null copular verb does not trigger final accent in this sentence where focus on the subject Nuuru would be expected to induce pseudo-relativization of the verb.)

Nimweené/ muke/ oo siwo mwaalimú. ‘I saw the woman who is not a teacher.’

Nimweené/ muke/ oo siwo mwaalimú/ nmweenó. ‘I saw the woman who is not a teacher, that’s who I saw.’

Nimwene Osmaani/ mwaalimú. ‘I saw Osmaani the teacher.’ Or:
Nimwene^f Osmaani/ mwaalimu. ‘I saw Osmaani the teacher.’

Ni Osmaani/ mwaalimú. ‘It is Osmaani who is a teacher.’

Nimviliilé/ muunt^hu/ oo mwaalimu. ‘I called the man who is a teacher.’

Nimviliilé/ muunt^hu/ oo mwaalimu/ nimviliiló. ‘I called the man who is a teacher, that’s what I did’

Noshele kumzirāta Nuurú/ oyo/ mwalimu wa mwaanawá. ‘I went to visit Nuuru, who is my son’s teacher.’ (Observe that even a null copular verb triggers final accent in a true relative clause.)

Oo mwaalimu/ Osmaani. ‘The one who is a teacher is Osmaani.’

Oo siwo mwaalimú/ ni Fardoosa. ‘The one who is not a teacher is Fardoosa.’

Tuuma/ waawaye/ ni mwaalimu. ‘Tuuma’s father is a teacher.’

Wamó/ humletela mwaalimu/ nguwoo mp^hiya. ‘Some bring the teacher a new piece of cloth.’

rel.

aalimu (Ø, ma-) adj. learned, scholarly; [pron. ma’aalimu (pl.)]

khaansa mubleelo aalimu/ Huseeni meema faahimu [st.]

‘particularly for those who have killed the scholar, the virtuous and learned Husein’ munt^hu aalimu ‘a learned man’; want^hu aalimu/ ma’aalimu ‘learned men’; chijint^hu chi’aalimu ‘learned dim. man’;

zijint^hu zi’aalimu ‘learned dim. men’ mwajiitu qaadiri ka zote aalimu [st.] ‘God is able to do anything and knows everything’ chi-j-aalimu (zi-j-) n. 7/8 dim.

Chijalimu icho/ ni chiwovu. ‘That (dim.) teacher is bad.’

Zijalimu izo/ nik ziwovu. ‘Those (dim.) teachers are bad.’

i-j-aalimu (mi-j-) n. 5/4 aug.

Ijalimu iyo ni inene. ‘That (aug.) teacher is fat.’

Mijalimu ayo/ ni minene. ‘Those (aug.) teachers are fat.’

u-w-aalimu n. 14 the condition or state of being a teacher

Uwaalimu/ hawkhinfi. ‘The profession of teaching won’t suit you.’

aalkola

n. [Eng. and Ital. alcohol] alcohol (not limited to alcoholic drinks) aalkola iyi ‘this alcohol’

aḷmaasi	n. 9/10 [Sw. almasi SSED 10; Ar. almās W 24] diamond aḷmasi iyi ‘this diamond’; aḷmasi izi ‘these diamonds’ Chiwona aḷmaasi/ nk^hulu. ‘He saw a big diamond.’ (Phon. The separation of the modifier nk^hulu into a separate phonological phrase from aḷmaasi is a device used to convey the indefinite nature of the noun aḷmaasi.) Ilu ya ijabali/ we/ takuwona luulu/ na aḷmaasi. ‘On top of the mountain you will see pearls and diamonds.’ rel. i-’aḷmaasi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
aḷ-rahmaani	merciful keendra ka moja yītu aḷ-rahmaani [st.] ‘(he is) going to our God, the merciful’
aḷshukruḷillah	an Arabic expression meaning ‘thanks to Allah’, used the same way as aḷhamduḷillah, and may even be used immediately after it Hamadi/ hadiile/ aḷhamduḷillah/ aḷshukruḷillah. ‘Hamadi said praise to God, praise to God.’
altente	n. [Ital. aiutante] assistant to a driver
aḷuraayi	n. a kind of rice mpunga wa aḷuraayi a kind of (bad-smelling) rice’
aḷwandari	n. [Eng. lavender] a kind of perfume that contains much alcohol tahaḍari aḷwandari haraamu [st.] ‘beware of aḷwandari, it is unlawful’
aala	n. [Sw. ala "sheath, scabbard, case of knife, sword, etc.; any sort of instrument, apparatus, tool, utensil. machine" SSED 8; Ar. āla "instrument" W 34] weapons, hunting equipment Chimalizopó/ kuḷaa mooyi/ shtala aalaze/ chingila maduriini/ kuwiinda. ‘When we finished, each one took his (hunting) equipment and went into the bush to hunt.’ Shpowa chaala/ simizé/ chotte. ‘If you are given a finger, do not swallow all of it.’ (A proverb.) Shtete ala zītu/ chiineenzelé/ haḷá/ shkomele ibanya ya kaandrá. ‘We took our (hunting) equipment and we walked until we reached the first open land (that we had been told about).’ Wote/ ka ala zaawo/ tu/ wachaanza/ kishkila mlima. ‘All, with only their weapons, began to descend the hill.’ Zinakudarbaḷa/ na zuuzile/ aala/ niingi/ zilasilo ka Ameeriká. ‘They are preparing (to fight) and have bought many weapons which have come from America.’
alaa ayi haal	fixed expression: under, in any circumstance; in any case; in any situation; in summary; [pron. alaa áyi haal], where there is a clear raised pitch internal to the expression Alaa áyi haal/ ni muhimu/ khsooma/ jisa khpita imṭihaani. ‘In sum, it is important to study in order to pass an exam.’ Luulu/ nakuya alaa áyi haal. ‘Luulu is coming whatever the circumstances.’ Ye/ humsuuḷa/ Fardoosa/ tu/ ye/ humpenda Haliima/ alaa áyi haal. ‘He just wants Fardoosa; in any case, he loves Haliima.’
ch-aala (z-)	n. 7/8 [Sw. chala Sac 129] finger, toe Aaba/ tinzile ruuhuye/ chaala. ‘Aaba cut her finger.’

Baana/ m̄t̄inzile Haaji/ chaala. ‘Baana cut Haaji’s finger.’ Cf. Baana/ m̄t̄inzile Haaji/ chaala/ chont̄^he. ‘Baana cut off Haaji’s finger (lit. cut the finger all).’ Or: Baana/ m̄t̄inzile chaala/ chont̄^he/ Haaji. ‘Baana cut off the finger [of] Haaji.’

chala chaa kati ‘middle finger’ chala cha shpete ‘ring finger’

chala cha kuulu ‘toe’

Chala chimooyi/ hachooshi/ uso. [H’H!!H] ‘One finger does not wash the face.’ (A proverb.)

Chala cha mooyi/ hachubli/ nt̄^hawa. ‘One finger does not kill a louse.’ (A proverb.)

chala chihabba ‘little finger’ chala chihuundru ‘red finger’; zala zihuundru ‘red fingers’ chala cha shahaada ‘second finger’ chala shkulu ‘thumb, big-toe’ chala shkulu cha kuulu ‘big toe’ hat̄á/ khalamu/ imvuyile ka zalaani ‘until the pen dropped from his hands’ kama chaala/ na shpeté ‘like a finger and a ring’ (a proverbial saying which describes two things that are very close, “thick as thieves”)

Mahala_a we/ tamtiló/ hat̄á/ nt̄^hupaani/ mwaachisi/ takht̄omola chaala. ‘Wherever you put him, even in a bottle, a bastard will stick out a finger.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ mpende chilaala/ choondroka/ mnumile chaala. ‘Love a child when he is sleeping, when he wakes up, bite a finger at him (i.e. indicate your disapproval, etc.).’ (A proverb that says that one must show “tough love” to one’s children, disciplining them and making sure that they follow the correct path.)

Nuuru/ na Jaamá/ kama zala ziwili ‘Nuuru and Jaama are like two fingers’ (a proverbial saying that describes people who are always together)

Sku ya sitta/ tomola shpete/ ka chalaani/ chimaliza/ ruuda/ ka sultaani. ‘On the sixth day take the ring off your finger and then return to the sultan.’

T̄inzile ruuhuye/ chaala. ‘He cut himself (on the) finger.’

rel.

i-j-aala (mi-j-) n. 5/4 aug.

Ijala iyi/ ni inene. ‘This (aug.) finger is fat, thick.’

Mijala aya/ ni minene. ‘These (aug.) fingers are fat, thick.’

k-aala

v. [Sw. yaa Sac. 1027, who associates it with northern dialects, of which Chimwiini is of course the northernmost] (azile) plant, sow; spread Abunawaasi/ chala msala/ nt̄^hi. ‘Abunawaasi spread the mat on the floor.’

Alaani/ miyaaka/ saba/ fululizaani/ na yaa ni/ nt̄^hakhshafó/ la_ataani/ karka ziskize/ shokuwa habamó/ yaa ni/ nt̄^haakujó. ‘Plant for seven years successively and what you (pl.) will harvest, let it remain in its cobs, except for a little that you will eat.’

Hala mhuundru. ‘They cultivate sorghum.’

kalaa chili ‘to make a bed’ kalaa gelle ‘to sow maize’ (Although we commonly transcribed the word gelle with gemination, it nevertheless permits the lengthening of a preceding word-final vowel. This indicates that in some fundamental sense, the word consists of two light syllables: gele.)

kalaa gelle/ iwaani ‘to spread maize in the sun’ kala ijambi ‘to spread a mat out to eat on’

kala muundra ‘to farm’

kalaa nguwo ‘to spread clothes out’

kala ziwovu ‘to sow evil’

Ku_a muunt̄^hu/ hushafa yaa ye/ aziló. ‘Each man harvests what he sows.’ (A proverb.)

Mi/ kawako numbaani/ isa/ su_a kuwa nakaalá/ muundra. ‘If I were home, I would be cultivating now.’

Muunt̄^hu/ chala ge_e/ haashafi/ mash_aay_a. ‘One who plants maize will not harvest sesame.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ yaa ye/ aziló/ hutuundró. ‘What a man sows is what he harvests.’
Nakhsulaa ni/ (n)saale. ‘He wants that you (pl.) not sow.’ (The second person plural subject marker may not follow the negative morpheme in the negative subjunctive: *Nakhsulaa ni/ sinaale.)
Ndimi/ naaziló. ‘It is me who planted it.’
Ndraani/ chaala/ miti/ ya matuundra/ ya lamna/ ka lamna. ‘Inside it (the garden) he planted fruit trees of different kinds.’
Saalé. ‘Don’t sow!’ Cf. Saleení. ‘(Pl.) don’t sow!’
Wanayo muundra/ wa’aziló. ‘They have a farm which they have farmed (lit. planted).’

rel.

k-aalila v. appl. (aliile) sow for N^tanakaalila. ‘He is not sowing with/for.’

k-aalilana v. appl. rec. sow for one another

k-aaloowa v. pass. be planted

Basi/ chaamura/ khadimuze/ kala mteendre/ uchaloowa. ‘So he ordered his servants to plant a date tree (and) it was planted.’

k-aalika v. p/s.

N^ti iyi/ hayaaliki. ‘This land is not arable.’

k-aalisha v. caus.

Mwalishize Hamadi/ muundra. ‘He made Hamadi farm.’

k-alishanya v. caus. rec.

k-alishiliza v. caus. appl.

k-alishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-yaalila v. appl. (yaliile) sow for ku-yaala v. (yaazile) ibid. (Phon. In the past tense, the initial y of this stem may undergo ‘hardening’ to j or not in the first person singular subject form: njaazilé or n.yaazilé. The second person plural form does not undergo hardening: n.yaazilé. We have not determined whether the sequence n.y is phonetically identical in the first singular and second plural forms. The nasal element in both forms derives from an underlying prefix ni-.)

Kula muunt^hu/ hushafa yaa ye/ yaaziló. ‘Each man harvests what he sows.’ (A proverb.)

Mi/ mwenewe/ ni’uyaziló. ‘I myself am the one who sowed it (referring to a [cl.3] noun).’

Siyaalé. ‘Don’t sow!’ Cf. Siyaleenii ‘(Pl.) don’t sow!’

Yaala. ‘Sow!’ Cf. Yalaani. (Pl.) sow!’

nom. rel.

mw-aalilo n. 3

mw-alishanyo n. 3

mw-aalisho n. 3

mw-aalo n. 3

alaama

n. 9/10 [Sw. alama SSED 8; Ar. alāma W 636] sign, mark; a sign indicating a trail that is to be followed; trademark; evidence, proof alama iyi ‘this mark’; alama izi ‘these marks’

Alama yaa nvula/ ni mawiingu. ‘The sign of rain is clouds.’ (A proverb.)

alama ya zaala ‘fingerprints’ alaama/ za maraōi ‘symptoms’

Basi/ numa/ andika alaama/ mwambiile. ‘So, then, write a sign (on the younger goat), he told her.’

khfanya alaama ‘to make a sign. mark’; khfanyiliza alaama

Ahamadi/ tete ranji/ khfanyiliza alaama/ mahaḷa ya gaariye/ yiiko. ‘Ahamadi took paint to make a mark where his car is.’

Muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ chuusha/ husuloowa/ khfanya alaama/ apo/ chiizapó/ yiko keendra/ kuliwala/ mahaḷaa ye/ weesheló. ‘When someone hides something, he needs to put a mark (identifying where it is hidden), otherwise he might forget where he put it.’

kubiga alaama ‘to make a sign, mark’
Basi/ t̄ambiga alaamaye/ t̄ampelekela. ‘So he will put his mark on him (the goat) and send him to him (the sultan).’
Chibiga alaama. ‘He put a mark on it (in the story, a goat).’
Mbige alaama/ mbigé. ‘Put a mark on him, that is what you should do.’
 (Notice that in this common construction, where the verb in the main clause is repeated as a pseudo-relative verb in the tag to the main clause, it is an imperative verb in the main clause and a pseudo-relative form of the imperative in the tag.)
Waa we/ t̄amtaambuló/ mbige alaama. ‘The one that you will identify, put a mark on him.’
kurasha alaama ‘to trace (follow signs, clues)
Wake/ zamaani/ m̄wiini/ wachishoma makoofiya/ wachirasha alaama/ ilu ya kahfi. ‘Women during olden times in Brava used to sew traditional hats, they used to follow marks put on the kahfi (the top part of the hats).’
Mi/ nazo alaamá/ za k̄t̄osha/ koonya/ kuwa Muusa/ ni ðambiile. ‘I have enough proof to show that Muusa is guilty.’
Mi/ sinakuwona/ alaama/ yo yotte/ kaake/ malungooni/ honyesho kuwaa ye/ ub̄leelá. ‘I do not see any sign whatsoever on his body that shows that he has been killed.’
Muusa/ pete alaama/ kuwa Faat̄ima/ koðele wanaafakhi/ t̄arafu ya mahaḷaa ye/ waalikó. Muusa found proof that Faatima lied about where she was.
Nchimwona/ muunt̄u/ naayó/ alama iyo/ ndretelaani/ mi/ nnamsuuló. ‘If you see the man who had this mark, bring him to me, I want him.’
 rel.
i-’alaama (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ku-’alaamisha

v. (alamishiize) mark

alamu (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10 [Sw. alamu SSED 8; Ar. ‘alam W 636] flag, esp. a religious flag associated with a particular Islamic order

Alamu/ Ali/ ibashiize. ‘The flag, Ali lost it.’

Alamu/ Ali/ zibashiize. ‘The flags, Ali lost them.’ Or: Mwa’alamu/ Ali/ yabashiize.

Alamu/ hatá/ uchandikoowa/ f̄maazi/ yaṭa(w)anyishiló. ‘Until the flag (e.g. of independence) was raised, a lot of blood was shed.’

Why u subject marker?

Alamu iyi/ inakhpepela. ‘This flag is waving’

Alamu izi/ zinakhpepela. ‘These flags are waving.’

alamu ya Khadiriya ‘the flag of the Qadiriya, a Sufi order’ alamu ya Salihya ‘the flag of the Salihya order’

Alamu ya Soomaaliya/ inayo noota/ kati. ‘The flag of Somalia has a star in the center.’

khtundrika alamu ‘to hang (put up) a flag’ kishkiza alamu ‘to lower a flag’ kishkiza alamu/ nt̄hiini ‘to lower a flag down (to half-mast)’

Want̄u wa Soomaaliya/ f̄wotte/ wamo nt̄hini ya alamu ya Soomaaliya.

‘All the people of Somalia are under the Somali flag (i.e. under the protection of Somalia).’

rel.

i-’alamu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

aleeso

n. [Ital. alesso] meat boiled in water

Nama ya aleeso/ nt̄hayná/ ayi/ dhadhamu. ‘Boiled meat does not have taste.’

aliindi

n. a kind of woven cloth popular in Somalia

Wa’ooji/ M̄wiini/ hufumaa nguwo/ aliindi/ ka iliindri. ‘Wa’ooji in Miini weave aliindi cloth with iliindri.’

Ali

n. cousin and son-in-law of the Prophet; also used as a male proper name kumpeenda heeðari Ali s̄oshe haba [st.] ‘to love heeðari Ali, don’t think it insignificant’ m-’aali adj. [cf. Ar. ‘alliy “the Most High, the Supreme (one of the attributes of God)” W 639] lit. the Most High mahaṭi nda mwajiitu witu m’ali [st.] ‘praise belongs to our God, the Most High’ k-aalika v. [Sw. alika SSED 9] Swahilism ? (alishile) invite s.o. to a party, wedding, or other ceremony (This verb was offered by Mohammad Imam, but our present consultants our unfamiliar with the word. Perhaps it is a Swahilism.)

rel

k-alikana v. rec. (-alikeene)

k-akikila v. appl. (alikiḷiḷe)

k-alikoowa v. pass. (alishiḷa) allahu n. Allah

Mayṭi/ ṭakambiḷoowa/ hada/ moojā/ ni Allahu/ mtumewo/ ni Muhammad/ diiniya/ ni islaamu/ khibḷaya/ ni Makka/ ni ka’(a)ba. ‘The dead person is told to say: my God is Allah, my Prophet is Muhammad, my religion is Islam, my direction for praying is Mecca, the ka’ba.’ allahuma [Ar. allāhumma “o God!”, W 24] O God!

wanahade allahuma ḷabeka [st.] ‘let them say, O God, here we are (in answer to your call through the angels)’ chi-’alo chi-haba n. the contents of a bottle of 110 cc. (Etym. The source of chi’alo is unknown. The Tunni Somali word is gaasle.)

chi-’alo sh-kulu n. the contents of a bottle of 220 cc. (a soft drink bottle) (Etym. The source of chi’alo is unknown. The Tunni Somali word is aley.)

ama interj. [Sw. ama SSED 10, from Ar. ‘ammā W 641, given as a contraction of ‘an mā’ oh, truly; [pron. amá]

amá/ mi [Som. amba, contraction of ani ba “as for me”, DSI 18,20]

Amá/ mi/ humphati/ na uweenzá/ wiitú/ ukomele apa/ waraadi. ‘As for me, you won’t get me, and our friendship ends here. Goodbye!’ need to check out the accent here, added accent marks

Amá/ mi/ nimwene kuwa nii muké/ msuura/ na afiifá. ‘Truly I think that she is a good and loyal woman.’

Amá/ mp^huundra/ uyu/ hapuunguli/ kuwa mnene/ hutasawaraayi/ hayawaani/ kuwaandra/ jis’iyi. ‘Ama! This donkey does not lac being fat! How can it be that an animal gets this fat?’

Amá/ ni/ wanaadamu/ aqili ziinu/ haba. ‘Oh, [I see] you humans, your intelligence is little.’

Amá/ wazeele/ wa sku/ izi/ nt^hawaná/ nahrisi. ‘Truly, old peope these days have no pity.’

ama conj. [Sw. ama “conj. either...or” SSED 10, from Ar. am “or (introducing a question” W 25; cf. Som. ama, variants amba, amma “or” DSI 18] or; [pron. amá]; variant forms: amó, ambo

Amá/ Hamiisi/ ṭakandika zaaydi/ amá/ ṭakhpotela imṭihaani. ‘Hamisi will write more, or he will fail his exam.’

Amá/ koowela/ wazeelewa/ nt^hawachiiwa/ walá/ nt^hawakunaambila/ kubarāṭa. ‘But to swim, my parents did not know how to nor did they tell me to learn how to.’

Amá/ ye/ chikhushiindra/ we/ ṭakumbeḷeḷa khadimu wa nuumba. ‘But if she defeats you, you will become a house servant for me.’

Basi/ ichiwaa we/ ile kazima mp^huundrá/ ye/ nt^haako/ amá/ ichiwaa we/ kazima nk^hele za mp^huundrá/ ndrḷililē. ‘Because if you came to borrow the donkey, he is not here, but if you came to borrow the brays of the donkey, let me bray for you.'

inawe niizé/ ba/ ambó/ nsuliilé 'whether I don't or I do like it'

Jaa we/ amá/ ndimí/ taakujó. 'Eat or it is me who will eat.'

Kiġaa muunt^hi/ Hamiisi/ husooma/ amá/ hulangaġa mpiira. 'Every day Hamiisi reads or watches football.'

Mwishpa/ hureeba/ amá/ mwishpa/ hudura. 'A bone stops or a bone stings, pierces.' (The speaker is explaining the proverb: Limi/ nt^halíná/ mwishpa. 'The tongue does not have a bone.' The speaker is saying that the tongue can lie so easily because it has no bone. If it had a bone, that bone would constrain it, prevent it from lying, or cause it pain when it tried to bring forth lies.)

Nakhsuġa chaayí/ amá/ kahawa. 'Do you want tea or coffee?'

Nuuru/ amá/ Muusa/ takuuyó. 'Nuuru or Muusa will come.'

Omari/ huna kahawa/ amá/ chaayí. 'Does Omari drink coffee or tea?'

We/ chendra ka poliisi/ ama chint^hu maapé/ we/ umriwo/ hunk^hasi/ mi/ mara yiingine. 'If you go to the police or something you'll never hear from me again.'

We/ mene Sa'iidi/ ambó (or: amá/ Saġwa? 'Did you see Sa'iidi or Saġwa?') (A possible answer to this question is: Mi/ nimene Sa'iidi. 'I saw Sa'iidi.' It is not appropriate to respond: Mi/ nimeené/ Sa'iidi. Such a sentence focuses on the verb and not the complement. The question requires the complement to be new information.)

zaaydi/ ya sku mooyi/ ambó/ skuu mbili 'more than a day or two'

ch-ama (z-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. chama "club, society, association" SSED 48; note that in Sw. this term has assumed political connotations ("party" like the name of the governing party in Tanzania) which it does not have in Chimiini] group of people, band of people (used especially to denote singing and dancing groups)

zama sabba 'seven dances' review

rel.

z-amaazama adv. in groups

k-aama

v. [Sw. amwa SSED 13] (amiile) suck kama iwele 'to suck (of a child at his mother's breast)'

rel.

m~~w~~-aama (wa-) n. 1/2 one who sucks

mu-'aamala

n. [Ar. mu'āmalā W 646] treatment of people, dealings with people

amali

n. 9/10 [Sw. amali SSED 10; Ar. 'amal "doing, acting, action" W 645; cf. also Som. camal "character, temperament"] deeds, behavior, manners, temperament amalii mbovu 'a bad act, deed' amali njeema huziida imaani [st.] 'good deeds increase faith' amali pashpo iġmu hurudoowa [st.] 'for deeds unsupported by knowledge are rejected' amali suura 'a good act, deed'

Amali suura/ duniyaani/ na akherá/ ba/ khiinfa. 'Good actions, in this world and thereafter, both help you.' (A proverbial saying.)

Amaliye/ imkirihihize waawaye. 'His behavior displeased his father.'

Amaliye/ mbovu. 'His behavior, deeds are bad.'

amalize 'their deeds, behavior' chiruuda amali mbovu huġinda [st.] 'when he returns [from the pilgrimage] he ceases doing evil deed' chiruuda amali njeema huteendra/ hamraashi ġaalimu illa humpiindra [st.] 'and, after he returns (from the pilgrimage), he acts righteously/ he does not associate with a wrongdoer, but opposes him'

Munt^hu amaliye ni khaalisi/ hatiyi/ chiint^hu. 'A man whose deeds are sincere is afraid of nothing.' check the phrasing

Muunt^hu/ amaliye/ ni nguwoye. ‘A man’s behavior is his clothes.’ (A proverb.)
Ni munt^hu nt^hana amali. ‘He is a man who does not have a good temperament, manner.’
someelo ilmu rashiliizo amali [st.] ‘for those who have learned ilm and act accordingly’ ye nafsi faanya amali jo khaalisi [st.] ‘O human beings, do deeds which are sincere’
Ye/ tete amali ya maamaye/ -- takaburi/ na koonyeshá/ na fakhari. ‘She took the manners of her mother -- arrogance, showing off, ostentation.’

amaamiso

n. no etymological source known night blindness

amaana

n. 9/10 [Sw. amana SSED 10; Ar. amāna W 29] s.t left with s.o. to be kept, protected khshika amaana ‘to hold for safe-keeping’ Nt^hi/ na kuzimú/ yiize/ khshika amaana/ ni mwaadamu/ teetó. ‘The earth and the sky refused to protect what was entrusted, it is the human being who accepted (to protect what was entrusted).’ (A proverb.)
khtala amaana ‘to take for safe-keeping’ Tala amaana/ iyi/ yaa mi/ ndreeseló. ‘Take for safe-keeping this that I have brought you.’
kudhora amaana ‘to keep and protect what is left in one’s custody’ Ni diini/ ya islaamu/ ihadiiló/ muunt^hu/ laazimu/ kudhora amaana. ‘It is the Islamic religion that said that one must protect what is trusted to one.’
kuweka amaana ‘to leave s.t. with s.o. with s.o. to protect, or as collateral’ Omari/ mambile Hamadi/ kuweka amaana/ ka Dahabshiili. ‘Omari told Hamadi to put a security deposit at Dahabshiili [a well-known remittance company in Somalia].’
Lete amaanaya. ‘Bring that which I left in your custody.’
Waana/ ni amana ya mwajiitu. ‘Children are given [to us] by God to keep and protect.’

amaani

n. [Sw. amani SSED 10; Ar. amān W 28] safety, peace
Abdalla/ shkala/ ka amaani/ walá/ zita/ izije/ schifilaṭiṭoowá/ nt^haskondroka teena. ‘Abdalla lived in peace, neither did the war that was expected break out anymore.’
Amaani/ hupatikana ka amaani. ‘Peace is gotten with peace.’ (A proverb.) amaani/ kana/ numbaani ‘as safe as in a house’
Baghadaadi/ ni amaani/ kana/ nuumba/ nt^haku/ zita/ kana/ muunt^hu/ uko numbaani. ‘Baghadaadi is peaceful like home, there is no war, it is like one being at home.’
Amaani/ naa zitá/ bà/ hutuluke. ‘Peace and war, both happen.’ (A proverb.)
Amaani/ nda mwenye mameeló. ‘Peace is with the one who has kept quiet.’ (A proverb.)
Chi’iisha/ ye/ mukeewe/ na want^hu wa muuyi/ karka raaha/ na amaani. ‘He lived, he, his wife, and the people of the town in comfort and peace.’
jisaa wo/ watakingilo amaniini/ naa mp^haká ‘how they could be safe from the cat’ Hasiibu/ ishiize/ karka raaha/ na amaani/ hatá/ mowti/ umwiliṭiṭopó. ‘Hasiibu lived in comfort and peace until death came for him.’
ka amaani ‘peacefully’ Walele ka amaani. ‘They slept peacefully.’
ka’ba ni nuumba ya Mooja Rahmaani/ muunt^hu takiingilo peete amaani [st.] ‘the Ka’ba is the abode of God, the Merciful/ the one who enters it will find peace’ kamaa we/ nakhsuḷa amaani/ ka mwaadamú ‘if you want peace from a human being’ Mahaḷa/ nt^haku amaani/ ha’iishiki. ‘Where there is no peace, one cannot live.’

Mi/ nayo amaani/ kuhada/ kuwa nt^haku/ chiint^hu/ itulushiló. ‘I am safe in saying that nothing bad happened.’
Mi/ nt^hakhpata amaani. ‘I will find peace.’
Mp^ha amaani. ‘Give me peace (i.e. leave me alone).’
Mtileni amaniini/ siimba/ ye/ mbwaaká/ na hoolá/ nzaaká. ‘Leave the lion in peace, he is mine and the animals [that he has killed] are mine.’
Mwiini/ siwo/ amaani. ‘Brava is not safe.’
Ndila/ ni amaani/ muunt^hu/ hukhaadira/ kinendra ka mtimiino. ‘The road is so safe that a person can walk on it with a toothbrush (for protection, instead of a weapon).’
ndila ya amaani ‘a safe road’
Nt^ha’ikuwaaliko/ amaani/ Abú/ kendra Mwiini. ‘It wasn’t safe for Abu to go to Brava.’
Nt^haku/ muunt^hu/ nayo amaani/ kubasha kaazyé. ‘No one is safe from losing his job.’
onyeeza janna nuumba ya amaani [st.] ‘he was shown heaven, the house of peace’
Pete waant^hu/ wachaache/ kumraasha/ laakini/ ye/ walá/ waant^hu/ wamrashizoo ye/ nt^hawakhpata/ amaani. ‘He got a few people to follow him, but neither he nor the people who followed him found peace.’
Siwo/ amaani/ muke nayo miimbá/ khtala dawa iyi. ‘It is not safe for a pregnant woman to take this medicine.’
Siwo/ amaani/ si/ khsafira Mwiini. ‘It is not safe for us to travel to Brava.’
Waant^hu/ wa Miini/ ni ma’islaamu/ wont^he/ ni waant^hu/ hupeendó/ amaani. ‘The people of Brava are all Muslims; they are people who love peace.’
Ye/ siwo/ munt^hu wa amaani. ‘He is not a man of peace.’
Zamani izi/ nt^haziná/ amaani. ‘These times are not peaceful.’

amaara adj. [cf. Sw. amari cited in Sac 55 and in the form amara in Prins with the meaning "anchor rope"] strong (of rope, thread, etc.)

lkambala ili/ ni amaara. ‘This rope is strong.’

mw-aamba (mi-) n. 3/4 [Sw. mwamba (mi-) SSED 318] rock (in the sea); [pron. miyaamba (pl.)] Jahazi/ ipanzile mwaamba. ‘The boat went aground on the rock.’
Panzize choombo/ mwaamba. ‘He ran the vessel onto the rock.’ (A proverbial saying.)

ambali n. 9/10 small ear-rings which in the past were usually worn together with a larger kind of ear-ring called mateenge

-ambaamba adj. [Sw. -embamba SSED 82] thin, narrow, slim, slender variant form: -embaamba (used by MI, whose speech is perhaps more influenced by his Swahili roots on his mother’s side)

-ambaamba/ kanaa luti or kana chiluti ‘as thin as a stick’

Ali/ nt^hangú/ nakhfikiro khpata maali/ wele mwambaamba/kanaa luti. ‘Since Ali started obsessing (lit. thinking) about getting money, wealth, he became as thin as a stick.’

-ambaamba/ kanaa luzi ‘as thin as thread’

-ambaamba/ kana ngoondra ‘as thin as ngoondra (sp. fish that is dried)’

kulu nambaamba ‘thin leg’ lkaambala/ hutindika mahaḷa nambaamba. ‘A rope breaks where it is thin.’ (A proverb.)

mikono membaamba ‘thin arms’

mikono mwambaamba ‘thin arm’

Mloongoti/ oyo/ uwaliko mwambaamba/ kama chimuti cha chibiriiti. ‘That mast was thin like a matchstick.’

Muti/ mwambaamba. ‘The tree is thin.’ (Cf. muti mwambaamba ‘a thin tree’. It is only prosody that distinguishes the predicative use of the adjective from its use as a modifier of the noun.)

Ye/ loosele/ kuwaa ye/ wene ngoombe/ saba/ wanene/ nakuwajó/ ni ngoombe/ saba/ wambaamba. ‘He dreamed that he saw seven fat cows and the one(s) who were eating them were seven thin cows.’

rel.

w-ambaamba n. 14 [Sw. wembamba SSED 82] narrowness, thinness variant form: wembaamba (used by MI) ambaani maybe, perhaps -- expresses a possibility that is weaker than humkina, because it implies doubt Ambaani/ ni ka jis’iyo/ we/ nakhkaso harfu mbali/ leeló. ‘Perhaps it is for this reason that you smell a different smell today.’

Ka khalbiini/ chihada/ ambaani/ Abunawaasi/ nakhkoða lila/ sababu/ mi/ nk^hasiizé/ peesa/ kuwa zinakhpimoowa/ kaake/ numbaani. ‘In his heart he said: maybe Abunawaasi is telling the truth, because I heard coins being measured in his house.’

Nguwo ii/ masku/ waana/ walaliiló/ ambaani/ wanaliiile/ inakunuunk^ha/ kanaa mane. ‘This cloth, last night children slept on it, maybe they peed on it, it smells like urine.’

Uyu/ ambaani/ ni mtana wa waarabu. ‘This one perhaps is a slave of the Arab.’

ambari n. 9/10 [Sw. ambari SSED 12; Ar. ‘anbar W 647] ambergris (eaten in the belief that it will protect one from cold weather)

ambaaro n. [Som. cambaar DSI 86] eczema

ambashaata n. embassy Tafaðali/ nakhsula kendra ka ambashaata/ wa Amerikanó. ‘Please I need to go to the American Embassy.’

k-aambaata v. [Sw. ambata SSED 1] (-ambeete) stick to s.t. kaambaata/ kana koola ‘to stick to s.t. like glue’
Lwarakha/ lambete lkuta. ‘The paper was stuck to the wall.’
Mi/ nk^hawa hukhadira khfanya kila/ yaa mi/ nnakhsuuló/ mazá/ mi sula...kumlata/ mp^haapasi/ kunaambaata. ‘If I [in the story, a cow is speaking] were able to do everything that I want, how come I let a tick stick to me?’
Nthakhaambaata/ kama mp^hapaasi. ‘I will stick to you like a cow tick (i.e. like glue).’
Teena/ uje mlungaana/ takoondoka/ takambaata ka chivundooni/ takhfinika ruuhuye/ takumera nguwoze. ‘Then that one who is free-born will move and stick to the corner and she will cover herself and look for her clothes.’

rel.

k-ambatana v. rec. (-ambateene) stick to one another

Mbarakha/ zambateene. ‘The papers stuck to one another.’

k-aambisa v. [Sw. ambisa SSED 11] stick something to something, patch something, glue or attach s.t.; bake bread in an oven

Ambisa lwarakha/ kaa hawa. ‘Attach the paper with glue.’

Ambisize lwarakha/ lkutaani. ‘He attached the paper to the wall.’

Hawa iyi/ hayaambisi/ lwarakha. ‘This glue would not attach the paper (to s.t.).’

kambisa maandra ‘to bake bread’ kambisaa ndruti ‘to beat soundly with a stick’

k-ambisan(y)a v. rec. (ambiseen(y)e) glue together; beat one another (kambisanyaa ndruti)

Ambisenye mbarakha. ‘He glued the papers together.’

Wa’ambiseene ndruti. ‘They hit each other with sticks.’

k-ambisika v. p/s. (ambisishile)

k-ambisiliza v. appl. (ambisiliize)

Hawa/ ambisilize lwarakha. ‘Glue, he attached the paper with it.’

k-ambisilizika v. caus. appl. p/s.

Hawa iyi/ hayambisiliziki/ lwarakha. ‘This glue was not able to attach the paper (to s.t.).’ (MI judged this sentence to be grammatical, but considered it to be less common than the sentence given above:

Hawa iyi/ hayaambisi/ Iwarakha.

k-ambisilizanya v. appl. rec. (ambisilizeenye)

k-ambisisha v. caus.

k-ambisishana v. caus. rec.

k-ambisishiliza v. caus. appl.

k-ambisishiliza v. caus. appl. rec.

k-aambuka v. rev. intr. become detached k-aambula v. rev. tr. (ambiile) detach something from something, peel something off

Ambula ikandra yaa mazu/ ambulá. ‘Pull off the banana’s peel, that’s what you should do.’ Or: Ambula ikaandra/ ambulá/ yaa mazu. ‘Pull off the peel, that’s what you should do, of the banana.’

k-ambulakaambula v. freq.

Chambulachaambula. ‘He peeled off and peeled off.’

k-ambulisha v. rev. tr. caus. cause someone to detach something k-aambusa v. detach something from something

rel. nom.

mw-aambaŋo n. 3

mw-aambiso n. 3

mw-ambisilizo n. 3

mw-ambisiko n. 3

mw-ambisilizanyo n. 3

k-aambila

v. [Sw. ambila SSED 11] (ambiile) tell, say to Ambila. ‘Tell!’

Baana/ mw-ambile Hamadi/ kooŋi. ‘Baana told Hamadi what had been said (lit. the words, the talking).’

Basi/ cheendra/ teena/ chimwambila jis’iyo/ chimwaambiló. ‘So she went then and told him (her father) this, that’s what she told him.’

Chendra ka waawe/ simwaambilé/ kuwaa we/ mwene mwanaamké/ numbaani/ kaaká. ‘If you go to my father, don’t tell him that you have seen a girl at my house.’

chikhaambila/ kuwaa ye/ nakhsuŋa khuloolá ‘if he says to you that he wants to marry you’

Chimwaambila/ ya kuwaa ye/ nakhsuŋa kumjaariba. ‘He told him that he wanted to test him.’

Chimwambileni) maamaye. ‘What should we tell his mother?’

Chimwaambiló/ nii muke. ‘The one who told him that was the woman.’

Jaama/ khambile ŋila. ‘Jaama told you the truth.’

kama nch^himwambila Ali/ kuleta chaayi ‘if I were to/ would tell Ali to bring tea’ (MI rejected a subjunctive complement: kama nch^himwambila Ali/ nalete chaayi.)

Khambile mubŋe mubŋiwá. ‘I told you that you should kill my husband.’

Kuwa faŋuuraya/ yaliko iboozela/ mi/ nimwambile Suufi/ tu. ‘That my car was stolen, I told only Suufi.’

Kuwa Hamadi/ bozele faŋuuraya/ Suufi/ tu/ nimwambiiló. ‘I told only Suufi that Hamadi stole my car (lit. that Hamadi stole my car, it is only Suufi who I told him).’ Or: Suufi/ tu/ nimwambiiló/ kuwa Hamadi/ bozele faŋuuraya. ‘I told only Suufi that Hamadi stole my car (lit. only Suufi is the one who I told him that Hamadi stole my car).’ Cf. Mi/ nimwambile Suufi/ kuwa Hamadi/ bozele faŋuuraya. ‘I told Suufi that Hamadi stole my car.’

Kuwa Hamadi/ fiile/ Omari/ nambiile. ‘That Hamadi died, Omari told me.’ Or: Kuwa Hamadi/ fiile/ Omari/ nambiiló. ‘That Hamadi died Omari told me.’ Or: Kuwa Hamadi/ tu/ fiiló/ Omari/ nambiiló. ‘That only Hamadi died Omari told me.’ Or: Kuwa Hamadi/ tu/ fiiló/ Omari/ nambiile. ‘That only Hamadi died, Omari told me.’

Muke/ chimwaambila/ ya kuwa waana/ maanzine/ wajjile. ‘The woman told him that the children had already eaten.’

Mukhtá Safiya/ nambiiló/ kuwaa ye/ hampeendí/ mubŋi uyú/ namsuŋa

Jeelaani/ mi/ nk^haraashá/ jawaabú/ za mwanaamkewá/ dhibu

izi/ skaziwaako. ‘When Safiya told me that she did not love this man, (and said) I want Jeelaani, if I had listened [lit. followed] the words of my daughter, these troubles would not have befallen us.’

(Observe how the final accent triggered by the adverbial relative clause extends all the way through to the end of the relative clause, despite the fact that there is emphasis on hampeendi, which leads to its phrasal separation from its complement. This illustrates the failure of the Accentual Law of Focus to hold in relative clauses. Observe also that the Accentual Law of Focus does not hold in the ka-conditional clause, where the verb is also phrasally separated from its complement, but nevertheless the final accent projects to the end of the verb phrase.)

Mwambile Ali/ nalete chaayi. ‘Tell Ali that he should bring tea.’ (When the main clause is in the affirmative imperative form, then the complement is in the subjunctive and not the infinitive: Mwambile Ali/ kuleta chaayi. ‘Tell Ali to bring tea.’ MI did not allow the complementizer to precede the subjunctive: Mwambile Ali/ kuwa (a ye) nalete chibuuku.)

Mwambile Ali/ silete chaayi. ‘Tell Ali not to bring tea.’ Or, with verb emphasis in the complement: Mwambile Ali/ sileete/ chaayi.)

Mwambilopoo muke/ muke/ chishikowa shtana. ‘When he told the woman, the woman became angry.’

Nambile jila. ‘He told me the truth.’

Nimwambile Ali/ kulaa mbuzi. ‘I told Ali to buy a goat.’

Nimwambile Ali/ kuleta chaayi. ‘I told Ali to bring tea.’ (In this structure, a subjunctive complement is dubious: ?Nimwambile Ali/ nalete chaayi.)

Nimwambile Ali/ lete chaayi. ‘I told Ali: bring tea.’

Nimwambile Ali/ (na)silete chaayi. ‘I told Ali that he should not bring tea.’ (Observe that the use of na is variable in the case of the [cl.1] negative subjunctive.)

Nimwambile Ali/ sileete/ chaayi. ‘I told Ali: don’t bring tea!’

Nimwambile Nuuru/ kuwaa-ye/ takuwashindra waana. ‘I told Nuuru that (he) would defeat the children.’ Or with emphasis on complement verb:

Nimwambile Nuuru/ kuwaa-ye/ takuwashiindra/ waana. ‘I told Nuuru that (he) would defeat the children.’ (Observe that there is penult accent on phrases following Nuuru. To account for this, it is necessary to assume that there is either focus or emphasis at least on Nuuru, since such a status is needed to explain the failure of final accent from the main verb to extend to past Nuuru.)

Nimwambile Nuuru/ kuwaa-ye/ takuwashindra waana/ tu. ‘I told Nuuru that he would defeat only the children.’ (Note that a focused phrase to the right of a verb does not trigger pseudo-relativization of that phrase. Observe that there is penult accent on waana. To account for this, it is necessary to assume that there is either focus or emphasis at least on Nuuru, since such a status is needed to explain the failure of final accent from the main verb to extend to the phrases following Nuuru. Another point: verb emphasis cannot be followed by a focused phrase, thus the following sentence is ill-formed: Nimwambile Nuuru/ kuwaa-ye/ takuwashiindra/ waana/ tu.)

Nimwambile Nuuru/ kuwaa-ye/ waana/ tu/ takuwashiindró. ‘I told Nuuru that he would defeat only the children.’ (Note that pseudo-relativization of the complement verb here is obligatory: Nimwambile Nuuru/ kuwaa-ye/ waana/ tu/ takuwashiindra. If waana is not focused, then of course there is no pseudo-relativization: Nimwambile Nuuru/ kuwaa-ye/ waana/ takuwashiindra. ‘I told Nuuru that he would defeat the children.’ As noted above, the failure of the H tone triggered by the verb to cross Nuuru indicates it must be focused or emphasized.)

Nimwambile waana/ tu/ Nuuru/ kuwaa ye/ takuwashiindró. ‘I told him only the children Nuuru that he would defeat them.’ (It should be noted that a focused phrase does not follow an emphasized verb: Nimwambilé waana) tu) Nuuru) kuwaa ye/ takuwashiindra (or: takuwashiindró.)

Niwa’ambile waaná/ wasilete chaayi. ‘I told the children that they should not bring tea.’ (Note that in the case of the plural third person negative subjunctive, the na element is not employed: wanasilete chaayi* or nawasilete chaayi*.)

nk^hawa nimwambile Ali/ kuleta chibuukú/ ‘if I had told Ali to bring the book’

Nk^hamwambila Ali/ kuleta chibuukú/ suḷa kuleeta. ‘If I were to have told Ali to bring tea, he would have brought (it).’ (MI was doubtful that a subjunctive complement could be used: ?nalete chibuukú/)

Nt^hamwambila Ali/ naletee khaṭi. ‘I will tell Ali to bring a/the letter.’ (The subjunctive complement is preferred in this sentence, but an infinitive is acceptable as well: Nt^hamwambila Ali/ kuletaa khaṭi.)

Simkahaté/ muunt^hu/ chikhambila liḷa. ‘Don’t hate someone when he tells you the truth.’ (A proverb.)

Simwaambilé/ Ali/ kuleta chaayi. ‘Don’t tell Ali to bring tea.’ (Observe that when the main verb is in the negative imperative, an infinitival complement is used and not the subjunctive: Simwaambilé/ Ali/ nalete chaayi.)

Siṭamwambila Ali/ kuleta chaayi. ‘I won’t tell Ali to bring tea.’ (MI rejected a subjunctive complement: Siṭamwambila Ali/ nalete chaayi.)

Skumwaambila/ Ali/ kuletaa khaṭi. ‘I did not tell Ali to bring a/the letter.’ (Once again a negative main verb precludes the use of the subjunctive in the complement: Skumwaambila/ Ali/ naletee khaṭi.)

Wa’ambile waana/ wasilete chaayi. ‘Tell the children they shouldn’t bring tea.’ Or with verb emphasis in the complement clause: Wa’ambile waana/ wasileete/ chaayi.

Waliko nimwambile Ali/ chiza kuleta chaayi. ‘I had told Ali not to bring tea.’ (MI was doubtful whether a negative subjunctive complement could be used instead of the negative infinitive: ?Waliko nimwambile Ali/ nasilete chaayi.)

Waliko nimwambile Ali/ kuleta chaayi. ‘I had told Ali to bring tea.’ (MI was uncertain whether the subjunctive could be used here instead of the infinitive: ?Waliko nimwambile Ali/ nalete chaayi.) ref.

k-ambilila v. appl. (ambiliile) tell for Nambilila mwaalimu/ kuwaa mi/ skhaadiri. ‘Tell the teacher for me that I am sick.’

Nambiliile mwaana/ wanaafaqi. ‘He told the children lies on me.’ (The applied verb form conveys that the children are mine or that I am somehow affected by what happens to them.)

k-ambililana v. appl. rec. (-ambiliileene) tell for one another Wa’ambiliilene waana/ wanaafakhi. ‘They told the children lies on one another (i.e. they told one another’s children lies).’

k-ambiloowa v. pass. (ambiila) be told

Komelopo ka ujee muké/ Sa’iidi/ chambiloowa/ chimwaambiló/ nii muke/ we/ tetee ribá/ umriwo/ huṭakiikuta. ‘When he reached that woman, Sa’iidi was told, the one who told him was the woman, you have taken usury, in all your life you will not be satisfied.’

Muunt^hu/ ambiila/ maneeno. ‘The man was spoken to [lit. the man was spoken to words].’ Or: Maneeno/ ambiila/ muunt^hu.

Mwaana/ chambiloowa/ na mzele Simsini/ endrá/ mwishkize. ‘The boy was told by old Simsini: go! have him disembark.’

Nambiiḷá/ kummeraa nyunyi/ mwiingine/ kama oyo. ‘I have been told to look for another bird just like this one.’

Nambila kuwa Safiyá/ ilé. ‘I was told that Safiya came.’

Naambila/ naami/ mp^hate kiiwa. ‘Tell me so that I get to know.’

Nini/ chambiloowa. ‘Why? he was asked (lit. said).

Wachambiloowa. ‘They were told.’

Waawaye/ kiḷa/ chuza khabarize/ hambiloowa/ kuwa hakhaadiri. ‘Every time his father asked his news (e.g. news of his son) he was told that he (the son) was sick.’

Zishpetopo ndilaani/ siwo/ hukhadirowa kambilowa muunt^hu. ‘What befell us outside is not something that is able to be told to anyone.’

k-ambilana v. rec. (-ambileene) tell each other

Kambilana/ yiiko/ khkasanya/ nt^haku. ‘There is giving each other advice, there is not listening to each other.’ (A proverb.)

Muke/ na mublⁱ/ huwalaazima/ kambilana lila. ‘A wife and a husband must tell one another the truth (lit. it is necessary for them).’ (This example comes from MI. Our present consultant, GM, accepts the sentence as grammatical, but would prefer to say Muke/ na mublⁱ (ni) laazimu/ kambilana lila. ‘It is necessary for a woman and a man to tell one another the truth.’)

Waana/ wa’ambilene koo^oi. ‘The children told one another what had been said.’

k-ambilanika v. rec. p/s.

Koo^oi izi ya/ hazambilaniki. ‘Talk of this kind should not be told to one another.’

k-ambilanoowa v. rec. pass. (-ambileena)

Ali/ na Hamadi/ wa’ambilene majiibu. ‘Ali and Hamadi told one another the answers.’

Majiibu/ ya’ambileena. ‘Answers were told one another.’ (MI judged this to be a grammatical sentence, but only if the people doing the telling are not specified. He rejected: Majiibu/ ya’ambilena na waana. ‘Answers were told one another by the children.’) review

Majiibu/ yambileena. ‘Answers were told one another.’ (This is an impersonal passive. The word order could also be Yambilena majiibu.)

Yambilena wanaafakhi. ‘There was telling of lies to one another.’ (This is an impersonal passive, as indicated by the i > y subject marker.)

k-ambilika v. p/s. (-ambilishile)

Baazi/ ha’ambiliki/ koo^oi. ‘Baazi cannot be told anything (e.g. whatever you say, he will report it to someone else).’

Mi/ simkhaadiri/ mwaanawo/ ka khisa/ ye/ ha’ambiliki/ chiint^hu. ‘I cannot tolerate your child because he cannot be told anything.’

Mwana uyu/ ha’ambiliki/ chiint^hu/ na maamaye. ‘This child cannot be told anything by his mother.’

Wana awa/ hawa’ambiliki/ koo^oi. ‘These children cannot be told what has been said (e.g. they will not keep a secret).’

k-ambilisha v. caus.

k-ambilishan(y)a v. caus. rec. (ambilisheeny)

k-ambilishiliza v. caus. appl. (ambilishiliize)

k-ambilishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (wa’ambilishilizeeny)

rel. nom.

u-’ambilo n. 14

u-’ambililo n. 14

u-’ambilosho n. 14

ambiya (ma-’ambiya) n. pl. (cf. nabiiyi) [Ar. anbiya W 941] poetic prophets ambo

conj. or, else; [pron. ambó]

Faka^ota/ ambó/ takhshikoowa. ‘Run away, otherwise you will be arrested.’

Ijini/ chihada/ we/ mwaadamu/ mp^hikila/ chaakuja/ ambó/ mi/ nt^hakhubla. ‘The djinn said: you, human being, cook food for me, otherwise, I will kill you.’

Jaa we/ ambó/ ndimi/ taakujó. ‘You eat, or it is me who will eat.’

Silawe/ ambó/ humwoni/ Muusa. ‘Don’t leave, otherwise you will not see Muusa.’

Talaani/ wafungeeni/ skuu nt^hatu/ ambó/ skuu sabá. ‘Take (the goats) and tie them up for three days or seven days.’

Vete hanzu huundru/ ambó/ hanzu nyulusi. ‘Did you wear the red dress or the black dress?’

We/ nayo hanzuu ndre/ nyulusi/ ambo/ hanzuu ndre/ huundru? ‘Do you have a long black dress or a long red dress?’

Ye/ hakhaadiri/ kumwambila waawaye/ kuwa nt^heendre/ ziboozela/ ambó/ zijilá.
'He could not tell his father that the dates either were stolen or eaten.'

ch-aambo (z-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. chambo SSED 48] bait placed on a hook, net, trap Chaambo/ chijila naa nsi. 'The bait was eaten by the fish.'
Chiloho/ pashpo chaambo/ hashpati/ nsi. 'A hook without bait does not catch a fish.' (A proverb.)
Mbeshele chaambó/ kumpata nk^haanga. 'I set a trap to catch a guinea fowl.'
Mukhtaá mi/ nimtomeeló/ ka chambooni/ nimshiishilé/ ka mkono.
'When I took it [the guinea fowl] out from the net, I held it by the hand.'
Nk^haanga/ ingiile/ chambooni. 'The guinea fowl was caught [lit. entered in the net/trap].'

rel.

i-j-aambo (mi-j-) n. 5/4 aug.

k-aambuka

v. intrans. [Sw. ambuka SSED 12] (-ambushile) be(come) peeled, stripped off, detached; abrade, bruise Chilaatucha/ yambushile koola. 'My shoe, the glue has become undone.'
Lwarakha/ lambushile. 'The paper has become detached.'
Omari/ shereeje/ ambushile mkono. Omari slipped and lacerated/abraded (his) hand.'

rel.

k-ambulila v. tr. appl.

k-ambulilana v. tr. appl. rec.

k-ambuloowa v. tr. pass. (ambiila)

k-aambula v. tr. (ambiile) peel or strip off, detach

Abubakari/ ambile lwarakha. 'Abubakari detached the piece of paper.'

kambulaa mazu 'to peel a banana'

Ambilee mazu/ ambiiló. 'He peeled a banana, that's what he did.'

Ambile ndriimu/ ambiiló. 'He peeled a lemon, that's what he did.'

(But not Ambiile/ ambiiló. 'He peeled it, that's what he did.' Verb repetition is ill-formed if the trigger verb and the copy verb are adjacent.)

k-ambulana v. tr. rec.

k-ambulika v. tr. p/s.

k-ambuliza v. caus. appl. (ambuliize) separate people for Haadi/ mwambulize Bay/ waana. 'Haadi separated the children for Bay.'

k-ambulizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-ambulizeenye)

Want^hu awa/ wa'ambuliuzenye waana. 'These people separated for one another their children.'

Want^hu awa/ watilene kambuza waana. 'The people indirectly caused one another to separate the children.' (In this periphrastic causative, the children are not necessarily related at all to the people.)

k-aambuza v. caus. (ambiize) separate people fighting

Nureeni/ wa'ambize waana. 'Nureeni separated the children.' One can also omit the object marker: Nureeni/ ambize waana.

k-ambuzanya v. caus. rec. separate from one another Bay ambuzenye waana. 'Bay separated the children from each other.' (Syn.

This verb, being a reciprocal verb, does not allow an object prefix:

Bay/ wa'ambuzenye waana.)

k-ambuzanyoowa v. caus. rec. pass.

Waana/ wa'amuzenya na Haadi. 'The children were separated by Haadi.'

k-ambuzika v. caus. p/s.

k-ambuziliza v. caus. appl.

k-ambuzilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

rel. nom.
mw-aambulo n. 3

Ameerika

n. America

Breshnev/ leelo/ karka khuṭbaye/ wa'ambiile/ marusi/ ya kuwa...ba'ada/ ya miyaaka/ miwili/ ruusya/ takhshiindra/ natakhpita/ ameerika/ ka killa chiint^hu. 'Brezhnev today in his speech told the Russians that after two years Russian will surpass and overtake America in all things.'

Hu'insha Ameerika/ isa. 'I live in America now.'

Mukhtạa ye/ peḷa rukhsá/ mwambile Breshnev/ tafaḍali/ mukhtạa we/ takhkomo Ameeriká/ mi/ ndraṭani paapo/ Ameerika/ ni/ yolokelenii mbele. 'When he was given permission (to speak), he said to Brezhnev: please, when you will reach America, me, leave me right there in America, you (resp.) take yourself beyond (America).'

rel.
m-'ameerika (wa-) n. 1/2 an American

Amerikaano

American

Dowḷa/ ya Amerikaano/ iwaṭindiḷiḷe ma'askari/ ya Somaaliya/ mu'aawana/ yaa kuja/ ka sababu/ mamulii mbovu. 'The American government cut assistance for food to the soldiers of Somalia because of bad administration.'

Amhaara (Ø, ma'-)

n. 1/2 an Ethiopian

Amhaara/ huja namaa mbiti. 'Ethiopians eat raw meat.'

Ma'amhaara/ hawawoni/ masku. 'Ethiopian people do not see in the dark.' (It was a common belief among Bravanese that Ethiopians could not see at night because they ate raw meat.)

rel.
Amhaara n. Ethiopia

Biyoole/ yiko kharibu ya konfini ya Amhaara. 'Biyoole is near the border with Ethiopia.'

Somaaliya/ na Amhaará/ ni aduuwi. 'Somalia and Ethiopia are enemies.'

Somaaliya/ na huduude/ na Amhaara. 'Somalia shares a border with Ethiopia.'

chi-'amhaara n. 7 the Amharic language chi-'amhaara (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. Ethiopian i-'amhaara (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. Ethiopian ku-'amilata

v. [Ar. 'amila W 644; see also mu'āmala "treatment, behaviour" W 646] (amilete) deal with people, treat people kum'amilata jis'iyi 'to treat him this way'

rel.
ku-'amilatana v. deal with

Wote/ wa'ishiize/ naawó/ wanakhpendaanó/ na waant^hú/ wa muuyi/ wawapeenzele/ nt^ho/ ka khisaa wo/ wa'amilateene/ na ra'iyia/ ka jisa suura/ na wahokomeele/ ka adli/ na haqí. 'They all lived [and they] in harmony and the people of the town loved them very much because they dealt with the citizens of the town in a good manner and they ruled with justice and righteousness.'

ku'amilana v. rec. have a relationship with

rel.
ku-'amilatanoowa v. pass.

Hayawaani/ na daba zinginezé/ hazi'amilatanoowi/ naazo/ sawa sawa. '[Domestic] animals and other animals as well are not treated equally [in Islam].'

- ku-'amima* v. [Ar. 'amma W 640] spread, cover; generalize, nationalize faraḍi ya koowa amima maluungo/ yote ka maayi siḷate chilungo [st.]
 '(there is an) obligation of washing up (after ejaculating) (and) cover the body, all with whater, don't leave any part untouched (by the water)'
 rel.
ku-'amimoowa v. pass,
mane ya mwiimbili hufufiloowa/ iluke maayi iyo hu'amimoowa [st.]
 '[things touched by] the urine of a boy should be sprinkled with water, spreading it thoroughly on them'
- aamin* n. amen; [pron. aamin]; var. aamiin
Du'a/ ichisomoowa/ huhadowa aamin. 'When praying is read, it is said aamin.'
Mi/ ḥadile aamin. 'I said aamin.' Cf. Omari/ hadile aamin. 'Omari said aamin.'
 (The word aamin has accent on the final syllable min both in a phrase where there is final accent and in a phrase where there is default penult accent.)
Sheekhi/ ba'ada ya khsomaa du'a/ hadile aamin/ na waant^hu/ wont^he/ ka chinumeche/ wahadile aamin. 'Sheekhi, after reading prayer, said aamin, and all everyone behind him said aamin.'
Shekh Omari/ walombejele waana/ du'a/ imṭihaani/ khpita/ malaayka/ zaalikó/ zihadile aamin/ waana/ wapisile. 'Shekh Omari begged God for the children to pass the examination; there were angels there, they said aamin, and the children passed.' (This example illustrates a belief among the want^hu wa Miini that when a person prays to God for something, the angels hear and say aamin, and consequently what was wished for happens.)
- amina* n. belief; adj. trustworthy Haliima/ onyesheze ruuhuye/ kuwa siwo/ amini. 'Haliima revealed herself to be untrustworthy.'
- k-aamina* v. [Sw. amini SSED 10; Ar. amina W28] (aminiile) believe, trust s.o.; variant form: ku'amina
Abdalla/ aminiile/ ya kuwa mukeewe/ nakhsulaa ye/ naafe/ napate kulo_lowa na sulṭaani. 'Abdalla believed that his wife wanted him to die so that she could be married by the sultan.'
Ahliyo/ ma'anaye/ ni muunt^hu/ khaminiloo we/ na naminiloo mi. 'Your relative, its meaning is someone who believes in you and who believes in me.'
Aminile kuwa Suufi/ ni munt^hu msuura. 'He believed that Suufi is a good man.'
Aminile kuwa Suufi/ takhfanya kaazi/ naaye. 'He believed that Suufi would work with him.'
Aminile kuwa takhpata kaazi/ ka sarkaali. 'He believed that he would get a job from the government.'
Fardoosa/ tu/ tukilo misandukhu mikulú/ mi/ haaminó. 'Only Fardoosa carried the large boxes, I believe.'
Fardoosa/ tukile misandukhu mikulu/ mi/ haaminó. 'Fardoosa carried the large boxes, I believe.'
Haliima/ aminile kuwaa ye/ ni mwaalimu. 'Haliima believed that (s)he was a teacher.' (The pronoun ye in this example may refer to Haliima or to some other individual. The pronoun ye may not be replaced by the reflexive pronoun: Haliima/ aminile kuwa ruuhuye/ ni mwaalimu. 'Haliima believed that herself was a teacher.' One can however say: Haliima/ aminile ruuhuye/ kuwa ni mwaalimu. 'Haliima believed herself to be a teacher.')
- Hamadi/ haamini/ mojiitu. 'Hamadi does not have faith in God.'
Humwamino mojiitú/ haakosi/ chiint^hu. 'He who believes in God does not miss getting things (i.e. if you believe in God you will get what you want).' (A proverb.)
Jaama/ aminiile/ kuwa Nuuru/ ni taajiri. 'Jaama believed that Nuuru is rich.'
kaamina ka qalbiini na ibaada [st.] 'to believe it in your heart and to worship' kamina ruuhuye 'to be confident (lit. to trust oneself)'

- Maama/ uyu/ waliko aminiile/ ya kuwa mwaanawe/ chibaraṭa/ kila/ chiint^hu/ madrasaani/ itamwinfaa ye/ na maamayé. ‘This mother believed that if her son learned everything in school, it would be useful to him and to his mother.’ (Phon. We have not identified the explanation for the final accent in the phrase madrassani.)
- Mi/ bilhakhiiḱha/ naminiilé/ kuwa Omari/ mkoḱishizee ye/ wanaafakhi. ‘I really believed that Omari had lied to him.’
- Mi/ haamina/ Abú/ inakonyesha kuwa takhkalant^ha Ameerika. ‘I believe that it is likely Abu will stay in America.’
- Mi/ haamina/ kuwa Fardoosa/ takuruuda/ ka hima. ‘I believe that Fardoosa will be back soon.’
- Mi/ haamina/ kuwa Faaṭima/ ni mpishi/ mkali. ‘I believe Faatima to be a good cook.’
- Mi/ haamina/ kuwa Hasani/ kalent^he ka adabu. ‘I believe Hasani to have behaved well.’
- Mweenza/ mi/ khaamina. ‘My friend, I believe you.’
- Mi/ haamina/ khkoḱowa liḱa. ‘I believe in telling the truth.’ (Notice the Chimiini way of using the passive where English would use an active form of the verb.)
- Mi/ hamina kuwa Fardoosa/ tukile misanduukhu/ mikulu. ‘I believe that Fardoosa carried the large boxes.’
- Mi/ hamina kuwa Fardoosa/ tu/ tukilo misandukhu mikulú. ‘I believe that only Fardoosa carried the large boxes.’
- Mi/ hamina kuwa misandukhu mikulu/ Fardoosa/ tukiile. ‘I believe that the large boxes Fardoosa carried.’
- Mi/ hukahaṭa/ kuwaa we/ hunaamini. ‘I hate that you do not trust me.’
- Mi/ humwaamina/ Omari. ‘I believe Omari.’
- Mi/ na’iwá/ kuwaa we/ huṭakhaadiri/ kunaamina. ‘I know that you will not be able to believe me.’
- Mi/ naminiilé/ kuwa Nuuru/ ni taajiri. ‘I believe that Nuuru is rich.’ Cf. Mi/ naminile Nuurú/ kuwa taajiri. ‘I believe Nuuru to be rich.’ (In the first example, the main verb is phrasally separated from its complement, hence the final accent triggered by a first person past tense verb does not project past the emphasized verb. The kuwa in this example is clearly a complementizer, since there is a copular verb present in the sentential complement. In the second example, there is no internal focus and the final accent projects to the end of the VP. The kuwa here seems to be the infinitive form of ‘be’.)
- Mi/ ska’amine/ kuwaa yo/ humkina. ‘I wouldn’t have believed it possible.’
- Mi/ skukhaadira/ kamina jisaa yo/ yalikoo dhibú. ‘I couldn’t believe how difficult it was.’
- Misandukhu mikulu/ tu/ Fardoosa/ tukiiló/ mi/ haaminó. ‘Only the large boxes Fardoosa carried, I believe.’
- Mubliwá/ amina nasiibuyo. ‘My husband, trust to your luck.’
- Muunt^hu/ diiniye/ laazimu/ kaamina. ‘One, his religion, he must believe.’
- Muunt^hu/ humwaamina/ mojiitu/ na mtumewé. ‘One believes in God and his prophet.’
- Mwana wa Hamadi/ aminilo kuwa Jaamá/ msomesheezé/ ni Sheekhi. ‘The child whom Hamadi believed that Jaama had taught is Sheekhi.’
- Mwaanawa/ we/ laazima/ kumwamina mwajiitu. ‘My child, you must have faith in God.’
- na kamaa we/ hunaamini ‘and of you do not believe me...’
- Na kila/ mará/ mo mweepe/ karka wantu/ wa’izó/ kumwaamina/ shpitá/ wachimteleza. ‘And every time someone among the people who refused to believe him, when passing, they made jokes at his expense.’
- Naamina/ mi/ nt^hakuruuda/ kaako. ‘Believe me, I will return to you.’
- Nt^hukaamina/ kooḱiza. ‘You did not believe my words.’
- Sultani uyu/ ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ chamino diini/ chimubla. ‘This sultan, any person who believed in religion, he used to kill.’
- Sultani waa dafa/ chamina kooḱize/ chimlata/ ku’iisha/ kati kaawo. ‘The king of the kites believed his words [referring to Crow] and allowed him to live among them.’

Waant^{bu}/ haamina/ yaa wo/ wanakhsuuló. ‘People believe what they want to.’ Or:
Waant^{bu}/ haamina/ yaa wo/ wanakhsulo kaaminá. ‘People believe what they want to believe.’

Ye/ aminile/ kuwa Abú/ ha’aminiki. ‘He believed that Abu could not be trusted.’

Ye/ chiiza/ kaamina/ kuwaa ye/ fiile. ‘He (the crow) refused to believe that he (the hare) was dead.’

rel.

k-aminana v. rec. trust one another

k-aminika v. p/s. be trustworthy k-aminila v. appl. entrust to, with kaaminila ruuhuye ‘to entrust one’s soul to’

Mahaĵa/ zinakinendroo zitá/ muunt^{bu}/ hakhaadiri/ kaminila ruuhuye. ‘Where there is war going on, one cannot entrust his soul there.’

Mi/ nakhaminila mwaanawá. ‘I entrust my child to you./

Noka/ waliko baraĵeene/ mwana wa muunt^{bu}/ na ka jis’iyó/ baaba/ chimwaminila mwaana/ kuĵa/ ye/ choloka ndilaani. ‘The snake became used to the man’s child and for this reason, father entrusted the child to him whenever he left the house.’

We/ naminilile mi/ nuumba/ nt^{bu}kuwa’aminila waana. ‘You entrusted the house to me, you did not entrust it to the children.’

Yaayi/ we/ huchaminili/ so/ we/ muĵa yíitú. ‘How come you do not entrust us with our younger brother?’

k-aminisha v. caus.

k-aminishika v. caus. p/s.

k-aminishiliza v. caus. appl.

k-aminishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

k-aminoowa v. pass.

naa wo hawaminoowi/ khabari zaawo hizoowa [st.] ‘and (those who knew it) were not believed/ their attestations were denied (lit. refused)’

Nuuru/ kuwa taajiri/ yaminiiĵa. ‘Nuuru to be rich is believed.’ (Observe that the sentential complement, NP + infinitive phrase, is the subject of the passive verb. It does not seem possible to promote the subject of this complement sentence to be the passive subject: *Nuuru/ aminiiĵa kuwa taajiri. ‘Nuuru is believed to be rich.’)

Yaa ye/ takuhadó/ haĵakaminoowa/ na waant^{bu}. ‘Whatever he will say won’t be believed by people.’

rel. nom.

mw-aamina (wa’-) n. 1/2 one who trusts in Mwamina mwajitu/ si mkosefu. ‘One who trusts in God is not needy.’ (A proverb.)

u-’amino n. 14 trusting

Amiini

n. a name for the prophet

amiini

adj. trustworthy; n. trust

kubasha amiini ‘to lose trust’

Mi/ mbashiizé/ amiini/ na Hamadi. ‘I lost trust with (in) Hamadi.’

kuwa amiini ‘to be honest, trustworthy’

Kuwa Haliima/ nt^{bu}akuwaaliko/ amiini/ ka mubĵiwe/ siwo/ liĵa. ‘That Haliima was unfaithful to her husband is untrue.’

Mi/ nakhsuĵa kuweka amaana/ ka Alí/ sababu/ ye/ ni muunt^{bu}/ amiini. ‘I want to put my money with Ali because he is trustworthy.’

Ni munt^{bu} amiini. ‘He is trustworthy.’

Omari/ ni amiini. ‘Omari is honest, trustworthy.’

Omari/ nt^{bu}aná/ amiini. ‘Omari is not trustworthy, he cannot be believed.’

Omari/ siwo/ amiini. ‘Omari is not honest, trustworthy.’

want^{bu} amiini ‘trustworthy people’

Ye/ ni amiini/ nt^{bu}/ ka jis’iyo/ waant^{bu}/ daa’imu/ humuzaa ye/ kuwasaayda. ‘She is very reliable, so people always ask her to help.’

mw-aminifu	adj. trustworthy
ku-'amira strong, strengthen	v. [Ar. amarr “firmer, stronger” W 901 (amiriile)] make something more active, make rel. ku-'amirika v. p/s. become more active, revive, come alive again, prosper, grow Apo/ zamaani/ muuyi/ wa Mwiini/ uwaaliko/ u'amirishilee nt^ho. ‘Once upon on a time the town of Brava was well-populated.’ Muuyi/ unaku'amirika. ‘The town is growing.’ ku-'amiriila v. appl. ku-'amiriilana v. appl. rec. ku-'amirisha v. caus. (amirishiize) ku-'amirishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-'amirishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. ku-'amiroowa v. pass. added, get examples
amiiri (ma-)	n. [Sw. amiri SSED 13; Ar. amīr W 27] commander, leader, authority, ruler; [pron. ma'amiri] Sultaani/ ma'amiri/ maqaadi/ ma'akhyaari/ na makhaadimú/ wachingila safari. ‘The sultan, the authorities, the judges, the chieftains, and the servants started traveling.’
amiya	n. [Sw. ami SSED; Ar. ‘ amm W 640] (my) paternal uncle; [pron. amiyá] Amiyá/ nakambila ruuhuye/ wanaafakhi. ‘My uncle is lying to himself.’ amiyá/ wa khpaka ‘the man married to my aunt from father’s side (lit. uncle of coating)’ Bakari/ oshale Mwiini/ ye/ sulile kuwawona ahliye/ wont^he/ laakini/ ye/ mwene amiyé/ tu. ‘Bakari went to Brava. He wanted to see all his relatives, but he just saw his uncle.’ Waaliko/ mubli mooyi/ nnowelee/ mwanaamke/ wa amiyé. ‘A man married the daughter of his paternal uncle.’
aamma	n. the public Mwalimu Nyerere/ wafaramiile/ waanzaanya/ kudaðaalata/ na khfaanya/ bidi'i/ karka kaazi/ zaawo/ za khaansa/ na za aamma. ‘Mwalimu Nyerere recommended the Tanzanians to do their best and to try hard in their private tasks as well as the public (tasks).’
amni	n. security Mwiini/ iwashiila idaara/ ya amni/ chita/ ni rasdente. ‘In Miini it has been established an office for security, the head is the D.C.’
amo	conj. or, but; [pron. amó] Amó/ chijamuuni/ kaaka/ ye/ nt^hijile makooko/ na chita chaa nsi. ‘But on my plate she put the hard crust of the rice and a fish head.’ Ilopó/ eelo/ weene/ kuwa maambo/ yawaliko mawili/ kufaa ye/ amó/ kufa aduwí/ yiitú. ‘When the gazelle came, he saw that there were only two alternatives, for him to die or for our enemy to die.’ kama tamwiinfa/ kumfanyiliza kaazi/ amó/ hamwiinfi ‘if he will be of use working for him or not’ Khupa zigobe/ amó/ zile. ‘Shall I give you the short ones or the long ones?’ review accent kumera kaazi/ amó/ kinenza kazi zaawó ‘to look for a job or to carry on with their jobs’ Mi/ nt^haakufa/ amó/ nt^hamubla/ dughaaghi/ amó/ nt^haki'irudila kiitu/ ka waawe/ na maamé. ‘I will die or I will kill the beast or I will return home to my father and mother.’ Ndretelele kheeri/ amó/ shari. ‘Did you bring good news or bad?’ review accent Nii ndre/ amó/ chigobe. ‘Is it long or short?’ review accent

We/ nt^hakhaadira/ khkuumbuka/ zeema/ zaa ye/ khufanyizoo we/ amo mukeewé.
 ‘You could not remember the good that he did for you or for your wife.’
 (Notice that in this example, amo phrase with the following noun and governs final accent.)

yanawe masuura/ amó/ mawovú ‘be it (e.g. the answer) good or bad’

amri

n. 9/10 [Sw. amri SSED 13; Ar. amr W 26] order, command; imperative (in grammar); matter, issue, incident, affair, deal; purpose, intention, motive, reason; accomplishment; event (which is viewed as something that has been ordained by God)

Ali/ chuuzaa/ amri gani/ nt^hatu. ‘Ali asked: what are these three purposes?’

Amri/ ihuduthiiló. ‘Something (an incident, an occurrence, etc.) has happened.’

(Once speaker A has made a statement like this, speaker B may respond:

Nini. ‘What?’ in reply to which speaker A might say: Omari/ boozela.

‘Omari has been robbed.’)

Amri/ itinzila na sarkaali. ‘The matter was decided by the government.’ Or: Itinzila amri/ na sarkaali. ‘A matter was decided by the government.’

amri iyi/ haqiqaye ‘this matter, its certainty’

Amri iyi/ nii nk^hulu/ naami. ‘This matter is too big for me (i.e. it is beyond my authority).’

Amri/ mara mooyi/ ishtuluka/ maneeno/ hayiinfi. ‘Once an event has happened, talk does not serve any purpose.’ (A proverb.)

Amri/ nt^hayindowa na sarkaali. ‘The matter was not decided by the government.’

Or: Nt^hayindowa amri/ yoyote/ na sarkaali. ‘Nothing at all was decided by the government.’

Amri ya kaanda/ ni kuwaa ye/ ile kuboola/ amri ya piili/ ye/ ile kichubla/ ya taatu/ ambaani/ ye/ zimila naa muke/ ambó/ na mtaaná/ naayé/ nakhtosha kuwa ile kiitu. ‘The first (possible) reason is that he has come to steal; the second reason, that he has come to kill us; and the third, perhaps, that he has been run away from by a wife or a servant and thinks that she has come to our place.’

amri ya kheeri ‘s.t. good’

Amri/ ya kheeri/ ha’irudoowi/ numa. ‘A good deed is not (i.e. should not be) delayed; you should do it quickly.’

ni ajabu amri ya kheeri khtaraja [song] ‘it is strange that he should expect something good’

Amri/ ya mwajiitu/ ipisile. ‘God’s command, wish has come to pass.’

Amri za muuyi/ na za waant^huwé/ ni kaako. ‘The affairs of the town and of its people are yours.’

Iyi/ ni amri/ nk^hulu/ na ni amri/ chihaba/ ka sababu ni sahali/ kaaka/ mi/khudirkamanishaa we/ na mwanaamke/ laakini/ itakuwa amri/ nk^hulu/ we/ khpata iðni/ ya baaba/ sulṭaani/ kumlola mwanaamkewe. ‘This is a big matter and it is a small matter, because for me it is easy to arrange for you to meet with the girl, but it will be a big matter for you to get permission from her father, the king, to marry his daughter.’

khpa amri ‘to give orders’

khṭawala amri ‘to rule’

khṭinda amri ‘to decide’

Waṭinzile amri/ Hamadi/ kuṭiloowa. ‘They decided for Hamadi to be called.’ (The verb cannot have an OM in agreement with the subject of the passive sentence when amri intervenes: Wamṭinzile amri/ Hamadi/ kuṭiloowa. An OM on the main verb is acceptable, if not highly favored, if the subject of the infinitive immediately follows the main verb: Wamṭinzile Hamadi/ amri/ kuṭiloowa. ‘They decided him Hamadi to be called.’ review whether this sentence is good or not)

Wasṭinda amri/ khṭuumba. ‘They decided to dig.’

Waṭinzile amri/ kumvīla Hamadi. ‘They decided to call Hamadi.’ Or: Waṭinzile amri/ Hamadi/ kuviīla. ‘They decided Hamadi to call.’ Or: Waṭinzile Hamadi/ amri/ kuviīla. ‘They decided Hamadi to call.’ review whether this sentence is good or not Or, with main verb agreeing with the subject of the infinitive: Wamṭinzile Hamadi/ amri/ kuviīla. ‘They decided him Hamadi to call.’ review whether this is good or bad (Note that it is not possible to mark the higher verb in agreement with the infinitive subject of that subject is not next to the verb. Note the ungrammatical: Wamṭinzile amri/ kumvīla Hamadi. Also: Wamṭinzile amri/ Hamadi/ kumvīla.) khṭindowa amri ‘to be decided’ Hamadi/ iṭinzīla amri/ kuvīloowa. ‘Hamadi, it was decided (for him) to be called.’

khṭomola amri ‘to issue an order’
Apo/ zamaani/ sultaani/ Haruun Rashiidi/ tomele amri/ kuwa ntʰaku/ rukhsa/ karka muuyiwe/ kashoowa/ mibeebe/ yaa muḷo. ‘Once upon a time Sultan Haruun Rashiidi issued an order that there was no permission in his town for fires to be lit.’
Surtaani/ leelo/ tomele amri/ ismu/ ya muuntʰu/ chiza kuḷawa/ numbaani/ masku/ ba’ada/ sa’aa ntʰatu. ‘The king gave an order that no one should go out of the house in the night after nine p.m.’

khtala amri ‘to take orders’ kuḷangala amri ya muuyi ‘to look after the affairs of the town’ Lazile bilaa amriya. ‘He left without my permission.’
Mkuḷaze/ wachimjiiba/ ya kuwaa wo/ waamo/ ntʰiini/ ya amriye. ‘His elder brothers answered him that they were in under his orders.’
Mpele amri/ mpeeló/ endrá/ tinda muti uje. ‘He gave an order, that’s what he did: go and cut down that tree!’
muuntʰu hijiilo amriye siwo haba/ Safa na Marwa wachimbiilo mara saba [st.] ‘those who perform the hajj achieve a great accomplishment, they run between Safa and Marwa seven times’ na kuḷa amriye chaanza ka bismiḷa [st.] ‘and each of his actions he began by reciting the name of God’ ndruuza ni waajibu amri ya diini/ khaansa kiwoowa mas’ala siṭṭini [st.] ‘O my brothers, it is obligatory (to know) the matters of religion, especially for sixty questions to be known’ Ni muntʰu mwenye amri. ‘He is a man of authority.’
Si/ chinakhtahaja Abú/ kurasha amri. ‘We need Abu to follow orders.’
Siwo/ amri/ chihaba/ muuntʰu/ kubḷeḷowaa ndru/ watatu/ ka sku mooyi. ‘It is not a small matter for a man to have three brothers killed [on him] on the same day.’
Sultaani/ chiwapa askari/ amri/ kummeera/ siimba/ mahaḷaa ye/ ukó/ kumubla. ‘The sultan ordered the soldiers to look for the lion wherever he might be and to kill him.’
Uje wowote/ taakuwó/ mi/ siná/ shaka/ ye/ ile/ na mooyi/ karka amri/ ntʰatu. ‘Whoever he may be (in the story, referring to someone who has knocked at the door), I have no doubt that he has come with one of three purposes.’

k-amura

- v. [Sw. amuaa SSED 13; Ar. amara and amr W 26] (amuriile) order someone to do something (The verb amura governs an infinitival or subjunctive complement.)
- Amurīle chibuuku/ sishtaḷoowa. ‘He ordered the book not to be taken.’ Cf. Amurīle zibuuku/ sistaḷoowa. ‘He ordered the books not to be taken.’
- Amurīle ijiwe/ isivundoowa. ‘He ordered the stone not to be broken.’ Cf. Amurīle majiwe/ yasivundoowa. ‘He ordered the stones not to be broken.’
- Amurīlee khati/ isandikoowa. ‘He ordered the letter not to be written.’ Cf. Amurīleee khati/ sizandikoowa. ‘He ordered the letters not to be written.’

Amurīlee luti/ siltaloowa. ‘He ordered the stick not to be taken.’
Amurīlee muti/ usiwekoowa/ apa. ‘He ordered the tree not to be put here.’
Cf. Amurīlee miti/ yasiwekoowa/ apa. ‘He ordered the trees not to be put here.’ (Note that it is yasiwekoowa and not siyawekoowa.)

Amurīle ma’askari watatu/ kulindra waradiya/ amuriiló. ‘He ordered three soldiers to stand guard, that’s what he did.’ Also: Amurīle ma’askari watatu/ amuriiló/ kulindra waradiya.

Amurīlee mi/ spoowa/ chaakuja. ‘He ordered me not to eat the food.’
(Note that MI does not employ a first person singular subject marker: spoowa (from /si-poowa/), not simp^hoowa.)

Amurīlee si/ sishpoowa/ chaakuja. ‘He ordered that you not be given food.’ Cf. Amurīlee ni/ spoowa/ chaakuja. ‘He ordered that you (pl.) not be given food.’ (Note that MI did not say nsipoowa, instead eliding the nasal and thus allowing si to elide its vowel: spoowa.)

Amurīle uki/ usinoowa. ‘He ordered the honey not to be drunk.’

Amurīlee wo/ waspoowa/ chaakuja. ‘He ordered that they not be given food.’ Cf. Amurīlee we/ spoowa/ chaakuja. ‘He ordered that you not be given food.’ Cf. Amurīlee ye/ spoowa/ chaakuja. ‘He ordered that he not be given food.’

Huseeni/ chamura khpanzowa itaanga/ wachisaafira. ‘Huseeni ordered the sail to be raised and they traveled.’

Mwaalimu/ amurīle Ali/ chiza khpowa chaakuja. ‘The teacher ordered that Ali not be given food.’

Mwaalimu/ amurīle Ali/ sandikiloowa/ khaṭi. ‘The teacher ordered that Ali not be written a letter to.’

Mwaalimu/ amurīlee mi/ spoowa/ chaakuja. ‘The teacher ordered me not to given food.’

Mwaalimu/ amurīle Ali/ spoowa/ chaakuja. ‘The teacher ordered that Ali not be given food.’ (A negative verb like spoowa is, in the default case, phrase-final. We take this to mean that the negative verb is inherently focused. However, it is possible for the complement to be focused instead. When this happens, the verb is no longer phrase-final: Mwaalimu/ amurīle Ali/ spowa chaakuja.)

Mwaalimu/ (mw)amurīle Ali/ sooloke. ‘The teacher ordered Ali not to go.’

Mwaalimu/ mwamurīle Nuuru/ kuleta zibuuku. ‘The teacher ordered Nuuru to bring the books.’

Mwamurīle Ali/ kandikaa khaṭi. ‘He ordered Ali to write a letter.’ (It is unacceptable for the higher verb to not agree with the subject of the infinitive: Amurīle Ali/ kandikaa khaṭi. In order to have the main verb not object-marked, the lower clause must have a subjunctive shape: Amurīle Ali/ nandikee khaṭi. ‘He ordered that Ali write a letter.’ In this case, the order was not necessarily issued directly to Ali.)

Sarkaali/ amurīle Nuuru/ na’oloke. ‘The government ordered that Nuuru should go.’
(If the higher verb exhibits object agreement, then the preferred interpretation is that the order was directed personally to Nuuru: Sarkaali/ mwamurīle Nuuru/ na’oloke. ‘The government ordered Nuuru to go.’)

Sarkaali/ amurīle waant^hu/ kulawa ibenyaani. ‘The government ordered people to go to the outskirts of town.’

Sultaani/ chiwa’amura kumwingiza eelo/ numbaani. ‘The sultan ordered them to bring the gazelle into the house.’

Sultani waa noka/ chamura Hasiibu/ na’ondroloowa/ ka usinziizi. ‘The king of snakes ordered that Hasiibu be woken up from sleep.’

Yiiko/ amri/ inakhtulukó/ karka muuyi/ uyu/ ya mwajiitu/ nt^hakaamurá. ‘What matter is there that is happening in this town that God has not ordered?’

rel.

k-amurana v. rec.

k-amurika v. p/s.

k(u’)-amurisha v. caus. order

Harun Rashiidi/ chi'amurisha mkulu wa mawaardiya/ kuletoowa.

'Harun Rashiidi ordered the head of the guards to be brought (to him).'

Mwamurishize khkalaant^h apí. 'Where did you order him to sit?'

Nim'amurishize khkalaant^h a chitiini. 'I ordered him to sit on the chair.'

k-amurishana v. caus. rec.

k-amurishiliza v. caus. appl.

k-amurishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

k-amurishoowa v. caus. pass.

Namurishiza keendrá. 'I was ordered to go.'

Namurishiza kendra na Nuurú. 'I was ordered to go with Nuuru.'

Namurishiza kumwendela Nuurú. 'I was ordered to go to Nuuru.'

Namurishiza na Nuurú/ keendra. 'I was ordered by Nuuru to go.'

k(u')-amuroowa v. pass. (amuriila)

Amuriila khtokosa maayi. 'He was ordered to boil water.'

Amuriila/ ye/ chiza khtokosa maayi. 'He was ordered not to boil water.'

(A subjunctive version is also available: Amuriila/ ye/ stokose maayi. 'He was ordered that he not boil water.'))

Amuriila/ ye/ khtokosa maayi. 'He was ordered that he boil water.'

(A subjunctive version is also available: Amuriila/ ye/ natokose maayi. 'He was ordered that he boil water.'))

Amuriila ye/ khtokosa maayi. 'He (not someone else) was ordered to boil water.'

Mtaana/ shfaanya/ zaa ye/ amuriila. 'The slave did what he was ordered to do.'

Nuuru/ amuriila kooloka. 'Nuuru was ordered to go.'

Yamuriila nuumba/ zinapakowa buraashi. 'It was ordered that the houses be painted.'

Yamuriila waana/ koloka madrasaani/ mapeema. 'It was ordered that the children go to school early.' (A subjunctive version of this sentence is also possible: Yamuriila waana/ wana'oloke madrasaani/ mapeema. 'It was ordered that the children should go to school early.'))

k-aamusa

v. [Sw. amwisha SSED 13] (amusiize) suckle a child; wean a child from suckling mamusiizo Mwaana Halimata/ hunasabiloowa Sa'di barata [st.] 'and his wet-nurse (lit. the one who suckled him) was Lady Halima, who belonged to the Sa'di people – learn this'

i-j-ana wanziirin. [lit. son of the minister] largish grey fish so named because it looks healthy and well-fed; however, it is not commonly eaten (Phon. Note that the word for 'minister' is waziiri, without the nasalization in front of z.)

mwaana (w-)

n. 1/2 child

kuja/ kana mwaana 'to cry like a child' mwaana petaa nt^hi '[lit.] child found on the ground -- someone whose ancestry is not known, a nobody' examine phrasing etc mwana wa baado 'first child of a couple' mwana wa khtiinda '[lit.] child of cutting – i.e. the last child born of a couple'

Omari/ ni mwana wa khtiinda/ maamaye/ humpeenda. 'Omari is the last-born child, his mother loves him (very much).'

mwanaa mule 'tall child' mwanaa nt^hi '(in Sw. this expression has the meaning: citizen of a country, and MI used it with this meaning; in Chimiini it has a different, derogatory meaning: mana wa nt^hi is someone whose roots/ancestry are not known.'

Mwaana/ uyu/ chivilowa Hasani. 'This boy was called Hasani.' mwaana wa khpeenda '(lit.) child of love – i.e. spoiled child'

Hamadi/ ni mwana wa khpeenda/ maamaye/ kilaa chiintbu/ humpa. ‘Hamadi is spoiled, his mother gives him everything.’

Mwana wa naani/ iló. ‘Whose child came?’

mwenza wa mwaanawa ‘friend of my child’ or mwaanawa/ mweenzawe or [in the speech of MI] mwenzawe mwaanawa

Wana awa/ nii wale. [H!H] ‘These children are tall.’ (cf. Wana awo/ ni zigobe. [H!H] ‘Those children are short.’)

Wana awa/ nii wale/ kuzida wana awo. [H'H'H] ‘These children are taller than those children.’ (cf. Wana awo/ ni zigobe/ kolko wana awa. [H'H'H] ‘Those children are shorter than these children.’)

Wana awa/ ni walee ntho. [H!H] ‘These children are very tall.’

Wana awaje/ ni zigobe ntho. [H!H] ‘Those children are very short.’

wanaa wale ‘tall children’

rel.

chi-j-aana (zi-j-) n. 7/8 dim.

chijana cha Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s (dim.) child’; zijana za Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s (dim.) children’

Chijaana/ chileele. ‘The (dim.) child is sleeping.’

chijana chiimp^{hi} ‘which (dim.) child?’; zijana zimp^{hi} ‘which (dim.) children?’

chijana chisuura ‘a beautiful (dim.) child’; zijana zisuura ‘beautiful (dim.) children’

Chijaana/ haachiji. ‘The (dim.) child does not, won’t eat.’ (cf. Zijaana/ haaziji. ‘The (dim.) children do not, won’t eat.’) chijana ichi ‘this (dim.) child’; zijana izi ‘these (dim.) children’

Chijana ichi/ ni chembeemba. ‘This (dim.) child is thin.’ (cf. Zijana izi/ ni zembeemba. ‘These (dim.) children are thin.’) chijaanacha ‘my (dim.) child’; zijaanaza ‘my (dim.) children’

Jaama/ sh^hilangilile chijaana/ nama. ‘Jaama sliced meat for the (dim.) child.’ (The diminutive noun triggers the object prefix chi on the verb, which is realized here as sh in front of a voiceless consonant.)

Zijaana/ zileele. ‘The (dim.) children are sleeping.’

chi-w-aana childish check into

i-j-aana, l-j-aana (mi-j-) n. 5,11/4 aug.

Ijaana/ (i)bozele peesa. ‘The big boy stole the money.’ (Note that the augmentative noun may have either [cl.5] or [cl.1] subject agreement.)

Ijana iyi/ ni yembeemba. ‘This (aug.) child is thin.’

Mijana aya/ ni membeemba. ‘These (aug.) children are thin.’

Mijaanayo/ hayaaji. ‘Your (aug.) children won’t eat.’ (Cf. Ijaanayo/ haayiji. ‘Your (aug.) child won’t eat.’ or Ljaana^{lo}/ haaliji.)

u-w-aana n. childhood

huwa nangaangu khsooma ka uwaana [st.] ‘it is easier to commit [it] to memory when young’ (This line from the sh^hteenzi ‘Zubad’ was mistranscribed and thus mistranslated in CLE. Thanks to Alessandra Vianello for pointing this out and providing the correct transcription and translation.)

Mi/ hukuumbuka/ haba/ ka uwaanawa. ‘I remember little from my childhood.’

ma mpeembe n. a rough doll with body made of a maize cob [lit. child of horns]; [pron. ma mp^heeembe]

m(w)-anaachivo (w-) n. 1/2 student

rel.

m(w)-anachiwooni (w-) n. 1/2 student

m^w-anaadamu (w-) n. human being variant form: m^waadamu

Choowa/ muda/ wa skuu saba/ harfu/ ya wanaadamu/ itakhulata. ‘If you bathe for a period of seven days, the smell of human beings will leave you.’

Ito/ ya mwaadamu/ ni khatari/ zaaydi/ ya maraḍi. ‘The evil eye (lit. eye of a human being) is more dangerous than disease.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaadamu/ hakhaadiri/ kiwa kilaa chiintu. ‘A human being cannot know everything.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Mwanaamke/ chihada/ mi/ ni mwaadamú. ‘The girl said: I am a human being.’

na killa maadamu khtiyila nafsiyé [nt.] ‘and every one is fearing for his own life’

Siimba/ chanza kuja wanaadamu/ apo/ muyiini. ‘The lion began to eat human beings there in town.’

Ye/ takiwaayi/ naayé/ wo/ ba/ ni wanaadamu/ tu. ‘How will he know, him and they being just human beings.’

mwa-anaafaqi (w-)

n. liar; lie; [usu. pron. mwa-anaafakhi]

variant form: mwa-aafakhi

Koḍele wanafakhi gani. ‘What lies did you speak?’

Mahala/ yiko lilá/ wanaafakhi/ hayiingili. ‘Where there is truth, a lie does not enter.’ (A saying.)

Mi/ nakuzimila ka sababú/ ya kooḍi/ za wanaafakhi/ zaa mi/ nk^hoḍeeló. ‘I am running away because of the lies [lit. words of lies] that I have spoken.’ I added accents so need to review this with Gelani.

Miilu/ ya wanaafakhi/ ni zigobe. ‘The legs of lies are short.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ wazelewe/ hawa’ambili/ wanaafakhi. ‘One does not tell his parents a lie.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ khiriile/ kuwaa ye/ koḍele wanaafakhi. ‘The boy admitted that he lied.’

Ndila ya mwaafakhi/ ni chigobe. ‘The way of the liar is short.’ (A proverb that says that a liar is soon discovered.)

Omari/ hukahaṭa wanaafakhi. ‘Omari hates lies.’ Or, with focus on the verb: Omari/ hukahaṭa/ wanaafakhi.

Omari/ mwaafakhi/ mkulu. ‘Omari is a big liar.’

Wana awo/ wanaafakhi. ‘Those children are liars.’

Wanaafakhi/ hajeeri. ‘A liar does not feel shame.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Wanaafakhi/ huliwaloowa. ‘Lies are forgotten.’ (A saying.)

Wanaafakhi/ ni maraḍi/ dawaye/ ni liḷa. ‘Lies are a disease, its cure is truth.’ (A proverb.)

Wanaafakhi/ nt^ha’iná/ miilu. ‘Lies do not have legs.’ (A proverb.)

Wanaafaqi/ nt^haná/ haaja. ‘Lit. lies have no need, i.e. there is no need to lie.’ (This is a way to say “to tell you the truth”, or “I have no need to find a false justification, I can tell you the truth”. This expression is used when somebody gives the true reason for his action, even though this reason might put him in an unfavorable light. For example, if you have missed an appointment, instead of giving a false reason for this, you will say “I do not give you false excuses, I simply forgot about it”.)

Wanaafakhi/ yaa ye/ nakhsuuló/ huhada. ‘A liar says whatever he wants.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Yiko lilá/ wanaafakhi/ ndani. ‘While there is truth, lie is for what?’ (A proverbial saying.)

mwa-anafuunzi (w-)

n. 1/2 student (The Chijini form of this noun establishes that nzi is a syllable with a prenasalized consonant as onset: [nzimwanáf^u] since it is transposed to the beginning of the word.)

Awa/ ndiwó/ wanafunzi wapisilo imtihaaní. ‘These ones are the students who passed the examination.’

mwanafunzi mooyi ‘one student’

mwanafuunzi/ na khalamú ‘a student and a pen/pens’ mwanafuunzi/ na khalamuyé ‘a student and his pen’; mwanafuunzi/ na khalamuzé ‘a student and his pens’

Oyo/ ndiyé/ mwanafunzi pisilo imtihaaní. ‘This one is the student who passed the examination.’

wanafunzi wawili ‘two students’ wanafunzi watatu ‘three students’ wanafunzi wanne ‘four students’ wanafunzi waṭaano ‘five students’

m(w)-anaankuku

n. chick [lit. child of chicken]; [pron. mwanaank^huku]

rel.

z-anaank^huku n. 8 chicks [pron. zanaank^huku]

m-w-anaamke

n. girl

Chendra ka waawe/ simwaambilé/ kuwaa we/ mwene mwanaamké/ numbaaní/ kaaká. ‘If you go to my father, don’t tell him that you have seen a girl at my house.’

Chishika miimba/ chizaala/ mwaana/ mwanaamke. ‘She got pregnant and gave birth to a baby girl.’

Mpele ina gani/ mwanaamkewo. ‘What name did you give your daughter?’

Mwanaamke/ mukhtaa ye/ malizoo kujá/ oyo mwarabu/ mvilile oyo/ khaadimu/ mpele amri/ khtalaa luti/ kumbiga mwanwamkewe/ ndruti miya. ‘When the girl finished eating, that Arab called that servant and gave him an order to take a stick to hit his daughter one hundred blows.’

Nimpeelé/ sultaani/ kuwa mahari/ ya mwanaamkewe. ‘I gave it to the sultan to be the dowry of his daughter.’

Nimtanile Haliimá/ mwanaamkewá/ mashuungí. ‘I combed my daughter Haliima’s hair.’ Or: Nimtanile mwanamkewá/ Haliimá/ mashuungí. (The parts of the construction Haliima/ mwanamkewa ‘Haliima my daughter’ can be reversed.)

Ye/ mlowele mwanaamke. ‘He married the girl.’

rel.

m-w-anaashke n.1 girl, daughter

Hamadi/ mwanaashke/ ni suura. ‘Hamadi’s daughter is beautiful.’

Muunt^hu/ nayo mwanaashké/ nayo ebu. ‘He who has a girl has shame.’ (A proverb.)

Mwanaashke/ wa Omari/ mpelo chibuukú/ ni msuura. The girl to who(m) Omari gave the book is nice.

Tuuma/ mtanile Haliima/ mashuungí. ‘Tuuma combed Haliima’s hair.’ Or: Tuuma/ mtanile mashuungí/ Haliima. (Observe that mashuungí is not marked as a possessive noun in this construction.)

Tuuma/ mtanile mwanamkewe/ Haliima/ mashuungí. ‘Tuuma combed her daughter Haliima’s hair.’

w-anaashke n. 2 girls, daughters

Basi/ ichiwa wanaashkewe/ heendra/ hukooḍa/ na waant^hu. ‘But when it comes to her daughters [in contrast to her step-daughter], they go about, they talk with people.’

Chimvīla waziiri/ chimwaambila/ mwanaamkewa/ nakhsuḷa Kendra markabuuni/ basi/ ye/ nakhsuḷa/ wanaashkewo/ wana’endre naa ye. ‘He called his minister and said to him: my daughter wants to go to the ship, but she wants your daughters to go with her.’

Hupika/ haalawi/ hattá/ na wanaashke/ weenzawe/ haxhiiri/ khkooða.
 ‘She cooks, she does not go out, even with her girl friends, she does not accept to talk.’

Karka wakh̄ti oyo/ wanaashke/ wa masultaani/ na wanashke winginewé/ ba/ liini/ wachilaṭoowá/ kumera ndilaani. ‘During those times, daughters of sultans and other daughters as well did not go out to wander the streets.’

Na waaná/ awa/ wotte/ wawaliko wanaashke. ‘And all those children were girls.’

Nnakhsuulá/ bahariyawa/ kuwa ni wanaashke/ tu. ‘I want my crew to be only girls.’

Sultaani/ shfuraha/ nt^ho/ kuwona wanaashkewe/ wotte/ wamrudiliile.
 ‘The sultan was very pleased to see all his daughters returned to him.’

Wanaashke/ watziza ruuhu. [H!H] ‘The girls were comforted.’

Watziza ruuhú/ ni wanaashke. ‘The ones who were comforted were the girls.’

ananaasi (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. nanasi SSED 330, from Persian ananaas] pineapple Ananasi iyi/ iwozele. ‘This pineapple has spoiled.’
Ananasi izi/ ziwozele. ‘These pineapples have spoiled.’
Ma’ananaasi aya/ (ni) maḷadda. ‘These pineapples are sweet.’

rel.
chi-’ananaasi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-’ananaasi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ku-’anaanaṭa v. [Som. canaano DSI 87] (ananeete) rebuke, reproach ku-’anaanaṭa (Somali verb canaano, DSI p. 87)

rel.
ku-’anaanaṭana v. rec. (-anaanaṭeene)
ku-’anaanaṭika v. p/s.
ku-’anaanaṭila v. appl. (anaanaṭiliile)
ku-’anaanaṭilana v. appl. rec. (anaanaṭileene)
 rel. nom.
ma-’anaanaṭo n. 3

m^w-anaaskoola (w-) n. 1/2 student (The form m^wanaaskoola is a contraction of the phrase m^wana wa skoola. The head of the associative phrase can be prosodically separated from the associative phrase itself: m^wanaa/ wa skoola. In that phrasing, no contraction is possible: m^wanaa/ a skoola.)

Mwaka yaana/ nt^haasá/ chaliko wanaaskoola. ‘Last year we were still students.’

Ni Fardoosa/ nt^hana wanaaskoolá/ wiingí. ‘It is Fardoosa who does not have many students.’ Or: Ni Fardoosa/ nt^hana wana wa skoolá/ wiingí. Or: Ni Fardoosa/ nt^haná/ wanaaskoolá/ wiingí. Or: Ni Fardoosa/ nt^hana waaná/ wa skoolá/ wiingí. (GM did not accept a phrasing where wana (w)a skoola and the adjective are joined into a single phrase: Ni Fardoosa/ nt^hana wanaaskoola wiingí. It is possible, however, for the head of the associative phrase to be joined together with the adjective and the associative phrase to be in a separate phrase: Ni Fardoosa/ nt^h-a-na w-ana w-iingí) w-a skoolá ‘It is Fardoosa who does not have many students.’)

Wanaaskoola/ wont^he/ iwapete murúgu. ‘All of the students got worried.’

(This sentence illustrates one type of “experiencer” verb construction. The experiencer occurs in initial position, but is marked by an object prefix on the verb, while the subject – that which is experienced, in this case ‘worries’ – is post-verbal and phrased with the verb. Notice that the quantifier {-ont^he} occurs after the experiencer without necessarily triggering pseudo-relativization of the verb. However, it is possible for pseudo-relativization to occur: Wanaaskoola/ wont^he/ iwapeto murugú.)

ch-andaruwa (z-) n. 7/8 [Sw. chandalua SSED 49; Hind.] mosquito net, umbrella Chandaruwa ichije/ ni chishepe. ‘That mosquito net is worn-out.’
Zandaruwa izije/ ni zishepe. ‘Those mosquito nets are worn-out.’

- mw-andawazimu* (w-) adj. crazy, mad
Muyiini/ waant^hu/ wamkaheete/ na kila/ chimwonó/ chimtuusha/ na kumtelezá/ kama muunt^hu/ mwandawazimu. ‘In the town, people hated him and everyone who saw him, derided him and teased him as (being) a crazy person.’
- andho n. [Som. cadho “scabies” DSI 81] a skin disease that affects the back of the hands, the knees, and sometimes the heel of the foot
- k-aandika v. [Sw. andika SSED 14] (andishile) write; enroll, register (e.g. for school); join military service
Andishilee khatí/ ka Aasha. ‘He wrote a letter at Aasha’s place; he wrote a letter to Aasha.’ (Notice that this sentence may not mean ‘He wrote a letter for Aasha.’) Andishilee khatí/ ka Aasha/ numbaani. ‘He wrote a letter at Aasha’s house.’
Andishile ruuhuye/ askari. ‘He joined the army.’
Haaji/ andishilee khatí. ‘Haaji wrote a letter.’ (This sentence could be an answer to the question: Haaji/ andishileni. ‘What did Haaji write?’) Haaji/ andishile/ khatí. ‘Haaji wrote a letter.’ (A sentence like this, with the verb separated phrasally from its complement, seems to put some emphasis on the verb, or at least removes the complement from the scope of focus. Note that in the corresponding yes-no question, Haaji/ andishile/ khatí? ‘Did Haaji write a letter?’, the shift of accent on khatí indicates that it is out-of-focus. A yes-no question like Haaji/ andishilee khatí? is asking the question ‘did Haaji write a letter?’ At least for Gelani Mohammad, there seemed to be a single exclamatory yes-no question: Haaji/ andishilee khatí!? Mohammad Imam, on the other hand, seemed comfortable with exclamatory yes-no questions where the verb is emphasized.)
Haaji/ andishiloo khatí. ‘It’s Haaji who wrote a letter.’ (This sentence answers the question: Naani/ andishiloo khatí. ‘Who wrote a letter?’)
Khalamu/ nandikilílee khatí. ‘A/the pen, I used to write a letter.’ (MI does not accept putting an object marker in agreement with khalamu on the verb in order to make this noun phrase definite: Khalamu/ niyandikilílee khatí.) Khatí/ Haaji/ andishile. ‘A letter, Haaji wrote.’ Or: Khatí/ andishile/ Haaji.
Or: Andishile/ Haaji/ khatí. Or Andishile/ khatí/ Haaji. (All of these variants were quite acceptable to both our primary consultants. A simple yes-no question using these word order puts both post-verbal NPs into the category of being out of focus and thus triggering final accent: Andishile/ khatí/ Haaji? ‘did he write a letter, Haaji?’) Khatí/ Haaji/ andishiló. ‘It’s a letter that Haaji wrote.’ Or: Haaji/ khatí/ andishiló. ‘Haaji, It’s a letter he wrote.’ Or: Haaji/ khatí/ andishilo. ‘It’s Haaji who wrote a letter.’ Or: Khatí/ Haaji/ andishiló. ‘A letter, it’s Haaji who wrote.’ (If the focused NP is initial, it is the clear pitch peak in the sentence. If the focused NP is not initial, then it is as raised as the initial NP. We should note that these constructions are very common in present day Chimiini, but our first co-worker, MI, never used pseudo-relativization with focused pre-verbal phrases except in the case of question words.) Khatí/ yandikishile. ‘The letter was able to be written.’
muke waa ye/ andishiloo khatí/ kaaké ‘the woma whom he wrote a letter to her (or: at her place)’ muke waa ye/ andishiloo khatí/ kaaké/ numbaani ‘the woman whom he wrote a letter at her house’ (It is perhaps worth observing that since one does not ‘write a letter from’, the relative clause muke waa ye/ andishiloo khatí/ ka kaaké ‘the woman who wrote a letter from her place’ is not valid.)
Mwaalimu/ andishilee khatí. ‘The teacher wrote a letter.’
Mwalimu andishiloo khatí/ oloshela. ‘The teacher who wrote the letter left.’
Mwaana/ andishile ruuhuye/ madrasaani. ‘The child enrolled in school.’
mwaana/ hatakaandika/ khatí/ ka khalamu ya rasaas. ‘The child will not write a letter with a pencil’ (cf. mwana hatakandikaa khatí/ ka khalamu ya rasaasi ‘the child who will not write a letter with a pencil’.) Mwaana/ nt^hakaandika/ khatí/ ka khalamu ya rasaasi. ‘The child did not write a letter with a pencil.’ (Cf. m̄wana nt^hakandikaa khat̄i/ ka khalamu ya rasaasi ‘the child who did not write a letter with a pencil’.)

M̄wana/ nt^hanakaandika/ khat̄i/ khalamu ya rasaasi. ‘The child is not writing a letter with a pencil.’ (Cf. m̄wana nt^hanakaandikaa khat̄i/ khalamu ya rasaasi ‘the child who is not writing a letter with a pencil’.)

Nakandikaa khat̄i. ‘I am writing a letter.’

Nandishilee khat̄i/ ka khalamú. ‘I wrote a letter with a pen.’

Nandishilee khat̄i/ pashpo Sheekhi/ kiiwa. ‘I wrote a letter without Sheekhi knowing.’

Nimwandishile m̄waaná/ madrasaani. ‘I registered the child in school.’

Nt^hakaandika/ khat̄i. ‘He did not write a letter.’

Omari/ chandikaa khat̄i/ teená. ‘If Omari writes a letter, then what?’ Or: Teená/ Omari/ chandikaa khat̄i/ chandikaa khat̄i. Or: Omari/ teená/ khat̄i/ chaandiká. (Observe the variation in the sentence-initial subject with respect to whether it undergoes accent shift or not in this sort of question.)

Saandiké/ khat̄i. ‘Don’t write a letter!’

Walawanganye uje mluungana/ na uje myaaná/ m̄waandike. ‘Tell apart the one that is free-born and the one that is a female slave.’

We/ waliko chandikani/ mukht̄aa mi/ niiló. ‘What were you writing when I came?’ (A possible answer: Mi/ waliko nch^handikaa khat̄i/ mukht̄aa we/ iló. ‘I was writing a letter when you came.’) ye/ nakandikoo khat̄i ‘while he was writing a letter’ or, with verb emphasis: ye/ nakaandikó/ khat̄i, which shows the effect of the Accentual Law of Focus (GM also accepts: ye/ nakaandikó/ khat̄i, but it is unclear how to interpret such an example.)

Ye/ waliko chandikani/ mukht̄a waana/ wa’iló. ‘What was he writing when the children came?’ (Cf. the possible response: Ye/ waliko chandikaa khat̄i/ mukht̄a waana/ wa’iló. ‘He was writing a letter when the children came.’)

rel.

k-andikanisha v. rec. caus. make pl. register one another

Ali/ chandikanishiize. ‘Ali made us register one another.’

k-andikika v. p/s.

Khat̄i/ hayandikiki. ‘The letter cannot be written.’

Khat̄i/ inakandidikika. ‘The letter is starting to get written now (e.g. after a great struggle).’

k-andikiloowa v. appl. pass. be written to; be used to write Khalamu iyi/ nii dhibu/ kandikiloowa. ‘It is difficult to use this pen to write.’

Khalamu/ yandikililaa khat̄i/ naami. ‘A pen was used to write the letter by me.’ (The logical object may not be the subject of the passive verb: Khat̄i izi/ zandikilila khalamu/ naami. In order for the logical object to be the subject of the passive verb, the simple verb must be used with an instrumental prepositional phrase: Khat̄i izi zandishila ka khalamu/ naami. ‘These letters were written with a pen by me.’) khat̄i ni sahalí/ kandikilowa Mubiidi ‘the letter that it is easy to write to Mubiidi’ munt^u ni sahalí/ kandikilowaa khat̄i ‘the man who it is easy to write a letter to’

Nakhsulaa ni/ (n)sandikiloowa. ‘He wants that you (pl.) not be written to.’ But it is also possible, in the passive, to have the morpheme order in Nakhsulaa ni/ sinandikiloowa.

Ni sahalí/ kandikilowa Mubiidi/ khat̄i. ‘It is easy for Mubiidi to be written a letter.’ Or: Ni sahalí/ Mubiidi/ kandikilowaa khat̄i.

Omari/ andikililaa khat̄i/ naami. ‘[Lit.] Omari was written to a letter by me.’ (Syn. A [cl.1] noun like Omari controls a null subject prefix on the verb. It is not possible for khat̄i to be the subject of the passive verb, as shown by the fact that it may not control agreement on the verb: Khaṭi/ yandikilila Omari/ naami. Word order, on the other hand is flexible, and one may have Khaṭi/ andikilila Omari/ naami. In this sentence, Omari is still the subject of the verb, but it appears in post-verbal position and even joins the verb in a single Phonological Phrase.)

subject

k-andikila v. appl. (andikiliile) write to, for Andikiliileni/ khaṭi. ‘Why did you write a letter (if...)?’ Or: Khaṭi/ andikiliileni. ‘The letter, why did you write it (if...)?’

Andikiliileni/ khaṭi/ ka khalimu ya rasaasi. ‘Why did you write a/the letter with a pencil (if...)?’ (It should be noted that the ka is obligatory in this sentence.)

preposition

Jaani/ mwandikilile mwaalimu/ khaṭi. ‘John wrote a letter to the teacher.’
Khaṭi/ mwandikiliileni. ‘The letter, why did you write it to him (if...)?’

Mp^hele khalamu/ kandikila. ‘He gave me a pen to write with.’

muke waa ye/ mwandikililoo khaṭi ‘the woman whom he wrote a letter to/for’

muke waa ye/ wa’andikililo waana/ khaṭi ‘the woman whom he wrote a letter to for the children’ (This sentence is striking in that it shows that both the beneficiary waana and the indirect object muke are allowed to appear without any prepositional marking due to the presence of the applied suffix. In other words, the applied affix does “double duty” allowing both NP’s to be unmarked. It should be noted that it is ungrammatical to say: muke waa ye/ wa’andikililo waana/ khaṭi/ ka kaaké ‘the woman whom he wrote a letter for the children to her’. Our consultant MI was uncertain about the grammaticality of muke waa ye/ wa’andikililo waana/ khaṭi/ kaaké/ numbaani ‘the woman whom he wrote a letter for the children at her house’.)

mwaalimu wa Jaani/ mwandikililoo khaṭi ‘the teacher to whom John wrote a letter’

Mwandikilile Aasha/ khaṭi. ‘He wrote a letter to (or: for) Aasha.’

Mwandikiliileni/ khaṭi. ‘Why did you write a/the letter to him (if...)?’

Mwandikiliileni/ mwaana/ khaṭi. ‘Why did you write a/the letter to the child (if...)?’

Ni Aasha/ waa mi/ nimwandikililoo khaṭi. ‘It is Aasha who I write a letter to.’

Ni sahali/ kumwandikila Mubiidi/ khaṭi. ‘It is easy to write to/for Mubiidi a letter.’

Nimwandikilile Jaama/ khaṭi. ‘I wrote a letter to Jaama.’ (Syn. Either of the post-verbal complements in this sentence may be fronted: Jaama/ nimwandikililee khaṭi. Or: Khaṭi/ nimwandikilile Jaama.)

Niwa’andikililee khaṭi/ waana. ‘I wrote the children a letter (not anything else).’ (Cf. Niwa’andikilile waana/ khaṭi. ‘I wrote the children a letter (not anyone else).’)

Niwa’andikilile mwaana/ khaṭi/ ka Jaama. ‘I wrote a letter for children to Jaama.’ (Syn. The applied verb does not allow both the beneficiary and the location NP’s to be unmarked in post-verbal position: Niwa’andikilile mwaana/ khaṭi/ Jaama.)

Niwa’andikilile waana/ khaṭi. ‘I wrote the children a letter.’ (Note that unlike the preceding example, here the final accent triggered by the verb extends to the end of the verb phrase. There is no emphasis on any word internal to the verb phrase. One can even put the noun phrase khaṭi into post-verbal position, but not alter the scope of the final accent: Niwa’andikililee khaṭi/ waana. This does put emphasis on the immediately post-verbal element, but it is not contrasting khaṭi with anything else.)

Niwa’andikilile waana/ khaṭi/ ka khalamu. ‘I wrote a letter for the children with a pen.’ (Syn. Given the presence of a beneficiary NP waana, it is not possible for the instrument to appear without a preposition in post-verbal position:

*Niwa'andikilile waaná/ khaṭi/ khalamú.)

ye/ nandikilo Tuumá/ khaṭi 'while he was writing Tuuma a letter' opr, with verb emphasis: ye/ nandikiló/ Tuuma/ khaṭi (GM accepts as possible: ye/ nandikiló/ Tuuma/ khaṭi, though the precise explanation for this possibility remains unclear.)

k-andikisha v. caus. write something to someone; persuade, compel someone to write; recruit someone (i.e. cause someone to sign up)

Bashiiri/ mwandikishize mwaana/ askari. 'Bashiiri recruited the child (to) the police force.'

Bashiiri/ mwandikishize mwaana/ ruuhuye/ madrasaani. 'Bashiiri had the child enroll in school.'

Chimwandikishize Nuurú/ khaṭi/ ka khalamú. 'We made Nuuru write a letter with a pencil.' (A prepositional instrumental phrase can either be taken to be referencing the means of performing the action or the means of causation. Thus in a sentence like Ali/ mwandikishize Iisa/ khaṭi/ ka khalamu huundru. 'Ali caused Iisa to write a letter with a red pen', the pen would in the default case be understood as referring to the instrument used to write the letter. But in a sentence like Ali/ mwandikishize Iisa/ khaṭi/ kaa ndruti. 'Ali caused Iisa to write a letter with a stick', in the default case it would be understood that Ali beat Iisa with a stick in order to get him to write the letter. It should perhaps be noted that a preposition like ka may have different uses. Thus the phrase kaa nk^beje in the sentence: Ali/ mwandikishize Iisa/ khaṭi/ kaa nk^beje. is understood as meaning 'with shouts', telling us how Ali managed to make Iisa write the letter. But in a sentence like Iisa/ andishilee khaṭi/ kaa nk^beje., the sentence is understood to mean 'Iisa wrote a letter while shouting', i.e. the shouts accompanied the letter writing but were not the means by which the letter was written.)

Dheera/ nandikishizee khaṭi/ pashpoo we/ kiiwa. 'Deera made me write a letter without your knowing.'

Ji/ andikishizee khaṭi. 'Ji caused (someone unspecified) to write a letter.'

Ji/ mwandikishizee khaṭi. 'Ji made him (someone known from the context) write a letter.'

Ji/ mwandikishize mwaalimu/ khaṭi. 'Ji made (i.e. persuaded, compelled) the teacher to write a letter.' (A periphrastic causative construction may be used as an alternative: Ji/ mtile mwaalimu/ kandikaa khaṭi.)

khaṭi ya mwaalimu/ mwandikishizo mwaaná 'the letter that the teacher wrote to the child' khaṭi ya Suufi/ mwandikishizo Nuurú/ numbaani... 'the letter that Suufi had Nuuru write at home...'

Mwaalimu/ mwandikishize mwaana/ khaṭi. 'The teacher wrote the child a letter.'

mwana wa mwaalimu/ mwandikishizoo khaṭi 'the child whom the teacher wrote a letter to' review the issue of the accent on the subject

Ni Maajidi/ waa mi/ nimwandikishizoo khaṭi. 'It is Maajidi whom I made put write a letter.'

k-andikishanya v. caus. rec. (-andikisheenyee) make one another write Si/ chandikishizenyee khaṭi. 'We made one another write a letter.' (One cannot say: *Si/ chiwa'andikishenyee waaná/ khaṭi. 'We made the children write letters to each other.' To convey this notion, a periphrastic construction is required: Si/ chiwatile waaná/ kandikilanaa khaṭi. 'We instilled in the children to write one another letters.'

k-andikishiliza v. caus. appl. (andikishiliize) make s.o. write for or on someone (Note that we failed to elicit an instrumental interpretation of the applied as opposed to a benefactive interpretation. For example, MI rejected *Khalamu/ chimwandikishilize Nuurú/ khaṭi. 'A pen, we made Nuuru write a letter using one.' MI also rejected a relative clause like *khalamu yaa si/ chimwandikishilize Nuurú/ khaṭi... 'the pen that we made Nuuru use to write a letter...' Note that we also failed to elicit a verb with a different ordering of the applied and the causative extensions: kandikilisha. More thorough research on variation in the ordering of extensions is of course merited.)

Waana/ chimwandikishilize Nuurú/ khaṭi. 'The children, we made the children write letters on or for Nuuru.' (In this sentence, the beneficiary Nuuru controls an object marker on the verb, not the causee waana, which has been fronted to initial position.)

k-andikishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Chandikishilizenye waaná/ khatí. ‘We made (our) children write letters for/on one another, i.e. we did it for/on one another’ (Note that this sentence cannot mean ‘we made the children write letters for/on one another, i.e. the children did it for/on one another’. It is also not possible to say Chiwa’andikishilizenye waalímú/ waaná/ khatí. ‘We made them the children write letters to one another for the teacher.’ This ungrammatical sentence has an object marker wa referring to the beneficiary waalímu and the children are writing to one another. To summarize, the beneficiary must be the reciprocating NP, and the reciprocating NP must be co-referential with the subject.)

k-andikishilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass. (andikishiliiza) (Note that the subject of this passive verb is a beneficiary, in the broad sense of this term, i.e. where the NP in question may simply be a parent of the causee. An instrumental subject does not seem acceptable. A sentence like Khalamu/ yandikishiliiza. could not mean have an instrumental interpretation of khalamu; as MI commented, the sentence makes it sound like a pen is benefitting from someone being caused to do something’.)
Nuuru/ andikishiliiza/ waana/ khatí. ‘Nuuru’s children were made to write a letter.’ need to review this example and its meaning k-andikishoowa v. caus. pass.

Mwaana/ andikishizaa khatí/ na mwaalímu. ‘[Lit.] the child was written to a letter by the teacher.’ Or, with NP interchange: Khatí/ andikishiza mwaana/ na mwaalímu. (But it is not possible for khatí to be the subject of the passive verb: khatí/ yandikishiza mwaana.)

k-andikoowa v. pass. (andishilá)

Khatí/ imalize kandikoowa. ‘The letter is written (lit. the letter is finished being written).’

Naank^bó/ schandikowa alaama/ schipelekoowa. ‘Again they were marked (which was which) and they were sent (to the sultan).’

Ni na Aasha/ khatí/ yandishilá. ‘It is by Aasha that the letter was written.’

Ni sahali/ kandikowaa khatí. ‘It is easy for a letter to be written.’

Nsulílee khatí/ zina’andikowa himaahimá. ‘I want the letter to be written quickly.’ review phrasing

rel. nom.

ma-’andiko n.6 way of writing ma’andikoye ‘his way of writing’

k-aandika

v. load, put something on something else, place on head; accuse s.o. of s.t., assign a task or a responsibility; lay or put a part of the body on s.o. or s.t.

Ali/ andishile gaari/ ngamiila. ‘Ali loaded a camel onto the truck.’ Or: Ali/ andishile ngamiila/ gariini.

Ali/ andishile majiwe/ chigaari. ‘Ali loaded stones onto the cart; Ali put a cart on top of the stones.’ (Note the ambiguity when chigaari is unmarked. If an enclitic is added: Ali/ andishile majiwe/ chigariini. ‘Ali loaded stones onto the cart.’ The enclitic guarantees that the cart is the location where the stones have been put.)

Ali/ andishile ngamiila/ zoombo. ‘Ali loaded stuff onto the camel.’ Cf. Ali/ andishile ^lzoombo/ ngamiila. ‘Ali loaded stuff onto the camel.’ (Note that an animate noun does not accept a locative enclitic: Ali/ andishile zoombo/ ngamilaani. It is possible to say: Ali/ andishile zoombo/ ilu ya ngamiila. ‘Ali loaded stuff on the camel.’)

Ali/ zandishile ngamiila/ masanduukhu. ‘Ali loaded boxes onto the camels.’ (Note that the OM on the verb here agrees with the plural noun ngamiila ‘camels’. If one said: Ali/ ya’andishile masanduukhu/ ngamiila., where the OM is in agreement with masanduukhu ‘boxes’, the sentence could only be understood as saying ‘Ali loaded camels on the boxes’.)

Andishile sanduukhu/ chigaani. ‘She put the box on her head.’

Bakari/ andishile ruuhuye/ mas’uuliya. ‘Bakari assumed a responsibility.’

Gari ya Saahibu/ andishiloo mazú/ ni iyi. ‘The truck that Saahibu loaded with bananas is this one.'

Haliima/ nt^hanakaandika/ kuja/ muḷooni. 'Haliima is not putting food in the fire.'
(In this sentence, there is default focus on the negative verb. The simple yes-no question based on this focus structure exhibits accent shift in both complements: Haliima/ nt^hanakaandika/ kujá/ muḷooni? Although GM usually fails to find an emphatic yes-no question version of a sentence with focus on an affirmative verb, he did provide such a question for this negative verb construction: Haliima/ nt^hanakaandiká/ kujá/ muḷooní!? We should note, however, that GM also provided yes-no question versions of the negative verb sentence where focus seems to be absent from the verb: Haliima/ nt^hanakandikaa kuja/ muḷooni? and Haliima/ nt^hanakandikaa kujá/ muḷooní!? Note that in these sentences the verb is joined into a phrase with the first complement; moreover, in the simple yes-no question there is no accent shift triggered by an out-of-focus complement.)

Hamaali/ andishile gaari/ majuuniya. 'The porter loaded the truck with sacks.' Or: Hamaali/ andishile majuuniya/ gariini.

Jaama/ mwandishile mwaana/ sanduukhu/ chitaani. 'Jaama loaded onto the child's head the box.'

kandika chaayi/ muḷooni 'to make tea – [lit.] to put tea in fire'

Skumó/ muke/ nakhpika/ maskiini/ andishile chaayi/ muḷooni. 'One day the woman was cooking, the poor woman was making tea.'

kandika itaanga 'to put up a sail'

Ye/ chandika itaanga/ kendra kuza nsiize/ karka muyi mwiingine. 'He put up the sail [of his boat] to go to sell his fish in another town.'

kandikaa nguvu 'to use force, try hard, do one's best'

Hamadi/ mambile Omári/ nakhuloomba/ meenza/ andikaa nguvu/ jawabu iyo/ jisaa y/ kuwa. 'Hamadi said to Omari: I beg you, my friend, try your best in this matter so it can happen.'

Laazimu/ ma'anaye/ kuwaa we/ nakandikaa nguvú/ kuwaa we/ nakhfanya kaazi/ kuwaa we/ nakhṭa'abatá. 'It is a must, it means, that you try hard, that you work, that you earn it (i.e. if you want to get something).'

Omari/ andishilee nguvu/ nuumba/ iyo/ kuula. 'Omari made a great effort in buying that house (e.g. got additional loans or convinced the owner to sell to him or seeking any means possible to get the house)'

Ni gari iyi/ ya Saahibu/ andishiloo mazú. 'It is this truck that Saahibu loaded with bananas.'

Omari/ andishile zoombo/ ilu ya ngamiila. 'Omari loaded things on the camel.' (The animate noun ngamiila may not be put into a locative form ngamilaani. Thus it is wrong to say Omari/ andishile zoombo/ ngamilaani. In comparison, one can say Omari/ andishile majiwe/ chigariini. 'Omari loaded stones into the cart.')

Omari/ zandishile ngamiila/ masanduukhu. 'Omari loaded boxes onto the camels.' (This example illustrates that ngamiila may govern an object prefix, z-, on the verb.)

Sadiikhi/ andishile ngamiila/ zoombo. 'Sadiikhi loaded things onto the camel.' (This represents the normal word order. Locating zoombo after the verb is possible, but puts focus on it: Sadiikhi/ andishile zoombo/ ngamiila.)

Saahibu/ andishile gaari/ zoombo. 'Saahibu loaded the truck with things.' Or:

Saahibu/ andishile zoombo/ gariini. 'Saahibu loaded things onto the truck.'

Saahibu/ mwandishile mwaana/ gariini. 'Saahibu loaded the child onto the truck.' (One cannot use gaari in an unmarked form: Saahibu/ mwandishile mwaana/ gaari.)

wala mubli chiint^hu chita ha'andiki [st.] 'neither does a man put anything on his head'

rel.

k-andikiloowa v. appl. pass. (andikiliila)

Ismu ya jawaabu/ ya mojiitu/ faramiiló/ muunt^hu/ shfaanya/ handikilowa thawaabu. 'Whatever God recommended to be done, if one does it, one gets (lit. is written for) rewards.'

Khalamu iyi/ yandikilila mwaana/ khaṭi (naa muke). ‘This pen was used to write a letter to/for the child (by the woman).’

k-andikika v. p/s. able to be put on Chigari ichi/ hachandikiki/ majiwe. ‘This cart cannot have stones put in it.’

Majiwe aya/ haya’andikiki/ chigariini. ‘These stones cannot be put on a cart.’ (Note that if the locative enclitic were omitted from chigariini, the sentence could only be interpreted as saying ‘these stones can’t have a cart put on them’.)

Ngamila izi/ hazandikiki/ zoombo. ‘These camels cannot have stuff loaded onto them.’ Cf. Ngamila uyu/ ha’andikiki/ zoombo. ‘This camel cannot have stuff loaded onto it.’

Zombo izi/ hazandikiki/ ngamila uyu. ‘These things cannot be loaded onto this camel.’

k-andikila v. appl. (andikilile) write for, to, with Khalamu/ nandikilile khaṭi. ‘A/the pen, I used to write a letter.’ (MI rejected the use of an object marker agreeing with khalamu as a way of making this preposed noun phrase definite: Khalamu/ niyandikilile khaṭi.) khalamu yaa mi/ nimwandikililo Aashá/ khaṭi ‘the pen that I used to write a letter to/for Aasha’ (Note that a single occurrence of the applicative on the verb allows both a bare instrumental noun and a beneficiary/goal to be expressed.)

Wanakunandikila. ‘They are writing to me.’ (Other human object markers: Wanakhandikila. ‘They are writing to you.’

Wana(ku)mwandikila. ‘They are writing to her or him.’

Wanakichandikila. ‘They are writing to us.’ Wanakinandikila. ‘They are writing to you (pl.).’ Wanakuwa’andikila. ‘They are writing to them.’)

Ye/ tamwandikila waawaye/ khaṭi/ napate khufanyiliza dawa. ‘She will write a letter to her father so that he will take care of you (medically).’

k-andikisha v. caus.

Bakari/ mwandikishize Luulu/ mas’uuliya. ‘Bakari caused Luulu to assume the responsibility.’

Ni Nuuru/ waa mi/ nimwandikishizo Saahibú/ gariini. ‘It is Nuuru whom I made load Saahibu onto the truck. Or: It is Nuuru whom I had Saahibu load onto the truck.’ check this ambiguity; one interpretation preferred? at one point MI suggested the interpretation is that Nuuru is the causee, but then suggested the object role is preferred

Nimwandikishize mazú/ Nuuru/ gariini. ‘It is bananas (not something else) that I had Nuuru load onto the truck.’

Nimwandikishize Nuurú/ mazu/ gariini. ‘It is Nuuru (not anyone else) that I had load bananas onto the truck.’

Nimwandikishize Nuurú/ mzeelé/ gariini. ‘I had Nuuru load the old man onto the truck.’ (Syn. In this example sentence both the "causee" and the logical object are third person singular humans and thus verb agreement does not make clear the thematic role of each of these NP’s. The word order, however, identifies Nuuru as the causee. However, this worder is rigid just in the absence of focus. An NP can be focused by locating it after the verb. Thus the logical object can be put in position immediately after the verb if it is focused. Consider a sentence like: Nimwandikishize Nuurú/ mzeele/ gariini. We know that Nuuru is being focused here since the final-accent triggered by the verb does not extend beyond Nuuru, in accordance with what we call the Accentual Law of Focus. Now, in this example Nuuru can certainly be the causee, but it could also be the logical object. The latter sort of interpretation may be favored by pragmatic considerations. This is illustrated by the sentence: Nimwandikishize mwaaná/ mzeele/ gariini. This sentence is most naturally understood as saying ‘It is the child that I had the old man load onto the truck.’ Older people generally are the ones putting children onto something rather than vice versa.)

Saahibu/ andikishize gaari/ zoombo. ‘Saahibu had the things loaded onto the truck.’

Saahibu/ mwandikishize Sa’iidi/ zoombo/ gariini. ‘Saahibu had Sa’iidi load the things onto the truck.’ (Syn. While the cited sentence is preferred, it is likely also possible to say: ?Saahibu/ mwandikishize Sa’iidi/ gaari/ zoombo.)

Saahibu/ mwandikishize Sa’iidi/ mwaana/ gariini. ‘Saahibu had Sa’iidi load the child onto the truck.’

k-andikoowa v. pass.

Chigaari/ chandishila majiwe. ‘The cart was loaded with stones (by someone).’

Gari/ yandishila ngamiila. ‘The truck had a camel loaded onto it.’

Majiwe/ ya’andishila chigariini. ‘Stones were loaded onto the cart.’ (Note that if the locative enclitic were omitted from chigariini, then the sentence could only be understood as ‘the stones had the cart put on them’.)

Majuuniya/ ya’andishila gariini. ‘The sacks were loaded into the truck.’

Masanduukhu/ ya’andishila ngamiila. ‘Boxes were loaded onto the camel.’

Muunt^hu/ nt^haku/ nk^hulu/ kana kandikowa mkono/ chi^htaani. ‘There is nothing bigger for a man than putting the hand on one’s head.’ (A proverb.)

Ngamiila/ andishila gariini. ‘The camel was loaded into the truck.’ (Note that if the locative enclitic is omitted from gariini, the sentence would mean that a truck was loaded onto the camel!)

Ngamiila/ andishila zoombo. ‘The camel had things loaded on him.’

Sanduukhu/ yandishila gariini. ‘The box was loaded into the truck.’

Zoombo/ zandishila ngamila uyu. ‘Stuff was loaded onto this camel.’

k-aandika

v. (andishile) lay or put a part of the body (leg, hand, etc.) onto someone or something meza yaa mi/ nandishilo igoonjó ‘the table that I put my knee on’ meza yaa mi/ nandishilo igoonjó/ ilu ye ‘the table that I put my knee on it’

Nandishile igoonjó/ mezaani. ‘I put my knee on the table.’

andho

n. scabies

k-angamiza

v. tr. [Sw. angamiza SSED 17] (angamiize) damage; spoil; make a mess, a muddle; disrespectfully wrong s.o., betray or cheat someone

Humwangamizo muunt^hú/ naayé/ hangamizoowa. ‘The one who damages someone is also damaged.’ (A proverb.)

Jeelaani/ angamize chibuku cha Huseeni. ‘Jeelani spoiled Huseeni’s book.’

kangamiza uso ‘[lit.] spoil, make the face look bad -- show the bad side’ kumangamiza qalbi ‘to hurt someone’s feelings’

Mi/ ninfanyiizeni/ mi/ ninangamiizeni. What did I do to you (pl.), what wrong did I do to you?’

Mwaadamu/ chimwangamiza mara mooyi/ zeema/ zaa mbele/ zont^he/ huliwala. ‘A human being, when you treat him badly one time, he forgets all the goods you did him before.’ (A proverb.)

Mzaha mwiingi/ hangamiza uweenza. ‘Too much joking spoils a friendship.’

Si/ laazima/ kuloozanya/ walá/ mi/ speendi/ kumwangamiza waawe. ‘We must marry, but I do not like to disrespectfully wrong my father.’

Wa’angamize waana. ‘He spoiled the children.’

Wapishi wiingi/ hangamiza mtuzi. ‘Too many cooks spoil the broth.’ (A proverb.)

We/ angamiize/ nt^ho/ chiza kunaambila/ khabla yaa mi/ kishkila ka mutiini. ‘You made a big mistake in not telling me before I came down from the tree.’

Yiko daljili/ waadehe/ kuwa Baazi/ changamiize. ‘There is clear evidence that Baazi betrayed us.’

rel.

k-angamikila v.

Muḅliwá/ laazima/ we/ kumwubḷa/ siimba/ oyo/ na chiza kumwubḷá/ haali/ yītu/ itakichangamikila/ apa. ‘My husband, you must kill that lion, and if you do not kill him, our condition here will become bad for us.’

k-angamila v. intr. [Sw. angamia SSED 17] (angamiile) be damaged; be spoiled; be a mess kangamila ina ‘to lose one’s reputation, have one’s name besmirched’

Mwaana/ angamiile. ‘The child is spoiled.’

Sku ya taano/ haali/ yangamilee nt^ho/ nt^hawaná/ yaa wo/ kuja. ‘On the fifth day, their situation worsened very much, they had nothing to eat.’

k-angamiliza v. tr. appl. (angamiliize) spoil s.t. for s.o., folul s.t. up on/for Nangamilize raadiyo. ‘He fouled up the radio on me.’

Sinangamilizé/ mwaana. ‘Don’t spoil my child!’

k-angamilizika v. tr. appl. p/s.

Munt^hu uyu/ ha’angamiliziki/ zoomboze. ‘This man cannot have fouled up on him his things.’ (Note that only the “beneficiary” (or in this case better the “anti-beneficiary”) can be the subject of this verb, not whatever was fouled up or spoiled. One cannot say Radiyo izi/ hazangamiliziki/ Baana. ‘These radios cannot be fouled up on Baana.’)

k-angamilizoowa v. tr. appl. pass. (angamiliiza)

Nangamiliza raadiyo. ‘I had the radio fouled up on me (i.e. to my detriment).’

k-angamizika v. tr. p/s.

Wana zihaba/ hangamizika ka sahali. ‘Small children can easily be spoiled.’

k-angamizoowa v. tr. pass. (angamiiza)

Waana/ wa’angamiza na Baana. ‘The children were spoiled by Baana.’

-angaangu

adj. light, quick, easy; variant form: -engaangu (provided by MI)

-angaangu/ kamba lbawa ‘as light as a feather’

-angaangu/ kamba lkuti ‘as light as a reed’

Chiti ichi/ changaangu/ kana shkuti/ hatá/ mwaana/hukhaadira/ kishtukula. ‘This chair is as light as a reed, even a child can carry it.’

-angaangu/ kana lpepo ‘as light as wind, air’

Ali/ shtumowa chiint^hu/ sukhuuni/ ka paapo/ huleeta/mwangaangu/ kana lpepo. ‘When Ali is sent to the market (to get) something, immediately he brings it, he is as quick, fast as the wind.’

-angaangu/ kamba lwarakha ‘as light as a piece of paper’

Televisiyoone/ iyi/ nangaangu/ kana lwarakha/ ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ hukhaadira/ khtukula. ‘This television is as light as paper, any one can carry it.’

Chint^hu changaangu/ heeluka/ chint^hu chizito/ huzama. ‘Something light, floats; something heavy, sinks.’ (A saying.)

chita changaangu ‘light-headed – i.e. able to grasp things easily’

Hamadi/ chitaache/ changaangu. ‘Hamadi grasps things easily.’

Hasani/ ni mwangaangu/ Omari/ ni mzito. ‘Hasani is light, quick; Omari is heavy, slow.’

huwa nangaangu khsooma ka uwaana [st.] ‘it is easier to commit [it] to memory when young’ (This line from the shteenzi “Zubad” was mistranscribed and thus mistranslated in CLE. Thanks to Alessandra Vianello for pointing this out and providing the correct transcription and translation.)

ikoti yengaangu ‘light coat’; makoti mengaangu ‘light coats’ luti lengaangu ‘light stick’; ndruti zengaangu ‘light sticks’

- mbuzi mwengaangu ‘light goat’ munt^hu mwengaangu ‘a light man’; want^hu wengaangu ‘light men’ nangaangu ‘something easy, light’ shtoka changaangu ‘light axe’; stoka zangaangu ‘light axes’ Waliko mwengaangu/ kujiba su’aali. ‘He was quick to answer the question.’
zilatu zangaangu ‘light shoes’
- rel.
w-angaangu n. 14 lightness
variant form: wengaangu (provided by MI)
- k-aangaza* v. (angeeze) in the expression:
kangaza maato ‘to have the eyes open -- i.e. to be alert, watchful’ Angaza maatoyo. ‘Keep your eyes open!’
- mw-aangi* n. boiled grains of maize (possibly with beans added)
Mwaangi/ ufuriile. ‘The mwaangi boiled over.’
Sku ya taatu/ wajile mwaangi/ utokoseza kaa nsi. ‘On the third day they ate mwaangi which was boiled with fish.’
Ye/ waliko chija mwaangi. ‘He was eating mwaangi.’
- ku-’anida* v. [Ar. Zanada W 648] contradict
rel.
ku-’anidana v. rec. (anideene)
ku-’anidika v. p/s.
- aniidi* adj. inv.
munt^hu aniidi ‘stubborn person’; want^hu aniidi ‘stubborn people’
rel.
mu-’aanidi adj. inv.
munt^hu mu’aanidi ‘a stubbornly contradictory person’; want^hu mu’aanidi ‘stubbornly contradictory people’
- k-aanika* v. [Sw. anika SSED 17] (anishile) spread something to dry in the sun or wind/breeze Abunawaasi/ shtaala/ igozi/ iyo/ chiyatika iwaani/ hattá/ ichiwa ikavu.
‘Abunawaasi took that skin and spread it in the sun until it became dry.’
Anika. ‘Spread it out to dry!’
Anishilee nguwo/ iwaani. ‘He spread clothes in the sun to dry.’
Anishilee nguwo/ lpeponi. ‘He spread clothes in the wind to dry.’
Anishilee nguwo/ lkambalaani. ‘He spread the clothes out on the clothesline to dry.’
Gele/ haypati/ iwa/ apa/ anika ndilaani. ‘The (pounded, soaked) maize won’t get the sun here, spread it outside to dry.’
Nakhsu_laa ni/ (n)saanike. ‘He wants that you (pl.) not spread s.t. to dry in the sun.’
rel.
k-anikika v. p/s. (y-anikishile)
k-anikila v. appl. [Sw. anika SSED 17]
k-anikisha v. caus. [Sw. anikisha] (anikishiize)
Ji/ zanikishiize/ nguwo. ‘He spread the clothes out to dry.’ (Syn. It is more likely that an object prefix will be employed with an inanimate object when there is focus on the verb, as in the present example. It is not the case, however, that the presence of an object prefix requires that there be focus on the verb and thus that the verb is final in the phonological phrase.)
Mwanikishize mwaana/ nguwo. ‘He had the child spread the clothes out to dry in the sun.’ (Cf. Mwanikishizee nguwo. ‘He had him spread the clothes out to dry.’) k-anikishanya v. caus. rec.

Want^hu awa/ wa'anikishenyee nguwo. 'The people had one another spread the clothes to dry in the sun.'

k-anikishiliza v. caus. appl. (anikishiizi)

Zubeeri/ manikishilize Amarow/ maana/ nguwo. 'Zubeeri had Amarow's child spread the clothes in the sun to dry.'

k-anikishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (wa-'anikishilizeenye)

Amarow/ na Zubeeri/ wa'anikishilizenye waana/ nguwo. 'Amarow and Zubeeri had one another's children spread the clothes in the sun to dry.'

k-anikishoowa v. caus. pass. (anikishiiza)

Maana/ anikishizaa nguwo. 'The child was made to spread the clothes out to dry in the sun.'

k-anikoowa v. pass. [Sw. anikwa SSED 17] (-anishiila) be spread out to dry in the sun

Nguwo/ zanishiila iwaani. 'The clothes were spread out to dry in the sun.'

ku-'anisa v. [Sw. anisi SSED 14; Ar. anisa "to be sociable" W 30] (anisiize) keep company with people, keeping them entertained at the same time ankabuuti n. [Ar. 'ankabūt W 650] spider (Phon. Prenasalized voiceless stops are ordinarily aspirated in Chimiini, but here no aspiration occurs. The lack of aspiration suggests that the nk sequence here is not a prenasalized stop, but rather a consonant sequence where the nasal is the coda to one syllable and the stop is the onset to the next syllable. The nasal did, however, appear to be a velar nasal, though this point bears investigation.)

ankabuuti izi 'these spiders' ankabuuti uyu 'this spider'

rel.

chi-'ankabuuti (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-'ankabuuti (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

k-aankila v. [Sw. akia SSED 7] (ank^hile) put food in one's mouth; [pron. kaank^hila] (Phon. Notice that in Swahili the l has elided, and the prenasalized stop has lost its nasal component, though some dialects have retained the aspiration of the stop.)

Ank^hile tijaaku. 'He put tobacco between his lip and teeth.'

Mwaana/ ank^hilee kuja. 'The child put food in his mouth.'

rel.

k-ankiliza v. tr. appl. put food in s.o. else's mouth for/on; [pron. kank^hiliza]

Nank^hilize mwaana/ kuja. 'He put food in my child's mouth.'

k-aankiza v. tr. put food in someone's mouth; [pron. kaank^hiza]

Muke/ mwank^hize mwaana/ kuja. 'The woman put food in the child's mouth.'

k-ankizisha v. tr. caus. cause someone to put food in mouth

Muke/ mwank^hizishize mwaana/ kuja. 'The woman made the child put food in his mouth.'

aano n. [Som. caano "milk" DSI 76]

gule anoole 'thunder [lit. the thunder that brings milk, because pastures will renew their greenery with rains and cows will have more milk]' is aano used outside this phrase?

ch-aano (z-) n. 7/8 a large tray for carrying food; a washing table batera ya chaano 'a type of boat in which the stern is large and flat' ansalaata n. [Ital. insalata] lettuce, salad

Haliima/ fanyize sambuusa/ Maryamu/ lesele ansalaata/ Fardoosa/tu/tilo mkaté. 'Haliima made samoosas, Maryamu brought a salad, only Fardoosa baked (lit. put in) a cake.'

anshuuru	n. tax, fine, fee; variant forms: ushuuru, ashuuru Dowla/ nakhsulaa si/ kulipa anshuuru. ‘The government requires us to pay a fee.’ Maama/ humpa/ mi/ peesa/ za anshuuru/ za skoolaa. ‘Mother gives me money for school fees.’
anuuna	[Ital. anona or annona , scientific name: Annona muricata] soursop, a common fruit in Somalia; the species is slightly different from the one found in America
anwaa’i	adj. [Ar. anwā ‘pl. of nau ‘kind, sort, variety’ W 1011] different kinds Apo/ spishila zaakuja/ anwaa’i. ‘There foods of different kinds were cooked.’ (Syn. Note that the indefinite subject zaakuja ‘foods’ is postposed after the verb in this example.) Nuuhu/ shfanya jis’iyo/ chooloka/ shtalaa muke/ na mubl/i/ karka kuja/ noo’i/ karka anwaa’i/ za hayawaani. ‘Noah did just that, he went and he took a female and a male from each type, from different types of animal.’ Ye/ azilee mboga/ za anwaa’i. ‘He grew a variety of vegetables.’ Ziwaliko zaakuja/ anwa’i niingi. ‘There were many kinds of food.’ rel. anwa’i anwaa’i adj. different kinds Yakhugafile maambo/ harusii/ ziwaliko zaakuja/ anwa’i anwaa’i/ ka apa/ na apa. ‘The things that you missed at the wedding! There were different kinds of food everywhere.’
k-aanza	v. [Sw. anza SSED 17] (anziize) begin Anza ka wanaadamu/ hayawaani/ na kulla chiint’u. ‘Begin with human beings, wild animals, and every thing (other creatures).’ Baaba/ chanzaa kuja. ‘Father began to cry.’ Or: Baaba/ chaanza/ kuja. Baazi/ anzize kuwaka nuumba. ‘Baazi began building a house.’ Chanza keendra/ mahaja ya waant’u/ hutawanyoo nt’aká/ kumera spandre za maandra/ na zakuja ziinginé/ hutawanyoozá. ‘He began to go to the place where people dump garbage to look for pieces of bread and other food that gets thrown away.’ Chanzaa kuja/ kaa nk’ele. ‘He began to cry loudly.’ Haliima/ anzize kumpikila Hamadi/ chaakuja. ‘Haliima began to cook food for Hamadi.’ Hamadi/ anzize kujaa nama. ‘Hamadi began to eat meat.’ Hamadi/ anzize kumpaka mwaana/ mafta. ‘Hamadi began to apply oil to the child.’ Hamadi/ anzize kumsomela mwaana/ khati. ‘Hamadi began to read a letter to the child.’ Ichanza kunyaa nvula. ‘It began to rain.’ Iisa/ anzize kumsomesha mwaana/ qur’aani. ‘Iisa began to teach the quran to the child.’ ka khisa/ ye/ apo/ tu/ anzizo kulaalá ‘because he had then only just begun to sleep’ kanza khfanya kaazi ‘to begin to work’ Kula haanzoó/ humaliza. ‘Whatever has a beginning ends.’ (A proverb.) Maskiini/ histirika/ kaawo/ dhibuye/ hanza chiwa mgeeni. ‘A poor man is not seen in his own place, his difficulties begin if he becomes a stranger somewhere.’ (A proverb.) Mgeeni/ nt’haasá/ kanzaa kuja. ‘The guest is not yet beginning to eat. gloss?’ Mi/ kanza leelo/ siimo/ karka khabarize. ‘Beginning today I am not involved in her affairs.’ Mwaana/ chanza khfanya kaazi. ‘The boy began to do work.’ Nanzize kaazi/ fijiri iyi. ‘I began the work this morning.’ Nanzize kaazi/ leelo/ fijiri iyi. ‘I began the work today in the morning.’ Nanzize khsoma chibuukú. ‘I began to read a book.’ Or: Nanzize chibuukú/ khisoomá. ‘I began the book to read it.’

Nanzize kichisoomá. ‘I began to read it.’

Nanzize kichisoomá/ chibuuku. ‘I began to read it the book.’ Also:
Nichanzize khsoomá/ chibuuku. ‘I began it to read the book.’ Or: Nichanzize kichisoomá/ chibuuku. ‘I began it to read the book.’

Nanzizee kulá. ‘I began to cry.’

Nanzize kulá kaa nk^helé. ‘I began to cry loudly.’

Nichanzize chibuukú/ kichisoomá. (Notice that chibuuku cannot be the passive subject of the infinitive: Nichanzize chibuukú/ khsomoowá. This is not allowed because the subject of the infinitive must be co-referential with the subject of the main verb. On the other hand, one can say Chibuuku/ chanziza khsomoowa. ‘The book was begun to be read.’ This is possible since the subject of the main verb is co-referential with the subject of the passive infinitive. Note that it is ungrammatical to say Chibuuku/ chanziza khsooma. Also ungrammatical: Chibuuku/ chanziza kichisomoowa. These are ungrammatical because the passive subject of the main verb is not co-referential with the subject of the infinitive; a book cannot read.)

Nuuhu/ chaanza/ khfanya jahazi. ‘Nuuhu began to build a boat.’

Soomu/ itakanza keesho. ‘Fasting begins tomorrow.’

Tawala/ yanzize kuyela. ‘The tide [lit. sea] began to rise.’

Waant^hu/ wa’anzize kumkahata. ‘People began to hate him.’

We/ anzizee kulá. ‘You began to cry.’

Yuusufu/ anzizopo kondroka ka apó/ muke/ chimshika haanzu/ ka chinume/ chimgiita/ hatá/ haanzu/ ichaatuka/ ka chinume.

‘Joseph, when he began to move away from there, the woman grabbed him by his outer garment from behind and pulled until the garment tore from behind.’

rel.

k-aanzika v. p/s. [Sw. anzika SSED 17] able to begin

Kaazi/ haytakaanziki/ pashpo rukhsa ya sarkali. ‘The work will not be able to begin without the permission of the government.’

Kaazi/ itakaanzika. ‘This work can begin.’

k-anziliza v. appl. (anziliize) help to begin

Mwaalimu/ mwanzilize mwaafuunzi/ suura. ‘The teacher helped the student to begin the chapter of the Quran.’

k-anzilizanya v. appl. rec.

k-anzilizoowa v. appl. pass. (anziliiza)

Hamadi/ anziliza khpikilowa chaakuja. ‘Hamadi was begun for to be cooked food for.’ (Note that the main verb is used in the applied form, not the simple form: Hamadi/ anziza khpikilowa chaakuja. Also note that chaakuja cannot be the subject of the passive of the main verb: Chaakuja/ chanziliza khpikilowa Hamadi. ‘Food was begun for to be cooked for Hamadi.’ Also not Chaakuja/ chanziza khpikilowa Hamadi.

Mwaana/ anziliza khsomelowaa khati. ‘The child was begun to be read a letter to.’ (Observe that the verb -anza is put into an applied form when the applied infinitive verb is passivized and its passive subject is made the subject of a passive version of -anza. One does not say Mwaana/ anziza khsomelowaa khati. ‘The child was begun to be read to a letter.’)

k-aanzisha v. caus. [Sw. anzisha SSED 17] (anzishiize)

Ghazaali/mwanzishize Rabiya/ chingereenza. ‘Ghazaali made Rabiya start (to learn) English.’

Ghazaali/ mwanzishize Rabiya/ kubarsha ruuhuye/ chingereenza.

‘Ghazaali made Rabiya start to teach herself English.’

Yunusu/ anzishize kaazi. ‘Jonas had the work started.’

k-anzoowa v. pass. [Sw. anzwa SSED 17] (anziiza) be begun

Apa/ qur’aani/ yanziza khsomeshowa waana/ nt^hangú/ mwaka 1945. ‘Here the quran was begun to be taught to children since the year 1945.’

Baraka/ yanziza kawanyoowa. ‘Charity etc. has begun to be given out.’

bismillahi andika/ ni awali ya kanzoowa [st.] ‘write: in the name of Allah for that is the commencement for everything’

Chaakuja/ chanziza kawanyilizowa waana. ‘Food was begun to be distributed to the children.’

Chaakuja/ chanziza khpikoowa. ‘Food was begun to be cooked.’

Hamadi/ an to be beaten.’

Kaazi/ yanziiza. ‘The work has been begun.’
Mwaana/ anziza khpakowa mafta. ‘The child was begun to be applied oil to.’ (But it is also possible to say Mafta/ ya’anziza khpakowa mwaana. ‘Oil was begun to be applied to the child.’)

¶Nama/ yanziza kujowa na Hamadi. ‘Meat was begun to be eaten by Hamadi.’

rel. nom.

mwa-aanzo n. beginning, start, initiation of s.t.; edge; [pron. mwaanzo or maanzo]

¶aakini ichiwa mkono ya haanzu/ osha mzimawe anza ntangu mwaanzo [st.] ‘but if [the impurity] is on the sleeve of a garment, wash it thoroughly, starting from the edge’ mwaanzo/ wa qisa ‘the beginning of the stories’ mwaanzo wa waajibu ndruuza kasaani/ kumwiwa moojo khuunzilo rahmaani [st.] ‘listen my friends: the beginning of [all] religious obligations is to know God, the Compassionate, who created you’

ch-aanzo (z-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. chanzo SSED 17] beginning, start

Kula chenye chaanzo/ china mwiisho. ‘Everything that has a beginning has an end.’ (A proverb.)

¶lano ili/ chaanzoche/ hashtambuliki. ‘The beginning of this story is not understandable.’

unzile pashpo chaanzo mooja wiitu [st.] ‘our God created the world without any beginning’

mwa-aanzo

adv. first; n. beginning

Mi/ nile mwaanzó. ‘I came first.’ (cf. the different accentual pattern when the subject is third person: Ye/ ile mwaanzo. ‘He came first.’)

Neeleza/ khabarizo/ nt^hangú/ mwaanzo/ hatá/ mwiisho. ‘Explain to me your news/ story from beginning to end.’

apa

loc. demon. [cl.16] [Sw. hapa SSED 127] here

Ali/ nt^haako/ apa. ‘Ali is not here.’ Or: Nt^haako/ Ali/ apa.

Apa/ nii nk^hulu. ‘This here is a big place.’

Apa/ ni suura. ‘It is good here.’

Apa/ siwo/ kiinu. ‘This place here is not your (home).’

ka apa ‘from here’

Awa/ walazile ka apa. ‘These, they left from here.’

Ondrokaani/ ka apa. ‘(Pl.) move from here!’

ka apa/ na apá ‘everywhere’

Merele bukuze/ ka apa/ na apá. ‘He searched for his books everywhere.’

Muke/ chimera ka apa/ na apá. ‘The woman looked here and there.’

Ka chihaba/ ye/ waliko mara niingi/ lesele apa/ na maamaye. ‘As a child she had many times been brought here by her mother.’

Kalaant^ha/ apa. ‘Sit here!’

Mahaala yaa mí/ ndirkameno naayé/ ni kharibu ya apa. ‘The place where I met her is close to here.’

Mbujazá/ olokaani/ ka apa. ‘My sisters, go from here!’

Mi/ nzazila apá. ‘I was born here.’

Naani/ leselo zibuku izi/ apá. ‘Who brought these books here?’

Ni apa. ‘It is here.’

Ni apa/ mahaala si. ‘It is here where we are.’

Nt^hi/ hukhadirowa khtumiki lowa kaloowá/ iwele haba/ apa. ‘Land which can be used for cultivating has become scarce in this area (here).’

¶Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kumleta Hamadi/ apá? ‘Would you please bring Hamadi here.’

Uko apa. ‘She is there (close to you).’

want^hu wa apa ‘people of these parts’

Waant^hu/ wako apá/ (ni) wasuura. [H!H!H] ‘The people who are here are good.’

Waant^hu/ wako apá/ (ni) wasuraa nt^ho. [H!H!H] ‘The people who are here are very good.’

- Waant^hu/ wako apá/ (ni) wawovu. [H!H!H] ‘The people who are here are bad.’
(The downstepping observed in the relative clause waako apa is a regular feature of Chimiini intonation. The downstepping of the PredP is also regular. However, to the extent that there is emphasis on wawovu, the downstep will be replaced by simple declination.)
- Waant^hu/ wako apá/ (ni) wawovuu nt^ho. [H!H!H] ‘The people who are here are very bad.’
- apaje loc. demon. [cl.16] [cf. Sw. pale SSED 362] there (farther away from speaker and hearer) Apaje/ miti/ hukula. [H!H!H] ‘There trees grow.’
Apaje/ wo/ suła khpata kula yaa wo/ wachihtaajó. ‘There they would have been able to get whatever that they needed.’
Ni apaje. ‘It is over there.’
Ye/ cheendra/ apaje mashakaani/ chizika lpaangale/ na ijambiyayé. ‘He went to that place in the bush and buried his sword and his dagger.’
- apo loc. demon. [cl.16] [Sw. hapo SSED 127] there, then Apo/ iwaliko ni masku/ nch^hilaala/ attá/ fijiri. ‘Then it was night [and] I slept until morning.’
apo kulla muunt^hu tiila waswaasi [nt.] ‘at this point everybody was shaken with fear’ Apo/ muyiini/ waant^hu/ wiingi/ wafiile. ‘There at the town many people have died.’
Apo/ nch^hiwona mbadiikhi. ‘There I saw a melon plant.’
Apo/ ningile kumera kaazi. ‘There (at that place) I began to look for a job.’
Apo/ teena/ noka/ chishikowa shtana. ‘There, then, the snake got angry.’
Apo/ yiko kaazi/ suura. ‘Here there is a very nice job.’
Basi/ cheendra/ shkalaant^ha/ apo/ tu/ huja/ apo/ tu/ heendra/ huja/ hulawa/ jis’iyo/ tu. ‘So he just went and stayed there [at the sultan’s], he just eats there, he goes and eats and then goes away, just that way.’
Basi/ waana/ wachoondroka/ ka apo. ‘So the boys moved from that place.’
Endra apo/ endrá. ‘Go there, that’s what you should do.’
Hamadi/ kalent^he apo/ tu/ chiint^hu/ nt^hanakhfaanya. ‘Hamadi just sat there doing nothing.’
Ka khisa/ ye/ apo/ tu/ anzize kulaala. ‘Because just then he had gone to sleep.’
Lmalize ka apo. ‘It [the tale] ended here.’
Mi/ apo/ ndilaani/ niskitishilee nt^ho. ‘There, outside, I was very sad.’
Ni apo. ‘It is there (near you).’
Nondroshelé/ ka apo/ niineenzelé/ sku niingi. ‘I went from there and I continued on walking many days.’
Shkalan^ha na mukeewe/ apo. ‘He stayed with his wife there.’
rel.
apo/ apo at the same time
Apo/ apo/ lpepo/ lchanza kuvuma. ‘At that same time the wind began to blow.’
apo/ zamaani once upon a time
Apo/ zamaani/ waliko sulṭaani/ mooyi/ na mwaanawé. ‘Once upon a time there was a sultan and his son.’
- apo/ zamaani once upon a time
Apo/ zamaani/ waliko sulṭaani/ mooyi/ na mwaanawé. ‘Once upon a time there was a sultan and his son.’
- ch-appa (z-) n. 7/8 [Sw. chapa SSED 51] trademark (Phon. Although we recorded this item with gemination when we encountered it in our data collection, the status of such gemination is still open to question: is it an invariable property of this item or a stylistic variant.)
chappache ‘its trademark’

aq ideo. (same as yaq)
Haliima/ mwambile mwaanawe/ aq!/ tufa/ kuja iyo/ simizé/ iwozele.
 ‘Haliima told her child, (it is) aq!, disgusting, spit it out, do not swallow that food, it is rotten.’

aaqiba n. [Sw. akiba SSED 7; Ar. ‘aqaba “to follow, to ensue” and ‘aqib “that which follows subsequently” W 626] future; s.t. held in store for the future, savings; consequences; [pron. aaqiba or aakhiba] variant form: aaqibi
Aakhiba/ ha’iwoli. ‘Something set aside as a reserve does not go bad.’ (A proverb.)
kuweka aakhiba ‘to keep s.t. for the future, to save money or something for future use’ Muunt^{bu}/ shfanya kaazi/ laazimu/ peesaze/ haba mooyi/ kuweka aakhiba/ ya mustakhbali. ‘When one works one must keep some of one’s money as a savings for the future.’
kuwekela aakhiba ‘to set aside for’
Haliima/ mekelele mwanaashke=w-e/ aakhiba/ dhahabu/ niingi.
 ‘Haliima set aside much gold for her daughter.’
Mwana uyu/ nt^haná/ aakhiba. ‘This child has no future (nothing good will come to him in the future).’
Ye/ waliko tinzile kuwajata ahliye/ chinume/ pashpo khfikirila aakhiba/ ya steendroze. ‘He decided to leave his relatives behind without thinking about the consequences of his actions.’

ku-’aqiba v. [Ar. ‘aqaba W 626] (aqibiile) punish kum’aqiba ‘to punish him’
 rel.
ku-’aqiboowa v. pass.
Isa/ majini/ ayaje/ ya tawala/ yasulilo kumshika Sa’iidi/ naayo/ ya’ile mbele ya sulṭaani/ yamlesele mayti/ yamlonzele sulṭaani/ natomole amri/ ku’aqibowa qaatili. ‘Now those djinns at the sea who wanted to catch Sa’iidi also came in front of the sultan and brought the dead man and begged the sultan to give an order for the killer to be punished.’

aqiida n. military commander, captain (historically, this word referred to the commander of the Zanzibari garrison in Brava) aqiida n. [Ar. ‘aqīda “article of faith, dogma, doctrine” W 628] in the expression:

ilmu ya aqiida ‘knowledge of theology’ ku-’aqida v. [Ar. ‘aqada W 627] (aqidiile) tie, bind (figuratively -- e.g. in marriage) ku’aqida nikaaha ‘to tie in marriage’ (=khfunga nikaaha)

aqili
akhili] n. 10 [Sw. akili SSED 8; Ar. ‘aqil W 630] wits, cleverness, intelligence; [pron. aqili or akhili]
 variant form: aqli [pron. aqli or akhli]
Akhili/ hatelezi/ chaake. ‘A wise man does not waste [lit. play with] his things.’ (A proverb.)
Akhili/ hazuloowi. ‘Intelligence cannot be purchased.’ (A proverb.)
Akhili/ ni kama mashuungi/ kila mooyi/ nayo yaake. ‘Brains are like hair, everyone has his own.’ (A proverb.)
akhilii mbovu ‘bad judgement, bad thinking’ Akhili/ muunt^{bu}/ huzaliloowa. ‘A person is born with intelligence (i.e. it is not something acquired).’ (A proverb.)
Akhili/ ni maali. ‘Intelligence is wealth.’ (A proverb.)

Akhili niingi/ hubasha ma'arifa. 'Too much cleverness makes one lose understanding.' (A proverb.)

Akhili niingi/ huletaa dhibu. 'Too much cleverness causes harm.' (A proverb.)

Akhili za khtila/ haaziwi/ akhili. 'Intelligence that is put into someone does not become intelligence (i.e. one cannot be told how to become intelligent, one is born with it).' (A proverb.)

Akhili za mwaana/ haaziwi/ kana za munt^hu mzima. 'A child's intelligence is not like that of an adult.' (A proverb.)

akhili/ zaydi ya waawaye 'very clever – lit. more clever than his father'

Akhilize/ kamba (or kana) za waana. 'His way of thinking is like a child.'

Akhilize/ kana/ za munt^hu mzima. 'His intellect (said of a child) is like that of an adult.'

Aqlizo/ zikhubeele. 'Your wits have left you.'

Baaba/ mtume Yaaquubu/ waliko ni muunt^hu/ mwenye ilmu/ aqli/ na hikmá/ mwajiitu/ mpeeló. 'The father, the prophet Jacob, was a man having knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom which God gave him.'

Izi/ ni jawaabu/ hingilo akhiliini. 'These are reasonable words [lit. words entered in reason].'

Jeelaani/ waliko mubjaana/ wa miyaka sitaashara/ laakini/ akhilize/ schipita/ aqli za munt^hu wa miyaka thalathiini. 'Jeelaani was a youth of sixteen but his intelligence surpassed the intelligence of a man of thirty years.'

ka akhiliza 'according to my view, in my opinion'

Ka akhiliza/ mi/ hunk^halila Hamadi/ nayo gaari. 'According to my view, it seems to me that Hamadi is right.'

kangamila aqli 'to go crazy, lose one's mind'

Akhiri iyi/ Hamadi/ akhilize/ zangamiile/ hakoodi/ jawaabu/ suura. 'In these last times, Hamadi's mind has worsened, his talk (the things he says) are not good.'

kh-fanya akhili 'to use one's brains, wits, intelligence, etc.'

Hamadi/ mbigilile Nuuru/ nk^heje/ laakini/ Nuuru/ fanyize akhili/ nt^hamruudila/ kooði/ yookejeje. 'Hamadi shouted at Nuuru but Nuuru used his brains and did not return reply, he just left.'

Muunt^hu/ suura/ khfanya akhili/ ka kilaa chiint^hu. 'It is good for one to use his brains in every matter.'

khpotela aqli 'to lose one's head, go crazy'

Baana/ akhili/ zimpoteele/ nt^haná/ khtaambula/ yaa ye/ nakhfaanyó. Baana has lost his mind, he is not understanding what he is doing.'

Rabiya/ aqli/ zimpoteele. 'Rabiya lost her head.'

khtila akhili 'lit. to put in intelligence – i.e. to tell someone how to be intelligent does not make him truly intelligent'

Akhili/ za khtila/ haaziwi/ akhili. 'Mind/intelligence that is put/given does not become real wisdom.' (A proverb.)

khtila akhiliini 'to understand'; also: khtilowa akhiliini 'to be understood'

Jawaabu/ za Nuuru/ hadiiló/ hashkadiroowi/ khtilowa akhiliini/ siwo/ ma'akhuuli. 'The things that Nuuru said cannot be understood, they do not have comprehensibility.'

kubasha akhili 'to lose one's mind, temper etc.'

Muunt^hu/ wakhtji ya sh^hana/ siwo/ suura/ kubasha akhilize/ huletaa dhibu. 'For one to lose his mind during anger is not good, this can cause problems.'

Mwaadamu/ ha'isuloowi/ kubasha akhilize. 'A person should not lose his temper, his mind etc.'

kurasha akhilizo 'to follow your own judgement'

Muunt^hu/ suura/ kurasha akhilize/ chiza kuraasha/ akhili za waanthu. ‘It is good for one to follow his own judgement, not that of others.’

kuzulata aqili ‘to lose one’s head, go crazy’

Mi/ akhiliza/ huziida/ akhili za sulṭaani. ‘My intelligence surpasses the intelligence of the sultan.’

Namiiwá/ muuntthu/ msuura/ akhili. ‘I know a wise, good man.’ Or: Namiiwá/ muuntthu/ msuura/ akhili. (There is declination of the accented syllables in this sentence, but not downstep.)

Namiiwá/ muuntthu/ msuura/ na akhilí. ‘I know a man good and wise.’ (It should be pointed out that the na-phrase is downstepped in these examples, while the preceding accented syllables only show some declination.)

Namiiwá/ muuntthu/ nazo akhilí. ‘I know a man who is wise (lit. has intelligence).’ Note that the verb ‘have’ may be elided, but in this case akhili receives default accent: Namiiwá/ muuntthu/ akhilí. ‘I know a wise man.’ (It should be observed that there is not downstep intonation in these sentences, although there is some declination of the accented syllables.)

Nazo akhilí/ we. ‘You have intelligence.’

Nelo maayí/ mbelekó/ khuziḍa ka akhili. ‘The one who drank water before you (meaning who was born before you) has more wisdom than you.’ (A proverb.) review pronunciation

Nt^haná/ aqli. ‘He has no intelligence.’

Omari/ akhili niingi. ‘Omari is very intelligent.’

Ruuhu/ ichimbiga/ nt^ho/ na kharibilíile/ akhilize/ kumpotela. ‘His heart pounded very much, and his wits nearly fell [from him] – i.e. he nearly lost his mind.’

Waliko muuntthu/ mwenye aqli/ fikiri/ na maalí. ‘He was a man of intelligence, thought, and wealth.’

aaqili

adj. [Ar. ‘āqil W 630] intelligent, clever; [pron. aaqili or aakhili]

Kheeri/ aduwi aakhili/ kama mwenza jaahili. ‘Better a clever enemy than an ignorant friend.’ (A proverb.)

Ye/ ni aakhili/ na nazo fahamu/ na basará. ‘He is intelligent and has understanding and talent.’

ku-‘aqilisha

v. (aqilishiize) make smart

aqiqa

n. 9/10 [Sw. akika and akiki SSED 7-8; Ar. ‘aqīq ‘camelian’ W 626] precious stone used in rings; feast, etc., for a dead child aqiqa iyi ‘this gem’; aqiqa izi ‘these gems’ khfanya aqiqa ‘to read the burial service for a child who has died’

ku-‘aqoonsata recognize

v. [cf. Som. noun aqoon and verb aqoonso ‘to recognize’ DSI 22] (aqonseete)

Oono/ iize/ ku‘aqoonsata/ dowla ya Soomaaliya. ‘The UN refuses to recognize the government of Somalia.’

rel.

ku-‘aqonsatisha v. caus. (aqonsatishiize)

ku-‘aqonsatoowa v. pass. be recognized

Dowla ya Soomalya/ nt^haasá/ nt^ha’iku’aqonsatoowa/ na Oono/ na duniyá. ‘The government of Somalia is still not recognized by the United Nations and the world.’

aqraba
to blood

n. [Sw. akraba SSED 8; Ar. aqrab W 755] blood relative (used in Chimiini to refer relative either on mother’s or father’s side); [pron. aqraba or akhraba] chilo cha aqraba mayi hisikiika [st.] ‘the crying of his close relative, the dead person is bothered by [this]’

Hamadi/ akhrabaze/ wiingi. ‘Hamadi, his relatives are many.’

Ismu ya muuntthu/ naayo/ akhraba. ‘Anybody has relatives.’

sadaqa afḍali ni khpoowa aqraba [st.] ‘it is preferable to give alms to blood relatives’

Sadaqa/ mbele/ hupowa akhraba. ‘Charity is first given to relatives.’

- aaqulwaalideeni n. [an Arabicism] someone who has severed relationship with his parents ajabu aaqulwaalideeni kuhija [st.] ‘it is strange for someone who has broken ties with his parent to perform the pilgrimage’
- ara’ara n. [Som. caaro DSI 76] spider; a kind of small fish like a sardine
- arabiya n. [Ar. (al-)arbi ‘āW 323] Wednesday Ka raaḍiya/ oloka/ mwaambile/ mubli/ naaye/ munt^hi wa arabiya. ‘With my blessing go and tell that man that he should come on Wednesday.’
munt^hi wa arabiya ‘Wednesday’ sku ya arabiya/ amó/ ya arkhamiisi ‘Wednesday or Thursday’
- ch-aarabu n. 7 [Sw. kiarabu SSED 319] the Arabic language; in the manner of an Arab Mwaana/ chimjiiba/ ka khisa karka chimwiini/ zimo jawaabu/ za chisoomaali/ za shṭalyaani/ za chingereenza/ za chaarabu/ za chihiindi/ haṭá/ jawabu za majini/ zimo. ‘The child answered him, Because in Chimiini there are words from Somali, from Italian, from English, from Arabic, from Hindi, even words of the djinns are in it.’
- mw-aarabu (w-) n. 1/2 [Sw. mwarabu SSED 319; Ar. ‘arabī, coll. ‘arab W 601] an Arab Isa/ leelo/ waarabu/ hichiilila/ si/ ka kooḍi. ‘Now today the Arabs come to us with words.’
mwaarabu/ na mwanaamkewé/ na khisa ziinginé ‘the Arab and his daughter, and other tales’ Omo/ ye/ chimwona mwaarabu/ mooyi/ uje mjibilo hoodi. ‘Inside (e.g. the house) he saw an Arab, the one who had answered his request to enter.’
Uje/ wa’ubḷelo ngoombé/ waliko ni mwaarabu/ na waliko mwelpe/ uyu/ ni mlusi. ‘The one who killed the cattle was an Arab and he was white, this one is black.’
- aarafa n. [cf. Arafaati below] a non-obligatory fasting day during the hajj month idi/ ya aarafa ‘a feast where a goat is slaughtered, held the day following munt^hi wa aarafa’ munt^hi wa aarafa ‘the day during the hajj where one stands in front of Mount Arafat’ mtume tindiḷile wakeewe aarafa [st.] ‘the Prophet slaughtered for his wives on aarafa’ mwezi wa aarafa ‘the third month after Ramadhan = wataatu’
- Arafaati n.[Ar. ‘arafāt “mountain and plain near Mecca, where pilgrims spend the 9th day of month of Zu’lhijja” W 606] a mountain and plain near Mecca
- aragosta n. 9/10 [Ital. aragosta] lobster
- araamila adj. [see armila below] ones whose husbands have died ndiye shpeendo yaṭiima na araamila [st.] ‘it is he [=Mohammad] who loved orphans and widows’ wake araamila ‘widows’
- aarani n. [Som. aaaran “prosperity (in pasture and fields), abundance of greenery after rains” DSI 3] plenitude; the opposite of drought -- i.e. plentifulness of rain
Killa/ mwaaka/ ichinshaarata/ jawaabu/ stakuuyó/ jawabu stakupatikanó/ kamba ni awaari/ kamba ni aarani/ ka mbuzi oyo. ‘Every year, it gave a forecast of what would come and could be expected, either famine or abundance of harvest by that goat.’
Mwaka uyu/ ni aarani/ miyuundra/ yaḷazile jisa suura. ‘This year is prosperous, farms have yielded abundantly.’
nakhsuula aarani apa sipo suura [st.] I want abundance, here it is not good’

arba	[Ar. arba 'a W 323] arba alfu 'four thousand'
arba'iini	adj. forty arba'ina keendra or arba'iini/ na keendrá 'forty nine' arba'inaa mbili or arba'iinu/ naa mbili 'forty two' arba'ina naane or arba'iini/ na naané 'forty eight' arba'inaa saba or arba'iini/ naa sabá 'forty seven' arba'ina sitta or arba'iini/ na sittá 'forty six' Miizi/ sku arba'iini/ hushikoowa. 'A thief is caught in forty days.' (A proverb.) Ndripa farasi/ arba'iini/ na nuumbá/ arba'iini/ na ngoombé/ arba'iini/ na mbuzi za matakó/ arba'iini/ and sandukhu za ðahabú/ arba'iini/ na sandukhu za feðá/ arba'iini/ na sandukhu za shabá/ arba'iini/ na hunda nt^haanó. 'Pay me forty horses, and forty houses, and forty cows, and forty sheep, and forty boxes of gold, and forty boxes of copper, and forty boxes of silver, and five measures.'
arbabi	n. gods
arbaṭaashara	n., adj. fourteen confirm baṭaa and not baṭaa nambari ya arbaṭaashara 'number fourteen' confirm nambari
arbeeni	n. [Ar. arba 'ūn "ceremony held on the 40 th day after s.o.'s death" W 323] food given to the poor as a final giving after someone's death khfanya arbeeni 'to celebrate, perform arbeeni'
aarbitro	n. referee Abú/ mlapilile aarbitro. 'Abu swore at the referee.' Or: Aarbitro/ lapiliila. 'The referee was sworn at.'
arbuuni	[Ar. 'urbūn, 'rab 'n W 602]
arday	n. student Chimaliza/ mpiira/ siwo/ ðaruura/ ka arday. 'Secondly/then, football is not necessary for a student.'
arði	[Ar. arḍ W 13]
ku-'arfisha	v. [Ar. 'arf "fragrance, perfume, aroma" W 605] (arfishiize) smell sweet, good Mi/ naku'arfisha barafumú/ suura/ apa. 'I smell good perfume here.' rel. ku-'arfishoowa v. pass. Numba iyo/ inaku'arfishoowa kuja. 'That house is smelling good (from) food.'
arfu	n. smell Mukhtaa yo/ ichinyoo nvulá/ muḷo/ ichasho nuumbá/ habamooyi/ usimeeme/ sho/ kuwa arfu. 'When it was raining, the fire, which was burning the buildings, died down and stopped except for the smell.'
arguðasho	n. [Som. argudasho] revenge, retaliation Inayo arguðasho/ inayo kulipowana aari/ maazi/ maazi/ ni mazito/ siwo/ jawabu ya matezo/ maazi/ muunt^hu/ mṭawanya muunt^hu/ maazi. 'It has revenge, it has retaliation, blood, blood is heavy, it is not joking around, someone, to spill someone's blood.' (This comment appeared as part of a discussion of the proverb: Maazi/ ni mazito/ kolko maayi. ‘Blood is heavier than water.’)

- aari n. 9 [Sw. ari SSED 18: Ar. ‘ār “shame, disgrace, dishonour” W 661; Som. aar “revenge”, noun and verb, DSI 3] revenge; fear of losing one’s position in society and becoming disgraced; disgraced aari iyi nda dunya/ aakhera halo baaqiya [st.] ‘this vengeance was on earth, but the hereafter still remains’ lata kumdhiba aariya/ we naniwa mi haaliya [song] ‘stop bothering me regarding my disgrace, you know (me) my condition’ Mlungaana/ nt^hana aari/ ni kama ngoombe/ nt^hana mp^heembé. ‘A noble man who has sense of disgrace is like a cow who has no horns.’ (A proverb.)
mwiize mukhtaari ka sababu ya aari [st.] ‘he rejected the prophet because of fearing losing his position’
- ku-’arifa v. [Ar. ‘arafa “to know” W 605 and ta ‘rif “information” W 606] inform Laazimu/ kum’arifa Omari/ jawabu izo. ‘You must let Omari know about those matters.’
rel.
ku-’arifoowa v. pass.
Laazimu/ ku’arifowa Omari/ jawabu izo. ‘Those things should be made known to Omari.’
- ma-’arifa n.
Mi/ nayo ma’arifa niingi/ na Omari. ‘I have a lot of knowledge, much information, a strong relationship with Omari.’
Mi/ siná/ ma’arifa/ na Omar. ‘I have no relation/ connection to, knowledge of Omari.’
- arip^laano n. [Ital. aeroplano] airplane; variant form: eropl^laano Safiriile/ ka arip^laanoye/ khaasá/ kooloka/ ka kuzuura/ nt^hi za sharqi/ yaa kati. ‘He traveled by his special airplane to go to visit the countries of the Middle East.’
rel.
chi-’arip^laano (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-’arip^laano (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ariishi n. 9/10 [Som. cariish DSI 91] a house made of wood and mud Arishi iyi/ iwashi^la na Haaji. ‘This house was built by Haaji.’
numba ya ariishi ‘a house made of wood and mud’
rel.
chi-’ariishi (zi-) n. dim.
Chi’ariishicha/ shpiile. ‘My little house burned.’
Zi’ariishiza/ spiiile. ‘My little houses burned.’
i-’ariishi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- aariya n. [Som. caariyo “borrowing” DSI 76] something borrowed, given temporarily
- aariya n. air
Numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ aariya/ hayiingili/ hari. ‘In Hamadi’s house air does not come in, it is hot.’
- arkaani n. (cf. rukni ‘pillar’) [Ar. arkān, plural of rukn W 359] pillars, the essential elements of the Islamic faith arkaani za islaamu barataani / naa zo ni nt^haano ni fahamilaani [st.] ‘learn the pillars of Islam and understand that they are five’ kulla ibaada tahidaani uma^ti / khaansa karka sala arkaani na shartⁱ [st.] ‘O [Muslim] community, strive [to perfect] every act of worship –especially [observing] the essential elements and conditions during the prayer’

arkaanel islaami	n. the pillars of Islam Arkaanel islaami/ ni nt^haano/ khira shahaada/ khsimikaa sala/ khtomolaa zaka/ khfunga ramaadaani/ kuhija lbeyti/ ka muunt^hu/ hukhaadiró/ amriwe/ mara mooyi. ‘The pillars of Islam are five: accept the oneness of God, stand pray, give charity (zaka), fast Ramadhan, and go on hajj of the house, if able, once in life time.’
arkhamiisi	n. [Sw. alhamisi from Ar. yaum ak-kamīs W 262] Thursday munthi wa arkhamiisi ‘Thursday (lit. the sixth day) Sku ya arkhamiisi/ nuzizee chitá/ cha ngoombé/ sukhuuni. ‘On the day of Thursday, I sold the head of a cow in the market.’ Sku yaa ye/ nakendro kingila nt^hi ya mayahuudi/ iwaliko arkhamiisi. ‘The day that he was going to enter the land of the Jews was Thursday.’ Tahara yaa jima/ nda arkhamiisi. ‘The ritual cleanliness for Friday prayer is (a matter) of Thursday (i.e. you need to prepare yourself in advance).’ (A proverb.) Tuumá/, uje Ø-vushilo Mkhodiishó/ fijiri ya jimaa tatú/, Ø-ta-ku-ruda Miini/ arkhamiisi ‘Tuuma, who went to Mogadishu Monday morning, will return to Brava on Thursday’
ch-arkhaani (z-)	n. 7/8 sewing machine; variant form: sharkhaani Awaje wanazo peesá/ hula zarkhaani/ khshomela waant^hu/ nguwo/ ka peesa. ‘Those who have the money buy sewing machines to sew clothes for people to make money. Maliizopó/ Hasiibu/ maamaye/ mpeleshele charkhaniini/ kubarata khshomaa nguwo. ‘When he finished (school), Hasiibu’s mother sent him to a tailor’s shop to learn to sew clothes.’
armajo	n. [Ital.] cupboard review Omari/ tundrishile shaatiye/ armajooni. ‘Omari hung his shirt in the cupboard.’ zijamu/ za Faatima/ tilo armajooni ‘the plates that Faatima put in the cupboard’ (If the relative verb is separated from its complement, the final accent still extends to the end of the relative clause: zijamu/ za Faatima/ tiiló/ armajooni ‘the plates that Faatima put in the cupboard’.)
armala	adj. [Ar. armala , pl. arāmila W 360] (used only in the singular) widow muke armala ‘a widow’ We/ na’iwa kuwaa mi/ ni armalá. ‘You know that I am a widow.’ rel. araamila n. [Ar. pl. arāmil W 360] widows
aarmi	n. [Eng. Army] (fire-)arms (larger than a gun, like a cannon or a tank etc.) aarmi/ na bundukhú ‘arms and guns’
arnabu	n. [Ar. arnab W 14] rabbit
arshanta	n. whorehouse, brothel
arshi	n. [Ar. ‘arš "throne" W 602] throne; God’s residence at the highest point in the sky arshi/ rahmaan ‘the place where God sits, resides’ Mojiitu/ keele/karka arshi. God is resided/placed at the highest point in the sky.’
ma-’aruufu	adj. [Ar. ma ‘rūf W 607] renowned, famous
ku-’aruurisha	v. [Som. aruuri "to gather--people or things" DSI 25] (-’ arurishiize) collect, gather s.t. (things, money) (In word-initial position, a stem with an initial glottal stop is pronounced without that stop. We failed to observe the glottal stop even when the word in question is medial in a phonological phrase.)

Arurishize uki. ‘He collected honey.’ Or, of course: Arurishiize/ uki. ‘He collected honey.’

Arurishizee wo. ‘He collected, gathered it (e.g. honey).’

Arurishiize/ wo/ uki. ‘He collected it, honey.’ Somewhat less preferred is:

Arurishiize/ uki/ wo. ‘He collected honey, it.’

Shaafi/ arurishize ijaara/ ka waant^hu. ‘Shaafi collected rent from people.’

(This verb would not be used for collecting rent from a single person.)

Shishile ku’aruurisha/ ku’aruurisha/ ku’aruurisha/ chimooyi/ ba’ada chimooyi ku’aruurisha. ‘He began to gather them all up, one by one, to gather up.’

Wo/ arurishiize. ‘It (e.g. honey) he collected.’

Ye/ arurishize luulu/ na almaasi. ‘He gathered up the pearls and diamonds.’

rel.

ku-’arurishiliza v. appl. (-’arurishiliize) collect for Mtumile Jamaala/ kum’arurishiliza ijaara. ‘He sent Jamaala to collect rent for him.’

Sheekhi/ wa’arurishilize waant^hu/ ijaara. ‘Sheekhi collected rent for people.’

ku-’arurishilizoowa v. appl. pass. (-’arurishiliza)

Huseeni/ arurishiliza ijaara/ n Sheekhi. ‘[Lit.] Huseeni was collected for rent by Sheekhi.’

ku-’arurishoowa v. pass. (-’arurishiiza)

Ijaara/ arurishiza na Mahmuudi/ ka waant^hu. ‘Rent was collected by Mahmuudi from people.’

Maliize/ hu’arurishowa waana/ wa muuyi/ falqa/ awaje wawovu. ‘When this is done, the children of the town, the rascals, the bad ones, are gathered together.’

arzaaqi n. (cf. rizqi) [Ar. arzāq, plural of rizq ‘livelihood, subsistence, daily bread’ W 337] what can be gotten, provided, eaten; daily food; [pron. arzaaqi or arzaakhi]

Arzaakhi/ naazó/ mojiitu. ‘The one who has daily food is God.’ (A proverb.)

This is said, for example, by the struggling businessman who is not having success and gives up, saying that it is only God who can provide arzaaqi.)

Si/ chiwaliko waant^hu/ watatu/ moyi wiitu/ wele arzaakhi/ za mp^haamp^ha. ‘We were three people, one of us became food for sharks.’

Sultani Daraayi/ naayé/ loosele/ kuwaa ye/ uko nt^hakaani/ nakumera arzaakhi. ‘Sultan Daraayi also dreamed that he was at the garbage dump looking for food.’

ku-’arzuqa v. (-’arzuqiile) bestow upon; provide the necessities; [pron. ku’arzuqa or ku’arzukha]

variant form: kuruzuqa

Mwajiitu/ m’arzukhiile/ mwiimbili/ inaye/ Ali. ‘God bestowed upon him a boy, his name was Ali.’

wamo huwa’arzuqa ka fadhiini/ na wiingine huwafaanya maskiini [st.] ‘some [God] cares for their needs while they are at their own place, and others he makes them poor’ asaa conj. [Sw. asaa SSED 19; Ar. ‘asa, which we did not locate in W, but found in “The Concise Oxford English Arabic Dictionary of current usage”, Oxford University Press, 1985 edition, page 280, under entry “perhaps”] perhaps ku-’aasa v. [Sw. asa “forbid, warn” SSED 19; Ar. ‘aṣā “disobey, resist, oppose” W 618] disobey (orders, God); rebel variant form: ku’aansa

Asize sarkaali. ‘He rebelled against the government.’

chi'aasa 'if she rebels, disobeys' hu'aasó 'a rebel, one who disobeys' kum'asa mwajiitu 'to disobey God'

M'asize waawaye. 'He disobeyed his father.'

Moojó/ sim'aanse. 'Your God, do not disobey him.' (A proverb.)

Moomini/ ni waant^hu/ humtí'a mojiitú/ ka kilaa chiint^hu/ na kilaa waqtí/ hawam'aansi/ mojiitu/ humaamina/ ka kilaa chiint^hu/ chaa ye/ hadiiló. 'Faithful (people) are people who fear God in every thing and at every time, they do not negate him, they deeply believe in all that he says.'

Naku'aasa. 'He is rebelling, disobeying.'

N^hanaku'aasa. 'He is not disobeying, rebelling.'

ku-'aasika v. p/s.

ku-'aasisha v. caus. (asishiize)

Nuuru/ m'asishize mwaana/ waawaye. 'Nuuru induced (in some fashion) the child to disobey his father.'

ku-'asishana v. caus. rec.

ku-'asishika v. caus. p/s.

Mwana uy/ ha'asishiki/ waawaye. 'This child cannot be induced to disobey his father.'

ku-'asishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ m'asishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ mwaalimu. 'Nuuru induced Suufi's son to disobey the teacher.'

kuasishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Want^hu awa/ wa'asishilizenye waana/ walimu waawo. 'These people in induced (somehow) one another's children to disobey their teachers.'

rel. nom.

m-'aasa (wa-) n. 1/2 rebel asabikhuuna

Asabikhuuna/ al'awauuna. 'Those who came first should be treated first.' (An Arabic proverb that has been "Chimiini-ized" and used in the language.)

aasaasi

n. 9 [Ar. asās W 15] foundation, basis

asasiini 'loc. foundation' (The word aasiisi is one of a fair number of loan words that have long vowels in both the antepenult and penult positions in the word, a situation not tolerated in the native Bantu vocabulary nor in morphological concatenation. But when the final vowel is lengthened in formation of the locative noun, both of the stem long vowels shorten as expected.)

iyi ni asaasi yingiilo bukuuni [nt.] 'so begins the chronicle of this day [lit. this is the foundation that entered the book]' khtila aasaasi 'to lay a foundation'

Koodize/ nt^haziná/ aasaasi. 'His words have no foundation.'

kuweka aasaasi 'to lay a foundation'

Muunt^hu/ ismu ya chiint^hu/ faanya/ mbele/ husulowa kuweka aasaasi. 'For one to do anything, first one must build a foundation.'

numba iyi/ aasaasiye 'this house's foundation' (This example illustrates a surprising aspect of the phonology of loanwords like aasiisi. When the enclitic y=e is appended, this puts the second long vowel in aasiisi in antepenult position in the word, a position that allows a long vowel. But it puts the first long vowel in aasiisi in a pre-antepenultimate position, which ordinarily does not allow a long vowel. However, the length on this vowel seems to be retained.)

asbaabu

n. (cf. sababu) [Ar. asbāb W 392] false cause/reason, pretext, justification (observe that the meaning of this form, which derives from the Arabic plural, differs from sababu, which means 'cause, reason')

asbuu'i

n. 9 [Ar. usbū ' W 394] week; variant form: usbuu'i asbu'i inakuuyó or asbu'i itakuuyó 'the coming week'

asbu'i iyi 'this week'

asbu'i mooyi 'one week'

Si/ chinayo weenzá/ wanakuyo ziyaará/ aakhiri/ ya asbuu'i. 'We have friends visiting over the weekend so that we won't be able to attend Umi's party.'

asfari

adj. [Sw. asfari "yellow"]

feða na ðahabu kuvaala khatari/ na nguwo asfari huundru na akhðari [st.] she must not (lit. it is dangerous to) wear (ornaments of) silver and gold, or yellow, red, or green clothes'

as.haabu

[Ar. aṣḥāb, plural of ṣāhib W 504] companions

As.haabu/ alkahfi/ wawaalimo/ itundruuni/ miyaaka/ alfu. 'The companions of the cave (in Christian mythology known as the "Seven Sleepers of Ephesus") were in the cave for a thousand years.'

asha

n. dinner

Ā'ā/ Hamadi/ tu/ nakujo ashá. [HHH!!H] No, only Hamadi is eating dinner.'

Haliima/ pishile asha. 'Haliima cooked dinner.'

Waana/ wont^he/ wanakuja asha/ so. 'Are all the children eating dinner?'

k-aasha

v. tr. (ashiize) light a fire, put a light on Ashizee muḷo/ ka chibiriidi. 'He lit a fire with a match.'

kasha maato 'to be awake'

kashaa muḷo 'to create differences, hatred' kasha muunt^hu 'to do everything possible to get s.o. arrested' kashaa muḷo 'to get a fire going (by adding s.t. to it, not by starting from scratch, which would be khfanyaa muḷo)

kashaa nt^ha 'to light a candle'

kasha sigareeti 'to light a cigarette'

kashaa tala 'to put on a lamp'

Muunt^hu/ shpenda chiint^hu/ tala/ hashaa kaa mate. 'When one loves/ likes something, he lights the lamp with spit (i.e. he can do/tolerate every thing).' (A proverb.)

Muḷo/ hashaa muḷo. 'Fire burns fire.'

Muḷo/ washiza ka chibiriidi. 'A fire was lit with a match.' Or with subject postposing: Washizaa muḷo/ ka chibiriidi. Or with an impersonal subject: Yashizaa muḷo/ ka chibiriidi.

Nashiizé. 'I lit a fire.' Cf. Ashiizé. 'You lit a fire.' Ashiize. 'He lit a fire.' Chashiizé. 'We lit a fire.' Nashiizé. 'You (pl.) lit a fire.' Wa'ashiize. 'They lit a fire.' (Note that even though there are morphophonemic differences between the first person singular subject marker ni and the second person plural subject marker ni, they do not contrast in front of a vowel-initial root. The vowel of ni in both cases fuses with the root vowel. In the present paradigm, this fusion does not yield a long vowel due to their already being a long vowel in the penult syllable.)

Sandukhuuni/ zimo zint^hu haakó. 'In this box there are things that are flammable.' rel.

k-aashika v. p/s. able to be lit

Muḷo/ hawaashiki/ apa. 'A fire cannot be lit here (e.g. it is too windy).'

Sandukhuuni/ zimo zint^hu haashikó. 'In this box there are things that are flammable.'

k-ashikila v. p/s. appl. able to be lit for Muḷo/ wize kumwashikila. 'The fire wouldn't start for him.'

k-ashiliza v. tr. appl. light for, with Chibiriidi/ ashilizee muḷo. 'A match, he used one to light a fire.'

Mafta/ yalazilo ka namaani/ chashilizaa tala. 'The oil that came from the meat [e.g. of the snake], she used it to light the lamp.'

k-ashilizoowa v. tr. appl. pass.

Chibiriidi/ chashilizaa muḷo. 'A match was used to light a fire.' (Note that in the case of a simple verb plus prepositional phrase construction, the object of the preposition cannot be promoted to subject of the passive verb: *Chibiriidi/ chashizaa muḷo/ kaa cho.)

k-ashoowa v. tr. pass.

Apo/ zamaani/ sulṭaani/ Harun Rashiidi/ tomele/ amri/ kuwa nt^haku/ rukhsa/ karka muuyivé/ kashoowa/mibeebe/ yaa muḷo/ walá/ kuḷaṭowaa ṭalá/ kaaká/ maskú. ‘Once upon a time king Haruun Rashiidi issued an order that there was no permission in the town for mibeebe of fire to be lit nor for lamps to be permitted to be lighted at night.’

Muḷo/ washiiza. ‘A fire was lit.’ Also impersonal passive: Muḷo/ yashiiza. Postposing also possible: Washiiza/ muḷo. ‘Was lit, the fire.’ And the impersonal version of that: Yashiiza/ muḷo.

Muḷo/ washiza ka chibiriidi. ‘A fire was started/lit with a match.’ (An impersonal passive is also used: Muḷo/ yashiza ka chibiriidi.)

Muunt^hu/ mzimawe/ washizaa ṭala. ‘The whole of the town was lit up by lamps.’ Or: Ṭala/ washiiza/ muuyi/ mzimawe.

Muuyi/ mzimawe/ washizaa ṭala. ‘The entire town was lit up with lamps.’ (Syn. But one can also say: Ṭala/ zashiiza/ muuyi/ mzimawe. ‘Lamps lit up the entire town.’)

Ṭala/ zashiiza. ‘Lamps were lit.’

Washiza muuyi/ mzimawé/ nii ṭala. ‘What the whole town was lit up by is lamps.’

Yana/ masku/ numbaani/ ka Alí/ yashizaa muḷo. ‘Yesterday night at Alí’s house a fire was lit.’ (The impersonal passive seems favored, but one can also have muḷo function as the subject of the passive verb: Yana/ masku/ numbaani/ ka Alí/ washizaa muḷo.)

Zashiza muuyi/ mzimawé/ nii ṭala. ‘What lit up the entire town were lamps.’

Zashiizá/ nii ṭala. ‘What were lit were lamps.’

ashaabu

n. pl. [cf. saahibu, the singular form] [Sw. sahibu "friend" SSED 438; Ar.] friends

ku-’aashiq

v. [Sw. ashiki SSED 19; Ar. ’ašīqa W 614] (ashiqiile) long for someone, be infatuated with someone, have a desire for someone; [usu. pron. ku’aaashikha]; variant form: kaashiq

Mi/ nim’ashikhile mooyi/ karka kaawo. ‘I longed for one among them.’

Mubjaana/ mooyi/ m’ashikhiile/ mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani. ‘A young man was infatuated with the daughter of the sultan.’

Ye/ hattá/ sku mooyi/ nt^hakumwona/ mwanaamke/ msuura/ kama oyo/ chim’aaashikha/ mwanaamke/ na ka paapo/ khalbiye/ chiyela/ mahabaye. ‘[If] even one day he did not see the beautiful girl like that [i.e. peeping out from the window], he longed for the girl and at the same time his heart filled with love.’

aashiqi (Ø, ma-) n., adj. [Sw. ashiki SSED 19] one who is in love, a lover, a playboy ashikhi uyu ‘this lover’

nt^hayiiiko aashikhi nt^hayiiiko manya’a [nt.] ‘there is no [thought of] dalliance or impropriety’ want^hu (ma’)aashikhi ‘lovers’

ashkali

[Sw. ashkali "better of health" SSED 19] how are you? (plural form: ashaliini) (formal greeting); the obligatory reply is: ashkali (invariable); better (SSED gives this word as a borrowing from Ar. aškāl “likeness, appearance” W 482, but Bravanese do not recognize this word as a borrowing from Arabic.)

kuwa ashkali ‘to get better (after an illness)’

Mada Imaamu/ ni ashkali. ‘Mada Imaamu is better now.’

Ni waana/ tu/ ashkali/ tu/ zihaba/ siwo/ wakuluu nt^ho. ‘It is just children, it’s just easy, small children are not grownups.’

asho	n. dinner Omari/ khiriḽe khpika asho. ‘Omari offered to cook dinner.’ Wo/ wachiya/ shṽaakuja/ asho. ‘When they come, we will eat dinner.’
ashuura	n. [Sw. ashura "ceremony of the tenth day of the month of Muharram at which a sheep is slaughtered to commemorate Abraham’s readiness to sacrifice his son; ‘The Counsel’, the title of Durs XLII of the Koran" M&N 89-90; Ar. ‘ aṣūrā ’ “name of a voluntary fast day on the tenth day of Muharram, day of mourning for Husain’s death” W 614] a celebration held on the tenth day of the fourth month of the Bravanese calendar (muharram in Arabic), which requires that one provides doubly for one’s family on that day masku ya ashuura ‘the evening of ashuura ’
ku-’ashuurata	v. [Som. canshuur , variant cashuur “tax” DSI 88; from Ar. ‘ uṣūr ’ “tithes” W 614] tax
aasi	adj. [cf. Sw. v. asi SSED 19; Ar. ‘ aṣīy ’ “rebel, refractory” W 618] disobedient hukhaadiro sho keendra aasi ḽaalimu [st.] ‘he who is able [to make the pilgrimage to Mecca], if he does not go, he is someone disobedient and a wrongdoer’ mtume onyeeza muunt^hu aasi sho khsala [st.] ‘the Prophet was shown a disobedient man who does not say his prayers’
aasima	n.[Ar. ‘ āṣima ’ W 617] capital (of a country, e.g.) Aasima/ ya Somaaliya/ ni Mkhodiisho. ‘The capital of Somalia is Mogadishu.’ nt^h iyi/ aasimaye ‘this country, its capital’
ku-’asiri	v. make hard Mojiitu/ chiyasiri/ sichi’asiré. ‘God, make things easy for us, don’t make things hard for us.’ rel. ku-yasiri v. make easy
ku-’asisa	v. [Ar. as “to found” and asās “foundation: W 15] (asisiile) found (an organization) (Notice that the perfect verb stem is irregular; one would expect * asisiize .) Matezo/ ya mpiira/ wa kuulu/ huhadoowa/ asliye/ asisiiló/ ni italiyaani. ‘The game of soccer (lit. ball of leg), it is said that the ones who originally founded it were the Italians.’
askari (Ø, ma-’)	n. [Sw. askari SSED 20; Ar. ‘ askar ’ “army, troops” W 613] soldier, policeman Askari awa/ wa’ile. ‘These soldiers came.’ Or: Askari izi/ ziile. ‘These soldiers came.’ (In the former example, askari is treated like a [cl.2] noun. In the latter example, it is treated like a [cl.10] noun.) askari/ bundukhuye ‘soldier, his rifle’; askari/ bundukhuze ‘soldier, his rifles’; ma’askari/ bundukhu zaawo ‘soldiers, their rifles’ askari uyu ‘this soldier’ (cf. askari izi or askari awa or ma’askari awa or ma’askari aya ‘these soldiers’; in the singular one does not say * askari iyi , i.e. askari in the singular cannot be treated as [cl.9]) Askari/ wamwenopo eeló/ washfakaṽa kumkhubura sulṽaani/ kuwa... ‘When the soldiers saw the gazelle, they ran to inform the sultan that...’ Askari/ wako numbaani. ‘The police were at home/ at the house.’ Askari/ waakopi/ tu. ‘Where are the police only found?’ Possible answer: Askari/ wako ṽeeshini/ tu. ‘The police are found only at the station.’ Askari/ tu/ wako numbaani. ‘Only the police are at the house (everyone else has gone or no one else came).’ bundukhu ya askari ‘the rifle of the soldier’; bundukhu za askari ‘the rifles of the soldier(s)’; bundukhu za ma’askari ‘the rifles of the soldiers’

Chimaliza/ wene ma'askari/ na makhaadimú/ wachiingila. 'Then he saw policemen and servants entering.'

Chiwa'ambila ma'askari/ wa sultaani/ langalaani/ jawaabu/ za zotte/ nza lila. 'He told the soldiers of the sultan: look, all my words are the truth.'

Iló/ ni sultani waa noka/ na ma'askariyé. 'The one who came was the sultan of snakes and his soldiers.'

kandika askari 'to recruit s.o. into the army; to join the army'; also kandikowa askari 'to be recruited'

Leelo/ hafisaani/ ka rasdente/ inakandikanowa askari/ waant^hu/ wiingi/ wa'enzelo kaandiká. 'Today at the district commissioner's office recruits are being registered for the police, many people went to sign up.'

Mada Nuuru/ andishile (ruuhuye) askari. 'Mada Nuuru joined the army.'

ma'askari miingi 'many soldiers'

Ma'askari/ wachimtaala/ wachendra naaye/ ka sultaani. 'The policeman took him and went with him to the sultan.'

Mchimbile askari. 'He ran from a policeman.'

Mi/ na askarizá/ chondroshelé/ kendra ijabali Khaafu/ kubadilaa hawa. 'Me and my soldiers left to go to Mount Khaafu for a change of air.'

Mwenye zijuumba/ izo/ ni mzele Simsimu/ na maha^laa ye/ hukaló/ wako majini/ wiingi/ nt^ho/ ndiwó/ ma'askariye. 'The owner of these nests is old Simsimu, and in the place where he lives, there are very many djinns and they are his soldiers.'

Naani/ tu/ wako numbaani. 'Only who remained at the house?' A possible answer: Askari/ tu/ wako numbaani. 'Only police remained at the house.'

Naani/ wako numbaani. 'Who was at home/ at the house?' A possible answer: Askari/ wako numbaani. 'The police are at home/ at the house.'

Numbaani/ tu/ wako askari. 'Only at the house/ at home are there police [i.e. they aren't anywhere else].' Or: Numbaani/ tu/ waakó/ askari.

Numbaani/ wako askari. 'At home/ at the house there are police.' Or: Numbaani/ waakó/ askari. 'The police are at home/ at the house.'

Numbaani/ wako askari/ tu. 'There are only police at the house/ at home.'

Numbaani/ wako naani. 'At home/ at the house, who was there?' A possible answer: Numbaani/ wako askari. 'At home/ at the house there were police.'

Sultaani/ waliko pele askarize/ amri/ kumlindra Sultani Daraayi/ khpata kumwegesha. 'The sultan had given his soldiers orders to wait for Sultan Daraayi to welcome him.'

Tuuma/ waawaye/ ni askari. 'Tuuma's father is a policeman.'

Uje muunt^hu/ chooloka/ chimv^lla askari. 'The man went and called a policeman.'

Watumila ma'askari/ khfitisha nuumba. 'Policemen were sent to search the house.' Or: Ma'askari/ watumila khfitisha nuumba. Or: Ma'askari/ watumila/ khfitisha nuumba.

rel.

chi-'askari n. 7 in the manner, style of soldiers, police

Waana/ wanakhpowa tadrību ya chi'askari. 'The children are given military training.'

i-'askari (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

u-'askari n. 14 [Sw. uaskari] being a soldier or policeman

askari

n. [lit. police] small fish that attach to large sharks, a kind of Romera fish; good to eat

aslan

adv. [cf. Sw. asilani "never"; Ar. aslan "originally, primarily"; (with neg.) "by no means, not at all" W 19] never, ever

Omari/ hadiile/ mi/ mwanaashkewa/ simkabili/ mwana wa Nuuru/ aslan/ ni mwizi. 'Omari said: I will never make my daughter marry Nuuru's son, he is a thief.’

Sooloki/ aslan. ‘I won’t go. I’ll never go.’

asli n. 9 [Sw. asili SSED 20; Ar. asl W 19] origin Chimeera/ asli yaawo/ wo/ hulawaangana/ lamnaa nthatu. ‘If you trace their ancestors, they can be divided into three groups.’
kibri ni asli ya fitina zont’e [st.] ‘pride is the root of all discord’ Munt’u asli mbovú/ hiwowa ka steendroze. ‘A man of bad origin is known [to be so] by his deeds.’ did not mark final accent in notes, so need to review what the structure here is and whether there is a final accent na asliye karka jana ileesela [st.] ‘originally it was brought from heaven’ Nt’aná/ asli/ walá/ faðlí. ‘He does not have (either) ancestry (i.e. noble birth) nor manners.’ (A proverb.)
Want’u awa/ asli yaawo/ wa’ile Keenya. ‘Those men originally came from Kenya.’ Cf. Munt’u uyu/ asliye/ ile ka Keenya. ‘This man originally came from Kenya.’
Waant’u/ hukalo Mwiini/ wote/ ni wasoomaali/ ka sharii’a/ laakini/ chimeera/ asli yaawo/ wo/ hulawaangana/ lamnaa nthatu. ‘All the people who live in Mwiini are Somalis legally, but if one traces their ancestry they are divided into three groups.’
Wowi/ asliye/ ni matete yaa nvula. ‘A river, its origin is drops of rain.’ (A proverb.)

asmaa’ullaahilhusnaa Arabic set phrase: the good names of Allah (The “Chimiinization” of this seemed to include shortening of the final vowel, as indicated by the strikethrough.)

aspero n. aspirin; var. asperiina
Omari/ maamaye/ miilu/ na magoonji/ humlaaza/ ka wiingi/ oshele ka dakhtari/ ambiila/ nayo riihá/ andikiliila/ aspero/ kilaa muunt’i/ kunaa mbili. ‘Omari’s mother’s legs and knees always ache her, she went to the doctor and was told you have rheumatism and was prescribed two aspirins a day to drink.’

asraari n. [Som. asraar “magic” DSI 28, which specifies that it is the plural of Arabic sirr “secret”, cf. asrār W 404] astrology, magic mwenye asraari (lit.) a person of hidden things – i.e. a person who uses astrology etc. to give advice to people; s.o. who is religious, devout, and by virtue of this receives hints of what will happen in the future’

asriya adj. [Ar. asrī W 616] modern Skiizi/ teleefono/ asriya/ zilaziló/ zimo kila/ chiint’u/ huviloowa/ smaat/ foon. ‘Nowadays modern phones have emerged, they have everything, they are called smart phone.’
rel.
chi-‘asriya n. 7 in the modern manner
Numba/ ya Ali/ iwashiila chi’asriya/ ishishile peesa/ niingi. ‘Ali’s house is being bujilt in a modern manner, it cost a lot of money.’

asriya adj. in an expression meaning “afternoon tea with samoosas”:
Zamaani/ Miini/ waant’u/ ba’adi ya sala ya lapii/ wachendra migahayaani/ kuna chaayi/ asriya/ ka sambuusa. ‘In old times in Miini, people after afternoon praying used to go to the restaurant to drink afternoon tea and samoosas.’

assalaamu aleekum greeting: ‘peace be on you’

Astaghafiru n. Astaghafiru comes from the Arabic root for “forgiveness”. This ceremony was also held in Brava and other coastal towns (Merca, Mogadishu) in the spring. It involved a procession to the beach, including teachers and children from Koranic schools, prayers for rain at the end of the northern monsoon winds, and the slaughtering of animals on the sea-shore.

Mi/ nakuhadá/ isa/ apa/ chint^hu maape/ tarafu ya aada/ ya want^hu wa Miini/ yaa wo/ washfaanyó/ wakhtí/ ya Astaghafirú. ‘I will speak here now something, about a traditional celebration of the people of Miini that they conducted at the time of Astaghfiru.’

- astaale adj. possessing miraculous gifts, able to foresee the future
Oyo/ Hamadi/ ni astaale/ karaamaale. ‘That Hamadi is someone possessing miraculous abilities.’
Shekh Omari/ ni astaale. ‘Sheekh Omari is someone possessing miraculous abilities.’
shekhiya ni sheekhi astaale karamaale ni sheekhi Jeylaani [st.] ‘my sheikh is a sheikh who possesses miraculous gifts, it is Sheikh Jeylani’
- aswadi adj. black Nuuru/ ni aswadi looni. ‘Nuuru is of black color/type.’
Sabuura/ ni aswadi. ‘The blackboard is black.’
- atari n. [Ar. itr ‘perfume, scent’ W 619] scent, perfume Atari iyi/ inakunuunk^ha. ‘This perfume smells good.’
- ku-’aatiba v. [Sw. atibu ‘blame, reproach, find fault with’ SSED 20; Ar. ataba W 589] possibly a Swahilism (atibiile) blame, reproach (This lexical item was provided by Mohammad Imam, but is not known to Gelani Mohamed.)
- atqiya adj. (plural of taqiiyi) [Ar. atqiyā, from taqīy W 95] God-fearing, pious
- atqiya adj. pl. poetic (cf. taqiiyi) [Ar. atqiyā, from taqīy W 95] God-fearing, pious
- ku-’atilika v. [Sw. atilika ‘be injured, deformed, etc., as the result of an accident, illness, etc.’ SSED 20] (atilishile) suffer, be in hardship Naku’atilikaa ndala. ‘He is suffering from hunger.’
rel.
ku’atiloowa v. pass.
Siwo/ suura/ muunt^hu/ ku’atiloowa. ‘It is not good for a person to be put into hardship.’
ku-’atila v. (atiile) put in hardship, make suffer Hamadi/ nakichi’atila/ nakhsula kishkula ruhu ziitu. ‘Hamadi is making us suffer, he wants to take our souls out (from our bodies).’
kum’atila ‘to put him in hardship, make him suffer’ M’atiile. ‘He put him in hardship.’
Omari/ hupeenda/ ku’atila waant^hu. ‘Omari likes to put people in hardship.’ (Notice that when the object is indefinite, the verb does not get object marking in agreement with it.)
Siwo/ suura/ muunt^hu/ kum’atila meenziwe. ‘It is not good for one to make his friend suffer.’
Siwo/ suura/ muunt^hu/ ku’atila waant^hu. ‘It is not good for one to make people suffer.’ (Observe the possibility of the use of the verb without an object marker when the object is indefinite plural.)
ku-’atilanana v. rec.
ku-’atilananoowa v. rec. pass.
Siwo/ suura/ ku’atilananoowa. ‘It is not good to give one another a hard time.’
ku-’atilisha v. caus. (atilishiize)
- Atlasi n. Atlantic bahari ya Atlasi ‘Atlantic Ocean’

atoore n. actor
kana atoore ‘as an actor’ Hamadi/ vetee nguwo/ mp^hiya/ nakhfakhara/ kana atoore. ‘Hamadi wore new clothes, he is as proud as an actor.’

athari n. [Sw. athari SSED 20; Ar. atar W 4] trace, effect Ka want^hu wamooyi/ daaba/ ni daaba/ walá/ nt^haziná/ athari/ ilu ya wanaadamu.
 ‘For some people, animals are (just) animals, neither do they have an affect over human beings.’
We/ hu^hasawara/ kuwa hiisi/ athari / yaa we/ naayó/ ilu ya want^hu wiingine. ‘You may not be aware of the effect you have on other people.’

-tahathari qabla al'athari (arabic chimized- be careful before impact/damage) Tahaðara/ qabla/ a'thari ‘Be careful before the effect, impact, damage (happens).’ (Be careful, don't just let something happen with all the consequences that will have, try to stop it or minimize it.)

have not entered this in proverbs yet because of uncertainty concerning pronunciation - review
 rel.
*i-athari (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ku-athirisha v. [Ar. atara Wehr 3] affect Nvula/ ichiwa niingi/ hu'athirisha miyuundra. ‘If it rains a lot, it affects the farms.’
 rel.
*ku-athirikav. p/s. be affected Gele/ ishtilowa ibarmiliini/ ha^há/ miyaaka/ miingi/ ha'athiriki. ‘If maize is kept in a barrel, even after many years it does not go bad.’

ati interj. [Sw. ati or eti “a common int. or expletive expressing surprise, or calling attention. Generally can be translated by ‘I say!’, as it is from the verb tí, say, found in many Bantu languages” SSED 20] I say; is it true that...? an expression of doubt; (a way of suggesting that something is true but disclaiming or avoiding responsibility for the truth of the statement); exclamatory expression sometimes used to call attention; [pron. atí] Atí/ Hamadi/ ilé. ‘Is it true that Hamadi went?’
Atí/ Hamadi/ safiriile. ‘Did Hamadi travel (I am not sure).’
Atí/ ndiwé/ ondroka/ ka apa/ nt^huná/ rukhsa/ khpita ka apa. ‘I say, it's you; get away from here, you have no permission to pass by this place.’
Atí/ we/ naku^hawa kaziini. ‘I heard that you are quitting your job.’
Atí/ we/ nakhsafira Ameeriká. ‘Is it true that you are traveling to America?’
Haliima/ nambilee mi/ atí/ chisoma chibuukucha/ takhpita im^hihaani. ‘Haliima told me that (supposedly) if you read my book, you will pass the examination.’
Hamiisi/ nambiile/ mi/ kuwaa ye/ atí/ hupeenda/ khsooma. ‘Hamiisi said to me that he supposedly likes to reads.’

k-aatuka v. intr. [Sw. atuka SSED 20] (-atushile) split, tear, explode Chiguwo/ chatushile. ‘The cloth is torn.’
Chiguwo/ hachaatuki. ‘The cloth won't tear.’
Ichiwa/ haanzuye/ yatushile/ kaa mbele/ muke/ koðele lila/ Yuusufu/ ni mwaafakhi/ na ichiwa/ haanzuye/ yatushile/ ka chinume/ muke/ koðele wanaafakhi/ Yuusufu/ ni mooyi/ karka wakoða lila.
 ‘If it be that his garment is torn in the front, the woman spoke the truth and Joseph is a liar, and if it be that his garment is torn in the back, the woman spoke lies and Joseph is one among the tellers of truth.’

Mataanga/ yaye lpepo/ haṭá/ ya’atushile. ‘The sails filled with wind until they split.’

Ngoma huvumó/ hayraagi/ kaatuka. ‘A drum that beats loudly does not delay in bursting.’ (A proverb.)

Ngoma/ ichilaa nt^ho/ haatuka. ‘If a drum sounds loudly, it bursts.’ (A proverb.)

Skazeeni/ nguwo/ nt^ho/ borsaaani/ itaatuka. ‘Don’t squeeze too much the clothes into the bag, it will tear.’

Yuusufu/ anzizopo kondroka ka apó/ muke/ chimshika haanzu/ ka chinume/ chimgiita/ haṭá/ haanzu/ ichaatuka/ ka chinume.
‘When Joseph began to move away from there, the wife grabbed him by his outer garment from behind and pulled until the garment tore from behind.’

rel.

k-atukila v. intr. appl.

Chiguwo/ chimwatukiliile. ‘The cloth tore on or for him.’

k-atulila v. tr. appl. (atulile) tear, cut with Atulile chireenza/ shaati. [H!!H] ‘He cut with a razor the shirt.’ (This example from GM shows that he accepts a version of the instrumental applied where focus is placed on the instrument by locating it in the Immediately After the Verb position. In this sentence, the logical object is radically lowered in pronunciation. In the corresponding simple yes-no question, the out-of-focus shaati undergoes accent-shift: Atulile chireenza/ shaati? [H’H] It should be noted that Q-raising does not raise this out-of-focus element, which remains lower than the instrument. In the emphatic yes-no question, both phrases undergo accent-shift: Atulile chireenza/ shaati!? [H!H] The falling character of the final accent is notable in this exclamatory question. GM does not seem to utilize the register-lowering technique that MI does in emphatic yes-no questions.)

Atulile/ chireenza/ shaati. [H!!H!!H] ‘He cut with the razor the shirt.’ (Here there is focus on the verb, and the pitch level of the following phrases is radically lowered, indicating they are out-of-focus. The simple yes-no question confirms this point, as there is accent-shift in both of the post-verbal phrases: Atulile/ chireenza/ shaati? [H’H’H] ‘Did he cut with the razor the shirt?’ The accent-shift on chireenza was not as clear-cut as in the case of shaati, but the preponderance of the evidence from other examples favors considering shift in this situation to be obligatory. GM was not comfortable with an emphatic version of this question when the verb is focused.)

Atulile shaati/ chireenza. [H!!H] ‘He cut the shirt with a razor.’ (Our consultant GM accepts an instrumental applied verb where the logical object is located immediately after the verb and the instrument follows. However, in such a sentence, there is focus on the logical object and the instrument is out-of-focus. This is reflected by the fact that the instrument is radically lowered in pitch. The simple yes-no question confirms this point, since the instrument undergoes accent-shift: Atulile shaati/ chireenza? [H’H] In the emphatic version, the sentence-final accent has a decided falling character: Atulile shaati/ chireenza!? [H!H])

Mmatulile Nuuru/ shaati. ‘I tore Nuuru’s shirt.’ Or: Mmatulile shaati/ Nuuru.

Natulile chireenza/ shaati. ‘I used a razor to cut the shirt.’ (Phon. This example shows that in GM’s speech an instrument may be focused in the instrumental applied structure. The fact that the final-accent triggered by the verb does not extend past the instrument establishes that it is focused. It is not well-formed to extend the final accent onto the logical object: Natulile chireenza/ shaati.)

Natulile shaati/ chireenza. ‘I cut the shirt with a razor.’ (Phon. Notice that in the instrumental applied, GM allows the logical object to be located after the verb, with the instrument following. However, in this word order, the logical object is focused, and as a consequence the final-accent triggered by the verb may not extend past the logical object: Natulile shaati/ chireenza.)

Omari/ matulile Hamadi/ shaatiye. ‘Omari tore Hamadi’s shirt.’ Or: Omari/ matulile/ Hamadi/ shaatiye.

Omari/ matulile Nuuru/ shaati. ‘Omari tore Nuuru’s shirt.’ Or: Omari/ matulile shaati/ Nuuru. (Syn. The applied extension is used to permit the possessor, Nuuru, to be “raised” to object position. The human possessor must be marked on the verb in this case: Omari/ atulile Nuuru/ shaati.) (Phon. The yes-no questions: Omari/ matulile Nuuru/ shaati? and Omari/ matulile shaati/ Nuuru? suggest that when shaati is in IAV position, it is more likely to be regarded as focused than Nuuru is in the same location. This accounts for the shift of accent in Omari/ matulile shaati/ Nuuru? The emphatic yes-no question shifts accent in verb phrase elements without regard to focus: Omari/ matulile Hamadi/ shaati!? and Omari/ matulile shaati/ Hamadi!?)

k-atuliloowa v. appl. pass. (atuliila) be cut, torn with Shaati/ yatuliila chireenza. ‘The shirt was cut using a razor.’ (Syn. Our consultant GM accepts, in the passive applied construction, having either the logical object or the instrument as the subject. Hence in addition to the sentence above, he also accepts: Chireenza/ chaṭuliila shaati. ‘The razor was used to cut the shirt.’) k-atuloowa v. pass.

Tonele igoonjeye/ skuu mbili/ ba’adi ya katuloowa. ‘He reinjured his knee two days after surgery.’

k-aatula v. tr. [Sw. atua SSED 20] (atiile) tear something, make an incision, cut

Ali/ atile khaṭi yaa ye/ mwandikiliilo Nuuru. ‘Ali destroyed the letter that he wrote to Nuuru.’

Atile shaati/ ka chireenza. [H!H] ‘He cut the shirt with a razor.’ (This sentence has the canonical downstep intonation. The simple yes-no question simply raises the pitch on the second phrase: Atile shaati ka chireenza? [H!H] In GM’s speech, there is declination in the pitch level of the second phrase, though there is a very clear contrast between downstep and declination. The exclamatory question, however, shifts the accent in both phrases to the end: Atile shaati/ ka chireenza!? [H!H].)

Atiileni/ chibuuku. ‘What did he tear from the book?’ (A possible answer to this question: Atile ḵalaada/ chibuuku.

Baana/ atile chibuuku/ ḵalaada. ‘Baana tore the book the cover.’ Or: Baana/ atile ḵalaada/ chibuuku., with the same meaning. (Compare these examples with the one immediately below, where the notion ‘the book’s cover’ is conveyed by the associative construction: ḵalada ya chibuuku ‘cover of the book’. In the examples here, there is no overt marking of the relationship between chibuuku and ḵalaada. It is possible to put focus on ḵalaada in IAV position: Baana/ atile ḵalaada/ chibuuku. The presence of focus is indicated by the absence of radical downstepping on ḵalaada, but also by the corresponding simple yes-no question: Baana/ atile ḵalaada/ chibuuku? The shift to final accent on ‘book’ reflects its out-of-focus status. A third piece of evidence that ḵalaada is focused in this example is the fact that the sentence can be continued as follows: Baana/ atile ḵalaada/ chibuuku/ siwo/ lwarakha. ‘Baana tore off the cover of the book, not a page (of the book).’)

Baana/ atile chibuuku/ lwarakha. ‘Baana tore off a page from the book.’

Baana/ atile ḵalada ya chibuuku. ‘Baana tore the cover of the book.’ Or: Baana/ atile ḵalada/ ya chibuuku. Or: Baana/ atiile/ ḵalada ya chibuuku. ‘Baana tore the cover of the book.’ (We have not identified a significant discourse difference between examples where the head of the associative phrase groups with the associative particle, and examples where there is phrasal separation.)

Baana/ atile lwarakha/ chibuuku/ nt’akaatula/ ḵalaada. ‘Baana tore off a page from the book, he did not tear off the cover.’

Baana/ atile lwarakha la chibuuku/ siwo/ ḵalaada. ‘Baana tore off a page of the book, not the cover.’ But it is also possible to apply Head-R: Baana/ atile lwarakha/ la chibuuku/ siwo/ ḵalaada. (The version with Head-R instantiated cannot be followed by a NP contrasting with lwarakha: #Bana atile lwarakha/ la chibuuku/ siwo/ ḵalaada. ‘Baana tore off the page of the book, not the cover.’)

Baana/ chibuuku/ atile ḵalaada. ‘Baana, the book, her tore off the cover.’

Chibuuku/ atiileni. ‘What did he tear from the book?’ (When the verb is encliticized with =ni, it is focused and thus escapes the normal radical downstepping that a phrase initiated by the verb undergoes. The noun chibuuku is preposed, showing that out of focus NP’s may be preposed. A possible answer to the question: Chibuuku/ atile ḵalaada. ‘The book, he tore off the cover.’ Another possible answer is ḵalaadi/ atilo chibuuku. ‘It’s the cover that he tore off the book.’)

Chibuuku/ ḵalaada/ natiilo. ‘The book the cover I tore off.’ (The focus on the preposed NP ḵalaada triggers the pseudo-relativization of the verb.)

Chibuuku/ ḵalaada/ Baana/ atiilo. ‘The book the cover Baana tore off.’ (It is striking that in this construction with two bare NP’s, chibuuku and ḵalaada, that it is the latter which may be focused. Focus was not observed on chibuuku. It is possible for chibuuku to be the only complement preposed, but this preposing does not require focus: Chibuuku/ atile ḵalaada. ‘The book, he tore off the cover.’ We know that the preposed noun is not focused since the verb is not in pseudo-relative form.)

Haamidi/ mbozele Daawuudi/ chibuuku/ (ch)atiile. ‘Haamidi stole the book from Daawuudi and destroyed it.’ (The presence of the object marker on the conjoined verb is preferred.)

ḵalaada/ Baana/ atilo chibuuku. ‘The cover Baana tore off the book.’

ḵalaada/ Baana/ chibuuku/ atiilo. ‘The cover Baana the book tore off.’

Ka chireenza/ atiló/ shaati. [H!H'H] ‘It is with a razor that he cut the shirt.’ (The intonational pattern of a sentence such as this is interesting. Ordinarily, isolating a verb from its complement causes the verb to resist downstepping. But this clearly not the case here. A phrasally separated pseudo-relative verb like atilo is downstepped. In addition, the complement of the isolated verb is generally radically downstepped. But again this is not the case when the isolated verb is a pseudo-relative verb. We have indicated that in this case the complement undergoes some declination, but nothing more substantial than that. This point however needs confirmation.)

Mi/ natile jaładá/ chibuukú. ‘I tore off the cover of the book.’ (The projection of the final accent to the end of the verb phrase indicates the absence of focus in this sentence. The same absence of focus can be observed when the word order of the complements is altered: Mi/ natile chibuukú/ jaładá. Of course focus can occur on the IAV complement: Mi/ natile ^fjaładá/ chibuuku. The focus on jaładá is indicated by the somewhat raised pitch on it, the radical drop on the following complement, and the fact that the second complement displays default accent and not final accent. GM did not accept, however, focus on chibuuku in post-verbal position: ?Mi/ natile ^fchibuukú/ jaładá. It seems doubtful that there is a structural account of this gap; it seems more likely to be for pragmatic reasons.)

Mukhtaá wo/ wa’atilo miimbá/ zaa nsi/ badali ya kuława/ matumbo/ zilazile spaandre/ za ðahabu. ‘When they cut open the stomach of the fish, instead of intestines coming out, piece of gold came out.’

Nakaatula. ‘He is tearing (it).’

Nt’akaatula. ‘He did not tear (it).’

Omari/ atile Hamadi/ shaatiye. ‘Omari tore Hamadi’s shirt.’ Or: Omari/ atiile/ Hamadi/ shaatiye.

Omari/ atile shaṭi ya Hamadi. ‘Omari tore Hamadi’s shirt.’ Cf. Omari/ atile shaṭi ya Hamadi? and Omari/ atile shaṭi ya Hamadi? (One cannot have the verb agree with Hamadi: Omari/ matile shati ya Hamadi. Even putting the verb into the applied form does not make it possible for Hamadi to control object agreement: Omari/ matulile shaṭi ya Hamadi.)

Shaafi/ atile lwarakha. ‘Shaafi tore the piece of paper up.’

k-atula’atula v. freq.

Waawaye/ jisaa ye/ chiyó/ shtala sarbi/ chimvunaanga/ chimvunaanga/ chimvunaanga/ hattá/ chimwatulamwatula maluungo. ‘Her father, as he came, took sticks and beat her and beat her and beat her until he tore her body into pieces.’ (Observe that in the reduplication of a vowel-initial verb stem such as /atula/, when there is an object prefix that becomes the onset to the initial syllable, the object prefix is reduplicated along with the stem proper.)

k-atulika v. tr. p/s.

Chiguwo ichi/ hachatuliki/ na mwaana. ‘This cloth won’t be able to be torn by the child.’

k-atulisha v. tr. caus. (atulishiize)

Harameni/ mwatulishize mwaana/ lwarakha. ‘Harameni caused the child to tear up the piece of paper.’ (A periphrastic causative form is available here: Harameni/ mtile mwaana/ katula lwarakha. ‘Harameni induced the child to tear up the piece of paper.’)

k-atulishanya v. tr. caus. rec. (-atulisheenyee)

Wana awa/ wa’atulishenye mbarakha. ‘These children caused one another to tear up the pieces of paper.’ (A periphrastic causative version is also possible: Wana awa/ watilene katula mbarakha. ‘These children induced one another to tear up the pieces of paper.’) k-atulishika v. tr. caus. p/s.

k-atulishiliza v. tr. caus. appl. (atulishiliize)

Harameni/ mwatulishilize Baazi/ mwaana/ lwarakha. ‘Harameni caused Baazi’s child to tear up the piece of paper.’ (A periphrastic version of this sentence is possible: Harameni/ mtile Baazi/ mwaana/ katula lwarakha. ‘Harameni caused Baazi’s child to tear up the piece of paper.’)

k-atulishilizanya v. tr. caus. appl. rec. (-atulishilizeenyee)

Want’u awa/ wa’atulishilizenye waana/ mbarakha. ‘These people caused one another's children to tear up the pieces of paper.' (A periphrastic version is also possible: Want^{hu} awa/watiliene waana/ katula mbarakha. 'These people somehow induced one another's children to tear up the pieces of paper.')

rel. nom.

mw-aatulo n. 3

awa

demon. these [cl.2]

Awa/ naawó/ wa'ishize niingi. 'These ones (lit. these and those) lived a long time.'

Awa/ wamalizopoo kujá/ maama/ chiwa'ambila/ ya kuwa mwaana/ leelo/ nakhpowa ina. 'When these ones finished eating, mother told them that the child today would be given a name.'

Awa/ wamweenopó/ wachimweegsha/ walá/ nt^hawakumðukurila/ yaa ye/ wafanyiizó. 'These ones [his parents], when they saw him, they greeted him and neither did they mention what he had done to them.'

Wana awa/ nii wale. 'These children are tall.' (cf. Wana awa/ ni walee nt^ho. 'These children are very tall.')

awa'ahadi

n. A resin which is found on plants that grow in Somalia, in particular in the inner regions of Bay and Bakool. It is applied on swollen limbs (legs, feet) and on cheeks against tooth-ache. Also mixed with water and drunk as a remedy against kidney stones and bladder problems.

ku-'awaaða

v. [Som. cabaad (verb and noun) DSI 77] complain, lament over s.o., s.t., moan Abú/ awaðile kuwa mwaanawe/ umriwe/ hasaaydi. Abu complained that his son never helps.

Abú/ daa'imu/ nam'awaða Haliima. 'Abu is always complaining about Haliima.'

Abú/ n'awaðilile mi/ kuwa waanawa/ waliko washfanyaa nk^heje/ zaaydi. 'Abu complained to me that my children were making too much noise.'

Faaþima/ awaðile kuwa mubliwe/ umriwe/ hawaako/ numbaani. 'Faaþima complained that her husband was never at home.'

Fijiri/ nch^hoondroka/ nnaku'awaaðá/ nnaku'awaaðá. 'In the morning, I got up [and] was lamenting and lamenting [my situation].'

Hamadi/ nam'awaða maanawo. 'Hamadi is lamenting about your son [e.g. your son has been troublesome, etc.].'

Kilasku/ yaa mi/ namona Hamadi/ naku'awaaða/ tu. 'Every day that I see Hamadi he is just complaining.'

ku'awaða ka ulaazo 'to groan with pain' ku'awaaða/ kana naakufó 'to groan in pain as if he is dying'

Mi/ ka wiingi/ hu'awaða kuwaa mi/ nofeeté/ nt^ho/ khfanya ismu/ ya chiint^h. 'I often complain that I am too tired to do anything.'

Mi/n'awaðile kuwaa mi/ skupoowa/ fursa/ ya kudaf'ia ruuhuye. 'I complained that I was not given a chance to defend myself.'

Mi/ nim'awaðile Hasani/ tarafu yaa ye/ nkhinnyasetoo mi. 'I complained to Hasani about his cheating me.'

Mi/ skumkasa/ ye/ naku'awaaðó. 'I didn't hear him complaining'

rel.

ku-'awaaðana v. rec. (-awaðeene) complain about one another ku-'awaaðila v. appl.

Nt^hashkuwanaayo/ sababu yaa si/ ku'awaaðila. 'We did not have reason to complain.'

ku-'awaaðisha v. caus. cause someone to complain ku-'awaaðoowa v. pass. be complained about, lamented about

Omari/ naku'awaaðoowa. 'Omari is being complained, lamented about (e.g. he is always doing bad things).'

awaaði

n. [Som. cabaad (verb and noun) DSI 77] complaint; act of complaining, groaning

- awaje [cl.2] dem. those awa wachiingila awaje hulawa [nt.] ‘when one group enters [Brava], the others leave’ awaje wanazo peesá ‘those who have money’ Chiwa’ambila awaje waant^hu. ‘He said s.t. to those people.’
Wana awaje/ ni zigobee nt^ho. ‘Those children are very short.’
Wana awaje/ walanile kati kaawo. ‘Those children fought each other.’
Want^hu awaje wa’uzilo magaari/ wanaomole ashuuru. ‘Those people who bought trucks/ should pay taxes.’
- awalbuudi [Ar. awwal + ?bad’a “beginning” W 45] the first thing (in enumerating events, e.g.)
Muunt^hu/ fijiri/ choondroka/ awalbuudi/ hubiga mtimiino/ husala.
 ‘When someone wakes up in the morning, the first thing (he does) is to brush the teeth and pray.’
Muunt^hu/ islaamu/ awalbuudi/ mbele/ ni laazimu/ khsala. ‘For a Muslim, first of all, before (anything else), it is necessary to pray.’
- awaaldara n. [Som. abaaldarro DSI 5] ingratitude
- awali n. [Sw. awali SSED 21; Ar. awwal “first, main, beginning” and awwalī “primary, original, fundamental” W 35] beginning; first
 -a awali ‘of the beginning; eternal (of God) want^hu wa awali ‘the ancients’ hamdi nda mojiitu wa awali [st.] ‘praise is due to God the Eternal’ Mojiitu/ ndiyé/ wa awali/ na aakhirí. ‘God is the one of first and last.’
Islaamu/ wote/ hufuunga/ nt^hangú/ awali ya mweezi/ haṭá/ akhiriye. ‘All Moslems fast from the first day of the month (of Ramadhan) until its end.’
ka awali ‘the first moment after sunset; at, in the beginning’
Karka maskuu kati/ maskiini/ chufkula iboholi/ shṭomola ije iwaalimó/ yoté/ na maliizopó/ chizumbiza iboholi/ kamba awali.
 ‘Around the middle of the night, the poor man dug up the hole and took whatever was in it, and when he finished, he covered up the hole as it was originally.’
kuguursha mataanga niya leete awali [st.] ‘(before) taking the sand (from its place to use to clean with) state the intention first’
Mi/ nile awali. ‘I came first.’ (cf. Ye/ ile awali. ‘He came first.’) Muunt^hu/ awali/ humshukura mojiitu/ thaaniya/ maadamu. ‘One first thanks God, second, human beings.’
mwaana Faatima ndiye wa awali [st.] ‘the first one is Lady Faatima’ ni sunna soomu khfutura ka awali [st.] ‘it is best to break fast at the first moment after sunrise’ niingi ni khatari mila awali [st.] ‘many of the old traditions are dangerous (i.e. not religiously lawful)’ niya ni sharti kuwanaayo awali [st.] ‘[the statement of one’s] intention [to pray] is obligatory to have at the beginning’ waant^hu/ awali yaawo/ na akhiri yaawó/ ni maali ‘people whose beginning and their end is money (i.e. people who give importance only to material things’ review accent
- awaali n. [Som. abaal "1. gratefulness; 2. reward" DSI 5] gratitude; [pron. awaali or abaali]
Mi/ hutosha/ kuwaa mi/ hutasawara/ kuda’a awaali/ yaa mi/ nimkha’ishizoo ye/ kichisaydaa si. ‘I think I may claim the credit (lit. gratitude, reward) for having convinced him to help us.’
Nt^haná/ awaali. ‘He is an ingrate.’
Sa’iidi/ ni muunt^hu/ sho awaali. ‘Saiidi is a man without gratitude.’

awaamiiri	n. orders confirm two long vowels Abú/ khkasa awaamiiri/ ka tahaðari/ yaliko suura. ‘Abu’s listening to the instructions so carefully was useful.’ Chize kurasha awaamiiri. ‘We refused to follow orders.’
mu-’awaana	n. 3 help, aid
k-aawanya	v. [Sw. awanya M&N 103] (awanyiize) divide, distribute, give out Ali/ mtile Ji/ kawanyaa nama. ‘Ali persuaded Ji to distribute the meat (e.g. from the sacrificed animal).’ Awanya chakujaacho/ na want^hu wanayoo ndalá. ‘Divide your food with people who are hungry.’ Hamadi/ awanyize peesa. ‘Hamadi divided up the money.’ Mi/ nawanyiizé. ‘I have divided it up.’ Mi/ nawanyize maaliyá/ mafungu manné. ‘I divided my wealth into four shares.’ mukhta ukomelo wakhti/ wa kawanya mawiindó ‘when the time came to divide up the loot’ review accent Wachawanya peesa. ‘They divided up the money.’ wachaawanya wachimala/ teena ina’inedroowa [st.] ‘only after they have been blessed this way will people start to walk back’ Wachoondroka/ wachawanya maali/ ya mama yaawo/ walañiliiló. ‘They arose and divided the wealth that their mother had left to them.’ rel. k-awanyika v. p/s. (-awanyishile) able to be divided up Nama/ bilaa chisu/ hayawanyiki. ‘Meat cannot be divided up without a knife.’ k-awanyiliza v. appl. (awanyiize) divide up for (Syn. The primary object of the applied verb here is either a beneficiary or a recipient. However, the form does not permit both a beneficiary and a recipient to appear in bare form when there is a logical object. It is ungrammatical to say *Hamadi/ mwawanyilize Nuuru/ waana/ mazu. ‘Hamadi gave bananas to the children for Nuuru’s benefit.’ This point is not certain, as we did record: Hamadi/ mwawanyilize Nuuru/ waana/ peesa. ‘Hamadi gave money to the children for Nuuru.’) Chawanyilize mawiindo/ aya/ kati kiitu. ‘Divide the booty for us among us!’ Hamadi/ wa’awanyilize waana/ peesa. ‘Hamadi distributed the money to the children.’ k-awanyilizanya v. appl. rec. Waant^hu/ wa’awanyilizenye waana/ mazu. ‘People gave out for one another bananas to the children.’ (Syn. Observe that the reciprocal element may refer to the beneficiary while there is an overt recipient and logical object expressed in the sentence.) k-awanyilizoowa v. appl. pass. be distributed, given out (Syn. This passive applied goes against the general pattern in that both the beneficiary/recipient and the logical object given may be the subject.) Mazu/ zawanyiliza waana. ‘The bananas were given to the children.’ Mp^haka izi/ zawanyilizaa nama. ‘These cats were given meat.’ Nama iyi/ yawanyilizaa mp^haka. ‘This meat was given to the cats.’ Nuuru/ awanyilizaa mazu. ‘Nuuru had the bananas given out for him.’ Wana awa/ wa’awanyilizaa mazu. ‘These children were given bananas.’ (Syn. But one cannot say: *Wana awa/ wa’awanyiliza Nuuru/ mazu/ ‘These children were given bananas for Nuuru.’ Nor can one say: *Nuuru/ wa’awanyiliza waana/ mazu. ‘[Lit.] for Nuuru was given to the children bananas.’ CHECK) k-awanyoowa (awanyiiza) be distributed, shared iidi hufurahoowa, na zawaadi hawanyoowa [song] ‘on iidi there is being made joyful, na gifts are shared’ Mazu izi/ zawanyiiza. ‘The bananas were distributed.’

	watakaawanya thawaabu/ jisa buni huwanyoowa [st.] ‘they will distribute heavenly rewards much like coffee beans are distributed’
	rel. nom.
	mw-aawanya (wa-) n. one who divides; [pron. wa’awanya ‘ones who divide’]
	ma-’awanyo n. dividing mw-aawanyo . dividing, act of dividing awaari	n. [Som. abaar “drought, famine” DSI 5] drought, famine
	Killa/ maaka/ ichinshaarata/ jawaabu/ şakuuyó/ jawabu şakupatikanó/ kamba ni awaari/ kamba ni aarani/ ka mbuzi oyo. ‘Every year, it gave a forecast of what would come and could be expected, either famine or abundance of harvest by that goat.’
	Mwaka ayuu/ Miini/ ni awaari/ miyuundra/ yabakheete. ‘This year there is drought in Miini, the farms have failed to produce (crops).’
	Mwaka oyo/ apo/ ba’adiye/ yile awaari/ na ooni. ‘That year at that place afterwards came drought and thirst.’
awaayle	n. albino
aweeso	n. [Som. abeeso “family of poisonous snakes” DSI 7] a kind of large snake (apparently one that squeezes its prey to death, although it is possible that there is some confusion of this snake with another one name jiwiso , for which see below)
	rel.
	chi-’aweeso (zi-) n. dim. 7/8
	i-’aweeso (mi-) n. aug. 5/4 aweeso (Somali abeeso = family of poisonous snakes, DSI p. 7) NOTE: CLE etymo says it is not poisonous. Must be checked.
ku-’awina	v. [Ar. ‘ aun W 659] help
awlaadi	n. [Ar. plural noun awlād from walad W 1097] Arabicism male children awlaadi wa mtume ka jimla ni saba [st.] ‘the male children of the Prophet are seven in total’
awo	those [cl.2]
among those people.’	Hasani/ naayé/ waalimo/ karka waanthu/ awo. ‘Hasani (lit. and he) was Mooyi/ karka awo majini/ mwambiile/ Sa’iidi/ mi/ naawé/ ştakhteza khamaari/ laakini/ uje takhshiindró/ tamuja mweenziwe. ‘One among those djinns told Sa’iidi: I and you will gamble, but the one who wins will eat his companion.’
	Wana awa/ nii wale/ kuzida wana awo. ‘These children are taller than those children.’
	Wana awo/ ni zigobe/ kolko wana awa. ‘Those children are shorter than these children.’
=aawo	their chaawo shkapu chaawo ‘their basket’
	yaawo
	Wachendra nt^hi yaawo/ mwaana/ oyo. ‘They went to the land of his, that boy [lit. their (i.e. his) land, that boy].’
	zaawo
	Watetemesheze ziṭa zaawo. ‘They shook their heads.’

=aawo

possessive root, third person plural

chaawo [cl.7]

chibuku chaawo ‘their book’

kaawo [cl.17]

Aawó/ simeme lwavyuuni/ kaawo. ‘Aawo stood at their side.

Choondroka/ chunganyachunganya ziint^huze/ chishikaa ndila/ kendra kaawo. ‘He got up and gathered his things and took to the road to go home.’

kati kaawo ‘between them’

kaawo ‘at their place; for them; from them’

Mi/ siná/ ihtiramu/ kaawo. ‘I have no respect in their eyes.’

Mubjaana/ ichimlazima kuwakhabila wazeelewe/ kumera kaawo/ peesa. ‘It was necessary for the young man to approach his parents to seek money from them.’

numbaani/ kaawo ‘in, at their house’

Oloshela kaawo. ‘He went home (lit. to their place, i.e. his parents’ place).’

Spati/ ihtiraamu/ ka kaawo. ‘I do not get respect from them.’

Suufi/ mpeleshele mwaana/ kaawo. ‘Suufi sent the child home (lit. to their place, i.e. his parents’ place).’

Wachiwindaa nyunyi/ haṭá/ ilooni/ chimaliza/ wachiruda kaawo. ‘They hunted birds until dusk, then they returned home.’

laawo [cl.11]

waawo [cl.1]

moyi waawo ‘one of them’

mwana waawo ‘their child’

waawo [cl.2]

watatu waawo ‘all three of them’

wawili waawo ‘both of them’

waawo [cl.3]

mṭana waawo ‘their room’

waawo [cl.14]

yaawo [cl.4]

miṭana yaawo ‘their rooms’

yaawo [cl.5]

yaawo [cl.6]

yaawo [cl.9]

zaawo [cl.8]

zaawo [cl.10]

N^hawakhfungúla/ kana zaawo. ‘They did not open their mouths.’

awow awoow

interj. an expression that implies something bad is going to happen as a consequence of some action; [pron. awow/ awoow]

Awow/ awoow/ Hamadi/ boozele. ‘Hamadi stole s.t. (and there are going to be serious consequences as a result)!’

Awow/ awoow/ Hamadi/ mbishile Omari. ‘Hamadi hit Omari (and something bad is going to follow from this)!’

Awow/ awoow/ langala Omari/ shati yaa ye/ veetó/ inakuwala/ inakuzima. ‘Wow! look at the shirt Omari is wearing, it is flashing (lit. it shines, it goes out).’

awoo umuri

n. a kind of dance review

awoodi

n. power, ability, competence

Mi/ siisi/ kuwaa mi/ nayo awoodi/ ya kujiba su’ali izi. ‘I do not know if I am competent to answer those questions.’

Nii mbovu/ kumwona muunt^hu/ khfanya kila jawabu/ mbovu/ ka khisa/ khsula khpata peesa/ na awoodi. ‘It’s sad to see a man so corrupted by the desire for money and power.’

Omari/ nt^hakuhisa/ kuwa nayo awoodi/ ya khfanya kaazi. ‘Omari did not feel competent to do the job.’

awoori

n. [Som. aboor “termite” DSI 7] a kind of insect from the termite family

awraadi

n. [Ar. awrād, plural of wird W 1060] private prayers or devotions made at specific times by day or by night khsoma awraadi ‘to read prayers’

k-aawuka

v. intr. (-awushile) become detached, separated, peel off Igozi/ imwawushile. ‘His skin peeled (lit. the skin peeled off from him).’
Lwarakha/ ha^laawuki. ‘The paper does not peel off.’
Lwarakha/ lawushile. ‘The paper became detached.’
Maandra/ ikookoye/ yawushile. ‘The bread’s crust became detached.’
Maandra/ zawushile makooko. ‘The bread (pl.) became detached from its crusts.’
Ranji/ yawushile. ‘The paint peeled off.’

rel.

k-awukana v. intr. rec. (-awukeene) separate from one another

Jahazi/ zawukeene. ‘The boats separated.’

Waana/ wa’awukeene/ wamwenopo mwaalimú. ‘The children separated when they saw the teacher.’

k-awukila v. intr. appl. separate, detach for Lwarakha/ limwawukilile ka sahali. ‘The paper detached easily for him.’

k-awulila v. tr. appl. peel off for, peel off with Mwawulile mwaana/ mazu. ‘He peeled the banana for the child.’

Tete chisu/ kawulila bataata/ makaandra. ‘He took a knife to peel off the skins of the potatoes.’

k-awulilana v. tr. appl. rec.

k-awuloowa v. pass. (awiila) be peeled Maandra/ yawila ikooko. ‘The bread had the crust removed from it.’ (Note that maandra must be the subject of the passive verb, it cannot be ikooko: Ikooko/ yawila maandra. ‘The crust was removed from the bread.’) Mazu/ yawila igaandra. ‘The banana had its peel stripped off.’ (Note that mazu must be the subject of the passive verb, it cannot be igaandra: Igaandra/ yawilaa mazu. ‘The peel was stripped from the banana.’)

k-aawula v. tr. (awiile) detach s.t., peel s.t. off

Awile ijaraha/ ikooko. ‘He peeled the scab off the wound.’

Awile lwarakha/ ka lkutaani. ‘He detached the paper from the wall.’ (MI rejected omitting the preposition ka and using the noun lkuta without the locative enclitic. This contrasts with the examples involving detaching a scab from a wound or a peel from a fruit, where a double object construction is used without the preposition+locative alternative. One would guess that the difference is that paper is not inalienably possessed by the wall.)

Awile maandra/ ikooko. ‘He removed the crust from the bread.’ (The crust is an inalienable possession of bread. This seems to be required for the double object construction here. Compare the sentence: Awile ikooko/ ka chunguuni. ‘He detached the crust from the pot.’ Here the noun chuungu is put into the locative form and marked with a preposition. One cannot say: Awile chuungu/ ikooko. ‘He detached the pot the crust.’)

Awilee mazu/ igaandra. ‘He peeled the skin from the banana.’ (Note that one cannot say: Awile igaandra/ kaa mazu. ‘He detached the peel from the banana.’)

Awile ranji/ ka lkutaani. ‘He detached the paint from the wall.’ (It appears that the case of paint and a wall is not a clear case of alienable versus inalienable possession. Besides the example given here, MI also accepted Awile lkuta/ ranji. ‘He detached the wall paint.’)

Mtume mweene muke uso nakaawula [st.] ‘the Prophet saw a woman peeling skin off her face’

Nakaawula. ‘He is detaching it.’

k-awulika v. tr. p/s.

Lwarakha/ ha^lawuliki. ‘This paper cannot be detached.’

Lwarakha/ ha^lakawulika. ‘This paper will not detach.’

k-awuliza v. caus. appl. separate for, with k-awulizan(y)a v. caus. appl. rec. separate for one another k-aawuza v. caus. (awiize) separate (particularly people fighting) Wa'awize waana. 'He separated the children (who were fighting).'

k-awuzanya v. caus. rec. (-awuzeenye) separate from one another Waana/ wa'awuzeenye 'The children separated from one another.'

k-awuzanyana v. caus. double rec. (-awuzanyeene) Waana/ wa'awuzanyeene. 'The children separated one another.'

Check whether there is a possibly perfect wa-'awuzanyeene.

k-awuzika v. caus. p/s.
rel. nom.
mw-aawuko n. 3
ch-aawuza n. 7 the thing that separates ku-'awuna v. (variant of ku-'awina) Khadija [...] chim'awuna RasuulAllaahi Mhamadi [st.] Khadija helped the Messenger of God, Mohammad awoodi n. power

Omari/ nayo awoodi/ nawa'iwa/ ziṭa/ wont^he/ hapelekeki/ shari'aani/ haṭá/ shpelekoowa/ hashindroowi. 'Omari has power, he knows all the bosses, even if he is taken to court, he cannot be defeated.'

awuuri n. [Som. abuur "seeds" DSI 8] seed Awuuri/ yaa we/ takaaló/ takhshafó. 'The seed that you will plant (is that which) you will harvest.'
khtila awuuri 'to cultivate'
rel.
chi-'awuri (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-'awuri (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

aya [cl.4] demonstrative
Mikate/ sayá. 'The cakes are here.' Or: Sayá/ mikate.
Mikate/ yako apa? 'Are there cakes here?' Or: Apa/ yaakó/ mikaté? 'Are there cakes here?' Or: Yako apa/ mikaté? 'Are there cakes here?'
Or: Apa/ mikaté/ yaakó?
miṭana aya 'these rooms'
Miti aya/ (nii) mile. 'These trees are tall.'
Miti aya/ siwo/ milee nt^ho. These trees are not very tall.

aya [cl.6] demonstrative
Aya/ siwo/ mambo ya waant^hu/ akhyaari. 'This (lit. these) is not the behavior of a gentleman.'
Chawanyilize mawiindo/ aya/ kati kiitu. 'Divide for us the booty among us.'
Mashaka aya/ ni makulu. 'These doubts are large.'
Mayank^huku aya/ (ni) masuura. 'These eggs are nice.' (cf. Mayank^huku aya/ (ni) masuraa nt^ho. 'These eggs are very nice.')

Nt^hakuwanaayo/ majiibu/ miingine/ shokuwa aya. 'He did not have any other answer except this (one).'

aaya n. 9/10 [Sw. aya SSED 21; Ar. āya W 36] a verse in the Quran aaya/ ya khur'aani 'a verse of the Quran' aaya/ za khuraani 'verses of the Quran'
Aaya/ za khuraani/ hubayina halaali/ na haraamú. 'The verses of the Quran clarify what is pure and what is impure.'
Omari/ nakhsoma aaya/ za khuraani. 'Omari is reading verses of the Quran.'
Sheekhi/ huleta daliiḷi/ ka aaya/ za khuraani. 'The Sheikh brings evidence (on some religious point) with quranic verses.'

ayaje

[cl.4] demonstrative

Misala ayaje/ ni minasha. ‘Those mats are smooth.’

Misufuriya ayaje/ ya’uzilá/ yabeele. ‘Those pots that were bought got lost.’

mitana ayaje ‘those rooms’

Miti aya/ nii mile/ nt’o/ kuzida miti ayaje. ‘These trees are much taller than those trees.’

Nakuwoná/ misufuriya ayajé? ‘Do you see those pots over there?’ (The final accent on misufuriya ayajé shows that this is a yes-no question where an out-of-focus complement phrase undergoes accent-shift. If this were a statement, there would be default accent after the emphasized verb.)

ayaje

[cl.6] demonstrative

Basi/ shtaala/ ayaje/ mashuungi/ ya chizeelé/ mpeeló. ‘So he took those strands of hair that the old woman had given him.’

Majambi ayaje/ ni mataka. ‘Those mats are dirty.’

Makopa ayaje/ ni makulu. ‘Those cups are large.’

ayaamu

n. [Sw. ayamu M&N 104; Ar. ayyām, pl. of yaum ‘day’ W 1110] (the seven days of the) week; days (this meaning is confined to poetry and proverbs and comes directly from the Arabic meaning)

Abubakari ile Mwiiini/ ka faṭuura/ ayamu ije. ‘Abubakari went to Brava by car last week.’

ayamuu mbili ‘two weeks’

Ba’ada ya ayaamu/ muḅli/ chimwambila mukeewe/ ya kuwaa ye/ nakendra kaziini/ kanza khfanya kaazi. ‘After a week, the man told his wife that he was going to his job to begin to work.’

Haruusi/ na mukeewé/ wakaleent^he/ numbaani/ muda wa ayamu mooyi/ kama aada/ ya muuyi. ‘The bridegroom and his wife stayed indoors for a period of one week as is the custom of the town.’

ka muda wa ayaamu/ mooyi ‘for a period of one week’

Lada ya haruusi/ ni saba ayaamu/ na shidayé/ ni dawaamu. ‘The sweetness of marriage is seven days and its hardship is everlasting.’ (A proverb.)

na sku nt’atu ni ayaamu sa’iidi [st.] ‘and three days are blessed’

Sharti/ ka ayaamuye/ kendra khtaḷoowa/ maayi. ‘It is a must that it be the day fixed for water to be taken (from the well).’

ch-aayi (z-)

n. 7/8 tea

Chaayi/ chileseḷa na mgeeni. ‘Tea was brought by the guest.’

Chaayi/ leeseló/ ni mgeeni. ‘Tea, the one brought it is the guest.’

Chaayi/ ni chimulo. ‘The tea is hot.’

Chileseḷa na mgeeni/ ni chaayi. ‘What was brought by the guest is tea.’

Huseeni/ haani/ chaayi. ‘Huseeni does not drink tea.’

kandika chaayi ‘to make tea (lit. to put tea on fire)’

Sku mo/ muke/ nakhpika/ maskiini/ andishile chaayi/ muḷooni/ nakuliindra/ nini/ nakhpepela/ nakudhakhsha. ‘One day the woman was cooking, the poor woman was preparing tea on the fire, she was waiting, what, she was fanning (the fire), making it in a hurry.’

khtilila chaayi ‘to pour tea for’

Haliima/ namtilila muḅliwe/ chaayi/ adeesi. ‘Haliima is pouring for her husband tea with milk.’ Also: Haliima/ namtilila muḅliwe/ chayi cha adeesi.

Haliima/ namtilila muḅliwe/ chaayi/ cha ranji. ‘Haliima is pouring for her husband tea with just leaves.’

khtila chaayi ‘to pour tea’

Mgeeni/ lesele chaayi. ‘The guest brought tea.’

Muunt’u/ hafanyi kaazi/ haani/ chaayi. ‘The one who does not work does not drink tea.’ (A proverb.) (Observe that when the negative verb is a relative verb, there is no phrasal break between it and its complement – hafanyi kaazi – whereas when it is a main verb, there is a phrasal break, as in haani/ chaayi .) Wabariziile/ wanakistereha/ ka zayi zaawo/ na tambu yaawó. ‘They were settled down, comfortably, with their tea and their tambú .’

	rel.
	ch-aahi n. good tea
	Haliima/ mgahawawe/ chaahi/ huuzika/ sababu/ hukabila joozi/ chayiini. ‘Haliimu at her restaurant sells very good tea. because she adds joozi in the tea.’
ku-’ayida	v. [Ar. ayīd W 37] (ayidiile) support, second (an idea)
	Si/ shiwa’ayidiile/ waarabu/ ka haali/ na maali/ na ba’aōi ya doḅla za chi’aafrika/ wapeleshele/ ma’askari/ yaawo/ khsaayda/ nṭhi za ch’arabu. ‘We supported the Arabs with strength and money and some of the government of Africa sent soldiers to help the Arab countries.’
	Wo/ wam’ayidile Abú/ kuwanayoo ndila/ kudorsata weenzawe. ‘They supported Abu’s right to choose his friends.’
ku-’ayina	v. [Ar. ’ayīn W 662] (ayiniile) clarify, indicate; appoint s.o. to be s.t.
	Hamadi/ nṭhaku’ayina/ shaati/ lamna gani/ nakhsuuló. ‘Hamadi did not clarify which color/ type of shirt he wants.’
	rel.
	ku-’ayinoowa v. pass.
	Chiinṭhu/ suura/ ku’ayinoowa/ sababu/ hayiyi dhibu (or wereeri). ‘It is good for something to be clarified so that (lit. for reason, cause) that difficulties (or confusion) not come.’
	ku’ayinoowa ramadaani laazimu [st.] ‘it is necessary for Ramadhan to be mentioned [when you state your intention to fast the next day during Ramadhan’
ayo	[cl.4] demonstrative
	mitana ayo ‘those rooms’
	Miti ayo/ ni zigobe/ kuzida miti aya. ‘Those trees are shorter/ than these trees.’
ayo	[cl.6] demonstrative
	Cheendra/ masku ayo/ chilala maduriini. ‘He went that night and slept in the bush.’
	Heendra/ Omari/ kuja/ ka maraḁi ayo. ‘It is possible that Omari will die from that disease.’
	Mi/ shkalaanṭha/ ilu/ ya majiwe ayo. ‘I used to sit on those stones.’
Ayuubu	n. the prophet Job
	Nazo sabri/ kana za mtume Ayuubu. ‘He has the patience of the prophet Job.’
ayuuuni	n. [Sw. ayuni M&N 105; Ar. ’uyūn , pl. of ’ain “eye” W 663] eyes (but usually meaning the “evil eye”)
	Omari/ ayuuuni/ impeetó. ‘The evil eye got Omari (i.e. he was affected by the evil eye).’
	rel.
	ayuni naasi n. [Ar. ’uyūn al-nās "eyes of people", from the plural of ’ain "eye, evil eye" W 663 and nās "people" W 936] Arabicism evil eye (cf. the usual Chimiini expression: ito ya waanṭhu ‘(evil) eye of people’)
	Ayuuuni/ naasi/ khatari/ humuḅla muunṭhu. ‘The evil eye is dangerous, it kills one.’
ayyi	part. any Mayti/ ha’ipishoowi/ ha’ibadiḅoowi/ ha’ifanyoowi/ ayyi/ ya chiinṭhu. ‘The corpse is not burned, it is not altered, nothing is done to it.’ (Excerpted from a discussion of burial practices in Brava.)
	Nama ya aleeso/ nṭhainá/ ayyi/ dhadhamu. ‘Boiled meat does not have taste.’

Sinaayo/ ayyi/ doodi. ‘I don’t have any complaint.’
 Skuula/ ayyi/ chiintu. ‘I did not buy anything.’
 Skuula/ ayyi/ shaati/ za rakhiisi. ‘I did not buy any cheap shirts.’

azali

n. [Sw. azali “eternal” SSED 21; Ar. azal “eternity” W 14] destiny, s.t. decreed by divine will; God’s place, the sky, the heavens
 Chiintu/ chandishila azali/ nt’i/ huwa. ‘Something that is destined (was written in the heavens), (on) earth it comes to pass (is, happens).’ (A proverb.)
 Yandishila azali (or: kuzimu)/ Omari/ leelo/ kufa. ‘It is written in the heavens that Omari will die today.’

k-azima

v. [Ar. ‘azima W 611] (azimiile) borrow (returnable items such as clothes or an umbrella) Ali/ azimile chibuuku/ ka Nuuru. ‘Ali borrowed a book from Nuuru.’ Azima. ‘Borrow it!’
 chisu chaa muke/ chaa Nuuru/ azimiilo ‘the knife of the woman that Nuuru borrowed’ (In this construction, the knife necessarily belongs to the woman. In an example like chisu chaa Nuuru/ azimilo kaa muké ‘the knife that Nuuru borrowed from the woman’, the knife is only in the woman’s possession, it is not necessarily hers.)
 Chooloka/ ka jiraaniye/ kazima sufuriya. ‘He went to his neighbor to borrow a pot.’
 Fijiri/ shtaala/ ije/ huunda/ yaa ye/ azimilo ka sultaani/ shtila katiike/ rupiya miya nt’haano. ‘In the morning he took that measuring tin that he borrowed from the sultan and he put in it five hundred rupees.’
 Isa/ we/ ile kazima mp^huundrá/ ambó/ kazima nk^hele za mp^huundrá. ‘Now, did you come to borrow a donkey or to borrow the brays of a donkey?’
 Mi/ kawanayo baaskiili/ su_{la} khaazima. ‘If I had a bicycle, I would lend it to you.’
 Mooyi/ karka jiraanize/ chiya/ kazima mp^huundra/ ka Abunawaasi. ‘One of his neighbors came to borrow a donkey from Abunawaasi.’
 Mwanaashke/ baaskiiliye/ we/ azimiilo/ uko apa. ‘The girl whose bicycle you borrowed is here.’
 Nguwo ya kaazima/ hayende_{loowi}/ jima. ‘One does not attend Friday prayers in borrowed clothes.’ (A proverb.)
 Ni njeema/ tu/ laakini/ mukhtaa we/ taku’azimo safari/ taala/ shpete ichi. ‘It is good, just, but when you decide [to set off] on the journey, take this ring.’
 Sku mo/ chiya muunt^hu/ kazima mp^huundra. ‘One day a man came to borrow the donkey.’
 Wa’azimiile. ‘They borrowed something.’ or ‘He lent them something.’ (The glottal stop that appears between wa- (whether it is a subject prefix or an object prefix) and the stem -azima is the result of a phonological rule that inserts a glottal stop between the low vowel a in a prefix and a following vowel. The glottal stop is not an indication that this verb stem has an underlying initial glottal stop.)

rel.

k-azimana v. rec. lend to one another

k-azimanika v. rec. p/s.

k-azimika v. p/s. (y-azimishile, y-azimikishile)

k-azimila v. appl.

k-azimisha v. caus. (azimishiize)

k-azimishan(y)a v. caus. rec.

k-azimishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

k-azimishika v. caus. p/s. (azimish)

k-azimishiliza v. caus. appl.

k-azimishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

rel. nom.

mw-aazimo n. 3 the act of borrowing

- ku-'azima* v. (azimiile) decide Abdalla/ mukhtaa ye/ peto khabari/ kuwa sultaani/ namviiá/ chimwingile shtiisho/ shkulu/ azimile kuzimila. ‘When Abdalla got the news that the sultan was summoning him, great fear entered him and he decided to escape.’
Ka dhibu/ kumwelela niingi/ mwaana/ chi'azima/ kondroka ka apo. ‘Because there were many difficulties weighing on him, the boy decided to move from there.’
Wabjaana/ wakasizopo khisa za jazira iyí/ wa'azimile khsaafira/ kendra jazira iyí. ‘When the young men heard the stories of this island, they decided to travel and go to this island.’
- ku-'azira* v. [Sw. aziri SSED 22; Ar. ‘azar and ‘azara W 610] (aziriile) a verb used in a very restricted sense and only (apparently) in a religious context; it refers to any punishment not specified in Sharia law, but decided by the teacher of a koranic school or a sheikh of a Suufi order for some misdeed, e.g. for not attending a ðikiri without justification (pashpo uðuri). It may consist of a public humiliation (public naming of the culprit) or in penances like bringing tea and maandra to the mosque or attend some extra ðikiri. In koranic schools, the pupil could be detained.
variant form: kaazira
rel.
k-azirika v. p/s. (azirishile; or, with doubling of the ik extension: azirikishile, this form deriving from the stem k-azirikika; this doubling was noted in several cases as a possibility, but we have not determined whether there is any meaning difference involved)
ku-'azirikisha v. caus.
ku-'azirikishoowa v. caus. pass.
- aziri* n. disgrace, shame
- aziizi* adj. [Sw. aziizi “precious, rare, valuable, and of persons, excellent, highborn” SSED 22]
dear, precious
Sheekhi aziizi ka Mooje/ maghani mba kingiloowa [st.] ‘the Sheikh is dear to God, his protection is to be sought’
- ku-'azula* v. [Ar. ‘azala “to remove, depose” W 610] (azuliile) remove s.o. from office, dismiss
s.o., dethrone a king Sultaani/ azuliile ruuhuye. ‘The sultan abdicated.’
- ku-'azuma* v. [Ar. ‘azama W 611] (azumiile) invite
rel.
ku-'azumika v. p/s.
ku-'azumisha v. caus.
ku-'azumishana v. caus. rec.
ku-'azumishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-'azumishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
ku-'azumoowa v. pass. (azumiila) be invited Karamuuni/ wa'azumiila masheekhi/ walangala noota/ na ma'akhyari wa muuyi. ‘To the feast were invited learned men, astrologers, and gentlemen of the town.’
- k-aazura* v. (azuriile) dismiss from a high position, office variant form: ku'azura
kazura ruuhu ‘to resign from office’
Waant^h/ awa/ watulubiile/ Niksoni/ ku'azura ruuhuye/ amó/ kendra karka mahkama/ ka khisa ðambi/ zaa ye/ ingiiló. ‘These people demanded that Nixon resign or go to trial because of the crimes that he had committed.’
- ba* particle [Som.] even Ali/ ba/ na Sa'iidí/ wabishiila na mwaalimu. ‘Ali (unexpectedly) as well and Saiidi were beaten by the teacher.’ Or: Sa’iidi/ na Ali/ ba/ wabishiḷa na mwaalimu. ‘Saïidi and (unexpectedly) Ali as well were beaten by the teacher.’

Amó/ mi/ ba/ naa nt^hi/ chisimeemé. ‘Or are both me and the earth standing still?’
Attá/ leelo/ mwanaa masultani/ hakhiiri/ ba/ kuja. ‘Until one day [lit. today] the son of sultans would not eat.’

Basi/ chimwaambila/ iyo/ tu/ iyo/ siwo/ ba/ chiint^hu. ‘So he told her: just that, that is not anything at all (i.e. that is easy to do).’

Fardoosa/ na Aashá/ wawiliwe/ ba/ hu’insha kharibu ya skoola/ so. [HHH!HHH]
‘Do both Fardoosa and Aasha live near the school?’ (We have not studied the prosody of ba in detail. In this example, ba is clearly lowered with respect to the pre-verbal phrases that precede it. There was no notable lowering of the following phrase, but this might be an effect of the particle so which generally suppresses downstep.)

Hamadi/ na Nuurú/ ba/ siwo/ want^hu haminikó. ‘Both Hamadi and Nuuru (even) are not people who can be trusted.’ Or: Hamadi/ ba/ na Nuurú/ siwo/ want^hu haminikó. ‘Hamadi (even) and Nuuru are not people who can be trusted.’

Hasani/ ba/ nt^hampa/ Nuuru/ peesa. ‘Even Hasani did not give Nuuru money.’

Haṭá/ kamwoná/ ba/ skampe. ‘Even if you had seen him, he would not have given it to him.’

Haṭá/ kampá/ ba/ skataale. ‘Even if you had given it to him, he would not have taken it.’

Haṭá/ kaayá/ ba/ skafaanye. ‘Even if he would have come, he would not have done it.’

Hawapeendi/ ba/ ziint^hu/ kubadilika. ‘They do not want, also, for things to change.’

inawe niizé/ ba/ ambó/ nsuliilé ‘whether I don’t or I do like it’

Isa/ ba/ mi/ nakhutahaḍarishá/ chiza keendra/ kumeera/ tafsiiri/ ka Ali. ‘Right now I warn you not to go looking for an explanation from Ali.’

Jiile/ ba/ ye. ‘He has already eaten.’

Kamaa mi/ ba/ chiza khtaambula/ kooḍi/ izi/ ka aqiliza/ mi/ khupeele/ ije yaa mi/ humiḷkó. ‘If I don’t decipher these words with my wits, I will give you (lit. I have given you) everything that I own.’

Kuraaga/ ba/ amó/ kudhakhá/ mi/ nt^hakuruuda/ kiitu. ‘Be it late or earlier, I will return home.’

Mp^hakiizé/ ba/ gaari/ majiwe. ‘I have already loaded the truck with stones.’ Or:
Mp^hakize gaari/ majiwé/ ba.

Muusa/ ba/ somele zibuuku/ zont^he. ‘Muusa also read all the books.’

Naamí/ stakump^ható/ zinawe zeema/ amo ziwovú/ ba/ ni tayaari/ kishpokela.
‘And whatever happens to me, be it good or bad, I am ready to receive it.’

Ni/ hanpeendi/ ba/ khkasa jawaabú. ‘You (pl.) do not listen to anything at all!’ (Phon. The use of final accent in the last phrase here is a phenomenon that requires further research.)

Oloshelé/ ba/ ye. ‘He has already gone.’ (cf. Noloshelé/ ba/ mi. ‘I have already gone.’ Choloshelé/ ba/ si. ‘We have already gone.’ But the pronoun may not precede ba; hence the ungrammaticality of Choloshelé/ si/ ba.)

Omari/ ba/ nt^hakhpoowa/ peesa. ‘Even Omari was not given money.’

Omari/ ba/ nt^hakuuya. ‘Even Omari did not come.’

Omari/ ba/ someele/ chibuuku. ‘Even Omari read a book.’ (Note that ba cannot be located in initial position: Ba/ Omari/ someele/ chibuuku. Nor can ba be put after the verb: Omari/ someele/ ba/ chibuuku.)

Omari/ ba/ somelo chibuukú. ‘It’s Omari who read the book.’ Or: Omari/ ba/ someeló/ chibuuku. ‘It’s Omari who read the book.’ (In this construction, where the verb is put in pseudo-relative form, ba no longer simply conveys the idea that even Omari read the book, but rather there is something noteworthy about Omari that makes it significant that he read it; perhaps, because he is an expert on matters relevant to the book, I believe what he has to say about the book more than others who may have read it.)

Omari/ ba/ tezeze/ mpiira. ‘Even Omari played football.’

Omari/ nt^hakuuyá/ ba. ‘But Omari did not come (if he had come, things would have been different; or, he would have gotten something, etc.).’ (Prosody. Ba is not lowered in pitch in an example such as this where it is post-verbal.)

Oyo mwaana/ hakhiiri/ ba/ kujaa kuja/ yee/ peeke/ illa/ nakhsula kuja na muunt^hu. ‘That boy refuses to eat food by himself, he must eat with someone.’

Sa’iidi/ oloshole/ ba/ numbaani. ‘Sa’iidi hasn’t gone home, has he?’ Or: Sa’iidi/ oloshole numbaani/ ba.

Si/ nt^haku/ hichiilóló/ hatá/ muunt^hi/ lata masku/ ba. ‘Us, there is no one who comes to us even during the day, let alone at night.’

Sultaani/ kumwonake/ ba/ chaanza/ kumpeenda. ‘The king, upon seeing him, began to like him.’

Waana/ na wazeelé/ ba/ wanakhsulowa sukhuuni. ‘Young and old as well should be in the market.’

Wawaliko waant^hu/ weema/ ka ahli yaawo/ na winginewé/ ba. ‘They were people good to their relatives and to others as well.’

We/ ba/ iizé, ‘Even you refused.’

We/ iizé/ ba. ‘But (remember) you refused.’

We/ oloshole dukaani/ ba. ‘(I came as we had agreed) but you had gone to the shop.’

Ye/ ba/ oloshole. ‘Even he has gone.’

Ye/ nt^hakeendra/ ba. ‘He (was supposed to go) but didn’t go; he went, didn’t he?’

Ye/ nt^hakhpakiza/ ba/ gaari/ majiwe. ‘Didn’t he load the truck with stones -- i.e. he loaded the truck with stones, didn’t he?’ Or: Ye/ nt^hakhpakiza/ gaari/ majiwe/ ba. (But apparently not Ye/ nt^hakhpakiza/ gaari/ ba/ majiwe. It is interesting that the element so exhibits a similar distribution.)

baa

n. Daddy

ba’a

n. plastic bag

Mwenye/ tukile nyaanya/ ka ba’a/ yimo nt^huundrú/ ye/ nt^hakiiwa/ nyaanya/ niingi/ sfutushiló/ fud fud fud!/ bila/ yaa ye/ kiiwa. ‘Menye carried tomatoes in a plastic bag with a hole in it, which he did not know, a lot of tomatoes fell out, fud fud fud! without him knowing.’

ba’ada

n. 9 [Sw. baada SSED 25] after, afterwards; variant form: ba’adi (This noun regularly serves as the head of an associative phrase which has a prepositional/ adverbial function.)

Alí/ anzize kubigaa nkhele/ ba’adi yaa ye/ khkasa/ ya Hamadi/ hadiiló. ‘Ali started shouting after he heard what Hamadi said.’

Ba’adi ya apo/ tu/ Faatima/ anzizo khpiká. ‘Only then did Faatima begin to cook.’

Ba’adi ya apo/ tu/ Fardoosa/ iwilo ka kuwaa ye/ nt^hakhaadirá/ khkalan^ha hatá/ jimaa ne. ‘Only then did Fardoosa learn that she could not stay until Tuesday.’ Or with emphasis on the main verb: Ba’adi ya apo/ tu/ Fardoosa/ iwiló/ ka kuwaa yé/ nt^hakhaadira/ khkalan^ha hatá/ jimaa ne.

Ba’adi ya apo/ tu/ Omari/ tinzilo go’aani/ khsafira Mwiini. ‘Only then did Omari decide to travel to Miini.’

Ba’ada ya ayaamu/ mubli/ chimwambila mukeewe/ ya kuwaa ye/ nakendra kaziini. ‘After a week, the man said to his wife that he is going to his job.’

Ba’ada ya wakhtí/ haba mo/ mooyi/ karka weenzawe/ wawili/ chiloota/ kuwaa ye/ wene ruuhuye/ uko mahala suura. ‘After a little time, one of his two friends had a dream that he saw himself in a beautiful place.’

Ba'adaa ye/ kuzaala/ mwanaamke/ oyo/ hupendoowa. 'After she gave birth (to a daughter), that girl was loved.'

Ba'ada ya muunthu/ kuuya/ Jeelaani/ chiiwa/ ya kuwa nthakuwaaliko/ Safiya/ walikoo muke/ mwiingine. 'After the person came (closer), Jeelani knew that it was not Safiya, it was some other woman.'

Ba'adi yaa ye/ kumziyara^{ta} maamaye/ ye/ daa'imu/ ni farhaani. 'After visiting her mother, she is always happy.'

Ba'adi ya mwaaka/ oyo/ nt^howa/ na ooni/ yiiló. 'After that year there came drought and hunger...'

Ba'adi yaa sala/ ku^{la} mooyi/ hum^lazima kendra kuzura wazaaziwe/ ah^liye/ na weenzawé. 'After the prayer (on the idi ya wamuusi) everyone is obliged to go to visit his parents, his relatives, and his friends.'

ba'adi yaawo 'after them'; ba'adi yiinu 'after you (pl.)'; ba'adi yiitu 'after us'; ba'adiya 'after me'; ba'adiyo 'after you'; ba'adiye 'after him or after that'; ba'adiye 'after that (lit. its after), then'

Sh^takhsafira ka fa^tuura/ ba'adiye/ ka arip^laano. 'We will travel by car, then by plane.'

Basi/ ba'ada khpita skuu nt^hatu/ ujee muke/ chimwambila Sa'iidi/ pandra teena/ mloongo^ti/ langala/ takuwonani. 'So after three days passed, that woman told Sa'iidi: climb up the mast again and look what you will see.'

Jawaabu /izi zont^he/ stakhko^oelowa ba'adiye/ nt^ho. 'All these matters will be discussed in depth later.'

Muke/ ba'ada ya kumzalila mwanaamke/ yampete mara^oi/ fiile. 'The woman, after bearing him a daughter, fell sick and died.'

Muke/ wa mmamulataa nt^hi/ ba'ada ya Yuusufu/ khkula/ kuwa mu^hjaana/ chim^tamana. 'The wife of the caretaker of the land, after Joseph grew up to become a young man, desired him (sexually).'

Mwaalimu/ takendra numbaani/ ba'ada ya kumaliza khfanya kaazi. 'The teacher will go home after he finishes working.'

...na kuwa takuruuda/ ba'ada ya skuu saba 'and that he would return after seven days'

Ndovu/ ba'a^oa/ ya khtⁱinda/ masaafa/ tulushile/ fiile. 'The elephant, after running for a long distance, fell down and died.'

Ndrazole numbaani/ ba'ada (or: ba'adi) ya Nuurú/ (kulawá). 'I left the house before Nuuru (left).' Or: Ndrazole numbaani/ ba'ada (or: ba'adi) ya Nuurú/ kuwa lazilé. 'I left before Nuuru left.'

Nile ba'adiyé. 'I came after him.'

Nile ba'adi ya Alí. 'I came after Ali.'

Nt^hakhuruudila/ ba'ada ya im^thaani. 'I will return it to you after the test.'

Si/ hashkoo^oeli/ jawabu iyi/ mpaka/ ba'adiye. 'We won't discuss that problem until later.'

Sungura/ ba'ada ya kht^omola/ salaamu/ chimwaambila... 'Rabbit, after extending his greetings, said to him (Lion)...'

Umí/ anzize khpika/ ba'adi ya mu^hjiwe/ laziló. 'Umi started cooking after her husband left.'

Waako/ waako/ wazazile waana/ ba'adi ya apo/ mu^hji/ chimpenda muke mwiingine/ sul^lile kumnoola. 'They had children and after that, (this) husband then loved another woman, and he wanted to marry her.'

ba'idi

n. other, else, besides

Fardoosa/ hukaha^{ta}/ so/ khsoomá/ ismu ya mada yiinginé/ ba'adi ya hisaabú. 'Does Fardoosa hate studying anything else beside math?'

Mi/ nimwambilee ye/ kuwaa mi/ speendi/ kumkasaa ye/ mara yiingine/ ba'adi ya isa. 'I told him I didn't want to hear from him any more.'

ba'iidi

far from, at a distance from, distant

Aamina/ chimshika mu^hjiwe/ mkono/ chendra naaye/ ba'iidi/ na waant^hu/ chimwaambila/ wa'ambile/ awa waant^hu/ kuwaa mi/ nt^hakujaariba/ kumfanyiliza mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ dawa/ heendra/ ye/ kaapolá.

‘Aamina held her husband’s hand and went with him far from people and told him: tell these people that I will try to administer medicine to the sultan’s daughter; maybe she will get well.’

Makaraayle/ washpatana/ masku yahaani/ huzimila/ ka apo/ kendra mahala ba’iidi. ‘The crows agreed during the night to flee from there to go to another place far away.’

ku-ba’ida

v. (ba’idiile) move apart, separate from, keep at a distance

Mba’idile mwaana/ na kaawo. ‘He sent the child far from home.’

Mba’idile mwaana/ naa muḷo. ‘He moved the child away from the fire.’

Mfanye mweenza/ munt^hu msuura/ mwovu/ mba’ide. ‘Make a friend of a good person, a bad one, stay away from him.’ (A proverbial saying.)

rel.

ku-ba’idisha v.

Karka ba’aḍi ya khasaara/ za uqabiila/ huleetó/ ni ya kuwa huba’idisha want^hu wa qabila mbaḷmbali. ‘Among the disadvantages that tribalism brings is that it separates people of different tribes.’

ba’aḍi

n. 9 [Sw. baadhi SSED 22] some, a portion of something ba’aḍaa (a contraction of ba’aḍi ya)

Ba’aḍaa waana/ wa’ile. ‘Some of the children came.’

ba’aḍi ya muunt^hi ‘part of the day(time)’

Ba’aḍi ya waana/ wa’ile. ‘Some of the children came.’

Ba’aḍi ya want^hu awa/ hala miyuundra. ‘Some of these people plant gardens.’

Ba’aḍi yaawo/ wapaanzile/ ilu yaa miti/ na ba’aḍi yaawo/ wafakeete/ pashpo kiiwa/ mahala wo/ wanakeendró. ‘Some of them climbed up trees and some of them ran away without knowing where they were going.’

ba’aḍi yiitu ‘some of us’

Ba’aḍiye/ hupenda kuḷangala tiiví. ‘Others like to watch TV.’

kuzuura/ ba’aḍi ya ahliye ‘to visit some of his relatives’

Lakiini/ inakihtajowa ba’aḍi ya ziint^hu. ‘But some other things are needed.’

Rupiya/ miya/ nt^haano/ izi/ ni ba’aḍi/ ya peesa/ zaa mi/ mp^hheetó/ ka kuza igozí. ‘These five hundred rupees are part of the money that I got by selling the skin.’ (Phon. Notice that although the verb mp^hheetó is separated phrasally from the prepositional phrase ka kuza igozí and thus one would expect the Accentual Law of Focus to come into play and prevent the final accent from being extended to the prepositional phrase, we in fact recorded final accent in our text. The explanation for this is at present not clear to us.)

Siimba/ ḷazile/ kachinume/ chaawo/ wa’ubleje ba’aḍi/ na ba’aḍi/ wa’ifakaḷiile.

‘The lion came from [their] behind and killed some of them and some of them ran away.’

Uko ba’aḍi ya kaazi hutala wakhtí/ miingi. ‘There are some jobs, they take a long time (to complete).’ (It is clear that this sentence does not employ a relative clause structure, since hutala wakhtí/ wiingi does not possess the characteristics of a relative clause, i.e., a final vowel o in the verb and final accent.)

Wa’incezele/ masaafa/ ba’aḍiye/ sungura/ chisimama. ‘They walked some distance, and then Rabbit stopped.’

Waana/ ba’aḍi yaawo/ wa’ile. ‘Some of the children came.’

ba’si

n. repulsiveness, hatefulness

Munt^hu uyu/ ba’siye/ haykhadiriki. ‘No one is able to tolerate this man (lit. this man, his repulsiveness, no one can tolerate it).’

mwenye ba’si ‘repulsive, hateful’

ba’athi

n. [SSED cites as a verb and only in a single phrase: siku ya kubaathiwa ‘the day of the general resurrection’] resurrection

baaba

n. 1 [see waawe ‘my father’ for the possessed forms of ‘father’] [Sw. baba SSED 23] (my) father

Baaba/ bishilee nk^heje/ kuwa waana/ wanakubigaa nk^heje/ nt^ho. ‘Father shouted

- that the children were making too much noise.’
- Baaba/ chimwuza mwaana. ‘Father answered his son.’
- Baaba/ chingilaa kuḷa. ‘Father began to cry.’
- Baaba/ maraḍi/ yachimziida/ chifa. ‘Father became more sick and died.’
- Baaba/ mtume Yaaquubu/ waliko ni muunt^hu/ mwenye ilmu/ aqli/ na hikmá/ mwajiitu/ mpeeló. ‘Father, the prophet Yaaquubu, was a man having knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom, which God gave him.’
- Baaba/ namsuula/ maama/ namsuula. ‘[Lit.] he wants father, he wants mother.’
Also: Waawó/ namsuulá/ maamó/ namsuulá. Hupati. ‘[Lit.] you want your father, you want your mother. It cannot be (or: you cannot have it so).’
Used when s.o. wants two opposite things that are mutually incompatible.
- Baaba/ shfurahaa nt^ho. ‘Father was very pleased.’
- baba wa Hamadi ‘Hamadi’s father’ (= Hamadi/ waawaye ‘Hamadi’s father’)
- baba (w)a nk^haambo ‘stepfather’
- Baabaa nk^haambo/ si baaba. ‘A stepfather is not a father.’ (A proverb.)
- ka baaba ‘paternal’
- daadá/ ka baaba ‘paternal grandmother’
- Mwaana/ humzika baaba/ baaba/ humzika mwaana. ‘The child buries the father, the father buries the child.’ (A proverb.)
- Naayé/ maama/ shfaanya/ jisa/ baaba/ fanyiizó/ chiwaviila/ wanawabli/ sittawe/ chiwa’uza/ nnakhsula maali/ amó/ raaḍi. ‘Mother also did the way that father had done; she called the boys, the six of them, and asked them: do you want wealth or [my] blessings?’
- Siwo/ mwana wa baabá? ‘Is he not father’s child?’
- wank^hulá/ ka baaba ‘paternal grandfather’
- rel.
- u-baaba* n.14 fatherhood
- baabo interj. all gone! nothing more! (used with children to tell them that there is no more food, e.g.) [pron. baabó]
- baabuuri n. 9/10 [Som. baabuur] motorcar Baburi iyi/ ndaaká. ‘This car is mine.’
rel.
chi-baabuuri (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. toy car
- badani n. 9/10 [Sw. badani SSED 24; Ar.] front part of the haanzu Hanzu iyi/ badaniye/ ifumushile. ‘This haanzu, its front part has unraveled.’
- baade interj. a word used to introduce a suggestion; [pron. baadé]
- ku-baḍata v. [Som. badi DSI 37] increase (number or quantity), make more abundant
- ma-badi’iyo Ichiwa kanayo/ ni nfuunge/ we/ laazima/ khfungula kanayo/ kendra khfanya propaganda/ kuhada/ jawaabu/ zaa we/ haamini/ kooloka/ ḍiddi ya mabadi’iyo. ‘If it be that you close your mouth, [in order to get ahead in the world] you must open your mouth and go and make propaganda, say things that you do not believe, go against your principles.’
- badiiḷa n. 9/10 [Ital. badile] shovel badila ya mtaanga ‘sand shovel’ khṭumba ka badiiḷa ‘to dig with a shovel’
- ku-badila v. [Sw. badili SSED 23] (badiliile) change, transfer, exchange Badiiḷe gaari/ majulu. ‘He changed the car’s tires.’
Badiiḷee nguwo. ‘He changed clothes.’
Haliima/ mbadiiḷe mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Haliima changed the boy’s clothes.’

kubadilaa hawa '[lit.] to change the air – i.e. to get away for awhile from one's regular routine'

Mi/ na askarizá/ chondroshelé/ kendra ijabali Khaafu. 'Me and my soldiers arose and went to Mount Khaafu for a change of air.'

kubadila/ kana shaati 'to change like shirts – i.e. to change often'

Omari/ hubadilaa wake/ kana shaati. 'Omari changes wives like shirts.'

kubadila maali 'to barter goods' kubadila zaamu 'to change the guard'

kumbadila muunt^hu/ chiṭaache 'to change someone's mind'

Omari/ mbadilīle Hamadi/ chiṭaache. 'Omari changed Hamadi's mind.'

kumbadila muunt^hu/ ongoye 'to change someone's mind'

Omari/ mbadilīle Hamadi/ ongoye. 'Omari changed Hamadi's mind.'

Naank^hó/ chimwaaambila/ mbadile m^wana uyu. 'Again she told him, change this child (in the context of the story: bring a different child to eat with you).'

Oloshole dukaani/ kubadila shaati. 'He went to the shop to exchange a shirt.'

Suufi/ badilīlee nguwo. 'Suufi changed his clothes.'

Suufi/ mbadilīle m^waana/ nguwo. 'Suufi changed the child's clothes.'

Suufi/ mbadilīle Nuuru. 'Suufi transferred Nuuru.'

rel.

ku-badilīla v. appl. (badilīlīle) change for, with ku-badilōowa v. pass.

M^waana/ badilīlaa nguwo. 'The child's clothes were changed.' (Cf. the ungrammaticality of a sentence where clothes is the grammatical subject: Nguwo/ zibadilīla m^waana. 'The clothes were changed the boy.)

ku-badilana v. rec. exchange, trade

Haliima/ badilenee nguwo/ na Maryamu. Haliima exchanged clothes with Maryamu.'

ku-badilika v.

Ka paapo/ apo/ zotte/ zaa ye/ loonzeló/ shpata/ ye/ loonile/ lchibadilika/ chiwa m^wusi/ usoowe/ uchiwa kama uso wa wataana/ na mavaaziyé/ yachibadilika. 'Immediately, all that he begged for, he received. His complexion changed, he became black, his face became like the face of slaves, and his clothes changed.'

Mi/ hubadilika luumbo/ kuḷa shpindri cha wakhṭi shchipita. 'I change my shape when each period of time passes.' (A riddle, the answer to which is chibḷi 'shadow'.)

Mwana uyu/ habadiliki/ nguwo. 'This boy cannot be changed clothes – i.e. this boy's behavior makes it difficult for someone to change his clothes, e.g. he moves around too much.'

Nguwo/ hazibadiliki. 'These clothes cannot be exchanged.' (Note however that one cannot have nguwo as subject if the person affected is present in the clause: Nguwo/ hazibadiliki/ m^waana.)

Si/ ka wiingi/ hukasa/ kuwa waant^hu/ bilhakhikha/ umriwaawo/ hawabadiliki. 'We often hear that people never really change.'

Tabi'a/ haybadiliki. 'Behavior cannot be altered.' (In the course of our research we have sometimes written ha'i rather than hay. Both pronunciations seem to be valid.)

ku-badilisha v. caus. (badilishiize) have s.o. change

Haliima/ mbadilishize m^waana/ nguwo. 'Haliima had the boy change his clothes.'

rel. nom.

m-badilo n. 3

ma-badilo n. 6

u-badilo n. 14

badili

n. 9 instead of, in place of, substitute

Abunawaasi/ lazile/ ka ijuniyaani/ ndimí/ ningiiló/ badiliye. 'Abunawaasi got out from the sack, it is me who entered it as his substitute.'

Badili ya khsooma/ Hamiisi/ hulangaḷa t̄iivi/ mpiira. ‘Instead of reading, Hamiisi watches football on TV.’
Hamiisi/ hasoomi/ badiliye/ hulangaḷa t̄iivi/ mpiira. ‘Hamiisi does not read, instead, he watches football on TV.’
Mi/ mp^hishile badili ya Haliimá. ‘I cooked instead of Haliima.’ Impersonal passives:
Ipishiḷa Haliima/ badiliye. ‘There was cooking instead of Haliima (lit. Haliima, instead of her).’ Or: Ipishiḷa badili ya Haliima.
Mi/ mp^hishile mpuungá/ badili yaa zijo. ‘I cooked rice instead of zijo.’ Or a passive:
Mpuunga/ upishiḷa badili yaa zijo. ‘Rice was cooked instead of zijo.’
munt^hu waa ye/ oloshelo badiliyé ‘the man whom he went in place of (him)’ (cf. Oloshelo badili ya Nuuru. ‘He went in place of Nuuru.’) ruuhu ichilawa nt^haku badiliye [nt.] ‘if you lose your life there isn’t another one’ Sultaani/ ka paapo/ chiwa’iwisha/ waant^hu/ wotte/ ya kuwa mkeewe/ Hasani/ ndiyé/ takuwo sultaani/ badiliye. ‘The sultan at that same moment made it known to all the people that his son-in-law Hasani is the one who will become sultan in his place.’
Zijo/ spishiḷa badili ya mpuunga. ‘Zijo was cooked instead of it rice.’

- baadiri n. [It. padre] priest
rel.
m-baadiri (wa-, ma-) n. priest mbadiri uyu ‘this priest’; mabadiri awa (*aya) ‘these priests’; wabadiri awa ‘these priests’ kabaadiri n. church (Morph. Note that one does not say kabadiriini, whereas for kaniisa ‘church’ one does say kanisiini.)
Omari/ uko kabaadiri. ‘Omari is at the church.’
- badiroone n. [Ital. padrone] owner, boss
- baado [Sw. bado "not yet" SSED 24]
mwana wa baado [lit.] child of not yet -- meaning: first born child’; this expression can be applied to either parent, i.e. it can be the first born for the mother but not for the father, or vice versa.
- baduwi n. nomad
Apo/ muyiini/ waliko baduwi/ kaaziye/ sh̄inda hoola/ chuzaa nama. There in the town was a nomad whose work was slaughtering animals and selling the meat.’
Baduwi uyu/ sh̄inda/ ije/ humwiililó/ mbeleyé/ mp^haka/ mbwa/ na hattá/ wanaadamú/ na chidanganya/ nama/ za hoola/ ma za wanaadamú/ chiwa’uliza/ want^hu wa muuyi/ walá/ nt^haku/ chiiwó. ‘This nomad slaughtered whatever came in front of him: cats, dogs, and even human beings, and he mixed up the meat of animals with the meat of humans and he sold it to the people of the town, nor was there anyone who knew [what he was doing].’
- baaḍi in the expression:
kingila baaḍi ‘to go astray’ muunt^hu/ mooyi/ ngamiilaye/ yingilo baaḍi ‘one man whose camel had gone astray’
- baḍiri adj. [Sw. -badhiri, -badhirifu SSED 24] one who squanders munt^hu mbaḍiri ‘someone who squanders’, want^hu wabaḍiri ‘people who squander’, chijint^hu chibaḍiri ‘someone dim. who squanders’, zijint^hu zibaḍiri ‘dim. people who squander’, ijint^hu ibaḍiri ‘someone aug. who squanders’, mijint^hu mibaḍiri ‘aug. people who squander’

ku-baðira	v. [Sw. badhiri SSED 24; Ar. baðara W 48] () squander (esp. money) Chizu la kuwa taajiri/ sibaðizé/ maaliyo . ‘If you want to be rich, don’t squander your money.’
u-baðirifu	n. 14. [Sw. ubadhirifu] extravagance, squandering of money
baf	ideo. of breaking of bone Hamadi/ mkono/ umvundishile/ baf . ‘Hamadi’s hand broke baf !’ Mwenye/ mvunzile mwaana/ mkono/ baf! ‘Hamadi broke the child’s hand.’
bafta	n. 9 [Sw. bafta SSED 24] white cotton cloth (imported, from Japan, e.g.) bafta iyi ‘this cloth’ melpé/ kana bafta ‘someone white as bafta ’; nelpé/ kana bafta ‘something white as bafta ’
i-baafu	n. [Som. baafa DSI 32] large circular metal vessel with high rim, used to wash clothes ibafuuni ‘in the washing vessel’
baghali	n. [cf. Ar. baql , Som. bagal] a kind of aromatic large-leafed mboga used to make salads, with a root that has a sharp taste like radish Baghali/ inayo vitamiina . ‘ Baghali has vitamins.’ kuja baghali ‘to eat baghali ’
baghali	n. mule Jeshi mooyi/ ishpandra farasi/ yüngine/ ishpandra baghali/ wotte/ wachoondroka . ‘One army rode horses, another rode mules, all took off (for the battle).’ Mp^huundra/ chimpantra farasi/ huzala baghali . ‘When a donkey rides (i.e. copulates with) a horse, it gives birth to a mule.’
Baghdaadi	n. One of the quarters of Brava. In the 1880’s Sheikh Aweys built a mosque (miskiti wa Sheekh Uweesu/Aweeso) in a then empty area north of Mp^haayi . Soon a village of huts (ariishi) rose around it, which was called Baghdaadi (from Baghdad in Iraq) in of the seat of Sheikh Abdulqadir al-Jilaani, the patron of the Qadiriyya brotherhood, of which Sheikh Aweys was a prominent leader. This village was originally separated from Mp^haayi by an area of bush (maduuri), but later extended to the south to reach Mp^haayi and became one of the main quarters of Brava. chimwini cha Baghdaadi ‘the Chimiini spoken in Baghdaadi ’ Muskiti’ aa malim Biimaaló/ wi-ko Baghdaadi . ‘The mosque of Malim Biimaalo is in Baghdaadi.’
ku-baha	v. [Som. bah- Ab 24] (beele) be or get lost, spoiled Ali/ chimbee/le chibuuku . ‘Ali, the book was lost to him.’ (This is the most natural word order. Also possible: Chibuuku/ chimbele Ali . ‘The book was lost to Ali.’ Or: Ali/ chibuuku/ chimbee . ‘Ali, the book, it was lost to him (i.e. he lost the book).’) Ali/ mwaana/ mbee . ‘Lit. the child became lost to Ali.’ Beelé/ we . ‘You are just talking, speaking words that will have no results, impact, etc.’ Chibuuku/ chibe . ‘The book is lost.’ Cf. Chibe/le chibuuku . ‘A book is lost.’ Chibuuku/ chimbee . ‘He has lost the book.’ (This simple sentence displays canonical downstep intonation; as such, it forms its yes-no question variant without accent-shift: Chibuuku/ chimbee? The exclamatory question obligatorily shifts the accent in the verb phrase: Chibuuku/ chimbeelé!?) Chibuku gani/ chaako/ chibeeló . ‘Which book of yours is lost?’ Chibuuku/ nch^haakó/ chibeeló . ‘It is your book that is lost.’ chint^hu chibeeló ‘the thing that is lost’; zint^hu zibeeló ‘the things that are lost’ Chisu chaa mi/ nuuziló/ chibe . ‘The knife that I bought is lost.’

Chisu chaa muke/ chibeeló/ shpeeta. ‘The knife of the woman which was lost has been found.’ (The subject marker on chibeeló makes it clear that it is the knife that was lost and not the woman. One could also say: Chisu chibeeló/ chaa muke/ shpeeta. ‘The knife that was lost of the woman was found.’)

Chisu/ chibeele. ‘The knife got lost.’

Hamadi/ chimbele chibuuku. ‘A book is lost to Hamadi – i.e. Hamadi lost a book.’
Or: Hamadi/ chibuuku/ chimbeele. Or less commonly: Chibuuku/ chimbele Hamadi. ‘The book is lost to Hamadi.’

Hamadi/ chisuuche/ chibeele. ‘Hamadi’s knife is lost.’ Cf. Hamadi/ zisuuze/ zibeele. ‘Hamadi’s knives are lost.’

Huseeni/ ka khkoða niingi/ sooti/ imbeele. ‘Huseeni lost his voice due to talking too much.’

Imbeele. ‘He lost it – lit. it is lost to him.’

Karkaa we/ nakuuyó/ mweené/ ngamiila/ mo/ beeló? ‘On your way coming did you see a stray camel?’

Kiwa kuwa belee ndilá/ ndiyoo ndila. ‘To know that you have lost the way that is the way.’ (A proverb.)

Maali/ bilaa daftari/ hubaha bilaa khabari. ‘Possessions without an accounting book get lost without information about them being preserved.’ (A proverb.)

Mp^handramp^haandra/ ikhubeele. ‘The trumpet is lost to you.’

Mwana uyu/ beele. ‘This child is spoiled.’

Oyo/ ni mwaana/ beeló. ‘That one is the child who went astray.’

Peesa/ zikhubeele. ‘The money (coins) were lost to you.’

Peesa/ zimbeele. ‘The coins were lost to me.’ (A boy might say this to his mother, as a way of not taking responsibility. The mother might reply: We/ bashiizé. ‘(No), you lost them.’)

Sibahé. ‘Don’t go astray!’ Sibaheeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t go astray!’

Wakhti/ ukhubeele. ‘You wasted time (lit. time was lost to you).’

Wana sitta/ wambele ka jis’iyo. ‘Six children were lost to him in this way.’

Ye/ belee ndila. ‘He lost his way.’

Zeema/ zaa we/ fanyiizó/ zibeele/ apa. ‘The good things that you have done are lost here.’

Zotte/ zibeele/ wa laakini/ zibeleeeyi. ‘All (my dreams) are lost, but how are they lost?’

rel.

ku-baasha v. (bashiize) lose something, waste time; lead someone astray; cause to be lost

Ali/ bashizee chisu. ‘Ali lost the knife.’

Ali/ bashize peesa. ‘Ali lost the money (i.e. he did something that resulted in the money getting lost).’ (In comparison, responsibility is deflected in: Peesa/ zimbeele. ‘Money became lost to him.’)

Ali/ chibashize chibuuku. ‘Ali lost the book.’

Ali/ mbashize mwaana. ‘Ali spoiled the child (causing him to go astray in life).’ (The periphrastic causative cannot be used in the sense of ‘spoil’; one cannot say Ali/ mtile mwaana/ kubaha. ‘Ali instilled in the child to get spoiled.’)

Ali/ mbashize mwaana. ‘Ali got the child lost.’ (A periphrastic causative could be used in this sense: Ali/ mtile mwaana/ kubaha. ‘Ali (somehow) induced the child to get lost.’)

Bashize maaliye. ‘He squandered his wealth.’

Bashize maaliye/ bashiizó. ‘He squandered his wealth, that’s what he did.’

Chibuku gani/ (chaa) we/ bashiizó. ‘Which book did you lose?’

Chichibashiizé. ‘We have lost it [cl.7].’

Hamadi/ bashize peesa. ‘Hamadi lost the money. (This sentence implies culpability on the part of Hamadi.)

Ji/ bashize chibuuku. ‘Ji lost a book.’ (Cf. Ji/ chibashize chibuuku. ‘Ji lost the book.’)

Ji/ chibashiize. ‘Ji lost it [cl.7].’ (It is ungrammatical to have neither an object prefix nor an overt object: Ji/ bashiize.) kubasha hayaatiye ‘(lit.) to lose one’s life – i.e. to kill oneself doing something'

Alí/ nakubasha hayaatiye/ tu/ ka kazi iyo. 'Ali is just killing himself with that job.'

kubasha ina 'to lose one's name, reputation' kubashaa ndila 'to cause to lose one's way'

Mbashize mwaana/ ndila. 'He caused the child to lose his way.'

kubashaa nguvu 'to waste energy, strength'

kubasha peesa 'to waste money'

Bashize peesá. 'You squandered (your) money.'

kubasha wakhti 'to waste time'

Abú/ bashize wakhti/ haba/ kubiga telefono/ mara ya piili. 'Abu wasted little time making another (lit. a second time) phone call.'

Abú/ bashize wakhtiwe/ kujariba khumfanya Omari/ mabsuuti. 'Abu has wasted his time trying to please Omari.'

Bashize wakhti. 'You wasted time.'

Hamadi/ mwambile Omari/ we/ apo/ nakubasha wakhtiwó/ tu/ nt'aku/ chint'hu chimooyi/ chaa we/ takhpató. 'Hamadi told Omari: there you are just wasting your time, there is not a single thing that you will get (from what you are doing).'

Mwaanawe/ bashize wakhti/ ndilaani. 'Her child wasted (his) time (playing) in the street.' Cf. the negative version of this sentence and its phrasing: Mwaanawe/ nt'akubaasha/ wakhti/ ndilaani.)

Mwaana/ bashize chibuuku/ yuuzi. 'The child lost the book the day before yesterday.' Or with verb focus: Mwaana/ bashiize/ chibuuku/ yuuzi.

mwaana/ kabasha chibuukú 'if the child lost the book'; or: kabaashá/ chibuukú 'ibid.' (Note that in this example we recorded the ka-tense as not necessarily being subject to the Accentual Law of Focus, since in the second variant, the phrasal break after the verb does not prevent the final accent from being extended to the complement.)

mwaana/ kabasha chibuukú/ yuuzi 'if the child lost the book the day before yesterday'; or: maana/ kabaashá/ chibuukú/ yuuzi 'ibid.'

Mi/ sibashe peesá. 'I shouldn't lose the money.' Or: Peesa/ mi/ sibaashé.

Mi/ sibaasheni. 'What shouldn't I lose?'

Nichibashize chisu cha mpishi. 'I lost the knife of the cook.'

Omari/ bashize chibuuku. 'Omari lost the book.' (Prosody. This sentence exhibits canonical downstep intonation, and as such forms its yes-no question with no accent-shift: Omari/ bashize chibuuku? The exclamatory question as always shifts accent in the verb phrase: Omari/ bashize chibuukú!?)

Omari/ bashiize/ chibuuku. 'Omari lost the book.' (Prosody. When the verb is focused, the prosody of the sentence becomes non-canonical. In particular, the pitch on the verb is raised. In the corresponding simple yes-no question, the complement to the verb undergoes accent-shift: Omari/ bashiize/ chibuukú?)

Peesa/ ikhubeele. 'A coin was lost to you – i.e. you lost a coin.'

Pesa izi/ sibaashé. 'This money, don't lose!' (It should be noted that the verb is clearly downstepped relative to the preposed complement.)

Peesa/ zikhubeele. 'Money was lost to you.'

Si/ wont'e/ chaliko mut'aasifu/ Abú/ kubasha kaaziye. 'We were all sad about Abu losing his job.'

Sibaashé/ nguvuzo/ karka ziint'hu/ nt'azina manfa'á. 'Don't waste your strength on things that have no use.'

Sibaashé/ pesa izi. 'Don't lose this money!' (Recall that a sentence-final accented vowel has falling pitch. Although not sentence-final, sibaashé in this example exhibits the same falling pitch. This is presumably connected to the fact that there is a small pause between the verb and its complement.)

Sibashe pesa izi/ tu. ‘Just don’t lose this money (lose anything else, but don’t lose this money)!’ (This would be said by a person who is afraid that the other person might lose the money.)

Sibaasheni/ mi. ‘What shouldn’t I lose?’

We/ bashize mp^handrap^haanrá. ‘You lost the trumpet.’

Ye/ hachilati/ si/ kubasha peesa/ kumtomola Omari/ dhibuuni. ‘He wouldn’t let us waste money getting Omari out of hardships.’

rel.

ku-baashana v. caus. rec. (-basheene)

ku-baashika v. caus. p/s.

ku-bashiliza v. caus. appl. (bashiliize)

Shaafi/ mbashilize Muusa/ mwaana. ‘Shaafi spoiled Muusa’s child.’ (The periphrastic causative cannot be used in this sense of the verb:

Shaafi/ mtillile Muusa/ mwaana/ kubaha. ‘Shaafi caused Muusa’s child to be spoiled.’ But the sentence is grammatical if the meaning is ‘Shaadi caused Muusa’s child to get lost.’)

ku-bashilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-bashilizeenye)

Want^hu awa/ wabashilizenye waana. ‘These people spoiled one another’s children.’ Or: ‘These people caused one another’s children to get lost.’ (In the latter sense, a periphrastic causative is acceptable:

Want^hu awa/ watillilene waana/ kubaha. ‘These people caused one another’s children to get lost.’)

bahaluuli (ma-)

adj. easygoing person, who looks stupid but is not necessarily so, s.o. who does not care about anything

Ni muunt^hu/ bahaluuli. ‘He is easygoing.’

Ni waant^hu/ mabahaluuli. ‘They are easygoing.’

bahari

n. 9 [Sw. bahari SSED 24] sea, ocean

bahari iyi ‘this ocean’

bahari ya atlasi ‘Atlantic ocean’

bahari ya haadi’i ‘Pacific ocean’

bahari ya hiindi ‘Indian ocean’

bahari shuwaari ‘calm sea’

Bahariini/ apo/ chiwona jahaazi/ ya mkuulé. ‘At sea there he saw the ship of his older brother.’

Basi/ choloka oko/ bahariini. ‘So, he went there at the sea.’

Chilasila lfuwooni/ hupatikana bahariini. ‘That which is left on the shore is found in the ocean.’ (A proverb.)

kama kuwaka nuumba karka bahari [st.] ‘like building a house in the sea’

Naank^hó/ mwiimbili/ uko bahariini/ isa. ‘And again, the young boy is at sea now.’

Ni bahari. ‘[Lit.] he, it is a sea -- meaning: very deep and so large you cannot know it fully.’

Ghazaali/ ni bahari. ‘[The writing of] Ghazzali is so deep that it is impossible to comprehend him fully.’ (Note this common use making reference to (religious) writers.)

Lugha la chaarabu/ ni bahari. ‘The Arabic language is a sea -- i.e. deep.’

Oloshale tawala/ koowa. ‘He went to the sea to bathe.’

bahaariya (ma-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. baharia SSED 24] seaman, sailor, crewman bahaariya uyu ‘this seaman’; mabahaariya awa ‘these seamen’

Ingilopo jahaziini/ chiwapa mabahaariya/ amri/ khtomola ngiisha/ khsaafira/ mabahaariya/ wachimwaambila/ hachimliindri/ mugó. ‘When he entered the ship, he gave the crew an order to raise the anchor; the crew said to him: don’t we wait for your younger brother?’

Mabahaariya/ wachendra markabuuni. ‘The crew went to the ship.’

Mabahaariya/ wote/ na naakhuóá/ ni wanaashke. ‘All the sailors and the captain are girls.’

ku-bahatha	v. [Ar. W 42] (bahathiile) investigate; variant form: kubahitha Muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ laazimu/ kubahitha/ nt^hasa yaa ye/ khubala (or: khiira). [HHH!H!H!H] ‘One must investigate somethings before accepting it.’ rel. ku-bahathila v. appl. ku-bahathilana v. appl. rec. rel. nom. u-bahatho n. 14
bahaṭi	n. 9/10 [Sw. bahati SSED 25; Pers.] luck, fortune bahaṭi suura ‘good luck’ bahaṭii mbovu ‘bad luck’ Bahaṭi zaawo/ mbovu. ‘Their luck is bad.’ Bahaṭiye/ mbovu. ‘His luck is bad.’ Nt^haná/ bahaṭi. ‘He has no luck.’ Sho kuwana(yo) bahaṭi/ habiimishi. ‘The one who does not have luck does not trust to luck.’ (A proverb.)
ku-bahaṭisha	v. trust to luck, guess Mara maape/ muunt^hu/ laazimu/ kubahaṭisha chiint^hu/ sababu/ ni mojiitu/ tu/ na’iwo yakhiini. ‘Sometimes one must trust luck, because it is only God who knows certainty.’
bahiima (Ø, ma-)	n., adj. animal, s.o. stupid, oaf Ni munt^hu bahiima. ‘He is an oaf.’ (cf. Ni want^hu wabahiima. ‘They are oafs.’)
ku-bahitha	v. Oko/ Mkhodiisho/ mawaziiri/ wa khaariji/ wa nt^hi za chi’aafrika/ wakunt^hameene/ ili kubahitha/ mashaakili/ ya nt^hi zaawo. ‘There in Mogadisho the ministers of foreign affairs of the countries of Africa met in order to look into the problems of their countries.’
baahuunzi (mi-)	n. an illness whereby white spots and larger white areas appear on the skin, especially on the face and shoulders or chest; it usually affects teenagers
bajeela	n. [Ital. pagella] school report card, certificate Hamadi/ pisile/ imṭihaani/ pela bajeela. [H’H!H!H] ‘Hamadi passed the examination (and) he was given a certificate.’ (In Chimiini, in a sequence of two closely connected clauses, the initial accented syllable in the second clause has its pitch level reset to essentially the same level as the last accented syllable in the first clause. The symbol indicates this resetting. We assume that while each clause is at the end of an Intonational Phrase, these IP’s are recursively wrapped into a single IP.)
bajiya	n. 9/10 [Sw. bajia SSED25; Hind.] a small cake made of ground beans and pepper
m-baajuuni (wa-)	n. 1/2 a native of the Bajuni islands rel. chi-baajuuni n. 7 the language of the Bajuni islands, referring to the Swahili dialects of Pate, Siu, Lamu
bakayle	n. 9/10 [Som. bakayle DSI 39] rabbit, hare (Animate [cl. 9/10] nouns like this one typically show some [cl.1] behavior in the singular, but not as much [cl.2] behavior in the plural.) Bakayle/ chiiza/ kuuya. ‘Hare refused to come.’ Bakayle izi/ sfiile. ‘These rabbits have died.’ (Note the [cl.10] behavior of the demonstrative izi and the subject prefix, s- derived from zi- .) Bakayle/ ni hayawaani/ chihaba/ na chiḍa’iifú/ laakini/ chijaanja/ na chi’aakhili.

‘The hare is a mammal, small and weak, but clever and intelligent.’ (Observe that the adjective chihaba has a fixed noun class ([cl.7/8]), and in this example we see that the subsequent adjectives agree with it and not with the noun hayawaani.)

bakayle/ naa dafá ‘a hare and a hawk’

Bakayle uyu/ fiile. ‘This hare has died.’ (Morph. Note the [cl.1] agreement on the demonstrative uyu and the [cl.1] null subject prefix on the verb.)

Bakayle/ waliko nt^hiini/ yaa muti. ‘A hare was under a tree.’

Sku mooyi/ ondroshele/ bakayle/ mooyi/ ingile maduriini/ kumera chaakuja.
‘One day the hare left and went into the bush to look for food.’

bakhaamu

adj. s.o. who is a fool

Omari/ ni bakhaamu/ akhilize/ haba. [H!H!H!H] ‘Omari is a fool, his wisdom is small.’ (This example has two successive independent clauses. The symbol indicates that we have two successive Intonational Phrases, where there is pitch resetting in the second IP. Specifically, the initial accented syllable in the second clause is not downstepped, but rather raised to a level roughly similar to the preceding accented syllable or slightly above it.)

rel.

i-bakhaamu (ma-) adj. fool

bakhaari (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw. bohari “storehouse, warehouse, large shop, magazine, go-down, etc.” SSED 37; Hind.] storehouse bakhari ya jumla ‘a shop where things are sold wholesale’

Mi/ dakhli niingi/ hupata ka bakhaariya/ ya suukari. ‘I get a lot of income from my sugar store.’

baakhasho

n. [probably from the Som. noun baaqasho, from the verb baaqo “to be absent” DSI 34] The season when the sea is calm (bahari shuwaari), there is an absence of strong winds, and the temperature is high (approximately corresponding to the deeri and jilaali seasons). Also called mitanga miwili (cf. Sw. tangambili).

ku-bakhaṭa

v. (bakheṭe) miss, fail to show up, fail to come to fruition, fail to live up to expectations, not show up, be absent, skip (a class), come to nothing (in life), fail to grow (of crops)

Ali/ waanawe/ kilaa fijiri/ huwako haaḍiri/ skolaani/ hawabaakhaṭi. ‘Ali’s children are present at school every morninhg, they are never absent.’

Bali/ zibakheṭe/ ka nvula haba. ‘The corn plants did not bear corn due to the small amount of rain.’

Bakheṭe madrasaani. ‘He skipped school.’

Fasali iyi/ miyuundra/ yabakheṭe. ‘This season farms did not bear crops.’

Maṭezo/ yabakheṭe. ‘The game has been cancelled.’

Mwaana/ bakheṭe. ‘The child did not come; the child amounted to nothing.’

Omari/ bakheṭe/ safari. ‘Omari cancelled the trip.’ (The corresponding yes-no question: Omari/ bakheṭe/ safari? The emphatic yes-no question:

Omari/ bakheṭé/ safari!?)

Reeli/ ibakheṭe. ‘The train did not come; the train was late.’

rel.

ku-bakhaṭika v. p/s.

ku-bakhaṭiloowa v. appl. pass.

Sababu iyo/ hubakhaṭiloowa skoola. ‘That [type of] reason can be used for being absent from school.’ Or: Sababu iyo/ hubakhaṭiloowa/ skoola. (Phon. The simple yes-no question versions of the preceding two sentences: Sababu iyo/ hubakhaṭiloowa skoolá?, with no accent shift, and: Sababu iyo/ hubakhaṭiloowa/ skoolá?, with accent in the out-of-focus final phrase. The exclamatory yes-no questions that we were able to elicit is: Sababu iyo/ hubakhaṭiloowa skoolá!? and Sababu iyo/ hubakhaṭiloowá/ skoolá!?)

ku-bakhaṭila v. appl. (bakhaṭiile)

- Omari/ bakhātīlīleni/ skoolā (or: skolaani). ‘Why was Omari absent from school?’
ku-bakhatoowa v. pass.
Siwo/ suura/ kubakhatoowa/skoolā (or: skolaani). ‘It is not good to be absent from school.’ (Phon. The simple yes-no question shows accent shift in all except the initial negative: Siwo/ suurá/ kubakhatoowá/ skoolá? The exclamatory yes-no question also does not shift the accent in the initial negative: Siwo/ suurá/ kubakhatoowá/ skoolá!?) ku-baakhisha v. caus. postpone, cause to be late or not go Nuuru/ mbakhishize mwaana/ madrasaani. ‘Nuuru caused the child to not go to school.’
Nvula/ imbakhishize Ali/ kuya madrasaani. ‘Rain caused Ali to not come to school.’
ku-bakhishana v. rec.
ku-bakhishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-bakhishiliza v. caus. appl.
Nuuru/ mbakhishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ madrasaani. ‘Nuuru caused the Suufi’s child not to come to school.’
ku-bakhishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
Want^hu awa/ wabakhishilizenye waana/ madrasaani. ‘These people caused one another’s children to not come to school.’
- baakhi remain forever
Nt^haku/ chiint^hu/ huwo baakhi. ‘There is nothing that will remain forever.’
- bakhiili adj. Ø, ma- [Sw. bahili SSED 25; Ar.] stingy, miserly; n. miser Apo/ zamaani/ waliko muunt^hu/ bakhiili/ nt^ho/ hattá/ kharibilīle kuja manyalaye. ‘Once upon a time there was a man so miserly that he almost ate his fingernails.’
Bakhiili/ lisīla/ deeniye. ‘The miser was paid his debt.’ Or: Lisīla deeniýé/ ni bakhiili. ‘The one who was paid his debt is the miser.’
Bakhiili/ lisile/ deeni. ‘The miser paid the debt.’ Or: Lisilo deeni/ ni bakhiili. ‘The one who paid the debt is the miser.’ Or: Deeni/ ilisīla na bakhiili. ‘The debt was paid by the miser.’
Mali ya bakhiili/ hujowa na duudu. ‘The possessions of a miser are eaten by insects.’ (A proverb.)
munt^hu bakhiili ‘a miserly person’; want^hu (ma)bakhiili ‘miserly people’
rel.
u-bakhiili n. stinginess, miserliness
- bakhsha n. 9/10 [Sw. bahasha SSED 187] envelope
Bakhsha iyi/ ipeta ndilaani. ‘This envelope was found on the road.’
Bakhsha izi/ speta ndilaani. ‘These envelopes were found on the road.’
kambisa bakhsha ‘to glue an envelope shut’ khfunga bakhsha ‘to close an envelope’ Uzile bakhsha. ‘He bought an envelope.’
rel.
chi-bakhsha (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-bakhsha (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- bakhshiisha n. 9/10 [Sw. bakhshiishi SSED 25] gratuity, tip bakhshisha iyi ‘this tip’ Matālyaani/ huṭomola bakhshiisha/ suura. [H!H!H] ‘Italians give nice gifts.’ Matālyaani/ zamaani/ Miini/ washpa waant^hu/ bakhshiisha. [H!H!H!H] ‘Italians in the olden days in Brava used to give people gifts.’ (The phenomenon we have referred to as a “Continuation High” pitch was observed at the end of the noun Miini in this example. The juncture between a pre-verbal PP and a PP initiated by the verb is a favored location for the CH. This CH is not obligatory; for example, no CH was heard in the immediately preceding example. It should also be noted that the CH is particularly associated with a word-by-word pronunciation of a sentence, where there is a pause between words. For instance, in the elicitation session from which the current example comes, a variant of the sentence was given in such an isolative style: [Matalyaani^{CH}/...Miini^{CH}/ ...zamaani^{CH}/...washpa waant^{bu}^{CH}/...bakhshiisha]. Only the utterance-final phrase escaped a CH.)

bakht̪i n. 9/10 [Som.] carcass Bakht̪i iyi/ inakunuunk^{ba}. ‘This carcass smells.’
Inakunuunk^{ba} l̪yuundo/ kamba bakht̪i. ‘It is smelling bad like a corpse.’
kufa bakht̪i ‘[lit. to die carcass – i.e. to die like a worthless carcass’ Mfungaa miya/ bakht̪i/ hafungul̪i. ‘The one who fasts a hundred does not break the fast with a carcass.’ (A proverb.)
Muunt^{bu} nayoo ndalá/ haṭá/ bakht̪i/ huja. ‘A man who is hungry even eats dead carcasses.’ (A proverb.)

rel.

i-bakht̪i

Omari/ fiile/ kana ibakht̪i/ imooyi. ‘Omari died like a worthless carcass.’

bakht̪i

in the expression:

bakht̪i ya nasiibu ‘raffle, lottery’

Omari/ nt^{ba}akhshiindra/ bakht̪i ya nasiibu/ chimṭeleza mukeewe/ tu. ‘Omari did not (really) win the lottery, he was only joking (about winning) with his wife.’

ku-bakht̪ika

v. (bakht̪ishile) die (worthlessly and valuelessly), to die like an animal

Igoombe/ ibakht̪ishile. ‘The aug. cow died worthlessly.’

rel.

kh-bakht̪ikoowa v. pass.

Apo/ hubakht̪ikoowa. ‘That place is a place where one dies like an animal (i.e. if one goes there, one will end up dead, like an animal).’

ku-bakht̪isha

v. (bakht̪ishiize) bet

bakhuuri

n. 9/10 [Sw. buhuri SSED 40; Ar. bakūr “incense” W 43] a vapor made by burning certain herbs, used for medicinal purposes or as a scent; the verb kootela is used to refer to the act of covering oneself with a cloth to keep this vapor from escaping

bakhuri iyi ‘this vapor’

Haliima/ hupaka aṭari ya bakhuuri/ kiḷaa muunt̪i. ‘Every day Haliima puts on the scent of bakhuuri.’

Wake/ wachiḷawa hiiḍi/ hu’uunsaṭa ka bakhuuri/ na uudí. ‘When women finish their period, they fumigate with incense.’

baakoora (∅, ma-)

n. 910, 6 [Sw. bakora SSED 25, Som. bakoora “walking stick with crooked handle” DSI 39] walking stick with a crooked handle bakora zaawo ‘their walking sticks’ bakoraani ‘on the cane’ (The regular lengthening of a word-final vowel in front of the locative enclitic =ni has the effect of requiring that preceding long vowels shorten – in this example, both long vowels in the stem shorten.)

baakooraya ‘my walking stick’ (A noun with successive long vowels in the antepenult and penult syllables retains this length when a monosyllabic enclitic possessive element is appended, even though this extra syllable puts the first long vowel in a position where length would be expected to be lost.)

Chiruda numbaani/ khtala baakoora. ‘He went back home to pick up his walking stick.’

Chivalaa nguwo/ ka himaahima/ chiḷawa/ ndilaani/ laakini/ livele baakoora. ‘He dressed quickly and went out on the road but he forgot his walking stick.’

- Kiła mooyi/ nambige baakoora/ napate kubarāta adabu. ‘Each one (of us) should cane him, so that he learns good manners.’
- baakoora n. jack (in a deck of playing cards); an alternative name for this card is khulaamu
- baḷ conj. [Sw. bali SSED 26; Ar. bal "nay, rather, but, however, yet" W 71] rather, on the contrary, but rather
- Faatima/ hapeendi/ khsooma/ baḷ/ haandika. ‘Fatiima does not like reading but rather writing.’
- baḷaq ideo. of being soft, loose
- Hamadi/ iboloye/ ha’isimami/ ni baḷakh baḷakh! ‘Omari’s penis does not get an erection, it is flaccid, baḷakh baḷakh!’
- Omari/ maluungoye/ moloolo/ baḷakh baḷakh! ‘Omari’s body is soft (he does not have muscles, he is flabby).’
- ku-baḷama v. [Som. ballan v. DSI 40] (baḷamiile) promise
- Jaama/ baḷamile keendra. ‘Jaama promised to go.’
- Mi/ sinakuḷiḷiḷa/ nt^heendre/ mi/ nakuḷiḷiḷa zombo za waawé/ baḷamiiló/ kump^há. ‘I am not crying over the dates, I am crying over the things that my father promised to give to me.’
- Waawe/ baḷamile kundrooza/ muke/ mwenye jamaala/ na kunfanyiliza haruusi/ nk^hulu. ‘My father promised to marry me to a beautiful woman and to hold a large wedding for me.’
- baḷani n. [Som. ballan n. "promise, appointment" DSI 40] promise, appointment
- Baḷani/ laazimu/ khfulishoowa. ‘A promise should be fulfilled.’ (A proverbial saying.)
- Iwaaliko/ baḷani/ mi/ khupa/ usultaani/ kamaa we/ shkhaadira/ khtaambula/ maneenoya/ na maneno ya Ali/ pashpo kumuza muunt^hu. ‘It was a promise for me to give you the sultanship if you were able to understand the meaning of my words and the words of Ali without asking anyone [to explain them].’
- khpa baḷani ‘to promise’ (a phrasal verb) or ‘to give a promise’
- Basi/ we/ mp^ha baḷani/ kuwaa we/ chiḷawa/ ka apa/ kunk^huumbuka/ ka moojó. ‘So, you promise me that when you will leave from here, you will remember me to your master.’
- chibuku chaa mi/ nimpelo Nuurú/ baḷani ‘the book that I promised to Nuuru’ (This example shows that the secondary object chibuuku can be relativized on. The word baḷani, however, is part of the phrasal verb -pa baḷani and does not constitute a secondary object. Thus one cannot say: baḷani yaa mi/ nimpelo Nuurú/ chibuukú* ‘the promise that I gave Nuuru a book’. It is worth noting that -pa baḷani can mean ‘give a promise’ parallel to -pa peesa ‘give money’. In this usage, baḷani could be relativized on: Baḷani yaa mi/ nimpelo Nuurú/ skukhaadira/ kiyoofisha. ‘The promise that I gave Nuuru I was not able to carry out.’
- Laakini/ mwaana/ pele wazelewe/ baḷani/ kuwaa mara/ ya isa/chiruuda/ bila ya dughaaghi/ yaa ye/ ni ki’imeeró/ haḷakendra teena/ maduriini. ‘But the boy promised his parents that this time if he returned without [killing] the wild animal that he was looking for, he would not again go to the bush country.’
- Mi/ leelo/ nt^hakhulāta huri/ kamaa we/ chionooyeza/ Ali/ na chimp^ha baḷani/ kuwaa we/ huḷamwaambila/ muunt^hu/ yoyote/ kuwaa mi/ nenzele ka Ali. ‘I today will set you free if you show me Ali and promise me that you will not tell anyone that I went to Ali.’ (The final accent on baḷani in this example appears to be triggered by the preceding conjunction na, but in the best attested cases where na triggers final accent the complement of na is a nominal phrase and not a verb phrase. However, we have observed other examples involving the conditional chi tense. More research on this point is required.)

Mpele Nuuru/ bałani/ kooloka. ‘He gave Nuuru a promise (that he would go.’

Mp^hele bałani. ‘I gave a promise.’ (MI expressed some hesitancy whether to regard bałani as being an object to the verb that could be passivized: ?Bałani/ ipela/ naami. ‘A promise was given by me.’)

Nakhupa bałani/ kuwaa mi/ nt^h akhuleetela/ namayo/ paapa/ apa. ‘I promise to you that I will bring your meat to you right here.’ (The fact that the final accent in this example did not extend to the complement clause suggests that verb emphasis in a phrasal verb like -pa bałani is implemented by putting the phrasal break at the end of the phrase. But this phrasal break is vacuous in terms of phrasing since in any case bałani is at the end of a phrase. This demonstrates that it is not phrasing alone that identifies verb emphasis.)

Nimpele bałani/ Nuuru/ kumpa chibuukú. ‘I promised Nuuru to give him a book.’ (In this example, there is no internal focus and the final accent triggered by the main verb extends through the entire verb phrase. Cf. Nimpele bałani/ Nuuru/ mi/ kumpa chibuuku. ‘I gave a promise to Nuuru for me to give him a book.’ Notice that the final accent triggered by the main verb does not extend past the focused Nuuru; this is not clear with regard to the monosyllabic pronoun, since it has only one syllable and thus cannot reveal whether it has default or final accent. However, the default accent on the infinitive phrase makes it clear that the infinitive phrase is not within the scope of the final accent of the main verb. The following example makes it clearer that an overt subject for the infinitive fails to receive a final accent when Nuuru is focused: Nimpele bałani/ Nuuru/ Muusa/ kumpa chibuuku. ‘I promised Nuuru that Muusa would give him a book.)

Nimpele Nuuru/ bałani/ chibuukú. ‘I promised Nuuru a book.’ (Observe that Nuuru may be located between -pa and bałani without being focused. The absence of focus is shown by the final accent extending to the end of the verb phrase.)

Nimpele Nuuru/ bałani/ kooloká. ‘I gave Nuuru a promise to go.’ Or: Nimpele bałani/ Nuuru/ kooloká.

Suuyú/ myaana/ waa mi/ khpelo bałani/ khuleetela. ‘Here is the servant that I promised to bring to you.’

khpowa bałani ‘to be promised’

Nuuru/ pela bałani/ chibuuku/ naami. ‘Nuuru was promised a book by me.’ (Only Nuuru can be the passive subject. One cannot say: Chibuuku/ shpela bałani/ Nuuru. ‘A book was promised to Nuuru.’ Nor: Chibuuku/ shpela bałani/ Nuuru. Nor can bałani be the subject: Bałani/ ipela Nuuru/ chibuuku. ‘A promise was given Nuuru a book.’ What is possible is “passive inversion”, a phenomenon where the subject is put in Immediately After the Verb position and a non-subject preposed: Chibuuku/ pela Nuuru/ bałani/ naa mi. ‘A book he was given Nuuru a promise by me.’ In this construction, Nuuru remains the subject, as shown by the null subject marking on the verb.)

khtomolaa bałani ‘to extend a promise’ kofisha bałani ‘to fulfill, keep a promise’

kuława bałaniini ‘to break [lit. withdraw] a promise’ kuvunda bałani ‘to break a promise’; also: kuvundila bałani

Omari/ lesele sababu/ ya wanaafakhi/ khpata kuvundila bałani. ‘Omari (lit.) brought false reason for breaking his appointment/promise.’

We/ vunzile bałani yitú. ‘You broke your promise.’

Omari/ nayo bałani/ taariikhi/ mweezi/ shiriini. ‘Omari has an appointment on the

- twentieth day of the month.’
Omari/ nayo bałani/ tarikhi yaa mbele. ‘Omari has an appointment at an earlier date.’
- bałari n. [Som. ballaar DSI 40] width
- bałasi n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. balasi SSED 26 and Som. ballaas DSI 40, both from Ar. ballaṣ W 72] jug, a large clay jar with a narrow neck used for storing water Bałasi iyi/ ivundishile. ‘This jar is broken.’
bałasi izi ‘these jars’
Kata/ na bałasi/ haskosi/ kudaarana. ‘A ladle and a jug never fail to touch one another.’ (A proverb.)
Mabałasi aya/ yavundishile. ‘These jars are broken.’
- rel.
chi-bałasi (zi-) n. a clay jar for liquids
- (i-)baaldı n. 5/6 [Som. baaldı DSI 33] metal bucket ibaldı ya maayi ‘a water bucket’ ifiniko ya baaldı ‘a bucket cover’ ikono ya ibaaldı/ baaldı ‘a bucket handle’
- rel.
chi-baaldı (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. a small bucket chibaldı cha iziwa ‘a small milk bucket’ ikono ya chibaaldı ‘handle of a small bucket used for carrying milk’
i-baaldı (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
mi-baaldı n. 4 aug.
- baldoosi n. [Som. baldoosar Italian-Somali Dictionary, p. 89] bulldozer variant form: baldoosar check final vowel
- i-balghamu (ma-) n. 5/6 phlegm
- ku-baaligha v. [Sw. balehe SSED 26; Ar.] (balighiile) reach the age of puberty
Balighiilopó/ Suufi/ fanyizee wake/ diiniye. ‘When Suufi reached puberty, he made women his religion.’ (Notice that due to the indefinite nature of wake in this example, there is no object marking on the verb.)
Weele/ kama mwanaamke/ apo/ tu/ balighiiló. ‘She became just like a girl then who has reached puberty.’
- baalighi (Ø, ma-) adj. [Sw. balehe SSED 26; Ar.] having reached puberty Kuła muunt^hu/ islaamu/ baalighi/ na aqilizé/ ni tamaamu/ humwajiba ziint^hu/ staano. ‘Every Muslim having reached puberty and his faculties being perfect is obliged five things.’
mwana baalighi ‘a child who has reached puberty’ Mwana uyu/ ni baalighi. ‘This child has reached puberty.’
Nafuunge/ kulla baalighi/ jo aqili. ‘Let fast every person who has reached puberty and has his wits.’
wana baalighi ‘children who have reached puberty’
- rel.
u-baalighi n. 14 [Sw. ubalehe]puberty
- ku-baligha v. (balighiile) report
Nuuru/ balighile khabari/ ka sarkaali. ‘Nuuru reported the news to the government.’
- rel.
ku-balighisha v. caus. convey (news)
Nt^hume/ chooloka/ chibalighisha ka mułi. ‘The messenger went and conveyed (the news) to the man.’

Nuuru/ balighishize sarkaali/ khabari. ‘Nuuru conveyed the news to the government.’ Or: Nuuru/ balighishize khabari/ ka sarkaali.

Nuuru/ mbalighishize Jaama/ khabari. Nuuru reported the news to Jaama.’

Nuuru/ pokeele/ risaala/ ya moojé/ oloshela/ kubalighisha. ‘Noah received the message of his Lord and went to (make the Lord’s message) reach the people.’

ku-balighishanya v. caus. rec. Nuuru/ na Ali/ wabalighishenye khabari. ‘Nuuru and Ali reported to one another the news.’

ku-balighishoowa v. caus. pass. (balighishiiza)

Nuuru/ balighishiza khabari/ na Jaama. ‘Nuuru was reported to the news by Jaama.’ (Note that khabari cannot be the subject of the passive sentence: Khabari/ zibalighishiza Nuuru/ na Jaama. ‘The news was reported to Nuuru by Jaama.’

Khabari/ zibalighishiza ka sarkaali/ na Nuuru. ‘The news was reported to the government by Nuuru.’ (Although it is preferred for ka to be retained here, Mohammad Imam judged the sentence grammatical even if ka were omitted. Passivizing sarkali was considered to be ungrammatical here: Sarkali/ ibalighishiza khabari/ na Nuuru. ‘The government was reported to the news by Nuuru.’

balikoone

n. balcony

Hamadi/ nuumbaye/ inayo balikoone/ nkbulu. [H!H!H!H] ‘Hamadi’s house has a large balcony.’ (We are at present a bit uncertain as to the proper characterization of the pitch drops in this example. There is a clear lowering of pitch across the sentence, but there is not the particularly radical drop usually seen at the juncture of a PP with the verb. We think this is a function of the nature of the pre-verbal expression Hanadi/ nuumbaye. More study is required. We have adopted an analysis where the drops are treated as a downstep pattern.)

Omari/ kalenthe balkoneeni. ‘Omari sat on the balcony.’

baalozi

n. embassy review the ↓

Tafaðali/ nakhsula kendra ka baalozi/ wa Amerikanó. ‘Please, I need to go to the American Embassy.’

bala

n. 9/10 [Sw. baa “(1) evil, disaster, calamity, anything which brings bad luck or disaster; (2) an ill-omened person, one who causes disaster, brings bad luck” SSED 22] mishap, trouble, calamity, misfortune

Bala/ hulawa ka waana/ na wataana. ‘Trouble comes from children and slaves.’ (A proverb.)

bala zaawo ‘their misfortunes’

balaye ‘his misfortune’

Laakini/ mp^haka/ chiðihira/ mp^hana/ hulata kula/ yaa wo/ wachijó/ na hufakata/ hingila mitundruuni/ kokola ruhu zaawo/ na bala

yaa mp^haka. ‘But if a cat appears, rats leave anything they are eating and run away and enter [their] holes to save themselves from the scourge of the cat.’

Nayoo balá/ nkbulú. ‘I have a big problem.’ did not have accent recorded correctly, I believe, so check whether this is right munt^hu mwenyee bala ‘someone who causes trouble, someone harmful, a troublemaker’

Nyunyi uje/ nt^h ongelelee bala. ‘That bird did cause me a mishap.’

bali

n. 9/10 [Som. collective noun: bal “stems of cereals, straw”] corn plant; bamboo

Bali iyi/ ifiile. ‘This corn plant has died’

Bali izi/ sfiile. ‘These corn plants have died.’

m-bali

n. 9, adv. far off; adj. different (Note that there is some variation in our data with respect to whether mbali behaves as though it has a pre-nasalized initial mb and thus lengthens a preceding vowel in the same phrase, or whether it is a consonant sequence m+b and does not lengthen a preceding vowel in the same phrase. Our consultant GM recognized a difference between nii mbali and mubli mbali, but we were unable to identify precisely what is involved in the contrast. Our guess at the moment is that mbali has a sequence m+b when modifying a human noun or an animate noun treated as human, but a prenasalized mb otherwise. As a predicate adjective, mbali is always treated as a prenasalized stop.)

Chijini/ siwo/ lugha/ mbali. ‘Chijini is not a different language (from Chimiini).’

Haliima/ mkhiyansete mubliwe/ lele na mubli mbali. ‘Haliima cheated on her husband, she slept with another man.’ (Observe the phrase mubli mbali and not mublii mbali.)

Ile kaa mbali. ‘He came from far away.’

Kila shpandra chaa nama/ chiweshela mbaliye. ‘Each piece of meat, he put separately.’

Kula mooyi/ hokomela mbaliye/ bishilo waant^hú/ naayé/ bishila/ boozeló/ tinzila mkono/ na ublelo waant^hú/ naayé/ ublela. ‘Each one was sentenced differently; the one who beat people, he was beaten; the one who robbed, he had his hand cut off; and the one who killed people, he was killed.’

mbuzi mbali ‘another goat’

Mubli oyo/ nii mbali. ‘This man is different.’ (Note that in our data, the ni element regularly lengthens before mbali.)

wabli mbali ‘other men’

Wachiraasha/ ndilaa mbali/ mara ya isa. ‘They followed a different road this time.’

Waant^huwe/ ye/ mwanaamke/ wana’endre mbali yaawo. ‘Her people, her the girl, let them go a different way.’

rel.

m-balmbali adv. separately

Weshela mbalmbali/ miilu/ mikono/ sharabu/ saraana/ iture/ shingo/ naa nsó/ na ma’inyi/ na matuumbó/ naa chitá. ‘He separated the meat: legs, hands, flank, sirloin, the back of the neck, the neck, and the kidneys, and liver, and intestines, and the head.’

zi-bali n. a thin golden chain or ear-rings baliidi (Ø, ma-) inv. adj. [Ar. balid W 72] s.o. stupid, dull-witted, slow to learn (As demonstrated by the data below, if modifying a [cl.1/2] nominal, this adjective can appear in bare form, i.e. with no agreement prefix. If the nominal is [cl.2], then there is an option for ma to appear as the agreement prefix. Regular agreement is observed only with diminutives and augmentatives, as is the usual case for invariant adjectives.)

chijana chibaliidi ‘dim. children who are slow-learners’ kuwa baliidi ‘to be a slow learner’ mwana baliidi ‘a child who is a slow learner’

wana mbaliidi ‘children who are slow learners’

baamiya n. 9/10 [Sw. bania SSED 26] a vegetable served with fish and meat

Bamiya iyi/ iwozele. ‘This baamiya has gone bad.’

Bana Gaameeli n. an individual who appears in a proverbial saying

Sho kujiiba/ ni Bana Gaameeli. ‘The one who does not answer is Bana Gaameeli.’ (A proverbial saying.)

i-bana nkaani n.

Hutaloowa/ huwekowa mahala/ kama chijoolo/ ibana nk’haani/ hutilowa maayi/ hupowa sabuni zaawo/ hupowa makopa yaawo/ hambiloowa/ ingilaani/ walwiinu/ owaani. ‘They (the girls) are taken and put in a place like a small bathroom that is in the open (outside the house) and water is put there and they are given their soap and they are given their glasses and they are told to go in, both of them, and take a bath.’

Banaadiri n. [Sw. banaderi SSED 27] Benadir chiguwo cha Banaadiri ‘Benadir cloth’

Waant^hu/ wa Banaadiri/ waleseja Ameerika/ mwaaka/ wa alfu/ na miya keendrá/ na tis’ina sitá. [H!H!HHH!H] ‘Banaadiri people were brought to America in 1996.’ (We have transcribed downstep between the head of the Associative Phrase and the AP itself. There is indisputably a significant lowering of pitch in the recording of this example. One might argue with whether it should be regarded as downstep or declination. But we have usually resorted to the “declination” label when there a less significant drop. On the other hand, in the sequence of phrases constituting “year of 1996”, we observed no real lowering across the phrases until the final na-phrase.)

- bandari n. 9/10 [Sw. bandari SSED 27; Pers.] port, harbor
bandari ya Mwiini ‘the port of Brava’ Jahazi/ iwasilile/ bandariini/ yana/ masku. [H’H!H!H!H] ‘The ship arrived at port last night.’ (The emphasis on the verb in this sentence accounts for why there is only declination between the subject and the verb, rather than the usual downstep at this juncture. On a phonetic note, the only Continuation High tone observed was the usual one at the end of the subject jahazi.)
ndegsha mi bandariini nt^homola karka bahari [song] ‘help me settle in the harbor, get me out of the sea’
- bandeera (O, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw. bandera SSED 27; bandera SSED 33] flag Bandera huundru/ iniliile. ‘My (lit. red flag) menstrual period has come.’
Bandera huundru/ ni alama ya harbi. ‘A red flag is a sign of war.’
Bandeera/ inakhpepela. ‘The flag is waving.’
Bandera nelpe/ ni alama ya amaani. ‘A white flag is a sign of peace.’
Bandeera/ ya Somaaliya/ haṭá/ uchisimikoowa/ maazi/ yaṭa(w)anyishiló. ‘Until Somaliya’s flag was raised (indicating independence), a lot of blood was shed.’
Bandeera/ ya Somaaliya/ inayo nota nt^haano. ‘Somalia’s flag has five stars.’
Bandeera/ ya Somaaliya/ ni bulú. ‘The Somai flag is blue.’
Bandeera/ yandishila. ‘The flag has been raised, put up.’
kandika bandeera ‘to raise a flag’ khpanza bandeera ‘to raise a flag’ khsimika bandeera ‘to raise a flag’
kishkiza bandeera ‘to lower a flag’
Bandeera/ yishkiziiza. ‘The flag has been lowered.’
limbo la bandeera ‘flag song’
Markabu/ ishpanza bandeera/ ba’adaa yo/ khtila ngiisha. ‘The ship raised a flag after it dropped anchor.’
Mukhta waziiri/ fiiló/ bandeera/ ya Somaaliya/ yishkiziza nt^hiini. ‘When the minister died, the flag of Somalia was lowered down (to half-mast).’
muti wa bandeera ‘flagpole’
- chi-baandra n. [Sw. banda "a large shed (usu. without walls)" SSED 27] kiosk, shed, shelter
variant form: chiwaandra
Chiwa’ambila/ kuwaka/ zibaandra/ ka himaahima/ khpata khtilowa ayo/ magozi/ chiiza/ magozi/ yaṭakuwola/ nvulaani. ‘He told them to build shelters quickly so that the hides could be put in them otherwise the hides would rot in the rain.’
- rel.
ma-baandra n. ****
- bangi n. 9/10 bank
bangiini ‘in the bank’
Hufanya bangiini. ‘He works at the bank.’ (Cf. nakoloka mahala ya bangii mp^hiyá/ iwashilá. ‘I am going to the place where the new bank has been built.’) Mi/ nayo daliili/ kuwa Hamadi/ bozele bangi. I have evidence that Hamadi robbed the bank.
Nuzile gaari/ ka doṭoore/ ka pesa zaa mi/ nt^heto (ka) bangiini. ‘I bought the car from the doctor with money that I took from the bank.’
Pesa zaa mi/ nt^heto (ka) bangiini/ nulile gaari/ ka doṭooré. ‘The money that I took from the bank I used to buy the car from the doctor.’

- bangiili n. 9/10 [Sw. bangili SSED 28; Hind.] bracelet, made of silver or gold, worn on wrist by women Bangili iyi/ inakuwala. ‘This bracelet is shining.’
Bangili izi/ zinakuwala. ‘These bracelets are shining.’
bangiili/ za ḏahabu ‘gold bangels’ bangiili/ za fetha ‘silver bangels’ Vete bangiili. ‘She wore bangels.’
- chi-bangu (zi-) n. 7/8 a game of fighting with sticks, dancing and drumming Kaaziye/ khṭeza zibangu. ‘All he ever does is play chibangu [lit. his work is playing chibangu].’
Nakhṭeza chibangu. ‘He is playing chibangu.’
- [-baani n. 11 [Sw. ubani SSED 485; Ar.] incense Chiwozeló/ nt^hachiná/ lbaani. ‘That which is rotten has no incense.’ (A proverb.)
Mi/ nakendra chisimaani/ khtila lbaani/ / kumlomba mwajūtu/ kichonya ndila ya kiitu. ‘I am going to the well to burn incense to pray to God to show us the way to our country.’
Moloolo/ kana lbaani. ‘He is soft, like lbaani.’
- baniikolo n. [Som. baniikol Italian-Somali Dictionary, p. 431; from Ital. pellicola] film negative confirm
- ku-baanisha v. caus. [cf. Som. baano] (banishiize) provide a balanced diet to someone who is recovering from an illness; nourish, cause to gain strength; give s.t. extra to someone (e.g. food) Oloka/ maamó/ nakhubaanishe/ nakhupe chakuja chisuura. ‘Go and let your mother nourish you and give you good food.’
rel.
ku-banishiliza v. caus. appl. (banishiliize) chaakuja/ chisuura/ kubanishiliza ruuhuyo ‘good food to use to restore your health’
- baaniyaani (ma-) n. [Sw. banyani SSED 28; Hind.] a member of an Indian ethnic unit
- baano n. 9/10 [Som. baan] that which makes one strong, fattens one, gives one added weight; a balanced diet given to someone who is recovering from illness
- i-banya n. a stretch of unoccupied land, flat ground, outside s.t., outskirts (of town), outside; var. ibana, ibenya n. ibid.
Chiraasha/ chiraasha/ haṭa chiwona/ ruuhuye/ uko karka ibenya/ ikulu. ‘She followed [the opening] and followed until she found herself in a large open space.’
Huseeni/ simeme nuumba/ ibanyaani. ‘Huseeni stood outside the house.’ Or:
Nuumba/ isimema ibanyaani. ‘The house was stood outside it.’
Mi/ nk^hasizee nk^helé/ ibanyaani. ‘I heard shouting outside.’ (In GM’s speech, the first person nasal subject marker is omitted, as is the aspiration it induces, but the nasal class marker on nk^helé is retained.)
Mukṭaa we/ takuḷawo ibenya ya muuyi/ chivaala/ shpete ichi/ chimaliza/ ruuda/ apa. ‘When you get out to the outskirts of town, put on this ring, and then return here.’
Munṭ^hi uyu/ lapiiḷile/ wakulu/ na zihabá/ huḷawa ibana ya muuyi/ hendra kulangaḷa maṭezo za namna ka namna. ‘On that day, in the afternoon, old and young go to the outskirts of town to go and watch games of different kinds.’
Mwaana/ fakete nuumba/ ibanyaani. ‘The boy ran out of the house.’ Or the passive:
Nuumba/ ifaketa ibanyaani. ‘The house was run out of it (to the outside).’

	Naakula/ lazile ibanyaani/ ee/ mendrelelee mp^hana. ‘[The boy] cried and went outside, then he went to the rat.’ Siwo/ amaani/ kuḷawa ibanyaani/ masku. ‘It is not safe to go out at night.’ Sku ya piili/ muke/ kama oyo/ shtukula/ kuulu/ ya piili/ yaa mbuzi/ chi’iweeka/ ibenya/ ya nyuumba. ‘The next day [lit. the second day] the woman like that carried the second leg of the goat and put it outside her house.’ Ye/ nt^hampeenda/ mwana waa saba/ ka khisa/ ye/ fanyize miiko/ nuumbaye/ na nt^hachilawa/ ibenyaani/ khteza na weenziwe. ‘He did not love the seventh child because he (the child) made the kitchen his home and did not go outside to play with his companions.’
banziina	n. 9 gasoline, petrol Banzina iyi/ inakunuunk^ha. ‘This petrol is smelling.’ Mwiini/ haṭá/ Mkhodiisho/ gaari/ huja/ banziina/ leetiri/ siṭiini. ‘From Miini to Mogadishu, a truck consumes sixty liters of petrol.’
baqali	n. 9/10 [Som.] raddish
baaqi	n. [Sw. baki SSED 25; Ar.] what remains, that which has no end baaqi bila khkoma wo pashpo adadi [st.] ‘eternal, without end, it is immeasurable [in terms of minutes, hours] [referring to the hereafter, aakhera]’ hutaḷoowa teena baaqi ya waana [st.] ‘now we have to speak [lit. are to be taken] of the remaining children’ wa chinume baaqi pashpo zawaali [st.] ‘the Everlasting who will never disappear’ (a description of God)
baqsha	n. 9/10 envelope; [pron. bakhsha or baqsha] Bakhsha iyi/ ipeta ndilaani. ‘This envelope was found on the road.’ Bakhsha izi/ speta ndilaani. ‘These envelopes were found on the road.’ kambisa bakhsha ‘to glue an envelope shut’ khfunga bakhsha ‘to close, seal an envelope’ Uzile bakhsha. ‘He bought an envelope.’ rel. chi-baqsha (zi-) n. dim. 7/8 small envelope i-baqsha (mi-) n. aug. 5/4 large envelope
baaquili	n. 9/10 [Sw. bakuli SSED 25; Ar.] basin, bowl; [pron. baaquili or baakhuli] baquili ya iziwa ‘a metal milk container’ baquili ya maayi ‘a metal water container’
ku-baara	v. (bariile) have no value (in the market, of s.t. that does not sell, e.g. food that is diseased or otherwise cannot attract buyers) Leelo/ sukhuuni/ mazu/ tyanakubiga lpepo/ nt^hakunakuuló/ yabariile. ‘Today at the market bananas are (lit. hitting breeze) not selling, no one is buying, they have no value (cannot attract buyers).’
baraabara	adj. and adv. [Sw. barabara SSED 28; Pers.] just as it should be, exact, quite right, OK Chikhambila lila/ Omari/ siwo/ baraabara/ kazi iyi. ‘If I tell you the truth, Omari is not good, right for this job.’ Fanyize kaazi/ baraabara. ‘She did the work just right.’ Mi/ chizaa kuja/ siwi/ baraabara. ‘If I do not eat, I get into a bad mood (lit. I am not right, as I should be)’ Muunt^hu/ shfanya chiint^hu/ sansa khfikira/ siwo/ baraabara. ‘If someone does something without thinking it is not right/good.’ Omari/ hufanya kaazi/ baraabara. ‘Omari does the work well.’ Ye/ ni munt^hu baraabara. ‘He is a man just right, just as he should be.’
barafu	n. 9 [Sw. barafu SSED 29 Port.] ice, snow

- bardi/ kana barafu ‘as cold as ice’
Mayi aya/ ^fmabardi/ kana/ barafu. ‘This water is as cold as ice.’
Omari/ mkonowe/ mbardi/ kama barafu. ‘Omari’s hand is as cold as ice.’
Zijo/ zibardi/ kama barafu. ‘The zijo is as cold as ice.’
Chooloka/ chingila karka ibirka/ ya mayi ya barafu. ‘He went and got into a storage container of ice water.’
na mayti ziitú/ zilelo nt^hini ya barafú ‘and our dead bodies lying under the snow’
- barafuumo n. [Som. barafuun DSI 44, from Ital. profumo] perfume; this word is used to indicate Western type of perfume (with alcohol) while atari is the Arab kind of perfume (which is based on oil); see also parfuuma Shtila ruuhuye/ barafuumo. ‘She put perfume on herself.’
- baraha n. a mixture of sugar and water (if flavored, then referred to as sharbaati) kubiga baraha ‘to make baraha’
- baraka n. 9 [Sw. baraka SSED 29; Ar.] blessing; the distribution of food after the reading of the Quran; s.t. given to the poor (food, money) Khamaari/ nt^hayná/ baraka. ‘Gambling has no blessing.’
khpa baraka ‘to give s.t. to the poor’ kh^tomola baraka ‘to give s.t. to the poor’ mwenye baraka ‘someone blessed’
Ni munt^hu nt^hana baraká. ‘He is a man who is not blessed.’
Sult^aani/ naayé/ sh^ta’ajaba/ chihada/ nt^haku/ shaka/ kuwa mgarwa uyu/ ni mwenye baraka. ‘The sultan also was astonished and said: there is no doubt that this fisherman is a man having blessing.’
takuhijo takhpata niingi baraka [st.] ‘the one who will perform the pilgrimage will get much blessing’
- rel.
baraka n. 10 in the phrase:
ka baraka za ‘for the sake of’
- ku-baarama v. [Som. waran- "talk"] (baramiile) talk, say, hint at Baramile naami. ‘He talked with me.’
Hasani/ baramiile/ jawabu iyo. ‘Hasani hinted at that matter.’
Omari/ nt^hakubarama/ ba/ karka shiri. ‘Omari did not say anything at the meeting.’ (The particle ba is emphasized and thus it is not lowered in pitch relative to the negative verb that precedes it.)
Sibaaramé. ‘Don’t talk!’
- rel.
ku-baramila v. appl. talk for, with ku-baramisha v. caus. (baramishiize) talk to someone; seduce or court a woman Awaje/ ndiwó/ wana waa mi/ niwabaramishiizó. ‘Those ones are the children whom I talked to.’
Mbaramishiize. ‘He talked to me.’ Cf. Mbaramishiize. ‘He talked to him.’ (Our orthography fails to indicate that these two forms are distinct from one another. The first person singular object marker forms a pre-nasalized consonant with the stem, thus effectively becoming a single consonant. The [cl.1] OM does not form a prenasalized stop, counting as a sequence of two consonants.)
Mi/ nnakhsuulá/ we/ keendra/ kumbaramisha sarmala/ kendra kh^tindaa muti/ uje/ kh^tomola sh^tolokocha/ chimooyi/ chint^haaliló. ‘I want you to go order a carpenter to go and cut down that tree to get out my one little bean that it [the tree] took from me.’ (Note the absence of an overt subject prefix on chint^haaliló; one would expect u- given that muti is the subject.)
Uje/ ndiyé/ mwanawaa mi/ nimbaramishiizó. ‘That one is the child whom

I talked to.'

ku-baramishana v. caus. rec. talk to each other ku-baramishika v. caus. p/s.

Habaramishiki. 'She cannot be talked to.'

ku-baramishiliza v. caus. appl. (baramishiliize) talk to someone for someone ku-baramishoowa v. caus. pass. (baramishiiza) be talked to chimmona Mooje chibaramishoowa/ Mooje chimwaambila suula takhpooa [st.] 'he saw his God, who spoke to him; God told him:

Whatever you want, you will be given'

Rooða/ baramishiza na maamaye. 'Roodha was talked to by her mother.'

ku-baramoowa v. pass. (i-baramiila) be talked baraamburi

n. 9/10 spark; firecracker, sparkler; main vein (midrib) of the coconut palm tree

Baraamburi/ zaa muḷo/ hupiisha. 'Sparks from the fire can burn.'

Baraamburi/ zinakuulukó. 'Sparks are jumping/flying out from the fire.'

Muḷo/ inakuḷawa baraamburi. 'Sparks are coming out from the fire.'

barasi

n. 9 [cf. Sw. barasi SSED 29] leprosy

mwenye barasi 'a leper'

Pete barasi. 'He got leprosy.'

ku-baraṭa

v. [Som. baro] (bareṭe) learn, study, get used to Ali/ bareṭe khur'aani/ ka kaamu. 'Ali learned the Quran by heart.'

Baraṭa aada. 'Learn the customs.'

Chibarṭa khpokela/ baraṭa khtomola. 'If you (wish to) learn to receive, learn to give.' (A proverb.)

Si/ chibareṭe chisuwaahili/ skolaani. 'We studied Swahili at school.'

Chimsoomesha/ oyo mwaana/ numa/ teena/ maamaye/ chimsoomesha/

chibarṭa qur'aani/ chibarṭo/ attá/ chiwa mkulu. 'She taught that boy, then after his mother taught him, he learned the Quran, that is what he did, until he grew up.'

Haṭá/ ichiwa/ kuwa...kiḷa/ mooyi/ muyiini/ bareṭe/ majibu ya Ali. 'Until it came to be that each one in the town learned Ali's answer.'

Hupeendi/ kubarṭa. 'You do not want to learn.'

Laakini/ nt^hakubarṭa/ chiint^hu. 'But he did not learn anything.'

Mi/ mbareṭe jisa hukodowa chingereenzá. 'I learned how to speak English.'

Mi/ mbareṭé/ ka khibra/ kuwa Omari/ siwo/ wa kaminoowa. 'I have learned from experience that Omar is not to be trusted.'

Mi/ mbareṭé/ ka khkoða na Abú/ kuwaa ye/ nt^hachiiwa/ ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ ṭarafu ya jawabu iyi. 'I learned from talking with Abu that he knew nothing about this matter.'

Mi/ mbareṭé/ khkoða wanaafakhi/ ha'ikhukomezi/ mahaḷa. 'I have learned that lying gets one nowhere.'

Mi/ mbareṭe niingi/ ka Omari. 'I learned a lot from Omari.'

Mi/ nakhsuḷa kubarṭa chingereenzá. 'I want to learn English.'

Mukhtaá we/ iló/ mi/ liini/ nch^hibarṭó. 'When you came I was not studying.'

Muunt^hu/ yaa ye/ bareṭó/ haalaṭi. 'A person does not abandon, quit that which he is used to.' (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ bareṭe chinjereenza/ ka yee peeke. 'The child learned English on his own.'

Mwaana/ bareṭe kiineendra. '(My) baby has learned to walk.'

Mwaanawo/ naayé/ takubarṭa ka khulangḷaa we. 'Your child will also learn from watching you.'

Naayé/ mwaana/ bareṭe/ apo. 'And the boy had gotten used to [being there at] that place.'

Omari/ nt^haasá/ nakhtaḷaja kubarṭa niingi/ kuwa munt^hu mzima. 'Omari still has much to learn about being an adult.'

We/ hubarṭa ka kulangḷa na khkasá. 'You learn by watching and listening.'

We/ laazimu/ kubarata kulanga ruuhuyo. ‘You must learn to take care of yourself.’

We/ umriwo/ hubarati. ‘You’ll never learn.’

Ye/ tahajile kubarata chingereenza. ‘She needed to learn English.’
rel.

ku-baratana v. (barateene) get acquainted with, get to know one another

Basi/ wabarateene/ ni waana/ tu/ chiwooni/ basi/ ni weenza. ‘So they became acquainted, they were just children at school, so they became friends.’

Dul’eda/ barateene/ na mzele. ‘The fox got used to the old man.’

Jis’iyo/ si/ shakuwona/ miyi miingi/ miingine/ shakubaratana/ na waant^hu/ wiingine/ wiingi. ‘That way we will see many other towns and get to know many other people.’

Karka habaasa/ Yuusufu/ chibaratana/ na waant^hu/ wawili. ‘In prison, Joseph became acquainted with two people.’

kubaratana na waanawa ‘to get acquainted with my children’

Mweenza/ siwo/ mbovu/ naami/ nakhsuulá/ kubaratana/ na ahliyo/ laakini/ mi/ siisi/ koowela. ‘My friend, that is a not bad idea, and I do want to get acquainted with your relatives, but I do not know how to swim (from a story where the monkey is explaining to the shark his problem in accepting an invitation to visit the shark’s home).’

N^haaasá/ skupata/ kubaratana naaye/ jisa suura. ‘I have not yet gotten well acquainted with him.’

ku-baratika v. be learnt

Chimwiini/ hachibaratici. ‘Chimwiini can’t be learned.’

Chimwiini/ siwo/ sahali/ kubaratika. ‘Chimwiini is not easy to learn.’

Jeeli/ habarati/ ka ghaltaze. ‘Jeeli does not learn from his mistakes.’

ku-baratila v. appl. learn for Ndila/ suura/ nt^ho/ kubarata/ ni kubaratila ruuhuyo. ‘The best way to learn is to learn for yourself.’

ku-barsha v. caus. (barshiize) teach, train; become accustomed to, used to; introduce s.o. to s.o.

kachiwa waalimú/ suła khubarsha ‘if we were teachers we would teach you’ (Note that one cannot put emphasis on kachiwa by making it phrase-final. The use of an overt subject pronoun would apparently add emphasis: si/ kachiwa waalimú/ suła khubarsha.) kubarsha ruuhu ‘to teach oneself’ kubarsha adabu ‘to punish s.o. (thereby teaching him correct behavior)’ kubarsha za mwanaamke/ husulowa kiiwá ‘to teach her what a girl is required to know’

Mlete muunt^hu/ nakhubarshee kuja. ‘Bring someone to teach you to eat.’

Mlete mwaana/ mwaape/ ja naaye/ nakhubarshee kuja. ‘Bring some child and eat with him so that he teaches you how to eat.’

Mwaalimu/ mbarshize mwaana/ chinjereenza. ‘The teacher taught the child English.’

Mwaanawá/ mwana uyu/ ndiyé/ takhubarshó/ kujá/ naank^ho/ keesho/ mlete. ‘My son, this boy, it is he who will [lit.] teach you to eat [i.e. accompany you in eating, thereby training you to eat your meals instead of not finishing them]; again, tomorrow, bring him.’

Nimbarshize Ali/ mweenzawá. ‘I introduced Ali to my friend.’

Omari/ kawabarsha waaná/ chingereenza ‘if Omari had taught the children English’ or, with verb emphasis: Omari kawabarshá/ waana/ chingereenza, where the Accentual Law of Focus accounts for the failure of final accent to extend past the verb (GM accepts also: Omari kawabarshá/ waana/ chingereenza, but it remains unclear how precisely to account for the final accent in the last phrase but not the preceding phrase.)

Omari/ mbarshize mwaana/ bilaa msaa'ada. 'Omari taught without help.'
waana/ kawabarsha chingereenzá/ Omari 'the children, if he had taught them English, Omari.' (Observe that the postposed subject is not within the scope of the final-accent triggered by the ka-tense verb. It should be noted that the verb may also be emphasized: waana/ kawabarshá/ chingereenza/Omari, where ALF explains the failure of chingereenza to exhibit final accent. Possibly of some importance is the fact that GM accepted a variant form: waana/ kawabarshá/ chingereenza/ Omari. What we know with some certainty here is that the final accent on the postposed subject cannot be due to the final accent-trigger ka-tense verb. Nevertheless, the final accent on the final phrase of the sentence does recall the example discussed above. If there is indeed a connection, then we could conclude with some certainty that such accent shifts do not simply reflect a failure of ALF to be implemented.)

ku-barshabarsha v. freq.

Peleshela chibulooni/ kubarshabarsha waana. 'She was sent to a village to teach kids.' (The frequentative verb form in this example has a disparaging connotation.)

ku-barshanya v. caus. rec.

ku-barshika v. caus. p/s.

ku-barshiliza v. caus. appl. (barshiliize)

ku-barshoowa v. caus. pass. (barshiiza)

Korsheeza/ na barshiiza/ na want^hu wasuura. 'He was raised and trained by good people.'

Mi/ sinakhsuula/ waana/ kubarshowa adabdara. 'I do not want the children to be taught bad manners.'

Waana/ adabu/ hubarshowaa mbele. 'Children (must) be taught discipline first (early in their lives).' (A saying.)

Waana/ hawabarshoowi/ adaa mbovu. 'Children are not taught bad manners.'

Baraawa

n. Brava, Mwiini

Kana/ baraawa/ ma leh. 'As if it is not available in Brava.' (A Somali saying that is commonly used when speaking Chimiini.)

m-barawala

n. 9/10 Lane Snapper or Mahogany Snapper (has a black dot on upper body)

barðuuli (O, ma-) n. and adj. [Sw. baradhuli SSED 28; Ar.] a dull-witted person

bardi

n. [Sw. SSED 29; Ar.] cold

Bardi/ apa/ nk^hali. 'The cold here is very bitter.'

bardi/ kana barafu 'as cold as ice'

bardi/ kana mayti 'as cold as a corpse'

bardi niingi 'great cold'

khkasa bardi 'to feel cold -- [lit.] hear cold.'

Chinemaani/ mi/ shkasa bardi/ skuvaala/ jaaka. 'At the cinema I felt cold, I did not wear a jacket.'

khshikowa bardi 'to feel cold -- (lit.) to be caught by cold'

Hamadi/ nakuhada xáax/ apa/ bardi/ shiishilá. 'Hamadi is saying xaax! I feel cold here.'

kingila bardi 'to be cold -- [lit.] cold to enter'

Hamadi/ bardi/ imwingile mishpaani. 'Hamadi was chilled to the bones.'

kubiga bardi 'to be cold'

Bardi/ imbishile Hamadi. 'Hamadi is cold -- [lit.] cold hit Hamadi.'

kubigowa bardi 'to be cold'

Hamadi/ bishila na bardi. 'Hamadi is cold -- [lit.] hit by the cold.'

kuhisa bardi 'to feel cold'

- kuwona bardi ‘to feel cold’
Haliima/ nt^hakuwaveesha/ waanawe/ kooti/ ziyaraani/ wanakuwona bardi. ‘Haliima did not make her children wear coats at the religious ceremony, they are feeling cold.’
- Masku/ yawaliko bardi/ naawó/ wotte/ wa’ofeete/ laakini/ nt^hawakhaadira/ khalifa amri. ‘The evening was cold and they were all tired but they could not disobey an order.’
- Ni bardi. ‘It is cold.’
- bardi adj. cold, slow-moving; (of people) cold -- said of a person who does not show emotion, anger, arrogance
- bardi/ kana (/ kama/ kamba) barafu ‘as cold as ice’
Mayi aya/ ^fmabardi/ kana/ barafu. ‘This water is as cold as ice.’
- bardi/ kana mayti ‘as cold as a corpse’
- chint^hu chibardi ‘something cold’
mayi mabardi ‘cold water’
Ni wabardi. ‘They are cold, slow-moving.’
- Wangereenza/ ni mabardi/ laakini/ matalyaani/ ni wakali. ‘English people are “cold” but Italians are hot tempered.’\
- zint^hu zibardii nt^o ‘very cold things’
- rel.
u-bardi n. 14 coolness, coldness
- ku-bardika v. be cooled
rel.
ku-bardisha v. caus. (bardishiize) cool something or someone (e.g. by applying a cooling ointment)
rel. nom.
ma-bardisho n. 6 refreshment
- bareela n. [Ital. barella “stretcher”] the full load of a cart (driven by a camel) with stones or coral rag variant form: barla
- barfango n. 9/10 [Ital. parafango] mudguard, bumper barfango ya gaari ‘the bumper of a car’ barfango yaa mbele ‘front bumper’ barfango yaa numa ‘rear bumper’ barfango za gaari ‘the bumpers of a car’
- barfuuji in the expression:
musmari wa barfuuji ‘screw’
- bari n. 9 [Sw. bara SSED 28; Ar.] land (as opposed to sea) variant form: bara
bara ya suwaahili ‘the Swahili coast’ ka(a) bari/ na bahari ‘from land and sea’
- baari adj. obedient, nice
- barii’u invar. adj. innocent
munt^hu barii’u ‘innocent man’ (cf. want^hu barii’u ‘innocent people’) Ye/ ni barii’u/ na ðambi/ izo. ‘He is innocent of those crimes.’
- bariida [Som. bariidi "to ask if s.o. spent the night peacefully" DSI 46] a morning greeting (plural barideena); see barsamá for the obligatory response
- ku-baarika v. [Sw. bariki SSED 29; Ar.] (barikiile) bless (The perfective form does not follow the usual principles of Chimiini morphophonology; we would have expected barishile.)

variant form: kubaariki Mwajiitu/ nambaarika. ‘May God bless him.’ (This phrase is used by older speakers as a kind of ‘thank you’.)

rel.

ku-barikiḷoowa v. appl. pass.

liwaani yaawo ni nkʰulu/ janna kubarikiḷoowa [st.] ‘their bliss is great/ their reward is paradise’ ku-barikila v. appl. bless for; give to a person who has made the highest bid at an auction

Mwajiitu/ mbarikiḷiile muundrawe. ‘God blessed his farm for him.’

Mwajiitu/ nakhubarikile waanawo. ‘May God bless your children for you.’

ku-barikoowa v. pass.

variant form: ku-barukoowa kulaaliza unganaani/ Sheekhi natabarukoowa [st.] ‘invite all to this celebration when the Sheikh will be blessed’

ku-bariza v. [Sw. barizi SSED 29; Ar.] (bariziile) appear to s.o., be seen, attend a meeting (e.g. of a sultan appearing in the royal hall before his subjects); be settled down, seated comfortably (The perfect stem of this verb is exceptional; one would have expected bariziize according to the general pattern where stems endings in s z sh ny trigger the iize form of the perfect and not iile*.)

Ba’ada ya sku/ shpita muntʰu mwiingine/ khariibu/ ya numba ya waziiri/ naayé/ chimwona Ali/ bariziile/ mbele ya nuumba. ‘After a day, another man passed near the house of the minister and he too saw Ali, seated in front of the house.’

Hubariza numbaani/ pashpo adabu. ‘He appears [enters] in the house ill-manneredly.’

Karkaa ye/ nakuruudó/ muyiini/ chimwona mpʰana/ mkulu/ bariziile/ mbele/ ya nuumbaye. ‘As he was returning to town, he saw a large rat, it had appeared in front of his house.’

Numbaani/ mdirshile waawaye/ bariziile/ na waanawe/ wa taano. ‘In the house he found his father sitting with his five children.’

Sa’a za sultaani/ hubarizó/ skomeelopó/ waziiri/ chilawa/ chendra ka sultaani/ naayé/ mzimawe/ furaha. ‘When the time for the sultan to sit in the royal hall came, the minister left and went to the sultan, he was happy all over [in anticipation of what was going to happen].’

Wabariziile/ washtafuna tambú. ‘They were settled down comfortably chewing tambu.’

rel.

ku-barizila v. appl. (bariziile)

barka

n. [cf. baraka] blessings

hatta waako zolokooni/ barka watakpoowa [st.] ‘even those watching from the windows will receive this blessing’

Maali/ ya kuboala/ ntʰayaná/ barka. ‘Wealth/money that has been stolen does not have blessings.’ (A proverb.)

na mi ka barka zaawo/ huloomba ku’afishoowa [st.] ‘and through their blessings/ I beg to be forgiven’

Ramaḏaani/ ni mwezi wa barka ‘Ramadhan is the month of blessings.’

barkhuumbo

n.

barlamaani

n. parliament

Waantʰu/ karka Landrani/ leelo/ washuhudiile/ haadithi/ nkʰulu/ karka sa’aa ne/ za muuntʰi/ boomba/ ibishile mzaiinga/ karka barlamaani/ ya chingereenza. ‘People in London today witnessed a big event: around ten (lit. four) in the morning, a bomb exploded in the English parliament.’

barmiili (Ø, ma-)	n. 9/10, 6 barrel Waana/ wasimamishenye barmiliini. ‘The children made each other stand on the barrel.’ Waana/ wasimamishenye ilu ya barmiili. ‘The children made each other stand on the barrel.’
baaro	n. 9 mold baro iyi ‘this mold’
baruwa	n. 9/10 summons rel. chi-baruwa (zi-) n. 7/8 summons khtinda chibaruwa ‘to appeal’ khtala chibaruwa ‘to appeal’ Hasani/ mahkamaani/ hokomeja habaasa/ miyaka ikumi/ tete chibaruwa. ‘Hasani at the court has been sentenced to ten years in prison, he has appealed (this sentence).’
chi-barwa (zi-)	n. 7/8 a worker who is paid at the end of each day for the work that he has performed that day Kazi gani/ kaaziye/ ni kazi ya chibarwa. ‘What kind of job is his job, it is [just] daily labor.’ khfanya chibarwa ‘to do daily labor’
barwaakhi	n. [Som. barwaaqo] abundance variant form: barwaakho Chimaliza/ utakuya mwaaka/ barwaakhi. ‘Afterwards there will come a year of abundance.’ Ni muuyi/ barwaakhi. ‘It is a prosperous town.’ Nii nṭhi/ inayo barwaakhi. ‘It is a land that has prosperity.’ Nii nṭhi/ yenye barwaakhi. ‘It is a land that is prosperous.’ Wa’ishiize/ ka barwaakhi/ na raahá. ‘They lived in prosperity and comfort.’ Ye/ umo karka barwaakhi. ‘He is prosperous.’
barsama	[Som. berisamaad "happy time; period of prosperity and plenty" DSI 55] obligatory reply to bariida (invariable) [pron. barsamá]
ku-barsishoowa	v. pass. be felt maghhaniye hayraagi/ hudhakha kubarsishoowa [st.] ‘his protection comes swiftly and is immediately felt’
baruudi that	n. [Sw. baruti "gunpowder" SSED 30; Turkish] bomb, firecracker, anything explodes with a loud noise (in everyday speech, baruudi is used to mean firecracker) baruudi yaawo Mooja fanya maayi [st.] ‘their bomb, o God, change into (lit. make) water’ (Note: the poet was writing during World War II, when naval guns were aimed to fire on the British troops going towards Mogadishu to oust the Italians. The shells passed over Brava. In another line he says: unapiishe woowo mulo waawo ‘may their fire burn (i.e. fall upon) themselves.’
barza	n. [Sw. baraza SSED 29; Ar.] (i) meeting; (ii) place for a public gathering, reception, meeting, royal parlor, courthouse (i) kuvunda barza ‘to break up a meeting’ Yiko barza/ leelo. ‘There is a meeting today.’ (ii) Barzaani/ zivalimoo ziti/ ziingi. ‘In the reception room were many chairs.’ Mukhtaa ye/ oloshelo barzaani/ chiwapa khabari/ mawaziiri/ ma’akhyaari/ na kila/ waliko haaðiri/ apó. ‘When he went to the royal parlor, he gave them the news, the ministers, the nobility, and anyone who was present there.’

	Numbaani/ iwaliko barza/ nk'bulu. 'In the house there was a large reception room.' Sa'iidi/ chilawa/ cheendra/ karkaa nt'hi/ ya mayahuudi/ chendra barzaani/ ka sul'taani/ chimwaambila/ maaliya/ yotte/ yamaliize/ isa/ mi/ siná/ yaa mi/ khfaanya. 'Sa'iidi left and went to the land of the Jews and he went to the meeting place of the sultan and told him: my wealth, all of it, is exhausted; now I do not know [lit. have] what to do.' Sul'taani/ na waant'ú/ wawaliko naayé/ barzaani/ wotte/ wamwene Abdalla/ ilu ya siimba. 'The sultan and the people who were with him in the reception hall, all of them, saw Abdalla on the lion.' Wanaa nt'hi/ wampele ra'iisi/ zawaadize/ barzaani. 'The citizens gave the president his gifts at the courthouse.'
barzakhi	n. [Ar. barzak W 52] interval, break, gap
chi-barzi (zi-)	n. 7/8 stone bench chibarza chaa ndila 'the curb of the street'
barzuuli	n. a person who is a wishful thinker, an unrealistic dreamer
basara	n. good sense; "horse" sense; practical wisdom, commonsense; quickness at solving problems basaraye 'his or her commonsense' basara zaawo 'their commonsense' khfanya basara 'to use one's wits' Fanyize basara/ zaa ye/ kulawila habasaani. 'He used his wits to get out of prison.' khtumila basara 'to use one's common sense' mwenye basara 'someone having commonsense' Nazo fahamu/ na basará. 'He has understanding and talent.' Nt'aná/ basara. 'He does not have common sense.'
basbaasi	n. [Som. basbaas DSI 49] hot pepper mkali/ kana basbaasi 'sharp, hot like hot pepper, chillies'
bash	ideo. of glass object breaking; of slapping Haliima/ chisiinga/ chimpoteele/ chivundishile/ bash! 'Haliima, a plate fell from her (hands) and broke, bash! ' Omari/ mtile m'waanawe/ ma'ipi/ bash bash! kumrudilaa limi. 'Omari slapped his son bash bash! for talking back to him.'
ku-bashaalata	v. [Som. baashaal "to neglect"] (bashaleete) "kill" time, entertain time.' Oloshale ka jiraaniye/ kubashaalata. 'He went to his neighbor's to pass time.'
	rel. ku-bashalatabashaalata v. freq. Hukalan'tha apo/ hubashalatabashaalata. 'He sits there, entertaining himself.'
	ku-bashaalisha v. caus. (bashalishiize) entertain with talk
baashaali	adj. someone who does not do anything; n. fun Mi/ takuwa wanafakhoole/ kanaa mi/ chi'ink'hira/ kuwaa si/ chiwanayo baashaali/ niingi. 'I would be a liar if I denied that we had a lot of fun.' munt'hu baashaali 'a person who does not do anything' munt'hu bashali uyu 'this person who does not do anything'

- bashaashi (Ø, ma-) adj. cheerful, smiling Ni munt^u bashaashi. ‘He is a cheerful person.’
- ku-bashira v. [Ar. bašara”to rejoice, to announce good news, to spread a religion” W 59] (bashiriile) bring good news to, predict (esp. favorable things) for someone
 rel.
ku-bashirila v. appl. announce good news to someone; congratulate s.o. for s.t.
chibashirila kheeri [st.] ‘bring us news of happiness’ kumbashirila ‘to congratulate him, bring him good news’ ku-bashiriioowa v. appl. pass. (bashiriiliila)
ka Nabii’i Mokhtaari/ kheeri kubashiriioowa [st.] ‘near the Prophet, the Chosen One/ may he receive eternal happiness’ khfuraha/ kana bashiriiliila janná ‘to be as happy as if one has been announced for heaven (i.e. as if it has been announced that one is going to heaven)’
- basi conj. [Sw. bas(i) SSED 30] (i) and so (in narration), well, therefore; (ii) just; (iii) enough, stop!
- (i) Basi/ Sa’iidi/ shpowa maali/ ya oyo ijini/ chiyolokela. ‘So, Sa’iidi was given the wealth of that djinn and he went away.’
Basi/ washtala/ hayawaani/ mweepe/ wachimtiinda/ washtala haanzu/ ya Yuusufu/ washpaka maazi/ ya hayawaani/ waa wo/ wamtiinziló. ‘So they took some animal and slaughtered it and they took Josph’s cloak and daubed it with the blood of the animal that they had slaughtered.’
Basi/ we/ mp^a balani/ kuwaa we/ chilawa/ ka apa/ kunkuumbuka/ ka moojó. ‘So, promise mt that when you leave from here to remember me to your master.’
Leelo/ basi/ takuwona/ we. ‘So, today you will see, you [this is a threat].’
Skhaadiri/ kumlaṭa numbaani/ ka yee/ peeke/ basi/ kheeri/ mi mmeree muke/ nimloole/ napate kumlangala mwaana. ‘I cannot leave her (my child) home alone, therefore it is best that I look for a woman and marry her so that she can take care of the child.’
- (ii) Ichiwa/ teena/ kuḷa mara/ humviila/ pashpo/ sababu/ basi/ kumwona/ tu. ‘It became then that every time she just called him with no reason, only to see him.’
Ye/ mereḷe kuwasimika qalbi/ winginiwe/ bas. ‘He sought just to lift the spirits of others.’
- (iii) nakhulangala we sikaambili basi [song] ‘I am looking at you and I will never say” enough!’
- basi n. bus
Mi/ ndrinzile basi/ kulawá. ‘I waited for the bus to leave.’
Naani/ hendro skolaani/ ka basi. [H!H!H] ‘Who goes to school by bus?’
- baasi in the expression: kubiga baasi ‘to make trouble, to look for trouble’
Ali/ hupeenda/ kilaa jawaabu/ kubiga baasi. ‘Ali likes to make trouble over everything.’
Sheekhi/ mwaanawe/ leelo/ bishile baasi/ iize/ kendra chiwooni. ‘Sheekhi, his child today made trouble, he refused to go to religious school.’
- baaskiili n. bicycle
Abu/ bareṭe jisa hinezowa baaskiili/ leelo. ‘Abu learned to ride a bicycle today.’
Ba’adi ya Osmaani/ khtomola kulu itumbishiló/ baaskiili/ tilee mp^{hiya}. ‘After Osmaani took off the flat (lit. punctured) tire, he put on a new one.’
Mi/ nkhashifile kuwa Omarí/ bozele baaskiiliyá. ‘I discovered that Omari had stolen my bicycle.’
Olokelele suhuuni/ baaskiili. ‘He went to the market on a bicycle.’

- Ye/ uzile baaskiili/ tu. [HH!!H] ‘He bought only a bicycle.’
- baskuuti n. 9/10,6 [Eng. biscuit, Ital. biscotto] cookie Siná/ unga wa khfanyiliza baskuuti. ‘I do not have flour to make cookies with.’
- basmentē n. basement
Omari/ lesele makiina/ kuvutila maayi/ ya’ingilo basmentēni/ ka Haaji/ numbaani. ‘Omari brought a machine to extract the water that had entered the basement of Haaji’s house.’
- bastēena after that (from baasi plus teena)
Teena/ bastēena/ oyo (or: oo) mwaana/ shkalaant^ha/ tu. ‘Then, after that, that boy just sat down.’ (This example, with its optional reduction of oyo to oo illustrates how glide reduction may result in an antepenult long vowel in front of a penult long vowel, even though this is generally not allowed in the system.)
- bastoola n. [Sw. bastola SSED 31; Ital. pistola] pistol Hamadi/ mbishile Omari/ ka bastoola/ kaw!/ mubleele. ‘Hamadi shot Omari with a pistol kaw! and killed him.’
- bastoone n. [Ital. pistone] piston
- batāala adj. [Sw. batili SSED 31; Ar.] void, null, invalid chiza batāala somuyo fasaadi [st.] ‘otherwise your fasting is invalid’
- batāata (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Ital. patata, Som. bataato] sweet potato batāata ladda ‘sweet potato’ batāata mooyi ‘one potato’ batāata za chizuungu ‘white man’s potatoes’ batāata za wilaaya ‘white man’s potatoes’
Baayá/ tete batāata/ jiile. ‘My older sister took the potato and ate it.’
Cheendra/ shtinda batāata mooyi. ‘She went and cut off one potato.’
Illa/ mi/ nakhsula batāatá. ‘I do not wanting anything but potatoes.’
rel.
chi-batāata (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-batāata (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- batēera (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw. batela SSED 31; Port. or Hindi] boat Batēera/ izamiile. ‘The boat has sunk.’
batēera ya chaano ‘a type of boat in which the stern is large and flat (cf. chaano ‘a large dish or tray’)’ khfanya batēera ‘to repair a boat’ kulunga batēera ‘to build a boat’
Makasiya/ ya batēera/ yavundishile. ‘The oars of the boat are broken.’
Wagarwa/ hupataa nsi/ ka batēera. ‘Fishermen catch fish with boats.’
Woowo/ omo batēera mooyi. ‘They are in one boat (i.e. they are in the same situation, or share the same beliefs, etc.).’
rel.
chi-batēera (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. boat chibatēera chibeeló ‘about that was lost’; zibatēera zibeeló ‘boats that were lost’ chibatēera chihaba ‘a small boat’; zibatēera zihaba ‘small boats’ chibatēera chimooyi ‘one boat’; zibatēera ziwili ‘two boats’ Haliima/ fanyize zinanaande/ kana zibatēera. ‘Haliima made zinanaande (that look) like small boats.’
Laakini/ kuḷa muunt^hi/ chimalizá/ kishkiza nsiize/ ka chibatēeraani/ huya askari/ wa sulṭaani/ oyo/ huzolaa nsi/ zotte/ walá/ hawampi/ peesa. ‘But every day after unloading his fish from the boat, come the soldiers of the sultan to sweep up all the fish and not give him any money.’

Mgarwa/ uyu/ kuḷa muunt^hi/ heendra/ bahariini/ khpataa nsi/ na nasiibuyé/ kuwa suurá/ huruuda/ na chibaṭeeraché/ chiyeloo nsi/ noo’i/ ka noo’i. ‘This fisherman each day goes to the sea to catch fish and his luck being good, he returns and his boat filled with fish of different kinds.’

Shchiya/ chibaṭeera/ washpanza sanduukhu/ naawó/ washpaandra/ wachendra markabuuni. ‘A boat came and they loaded the box on it and they boarded [the boat] and went to the ship.’

Zibaṭeera/ hasfilaṭiloowi/ kuḷawa salaama. ‘Little boats are not expected to escape safely.’

i-baṭeera (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. boat ibaṭera imooyi ‘one boat’; mibaṭera miwili ‘two boats’ ibaṭeraa yile ‘a long boat’

Ijiṭaye/ yile/ kana ibaṭeera. ‘His head is long like a boat.’

mibaṭeraa mile ‘long boats’

baṭi (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10,6 [Sw. batī SSED 31; Ar. or Hindi] corrugated, galvanized iron used as roofing for houses

ku-baṭila

v. [Sw. batili SSED 31; Ar.] (baṭiliile) nullify, cancel; render ineffective or invalid; broken, violated; not carried out (in particular, certain formal requirements having been violated or not fulfilled – ablution, prayer, marriage (Notice the failure of the stem-final l to be converted to ḷ in front of the perfective extension, while the perfective extension itself does convert to l.)

kubaṭila kooḏa ‘to invalidate a statement by giving evidence to the contrary’ kubaṭila uuḏu ‘to nullify an ablution’ kuḷa ibaada ya suna kubaṭila [st.] ‘every act of worship of a non-obligatory sort can be broken or not carried out’

rel.

ku-baṭilika v. p/s.

ku-baṭilisha v. caus.

ku-baṭilishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-baṭilishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-aṭishilizanaya v. caus. appl. rec.

Want^hu awa/ wabaṭishilizenyee sala. ‘These men caused each other’s prayers to be invalid.’

u-baaṭili
31] fault

n. 14 [Sw. ubatili “nullity, emptiness, vanity, futility, uselessness, falseness” SSED ka ubaaṭili ‘with no reason’

Ni/ nnakunvunanga ka ubaaṭili/ tu/ nt^haku/ ziwovu/ zaa mi/ nna’iwo kuwa ninfanyiizé. ‘You (pl.) are beating me for no reason at all, there is nothing bad that I know that I have done to you.’

Nt^hanzile ka ubaaṭili. ‘He insulted me for no reason.’

rel.

baaṭili adj. [Sw. batili “(1) worthless, invalid, ineffective; (2) tending to, or with the characteristics of annulling; (3) untrue, false” SSED 31] lies; void, nullified, cancelled, invalid

Munt^hu uyu/ salaye/ baaṭili. ‘This man’s prayer is invalid.’

ya baaṭili ilaṭeeni/ ndilaye hupoteḷoowa [st.] ‘reject deception and lies, which lead to eternal damnation’ ya nafsi sooma ilmu chiiza baaṭili/ sala ya jaahili ṣtoṣhe ni kaamili [st.] oh mortals, acquire (lit. study) knowledge (about how to pray), otherwise (your prayers) are void/ the prayer of someone ignorant, don't think it is complete' baatini n. 9/10 [Sw. batini "the belly, only used, and that rarely, in a fig. manner of the innermost thoughts or intentions" SSED 31; Ar.] inner thoughts, feelings

Baatiniye/ siwo/ suura. 'His inner thoughts are not good.'

Want'u awa/ baatini zaawo/ mbovu. 'These people, their inner thoughts are bad.'

baatiriya n. battery

Gaariya/ leelo/ fijiri/ yiize/ koondroka/ chuquu quuk!/ baatiriya/ da'iifu. 'My car this morning did not start, chuquu quuk! the battery is weak.'

m-baata n. [Sw. mbata "the coconut in the final state of ripeness and dryness, when the nutty part inside gets loose from the shell, commonly used for copra" SSED 267] the last stage of the development of the coconut, where there is little liquid, hardened meat, hard shell

Mtala mbaata/ hupata idaafu. 'One who chooses a coconut at the mbaata stage gets a coconut at the idaafu stage.' (A proverb that conveys the idea if one strives for the best, one gets something less.)

m-bavu n.

kumvundaa mbavu 'to break the ribs'

Namvunda maana/ mbavú/ kumtukuza mijombo ayo. 'You are breaking the child's ribs by loading him with those things.'

baw ideo.

Mukhta si/ shkomelo numbaani/ ye/ ofeete/ ilatile ijuuniya/ ya stuungulu/ nti/ baw! 'When we arrived home, he was tired, he threw the sack of onions on the ground baw!'

l-bawa (m-) n. 11/10 feather

Harbishiize/ hattá/ ndrazile/ ka mkonooni/ ulushile/ laakini/ ye/ lasile/ mbawaze. 'It struggled [the trapped guinea fowl] until I let it go from my hand and it flew away, but it left its feathers.'

Huuluka/ bilaa mbawa. 'It flies without feathers.' (A riddle, the answer to which is ariplaano 'airplane'.)

kubiga lbawa 'to die'

Saalimu/ bishile lbawa. 'Saalimu died [lit. hit the wing].'

lbawala 'my feather'; mbawaza 'my feathers'

Nyunyi/ bilaa mbawa/ ha'uluki. 'A bird without feathers does not fly.' (A proverb.)

rel.

chi-bawa (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-bawa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

bawaaba n. 9/10 [Sw. bawaba SSED 31; Ar.] hinge (of a door)

Bawaba iyi/ ivundishile. 'This hinge is broken.'

Bawaba izi/ zivundishile. 'These hinges are broken.'

bawaabu (Ø, ma-) n. [Sw. bawabu SSED 31; Ar.] door-keeper, gatesman

Mabawaabu/ mawaardiya/ wachimwaambila/ kuwa nthaku/ rukhsa/ sa'a iyi/ muunt'u/ kumwolokela Harun Rashiidi. 'The gatesmen, the guards told him that there is no permission at this hour for anyone to see Harun Rashiidi.'

Sku iyo/ mukhta ikomeeló/ chizeele/ chooloka/ ka mabawaabu/ waliko wachishiko zaamú/ milangooni. 'When that day arrived, the old woman went to the door-keepers who were guarding the doors.'

Wamwenopo chizele ichó/ mabawaabu/ wachuuzá/ we/ naani. 'When they saw that old woman, the door-keepers asked: who are you?'

bawaasiri n. 9 [Sw. bawasiri SSED 32] piles, hemorrhoids

Ali/ waawaye/atila bawaasiri/ rihi/ nthamjawa/ skuu nthatu/ haṭá/ dakhṭari/ chiwejelwelaṭa. ‘Ali’s father was operated on for hemorrhoids, gas did not come out of him for three days, even the doctor got worried.’

chi-baawu (zi-) n. 7/8 a sleeveless waistcoat worn over the haanzu (generally by elderly people), given to the father of the bride, for example, as a sign of respect baaya n. (my) older sister (but used only of a female sister to a female); [pron. baayá] baayá ‘my elder sister’ Baayá/ tete baṭaṭa/ jiile. ‘My older sister took a potato and ate it.’

baya yaawo ‘their older sister’
baya yiinu ‘your (pl.) older sister’
baya yiitu ‘our older sister’
baya zaawo ‘their older sisters’
baya ziinu ‘your (pl.) older sisters’
baya ziitu ‘our older sisters’ baayaza ‘my older sisters’
Baayazá/ ismu/ ya muunṭhu/ skumwaambila/ yaa ni/ fanyiizó. ‘My elder sisters, I haven’t told anyone what you did.’ Or: Baayazá/ yaa ni/ fanyiizó/ ismu/ ya muunṭhu/ skumwaambila.
Baayazá/ ṭafaḏaali/ ḷawa naami/ shiriini. ‘My elder sisters, please come with me to the meeting.’
baayaze ‘her older sisters’ baayé ‘her older sister’
baayó ‘your older sister’
Kanaa we/ nayo baayó/ mneete. ‘If you have an older sister, bring her.’
Mi/ hupeenda/ we/ kudirkamana baayaza/ watatu. ‘I would like you to meet my three elder sisters.’
Moomo/ peenzele/ kuwanayo baayé. ‘Moomo (a girl) wishes she had an elder sister.’
Munaza/ na baayazá/ wa’oloshihe kulangala matezo. ‘My younger and older sisters went to watch games.’ muunṭhu/ na baaye ‘and person and her older sister’ Mwanamke chihabba/ baayá/ baayá. ‘The little girl (said): my older sister, my older sister!’
Nimene Fariidá/ na baayé. ‘I saw Farida and her older sister.’ (In Chimiini, one cannot say ‘Farida and her sister’ -- it is always necessary to specify whether the sister is older, as in this example, or younger, as in: Nimene Fariidá/ naa muné. ‘I saw Fariida and her younger sister.’) Tuuma/ naayo/ baayé? ‘Does Tuuma have an older sister?’
Walazilopo ka mutooni/ baayaze/ wavete nguwo zaawo. ‘When they emerged from the river, her older sisters put on their clothes.’
Ye/ dirkamene wawiliwe/ baayaza/ shiriini. ‘He met both my elder sisters at the party.’ Or: Ye/ dirkamene baayaza/ wawiliwe/ shiriini (or: karkaa shiri).’

bayaana n. [Sw. bayana SSED 25; Ar.] certainty, clear evidence; adj. clear ka bayaana ‘clearly, with clarity’ kibri ni asli ya fitina zont’he/ ni mbovu bayaana ḷaṭaani wont’he [st.] ‘pride is the root of all discord, it is manifestly wrong: all of you should abandon it’ munt’hu bayaana ‘a clear person’ (cf. want’hu bayaana, but chijana chibayaana, zijana zibayaana, etc.)
na karaama ziitu ziweena bayaana [nt.] ‘and our miraculous delivery became clear’ ni suna we ḷawaanganya bayaana [st.] ‘it is preferred for you to enunciate clearly (the call to prayer)’
rel.
u-bayaana n. 14 evidence; clearness ku-bayina v. [Sw. baini SSED 25; Ar.] (bayiniile) make something clear, be manifest, be plainly shown

	Nuuru/ bayinile kooðize. ‘Nuuru made clear what he said [lit. his words].’ rel. ku-bayinika v. intr. (-bayinishile) be clear, be manifest, be plainly shown Ibayinishile kuwa Siimba/ nt^hakuboola/ chibuuku. ‘It was evident that Siimba did not steal the book.’ Kuwa Siimba/ bozele chibuuku/ ibayinishile. ‘That Siimba stole the book was evident.’ ku-bayinikila v. intr. appl. (-bayinikiliile) be clear to Mwaalimu/ imbayinikiliile/ kuwa Sa’iidi/ mkhiyanseeete. ‘It became clear to the teacher that Sa’iidi had cheated him.’ Siimba/ kboolake/ peesa/ iwabayinikilile waant^hu/ mahkamaani. ‘Siimba’s having stolen the money became evident to people in court.’ ku-bayinila v. appl. (bayiniliile) ku-bayinisha v. caus. ku-bayinishika v. caus. p/s. ku-bayinishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-bayinishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. rel. nom. m-bayina (wa-) n. 1/2 one who makes clear
bayini	adj. clear
bayna ya	prep. [Sw. baina ya SSED 25] between, among variant form: benaa Msaafa/ benaa Mkhodiisho/ na Mwiini/ ni kilometri 200. ‘The distance between Mogadishu and Brava is 200 kilometers.’
baazara	n. a kind of rice (presumably bagara rice from India) mpunga wa baazara ‘a kind of rice’
baazi	n. ?? Lasile kaazi/ lasile baazi/ kullasku/ nakhsasa. ‘He abandoned working, he abandoned caring about life, every day he grew thinner’ Nt^haná/ kaazi/ nt^haná/ baazi. ‘He has no job whatsoever; he has no job and no income.’
m-baazi	n. ambergris (which is eaten in the belief that it will protect one from cold weather) khfuraha/ kana peto mbaazi ‘as happy as one who has found mbaazi (produced by sperm whales and considered valuable)’ kumeera/ kana mbaazi ‘to search hard for s.t., as one searches for mbaazi’
be	n. [Sw. beberu SSED 32; Hindi] in the phrase: mbuzi yaa be ‘goat’
be’i	n. 9/10 price, cost, value Be’i gani. ‘What’s the price?’ kubigaa be’i ‘to make a bargain’ Na kila shpaandré/ chaa namá/ chaa ye/ weesheló/ weshele be’iye. ‘And each piece of meat that he placed, he put its price.’
m-beebe (mi-)	n. 3/4 fire Tomele amri/ kuwa nt^haku/ rukhsa/ karka muuyiwe/ kashoowa/ mibeebe/ yaa muḷo. ‘He issued an order that there was no permission in the town for fires to be lit.’ rel. beebe -muḷo/ kana beebe ‘lit. as hot as a bonfire (extremely hot, said of things) Numbaani/ ka Omari/ imuḷo/ kana beebe/ inakulawa yifke. ‘At

Omari's hoise, it is hot like a flaming fire, there is heat going out.'

i-beebe (mi- or ma-) n. a large fire made for warmth or to keep animals away ibebe yaa muḷo 'a fire'; mibebe yaa muḷo 'fires'

l-bege (m-)

n. 11/10 page

variant form: lbege

lbege ili 'this page' (cf. mbege izi 'these pages')

lbege lpisiló 'the previous page [lit. the page that passed]' (cf. mbege spisiló 'previous pages')

Ye/ barete madawa miingi/ karka lbege laa ye/ someeló. 'He learned a lot of medicine from the page that he read.'

Ye/ husoma lbege/ hubodisha lbege. 'He reads a page and (then) omits a page.'

-beele

v. irregular perfect stem of the verb ku-baha 'to get lost'

m-bele

n. 9/10, adv. [Sw. mbele SSED 267] before, front, in front of, ahead, first

Baazi/ ile mbele ya waana/ wote. 'Baazi came before (in time) any of/ all the children.'

Chilee mbelé. 'We came earlier.'

Chiṭa chuumu/ haapiti/ mbele. 'A stubborn person (hard-headed one) does not progress.' (A saying.)

Hujoo mbele/ haaji/ numa. 'The one who eats first does not eat later.' (A proverb.)

Isa/ mi/ nakhuloombá/ watume ma'askariyo/ wanamleete/ muunt^hu/ oyo/ mbelezo. 'Now I beg you to send your soldiers to bring that man in front of you.' (Note that the addressee in this sentence is a king, and perhaps this accounts for the fact that mbelezo rather than mbeleyo is used, the plural form being a sign of respect.)

kaa mbele 'straight away' huvuunda milaango hiingila ka mbele [nt.] 'they break doors and into the houses straight away' kendraa mbele 'to go forward'

mbele/ kaa mbele 'far, far away'

Mwaambile/ khtokomelaa mbele/ kaa mbele. 'Tell her to get lost.'

Tokomela/ mbele/ kaa mbele. 'Go far, far away.'

Mbele/ lawa khonye nuumba/ iyi. 'First, let me show you this house.'

Mbele/ nakhsuḷa khsoomá. 'First, I want to read.'

Mbele/ ndrooni/ jaani. 'First, come and eat.'

mbele ya 'in front of, before (e.g. in line), in the presence of'

Nile mbele ya Nuuru. 'I came before Nuuru.'

Nsimeme mbele ya nuumbá. 'I stood in front of the house.'

Nuuru/ ile mbele ya waana/ wote. 'Nuuru came before all the children.'

mbele ya zont^he 'first of all'

Mbele ya zont^he/ ni muhimu/ khsooma/ jisa khpita imṭihaani. 'First of all, it is important to study in order to pass an exam.' (Jisa may be omitted or replaced by khpata and the meaning will remain the same.)

Mbenee ndilá/ mbeleya/ niineenzelé. 'I saw the road in front of me and I walked.'

Mi/ nsimeme mbelezó. 'I stood in front of you (pl).'

Mub^hji/ chendra ka chizeele/ mbele. 'The husband went to the old woman first (before doing something else).'

mwana waa mi/ nsimemo mbeleyé 'the child whom I stood in front of' (cf

Nsimeme mbele ya mwaaná. 'I stood in front of the child.'

Mwanaamke/ chiya/ shkalaant^ha/ mbele/ za Hasani. 'The girl came and sat down in front of Hasani.' (Morph. Notice that mbele is treated as a [cl.10] noun triggering za as the associative link.)

Ndrazole (ka) numbaani/ mbele ya Nuuru. ‘I left the house before Nuuru.’
(Cf. Lazole (ka) numbaani/ mbele ya Nuuru. ‘He left the house before Nuuru.’)

Ndrazole (ka) numbaani/ mbele ya Nuuru/ kulawá. ‘I left the house before Nuuru left (lit. to leave).’ Or: Ndrazole (ka) numbaani/ mbele ya Nuuru/ kuwa lazilé. ‘I left the house before Nuuru left.’

ngombe zaa mi/ nsimemo mbelezé ‘the cattle that I stood in front of’

Ni ‘aadi/ kuzowa khpowa peesa/ mbele. ‘It is common to ask for payment in advance.’

Nile mbele ya Nuuru. ‘I came before Nuuru.’

Nile mbeleyé. ‘I came before him.’

Nimweshelee mbelé. ‘I placed him in front.’

Nnakhsula khsomaa mbelé. ‘I want to be the first to read.’

Nnakhsula khsoma mbele ya waant^hú. ‘I want to be the first of the people to read.’

Nndrokela mbeleya (or: mbeleza). ‘Get out of my sight (lit. move away from my front).’

Nsimeme mbele ya mwaaná. ‘I stood in front of the child.’ Cf. mwana waa mi/ nsimemo mbeleyé ‘the child that I stood in front of’

Nsimeme mbele ya nuumbá. ‘I stood in front of the house.’ Cf. numba yaa mi/ nsimemo mbeleyé ‘the house that I stood in front of’

Sku mooyi/ muke wa Sultani Daraayi/ loosele/ kuwaa ye/ uko kaawó/ kaleent^he/ mbele za waawaye/ na mwaambila/ igema/ we/ uko kiinú. ‘One day the wife of Sultan Daraayi dreamed that she was at home, sitting in front of her father, and he was telling her: welcome! you are at home.’

Sultaani/ shtuma waant^hu/ keendra/ ka mwanaamkewe/ kumleta Hasani/ mbeleze. ‘The sultan sent people to go to his daughter [‘s place] to bring Hasani in front of him.’ (Notice the use of the plural enclitic =z-e in this example, apparently a mark of respect for the sultan.)

Watuunzile/ zisima/ mbele ya kila miskiti. ‘They dug wells in front of each mosque.’

Ye/ nt^hanaa mbele/ walá/ numá. ‘He has neither front nor back – i.e. he is broke, has no money.’

Ye/ simeme mbeleya. ‘He stood in front of me.’

beena

prep. between

Ba’ada/ ya wakhtí/ mchaache/ zondroshelee zita/ bena sultaani/ uyu/ na sultaani/ jiraaniyé. ‘After a little while, war broke out between the sultan and his sultan neighbor.’

Mukewe mgarwa/ chiruda numbaani/ chimweleza muljive/ ijé/ itulushiló/ benaa ye/ na sultaani. ‘The fisherman’s wife returned home and explained to her husband what had happened between her and the sultan.’

Sultaani/ hafaanyi/ farkhí/ bena taajiri/ ma maskiiní. ‘A sultan who does not differentiate between a rich man and a poor man.’

beepari (ma-)

n. someone who attempts to hold himself above other members of society, one who lives lavishly

beer muddo

n. [Som.] spleen

Beer muddo/ na inyí/ beer muddo/ rakhiisí. ‘(Between) spleen and liver, spleen is cheaper.’

Omari/ nakuja beer muddo. ‘Omari is eating the spleen.’

beer yare

n. [Som. beer ‘liver’ + yar ‘small’] spleen

- i-beeramu* (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. beramu SSED 33; Port.] flag Oyo/ iberamuye/ inakhpepela. '[Lit.] That one's flag is flying -- i.e. he is strong because he has someone in the government on his side.'
- rel.
chi-beeramu (zi-) n. 7/8 banner
Kula mwaana/ hutukula chibeeramu. 'Each child carries a banner.'
- ku-berbeerata* v. (berbereete) go around aimlessly, wander jobless Berbeerata. 'Go around aimlessly!' Berberataani. '(Pl.) go around aimlessly!'
Siberbeerate. 'Don't go around aimlessly!' Siberberateeni. '(Pl.) don't go around aimlessly!'
- rel.
ku-berberisha v. caus. cause to go around aimlessly
We/ berberishiize/ tu/ fanyiizeni. 'You just made people go around aimlessly, what else did you do?'
- ku-berberishana* v. caus. rec.
ku-berberishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-berberishiliza v. caus. appl.
Khaadara/ mberberishilize mzaazi/ mwaana. 'Khaadara made the parent's child go around aimlessly.'
ku-berberishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
Khaadara/ na Gaawo/ waberberishilizenye waana. 'Khaadara and Gaawo caused one another's children to go around aimlessly.'
- berbeeri* (Ø,ma-) adj. of someone who goes around aimlessly munt^hu berbeeri 'a person who goes around aimlessly' (cf. want^hu berbeeri or want^hu mabebeeri)
- besmentji* n. basement
Besmentjini/ ka Ali/ numbaani/ nthamu/ chooloko/ kingilaa hawa/ humfanya muunt^hu/ umbukhu. 'In the basement of Ali's house there is no window for air to enter, it makes one feel suffocated.'
- beeji* n. 9/10 verse, stanza Hafida beji izi. 'Memorize these verses.'
- betiriya* n. 9/10 [Ital. batteria] battery (of a car); variant form: bitiriya
- biibi* term of address: madam
Mwaana/ choloka markabuuni/ apo/ ye/ chimwambila mwanaamke/ biibi/ mi/ nile khishkiza. 'The boy went to the ship and there he told the girl: madam, I have come to get you down [onto shore].'
- biibita* n. soft drinks, juices (not water); a shop where such drinks are sold Bibitani/ ka Habiibi/ Chita/ ichuzowa mayi ya ndrimum/ malada. 'Sweet lemonade was sold at Habiibi Chita's drink shop.'
Hamadi/ dukaye/ huzowa biibita/ suura. 'At Hamadi's shop, good drinks are sold.'
Hamadi/ nayo biibita. 'Hamadi had a drink shop.'
Nele maya (y)a ndrimum/ bibitani/ ka Habiibi/ (ma)bardi/ kana barafu. 'I drank lemonade from Habiibi's drink shop that was as cold as ice.' (The drink shop referred to here was one that was well-known in Brava.)

- i-biibo* (ma-) n. fruit of the cashew tree; variant form: ibiibu ibibo iwiti ‘unripe cashew’; mabibo mawiti ‘unripe cashews’
- Bida n. the two Bravanese clans: Wakohaatiimu and Raa Waali, taken together
- bidii n. 9 effort
Bidi’iye/ nt^haykiinfa/ chiint^hu. ‘His effort was of no use.’
khfanya bidii’i ‘to make an effort’
Nt^haná/ bidii’i. ‘He makes no effort.’
- biāaa’a place) n. 9/10 goods, merchandise (carried on a vessel or vehicle to take to be sold at another place)
Apo/ ye/ chuuzā/ biāaa’aze/ ka faayda. ‘There he sold his goods for profit.’
Markabu/ zotte/ shchipakiḷoowa/ biāaa’a/ za lamna ka lamna. ‘The ships were loaded with goods of different kinds.’
Ye/ shpowa jahazi/ iyelo biāaa’á/ lamná/ ka lamná. ‘He was given a dhow which was filled with goods of different kinds.’
- biāari n. baldness
Khkashifowa jisa hufanyilizowa biāari/ dawá/ siwo/ kaazi/ ya sahali.
‘Discovering how to cure baldness is not an easy task.’
- bidhoori n. [Som.]
ikopa ya bidhoori ‘a cup made of glass’
- ku-biga v. [Sw. piga SSED 376] (bishile) strike, hit, beat Basi/ wachimbiga/ noka oyo/ wachimwubla. ‘So they hit that snake and they killed it.’
Chanza kumbiga moojé. ‘He began to beat his master.’
Haadi/ mbishile Nuuru/ kaa luti. ‘Haadi beat Nuuru with a stick.’ (MI accepted the possibility of eliding the preposition in this example, without changing the verb to the applied form: Haadi/ mbishile Nuuru/ luti.) kubiga alaama ‘to put signs up, mark something off’ kubiga booli ‘to rob, to kidnap’; kubigowa booli ‘be robbed, kidnapped’ Mabahariyawe/ mwanamke wa sultaani/ wakomelopo
Ifuwooni/ wachanza kubigaa nk^heje/ mwanamke wa sultaani/ bishiḷa booli. ‘When the sultan’s daughter’s crew reached shore, they began to shout: the daughter of the sultan has been kidnapped.’
Si/ chimbishile booli/ ka kaawó/ chile naayé/ apá/ na isá/ kuḷa mooyi/ ndiyé/ namsulo mtaalá. ‘We kidnapped her from her house and we came with her here and now each one (of us) wants to take her.’
kubiga boomba ‘to operate a pump, spray with chemicals, fire off a bomb or rocket’
kubiga bunduqu ‘to fire a gun’ kubiga buraashi ‘to paint with a white paint made of burned stones’ kubiga chileemba ‘to wear a turban’ kubiga faali ‘to wish someone a good or bad omen; to use magical devices to foresee the future’ Ba’adi/ ya masheeki/ wana’iwa/ kubiga faali/ husiiba. ‘Some scholars know how to foresee the future, (what they predict) happens.’
kubiga firimbi ‘to whistle (using a whistle)’ kubiga fooji ‘to whistle’
kubiga harbi ‘to wage war’
kubiga hewesi ‘[lit.] to hit the chest -- i.e. to declare one’s readiness for an undertaking and extend one’s financial assistance for such an

- undertaking’
Sheekhi/ bishile hewesiye/ hadiile/ ndimi/ tamsaydo Nuuru/ kuwaka nuumbayé. ‘Sheekhi hit his chest and said it’s me who will help Nuuru build his house.’
- kubiga hoodi ‘to ask for permission to enter a house’
- kubiga ifuundro ‘to tie a knot’
Haliima/ bishilee nguwo/ ifuundro. ‘Haliima tied a knot in the cloth.’
- kubiga igoonjo ‘to sit on the knees’
- kubiga ijarah ‘to wound’
- kubiga ikoondro ‘to strike someone with the fist’
- kubiga ipi ‘to slap, spank with the open hand’
Mbishile ipi ya dhofoori. ‘He slapped him on the side of the face.’
- kubiga iteke ‘to kick, walk’
Ali/ mwambile Omari/ gari ya Nuuru/ inakuraaga/ kuuya/ kheeri/ chibiga iteke/ chooloke. ‘Ali told Omari: Nuuru’s car is delayed in coming, we better go on foot.’
Chinakubiga iteké/ chinakeendrá/ ziyaraani/ ka Shekh Makhtuubu/ ni kilomeetiri/ nt’haano/ takhriibu. ‘We are going on foot to the religious ceremony for Shekh Makhtuubu, it is (held) about five kilometers (from Miini).’
- kubiga ito ‘to wink, move the eyebrow’
- kubiga itama ‘to take a mouthful of something’
Haliima/ mwambile Omari/ mpha maayi/ haba mooyi/ mbige itama/ nuskutile. ‘Haliima told Omari: give me some water so I can take a mouthful so that I may gargle with it.’
- kubiga jarsi ‘to ring a bell’
- kubiga ka garbaashi ‘to whip’
Askari/ mbishile mwiizi/ ka garbaashi. ‘The soldier struck the thief with a whip.’
- kubiga kampaneela ‘to ring a bell’
Manuuri/ zamaani/ Miini/ skołani/ ndiyé/ chibigo kampaneela. ‘(A man named) Manuuri, during old times in Miini at school it was he who rang the bell.’
- kubiga kheema ‘to put up a tent’
Chinakendra maduriini/ mandari/ shakubiga kheema/ khkala/ skuu mbili. ‘We are going to the bush for a picnic, we will put up tents and stay two days.’
- kubiga khpala ‘to lock up’
- kubigaa khura/qura ‘to ask the cards, flip a coin, draw straws etc.’
- kubiga lbawa ‘to die [lit. hit the wing]’ Nk’uku wa Haliima/ jilee sumu/ fiile/ bishile lbawa. ‘Haliima’s hen ate poison and died, it “hit the wing”.’
- kubigaa limi ‘to make innuendos, insinuate, make biting remarks’
Abuuyi/ mbishile Nuuru/ limi/ mwambiile/ we/ nt’una/ ihsaani. ‘Abuuyi spoke sharply to Nuuru and told him you do not repay favors (done for you).’
- kubiga lkele ‘to shout’
Ali/ mwiizi/ mrashiize/ bishilee nk’ele/ kudirkoowa/ ‘Ali, the thief chased him and he shouted to be saved.’
- kubiga lkope ‘to wink at, move the eyelid’ (Not known to GM.)
- kubigaa luti ‘to hit with a stick’ (Not known to GM.)
- kubiga ma’ipi ‘to slap, spank with the open hand’
Abu/ shishiła shana/ mwaanawe/ kumrudilaa limi/ mbishile ma’ipi. ‘Abu got angry over his son’s talking back to him and slapped him.’
- kubiga mafuungu ‘to divide up into shares’
- kubiga marti ‘to invite someone for food’
Haliima/ mbishile mweenzawe/ Faatima/ marti/ jima. ‘Haliima

- has invited her friend Faatima Friday.’
- kubiga mayleli ‘to ululate’
Wake/ harusiini/ ka Hasani/ wanakubigaa nk^husi/ na mayleli/ ka furaha. ‘Women at Hasani’s wedding are clapping and ululating with happiness.’
- kubigaa mbawa ‘to flap the wings (of a bird)’
Du^l’eda/ mrashizee nk^huku/ kumuja/ nk^huku/ bishilee mbawa/ ulushile/ fakeete. ‘A fox chased the hen to eat it, the hen flapped its wings and flew a little and ran away.’
Zinyunyi/ mukhtaa zo/ ziweno waant^hu/ wanakuuyá/ zibishilee mbawa/ zulushile. ‘When the birds saw people coming, they flapped their wings and flew away.’
- kubiga miilu ‘to walk, go on foot’
Ali/ mwambile Omari/ gari ya Nuuru/ inakuraaga/ kuuya/ kheeri/ chibiga miilu/ chooloke. ‘Ali told Omari: Nuuru’s car is delayed in coming, we better go on foot.’
Chinakubiga miilú/ chinakeendrá/ ziyaraani/ ka Shekh Makhtuubu/ ni kilomeetiri/ nt^haano/ takhriibu. ‘We are going on foot to the religious ceremony for Shekh Makhtuubu, it is (held) about five kilometers (from Miini).’
- kubiga mishtari ‘to draw a line’
Waana/ wa skoola/ wanakubiga chibuuku/ mishtari. ‘School children are drawing lines in a book (e.g. with a ruler).’
- kubigaa mu^lo ‘to make a fire for warmth or for scaring off animals, not for cooking’
Omari/ lele maduriini/ bishilee mu^lo/ jisaa ye/ kudhora mahayawaani. ‘Omari slept in the bush and made a fire so as to protect himself from animals.’
- kubiga musumaari ‘to make a biting, stinging remark’
- kubiga mziinga ‘to explode, set off a bomb’
- kubiga naasitiro ‘to play a tape-recorder’
Haliima/ kaawo/ numbaani/ yiko feesta/inakubigowa naasitiro/ inakhtezoowa. ‘At Haliima’s house there is a party, a tape recorder is being played and there is dancing.’
- kubiga neefu ‘to breathe, pant’ Mahabuusi/ bishile neefu/ nt^ho. ‘The prisoner breathed out hard.’
- kubigaa ngoma ‘to beat a drum, jump up and down with joy’
Ali/ furahiile/ leelo/ mwaanawe/ khpita imtihaani/ nakubigaa ngoma. ‘Ali today got happy for his child to pass the examination, he is lit. hitting a drum – i.e. jumping up and down with joy.’
- kubigaa nk^he^le ‘to bark’ kubigaa nk^he^le/ kanaa mbwa ‘to shout like a dog – i.e. to shout nonsensically, for no reason’ Sheekhi/ shishi^la sh^ltana/ nakubigaa nk^he^le/ kana ibwá. ‘Sheekhi got angry, he is shouting like a dog.’
Mba/ chibigaa nk^he^le. ‘The dog was barking.’
Mba chibigoo nk^he^le/ ingile numbaani. ‘The dog that was barking entered the house.’
- kubiga maboori ‘to hit pumpkins – i.e. cry a lot’ (Often used with the verb kula ‘to cry’, but even without kula still means crying a lot.)
Ali/ maamaye/ kufa/ lizile/ bishile maboori. ‘Ali, his mother’s dying, cried a lot (lit. hit pumpkins).’
- kubiga nk^hengele ‘to ring a bell’
- kubiga paasi ‘to iron (clothes)’
- kubiga piicha ‘to photograph’
- kubiga qalbi ‘to beat (of the heart)’ kubiga ramli ‘to foretell the future using some means’ (Not used by GM.)

kubiga raandra ‘to plane’

Hamadi/ hadiile/ lwawo ili/ lnasha/ kana/ lbishila raandra.

‘Hamadi said this wood is smooth like it was smoothed with a plane.’

kubiga rasaasi ‘to pull the trigger of a gun, shoot, hit with bullets’

Ma’askari/ wamrashize mwiizi/ wambishile rasaasi. ‘Soldiers chased the thief and shot him with bullets.’

kubigaa sa’a/ tak tak ‘to tick (of a clock)’; also: tik tik

Omari/ hadiile/ chiṭa/ chinakundraaza/ chinakumbiga/ kana/ sa’a/ tak tak. ‘Omari said my head is aching me, it is hitting me like a clock, tak tak!’

kubigaa safa ‘to form a line’

Waana/ skolaani/ kiḷaa fijiri/ ntʰaasá/ ya kingila fasḷiini/hubigaa safa. ‘Children of school every morning before getting into class line up.’

kubiga saluuti ‘to salute’

Mwiini/ waliko muuntʰu/ mooyi/ ijiniile/ kiḷaa mara/ chibiga saluuti/ chiviloowa/ Shekh Saluuti. ‘In Brava there was one man, a madman, all the time he was saluting, he was called Sheikh Saluuti.’

kubiga santuuri ‘to play a phonograph’

Haliima/ kaawo/ numbaani/ yiko feesta/inakubigowa santuuri/inakhṭeozoowa. ‘At Haliima’s house there is a party, a phonograph is being played and there is dancing.’

kubiga siimo ‘to telegraph, cable’ kubiga telefano ‘to telephone’

Ali/ nambigila waawaye/ telefano/ kumuuzá/ liini/ nakuuyó.

‘Ali is calling his father asking him when he is coming?’

kubiga tuupa ‘to file’

kubiga zaamu ‘to keep guard’

Abuuyi/ hadiile/ masku mazima/ skulaala/ mbishile zaamu/chimniindra/ mukeewa/ kuuya. ‘Abuuyi said: all night I did not sleep, I kept guard, waiting for my wife to come.’

Leelo/ masku/ ma’askari/ wanakubiga zaamu/ hafisaani/ ka rasdente. ‘Today at night soldiers are keeping guard at the office of the commissioner.’

kubiga zishiindro ‘to stomp on the ground’

Waana/ wa skoola/ wafurahiile/ khshindra mpiira/ wabishile zishiindro. ‘School children were happy to win the ball game, they were lit. hitting zishiindro, stomping on the ground in joy.’

kubigaa zita ‘to wage war; stop talking to someone, show enemy’ kubigilaa nk^hele ‘to shout at’

Mbigililee nk^hele. ‘He shouted at him.’

mwana wa Nuurú/ mbishiló ‘the child whom Nuuru hit’ (but also: mwana wa Nuuru/ mbishiló with the same meaning) mwaana/ wa Nuurú/ mbishiló ‘the boy whom Nuuru hit’ (but also: maana/

wa Nuuru/ mbishiló with the same meaning)

Mbishile. ‘He hit me.’ versus Mbishile. ‘He hit him.’ (It is important to note that these two examples are slightly different in pronunciation, even though we have written them the same way. In the first person object case, the mb represents a pre-nasalized stop, a single sound despite its complex structure. In the third person singular object case, mb represents a sound sequence, a m followed by a b. Perhaps a clear orthography would have been ^mb for the prenasalized stop and mb for the sequence. However, this contrast is not one that is highly articulated in the language.)

Mbishilee mi. ‘He hit me.’

Mbishile mwaana/ mkono (kaa luti). ‘She hit the child’s hand (with a stick).’

Mbishilee nt^ho/ haṭá/ maskiini/ chanzaa kuḷa. ‘He began to beat him very badly until the poor man began to cry.’

Muunt^hu/ mbishiloo mi/ oloshela. ‘The man who hit me left.’

Munt^hu uyu/ mbishile waawe. ‘This man beat father.’

Mwaaḷimu/ mbishile mwaana/ kaa luti. ‘The teacher beat the child with a stick.’

mwaḷimu mbishilo mwaaná ‘the teacher who beat the child’ mwana wa mwaaḷimu/ mbishiló ‘the child whom the teacher beat’

Mwiizi/ chimbishile/ ṣì. ‘The thief, we beat him.’

Nimbishile Jaamá/ kaa luti. ‘I beat Jaama with a stick.’

Nimbishile Omari. ‘I hit Omari.’ Or with verb focus: Nimbishilé/ Omari. ‘I hit Omari.’ (The default case is for the final accent triggered by the verb to be restricted to the verb when it is focused/emphasized. But when questioned on this point, GM accepted a pronunciation: Nimbishilé/ Omari. The context when this pronunciation might be used has not been established. It should be stressed that in this alternative pronunciation there is a clear downstep on the phrasally separated complement. Thus this pronunciation is quite different from the simple yes-no question: Nimbishilé/ Omari? ‘Did I hit Omari?’ In the yes-no question, the out-of-focus complement has undergone accent-shift, but downstep is suspended. Thus while the complement is not as high in pitch as the verb, nevertheless it is clearly raised in comparison to the statement cited above: Nimbishilé/ Omari.)

Nt^hawambiga. or Want^hambiga. ‘They did not hit him.’

Nuuru/ mbishile mwaana. ‘Nuuru beat the child.’ (This statement has canonical downstep intonation. The simple y/n question has only Q-raising: Nuuru/ mbishile maana? In our recording of the exclamatory question, downstep is employed as usual and both phrases undergo accent shift: Nuurú/ mbishile maaná!?)

Nuuru/ mbishile mwana wa Haliima. ‘Nuuru beat Haliima’s child.’ There is no accent-shift in the simple yes-no question (since there is nothing out of focus) but there is in the emphatic version (which is not dependent on a phrase being out-of-focus): Nuuru/ mbishile mwana wa Haliima? and Nuurú/ mbishile mana wa Haliimâ!?)

Nuuru/ mbishile mwaana/ wa Haliima. ‘Nuuru beat Haliima’s child.’

(In the simple yes-no question version of this sentence, we did not observe accent-shift: Nuuru/ mbishile mwaana/ wa Haliima? Perhaps this pronunciation indicates that phrasal separation of the head of the associative construction is not necessarily linked to focus. More research is required on this point. Accent shift in the emphatic yes-no question is not connected to the out-of-focus nature of a phrase: Nuuru/ mbishile mwaaná/ wa Haliimâ!?)

Nuuru/ nt^hambiga/ mwaana. ‘Nuuru did not beat the child.’ (We recorded the simple y/n question both with and without accent shift on the complement: Nuuru/ nt^hambiga/ mwaaná (or: mwaana). The emphatic version always displayed accent shift: Nuuru/ nt^hambigá/ mwaaná. These data then are inconclusive as to whether the complement of the negative verb in the default case is out of focus necessarily. More research on this topic is needed.)

Nuuru/ nt^hambiga/ mwana wa Haliima. ‘Nuuru did not beat Haliima’s child.’ (Phon. We recorded the simple yes-no question both with and without accent-shift in the complement phrase: Nuuru/

nt^hambiga/ mwana wa Haliima? and Nuuru/ nt^hambiga/

mwana wa Haliimá? There is just one emphatic version:

Nuuru/ nt^hamibigá/ Nuurú!?)

Si/ chimbishile mwiizi. ‘We beat the thief.’ (cf. In the following version of this sentence, the postposed subject is deaccented: Mwiizi/ chimbishilé/ ṣì. We indicated the deaccenting of a pronoun by the grave sign over the vowel.)

Wachimbiga mapoliisi/ wachimbigó. ‘The police beat him, that’s what they did.’

Waali/ bishila naami. ‘Waali was beaten by me.’ (Cf. wali bishila naami ‘the Waali who was beaten by me’; from a segmental point of view, the relative of a passive verb is not different from the non-relative -- it is only the final accent in the relative clause form that makes the distinction explicit.)

Waali/ tu/ bishila naami. ‘Only Waali was beaten by me.’
wana wa mwaalimu/ wabishilo ‘the children whom the teacher taught (them)’

Waawe/ mbishile munt^hu uyu. ‘Father struck this man.’ Or: Waawe/ mbishile/ munt^hu uyu. (Syn. In this sentence, both the subject and object are [cl.1] nouns. As a result, word order is critical in distinguishing the grammatical role that these noun phrases are playing. A different word order yields a different meaning:

Munt^hu uyu/ mbishile waawe. ‘This man struck father.’ The subject may be postposed, but it must be postposed to the the clause: Mbishile waawe/ munt^hu uyu. ‘Struck father, this man.’ This postposed subject has a lowering of its pitch level that indicates its out-of-focus nature.)

end of

rel.

ku-bigaabiga v. freq.

Hamadi/ hupeenda/ kubigabiga waant^hu. ‘Hamadi likes to beat people repeatedly.’

Hamadi/ hupeenda/ kumbigabigaa mi. ‘Hamadi likes to beat me repeatedly.’

mahaḷaa ye/ nakubigoobigó ‘the place that he was pounding’

Ye/ tete ijiwe/ nakubigabigaa nt^hi. ‘He took a stone and pounded the ground with it.’

ku-bigana v. rec. (-bigeene) collide with one another/s.t., strike one another/fight/hit one another; var. ku-biganana (-bigeene)

Bigene na Omari/ festaani. ‘I ran into/ bumped into Omari at the party.’

(In the speech of GM, the first person subject marker is very often phonologically null, whereas in MI’s speech, an overt nasal is usually present.)

Gaari/ ya Hamadi/ bigeenó/ mbaaká. ‘The truck that Hamadi hit/ ran into etc. is mine.’

Gaari/ zibigeene. ‘The cars/trucks collided.’

Hamadi/ (fakeete)/ bigene na gaari. ‘Hamadi ran into a truck/ collided with a truck/ hit a truck (i.e. he was running and hit a truck).’

Hamadi/ bige(ne)ne na lkuta. ‘Hamadi ran into/ banged against the wall.’

Ka Omari/ numbaani/ nt^haku/ muunt^hu/ iguriila/ milaango/ yanakubigana. ‘At Omari’s house there is no one there, it has been moved out of, doors are banging (hitting each other).

Mbigene na Omari. ‘I fought with Omari.’

Omari/ bigen(en)e naami. ‘Omari fought with me.’

Omari/ bigen(en)e naaye. ‘Omari fought with him.’

Wamaanga/ wanakubigana ka mp^haanga. ‘Arabs are hitting one another with swords.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ḍaank^hu ‘popcorn’.)

ku-biganika v. rec. p/s. (biganishile)

Mwaana/ potele ka chidank^haani/ bom!/ biganishile naa nt^hi/ vundishile kuulu. ‘The child fell from the roof, bom! and hit against the earth and broke (his) leg.’

ku-biganoowa v. (-bigeena) be hit/bumped/run into; var. ku-bigananoowa (-bigeena)

Lkuta/ lbigena naalo. ‘The wall was bumped into (lit. hit against it).’

Omari/ bigene(ne)ná. ‘Omari was run into.’ I did not understand this... study.

ku-bigika v. p/s. able to be beaten

Ngoma iyi/ ha'ibigiki/ jisa suura/ ni nuumu. 'This drum cannot be beaten easily, well; it is hard.'

ku-bigikila v. p/s. appl.

Fulaani/ habigikili/ mwaana. 'So-and-so cannot have his child beat on him.'

ku-bigiloowa v. appl. pass.

L̄iikopi/ luti/ l̄bigil̄ila mwiizi. 'Where is the stick that was used to beat the thief.' (Syn. Notice that in this example the instrument is the subject of the passive applied verb.)

L̄iikopi/ luti/ la mwaana/ bigil̄ila mkono. 'Where is the stick that the child was hit on the arm with?' Or: L̄iikopi/ luti/ bigil̄ila mwaaná/ mkono. (Syn. In both of these sentences, mwaana is the subject of the passive verb. In the first example it is in canonical pre-verbal position, but in the second example it is postposed after the relative verb. This sort of postposing is common in relative clauses. It is possible for the instrument to also be the subject of the relative clause: L̄iikopi/ luti/ l̄bigil̄ila mwaaná/ mkono. 'Where is the stick that was used to hit the child on the arm?')

Luti/ l̄bigil̄ila Jaama/ naami. 'A stick was used by me to beat Jaama.'

Luti/ l̄bigil̄ila mwaana/ mkono. 'The stick was used to hit the child on the arm.' (Syn. It seems also to be possible to have Luti/ bigil̄ila mwaana/ mkono., where mwaana is the subject of the passive instrumental verb. However, mwaana cannot be the passive subject – at least in the speech of MI -- if luti remains in post-verbal position: Mwaana/ bigil̄ila mkono/ luti.)

Mi/ nbigil̄ila mwaaná/ na Alí. '[Lit.] I was beaten on [my] child by Ali – i.e. my child was beaten to my detriment by Ali.'

Muunt^hu/ bigil̄ila waana/ na mwaalimu/ kaa luti. 'The man's children were beaten by the teacher with a stick [lit. (on) the man was beaten the children by the teacher with a stick].'

munt^hu waa mi/ mbigil̄ila mwaana/ naayé 'the man whom I was hit my child on by him' mwana waa mi/ mbigil̄ila na Alí/ waliko Huseeni 'the child who I was hit on by Ali was Huseeni'

Paasi/ inakubigilowaa nguwo. 'The iron is being used to iron the clothes.' (This answers the question: Inakhfanyowaayi/ paasi. 'What is being done with the iron?')

Sultaani/ chamura ma'askariwe/ keendra/ kuleta matuundra/ na zaakujá/ kubigilowa Hasiibu/ marti. 'The sultan ordered his soldiers to go and bring fruit and food to be used to treat a guest.'

Hasiibu as ku-bigila v. appl. (bigil̄iile) hit on s.o. [i.e. to someone's detriment, to hit s.o. related to s.o.]; hammer

Ali/ nbigil̄ile mwaanawa. 'Ali hit my child on me.'

Bigil̄ile kani/ musmaari/ lkutaani. 'With what did you hammer the nail into the wall?' (A possible answer: Mbigil̄ile ka ndrundo/ musmaari/ lkutaani. 'I hammered with a hammer the nail into the wall.')

Bigil̄ile musmaari/ lkutaani. 'He hammered a nail into the wall.'

Bigil̄ile musmaari/ lkutaani/ ka ndrundo. 'He hammered a nail into the wall with a hammer.' (Cf. ndrundo yaa ye/ bigil̄ilo musmaari/ lkutaani 'the hammer that he used to hammer a nail into the wall'.) (Syn. The bare instrument does not occur comfortably in the post-verbal position in conjunction with an applied verb: ?Bigil̄ile ndrundo/ musmaari/ lkutaani.)

Bigil̄il̄ileni/ lkutaani. 'What did you hammer into the wall?' (A possible answer to this question: Mbigil̄il̄ileni musmaari/ lkutaani. 'I hammered a nail into the wall.' This has focus on musmaari. The simple statement would allow final accent to extend to the end of the clause: Mbigilile musmaari/ Ikutaani.)

Bigilileni/ musmaari/ Ikutaani. ‘What did you use to hammer the nail into the wall?’ (A possible answer: Mbigilile ndruundró. ‘I used a hammer.’)

Bigililepi/ musmaari. ‘Where did you hammer a nail (into)?’ (A possible answer: Mbigilile Ikutaani/ musmaari. ‘I hammered into the wall the nail.’) kubigila ito ‘to wink at’

Nuuru/ mbigilile Ali/ ito/ ka n̄iini/ chiza kumrasha Ali. ‘Nuuru winked at Ali (unseen by others), (indicating) his refusal to follow Ali (i.e. agree with him, support him, etc.).’

kubigila khpala ‘to lock s.t. up’

Haliima/ bigilile khpala/ sanduukhuye. ‘Haliima locked her box.’

Huseeni/ fuunzile/ dukaye/ bigilile khpala. ‘Huseeni closed his shop and locked it.’

kubigilaa khura ‘to draw lots for’

Waana/ wanakulanyiliza mpiira/ Nuuru/ wa’ambiile/ takinbigilaa khura/ takhpato nasibuyé/ ndiyé/ takhtaaló. ‘The children are fighting over the ball; Nuuru told them that he will make a fortune chance for them and the one who wins, it is he who will take the ball.’

kubigila lkele ‘to call someone loudly, shout to someone’ kubigilaa nk^hele ‘to scold someone, shout at someone’ kubigila siimo ‘to call, telegraph s.o.’

Nuuru/ oshele hafisaani/ kumbigila mwaanawe/ Ahmadi/ siimo/ kumwiiwisha/ kuwa maamaye/ hakhaadiri. ‘Nuuru went to the office to call his son Ahmadi and inform him that his mother is sick.’

Lükopi/ luti la Haliima/ mbigililo mwiizi. ‘Where is the stick that Haliima used to hit the thief.’

Ikuta laa ye/ bigililo musmaari ‘the wall that he hammered a nail into’ (Cf. musmari waa ye/ bigililo Ikutaani ‘the nail that he hammered into the wall’.)

Luti/ mbigilile mwaana/ mkono. ‘A stick, he hit the child on the arm with it.’ (Syn. In an instrumental applied verb structure, the instrument may be fronted to initial position in the sentence.)

Luti/ mwaalimu mbigilile mwaana. ‘A stick, the teacher used it to beat the child.’

Mbigilile naani/ luti? ‘Whom did you hit with the stick?’ (Phon. Notice that the final accent triggered by the second person perfect verb appears only on naani and not on the following complement: Mbigilile naani/ luti? This is due to what in the introduction we refer to as the Accentual Law of Focus.)

Mbishilee chita. ‘He hit me on the head.’ Cf. Bishile chitaacha. ‘He hit my head.’ (In the former example, there is a first person object marker on the verb; in the second example, there is no human object marker since it chitaacha ‘my head’ which is the object.)

Mbishile Jaama/ kani. ‘You hit Jaama with what?’ (A possible answer:

Nimbishile Jaama/ kaa luti. ‘I hit Jaama with a stick.’)

Mbishile naani/ ka luuti. ‘Whom did you hit with a stick?’

munt^hu nbigililo mwaanawá/ waliko Ali ‘the man who hit my child on me was Ali’ munt^hu wa Ali/ mbigililo mwaanawé ‘the man whom Ali hit his son on’

Mwaalimu/ mbigilile muunt^hu/ waana/ kaa luti. ‘The teacher beat the man’s children with a stick.’

mwana wa Ali/ nbigililo ‘the child whom Ali hit on me’

Nimbishile Jaama/ luti. ‘I beat Jaama with a stick.’ (Syn. This would be an appropriate answer to a question like: Mbigilile naani/ luti.

‘Whom did you beat with a stick?’ It should be noted that the instrument in the instrumental applied verb construction does not govern object agreement on the verb and is not located immediately after the verb.)

Paasi/ inakubigilaa nguwo. ‘The iron, it is being used to iron clothes.’ (This example, which does not explicitly identify the one doing the ironing, could be used as a response to the question: Nakhfanyaayi/ paasi. ‘What are you doing with the iron?’) ku-bigilana v. appl. rec. hit one another with; be congested; be compact (short, strong, solid)

Bigileene/ kana shpiipa. ‘He is as compact as a tin storage drum.’

Haliima/ bigileene/ kana/ shpuundra. ‘Haliima is as compact as a small donkey.’

Hamidi/ bigileene/ kana mubjaana. ‘Hamidi is as compact as a young boy.’

Nt^hawaná/ ndruti/ zaa wo/ kubigilana. ‘They do not have sticks with which to hit one another.’

Numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ wabigileene/ waant^hu/ mahaḷa/ kingiloowa/ nt^haku. ‘At Hamadi’s house people are congested, there is no place to enter.’

Zibigilene zoombo/ kaake/ sandukhuuni. ‘Stuff had become compacted in his box.’

ku-bigisha v. caus. (bigishiize) make s.o. hit, beat, fire

Ali/ mbigishize mwaana/ ruuhuye. ‘Ali made the child hit himself.’

Nimbigishize Hamadi/ mwaaná. ‘I made Hamadi beat the child.’ (Syn. In this sentence, where both Hamadi and mwaana are human singular nouns and thus govern the same object prefix on the verb, it is only word order that clarifies the meaning: the causee must be immediately post-verbal. This naturally raises the question: what about the case where one of the complements is preposed? One can prepose the causee here: Hamadi/ nimbigishize mwaaná. ‘Hamadi, I made him beat the child.’ However, if one puts mwaana into initial position, the meaning changes: Mwaana/ nimbigishize Hamadí. ‘The child, I made him beat Hamadi.’ In other words, only the causee can be preposed. At first glance, this restriction can be understood as a restriction designed entirely to avoid ambiguity between who is the causee and who is the logical object. But see the example below.)

Nimbigishize Hamadí/ waaná. ‘I made Hamadi beat the children.’ (Syn. In this example, object agreement on the verb clearly shows that Hamadi is the causee and the [cl.2] nominal waana is the logical direct object. Naturally, one can prepose the causee: Hamadi/ nimbigishize waaná. But MI rejected preposing the logical direct object: Waana/ nimbigishize Hamadí. ‘The children, I made Hamadi beat them.’ Observe that in this case, the [cl.1] object prefix m on the verb unambiguously identifies Hamadi as the causee, but still one does not like to have the logical direct object preposed.)

Niwabigishize waaná/ Hamadí. ‘I made the children beat Hamadi.’ (Syn. As expected given the preceding examples, one can prepose the causee waana here but not Hamadi: Waana/ niwabigishize Hamadí. is grammatical, but not Hamadi/ niwabigishize waaná.) ku-bigishana v. caus. rec.

ku-bigishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-bigishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-bigishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-bigishoowa v. caus. pass. (bigishiiza) be made to hit ku-bigoowa v. pass. (bishiḷa) be hit, beaten

Bishiḷa. ‘He was hit, beaten.’

Chibigoowa/ ndrutize/ khamsiini. ‘He was given his fifty blows.’

Chuuma/ hubigowa cho chimuḷó. ‘Iron is hit when it is hot.’ (A proverb.)

kubigowa jarsi ‘bell being rung’

Skolaani/ sa’a za kingiloowa/ na kulawoowá/ hubigowa jarsi. ‘At school, the time for going in and going out is (indicated by) a bell being rung.’

kubigowa ka garbaashi ‘to be whipped’

Diini/ ya islaamu/ huhada/ muunt^hu/ shfaanya/ ba’aði ya ðambi/ hubigowa ka garbaashi. ‘The Islamic religion says that if a person commits some crimes he should be whipped.’

kubigowa paasi ‘to be ironed’

Nguwo/ zinakubigowa paasi. ‘Clothes are being ironed.’

kubigowaa safa ‘to be arranged in rows’

Waana/ wabishilaa safa/ wawili wawili. ‘The children were arranged in rows, lines two by two.’

Luti/ lbigilila Jaama. ‘A stick was used to beat Jaama.’ (Syn. The instrument is the subject of the passive version of a sentence containing an instrumental applied verb. It is not grammatical for the affected noun to be the subject:

Jaama/ bigililaa luti. ‘Jaama was beaten with a stick.’ is ill-formed.)

mi/ kubigoowake/ na Jaama ‘my being beaten by Jaama’

Miizi/ bishila naasi. ‘The thief was beaten by us.’ (Orth. We write the agentive na as a separate word from what follows when it has a polysyllabic complement. However, when a monosyllabic pronoun like si in the present sentence follows, there is some reason to consider na and si to form a single prosodic word, justifying an orthography like naasi. The reason why it makes sense to write naasi has to do with the accent. In general, when the last word in a phrase is monosyllabic, it is accented, regardless of whether the accent in the phrase is expected to be penult or final. But notice that in the case of an agentive plus monosyllable sequence, if a penult accent is required, this accent appears on the syllable naa and not on the monosyllable. In other words, the monosyllable does not behave like a separate word.)

Muusa/ bishila naami. ‘Muusa was hit by me.’ Cf. Musa bishila naami ‘the Muusa who was hit by me’. Or: Muusa/ uje bishila naami ‘Muusa, the one who was hit by me’.

Muusa/ tu/ bishila naami. ‘Only Muusa was hit by me.’ (In this example, tu is raised in pitch.)

Mwaana/ bishila na mwaalimu. ‘The child was hit by the teacher.’

mwana bishila na mwaalimú ‘the child who was hit by the teacher’

Naasi/ bishila miizi. ‘By us the thief was beaten.’ (Phon. The preposed agentive phrase is quite radically raised in pitch.)

waana/ wabishilá or wana wabishilá ‘the children who were beaten’ (Our consultant rejected waaná/ bishilá, at least in isolation; although there are structures where final accent may appear in material involving the head of the relative clause, this does not appear to be an environment that favors such a realization.)

Waziiri/ chibigoowa/ ndruti miya/ ziseeló. ‘The minister was beaten the one hundred blows that remain (to be struck).’

Waziiri/ malizopo kubigoowá/ ndrutiizé/ mwaarabu/ chimuuzá/ndo/ taakuna/ kahawá/ wè? ‘When the minister finished being beaten his blows, the Arab asked him: come, will you drink coffee?’ (The final accent on kahawa in this example is triggered by yes-no question formation.)

rel. nom.

m-biga (wa-) n. one who hits mbiga faali ‘an astrologer (who reads symbols, e.g. written in the sand, or cards, but not the stars)’

Mbigaa nk^he/le/ ha'ushi/ ziwovu/ mimbaani. 'The one who shouts does not hide evil inside him.' (A proverb.)
mbiga paasi 'one who irons'; wabiga paasi 'ones who iron' ma-bigano n. 6 the act of beating one another Mabigano/ mamulo/ yanakiineedra. 'Fierce fighting is continuing.'
m-bigo n. 3 hitting, beating mbigo wa khalbi 'heartbeat' ma-bigo n. 6 beating, the act of beating u-bigo n. 14 hit, beat ubigo wa khalbi 'heartbeat'

ku-bigbiga

v. rush
variant form: kubigbigata Sibigbigaté. 'Don't rush!'

bikeeri

n. 9/10 drinking glass, cup bikeri iyi 'this drinking glass'; bikeri izi 'these drinking glasses' Bikeeri/ zimo dawaṭini. 'The drinking glasses are in the cupboard.'

biikhi (Ø, ma-) n., adj. [Som.] coward

Biikhi/ maamaye/ haaji. 'A coward's mother does not cry.' (A proverb.)
Gaasi/ maamaye/ lizile/ biikhi/ maamaye/ teshale. 'A brave man's mother cried, a coward's mother laughed.' (A proverb.)
rel.
i-biikhi (mi-) n. aug. 5/4
u-biikhi n. 14 cowardice maatoya yaweele miinza ka mapeendo ya ubiikhi [song] 'my eyes became dark because of love of cowardice'

bikra

n., adj. virgin
khṭumbula bikra 'to deflower'
Ni mwanaamke/ bikra. 'She is a virgin.'
rel.
i-bikra (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

bilhakhiiikha

adv. basically, certainly, for sure; really Bilhakhiiikha/ khsooma/ husaayda/ khpita imṭihaani. 'Basically, studying helps to pass an exam.'
Faatima/ oshela sukhuuni/ ye/ bilhakhiiikha/ sulile kula embe/ laakini/ uzilee mazu/ tu. 'Faatima went to the market. She really wanted to buy mangoes, but she only bought bananas.'
Hamadi/ mkali/ khpataa nsi/ mfumaajima/ hawa/ yaliko bilhakhiiikha/ mbovu/ Hamadi/ petee nsi/ nt^hatu/ tu/ mfumaajima. 'Hamadi is a very good fisherman. On Saturday, the weather was really bad. Hamadi just caught three fish on Saturday.'
Meeza/ yaa we/ nakandiko iluké/ bilhakhiiikha/ ni wasakha. The table on which you're writing is really (lit. certainly, for sure) dirty.'

ku-bililikhsata

v. [Som.] (bililikhseete) loot, take by force

bililikho

n. [Som.] looting, taking by force

bilikuliya

adv. forever, ever, never (This adverb, in the sentences we observed, was pronounced with some degree of emphasis, escaping any sort of downstep intonation.)

Ka khisani/ si/ bil̥kuliya/ nt^hachinakhkasa tarafu ya Huseeni/ mara yiatingé.
 ‘Why do we never hear about Huseeni anymore?’
kiiza/ bil̥kuliya ‘to refuse completely’
Mi/ jawabu iyo/ skhiiri/ bil̥kuliya. ‘I will not accept that (e.g. argument) ever.’
Omari/ ile Miini/ khkalaant^ha/ bil̥kuliya. ‘Omari came to Brava to live forever.’
Omari/ iize/ khkasa jawabu iyo/ bil̥kuliya. ‘Omari refused to listen to that thing (argument, etc.) ever.’

bilyeeti

n. 9/10 ticket
bilyeeti iyi ‘this ticket’ (cf. bilyeeti izi ‘these tickets’)

bila

prep. [Sw. bila SSED 35] without bilaa khfilatila ‘unexpectedly’ (also: bilaa khfilatiloowa ‘without being expected’) Faatima/ waawaye/ ile ka Mkhodiisho/ masku/ bila/ khfilatiloowa.
 ‘Faatima’s father came from Mogadisho at night without being expected.’
Muunt^hu/ suura/ khpowa hadiya/ bila/ ye/ khfilatila. ‘It is good for a person to be given a gift that he does not expect.’
bilaa khkoma ‘without end’ Bilaa kuliindra/ Hamiisi/ bishile mpiira. ‘Without hesitation, Hamiisi kicked the ball.’
bilaa sababu ‘without reason’
Maali/ bilaa daftari/ hubaha bila khabari. ‘Possessions without an accounting book get lost without information about them being preserved.’ (A proverb.)
Mate/ hayoondroki/ bilaa mtaanga. ‘Saliva does not move unless there is sand.’ (A proverb.)
Mi/ hupowa makooko/ makavu/ bilaa sh̥towelo. ‘I am given the hard crust of the rice, without relish.’
Muti/ bilaa lpepo/ ha’tetemi. ‘A tree without wind does not shake.’ (A proverb.)
Mukhtḁa si/ chisimeemó/ bilaa kooði/ ngisi/ ile kharibu yiitu. ‘While we were standing without speaking, the buffalo came towards us.’
Nimwambile mzeelé/ kuwaa mi/ skhaadiri/ ku’iisha/ bilaa mwanamke oyo. ‘I told the old man that I was not able to live without that girl.’
Ye/ lazile/ bila/ kuhada waraadi. ‘She left without saying goodbye.’
Ye/ lazile/ bilaa mi/ kiiwa. ‘She left without my knowing it.’

bilaadi

n. This word (derived from Bilaadu al-Rahma (Arabic for "village of [God’s] mercy") refers to a small cluster of about 10 houses and huts around a mosque, situated on the sea shore approx. 1 km. south of Albaamba and separated from Brava. Its founder was Sheex Nureeni Mohamed Saabiri (died 1909), a judge and religious leader of the Idrisiyya brotherhood (also called Al-Ahmadi), who is now the patron-saint of Brava. (Bilaadi is also known as Ka Sheekh Nureeni). The mosque bears his name and contains his tomb. It is the venue of a great ziyaara, or annual celebration on the anniversary of his death, which sees the participation of the whole population of Brava, with chanting of ðikiri and recalling of the many miracles performed by Sheex Nureeni.

bilaashi

adj. [Sw. bilashi SSED 35] without value, no good Kooði niingi/ ni bilaashi. ‘Too much talking is useless.’ (A proverb.)

m-bili

adj. [Sw. -wili SSED 530] two; mbili ‘two [cl.10]’
Dibii mbili/ haskali/ karka moro mooyi. ‘Two bulls do not dwell in one fenced-in enclosure.’ (A proverb.)
Mi/ nazo nuumbá/ mbili/ nk^hulu. ‘I have two large houses.’ Or: Mi/ nazo nuumba/ nk^hulu/ mbili.

Nimpele Iisá/ garii mbilí. ‘I gave Iisa two cars (or the two cars).’ Nimpele Iisá/ garii mbili. ‘I gave Iisa two cars.’ The phrasing in the following sense is less used, more like an afterthought: Nimpele Iisá/ gaari/ mbili.

Niwapele wana zihaba watatú/ mazu mbiliimbili. ‘I gave the three small children two bananas each.’ (Cf. Niwapele wana zihaba watatú/ mazuu mbilí. ‘I gave the three small children two bananas.’)

Omari/ nazo nuumba/ mbili/ nk^hulu. ‘Omari owns two large houses.’ Or: Omari/ nazo numbaa mbili/ nk^hulu. Or: Omari/ nazo nuumba/ nk^hulu/ mbili. Simple yes-no questions do not show accent shift: Omari/ nazo numbaa mbili/ nk^hulu? and Omari/ nazo numbaa nk^hulu/ mbili?

orii mbili ‘two roosters’

rel.

i-kumi naa mbili twelve

m-bili=z-e both

Aasha/ uzile mbilize/ so/ mpuunga/ na iziwá. ‘Did Aasha buy both rice and milk?’ Or: Aasha/ uzile mpuunga/ na iziwá/ mbilize/ so. Or: Mbilize / so/ Aasha/ uziló/ mpuunga/ na iziwá.

Ee/ Aasha/ uzile mbilize/ mpuunga/ na iziwá. [HHH^hH!!H] ‘Yes, Aasha bought both, rice and milk.’ (In this example, the pitch of mpuunga was markedly raised. It is notable that the following conjoined NP was radically lowered in pitch.)

biloori n. [Sw. bilauri SSED 35] a jar made of glass biima n. [Sw. bima SSED 35] chance, risk, bet, insurance; adj. of one who takes chances, risks

Munt^hu uyu/ biima. ‘This man takes risks.’

Ni munt^hu biima. ‘He is a man who takes risks.’

Sfaanyé/ biima. ‘Don’t take risks!’

ku-bimisha v. (bimishiize) take a chance, risk, trust to luck Nuuru/ bimishiize. ‘Nuuru took a chance.’ (This verb does not allow a human object. One cannot say Nuuru/ mbimishize Iisa. ‘Nuuru took a chance on/risked Iisa.’) Sho kuwanayo bahaŋi/ habiimishi. ‘The one who does not have luck does not trust in luck.’ (A proverb.)

rel.

ku-bimishika v. p/s.

ku-bimishiliza v. appl. (bimishiliize) bet with, for Ali/ mbimishilize Nuuru. ‘Ali made a bet for Nuuru.’

ku-bimishilizanya v. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Ali/ wabimishilizeenye. ‘Nuuru and Ali made bets for one another.’

bin’amu n. the son of a paternal uncle

Awa/ ni bin’amuya. ‘These are the sons of my paternal uncles.’

Uyu/ ni bin’amuya. ‘This is the son of my paternal uncles.’

bina n. (physical) features changed’

na ye gedishiiza bina na looni [st.] ‘and her features and complexion were binaadamu n. 1/2 [Sw. binadamu SSED 35; Ar.] human being [lit. son of Adam]

Ito ya binaadamu/ kamba ha’ikhubli/ itakhuluza. ‘If the eye of a human being does not kill you, it will make you suffer.’ (A proverb.)

rel.

u-binaadamu n. 14 humanity, human nature

- bin̄ti n. daughter
Bin̄ti sul̄taani/ mukewe mgarwa/ chim̄jiiba/ nkhubāliil̄é/ sayidiyá/ laakini/ chiliindre/ muda wa sku sitta. ‘The sultan’s daughter, the wife of this fisherman, replied to him: I agree [to this proposal], my master, but let us wait for a period of six days.’
Laakini/ uje mwanaamke/ bin̄ti/ wa sul̄taani/ hiiwa/ killa/ hutuluko apó. ‘But that girl, the daughter of the sultan, knows all that happened there.’
Mukhtāa ye/ mweno mbwa/ kuwa ikusiló/ chim̄viila/ bin̄ti/ wa mwaarabu/ oyo/ kuyaa kuja/ chaakuja/ chiseeló. ‘When he (e.g. the servant) saw that the dog was satiated, he invited the daughter of the Arab to come to eat the food that remained.’
- Bin.yaamini n. Benjamin Mooyi/ karka waanawe/ chivīloowa/ Yuusufu/ na chihabaché/ chivīlowa Bin.yaamiini. ‘One of his children was called Joseph, and his younger brother was called Benjamin.’
- biira n. 9 beer
Hamadi/ huna biira/ tu. [HH!!H] ‘Hamadi only drinks beer.’
biira iyi ‘this beer’
- birikh ideo. of shining, intermittent flashing lights
Haliima/ haanzuye/ inakuwala/ kana/ iwa/ birikh birikh! ‘Haliima’s dress is shining like the sun, birikh birikh.’ Noota/ masku aya/ zinakuwala/ birikh birikh! ‘the stars are flashing this night birikh birikh!’
- birikhi n. flashing lights; variant: birikhibirikhi
Gaari/ ya Ali/ nakuwoná/ nalize/ kaa kule/ birikhibirikhize. ‘Ali’s truck, I see its lights from afar flashing.’
Gari ya Hasani/ hufakata/ impisile gari ya Nuuru/ birikhize/ nt^haskuwonoowa. Hasani’s car runs fast, it overtook Nuuru’s car, and its lights were not seen (i.e. it went so far ahead that one could not see its lights).’
- biiriima first
Gaari/ ichineendra/ hubadīloowa maarsha/ kaandra/ hut̄ilowa biiriima/ chimaliza sekondo/ chimaliza teersa/ chimaliza kuwaarta/ chimaliza kuwinta. ‘When a car runs, you change the gears, first gear one, then gear two, then gear three, then gear four, and then gear five.’
Muunthu/ chisūla kubarataa lugha/ biiriima/ hubarata alfabeeta. ‘If one wants to learn a language, first he learns the alphabet.’
Nuumba/ ichiwakoowa/ biiriima/ huwakowa jidaari. ‘When a house is built, one must first build the foundation.’
Omari/ mwaanawe/ skōlaani/ lazile biiriima. ‘Omari’s child was first at school.’
- m-biriimbiri n. 9/10 sign, trace, appearance (of someone)
Ali/ nt^haku/ mbirimbirize. ‘There are no signs of Ali.’
Hamadi/ sku mbili izi/ mbirimbiriye/ tozēla. ‘Hamadi these days his appearance is missed.’
Mbirimbirize/ stozela. ‘No signs of him were seen.’
Mi/ nimmereel̄é/ muuyi/ mzimawe/ na skukhaadira/ kuwona/ hattá/ mbirimbiriye/ mpaka leelo. ‘I searched for him in the whole town and I was not able to see even a trace of him up until today.’
Nt^hawampata/ tozēla/ mahāla/ yaa ye/ ingiiló/ mbirimbirize/ stozela/ walá/ athariye/ nt^haykuwonoowa. ‘They could not find him; he was not found in any place that he entered, his traces were not to be found, neither could his mark be seen.’

Yaró/ hufakaṭisha gaari/ mpisile Abdaa Nuurú/ xuf! mbirimbiriye/ iize/ kumwona. ‘Yaro drives his truck fast, he passed Abdaa Nuuru, xuf, and (then) there could not be seen any trace of him in the distance.’

biringaani (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. bilangani SSED 35] eggplant
rel.
chi-biringaani (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-biringaani (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

i-biriqi (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. birika “a large metal vessel for holding water, water-jug, a kettle” SSED 36] kettle; [pron. ibiriqi or ibiriikhi] ibirikhi ikulu ‘a big kettle’ Ibiriikhi/ ikulu. ‘The kettle is big.’

mabirikhi makulu ‘big kettles’ Mabiriikhi/ makulu. ‘The kettles are big.’
Numa/ shtala ibiriikhi/ imo ikulu/ kanaaye/ iwaazi/ ikulu. ‘She took a water jug, one big one, its mouth open and large.’

rel.

chi-biriqi (zi-) n. 7/8 kettle; [pron. chibiriqi or chibiriikhi]

Maayi/ karka chibiriikhi/ yanakhtokota. ‘The water in the kettle is boiling.’

Yanakhtokota/ maayi/ chibirikiini. ‘Is boiling the water in the kettle.’

Yanakhtokota/ mayi yamo chibirikiini. ‘Is boiling, the water that is in the kettle.’

Yanakhtokota/ mayi ya chibirikiini. ‘Is boiling, the water [lit. of] in the kettle.’

chi-biriidi (zi-) n. 7/8 match; a book of matches Ashizee muḷo/ ka chibiriidi. ‘He lit a fire with a match.’
mkali/ kana chibiriidi ‘as hot as a matchbook’ Hamadi/ nt^haná/ sabri/ kana chibiriidi/ ka paapo/ hushikowa shṭana.
‘Hamadi has no patience, he is like a match, immediately he gets angry.’

biriyaani n. 9 [Sw. biriani SSED 36; Pers.] rice cooked with meat and vegetables Biriyani iyi/ nt^haykuviva. ‘This biriyaani is not cooked.’

i-birka (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. birika SSED 36; Ar.] a large vessel, usu. stone, in which water is stored Chooloka/ chingila karka ibirka/ ya mayi ya barafu. ‘He went and got into a storage container of ice water.’
Mi/ nzimiilé/ ndraani/ ya ibirka ikulu/ nt^ho. ‘I hid inside a very large stone container for water.’

biiro n. [derived from an Italian brand of ball point pen] pen khalamu ya biiro ‘a ballpoint pen’

Biruuni n. [biruni “the outer area” Pers.] The name of one of the four main quarters of Brava, located immediately south of Mp^haayi. Biruuni was probably outside the original walls of Mp^haayi. It also borders the sea-front, but was built on lower sandy ground. In 1900 many plots of land were still unbuilt, but later it boasted some of the largest stone houses of Brava. Its inland border is marked by the open area reserved for the market and in more recent times, Brava town hall, a bank, a hospital and some government schools were all built in or adjoining Biruuni.

bismiḷaahi in the name of God

ku-biisha	v. (bishiize) knock; sail a vessel (boat, dhow) against the wind Bishize mlaango. ‘He knocked on the door.’ kubisha iŋo ‘to glance, take a quick look’ Nnaku’ubiishá/ mboni/ unakuraaga/ wo/ khfunguloowa. ‘I am knocking (e.g. on the door), why is it being delayed to be opened?’ rel. ku-biishan(y)a v. rec. knock one; visit one another Hachibiishanyi/ mlaango. ‘We do not visit each other anymore (lit. we do not knock on one another’s door).’ ku-biishika v. p/s. ku-bishiliza v. appl. Haŋaa mi/ niko ndilaani/ mbishiliza nuumba/ iŋo. ‘While I am gone out, keep an eye on my home.’ ku-bishilizanya v. appl. rec. rel. nom. ma-biishanyo n. 6 m-biisho n. knock
bishaara	n. 9/10 good news; var. bashaara iyi ni bishaara na kullu iwaani [st.] ‘this is good news, and for all (of you) be aware’ khpa bishaara ‘to give good news’ mwenye bashaara ‘having goodness’ Rabbi chiruzuqe keendra ziyaara/ ka Mtume Mustafa mwenye bishaara [st.] ‘O Lord, grant us that we may visit the Prophet Mustafa who brought us news of eternal happiness’
bisi	in the expression: bardi yaa bisi ‘rheumatism’ yaa bisi ‘constipation’
bismiŋa	[Sw. bismillahi SSED 37; Ar.] in the name of God kuleta bismiŋa ‘to say bismiŋa’ leeta bismiŋa mweenza raasha diini [st.] ‘say bismiŋa, my friend, follow religion’ na kula amriye chaanza ka bismiŋa [st.] ‘and each of his actions begins with bismiŋa’ rel. bismiŋaahi interj. in the name of God
i-biŋa (ma-)	n. 5/6 duck, goose mayaank^buku/ ya ibiŋa ‘duck eggs’ rel. mi-biŋa n. 4 aug. big ducks, geese
biŋirmaakis	n. petromax Naŋi/ yana/ masku/ ziyaraani/ ka Dada Maasiti/ zoloshela/ mara mooyi/ tu/ dam!/ chimaliza/ zashiza biŋirmaakis. ‘Lights (electric) last night at the Dada Maasiti ceremony went off at once dam! then petromaxes were lit.’
-bivu	adj. [Sw. bivu SSED 37] ripe ŋamaa mbivu ‘cooked meat (as opposed to ŋamaa mbiŋi ‘uncooked, raw meat’)’
biyaashara	n. 9/10 [Sw. biashara SSED 37; Ar.] trade, commerce; var. biyaanshara Cheendra/ chimwaambila/ biyaashara/ nini. ‘He went and said to her, what business?’ Hamadi/ ka mapeema/ weno fursá/ khfanya biyaanshará/ apá. ‘Hamadi was early to see an opportunity to do business (lit. commerce) here.’ Hufanya biyaashara. ‘They do business.’ khfanya biyaashara ‘to engage in trade’

mfanya biyaashara ‘a businessman, merchant, trader’

Mi/ ni muunt^hu/ nakuzo biyaashará. ‘I am a person who sells merchandise.’

Mi/ nnakhpenda khfanya biyaashará. ‘I want to do business.’

muza biyaashara ‘a merchant’

Biyoole n. the name of a village on the border with Ethiopia where Sheikh Aweeso was killed and buried; the Bravanese people perform ziyaara by going to Sheikh Aweeso’s grave in Biyoole

Biyoole/ holokowa kuziyarata Shekh Aweeso. ‘Biyoole is gone to (by people) to visit the grave of Sheikh Aweeso.’

Shekh Aweeso/ zishile Biyoole. ‘Sheikh Aweeso is buried in Biyoole.’

bizi adj. [Eng. busy] used by present generation busy

Mi/ nayo kazi niingi/ ni bizi. ‘I have a lot of work, I am busy’ bizaari n. 9/10 [Sw. bizari SSED 37; Ar.] a kind of spice; a slice of bamboo biz(i)nes n. [Eng. business] used by present generation

Omari/ Kenya/ nayo bizines nk^hulu. ‘Omari in Kenya has a big business.’

mu-bjaana (wa-) n. young man; [pron. mubjaana]

Lowelee muke/ naayé/ mubjaana. ‘He married a woman while he was a young man.’

Mubjaana/ chimlola mwanaamke. ‘The young man married the girl.’

Mubjaana/ sh^htukulaa dawa/ chendra naayo/ numbaani. ‘The young boy took the medicine and went with it to the house.’

Mubjaana/ uyu/ waliko shkalaant^ha/ ka waawaye/ numbaani. ‘This young man used to stay at his father’s house.’

mukhta^haa ye/ waliko mubjaana^h... ‘when he was a young man...’

Wabjaana/ awo/ weenzawe/ chiwa’ulila rooti. ‘Those young men, his friends, he bought bread for them.’

Wabjaana/ wa leelo/ siwo/ sahali. ‘The young men of today are not easy to deal with.’

Wabjaana/ wa’ile/ wanakhko^hako^ho^ha jawabu zaa mbuzi. ‘The young men have come. They are talking about matters concerning the goat.’

Ye/ wele mubjaana/ mwenye suura/ na jamaalá. ‘He became a young man having attractiveness and handsomeness.’

rel.

chi-bjaana (zi-) adj. young; [pron. chibjaana]

Wamweenopó/ waant^hu/ wafurahiile/ wachihada/ sultani wiitu/ wele chibjaana. ‘When they saw him, people became happy, they said: our sultan has become young.’

chi-bli (zi-) n. shadow of an animate object; [pron. chibli]

Wene chibli. ‘He saw a shadow.’

Ye/ hukoda na chibliche. ‘He talks to or with his shadow (said of someone showing abnormal behavior).’

mu-bli (wa-) n. 1/2 husband, adult male; [pron. mubli]

Chimwambila ujee noka/ mi/ nakhsuulá/ we/ kumubla mubliwá. ‘She told the snake, I want you to kill my husband.’

Hamiisi/ mara mara/ ni mubli. ‘Hamiisi is at times (behaves like) a man,’ kambaa we/ ni muβli ‘[lit.] if you are a man (i.e. if you have the courage) -- this is said to challenge s.o. to do s.t. that the speaker will oppose’

Person A says: Takhonyeza taakha. ‘I’ll show you!’ Person B replies: Jaariba/ kambaa we/ ni muβli. ‘Try it, if you are a man!’

kuwa mubli ‘to become a man, i.e. to become responsible, mature, self-reliant’ (This is often said in the imperative/subjunctive, speaking of/to a child.)

Na’endre/ nafanye kaazi/ nawe mubli. ‘Let him go and work, let him become self-reliant.’

Mi/ nakhsuulá/ we/ kumwubla mubliwa. ‘I want you to kill my husband.’

Mi/ ni mubli. ‘I am a man.’

mi/ takuwa mubliwo [song] ‘I will become your husband’

Mubli wa maame/ ni waawe. ‘The husband of your mother is your father.’ (A proverb.)

Muke/ mpikilile mubliwe/ chaakuja. ‘The woman cooked food for her husband.’

Nureni mubliwa/ maamaye/ nakichiziyaarata. ‘Nureni my husband’s mother is visiting us.’ (Observe in this example that Nureni is incorporated into the same phrase as mubliwa. This phrasing is required to establish the meaning ‘Nuuru’s mother’. If one said Nureeni/ mubliwa/ maamaye/ nakichiziyaarata, the interpretation would be ‘Nureeni, my husband’s mother, visited us’, which would be odd since Nureeni is a name reserved for males.)

Skumwona/ mubli/ walá/ muké/ mwaana/ walá/ mzeelé. I saw neither man nor woman, child nor old person.’

Uyu/ ni mubliwa/ Nureeni. ‘This is my husband Nureeni.’

Uyu/ ni Nureeni/ mubliwa. ‘This is Nureeni my husband.’

Wabli/ ni kaziini/ wake/ ni numbaani. ‘Men are at work, women are at the house.’ (A proverb.) Or: Wabli/ ni kaazi/ wake/ ni numbaani.

Wako wabli/ huwadhakhatá jisa suura/ wake. ‘There are men who treat women (their wives) well.’

Waliko muke mooyi/ na mubli mooyi/ walozeenye/ ka kheeri/ ka fulkheeri. ‘There was a woman and a man; they married each other in blessing and in blessing.’

Wo/ hufanya kaazi/ khpata khsaayda/ wabli waawo/ na ruhu zaawó. ‘They (e.g. women) do jobs so as to get to help their husbands and themselves.’

Ye/ ni mubli/ naa mi/ ni mubli. ‘He is a man and I am a man.’

Ye/ shpata mubli/ chimloola/ itakuwa kheeri. ‘If she finds a man, and if he marries her, it will be a blessing.’

Ye/ siwo/ mubli. ‘He is not a man (i.e. he is sexually impotent).’
rel.

chi-bli n. in a manly way; [pron. chibli]

Ba’aði ya waant^hu/ karka muyi uyu/ ichiwa wake waawo/ wana miimba/ wo/ huweka ma’ina mawili/ ina yaa chike/ na ina ya chibli. ‘Some people in this town [i.e. Brava], if their wives are pregnant, they keep in store two names: a female name and a male name.’

Steendroze/ siwo/ za chibli. ‘His actions are not done in a manly way.’

i-ji-bli (mi-wa-) n. 5/4 aug.

mw-aa-mu-bli n. boy, a young man

Apo/ zamaani/ waliko taajiri/ mooyi/ zaliila/ mwaana/ mwaamubli/ chimvila Fikiriini. ‘Once upon a time there was a rich man, was [lit.] born to a baby boy, (and) he called him Fikiriini.’

Mwaamubli/ umo ndilaani/ nakuuya. ‘A young man is on his way, coming.’

Teena/ sku mooyi/ masku/ ye/ chiloota/ kuwa mahala/ meepe/ karka nt^hiye/ takuzaloowa/ mwaamubli/ msuura. ‘Then one day at night he dreamed that someplace in his land would be born a nice boy.’

Waliko mwanamke mooyi/ na mwamubli mooyi/ walozeenye/ ka kheeri/ ka fulkheeri/ uko/ uko/ attá/ leelo/ chishika miimba/ chizaala/ mwaana/ mwaamubli. ‘There was a girl and a boy, they got married with blessings and blessings; [the girl] stayed and stayed until one day she became pregnant and gave birth to a baby, a boy.’

Ye/ nt^hakuwanaayo/ mwaamubli. ‘He did not have a boy [all his children were girls].’

chi-ji-bli (zi-ji-) n. 7/8 dim.

he

- chi-mu-bli* (zi-wa-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-ji-bli (mi-ji-) n. 5/4 aug.
wu-bli n. 14 manhood; the state of being a husband Wuke/ na wubli/ umaliize/ kati kiitu. ‘Wifehood and husbandhood stopped between us (i.e. we stopped being wife and husband).’
wu-blinima n. 14 manhood
We/ wublinima/ hufuungula. ‘Your manhood is lacking (i.e. you are not a real man).’
- boobo n. a common nickname for ‘brother’ (used affectionately, esp. by women); also used as a male personal name
- ku-booda v.
 from sandra: I heard ku-booda in the idiom “chuuluka chibooda” with meaning that is probably not connected to ku-boodisha.
- ku-boodisha v. caus. [cf. Som. bood ‘jump’ N 35] (bodishiize) omit something (Phon. Observe that the formation here is exceptional: we would expect the suffix ish to lower its initial vowel to esh following a stem whose last vowel is mid: kuboodesha.)
Ye/ husoma lbegi/ hubodisha lbegi. ‘He reads a page and (then) omits a page.’
 rel.
ku-bodishika v. p/s.
ku-bodishoowa v. pass. (bodishiiza) Ba’aḍi ya zina/ zibodishiiza. ‘Some of the words were omitted.’
zina zibodishiiza ‘words that were omitted’
- boodo n. 9/10 [Som. boodo N 9] flea bodo uyu ‘this flea’ (cf. bodo izi ‘these fleas’) Boodo/ zimingile zala za kuulu. ‘Fleas [lit.] entered his toes.’
jara ya boodo ‘a game similar to dominos’ Nk^huku izi/ zinayo boodo. ‘These hens have fleas.’
 rel.
chi-boodo(zi-) n. flea Chiboodo/ chiraasha/ nk^heje/ mahaḷaa zo/ zinakuḷawiló/ hattá/ shkoma/ mahaḷa/ ya weenziwe/ wawaalikó. ‘Flea followed the shouts [to] the place where they were coming from until he reached where his companions were.’
- boflo n. 9/10 [Sw. bofulo SSED 37]
mandra ya boflo ‘bread made of flour (in the European manner)’
- m-boga n. 10 [Sw. mboga SSED 269] general term for edible greens kalaa mboga ‘to grow vegetables’ khpikaa mboga ‘to cook vegetables’ kujaa mboga ‘to eat vegetables’ kulaa mboga ‘to buy vegetables’ kuzaa mboga ‘to sell vegetables’ mboga izi ‘these vegetables’ mṭuzi waa mboga ‘vegetable soup’
Wachimeera/ nt^hi suura/ washfanya muundra/ na wachaala/ matuundra/ naa mbogá. ‘They searched for some good land and they made a garden and planted fruits and vegetables.’
Ye/ azilee mboga/ za anwaa’i. ‘She grew a variety of different vegetables.’
 rel.
mi-boga n. 4 aug. large quantity of vegetables
- boghoni (Ø, ma-) n. [Som. boqon “Achilles Tendon”] calf of the leg Mbwa/ mṭinzile Ali/ boghoni. ‘The dog bit Ali’s leg (causing a gash).’

- i-boholi* (ma-) n. 5/6 [Som. bohól] hole (in the ground), pit, cave Ali/ tunzile iboholi. ‘Ali dug a hole.’
iboholi ikulu ‘a large hole’ iboholi ipaana ‘a wide hole’ iboholi iviringe ‘a circular hole’ iboholi/ ndraani ‘deep in the hole’ iboholi (/) yaa wake ‘pool of the women’ (This is a place name in Brava for a location near the Shekh Nureeni mosque. There is a legend associated with this place. Three women are said to have attempted to swim here, but were drowned in the deep water and their bodies were never found.)
iboholi ya qabri ‘hole dug for a grave’ Khaadimu/ nakuzumbiza iboholi.
khtila iboholiini ‘to do something that causes one to be in trouble [lit. put in a hole]’ khtumba iboholi ‘to dig a hole’
Maaziyo/ yanatawanyike/ moomo/ omo/ iboholiini. ‘Your blood should spill into that very same hole.’
Mtumba iboholi/ hiingiló/ ye/ mwene. ‘The digger of a hole is the one who enters it himself.’ (A proverb.)
Muunt^hu/ chimtumbila muunt^hu/ hufanya qiyaasi/ yiko kendra khpotele/ ye. ‘If a person digs a hole for someone, he should make one not too deep, as he himself might go and fall into it.’
Naank^hó/ ichirudilowa jisiwo/ hattá/ ichendroowa/ mahaḷa/ huḷilowa Iboholi yaa Waké. ‘Then it (a song) was repeated like this until they reached a place which is called the Pool of the Women.’
Omari/ potele iboholiini. ‘Omari fell into the hole.’
Wachiwona iboholi/ kama chisimama. ‘They found a hole like a well.’
- rel.
chi-boholi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. a small hole chiboholi chihaba ‘a small hole’ chi-boholi n. a kind of game involving small holes made in the ground where stones or bottle caps are used Nakhteza chiboholi. ‘He is playing chiboholi.’
- mi-boholi* n. aug. 4 large holes
Lame iyo/ yiko miboholi. ‘That tarmac road has potholes.’
Ndila iyo/ yiko miboholi. ‘There are potholes in that road.’
Nt^hi iyo/ yiko miboholi. ‘That ground has holes in it.’
ndila ya miboholi ‘a road with large potholes’
- bohora* (ma-) n. [cf. Sw. bohora "a member of one of the two chief sects or divisions of Muhammadan Indians, the other being the Khoja" SSED 37]
- ku-bokha* v. (bokheele) (of eggs, melons) be spoiled Mwanaamke/ bokheele. ‘[Lit.] the girl became spoiled -- i.e. she stayed so long without getting married that she lost her vividness.’
- rel.
ku-bokhsa v. caus.
Nk^huku/ bokhseeze/ mayaank^huku. ‘The hen spoiled (did not produce) the eggs.’
- bokhaari* (Ø-, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 storehouse
- bokhori* n. [Som.] king Wo/ wanakulindra kumwona bokhori. ‘They are waiting to see the king.’
- ku-boola* v. [Som.] (boozele) steal
Abú/ mbozele mzeele/ mwaana. ‘Abu stole the child from the old man.’

(When both complements belong to the same noun class, the first complement must be interpreted as the "logical" indirect object. Furthermore, only that complement may be the head of a relative clause based on this sentence: mzele wa Abú/ mbozelo mwaaná 'the old man whom Abu took the child from'; one cannot say: mwana wa Abú/ mbozelo mzeelé in the sense 'the child whom Abu stole from the old man', although it is acceptable if the meaning is 'the child whom Abu stole the old man from him'. Of course, if the second complement belongs to a different noun class, as in Abú/ mbozele mzeele/ waana. 'Abu stole the children from the old man.', then that complement can be the head of the corresponding relative clause: waana wa Abú/ mbozelo mzeelé 'the children whom Abu stole from the old man'.)

Ali/ bozele zibuuku. 'Ali stole some books.'

Ali/ mbozele mwaajimu/ chibuuku. 'Ali stole from the teacher a book.'

Ali/ mbozele naani/ chibuuku. 'Ali stole a book from whom?'

Boola 'steal!' Cf. Bolaani 'pl. steal!'

Bola fatura iyo/ boolá. 'Steal that car, that's what you should do.'

Bolanii chisu. 'You (pl.) steal a knife!'

Bozele chibuku cha Nuuru/ boozeló. 'He stole Nuuru's book, that's what he did.' Cf. Bozele chibuuku/ boozeló/ cha Nuuru. 'He stole a book, that's what he did, of Nuuru's.' Or with object marker: Chibozele chibuku cha Nuuru/ chiboazeló. 'He stole the book of Nuuru's, that's what he did.' Cf. Chibozele chibuuku/ chiboazeló/ cha Nuuru. 'He stole the book, that's what he did, of Nuuru.'

Bozele chibuuku/ mwaanana. 'He stole a book, the child [did].' (Phon. This sentence illustrates the right-dislocation of the subject of the verb. The yes-no question version of this sentence is revealing: Bozele chibuuku/ mwaanana? 'Did he steal a book, the child?' The shift to final accent in the yes-no question is due to the out-of-focus status of the right-dislocated subject.)

Hendra miyundaani/ ka waant^hu/ kuboala. 'She goes to gardens to steal from people.'

Ibraahimu/ bozeleni. 'What did Ibraahimu steal?' (A possible answer: Ibraahimu/ bozele chibuuku. 'Ibraahimu stole a book.')

Khaje/ mbozele Sarmadi/ chibuuku/ chuziiza. 'Khaje stole the book from Sarmadi and sold it.' (Note that in this construction, it is preferable to have an object marker in agreement with chibuuku on the conjoined verb, though uziiza would be grammatical.)

kubola chaakuja 'to steal food' (The variation in the length of a word-final, phrase-medial vowel is illustrated by the following examples of different complements to the verb: kubolaa kuja 'to steal food', kubolaa miti 'to steal wood', kuboala Itaki 'to steal a necklace', kubolaa nt^haki 'to steal necklaces', kubola dhahabu 'to steal gold', kubola maayi 'to steal water', kubola chiwovu 'to steal a wallet', kubolaa luti 'to steal a stick', kubolaa ndruti 'to steal sticks'.)

Kuboolaka/ peesa/ imkirihishiize. 'My stealing money disappointed him.'
Cf. Kuboolaka/ peesa/ imkirihishiizó. This would be an answer to the question: Nini/ imkirihishiizó. 'What disappointed him?'

Kumboala/ tu/ siwo/ naaye/ wamub^heele. 'To steal from him is not the only thing, also they killed him.'

Kuwaa mi/ mbozele peesá/ imkirihishiize. 'That I stole money disappointed him.' Cf. Kuwaa mi/ mbozele peesá/ imkirihishiizó. This would be an answer to the question Nini/ imkirihishiizó. 'What disappointed him?'

Malimu bozelo chibuukú/ ni Huseeni. 'The teacher who stole the book is Huseeni.' Cf. Maajimu/ bozele chibuuku. 'The teacher stole a book.'

Maana/ bozele chibuuku. 'The boy stole a book.' Or, with verb emphasis: Maana/ bozele/ chibuuku. 'The boy stole a book.' (The yes-no questions associated with these two sentences show a notable contrast: Maana/ bozele chibuuku? and Maana/ bozele/ chibuukú? In yes-no questions, an out-of-focus phrase is assigned final accent; focusing on the verb puts the verb complement in an out-of-focus state.

Maana/ boozele/ chibuuku/ naachó. ‘The boy stole a book also – i.e. he stole something else and also a book.’

Maana/ bozele chibuuku/ naayé. ‘The boy stole a book, and he [also] – i.e. someone else stole a book and the boy stole one also.’

Maana/ bozelo chibuukú/ ni Omari/ maanawe. ‘The child who stole the book is Omari’s child.’ Or: Maana/ bozelo chibuukú/ ni mana wa Omari. (Note that an alternative phrasing is available where the head is joined in a phrase with the relative verb: Mana bozelo chibuukú/ ni Omari/ maanawe (or: ni mana wa Omari). We have not determined any difference in meaning attached to this phrasing difference.)

Mana wa Omari/ bozele chibuuku. ‘Omari’s child stole a book.’

Mana wa Omari/ bozelo chibuukú. ‘It is Omari’s child who stole a book.’ (In addition to focus on the subject, one can also focus the verb: Mana wa Omari/ boozeló/ chibuuku. Notice that the Accentual Law of Focus bars the extension of final accent to the complement. However, it is possible also to have: Mana wa Omari/ boozeló/ chibuukú. Our consultant suggested that the difference between these two forms is that in the latter case, it is a specific book that is being referred to, while in the former case, it is an indefinite book. More research on this point is needed.)

Mbozele chibuuku. ‘He stole a book from me.’ (Note that when the stem is preceded by a first person object marker, the mb represents a prenasalized stop. Although our orthography does not indicate the phonetic contrast, a sequence mb, where m is the [cl.1] object marker, is a consonant sequence that contrasts with a prenasalized stop: Mbozele Hamadi/ chibuuku. ‘He stole a book from Hamadi.’)

Mbozele chibuku cha Nuurú. ‘I stole Nuuru’s book (which may or may not have been in his possession at the time).’ Or: Mbozele chibuukú/ cha Nuurú. ‘I stole Nuuru’s book.’ (Note that the phrasal separation of the head of the associative phrase does not trigger the Accentual Law of Focus coming into play.)

Mi/ kubola peesa/ imkirihishiize. ‘For me to steal money disappointed him. Cf. Mi/ kubola peesa/ imkirihishiizó. This is an answer to the question: Nini/ imkirihishiizó. ‘What disappointed him?’

Mi/ skuboola/ ngamiila. ‘I did not steal a camel.’

Miizi/ bozele mbuzi wa Omari. ‘The thief stole Omari’s goat.’ Or: Miizi/ bozele Omari/ mbuziye.

Miizi/ bozele pesa za Omari/ ka Tuuma. ‘The thief stole Omari’s money from Tuuma.’ Cf. also: Miizi/ mbozele Tuuma/ pesa za Omari. ‘The thief stole Omari’s money from Tuuma.’

Mwaana/ tiyiile/ ye/ cheendra/ kulaala/ munt^hu mweepe/ kuuya/ kubola nt^heendre. ‘The child feared that if he went to sleep, some person would come to steal the dates.’

Nakhtóshá/ kuwa Nuuru/ boozele/ faṭuura. ‘I think that Nuuru stole a car.’

Nakhtósha kuwa Nuurú/ bozele faṭuurá. ‘I think that Nuuru stole a car.’ Or: Nakhtósha kuwa Nuurú/ boozele/ faṭuura. ‘I think that Nuuru stole a car.’ (In the first sentence, we have an example where the final accent triggered by the main verb extends all the way to the end of the complement sentence. This can be attributed to the absence of internal focus in this complement clause. The second example is perhaps a bit surprising. The final accent does extend to the subject of the sentential complement, but not to the verb, which is apparently emphasized to some extent, as indicated by the phrasal separation of the verb and the following object. What is not immediately clear is why the final accent appears not to be able to extend into the verb. We did not record Nakhtósha kuwa Nuurú/ boozeló/ faṭuura.

Nakhtósha kuwa Nuurú/ bozelo gaari. ‘I think that Nuuru bought a car.’ Or: Nakhtósha kuwa Nuurú/ boozeló/ gaari. (In these examples, the final accent in the verb (phrase) of the sentential complement is not due to the final accent of the main verb, but rather is due to the pseudo-relativization of the complement verb phrase that is triggered by focus on Nuuru.)

Naani/ mbozelo mwaalimú/ chibuukú. ‘Who stole a book from the teacher?’

Ndiwé/ boozeló. ‘It is you who stole it.’

Ni ka kaḷiḷa/ we/ bozele ngamiilá. ‘Is it true that you stole a camel?’

Ni Nuuru/ boozeló/ chibuuku. ‘It is Nuuru who stole the book.’

Nimbozele Nuurú/ chibuukú. ‘I stole the book from Nuuru.’ Or:

Nimboozelé/ Nuuru/ chibuuku.

Nimbozele Nuurú/ chibuukuché. ‘I stole Nuuru’s book from him.’ Or:

Nimboozelé/ chibuukuche.

^f*Omari/ maanawe/ bozelo chibuukú*. ‘Omari’s child stole a book.’

Omari/ ^fmaanawe/ boozeló/ chibuuku. ‘Omari’s child stole a book.’

(Although we have placed the symbol ^f in front of maanawe, it is not the case that maanawe is raised higher in pitch than the initial element. Furthermore, it seems that the entire possessive structure Omari/ maanawe is what is being focused here, and not just maanawe.) (This example shows the pseudo-relative verb focused as well and the Accentual Law of Focus constraining the projection of final accent to the complement. However, our consultant judged the following sentence to also be possible: Omari/ ^fmaanawe/ boozeló/ chibuukú. He suggested that in this case a definite book is involved.)

Saalimu/ mbozele mwaalimu/ peesa. ‘Saalimu stole money from the teacher.’ (Cf. peesa za Saalimu/ mbozelo mwaalimú ‘the money that Saalimu stole from the teacher’ or mwaalimu wa Saalimu/ mbozelo peesá ‘the teacher from whom Saalimu stole the money’.)

Si/ chimbozele mwaalimú/ chibuku cha hisaabú. ‘We stole the arithmetic book from the teacher.’ Or with verb emphasis: Si/ chimboozelé/ mwaalimu/ chibuku cha hisaabu.

Siboolé. ‘Don’t steal!’ Cf. Siboleení. ‘(Pl.) don’t steal!’

Waana/ wachibozele chibuuku. ‘The children stole the book.’

Waana/ wambozele mwaalimu/ zibuuku. ‘The children stole books from the teacher.’

Yimo khalbiini/ kana/ huboola. ‘What is in the heart, the mouth steals (i.e. people do not keep secrets).’ (A proverb.)

Zibuuku/ bozelo miizi/ nzaaká. ‘The books that the thief stole are mine.’ Or: Zibuku bozelo miizi/ nzaaká. (These examples illustrate that the head of the relative clause may be phrased with the immediately following relative verb or not. Furthermore, they illustrate that the subject of the relative verb may be located after the verb and phrased with it. In this event, the a-link that joins a head to a following subject NP is missing.)

zibuku za miizi/ boozeló ‘the books that the thief stole’ (Notice that in this example, the phrase ‘books that the thief’ is a single phrase and is assigned final accent. The conditions for the appearance of final accent in the structure preceding a relative verb need to be explored. We should also stress that under no condition may the subject miizi be phrased with the relative verb: zibuku za mizi boozeló*.)
rel.

ku-boolela v. appl. (bolele)

Miizi/ mbolele Omari/ mbuzi. ‘The thief stole Omari’s goat.’ Or: ‘The thief stole the goat for Omari.’

Miizi/ mbolele Omari/ muke. ‘The thief stole a woman from/for Omari.’

Miizi/ mbolele Omari/ peesa/ ka Tuuma. ‘The thief stole Omari’s money at Tuuma’s place.’

Munt^h uyu/ mbolele ngamiilaya. ‘This man stole my camel.’

Skhuboolela/ chaako. ‘I did not steal from yours (i.e. you or your people).’

Or: Sikhuboolelá/ chaako. review the reason for possible final accent here

Sikhuboolela chaako/ ka nishtaka. ‘I did not steal yours so that you sue me.’
review this construction

ku-booleloowa v. appl. pass. (boleela) mwaalimu bolela chibuukú/ na mwaaná ‘the teacher who was stolen from a book by the child’ ku-boleloowa v. (bozele) be stolen

Apa/ chibozela chilaatu/ weené. ‘Here a shoe was stolen, have you seen it?’ (Note the common postponing of a subject into IAV position in a passive clause.)

Chisu chaa mi/ nuuziló/ chiboozela. ‘The knife that I bought has been stolen.’

Ibozelani/ ka Hamadi/ numbaani. ‘What has been stolen at Hamadi’s house?’ (An answer to this question might be an impersonal passive: Ka Hamadi/ numbaani/ ibozela peesa. ‘At Hamadi’s house there was money stolen.’ Or: Ibozela peesa/ ka Hamadi/ numbaani.)

Khalamu/ ibozela na Hamadi. ‘A pen was stolen by Hamadi.’ (Note that if the person from whom the pen was stolen is not mentioned in the sentence, then it is possible for the thing stolen to be the subject of the passive verb –boloowa. If the person is identified, however, then it must be the subject of the passive verb.)

Mbozela peesa. ‘I had money stolen from me.’

Mi/ Suufi/ tu/ nimwambiiló/ kuwa faṭuuraya/ yaliko iboozela. ‘I told only Suufi that my car was stolen.’ Or: Suufi/ tu/ mi/ nambiiló/ kuwa faṭuuraya/ yaliko iboozela. ‘I told only Suufi that my car was stolen.’ (Note that a preposed, focused complement may be placed before or after the subject, at least in a case like this where the marking on the verb clearly shows which NP is the subject and which is the object.)

Munt^hu boozeló/ huboloowa. ‘The one who steals is stolen from.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaalimu/ bozela chibuuku/ na Ali. ‘The teacher had a book stolen from him by Ali.’ (Only the logical indirect object can be the subject of the passive verb. Thus a sentence like chibuuku/ chibozela mwaalimu (na Ali). ‘The book was stolen from the teacher (by Ali).’ is ungrammatical. However, it is possible to reverse word order: Chibuuku/ bozela mwaalimu/ (na Ali). In this sentence, mwaalimu is still the subject: the verb has a phonologically null subject prefix as is always the case with a [cl.1] subject. The preposed chibuuku is not the subject; if it were, a prefix chi would be required on the verb.)

Numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ zibozela peesa. ‘At Hamadi’s house money was stolen.’ (An impersonal passive may also be used: Numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ ibozela peesa. ‘At Hamadi’s house there was money stolen.’)

Peesa/ ziboozela. ‘Money was stolen.’

Zibuuku/ zibozela ka waalimu. ‘Books have been stolen from the teachers (or, from where the teachers live).’ Or: Zibuuku/ zibozela waalimu. ‘Books were stolen from the teacher.’

Zibuuku/ zibozela na Boora. ‘The books were stolen by Boora.’

Ye/ hakhaadiri/ kumwambila waawaye/ kuwa nt^heendre/ ziboozela/ ambó/ zijiilá. ‘He could not tell his father that the dates either had been stolen or eaten.’

ku-bolowaboloowa v. pass. freq. (bozelaboozela) ku-bolaboola v. freq. (bozeleboozele) steal repeatedly ku-boolana v. rec. (-boleena) steal from one another ku-bolanoowa v. rec. pass. (-boleena) be stolen from one another

Apa/ iboleena. ‘There was stealing from one another going on.’

ku-booleka v. p/s.

Apa/ haybooleki/ chiint^hu. ‘Here one cannot steal anything.’

Chibuku ichi/ hachibooleki/ ka mwaalimu. ‘This book cannot be stolen from the teacher (e.g. there is something about the book that prevents it from being readily stolen).’ (Notice that the logical object can be the subject of the potential/stative verb as long as mwaalimu is marked with a preposition. If mwaalimu is unmarked, it must be the subject of the potential stative verb, as the example below shows.)

Ka fulaani/ haybooleki. ‘From so-and-so there is no stealing.’

Miizi/ habooleki. ‘A thief cannot be stolen from.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaalimu/ habooleki/ chibuuku. ‘This teacher cannot be stolen from a book (e.g. he is too careful, too observant, too strong).’ (Cf.

Chibuku ichi/ habooleki/ mwaalimu. ‘This book, the teacher cannot have it stolen from him.’ In this example, chibuku ichi is preposed, but mwaalimu remains the subject of the verb. It is not possible for chibuku ichi to be the subject: Chibuku ichi/ hachibooleki/ mwaalimu.)

ku-boolesha v. caus. cause to steal

Haaji/ bolesheze peesa. ‘Haaji had money stolen.’ (The causative verb allows the “causee” to be absent from the clause. The logical object peesa, however, cannot control an OM on the verb: Haaji/ zibolesheze peesa. ‘Haaji had the money stolen.’)

Haaji/ mbolesheeze. ‘Haaji had him steal s.t.’ (In the case of a causative verb, the logical object may be omitted.)

Haaji/ mbolesheze mwaana. ‘Haaji had the child steal s.t.’

Haaji/ mbolesheze mwaana/ peesa. ‘Haaji had the child steal money.’

Haaji/ mbolesheze peesa. ‘Haaji had him steal money.’

ku-boleshana v. caus. rec.

ku-boleshaka v. caus. p/s.

ku-bolesheleza v. caus. appl. (-bolesheleeze)

Boora/ mbolesheleze Hamadi/ mwaana/ peesa. ‘Boora caused Hamadi’s child to steal money.’

ku-boleshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-bolesheleezenye)

Nuuru/ na Ali/ waboleshelezenye waana/ zibuuku. ‘Nuuru and Ali had one another’s children steal books.’

rel. nom.

m-boola (wa-) n. thief (but less commonly used than mw-iizi) mbolaa nk^huku ‘a chicken thief’

wa-ku-boola n. ones who steal

Chiboorsacha/ chiboozela/ na wakubola ziwovu. ‘My purse has been stolen by pickpockets (lit. ones who steal from pockets).’

booli

n. looting, taking by force kubiga booli ‘to loot, rob, take by force from someone’

Omari/ hupeenda/ kubig booli/ mali ya waant^hu. ‘Omari likes to steal wealth from people.’

We/ nakubiga booli/ mali ya waant^hú. ‘You are looting people’s wealth.’

kubigowa booli ‘to be taken by force’

Haliima/ bishila booli. ‘Haliima has eloped with someone (lit. has been taken by force).’ (This example refers to a practice in Brava where a couple elopes by the man coming at midnight to the woman’s home, where she opens the door to him and they go off to some other place, usually at least twenty-five kilometers away, and get married. They stay at that place for a week or so, and then return to Brava. While the woman is often accepted back by her family, and the marriage approved, at times her family may disown her.)

Want^hu wa Miini/ wabishila booli/ mali yaawo/ yont^he/ wakhtⁱ waa zita. ‘The people of Brava were looted of their wealth during the time of war.’

ngamila za booli ‘camels taken by force from the owners’

l-bolo (m-)

n. 11/10 [Sw. mboo SSED 269] penis

chita cha lbolo ‘head of penis’ mwana lbolo la waawo ‘(an insult) son of your father’s cock’; mwa lbolo waawo ‘ibid.’

Nimbishile mbolozé. ‘I fucked her several times (lit. I hit her penises).’

rel.

chi-bolo (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

khsunula chibolo ‘to turn back the foreskin, uncovering the glans of the

- penis’
- i-bolo* (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
Hamadi/ iboloye/ ha’isimami/ ni balakh balakh! ‘Omari’s penis does not get an erection, it is flaccid, balakh balakh!’
- Bolobaazi n. a newer area in Brava
- bom ideo.
Hasani/ ingile inchidente/ bishile lkuta/ ka gaari/ bom!/ hatá/ majiraani/ wakasiize. ‘Hasani had an accident, he hit a wall with his car bom! Even the neighbors heard.’
Muunt^{hu}/ oyo/ ka ijiimba/kalile ikaandra/ yaa mazu/ sheree/le/ tushilee nt^{hi}/ kana/ ijuuniya/ bom! ‘That old man with a big stomach stepped on a banana, he slipped and fell to the ground like a sack bom!’
Mwaana/ potele ka chidank^{ha}aani/ bom!/ biganishile naa nt^{hi}/ vundishile kuulu. ‘The child fell from the roof, bom! and hit against the earth and broke (his) leg.’
- boomba (ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw. bomba SSED 38] pipe, pump, bomb, faucet, tap bomba ya maayi ‘water pump; drinking fountain, water tap’ bomba ya tibaaku ‘plug of tobacc wrapped in a banana leaf’ kubiga boomba ‘to explode (of a bomb)’ mayi ya boomba ‘tap water’
- rel.
i-boomba (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- bon ideo.
Miziinga/ yanakuła/ bon/ bon/ bon/ bon. ‘Explosions are crying bon bon bon bon!’
- m-booni (wa-) n. 1/2 a member of an ethnic group, originally nomadic hunters, located in northeastern Kenya; they speak a Cushitic language; they are viewed by the want^{hu} wa miini as being lower class, of inferior status iizo khtumila oyo mbwa mułooni/ nt^haasa wazuungu wote na wabooni [st.] ‘whoever refuses to practice [the legal commandments] is fated to go to Hell, especially all infidels and pagans’ Omari/ ni mbooni. [H!H] ‘Omari is of an inferior class.’
Omari/ ni nasabu/ Ali/ ni mbooni. [H!H][†][H!H] ‘Omari is from a higher (more valued, more prestigious) clan, Ali is from an inferior clan.’ (We are dealing here with a sequence of two contrastive clauses, where the second clause is marked by the raising of the subject even higher than the subject of the initial clause.)
Sho kulipa ihsaani/ ni mbooni. ‘One who does not return a favor is a low caste individual.’ (A saying.)
- rel.
u-booni n. 11 the behavior associated with people of lower class like the Wabooni Kuda’owada’oowa/ siwo/ unasabu/ ni ubooni. [H!H!H!H] ‘To boast is not behavior associated with the upper class of people, it is the behavior of the lower class.’
- chi-boonk^{ho} (zi-) n. 7/8 whip
- bontá n. 9/10 [Ital. ponte] bridge
bontá iyi ‘this bridge’; bontá izi ‘these bridges’ Bontá/ zivuunzila/ sfanyüza. ‘The bridges that were damaged were repaired.’
- rel.
chi-bontá (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-bonṭa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

Bonṭaani n. A 900 meters long causeway-bridge was built by the Italians to connect Mp^haayi and Chiḷaani island. However, the bridge was broken at several points by the British during the Second World War, and Chiḷaani can now be reached only by boat. The name for the whole length of the (broken) bridge and its general area is Bonṭaani, the locative form of bonṭa above.

boora [Sw. boora SSED 38] (not commonly used) better, rather; of highest quality Boora/ aḥiya. ‘Health is better.’ (A proverb, which extols the importance of one’s health in comparison to other things.)
Boora/ ḍahabu/ kama feḍa. ‘Better gold than silver.’
Ḍahabu/ ni boora/ kolko feḍa. ‘Gold is better than silver.’
Ni boora/ ye/ kooloka. ‘It is better for him to go.’
Ni boora/ ye/ na’oloke. ‘It is better that he go.’

i-boori (ma-)
ibori hiindi ‘pumpkin’ (also called ibori yaa khula ‘calabash’) ibori kaṭiito (pl. mabori kaṭiito) ‘squash’ (also called maborii male ‘long squash’) ijita iboori ‘pumpkin head (a big, round head)’ Omari/ ni ijita iboori. ‘Omari is a pumpkin head – i.e. he has a big, round head’

boroodo n. broth boroodo/ yaa nsi ‘fish broth’

boorsa (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Ital.] purse, handbag, traveling bag, briefcase; scholarship Boorsaya/ ibeele. ‘My briefcase is lost.’
Boorsaza/ zibeele. ‘My luggage has been lost.’
Boorsazo/ ṣṭakuya liini. ‘When will your luggage arrive?’
borsa ya mayi mamulo ‘hot water bottle.’
Omari/ kazize zibuuku/ borsaani. ‘Omari stuffed the books into the bag.’ Or with a prepositional phrase instead of the locative: Omari/ kazize zibuuku/ ka boorsa.
Omari/ nakhkaza borsaani/ zibuuku. ‘Omari is stuffing books into the bag.’ Also: Omari/ nakhkaza zibuuku/ borsaani.
rel.
chi-boorsa (zi-) n. dim. 7/8 small traveling bag, small purse, etc.
Chiboorsacha/ chiboozela/ na wakubola ziwovu. ‘My purse has been stolen by a pickpocket.’
i-boorsa (mi-) n. aug. 5/4 large traveling bag, large purse, etc.

boortji (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 pole used in the construction of houses (cut from the mkoko tree)
Isa/ tambula bortji izi/ mbilize. ‘Now, distinguish between these two poles.’
Leteleḷa bortji mbili. ‘He was brought two poles.’
Naank^h6/ cheendra/ chimleteleḷe boortji/ mbili/ sawa/ sawa. ‘And again, he went and brought to him two poles which look alike.’
Yiimp^hi/ boortji/ yiimp^hi/ ikulu/ yiimp^hi/ chihaba. ‘Which pole, which one is big, which one is small?’
rel.
chi-boortji (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-boortji (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

booshi n. hide-and-peek game Omari/ nakhṭeza booshi. ‘Omari is playing hide-and-peek.’

bow ideo. (= bom)

	Burhaani/ masku mazima/ chibigaa ngoma/ bow bow!/ nt^haykula_{lo}owa. ‘Burhaani all night was beating a drum bow bow! There was no sleeping.’
	Mwaana/ potele ka chidank^haani/ bow!/ biganishile naa nt^hi/ vundishile kuulu. ‘The child fell from roof, hit against the earth and broke his leg.’
boweeta (Ø, ma-)	n. 9/10, 6a small box or chest of drawers boweeta ‘my chest of drawers’ rel. i-boweeta (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
booya (Ø, ma-)	n. buoy boya iyi ‘this buoy’ (cf. maboya aya ‘these buoys’) rel. chi-booya (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. i-booya (mi-) n. 4/5 aug.
boyeesa (ma-)	n. maid, female servant Keesho/ nt^h akajiri_{la} boyeesa. ‘Tomorrow I will hire a maid for you.’
booyi	n. 1/2,10 [Eng. boy , Som. booy Ab 34] male servant, waiter boyi uyu ‘this waiter’ (cf. boyi awa or boyi izi ‘these waiters’)
booyi	adj. stale, vapid (said of chewing tobacco that has lost its effect), worthless ilmu ni nuuru jaahili ni booyi [st.] ‘knowledge is light, ignorance is worthless’ tibaku booyi or tibaaku/ booyi ‘spoiled, tasteless tobacco’
bu	ideo. Bu/ nt^h akuhada. ‘He didn’t say anything at all.’ Hamadi/ ile numbaani/ nt^h akhkooda/ ba/ bu. ‘Hamadi came to the house, he didn’t say anything.’ (The ideophone bu is raised in pitch in this example.)
bu	ideo. of defecating Haliima/ mwambile mwaanawe/ ndo/ nya bu! ‘Haliima told her child: come, defecate bu! ’ (Interestingly, the imperative verb nya is phrased with the ideophone in this example.)
m-bu	n. 9/10 mosquito Mbu/ huleta malaariya. ‘Mosquitoes cause malaria.’ Mbu za dhoowooyi/ zinayo malaariya. ‘Mud, clay area mosquitoes carry malaria.’ Mbu za tawala/ nt^h azina/ malaariya. ‘Mosquitoes (from) the coast do not carry malaria.’ Mbu/ zimnumiile. ‘Mosquitoes bit him.’ Miiluye/ mambaamba/ kanaa mbu. ‘His legs are as thin as a mosquito’s.’ Muusa/ lumila naa mbu. ‘Muusa was bitten by a mosquito.’ Zijuulúze/ kamba zaa mbu. ‘His legs are as thin as those of a mosquito.’
bubiina	n. [Ital. bobina] solenoid
buubu (Ø, ma-)	adj. mute; n. mute person buubu/ mkonowe ‘mute person, his hand’; buubu/ mikonoye ‘mute person, his hands’; buubu/ mikono yaawo ‘mute people, their hands’ (A human noun requires the possessive enclitic -e in the singular and -awo in the plural, whereas non-human nouns trigger -e in both the singular and plural. This contrast is independent of the noun class membership characteristics of the noun, but depends whether on the semantics of the noun, i.e. human or not.) bubu uyu ‘this mute person’; bubu uje ‘that mute person’; bubu awa ‘these mute people’; bubu awo ‘those mute people’ mkono wa buubu ‘the hand of the mute person’; mikono ya buubu ‘the hands of the mute person; the hands of the mute people’ munt^hu buubu ‘a mute person’ Omari/ ni buubu. ‘Omari is a mute person.’

budi

? way out; [pron. budi or buddi]

Chiwa nayoo ndalá/ nt^huná/ budi/ we/ kumereḷa ruuhuyo/ chaakuja/ jisaa mi/ nakhfaanyó. ‘If you are hungry you have no choice but to look for food for yourself, just as I am doing.’

Isa/ taajiri/ teena/ ichiwa nt^haná/ budi/ iḷa kuula/ chulungu cha kaandra. ‘It came about then that the businessman had no choice but to buy the first storey [of the building].’

Nt^haku/ budi. ‘There is no doubt.’

Nt^hamu/ budi/ kooḏi/ za mzeele/ ni lilla/ na ka kuwa jis’iyó/ we/ kḥuḷaazima/ kumlipa/ kuuluye. ‘There is no way out, the words of the old man are true, and for being that way, you must repay him his leg.’

Nt^haná/ budi. ‘He has no way out, no alternative.’

Nt^huná/ budi/ we/ khtokosa maayi. ‘You have no choice but to boil water.’

[Waant^hu/ wachihada/ kuwa ↑nt^hamu/ budi/ wo/ kumtala muḅjaana/ uyu/ kuwaweḷeḷa sultaani.] ‘People said that there was no way to avoid their taking this young man to be their sultan.’

Weene/ nt^haku/ budi/ ye/ kiingila/ numba iyi. ‘He saw that there was no choice but for him to enter the house.’

Ye/ nt^haná/ budi/ ṭakeendra. ‘He has no choice but to go.’

ku-buufisha

v. (bufishiize) spray
kubufishaa mp^hula ‘to spray s.t. into the nose’

i-bufu (ma-)

n. anklet, usually made of silver, with little bell-shaped pendants that tinkle; this is worn by women when dancing

ku-bughuḏa

v. (bughuḏiile) hate someone and speak evil of that person
rel. nom.

m-bughuḏa (wa-) n. 1/2

ukopi waawaye Jahli/ mbughuḏa haqi na adli [st.] ‘where is Abu Jahl who hated right and justice?’

buguḏi

n. 9/10 hatred, abhorrence

variant form: bughḏi

Bughḏi/ hayiinfi. ‘Hatred is of no use.’

Bughḏi/ hazimsaaydi/ mwenewe. ‘Hatred does not help one.’

bughḏi na kibri na ḏulmu rebaani [st.] ‘talking ill of people and arrogance and wrongdoing, you (pl.) stop!’

m-buja

n. (my) sister (of a boy); [pron. mbujá]

Ali/ mbujaze/ ni waṭaano. ‘Ali has five sisters [lit. Ali, his sisters are five].’

Aziizi/ mbujé/ hukoḏa chingereenza. ‘Aziizi’s sister speaks English.’

Kanaa we/ nayo mbujó/ mneete. ‘If you (a male) have a sister, bring her.’ (Notice that a non-possessed form of the kinship term is not used here; literally, the sentence is: if you have your sister, bring her.)

Mbujá/ ni msuura. ‘My sister (a boy is speaking) is beautiful.’

Mbujá/ Moomo/ ile naami/ shiriini. ‘My sister Moomo came with me to the meeting.’ Or: Moomo/ mbujá/ ile naami/ shiriini. ‘Moomo my sister came with me to the meeting.’

Mbujá/ Moomo/ ni msuura. ‘My sister Moomo is beautiful.’ (The name Moomo is used here as a female name. A boy is speaking.)

Mbujá/ t̄inzile ruuhuye/ chaala. ‘My sister has cut her finger.’
mbuja yiitu ‘our sister’; mbuja yiinu ‘your sister’; mbuja yaawo ‘their sister’;
mbuja ziitu ‘our sisters’, mbuja ziinu ‘your sisters’, mbuja zaawo ‘their sisters’ mbujaza ‘my sisters’; mbujazo ‘your sisters’, mbujaze ‘his/her sisters’ mbujó ‘your sister’; mbujé ‘his sister’ Moomo/ mbujá/ shiriini/ ile naami. ‘Moomo my sister to the meeting came with me.’ (Note that the preposing of shiriini does not necessarily put focus on it, as in this example the verb is not in a pseudo-relative form, as it would be if shiriini were focused.)
Moomo/ peenzele/ kuwanayo mbujé. ‘Moomo (a male) wishes he had a sister.’
m̄waana/ na mbujé ‘a boy and his sister’; m̄waana/ na mbujazé ‘a boy and his sisters’
Ye/ dirkamene mbujaza/ karkaa shiri. ‘He met my sisters at the meeting.’ Or: Ye/ dirkamene mbujaza/ shiriini.
Ye/ dirkamene mbujaza/ wawiliwe/ shiriini. ‘He met both my sisters at the meeting.’
Yo/ ndaa mbujá. ‘It is my sister’s.’

chi-buji (zi-)

n. 7/8

buk

ideo. of sound coming from the mouth

Omari/ nakuvunangaa nk^heje/ Hamadi/ mameele/ tu/ buk!/ nt^hakuhada. ‘Omari is shouting, Hamadi just kept quiet. Juuq! He did not say anything.’

bukeeni

n. in the expression:

mazu ya bukeeni ‘a kind of very large banana, not sweet enough to eat raw, but instead is cooked’

buuku

n. 9/10 [Eng. book] any book not dealing with religious matters; a book on religious matters is called ch-iwo

buku iyi ‘this book’ (cf. buku izi ‘these books’)

rel.

chi-buuku (zi-) n. 7/8 book

Ali/ uzile chibuuku/ laakini/ nt^hakichisooma. ‘Ali bought a book, but he did not read it.’ (The final verb in this example illustrates two significant points about the [cl.7] object marker chi. The first point is that the infinitive marker ku appears as ki. This reflects both the fact that the infinitive does not elide its vowel in front of an object marker and furthermore ku shifts to ki in front of most object markers that contain a palatal element. The second point is that chi does not elide its vowel in front of a stem-initial s, even though it elides this vowel in front of most other voiceless stops.)

chibuku cha mana wa Omari ‘the book of Omari’s child’ or: chibuuku/ cha mana wa Omari chibuku chimooyi ‘one book’; zibuku ziwili ‘two books’ chibuku chisuura ‘a nice book’; zibuku zisuura ‘nice books’ chibuukucha ‘my book’ (Morph. We write the monosyllabic possessive enclitics as part of the same word as the noun to which they are attached. The Chijini secret language reflects the twin facts that the possessive is added to the end of the word, but at the same time time is part of the word. The Chijini form of chibuukucha is [kuchachib^h]. Notice that Chijini picks out ku as the final syllable of the word, but at the same time it drags the possessive along with it when it moves to the beginning of the word. This tells us that the enclitic is part of the word, even if the ku in another sense is also the end of the word.)

Lesele chibuukú? ‘Did you bring a book?’

Mi/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ na khkooðelá/ zibuuku. ‘I like to read and

- discuss books.’
- Mi/ waliko chisoma chibuuku/ mukhta we/ iló. ‘I was reading a book when you came.’
- Mi/ nhadiilé/ kuwa chibuku ichi/ nthaksoomá/ ni Suufi/ tu. ‘I said that only Suufi did not read this book (lit. this book, the one who did not read it is only Suufi).’
- Mp^hete chibuku cha mana wa Omari. ‘I found Omari’s child’s book.’ Or: Mp^hete chibuukú/ cha mana wa Omari. Or: Mp^heté/ chibuku cha mana wa Omari. (Phon. Our consultant GM expressed some doubt as to the acceptability of ??Mp^hete chibuku cha maaná/ wa Omari.)
- Nuzile chibuku cha Hamadí. ‘I bought a book of Hamadí’s.’ Or: Chibuku cha Hamadi/ chuzila naami. ‘A book of Hamadi’s was bought by me.’
- Nuzile Hamadí/ chibuukuché. ‘I bought Hamadi’s book.’ Or: Hamadi/ chibuukuche/ chuzila naami. ‘Hamadi’s book was bought by me.’
- Zo/ ni zubuukuza. They’re my books.’
- i-buuku* (mi-) aug. 5/4 book
ibuku itaka ‘dirty book’; mibuku mitaka ‘dirty books’
- buku interj. not a word; [pron. búku], usually followed by takuhada Omari/ mameele/ tu/ búku/ takuhada. ‘Omari just kept quiet, he didn’t say a word.’
- bu ideo. of burning Numba/ ya Haliima/ yaawo/ ipiile/ bu!/ chiint^hu/ nth’a’ikhsaala. ‘Haliima, their house burned down, bu! nothing remained.’
Sheekhi/ hadiile/ Ali/ chiint^huche/ hufanyoowayi/ bu!/ alaa siiyó/ chikhupa/ chiint^hu/ khukooða/ ka chinume. ‘Sheekhi said: Ali’s things, how they are done with, bu! alaa siiyó (i.e. may God burn it!), if he gives you something, he (then) talks behind your back.’ (The phrase alaa siiyó is taken from the dialect of the walakata, who speak a form of Maymaayi.)
- bu^{la}ati n. sand (of the desert), desert
bu^{la}atiini ‘in the desert’
Chiineendra/ ilu ya bu^{la}ati/ iyo/ inampiisha/ ka sababu/ iwa/ iwaliko ikali. ‘He walked on that desert, it was burning him because the sun was hot.’
Muda wa sku niingi/ chisaafira/ chisaafira/ hattá/ shkoma/ mahala/ yiikó/ bu^{la}ati/ niingi. ‘For a period of many days, he traveled and traveled until he reached a place where there was much desert.’
- rel.
chi-bu^{la}ati (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
- bu^lbuli n. [Sw. bulibuli SSED 40]
ikofiya ya bu^lbuli ‘a white, machine-made, embroidered skullcap (also known as ikofiya ya kaazi) in contrast to the ikofiya ya chimwiini or ikofiya ya stuundru, which are handmade skullcaps Ni muunt^h u bu^lbuli. ‘He talks a lot (and eloquently).’
- bu^lbuli
Ni muunt^hu/ bu^lbuli. ‘He talks a lot (and eloquently).’
- ku-bu^lbulika* v. talk a lot kubu^lbulika/ kana raadiyo ‘to talk non-stop, like the radio’ Omari/chishika kooði/ haamali/ hububulika/ kana raadiyo.

‘When Omari he talks, he does not finish, he talks and talks like radio.’

- bulu n. [Sw. buluu SSED 40] blue; [pron. bulú] Alamu ya Somaaliya/ ni bulú. ‘The flag of Somalia is blue.’
Bandeera/ ya Somaaliya/ ni bulú. ‘The flag of Somalia is blue.’
khalamuy ya bulú ‘a blue pen’ zilatu zibulú ‘blue shoes’
- bulukaato n. [Ital. placcato "gold- or silver-plated] costume jewelry
- bulukeeti n. 9/10 [Ital. blocchetti, Som. bulukeeti] brick; variant form provided by MI: blokeeti
Omari/ ziwilile chooloko/ cha nuumbaye/ ka bulukeeti. ‘Omari covered the window of his house with bricks.’
- bulaati n. desert, sreand (of the desert)
rel.
i-bulaati (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- buulo n. 9/10 [Som. buulo ‘village’] village
bulooni ‘in the village’
rel.
chi-buulo (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
Uamna/ yaa ye/ himbo limbo ili/ hunkumbushaa mi/ chibuulocha. ‘The way she sings this song reminds me of my home village.’
Mwiini/ iwaaliko/ chibuulo/ chihaba. ‘Brava was a small village.’
Mzeele/ waliko lazile chibulooni. ‘The old man had left his small village.’
Sku yaane/ iloni/ shkoma chibuulo/ chimó. ‘On the fourth day at dusk he reached a small village.’
Wantu wazeele/ hu’iisha/ chibulooni. ‘The old people live in a small village.’
i-buulo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- Buulo n. name of a village between Brava and Merka Buulo/ ni tuulo/ nkulu. ‘Buulo is a large village.’
- Bulo Baazi n. the name of a new quarter that sprang up in Brava to the west of Biruuni; it consists of both stone houses and huts and straddles the road that comes down from the hill; although it is clear that the Baazi in Buulo/ Baazi is a male proper name, it is not known which Baazi is being referred to in this name Bulo Baazi/ mtaangawe/ mhuundru. ‘The soil of Bulo Baazi is red.’
Bulo Baazi/ ni karka haafa/ mooyi/ za Miini. ‘Bulo Baazi is one of the quarters of Brava.’
Ali/ dardarmeete/ ntasa yaa ye/ kufa/ numba ya Bulo Baazi/ khpowa mukeewe. ‘Ali left a will before he died that the house in Bulo Baazi be given to his wife.’
- Bulo Iji n. the name of a village (Buulo/ Iji) on the western side of Baghdaadi, bordering Buulo/ Baazi
Bulo Iji/ na Bulo Masaakiini/ ni kharibukhariibu/ tu. ‘Iji and Masaakini villages are close to each other.’
Bulo Iji/ yiko chiburiini. ‘Bulo Iji is on a small mountain.’
- Bulo Mareer n. a village of the road to Mogadishu, some eighty kilometers north of Brava.
Zamaani/ ramaaani/ Mwiini/ masku ya sfeeli/wachiletowaa wake/ ka Bulo Mareer/ wawaliko wakali/ khtinda makiindri. ‘During old times, in Ramadhan, on the night of competition, women were brought from Bulo Mareer; they were expert in dancing.’ (These women in Bulo Mareer were of Bantu origin, but not affiliated in any way with the want^hu wa Mwiini. They spoke the Maymaayi dialect of Somali.)

- Bulo Masaakiini n. The name for a cluster of very poor huts [lit. the village of poor people] locate further up the hill from Buulo Baazi. These huts were not of the rectangular ariishi type, but were mostly round and covered with tarpaulin, plastic sheets and any other recycled material. They mostly disappeared during the 1980's.
variant form: Bulo Maskiini Bulo Masaakiini/ siwo/ kule. 'The village of Masaakiini is far.'
Waant^hu/ ^fmasaakiini/ hukalant^ho Bulo Maskiini. 'Poor people live in the village of Maskiini.'
- Zamaani/ matuundra/ yashpatikana Bulo Maskiini. 'In the olden times, some fruits used to be gotten in the village of Maskiini.'
- m-bulu n. 10 pubic hair, male or female mashungi yaa mbulu 'pubic hair'
- buuma n. 9/10 [Ar. buum 'owl', W. 84] owl Buuma/ ha'iwonoowi/ ka wiingi. 'An owl is not seen often.'
Buuma/ nakuuluka. 'The owl is flying.'
Buuma/ uko mutiini. 'An owl is on the tree.'
buma uyu 'this owl'; buma izi 'these owls'
rel.
chi-buuma (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-buuma (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- chi-buumba (zi-) n. horn (of a car), instrument for making noise (e.g. a whistle) variant form: chibuumbu chibumba cha gaari 'horn of a car' chibumba shpiya 'a new horn'
Gari ya Omari/ chibuumbuche/ hachirurumi. 'Omari's car, its horn does not make a loud noise.'
Gari ya Omari/ chibuumbuche/ hururuma. 'Omari's car, its horn makes a loud noise.' (The simple yes-no question version of this sentences does not entail any change in the accent location. The exclamatory yes-no question is different: Gari ya Omari/ chibuumbuche/ hururumâ!?) Gari ya Omari/ hururuma/ chibuumbuche. '[Lit.] Omari's car makes a noise its horn.' (Phon. Apparently relocating chibuumbuche puts it out of focus. This explains why in the simple yes-no question it undergoes an accent shift: Gari ya Omari/ hururuma/ chimbuumbuché? In the corresponding exclamatory yes-no question, the accent shifts for both the verb and the postposed element: Gari ya Omari/ hururumá/ chibuumbuchê!?) Gari ya Omari/ nt^haynaayo/ chibuumbu. 'Omari's car does not have a horn.'
kubiga chibuumba 'to honk the horn of a car, blow on a whistle' masku leelopo takhkasa zibuumbu [nt.] 'in the night, when you have just gone to sleep, you will hear the hooting of cars'
Omari/ mulile mwaanawe/ chibuumbu. 'Omari bought a whistle for his son.'
- bun ideophone of the sound of s.t. falling Mwaana/ tulushile/ bun. 'The child fell bun!'
- bunduqu (Ø-, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw. bunduki SSED 41; Ar., Hind., Pers.] gun, rifle; [pron. bunduqu or bundukhu] askari/ bundukhuye 'the soldier, his gun' bundukhu iyi 'this gun', bundukhu izi or mabundukhu aya 'these guns' Bundukhu/ nimublejele Nuurú. 'The gun, I used it to kill Nuuru.'
bundukhu ya askari 'soldier's gun'

Bundukhu yaa mi/ nimub^hlelelo Nuuru/ ndaaká. ‘The gun that I used to kill Nuuru is mine.’
ka qahri na huuri na wana umbukhu/ kaa ndruti tayaari shchitiya bundukhu [nt.] ‘overpowered, sweating, suffocating/ ready with sticks, we were fearing guns’
kubiga bunduqu ‘to fire a gun’
kulekeza bunduqu ‘to aim a gun’
Niwapeelé/ waant^hu/ bundukhu/ zont^he. ‘I gave the people all the guns.’
Niwapeelé/ waant^hu/ wont^he/ bundukhu. ‘I gave all the people guns.’
Niwapele waant^hu/ zont^he/ bundukhu. ‘I gave the people all the guns.’
shkasapo bunduqu mi huwersata [nt.] ‘when I hear guns I become troubled and confused’ wenye mabunduqu wanaayo tele [nt.] ‘those who wield the guns have the upper hand’ Wotte/ wachilaṭila bundukhu zaawo/ washfakaṭa. ‘All threw down their guns and ran away.’

rel.

chi-bunduqu (zi-) n.dim. toy gun

i-bunduqu (mi-) n. aug.

buni

n. 9/10 [Sw. buni SSED 41] coffee bean(s)

buni za kahawa ‘coffee beans for making coffee’ buni za khkalaanga ‘a kind of coffee bean that is fried’

Haliima/ ponzeele buni. ‘Haliima ground the coffee beans.’

Karkaa nt^hi/ iyi/ buni/ ni ghaali/ nt^ho/ na ka wiingi/ buni/ haspatikani/ na schipatikaná/ huzowa ka almaasi. ‘In this country, coffee is very expensive, and most of the time coffee beans are not to be found, and if they are found, they are sold for diamonds.’ (Notice the final accent on the verb schipatikana. The presence of this accent requires explanation.)

Mp^hakilee buni. ‘I have loaded coffee [onto the ship].’

unga waa buni ‘ground coffee beans’

Wachishkizaa buni/ zote. ‘They unloaded all the coffee beans (e.g. from the ship).

rel.

chi-buni (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-buni (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

m-buuni

n. 9/10 [mbuni SSED 270; Ar.] ostrich

Fulaanai/ ni sant^hi ya mbuuni. ‘So-and-so is the foot(print) of an ostrich.’ (A proverbial saying. It is believed that wherever an ostrich steps, that place goes bad, is corrupted, etc.)

Maatoye/ makulu/ ya mbuuni. ‘Her eyes are as big (=beautiful) as an ostrich.’

Mbuuni/ namaye/ ni halaali/ na maftayé/ waant^hu/ hamina nii dawa/ laakini/ mbuuni/ nafiye/ hisabaṭowa kuwa ni mkoroofi/ na ka jis’iyo/ want^hu wa Mwiini/ hawaweeki/ mbuuni/ numbaani. ‘The ostrich, its meat is halaali, and its oil, people believe it is medicine, but the ostrich itself is considered to be an ill-omen and for that reason, the people of Brava do not keep ostriches in their house.’

Miimbaye/ kama ya mbuuni. ‘His stomach is like the stomach of an ostrich (i.e. he can eat anything).’

bukh

ideo.

Haliima/ fungile shfiniko/ shṭupa/ kaa nguvu/ bukh! ‘Haliima opened the lid of the bottle with force, bukh!’

Itiki/ ya Haliima/ uziló/ ipoteele/ itumbushile/ bukh! ‘The watermelon that Haliima bought fell down and broke open bukh!’

i-bura (mi-)

n. 5/4 [Som. buro DSI 69] tumor (also benign); wart

- buraangeeti (Ø-, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Eng. blanket] blanket; [pl. (ma)buraangeeti]
Finishile buraangeeti. ‘She covered herself with a blanket.’
Hufinika duniya/ ka buraangeetiye. ‘It covers the world with its blanket.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is miinza ‘darkness’.)
Omari/ mfinishile mwaana/ buraangeeti. ‘Omari covered the child with a blanket.’ (This sentence answers the question: Omari/ mfinishileni mwaana. ‘What did Omari cover the child with?’) Omari/ mfinishile mwaana/ ka buraangeeti. ‘Omari covered the child with a blanket.’ (This sentence answers the question: Omari/ mfinishile mwaana/ ka ni. ‘Omari covered the child with what?’) Waana/ wafinikene buraangeeti. ‘The children covered one another with blankets.’
rel.
chi-buraangeeti (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-buraangeeti (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- buraaqi n. a horse with a human face which took the Prophet to heaven; [usu. pron. buraakhi]
- buraashi n. 9/10 [Eng. brush] brush buraashi/ ya miino ‘toothbrush’ kubiga buraashi ‘to paint; to whitewash’ Ḳbishile Ḳkuta/ buraashi. ‘He painted the wall.’
kubiga nuumba/ buraashi ‘to paint the house’
- ku-burbuka v. [Som. burbur DSI 68] (burbushile) fall down, collapse (of a structure); roll down (a hill), roll over, tumble Kama muti uyu/ uchiburbuka/ naambila. ‘If this tree falls, tell me.’
Muti / uburbushile. ‘The tree fell.’
Muti uyu/ ka’uburbuká/ sulá khshikowaa mi. ‘If this tree were to fall, I would be held responsible.’
Nk^huta/ za numba iyi/ stakuburbuka. ‘The walls of this house will collapse.’
Nk^huta/ za numba iyi/ ziburbushile. ‘The walls of this house have collapsed.’
nt^haasá kuburbuka ruuhuya kuguura [song] ‘I haven’t collapsed, my soul departing’ Nt^ha’ikuwaaliko/ waaðehe/ ka khisani/ ariplaano/ iburbushiló. ‘It is not clear why the airplane crashed.’
Omari/ burbushile. ‘Omari tumbled.’
Wo/ wamo karkaa ndilá/ barza/ ya sulṭaani/ jasiye/ ichiburbuka/ ichiwa’ubḷa/ waant^hu/ wawaliko haaðiri/ apó/ woté. ‘While they were on the way, the roof of the reception hall of the sultan collapsed and it killed all the people who were present there.’
rel.
ku-burbukaburbuka v. freq.
Masku/ ye/ leeló/ ichinyaa nvula/ niingi/ nt^ho/ hattá/ miti ya nt^heendre/ yachiburbukaburbuka. ‘At night when he was sleeping, it rained very much until date trees fell all over.’
ku-burbukiloowa v. appl. pass.
Mwaana/ burbukilila naa muti. ‘The child was fallen on by the tree.’
ku-burbukila v. appl. (burbukiliile) fall on, fall over on, roll over on Gaari/ imburbukilile Sa’iidi. ‘The car rolled over onto Saiidi. Saiidi’s car rolled over.’
Muti/ uburbukilile nuumba. ‘The tree fell on the house.’
Muti/ umburbukilile. ‘The tree fell on him.’
Muti/ umburbukilile mbuzi. ‘The tree fell on the goat.’
ku-burbusha v. caus. cause to fall down, roll over Aawo/ mburbushize Sheekhi/ muti/ ka shṭoka. ‘Aawo caused the tree to fall on Sheekhi using an axe.’
Muusa/ burbushize gaari/ mlimaani. ‘Muusa rolled the car over the hill.’
Omari/ mburbushize mwaana. ‘Omari rolled the child over, knocked him down, etc.’ (A causative verb such as this, which involves the subject of the verb acting directly on the causee, does not permit a periphrastic causative version, at least in the same meaning:

Omari/ mtile mwaana/ kuburbuka.

ku-burbushiliza v. caus. appl. (burbushilize) cause to fall on, for Haaji/ mburbushilize Abaawali/ muti. ‘Haaji caused the tree to fall for Abaawali(‘s benefit.’ (This same sentence might also mean ‘Haaji caused the tree to fall on Abaawali.’, but this meaning is not the primary one.)

Muusa/ burbushilize gaari/ muti. ‘Muusa caused the tree to fall on the car.’

Muusa/ burbushilizeni/ gaari. ‘What did Muusa cause to fall on the car?’

Muusa/ burbushilizeni/ muti. ‘Why did Muusa cause the tree to fall?’ (This is the only meaning our consultant accepted. He rejected a meaning ‘what did Muusa cause the tree to fall on?’)

Mwiizi/ mburbushilize Suufi/ lwawo. ‘The thief caused the plank to fall on Suufi.’

Mwiizi/ mburbushilize mzeele/ mwaana/ mlimaani. ‘The thief caused the old man’s child to roll over the hill; also: the thief caused the child to roll over onto the old man on the hill.’

Nuuru/ burbushilize muti/ nuumba. ‘Nuuru caused the tree to fall on the house.’

Omari/ mburbushilize Iisa/ mwaana. ‘Omari rolled Iisa’s child over, knocked Iisa’s child down, etc.’ (Syn. Again, a periphrastic causative in this meaning is not available: Omari/ mtile Iisa/ mwaana/ kuburbuka.)

Saahibu/ mburbushilize baaba/ mwaana/ chitaani. ‘Saahibu caused the child to fall down onto father’s head.’

ku-burbushilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-burbushilizeenye)

Omari/ na Nuuru/ wamburbushilizenye waana. ‘Omari and Nuuru knocked one another’s children down, rolled them over, etc.’ (Syn. Again, a periphrastic causative is not possible in this meaning: Omari/ na Nuuru/ watililene waana/ kuburbuka.) ku-burbushilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

Gaari/ iburbushilizaa muti. ‘The car was caused to be fallen on (by) the tree.’ (This is a possible sentence, though the structure invites an interpretation where gaari is a beneficiary, but no such interpretation seems available.)

Nuumba/ iburbushilizaa muti/ na Nuuru. ‘The house was made to be fallen on by a tree by Nuuru.’

ku-burbushoowa v. caus. pass.

Nk^huta/ za numba iyi/ ziburbushiiza. ‘The walls of this house have been knocked down.’

Nk^huta/ za numba iyi/ stakuburbushoowa. ‘The walls of this house will be knocked down.’

burda

n. [Ar. burda ‘‘Mohammad’s outer garment’’ W 51] a religious poem that is read to the sick (the religious poem takes its name from the Prophet’s mantle (burda) to be spread over the faithful as protection

Burdunaale

n. The old route from Mogadishu to Brava involved in part a dirt road from Shalaambood (Shirombooto) to Mudun (Muduni). However, during the rainy season, this dirt road was often impassible and vehicles had to follow a narrow track among the thick bush, called in Chimwiini Burdunaale (from Italian pedonale ‘‘pedestrians’ way’’.)

buure

adv. [Sw. bure SSED 42; Hind.; cf. Ar. verb bāra, baur ‘‘to be unprofitable, lead to nothing’’ W 81-82] free, gratis, uselessly

Buure/ hukukowa tuure. ‘Free things cause you to develop a hump (become bent).’ (A proverbial saying.)

Buure/ ni mayi ya tawala. ‘The only free thing is sea water.’ (A proverbial saying.)

ka buure ‘without pay; uselessly, in vain; for no reason’

Hattá/ sku mooyi/ choondroka/ cheendra/ ka waawaye/ chimwaambila/ waawé/ mi/ nofeeté/ khkalaant^ha/jis’iyi/ ka buure. ‘Until one day he got up and went to his father and said: my father, I am tired staying (here) in this way uselessly.’

Mazá/ we/ nakuḷa ka buuré. ‘Why are you crying for nothing?’

Mp^hikishize chaakuja/ ka buure. ‘He caused me to cook food free (i.e. without paying me) or uselessly.’

khsumbuka buure ‘to waste one’s efforts [lit. to worry for nothing]’

Sultaani/ chiwavila watumishi/ chiwa’ambila/ nt^hanná/ rukhsa/ kumbiga uyu/ ka buure. ‘The sultan called the servants and told them: you (pl.) do not have permission to beat this one for no reason.’

m-buure

in the expression:

chana mbuure (plural zana mbuure) ‘a kind of bird, smaller than stigaa nt^hi, possibly light brown and white in color; found in the areas around Brava’

burgante

n. 9 [Ital. purgante] purgative

Nele burganté/ so. ‘You took a laxative, didn’t you? did you take a laxative (e.g. I have observed you going repeatedly to the bathroom)?’

burhaani

n. [Ar. burhān "proof" W 56] proof that one or one’s words have been sent by God; miracle burhani iyi ‘this proof’

burhaanize ‘his miracles’

i-buuri (mi-)

n. [Som. buur DSI 71] hill (of sand), waste dump

Cheendra/ shtawanya iburiini. ‘She went and discarded (the cut up body) at the garbage dump.’

Gaari/ ipanzile ibuuri. ‘The car climbed the hill.’

Iburi ya Kapeelo ‘a place name in Brava’ (the name comes from Emilio Cappello who was the Italian Resident in Brava for some years starting from 1898) ibuuri yaa nt^haka ‘a heap of garbage’ kharibu ya ibuuri ‘near a hill’

Maayi/ hishkila/ hayapaandri/ ibuuri. ‘Water comes down, it does not go up a hill.’ (A proverb.)

Mubjaana/ panzile ilu/ ya ibuuri/ ‘The young man climbed to the top of the mountain.’

Muunthu/ oyo/ hupandro mibuuri/ paanzile/ ilu ya ibuuri/ shereele/ poteele/ merelemereele/ nt^hangú/ iló/ haṭá/ nt^hi/ ba’adiye/ fiile. ‘That mountain climber climbed up the hill, he slipped, twisting and turning until he got to the bottom (lit. earth) and died.’

Nakhtawanyaa nt^haka/ iburiini. ‘He is throwing away garbage at the dump.’

Shtala kuulu/ yaa mbuzi/ chilaṭila iburiini/ na ibuuri/ iyó/ iwaaliko/ khariibu/ ya nuumbaye. ‘She took the leg of the goat and threw it into the garbage dump, that garbage dump was near her house.’

Waana/ wanakhtēza iburiini. ‘The children are playing at the waste dump.’

rel.

chi-buuri (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. small hill

chiburi cha huundru ‘a small red hill -- refers to a small red sandhill that is outside Brava on the west side, where people often went for a walk’

- ku-burisha* v. (burishiize) expel; fire (from a position)
Skoolā/ imburishiize/ mwaalimu/ nthana wanaskoḷa wiingí. ‘The school fired the teacher who does not have many students.’
Skoolā/ imburishiize/ mwaalimu/ nthana wanaaskoḷa wiingí/ imburishiizó. ‘The school fired the teacher who does not have many students, that’s who it fired.’
rel.
ku-burishoowa v. pass. (burishiiza)
Omari/burishiiza/ skolaani. ‘Omari was expelled from school.’
- burji* n. 9/10 a kind of imported cloth, heavier than gereesi or leeso
burji iyi ‘this cloth’ (cf. burji izi ‘these cloths’)
rel.
chi-burji (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. (disparaging use)
Chiburji gani/ icho. ‘What kind of a chiburji is that (implying that it is a poor piece of cloth)?’
- ku-burkhaṭa* v. [cf. Som. burqo ‘to squirt out water’] (burkheete) become intensely angry, to the point of foaming at the mouth; talk a lot and angrily; rage, shout violently Ngamiila/ burkheete. ‘The camel became angry.’
rel.
ku-barkhaṭisha v. caus. (burkhaṭishiize) Baana/ mburkaṭishize mwaana. ‘Baana caused the child to become intensely angry.’ (Cf. the periphrastic version: Baana/ mtile mwaana/ kuburkhaṭa.) ku-barkhaṭishana v. caus. rec.
ku-barkhaṭishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-barkhaṭishiliza v. caus. appl. (burkhaṭishiliize) Baana/ mburkaṭishilize Iisa/ mwaana. ‘Baana caused Iisa’s child to become intensely angry.’ (Cf. the periphrastic version: Baana/ mtile Iisa/ mwaana/ kuburkhaṭa.) ku-barkhaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-burkhaṭishilizeenye)
Baana/ na Iisá/ waburkaṭishilizenye waana. ‘Baana and Iisa caused one another’s children to become intensely angry.’ (Cf. the periphrastic version: Baana/ na Iisá/ watililene waana/ kuburkhaṭa.)
- buru* n. a general term for a kind of donut made in Brava; khamdi is a triangular-shaped buru, while shṭuumbuwa is a round ball buru, and rumaani can be either triangular- or square-shaped
- i-buruuda* (mi-) n. 5/4 etymo unknown hip, upper pelvic area
- buruko* n. 9/10 [Ital. parrucca] wig buruko i(y)i ‘this wig’; buruko izi ‘these wigs’ Haliimu/ vete buruko. ‘Haliima wore a wig.’
rel.
chi-buruko (zi-) n. dim. small wig chiburuko ichi ‘this wig’
i-buruko (mi-) n. aug. large wig khkula iburuko ‘to take off a wig’ kugīṭa iburuko ‘to pull off a wig’ kuvala iburuko ‘to wear a wig’
- Burundi* n. Burundi
Maḏahweena/ wa Burundi/ inqilabeeta. ‘The president of Burundi is being overthrown.’
- ku-buruurata* v. [Som. burur DSI 69] (burureete) fall into a trance, fall into convulsions (of person being possessed by jinns)

Mamađo/ burureete/ shtimiriini/ bigililaa ngoma/ tezeze/ mirseete. ‘Mamadho fell into a trance during the shtimiri dancing, drums were beaten for him and he (resumed) dancing/playing and got his senses back.’

Omari/ shkasa jawabu iyo/ takuburuurata. ‘If Omari hears this, he will go crazy, get mad, get out of control.’

rel.

ku-bururatoowa v. pass.

Kubururatoowa/ bilaa ma’ana/ siwo/ suura. ‘To get mad for no reason is not good.’

ku-bur(u)sha

v. [Som. huri DSI 69] (bur(u)shiize) turn or drive s.o. out (e.g. from school, house)

Basi/ wachimburusha. ‘So they sent him away.’

Mburshize mwaana/ ka khisaa chilaatu. ‘He sent the boy away because of the shoe [that he found].’

Mwambiile/ ni/ hanimpheenda/ chiza skanimburishe. ‘He told her: you (pl.) do not like me, otherwise you would not have driven me away.’ (Note the honorific use of the second person plural form in this statement, where the boy is addressing the sultan’s daughter.)

rel.

ku-burushoowa v. pass. (burishiiza) be dismissed, sent away

Basi/ mwaana/ nakhtiya/ kuburushowa kaziini. ‘So/now, the child is afraid of being dismissed from work.’

ku-buusa

v. [Sw. busu SSED 43, from Persian] (busiize) kiss

Kuzimu/ skomi/ nt’i/ takubusa maraa saba. ‘The sky I won’t reach, the earth I will kiss seven times.’ (A proverbial saying thanking God for having received so much and expressing one’s joy.)

cut it, kiss it.’ (A proverb.)

Nimbusize Baabá/ Shariifú/ mkono. ‘I kissed Baaba Shariifu on the hand.’

Or: Nimbusize mkono/ Baabá/ Shariifú. ‘I kissed on the hand Baaba Shariifu.’ (Observe that locating mkono in post-verbal position does not necessitate putting focus on it, as the accentual pattern exhibited in the second example is not distinct from the accentual pattern of the first example: all phrases in the scope of the verb are assigned final accent.)

Omari/ mbusize mwaana/ mkono(oni). ‘Omari kissed the child’s hand/ kissed the child on the hand.’

Suufi/ mbusishize mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘Suufi had the child kiss the book.’

(It would be possible for the causee to be indicated only by the object marker: Suufi/ mbusishize chibuuku. ‘Suufi made him kiss the book.’ It seems to be acceptable to omit all specification of the causee, i.e. both the overt noun and the object marker, while retaining the logical object: Suufi/ busishize chibuuku. ‘Suufi had (s.o.) kiss the book.’

Sultaani/ chuuluka/ chimbusa oyo mwaana. ‘The sultan jumped and kissed that boy.’

rel.

ku-busabuusa v. redup.

Haliima/ nakuwabusabusa waanawe/ ka furaha. ‘Haliima is kissing her children with happiness.’

ku-buusanya v. rec. (-buseenye) kiss one another

Waana/wabuseenye. ‘The children kissed one another.’

Waana/ wabusenye ka khisa wawa yaawo. ‘The children kissed one another for their father.’

ku-busanyiliza v. rec. appl. (-busanyiliize)

ku-busilizanya v. appl. rec. (-busilizeenye)

Waant’u/ wabusilizenye waana. ‘People kissed the children for one another.’ (Note that this example cannot mean ‘people kissed one another for the children’; the beneficiaries of the action are not the logical object of the verb -buusa.)

ku-buusisha v. caus.

Huseeni/ busishiize. ‘Huseeni had (s.o.) kiss (s.t.)’ (Note that it is possible for both the one made to kiss and the one kissed to be omitted from the sentence.)

Omari/ mbusishize mwaalimu. ‘Omari had the teacher kiss (s.o.)’ (Note that the object marker on the verb must refer to mwaalimu and mwaalimu must be the causee, i.e. the one who was made to kiss someone. The sentence cannot mean ‘Omari made someone kiss the teacher’.

Suufi/ mbusishize mwaana/ mwaalimu/ mkonooni. ‘Suufi had the child kiss the teacher on the hand.’

ku-busishana v. caus. rec.

ku-busishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-busishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-busishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-busoowa v. pass.

hajari aswadi sunna hubusoowa [st.] ‘it is not obligatory to kiss the Black Stone’

Mkono/ ha’uṭindiki/ hubusoowa. ‘A hand that cannot be cut off is kissed.’

(A proverb which conveys the idea that what is indispensable must be kept.)

ku-busowabusoowa v. pass. redup.

Haliima/ mwene mwanaamkewe/ skolaani/ nakubusowabusoowa.

‘Haliima saw her daughter being kissed at school (e.g. by her boyfriend).’

busaati (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. busati SSED 43; Ar. bisāṭ W 58] blanket

Busaati/ iyele nt’uundru. ‘The blanket is filled with holes.’

busati iyi ‘this blanket’ (cf. mabusati aya ‘these blankets’)

Busaati/ kufinikowa waṭṭi ya bardi. ‘A blanket is used to cover oneself when one is cold.’

busati nangaangu ‘a light blanket’

Busaati/ nzimaye/ nt’uundru. ‘The blanket, its whole, is (all) holes.’ (It should be pointed out that downstepping does not occur between the first two phrases, although there is typically some declination, but there is downstepping of the final phrase.)

busaati/ nzito heavy blanket’ khfinika busaati ‘to cover with a blanket’

rel.

chi-busaati (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-busaati (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

bustaani (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. bustani SSED 43; Ar. bustān W 57] garden bustaniini ‘in the garden’

rel.

chi-bustaani (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-bustaani (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

busuri

in the expression:

busuri ya nt’eendre ‘one piece of date’

busurii mbili/ ya nt’eendre ‘two pieces of dates’

buuti

n. 9/10 [Eng. boot] boot

buti iyi ‘this boot’ (cf. buti izi ‘these boots’) buti za magozi ‘leather boots’

buti zaa ngozi ‘leather boots’

Omari/ vete buuti. ‘Omari wore boots.’

Wakhti wa barafu/ Ameerika/ huvalowa milaatu/ ya buuti/ kurebela bardi. ‘During cold times in America big boots are worn to stop the cold with.’

rel.

chi-buuti (zi-) n. 7/ dim. (disparaging use)

Zibuti gani/ izo. ‘What kind of zibuuti are these (suggesting they are not good boots)?’

buybuyi(Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. buibui SSED 40] a large spider

- i-buyibuuyi (ma-)* n. 5/6 [Sw. buibui SSED 40] a cloth used by Muslim women that covers the whole body (=ishoga)
variant form: buyibuyi [cl.9/10]
Buyibuyi izi/ ghaali. 'These buyibuyi are expensive.'
Haliima/ vete buyibuyi. 'Haliima wore a buyibuyi.'
- m-buuyu (mi-)* n. 3/4 [Sw. mbuyu (mi-) SSED 270] baobab tree
rel.
i-wuuyu n. fruit of the baobab tree
- m-buzi* n. 9/10 [Sw. mbuzi SSED 270] a tool used to break up the meat of the coconut and scrape it out
- m-buzi* n. 9/10 [Sw. mbuzi SSED 270] goat
Chimpaa mbuzi. 'He was giving it to the goat.' (Morph. Observe that the singular mbuzi controls [cl.1] agreement, m, on the verb. This verbal form could also be a conditional clause: 'if he gives it to the goat'.)
Isa/ ndetela mbuziya. 'Now, bring me back my goat.'
Jiba mbuzi izi/ ump^{hi}/ mkulu/ ump^{hi}/ chihaba. 'Answer [the question] which of these [two] goats is older, which is younger.'
kudaqishaa mbuzi 'to graze the goats'
Maama/ choloka sukhuuni/ chulaa mbuzi/ sh^{ti}ndaa mbuzi/ shfanya karamu/ nk^hulu. 'Mother went to the market (and) bought a goat (and) slaughtered the goat (and) made a large feast.'
mbuzi waa waarabu 'an Arab's goat' mbuzi yaa be or mbuzi waa be 'goat' (cf. mbuzi zaa be 'goats') mbuzi ya matako or mbuzi wa matako 'sheep (lit. goat with buttocks)' (cf. mbuzi za matako 'sheep (pl.)') Apo/ maha^laa ye/ waalikó/ iwaliko mbuzi ya matako ya sultaani/ na sultaani/ humpendaa nt^ho/ mbuzi uyu.
'There at the place where he was, there was a sheep of the sultan and the sultan loved very much this sheep.'
Keesho/ fijiri/ oloka/ ula...mbuzi ya matako/ ula na lkaambalá/ ndreetela. 'Tomorrow, in the morning, go and buy a sheep and also buy a rope and bring them to me.'
mbuzi ya waarabu 'an Arabian goat' (cf. mbuzi za waarabu 'Arabian goats') Mbuziwo/ wa matako/ uko. 'Your lamb is there (alive).' (Syn. Notice that the possessive enclitic appears on the head of the associative phrase mbuzi/ wa matako and not on the complement element.)
Mujaa mbuzi/ hulipa ngoombe. 'The one who eats a goat repays with a cow.' (A proverb.)
nama yaa mbuzi 'goat meat'
Nt^hakhu^{ti}inda/ kanaa mbuzi. 'I will cut you like a goat.' (A threat.)
Sh^{ti}ndaa mbuzi. 'He slaughtered a goat.'
Talanii mbuzi/ na ko^oele ya ujee muke/ ko^oeeló. '(You pl.) take the goat and speak what that (djinn) woman said (i.e. do as the djinn said to do).'
rel.
*chi-buzi (zi-)*n. 7/8 dim.
Nazo zibuzi ziwili. 'He has two dim. goats.'
Omari/ uzile chibuzi chihaba. 'Omari bought a small goat.'
- i-buzi (mi-)* n. 5/4 aug.
Chiwona ibuzi. 'He saw a big goat.'
khkolola/ kana ibuzi 'to cough like a goat (used of adults)' Nakhkolola kana ibuzi. 'He is coughing like a big goat.'
- m-b(w)a* n. 9/10 [Sw. mbwa SSED 270] dog; [pron. mbwa or mba] Hamadi/ nakispaa kuja/ mbwa. 'Hamadi is giving the dogs food.' (Note the [cl.10] agreement on the verb triggered by mbwa.

- kubiga mikele/ kanaa mbwa ‘to shout, bark like a dog’ kumfaanya/ kanaa mbwa ‘to treat him like a dog [similar in use to the English expression]’ Makombo yaseeló/ chimpaa mbwa. ‘The leftovers that remained he gave to the dog.’
Mbwa/ haaji. ‘A dog does not, won’t eat.’ (Cf. Mbwa/ haaziji. ‘Dogs do not, won’t eat.’) Mbwa/ haazija/ maanyi. ‘A dog does not eat grass.’
Mbwa/ mnumiiló. ‘The dog bit him.’
Mbwa oyo/ hurasha waant^hu. ‘That dog chases people.’
Mbwa/ mrashiize. ‘The dog chased him.’
mbwa qooqi ‘a mean dog’
mbwa wa maduuri ‘a wild dog’
mbwa waardiya ‘a watch dog’
Mp^hete mbwa wa Hamadí. ‘I found Hamadi’s dog.’ Or, with mbwa controlling human agreement on the verb: Nimpete mbwa Hamadi.
Mp^hete Hamadi/ mbwaazé. ‘I found Hamadi’s dogs.’ Or, with the plural mbwa controlling [cl.10] agreement on the verb: Nispete Hamadi/ mbwaazé.
mwana waa mbwa ‘a puppy; a son-of-a-bitch’ Nnakispaa mbwa/ kujá. ‘I am giving them dogs food.’ Or: Nnakispaa kujá/ mbwa.
Omari/ fanyize Alí/ kana mbwa mooyi. ‘Omari treated Ali like a dog.’
Omari/ waanawe/ ni wana waa mbwa. ‘Omari’s children are a dog’s children – i.e. they do not respect elders, they do all sorts of bad things, etc.’
Sarmadi/ lumila naa mbwa. ‘Sarmadi was bitten by a dog.’
Shkosa iwele ya maamo/ amá/ hata yaa mbwa. ‘If you lack your mother’s breast, suckle even a dog’s.’ (A proverb.)
Sku mooyi/ mp^huundra/ naa mbwa/ wachisaafira/ pamooyi. ‘One day a donkey and a dog were travelling together.’

rel.

chi-b(w)a (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. [pron. chibwá]

chibwaacha ‘my dim. dog’ (cf. zibwaaza ‘my dim. dogs’)

i-b(w)a (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. [pron. ib(w)á]

Ibwá/ inakubiga mikele/ wúh wúh wúh. ‘The (aug.) dog is barking wuh wuh wuh.’ (Each repetition of the ideophone is pronounced on a high pitch; these high pitches are not downstepped relative to the preceding accented syllable.)

ibwaaya ‘my aug. dog’

mibwaaya ‘my aug. dogs’

Nt^hakiineedra/ shtaambo/ chaa muda/ mule/ hattá/ chi’iwona/ ibwá/ ikulu. ‘He did not go for a long period of time before he saw a large wild dog.’

Sheekhi/ shishiila shtana/ nakubigaa nk^he/le/ kana ibwá. ‘Sheekhi got angry, he is shouting like a dog.’

b(w)aana

n. [Sw. bwana SSED 43] a term of address, "mister", "master"

Bwana taajiri/ bwana taajiri. ‘Mr. Businessman! Mr. Businessman!’

^QBwaana/ takhaadira/ we/ khfungula shtandrawili ichi? ‘Master, will you be able to solve this riddle?’ (The final accent in the final phrase is due to the intonational principles of yes-no questions.)

Isa/ mi/ nile kaakó/ bwana mfa^lme/ kumera haqiya. ‘Now I have come to you, Mr. King, to seek my right (i.e. what is mine).’

CH

ku-cha

v. (cheele) dawn

Basi/ fijiri/ mukhta ucheeló/ waant^hu/ wont^he/ wahuðurile ka sultaani.

‘So in the morning when it dawned, all the people were present at the sultan’s place.’

Fijiri/ icheelopó/ Abdalla/ suliile/ kishkiḷa ka mutiini. ‘When morning dawned, Abdalla wanted to climb down from the tree.’

Ucheele. ‘It dawned; it is too late.’

Ucheelopó/ sku ya piili/ Hasani/ ile/ ka waawaye. ‘When it was morning, the second day, Hasani came to his father’s place.’

Ucheelopó/ Sultani Daraayi/ choondroka/ usinziziini. ‘When it dawned, Sultan Daraayi arose from sleep.’

Usiché. ‘Let it not become dawn (i.e. before you get up).’

rel.

kh-cheeleḷa v. appl. (-chelele) be late

Iwa/ imchelele. ‘He was late (lit. the sun dawned on him).’

kh-cheleloowa v. appl. pass. (chelele) over sleep, be late (i.e. be overtaken by dawn)

Nch^heleḷa koloka madrasaani. ‘I was late going to school.’

-chaache

adj. [Sw. -chache SSED 46] few, a little (This word is not much used nowadays, it appears, being found mostly in steenzi. The ordinary language examples cited below are from MI.)

Ba’ada yaa muda/ siwo mchaaché/ askari za sultaani/ wachiruuda.

‘After a period of time which was not short, the soldiers of the sultan returned.’

Ba’ada/ ya wakhti/ mchaache/ weenzawe/ walwaawo/ wachilawa/ ka habasaani.

‘After a short period of time both his friends left from prison.’

ba’ada/ ya sku nch^haache ‘after a few days’

Duniyaani/ nt^hana miingi/ nayo machaache. ‘In this world, one who does not have many (e.g. matata ‘troubles’) has a few.’ (A proverb.)

Elo uyu/ qimaye/ nch^haache. ‘The price of this gazelle was small.’

Maambo/ aya/ ya’ineenzele/ muda/ wa sku/ sho kuwa nch^haache. ‘These affairs continued for a period of days that were not few.’

mayi machaache ‘a little water’ mp^haka nch^haache ‘a few cats’

Pete waant^hu/ wachaache/ kumraasha/ laakini/ ye/ walá/ waant^hu/ wamrashizoo ye/ nt^hawakhpata/ amaani. ‘He got a few people to follow him, but neither he nor the people who followed him got peace (i.e. were able to live in peace).’

Sho kuwanayo miingi/ nayo machaache. ‘He who does not have many (worries) has a few.’ (A proverb.)

want^hu wachaache ‘a few people’

Wataana/ wachaache/ wakhadiriḷo kuzimila ka jaziraani/ wafungile khisa za ajabu. ‘The few slaves who were able to escape from the island told amazing stories.’

We/ siwo/ ijini/ we/ ni mwaadamú/ we/ nakunkhada’a/ tu/ huwaayi/ kuwa maali/ yaa we/ teetó/ yotte/ yamaliize/ ka sku nch^haache. ‘You are not a djinn, you are a human being; you are just deceiving me, how could the wealth that you took, all of it, be finished in just a few days?’

zisu schaache ‘a few knives’

rel.

u-chaache n. 14 scarcity

-chaafu

adj. dirty

mwana mchaafu ‘a dirty child’; wana wachaafu ‘dirty children’

- chaka n. wealth, money (It is unknown whether this item can be analyzed morphologically into a prefix ch- and a stem. No plural form has been recorded.)
menye chaka ‘a rich person’ confirm vowel length ukopi Qaruuni kufri / menye chaka chi sho qadri = where is Qaruun, the unbeliever, rich beyond measure’
- chakaari adj. full, overloaded
Gaari/ ile chakaari. ‘The car came over-loaded.’
Leelo/ nuumba/ chakaari. ‘Today the house is full.’ Or: Nuumba/ leelo/ chakari.
 Or: Nuumba/ chakaari/ leelo.
Miimbaya/ iwele chakaari. ‘My stomach became full.’
Miimbaya/ iwele chakarii nt^ho. ‘My stomach became very full.’
Njiilé/ haṭá/ miimbaya/ iwele chakaari. ‘I ate until my stomach became full.’
- cheeki n. [Som. jeeg DSI 341] check/cheque
- chi- narrative past tense or continuous past tense prefix Abinawaasi/ chil^hiḡfakaṭila. ‘Abinawaasi ran away.’ (Phon. Although this example was pronounced in our text without the material in brackets, the form chifakaṭila would not be expected on phonological grounds – i.e. the prefix chi would be expected to elide its vowel in front of a voiceless obstruent, yielding shfakaṭila; it would also not be expected on morphological grounds, as the applied verb is typically used in conjunction with the reflexive prefix i to convey notions like take oneself away, run away, and so on.)
Basi/ chimwaambila. ‘So he told him.’
Basi/ shtaambula. ‘So he was able to differentiate (between the two).’
Chibiga alaama. ‘He made a mark (on it).’
Chilawa/ cheendra/ ka sulṭaani/ apo/ ye chimshika sulṭaani/ mkono/ chilawa naaye/ keendra/ kumwubla. ‘He departed and went to the sultan, and there he took the sultan by hand to go out with him to go to kill him.’
Mi/ nch^hoondroka/ nch^hiboola/ mbuziyo/ ya matako/ nch^himuusha/ nch^heendra/ nch^hulaa mbuzi/ ya matako/ nch^himṭiinda/ nch^himwambila mukeewa... ‘I arose and I stole your lamba and I hide it and I went and bought a sheep and I slaughtered it and I told my wife...’
Muke/ chiwaletelaa nama/ wachijá/ chimaliza/ wachi^hilawilá. ‘The woman brought the meat to them and they ate, then they went away.’ (Phon. The use of the final accent in this example is not at present understood. The pronunciation recorded here occurred in a text tape recorded by MI. Another consultant confirmed the final accent for wachijá in this example, but preferred the final phrase, wachi^hilawila, to have penult accent. Of course, in isolation, wachija would also have penult accent, since this is the default accent for the chi tense.)
Mwanaamke/ kama oyo/ shṭuluba chaakuja/ shpoowa/ chija. ‘The girl, like that, requested food and was given it and ate.’
Mwiisho/ Abdalla/ chiraasha/ kooḍi/ za mukeewe. ‘At last, Abdalla followed [i.e. accepted, agreed with] the words of his wife.’
Sku ya piiliye/ mwanaamke/ choondroka/ ka chiliini/ chilawa ndilaani/ kinendra^hineendra. ‘On the second day, the girl arose from the bed and went outside to take a stroll.’
Sulṭaani/ shṭomola sanduukhu/ chi^hiweeka/ mbele/ za waant^hu/ wa^hilo kiiwá/ ije itakhtulukó. ‘The sultan took out the box and placed it in front of the people who had come to know that which will take place.’ (Syn. Note the use of the narrative past in shṭomola and chi^hiweeka but the perfect in wa^hilo.)
Wachija. ‘They ate.’
Wachimwaambila. ‘They told her.’
Wachoondroka/ washfunga safari. ‘They arose and set out on a journey.’

Walwaawo/ wachilawa/ kendra maduriini/ khtinda makharba. ‘The two of them left to go to the bush to pick [lit. cut] leaves.’

-chi-

conditional prefix

Muunt^{bu}/ chisula chiint^{bu}/ masku/ hufanya muunt^{bi}. ‘If someone wants something, night makes it into day.’ (A proverb which conveys the idea that if one really wants something, one will not rest before getting it – even though one ordinarily rests at night, night will become like day.)

Muunt^{bu}/ chiwa naacho/ humambila nt^{be}endra. ‘If someone has it, it tells him: use me! make use of me!’ (A proverb which says that if someone has a lot of money, that money tells him to use it, spend it, keep on buying things extravagantly.)

chi-

first person plural subject prefix; morphophonemic variants: ch, sh

Chaajire. ‘Let us rent.’

Chaminiilé. ‘We believed.’

Chijile liini. ‘When did we eat?’

Chinakulatá. ‘We are letting go.’

chisoole ‘that we crush grain’

Chivaliko waana. ‘We were children.’

Naasi/ chiko hayyi... ‘And we who are alive...’

Si/ shtile ruhu zitu/ karka khatari/ na shchiiwa... ‘We put ourselves in danger and we knew...’

chi-

[cl.7] subject prefix; morphophonemic variant: ch, sh

Chaayi/ chilesela na mgeeni. ‘Tea was brought by the guest.’

Chibuuku/ chibeele. ‘The book is lost.’

Chisimacha/ hashtindiki/ maayi. ‘My well never stops yielding water.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is kana ‘the mouth’.)

Chisu/ chingile miriri. ‘The knife is rusty.’

Chita cha ngoombe/ chiseele. ‘The head of a cow remained.’

Chizeele/ chilesela/ karka ikholi. ‘The old woman was brought in the mat-bag.’

Chuluungu/ cha pili/ hashtakhkalaant^{ba}. ‘The second storey will not remain standing.’

(Ye/) ka’oloká/ sula kichiwona. ‘If he went, he would see us.’

-chi-

first person plural object prefix; morphophonemic variant: ch, sh kichibiga ‘to beat us’

Nt^hawanakhfurahila/ kichiwona. ‘They are not pleased to see us.’

Sichaaminé. ‘Do not trust us!’

Sichimereeni. ‘(You pl.) don’t look for us!’

Sishkoooishé. ‘Don’t talk to us.’ or ‘Don’t make us talk!’

Wachisharifiile. ‘They honored us.’

Washpeete. ‘They found us.’

-chi-

[cl.7] object prefix; morphophonemic variant: ch, sh

Chakuja ichi/ hashkhaadiri/ kichoonda/ leelo. ‘This food, we cannot taste it today.’

Chibuku ichi/ hashkhaadiri/ kishpata ka sahali. ‘This book, we cannot find it easily.’ (Phon. Observe that the infinitive prefix ku is changed to ki in front of an object prefix containing a palatal element, as in the present case: kishpata. See preceding example as well.)

Chiiko/ laakini/ hichiwoni. ‘It is there, but one does not see it.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ikosi ‘nape of the neck’.) (Phon. Notice that the habitual prefix hu like the infinitive ku is altered to hi in front of an object prefix that contains a palatal element.)

Huseeni/ shtala shpete/ chichivaala. ‘Huseeni took the ring and put it on.’

Nuuru/ chisomele chibuuku. ‘Nuuru read the book.’ (Syn. The object prefix is used to make explicit that the object is definite. When the object is indefinite, there is no object agreement: Nuuru/ somele chibuuku. ‘Nuuru read a book.’)

Sultaani/ chimuuzā/ ichije chiint^hu/ shpeeté/ mwaana/ chihada/ nishpeeté. ‘The sultan asked him: that thing, did you find it? The boy said: I found it.’

Waant^hu/ won^he/ wachisimama/ kichilangala chizeele/ icho/ na kishpa salaamú. ‘All the people stood up and looked at that old woman and greeted her.’

chi- [cl.7] noun class prefix; morphophonemic variants: ch, sh chaala ‘finger’

chiguwo ‘rag’
chireeza ‘razor’
chisimacha ‘my well’
chisiwa ‘island’
chisu ‘knife’
chuula ‘frog’
shkapu ‘basket’
shpete ‘ring’

chi- [cl.7] agreement prefix

Chala chimooyi/ hachubli/ nt^hawa. ‘One finger does not kill a louse.’ Or:

Chaala/ chimooyi/ hachubli/ nt^hawa.

chibuku chiimp^hi ‘which book?’

chiguwo chiimp^hi ‘which rag?’

Chint^hu chimooyi/ huzaloo miya. ‘One thing which bears a hundred.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is awuri ‘seed’.)

Munt^hu uyu/ chisuche/ chile. ‘This man’s knife is long.’

Munt^hu uyu/ chisuche/ chilee nt^ho. ‘This man’s knife is very long.’

Chibuuri Chihuundru

chiichi strong [cl.7] demonstrative, first position (near speaker) chiichi/ ichi ‘this very same one (referring, for example, to chiti ‘a chair’)’ chiichi/ ichi [cl.7] emphatic demonstrative chiichi/ shkapu ichi ‘this basket itself’ chiichi/ ichije [cl.7] third position emphatic demonstrative chiichi/ shkapu ichije ‘that basket itself’ chiichi/ icho ? [cl.7] two position emphatic demonstrative (uncertain as to whether this is used) chiichije strong [cl.7] demonstrative, third person (away) chiichije/ ichije [cl.7] third position emphatic demonstrative (used by MI, not used by our present consultants) chiichije/ ichije ‘that very same one (referring, for example, to chiti ‘a chair’)’ chiicho strong [cl.7] demonstrative, second position (near addressee) chiicho/ icho ‘this very same one (referring, for example, to chiti ‘a chair’)’ chiicho/ ka chiicho ‘the same ones, over and over’

Fanyize kaazi/ ka chuma chaa ye/ wanaachó/ chiicho/ ka chiicho. ‘He did business with the capital that he had, over and over (i.e. he had no other resources, he used the same money to buy and then sell, to buy and then sell, etc.’

Takuja chakuja chiicho/ icho. ‘You will eat this very same food (e.g. a mother to her child who does not want to eat a meal).’

- chiicho/ ichi [cl.7] first position emphatic demonstrative (attested among present-day speakers) chiicho/ shkapu ichi ‘this basket itself’
- chiicho/ ichije [cl.7] third position emphatic demonstrative (attested among present-day speakers)
- chiicho/ icho [cl.8] second position emphatic demonstrative (attested among present-day speakers as well as MI) chiicho/ shkapu icho ‘that basket itself’
- chiikh ideo.
Chili ichi/ chivundishile/ shchika_lant^hiloowa/ chinaaku_la/ chiikh chiikh! ‘This bed is broken, if it is sat on, it cries: chiiq chiiq!’
Chili ichi/ ni chishepe/ khariibu/ kuvuundika/ chinaku_la chiikh chiikh! ‘This bed is old and about to break, it is making the noise chiikh chiikh!’
Sheekhuna/ shishile gaari/ fariina/ kaa nguvu/ chiikh!/ khariibu/ kumbiga muunt^hu. ‘Sheekhuna pushed the car’s brakes with force, chiikh! he almost hit a man.’
- Chilaani n. one of two little islands offshore facing the Mp^haayi quarter of Brava (The Italians built a 900 meters long causeway-bridge connecting Mp^haayi with Chilaani and built a lighthouse on Chilaani. However, the bridge was broken at several points by the British during the Second World War, and the lighthouse has not been in use for many decades. Chilaani was reached by boat and was a favourite spot for picnics and bathing.)
- Chilomo n. a place far from the shore off the coast from Brava Omari/ nakoowela/ mpaka Chilomooni. ‘Omari is swimming up to Chilomooni.’
Wako waant^hu/ wakali/ koowela/ hukhadira kowela_n n^hi/ hat^ha/ Chilomo. ‘There are people good at swimming, they can swim from land all the way to Chilomo.’
- chimaliza conj. then, afterwards
Chimaliza/ chilawa ijini/ mwiingine/ chimwambila Sa’iidi/ sh_takhteza khamaari/ mi/ naawé/ na takshindroowá/ natomole maaliye/ yotte/ nampe uje shiinziló. ‘Then another djinn came and said to Sa’iidi: We will gamble together, me and you, and the one who is defeated, let his wealth all be given to the one who won.’
Chimaliza/ kana mwana wa skool_a/ chimaliza khsooma/ ye/ hukhadira kulangala mpiira. ‘Then if a student finishes studying, he may watch football.’
Chimaliza/ ye/ chiruda muiyini/ chendra kaake/ numbaani. ‘After that, he returned to the town and went to his home.’
Dede/ andishilee khati/ chimaliza/ itukiize. ‘Dede wrote a letter and then she sent it.’
Hamadi/ andishilee khati/ chimaliza mtukulize waawaye. ‘Hamadi wrote a letter and then mailed it to his father.’
Hamadi/ pete chibuuku/ chimaliza/ mtukulizee muke. ‘Hamadi got a book and then took it the woman.’ (Note that given a conjoined structure such as this, the object of the second clause cannot be relativized into: muke wa Hamadi/ peto chibuukú/ chimaliza/ mtukuliizó ‘the woman whom Hamadi got a book and took it to her’. One would have to say: muke wa Hamadi/ mtukulizo chibuukú/ chaa ye/ peetó ‘the woman whom Hamadi took to her the book that he got’.)
Hamiisi/ somele chibuuku/ chimaliza/ ye/ langalile mpiira. ‘Hamiisi read a book, then he watched football.’

Maryaamu/ mpikilile Ali/ zijo/ chimaliza/ mpakuliile. ‘Maryaamu cooked zijo for Ali and then served him.’

muke waa ye/ mwandikililo khati/ chimaliza/ mtukuliizo ‘the woman who he wrote a letter to her and then mailed it to her’ (Note that both of the co-ordinated verbs in this example are marked as relative verbs by means of the final vowel o. Note that the conjunction chimaliza is not shifted into relative clause form.)

muntu andishiloo khati/ chimaliza/ itukiizo ‘the man who wrote a letter and then mailed it’ phrasing of chimaliza -- review

kh-chiimbila

v. (chimbile) flee, run away, escape

khchiimbila/ kana lpepo ‘to run like the wind’

Mchimbile askari. ‘He ran from a policeman.’

Mchimbile kaawo. ‘He ran away from home.’

Mchimbile waawaye. ‘He fled from his father.’

mi sinch^himbileeni na sink^hahateeni [song] ‘do not run away from me and do not hate me’

Nch^himbiile/ khpata kumwona. ‘I ran (in order) to see him. C. Nch^himbile kumwona. ‘I ran to see him.’

Nch^himbiile/ simbone. ‘I ran away so that he would not see me.’

Nch^himbiile/ nisimwone. ‘I ran away so that I might not see him.’

Nch^himbile spate kumwona. ‘I ran so as to not see him.’ (If there is focus on the verb, then final accent does not project beyond the verb: Nch^himbiile/ chiza kumwona. ‘I ran (in order) not to see him.’ Not: Nch^himbiile/ chiza kumwona.)

Nch^himbiile/ spate kumbona. ‘I ran away so that he wouldn’t see me.’ Cf.

Nch^himbiile/ spate kumwona. ‘I ran away so that I would not see him.’

Ni daruuri/ wo/ kiiwa/ kuwa hawaakhaadiri/ khchiimbila. ‘It is essential that they recognize that they cannot escape.’

Omari/ nakhchiimbila. ‘Omari is running away.’

Tafaðali/ stoshé/ kuwaa si/ chinakhuchiimbila. ‘Please do not think that we are running away from you.’

Walá/ mchiimbizi/ nakhchiimbilo. ‘And neither am I a fugitive who is running away.’

Washchiimbila/ wizi wawili. ‘Ran away two thieves.’ Cf. Washchiimbila/ wizi wawili/ washchiimbilo. ‘Two thieves ran away, that’s what they did.’

rel.

kh-chimbilila v. appl. (chimbilile) run with, to, in s.o.’s place

Mchimbilile mweenzawe/ kumpa salaamu. ‘He ran to his friend to greet him.’

Nch^himbilile/ laakini/ nt^hakhshiindra. ‘He ran in my place, but he did not win.’

Nt^haná/ nguvu/ zaa ye/ khchimbilila. ‘He does not have the strength with which to run.’

Wo/ wanakhsula ki’ichimbilila. ‘They were willing to run away [for themselves] -- i.e. retreat from the fight.’

kh-chimbiloowa v. be run away from Apo/ inakhchimbiloowa. ‘People are running away from there.’

kh-chimbilachimbila v. redup.

Hamadi/ huchimbilachimbila waantu/ hutiya kulombowa chiintu.

[H!H!H]] ‘Hamadi runs away from people, he is afraid to be begged for something (i.e. he runs away from people in order to avoid having them ask him to give them something).’

kh-chimbilika v. p/s.

Omari/ chiwonoowa/ ba/ nakhchimbilika. Omari, whenever he is seen, he is running away.’

kh-chiimbiza v. caus. (i) send away, outcast s.o.; (ii) drive fast

(i) Baaba/ ka shana/ kumwelela chiingi/ mchimbize mwaana. ‘Father, overcome by anger, sent away the boy.'

Chihada/ mi/ skhaadiri/ khkoða wanaafakhi/ na shkoða lila/ waawe/takunchiimbiza. 'He said: I cannot tell a lie, and if I tell the truth, my father will send me away.'

Maama/ chimwambila mubliwe/ waana/ ni waanawo/ siwachiimbizé. 'Mother said to her husband: the children are your children, do not send them away.'

Mchimbiize/ ka mataando. 'He sent him away with insults.'

Wanchiimbizze/ ka mataando. 'They sent me away with insults.'

kh-chimbizachiimbiza v. redup.

Omari/ kaake/ siwo/ mahaJa ya kolokoowa/ huchimbizachimbiza waant^hu. [H'H'H!H!H] 'Omari's place is not that should be gone to, he drives people away.'

kh-chimbizana v. caus. rec.

Askari/ za sultaani/ wawaye mwanaamke/ mukhta wo/ waweno jisa Hasani/ nakuwa'ublo wa'aduwi/ naawo/ washpata ushujaa'a/ wachiharbisha/ hattá/ ma'aduwi/ wotte/ washchimbizana. 'The soldiers of the sultan, the girl's father, when they saw how Hasani was killing the enemy, they too gained courage and fought until all the enemies ran away.'

kh-chimbizoowa v. caus. pass. (chimbizaa)

Siwo/ suura/ khchimbizoowa/ muunt^hu. 'It is not good to send someone away, throw someone away.'

Waana/ wachimbiza ka skuliini. 'Children were sent away from the school.'

rel. nom.

m-chiimbizi (wa-) n. 1/2 a runaway, fugitive, escapee

Hattá/ nk^hawa mchiimbizi... 'Even if I were a fugitive...'

Walá/ mchiimbizi/ nakhchiimbiló... 'neither (am I) a fugitive who is running away...'

ma-chiimbilo n. 6 running

Waziiri/ ka machiimbilo/ chiya. 'The minister came running.'

m-chimbizoowa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who is driven away

Mchimbizowa ka waant^hu/ hendra kaawo/ mchimbizowa kaawo/ heendrapi. 'One who is driven away from a foreign land (lit. from people), goes home; one who is driven away from home, where does he go?' (A proverb.)

chimento

n. 9 cement

Husheroowa/ kana chimento. 'It is as slippery as cement.'

ijuniya ya chimento 'a bag of cement'

nasha/ kana/ chimento 'as smooth as cement'

Lkuta ili/ lbishila buraashi/ ltakasiiza/ inasha/ kana/ chimento. 'This wall has been brushed and filled in, it is smooth like cement.'

chimya

adv. [Sw. kimya SSED 198] silently, quietly; [pron. chimya]

Jisa aadaye/ mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ waliko cholokooni/ ka darbiniye/ kulanga/ zinakhtulukó/ laakini/ yaa ye/ huwonó/ hamwambili muunt^hu/ ye/ hukalaant^ha/ chimya/ imamaJiilé/ tu. 'As was her custom, the daughter of the sultan was at the window with her binoculars watching what was happening, but what she sees, she tells no one. She sits there silently, just keeping quiet.'

Wakaleent^he/ chimya. 'They sat down quietly, silently.'

china

invar. a word which is always connected to a person name and implies a plural, people who can be differently related to the main subject: they may be relatives, friends, colleagues, fellow travelers; for example, to say China Ali/ wa'ile. implies that Ali and some unspecified group of people came, Ali did not come alone

China Hasani/ na majeshi yaawó/ naank^hó/ wachishiindra. ‘Hasani and the others and their armies again won [the battle].’

China Madimaamu/ wapisile apa. ‘Madimaamu (aggrandized) passed this way.’ or: ‘Madimaamu and his group passed this way.’

Ishfanyowaa zijo/ ka china Mahmuudi wa Sheekh Huseeni. ‘Zijo wa prepared at the house of Mahmuud [son] of Sheikh Husein.’ (Syn. The initial verb in this example is an impersonal passive. The noun zijo phrases with this verb, as can be seen by the lengthening of the final vowel of the verb.)

Na mbuzi iyó/ wachileetó/ ni china Mahmuudi/ wa Sheekh Huseeni/ Raa Tahaara. ‘And this goat, those who brought it were the family of Mahmuudi, [the son] of Sheikh Huseeni.’ (Phon. Although in principle, Sheekh(i) and Raa have long vowels, in the pronunciation of this sentence they are grouped with the following name and it is a bit unclear whether the vowel length is retained or not.) wanaawake ni wanne china Mwaana [st.] ‘there were four daughters [born to] Lady [Khadija]’

Want^hu wiingi/ wa’iló/ hatá/ china Madimaamu/ wa’ile. ‘Many people came, even Madimaamu came.’ (Gram. It should be noted that china Madimaamu requires plural agreement on the verb: wa’ile.)

chiino

n.

kudirka chiino ‘to hurry to claim righteousness (i.e. to claim to be in the right in some matter)’

Ndiyé/ hangamizo waant^hú/ naank^hó/ hudirko chiinó. ‘He is the one who does harm to people, but he is the one who goes claiming he is the righteous one (has right on his side).’ (A proverb.)

chiq

ideo.

Muskitiini/ sala yaa jima/ iyeeja/ chiq!/ mahaJa ya khsimamoowa/ itozeJa. ‘At mosque, Friday praying was full chiq! There was no place to stand (lit. place of being stood was lacking).’

Chisima cha Abuudi

n. this is one of two twin wells located in an open area in the Baghdaadi quarter of Brava (These public wells were still in use at least until 1990. Its name comes from its builder, Abuud Musaa’ad (who also built the Resident’s House).

Chisima cha Polepole

n. A well with an upper structure like that of a windmill (with vanes). It was located just west of Spartiwooni (the soccer field). Pole-Pole was the nickname of a colorful character: an African of unknown origin who lived in Brava (perhaps he came with the British troops during the second World War). On some days Pole-Pole decked himself with feathers and other African ornaments and performed dances in the street. It is not known why this well is associated with his name.

chiJa

n. consideration, value (in the eyes of others)

Maskiini/ nt^haná/ chiJa. ‘A poor man has no value (does not command respect).’

Nayoo chiJa/ ka sarkaali. ‘He is highly considered by the government.’

chiza

negative auxiliary verb

Ali/ ambila chiza kooloka. ‘Ali was told not to go.’

Chiwa’ambila chiza kumdaara. ‘He told them not to touch him.’

Chiza kundreetela/ nyunyi/ kama uyu/ nt^hakhujiinda. ‘If you do not bring me a bird like this one I will slaughter you.’

Humkinaayi/ muunt^hu/ kuwanayo mp^huundra/ chiza mpaandrá. ‘Is it possible for a man to have a donkey and not ride him?’

kuwa chiza khsuula ‘to be reluctant (lit. to not be wanting to do)’

Na chiza khaadira/ kuruuda/ ba'ada ya skuu saba... 'And if he is not able to return after seven days...'

Teena/ nakhuloomba/ we/ chiza kunshikila sh̄tana. 'Then I beg you not to get angry at me.'

chiiza

otherwise; [pron. chiizá]

chiiza muḷooni wote wiinu n̄hakuuḷo [st.] 'otherwise in the fire (of hell) (it is all of you) who will be crying'

Chiizá/ waawé/ nakuya kubḷoowa/ naa zita. 'Otherwise (if we do not solve the problem) my father is going to be killed by war (war will be waged against us).'

Mi/ siná/ ismu/ ya sababu/ chiza kendra Mwiini. 'I do not have any reason not to go to Brava.'

Nt̄haku/ sababu/ si/ chiza kuḷawa masku. 'There is no reason for us not to leave tonight.'

Simḷaté/ yee/ peeke/ chiizá/ takumala chaakuja. 'Do not leave him alone, otherwise he will use up all the food.'

chiizapo

otherwise

Hamiisi/ hiht̄aaja/ kandika zaaydi/ chizapó/ takhpot̄ela im̄tihaani. 'Hamiisi needs to write more, otherwise he will fail the examination.'

cho

it [cl.7]

Chibuuku/ chatushile/ cho. 'The book is torn, it.'

Chimo kaakó/ mkonooni/ ndichó/ chaako. 'What is in your hands is what is yours.' (A proverb.)

Cho/ chanaamp̄haka/ chileele. 'It, the kitten, slept.'

Cho/ chatushile. 'It [cl.7] is torn.'

Cho/ chibuuku/ chatushile. 'It, the book, is torn.' Or: Chibuuku/ cho/ chatushile.

Cho/ chileele. 'It ([cl.7]) slept.'

Cho/ chinyunyi/ chileele. 'It, the little bird, slept.'

Cho/ chisu chaa we/ t̄indil̄iloo namá/ chi-boozeḷa. 'It, the knife that you cut the meat with, has been stolen.'

Cho /chisu chaa we/ uziló/ ubḷiil̄á/ Hamadí. 'It, the knife that you bought, is the (very) one that was used to kill Hamadi.'

Cho/ chisu chaa we/ weenó/ chiboozeḷá. 'It, the knife that you saw, is the (very) one that has been stolen.'

Cho/ shchisoonga/ shchilomba rukhsa/ khkalaant̄h/a/ kharibu ya sul̄taani. 'She (i.e. the old woman, chizeele) moved near and asked for permission to sit near the sultan.'

Cho/ siwo/ kama ḷugha za want̄h u wiingine. 'It (i.e. Chimiini) is not like languages of other people.'

Chuuma/ hubigowa hataa cho/ chimuló. 'Iron is hit when it is hot.' (A proverb.)

Ichi/ siwo/ cho/ chibuukucha. 'This is not it, my book.'

Mi/ nakichuuz/ cho. 'I am selling it.'

Mpele Huseeni/ cho. 'He gave it to Huseeni.'

Mpele Huseeni/ cho/ chibuuku. 'He gave it to Huseeni, a book.'

Muunt̄h u/ hakhaadiri/ ki'itamida/ chiint̄h u/ chaa ye/ n̄h'anaa cho. 'A person cannot rely on something that he does not have.'

Nacho chiint̄h ú/ hula ka peesaze/ na sho kuwanaachó/ haat̄owi/ munt̄h u wa kumpa. 'Someone who has the means buys (e.g. new clothes) with his money; and the one who does not have anything does not fail to find a person to give him (something).'

Omari/ uzilee cho. 'Omari bought it.' Cf. Omari/ uzile/ cho. 'Omari bought it.'

Sul̄taani/ chamura khaadimu/ kh̄tukula ichije chit̄á/ kuruda naacho/ muyiini. 'The sultan ordered a servant to carry that (cow's) head and return with it to town.' (Phon. The final accent in this phrase has not yet been accounted for.)

Wapele waana/ maape/ cho. ‘They gave it (e.g. book) to some children’ review the gloss of this example.,

chukhuu khuu

ideo.

Gari ya Ali/ leelo/ fijiri/ biṭiriya/ ifiile/ yiize/ kondroka/ ishishile chukhuu khuu! ‘Ali’s car this morning, the battery died, it could not start, it kept making the noise chukhuu khuu!’

Gaariya/ leelo/ fijiri/ yiize/ koondroka/ chukhuu khuu!/ baṭiriya/ ḍa’iifu.
‘My car this morning did not start, chukhuu khuu! the battery is weak.’ (The prosodic contrasts found in the ideophone have not been thoroughly studied. In this example, the pitch shape of the ideophonic phrase seems to be [chuquu quúk].)

chunguliya

n. 9 heartburn

Chunguliya/ inakumbereerisha. ‘Heartburn is disturbing me.’
Dawa ya chunguliya/ ni iziwa. ‘The medicine for heartburn is milk.’
Mi/naayó/ chunguliyá. ‘I have heartburn.’

chuunvi

?

D

ku-da’a

v. [Sw. dai SED 67; Ar. da’ā "to claim, to assume unduly or presumptuously" W 282-3] (da’iile) claim, boast

Mi/ sida’i/ kiwa jawaabu. ‘I do not claim to know the answer.’

Muke oyo/ chimwaambila/ laala/ apa/ hattá/ fijiri/ choondroka/ endá/ da’a chitaa cho/ ka ujé/ mnaadisha. ‘That woman said to him: sleep here until morning, when you wake up, go and claim your (cow’s) head from that auctioneer.’

Mvileeni/ munt^hu uyu/ nakuda’o kuwaa muti/ mbaaké. ‘Call the man who claims that the tree is his.’

Nt^hakuda’a/ usultaani. ‘He did not claim the sultanhip.’

Nuuru/ da’iile/ kuwa mwaana/ na’iwa/ jawaabu. ‘Nuuru claims that the boy knows the answer.’

Omari/ nakuda’a kuwa nuumba/ndaaké. ‘Omari is claiming that the house is his.’

rel

ku-da’aada’a v. redup.

Hamadi/ huda’ada’a kuwaa ye/ nayo maali. [H!H!H] ‘Hamadi claims that he is wealthy (lit. has wealth).’

ku-da’oowa v. pass. (da’iila) be boasted ku-da’owada’oowa v. pass. redup.

Kuda’owada’oowa/ siwo/ unasabu/ ni ubooni. [H’H!H!H] ‘To boast is not behavior associated with the upper class of people, it is the behavior of the lower class.’ (We are dealing with a clearly biclausal structure here, where the second clause is in contrast to the first clause. The single accented syllable in the second clause seems to range in pitch from being similar in level to the final accented syllable in the first clause to being somewhat declinated. A clear pause separates the two clauses.)

rel. nom.

ma-da’o n. 6 boast(ing), bragging

Wachimfungula/ wachimwaambila/ we/ mzimawo/ mada’o/ tu/ hadile kuwa bakaylé/ hakhushiindri/ mbona/ khadirileeyi/khufungafunga. ‘They untied him and they said to him: you, your whole, is just boasting/ you said that Hare was not able to defeat you, how did he manage to tie you up and down?’

- daa'adi n. honest, sincere Ukaso wa Hamadi/ mkasizo Omari/ nt^ha'uwaaliko/ ukaso/ wa daa'adi. 'The listening of Hamadi with which he listened to Omari was not an honest listening.'
Wo/ wasulile konyeesha/ jisaa wo/ wawaliko daa'adi/ tarafu ya kumdafi'a sindakó. 'They wanted to show how serious they were about protecting the mayor.'
- Da'(a)faraadi n. one of the five clans comprising the Tunni
- da'asi n. 9/10 [Som. dacas DSI 123] rubber-soled shoe, thong sandal Ali/ da'asi/ im^hindiki^hliile. 'Ali's rubber-soled sandals tore on him.'
chilatu cha da'asi 'flip-flop' da'asi iyi 'this shoe' (cf. da'asi izi 'these shoes')
- Nuuru/ vete da'asi/ zatushiló. 'Nuuru wore rubber-soled sandals that were torn.'
- ku-da'awaṭa v. [Som. dacwad DSI 124 and Ar. da'wā W 283] (da'aweete) complain, sue, bring a suit to court, protest Ali/ da'aweete. 'Ali complained.'
ba'ada ya isa/ waant^hu/ wachiya kumda'awaṭa mwaanawo 'after now, if people come to complain about your child' Skhaadiri/ khkooḏa/ walá/ kuda'awaṭá. 'I cannot speak nor complain.'
Ye/ waliko hayi/ nt^hashkukhaadira/ kumda'awaṭa/ walá/ kumbigá/ naayé/ hayí. '(When) he was alive, we were not able to bring a suit against him nor beat him while he was alive.'
- rel.
ku-da'awaṭada'awaṭa v. redup.
Omari/ hupeenda/ kuda'awaṭada'awaṭa waant^hu/ haṭá/ ka jawabu chihaba. [H^hH^hH^hH^h] 'Omari likes to sue people, even if it is for a small thing.'
- ku-da'awaṭana v. rec. (-da'awaṭeene)
Laazima/ si/ keendra/ muuyi/ wa qariibu/ kuda'awaṭana. 'It is necessary for us to go to the nearest town to sue one another (i.e. settle our differences).'
- ku-da'awaṭika v. p/s.
ku-da'awaṭila v. appl. (da'awaṭiliile) sue for, complain for ku-da'awaṭisha v. caus. (da'awishiize) complain, raise grievances (but apparently not used in the sense of sue) Nuuru/ da'awishize ka sarkaali. 'Nuuru brought a grievance to the government.'
Ye/ kiḷasku/ nakuda'awisha kuwaa kuja/ ni haba. 'He is always complaining that the food is little.'
- ku-da'awishana v. caus. rec.
ku-da'awishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-da'awaṭishiliza v. caus. appl. (da'awishiliize) raise grievances for ku-da'awaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
ku-da'awaṭoowa v. pass.
Ichiwa kuda'awaṭoowa/ da'aṭoowaa we. 'If it is to be sued, let you be the one sued.'
- ku-da'awaṭowada'awaṭoowa v. pass. redupl.
Muunt^hu/ huda'awaṭowada'awaṭowa ka wiingi/ siwo/ suura/ akhliye/ hufungoowa. [H^hH^hH^hH^h] 'For someone to be constantly have a lawsuit brought against them is not good, sometimes he can be imprisoned.' (Although the initial pitch of the second clause is not simply reset to the level of the last accented syllable preceding it, it is not as high as the initial pitch of the first clause.)
- daa'ima adv. [Sw. daima SSED 68; Ar. dā'im "enduring" W 303] always, for eternity; [pron.

dáa'ima (Note that this word seems to be a rare lexical exception to the principle that the accent is always either penult, the default case, or final. This word has accent on the initial syllable.)

Awa/ wachiwa teena/ dáa'ima/ wanamtunzaa mp^haka. 'These ones [the rats] began then to always watch the cats.'

Ayo/ ni kama maali/ ya muunt^hu/ humpo maamayé/ khpatila raaðiyé/ laakini/ dáa'ima/ ye/ haṭakiiwa/ kuwa maamaye/ ni raaði/ naaye/ ye/ takumera kumriðisha ka kumpa maali/ miingine/ na zint^hu ziinginé. 'That [money which was spent on paying debts] is like money that a man gives to his mother to earn her approval, but he never will know that his mother is pleased with him; he will be seeking to please her by giving her more money and other things.'

Baaba/ kumwona mwaanawe/ dáa'ima/ umo mikooni/ kharibu yaa wake/ imkirihishiize/ nt^ho. 'For father to see his son always in the kitchen near the women displeased him very much.'

Dáa'ima/ humkasa/ laakini/ simwoni. 'I always hear him, but I do not see him.' (A riddle, the answer to which is lpepo, the wind.)

Naayé/ majiibuye/ dáa'ima/ yachiwa/ la/ niko yaayá/ tu. 'And him, his answer was always: No, I am still just as I was.'

Wa'ishize dáa'ima/ pamooyi. 'They lived together always.'

Wazelewa/ daa'imu/ wachinambila liila. 'My parents always used to tell me the truth.'

ya nafsi daa'ima sala na soomu/ chiiza qiyaama niingi yaako loomu [st.] 'oh mortals, (make it) continuous praying and fasting, otherwise in the life hereafter your blame (will be) much'

Ye/ dáa'ima/ shkalant^ha ilu yaa muti/ uwaalikó/ kharibu naa wowí. 'He always stayed at the top of the tree, which was near the river.'

ku-daa'ima

v. [Ar. dāma "to last" and dā'im "enduring" W 303] (da'imile) continue uninterrupted, forever fooza nda muuntu husaḷo hudaa'imo/ na ramaðaani soomuye hu^laa^zimo [st.] 'success belongs to the man who prays continuously and fasts on Ramadhan (lit. Ramadhan, its fasting, obliges)' ntaku kudaa'ima kuṭa ku'insha [st.] 'there is not eternity, no living forever'

Suufi/ da'imile kinendra ndilaani/ kanaa tupu. 'Suufi kept on walking in the streets naked.'

rel.

ku-da'imisha v. caus. perpetuate something chida'imisha haṭa miisho afðali [st.] 'if one continues [praying without having stated the intention to pray], it is better to [to state the intention] even at the end'

daa'imu

adv. always, usually

Daa'imu/ Hamiisi/ husooma/ nt^hasa yaa ye/ kendra khṭeza mpiira. 'Usually, Hamiisi studies before going to play football.' (It is possible to replace daa'imu in this sentence with ka wiingi.)

Daa'imu/ yiko khaṭari/ mukhṭaa we/ nakurasho ndilaa mp^hiyá. 'There is always some danger when you follow a new path.'

Hamadi/ daa'imu/ huna biira/ so. [HHHH] 'Does Hamadi always drink beer?'

hukasa huwona hukooða daa'imu [st.] '[God] hears, sees, speaks eternally'

Ka khisani/ Osmaani/ daa'imu/ hurago kuuyá? 'Why does Osmaani always come late?' Compare the corresponding statement: Osmaani/ daa'imu/ huraaga/ kuuya. 'Osmaani always comes late.' (Note that in the statement, the verb 'delay' is ordinarily phased separately from 'come'; in the question, the two are phrased together.)

Ye/ daa'imu/ humpa salaamu/ kana mweenzawe/ nt^ho. 'She always greets me as if I were her best friend.'

- da'wa n. 9/10 [Sw. daawa SSED 67; Ar.; Som.] lawsuit; complaint variant form: da'awa
Nini/ da'awa yiinu. 'What is your (pl.) complaint?'
We/ nt^huná/ da'awa. 'You have no case.'
Ye/ mzimawe/ da'awa. 'He is all complaints.'
- daaba n. 9/10 [Ar. dābba W 270] animal Buraaqi sifaze ni daaba afḍali [st.] 'the description of Buraaqi is just a good animal' daba uyu/ iyi 'this animal' (cf. daba izi 'these animals') Hayawaani/ na daba zinginezé/ hazi'amilaṭanoowi/ naazo/ sawa sawa. '[Domestic] animals and other animals as well are not treated equally [in Islam].'
- dabaali n. [Som. dabbaal DSI 121] idiot variant form: idabaali
need to check the "I" of this word
- dabeele n. [Som. dabayl "wind"] polio; [pron. dabeele]
Maraḍi/ ya daabeele/ mfanya mwaana/ ziwete. [HH'H!H] 'The sickness of polio makes a child crippled.' (In this example, there was neither declination nor downstep between the first two phrases; in fact, the second phrase was somewhat raised above the first, but not radically so – hence the absence of the upstep symbol [↑].)
Maraḍi ya daabeele/ yanakumeeró/ sku mbili izi. [H!H!H] 'The disease of polio is going around nowadays.'^a
- dabwaani n. 9/10 [Sw. debwani "(1) a kind of loin cloth; (2) also a turban cloth -- an Indian cloth, mostly of silk, with red or brown stripes, and worn on the head as a turban" SSED 71; ?Pers.] a special kind of cloth worn by women dabwaaniye 'the cloth' (cf. dabwaanize 'her cloth (pl.)')
- daada n. [cf. Sw. dada "(1) sister, esp. elder sister; grandmother; (2) a term of endearment, respect, or familiarity among women"] (my) grandmother; [pron. daadá] Daadá/ fungula/ mi/ nakhsuḷa khkoḍa naawé. 'Grandmother, open the door, I want to speak with you.'
Daadá/ nt^humilile hiilá. 'My grandmother, I used tricks [to do s.t.].'
Daadá/ tumbile mashkilo. 'My grandmother pierced her ears.' (But notice that if daada is used with a penult accent, which is possible in a non-vocative situation, the meaning is different: Daada/ tumbile mashkilo. 'Grandmother pierced (my) ears.')
- daadaye 'his or her grandmother' dada yiitu 'our grandmother', dada yiinu 'your (pl.) grandmother', dada yaawo 'their grandmother' daadó 'your grandmother'
Mi/ hukuumbuka/ mukhta mi/ mbaliko chihaba/ daadá/ chinaambila/ ja/ yeza miimbayo/ chiiza/ want^hu wa masku/ waṭakhuyeza miimba/ majiwe. 'I remember when I was little, my grandmother used to tell me: eat, fill your stomach, otherwise the people of the night will fill your stomach with stones.'
- daada n. 9/10 [Ital. dado] ball-bearing; nut
- Daada Masiita n.
Makhabriini/ ka Dada Maasiti/ huzikowa mashariifu/ tu.
'Only mashariifu are buried in the graveyard of Dada Maasiti.'
- ku-daḍaalata v. [Som. dadaal DSI 124] (daḍaleete) strive to do one's best, struggle Chooloka/ chidaḍaalata. 'He went and did his best.'

Daðalaṭa khpita imṭihaani. ‘Try hard to pass the examination.’
Dobla ya Aldo/ Moor/ inakudaðalaṭa/ khfanyiliza/ dawa/ na kiyookola/ iqtisaadi/ ya muuyi. ‘The government of Aldo Moro is trying its best to cure and to save the economy of the country.’
Hasani/ daðaleete/ ruuhu/ imkuushile. ‘Hasani has put in so much effort that the soul has left/ gone from him.’ (Similar to English: ‘Hasani has put heart and soul into it.’) Hudaðalaṭó/ huliwaana. ‘Who works hard succeeds.’ (A proverbial saying.) Sidaðalaṭeeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t try hard!’
Takudaðalaṭa/ khufanyiliza yaa ye/ takhaaḍiró. ‘She will do her best to do for you whatever she is able to do.’
Ye/ daðaleete/ karka maṭezo. ‘He tried his best in games.’

rel.

ku-daðalaṭika v. p/s.

ku-daðalaṭila v. appl. (daðalaṭiliile)

Hi’idaðalaṭila ki’ishiliza jisa suura. ‘They try to live in a nice way.’ (Syn. Observe the use of an applied verb with a reflexive object in both the main clause and the infinitive complement.)

ku-daðalaṭisha v. caus.

ku-daðalaṭishana v. caus. rec.

ku-daðalaṭishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-daðalaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

daðali

n. 9/10 effort

Daðaliye/ yiize/ kiinfa. ‘His effort was not sufficient.’
ka daðali ‘with effort’

Nch^hifanya kaazi/ ka daðali. ‘I used to work hard.’

khfanya daðali ‘to try hard, be diligent’

Muke/ uyu/ chingila daðali/ ya kumeera/ ndrevu/ zaa mp^hisi. ‘This woman began to make an effort to look for the beard [lit. beards] of a hyena.’

mwenye daðali ‘diligent’

Ye/ ni munt^hu mwenye daðali. ‘He is a diligent man.’

Someele/ ka juhudi/ na daðali/ masku/ na muunt^hi. ‘He studied with effort and trying hard night and day.’

daf

ideo. of snatching (Our data on ideophones is not sufficiently extensive to allow an analysis of the pitch pattern. It appears that daf! is realized with an extra high pitch.)

Idafa/ imdafkile mwaank^huku/ daf!/ yulushile naaye. ‘The black hawk snatched the chick and flew away with it.’

Mwiizi/ mdafkile iboorsa/ Umi/ daf!/ fakete naayo. ‘A thief snatched Umi’s purse and ran away with it.’

Wiizi/ wamdafkile mwaana/ peesa/ daf!/ wafakete naazo. ‘Thieves snatched money from the child, daf!, and ran away with it.’

dafa
of prey

n. [Som. dafo "medium-sized bird of prey" DSI 125] kite, hawk, medium-sized bird

Apo/ zamaani/ sultani waa dafa/ ondroshele/ mpelekelele/ sultani wa karaayle/ khati/ mwambiile/ kuwaa ye/ nakhsuula/ makaraayle/ na sultani waawó/ kumwelela askarize. ‘Once upon a time the king of the kites sent a letter to the king of the crows telling him that he wanted the crows and their king to be his soldiers.’ (This sentence illustrates the semantically empty, auxiliary-like use of the verb koondroka.)

dafa uyu or dafa iyi ‘this kite’ (cf. dafa izi ‘these kites’) ndiwa/ chimwambilaa dafa... ‘the pigeon told the kite...’

rel.

chi-dafa (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-dafa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

Humeera/ kana/ idafa. ‘He wanders around like a crow (i.e. he just wanders about, going here and there, aimlessly).’

daf'a

n. an instant

Laakini/ hastakhtomoloowa/ daf'a mooyi. ‘But it (the money) will not be given in one instant.’

ku-daaifi'a

v. [Ar. dafa'ū "to push away, to defend" W 285] (dafi'iile) defend; variant form:

kudifaa'a [cf. Ar. noun difā' "protection, defense" W 286; cf. Som. difaac, variant of daafac "to defend" DSI 115]

Ali/ bishiila rasaasi/ li'ajli/ ya kumdafi'a mkuélé/ Abú. ‘Ali was hit with a bullet for the reason of protecting his brother Abu.’

Basi/ sultaani/ shkhubala/ na shtomola amri/ manwari/ nt'atu/ zinawaraashe/ kuwadaafi'a/ kama aduwi mweepe/ chiwata'araðila. ‘So the sultan agreed and issued an order for three warships to escort them to defend them if any enemy should come on their way.’

Ka sababu iyo/ kulla mgaandra/ mubli/ naa muké/ mwaana/ na munt'u mzimá/ ni laazima/ kubarata khtumila bundukhu/ ili/ kudaafi'a/ wañaniye. ‘For that reason, each Ugandan, man and woman, child and adult, must learn to use a rifle in order to defend his country.’

Omari/ nayo ilmu/ ya kudafi'a ruuhuye. ‘Omari is quite competent at defending himself.’

rel.

ku-dafi'ana v. rec.

ku-dafi'ila v. appl.

Muunt'u/ chaake/ hudafi'ila ruuhuye. ‘One uses (everything that is his) to defend himself (e.g. his wealth, his friends, whatever he can use as leverage).’ (A proverb.)

rel. nom.

m-daaifi'a (wa-) n. 1/2 defender

ku-dafira

v. [Ar. dafara W 285] (dafiriile) push, shove, push aside; cheat

rel. nom.

m-dafiro n. 3

u-dafiro n. 14

ku-dafkula

v. [?Som. daf "take away s.t. from s.o. by force" DSI 125 + Chimwiini -kuula, which has a similar meaning] (dafkiile) grab and run, snatch quickly from someone as one runs by Ali/ mdafkile mwaana. ‘Ali snatched up the child (and ran away).’

Chiwona/ naambila/ chiiko/ lpandre gani/ mi/ nt^hakhpita/ lpandre ilo/ na shpitá/ we/ chidafkula/ chijumba icho. ‘If you see it, tell me on which side it is located, and I will pass by that side, and when I pass, you snatch that nest.’

Nakuława keendra/ kumdafkula/ chimbiga ka lpaanga/ chimbigó. ‘As [the snake] was getting out to grab her [what he thought was a girl], the boy struck him with a sword, that's what he did.’

Omari/ dafkile chibuuku. ‘Omari snatched the book.’

Omari/ dafkile chibuuku/ ka Nuuru. ‘Omari snatched the book from Nuuru's place.’ (The use of the ka preposition precludes the possibility that the book was actually snatched from Ji personally. This notion is conveyed by a sentence where the noun phrase is not preceded by ka. See below.)

Omari/ mdafkile Hamadi/ chibuuku. ‘Omari snatched the book from Hamadi (and ran off).’

rel.

- ku-dafkuoowa* v. pass.
Chibuku chidafkiła Omari/ chibeele. ‘The book that was snatched from Omari is lost.’
Omari/ dafkiła chibuuku/ na Ali. ‘Omari had a book snatched from him by Ali.’ (Syn. In this structure, it is not possible for chibuuku to be the subject of the passive verb, only Omari can occur in this role. This differs from relative structures, where chibuuku may be the head of the relative verb while also functioning as the subject of the passive verb, as seen in the preceding example.)
- ku-dafkulika* v. p/s.
Mwana uyu/ hadafkuliki/ chiint^hu. ‘[Lit.] this child cannot be snatched from things -- i.e. one cannot snatch anything from this child (he is too big, e.g., to be victimized).’
- ku-dafkulisha* v. caus.
Nuuru/ mdafkulishize mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘Nuuru made the child grab and run away with the book.’ (The periphrastic version of this sentence: Nuuru/ mtile mwaana/ kudafkula chibuuku. ‘Nuuru persuaded/ convinced the child to snatch the book.’)
- ku-dafkulishana* v. caus. rec.
ku-dafkulishiliza v. caus. appl.
Nuuru/ mdafkulishilize Ali/ mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘Nuuru caused Ali’s child to grab and run off with the book.’ (The periphrastic version: Nuuru/ mtilile Ali/ mwaana/ kudafkula chibuuku. ‘Nuuru convinced/ persuaded Ali’s child to snatch the book.’)
- ku-dafkulishilizanya* v. caus. appl. rec.
Nuuru/ na Ali/ wadafkulishilizenye waana/ zibuuku. ‘Nuuru and Ali caused one another’s children to grab and run off with the books.’ (The periphrastic version of this sentence: Nuuru/ na Ali/ watililene waana/ kudafkula zibuuku. ‘Nuuru and Ali persuaded/ convinced one another’s children to snatch the books.’)
- dafrawu n. 9/10 [Sw. dafurao "adv. face to face" SSED 68; cf. Ar. dafira "push back" W 285] head-on collision dafrawuye ‘his collision’ kubiga dafrawu ‘to collide head-on’
- daftari (ma-)n. [Sw. daftari SSED 68; Ar. daftar W 285] an account book, an exercise book Maali/ bilaa daftari/ hubaha bilaa khabari. ‘Possessions without an account book get lost without information (about them being preserved).’ (A proverb.)
rel.
chi-daftari (zi-) n. 78 an exercise book
- i-daafu (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. dafu SSED 68] the nearly fully grown coconut, with soft meat of a porridge-like consistency and a good quantity of liquid (it is at this stage that the coconut is used as food); cf. m-baata
idafu ilada ‘fresh coconut’
Mtala mbaata/ hupata idaafu. ‘The one who chooses a fully ripe coconut, gets a half-ripe one.’ (A proverb that conveys the idea that if you go after the best, you will get something less.)
- i-daafu (ma-?) n. large and heavy golden or silver chain
- daga n. 9 [Ar. daqqa "beaten meat": W 287, Hadrami pron. dagga] ground beef cooked with vegetables, potatoes, etc.
Daga/ ka maandra/ ni lada. ‘Daga with bread is delicious.’
khpikaa daga ‘to cook daga’ Omari/ fijiri/ huja maandra/ kaa daga. ‘In the morning Omari eats bread with daga.’
- dagaala n. [Som. dega la’] deaf person; [pron. dagaala] (An intervocalic g in Somali is realized as a velar fricative, a pronunciation which is retained when Somali words of this structure are borrowed into Chimiini. This fricative g contrasts then with a stop g which occurs intervocalically in words derived from other sources.)

Hamadi/ hufanya want^hu/ dagaala. ‘(Lit.) Hamadi makes people deaf – i.e. Hamadi does not listen to people.’

Hamadi/ ni dagaala/ haakasi/ jisa suura. ‘Hamadi is deaf, he does not hear well.’

Muke/ chivanayo miimba/ chija inyi/ maana/ huwa dagaala. ‘If a woman is pregnant, if she eats liver, the baby will be deaf.’ (A superstition among the want^hu wa Miini.)

Omari/ mlazile mwaana/ dagaala. ‘Omari, a deaf baby (lit. has come out from him) – i.e Omari has had a deaf baby born to him.’

rel.

i-dagaala n. aug. [pron. idagaala]

Haakasi/ kana idagaala. ‘He does not hear, he is like a deaf person.’

ku-dagaala

v. [Som. dagaal "to fight, to quarrel, to reproach" DSI 125] (dageele) blame someone; ask, wonder why someone hasn't been seen recently; [pron. kudagaala]

Hamadi/ mkali/ kudagala want^hu. ‘Hamadi is good at blaming people.’

kumdagaala ‘to blame him’

Nakhudagaala. ‘He is asking about you (because of your absence).’

Omari/ nakumdagala Ali/ ka jawabu izo. ‘Omari is blaming Ali for those things.’

Sultani ðaalimu/ mwenopo mgarwá/ chonyesha kuwaa ye/ humpeendá/ chanza kumdagaala/ chimwaambila/ ni suura/ so/ zaa we/ fanyiizó/ hattá/ waraadi/ nt^hukunaambila. ‘When the unjust sultan saw the fisherman, he showed that he loved him, beginning to reproach him, saying: is it nice what you did? not even a goodbye you did not tell me.’

rel.

ku-dagaaloowa v. pass.

Kudagalowa muunt^hu/ bilaa sababu/ siwo/ suura. ‘Blaming someone for something without a reason is not good.’

dagaali

n. complaining because one does not see or get a letter etc. from a friend, e.g.; [pron. dagaali]

dahani

n. character

Dahaniye/ kana ijiniile. ‘His character is like that of a mad man.’

dah(a)ri

n. 9 [Ar. dahr "changes of fortune, adversities" W 295] mishap, misfortune Mwajiitu/ nakhonya dahari. ‘May God bring you [lit. show you] misfortune!’

Mwonyeze dahari. ‘He brought him misfortune.’

Omari/ ni dahari. ‘Omari is a difficult, bad person.’

ku-daharisha

v.

Izra’iili [...] humlata daharishiilo chiliini / humtala muunt^hu jadiidi samiini [st.] ‘Izra’il [the angel of death] leaves the one who is sick in bed [and] takes a young, stout person’

dahsha

n. [Ar. dahaš "surprise, consternation" W 296] intense amazement, bewilderment (Our example for this word comes from a text; our present consultant, GM, recognizes the word from Arabic but does not use the word in Chimiini.)

sultaani/ wawenopo wamo karka dahshá ‘when the sultan looked and found them in such amazement’ dajaali (ma-)

n. [Ar. dajjal W 272] a creature who it is said will come to the world at the endtimes (This gloss was provided by GM. MI provided the gloss “imposter, cheater”, but we do not have an example to confirm this usage.)

Mojiitu/ sichiweeke/ wakhti wa madajaali/ watakuuyó. ‘We pray God to not let us be/stay/live at the time of the coming of the dajaali.’

chi-daka (zi-)	n. 7/8 [Sw. daka or kidaka "recess, receptacle, niche in a wall, cupboard" SSED 69] a niche in a wall used as a shelf, e.g. to keep medicine on so as to be out of the reach of children
chi-daka (zi-)	n. 7/8 the young nut of the coconut
dakan	ideo. of being totally destroyed, annihilated Ma⁷askari/ wa Shabaabu/ wamaliiza/ dakan dakan. 'The Shabaab soldiers have been annihilated.' Numba/ ya Hamadi/ ipiile/ dakan dakan. 'Hamadi's house burned down totally.' Numba (y)a Hamadi/ itumbushile/ dakan dakan. 'Hamadi's house broke down completely.'
dakari	n. penis
dakha	n. minute Kawa mbarakhá/ ziiú/ zaliko niðaaámó/ si/ su₁ kuwa chivuushilé/ ka dakha mooyi. 'If our documents had been in order we would have gone in a minute (i.e. immediately).' Mi/ skuwanaayo/ shaka/ ha⁷á/ dakha mooyi/ kuwaa si/ laazimu/ khpata fa⁷uraa mp^hiya. 'I never doubted for a single minute that we must get a new car.'
ku-daakha (of humans)	v. [Som. daaq DSI 116] (dakhiile) graze, feed on grass (of an animal), look for food Ngamiila/ schiwaamo/ safiriini/ hudaakha/ ka maha₁ mbilize/ naa zo/ zinakeendró. 'When camels travel, they graze on both sides while they are walking.' Ngamiilaye/ ichidaakha/ ka lpandre lmooyi/ tu. 'His camel was grazing on just one side.' Ngoombe/ zinakudakha maanyi. 'The cows are grazing on grass.' Nk^huku/ zinakudaakha. 'The hens are feeding.' Sku mooyi/ eelo/ malizopo kudaakhá... 'One day when the gazelle finished grazing...' rel. ku-dakhadaakha v. freq. Sku mooyi/ fijiri/ na mapeema/ sungura/ mooyi/ karkaa yé/ nadaxodaakhó/ mwene mp^uundra/ mkulu/ maluungo/ yanamwala/ ka ma⁷uuri/ na unené. 'One day early in the morning a rabbit, while he was grazing, saw the large donkey, his body shining from fatness and fatness.' ku-daakhika v. p/s. ku-daakhisha v. caus. (dakhishiize) (i) graze (animals); (ii) keep surveillance on s.o. secretly (i) Tunne/ hukalo maduuri/ ya Mwiini/ wingi waawo/ hudaakhisha/ hoola. 'Tunne, who lives in the bush around Brava, most of them graze animals.' ku-dakhishana v. caus. rec. ku-dakhishika v. caus. p/s. ku-dakhishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-dakhishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. ku-dakhoowa v. pass. Manyi/ yanakudakhoowa. 'Grass is being grazed on.' rel. nom. m-daakhisha (wa-) n. 1/2 (i) shepherd; (ii) one who keeps surveillance on s.o. ma-daakhisho n. 6 u-daakhisho n. 14

ma-daakho n. 6
u-daakho n. 14

ku-dakhilana
with one another

v. rec. [Ar. dakala “enter, join, take part” W 273] (dakhileene) associate with, deal

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kudakhilana na want^hu wawovu. ‘It is not good for one to associate with bad people.’

Nuuru/ hadiile/ mi/ sidakhilani/ na Huseeni/ sababu/ ni khaa’ini. ‘Nuuru said I do not associate with Huseeni because he is a cheater.’

rel. nom.

u-dakhilano n. 14

dakhiliya

n.

Iyi/ ni shu’uuni/ dakhiliya ‘this is an internal matter’

dakhli

n. 9/10 [Ar. dakl W 273] income

dakhliye ‘his income’

Dakhliye/ ni haba. ‘His income is little.’

Mi/ dakhli niingi/ hupata ka bakhaariya/ ya suukari. ‘I get a lot of income from my sugar store.’

N^hana/ dakhli. ‘He has no income.’

Omari/ dakhliye/ ni niingi/ kolko/ ya Nuuru. ‘Omari’s income is more than Nuuru’s.’

Sina/ ismu ya dakhli. ‘I have no income whatsoever.’

dakhtari (Ø, ma-)

n. 1/2, 9/6 [Sw. daktari SSED 69; Eng.] doctor, physician

Dakhtari oyo/ siwo/ msuura. ‘That doctor [cl.1] is not good.’

dakhtari uyu ‘this doctor’ ([cl.1] agreement) (cf. dakhtari awa or madakhtari awa or madakhtara aya ‘these doctors’) dakhtari yiitu or dakhtari wiitu ‘our doctor’ ([cl.9] and [cl.1] agreement) dakhtariya or dakhtariwa ‘my doctor’ ([cl. 9] or [cl.1] agreement)

Fardoosa/ koðele na dakhtari. [H!H] ‘Fardoosa talked to the doctor.’

madakhtari matatu or madakhtari watatu ‘three doctors’ ([cl.6] or [cl.2] agreement)

Madakhtari/ ni wiingi/ wa’enzelo kumfanyilizaa dawá/ mwana oyó/ laakini/ nt^haku/ mo/ khadiriió/ kumfanyilizaa dawá/ na waant^hú/ ni wiingi/ wafilo jis’iyó. ‘The doctors were many who came to administer medicine to that child, but there was no one who was able [to cure him] and the people were many who died that way.’

madakhtari wa Miini or madakhtari ya Miini ‘doctors of Brava’ ([cl.2] or [cl.6] agreement)

Madakhtari/ wa’ile. ‘The doctors went.’ Or: Madakhtari ya’ile. ‘The doctors went.’ (The first example exhibits [cl.2] agreement while the second example exhibits [cl.6] agreement.)

Mazá/ oloshale ka dakhtari. ‘Well, have you been to see the doctor?’

Mi/ nakendra ka dakhtari. ‘I am going to the doctor/ the hospital.’

Mubliwa/ Nureeni/ uje dakhtari/ nakhfanya kaazi/ Mkhodiisho. ‘My husband Nureeni, who is a doctor, is working in Mogadishu.’

Nimpeleshele Haaji/ meenzawé/ nt^ho/ ka dakhtari. ‘I took Haaji’s best friend to the hospital’ doctor.’

Nureeni/ mubliwa/ uje dakhtari/ nakhfanya kaazi/ Mkhodiisho. ‘Nureeni my husband, who is a doctor, is working in Mogadishu.’

Sultani wa muuyi/ pozelopó/ mpeenzele/ Hasiibu/ na mfanyiize/ dakhtari/ wa muuyi. ‘The sultan of the town, when he recovered, he loved Hasiibu and made him the doctor of the town.’

Waliko muunt^hu/ mooyi/ dakhtari/ mkulu. ‘There was a man, a great doctor.’

Ye/ ni dakhtari. ‘He is a doctor.’

rel.

chi-dakhtari (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-dakhṭari (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

u-dakhṭari n. 14

Sku mooyi/ chimvīla mukeewe/ chimwaambila/ kumletela chuwo cha udakhṭari. 'One day he called his wife and told her to bring to him his medical books [lit. books of doctoring].'

Da(a)khṭira

n. one of the five clans comprising the Tunni

daḷaali (ma-)

n. [Sw. dalali SSED 69; Ar. dallāl W289, also Som. dallaal DSI 129] auctioneer daḷali uyu 'this auctioneer' (cf. madalaali awa 'these auctioneers')

rel.

u-daḷaali n. 14 [Sw. udalali SSED 69] auctioneering, the profession of being an auctioneer khfanya udalaali 'to do auctioneering'

ku-dalḃata

v. [Som. dalbo "ask s.t. to s.o.; invite; order (e.g. some food); give orders (in battle, military parade); make conventional signs while playing cards" DSI 128] prepare, get ready

Haliima/ dalḃeete/ harusi ya waanawe/ ka kilaa chiintu. 'Haliima got prepared for her children's wedding in every aspect.'

rel.

ku-dalḃatila v. appl. get ready for Muunt'u/ chilaliza waant'u/ laazimu/ kuwadalḃatila. 'If a person invites people, he must get ready for them.'

ku-dalḃalamaṭa

v. talk a lot

kudalḃalamaṭa/ kana raadiyo 'to talk non-stop, like the radio'

Omari/ karka shiri/ dalḃalameete/ hatá/ waant'u/ wadhirifiile/ walazile. 'Omari in the meeting talked too much until people got angry and left.'

rel.

ku-dalḃalamaṭoowa v. pass.

Muunt'u/ shkooḃa/ hukoḃa kooḃi/ haba/ za ma'ana/ hadalḃalamaṭi/ kudalḃalamaṭoowa/ nt'a'ina/ ma'ana. 'When a person speaks, he should talk little, (but) with meaning, he should not talk too much, talking too much has no sense.'

ku-dalḃalata

v. [Som. daldal "to go to and fro carrying several things" DSI 128] (dalḃaleete) take lots of things and carry them, gather and carry things variant form: kudalḃala (dalḃaliile)

Gaari/ zinakudalḃalata mṭaanga/ ṭawala. 'Trucks are carrying sand from the sea.'

Suufi/ hupeenda/ kudalḃalataa kuja. 'Suufi likes to take a lot of food.'

rel.

ku-dalḃalatoowa v. pass.

Apa/ nt'aku/ kuja/ ya kudalḃalatoowa. 'Here there's no food that can be taken in large quantities.'

Bakhariini/ ka Sheekhi/ inakudalḃalatoowa unga/ ka buure. 'At Sheekhi's store, people are carrying away flour without paying for it.'

daaledaale

n. 9/10 [Som. daldal "go to and fro" DSI and Ar. daldala "set into a swinging motion" W 290] swing; play in which a young child is rocked to and fro on the extended legs of an adult (Note that the long vowel in the first syllable of this word violates the general constraint in Chimiini that disallows a long vowel in a pre-antepenult syllable. Retention of length here seems to be due to the reduplicated nature of the word.)

Ali/ mwaanawe/ potele daledaleeni/ vundishile/ mkono. 'Ali's child fell from the swing and broke his arm.'

Omari/ wa'ulile waanawe/ daaledaale/ khtezeza. 'Omari bought for his children a swing to play with.'

daliili dental

n. 9 [Sw. daliti SSED 69; Ar. dalil W 289] proof, evidence make sure both l's are

Daliili yaa nvula/ ni mawiingu. 'The proof of rain is clouds.' (A proverb.) Daliiliye/ nini. 'What is its evidence?'
Mahkama/ ha'ihokomi/ bilaa daliili. 'The court does not rule without evidence.'
Mi/ nayo daliili/ kuwa Omari/ bozele peesa. 'I have proof that Omari stole the money.'
Muusa/ pete daliili/ kuwa Faatima/ koðele wanaafakhi/ tarafu ya mahañaa ye/ waalikó. Muusa found proof that Faatima lied about where she was.
Omari/ hadiile/ Hasani/ we/ kuhada Ali/ ni mwiizi/ ni daliiliye. 'Omari said: Hasani, you are saying Ali is a thief, what is the evidence of that?'
Yiko daliili/ waaðehe/ kuwa Baazi/ shkhiyanseeete. 'There is clear evidence that Baazi betrayed us.'

n-dala

n. [Sw. njaa SSED 339] hunger Huseeni/ file kaa ndala. 'Huseeni died of hunger.' Also: Kaa ndala/ ifiññá. 'From hunger there was dying.' Ndala/ ifiññá. 'Hunger was died from.'
khshikowaa ndala 'to be hungry – [lit. held by hunger]'
Mi/ kachizaa kujá/ isa/ suña khshikowaa ndala. 'If I had not eaten, I would be hungry now.'
Mwaana/ chihada/ kuwaa ye/ shishiñaa ndala. 'The boy said that he was hungry.'
kufa kaa ndala 'to die from hunger' kuwonaa ndala 'to experience hunger'
Muunt^hu/ sho kuwonaa n dala/ na ooní/ haawi/ mubñi. 'If one does not experience hunger and thirst one does not become a man.'
Mi/ naa ndalá. 'I am hungry.'
Mubñi/ ndala/ imshiishile. 'The man felt hungry [lit. hunger gripped the man].'
Muunt^hu/ chiwanayoo ndala/ hañá/ bakhti/ huja. 'When one is hungry, he even eats dead bodies.' (A proverb.)
Muunt^hu/ chiwanayoo ndala/ hañá/ kuboole/ huboola. 'When one is hungry, even stealing, he steals (i.e. he will even steal).' (A proverb.)
Mwaana/ nayoo ndala. 'The baby is hungry.'
Mwaana shishiñaa ndala. 'The baby is hungry'
Mzele uje/ filee ndala. 'That man died of hunger.'
Ndala/ imzidiilopó/ Diini/ ondroshele/ oloshole kumera chaakuja. 'When he became hungry, Diini got up and went to look for food.'
Nnayoo ndalá. 'I am hungry [lit. I have hunger].' (The first person singular subject marker n is missing in GM's speech, but present in MI's speech.)
Nshishiñaa ndalá. 'I am hungry [lit. I am seized by hunger].' (The first person singular subject marker n is missing in GM's speech, but present in MI's speech.)
Waana/ wanakufa kaa ndala/ nt^hangú/ fijiri/ nt^hawaakuja. 'The children are dying from hunger, they have not eaten since morning.'
waana wasibeete ka ooni na ndala [nt.] 'children suffered thirst and hunger'

dalakh

ideo. review the l
Ye/ sheteza/ chimaliza/ potele matotopeeni/ dalakh!/ want^hu wont^he/ wamtsheshele. 'He was playing, and then, he fell into the mud, dalakh!, all the people laughed at him.'

dali

n. [Som. dal 'country, territory' DSI 127] surroundings, environment (in the abstract sense); the land, country, world

Angamizée dali/ mkoroofi/ ye. ‘She spoiled everything [lit. the world], she is cursed.’
Chinakhsuulá/ we/ kishpa muna yitu/ Yuusufu/ si/ kendra naaye/ naayé/ khpata/ khteza/ na kuwonaa dali. ‘We want you to give us our younger brother Yuusufu (so that) we go with him and he gets to play around and see places.’
dali ni dibidi ni^hako sarkaali [nt.] ‘the country is bereft, there is no government’ Hamadi/ lazile ibanyaani/ oloshela kulangalaa dali. ‘Hamadi went outside to look around.’
Haraka/ yaa ye/ fanyiizó/ imwangamilizée dali. ‘The move that he made spoiled his world for him.’
Mukhtaa ye/ ineenzeló/ muda/ wa sa’a naane/ jis’iyo/ na komeloo dali/ kotté/ maduuri/ kasize soofi. ‘When he had travelled for a period of about eight hours and reached a place which was all bush, he heard a voice.’
N^{thi}/ hukhadirowa khtumiki^lowa kaloowá/ iwele haba/ dali izi. ‘Land which can be used for cultivating has become scarce in this area.’
Shtana/ hangamizaa dali. ‘Anger spoils things.’ (A proverbial saying.) Wachihada/ Allahi/ ni/ nna’iwá/ kuwaa si/ nt^hashkuuya/ khfisidishaa dali/ walá/ si/ siwo/ want^hu hubooló. ‘They said, by Allah, you (pl.) know that we did not come to spread corruption in the country nor are we people who steal.’

dam

ideo. (cf. also zam) of light being extinguished
Nali/ yana/ masku/ ziyaraani/ ka Dada Maasiti/ zoloshela/ mara mooyi/ tu/ dam!/ chimaliza/ zashiza bitirmaakis. ‘Lights (electric) last night at the Dada Maasiti ceremony went off at once dam! then petromaxes were lit.’
Yana/ masku/ hafaani/ tala/ zizimiile/ dam dam!/ ba’ada sa’a sita/ ziiló. ‘Yesterday night in the quarter the lights went out dam dam! After six hours they came back.’

daama

n. a kind of board game similar to checkers, chess Omari/ nakhteza daama. ‘Omari is playing daama.’

daamaani

n. [Sw. demani SSED 72; Pers.] the lee side; season of the year from the end of August to the beginning of November; a rope attached to lower corner of sail, by which it can be pulled in different positions (Not known to GM.) daamaaniye ‘its rope’

ku-damaṭa

(i)

v. [This word is presumably of Somali origin, but perhaps from a dialectal source. There is perhaps some connection to Ar. damma "to smear, rub, anoint" W 291] touch, graze, brush against someone unintentionally; (ii) see, find by chance
 (i) Mwaana/ mdameṭe mwaalimu. ‘The child brushed against the teacher.’
Ngoombe/ ndameṭe. ‘The cow brushed against me.’
Omari/ mdameṭe mwaalimu/ ka sanduukhu. ‘Omari grazed the teacher with the box.’
Skumbiga/ ka khaṣṭi/ nimdameṭe/ tu. ‘I did not hit him on purpose, I just touched him unintentionally.’
 (ii) Haṭá/ sku mo/ skumdamaṭa/ Omari/ muskitiini. ‘Not even one day I did not see by chance Omari in the mosque (i.e. he never comes to pray).’

rel.

ku-damaṭika v. p/s.

ku-damaṭisha v. caus. cause someone to accidentally touch, graze someone (This verb does not seem to be used with an inanimate primary object: Omari/ damaṭishize sanduukhu/ mwaalimu. ‘Omari grazed the teacher with the box.’ is not a well-formed sentence.)

Ji/ mdamaṭishize mwaana/ mlaango. ‘Ji caused the child to accidentally touch the door.’

Omari/ mdamaṭishize mwaana/ mwaalimu/ mkonooni. ‘Omari caused the child to unintentionally touch the teacher on the hand.’

ku-damaṭishana v. caus. rec.

ku-damaṭishiliza v. caus. appl.

Ji/ mdamaṭishilize Ali/ waana/ mwaalimu. ‘Ji caused Ali’s children to unintentionally touch the teacher.’

Ji/ mdamaṭishilize waana/ mwaalimu. ‘Ji caused his children to unintentionally touch the teacher.’ (Note that this sentence is acceptable because the singular OM clearly refers to a beneficiary NP that is different from the causee waana. If mwaana is used instead of waana, the sentence is unacceptable: Ji/ mdamaṭishilize mwaana/ mwaalimu. Apparently, in this situation mwaana would be understood as the beneficiary, but there is no causee identified in the sentence and thus it is unacceptable. It is also unacceptable to say Ji/ mdamaṭishilize mwaalimu. as well as Ji/ damaṭishilize mwaalimu.) ku-damaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-damaṭishoowa v. caus. pass.

ku-damaṭoowa v. pass.

Muunt^hu/ chisala/ hudamaṭoowa/ tu/ mara maape/ muskitiini. ‘If someone prays you can see him by chance at some time in the mosque.’

dambari

n. [Som. dambar DSI 130] the first milk of a human or animal, colostrum

Huhadoowa/ dambari/ ni suura/ khpowa waana/ sababu/ nii dawa/ hureba maraḍi/ miingi. ‘It is said that colostrum is good to give children, it is medicine, it prevents many diseases.’

ku-damina

v. to serve as a guarantee for someone, take responsibility for someone’s debts, etc.

kumdamina ‘to take responsibility for him’

Mi/ skhaadiri/ kumdamina Omari. ‘I cannot take the responsibility for Omari (‘s debts, etc.).’

rel.

ku-daminoowa v. pass.

Omari/ nakhsula kudaminoowa. ‘Omari wants someone to guarantee for him.’

damiini

n. 14 [Som. adj. damiin “dull, slow-minded” DSI 131] dullness of mind

Muunt^hu/ chiwa damiini/ habarshiki/ chiint^hu/ ka sahali. ‘When someone is dull-minded, he cannot be taught easily.’

Omari/ mṭanzile Nuuru/ mwambiile/ we/ ni damiini/ hisi/ chiint^hu. ‘Omari insulted Nuuru, he told him: you are dull-minded, you do not know anything.’

danawa

n. [Som. dannabe “stolen cattle” DSI 133] booty (This item not known to GM.)

hubiga khafaali hupata danawa [nṭ.] ‘they [all] rob and take booty’

ku-danganya

v. [Sw. changamana, variant tangamana SSED 49] (danganyiize) mix, confuse (This verb is exceptional in that the common pattern inside a stem is for a vowel to be lengthened before a prenasalized consonant like ng. Thus one would expect kudaanganya.) review this issue of vowel length

Ali/ danganyize unga/ na suukari. ‘Ali mixed flour and sugar.’

Ali/ mdanganyize waawaye. ‘Ali confused his father.’

Chidanganya nama za hoola/ na za wanaadamu. ‘He mixed meat from animals with that from human beings.’

kudanganya karata ‘to shuffle cards’

laakini jaahili zont^he haja’ali/ hudanganya haraamu na halaali [st.]

‘however, an ignorant person does not follow these rules and (mixes) unlawful and lawful things together’

Mamaḍo/ nakumdanganya Hamadi. ‘Mamadho is confusing Hamadi.’

Ndanganyize ka kooḍize. ‘He confused me/you (pl.) with what he said.’

rel.

ku-dangamana v. (-dangameene) be, get mixed, entangled, intermingled

Ha’isi/ kudangamana na want^hu. ‘He does not know how mix with people [i.e. how to “win friends and influence people”].’

Hamadi/ dangameene. ‘Hamadi is confused.’

hudanganya haraamu na halaali [st.] ‘he mixes the lawful with the unlawful’

Lila/ na wanaafakhi/ ha’idangamani. ‘Truth and lies cannot mix.’ (A proverb.)

Luzi/ ldangameete. ‘The string is tangled up.’

Omari/ hadangamani/ na waant^hu. ‘Omari does not mix with people (i.e. he stays alone).’

Unga/ udangamene na suukari. ‘Flour was mixed with sugar.’

ku-dangamanika v. p/s. (-dangamanishile) be mixed up, confused

Ndangamanishilé/ kumtambula Maryamu/ na Aminá. ‘I confused

Maryamu with Amina.’ Note use of kumtambula here but not below

ku-dangamanikoowa v. pass. p/s. are there other examples of passives of p/s verbs?

Maryamu/ dangamanashiła na Amina. ‘Maryamu was confused with Amina.’

ku-dangamanoowa v. pass.

Suura/ kudangamanoowa/ na waant^hu. ‘It is good to mix with people.’

ku-danganyadanganya v. freq. (danganyizedanganyiize)

Wadanganyizedanganyiize/ makharba ayo/ wayatiile/ karkaa nt^hupa/ pashpo naawó/ kiiwa/ makharba ayo/ yaṭakiinfani. ‘They mixed and mixed these leaves and put them in a bottle without knowing what these leaves will be useful for.’

ku-danganyoowa v. pass. (danganyiiza)

dani

n. 9/10 something of interest or benefit to one

Dani/ na raahá/ ha’ileetani. ‘Purpose/need and relaxation/entertainment do not go together.’ (A saying; conveys the idea that if you need something, you cannot sit and relax and expect to get it.)

daniya ‘my need, interest’; daniza ‘my needs, interests’

Hamadi/ nt^hakoonya/ ismu/ yaa dani/ ya fikraza. ‘Hamadi did not show any interest in my ideas.’

Huseeni/ koḏeele/ na daniyé/ hadiile. ‘Huseeni talked and clarified his interest, need.’

Huseeni/ nayoo dani. ‘Huseeni needs something (lit. has interest, need).’

Kiła/ muunt^hu/ daniye/ na’iwa. ‘Everyone knows what is in his interest.’ (A proverb.)

Mi/ sinaayo/ dani/ naawe. ‘I don’t need anything from you (lit. I do not have need, interest with you).’

Muunt^hu/ haṭaa ye/ shpata daniye/ hulaala/ nt^hi. ‘Until a person gets the thing he needs or is interested in, he sleeps on the ground.’ (A saying that means until you get what you need, you must accept all the difficulties that you encounter.)

Muunt^hu/ laazima/ kiwa daniye. ‘One must know his need, what’s in his best interest.’ (A proverb.)

Sho kiwa daniye/ maslahaye/ ni dokhani. ‘One who does not know his interest is stupid.’ (A proverb.)

ku-danisha

v. interest

Huseeni/ na Omari/ wawiliwe/ ba/ hudanisha/ ṭaariikhi/ so. ‘Are both Huseeni and Omari interested in history?’ (Possible answer: Ā’ā/ Huseeni/ ṭu/ hudanishó/ ṭaariikhí. ‘No, only Huseeni is interested in history.’) Naani/ hudanishó/ ṭaariikhí. ‘Who is interested in history?’ (Possible answers:

Huseeni/ hudanisha ṭaariikhi. ‘Huseeni is interested in history.’ Or:

Huseeni/ hudanisho ṭaariikhí. Or: Huseeni/ hudanishó/ ṭaariikhi.

chi-daank^ha

n. [cf. Ar. dakka "to make flat" W 288] a flat roof -- in fact a terrace -- which one can access via a staircase to cook, spread cereals, sleep, hang clothes hatta waako zidank^haani/ watakulatililoowa [st.] ‘and those looking down from the rooftops, it will be thrown to them (lit. they will be thrown to)’

kuluka chidank^haani ‘to jump from the roof’

Nakhpandra chidank^haani. ‘He is going upstairs, climbing upstairs.’

Uko chidank^haani. ‘He is upstairs/ on the roof.’

daanku

n. [Som. daango DSI 116] corn; [pron. daank^hu]

- dank^hu mashaafara ‘popcorn’
kh̄torata daank^hu ‘to mix daank^hu with oil, sugar, resins, etc.’
- Dano n. a village some ninety-five kilometers north of Brava on the road to Mogadishu; [pron. danó]
- dansa n. dance
Haliima/ nakhteza dansa. ‘Haliima is dancing (a dance).’
Masku/ ishtezoowa. ‘In the night there is dancing.’
Nakhsula kiimbá/ na khteza dansá. ‘I want to sing and to dance a dance.’
- daqiiqa n. 9/10 [Sw. dakika SSED 69; Ar. daqiiqa W 288] minute; [pron. daqiiqa or dakhiikha]
Alí/ hoowela/ nt^hangú/ Maafakha/ haṭá/ nt^hí/ kana/ nsi/ ka dakhikha nt^haano/ hukoma [fuwooni. ‘Ali can swim from Maafakha like a fish, he reaches the coast in five minutes.’
Ali/ mi/ skhaadiri/ kuliindra/ haṭá/ dakhikha mooyi. ‘Ali, I am not able to wait even one minute.’
ba’ada ya dakhikha/ haba mo ‘after a few minutes’ Dakhikha nt^haano/ nt^haskupita/ waant^hu/ wachiwa wamtilee kati/ kumteza. ‘Not five minutes had passed before people had surrounded him to mock him.’
maatoya mawaazi sa’a na daqiiqa [nt.] ‘my eyes stay open for hours and minutes’
- Daar Zooni n. The Italians did not build extensively in Brava, and most of their buildings are either in ruin or have disappeared. One important building was called Daar Zooni, a villa built in Biruuni by the very first settler, a Mr. Zoni. In the 1970’s it was razed to the ground and Brava town hall was built on its site.
- dara [Som.] without, less Furaha dara/ ya Hamadi/ inakoonyesha. ‘Hamadi’s unhappiness shows.’
Haliima/ safari/ ya aakhiri/ yaa ye/ oshelo Mkhodiishú/ wene ma’aluuli/ ka malaalo/ mawovu/ na kuja dará. ‘Haliima, on her last trip to Mogadishu, she saw severe hardship with bad sleeping arrangement and not enough food.’
Ni fayda dara/ Faaṭima/ khfanya ruuhuye/ chiza kiiwa/ kaazi/ za muḷiwe. ‘It is useless for Faatima to pretend not to know about her husband’s affairs.’
Ni fayda dara/ ku’ink^hiroowa/ kuwaa we/ waliko apó. ‘It is useless to deny that you were there.’
Numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ waana/ wako kuja dara. ‘At the house of Hamadi the children have little food.’
Omari/ akhili dara/ zimleteleḷoo dhibú. ‘Omari’s lack of intelligence brought him problems.’
- i-daara n. 9/10 office, department (in the sense of a division or unit of s.t.); administration
Mwiini/ iwashiḷa idaara/ ya amni/ chiṭa/ ni rasdenté. ‘In Miini it has been established an office for security, the head is the D.C.’
- ku-daara v. [Som. daar DSI 117] (dariile) touch; touch on a topic, mention; ‘touch’ -- i.e. affect, reach, cause to like, convince Baaba/ haba mooyi/ izi/ schimdaara. ‘These (words) moved father a little.’ (The verb in this example sentence, schimdaara, consists of a subject prefix zi-, reduced to s by virtue of phonological rules, followed by the tense marker -chi-, followed by the [cl.I] object prefix -mu-, reduced to m in pre-consonantal position, followed by the stem daara ‘touch’. The subject prefix agrees with the subject izi ‘these’, which in context refers to kooḍi ‘words’, and the object prefix agrees with baaba.)
Chiwa’ambila/ chiza kumdaara. ‘He told them not to touch him.’

Dariġe mas'ala ya peesa. 'He touched upon the question of money.'

Hataali/ walá/ hadari zint^hu za waant^hu. 'She does not take nor does she touch the things of other people.'

Ikhudariġeni/ we. 'What's wrong with you [lit. what touched you]?'

Isidaare/ nt^hi. 'It should not touch the ground.'

kudara chibaateera/ maayi 'to bail water out of a boat' kudara chiino 'to touch "home" in a game; to anticipate a request, question, etc., and say or do something to brush it off, diminish its importance' kudaraa chisu 'to sharpen a knife'

kudara ijaraha 'to provoke (lit. touch the wound)'

Sidaaré/ ijaraha. 'Don't provoke, stir up trouble!'

kudara koođi 'to be convinced'

Koođi/ zimdariġe. 'He was convinced -- lit. the words touched him.'

kudara matotoope 'to be wet with mud'

Mitaanga/ yadariġe matotoope. 'The sails were soaked in mud.'

Yadarilo matotoopé/ ni mitaanga. 'What were soaked with mud were sails.'

kudara maayi 'to be partially wet'

Nguwo/ idariġe maayi. 'The clothes got partially wet.' (Notice that one does not say: *Maayi yadariġee nguwo.)

kudara uđuri 'to excuse oneself with good reason, to find a convincing and acceptable justification for not doing something' [lit. to touch sickness]' kudara naharisi 'to feel pity'

Naharisi/ imdariġe. 'He felt pity -- lit. generosity touched him.'

kudara qalbi 'to feel emotion -- lit. to touch the heart'

Qalbi/ imdariġe. 'He felt emotion.'

Sarmala/ schimdaara. 'The carpenter liked these (ideas, e.g.) -- lit. they touched the carpenter.'

kudara tama'a 'to become greedy (lit. be touched by greed)'

Uje muġjaana/ tama'a/ ichimdaara. 'The young man became greedy.'

Mgarwa/ schimdaara/ ye/ shkhiira. 'The fisherman found this proposal agreeable [lit. these touched him] and he accepted.'

Mwaana/ ziize/ kumdaara. 'The boy couldn't be reached ([lit.] the boy, [words] refused to reach/affect him).'

Nfuye/ schimdaara/ chuuluka/ chimpantra mp^haamp^ha/ mungooni. 'The monkey was convinced [by the shark's argument] and jumped down and climbed on the shark's back.'

Schichidaaré. 'Let us not touch it [cl.7].'

Sidaaré/ apo. 'Don't touch there!'

Uje/ chidaara/ naayé/ hudara jis'iyó/ tu. 'When that one touches [in context of the story: food], [the other one] also touches it in just that same way.'

rel.

ku-daarana v. rec. (dareene) touch one another; be touching Chisinga ichi/ chinakudarana na ichi. 'This cup is touching this one.'

Kata/ na bałası/ haskosi/ kudaarana. 'A ladle and a jug never fail to touch one another.' (A proverb.)

Skombe izi/ zinakudaarana. 'These cups are touching.'

ku-daarika v. p/s. be capable of being touched; [fig.] be so expensive as to be beyond one's reach

Kuja/ ha'idarikiki/ sukhuuni/ ¹ghaali/ kiłaa chiint^hu. 'Food cannot be touched (i.e. bought), everything is so expensive.' (Notice the doubling of the potential/stative ik in this example. This sort of doubling appears to be common, as we noted it frequently in our work with MI on the potential/stative. This example is a spontaneous one from GM.)

Kuja/ sukhuuni/ ¹ghaali/ ha'idaariki. 'Food in the market is so expensive, it cannot be touched (i.e. it cannot be bought).'

Mwaana/ hadaariki. 'The child cannot be touched [e.g. he will do whatever he can to avoid being touched].'

Nama/ haydaariki/ sku izi. ‘Meat is so expensive these days that it cannot be bought.’

ku-darikila v. p/s. appl.

Zeena/ hadarikili/ mwaana. ‘One cannot touch Zeena’s child on him.’

ku-daarila v.appl.

ku-darilana v. appl. rec.

ku-daroowa v. pass. be touched

Mulo/ ha’udaroowi. ‘Fire should not be touched.’ (A saying.)

Nakhsula kudaroowa/ tu. ‘He just wants to be touched (i.e. just for the smallest reason, he will explode and over-react).’

ku-daarsha v. caus. cause s.o. to touch or be touched; infect s.o., pass a disease; light kudarsha chibiiridi ‘to light a match’; kudarsha zibiriidi ‘to light matches’ kudarshaa mulo ‘to light a fire’ kudarsha sigareeti ‘to light a cigarette’

Mdarshize Madi/ ooljiyo. ‘He [somehow] got Madi smeared with oil.’

Ndarshize hargabu. ‘He passed the cold to me.’

Ndarshizee mbwa. ‘He caused me to touch the dog [e.g. he took my hand and touched the dog with it, or he pushed the dog against me, etc., but not convinced or persuaded or ordered me to touch the dog – only direct causation is involved in the case of this verb].’

Nimdarshize Hamadi/ khabari. ‘I conveyed the news, information to Hamadi.’

Sidaarshé/ mate/ bikeeri. ‘Don’t put saliva on the cup (lit. don’t make saliva touch the cup)!’

ku-darshoowa v. caus. pass.

Hamadi/ darshiza khabari. ‘Hamadi was conveyed to the news, information.’ (One cannot say khabari/ zidarshiza Hamadi. ‘The news, information was conveyed to Hamadi.’)

rel.

m-daaro n. 3

Chisu/ chinakhtahaja mdaaro. ‘This knife needs sharpening.’

daraja

n. 9/10 [Sw. daraja SSED 70; Ar. daraja W 277] position or rank (e.g. in government), grade (in school), s.t. honored and respected

Daraja izi/ waspete ka daaali. ‘These positions are gotten with great effort.’

Ka sultaani/ chibiga hoodi/ shtomola salaamu/ ye/ chegeshoowa/ ka heshma/ na daraja. ‘At the sultan’s place, he asked for permission to enter and extended greetings; he was welcomed with respect and dignity.’

kuvunda daraja ‘to disgrace s.o.’

nalombe^oowa Rahiimu/ darajaye kuzidoowa [st.] ‘let us beg the Merciful

Ndroola/ oko/ apo/ ndipó/ itakuwo harusi ya daraja. ‘Marry me there [in my country], there is where it will be a wedding of honor.’

tomola farði takhpata daraja [st.] ‘carry out the prescribed duty (of ritual cleanliness) and you will be rewarded [lit. get rank]’ review syllable count issue

Waant^{hu}/ daraja/ wanapoowa/ ka ilmu. ‘A person should be given rank or position according to (the level of his) knowledge.’

ya taatu kaamina zivo za mooja/ khansa qur’aani afðali ka daraja [st.] ‘the third [pillar of faith] is to believe in the books of God, especially the Quran, it is better in rank [than all other books]’

daaraka

n. promise

Omari/ ndiyé/ teto daaraká/ kuwaka muskití. ‘It is Omari who promised to build a mosque.’

Muunt^{hu}/ shtala daaraka/ laazimu/ khfulisha. ‘When one is making a promise, one must fulfill it.’

We/ tete daaraká/ kunsoomesha. ‘You made a promise to teach me.’

darani

n. that which is important for someone

- khaansa Huseeni darani/ kuumbuka kulla zamaani* [st.] ‘and especially for Husein, remember that always’
Kiġaa muunt^hu/ daraniye/ ndiyé/ na’iwó. ‘What is important for a person, it is he who knows.’
Sheekhi/ hadiile/ mi/ daraniya/ ni kuhija mwaka uyu. ‘Sheekhi said: me, my most important thing this year is to conduct hajj.’
- daraasa n.
Shekh Wali/ zamaani/ chisomesha daraasa/ za diini/ Mwiini/ numbaani/ ka Daada Maahalima. ‘Sheekh Wali during old time taught religion lessons in Miini at the house of Daada Maahalima.’
Washpata minha za daraasa... ‘If they get scholarships...’
- ku-daraawa v. scorn, despise, belittle; variant form: kuḍaarawa Omari/ humdarawa Hamidi. ‘Omari looks down on Hamadi.’ (Note that there must be an object prefix on the verb agreeing with a noun that refers to a definite human being. One cannot say: Omari/ hudarawa Hamadi. Agreement is not obligatory in the case of indefinite human nouns: Omari/ hu(wa)darawa waant^hu. ‘Omari looks down on people.’
Sidaraweení. ‘You (pl.) don’t despise!’
Simdaraawé/ muḅji. ‘Do not belittle a man!’
- darawu n. 9/10 unit of land measurement, smaller than an acre
Hasani/ mundraani/ kaake/ azile mashṭaṭa/ darawuu mbili/ naa geġé/ darawu siṭa. ‘Hasani at his farm grew two acres of sesame and six of maize.’
- darawu n. ablution
khtala darawu ‘to purify oneself, take ablutions’ Omari/ umo cholooni/ nakhtala darawu. ‘Omari is in the toilet purifying himself.’
- daraawu (ma-) n. scorn, contempt, looking down on someone, disrespecting someone; variant form: ḍaraawu
Daraawu/ nt^haku/ hukhiiró. ‘No one accepts humiliation.’ (A proverb.)
Madaraawu/ siwo/ suura. ‘Looking down on/ disrespecting is not good.’
- ku-darbaṭa v. [Som. darab "to prepare, decorate" DSI 134] (darbeṭe) be ready, prepared Haliima/ nakudarbaṭa haruusi. ‘Haliima is getting prepared for the wedding.’
Mfanya zeema/ nadarbaṭe kulipowa zeema/ amó/ ziwová. ‘The one who does good should be prepared to be repaid with either good or bad.’
Yaliko suura/ kuwaa si/ chidarbeṭe jisa suurá/ na safari. ‘It was useful that we prepared so well for the trip.’
rel.
ku-darbaṭika v. p/s.
ku-darbaṭiloowa v. appl. pass.
Uyu/ ni muunt^hi/ hudarbaṭiloowá. ‘This is a day which is prepared for.’
- Review pronunciation, added final accent at end in doing revisions.
ku-darbaṭila v. appl. prepare for Spisiló/ haziruudi/ darbaṭila/ ziko mbeleyó. ‘The things that have gone by never return, prepare for those things that are ahead.’
ku-darbaṭoowa v. pass.
Omari/ kaawo/ inakudarbaṭowa haruusi. ‘Omari’s place is being prepared for the wedding.’
ku-darbisha v. tr. made ready Basi/ fijiri/ chidarbisha ruuhuye/ chooloka/ bahariini. ‘So in the morning he prepared himself and went to the sea.’
Darbisha/ markabu/ inawe/ tayaari/ fijiri/ khsaafira. ‘Prepare the ship, it should be ready in the morning to travel.’
Isa/ teena/ sultani jiraani/ darbishiize/ jeeshi/ nk^hulu/ kuuya/ kumbiga/

- wawaye mwanaamke. ‘Now then the neighbor sultan prepared a large army to come to strike the girl’s father.’
- Mbiga mnaado/ shfuraha/ na bilaa kuhojeshá/ shfakaṭa/ chidarbisha/ itulubila ka kaaké. ‘The public announcer was delighted and without arguing, he made ready that which was asked from him.’
- Wamalizopoo kujá/ na khpumulá/ wachidarbisha bundukhu zaawo. ‘When they finished eating and resting, they prepared their guns.’
- darbini n. 9/10 [Sw. darubini SSED 71; Pers.] telescope, binoculars (This is one of a number of words where Chimiini lacks a high vowel that occurs in the corresponding Swahili word.)
- kuḷangala ka darbini ‘to look at with a telescope or binoculars’
- Chilangala/ ka darbini/ chisooma/ yandishila ilú/ ya bandeerá. ‘He looked with binoculars and read what was written on the flag.’
- Mwanaamke/ ka darbiniye/ weene/ steendro/ za Hasani/ fanyiizó. ‘The girl, with her binoculars, saw the actions that Hasani took.’
- Sulṭaani/ wenopo bandeerá/ nelpé/ chamura kuleteḷowa darbini. ‘When the sultan saw the white flag, he ordered binoculars to be brought.’
- ku-dardaarmaṭa v. [Som. dardaaran "to make a will" DSI 136] (dardarmeete) make a will
- Alí/ dardarmeete/ nṯasa yaa ye/ kufa/ numba ya Bulu Baazi/ khpowa mukeewe. ‘Ali left a will before he died that the house in Bulu Baazi be given to his wife.’
- Diini/ huhada/ muunt^hu/ nṯasa yaa ye/ kufa/ suura/ kudardaramaṭa. ‘Religion says that it is good for one to leave a message before he dies.’
- Muunt^hu/ suura/ kudardaarmaṭa/ khabla ya wafaati. ‘It is good to leave a will before the time of death.’
- dareemu n. feeling
- Alí/ hadiile/ leelo/ mi/ dareemuya/ ni suura/ sababu/ mwaanawa/ pisile imṭihaniini. Ali said today: my feeling is good because my child passed the exam.’
- Muja namaa mbiti/ nayo dareemu. ‘One who eats raw meat has a feeling (in his stomach).’ (This means that someone who has done something wrong knows in his heart what he has done.)
- ku-dareensaṭa v. (darenseeṭe) feel
- Muunt^hu/ mahaḷa/ chidarensaṭaa dhibu/ huguura. ‘If someone in one place feels problems, hardship, he (should) move away.’
- Ndarenseeṭé/ kuwa Maryamu/ ichisuḷowa kuwa darile uḍuri. ‘I felt that Maryamu should have apologized.’
- Omari/ hadiile/ mṭana uyu/ mi/ nakuderensaṭa bardí/ sinakhaadira/ kulaala. ‘Omari said: this room, I feel cold I cannot sleep.’
- daari n. 9/10 [Ar. dār W 299] house (usu. of stone)
- Daari/ ya abadi/ ni dari ya jana. ‘The house of forever is the house of paradise.’
- Daari/ ya duniya/ ni muunt^hu/ bilaa daari/ keesho/ taki’ilaṭa. ‘The house of the world is like a person without a house, tomorrow you will leave it.’
- rel.
- chi-daari* (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
- i-daari* (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ku-dariba v. (daribiile) train someone
- Muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ chidariba/ hufanya jisa suura. ‘If one gets training in something, he does it well.’
- rel.
- ku-daribila* v. appl. (daribijiile)
- ku-dariboowa* v. pass. be trained

Ma'askari/ yanakudariboowa/ heraani/ hiila/ za harbi. 'Soldiers are being trained in the camp (about) strategies of war.'

ku-darisa

v. (darisiize, darisiile) teach, study, research; variant form: kudurusa Miini/ waant^hu/ wiingi/ wachidariso/ ka Shekh Wali/ chiwooni. 'In Brava many people were studying at Sheekh Wali's religious school.'

Shekh Khaasimu/ chidarisa ka Shekh Aweeso. 'Sheekh Khassim used to study from Sheekh Awees.'

Shekh Mada Guðuuðo/ na Shekh Mada Sheekhi/ wachidarisa/ diini/ ya Islaamu/ na wachidarisa waant^hu. 'Sheekh Madaa Gudhuudho and Sheekh Madaa Sheekhi used to learn Islamic religion and teach people.'

ku-darisika v. p/s.

ku-darisoowa v. pass. variant form: kudurusoowa

kudurusoowa/ ilmu 'for knowledge to be studied, researched'

rel. nom.

m-darisa (wa-) n. 1/2 teacher

n-daaro

n. (cf. kudaara 'to touch') (false) justification

Haye/ aqili niingi/ lete ndaaroo. 'Well, you clever one, give/bring your false justifications.'

khtila ndaaro 'to give unreasonable and false justification for not doing something; to refuse in a pro forma fashion'

Muñli/ tile ndaaro/ laakini/ muke/ mloonzele/ hattá/ ye/ khiriile. 'The man refused [in a pro forma fashion], but the woman begged him until he accepted.'

Nakumera ndaaro/ zaa ye/ kilize amri iyo. 'He is trying to find some (false) justification for the fact that he skipped/refused that order.'

darsi

n. 9/10 lesson; students

Darsi niingi/ hanza sa'aa nt^hatu/ fijiri. 'Many classes begin at 9 am.'

huhuzuniko ni darsi/ fadhi ishtali'oowa [st.] 'as will his daily circle of students/ and the lessons he used to teach'

Nsomele darsizá/ khpata khpita imtihaani. 'I studied my lessons so as to (get to) pass the examination.' (MI rejected Nsomele darsizá/ khpita imtihaani. 'I studied my lessons to pass the examination'.)

Nsomele darsizá/ mp^hate khpita imtihaani. 'I studied my lessons so that I might (get to) pass the examination.' (It is dubious to omit the verb pata: Nsomele darsizá/ mp^hite imtihaani. 'I studied my lessons in order to pass the examination'.)

Skuliini/ waana/ husomeshowa darsi za ajnaasi. 'At school children are taught a variety of lessons.'

Tafsiriile darsi. 'He explained the lesson.'

darwiishi (ma-)

n. [Ar. darwīs W 280] a soldier fighting under a leader for something that is right, just, etc.; variant form: daraawiishi

darwishi uyu 'this fighter' (cf. madarwishi awa 'these fighters')

Harbi/ za Amhaara/ na Wasoomaali/ zamaani/ wachibigó/ ni ma'askari/ wa daraawiishi. 'The war between the Ethiopians and the Somalis in the olden days, the ones who fought were daraawiishi soldiers.'

darzani

n. 9/10 [Sw. dazani SSED 71; Eng. dozen] dozen darzani iyi ya skoombe 'this dozen cups'

darzani nt^hatu izi za skoombe 'these three dozen cups'

Dukaani/ ka Nuuru/ huzowaa nguwo/ na zilaatú/ darzaani/ tu/ hayizoowi/ chimoyimooyi. 'At Nuuru's shop, clothes and shoes are sold in dozens, not singles.'

daashi

n. 9/10 [Som. daash "veranda, open area in front of house" DSI 117] backyard; a small shelter either in front or in back of the house dashi iyi ‘this backyard’

Numba ya Omari/ inayo dashi ikulu. ‘Omari’s house has a big backyard, shelter.’
Uko dashiini. ‘He is in the backyard/ in a small shelter.’
 rel.
chi-daashi (zi-) n. 7/8 canvas shelter (e.g. on a boat) Jahazi yaawo/ iwanacho chidaashi/ laakini/ shchivuuya. ‘Their dhow had a canvas shelter, but it leaked.’
i-daashi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

dasturi

n. custom
Laakini/ uje mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ uzila ka majini/ chihada/ si/ ka dasturi yiiitu/ mwanaamke/ shpelekoowa/ karkaa nt^{hi}/ za wakeewe/ ni laazimu/ ye/ ka muda wa sku nt^{aano}/ khkalaant^{ha}/ ka wawaye mubli/ khabl^{aa} ye/ keendra/ ka mubliwe. ‘But that daughter of the sultan who was bought from jinns said: we, it is our custom, that if a girl is sent away to the lands of his in-laws, it is a must that she for a period of five days sit with the father of her husband before she goes to her husband.’
Mi/ hukahata/ dasturi iyi. ‘I hate this custom.’ Or: Dasturi iyi/ mi/ hi’ikahata. ‘This custom, I hate it.’

dawa (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10,6 [Sw. dawa ‘medicine, medicament, anything supplied by a doctor, including ‘charm, talisman, etc.; used by native medicine men’ (SSED 71; Ar. dawā‘ W 304] (i) medicine, remedy Chizeele/ chimpaa dawa. ‘The old woman gave him medicine.’
Barete madawa miingi/ karka chibuku icho. ‘He learned a lot of medicine from that book.’
dawa yaa chita ‘medicine for a headache [lit. head]’ Mwiingine/ uchihada/ mi/ ni dawa yaa chita. ‘Another (of the trees) said: I am medicine for the head (i.e. headaches).’
dawa ya hasharaati ‘insecticide’ dawa ya khpaka ‘medicine that is applied to the body’ dawa ya khshuwisha ‘a purgative’
dawa ya khtapisha ‘medicine for causing vomit’ dawa ya kootela ‘medicine that is applied by fumigating’ dawa yaa kuna ‘medicine taken by mouth’ dawa ya kureba khsuwata ‘medicine for stopping diarrhoea’ dawa ya kureba khtapika ‘medicine for stopping vomiting’ dawa ya kunuunkha ‘medicine that is inhaled’ dawa yaa mbu ‘mosquito repellent’ dawa ya miimba ‘medicine for a stomach ache’
Mooyi/ uchihada/ mi/ ni dawa ya miimba. ‘One (of the trees) said: I am medicine for a stomach ache.’
Dawa yaa muo/ nii muo. ‘The remedy for fire is fire.’ (A proverb, like English “fight fire with fire”.)
dawa ya siindano ‘injection’ dawa ya zilaatu ‘shoe polish’
dawa za mishaka ‘herbal medicines’
dawa za waalimu ‘herbal medicines of the waalimu’
Dawayo/ siwo/ chint^hu chiingine/ shokuwa inyi yaa nfuye. ‘Your medicine is not anything except the liver of a monkey.’
Dobla ya Aldo Mooro/ inakudaalata/ khfanyilizaa dawa/ na kiyookola/ ikhtisaadi/ ya muuyi. ‘The government of Aldo Mooro is doing its best to cure and save the country.’
Huseeni/ chilomba rukhsa/ ka sultaani/ kendra jahaziini/ kaake/ khpata kuleta sanduukhuye/ kumfanyiliza/ mzeele/ uyu/ dawa. ‘Huseeni asked permission from the sultan to go to his dhow in order to (get to) bring his box to treat this old man with medicine.’
khfanyaa dawa ‘to treat a disease’

	Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kuwanayo dawa hurebo ulaazó. ‘May I have a painkiller, please?’
	Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kuwanayo dawa yaa chitá/ kułaazá? ‘May I have some headache medicine please?’ (This example, from GM, shows the elision of the first person subject marker in the main verb. In MI’s speech, the verb would be nt^hakhaadira . The final accents in the last two phrases are not triggered by the verb but rather by the fact that we have a yes-no question with focus on the verb. This requires the out-of-focus complement phrases to have final accent. In the absence of verb focus we have Tafaðali/ takhadira kuwanayo dawa ya chita kułaaza?)
	Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kuwanayo dawa ya ulaazó. ‘May I have a painkiller, please?’
	Talaa dawa. ‘Take medicine!’
	Ye/ chiwaa dawa/ zotte/ na chiwa maraði/ yotte. ‘He was all medicine and all sickness (i.e. he was consumed by medicine and sickness).’
daawa	n. non-permanent ink Daawa/ inakhpaanguka. ‘The ink is fading.’ dawa iyi ‘this ink’ Dawa iyi/ ni herge. ‘This ink is thick.’ dawa ya makala ‘lit. ink of charcoal; ink made from grinding charcoal into powder and adding water; this type of ink is used in koranic schools’ -ulusi/ kana daawa ‘as black as ink’ Hamadi/ nakunya choolo/ chilusi/ kana/ daawa. ‘Hamadi is defecating feces black as ink.’
dawaamu	adv. [Sw. dawamu SSED 68; Ar. dawām “duration, perpetuity” W 303] everlasting, always Kiłaa chiint^hu/ cha duniya/ humaliza/ dawaamu/ ni mojiitu. ‘Every worldly thing finishes, what lasts forever is God.’
daawaati	n. shelf; cupboard Haliima/ tilee nguwo/ za waana/ dawaatiini. ‘Haliima put the children’s clothes in the cupboard.’
Daawu	n. a coastal location north of Brava Daawu/ na Siyaamá/ ni daawu/ khariibú/ hața/ Mwiini/ Daawu/ ni kilomețiri ikumi/ na nt^haanó/ Siyaama/ ni kilomețiri thalathiini. ‘Daawu and Siyaama, it is Daawu that is nearer to Brava, Daawu is fifteen kilometers and Siyaamu is thirty.’ Majiwe/ zamaani/ ya kuwakila/ Mwiini/ yachiletowa ka Daawu. ‘Stones in old times for building (houses) in Brava were brought from Daawu.’ waana wafakeete Daawu na Siyaama [nt.] ‘young people fled to Daawu and Siyaama’
Daawuudi	n. David
Dawuuro	n. a small area on the northern side of the Baghdaadi quarter of Brava Dawuuro/ Baghdaadi/ hupitoowa. ‘Dawuuro is past Baghdaadi.’ Dawuuro/ ni chigawali/ cha Baghdaadi. ‘Dawuuro is part of Baghdaadi.’ Dawuuro/ yiko kharibu ya muskiti wa Maftaaho. ‘Dawuuro is close to Maftaaho’s mosque.’ Muskiti ya Maftaaho/ yikoo kule/ Dawuuro/ khpitoowa. ‘The mosque of Maftaaho is far, one passes even Dawuuro (to get to it).’
dayaani	n. [Ar. al-dayyān W 305] an attribute of God (the Judge) ku-daya’ira	v. repair rel.

- ku-daya'tiroowa* v. pass.
Mi/ nakhtaja fatuurá/ kudaya'tiroowá. 'I need the car repaired.'
- ku-daayata* v. [?Som. dayeyasan/dayow "to be disoriented, to be bewildered"] (dayeete) be hesitant to do something; to delay doing s.t.
Kudayata kaziini/ siwo/ suura. 'To be late at work is not good.'
La'la chidaayata/ ndriindra. 'Just in case I get late, wait for me.'
Muun^hu/ huindo ngamiilá/ mbuzi/ hadaayati. 'One who slaughters a camel does not hesitate to slaughter a goat.' (A proverb indicating that one who can accomplish large, challenging tasks can easily do smaller, simpler tasks.)
Ndayete khtomola peesá. 'I am hesitant to pay the money.'
pesa zaa mi/ ndayeto khtomolá 'the money that I am hesitant to pay' Sidaayaté/ kendra kuula... 'Don't hesitate to go and buy...'
Ye/ hadaayati/ khfanya yaa ye/ nakhsuuló. 'He does not hesitate to do whatever he wants to do.'
rel.
ku-dayatoowa v. pass.
Kudayataowa kaziini/ siwo/ suura. 'To be late at work is not good.'
- daayi interj. [?Ital. dai "move, hurry up"] hurry up Daayi/ maliza ka himma. 'At once, finish the work quickly!'
Daayi/ oloka. 'Hurry up and go!'
- dayuura* n. [Som. dayuurad "airplane" DSI 141; cf. Ar. tā'ira "airplane" W 579] airplane shirka ya dayuura 'air line' Takhadira kuulapi/ tikiiti/ ya dayuura. 'Where can I buy an airline ticket?'
- dayuusa* n. [Som. dayuus "husband who does not care about sexual honor of wife; cuckold; procurer; abject person" DSI 141] cuckold, a man who does not care whether his wife goes around with other men Hasani/ ni dayuusa/ mukeewe/ masku/ na muun^hbi/ hawaamo/ numbaani/ nakumeera/ tu. 'Hasani is a cuckold, his wife, night and day, is out of the house, wandering about.'
Mubli/ humlato mukeewé/ kumera na wabli/ ni dayuusa. 'A man who permits his wife to wander around with men is a dayuusa.'
- de in the expression: haye de a warning
Haye de/ akhtari yiinu/ baata izi/ muun^hbu/ sidaaré/ walá/ sisubuté/ khtiiinda/ hattá/ si/ shchiya laakuja. 'I warn you, don't dare anyone touch these potatoes nor dare to collect them until we come at dawn.'
- dede in the expression:
Inendra dedé. 'Walk!' (said by a mother to a toddler)
- ku-dega* v. [Som. deg "to stay in a place, to land – of aircraft" DSI 143] (degeele) calm down; land, alight (of a bird)
Chimaliza/ wo/ wadegele na chaakuja/ cha kuwatosha skuu mbili/ tu. 'Then they settled down with enough food to suffice them for only two days.'
Chizeele/ ulushile/ degeele/ ka furaha. 'The old woman jumped up and down with joy.'
Iyi/ hoonyeza/ kuwa Tunne/ ni waant^hu/ wa kaandra/ wadegelo Miini. 'This shows that the Tunne were the first people to arrive in Brava.'
kudega muyiini 'to reside, live in town' kudega numbaani 'to reside, settle in a house' Lpepo/ ldegeelopó/ naa nvulá/ ifungiilopó/ ichibele majiira/ na nt^h ashkukhaadira/ kulekezaa ndila. 'When the wind calmed down and when the rain stopped, we had lost our way and were not able to aim for the path/way.'

Maayi/ yont^he/ hudega karka iboholi. 'All water collects in a borehole.' (A saying; conveys the idea that equal or similar things come together.)

Muunt^hu/ chulukachuuluka/ akhiriye/ hudega. 'When one flies high, in the end he will come down.' (A saying, which conveys the idea that if you do not behave well, you will pay for it.)

Wakhti/ wa jilaali/ tawala/ hudega/ kana msala/ mayiimbi/ huwa naađira. 'During summer time, the sea gets calm like a mat, waves become rare.'

rel.

ku-degela v. appl.

Sa'iidi/ chi'idegela/ ka maamaye/ na nt^haymwiingila/ teena/ hamu/ ya kuwalola wanaashke/ wa masultaani. 'Sa'iidi stayed put at his mother's and longing never entered him to marry daughters of sultans.'

ku-degesha v. caus. settle, calm, cause s.o. to get comfortably settled; put in good shape, condition, order; rearrange, spruce up, dress up; put in a place kudegesha imaani '[lit.] to settle faith'. Originally this expression had a religious meaning ('be confirmed, settled in your faith'), but it has acquired a more general sense: it is used to comfort people who have suffered a bereavement or a loss of any kind (even financial). Moreover, it is much used figuratively in love songs with the meaning of 'have faith in, or be assured of, my love'.

Mdegesehe mweenzawe. 'He had his friend settle down comfortably.'

Mi/ nakhtahaja wakhti/ habamooyi/ kudegesha chitaachá. 'I need a little time to make up my mind.'

Mwanaamke/ mwene/ naayé/ chivalaa nguwo/ suura/ chidegesha ruuhuye/ chimlawila. 'The daughter herself also put on nice clothes and put herself in good shape and went out to him [her suitor].'

ku-degeshadegesha v. freq.

Haliima/ nakudegeshadegesha nuumba. 'Haliima is putting her house in good order.'

ku-degeshoowa v. caus. pass.

Jisaa yé/ deggesheezá/ fanyiza jisa suurá/ waant^hu/ wotte wanamyawaŋa. 'The manner in which she was neatly put [and] done up so well, all the people were amazed at her.'

nuumba/ imalizopo khsafishoowá/ na kudegeshoowá... 'when the house was finished being cleaned and rearranged' degani

adj. calm

degani/ kana barafu 'as calm as ice' (In our recording of this simile, there was clear gemination of the medial consonant in degani, although this gemination is apparently not lexical, but perhaps due to the speaker stressing just how calm someone is.)

Sheekhi/ na'ivoowa/ ni muunt^hu/ tartiibu/ degani / kana barafu. 'Sheekhi is known to be a man, slow and calm, like ice.'

degani/ kana maayi 'as calm as Haliima/ ni mtuuvu/ haŋá/ chibigoowa/ haruudili/ mkonu/ degani/ kana maayi. 'Haliima is calm, even if she is hit, she does not return (lit.) return the hand (i.e. hit back), she stays as calm as water.'

rel.

u-degani n. 14 calmness

kubasha udegani 'to lose calmness, one's "cool"

Muunt^hu/ chibasha udegani/ huyaa dhibu. 'If a person loses his cool, difficulties/ problems come.'

ku-degdegata

v. (degdegeete) do something with urgency

We/ degdegeeté/ khfanya jawabu iyo. 'You rushed too much to do that (it was not necessary, or good, or the results were not as desired, etc.).’

rel.

ku-degdegatoowa v. pass.

Kudegdegatoowa/ siwo/ suura. ‘To do something in a great rush is not good.’

zoombo/ za kudegela ‘things to settle, reside with’

ku-degeloowa v. appl. pass.

Kudegeloowani/ apa. ‘Why should here be settled, lived at?’

ku-degesha v. caus.

kudegesha zoombo ‘to put, organize the stuff well’

kumdegsha Omari/ mahaḷa/ maape ‘to put Omari someplace’ ku-degoowa v. pass.

Iyi/ numba ya kudegoowa/ siwo. ‘This is not a house to reside in.’

kudegoowa/ muyiini ‘to be reside, lived in town’

degdegi

adj. urgent; adv. urgently, quickly

khaṭi degdegi ‘urgent letter’

Nakhtaambulá/ kuwa poliisi/ wa’ile / degdegi. ‘I understand that the police came quickly.’

Omari/ naaye/ degdegi. ‘Let Omari come urgently.’

ku-deekha

v. [Som. deeq DSI 142] (dekheele) be sufficient, suffice

Chaakuja/ chidekheele. ‘The food was sufficient.’

Chaakuja/ chimdekheele. ‘The food was enough for him.’

Kuja/ ya Haliima/ pishiló/ nṯa’ikudeekha/ waantṯu/ wontṯe. ‘The food that Haliima cooked did not suffice for all the people.’

Kuja/ yaa mi/ mp^hishiló/ idekheele/ waantṯu. ‘The food that I cooked was sufficient for all the people.’

Omari/ ha’imdekhi chiintṯu. ‘Nothing satisfies Omari.’

Omari/ mdekhele Hamadi/ kaa kuja. ‘Omari satisfied Hamadi with food.’

Pesa zaa mi/ nimpeeló/ zimdekheele. ‘The money that I gave him sufficed him.’

rel.

ku-deekheka v. p/s. be satisfied; be self-sufficient, not rely on anyone else

Deekheka/ ka ne’ema/ zaa we/ peetó. ‘Be satisfied with those blessings that you got.’

Mojiitu/ ndiyé/ ghani/ dekhesheló/ ka zontṯé. ‘God is the rich one and is self sufficient in every thing.’ (A proverb.)

Omari/ dekhesehele. ‘Omari is self-sufficient.’

Weenza/ ni weenza/ mp^hiindri/ yaa we/ chidekheka naawo. ‘Friends are friends as long as you are not dependent on them.’

ku-dhekela v. appl.

Mi/ dekkeleelé/ kaalmeya/ karka kuwaka nuumba/ mp^hiya. ‘I offered my help in building a new house.’

ku-deekhesha v. caus.

Mwajiitu/ namdeekhesha. ‘May God cause him to be satisfied (spoken with reference to someone who is never satisfied).’

Omari/ mdekhesheze Nuuru/ ka kooḍi. ‘[Lit.] Omari talked Nuuru into sufficiency of words --i.e. silence; in other words, he convinced, persuaded Nuuru such that Nuuru could not find anything to say.’

ku-dekheshana v. caus. rec.

ku-dekhesheleza v. caus. appl.

ku-dekheshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-dekheshoowa v. caus. pass.

Nuuru/ dekhesheza ka kooḍi/ na Omari. ‘Nuuru was convinced by Omari.’

Nuuru/ dekhesheza na kooḍi za Omari. ‘Nuuru was convinced by Omari’s words.’

ku-dhekoowa v. pass.

chi-deemi (zi-)

n. 7/8 gizzard

Hamadi/ hupeenda/ kuja zidemi zaa nk^huku. ‘Hamadi likes to eat chicken gizzards.’

deeni

n. 9/10,6 [Sw. deni SSED 72; Ar, dain W 305] debt

Ahdi/ ni deeni/ ka munt^hu nayo diini. ‘A promise is a debt to a religious person.’ (A prover.)

Deeni/ ilisiḷa. [H!H] ‘The debt was paid.’

Deeni/ ilisiḷa na bakhili. [H!H] ‘the debt was paid by the miser.’

Deeni/ takhtomola ka mkonowó/ takumera ka miiluyo. ‘A debt that you will give with your hand, you will search for (its return) with your feet.’ (A proverb.)

deni ya Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s debt’; deni za Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s debts’; but also: madeni ya Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s debts’ khfunguza deeni ‘to pay back a debt’ khpa deeni ‘to make [lit. give] a loan’ ‘to pay back a loan’

Nimpele muunt^hu/ deeni. [H!H] ‘I gave the man back my debt to him.’ Cf.

Deeni/ nimpeelé/ muunt^hu. [H!H!H] ‘The debt I gave the man.’ Cf.

Muunt^hu/ peḷa deeni/ naami. [H!H!H] ‘The man was paid back the debt by me.’

khshika deeni ‘to ask for the return of a loan’ khshikowa na deeni ‘to be asked for the return of a loan’ khtala deeni ‘to take a loan’

Halazimoowi/ khtala deeni. ‘He is not obliged to take a loan.’

kulipa deeni ‘to repay a loan, pay a debt’

Lisile deeniye. ‘He paid his debt.’

Nimlisile mweenziwá/ deeni. ‘I paid my friend’s debt.’

Nimlisile mweenziwá deeniye. ‘I paid my friend, his debt.’

Walisile deni zaawo. ‘They paid their debts.’

kulipila deeni ‘to use s.t. to pay a debt’

Tete peesa/ zotte/ mpele mkuḷe/ khfanyiliza kaazi/ na kulipila deeni. ‘He took all the money and gave it to his older brother to do business and pay back loans.’

kulipowa deeni ‘for a debt to be repaid’

Deeni/ ilisiḷa. ‘The debt was paid.’

Deeni/ ilisiḷa na bakhili. ‘The debt was paid by the miser.’

kurashanya deeni ‘to owe one another’

rel.

chi-deeni (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-deeni (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ku-dereemaṭa

v. [Som. dareen “to suspect” DSI 136] (deremeṭe) be cautious, suspect someone; feel, sense kuderemeṭa chiint^hu ‘to feel, sense s.t.’

Mi/ nimderemeṭe munt^hu oyó. ‘I suspected that person.’

rel.

ku-dereemaṭoowa v. pass.

kuderemaṭoowa/ bardi ‘for cold to be felt’

ku-dereensaṭa v. (derenseṭe) have a premonition that something is going to happen; have a preconception; feel, sense

Hinzizi za dereemu/ sc hifa/ muunt^hu/ haderensaṭa chiint^hu. ‘When the nerves die, one does not feel anything.’

kuderensaṭa uḷaazo ‘to feel, sense pain’

Simdereensaṭé/ ni munt^hu msuura. ‘Don’t have preconceptions about him; he is a good person.’

Ye/ nderenseṭe/ mi/ nsimemo chinume cha mṭaaná. ‘He noticed me standing in the back of the room.’

ku-dereensaṭisha v. caus.

ku-dereensaṭoowa v. pass.

Ulaazo/ huderensaṭoowa. ‘The pain is being felt.’

dereemu

n. caution; feeling, sensation, queasiness

hinzizi za dereemu ‘nerves’

Hamadi/ hinzizi za dereemuze/ sfiile. ‘Hamadi does not have any feeling (lit. his nerves are dead).’

khfanya dereemu ‘to be cautious, careful, suspicious’ kuwana dereemu ‘to be cautious, careful, suspicious’

Hujo namaa mbiti/ nayo deremu ya matumbo. (Or: Muja namaa mbiti/ nayo deremu ya matumbo.) ‘He who eats uncooked meat will have some queasiness’ (A proverb, conveying the idea that when you do something wrong, you will be fearful of being caught, exposed.)

Nayo dereemu. ‘He is cautious, queasy’

deeri

n. 9/10 [Som. dayr ‘season from September to November’ DSI 141] one of the seasons of the year (the lesser rainy season)

Deeri/ ibakheete. ‘(This fall) it didn’t rain (lit. deeri missed).’

deri iyi ‘this rainy season’

nvula ya deeri ‘fall rain’

Nvula ya deeri/ ha’imoolozi/ muunt’u. ‘The fall rain does not make a person completely wet.’ (The rain that occurs in the season of deeri is a type of rain where it might fall on a house, but not on a nearby road; i.e., there are pockets of rain here and there.)

moosimu/ wa deeri ‘fall season’

destuuri

n. 9/10 [Sw. desturi SSED 72; Ar. dustūr ‘regulations’ W 281] custom, practice, laws, constitution

Bilaa destuuri/ hayinshiki. ‘Life cannot be lived without traditions, customary practices.’

Desturi iyi/ hukahaṭowa naami. [H!H] ‘This custom is hated by me.’

Desturi iyi/ mi/ hi’kahata. [H’H’H] ‘This custom I do not like it.’

desturi izi ‘these customs’

desturii mbovu ‘bad traditions’ desturi suura ‘good traditions’ kurasha desturi ‘to follow, obey laws, constitution, customary practices’

Muunt’u/ laazimu/ kurasha desturi/ ya doḅla. ‘One must follow, obey the constitution/laws of the government.’

Muunt’u/ laazimu/ kurasha desturi/ yaa nt’i. ‘One must follow, obey the constitution/laws of the land.’

kuweka desturi ‘to establish customs, laws, constitution’

Desturi/ huweekó/ ni doḅla. ‘Laws/constitution, the one who establishes them, it is the government.’

Mi/ hukahaṭa/ desturi iyi. [HH!H] ‘I hate this custom.’

chi-devu (zi-)

n. [Sw. kidevu (vi-) SSED] chin; [pron. chiḍevu]

Chiḍevu cha Alí/ ni chihaba. ‘Alí’s chin is small.’

Omari/ mlonzele Sheekhi/ peesa/ mshishile chi ḍevu. ‘Omari begged Sheekhi for money, he grabbed hold of his chin (i.e. he really begged him hard).’

rel.

n-drevu n. beard

kumolaa ndrevu ‘to shave the beard’

Haaji/ mozelee ndevu. ‘Haaji shaved (his) beard. Or: Haaji/ mozelee ndevu. ‘Haaji shaved (his) beard.’ Or: Haaji/ mozelee ndevu. ‘Haaji shaved (his) beard.’

Nazo ndrevu/ ndre/ nelpe. ‘He has a long white beard.’

onyeeza Haruuni ka ndrevu kamiili [st.] ‘he was shown Haruuni with his full beard’

Wank’bulá/ hingila khuusi/ chilawa/ ndrevuze/ huwa nelpe. ‘My grandfather dives (into water), when he emerges, his beard becomes white.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is mwiiko, a wooden spoon used for stirring food, especially zijo, which is white and usually sticks to the mwiiko.)

- dewe interj. be warned; [pron. dewé]
Takulasoowa/ dewé/ jawabu iyi. ‘Bear in mind, be warned, you will be made to swear concerning this matter.’
- ku-deydeya v. [cf. Som. kuddayad “imitation” DSI 372] (deydeyele or dedeele) mimic, imitate Mi/ hupata kumdeydeya Ali. ‘I am able to mimic Ali.’
Mi/ spati/ kumdeydeya Ali. ‘I am not able to mimic Ali.’
Nuuru/ mdeydeyele Ali. ‘Nuuru mimiced Ali.’
rel.
ku-deydeyeka v. p/s.
ku-deydeyesha v. caus.
Nuuru/ mdeydeyesheze mwaana/ Ali. ‘Nuuru caused the child to mimic Ali.’
ku-deydey(e)shana v. caus. rec.
ku-deydey(e)shaka v. caus. p/s.
ku-deydey(e)sheleza v. caus. appl.
ku-deydey(e)shelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- dibi n. see under diwi
- dibiði adj. deserted
dali ni dibiði ni^hako sarkaali [nt.] ‘the country is bereft, there is no government’
Mukhta^u ye/ weno muyi/ dibiði/ ulushile/ enzele/ wapeele/ weenziwe/ khabari/ kuwaa dafa/ zo^{te}/ zimo kanisaani. ‘When he saw that the town was deserted, he flew and went and gave his companions the news that all the kites were in the church.’
Muuyi/ uwaliko dibiði. ‘The town was deserted.’
- ku-difa’a v. defend Muunt^hu/ laazimu/ kudifa’a ruuhuye/ na maaliyé. ‘One must defend his soul and his money.’
- difaa’i n. defense
Diini/ huhada difaa’i/ nafsi/ ni waajibu. ‘Religion says self-defense is a religious duty.’
- digdigi n. 9/10 a type of gazelle digdigi uyu or digdigi iyi ‘this gazelle’; digdigi izi or digdigi awa ‘these gazelles’ Mp^hisi/ hupeenda/ kuja digdigi. ‘Hyenas like to eat dikdiks.’
Nama/ ya digdigi/ ni halaali/ hujoowa. ‘The meat of dikdiks is lawful, it can be eaten.’
rel.
chi-digdigi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-digdigi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- digi n. warning; [pron. digi] khpa^a digi ‘to give a warning’
- ku-digila v. [Som. dig- “warn” Ab 61] (digilile) warn, announce (The velar stop g is realized as a spirant in intervocalic position in Somali, and Chimiini retains this spirantization. The sound g is distinct from the uvular gh.) Abú/ chidigilile/ si/ kuwa tahaðari. ‘Abu warned us to be careful.’
Hamadi/ gafiile/ chiza kichidigila/ si/ tarafu ya iyo itakutulukó. ‘Hamadi failed to warn us about what would happen.’
Hutasawara/ kuwa ni laazimu/ we/ kumdigilaa ye/ chiza khkalaant^ha/ Mwiini/ niingi. ‘Perhaps you ought to warn him not to stay too long in Brava.’

Khudigiliiló/ nt^hakhubla. ‘Who warned you did not kill you.’ (A proverb.) kumdigila ‘to warn him’
Kuwasilake/ bilaa kudigila/ nt^haykumpeendeza/ Nuuru. ‘His arriving without warning, announcing (his coming) did not please Nuuru.’
Mi/ nimdigiliilé/ Omari/ chiza kumpasa/ peesa/ Huseeni. ‘I warned Omari that he should not lend money to Huseeni.’
Mi/ nimdigiliilé/ Omari/ na khatari. ‘I warned Omari of the danger.’
Mi/ nimdigiliilee yé/ chiza khtosha/ kuwa iyo/ itakuwa sahali/ khfanyoowa. ‘I warned him not to think that it would be easy to do.’
Muunt^hu/ chikhudigila/ haapati/ eeti. ‘When one warns you he does not Get blame.’ (A proverb.)
Muunt^hu/ chikhudigila/ haapati/loomu. ‘When one warns you he does not get blame.’ (A proverb.)
Nimdigiliilé/ Hamadi/ sije/ zijo izo. ‘I warned Hamadi not to eat that food.’
Nimdigiliilé/ Nuuru/ chiza kumpa Hamadi/ chibuuku. ‘I warned Nuuru not to give Hamadi a book.’ Cf. Nimdigiliilé/ Nuuru/ simpe/ Hamadi/ chibuuku. ‘I warned Nuuru that he shouldn’t give Nuuru a book.’
Nimdigiliilé/ Nuuru/ sooloke/ numba iyo. ‘I warned Nuuru not to go to that house.’
Nimdigiliilé/ Omari/ chiza kuuya/ kaaka/ numbaani/ mara yingine. ‘I warned Omari not to come to my house again (lit. another time).’
Omari/ mdigiliile Baaná. ‘Omari warned Baana.’
We/ waliko digiliilá/ chiza khfakata. ‘We were warned not to run.’
Ye/ digiliile/ ka chiza khpasooa/ Hasani/ peesa. ‘He warned against lending Hasani money.’
Ye/ digiliile/ kuwa nt^ha’ikuwaaliko/ jawaabu/ sahali/ ya mushkila iyo. ‘He warned that there was no easy answer to this problem.’
Ye/ digiliile/ kuwa stakuwako mushkila/ niingi. ‘He warned that there would be a lot of problems.’
Ye/ digiliile/ tarafu iyo. ‘He warned about that.’
Ye/ jaribilile kumdigilaa ye/ na khatari/ waaðeche. ‘He had tried to warn him of the obvious dangers.’
Ye/ ndigiliile/ mi/ ka chiza kuula/ nuumba/ ikulu/ kana iyi. ‘He warned me against buying such a big house (lit. house a big one like this).’
rel.
ku-digiloowa v. pass. (digiliila) be warned Muunt^hu/ hudigiloowa/ mi suura. ‘For a person to be warned is good.’
Omari/ digiliila/ chiza keendra/ numbaani/ ka Hamadi. ‘Omar was warned not to go to Hamadi’s house.’
Si/ chidigiliilá/ kuwa hutasawara/ si/ chiza kuwasila/ ka wakhti. ‘We were warned of the possibility that we might not arrive on time.’
Wadigiliila/ wo/ tarafu ya khatari. ‘They were warned of the risks.’
Ye/ hadigiloowi. ‘He won’t be warned.’

dighlo

n. 9/10 a laxative of local origin dikhlo?
dighlo iyi ‘this laxative’; dighlo izi ‘these large quantities of laxatives’ Haliima/ nele dighlo/ nakhsula khshuwisha. ‘Haliima drank a laxative, she wants to have a bowel movement.’

n-dila

n. 9/10 [Sw. n jia SSED 339] road, path, street, way, right (vs. wrong)
Chija niingi/ maana/ huwa ikulu/ hakhaadiri/ khpita ndilaani. ‘If she (a pregnant woman) eats too much, the baby becomes big and is not able to come out (lit. to pass outside).’
Chija niingi/ maana/ huwa ikulu/ hakhaadiri/ kulawa/ khpita karkaa ndila. ‘If she (a pregnant woman) eats too much, the baby becomes big and is not able to come out, to pass outside.’
Chilawa ndilaani/ chimkharibisha muunt^hu. ‘He went outside and welcomed the man.’
Chimera ndilaa nk^hulu/ ya muuyi. ‘He searched for the main road of the town.’
Chiraasha/ ndila iyi/ hatá/ shkoma nuumba/ nk^hulu/ mardaadi. ‘He followed this road until he reached a large beautiful house.’

Chishikaa ndila/ kendra ka maskiini. ‘He kept on his way and went to the poor man.’

Chishika ndilaze/ kendra kaake. ‘He went on his way to his place.’

Chiwonaa ndila/ chiraasha. ‘He saw a road and followed it.’

Iyo/ nii ndila. ‘That’s right.’

Karkaa ndila/ chidirkamana/ na watumishi/ wa sultaan/ naawó/ wanacho shṭaná. ‘On the way he met with the servants of the sultan while they were angry [with him].’

Karkaa ndila/ siimba/ chiwa’uza mweenziwe. ‘On the road, Lion asked his friend [a question].’

Karkaa ndila/ wachimwona ndovu/ kaleent^he/ nt^hini yaa muti. ‘On the way, they saw an elephant sitting under a tree.’

khshikaa ndila ‘keep the road -- i.e. get going, be off, take to the road’

Chilawa/ chishikaa ndila/ kendra maduriini. ‘He left and took to the road to go to the bush.’

Hasani/ chishikaa ndila/ kuruda numbaani. ‘Hasani took to the road to return home.’

khṭindaa ndila ‘to cut the road – i.e. (of thieves) to stand in the middle of the road and stop and loot travellers’

Kilaa jawaabu/ inayo ndilaye. ‘Every issue has its own logic, reason.’ (A proverb which conveys the idea that there is always an explanation, a reason behind an action etc.)

Kufa/ nii ndila/ kijamo/ hupita. ‘Death is a road, and everyone passes along it.’ (A proverbial saying.)

kuwanayoo ndila ‘[lit.] to have road -- meaning: to be correct, to be in the right. Mostly used when two persons have different opinions or positions in a dispute, to say that one of them is in the right.

Omari/ nayoo ndila/ kumera kazi yingine. ‘It is right for Omari to look for another job.’

We/ nayoo ndilá/ khsulá kiiwa/ zaaydi/ tarafu ya iyi. ‘You are right to want to know more about this.’

Mi/ nt^hete chijamuchá/ noloshele naa cho/ ndilaani. ‘I took my plate and went with it outside.’

Mwanaamke/ shfikira/ shfikira/ chiwona/ kuwa kooḍi/ za chizeele/ ni kooḍi/ zaa ndila. ‘The girl thought and thought and saw that the words of the old woman were the roads of right [lit. of the way].’

Omari/ nayoo ndila. ‘Omari is right (i.e. Omari has right on his side, not the person that Omari is disputing with).’

ndila chigobe ‘short road’

Ndila/ ifungeene. ‘The road is closed.’

Ndila/ ifungishile. ‘The road is closed.’

Ndila/ ifungushile. ‘The road is open.’

ndila iriiri ‘a narrow road or a congested road’ ndila mp^haana ‘a wide road’

ndilaa ndre ‘long road’

ndila nfuunge ‘a closed road’

ndila waazi ‘open, clear road’

Ndile/ ni waazi. ‘The road is open.’

ndila ya aadi ‘the main or normal road (as opposed to ndila ya bardunaale) ndila ya bardunaale ‘a road, parallel to a main road, that is used when the main road is not passable; the ndila ya bardunaale has red sand which does not get muddy like the main road, but has many bushes and trees which hamper passage, making the main road more suitable when it is passable’ ndila ya baskiili ‘a bicycle path’ ndila ya bulaaṭi ‘road through sand dunes, used only by four-wheel vehicles or heavy trucks’ ndila ya gaari ‘a road for trucks’ ndila ya laame ‘tarmac road’

ndila ya majiwe ‘a stone road’

ndila ya matotope ‘muddy road’

ndila ya m̄taanga ‘dirt, sand road’ ndila ya muzdahimu ‘a crowded, busy road’ ndila ya nafasi ‘an empty road’ ndila ya reeli ‘railroad track’ ndila ya waant^{hu} ‘a footpath for humans’ ndilaze ni mbili muun^{thi} wa aaxera [st.] ‘its roads are two, the day of the hereafter’ Nii ndila/ si/ laazimu/ khtuluba/ pesa ziitu/ kurudiloowa. ‘It is only right that we should demand our money back.’
Njibiile/ kuwaa ye/ lazile muyiini/ kaawo/ na isá/ mbelee ndila. ‘He answered me that he had left his [lit. their] town and now was on the road.’
Sarmaḷa/ chilindra ndilaani/ chimḷataa ndrúwé/ kingila kumera rukhsa. ‘The carpenter waited outside and sent his relative in to seek permission.’
Shika ndilayo/ yolokele/ kiinu. ‘Get going, take yourself home!’
Siwo/ ndila/ Faatima/ kiza kumziyaraṭa mbujé. ‘It is not right for Faatima to refuse to visit her sister.’
Siwo/ ndila/ Hamadi/ kuḷata kaazi/ isa. ‘It would not be right for Hamadi to quit work now.’
Siwo/ ndila/ we/ kumbigila Hamadi/ nk^{hele}. ‘It would not be right for you to scold Hamadi.’
Wakomeelopó/ sarmaḷa/ chilindra ndilaani. ‘When they arrived, the carpenter waited outside.’
We/ nayoo ndilá/ kuwa n^{thaku}/ sababu/ si/ kooloka. ‘You are right that there is no reason for us to go.’

rel.

chi-dila (zi-) n. dim.

Komelopo ibanya ya muuyi/ chiwona ndila ya gaari/ ka kubli/ na chidila cha hoolá/ kusootoke. ‘When he reached the outskirts of town, he saw a road for cars on the right and a pathway for animals on his left.’

chi-n-dila (zi-n-) n. 7/8 sim. narrow, small road

i-dila (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. large road idila ipaana ‘a wide aug. road’; midila mipaana ‘wide aug. roads’ dimokhraadi

n. democracy

N^{thi}/ za dimokhraadi/ yiko horiya/ ya kooḷi. ‘In democratic nations there is freedom of speech.’

dinaari

n. [Sw. dinari SSED 75; Ar. dīnār W 306] a coin used by Arabs

Sku mooyi/ Abunawaasi/ peete/ dinaari/ miya. ‘One day Abunawaasi found one hundred dinaris.’ (The pronounced cited in an isolative one; it is also possible to have /pete dinarii miya/.)

i-diindiini

n. [Som. diin-diin] tortoise

Huhadoowa/ idiindiini/ ni karka hayawaani/ hu’insho niingí. ‘It is said that the tortoise is among the wild animals that live for a long time.’

Omari/ hinendra ka tartiibu/ kana/ idiindiini/ ha’ikhadiroowi/ kinendrowa naaye. ‘Omari walks slowly like a tortoise, it is not possible for one to walk with him.’

dinga

ideo. of coming unexpectedly; [pron. dingá]

Hamadi/ ile numbaani/ dingá/ waant^{hu}/ wont^{he}/ yaweete. ‘Hamadi came home dingá, everybody was amazed.’ (Both dingá and wont^{he} are raised in pitch.)

Omari/ sho khfilatiḷoowa/ tu/ wasiḷiile/ numbaani/ ka Abú/ dingá!/ haṭá inahiḷa. ‘Omari, without being expected, just arrived at Abu’s house dinga! even there was shock.’

diini

n. 9/10 [Sw. dini SSED 75; Ar. dīn W 306] religion chiskaṭile diini na khsooma qunuuti [nt.] ‘let us rely on our faith and pray with

- humility’
bilaa diini ‘without religion’
dini ya islaamu ‘Islam’ dini ya kiristiyaano ‘Christianity’ dini ya yahuudi ‘Judaism’ Khamiisi/ waliko mwenye diini. ‘Khamiisi was a religious man [i.e. pious, of good character].’
khpenda diini ‘to love religion’
Khtomola ahdi/ ni kama khtala deeni/ na diini/ huwafarama waant^hu/ kulipa deni zaawo. ‘To give a promise is like assuming a debt, and religion advises people to repay their debts.’
kubaraṭa qur’aani/ na mambo ya diini ‘to study the Quran and subjects related to religion’ leeta bismiḷa mweenza raasha diini [st.] ‘say bismiḷa, my friend, and follow religion’ muunt^hu/ mwenye diini ‘a religious person’ Na kubaraṭa diini/ ni waajibu. ‘And to learn religion is an obligation.’
ndruuza ni waajibu amri ya diini/ khansa kiwoowa mas’ala sitini [st.] ‘O my brothers, it is obligatory [to know] the matters of religion, especially for sixty questions to be known’ stenzi za diini ‘religious songs’
- n-dini n. vagina, cunt milomo yaa ndini/ mikulu ‘labia major’ milomo yaa ndini/ zihaba ‘labia minor’ Mwana ndini ya maamo. ‘Son of your mother’s cunt!’ (An insult.) Or:
Mwandinaa maamo.
Omari/ mtilee muke/ chaala/ ndiniini/ dhukh dhukh dhukh. ‘Omari inserted his finger into the woman’s vagina repeatedly dhukh dhukh dhukh.’
rel.
mi-dini pl.
- diira n. 9/10 [Sw. dira SSED 75; Ar. dā’ira W 301] compass; eyeglasses dira ya iwa ‘sun-glasses’
dira ya maato ‘eye-glasses’
diiraye ‘her glasses’
dira zaawo ‘their glasses’
Omari/ mvundiḷile Hamadi/ diira. ‘Omari broke Hamadi’s eye-glasses.’
Omari/ mvundiḷile Hamadi/ diiraye. ‘Omari broke Hamadi’s eye-glasses.’
Omari vuzile dira ya Hamadi. ‘Omari broken Hamadi’s sun-glasses.’ Or:
Omari/ vuzile Hamadi/ diiraye.
rel.
chi-diira (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-diira (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- dira’a n. 9/0 a kind of light, transparent cloth worn as a dress dira’a iyi ‘this dress’ (cf. dira’a izi ‘these dresses’) Dira’a za Indya/ suurá. ‘It is dira’a from India that are good.’
Dira’a za Indya/ suurá/ hushiindra/ za Dubáy. ‘It is dira’a from India that surpass [those] of Dubai.’
Nuzile dira’á/ za Indyá. ‘I bought Indian dira’a.’
rel.
chi-dira’a (zi-) n. dim. 7/8 (disparaging use) Chidira’a gani/ icho. ‘What kind of chidira’a is this (suggesting that it is not a good one).’
- dirhamu n. poetic cent hatta dirhamu mo haraamu khatari [st.] ‘even one cent earned illegally is dangerous’ na zo ni alfu dirhamu/ kubloowa meema faahimu [st.] ‘it was a thousand dirhams/to have the virtuous scholar killed'

diriri

n. [Som. dirir DSI 191] dispute, fight lata jawaabu niingi lata diriri [st.] 'stop raising many objections, stop disputing'

i-dirisha (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. dirisha SSED 75; Pers.] window Haliima/ simeme idirishaani. 'Haliima stood on the window.'
idirisha ya chuuma 'an iron window' idirisha yaa mbawo 'wooden window' khfunga idirisha 'to close a window' khfungula idirisha 'to open a window'
Mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ oyo/ uko idirishaani/ chimwona/ Hasani/ fakeete/ ingile mashakaani. 'That daughter of the sultan, who was standing at the window, saw Hasani and ran off and entered into the bush.'
Nuumbaya/ chihaba/ laakini/ inayo madirisha miingi. 'My house is small but it has many windows.' (A riddle, the answer to which is chilaavi 'a fish-trap'.)
Vunzile idiriisha/ mwana uje/ vuunziló. 'He broke the window, that boy, that's what he did.'
zilango za idirisha 'the doors of a window' zuma za idirisha 'the iron/steel of the window'

dirito

adj. direct Haayiwi/ ma'anaye/ dirito/ haayiwi/ ma'anaye/ sahali. 'It does not become, it means, direct; it does not become, it means, easy.' (The speaker is discussing the proverb Limi/ nt'aliná/ mwishpa. 'The tongue does not have a bone.' In the absence of a bone, the tongue can say whatever it wishes, it's easy to lie, there is nothing preventing telling lies. But if there were a bone, it would not be possible to directly and easily tell lies.) ndila dirito 'a direct road'

diritoore

n. director
Tuuma/ waawaye/ ni diritoore. 'Tuuma's father is a director.'

ku-dirka

v. [Sw. diriki SSED 70] (dirshile) reach s.t., reach for; catch up with, equal, overtake; save (from danger)

Chimdirkaa muke/ mooyi/ mzele/ nt^ho. 'He met a very old woman.'
Chizeele/ chishkila/ chishkila/ haṭá/ mwaana/ chichidirka/ icho chijumba/ chichidafkula. 'The old woman descended and descended until the boy (who in the story was riding on her back while she flew) could reach that nest and snatched it.'

Dafa/ ziilopó/ nt^haskudirka/ karaayle. 'When the kites reached [the town where the crows had lived], they did not meet any crows.'

haṭá/ ichiwa ziwovu izo/ zinakhudirkaa we/ na ahliyó 'even if these evil deeds affect you and your relatives'

Khabari/ zimdirshile Hamadi. 'The news reached Hamadi.'

Kooði/ zimdirshile Hamadi. 'The news reached Hamadi.'

kudirka faanya 'to make anything, do anything'

Hamadi/ na wakhtí/ nafasi/ kilaa chiint^hu/ hudirka/ faanya.

'Hamadi has a lot of time, he can do anything.'

Mi/ siná/ kudirka/ khfanya jwabu iyo/ ka sababu wakhtíwa/ iriiri. 'Me, I cannot do that thing because my time is very limited.'

kudirka ruuhu 'to save oneself' kumdirka ruuhu (lit.) to reach him the soul – i.e. to save s.o.'

Omari/ waliko ṭa'abaani/ kaazi/ la'aani/ Hamadi/ mdirshilo ruuhú. 'Omari was in a bad condition, without a job, it was Hamadi who saved him (e.g. maybe got him a job).’

Hamadi/ gaari/ imvundikiŋiŋe mahala khatari/ Sheekhi/ mdirshilo ruuhú. ‘Hamadi had his car break down at a bad place, it was Sheekhi who saved his soul (i.e. went and helped him).’

Maayi/ yadirishilee nguwo. ‘The clothes got wet – lit. wetness reached the clothes.’

Maayi/ yakhudirshile? ‘Did the water reach you (i.e. were you hit by the water that we threw out)?’

Mdirishile Ali/ ka masoomo. ‘He caught up with Ali in his studies.’

Mi/ wakhtíwa/ iriiri/ siná/ kudirka/ kooloka/ kumlangala Hamadi. ‘Me, my time is very restricted, I cannot (lit. I do not have to reach) go and visit Hamadi.’

Mwaana/ dirshile gaari. ‘The child reached the car (e.g. which was about to take off).’

Mwaana/ oloshelopó/ mdirishile mweenziwe/ ineeme/ naakuŋa. ‘When she went, she found her friend bent over crying.’

Nakhfakata/ kudirkaa sala. ‘I am running to reach (where) the praying (is taking place).’

Nch^hiza khfakata/ simdirki. ‘If I don’t run, I won’t reach him.’

Ni hodari/ laakini/ hamdirki/ Ali. ‘He is clever, but he cannot equal Ali.’

Nk^hachiza khfakata/ skamdirke. ‘If I had not run, I wouldn’t have reached him.’

Nk^hawa skufakata/ skamdirke. ‘If I had not run, I wouldn’t have reached him.’

Wachimrasha kumshiika/ laakini/ nt^hawakhaadira/ kumdirka. ‘They chased after him in order to catch him, but they were not able to reach him.’

wanadirke khsimama karka Aarafa/ ka waqtiwe Makka al-musharrafa [st.] ‘may they reach Mount Arafa and stand on it/ at the proper time, then go to Mecca, the most revered [of towns]’ wadirke waaya khaansa wake hisani [st.] ‘go to the help of human creatures, especially middle-aged women’

Wakharibiliŋopó/ mubjana wa piŋi/ Faraji/ chibiga lkeŋe/ dirkani ruhu ziinu/ mi/ nmaliizé. ‘When they neared [the island], the second young man, Faraji, shouted: save yourselves, I am finished.’

Washfuraha kuwona chisiwa/ laakini/ ba’ada ya daqiiqa/ habamó/ Saalehe/ chihaba chaawo/ chibiga lkeŋe/ ndirkaani/ ndirkaani/ mi/ nakugitowa ka nt^hiini. ‘They rejoiced to see the island, but after a few minutes, Saalehe, the youngest of them, shouted: help me! help me! [lit. reach for me]. I am being pulled down from below.’

Ye/ chimdirka/ sultaani/ kaleent^he/ na mwanaamkewe. ‘He found the sultan sitting with his daughter.’

Ye/ mdirshile mnaadisho/ nakhtinda ngoombe. ‘He found the auctioneer slaughtering a cow.’

rel.

ku-dirkamana v. (-dirkameene) meet

Chilangale/ mbele/ ndirkamane na mwanaamke. ‘Let’s see, first, let me meet with the girl.’

Dhibu niingi/ zidirkameno naami. ‘Many difficulties have been encountered by me.’

Hamadi/ oshale Mwiini/ ye/ sulile kudirkamana na mkulé/ laakini/ kodele naaye/ ka telefono/ tu. ‘Hamadi went to Brava. He wanted to meet with his brother, but he just spoke to him on the telephone.’

Karkaa ndila/ chidirkamana na muunt^hu/ mooyi/ ngamiilaye/ yingilo baaŋi. ‘On the way he encountered a man whose camel had gone astray.’

Karkaa ndila/ chidirkamana/ na mwanaamke/ mooyi/ msuura. ‘On the way he met a beautiful girl.’

Karkaa ye/ nakinendro'ineendró/ chidirkamana/ na muunt'hu/ mooyi.
'While he was walking here and there, he met a man.'

mahaḷaa wowi/ hudirkamano na ṭawalá 'a place where the river meets with the sea'

Mi/ ndirkamene na dhibu/ niingi. 'I have encountered many difficulties.'

Mi/ ndirkameené/ na Haliima/ mara ya kaandra/ mukḥṭaa yé/ mziyareṭo maamé. 'I met Haliima for the first time when she visited my mother.'

Mi/ niilé/ nambila naa muké/ mzeele/ mooyi/ waa mi/ ndirkameno

naayé/ kuwaa mi/ nt^hakudirkamana/ naa muke/ mooyi/ mzeele/nt^ho. 'I came and was told by an old woman whom I met that I would meet a very old woman.'

Ndirkamene naa ye/ bilaa khfilatila. 'I met him unexpectedly.'

Sku mooyi/ walwaawo/ wachidirkamana/ wachilaana. 'One day they met each other and they fought.'

Zamaani/ nt'ho/ mi/ ndirkameené/ na waawaye/ mwaana/ uyu. 'A very long time ago I met with this boy's father (lit. his father/ this boy).'

ku-dirkamanoowa v. pass.

Kuwavila waant'hu/ kudirkamanoowa/ kuwonanoowa/ kpanana salaamu/ na kubadilana ra'yi. 'To call people to meet and to see one another and greet one another and exchange ideas.'

Mooyi/ karka dhibhu niingi zidirkamena naazó/ ni kuja la'aani. 'One among the many difficulties met with (them) was lack of food.'

ku-dirkana v. rec. (-dirkeene) reach one another ku-dirkika v. p/s.

Hawdirkiki/ walá/ hawshiikiki. 'It cannot be reached nor can it be held.'
(A riddle, the answer to which is mooshi 'smoke').

ku-dirkiloowa v. appl. pass.

Dirkilila nakuboola. 'He was caught red-handed stealing.'

ku-dirkila v. appl. (dirkilile) reach at; reach s.t. with; surprise s.o. (e.g. while committing adultery), find doing s.t.

Mi/ nakhsuulá/ chiruuda/ khudirkila paapa/ apa. 'When I return I want to find you right here.'

Mubliwe/ ilopo ka mundraani/ chimdirkila naayé/ naakuḷó. 'When her husband came home from the farm, he found her crying.'

ku-dirkisha v. caus. cause to reach ku-dirkoowa v. pass.

Chiint'hu/ hudirkowa cho chihabá. 'Something is fixed (should be fixed) while it is small.' (A saying.)

Duniya/ ha'idirkoowi. 'The world cannot be reached.' (A proverb, which says that one cannot get everything that one wants.)

ku-dirsha v. caus. (dirshiize) make s.t. ready in time; prepare s.t. in a hurry; give news about s.t. to s.o.

kudirsha chaakuja 'to prepare food hastily, e.g. for someone who is hungry'

kumdirsha chaakuja 'to take food hastily to someone who is hungry'

Mdirshize Hamadi/ chaakuja. 'She took the food hastily to Hamadi.'

kumdirsha gaari 'to cause to reach a car or truck (e.g. by carrying the person) before it leaves'

kumdirsha kooḍi 'to cause someone to get news hastily'

Mdirshize Hamadi/ kooḍi. 'He conveyed the news to Hamadi hastily.'

Mandra za kudirsha/ zilada. 'Quick bread (a special type of bread made in Brava) is tasty.'

ku-dirshiliza v. caus. appl.

Haliima/ fakeete/ kumdirshiliza waawaye/ kuja/ yaa khaḍa/ ragiile.

'Haliima ran to prepare food quickly for her father's lunch, she is late.'

kumdirshiliza chaakuja ‘to prepare food hastily for someone’ Mdirshilize Hamadi/ chaakuja. ‘She prepared food hastily for Hamadi.’
Umi/ nakhpikaa kuja/ nakhsula wakudirshiliza waanawe/ nt^hasa keendrá/ chuwooni. ‘Umi is cooking food, she wants to make it ready in a hurry for her children before they go to school.’
Uzile makala/ kumdirshiliza Hamadi/ chaakuja. ‘She bought charcoal to use to prepare food hastily for Hamadi.’ (Syn. Observe that the infinitive verb is a benefactive applied verb, but at the same time it seems to make possible an unmarked form of the instrumental noun that can be deleted under identity with the object of the main verb.
 While it is not necessary for the beneficiary to actually be mentioned, it is still implied: Uzile makala/ kudirshiliza chaakuja. ‘He bought charcoal to use to prepare food for someone.’)

ku-dirshoowa v. caus. pass.

Hamadi/ dirshiza chaakuja/ na Ali. ‘Hamadi had food prepared for him quickly by Ali.’

Hamadi/ dirshiza koodi/ na Ali. ‘[Lit.] Hamadi was caused to have the news reach him by Ali.’

Mwaana/ dirshiza gaari/ na Ali. ‘The child was caused to reach the car (e.g. before it departed) by Ali.’

n-diiwa

n. 9/10 [Sw. njiwa SSED 339] pigeon

Maatoye/ masuura/ kamba ya ndiwa. ‘Her eyes are beautiful like those of a pigeon.’

mayaank^huku/ ya ndiwa ‘pigeon eggs’

Nama ya ndiwa/ lada. ‘Pigeon meat is delicious.’

Nama ya ndiwa/ ni nama ya janaani. ‘The meat of a pigeon is the meat of heaven.’

Ndiwa/ mbili/ izije/ schanza/ kiimba/ kaawo/ zijumbaani/ naawó/ wachizaala/waana/ wiingi. ‘Those two pigeons began to sing in their nests and they gave birth to many children.’

ndiwa za janna ‘the pigeons of paradise’ ndiwa za maduuri ‘a pigeon, smaller than town pigeons, of a muddy-red color;

 good to eat’

numba ya ndiwa ‘pigeon coop (lit. house)’

suura/ kana ndiwa ‘as beautiful as a pigeon’

Ye/ chiwona ilu/ yaa muti/ uko ndiwa. ‘He saw that on the top of the tree there was a pigeon.’

diiwaani

n. 9/10 [Sw. diwani SSED 76; Ar.] a book or anthology of poems; a registry diwani iyi ‘this book of poems’ diwani zaawo ‘their books of poems’

Karka diiwaani/ ya Munishiipiyo/ nt^hi/ yiko kharibu ya muskitini/ ka Madani/nda Nuuru. ‘In the register of the municipality, the land that is near Madani mosque belongs to Nuuru.’

diwi

n. [Som. dibi DSI 184] bull; ox; [pron. diwi or dibi]

Dibii mbili/ askali/ karka moro mooyi. ‘Two bulls do not dwell in the same pen.’
 (A proverb.)

dibi uyu or dibi iyi ‘this bull’; dibi izi ‘these bulls’

Nii dibi. ‘He’s a bull (i.e. big but with no brains).’

Siwo/ diwi humrishó. ‘He is not a bull who would impregnate (a cow).’

rel.

chi-diwi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-diwi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

nguvu/ kana idiwi ‘as strong as an ox’

diya

n. 9/10 [Sw. dia SSED 75; Ar.] blood-money, compensation for an injury to s.o.

Laazimu/ khtomolaa diya. ‘It is necessary to pay blood compensation.’
Wapejaa diya. ‘They were given blood compensation.’
Wa’iize/ diya. ‘They refused the blood compensation.’
Watomelee diya. ‘They paid blood compensation.’

ku-diyarisha

v. prepare
 rel.

ku-diyarishiliza v. appl.

Ye/ mdiyarishilize mubjiwe/ spageeti. ‘She prepared spaghetti for her husband.’

ku-diyarishilizoowa v. appl. pass.

Muunt^hu/ oyo/ diyarishiliza spageeti/ ni Hamadi. ‘The man who was prepared spaghetti for is Hamadi.’

Spageeti/ diyarishiliza Hamadi. ‘Spaghetti was prepared for Hamadi.’ Or:
Hamadi/ diyarishiliza spageeti. ‘Hamadi was prepared spaghetti for.’

Spageeti/ diyarishiliza Hamadi/ ni tayaari. ‘The spaghetti that was prepared for Hamadi is ready.’

ku-diyarishoowa v. pass.

Haliima/ monyeze mwanaashkewe/ jisa hudiyarishoowa zijó. ‘Haliima showed her daughter how zijo is prepared’

diizali

n. [Eng. diesel] diesel truck

Gaari/ za diizali/ nii nguvu/ kolko gari za banziina. ‘Diesel trucks are stronger than petrol trucks.’

dizinteriya

n. dysentery

Maraði ya dizenteriya/ hunyowa maazi. [H!H] ‘Dysentery (if one has it) there is blood in the stool.’

doobi

n. [Sw. dobi SSED 76; Hind] place where clothes are washed (contrasts with lawandaayi, which refers to a professional laundry); a washerman (=mfulaa nguwo ‘a washer of clothes’)

khisa/ ya mp^huundra/ wa doobi ‘the story of the washerman’s donkey’ (a story from Swahili translated by Mohammad Imam Abasheikh into Chimiini)

dobla

n. 9/10 [Sw. dola SSED 76; Ar.] government; [pron. dobla or dowla]

Dobla aadili/ ha’iburbuki. ‘Just government does not collapse.’ (A proverb.)

Dobla ya Aldo/ Moor/ inakudaalata khfanyilizaa dawa/ na kiyookola/ ikhtisaadi/ ya muuyi. ‘The government of Aldo Moor is trying hard to cure and to save the economy of the country.’

Haata/ skola za dobla/ sfuunzila. ‘Even government schools have been closed.’

Kana dobla la’aani/ kheeri/ dobla mbovu. ‘Instead of being without a government, a bad one is better.’ (A saying.)

Na skola za dobla/ / sfuunzila. ‘Government schools also have been closed.’

Teena/ chiwa mwaana/ uyu/ nakiineenza/ amri/ za dowla/ naayé/ umo mp^hinguuni. ‘Then it came to be that this boy was conducting the affairs of government while he was in chains.’

rel.

u-dobla n. [pron. udobla] government umatiyo wanakhsuula udobla / hufakata hooloka khsooma skoola =[st.] ‘your community wants to be part of the government, they run away and go to the [secular] schools’

dobla

adj. big-hearted; [pron. dobla or dowla]

Fulaani/ dobla. ‘So-and-so is big-hearted.’

muuyi usho dowla naa takhupo gari [nt.] ‘in a town without government, who will provide justice?’

ku-dooda

v. [Som. dood- "to discuss" DSI 192] (dodeele) complain about what one has received, asking for more of something; argue, trying to get more; claim Dodelee kuja. 'He complained about the food not being enough.'

Omari/ mkali/ kudooda. 'Omari is good, sharp at arguing.'

Sidodeeni. 'You (pl.) don't complain!'

rel.

ku-doodata v. argue

Hamadi/ nakudoodata. 'Hamadi is arguing.'

ku-dodeka v. p/s.

ku-dodeoowa v. appl. pass.

Omari/ nakudodeoowa. 'Omari is being argued for.'

ku-dodeela v. appl. (dodeleele)

Sidodeeni. 'You (pl.) don't complain about it!'

ku-doodisha v. caus. ask for more of something variant form: kudoodesha (Phon. This stem is exceptional in that both the expected form kudoodesha as well as the unexpected kudoodisha are permitted. Notice that it is only the causative that permits variation. The passive/stative and applied stems both show the expected vowel harmony.)

Nuuru/ mdodishize mwaana/ chaakuja. 'Nuuru had the child complain about the food (being too little).'

ku-dodeshana v. caus. rec.

ku-dodesheka v. caus. p/s.

ku-dodesheleza v. caus. appl.

variant form: kudodishiliza

Nuuru/ mdodishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ chaakuja. 'Nuuru caused Suufi's child to complain about the food being too little.'

ku-dodeshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

variant form: kudodishilizanya

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wadodishilizenye waana/ chaakuja. 'Nuuru and Suufi caused one another's children to complain about the food being too little.'

ku-dodoowa v. pass.

ku-doodata v. = ku-dooda

Omari/ hudoodata niingi. 'Omari complains, argues a lot.' Or: Omari/ hudoodata/ niingi.

Omari/ nakudoodata kuwa hakhiye/ nthakhpooa. 'Omari was complaining that his rights were not given to him.'

Omari/ nakudoodata kuwa nuumba/ ndaaké. 'Omari is arguing that the house is his.'

dooði

n. 9/10 complaint, dispute, argument, controversy

Baazi/ jaribile kuwa waaðehe/ na jawaabu/ za dooði. 'Baazi tried to stay clear of controversial matters.'

Dooðize/ hazimali. 'His complaints have no end.' (A proverbial saying.)

Hakhiikha/ ya kuwaa mi/ nfunzile mnaangó/ ha'itifiloowi/ dooði. 'The fact that I locked the door is not disputed.'

Jisa dooði/ yanziizó/ nt^haasá/ hayisoowi. 'How the dispute began remains unknown.'

Mi/ ha'itahajoowi/ ku'akida/ muhima/ inayo adabú/ na ihtiraamú/ karka dooði/ izi. 'I hardly need stress the importance of discretion in these discussions.'

Mi/ mbaliko waaðehé/ nt^ho/ kuwaa mi/ nakhsuļa khfuungá/ dooði iyi. 'I have been very clear that I want to put an end to this dispute.'

Sinaayo/ ismu/ ya dooði. 'I do not have any complaint.'

dokhani (Ø, ma-)

adj. [Som. doqon DSI 195] stupid, moronic

Apa/ nt^hi/ nzimaye/ madokhaani. 'This entire country is (nothing but) morons.'

Dokhani/ ha'isi/ hisaabu. 'Someone stupid does not know accountability.' (A saying.)

Dokhani/ haleeti/ faayda. 'Stupidity does not bring profit.' (A saying.)

Dokhani/ hutambula ka chinume. ‘Stupidity understands things late.’ (A proverb.)
Dokhani/ mtume Muusa/ mink^hariiló. ‘The stupid one, the prophet Moses curses him.’

Dokhani/ nt^haná/ nasiibu. ‘Someone stupid does not have luck, good fortune.’ (A saying.)

Hamadi/ ni dokhani. ‘Hamadi is a moron.’

Haṭá/ sku mooyi/ skupata/ kuwona muunt^hu/ dokhaani/ kama uyu. ‘Never [lit. even one day] have I had a chance to see a person as stupid as this one.’

Jaani/ kuwaa ye/ ni dokhani/ huwonowa ka steendroze. ‘That John is a moron can be seen from his actions.’

Mbona/ we/ ni dokhani/ Ali. ‘How come you are so stupid, Ali?’

Mwana uyu/ ni dokhani. ‘This child is stupid.’

Want^hu awa/ ni madokhani. ‘These people are stupid.’

rel.

i-dokhani (mi-) n. aug.

Wako wiimbili/ wawili/ mo/ ni Bwanawaasi/ mo/ ni Idokhani. ‘There were two boys: one was Bwanawaasi (a legendary hero in Arab folklore) and the other was Big Stupid.’

u-dokhani n. 14 stupidity

Udokhani/ ukhuteete. ‘Stupidity prevailed over you.’

Udokhani/ umzidiile/ Ali. ‘[Lit.] (As for) stupidity, it increased to Ali = Ali became more stupid.’ Or: Ali/ umzidiile/ udokhani. Or: Ali/ zidile udokhani.

doolari

n. 9/10 [Eng. dollar] dollar

dolari iyi/ mooyi ‘this one dollar’ (cf. dolari izi/ mbili ‘these two dollars’)

Isa/ nt^hachinakuwona chiint^hu/ chinakambiḷowa kuwa chinakhpoowá/ doolari/ miyuuni/ miyaa mbili. ‘Now we do not see anything; we are being told that we are being given two hundred million dollars.’

Omari/ tete ka Hasani/ dolarii miya/ deeni. ‘Omari took a debt of one hundred dollars from Hasani.’

ziikopi ḍahabu ziikopi doolari [nt.] ‘where is the gold, where are the dollars?’

domanda

n. [Ital.] application

Mi/ ndrinzile domandayá/ khiroowá. ‘I waited for my application to be approved.’

doroogo

n. [Ital. droga] confirm use in Chimiini and pron and meaning and examples

doorasho

n. election

Dorashoo mp^hiya/ nt^haasá/ yiko khtasawara/ nt^ho. ‘A new election remains a stong possibility.’

Ye/ nt^haasá/ takuwa ni ra’iisi/ haṭá/ doorasho/ mp^hiya. ‘He will remain as president until there are new elections.’

ku-doorsata

v. [Som. door "to choose" DSI 194] (dorseete) choose, select kudorsataa kuja ‘to choose food’

Ndorseeté/ kumwandikila Omari/ khaṭi. ‘I chose to write a letter to Omari.’ Or: Ndorseeté/ kumwandikilaa khaṭi/ Omari. Or: Ndorseeté/ Omari/ kumwandikilaa khaṭi. Or: Ndorseeté/ khaṭi/ kumwandikila Omari. (This set of examples illustrates some of the variations in word order possible for an infinitival complement to the verb kudoorsata. There are of course many more. These are variants where the main verb is emphasized and where there is no fronting of the complement elements to the beginning of the sentence.)

Nimdorseeté/ kumwandikila Omari/ khaṭi. ‘I choose him to write a letter to Omari.’ Or: Nimdorseeté/ Omari/ kumwandikilaa khaṭi. (These sentences illustrate that the primary object of the infinitive complement may control an object marker on the main verb. By contrast, the complement khaṭi cannot control an object marker on the main verb: Ni’idorseeté/ kumwandikila Omari/ khaṭi. Nor: Ni’idorseeté/ khaṭi/ kumwandikila Omari. Nor: Ni’idorseeté/ Omari/ kumwandikilaa khaṭi. Nor any other variation in word order.)

Safiya/ mdorseṭe Huseeni/ kuwa muḅliwe. ‘Safiya selected Huseeni to be her husband.’

Waletee wo/ wanadoorsate/ ka woowo. ‘Let them choose for themselves.’

Wamdorseṭe Sheekhi/ kuwa ra’iisi. ‘They elected Sheekhi president.’

rel.

ku-dorsatika v. p/s.

Hamadi/ hadorsatiki. ‘Hamadi is not electable, selectable.’

ku-dorsatiloowa v. appl. pass.

Omari/ kumdorsatiloowa mwanaamke ‘Omari to be chosen for a girl’

ku-dorsatila v. appl.

Namdorsatilani/ Omari. ‘For what are you electing Omari?’

Si/ hihtaja kudorsatila ruhu ziitu. ‘We need to chose for ourselves.’

ku-dorsatisha v. caus.

ku-dorsatoowa v. pass.

Khati/ idorseṭa/ Omari/ kandikiloowa. ‘A letter was chosen for Omari to be written to.’ (This sentence was judged grammatical. It would seem that while Omari is the subject of the passive infinitival complement, that the complement of that passive verb, khati, can be promoted to be the subject of a passive version of the main verb. This ability of khati to be the subject of the main passive verb seems clearly to be linked to the infinitival complement being passive. If the infinitive is not passivized, the sentence was rejected: Khati/ idorseṭa/ kumwandikila Omari. These examples clearly require syntactic study.)

Omari/ dorseṭa/ kandikilowaa khati. ‘Omari was chosen to have a letter written to him.’ (Note that Omari can be the subject of the passive version of the main verb just in case it was made the subject of the passive infinitive in the complement. It is ungrammatical to leave the infinitive complement in active form: Omari/ dorseṭa/ kumwandikilaa khati. ‘Omari was chosen for (someone) to write him a letter.’)

Omari/ takudorsatoowa. ‘Omari will be selected, chosen.’

Sheekhi/ dorseṭa kuwa ra’iisi. ‘Sheekhi was elected president.’

rel. nom.

u-doorsato n. 14

doṭoore (ma-)
used as a title

n. [Ital. dottore] university graduate; medical doctor (with a university degree); may be Doṭore oyo/ siwo/ msuura. ‘That doctor is not good.’

doṭore uyu ‘this doctor’; madōṭore awa (or aya) ‘these doctors’

Mulize doṭoore/ gaariye. ‘He sold the doctor his car.’ (This sentence exhibits canonical downstep intonation, and as a consequence, the simple yes-no question shows no accent shift., just Q-raising. The exclamatory question shifts accent: Mulize doṭooré/ gaariyé!?)

Nimulize doṭooré/ gaariyá. ‘I sold the doctor my car.’ (Since the verb is a final-accent trigger, accent in both phrases is located on the final vowel. The simple yes-no question differs from the statement only in Q-raising: Nimulize doṭooré/ gaariyá? The exclamatory question does not have any visible accent shift: Nimulize doṭooré/ gaariyâ!?)

Nuuru/ uzile doṭoore/ gaariye. ‘Nuuru bought the doctor’s car.’ (Prosody. This sentence exhibits the canonical downstep intonation. The simple yes-no question does not shift accent. The exclamatory question shifts accent in both phrases inside the VP: Nuuru/ uzile doṭooré/ gaariyé!?)

Nuuru/ uzile gari ya doṭoore. ‘Nuuru bought the doctor’s car.’ (Prosody. This sentence has canonical downstep intonation and, as a consequence, the simple yes-no question shows no accent-shift. The verb phrase shifts accent in the exclamatory question, of course: Nuuru/ uzile gari ya doṭooré!?)

Nuuru/ uzile/ gari ya doṭoore. ‘Nuuru bought the doctor’s car.’ (Prosody. The verb is focused in this example, meaning that its pitch is raised. The complement undergoes pitch lowering. The simple yes-no question shows accent-shift in the complement: Nuuru/ uzile/ gari ya doṭooré?)

ku-doodaṭa

v. argue

Omari/ mkali/ kudoodaṭa. ‘Omari is sharp in arguing.’

Nṯa’ina/ manfa’a/ kudoodaṭowa na Omari. ‘It is useless arguing with Omari.’

Si/ chidoṭeṭé/ we. ‘We argued, you know.’

Wadoṭeṭe/ we/ alhaasili/ watambuleene. ‘They discussed (argued), you know, [and] finally they agreed (understood one another).’

We/ ni sahá/ kudoōḁaṭa/ kuwa ni laazimu/ khfanyowa zaaydi. ‘You are right to argue that more must be done.’

rel.

ku-dooḁaṭila v. appl.

Omari/ namdoōḁaṭila Hasani. ‘Omari is arguing for Hasani.’

ku-dooḁaṭoowa v. pass.

Apo/ inakudoōḁaṭa. ‘There arguing is going on.’

Kudoōḁaṭoowa/ bilaa ma’ana/ siwo/ suura. ‘It is not good to argue for no reason.’

n-dovu

n. 9/10 [Sw. ndovu SSED 332, where it is noted that the usual word at the coast is tembo] elephant

Chiboodo/ mwenopoo mbwa/ nakinendra ilu yaa ndovu/ iwiile/ kuwaa ndovu/ file. ‘When Flea saw the dog walking on the elephant, he knew that the elephant was dead.’

Mapembe yaa ndovu/ ni kontorobaanda. ‘The tusks of elephants are contraband.’

Mwaana/ chiwa’amura wataana/ kumkokotaa ndovu/ haṭá/ muyiini. ‘The son ordered the servants to drag the elephant up to the town.’

Nazoo nguvu/ kanaa ndovu. ‘He has strength like an elephant, he is as strong as an elephant.’

Ndovu/ chiwaraasha/ kuwa’ubla. ‘The elephant chased them to kill them.’ (Morph. Observe that the animate noun ndovu governs [cl.1] agreement, which is phonologically null, on the verb chiwaraasha.)

Nguvuze/ kanaa ndovu. ‘His strength is like that of an elephant.’

rel.

chi-dovu (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-dovu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. [pron. idovu] a large elephant ikulu/ kana idovu ‘as big as an (aug.) elephant’

n-draani

n. 9 [Sw. ndani SSED 331] inside; nothing but the inside (i.e. empty)

-a ndraani [cf. Sw. -a ndrani SSED 331] ‘internal, inner, secret’

Mp^hele khabari za ndraani. ‘He gave me secret news.’

Bur’i/ tile peesa/ ndrani ya sanduukhu. ‘Ali put money inside the box.’

Chingila naaye/ ndraani. ‘He went with her inside.’

Chingila ndraani/ kaake/ mtanaani. ‘He went into his room.’

Iboholi/ iwele ndraani. ‘The hole (which had been full of honey to begin with) became empty.’

Ilooni/ ondroshele/ chistukula chinoka/ icho/ chingila naacho/ ndraani/ numbaani. ‘At dusk she got up and took the little snake and went with it inside the house.’

ka ndraani [cf. Sw. ka ndani SSED 331] from inside

Shpata nt^huundru/ na weelú/ ka ndraani. ‘He found a hole and light from inside (i.e. light from outside coming into the hole).’

Mi/ nkhadiriilé/ kingila ndraani/ bilaa dhibu. ‘I was able to get in without difficulty.’

ndraani/ m^wa ndraani ‘in and in’ ndraani ndiwe takiiwo [song] ‘only you will know what is inside (you)’ ndrani ya maduuri ‘inside the forest’

ndrani ya numba ‘inside the house’

Ndrani ya numba iyi/ yamo maali/ miingi. ‘Inside this house there is much wealth.’

ndrani ya numba izo ‘inside those houses’

Sku yaa ne/ shtaala/ chisufuriya chihabba/ chishtila ndraani/ ya sufuriyaa nk^hulu/ ya jiraani. ‘On the fourth day he took a small pot and he put it inside the large pot of his neighbor.’

Wachimlata/ Hasiibu/ ndrani ya chisima. ‘They left Hasiibu inside the well.’

Wo/ nt^hawakhaadira/ kulindra kuruda ndraani. ‘They couldn’t wait to get back inside.’

- Ye/ harfishiize/ chiint^hu/ ndraani. ‘He smelled something inside (the house).’
- n-drewuuni in the phrase:
kingila ndrewuuni ‘to doze off’
Ningile ndrewuuni. ‘I dozed off.’
Nk^halent^he chibarzaani/ l-pepo/ haṭá/ ningile ndrewuuni. ‘I sat on the stone bench (e.g. located outdoors) and (there was a nice) breeze to the point that I dozed off.’
- n-driili n. a fish of the trevally family, yellow in color, perhaps 10kg in weight, found near coral reefs; it is caught with a net, but only caught during kaskaazi; it jumps very high out of the water and moves in groups
- n-driimbo n. 9/10 song
Naayé/ chimjiba mwaana/ ka ndrriimbo. ‘And she answered the boy with a song.’
Waana/ wa’imbile ndrriimbo. ‘The children sang songs.’
- n-driimu n. 9/10 [Sw. ndimu SSED 332] lemon, lime, orange Ambile ndrriimu/ ambiiló. ‘He peeled off the skin of the lemon, that’s what he did.’
Khaadimu/ chambiloowa/ ya kuwa waant^hu/ watakuḷaṭila/ ndrriimu/ mara ya kaandra/ mara ya piili/ na mara ya taatú. ‘The servant was told that the people would throw lemons one time, two times, three times.’
muti wa ndrriimu ‘lemon tree’ ndrimu ḷada ‘orange’ ndrimuu nk^hulu ‘grapefruit (lit. big lemon); grapefruit may also be called pompeelmo, from Italian’ Ndrriimu/ mara nt^hatuze/ schimbiga/ muunt^hu/ mooyi/ munt^hu oyo/ ndiyé/ ṭakuwo sulṭaani. ‘If the lemons all three times hit the same person, that person, it is he who will become sultan.’
ndrimu siṭa ‘a bitter lime’ ndrimu ya Nguuja ‘orange (lit. lemon of Zanzibar)’ Nza naani/ ndrimumu izi. ‘Whose oranges are these?’
- rel.
chi-n-driimu (zi-n-) n. 7/8 dim.
chindrimu chilada ‘tangerine’
chindrimu chisiṭa ‘lime’
- n-droola n. [cf. kuloola ‘to marry’] [Sw. ndoa SSED 350] marriage (as an institution)
- n-drooto n. 9/10 [cf. kuloota ‘to dream’] [Sw. ndoto SSED 356] dream Chilota ndrooto/ mbovu. ‘He dreamed a bad dream.’
kuwona ndrooto ‘to have a dream [lit. to see a dream/dreams]’
Sku mooyi/ Yuusufu/ wene ndrooto. ‘One day Joseph had a dream.’
Ziikopi/ ndrootoza. ‘Where are my dreams?’
- n-dru n. [Sw. ndugu SSED 332] relative Huseeni/ chintalaa ndruwe/ Hasani/ mwanamke wa sulṭaani/ na want^hu wiinginé/ wawaliko wafanyiizá/ wataaná/ chendra naawo/ jahaziini. ‘Huseeni took his relative, Hasani, the daughter of the sultan, and the other men who had been made slaves and went with them to the ship.’
Ndru mwovu/ khinfa skuu mbovu. ‘A bad relative is of use to you on a bad day.’ (A proverb.)
- rel.
i-n-dru (mi-n-) n. 5/4 aug. [pron. indru (sg.) and mindru (pl.)]
- n-druugu n. 9/10 [Sw. njugu SSED 340] groundnut khkhalanga ndruugu or khkalaanga/ ndruugu ‘to roast groundnuts’ kubashalaṭila ndruugu ‘to pass time with groundnuts, i.e. entertain or enjoy oneself by eating nuts’ kuja ndruugu ‘to eat groundnuts’ kuza ndruugu ‘to sell groundnuts’ ndrugu zaa munu or ndruugu/ zaa munu ‘salted nuts’ ndrugu za suukari or ndruugu/ za suukari ‘sugared nuts’

n-druundo

n. 9/10 [Sw. nyundo SSED 349] hammer Mbishile ruuhuyá/ ka ndruundró. ‘I hit myself with a hammer (accidentally).’
Tete ndruundo/ khfungulila. ‘He took a hammer to open it.’
 rel.
chi-n-druundo (zi-n-) n. 7/8 dim.

du’a

prayer; blessing

n. 9/10 [Sw. dua SSED 77; Ar. du’ā W 283] raising of the arms in supplication, Du’a/ huḷoowa. ‘Blessings are earned, worked for (lit. bought).’ (A proverb.)
Du’a/ muunt^hu/ hutaala/ ka wazelewe. ‘Blessings one takes from his parents.’ Or: Du’a/ muunt^hu/ hupata/ ka wazelewe.
Du’a/ suura/ kulombowa wakhtí/ nt^haanoze/ zaa sala. ‘It is good to make supplication during the five praying times.’
iidi du’a hulomboowa, mtume husaḷiloowa [song] ‘on iidi, du’a is implored, the Prophet is prayed to’ khpokelaa du’a ‘to say ‘amen’ when s.o. in the group raises his arms in prayer’ khsomaa du’a ‘to read supplication’ khsomowaa du’a ‘being read supplication’
Isomeḷaa du’a/ niingi. ‘There was a lot of supplications being read.’ (An impersonal passive.) Isomeḷaa du’a/ skoḷaani. ‘There has been supplications read at school.’ Or: Isomeeḷa/ du’a/ skoḷaani.
kulombaa du’a ‘to pray to God’ kuwanaayo/ du’a ‘[lit.] to have blessing – someone’s blessing is upon you (and consequently your good luck depends on this factor)’
Nayo du’a ya waawaye. ‘He has his father’s blessing (because he was a dutiful son and therefore the father’s blessing will help him to attain everything he wants in life).’

To be checked if also possible with plural (du’a za waawaye).

Munaafiqi/ du’aye/ ha’itakhabaḷoowi. ‘A hypocrite, his supplication is not accepted.’
Nusuha/ nii du’a. ‘Advice is a blessing (i.e. to receive advice is a blessing).’

(A proverb.)

Sababu/ yaa waant^hu/ kurasho mayṭí/ ya maaná/ ka chinumé/ huhadoowa/ kuwa maana/ haṭa haaji/ kulombelowa du’a/ nt^haná/ ismu ya ḍambi/ ba/ ba/ husuḷowaa ye/ kulombela waant^hu/ du’a/ na maghfirá. ‘The reason for people following [the dead child] from behind [in the funeral procession] is that it is said that the child is innocent and does not need people to pray to God for forgiveness for him, rather it is wanted that the child pray to God for the people to be forgiven.’

ku-du’a

v. pray confirm can be used as a simple verb
 rel.
ku-du’ila v. appl. pray for, bless

Waant^hu/ wamalizopoo kujá/ wachimdu’ila muḅli/ na mukeewé ‘After the people ate, they blessed the man and his wife.’

Waant^hu/ wotte/ wa muyi oyo/ wanamdu’ila. ‘All the people of that town prayed for him.’

Dubay

n. Dubai; [pron. dubáy] (Phon. Accent in Chimiini, in default cases, falls on the penult syllable, i.e. the second syllable from the end. However, in Dubay, accent falls on the last syllable. It is interesting that as a consequence, there is no contrast between final and default accent.)

variant form: Dubey

Uzile dira'a za Dubáy. 'She bought dira'a from Dubay.' (Cf. Nuzile dira'a za Dubáy. 'I bought dira'a from Dubay.') review this matter

- dubi n. 9/10 [Sw. dubu SSED 78; Ar. dubb W 269] bear dubi uyu or dubi iyi 'this bear'; dubi izi 'these bears'
- chi-dubi (zi-) n. 7/8 [?Som. dub "to roast or fry" DSI 195] kebab
- dubla n. 9/10 [Som. dublo DSI 196] funnel; [pron. dubla] dubla iyi 'this funnel'
rel.
i-dubla (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- duburi n. 9/10 [Ar. dub(u)r W 270] anus
- Duude n. a rock, some three kilometers or so off the shore of Brava, facing the Friday mosque, whose two tips are visible at high tide (that they are connected underwater is clear at low tide); children swim out to this rock, and one is considered to be a good swimmer when one is able to do this Duude/ hujoowa. 'Is Duude something to be eaten?' Or: Ni Duude/ nii kuja. 'Is Duude something to eat?' (These are said when somebody pretends to be able to do something unusual and people think that he is bluffing and cannot achieve anything.)
Duude/ siwo/ kule. 'Duude is not far.' (A proverb, where the speaker is saying: do not give up hope, there is nothing that cannot be achieved, just take your time and you will succeed. After all, Duude, your goal, is not that far away.)
Duude/ siwo/ khaaribu. 'Duude is not near.' (A proverb, where the speaker is warning that things do not come easily, one must be prepared to struggle in order to achieve something. After all, Duude, your goal, is not near by.) Noloshele Duudé/ ka koowelá. 'I swam to Duude (lit. I went to Duude by swimming).'
- duudu n. [Ar. dūd "worm, larva, maggot" W 297] worms, insects duudu uyu or duudu iyi 'this worm'; duudu izi 'these worms' khtomola duudu 'to take out, extract worms' kuḅla duudu 'to kill worms'
Magozi/ yawozele/ ya'ingila na duudu/ yaweele/ haya'infi teena. 'The skins got rotten, they were entered by worms, they became of no use anymore.'
Mali ya bakhili/ hujowa na duudu. 'The possessions of misers are eaten by worms.' (A proverb.)
Zimingile duudu/ miluuni. 'His legs were infected with worms.'
- chi-duudu (zi-) n. insect
- dudumaayi n. [Sw. dudu mai "chickenpox" from internet source] chickenpox, smallpox
- ku-dufata v. [etymology unknown] (dufeete) embrace, hug, grip s.o. in a close fight
rel.
ku-dufatoowa v. pass. be embraced, hugged, gripped waana hufurahishoowa, jiraani hudufatoowa [song] 'children are made happy, neighbors are embraced' ku-dufla v. appl. (dufiliile) hit, pierce with horns, jump on and attack kumdufila ka lpeembe 'to gore s.o. with horn' Omari/ mdufiliile Hasani. 'Omari jumped on and hit Hasani.'
ku-dufiloowa v. appl. pass. (dufiliila) kudufilowa na ngoombe 'to be gored by a bull (lit. cow)'

- Tuuma/ dufiliila. ‘Tuuma was jumped on, attacked.’
rel. nom.
m-dufata (wa-) n. 1/2 one who hugs, grips in a fight
- duufu adj. invar. [Som. duf "person having a weak character" DSI 197] dull (lacking personality or character)
Ni muunt^{hu}/ duufu. ‘He is a dull person.’
Ni waant^{hu}/ duufu. ‘They are tall people.’
- dughaaghi n. 9/10 [Som. dugaag DSI 197] wild animal; adj. violent (of a person) (Intervocalic g in Somali is realized as a fricative, a pronunciation that is carried over in this loanword. Furthermore, since words must end in a vowel in Chimiini, a final vowel is added, thus putting the word-final g in the Somali word into intervocalic position. This g is then realized as a fricative in Chimiini.)
dughaghi uyu or dughaghi iyi ‘this wild animal’; dughaghi izi ‘these wild animals’ Dughaaghi/ waliko fiile. ‘The beast was dead.’
Isllaamu/ warebeja kuja nama ya dughaaghi/ niingi/ ka mfaano/ siimba/ ngeena/ dul’eda/ nfuye/ nt^{hu}wi/ jeeri/ mp^haka/ ghuraabu/ karaayle/ mp^hisi/ mbwa/ noka/ na zingineze niingi. ‘Muslims are forbidden to eat the meat of many wild animals; for example, lions, crocodiles, foxes, monkeys, leopards, hippos, cats, crows, karaayle, hyenas, dogs, snakes, and many others.’
Komelopó/ chiwapa khabari/ kuwa dughaaghi/ fiile. ‘When he reached them, he gave them the news that the beast had died.’
Maama/ sh^{tu}ungila/ ka cholokooni/ chiwona/ kuwa ndiyé/ dughaaghi/ malizo waant^hú/ wa mwaana/ mleeseló. ‘Mother looked out from the window and saw that it was him, the beast, who ate people, that the boy had brought to her.’
Mwana uyu/ ni dughaaghi. ‘This child is violent.’
We/ chirashaa ndila/ iyi/ takuwona ibanya ikulu/ laakini/ apo/ hukaló/ ni siimba/ noka/ na dughaaghi ziinginé. ‘If you follow this path, you will find a large open place, but the ones who live there are lions, snakes, and other wild animals.’
- duugu n. [Som. dug "place sheltered from wind" DSI 197] a place sheltered from the wind or cold (Phon. It is not clear to us why Chimiini has borrowed this word with a long vowel, since the Somali word has a short vowel.)
- ku-duguwa v. [? cf, Som. lug “leg including foot” and luggee “to go on foot” DSI 391; the Tunni dialect should be checked to see whether the d derives from a change in this dialect] (duguwiile) limp Ali/ huduguwa kaa luti. ‘Ali limps along using a stick.’
Omari/ duguwiile. ‘Omari limped along.’
- rel.
ku-duguwika v. p/s.
ku-duguwila v. appl. (duguwiile)
ku-duguwisha v. caus. (duguwishiize) help to limp along, walk Chimduguwishiize. ‘We helped him walk along limping.’
Dakhtari/ mduguwishize mariiði. ‘The doctor helped the sick person to walk (limping along).’
Duguwishize gaari. ‘He drove the car slowly, carefully, haltingly (e.g. because of the dangerous curves in the road) [lit. he caused to limp along].’
Omari/ mduguwishize mwaana. ‘Omari helped the child walk (limping).’ (Syn. A periphrastic version of this sentence is possible: Omari/ mtile mwaana/ kuduguwa. ‘Omari [lit. instilled in him] to walk limpingly.’) ku-duguwishana v. caus. rec.
ku-duguwishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-duguwishiliza v. caus. appl. (duguwishilize) Omari/ mduguwishilize Nuuru/ mwaana. ‘Omari helped Nuuru’s child to walk limpingly.’ (Syn. Again, a periphrastic version is possible: Omari/ mtile Nuuru/ mwaana/ kuduguwa. ‘Omari [lit. instilled

- in] Nuuru's child to walk limpingly.')
- ku-duguwishilizanya* v. caus. appl. rec.
- duka (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. duka SSED 78; Ar. dukkān W 288] shop Ali/ tala nuumbaza/ zotte/ na madukayá/ yotte/ yako muyiiní. 'Ali, take all my houses and all my shops which are in the town.'
Duka/ ivuunziḷa. 'The shop was broken into.'
Duka/ mahalaa wé/ takhadiro kula zibuukú/ na majornaalé/ huuza. 'The shop where you can buy books also sells newspapers.'
dukaa nk'ulu 'large shop'; maduka makulu 'large shops' Hoolokó/ (ni) Omari/ dukaani. 'It is Omari who goes to the shop.' Or: Holoko dukaani/ (ni) Omari.
Huseeni/ msimishilee muné/ Abú/ khalbi/ khfungulaa duka/ ya zilaatu/ mpele peesa. 'Huseen encouraged his brother to open a shoe shop, he gave him money.'
Kaazi/ lasilé/ dukayo/ hafuunguli/ maaliyo/ yanakuwola. 'You abandoned work, you do not open your shop, your merchandise is rotting.'
khariibu/ naa duka 'near the shop' khariibu/ yaa duka 'near the shop'
Kilaa muunt'hi/ heendró/ Omari/ dukaani. 'Every day, the one who goes to the market is Omari.' (Note that one cannot put Omari in IAV position: Kilaa muunt'hi/ hendro Omari/ dukaani.) Kuja/ huzowa madukaani. 'Food is sold at the shops.'
Omari/ holoka dukani/ kilaa muunt'hi. 'Omari goes to the shop every day.' Or: Omari/ hooloka/ dukaani/ kilaa muunt'hi.
Omari/ nakumera madukaani. 'Omari is going around the shops.'
rel.
chi-duka (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-duka (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. a big shop
iduka ikulu 'a big shop'; miduka mikulu 'big shops'
- duku n. bastard; rascal
rel.
mw-aaduku n. bastard
- chi-duku* (zi-) n. 7/8 [perhaps from the Tunni dialect of Somali; in any case, it is not found in Standard Somali or Swahili or Arabic] umbilicus, navel; [pron. chiduku] (The sound we write d occurs in very few words in Chimiini.; cf. chi-devu [pron. chi-devu] for another example.)
- dul'eda n. [perhaps from Hadhrami Arabic, p.c. from Sandra Vianello Abud] fox Chmwona chijaana/ chihaba cha dul'eda. 'He saw a baby fox.'
dul'eda izi 'these foxes' Humlata dul'eda uyu/ kumlindra mwaana. 'He goes away leaving this fox to watch the child.'
rel.
chi-dul'eda (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-dul'eda (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ku-dulduulata* v. [cf. Som. daldalan "to speak confusedly" DSI 128] (dulduleete) lose one's power of reasoning, go crazy, be confused Ka kazi niingi/ hattá/ nakulduulata. 'I am going crazy from too much work.'
Leelo/ sultaani/ ondrokeleela/ ka khisani/ ka khisa/ mi/ nimalile chilaatú/ mukeewé/ isa/ nakulduulata. 'Today the king was taken by madness – why? Because I took a shoe from his wife. Now he is behaving crazily.'
rel.
ku-duldulaṭoowa v. pass.
Ka kazi niingi/ huduldulaṭoowa. 'There's going crazy/getting confused (going on here) from too much work,'

- ku-duḍuulisha* v. caus. mess s.o. up, cause to be confused, go crazy Sinduḍuulishé/ nakhuloombá. ‘Don’t mess me up, I beg you.’
- ku-duula* v. [Som. duul “to attack” DSI 203] (duuzile) attack, raid (Observe the productivity of the phonological process whereby l shifts to z in front of the perfect suffix iil and in the process shortens the vowel of that suffix. The l in the Somali word duul undergoes this process in the Chimiini loanword.)
Omari/ ile/ (na)kuduula. ‘Omari came to attack.’
rel.
ku-duḷoowa v. pass. (duuziḷa) Numbaani/ kiitu/ inakuduḷoowa. ‘Our house is being attacked.’ ku-duulisha v. caus. (dulishiize) cause to raid
rel. nom.
m-duulo (mi-) n. 3/4 attack
u-duulo n. 14 attack
- ma-duulu* n. 6 a wild fruit, bigger than chint^haki, about the size of a cherry tomato, but treated like chint^haki in that they are picked green and kept in milk containers for two to three days while they soften and sweeten madulu aya ‘these maduulu fruit’ Nakuja maduulu. ‘He is eating maduulu fruit.’
- ma-duluuku* n. [etymology unknown] very thick bushes that grow alongside the coast of Brava kamu wafakeeto na madulukuuni [nt.] ‘how many people ran to hide in the thick bushes’
- ku-duuma* v. [Sw. dumu SSED 68; Ar. dāma and daum “to last” W 303] last variant: ku-duumu (Phon. In Swahili, verbs derived from Arabic typically retain a final vowel from their source, whereas Chimiini regularizes the verb so that it ends in the vowel a. Presumably, at some stage in history, Chimiini also employed the final vowel found in the Arabic source. Perhaps the form ku-duumu mentioned by our consultant MI is a retention from this earlier stage of the language.)
Cheema/ hachiduumi/ nt^hachiná/ ma’iisha. ‘A good thing does not last, it does not have life.’ (A proverb.)
Hawa/ kayiwa idumile jisaa yo/ iwaalikó/ wo/ suḷa kuwa wakhadiriile/ kinendra meli ikumi naa nt^hatu/ ziwaliiko ziwasaliló/ khkoma Ten Dipo. ‘If the weather had remained the way that it was, they would have been able to walk the thirteen miles that remained for them to reach Ten Dipo.’
Kazi iyi/ idumiile/ muda/ wa miyezi/ mitatu. ‘This work lasted a period of three months.’
Laakini/ mzeele/ sootiye/ itakuduumu/ mashkilooni. ‘But the voice of the old man will last in his ears forever.’
Maadamu/ haduumi. ‘A human being does not live forever.’
rel.
ku-dumoowa v. pass.
Ha’idumoowi/ duniyaani. ‘It is not stayed forever in the world (i.e. nothing lasts forever in the world).’
- ku-dumaalata* v. [Som. dumaal “to marry the widow of one’s brother” DSI 199] (dumaleete) marry the widow of one’s brother (referring to the practice whereby one inherits the widow of one’s brother)
- dumaashi* n. [Som. dumaashi DSI 200] (a man’s) sister-in-law (but note this word is not commonly used in Brava, the term saajima being preferred)
- dumna* n. [Sw. dhumna SSED 73, which compares to Ar. dāma “checkers” W 534; perhaps there is some other influence, maybe Persian?] dominoes (the game)

duuna

adj. [Ar. dūn "lowly, inferior" and dūna "below, beneath -- in rank, value, etc." W 304] low (in position, prestige, intelligence), minor, inferior, less

Mp^hele peesa/ duuna. 'He gave me less money.'

munt^hu duuna 'a lowly person'; want^hu duuna 'lowly, inferior people'

Wabli/ washpatikano jaziraani/ wawaliko wataana/ walá/nt^hawachaminiḷoowa/ sho kuwa kazi ya kulima/ na kazi zinginezé/ duuná. 'Men who found themselves on this island were slaves, they were not entrusted with any jobs except cultivating and other lowly work.'

waan^hu saba na duunaye hujuzá [st.] 'seven people or less, [a slaughtered camel or cow] is allowed [to feed]'

duniya

n. 9 [Sw. dunia SSED 79; Ar. dunyā W 295] world variant form: dunya

Chidirka/ kuwa nt^haku/ chiint^hu/ chiseeló/ karka duniya/ wotte/ wafiele.
'He found that there was nothing on earth that remained, all had died.'

Duniya/ ha'irashoowi. 'The world (i.e. the deceitful pleasures the world offers) are not (i.e. should not be) followed.' (A proverb.)

Duniya/ haaliye/ ni jis'iyi/ zeema/ hulipowa ka ziwovu. 'The way of the world is this: good is repaid with evil.'

Duniya/ haraarisi/ khonyeza lada/ chimaliza/ khuḷulisha. 'The world is bitter, it shows you sweetness and then it destroys you.' (A proverb.)

Duniya/ imwangamikiliile/ nt^ho. 'The world was totally spoiled for him.'

Duniya/ ina zeema/ na ziwovú. 'The world has good and bad.' (A proverb.)

Duniya/ ni kama duwaara/ ichisuula/ hendra nyaara. 'The world is like a kite; if it wishes, it flies off loose.' (A proverb that says that the world can treat you well, or it can cast you down.)

duniya ni nuumba ya mwenye sho nuumba/ mtiyeeni mwajitu ka kuleeta tooba [st.] 'the world is the house of the one without a house; fear God and repent'

Duniyaani/ ha'iwaroowi. 'In the world no one will remain forever.' (A proverbial saying.)

Duniyaani/ kilaa chiint^hu/ huwonekana/ shokuwa uso/ wa mojiitu. 'In the world everything is visible except the face of God.' (A proverb that counsels that in the world anything is possible, except seeing God's face.) Or: Duniyaani/ kilaa chiint^hu/ huwonekana/ sho kuwonekana/ ni uso wa mojiitu. 'In this world everything is visible except it is not possible to see the face of God.'

Duniyaani/ ziko zeema/ stupu/ tu. 'In the world (e.g. that you have just described) are there only good things?'

Hurasho duniyá/ huḷowa akhera. 'One who follows the world loses life hereafter.' (A proverb.)

Isa/ duniya/ imwelele miinza/ ka kajila/ kurudaa numa/ kendra kaawo/ nt^hanakhaadira/ na kendraa mbele/ nt^hanakhaadira. 'Now the world became for him truly a dark place; he was not able to return to his parents' home, and he was not able to go forward.'

jawaabu ya duniya hiingila humala [nt.] 'the matters of this world ebb and flow'

Ka paapo/ nyunyi/ zigedishile/ ziweele/ wake/ wa wanaadamu/ wenye jamaala/ sho kuwonekana/ karka duniya. 'Then the birds changed, they became human women with a beauty not seen in this world.'

Kila chint^hu cha duniya/ humala. 'Everything of the world ends.' (A proverb.) review

Mi/ nk^hawanazoo nguvú/ zaa mi/ khfanyiliza yaa mi/ nnakhsuuló/

karka duniya iyí/ mazá/ mi/ suḷa khfungoowa/ na lkaambala/ so. ‘If I had the power to do with it whatever I want in this world, would I be tied by a rope?’

Munt^hu fulaani/ nakuhada/ duniyaani/ nt^haku/ zeema. ‘So-and-so says that in the world there is no goodness.’

Na ba’ada ya apó/ mubjaana/ nt^haku’ink^hira/ teena/ zeema/ ziko duniyaaní. ‘And after that, the young man did not deny anymore the good that is in the world.’

Naaziya/ hufurahisha duniyaa nzima. ‘My coconut pleases the whole world.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa ‘the sun’.)

Ni mzeele/ msaafiri/ tu/ laṭila duniyaani. ‘I am an old man, a traveller, an outcast in the world.’

Sikhaambila/ mi/ kuwa duniyaani/ nt^haku/ ya ajabú. ‘Did I not tell you that in this world there are marvels?’ review

Sultaani/ uyuu/ wanaayo (or: wanaacho)/ kila/ chiint^hu/ cha duniya/kaake/ numbaani/ ila/ chint^hu chimooyi. ‘This sultan had everything in the world at his house except one thing.’

zint^hu za duniya ‘mundane things, things of the world’

chi-dura

n. rotation; circle; small fan

chidura chaa jasi ‘a small ceiling fan’ chidura cha khsimama ‘a standing fan’ chidura chaa khsimika ‘a standing fan’ chidura cha koranta ‘a small electric fan’ chidura cha lpepo ‘a small fan (lit. a fan of wind)’ kumera chidura ‘to rotate (person or thing), go in a circle’

i-dura

n. [cf. Ar. nouns daur and daura "rotation" W 299] electric fan ku-dura

(finger, etc.)

v. [Som. dur DSI 200] (duriile) pierce, stab, prick (with a sharp object, a Ali/ mdurile Hamadi/ ka siindanu. ‘Ali pricked Hamadi with a needle.’

(Other possibilities: ka mwiiwa ‘with a thorn’, kaa chisu ‘with a knife’, ka musmaari ‘with a nail’.)

Baana/ ndurilee mi/ kaa chisu. ‘Baana stabbed me with a knife.’ Or:

Baana/ ndurile kaa chisu. (Both examples here contain the first person singular object marker, but the first example also includes first person singular pronoun immediately after the verb.)

Chiloho/ chimduriilo. ‘The hook snagged him.’

Chisu/ chimduriilo. ‘It is a knife that pierced him.’

Haadi/ mdurile mwaana/ ka sindaano. ‘Haadi pricked the child with the needle.’

Ka khisani/ mdura mukeewo/ kaa chisu. ‘Why do you prick your wife with a knife?’ (Note that the infinitive prefix may be elided in front of the [cl.1] object marker, thus we find mdura rather than the full form kumdura.)

kudura ka siindanu ‘to pierce with a needle’ kudura/ kana sindaano ‘to sting like a needle’

Ipu/ inakudura/ kana sindaano. ‘The boil, infected wound is stinging like a needle [i.e. like being pricked by a needle].’

Mahaḷa/ chiint^hu shchiwamo mwishpa/ hudura/ ambó/ huḷaaza. ‘A place where something has a bone in it (may) sting or be painful.’ (This sentence was part of a discussion about the tongue, which lacks a bone., and how easily it tells lies.)

Mdurile kaa chisu. ‘He has stabbed him with a knife.’

Mwaana/ chimdura/ ka ifumo/ chimubla. ‘The boy pierced it [the giraffe] with a spear and killed it.’

Mwaana/ mdurile mwaalimu/ mkono/ ka siindano. ‘The child pricked the teacher on the arm with a needle.’

Mwiiwa/ umdurile Ali. ‘The thorn pricked Ali.’

rel.

ku-durika v. p/s. be piercable

Lwawo ili/ halduriki. ‘This wood cannot be pierced.’

ku-durila v. appl. (durile) pierce with, for Chondrola baakooru/ chimdurila dhoforiini. ‘He lifted his cane and poked him in the chest.’

We/ nayo mapeembé/ kudurila waanthú. ‘You are arrogant (lit. have horns to pierce people with).’

ku-duriloowa v. appl. pass.

Siindanu/ idurijila Hamadi. ‘The needle was used to prick Hamadi.’

(Observe that the instrument in the instrumental applied verb construction is the passive subject. MI did not accept Hamadi durijila siindanu. ‘Hamadi was pierced using a needle.’)

Sindanu iyi/ ni sahali/ kudurilowa Hamadi. ‘This needle can easily be used to prick Hamadi.’ (MI did not accept as grammatical the sentence Sindanu iyi/ ni sahali/ Hamadi/ kuduriloowa. ‘This needle is easy for Hamadi to be pierced with.’ One explanation for the ungrammaticality of this sentence would be that it involves making Hamadi the subject of the infinitive verb. We noted above that the instrument and not the logical object should be the subject of a passive constructed from an instrumental applied verb. However, the sentence below shows that if the instrument is not present in the clause, then it is possible for the logical object to be the passive subject. There seems to be a different problem, then, with *Sindanu iyi/ ni sahali/ Hamadi/ kuduriloowa.)

Yiikopi/ sindanu ya Hamadi/ durijila. ‘Where is the needle that Hamadi was pricked with?’ (Observe that in this example, MI did accept as grammatical the logical object as the subject of the passive instrumental applied verb. The explanation here would seem to be that the instrument does not overtly appear in the pseudo-relative clause. Compare, for instance, the ungrammaticality of Mwana durijila siindanu/ ni Hamadi. ‘The child who was pricked with a needle is Hamadi.’ In this ungrammatical sentence, the instrument is still overtly present in the relative clause and it is impossible for the logical object to be the subject of the verb.)

ku-dur(isha) v. caus. (durishiize) make s.o. pierce s.t.

Haadi/ mdurshize mwaana/ ruuhuye/ ka sindaano. ‘Haadi made the child pierce himself with a needle.’ (The corresponding periphrastic version: Haadi/ mtile mwaana/ kudura ruuhuye/ ka sindaano.)

Omari/ durishize mpiira. ‘Omari had someone prick the ball (with a needle).’ (This example illustrates that the causee can be omitted completely from the sentence, appearing neither as a full noun or as an object marker on the verb. Both the person made to prick and the thing pricked could be omitted: Omari/ durishiize. ‘Omari had (s.o.) prick (s.t.).’)

Omari/ mdurishize mwaana/ mwaalimu/ mkono. ‘Omari caused the child to prick the teacher on the arm.’ (If one were to omit mwaana from this sentence, its interpretation would be that Omari had the teacher prick someone’s arm. It could not be understood as meaning ‘Omaru had someone prick the teacher’s arm.’) ku-dur(ishana) v. caus. rec.

ku-dur(ishiliza) v. caus. appl. (durishilize)

Haadi/ mdurshilize Baazi/ mwaana/ ruuhuye/ ka sindaano. ‘Haadi made Baazi’s child pierce himself with a needle.’ (Syn. The corresponding periphrastic construction: Haadi/ mtijile Baazi/ mwaana/ kudura ruuhuye/ ka sindaano.) Nureeni/ mdurishilize Osmaani/ mwaana/ mwaalimu/ mkono. ‘Nureeni caused Osmaani’s child to stab the teacher in the hand/arm.’ (The beneficiary in the causative applied verb structure governs the OM on the verb. In this example, all the post-verbal NP arguments belong to the same noun class and thus would govern the same OM on the verb. The word order in this case provides the sole indicator of the thematic roles of the NP’s in question. The order is: beneficiary-causee-logical object. In a sentence like this, one cannot omit the overt beneficiary, preserving only the OM that it controls: Nureeni/ mduishilize mwaana/ mwaalimu/ mkono. ‘Nureeni caused for him the child to stab the teacher in the arm.’ The problem with this sentence is presumably the “garden path” effect whereby mwaana would be immediately interpreted as the beneficiary rather than the causee. It would be fine to omit the overt beneficiary if the causee is a plural noun: Nureeni/ mdurishilize waana/ mwaalimu/ mkono. Nureeni caused his children to stab the teacher in the arm.’ Finally, in the sentence presently under discussion, it is not possible to omit both the beneficiary and the causee, again presumably due to the “garden path” effect: Nureeni/ mdurishilize mwaalimu/ mkono.)

ku-dur(i)shilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Haadi/ na Baazi/ wadurshilizenye waana/ ruhu zaawo/ ka sindaano.
'Haadi and Baazi made one another's children pierced themselves with a needle. (Syn. The corresponding periphrastic construction: Haadi/ na Baazi/ watililene waana/ kudura ruhu zaawo/ ka sindaano.) ku-duroowa v. pass.

Nakuduroowa/ ka ulaazo. 'I am being pierced with pain.'

rel. nom.

u-duro n. a prick, stab (of a pointed instrument)

i-duuri (ma-)

n. 5/6 (but usually [cl.6]) [Som. duur "bush, deserted area" DSI 203] bush, country Basi/ naawó/ hendra maduriini/ hulima muundra. 'So they went to the bush to cultivate a farm.'

Kaa ndila/ siimba/ chilawa/ ka maduriini/ chiwa'ubla/ waana/ watatu.
'On the way, the lion came out of the forest and killed three children.'

kuwaa wo/ wanakendra maduriini/ khtinda skunyi 'that they were going to the bush to cut firewood'

Maduuri/ yanakhtishaa nt^ho. 'The bush country is very frightening' mbwa wa maduuri 'a wild dog [lit. a dog of the bush]'

Mwaanawa/ naakuḷa/ maduriini. 'My child is crying in the bush.' (A riddle, the answer to which is shṭoka 'axe'.)

Mwaana/ wa maskiini/ oloshole maduriini/ khtinda skunyi. 'The son of the poor man went into the bush to cut firewood.'

Ngoombe/ hupelekowa maduriini. 'The cows are sent to the countryside.'

Shkomelopo maduriini/ wote/ si/ shchikalaant^ha/ shchija. 'When we reached the bush, we all sat down and ate.'

Sku mooyi/ enzele maduriini/ kuwindaa nyunyi. 'One day he went to the bush to hunt for birds.'

Wako waana/ maduriini. 'There are children in the bush.' Or: Maduriini/ wako waana. Or: Waana/ wako maduriini. 'The children are living in the bush.'

Wamwambile mamaye Hasiibu/ kuwaa wo/ wanakendra maduriini.
'They told Hasiibu's mother that they were going to the bush.'

Washkalaant^ha/ maduriini/ hattá/ mwaana/ wele mkulu. 'They stayed in the bush until the boy became grown up.'

Washpita maduuri/ aya. 'They passed [through] these bushes.'

rel.

chi-duuri (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. shrub, small bush chi-ma-duriini n. 7 in the style or manner of country dwellers

ku-durusa

v. [Ar. durūs "to instruct, to learn" W 278 (verbal form of darasa) (durusiile) study (Phon. The perfect stem is irregular; one would expect durusiize.)

duwaara

n. 9/10 [Sw. duara SSED 78; Ar. daura "rotation" and dawwār "rapidly or constantly spinning, circling, revolving" W 300] kite

Duniya/ ni kama duwaara/ ichisuḷa/ hendra nyaara. 'Life is like a kite; if it likes, it goes into a tailspin.'

duwara iyi 'this kite'

Duniya/ ni duwaara. 'The world is a kite.' (A proverb.)

Duwaara/ yoloshele nyaara. 'The kite went into a tailspin.'

Ni duwaara/ ya Ali/ mwulushilize mwaaná. 'It is a kite that Ali flew for the child.'

rel.

chi-duwaara (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-duwaara(mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

Ba'adiye/ shfanya iduwaara/ ikulu/ nt^ho. 'Then he made a very large kite.'

kumeera/ kana iduwaara 'to go around like a kite – i.e. not stay in one place'

ku-duuwaṭa

v. [Som. duub "to roll up a cloth" DSI 202] (duweeṭe) tie a cloth around the waist in preparation for fighting, prepare to fight

Nuuru/ duweeṭe nguwo. 'Nuuru tied the cloth around his waist (preparing to fight).'

rel.

ku-duwaṭika v. p/s.

ku-duwaṭisha v. caus. help tie a cloth around the waist

Mduwaṭishize mwaana/ nguwo. 'He helped the child tie a cloth around his waist.' (Morph. Notice that the causative verb form is used to convey the notion 'help tie'; to express the notion 'persuade to tie' one uses a periphrastic construction involving the simple verb stem: Mfile mwaana/ kuduwaṭaa nguwo. 'He persuaded the child to tie a cloth around his waist.'

ku-duwaṭishana v. caus. rec.

ku-duwaṭishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-duwaṭishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mduwaṭishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ nguwo. 'Nuuru helped Suufi's child tie a cloth around his waist.'

ku-duwaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ waduwaṭishilizenye waana/ nguwo. 'Nuuru and Suufi helped one another's children tie cloths around their waists.'

DH

[The sound written as dh is a voiced retroflex stop. Most of the words in Chimiini using this sound have been borrowed from Somali, either the standard variety or Tunni, the dialect that is used in the area around Brava. There are a few examples that are not apparently connected to Standard Somali or Tunni (see below: chidhu, kuddhaayika, chidhondha, chidheen^he.)]

dhab

ideo. of tightness (We do not have sufficient material for a thorough analysis of pitch in ideophones, but dhab! appears to be pronounced with extra high pitch.)

Hamadi/ shaati/ kihabache/ imambeete/ dhab! 'The shirt, its smallness, sticks to Hamadi dhab! (i.e. the shirt is too small for Hamadi's size, it fits him tightly).'

Nuuru/ nazoo nguvu/ chikhushika mkono/ dhab!/ hukhaadira/ khṭomoza. 'Nuuru is strong, if he catches you with his hand, dhab! you cannot get out.'

dhadhaami

adj. stupid, idiotic

ku-dhadhamisha

v. [Som. dhadhdhan- Ab41] (dhadhamishize) taste

Muunt^hu/ chidhadhamisha chiint^hu/ chilada/ haalaṭi. 'If a person tastes a sweet thing, he does not quit eating it.' (A proverb.)

dhadhamu

n. [Som. dhadhdhan "the taste which anything has" Ab41] flavor, taste dhadhamuye 'its taste' (Phon. In Somali, underlyingly m changes to n in syllable-final position; thus although the noun dhadhdhan in Somali ends in the sound n in its surface form, the n is underlyingly m (and may surface as such in related forms), which explains why in Chimiini a m appears when a final vowel is appended in the course of making the word fit the requirement that all words end in a vowel in Chimiini.)

Nama ya aleeso/ nt^hayná/ ayi/ dhadhamu. ‘Boiled meat does not have taste.’

ku-dhafaṛaṭa

v. [Som. verb dhafar DSI 153] (dhafareete) stay awake all night

Alí/ kílāa ramaḏaani/ hudhafaṛaṭa/ halaali/ mpaka suhuuri. ‘Ali, every (night of) Ramadhan stays awake all night, he does not sleep until (the time of) suhuuri.’

Takhaadira/ masku ayá/ kudhafaṛaṭá? ‘Can you stay awake the whole night through?’

rel.

ku-dhafaṛaṭika v. p/s.

Masku/ ya jima iyi/ ha’idhafaṛaṭiki. ‘This Friday night there won’t be staying awake all night.’

ku-dhafaṛaṭiloowa v. appl. pass.

Omari/ masku/ dhafaṛaṭiliila. ‘People did not sleep the whole night through because of Omari (e.g. he was very sick and they were worried about him).’

Waana/ hudhafaṛaṭiloowa. ‘One does not sleep all night (because of) children (e.g. when children are seriously sick, people are not able to sleep all night worrying about them etc).’

ku-dhafaṛaṭila v. appl.+

Si/ hudhafaṛaṭila kahawa. ‘We use coffee to stay awake all night long.’

ku-dhafaṛaṭoowa v. pass.

Ramaḏaani/ hudhafaṛaṭowa niingi. ‘During Ramadhan, one often does not sleep all night long.’

dhafari

n. 9/10 [Som. noun dhafar DSI 153] staying awake all night

Dhafari/ inakunubla. ‘Not sleeping the whole night is killing me.’

Dhafari niingi/ siwo/ suura. ‘It is not good to stay awake all night a lot.’

Dhafari zaawo/ niingi. ‘They often do not sleep all night (lit. their not sleeping all night is a lot).’

Leelo/ ni dhafari/ ni idul fitri. ‘Today there is no sleeping all night long (because) it is the iidi of Ramadhan.’

Leelo/ ni dhafari/ ziyaara/ za Shekh Nureeni. ‘Today there is no sleeping all night long (because) it is the celebration for Sheikh Nureeni.’

Ramaḏaani/ dhafarize/ niingi. ‘During Ramadhan one often does not sleep all night long.’

dhagaala (ma-)

n. [Som. dhag "ear" and dhagla "a deaf man" Ab54] a partially deaf person (In Somali, intervocalic g is realized phonetically as a fricative. Chimiini preserves this phonetic realization: [pron. dhagaala], where [g] indicates a voiced velar fricative.)

dhagala uyu ‘this deaf person’; madhagala awa ‘these deaf people’

Muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ ichiwa hapeendi/ hufanya ruuhuye/ dhagaala/ haakasi. ‘If one does not want to listen to something, he (lit.) makes himself deaf -- i.e. pretends to not hear.’

Omari/ mwaanawe/ zazila dhagaala/ nt^haná/ dawa. ‘Omari’s child was born deaf; he has no cure (I.e. he cannot be cured).’

Sa’iidi/ shfanya ruuhuye/ dhagaala. ‘Sa’iidi pretended to be deaf.’

dhagiso

adj. unknown etym greedy

ku-dhahalata

v. [Som. dhaxl- F&H 173] inherit kumdhahalaṭa ‘to inherit from him’

Maana/ humdhahalaṭa/ mzeelewe. ‘A son inherits from his parents.’
Omari/ dhahaleete/ kilaa chiint^hu/ cha baaba/ lasiló/ mapeesa/ ḍahabu/ luulu/ majuumba/ na zinginezé. ‘Omari inherited everything that father left: money, gold, pearls, houses, and other things.’

rel.

ku-dhahalaṭika v. p/s.

ku-dhahalaṭisha v. caus.

ku-dhahalaṭishana v. caus. rec.

ku-dhahalaṭishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-dhahalaṭishilizana v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-dhahalaṭoowa v. pass.

Mzeele/ hudhahalaṭoowa/ na maana. ‘A parent is inherited from by his son.’ Or: Mzeele/ kudhahalaṭowa na maana.

ku-dhahalisha v. caus. (dhahalishiize) bequeath

Mdhahalishize mwaanawe/ peesa. ‘He bequeathed money to his son.’

Sultaani/ chamura mawaziiriwe/ kumdhahalisha mwaana/ maali/ yaa ye/ takuḷató/ yote/ na kumṭawalisha muuyi. ‘The sultan ordered his ministers to give his son all the wealth that he would leave behind and to make him the ruler of the town.’

ku-dhahalishoowa v. pass.

Nuuru/ dhahalishize peesa/ naaye. ‘Nuuru was bequeathed money by him.’ (Syn. It is ungrammatical to say Peesa/ zidhahalishize Nuuru/ naaye. ‘Money was bequeathed to Nuuru by him.’)

Sultaani/ fiilopó/ ba’ada ya mataanga/ kondroloowa/ mwaana/ shfanyowa na chidhahalishoowa/ maali/ na muḷkú/ na kuḷla ya sultaani/ chimilkó. ‘When the sultan died, after the wake was held, the boy was made sultan and inherited the money and property and everything that the sultan owned.’

rel. nom.

u-dhahalato n. 14

u-dhahalisho n. 14

dhahali

n. inheritance

Aamina/ maamaye/ ndratiḷile iḷabe/ dhahali. ‘Aamina’s mother her a large gold necklace as an inheritance.’

dhahamu

n. [Som. dhaxan F&H 173] cold, chill, freezing temperature

Dhahali/ ni dhahamu. ‘Inheritance is chilling (i.e. a source of troubles, frustrations and the like).’ (A proverb.)

Nguwo/ yikoo kulé/ naawé// ha’ikureebi/ dhahamu. ‘A cloth far from you does not protect you from cold.’ (A proverb.)

dhakap

ideo. of a strong, forceful grip

Askari/ mrashize mwizi/ mshihshile/ dhakáp! ‘The police chased the thief and caught him dhakap! (in a strong grip).’

dhakh

ideo. of falling into mud

Muke/ oyo/ shfakhirisho ruuhuyé/ shereele/ potele matotopeeni/ dhakh! ‘That woman, who was making herself proud (i.e. doing something out of pride) slipped and fell into the mud dhakh!’

dhakh

ideo. of laughing; of a car not starting

Fatuura/ ya Nuuru/ motoore/ ihalaweete/ inaakula/ dhakh dhakh dakh!/ ichondroloowa. ‘The motor of Nuuru’s car broke, it is making noise dhakh dhakh dhakh! when started.’

Hamadi/ walishize shṭeko/ dhakh dhakh dhakh! ‘Hamadi laughed dhakh dhakh dhakh!’

ku-dhakha

v. [Som.] (dhakhiile) be early, be quick, hurry; move variant form: kudhakhsaṭa (dhakhseete)

Jahazi/ haydhakhi/ bilaa lpepo. ‘A jahazi does not move without wind.
(A proverb.)’

Kuraaga/ ba/ amó/ kudhakhá/ mi/ nt^hakuruuda/ kiitu. ‘Be it later or be it earlier, I will return home.’

magghaniye hayraagi/ hudhakha kubarsishoowa [st.] ‘his protection comes swiftly and is immediately felt’

Maamé/ uchiraaga/ amó/ uchidhakha/ ba/ mowṭi/ uṭakuniṭiṭa/ mahala mi/ nt^hakuwaakó. ‘Mother, whether it be later or sooner, death will come to me, wherever I may be.’

Sheekhi/ dhakhiile/ kendra madrasaani. ‘Sheekhi hurried to school.’

rel.

ku-dhakhaakha v. move

Hamadi/ mwambile mwaanawe/ kalaant^ha/ sidhakhaakhé/ hatá/ chaala/sidhakhaakhishé. ‘Hamadi told his child: sit, don’t move! even a finger don’t move!’

Kanaa si/ ni kiineendrá/ si/ laazimu/ kudhakhaakha/ ka hima. ‘If we are to proceed, we are to go ahead as quickly as possible.’

Omari/ hadhakhaakhi/ ba/ kana kalanṭ^hililo mayaank^hukú. ‘Omari does not move, it is like he has sat on eggs (referencing the fact that when a hen lays egg, it does not move around).’

ku-dhakhaakhisha v. move s.t.

chiza kudhakhakhisha chaala ‘to not move a finger (i.e. to be perfectly still)’

Chaala/ sidhakhaakhishé. ‘Don’t move a finger!’

Hatá/ chaala/ sidhakhaakhishé. ‘Don’t move even a finger!’

ku-dhakh(i)sha v. caus. (dhakhishiize) variant forms: kudhakhsisha

Mukhtaari/ mdhakhishize mwaana/ kendra sukhuuni. ‘Mukhtaari had the child hurry to go to the market.’

Yaayi/ we/ hudhakhshi/ ba/ ka himaahima. ‘How come you make it quickly in a hurry!’ (The verb form hudhakhshi was used by the narrator and transcribed by MI, but we cannot explain the final vowel i in an affirmative habitual form.)

ku-dhakhshana v. caus. rec. (-dhakhsheene)

Wana awa/ wadhakhshene kendra sukhuuni. ‘These children caused one another to hurry to the market.’

ku-dhakhshika v. caus. p/s.

Haliima/ hadhakhshiki/ izito/ kana ijuuniya. ‘Haliima cannot be moved,
she is as heavy as a sack.’

ku-dhakhshiliza v. caus. appl. (dhakhshiliize)

Hasani/ mdhakhshilize Sheekhi/ mwaana/ kendra sukhuuni. ‘Hasani had Sheekhi’s child hurry to go to the market.’

ku-dhakhshilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (dhakhsilizeenye)

Want^hu awa/ wadhakhshilizenye waana/ kendra sukhuuni. ‘These people made one another’s children hurry to go to the market.’

ku-dhakhaakha

v. intr. [Som.] (dhakhakhiile) move

Dughaaghi/ nt^hakudakhaakha/ walá/ nt^hakhtaharaka. ‘The beast did not move [his whole body] nor did he move [part of his body].’

Ibateera/ idhakhaakhiile. ‘The boat moved.’

Jahazi/ haydhakhaakhi/ bilaa lpepo. ‘A dhow does not move without the wind.’
(A proverb which communicates the idea that everything has a cause. It is also used to refer to a rumor: if there is a rumor, there is likely some truth to
it. Where there’s smoke, there’s a fire.)

Mwaana/ dhakhakhiile. ‘The child moved (shifted his position).’

rel.

ku-dhakhakhadhakhaakha v. freq.

ku-dhakhaakhika v. p/s.

ku-dhakhaakhisha v. tr. (dhakhakhishiize) move something (this verb is used generally to convey the notion that someone physically moved another person or thing, not that he persuaded etc. someone to move, hence our label "tr." rather than "caus.")

Ali/ dhakhakhishize bateera. 'Ali moved the boat (e.g. from one point of anchorage to another).'

Ali/ mdhakhakhishize mwaana. 'Ali moved the child (e.g. from one position to another, from one place to another).' (Syn. One can omit the object noun when it can be identified from context: Ali/ mdhakhakhishiize. 'Ali moved him/her.' But one cannot omit both the noun and the object prefix: Ali/ dhakhakhishiize.)

Ji/ dhakhakhashizee chiti. 'Ji moved a chair.' (Cf. Ji/ chidhakhakhishizee chiti. 'Ji moved the chair.' Or: Ji/ chidhakhakhishiize. 'Ji moved it [cl.7].') ku-dhakhakhishana v. tr., rec.

ku-dhakhakhishika v. tr. p/s.

ku-dhakhakhishiliza v. tr. appl.

Shu'eebu/ mdhakhakhishilize Umuri/ mwaana. 'Shu'eebu moved Umuri's child.'

ku-dhakhakhishilizanya v. tr. appl. rec.

Shu'eebu/ na Umuri/ wadhakhakhishilizenye waana. 'Shu'eebu and Umuri moved each other's children.'

ku-dhakhaalata

v. [Som. dhaqaal- F&H 175] (dhakhaleete) save money, maintain a family; treat well; keep animals

Maðhabu ya Shaafi'i/ hayreebi/ warasha maðhabu iyi/ kudhakhalataa mbwa/ ka jis'iyu/ want^hu walima miyuundra/ hukorshaa mbwa/ na hisaabata/ mbwa/ kuwa ni karka daaba/ haminikó/ na hukhadirowa kaminilowa nuumba. 'The sect of Shaafi'i does not prevent the followers of this school from keeping dogs, for this reason people who farm raise dogs and consider them to be among the animals that are trustworthy and able for the house to be entrusted to them [to protect it].'

rel.

ku-dhakaalisha v. treat well

Omari/ ni muunt^hu/ msuura/ hudhakhalisha waant^hu. 'Omari is a good person, he treats people well.'

dhakhaali

n. maintenance (of a family)

ku-dhakhamata

v. behave

Mi/ ndrangaaliilé/ jisa Abú/ dhakhameetó. 'I watched how Abu behaved.'

rel.

ku-dhakhamatoowa v. pass.

Mi/ niizé/ kudhakhamatowa kana mwaana. 'I objected to being treated like a child.'

dhakhani

n. [Som. dhaqan "culture, traditions, customs" DSI 158] culture, traditions, customs, character, behavior

Khkoða liila/ kumsayda muunt^hu/ ni karka dhakhani suura. 'Telling the truth, helping people, (these traits) are included in (having) a good character/ culture.'

Muunt^hu/ hakhadiroowi/ kudhakhamatowa naaye/ ichiwa dhakhaniye/ nii mbovu. 'One cannot be dealt with if his behavior/character is bad.'

Waana/ laazimu/ kubarata tarafu ya dhakhani yiitu. 'Children must learn about our traditions.'

rel.

chi-dhakhani n. 7 in the traditional manner

Ľamna/ yaa ye/ himbo Ľimbo Ľi/ ni chidhakhani/ kabisá. The way she sings this song is very traditional.

ku-dhakhata

v. (dhakheete) maintain (e.g. a wife, family – i.e. take full care of wife, pay for all food, clothing, necessary purchases); stand, tolerate one's spouse

Hamadi/ hamdhakhati/ muke. 'Hamadi does not take full care of his wife.'

Muke/ humdhakati/ ni muunt'u/ humzaalo. 'The one who cannot take of a wife is one who could be her father (lit. who gives birth to her).' (A proverb that conveys the idea that poor provider for his wife is someone much older than her, old enough to be her father.)

Muunt'u/ chiza khadira mdhakhataa muke/ humlata. 'If a person cannot take care/ treat well his wife, he should divorce her.'

Omari/ humdhakhatu mukeewe/ jisa suura/ kilaa chiint'u/ humfanyiliza. 'Omari treats his wife very well, he does everything for her.'

rel.

ku-dhakhatoowa v. pass. be treated

Muke/ chiza kudhakhatoowa/ jisa suura/ kheeri/ kulatoowa. 'If a wife is not treated well, it is better (for her) to divorce.'

Muke/ laazimu/ kudhakhatoowa/ jisa suura. 'A wife should be taken care of/ treated well.'

Muke/ ka wanaafakhi/ huloowa/ ka za lila/ (na) hudhakhatoowa. 'Women with lies are married, (but) with truth they are maintained/ provided for/ treated (thereafter).' (A proverb which stresses the need for truthfulness after marriage.)

raadi hulomboowa wake/ jisa wachidakhatoowa [st.] 'they beg the women's forgiveness for the way they have been treated'

wadakheetu n'awakiwa/ mbovu wachiziwoowa [st.] 'as they did not know where their sustenance came from, they were kept in the dark about any evil' ku-dhakhmata v. deal with, treat ku-dhakhmatoowa v. pass.

Muunt'u/ hakhadiroowi/ kudhakhatowa naaye/ ichiwa dhakhaniye/ nii mbovu. 'A person cannot be dealt with if his behavior/ character is bad.'

dhakhaayo

adj. skinny, without fat

ngombe dhakhaayo 'a skinny cow'

Ngombe yuu/ ni dhakhaayo. 'This cow is skinny.'

dhalu (ma-)

n. 5/6 [despite the characteristic Somali sound dh, this word would seem cognate to the Sw. dau SSED 7] a sailing boat whose sail is made of matting not cloth (no longer used in the Brava area)

i-dhanaana

adj. [Som. dhanaan Ab 48] in the expression:

khfanya idhanaana 'to make sour (of milk)'

Haliima/ iziwa/ iweeshele/ sku niingi/ hatá/ ifanyize idhanaana. 'Haliima kept the milk for long time until she made it sour.'

Umi/ nakiska iziwa/ ya ngamiila/ naki'ifanya idhanaana. 'Umi is shaking camel milk to make it sour.'

ku-dhaansaata

v. [Som. dham- F&H 172] (dhanseete) draw water; take water from a container

Jaama/ dhanseete maayi/ (ka ikoopa). 'Jaama drew water (with a cup).'

rel.

ku-dhansatika v. p/s.

ku-dhansatiloowa v. app. pass. (dhansatiliila)

Ikoopa/ idhansatiliila maayi. 'The cup was used to get water.'

ku-dhansaṭila v. appl. (dhansaṭiliile)

Hamadi/ tete ikoopa/ kudhansaṭila maayi. ‘Hamadi took a cup to draw water.’

Ikoopa/ Hamadi/ dhansaṭilile maayi. ‘A cup, Hamadi used one to get water.’

Mdhansaṭilile Baana/ maayi. ‘She drew water for Baana.’

ku-dhansaṭilana v. appl. rec .

ku-dhansaṭoowa v. pass. (dhanseṭa)

Maayi/ yadhanseṭa na Jaama. ‘Water was drawn by Jaama.’

dhara

hiskaṭilo diini Mooja hamoonyi yaa dhara [nṭ.] ‘if one relies on God, He will not let him come to harm’

ku-dharara

v. (dharariile) be in a hurry, hurry, be eager (Observe that the past tense verb is exceptional in that one would expect the perfect suffix iil to be altered to iil after a liquid – cf. dariile ‘he touched’.)

Abú/ nakudharara/ mweenzwe/ kuuya. ‘Abu is eager for his friend to come.’

Alí/ nakudharara/ haṭá/ ye/ kendra Spartiwooni. ‘Ali is in a hurry until he goes to the stadium.’

Hamadi/ nakudharara/ chiza ku’egoowa/ ka iyo/ ituushiló. ‘Hamadi is eager not to be blamed for what happened.’

kudharara kuḷawa ‘to be in a hurry to leave’

Mi/ nakudharará/ khpowa fursa/ ya piilji. ‘I am eager to be given a second chance.’

Nakudharará/ mi. ‘I am in a hurry.’ Or: Mi/ nakudharará.

Omari/ chidharara/ kumwonya Abú/ faṭuura. ‘Omari is eager to show Abu the car.’

Omari/ nakudharara. ‘Omari is in a hurry.’

Osmaani/ nakudharara/ kendra muskitiini. ‘Osmaani is in a hurry to go to the mosque.’

Si/ chinakudharará/ wana wiitu/ khpata masoomo. ‘We are eager for our children to get educated.’

rel.

ku-dhararila v. appl. (dharariilile) hurry for (It should be noted that this verb is one where the l in the applied suffix does not change to l in the presence of a preceding liquid: kudhararila. However, the l does become l when followed by the perfect suffix, which also changes to l: dharariilile.)

Nini/ yaa we/ nakudarariló. ‘What is it that you are in a hurry for?’

We/ nakudhararilani. ‘Why are you in a hurry? What are you in a hurry for?’

ku-dhararisha v. caus.

Hamadi/ namdhararisha Omari. ‘Hamadi is making Omari hurry (i.e. they are together and Hamadi is pushing Omari to move more quickly).’ (Note that this causative form does not have the same sense as Hamadi/ namdharara Omari) ku-dhararishika v. caus. p/s.

Haadi/ hadhararishiki. ‘Haadi cannot be hurried up.’

ku-dhararishiliza v. caus. appl. (dhararishiliize)

Endrá/ mdhararishilize/ waanawe/ chiwooni. ‘Go and hurry up for her the children from school.’

ku-dhararishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-dhararishilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

Maama/ nakhsuḷa waanawe/ kudhararishilizoowa/ chiwooni. ‘Mother wants her children to be hurried (home) from school.’

ku-dhararishoowa v. caus. pass.

ku-dhararoowa v. be hurried up ku-dhararoowa v. pass.

Hamadi/ maamaye/ namdharara. ‘Hamadi’s mother is hurrying him (she is not actually together with him, but rather is somewhere else, wanting him to hurry to come).’

Hamadi/ nakudhararoowa. ‘Hamadi is being hurried.’

Waant^hu/ wanakudhararoowa. ‘People are being hurried (i.e. people are wanted to come in a hurry).’

dharaari

n. [Som. dharaar Ab 49] the middle of the day when it is hottest; adj. hot M^walim Omari/ nt^haná/ naharisi/ ka dharaari/ huwasimika waana/ ibanyaani.
‘Teacher Omari has no mercy, during the hottest time of day he makes students stand outside.’
Shpiindri/ iwa/ huwa idharaari/ waant^hu/ hupumula/ ba’adi ya kujaa khaða.
‘The noon sun becomes hot, people rest after lunch.’

ku-dhaayika

v. (-dhayishile) melt (of ghee, ice)
Jalaata/ inakudhaayika. ‘The ice cream is melting.’
Suukari/ idhayishile. ‘The sugar melted.’
rel.
ku-dhaayisha v. caus. (dayishiize) melt s.t.
Mi/ nk^hakhaadira/ khfaanya/ yaa mi/ nnakhsuuló/ yote/ karka duniya/ mazá/ mu_o/ su_la khaadira/ kundhaayishá. ‘If I can do whatever I want in the world, how come fire is able to melt me?’ (This example from MI illustrates the retention of the first person singular subject marker n in front of the present tense marker na. GM regularly reduces the nn sequence to n.
Nakudhayisha mafta. ‘He is making the oil watery.’
ku-dhayishoowa v. caus. pass.
Inakudhayishoowa/ maftaata. ‘The butter is being melted.’

dhee’aani

n. 10 secretion
dhe’ani haba mooyi ‘a small amount of secretion’
Hamadi/ ijarahaye/ inaku_lawa dhee’aani/ niingi. ‘Hamadi’s wound is producing a lot of secretion.’
Hamadi ipuuye/ inakh_tanyika dhee’aani. ‘Hamadi’s infected wound is secreting a lot.’
Ipu/ inaku_lawa dhee’aani/ niingi. ‘The infected wound, boil etc. is producing a lot of secretion.’
rel.
mi-dhee’aani n. 4 aug.
Midhee’aani ^fmiingi/ yanam_lawó/ Hamadi/ ipuuni. ‘A lot of secretion is coming out from Hamadi’s infected wound.’ Or: Midhee’aani ^fmiingi/ Hamadi/ yanam_lawó/ ipuuni.

dheefu

n. 9 [Som. dheef] good health, the state of being well-fed Korele ka dheefu. ‘He grew up in good health, with an abundance of food.’
mwenye dheefu ‘well-fed, in good health’

ku-dheelmata

v. [Som.] (dheelmeete) get up early in the morning and go somewhere Walima muundra/ fijiri/ ka mapeema/ hudheelmata/ miyundraani. ‘Farmers early in the morning go to farms.’
rel.
ku-dheelmataowa v. pass.
Keesho/ inakawanyowa raashini/ ka buure/ ka rasente/ laazimu/ kudheelmataowa. ‘Tomorrow food is being distributed for free at the commissioner’s house; one must go early.’
ku-dhelmishoowa v. caus. pass. (dhelmishiiza) na ba’di ya ye kudhelmishoowa / panzile kuzimu [st.] ‘and after he was transported in the night [to Jerusalem], he ascended to heaven’

dheneghi

n. [cf. standard Som. where "palate" has several variants: dhabxanag, dhanxalag, dhanxanag, dhanxarag DSI 150. The dhanxanag variant seems the one that could be linked to the Chimiini form, possibly through some dialectal form. The term is not listed in Tosco’s Tunni glossary.] palate

Dheneghi/ inakundraaza. ‘My palate is aching.’

chi-dheenke (zi-)

n. 7/8 palm of the hand; [pron: chidheenk^he] (This word was given by MI, but is unknown to GM, who uses chiseenge for ‘palm of the hand’; the partial similarity between these two forms is of some interest, but we have been unable to explore any significance it might have.)

ku-dherekela

v. yearn for, have a strong desire to possess what belongs to others kudherekela kamba ruuhu ‘to want (desire) s.t. like life (soul) -- i.e. to desire something very passionately’ Nakudherekela kumwona mwaanawe. ‘He likes a lot to see his son.’
Omari/ nakudherekela shaati/ ya Hamadi/ uziló/ haṭá/ madhereeri/ yana/ mvuuya. ‘Omari greatly loves the shir that Hamadi bought, to the point that thick saliva is pouring from his mouth.’

rel.

ku-dherekeḷoowa v. pass.

Omari/ nakudherekeḷoowa/ kana suukari. ‘Omari is being liked like sugar.’

i-dhereeri (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Som.] heavy saliva, spit Hasani/ penzelee kuja/ haṭá/ madhereeri/ yamvuyiile. ‘Hasani loved food to the point that saliva dripped from him (in anticipation of eating).’
idhereri ya iyaank^huku ‘egg white’ Mbwa mkavu/ siwo/ haraamu/ kudaroowake/ laakini/ muunt^hu/ ṭahaḍarishiiza/ chiza kudaara/ madhereeriye. ‘Touching a dry dog is not forbidden [by the Shaafi’i sect of Islam], but a person is warned not to touch its saliva.’

ma-dheeyo

n. 6
maḍeyo aya ‘these madheeyo fruit’ Nakhsonda madheeyo. ‘He is sucking out the juice of the madheeyo (and spitting out the remains).’

ku-dhiba

v. [Som.] (dhibiile) harm, bother, annoy Haydhibi chiint^hu. ‘It doesn’t matter, it’s all the same.’
Huudi/ mdhibile mwaana. ‘Huudi annoyed the child.’
illa ka haaja haydhibi fanyaani [st.] ‘you may do so only when necessary (lit. except with need [then] it does not matter do)’ Inamdhibo mwaaná/ ni miimba. ‘What is hurting the child is his stomach.’
Majini/ mukhtaá wo/ wamweno Sa’iidi/ wahadiile/ nasibu yiitu/ leelo/ shpete muunt^hu/ kumdhiba. ‘The djinns, when they saw Sa’iidi, they said: our luck is today, we have gotten a man to do harm to.’
Mara yiingine/ sidhibe waant^hu. ‘The next time he may not bother people.’
Maraði/ hudhiba waant^hu. ‘Diseases afflict people.’
Miimba/ imdhibiile/ mwaana. ‘The child’s stomach hurt him.’
Mwaana/ miimba/ inamdhiba. ‘The child’s stomach is hurting him’
Mwana uje/ maamboye/ yandhibiile. ‘That child, his behavior bothered me.’
Wo/ hufaanya/ kulla ya sarkaali/ nakhsuuló/ ichiwa zint^hu izo zaa wo/ watakhfaanyó/ stakuwadhibaa wo/ amó/ stakuwadhiba ahli/ yaawo/ amó/ wiinginé. ‘They do whatever the government wants, if these things that they do will harm them or harm their relatives or others.’

rel.

ku-dhibika v. p/s. (dhibishile)

Mwaanawa/ dhibishile safari iyi. ‘My child suffered on this trip.’

Omari/ nakudhibika apo. ‘Omari is having problems there.’
Ye/ dhibishile/ khfahama haṭá/ mooyi/ kiḷma/ ya chingereenza.
‘She could barely understand a word of English.’

Ye/ dhibishile/ nt^ho/ khkooḍa. ‘She had a lot of difficulty speaking.’

Ye/ nt^hakudhibika/ kandikaa khaṭi. ‘She had no difficulty writing the letter.’

ku-dhibikoowa v. (dhibishila)

Safari iyi/ idhibishiila. ‘This trip was suffered on (it).’

ku-dhibiloowa v. appl. pass.

Muunt^hu/ kudhibilowa jawaabu/ yaa ye/ hapeendi/ siwo/ suura.
‘For a person to be bothered with things that he does not like is not good.’

ku-dhibila v. appl.

Omari/ nakudhibila waant^hu/ khori. ‘Omari is bothering people with a gun.’

ku-dhiboowa v. pass.

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kudhiboowa. ‘It is not good for people to be bothered, burdened.’

dhibu

n. difficulty, harm

Akhili niingi/ kuletaa dhibu. ‘Too much cleverness causes harm.’ (A proverb.)

Dhibu/ humbarsha muunt^hu/ kilaa chiint^hu. ‘Hardship/difficulties teach one everything.’ (A proverb.)

Kaa dhibu/ kumwelela niingi/ mwaana/ chi’azima/ kondroka ka apo. ‘Because of difficulty being on him a lot, the boy decided to move from there.’

Mi/ mbenee dhibú/ niingi. ‘I have seen many difficulties.’

Mithaali/ iyi/ inakuhada/ ya kuwaa dhibu/ yiwó/ ni mwenyee dhibu. ‘This proverb says that the one who really understands difficulty is the one who has experienced difficulty.’

Muunt^hu/ dhibu/ ndiyé/ hulelo ruuhuyé. ‘For someone, a problem, it is he who brings it on himself.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Muunt^hu/ dhibuye/ ndiyé/ na’iwó. ‘A person, his problems, it is he who knows (them).’ (A proverbial saying.)

We/ chiwamo dhibuuni/ niḷḷaa mi. ‘If you are in trouble, come to me.’ Or: We/ chiwamo dhibuuni/ niḷḷa/ mi.

dhibu

adj. difficult

Iyo/ itakuwaa dhibu. ‘That will be difficult.’

Khfanyowa Jaani/ mabsuuti/ nii dhibu. ‘For John to be pleased is difficult.’ Or: Khfanyowa mabsuuti/ Jaani/ nii dhibu. Or: Jaani/ khfanyowa mabsuuti/ nii dhibu. Or: Jaani/ nii dhibu/ khfanyowa mabsuuti.

ndila yaa dhibu ‘difficult road’

Nii dhibu/ kumfanya Jaani/ mabsuuti. ‘It is difficult to please John.’ Or: Nii dhibu/ kumfanya mabsuuti/ Jaani. Or: Kumfanya Jaani/ mabsuuti/ nii dhibu. Or: Kumfanya mabsuuti/ Jaani/ nii dhibu.

Yalikoo dhibu/ na Fardoosa/ kuleta ruuhuye/ kunambilaa mi/ tarafu yaa cho. ‘It was difficult for Fardoosa to bring herself to tell me about it.’

dhiq

ideo. of laughing

Hamadi/ nakhteka/ shṭeko/ dhikh dhikh dhikh! ‘Hamadi is laughing a lot, dhikh dhikh dhikh!’

ku-dhirifa

v. (dhirifiile) get angry

Omari/ karka shiri/ dalḍalameete/ haṭá/ waant^hu/ wadhiriifiile/ waḷazile. ‘Omari in the meeting talked too much until people got angry and left.’

ku-dhisata

v. [Som. dhis] build, strengthen, make look good

Haliima/ mkali/ kudhisata. ‘Haliima is very good at making herself up to look good.’

rel.

ku-dhisatiloowa v. appl. pass.

Omari/ nt^haná/ nguwo ya dhisatiloowa. ‘Omari does not have cloth for making himself look good.’

ku-dhisatila v. appl.

Omari/ nakhsula shaatiya/ kudhisatila. ‘Omari wants my shirt for making him look good.’

ku-dhisatoowa v. pass.

Haliima/ nakudhisatoowa. ‘Haliima is being made up to look good.’

ilmuye fafishaani/ diini inadhisatoowa [st.] ‘the dissemination of knowledge will strengthen our religion’

dhofoori

n. 9/10 part of the face including the cheeks and jaw

Chondroka baakoora/ chimduriḷa dhoforiimi. ‘He raised his cane and poked him in the jaw.’

Dhoofoorize/ sfuriile. ‘His lower face swelled up.’

Mbishile ipi ya dhofoori. ‘He slapped him on the side of the face.’

rel.

chi-dhofoori (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-dhofoori (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

dhokhookhi

n. faint voice, a sound

Kuḷa/ mooyi/ ambete mahala ya/ waalikó/ pashpo dokhookhi/ nakulindra jahazi kuzama. ‘Each one stuck to the place where he was, without making a sound, waiting for the dhow to sink.’

Ye/ shtomola dhokhookhi/ shfungula maato/ kulangala waant^hu. ‘She emitted a faint voice and opened her eyes to look at the people.’

chi-dhoondha (zi-)

n. 7/8 wound

chi-dhoonko

n. handful; [pron.chidhoonk^ho]

Haliima/ mpele Aamina/ muḅu/ chidhoonk^ho/ chimooyi. ‘Haliima gave Aamina one handful of salt.’

Omari/ mrebeleeḷe/ Haaji/ suukari/ mwambiile/ sikhupi/ haḷá/ nusu ya chidhoonk^ho. ‘Omari refused Haaji sugar, he told him: I will not give you even half a handful.’

chi-dhoonko (zi-)

n. 7/8 [cf. Sw. kidoko (vi-) SSED 76] click (Despite the dh sound, which is generally indicative of a Somali origin, this item seems cognate with the Swahili item referenced. Another indication of a Bantu source is the prenasalized sound nk^h, with aspiration, which is not normally found except in items of Bantu origin. The long vowel in front of the prenasalized consonant is also a typically Bantu feature.)

kubiga chidhoonk^ho ‘to make a snapping sound’

Ali/ nt^haná/ adabu/ huvila waant^hu/ ka chidoonk^ho. ‘Ali does not have good manners, he calls people by snapping (his) fingers.’

Wake/ harusii ya Nuuru/ wanakhteza/ wanakubiga zidhoonk^ho. ‘Women at Nuuru’s wedding are playing, snapping (their) fingers (usu. thumb and middle finger).’

ku-dhoora

v. (dhoreeḷe) guard, protect, watch over, take care of; stop talking to s.o., sever a relationship; be considerate, respect s.t. (e.g. laws, rules, one’s elders)

Dhora ruuhuyo/ naawé/ takudhooreka. ‘Take care of yourself and you will be taken care of.’ (This saying conveys the idea that you cannot rely on others to watch out for your interests; if you want to be sure that you will be taken care of properly, you must do it yourself.)

Harameni/ mdhoreḷe mwaalimu. ‘Harameni stopped talking to the teacher.’

Hudhora waant^hu. ‘He is considerate to people.’
Hudhoro ruuhuyé/ haawoni/ dhibu. ‘He who watches out for himself does not see difficulties.’ (A proverb.)
Hudhoro ruuhuyé/ hupata salaama. ‘Who takes care of himself gets peace.’ (A proverb.)
kudhoroa/ kanaa nk^hbuku/ kalant^hililo mayaank^hbukú ‘to take care of as a hen that is sitting on its eggs’ kudhora want^hu wazima ‘to respect one’s elders’ kulumikoowa ni dhoraani ndrúza [st.] ‘avoid being cupped [during fasting], my brothers’ kumdhoora/ kama maatoyo ‘to protect him as [you would] your eyes’
Munt^hu sho kudhora ahdi/ si muunt^hu. ‘The person who does not respect a promise is not a man.’
Mwajiitu/ nachidhoora. ‘May God protect us.’
Si/ shtamhafiða/ na shtamdhoora/ jisa muunt^hu/ humdhoro ruuhuyé/ na zaaydí. ‘We will protect him and we will guard him just as a person does to protect himself, and even more than that.’
Siwo/ waajibu/ ilu yiinu/ kudhora waant^hu/ wakulu wiinú? ‘Is it not obligatory for you (pl.) to respect people older than you?’ (Phon. This sentence is in an instance of a simple yes-no question. What is striking is that although their several phonological phrases in the sentence, it is only the final phrase, wakulu wiinu, that undergoes the accent shift that affects out-of-focus elements in yes-no questions.)
Wachiya/ ka sultani waawo/ wachimwaambila/ we/ ndiwé/ sultani wiitu/ ni ilu/ ya sultaani/ wa muuyi/ kuwadhoora/ ra’iyaye/ na kuwa’ondrolelá/ kila/ dhibu. ‘They came to their sultan and said to him: you, its you, are our sultan, and it is the responsibility [lit. on] the sultan of the town to protect its citizens and to remove from them every hardship.’
We/ husuloowa/ kumpeenda/ na kumdhora. ‘You ought to love him and protect him.’
Ye/ ndhoreele/ nt^hangú/ yuuzi. ‘He stopped talking to me (as of) the day before yesterday.’

rel.

ku-dhoorana v. rec. (dhoreene) variant form: kudhoranana (dhoraneene)

ku-dhooreka v. p/s.

ku-dhoorela v. appl. (dhoreleele)

ku-dhoreloowa v. appl. pass.

Osmaani/ nakhsula maanawe/ kudhoreloowa. ‘Osmaani wants his child to be watched/ taken care of.’

ku-dhor(e)sha v. caus.

Mdhoresheze mwaana/ nuumba. ‘He had the child look after the house.’

Nureeni/ mdhoresheze mwaana/ mwaalimu. ‘Nureeni caused the child to stop talking to the teacher.’

ku-dhor(e)sheleza v. caus. appl.

Hiindrá/ mdhoresheleze Suufi/ mwaana/ mwaalimu. ‘Hiindra caused Suufi’s child to stop talking to the teacher.’

ku-dhoroowa v. pass. be protected

Zint^hu za aada/ husuloowa kudhoroowa. ‘Traditional things should be [lit. are wanted to] be protected.’

ku-dhoorshaka v. p/s.

ku-dhorshalezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

dhowani

even number dhokhookhi

n. sound

	Shkasa dhokhookhi/ ndilaani. ‘He heard a sound outside.’ Wachiimba/ wash^hteza/ ha^há/ sa’a ikumi/ za masku/ ba’ada ya apo/ dhokhookhi/ yaawo/ itozela/ wotte/ usiinzi/ uwaleete/ wala^hize/ nt^hini ya mteendre. ‘They sang and they danced until the hour of ten at night [i.e. four a.m.], after that their sound was missing [i.e. no sound was heard from them], sleep took them all so that they lay under the date tree.’
ku-dhokhookhisha	v. caus. rel. ku-dhokhookhishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-dhokhookhishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
dhoowooyi	n. Mbu za dhoowooyi/ zinayo ma^haariya. ‘Mud, clay area mosquitoes carry malaria.’
dhu	n. 9 [Som. dhuux] marrow (In order to conform to the requirement in Chimiini that all words end in a vowel, the final consonant of the Somali word is elided as opposed to being preserved by adding an epenthetic vowel at the end of the word. The loss of the final consonant has the effect that the long vowel of the Somali word is brought into word-final position, a position where vowel length is not permitted in Chimiini. As a consequence, the vowel must be shortened.) Mwishpa uyu/ dhuuye/ ni m^htaandano. ‘This bone’s marrow is yellowish.’ (The long vowel in dhuuye is not an indication that dhu has an underlying long vowel, rather there is a phonological phenomenon associative with the monosyllabic possessive enclitics that lengths their final vowel under certain circumstances, one of which is that the stem is monosyllabic.) We/ nambilaa mi/ dhu/ ya jawaabu. ‘Tell me the essence of what was said.’
chi-dhu (zi-)	n. 7/8 a unit of measure that corresponds to the quantity of grains/milk which fills an empty tin that koriginally contained 1 kg. of tomato; [pron. chidhú] (Phon. The initial consonant in the stem indicates a Somali origin for this word, but the local Tunni dialect uses the word maas for this measure. The accent on the stem in chidhú suggests that this is, at least in origin, a diminutive form. An ordinary [cl.7/8] noun like chisu has default penult accent.) tawaaðila chidhu oweela huunda/ hadiithi ya Mtume siwo kuruuda [st.] ‘make your ablutions with a chidhu [of water] and wash yourself completely (= shower) with a huunda [of water]; the saying of the Prophet is not to be refused/disregarded’
dhub	ideo. Si/ chimumile Nuurú/ muiyini/ laakini/ masa’a matatu/ yapisiló/ jisaa ye/ olosheló/ dhub dhub!/ nt^hakuruuda/ ha^há/ isa. ‘We sent Nuuru to town but three hours have passed since she went, dhub dhub!, she has not returned until now.’
ku-dhuda	v. bring Basi/ ndrombelaani/ mwajiitu/ namp^heleke/ ka salaama/ na ndhude ka salaama. ‘So, pray for me that God send me in peace and bring me back in peace.’
dhuuðuma	in the expression: kingila dhuuðumu ‘to go in the night to a sleeping woman and rape her’ kingililaa muke/ dhuuðumu ‘to rape a woman while she is sleeping’
dhuugu	n. [Som. dhug "intelligence" DSI 179] ability to remember things, perception Baana/ nt^haná/ dhuugu/ yaa ye/ hambiloowá/ huliwala. ‘Baana cannot remember things, whatever he is told, he forgets.’ Mi/ khupele chití/ cha ezi/ ka khisaa we/ nazo ðuugú/ na fahamú. ‘I have given you the throne [the chair of power] because you have perception and understanding.’

Nk^heje za waana/ zina kum^hoza dhuugu. ‘The children’s noises are causing me to lose track of my thoughts, etc.’

dhukh

ideo. of swallowing quickly and completely, gulping down

Hamadi/ nele maayi/ [↑]yont^he/ dhukh dhukh dhukh. ‘Hamadi gulped down all the water dhukh dhukh dhukh.’

dhukh

ideo. of inserting finger, penis into Hamadi/ tile chaala/ mkateeni/ dhukh dhukh dhukh. ‘Hamadi put (his) finger in the cake repeatedly dhukh dhukh dhukh’

Omari/ mtile maana/ chaala/ tusiini/ dhukh dhukh dhukh. ‘Omari inserted his finger into the child’s anus repeatedly dhukh dhukh dhukh.’

Omari/ mtilee muke/ chaala/ ndiniini/ dhukh dhukh dhukh. ‘Omari inserted his finger into the woman’s vagina repeatedly dhukh dhukh dhukh.’

Omari/ mtilee muke/ ðakariye/ karka farji/ dhukh dhukh dhukh. ‘Omari inserted his penis into the woman’s vagina repeatedly dhukh dhukh dhukh.’

ku-dhukhsata

v. [Som. dhukus- F&H 182] (dhukhsee_{te}) hear, eavesdrop, listen very carefully

Chidhukhsata. ‘He listened very carefully.’

Nureeni/ dhukhsee_{te} kooði. ‘Nureeni listened very carefully to the words rel.

ku-dhukhisha v. listen closely

Basi/ askari/ kamba izo/ wachiiza/ kumdhukhisha/ oyo munt^hu umo ijuniyaani. ‘So, the soldiers refused to listen to those [words] of the man who was inside the sack.’

Chibigaa nk^heje/ na kuhada jis^hiyó/ hatá/ shpata muunt^hu/ kaa kule/ kumdhukhisha. ‘He shouted saying [lit. this way -- saying the same things he had been saying] until he got a man from a distance to listen to him.’

Chiwa^hambila/ kudhukhisha. ‘He told them to listen carefully.’

Mwaana/ iize/ kudhukhisha kooði za maamaye. ‘The boy refused to pay heed to the words of his mother.’

ndhukhisha ndimi mweenziwo [song] ‘listen carefully to me, it is me your fellow man’

Songa mlangooni/ kooða/ mi/ nt^hakhudhukhisha/ ka ndaani. ‘Come to the door and speak, I will listen to you from inside.’

ku-dhukhsatika v. p/s.

ku-dhukhsatisha v. caus.

Hamadi/ mdhukhsatishize mwaana/ kooði. ‘Hamadi had the child listen closely to the words.’

ku-dhukhsatishana v. caus. rec.

ku-dhukhsatishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-dhukhsatishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

dhuko

adj. [Som. dhukay “ear-wax” DSI 180] totally deaf (It should be noted that dhaghaala means partially as opposed to totally deaf.)

dhum dhum

ideo. of staying somewhere for a long time (We have insufficient data to analyze the pitch shapes in ideophones, but dhum is realized with high pitch.)

Omari/ jisaa ye/ ingilo numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ dhum dhum/ iize/ ba/ kulawa. ‘Omari, as he got into Hamadi’s house, he stayed and stayed, he refused to leave.’

Omari/ nakulindroowa/ numbaani/ ka Nuuru/ jisaa ye/ oloshelo dukaani/ ka Huseeni/ dhum dhum! lapiili/ rudiiló. ‘Omari was being waited for at Nuuru’s home as he went to Huseeni’s shop, dhumdhum! It was the afternoon (before) he returned.’ (In this example, lapiili, is clearly focused, triggering the pseudo-relative form rudiiló.)

- ku-dhunksata* v. [Som.] (dhunkseete) kiss with a smacking noise variant form: kudhunkhsata
- dhuuni* n. [Som. dhuunta] throat
Hamadi/ ni ^fdhuuni. ‘Hamadi is greedy (he is never satisfied, he always wants more).’
Mana chihaba/ dhuuniye/ ni chihaba/ munt^hu mzima/ dhuuniye/ nii nk^hulu. ‘A child’s throat is small, and adult’s throat is large.’
Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kuwa dhuuni. ‘It is not good for someone to be greedy.’
- ku-dhuunsa* v. (dhunsiize) become dented
Gaari/ zibigeene/ yaaka/ idhunsiize. ‘The cars collided, mine was dented.’
Sufuriya/ idhunsiize. ‘The pot has become dented.’
rel.
ku-dhuunsika v. p/s.
ku-dhuunsisha v. caus. dent s.t.
ku-dhunsishana v. caus. rec.
ku-dhunsishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-dhunsishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-dhunsishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- dhukh* ideo.
Omari/ wanayoo ndala/ zaaydi/ maṭaaza/ neeló/ dhukh dhukh!/ ka paapo/ maliize. ‘Omari had too much hunger, he drank the porridge dhukh dhukh and finished it immediately.’
Nuuru/ jisaa ye/ shishiḷa ooní/ iziwa/ ka ikoopa/ dakha mooyi/ dhukh dhukh!/ fanyiizó/ yont^he/ neele. ‘Nuuru, as he was thirsty, milk in a cup in one minute dhukh dhukh! he drank it all.’
- dhusi* adj. humid Skíizi/ fijiri/ nii dhusi. ‘These days mornings are humid.’
- ð
- ku-ða’ifika* v. [cf. Sw. dhoofika, “also sometimes dhoofu”, SSED 73] be weakened
rel.
ku-ða’ifisha v. caus. [cf. Sw. dhoofisha SSED 73] weaken s.t. or s.o. (by not providing the means to remain strong); variant form: kuðu’ufisha ku-ða’ifishana v. caus. rec.
ku-ða’ifishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-ða’ifishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-ða’ifishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- ða’iifu (ma-)* adj. [Sw. dhaifu SSED 73] weak Aḷshabaabu/ kana/wanakuwo ḍa’iifú. ‘Al-Shebab seems to be getting weaker.’
Ali/ wele ḍa’iifu. ‘Ali became weak.’
Ba’ada ya maraḍi/ kumfanya ḍa’iifu... ‘After sickness made him weak...’
ḍa’iifu/ kana hakhaadiri ‘weak like someone sick’
Ni mzeelé/ msaafiri/ ḍa’iifu/ nt^ho/ maskiini. ‘I am an old man, a traveler, very weak, and poor.’
Ni/ nakumbonelá/ ka khisa/ mi/ ni ḍa’iifú. ‘You are bullying me because I am weak.’
rel.
u-ða’iifu n. 14 [Sw. udhaifu SSED 73] weakness
- m(u)-ḍabḍabu (wa-)* n. hypocrite

- ðahabu n. 9 [Sw. dhahabu SSED 73; Ar.] gold kana ðahabu ‘like gold’
ha’ipatikani/ kana ðahabu ‘as scarce, hard to get as gold’ Nguwo izi/ ghaali/ kana ðahabu. ‘These clothes are expensive like gold.’
Omari/ dukaye/ huza zoombo/ ghaali/ kana ðahabu. ‘Omari’s shop sells things as expensive as gold.’
Omari/ hufanya ziint^huze/ kana ðahabu. ‘Omari makes his things as gold.’ review what the meaning of this is
- khfula ðahabu ‘to forge, make gold (of a goldsmith)’ Kuḷa/ mooyi/ nakhsuḷa kuwona/ nt^hi ya ðahabu. ‘Everyone wants to see the land of gold.’
- kuvala ðahabu ‘to wear, put on gold’ shpete cha ðahabu ‘a gold ring’
Waant^hu/ wawenapo markabu ya ðahabú/ washṭa’aaba/ nt^ho. ‘The people who saw the ship of gold were greatly amazed.’
ziikopi ðahabu ziikopi doolari [nt.] ‘where is the gold, where are the dollars?’
- ðaahiri adj. [Sw. dhahiri SSED 73; Ar.] clear, apparent Kuwa Siimba/ bozele peesa/ siwo/ ðaahiri. ‘That Siimba stole the money is not clear.’
Ni ðaahiri/ kuwa Baana/ haṭakuuya. ‘It is clear that Baana won’t come.’
 Or: Kuwa Baana/ haṭakuuya/ ni ðaahiri. ‘That Baana won’t come is clear.’
Ni ðaahiri/ kuwaa we/ nayo ijiini. ‘It is clear that you are crazy.’
Siimba/ kubooleke/ chibuuku/ itakuwa ðaahiri. ‘Siimba’s stealing of the money will become evident in court.’
Siimba/ kubooleke/ chibuuku/ iwele ðaahiri/ mahkamaani. ‘Siimba’s stealing of the money became evident in court.’
- ðakari n. 9/10 [Sw. dhakari SSED 73; Ar.] penis; male
Omari/ mtilee muke/ ðakariye/ karka farji/ dhukh dhukh dhukh. ‘Omari inserted his penis into the woman’s vagina repeatedly dhukh dhukh dhukh.’ Ungamanya/ kuḷa/ hayawaani/ ðakari/ na uuunthá/ muke/ na muḷḷi. ‘Gather together every creature, a male and a female, a female and a male.’
 rel.
i-ðakari (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
chi-ðakari (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
- ðalaali n. [Ar. ḍalāl W 543] straying from the right path or from truth; (moral) error we nakuraasha ðalaali [st.] ‘you follow a wrong path, you stray from the right path’
- ðaliili adj. [Sw. dhalili SSED 73; Ar. ḍalīl W 311] humiliated; lowly Shtomola shpeteche/ chichilomba/ chihada/ mi/ nakhsuḷa kuwa ðaliili/ na looniḷá/ linabadilike/ na nguwozá/ zinawe zishaambi. ‘He took out his ring and implored it saying: I want to be poor, and my complexion, let it be changed, and my clothes, let them be rags.’
- ðaalimu (Ø, ma-) adj. [Sw. dhalimu SSED 73; Ar.] one who oppresses, cheats, deceives; wrongdoer munt^hu ðaalimu ‘someone wrongdoing’; want^hu (ma)ðaalimu ‘wrongdoing people’ (cf. chijint^hu chiðaalimu, zijint^hu ziðaalimu, ijint^hu iðaalimu, mijint^hu miðaalimu) hamraashi ðaalimu illa humpiinda [st.] he never follows the wrongdoer, rather he opposes him’ nafsi ni ðaalimu hupeenda fakhari [st.] ‘one’s inner self/emotions are wrongdoers, they love to brag’ ni waajibu sho kistan ja ni ðaalimu [st.] ‘it’s required to clean oneself (after defecating), the one who does not clean himself is a wrongdoer' Sultaani/ wa nt^{hi} iyo/ waliko ðaalimu/ nt^{ho}. 'The sultan of that town was very unjust.'

We/ husu^{lo}owa/ khsiifa/ hukuuma/ hattá/ ichiwa hukuuma/ ni jabbaari/ ni ðaalimú. 'You are required to praise the government even if the government be tyrannical, unjust.' (We have not at present worked out the explanation for the final accent in the last two phrases in this example.)

Yaziidi muunt^hu ðaalimu/ tukiize maali na sumu [st.] 'Yazid, the unjust oppressor/ sent the money and poison'

ðamaana

n. 9/10 [Sw. dhamana SSED 73] s.t. given as a security, collateral, a guarantee kuweka ðamaana 'to deposit a guarantee'

Mi/ skhaadiri/ kumtajila Baana/ ðamaana. 'I cannot take responsibility for Baana's debts etc.'

ðambi (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10 [Sw. dhambi SSED 73] sin, crime, wrongdoing, misdeed, guilt ðambize mwenewe zote hafoowa [st.] 'all his own sins are forgiven' ðambize/ ni niingi. 'His sins are many.'

huloomba Mooja kun'aafu/ ðambi kughafiri^{lo}owa[st.] 'I implore God to obliterate my sins/ may God pardon my sins' khfanya ðambi 'to commit a sin, a crime'

khira ðambi 'to confess'

Khiri^{le} ðambize. 'He admitted his guilt.'

Kilaa muunt^hu/ na'iwa ðambize. 'Everyone know his (own) sins.' (A saying.)

kingila ðambi 'to commit a crime'

Ba'adaa wo/ kingila ðambi/ wachihokomel^owa khfungowa habaasa. 'After they committed a crime, they were sentenced to be imprisoned.'

mapeendo ya nafsi ni ðambi l'akbari [st.] 'love of self is a great sin'

Mbona/ nnakuvunaangá/ ni/ mi/ nfanyize ðambi gani/ tu. "Why are you (pl.) beating me? just what wrong have I done to you?"

muunt^hu hijiilo ðambize hafoowa [st.] 'the man who has performed the pilgrimage is forgiven his sins'

Muunt^hu/ shkhira ðambize/ hafishoowa. 'If one accepts his sins, errors, he is (i.e. should be) forgiven.' (A proverb.)

Nayo ðambi. 'He is guilty of a crime, misdeed.'

Ndro/ mi/ nini/ ðambiza/ mbona/ ni/ nnakunvunaangá 'Come, what are my faults, how come you (pl.) are beating me?'

Nini/ ni ðambi/ waant^hu/ khkalan^{ta} nt^hini yaa muti/ khtezá. 'Why, is it a crime for people to sit under a tree playing?' review accent

Nt^haná/ ðambi. 'He is not guilty of a crime.'

Nt^haná/ ðambi/ kana mwaana. 'He has no sins, like a child.'

Nusu/ sa'a/ ba'adiye/ iwele waaðehe/ ka kuwa ðambi/ hu^{tas}awara/ kuwa ifanyiiza. 'Half an hour later it was clear that a crime had probably been committed.'

ukhirowa ðambi 'confession'

rel.

ðunuubi n. pl. [Ar. dunūb W 312] poetic ðunuubu zitu niingi nt^{ho} [st.] 'our sins are too many (extremely numerous)'

muni^obu adj. guilty

Mi/ nazo dalii^{li}/ za kht^osha/ koonya/ kuwa Muusa/ ni mu^onibu. 'I have enough proof to show that Muusa is guilty.'

ðambiile

adj. [Som.] sinful, guilty (=mwenye ðambi)

Mi/ nazo alaamá/ za kht^osha/ koonya/ kuwa Muusa/ ni ðambiile. I have enough proof to show that Muusa is guilty.'

ku-ḍamina	v. [Sw. ḍamini SSED 73; Ar.] guarantee s.t. rel. ku-ḍaminika v. p/s. ku-ḍaminisha v. caus. ku-ḍaminishika v. caus. p/s. ku-ḍaminishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-ḍaminishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
ḍaamini (ma-)	n. [Sw. dhamini SSED 73; Ar.] s.o. who guarantees or vouches for s.o., puts up bail for s.o.
ḍamiiri	n. 9/10 [Sw. dhamiri SSED 73; Ar.] conscience ḍamiiriye/ mbovu . ‘His conscience is bad.’ (Cf. ḍamiri zaawo/ mbovu . ‘Their consciences are bad.’) Nt^haná/ ḍamiiri . ‘He has no conscience.’
ḍana	n. [Sw. dhana SSED 73] suspicion Ḍanaye/ kuwaa ye/ hapendoowi/ na maamaye/ sawasawa naa muné/ imfanyilize duniya/ ḍīiqi/ haṭá/ weele/ kuwa nt^hanakhaadira/ ku’isha ka wazeelewe . ‘His suspicion that he was not loved by his mother equally with his younger brother made the world narrow for him to the point that it became that he could not live with his parents.’ nimo karka ḍana nafsīya faḍaaha [song] ‘I am (living) with suspicion, a disgrace for/ to myself’
ku-ḍana	v. [Sw. dhani SSED 75; Ar.] suspect; think Kuḍanaa mbovu/ siwo/ suura . ‘To think/ suspect bad things is not good.’ Omari/ nakuḍana kuwaa we/ hadile wanaafaqi . ‘Omari suspects that you told a lie.’ rel. ku-ḍanika v. p/s. ku-ḍanisha v. caus. ku-ḍanishika v. caus. p/s. ku-ḍanishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-ḍanishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. ku-ḍanoowa v. pass. Kuḍanowa jawaabu/ bilaa yaqiini/ siwo/ suura . ‘To think/suspect something without certainty is not good.’
ma-ḍara	n. 6 [Sw. dhara (ma-) "often in pl. madhara , hurt, harm, violence" SSED 74; Ar.] harm Khamri/ inayo maḍara miingi . ‘Liquor has many harmful effects.’ Laakini/ ina/ iyo/ na kuwaa ye/ chimika nusu ya duniya/ tu/ imletelele maḍara makulu . ‘But that name and his possessing just half of the world brought him great harm.’
ku-ḍaraawa	v. [Sw. dharau SSED 74; Ar?] (ḍarawiile) scorn, hold in contempt, despise; variant form: kuḍaraawu Hachiḍaraawi/ waant^hu . ‘We do not look down on, underestimate people.’ Harameeni/ mḍarawile waawaye . ‘Harameeni despised his father.’ Mi/ khuḍarawiilé/ na shkoḍa lillá/ mi/ skutoṣha/ hattá/ mara mooyi/ kuwaa we/ takhadira kunondesha nt^heendre . ‘I despise you and to tell the truth, I did not think even once that you would be able to cause me to taste the dates.’ Sikhaambila/ mi/ chiza kumḍarawa muunt^hú . ‘Did I not tell you not to look down on a person?’ rel. ku-ḍaraawisha v. caus. (ḍarawishiize) Somo/ mḍarawishize mwaana/ mweenziwe . ‘Somo caused the child to look down on his friend.’ (The same idea may be expressed with a periphrastic causative: Somo/ mtile mwaana/ kumdarawa mweenziwe. ‘Somo (somehow) induced the child to look down on his friend.’) ku-darawishana v. caus. rec.

ku-darawishika v. p/s.

ku-darawishiliza v. caus. appl. (darawishilize)

ku-darawishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-darawoowa v. pass.

Hasani/ naayé/ siwo/ kuḍarawoowa. ‘Hasani as well was not to be belittled [when it comes to playing games such as cards].’

rel. nom.

m-daraawa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who despises

ḍaarawu

n. 9/10 [Sw. dharau SSED 74; Ar.] humiliation, scorn, contempt

Ḍarawu izi/ hastukuliki. ‘These humiliations cannot be borne.’

Eelo/ fiile/ ka ḍaarawu/ na uḷaazó/ wa qalbiini. ‘The gazelle died from humiliation and pain in the heart.’

ḍarba

n. 9/10,6 storm

Bahari/ inakubiga ḍarba. ‘There is a storm at sea [lit. the sea is storming].’

Bahari/ iwele shuwaari/ nvula iṭindishile/ na ḍabá/ ireptēeme. ‘The sea became calm, the rain stopped, and the storm ceased.’

ḍarba iyi ‘this storm’; ḍarba izi ‘these storms’; but also: maḍarba aya ‘these storms’ ḍarbaa mbovu/ kama izi ‘bad storms like these’ markabu nk^huluu nk^hulu/ schizaama/ ka ḍarba ‘if large ships sink in a storm’

Sku yaa nne/ chanza ḍarba. ‘On the fourth day it began to storm.’

ḍarbu

n. [Sw. dharuba “stroke, blow, rush – blow of an axe, sudden calamity” SSED 74; Ar.] blow; variant form found in poetry: ḍarba mtume hadiile mubḷo muzukaafiri/ ḍarba ya kaandra naazo miya ajiri [st.] ‘the Prophet said that whoever kills a lizard/ for the first blow will be rewarded one hundred times’

Rasuul Allahi Mhamadi al-Amiini/ ḍarba sab’iini bishiḷa harbiini [st.] ‘the messenger of God, Mohamed the Trustworthy/ was struck by seventy blows during the war’ uḷaazowe kana ḍarba za mp^huanga alfu ni haba [st.] ‘it’s [=death’s] pain will be worse than that of one thousand sword strokes’

ḍaruufu

n. circumstance

Karka ḍaruufu/ izi/ itakhaadira/ kuwakoo dhibu/ haba/ kuletowa fikri. ‘Under these circumstances, there could be little difficulty in forming an opinion.’

ḍaruura

n. necessity; adj. essential; variant: ḍaruuri

Haraka/ ni ḍaruuri/ ya afiya. ‘Exercise is essential to good health.’

ka ḍaruura ‘from necessity’

chiḷawa muuntī ka ḍaruura haydhibi/ laakini shartī ye kuruuda maghribi [st.] ‘she (the woman in the state of idda, the waiting period after her husband’s death) is allowed to go outdoors by day if necessary, but she must be back home by sunset’

Kuja/ ni ḍaruuri. ‘Food is a necessity.’ (Proverbial saying.)

Ni ḍaruuri/ naaye/ kuwa nakiwishoowa/ daa’imu. ‘It is essential for him to be kept informed.’

Ni ḍaruuri/ wo/ kumwīwishaa ye/ daa’imu. ‘It is essential that they keep him informed.’

Ni ḍaruuri/ wo/ kiiwa/ kuwa hawaakhaadiri/ khfakaṭa. ‘It is essential that they recognize that they cannot escape.’

Omari/ ni ḍaruuri/ kuwako apa. ‘It is essential for Omari to be here.’

ðaruriyaati	n. pl. necessities Ka pesa zaawo/ wawanaazó/ wa'uzile jahazi/ zaakuja/ za khtosja/ na ðaruriyaati ziinginé. 'With the money tha had, they bought a dhow, enough food, and other necessities.'
ðaaṭi	n. [Sw. dhati SSED 74; Ar.] emphatic reflexive pronoun; innermost self, essence mi/ ðaaṭiye 'I myself' Nnayo ðaaṭi/ mi/ siyiisi/ nini yo. 'I have myself, but I do not know what it is.' wo/ ðaaṭi yaawo 'they themselves' Ye/ ðaaṭiye/ hatambuli chiint^hu. 'He, essentially, is not a bad person.'
ma-ðeeyo	n. small, round, very juicy fruit of perhaps ½ cm in diameter, which people eat by the handful and then spit out all the seeds
ku-ði'ika	v. (ði'ishile) be afflicted by hardship and difficulties rel. ku-ði'isha v. caus. allow someone to be afflicted by hardships
ðiddi	n. 9 against Ichiwa kanayo/ ni nfuunge/ we/ laazima/ khfungula kanayo/ kendra khfanya "propaganda"/ kuhada/ jawaabu/ zaa we/ haamini/ kooloka/ ðiddi ya mabadi'yo. 'If it be that you close your mouth, [in order to get ahead in the world] you must open your mouth and go and make propaganda, say things that you do not believe, go against your principles.' khfanya waṭaano/ ðiddi ya mooyi 'to masturbate [lit. to make five fingers) against one (the penis)]' Kiḷa chiint^hu/ chiwaliko ðiddi yūitu. 'Everything was against us.'
ðihaaka	n. ridicule
ku-ðihira	v. (ðihiriḷe) appear Mahadi/ takuðihira aakhiri/ zamaani. 'Mohammad will appear in the last/ end times (when the world is to finish).' Noka/ chiðihira. 'A snake appeared.' rel. ku-ðihirika v. p/s. ku-ðihirikila v. intr. appl. (ðihirikiliḷe) appear to Inðihirikiliḷe kuwa Sa'iidi/ nt^hakhfanya kaazi. 'It appears to me that Sa'iidi did not work.' Iwaðihirikiliḷe waant^hu/ kuwa Siimba/ bozele peesa. 'It became evident to people that Siimba stole the money.' Na ikhuðihirikiliḷe/ ya kuwa nt^haku/ mwajiitu. 'And it became clear to you that there is no God.' Siimba/ kubooleke/ peesa/ iwaðihirikiliḷe/ waant^hu/ makhamaani. 'Siimba's having stolen the money became evident to people in court.' ku-ðihirila v. appl. (-ðihiriliḷe) appear to Nðihiriliḷe kama shetaani. 'He appeared to me like a djinn.' ku-ðihirisha v. caus. reveal, show, prove, make appear kuðihirisha karaama 'to reveal a miracle' kuðihirishaa nguvu 'to reveal strength' kuðihirisha ziwovu 'to reveal evil' ku-ðihirishana v. caus. rec. ku-ðihirishika v. caus. p/s. ku-ðihirishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-ðihirishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. ku-ðihiroowa v. pass.

kuðihrowa ziyaraani 'to appear at the religious site'

rel. nom.

u-ðihiro n. 14

ðikiri

n. 9/10 religious songs, chants; religious sect (a Suufi sect)

Ba'adi ya nikaaha/ khtuluka/ mwiimbili/ hugurshowa muyiini/ ka ðikiri/ na ngomá. 'After the marriage ceremony has taken place, the boy is taken around town with religious songs and drumming.'

itakuvuma ðikiri/ na qur'aani khsomoowa [t.] 'ðikiri will echo from all comers and the readings of the Quran' kuleta ðikiri 'to sing (lit. bring) religious songs'

Numbaani/ ka Omari/ yiko maṭaanga/ waant^{hu}/ wanakuleta ðikiri/wanakubiga madadi. 'At Omari's house there is mourning, people are singing (lit. bringing) blessing songs and are calling for blessings.'

Waant^{hu}/ waṭakuuya/ kiḷaa fijiri/ waṭakhsomaa du'a/ na ðikiri. 'People will come each morning [for three days after someone's death] to recite (lit. read) prayers and ðikiri.'

rel.

ðikri n. anything that has the name of God on it wala stukula ðikri haṭa bismiḷa [st.] 'neither carry anything that has God written on it not even bismiḷa [when taking care of bodily functions]'

ku-ðikirisha

v. pray, shouting religious sayings, singing religious songs, etc.

Masheekhi/ wamo numbaani/ wanakuðikirisha/ wanakubiga madadi. 'There religious scholars in the house, they are praying, tje are calling for God's blessings.'

Masheekhi/ wanakuðikirisha. 'The religious scholars are praying.'

rel.

ku-ðikirishoowa v. pass.

Sheekhi chifa ha'iloowi/ itakuðikirishoowa [st.] 'when the Sheikh dies, no one should weep, instead people should recite ðikiri'

ku-ðiiqa

v. [Sw. dhiki SSED74; Ar.] (ðiiqile) put pressure on, esp. difficulty, put in a tight situation khalbiya faza'a na neefu hunðiiqha [nt.] 'my heart is scared and I cannot breathe'

Omari/ hupenda kuðikha waant^{hu}. 'Omari likes to put people in tight, difficult situations.'

rel.

ku-ðiiqoowa v. pass.

Kuðikhowa muunt^{hu}/ ni haraamu. 'It is unholy to put a person in a tight situation.'

ðiiqi

n. [Sw. dhiki SSED 74; Ar.] narrow space (between objects); hardship, difficulty (financial "narrow straits")

Ba'ada ya ðiiqi/ ni faraji. 'After hardship comes relief.' (A proverb.)

Wawalimo karka ðiiqi/ nt^{ho}/ ka sababu/ wo/ nt^hawakuwanaayo/ hattá/ peesa/ mooyi/ yaa wo/ kuḷiḷa chaakuja/ cho choṭe. 'They were in great difficulty because they did not have even one coin for them to buy any food with.'

ðiyaafa

n. 9 act of giving a party, having someone to dinner; hospitality mu-ðnibu (wa-)

n. 1/2 sinner

ðuha

n. [Sw. dhuha SSED 75; Ar.] the period of day around 10:30 a.m.

ku-ðuhurisha

v. reveal

Abú/ ðuhurishiize/ kuwaa ye/ mtiiḷe Omari/ vooṭa. 'Abu revealed that he voted for Omari.'

	Haliima/ ðuhurishize ruuhuye/ kuwa siwo/ amini. ‘Haliima revealed herself to be untrustworthy.’
	Mi/ nt^hete baĵani/ chiza kuðuhurisha/ naani/ nambiiló/ tarafu ya khorsha/ ya Abú. ‘I promised not to reveal who told me about Hamidi’s plan.’
ku-ðukura	v. [Sw. dhukuru SSED 75; Ar.] (ðukuriile) mention, talk ill or well about someone Ni waajibu/ muunt^hu/ kuðukura ikhsaani. ‘It is a must that a person talks about/ remembers a favor (that was done for him).’ rel. ku-ðukurika v. p/s. ku-ðukurila v. appl. (ðukuriliile) mention to, touch upon ku-ðukurisha v. caus. cause to mention ku-ðukurishana v. caus. rec. ku-ðukurishika v. caus. p/s. ku-ðukurishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-ðukurishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. rel. nom. u-ðukuro n. 14
ðulirhaami	n. relative by blood
ðulli	n. kubiga ðulli ‘to humiliate someone, despise someone Miza jaaha/ ðulli/ humsaaliló. ‘The one who refuses honor/dignity, humiliation is what is left for him.’ Miza jaaha/ hupata ðulli. ‘The one who refuses honor/dignity gets humiliation.’ (A proverb.) mtume onyeeza muĵo nuumba ya ðulli [st.] ‘the Prophet was shown the fires of hell, the house of humiliation’
ku-ðulma	v. [Sw. dhulumu SSED 73; Ar.] (ðulmiile) cheat, oppress Kumðulma muunt^hu/ ni haraamu. ‘It is unholy/impure to cheat/oppress someone.’ tozeleni kaaka koondroka kunðulma [song] ‘what did you not get from me that forced you to oppress me?’ rel. ku-ðulmika v. p/s. ku-ðulmisha v. caus. ku-ðulmishana v. caus. rec. ku-ðulmishika v. caus. p/s. ku-ðulmishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-ðulmishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. ku-ðulmishoowa v. caus. pass. ku-ðulmoowa v. pass. Muunt^hu/ kuðulmoowa/ ni haraamu. ‘For someone to be cheated/ oppressed is unholy.’
ðulmu	n. [Sw. dhulumu SSED 73; Ar.] wrongdoing, injustice ðulmu/ ha’iduumi. ‘Injustice does not last forever.’ (A proverb.)
ku-ðulika	v. intr. be humiliated Sinakhaadira/ teena/ khuwonaa we/ kuðulika. ‘I cannot any longer bear to see you humiliated.’ rel. ku-ðulisha v. caus. (ðulishiize) humiliate Omari/ hupenda kuðulisha waant^hu. ‘Omari likes to humiliate people.’ ku-ðulishana v. caus. rec. ku-ðulishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-ðulishika v. caus. p/s. ku-ðulishoowa v. pass. (ðulishiiza) be humiliated

ḍunuubi	n. pl. (see ḍambi) [Ar. ḍunūb W 312] poetic
ku-ḍura	v. [Sw. dhuru SSED 74; Ar.] (ḍuriile) hurt, harm Hayḍuri/ chiint^hu. ‘It does not matter, it’s all the same. There’s no harm done.’ Maayi/ hayaḍuri/ chiint^hu. ‘Water does not harm, affect anything.’ rel. ku-ḍurika v. p/s. ku-ḍurisha v. caus. ku-ḍurishana v. caus. rec. ku-ḍurishika v. caus. p/s. ku-ḍurishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-ḍurishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
ku-ḍura	v. (ḍuriile) appear Skū mooyi/ ka barzaani/ ka Harun Rashiidi/ huḍuriile khaadimu. ‘One day in the parlor of Haruun Rashiidi there appeared a servant.’
ḍuri	n. (cf. ku-ḍura ‘to harm’)] harm mooja chookole na sharri/ ya bahari na ya barri/ chondojele kulla ḍuri [st.] ‘O God save us from the evils of sea and of land, avert from us any harm’
ḍuriya	n. 9/10 descendant, offspring, progeny

E

-e	final vowel of the subjunctive chibige ‘that we beat’ chidaare ‘that we touch’ chigiite ‘that we pull’ chilate ‘that we let go’ chimoole ‘that we shave’ Mweenza/ mi/ nakhuloombá/ chilawe kiitu/ chije. ‘Friend, I beg you, let us go to my [lit. our] place and let us eat.’ naapite ‘that he pass’ Mp^ha waant^hu/ wana’endre/ wanalete sanduukhuya. ‘Give me some men and let them go and bring my box.’
-e	final vowel of the imperative with [cl.1] object prefix mtaale ‘take him!’
-e	final vowel of the negative imperative simoolé ‘don’t shave!’ sireebé ‘don’t stop!’ siweeké ‘don’t put!’ siyezé ‘don’t fill!’
-e	final vowel of the past tense (perfect stem): ṭimishiize ‘he completed’
=e	third person singular possessive enclitic =che [cl.7] Laakini/ oyo uziloo chiṭá/ nt^hakuuya/ khtala chiṭaache. ‘But the one who bought the (cow’s) head did not come to take his head.’ Nuzilee chittá/ ka riyaali/ mooyi/ na riyaaliyé/ ni’iweshelé/ ilu/ ya

but he

- chileembache/ chiṭaani. ‘I bought a [cow’s] head for one riyaali and his riyaali I put it on top of his turban on his head.’
- Tetemeshenze chiṭaache. ‘He shook his head.’ (Phon. The example chiṭaache illustrates how a CVCV noun such as chiṭa lengthens its final vowel before a monosyllabic possessive enclitic.)
- Ye/ chiraasha/ chiḷooche/ ka muda/ mule/ walaakini/ nt^hakhaadira/ kumwona. ‘He followed its cry for a long period of time could not see it.’ (Phon. The example chiḷooche illustrates how a CVCV noun such as chiḷo lengthens its final vowel in front of the monosyllabic possessive enclitic.)
- =ke [cl.15]
- ku’abirsatake ‘his taking measurements’
- Muḷi/ khkomake/ numbaani/ chiwaviḷa wayaana/ chiwa’ambila/ kondrola godoro. ‘The husband, on arriving home, called the female servants and told them to move the mattress.’
- Sultaani/ khkasake/ jawaabu/ izo/ chishikowa shṭana/ nt^ho. ‘The sultan, upon hearing those words, became very angry.’
- Sultaani/ kumwonake/ ba/ chaanza/ kumpeenda. ‘The sultan, upon his observing him, began to love him.’
- =ke [cl.17]
- Ifungu ya kaandra/ kuwa nda mwajiitu/ ya piḷi/ kuwa nda sulṭaani/ ya taatu/ kuwa ndaa nsi/ zinapate ku’iisha/ katiike. ‘The first portion belongs to God, the second belongs to the sultan, the third belongs to the fish so that they may live in it.’
- Sku ya piḷike/ chiḷawa/ ka numbaani/ chendra ka sulṭaani/ oyo/ chimtulukila miluuni/ kaake. ‘On the second day [of it -- i.e., in the context of the story, his staying at the woman’s place] he left from the house and went to that sultan and threw himself at his knees.’
- Sultaani/ uyu/ naayé/ kila shpisa/ hukumu/ hulangaḷa/ ka kuḷlike/ chimaliza huṭeka/ kanmake/ hulangaḷa/ ḷpaandre/ ḷa kusooṭo/ huḷa. ‘This sultan, each time he passes judgement, he looks to his right side and laughs, and then he looks to his left side, and cries.’
- Wachi’iḷata/ ijuuniya/ ndraanike/ umo Abunawaasi. ‘They left the bag inside of which was Abunawaasi.’
- =ḷe [cl.11]
- Hasani/ mukhṭaa ye/ komelo mahala inakubiganowa harbi/ ṭomele ḷpaangale/ kuharbishiliza. ‘When Hasani arrived at the place where there was fighting, he took out his sword and began to fight with it.’
- =we [cl.1]
- mp^huundrawe ‘his donkey’ (Morph. This is an example of a [cl.9] animate noun mp^huundra governing [cl.1] agreement on the possessive element.)
- mukeewe ‘his wife’ (Phon. This is an example of a CVCV word lengthening its final vowel before the monosyllabic possessive enclitic.)
- mweenzawe ‘his friend’
- ndruwé ‘his relative’ (Morph. The noun ndru ‘relative’ is a [cl.9/10] noun, but in the singular governs [cl.1] agreement in the possessive, while in the plural it governs [cl.10] agreement in the possessive.)
- =we [cl.2]
- Apo/ zamaani/ ishiize/ mwaana/ mooyi/ waliko filiḷa na wazeelé/ wawiliwé. ‘Once upon a time there was a boy who was died on by his two parents.’
- Sultaani/ mpeenzele/ mwaana/ uyu/ kolko waanawe/ wawili. ‘The sultan loved this boy more than his own two children.’
- Uyu/ naayé/ chunganya ma’askariwe/ wotte/ chiwa’ambila... ‘This one also gathered all his soldiers and told them...’ (Morph. Although ma'askari 'soldiers' formally is a [cl.6] noun with the prefix ma-, it may trigger human [cl.2] agreement on the possessive, as in the present sentence.)

=we [cl.3]

mṭaanawe 'his room'

Waant^hu/ wammereele/ karka muuyi/ mzimawe. 'People looked for him in the entire town.'

=we [cl.14]

umriwe 'his age'

=ye [cl.4]

miṭaanaye 'his rooms'

=ye [cl.5]

Ye/ chihada/ inaye/ ni Hasiibu/ Karimuddiini. 'She said that his name was Hasiibu Karimuddiini.'

=ye [cl.6]

Chihada/ kuwaa ye/ ṭakhpandra farasi/ masku/ mazimaye/ haṭá/ fijiri. 'He said that he could ride a horse the whole night until morning.'

Mwanaamke/ fungilopo maṭoyé/ wene kuwaa ye/ uko kaawo. 'When the girl opened her eyes, she saw that she was at home.'

=ye [cl.9]

Hasani/ shfunga kanaye/ nt^hakuwajiiba. 'Hasani shut his mouth, he did not answer them.'

jiraaniye 'his neighbor'

maamaye 'his mother'

Muke/ chimrudila riyaaliye. 'The woman returned his riyaali to him.'

Na'endre/ namwambileni/ waawaye. 'He should go and tell what his father??'

nasiibuye 'his luck'

Numba/ ni nuumbaye. 'The house is her house.'

sufuriyaye 'his pot'

waawaye 'his father'

=ze [cl.8]

Choondroka/ chunganyachunganya ziint^huze/ chishikaa ndila/ kendra kaawo. 'He got up and gathered his things and took to the road to go home.'

ziti ziwilize 'both of the chairs [lit. the chairs their two]'

=ze [cl.10]

Laakini/ sulṭaani/ mukḥṭaa ye/ weno peesá/ chimviila/ Abunawaasi/ kuya khtaala/ peesaze. 'But when the sultan saw the money, he called Abunawaasi to come to take his money.'

ndrevuze 'his beard'

Sulṭaani/chamura askarize/ keendra/ kumvīlaAbduḷla. 'The sultan ordered his soldiers to go to summon Abdalla.'

e

interj. oh

E/ muké/ we/ ndo/ we/ nakhsulā kunubḷá/ so. 'O woman, you, come, you do want to kill me, don't you?'

E/ we/ bwaana/ we/ kaahini/ koḏele līla. 'Oh, mister, you, the soothsayer told the truth.'

E/ we/ muke/ ndo/ we/ pete wazimu/ so. 'Oh you woman, come, have you gone crazy?'

E/ we/ mwenye amri/ mwana uyu/ waawaye/ ni muunt^hu/ mzeele/ nt^ho/ ka miyaaka. 'O you ruler, this child's father is a very old man with years.'

ee

interj. yes. This is the most used form of "yes": na'am (see below) is an Arabic word that is not in general use.

Ndraani/ ye/ nt^hakuwanaayo/ shaka/ kuwa Hamadi/ takuhada/ ee. ‘Inwardly he had no doubt that Hamadi would say yes.’
Si/ fahamiilé?/ Ee. ‘You understood? Yes.’

ē’ē

interj. no-no

ē’ē/ Hamadi/ sfaanyé/ jawabu iyó. ‘No-no, Hamadi, don’t do that thing!’

ē’ē/ Omari/ suulé/ gari iyó. ‘No-no, Omari, don’t buy that car.’ (Note the final accent on the complement of the negative imperative verb. It is not the case that the final accent of the negative verb projects past the phrase edge that appears normally after this verb tense. More research is required into the conditions under which final accent may occur.)

ku-’ebata

v. [Som. ceeb- Ab 72, but not clear why root vowel has shortened in Chimiini] (ebeete) be disgraced; have one’s scandals etc. exposed to public notice and consequently suffer shame, be disgraced

rel.

ku-’ebaṭila v. appl. (ebaṭiṭiile)

ku-’ebisha v. caus. (ebishiize) disgrace someone (e.g. a child’s behavior may disgrace, shame his parents); reveal someone’s fault with the purpose of shaming that person

Ebishize ruuhuye. ‘He disgraced himself.’

Ebishize sarkaali. ‘He exposed the government’s lies, deceptions, etc.’

Omari/ m’ebishize mwaana/ ka waawaye. ‘Omari made the child feel disgraced in front of his father.’

Saalimu/ n’ebishiize. ‘Saalimu disgraced me.’ Or: N’ebishiizó/ ni

Saalimu. ‘The one who disgraced me is Saalimu.’

We/ takun’ebisha. ‘You will embarrass/shame me.’

ku-’ebishiliza v. caus. appl. (ebishiliize)

N’ebishilize mweenzawa. ‘He shamed my friend on me.’

ku-’ebishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Omari/ na Hamadi/ wa’ebishilizenye waana. ‘Omari and Hamadi revealed the faults of one another’s children.’

ku-’ebishoowa v. caus. pass.

N’ebishiza na Saalimú. ‘I was disgraced, shamed by Saalimu.’

rel. nom.

m-’ebisha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who disgraces

ebu

n. [cf. Sw. aiibu SSED 6;] defect, disgrace, shame

Chiza kiiwa/ siwo/ ebu/ chiza kuuza/ ndiyó. ‘It is not shameful not to know, it is shameful not to ask.’ (A proverb.)

ebu ka shkapu ‘lit. shame by the bagful -- this idiom expresses the idea of s.t. being very shameful, but it is often said playfully, to the person who is supposed to have done s.t.’

Jawaabu/ za Umi/ leelo/ fanyizo harusiini/ ni ebu/ ka shkapu/ mtete mwanashke haruusi/ mvunzile mvunzile mashuungi. ‘What Umi did today at the wedding was very shameful, she pulled the hair of the bride.’

Faatima/ hadiile/ leelo/ nt^haano/ nt^hashkeendra/ ta’aziyaani/ ka Umi/ daadaye/ kufa/ ni ebu ka shkapu. ‘Faatima said today is five (days), we did not go to give condolences for the death of Umi’s grandmother, it is very shameful.’

Ebu ya mayti/ hiiwó/ moshá mayti. ‘The one who knows the defect of a corpse is the washer of the corpse.’ (A proverb.)

Ebuyo/ ha’ambiloowi/ muunt^hu. ‘Your shame is not told to people.’ (A proverb.)

Hufafisho ebuzó/ muunt^hi/ haṭajami/ khutilaa muḷo/ masku. ‘The one who reveals your defects in the daytime does not hesitate to burn you at night.’ (A proverb.)

Itakichiwejele ebu. ‘It would be a disgrace for us.’

Iwishize waant^hu/ ebuza. ‘He made known to people my faults.’

Izi/ zaa we/ eleezó/ apa/ ni jawaabu/ za ebu/ nk^hulu. ‘These (words) that you have explained to me are words that are greatly disgraceful.’

Kana ebu/ kheeri/ khasara. ‘If shame, better loss (e.g. of money).’ (A proverb.)
(Also can be pronounced: Kana ebú/ kheeri/khasara.)

kumpatila ebu ‘to shame someone’; also: khpatata ebu

Alí/ ni muunt^hu/ naðiifa/ hapatiki/ ebu/ kila/ mo/ namwiiwa/ sharafuye.
‘Ali is a clean person, one cannot find a defect, everyone knows his honesty.’

Haliima/ nakumera kumpatila Zahara/ ebu/ yaa ye/ nt^hanaayó/ kum’ebisha/ ka weenzawe. ‘Haliima is seeking to find something blameworthy on Zahara that she does not have in order to shame her among her friends.’

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kumpatila ebu/ walaaliwe. ‘It is not good for someone to shame his brother.’

Lila/ siwo/ ebu. ‘Truth is not shame.’ (A proverb.)

Mafo ya mpenzi/ hayaawoni/ ebu za shpeendo. ‘The eyes of the lover do not see the defects of the loved one.’ (A proverb.)

Mi/ nnakuwona kuwa ni ebú. ‘I think it is a disgrace.’

Mkulu wa makhaadimu/ chimwaambila/ ya kuwa ni ebu/ waana/ wa masultaani/ khfakata ka kaawo. ‘The head of the servants told him that it was a disgrace for the children of sultans to run away from home.’

Mukhta stimiiló/ ndruti khamsiini/ waziiri/ chimwaambila/ mwaarabu/ ni ebu/ kumbiga mwanaamke/ mlungaana/ lamna iyo. ‘When fifty blows were completed, the minister told the Arab: it is a shame to hit a girl of high social class in this manner.’

Muunt^hu/ kiwa daniye/ siwo/ ebu. ‘For someone to know what his best interests are is not a shame.’ (A saying.)

Muunt^hu/ nayo wazeelé/ nayo ebu. ‘One who has elderly parents has something the troubled, worried by etc. (i.e. elderly parents can cause problems and be very difficult).’ (A proverb.)

shkooða ni ebuya afðali takuusha [song] ‘if I talk (about it) it is my shame (exposes my shame), I better hide it’ (The first person subject marker has been elided in takuusha.)

... ya kuwa ebu/ askari/ keendra/ kumwona moojé/ karka haali/ yaa ye/ umó ‘...that it would be a disgrace for the soldiers to go to see his master in the condition that he was in’

eeði

[Tunni eedh reference?] very well, better (can be used instead of baraabara) khfunga eeði ‘to tighten’
khfungika eeði ‘to tighten very tight’ examples

k-eegeema

v.[Sw. egama SSED 80] (egemeele) go close, near to s.t.; variant form: kiigema dhibu na maraði kaawo iseegeema [st.] ‘may troubles and sickness not reach [lit. go near] them’

Nakeegema. ‘He is going close.’
rel.
k-egemesha v. (egemesheeze) welcome, receive s.o.
Chegemesheeze/ ka heshma. ‘He received us with compassion.’

k-eegesha v. caus. [Sw. egasha SSED 80] (egesheeze) welcome Basi/ ye/ chiwa’egasha/ awo/ askari/ chiwapa chaakuja/ wachija. ‘So he welcomed those soldiers and gave them food and they ate.’
Chimaliza/ mwaana/ chimwegesha chizeele. ‘Then the boy welcomed the old woman.’
Chineegasha/ ka heshma. ‘She welcomed me with respect.’
Muke/ chimwegesha. ‘The woman welcomed him.’

Mwaarabu/ oyo/ chimweegsha/ chimwaambila/ nakalaant^he. ‘That Arab welcomed him and told him to sit down.’

Nakeegsha. ‘He is welcoming.’

Uyu/ chimweegsha. ‘This one welcomed her.’

Wakomeelopó/ siimba/ chiwa’egsha chisultaani. ‘When they arrived, Lion welcomed them in a royal fashion.’

k-egeshoowa v. pass.

Chibiga hoodi/ chegeshoowa/ chingila numbaani. ‘He asked for permission to enter and he was welcomed and he went into the house.’

Komeelopó/ shtomola salaamu/ naayé/ chegeshoowa/ jisa suura. ‘When he arrived, he extended greetings, and he too was welcomed in a nice way.’

Ye/ chijibowa salaamu/ na chegeshoowa. ‘His greetings were returned and he was welcomed.’ (It is clear from this example that the conjunction na does not trigger final accent when followed by a verbal form, as opposed to when it is followed by other word categories.)

EEKARI n. [Eng. acre] acre

E(e)l Hindi n. A well (cf. Som. ceel ‘well’) southwest of Brava, inland from the sea. From this well donkey carts brought the best drinking water to Brava (mayi malada). The location is marked by dunes of fine sand (bulati), which filter the rain water.
Chisima cha El Hiindi/ chikoo kule/ kharibu ya Ka Seleemo. ‘El Hiindi’s well is far away, it is near Ka Seleemo.’
May’ aa El Hiindi/ ni maladda. ‘The water of El Hiindi is sweet.’

k-elele v. (-elele) be clear to, comprehend, grasp Kooði/ zimwelele. ‘He understood what was said [lit. words were clear to him].’
Yanelele/ yote/ walá/ ye/ hakhaadiri/ kiiza. ‘They [e.g. the answers to the riddle] were all clear to me, nor can she deny this.’

rel.

k-eleloowa v. pass. (-eleela)

Elela na kooði. ‘He understood what was said.’

Ha’eleloowi/ na kooði. ‘He does not understand what was said.’

Wenopo kuwaa ye/ cheleelá/ mnaadisha/ uyu/ chivalomba waant^hu/ wanamerele Sa’iidi. ‘When he saw that it was dusk [lit. that he had been overtaken by sunset], this auctioneer begged people to look for Sa’iidi for him.’

elementaare adj. elementary

Shekh Mohamed Suufi/ mojiitu/ namrehemu/ waliko diritoore/ wa kaandra/ ya skoolá/ elementaare/ Miini/ zamaani. ‘Sheikh Mohamed Suufi, God’s mercy be on him, was the first director of elementary school in Miini in old times.’

-elpe adj. [Sw. eupe SSED 87] white, clear

Chimwambila Huseeni/ mp^ha ciguwo chepe. ‘She said to Huseeni: give me a piece of white cloth.’

Chiint^hu/ nelpe/ ha’isuuli/ shaahidi. ‘Something clear (easily seen and understood) does not need a witness (to verify it).’ (A proverbial saying.)

-elpe) kana bafta ‘as white as white cotton cloth’

Chiti ichi/ chepe/ kana bafta. ‘This chair is as white as bafta.’

Haliima/ mwelpe/ kana bafta. ‘Haliima is as white as bafta.’

Omari/ shaatiye/ inakuwala/ nelpe/ kana bafta. ‘Omari’s shirt is shining, it is white, like bafta.’

-elpe) kana kartaasi ‘white like paper’

ka Dikirow mbeene paamba/ nelpe kana kartaasi ‘at Dhikirow’s place I saw cotton as white as paper’ (from a popular rhyme)

Karkaa ndila/ chiwawona/ waant^hu/ wawili/ watukilo sufuriyaa nk^hulú/ na nguwoo nelpe. ‘On the way he saw two people who were carrying a large pot and a white cloth.’

karka numba nelpe ‘in a white house’ (One cannot modify the noun with an adjective when the noun is in a locative form. Thus it is ungrammatical to say * numbani nelpe (with agreement to the noun inside the locative) or numbani mwelpe (with agreement to the locative).)

Marti/ ni nk^huku nelpe. ‘A stranger is like a white hen [i.e. he always stands out from the others by virtue of his dress, behavior, speech, etc.].’ (A proverb.)

Maayi/ ni melpe/ nt^ho. ‘The water is very clear.’

Ni nelpe/ kuwa Abú/ shkhiyanseete. ‘It is clear that Abu cheated us.’

numba nelpe ‘a white house’ mwelpe ‘someone white’; w-elpe ‘pl. white’ (The evidence from Chijini, the "talking backwards" secret language in Chimwiini, supports the view that that l is a coda consonant and not part of the onset to the final syllable. Specifically, in Chijini, one says: [pemwél] and [péwel].)

Nayo nuumba/ mooyi/ nk^hulu/ nelpe. ‘He has one big white house.’ (Pitch raising may be used to emphasize or intensify an adjective. An alternative possibility is to insert the intensifier nt^hó immediately after the adjective. In this usage nt^hó is a phrasal isolate.)

Nimene Omari melpe. ‘I saw Omari the white (as opposed to some other Omari).’

Pashile nuumba/ ranji/ nelpe. ‘He painted the house the color white.’

Sababu ya Omari/ chiza kuya shiriini/ ni nelpe. ‘Omari’s reason for not attending the meeting is clear.’

Waankh^hulá/ hingila khuusi/ chilawa/ ndrevuze/ huwa nelpe. ‘My grandfather dives in, when he emerges, his beard becomes white.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is mwiko ‘a stirring spoon’.)

Yiko daliiji/ nelpe/ kuwa Baazi/ changamiize. ‘There is clear evidence that Baazi betrayed us.’

zilatu zelpe ‘white shoes’

rel.

w-elpe n. 14 [Sw. weupe SSED] whiteness

Welpewe/ kama qartaasi. ‘Its whiteness is like a sheet of paper.’

k-eleza

v. [Sw. eleza SSED 81] (eleeze) explain to Apo/ chimwelezaa muke/ mambo ya mpeetó. ‘Then he explained to the woman the events that had befallen him.’

darsi yaa mi/ nimwelezo mwaaná ‘the lesson that I explained to the child’

Eleza. ‘Explain!’

Fijiri/ ya sku ya piili/ Abunawaasi/ chimweleza sulṭaani/ na waziiriwé/ khabari zaa ye/ weenó/ ka mwaarabú/ numbaani. ‘On the morning of the second day (i.e. the next day) Abunawaasi explained to the sultan and his ministers the events that he had seen at the house of the Arab.’

Izi/ zaa we/ eleezó/ apa/ ni jawaabu/ za ebu/ nk^hulu. ‘These (words) that you have explained to me are words that are greatly disgraceful.’

Suufi/ nakumweleza Saalimu/ masoomo. ‘Suufi is explaining the lesson to Saalimu.’

rel.

k-elelela v. [Sw. elea SSED 81] (elelele) be understood, clear, intelligible

We/ mzeele/ aya/ hayakheleli. ‘You are old, you do not understand these things [lit. these are not intelligible to you].’

k-eleloowa v. pass. (elelela) be understood

Elelela na kooḏi. ‘He understood the statement.’

Ha’eleloowi/ na kooḏi. ‘He does not understand the statement.’

Mi/ skeleloowa na kooḏize. ‘I did not understand his statements.’ review

phrasing

Nakeleloowa na masoomo. ‘He understands the lesson.’ (Syn: Observe the rather unusual syntax here. The one who is coming to understand the lesson is the subject of the passive verb and what is being understood is the passive agent. An active sentence such as Masoomo/ yanamkelele Nuuru. ‘The lesson clarified Nuuru.’ is not grammatical.)

Omari/ nt^hakeleloowa/ na kooði. ‘Omari did not understand the statement.’

Waawé/ mi/ mp^hela su’aalí/ laakini/ skeleloowa/ na ma’anaye. ‘Father, I was posed a question, but I am not able to understand its meaning.’
MI wrote "ma’anayi" -- check into eelo

n. 9/10 gazelle

Basi/ wachimvunaanga/ eelo/ hattá/ ye/ fiilopó. ‘So they beat the gazelle until he died.’

khima ya eelo ‘the price of a gazelle’

muza eelo ‘a seller of gazelles’

Nayo shiingo/ ndre/ kana ya eelo. ‘He has a neck as long as a gazelle’s.’

We/ ni eeló/ hujo mp^haapasi/ mp^haapasi/ humwambaṭo ngoombé... ‘You are the gazelle who eats the tick, the tick who sticks to the cow...’

rel.

chi-’eelo (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-’eelo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

-eelu

adj. light

Sidaarshé/ tala/ mṭaana/ uchiwa weelu. ‘Don’t turn on the lamp if the room is well-lit.’

rel.

w-eelu n. 14 light; variant: w-eelo

Chimeera/ chimeera/ hattá/ shpata nt^huundru/ na weelú/ ka ndraaní. ‘He looked and looked until he found a hole and light within it.’

khfanya weelu ‘to let in light’

Shamsa/ mwambile mwaanawe/ fungula choloko/ habamooyi/ fanya weelu/ nakhsula khshoma ikoofiyá. ‘Shamsa told her child: open the window a little and let the light come in, I want to sew the cap.’

mwezi wa weelu ‘moon’

kuwala/ kana/ mezi wa weelu (or: mezaa weelu) ‘to shine like the moon’

Ye/ weene/ kuwa noota/ ikum na mooyi/ na mwezi wa iwá/ na mwezi wa weelú/ zinamsujudilaa ye. ‘He saw that eleven stars and the sun and the moon were prostrating to him.’

Welo wa muuntbi/ na wa maskú/ siwo/ sawa. ‘Daylight and night light are not same.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Welu uyu/ huṭoṣha khso meḷoowa. ‘This light is sufficient to be used to read with.’

welu wa qalbi ‘the light of the heart’

Imaani/ ni welu wa khalbi. [H!H] ‘Faith is the light of the heart.’

Waana/ ni welu wa khalbi. [H!H] ‘Children are the heart’s light.’

m^w-eelu mweelpe in

n. white sorghum, an important type of grain in Somalia, also called mhundru

Chimiini (The deletion of w from the sequence mw seems to be the most common pronunciation among present-day speakers, but our consultant MI usually retained the w, though sometimes eliding it when the next vowel is a round vowel, o or u.)

k-eeluka

v. belch, burp

Seeluké. ‘Don’t belch!’ (Cf. Selukée=ni. ‘(Pl.) don’t belch!’)

k-eeluka

v. (elushile) swim in the “doggy paddle” style, float

Ali/ mtilé mwaana/ keeluka. ‘Ali (somehow) induced the child to swim.’ (Note that this the periphrastic causative verb construction; it contrasts in meaning with the causative verb keelusha which conveys the idea of someone directly assisting someone in swimming and not the more abstract notion of inducing the swimming.)

Ali/ mtĩlĩle lisa/ mwaana/ keeluka. ‘Ali induced Lisa’s child to swim.’ (As in the immediately preceding sentence, this represents the periphrastic applied causative construction. The interpretation again is one of indirect rather than direct causation.)

Ali/ na Nuurú/ watĩlĩlene waana/ keeluka. ‘Ali and Nuuru induced one another’s children to swim.’ (A third example of the periphrastic causative.)

Bateera/ inakeeluka. ‘The boat is floating, adrift.’

Chigaaya/ shcheeluka. ‘The potshard floated.’ Chint^hu changaangu/ heeluka/

chint^hu chizito/ huzama. ‘Something light, floats; something heavy, sinks.’ (A saying.)

Ha’isi keeluká/ ha’ingili/ tawala. ‘One who does not know how to swim does not (i.e. should not) get into the sea.’ (A proverb.)

Ichiwekoowa/ schifanyoowa/ ichiwonowa mooyi/ yelushile/ mooyi/ izamiile. ‘There were put (the pieces of wood), it was done, it was seen that one floated and one sank.’

Jahazi/ ichaanza/ keeluka. ‘The boat began to float.’

keeluka/ kana mp^haamp^ha ‘to swim like a shark’ keeluka/ kanaa nsi ‘to swim like a fish’

Lwawo/ nla keeluka. ‘The piece of wood is floating.’

Omari/ heluka tawala/ tu/ ha’eluki/ karka ismu/ ya maayi/ ya kooweja/ yakaleent^hó. ‘Omari swims only in the sea, he does not swim in any water for swimming that is sitting (e.g. a lake or a swimming pool, as opposed to the sea).’

Omari/ heluka tawala/ ye/ ha’oweli/ mahala yĩingine. ‘Omari swims in the sea, he does not swim any other place’

Wałwaawo/ wa’elushile/ haťa/ lfuwo la muuyi/ mooyi/ ghariibu. ‘Both of them swam up to the shore of a foreign town.’

We/ ha’itakhulaazima/ keeluka/ ka khisa/ mi/ nt^h akhutukula mongooni/ mpaka kiitu. ‘You do not have to swim because I will carry you on my back up to our place.’

rel.

k-elukika v. p/s.

k-eelusha v. caus. (elushiize) help to swim

Ali/mwelushize mwaana. ‘Ali helped the child swim.’

Bahaariya/ mwelushizee muke. ‘The sailor helped the woman swim.’

k-elushanya v. caus. rec.

k-elushika v. caus. p/s.

k-elushiliza v. caus. appl. help swim for Ali/ mwelushilize lisa mwaana. ‘Ali helped Lisa’s child swim.’

k-elushilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Ali/ na Nuurú/ watĩlĩlene waana. ‘Ali and Nuuru helped one another’s children swim.’

rel. nom.

mw-eeluka (wa-) n. 1/2 one who swims

-eema

adj. [Sw. -ema SSED 82] good (esp. in character) (Usage: This item is much used in poetry, but now almost obsolete in everyday speech, except for some expressions like muke mweema ‘a good woman’; -suura is often used instead.)

chakuja cheema ‘fine, expensive, high quality food’

Cheema/ huza ruuhuye/ chiwovu/ humershoowa. ‘Something good sells itself; something bad has to be advertised, hawked.’ (A proverb.)

Ize zeema/ tete ziwovu. ‘He refused good deeds, he took bad.’ (A proverbial saying about stupid, foolish people.)

Kazii mbovu/ si matezo meema. ‘Bad work is better than good play.’ (A proverb.)

kazi njeema ‘a good job’
Mbene kuwa muke uyú/ ni mweema/ na nazo jamaala. ‘I think that this woman is good and beautiful.’
Mi/ nimfanyiizé/ zeema/ ziingi. ‘I did many good things for him.’
mitume meema ‘good prophets’ Muke uyu/ ni mweema. ‘This woman is good.’
mwana mweema ‘a good, nice, educated boy’
Na chiza khpólá/ we/ takufa karka mikono ya askari/ naawé/ kufa karka mikono askari/ ni njeema/ kolko kufa kaa ndala. ‘And if she does not get well, you will die at the hands of soldiers, and for you to die at the hands of soldiers is better than to die from hunger.’
Ni njeema/ tu. ‘It’s nice, good.’ (Similar in usage to: Ni suura/ tu.)
Niya njeema/ hutabiiba/ niyaa mbovu/ hukhariba. ‘A good intention cures, a bad intention spoils.’ (A proverb.)
rasuulaLLaahi mtume mweema file [st.] ‘the good prophet of God has died’ Waliko waant^hu/ weema/ ka ahli yaawo/ na wiinginé/ ba. ‘They were people good to their relatives and others as well.’

rel.

w-eema n. 14 goodness, kind behavior

ka weema ziida mahaba [st.] ‘add a kind behavior to [your] love – [lit.] increase love with kind behavior’

z-eema n. 8 kindness, niceness, good deeds

Ka khisa/ zeema/ za mwaana/ wafanyiizó/ askari/ wachimlata/ wachendra ka sulṭaani/ wachimwaambila/ kuwaa wo/ nt^hawa(ku)mwona/ mwaana. ‘Because of the kindness that the boy had shown them, the soldiers let him alone; they went to the sultan and told him that that did not see the boy.’

Nchikoma/ nt^hi izo/ endraani/ ka masulṭaani/ wa nt^hi izo/ na koḏaani/ naawo/ ka adabu/ na ka zeemá. ‘When you (pl.) reach those lands, go to the sultans of those lands, and speak with them with respect and niceness.’

Zeema/ haziwoli. ‘Kindness never goes bad.’ (A proverb.)

embe

n. 9/10 mango

Embe iyo/ ni huundru. ‘That mango is red.’

Embe izi/ nii mbiṭi. ‘These mangos are unripe.’

Faatima/ oshela sukhuuni/ ye/ kaka lila/ sulile kula embe/ laakini/ uzilee mazu/ tu. ‘Faatima went to the market. She really wanted to buy mangoes, but she only bought bananas.’

Maryamu/ uzilee ma-zu/ na embé. [H!H!H] ‘Maryamu bought bananas and mangos.’

Nt^haskuwaaliko/ embe/ sukhuuni. [H!H!H] ‘There were no mangoes at the market.’

Si/ chinakhsula ndrimuu mbili/ na embe siṭá. ‘We want two oranges and six mangoes.’

rel.

chi-’embe (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-’embe (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ma-’embe n. 6 mangos

k-eendra

v. [Sw. enda SSED 83] (enzele) go; be possible [lit. goes]

Abunawaasi/ shpaandra/ haṭá/ chendra ka Harun Rashiidi. ‘Abunawaasi climbed up (the stairs) until he went to Harun Rashiidi.’

Ali/ enzele sukhuuni. ‘Ali went to the market.’

Baana/ enzele madrasaani. ‘Baana went to school.’ (One cannot make the goal into the subject of a passive version of this sentence: Madarasa/ yenzela (na Baana). ‘School was gone to (by Baana).’)

Basi/ enzele/ kalent^he maduriini. ‘So he went and sat down in the bush.’

Endrá. ‘Go!’

Endra apo/ endrá. ‘Go there, that’s what you should do.’ (Notice that an imperative verb may trigger Verb Repetition. The pseudo-relativization that signals Verb Repetition does not involve any change in the final vowel of the imperative verb, but it does require final accent.)

Endrá/ ja. ‘Go and eat!’

Endrá/ laala. ‘Go and sleep!’

Endra numbaani. ‘Go home!’ (This example shows that endrá has a final accent just in case it is phrase-final. Final accent in the imperative affirmative is restricted to vowel-initial VCV verbs and, of course, monosyllabic CV verbs, but only when phrase-final.)

Endra numbaani/ kaake. ‘Go to his home!’ Or: Endrá/ numbaani/ kaake.

Endrá/ pikaa kuja. ‘Go and cook food!’

Endraani. ‘You (plural) go!’ (Note that the encliticization of the pluralizing =ni removes the verb from being a trigger of final accent. Only VCV verbs in the imperative affirmative and monosyllabic CV verbs have final accent.)

Faatima/ na Fardoosá/ wa’enzele Mwiini. ‘Faatima and Fardoosa went to Miini.’

Fijiri/ shtete baŕera yiitú/ chenzele jaziirá/ yiingine. ‘In the morning we took our boat and we went to another island.’

Ha’endre. ‘He doesn’t go. He wouldn’t go. He won’t go (a declaration that something will not happen).’

Haliima/ na Fardoosá/ wanakendra Mwiini. [HH:H] ‘Haliima and Fardosa are going to Miini.’ (Observe that conjoined NPs in subject position do not exhibit downstep of the second phonological phrase in canonical intonation.)

Hamadi/ enzele khfanya kaazi. ‘Hamadi went to do work.’ Or: Kaazi/ Hamadi/ enzele khfaanya. ‘Work, Hamadi went to do.’ Or: Hamadi/ enzele ki’ifanya kaazi. ‘Hamadi went to do the work.’ Or: Kaazi/ Hamadi/ enzele ki’ifaanya. ‘The work, Hamadi went to do it.’ Or: Hamadi/ kaazi/ enzele khfaanya. ‘Hamadi, work, he went to do.’ Or: Hamadi, kaazi, enzele ki’ifaanya. ‘Hamadi, the work, he went to do it.’ Or: Khfanya kaazi/ enzele. ‘To do work, he went.’ (This data set illustrates that the preposing of an NP is not tied to the definiteness of the NP. It is the object marker on the verb that establishes definiteness.)

Hamadi/ kampa Omari/ peesá/ suŕa kendra Mkhodiisho. ‘If Hamadi had given Omari money, he would have gone to Mogadishu.’ Or with focus on the verb: Hamadi/ kampa/ peesá/ Omari/ suŕa kendra Mkhodiisho. ‘If Hamadi had given money to Omari, he would have gone to Mogadishu.’ (From this example, it seems possible for the Accentual Law of Focus to be suspended in a ka-clause. However, note that we also recorded: Hamadi/ kampa/ peesa/ Omari/ suŕa kendra Mkhodiisho. In this version, the first complement after the focused verb fails to receive the final accent, but the final complement does. A similar possibility was recorded in relative clauses.)

Hamadi/ kampa Omari/ peesá/ peesa/ zisuŕa kingila amaniini. ‘If Hamadi had given Omari money, the money would have been secure/ in good hands.’ (In this example, where there is focus on Omari, notice that the following complement nevertheless exhibits final accent. This phenomenon is found in ka-clauses, but not in the final accent associated with first and second person subjects in the present and past tenses)

Isa/ mi/ ni laazima/ keendra. ‘Now it is necessary for me to go.’

Jisaa ye/ cheendró/ shtaloo chisu/ icho. ‘As he went, he took that knife.’

Kana/ heendra/ haŕa Maka. ‘The mouth goes even to Mecca.’ (A proverb that suggests that talk is cheap, talk does not mean action.)

kendra akhera ‘to go to another life, i.e. to the life after death’

Omari/ kamba munt^hu nakendro akherá. ‘Omari [looks] like a man who is dying.’

kendra hobelahobela ‘to spread rumors’ kendra ka hima ‘to go quickly, fast, early’

Skolaani/ muunt^hu/ suura/ kendra ka hima. ‘It is good for one to go to school early (quickly, not delaying).’

We/ kheeri/ kendra ka hima/ muskitiini. ‘You had better go quickly to the mosque.’

Keendrake/ numbaani/ pisile ka tawala. ‘Going to his place, he passed by the sea.’
Leelo/ Omari/ na Huseeni/ wawaliko hawakhaadiri/ nt^hawakeendra/ skolaani.
‘Today Omari and Huseeni were sick and did not go to school.’

Mi/ nakhsula kendra harusini. ‘I want to go to the wedding.’

Mi/ nt^hakeendra/ Mkhodiisho. ‘I will go to Mogadishu.’ But it is also acceptable to omit the first person nasal prefix: Mi/ takeendra/ Mkhodiisho.

Mi/ sinakhsuula/ we/ keendra. ‘I do not want you to go.’

Mi/ skeendra. ‘I did not go.’

Nakendra nt^hiini/ kuleta zoomboza. ‘I am going down to bring my things.’ Or with emphasis on the main verb: Nakeendra/ nt^hiini/ kuleta zoomboza.

Ndraṭaa mi/ neendre/ mi/ naziwa makri zaa wake/ kol^{koo} we. ‘Let me go, I know the tricks of women better than you.’

Nnakendra kumleta mwaaná. ‘I am going to bring the child (here).’ Or:

Nnakeendra/ kumleta mwaana. ‘I am going to bring the child (here).’ Or even: Nnakendra kumleeta/ mwaana. ‘I am going to bring the child (here).’

Or: Nnakeendra/ kumleeta/ mwaana. ‘I am going to bring the child (here).’

Nnakeendra/ tu/ kumeraa nyunyi. ‘I am just going to look for a bird.’

Nt^hakeendra/ numbaani. ‘He didn’t go home.’ (Compare when emphasis is on the complement: Nt^hakeendra numbaani. ‘He didn’t go home.’)

Nt^hawakeendra. or Want^hakeendra. ‘They did not go.’

Nuuru/ enzele sukhuuni. ‘Nuuru went to the market.’

Ondroka/ endrá/ owá. ‘Get up and go and bathe!’

Seendré. ‘Don’t go!’ Cf. Sendreení. ‘(Pl.) don’t go!’

Sho/ kuwa muḷliwa/ Nureeni/ enzelo Miini. ‘Only my husband Nureeni went to Brava.’

Skeendra/ Mambasa/ umriwa. ‘I have never gone to Mombasa in my life.’

Sku mooyi/ enzele maduriini/ kuwindaa nyunyi. ‘One day he went to the country to hunt for birds.’

Speendi/ kuwa Fardoosa/ tu/ enzelo Mwiini. I don’t like (it) that only Fardoosa went to Miini.’ With emphasis on the verb: Speendi/ kuwa Fardoosa/ tu/ enzeló/ Mwiini. I don’t like (it) that only Fardoosa went to Miini.’

Tamwambila na’endre ka suriyawe. ‘She will tell him that he should go to his mistress.’

Teena/ chendra khpataa nsi/ cheendró. ‘Then he went fishing, that’s what he did.’

Wachendra numbaani. ‘They went home.’

Wamwambile mamaye Hasiibu/ kuwaa wo/ wanakendra maduriini. ‘They told Hasiibu’s mother that they were going to the forest.’

Watakendra ka sheekhi/ kulatana. ‘They will go to the sheikh to divorce.’

We/ enzelé/ so. ‘Did you go?’

Ye/ waliko cheendrapí/ yana/ pamo naa muṅé. ‘Where was he going yesterday together with his younger brother?’ (Possible answer: Ye/ waliko chendra sukhuuni/ yana/ pamo naa muṅé. ‘He was going to the market yesterday together with his younger brother.’)

rel.

k-inenda’ineenda v. take a stroll

Chiya muunt^hu/ mweepe/ kunmeera/ mwaambile/ kuwaa mi/ noloshele kinendra’ineendrá. ‘If anyone comes to look for me, tell him that I went for a stroll.’

k-endreka v. p/s.

Madrasa iyo/ hayeendreki. ‘This school cannot be gone to.’

k-endreloowa v. appl. pass.

Sheekhi kaleen^{te}the jannaani/ nakuliindra kendreloowa [st.] ‘Sheekhi is residing in heaven waiting for us to join him [lit. waiting to be gone to]’

k-eendrela v. appl. go to Ali/ nt^hakuwanaazo/ haṭá/ nguwo/ zaa ye/ kuvaala/ kendrela ka sulṭaani.

‘Ali did not have even clothes for him to wear to go to the sultan.’
Sultaani/ iize/ kumendrela sarmaḷa/ kumaambila/ endrá/ tinda muti.
‘The sultan refused to go to the carpenter and tell him: go, cut down the tree!’

k-eendresha v. caus. (endresheeze)

Ali/ mwendresheze mwaana/ sukhuuni. ‘Ali caused the child to go to the market.’ (Syn. The periphrastic causative may also be used: Ali/ mtile mwaana/ kendra sukhuuni. ‘Ali [lit. instilled in] the child to go to the market.’)

k-endresheleza v. caus. appl. (endresheleeze)

Ali/ mwendresheleze Iisa/ mwaana/ sukhuuni. ‘Ali made Iisa’s child go to the market.’ (Syn. The periphrastic causative may be used instead: Ali/ mtile Iisa/ mwaana/ kendra sukhuuni. ‘Ali [lit. instilled in] Iisa’s child to go to the market.’)

k-endreshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-endreshelezenye)

Ali/ na Nuurú/ wa’endreshelezenye waana/ sukhuuni. ‘Ali and Nuuru caused one another’s children to go to the market.’ (Syn. It is also possible to use the periphrastic version: Ali/ na Nuurú/ watililene waana/ kendra sukhuuni. ‘Ali and Nuuru [lit. instilled in one another’s] children to go to the market.’) k-endroowa v. pass. (enzela) be gone (Syn. Intransitive verbs in Chimiini are routinely used in an impersonal passive construction.)

haṭá/ ichendroowa/ mahala/ huḷowa Iboholi yaa Wake ‘until they reached a place that is called the Pool of the Women’ iidi sala husaloowa, ahli kaawo hendroowa [song] ‘on iidi, prayers are prayed, relatives their place is gone to’

Mooyi/ chihada/ natukuloowa/ na’endroowa/ na’uḷoowa. ‘One (person) said: let him be taken and be gone [away with] and be killed.’

Shtumaa nt^hume/ ka apa/ na apá/ kentroowa/ kumerowa muunt^hu/ takhaadiró/ khtaḷsiirá/ ndroto izó. ‘He sent messengers here and there to be gone to be searched for a man who would be able to interpret those dreams.’

Wotte/ chirashmanyooa/ kaa ngoma/ na ndrĩmbó/ kendrowa muyiini. ‘All went together with drums and songs to go to [lit. be gone to] the town.’

k-eendra

v. auxiliary verb

heendra ‘perhaps’

Heendra/ kuwa Hasani/ enzele Mkhodiisho. ‘It is possible that Hasani went to Mogadishu.’ (Cf. Heendra/ kuwa Hasani/ enzele Mkhodiishó. ‘It is possible that it was Hasani who went to Mogadishu.’)

Heendra/ kuwa sheetaani/ ingilo kati kiinú. ‘Possibly the devil has gotten between them -- i.e. possibly they are fighting.’

Heendra/ nk^hashiindrá/ nk^hazida maaliyá. ‘Perhaps I will win and may add to my wealth.’

Heendra/ Omari/ kiza mraasha/ Nuuru. ‘It is possible that Omari will not follow Nuuru.’

Heendra/ Omari/ kufa/ ka maraḷi ayo. ‘It is possible that Omari might die from that disease.’

-s-eendre

lest; [pron. seendré]

Fakaṭa/ seendre/ kacheleloowa. ‘Run lest you be late!’

Ka jis’iyo/ nakuwoná/ ni afḷali/ mi/ chiza kiziḷukura ba’āḷi ya ndriimbo/ nseendré/ nk^hawakirihisha wa’imbaaji. ‘Therefore I see it is better that I not mention some of these songs lest I displease the singers.’

Mkuumbushe/ seendré/ kaliwala. ‘Remind him lest he forget!’ Cf.

Wakuumbushe/ waseendré/ kawaliwala. ‘Remind them lest they forget!' Cf. Shkuumbushe/ sicheendré/ kachiliwala. 'Remind us lest we forget!'

Mwenye maayi/ seendré/ mwenye skunyi/ seendré. 'Sellers of water should not go, sellers of firewood should not go [to the wedding].'

Mzeele/ ndroweeze/ mwanaamke/ na nambiile/ chiza kumpa/ nguwoze/ seendré/ ye/ kayulukila/ kayendrela kaawo. 'The old man married me to the girl and he told me not to give her her clothes lest she fly herself off and take herself home.'

Nk^humbuusha/ nseendré/ nk^haliwala. 'Remind me so that I might not forget.'

nseendre/ nk^hafuluka imtihaani 'lest I fail the examination'

Nt^hakhukumbusa seendre/ kaliwala. 'I will remind you lest you forget.' Cf. Nt^hakinkumbusha nseendre/ kanliwala. 'I will remind you (pl.) lest you forget!'

we/ seendré/ kafa ka ooni 'lest you die of thirst' need to review accentual pattern... is there final accent in first and second person forms of -s-eendre?? mw-ene=w-e (w-)

n. 1/2 [cf. Sw. mwenyewe SSED 86] its owner; oneself, reflexive; [pron. m(w)enewe,, but mwenewe may also be heard] (Morph. This item is an idiosyncratic replacement for the expected mwenye=we 'his owner', utilizing the nasal dental nasal n rather than the alveopalatal ny. The stem mw-ene=, however, can only be used with the third person singular enclitic; no form like mwenewa or mwenewo etc. is possible.)

Basi/ we/ mwenewe/ mmerelaa muke/ mweema/ nataku'ajibó. 'So you must look for a good woman for me who will please you.'

Iyi/ ni raadiyo/ isho weneve. 'This is Free Radio [lit. radio without its owners].'

Mi/ mwenewe/ niwaazilé. 'I myself planted it [e.g. a tree].'

Mwenewe/ ilaliile/ salaama/ chiliini. 'He put himself to sleep peacefully on the bed.'

Numba iyi/ mwenewe/ safiriile. 'This house's owner took a trip.'

Numba iyi/ weneve/ wasafiriile. 'The owners of this house took a trip.'

si/ weneve 'we ourselves' zibuku zaa mi/ namwiwo mwenewe 'the books that I know the owner of...'

zibuku zaa mi/ nna'iwo wezibuku zaa mi/ nna'iwo weneve... 'the books that I know the owners of...'

Zoombo/ zimrudiliile meneve. 'Things have gone back to the owner (but they were not supposed to have been returned).' Or: Zoombo/ schimrudila meneve.

eeni

n. [Sw. n. aina, v. aini SSED 6; Ar.] kind, type, material thing variant forms: eyni, aina

eeni/ ya bulú 'blue kind'

eeni/ ya matete 'spotted kind'

eeni gani 'what kind?'

eeni/ suura 'good kind'

nijisi ya aina ondrosha nafiye/ na iingine ineenza maayi iluye [st.] 'you should remove a discernible impurity [and then wash] and [just] pour water over the other [i.e. the indiscernible]'

eeni

n. eye

nijisi ya eni ondrosha nafiye/ na iingine ineenza maayi iluye [st.] 'something unclean that is visible to the eye, remove the thing itself, and another (unclean thing) run water over it' (nijisi ya eni refers to an impurity that can be seen with the eye, while nijisi ya hissa (or hissi) refers to other types of impurities which you can detect by using different senses -- an example could be pollution by urine or an alcoholic beverage.)

mw-enye (m-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mwenye SSED 85] owner, one who possesses; possessing, owning; [pron. mwenye or menye] (Usage: It should be noted that the construction mwenye + noun is widely used to form adjectives where Chimiini does not have one available; e.g. there is no adjective ‘hungry’ formed from the noun ndala ‘hunger’, hence we have mwenyee ndala ‘someone hungry’, and there is no adjective ‘strong’ from nguvu, thus we have mwenyee nguvu ‘someone strong’.)

Apo/ ye/ shkasa khabari/ ya kuwa sultaani/ wa muuyi/ uyu/ ni muunt^hu/ msuura/ nt^ho/ na ni muunt^hu/ mwenye akhili/ niingi. ‘There he heard the news that the sultan of this town was a very nice man and was a man possessing a lot of intelligence.’

Muke mwenye miimba/ hamtaandi/ mweka uzele. ‘A pregnant woman does not insult one who attends her during the period after giving birth.’

chiti chenye milu mitatu ‘a chair with three legs’; ziti zenye milu mitatu ‘chairs with three legs’ muunt^hu mwenye aqili ‘a man who has intelligence’ muunt^hu mwenye maali ‘a man with wealth’

muunt^hu mwenye zibuuku ‘a man owning books’

mwenye maayi ‘one who sells water’

Mwenyee ndala/ haatali. ‘A hungry man does not choose.’ (A proverb.)

Mwenye ngamiila/ chimuza msaafiri. ‘The owner of the camel asked the traveller.’

Mwenyee nguvu/ mpise. ‘A strong man, let him pass.’ (A proverb.)

Mwenye shtoka/ haatowi/ skunyi. ‘The one with an axe does not lack firewood.’ (A proverb.)

mwenye zibuuku ‘someone having books’; wenye zibuuku ‘people having books’

Mzele Simsini/ chimvila mwaana/ mwenye markabu/ mwaana/ chiya. ‘Old Simsini called the boy, the owner of the ship, and the boy came.’

mwenye amri ‘ruler’

E/ we/ mwenye amri/ mwana uyu/ waawaye/ ni muunt^hu/

mzeele/ nt^ho/ ka miyaaka. ‘O you ruler, this child’s father is a very old man with years.’

mwenye skunyi ‘one who sells firewood’

Mwenye sufuriya/ chiwona chisufuriya chihabba/ ndrani yaake. ‘The owner of the pot saw the little pot inside it.’

Nnamsula mwenye nyunyi izi. ‘I want the owner of these birds.’

Nt^hampatapi/ mi/ mwenyee nyunyi? ‘Where can I find the owner of the birds?’

Pamo na waant^hu/ awó/ wawaliko watumishi/ wa sultaani/ mwenye nt^hi iyi. ‘Together with those people were the servants of the sultan, the owner of this country.’

Suufi/ waliko mubjaana/ mwenyee nguvu/ na utuuvi. ‘Suufi was a youth possessing strength and gentleness.’

We/ ni muunt^hu/ mwenye kaazi. ‘You are a busy man.’

Ye/ ni mwenye zibuuku. ‘He is the owner of books.’

enyegi

kuleta enyegi ‘to give a hard time’

Haliima/ waanawe/ rabshoole/ wanamleta mamayaawo/ enyegi.

‘Halima her children are troublesome, they are giving their mother a hard time.’

mweenza (w-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mwenzi SSED 84] friend (The Chijini form of this noun, [nzámw^é] establishes that nza is a syllable with a pre-nasalized consonant as onset, since nza is transported as a unit to initial position in the word.) variant form: mweenzi (Nominals with human reference, formed from verbs by the suffix -i, are common in Swahili, but their use in Chimiini is less common and perhaps represents a Swahili influence.)

Abinawaasi/ nakiineendra/ rashmene na weenzawe. ‘Abinawaasi was walking together with (lit. following one another with) his friends.’

Apo/ ndilaani/ jisa maraa kaandra/ Hasani/ dirkameene/ na watumishi/ weenziwe. ‘There outside, just like the first time, Hasani met the servants, his colleagues.’

Apo/ zamaani/ süimba/ mooyi/ naa mp^hisi/ na sungurá/ wawaliko weenza. ‘Once upon a time, a lion, hyena, and hare were friends.’

Ba’adi yaa sala/ kuła mooyi/ humlazima kendra kuzura wazaaziwe/ ahjiye/ na weenzawé. ‘After the prayer (on the idi ya wamuusi) everyone is obliged to go to visit his parents, his relatives, and his friends.’

Haaji/ mweenzawe/ ntho/ Abdi/ husafira ka wiingi. ‘Haaji’s best friend Abdi travels a lot.’

kh-fanya weenza ‘to make friends’

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ want^hu weengi/ huletaa dhibu. ‘It is not good for one to make many friends, it can bring problems.’

Wako waant^hu/ hupeenda/ khfanya weenza/ wiingi/ na wako waant^hu/ hukahaḡo khfanya ismu ya mweenzá. ‘There are people who like to make many friends, and there are people who don’t like to make any friend.’

Maali/ yamlasile/ na weenza/ na ahji/ wamlasile. ‘Wealth left him, and friends and relatives left him (i.e. he lost his wealth and his friends and relatives).’ (Observe that the na which is co-ordinating sentences does not trigger final accent on the first element of the conjoined subject, weenza, but the na that conjoins weenza with ahji does trigger final accent.)

Muunt^hu/ humdeydeyo mweenziwé/ huwa kana yeeye. ‘He who imitates his companion becomes like him.’ (A proverb.)

Munt^hu movu/ hafanyoowi/ mweenza. ‘A bad person is not made a friend.’ (A proverb.)

mwaana/ na mweenzá ‘a boy and a friend’; mwaana/ na weenzá ‘a boy and friends’ mwaana/ na mweenzawé ‘a boy and his friend’; mwaana/ na weenzawé ‘a boy and his friends’ mwana wa mweenzawe ‘child of his friend’ or mweenzawe/ mwaanawe or [in the speech of MI] mwanawe mweenzawe mwenza mooyi ‘one friend’

Mwenza/ Nuuru/ mp^heele/ mi/ peesa. ‘Friend, Nuuru gave me money.’ (In initial position, a vocative – like all sentence initial phrases – represents the pitch peak of the sentence. There is ordinarily a small pause separating the vocative from what follows. The subject noun Nuuru in this example is not downstepped relative to the vocative, but actually rather similar in pitch height. The emphasized verb is not downstepped, although the subsequent nominal elements are. The simple yes-no question: mweenza/ Nuuru/ khupeele/ peesá? ‘Friend, did Nuuru give you money?’)

Mwenza olosheló/ wa mwaanawa/ ni Nuuru. ‘My child’s friend who left is Nuuru.’

Mwenza wa mwaanawa/ oloshela. ‘The friend of my child left.’

Mweenza/ wa mwanawa olosheló/ ni Nuuru. ‘The friend of my child who left is Nuuru.’

Mwenza wa mwaanawa/ olosheló/ is Nuuru. ‘The friend of my child who left (i.e. the friend left) is Nuuru.’

mwenza wa mwaanawe ‘a friend of his child’ or mwaanawe/ mweenzawe or [in the speech of MI] mweenzawe mwaanawe mweenzawá ‘O my friend’; weenzawá ‘O my friends’

Mweenzawo/ ndiyé/ khubló. ‘Your friend, he is the one who will kill you.’ (A proverb.)

Ni mwenza wa naani/ uyu. ‘Is the friend of whom, this one?’ Or: Ni mweenzawe/ naani/ uyu. ‘Is the friend of whom, this one?’ [lit. is his/her friend whom, this one?’]

Nuuru/ mp^heele/ mi/ peesa/ mweenza. ‘Nuuru gave me money, friend.’ (In final position, a vocative is radically lowered in pitch. In this example, where the verb is emphasized, the nominal elements preceding the vocative are also downstepped. The simple yes-no question is illuminating: Nuuru/ khupeele/ peesá/ mweenza? ‘Did Nuuru give you money, friend?’ Notice that the out-of-focus complement ‘money’ undergoes Accent Shift, but the vocative does not. The explanation is that in any case, the vocative is not part of the focus structure of the sentence; there is no contrast between whether the vocative is in the focus or not. Only contrastively out-of-focus elements are subject to Accent Shift.)

Oloka ka mwenza uyu/ chimaliza oloka ka mwenza uyu. ‘Go from this friend to that friend.’

Omari/ na Ali/ ni weenza. ‘Omari and Ali are friends.’

Siimba/ chijiiba/ siwo/ mbovu/ mweenza. ‘Lion answered him (Rabbit): that’s not a bad idea, friend.’

Wakomelopo muyiini/ Hasiibu/ shfaanya/ jisa mweenzawe/ sultani waa noka/ mwambiilo. ‘When they reached the town, Hasiibu did just as his friend the king of the snakes told him (to do).’

Walazilopó/ ka apó/ kila/ mooyi/ chimkhubura mweenzawe/ na mweenzá/ chimkhubura mweenzawe. ‘When they left from there, each one [of them] informed his friend, and the friend informed his friend.’

Wawiliwe/ basi/ ni weenza. ‘So the two of them were friends.’

Weenza/ kana chaala/ na shpeté. ‘They are as good friends as a finger and a ring.’

Weenza/ kana muunt^hu/ na shaatiyé. ‘They are friends, like a man and his shirt.’

wenza wawili ‘two friends’

Weenza/ wotte/ wamfakeete/ na kila/ waa ye/ olosheló/ kumera chiint^hú/ kaaké/ mchimbiiize/ ka ma^htaando. ‘All his friends ran away from him, and anyone whom he went to looking for something from him sent him away with insults.’

Ye/ waliko mfanyize mweenza/ mgeeni/ mooyi/ uje ndretele^loo dhibú. ‘She made a friend, a foreigner, who brought me difficulty.’

rel.

chi-w-eeenza n. 7 in a friendly manner

Nimpele salaamú/ chiweenzá. ‘I greeted him in a friendly manner.’

i-j-eeenza (mi-j-) n. 5/4 aug.

u-w-eeenza n. 14 friendship

khfunga uweenza ‘to establish a friendship’

kh^hinda uweenza ‘to break off a friendship’

N^hinzile na Hamadí/ uweenza. ‘I cut off my relationship with Hamadi.’ Or: N^hiinzilé/ uweenza/ na Hamadi. ‘I cut off my relationship with Hamadi.’ Or: N^hiinzilé/ na Hamadi/ uweenza. ‘I cut off with Hamadi my relationship.’

kuvunda uweenza ‘to break off a friendship’

Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kuvunda uweenza/ na meenzawe. ‘It is not good for a person to break off a friendship with his friend.’

Omari/ vuzile uweenza/ na Hamadi. ‘Omari broke off friendship with Hamadi.’

Uweenza/ wiitu/ ukomele apa/ waraa^hdi. ‘Our friendship has ended here; goodbye.’

mw-eeenzi+poss. (w-)

n., adj. 1/2 [Sw. mwenzi SSED 84] fellow, companion

Chiwavila weenziwe. ‘He called his companions.’

Mwana waa muke/ mwenopo mweenziwé/ naaku^há chimwaambila...

‘When the child of the woman saw her companion crying, she said to her...’

Mwiizi/ humshiikó/ ni mwiizi/ mweenziwe. ‘The one who catches a thief is his fellow thief [lit. thief, his companion].’

k-eeepuka

v. [Sw. epuka SSED 86] (epushile) avoid, get out of the way of, dodge, move away from Ali/ mwepushile Nuuru. ‘Ali stayed away from Nuuru.’

kepuka khatari ‘to avoid danger’ kepuka lkuta ‘to move away from the wall’

kepuka loomu ‘to avoid blame’

Mi/ isa/ nch^haanza/ khfanya iyi/ khulozaa we/ mwaana/ oyo/ muuyi/ mzimawe/ utakhkooḁa/ na waant^hu/ woṭe/ wako naa mi/ watakuneepuka. ‘If I now begin to do this, to have you marry that boy, the whole town will talk, and all the people who are with me, will go away from me.’

Mwaana/ epushile naa muḁo. ‘The child moved away from the fire.’

Nuuru/ epushilee muḁo. ‘Nuuru avoided the fire.’

Sababu yaa mi/ khfuraha/ kiḁa/ nch^hilangaḁa/ ka kubḁi/ ni ka khisa/ mi/ huwona/ kuwaa dhibu/ ije/ inepushile. ‘The reason that I rejoice each time I look to the right is because I see that those troubles (e.g. caused by the wife who had lived there) have avoided me.’

Wa’epuke! ‘Avoid them!’

Yaaquubu/ wawaye Yuusufu/ ni mooyi/ karka mitume/ watumiḁa na mwajiitú/ keendra/ konyeza waant^hu/ ndila ṭoosani/ wanapate ki’iraasha/ na kuwa’onyeza ndila mp^hotofú/ wanapate kiyeepuka. ‘Jacob, Joseph’s father, was one among the prophets who were sent by God to go and show people the straight path so that they could follow it and to show the crooked path so that they could avoid it.’ (Phon. Although the material following watumiḁa na mwajiitú would seem to be contained within the relative clause initiated by watumiḁa..., the final accent associated with the relative verb does not extend past mwajiitu. Ordinarily, final accent extends to the end of a relative clause. Perhaps the complexity of the conjoined infinitival complement plays some role here in curtailing the projection of final accent, but this is a matter requiring further research.) (Syn. The construction: /wawaye Yuusufu/ ‘Yuusufu’s father’ is characteristic of MI’s speech and can be found in many examples in this lexicon.

However, most of our current consultants do not accept this construction, using instead /Yuusufu/ waawaye/, a construction that MI employs as well. For those speakers who only accept the N/ N=poss structure, a word sequence such as Yaaquubu/ waawaye/ Yuusufu would be understood as meaning ‘Jacob’s father, Joseph’ and Yaaquubu/ Yuusufu/ waawaye would be understood as ‘Jacob, Joseph’s father’.)

rel.

k-epukana v. (epukeene) stay away from Mwaana/ epukene naa muḁo. ‘The child stayed away from the fire.’

Mwaana/ epukene na mweenzawe. ‘The child stayed away from his friend.’

k-epukika v. p/s. able to be avoided

Fulaani/ ha’epukiki. ‘So-and-so cannot be avoided.’

k-epukila v. appl. move away with, for

Nt^hakuwanaazo/ nguvu/ zaa ye/ kepukila naa muḁo. ‘He did not have the strength with which to move away from the fire.’ (Syn. It should be noted that the applied verb here cannot have a ‘directional’ sense, thus the ungrammaticality of Ye/ epukililee muḁo. ‘He moved away from the fire.’)

k-epukoowa v. pass. (epushila) be avoided, moved away from Muḁo/ wepushila na mwaana. ‘The fire was gotten away from by the child.’

Nuuru/ epushila na Ali. ‘Nuuru was stayed away from by Ali.’

k-eeepula v. tr. [Sw. epua SSED 86] (epiile) remove s.t. (e.g. a pot or dish) from the fire, the stove variant form: ku’epula

- Mwepile mwaana/ naa muḷo. ‘He moved the child away from the fire.’
- k-epusha* v. caus. (epushiize) move something or someone, induce etc. someone to move away; keep someone from something
- Epushizee chiṭa/ naa muḷo. ‘He moved the chair away from the fire.’
- Mwepushize mwaana/ naa muḷo. ‘He moved the child away from the fire; he induced, persuaded, etc., the child to move away from the fire.’
- k-epushana* v. caus. rec. avoid one another
- Waana wa’epusheene. ‘The children avoided one another.’
- k-epushika* v. caus. p/s.
- k-epushiliza* v. caus. appl. (epushiliize)
- Nuuru/ mwepushilize Suufi/ mwaana/ na aḏaabu. ‘Nuuru caused Suufi’s child to move away from (hell)fire.’
- k-epushilizanya* v. caus. appl. rec.
- Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wa’epushilizenye waana/ na aḏaabu. ‘Nuuru and Suufi caused one another’s children to move away from (hell)fire.’
- k-epushoowa* v. caus. pass. (epushiiza) be moved away from something
- ch-eepuwe* n. a small-sized drum that was used in the sh-timiri dance and was beaten on both ends
- ch-eepuwu* (z-) v n. 7/8 [Sw. chapeo “European hat” SSED ; Port.] a kind of European hat
- ku-’era* v. [Som.] (ereele) be on the verge of crying
- Jisaa we/ bishiloo nk^helé/ haṭá/ Omari/ naku’era. ‘The way that you are shouting, even Omari is on the verge of crying.’
- rel.
- ku-’eresha* v. caus. (eresheeze)
- Siwo/ suura/ muunt^hu/ kum’eresha walaaliwe. ‘It is not good for a man to bring his brothers to tears.’
- ku-’ereshoowa* v. caus. pass.
- Siwo/ suura/ muunt^hu/ ku’ereshoowa. ‘It is not good for a man to be brought to tears.’
- ku-’eroowa* v. pass.
- Nk^hejezo/ hu’eroowa. ‘Your loud noises, shouting makes one on the verge of crying.’
- eraporto* n. airport
- Mi/ ka’iwa kanaa we/ nakuuya/ suḷa ndirkamene naawe/ eraportooni. ‘If I had known you were coming, I would have met you at the airport.’
- Eeriile* n. a town, about twenty-five kilometers north of Brava on the road to Magadisho; in the rainy season, the road gets very muddy at Eeriile and it is common for buses, trucks, etc., to break down, forcing people to walk to their destination
- Eeriile/ ni shtuulo/ chihabba. ‘Eeriile is a small village.’
- erkole* n. Hercules
- Nazoo nguvu/ kana erkole. ‘He is as strong as Hercules.’
- eraporta* n. airport
- Mi/ ka’iwa kuwaa we/ nakuuyá/ suḷa kudirkamana naawe/ eraportaani. ‘If I had known you were coming I would have met you at the airport.’
- eroplaano* n. [Sw. eroplani SSED 86; Eng. airplane] airplane
- w-eeru* adj. [cf. -eelu] good [cl.1]
- Mwaana/ haṭaa chiwa mwaana/ muke/ weeru/ huwa siinfa. ‘Until a child becomes (fully) a child, a good woman is like caulking (that holds things together).’ (A proverb; we originally recorded this proverb with meema)

‘good’, but one consultant observed that in Chimbalazi, an older form of Chimiini, the word weeru was used and continues to be used in this proverb.)

ku-’eeta

v. (etele) blame someone, accuse

Alí/ anzize kubigaa nkhele/ ba’adi ya Hamadi/ m’eteloo yé/ khkoða wanaafakhí. ‘Ali started shouting after Hamadi accused him of lying.’

Haaruni/ hupenda ku’eta waant’u. ‘Haaruni likes to blame (other) people (for things that happen).’

Na teena/ sin’etété/ sihadé/ kuwaa mi/ sikhaambila. ‘And don’t ever blame me, don’t say that I did not tell you.’ (Morph. MI regularly elided the infinitive prefix ku when it precedes the second person singular object prefix, hence sikhaambila in the present example rather than skukhaambila.)

rel.

ku-’eteloowa v. app. pass.

Omari/ waliko etela kubola fatuura. ‘Omari was accused of stealing a car.’ (Note that the object of the infinitive cannot be promoted to be the subject of the main verb: Fatuura/ i’eteela... ‘The car was accused...’) ku-’etela v. appl.

Wo/ wam’etele Omari/ kubola gaari. ‘They accused Omari of stealing a car.’

ku-’etisha v. caus.

ku-’etoowa v. pass.

Naku’etoowaní. ‘What am I being blamed for?’

Siwo/ suura/ muunt’u/ ku’etoowa/ bilaa sababu. ‘It is not good for a person to be blamed for no reason.’

Yaa we/ takhfaanyó/ hulawili/ takhku’etoowá. ‘Whatever you do you will not get away with it, you will be blamed.’ final accent on last phrase needs to be explained

eeṭi

n. 10 blame

Chiint’u/ hupita/ eeṭi/ husalaa numa. ‘Something happens, blame remains behind (i.e. after something has happened and is over, blame remains behind).’ (A proverb.)

Eeṭi/ nt’ayná/ faayda. ‘Blame is not useful.’ (A proverb.)

Omari/ eeṭize/ niingi. ‘Omari’s [lit. blames] fault-findings are many.’

ch-eti (z-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. cheti (vy-) "note, ticket, passport, certificate, ‘chit’, etc." SSED 55 Hind.] permit, license (particularly any commercial license, as for a shop, import-export) variant form: chaṭi

cheṭi chaa ḍuka ‘shop license’

khṭindaa cheṭi ‘[lit. cut] get a license’

Nt’aná/ cheṭi. ‘He has no license.’

ch-eetezo (z-)

n. 7/8 a small clay receptacle in which a fire is put and aromatic leaves burnt (the cheetezo is passed around at a wedding or funeral, as part of the traditional customs of the want^hu wa miini) mp^hulaye/ kana/ cheetezo ‘his nose is like a cheetezo (i.e. big or wide)’

eyni

n. [see under eení] kind, sort ku-’ezata

v. be respected, glorified; variant form: ku’eza

Muunt’u/ hakhu’ezi/ naayé/ ha’ezoowi. ‘The person who does not respect you is not respected.’ (A proverb.)

rel.

ku-’ezeka v. (ezeshela) be respected, glorified variant form: ku’ezika (ezishile)

ku-’ezasha v. (ezesheeze) respect variant form: ku’ezisha (ezishiize)

ku-'ezooowa v. pass.
rel. nom.
m-'ezesha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who respects

ezi

n. respect, dignity; might; glory (Phon. This item was sometimes recorded with gemination: [ezzi]. The status of gemination as both a stylistic and a lexical matter requires more research.)

variant form: izi

ezi na na'musi nda Mtume Mhamadi [st.] 'dignity and respect are due [lit. of] the Prophet Mohammad' mwajiitu/ mwenye ezi 'Almighty God' mwenye ezi 'a respectful person; the possessor of glory, the most Glorious one (a title of God)'

Na mwene sultaani/ wa mayahuudi/ tukila kaa chiti/ cha ezi/ na chinumeché/ wamrashiizó/ ni mawaziiriwe/ na wazele wa muuyi/ na waant^hú/ winginewé. 'And he saw the sultan of the Jews being carried on a chair for the mighty, and behind him the ones who followed were his ministers and the chiefs of the town and other people.'

Nt^haná/ ezi. 'He has no respect for other people.'

mw-eezi (mi-)

n. month; [pron. mweezi or meezi (sg.), miyeezi or myeezi or meezi (pl.)] (Because the majority of present day Chimiini speakers seem to elide w after m, the [cl.3] singular form of this noun is pronounced meezi and falls together with the plural form in its variant meezi: for example, mezi mooyi 'one month' and mezii mine 'four months'.)

Abunawaasi/ kaleent^he/ maduriini/ kaa muda/ wa meezi/ miwili.

'Abunawaasi stayed in the country for two months.'

Ba'ada ya miyeezi/ haba/ sultaani/ chifa. 'After a few months the king died.'

Funzila miyezi mitatu. 'He was imprisoned for three months.'

Islaamu/ wote/ hufuunga/ nt^hangú/ awali ya mweezi/ hatá/ akhiriye. 'All Muslims fast from the first day of the month (of Ramadhan) until its end.'

kuliindra/ kana mweezi/ kiindama 'to wait for like the moon being born (i.e. to await s.t. that is certain to happen)'

meezi mine na sku ikumi ni sharti [st.] 'four months and ten (days) are required (for a woman to stay inside on the death of her husband)' mezi mitaano/ sita/ jis'iyo 'five, six months, something like that'

Muda ya mweezi/ liinziló. 'He waited for a period of one month.'

muda wa miyezi mitatu 'a period of three months'

mwezi muusi 'the first day of the month' (cf. mwezi piili 'the second day of the month')

Mweezi/ nt^hawukhita. 'A month didn't pass.'

mwezi wa iwa 'sun'

mwezi wa piili 'the second month'

mwezi wa weelu (or contracted: mwezaa weelu) 'moon'

myezi miwili 'two months'

ni suna khfuunga mweezi keendra aarafa [st.] 'it is sunna to fast on the ninth day of the month of aarafa'

Nt^ha'ukpita/ mweezi/ Iisha/ chibarātana na mwiimbili/ inaye Mwenye.

'Not a month passed [before] Iisha became acquainted with a young man named Mwenye.'

Ramaḍaani/ ni mwezi wa soomu. 'Ramadhan is the month of fasting.'

ku-fa

v. [Sw. fa SSED 88] (file) die; n. death

File ka maraḍi ya khalbi. 'He died from heart disease.'

Fiile/ ye. ‘Died, he.’ (In the simple yes-no question, the right-dislocated pronoun is raised in pitch in comparison to the statement. The exclamatory question shifts the accent in the verb: Fiilé/ yê!?)

Fiile/ so/ ye. ‘He died, didn’t he?’ or Fiile/ ye/ so. (We have not studied the intonational pattern of sentences containing so in great detail, but it is striking that in the latter sentence, a final so eliminates downstepping from the sentence. In the first case above, so is lowered in pitch relative to the verb.)

Fiiló/ nt^haná/ shalaayi. ‘Someone who is dead does not have regret.’ (A proverb.)

Fiiló/ yaake/ imaliize. ‘He who has died, his (affairs, issues, concerns, etc.) are finished.’ (A proverb.)

Ha’isii kufá/ nalangaje khabri. ‘The one who does not know death, let him look at the grave.’ (A proverb.)

Kana/ kufa leeló/ kheeri/ kufa keesho. ‘Instead of dying today, it is better to die tomorrow.’ (A proverb, reminding that it is better to be alive than dead.)

Khuzaaziló/ fiile. ‘The one gave birth to you is dead.’

Kilaa maraði/ inayoo dawa/ shokuwaa kufa. ‘Every disease has a remedy except death.’

kufa himma ‘to lose enthusiasm’

kufa ilaanzi ‘to be asleep (of body parts)’

kufa jisa suura ‘to die well -- i.e. to die in bed, surrounded by relatives and uttering the shahaada as one’s last words’ kufa ka shahaada ‘to die believing in God and pronouncing the shahaada’ kufaa ndala or kufa kaa ndala ‘to die of hunger’ (There is perhaps a contrast between kufaa ndala and kufa kaa ndala. The former suggests that someone died from hunger even though food was available (e.g. he was a miser and did not want to spend money to get it) while the latter conveys the idea of starving to death from lack of food.)

Wazele awaje/ wafilee ndala. ‘Those old men died of hunger.’

Kufa/ nt^hayná/ dawaa. ‘Death has no medicine, cure.’ Is this a proverb?

kufa ooni or kufa ka ooni ‘to die of thirst (with perhaps the same contrast mentioned above regarding ndala)’

kufa qalbi ‘to lose enthusiasm and ability to function properly, to become discouraged [lit. to lose heart]’

Mwaadamu/ mara mooyi/ chifa khalbi/ chiint^hu/ hakhaadiri/khfaanya. [H^hH^hH^hH^hH^h] ‘Once a human being becomes discouraged (lit. dies in the heart) he is not able to do anything.’

kufaa ziya ‘to be weak’

kufaake ‘his/her/its death’

Eelo/ kufaake/ imhuzunishize kila muunt^hu/ numbaani. ‘The gazelle’s death saddened everyone in the house.’

Mwaana/ hufa/ mzima/ hufa. ‘A child dies, an adult dies (anyone can die).’ Is this a proverb?

Martí/ ilo ka Mkhodiishó/ fiiló/ waliko Nureeni. ‘The guest who came from Mogadishu who died was Nureeni.’ Or: Martí/ oo ilo ka Mkhodiishó/ fiiló/ waliko Nureeni.

Martí/ oo fiiló/ waliko (ni) Nureeni. ‘The guest who died was Nureeni.’

Or: Martí oo fiiló/ waliko (ni) Nureeni.

Mubli/ ba’ada ya mukeewe/ kufa/ nt^hakuwa/ teena/ muunt^hu. ‘The man, after his wife died, was never again a human being.’

Mtiyaa kufa/ kufa/ humraasha. ‘One who is afraid to die, death follows him.’ (A proverb.)

Muke/ chimwambilaa noka/ kalaant^ha/ nt^hini yaa chiji/ nt^hini ya godoro/ chilaala/ lawa/ mlume naafe. ‘The woman said to the snake: sit under the bed, under the mattress, and when he goes to sleep, come out, and sting him to death.’

Mwaañimu/ fiile. ‘The teacher died.’ Cf. File mwaañimu. ‘A teacher died.’

Cf. also: Fiile/ uje mwaañimu. ‘That teacher died.’

Mwaana/ wa maskiini/ fiile. ‘The child of a poor [family] died.’

nife ‘that you (pl.) die’ or ‘that I die’ (This form is ambiguous since the subject prefix ni- can either be used for first person singular or second person plural. If the vowel of the prefix elides, then a difference develops in terms of the interaction of the nasal with a stem-initial consonant; the first person nasal forms a prenasalized consonant while the second person plural does not assimilate to the following consonant. It is possible of course to use the pronoun to distinguish the two forms nife, as in Nakhsu_laa ni/ nife. ‘He wants you (pl.) to die.’ but Nakhsu_laa mi/ nife. ‘He wants me to die.’ Similarly: Nakhsu_ula/ ni/ nife. versus Nakhsu_ula/ mi/ nife. In the absence of a pronoun, ambiguity is present; e.g. Nakhsu_ula/ nife. ‘He wants that I/you (pl.) die.’ In this example, the main verb has been prosodically separated from the subjunctive verb. It is also ambiguous when the main verb and the subjunctive are phrased together: Nakhsu_laa nife. ‘He wants that I/you (pl.) die.’ Notice that even though nife is a CVCV word, the preceding word-final vowel is not lengthened, in contrast to the case when the CVCV word is not a verb: Nakhsu_laa chisu. ‘I want a knife.’

Nt^hakhu_lata fa/ paapa/ apa. ‘I will let you die right here.’

Nuuru/ fiile. ‘Nuuru has died.’ Or: Nuuru/ fiiló. ‘It is Nuuru who has died.’

Omari/ fiile? ‘Did Omari die?’ Or: Fiile/ Omari? ‘Did he die, Omari?’

Omari/ file ka aksidente? ‘Did Omari die in the accident?’ Or: Ka aksidente.

Omari/ fiiló? ‘In the accident did Omari die?’ Or: File ka aksidente/ Omari? ‘Died in the accident did Omari?’ (The last version of the question merits some discussion. When a subject is right-dislocated, being a kind of afterthought, in a yes-no question it would undergo Accent Shift. But in the present example it is not a right-dislocated subject and there is no Accent Shift.)

Omari/ fiile/ yana. [HH!!H] ‘Omari died yesterday.’ (Notice that the time adverbial in the canonical pronunciation of this sentence is phrasally separated from the verb. The verb escapes the usual downstep intonation, while the time adverbial is radically downstepped.)

Omari/ fiile/ yana. [[↑]H!H!!H] ‘Omari died yesterday.’ (Emphasis can be placed on the subject in this example, in which case the subject is markedly raised in pitch from the norm. Given this marked raising, the verb is clearly lowered in pitch. The time adverbial remains radically downstepped.)

Omari/ tu/ fiiló? ‘Did only Omari die?’ (There is another version of this question: Fiiló/ Omari/ tu? Note that post-verbal tu does not trigger pseudo-relativization, so the form filo cannot be a reaction to the tu in this version of the question, unlike the first version of the question cited. It appears that the best translation would be: ‘the one who died is it only Omari?’)

Sifé. ‘Don’t die!’ Sifeení. ‘(Pl.) don’t die!’

Sifi. ‘I do not die.’ Cf. the rest of the human subject paradigm: Hufi. ‘You do not die.’

Haafi. ‘He does not die.’ Haachifi. ‘We do not die.’ Haanifi. ‘You (pl.) do not die.’ Hawaafi. ‘They do not die.’

Wazele awaje/ wafilee ndala. ‘Those old men died of hunger.’

We/ chingila apa/ takuufa. ‘If you enter here you will die.’

We/ nakhsu_laa mi/ nifé/ pata kulo_lowa na sultaani. ‘You want that I die so that you get married by the sultan.’

Yampete mara_oi/ fiile. ‘She fell sick and died.’

Yana/ Omari/ fiile. [[↑]H!H!!H] ‘Yesterday Omari died.’ (Emphasis on yana can be achieved by preposing it to initial position and markedly raising its pitch. When yana is markedly raised, then the subject is clearly lowered in pitch. The sentence-final verb seems radically lowered.)

Ye/ fiile. ‘He passed away.’ (Cf. Ye/ fiile? ‘Has he passed away.’ Ye/ fiilé!?)

rel.

kh-fiilila v. appl. [Sw. filia SSED 88] (fiilile)

Fiilile mara_oi ya khalbi. ‘He died of heart disease.’

kh-fiילוowa v. appl. pass.

Lizile kama munt^hu fiililá. ‘He cried like a man bereaved of someone.’

Maama/ chiĵa/ apo/ chimwambila mwaana/ sooloké/ mwaanawá/ waana/ watatu/ wanfililá/ mi/ speendi/ na mwiinginé/ kunfiĵila. ‘Mother cried, then she said to her son, don’t go, my son, three children have died on me, I do not want another to die on me.’

kh-filoowa v. appl. pass.

Apo/ zamaani/ ishiize/ mwaana/ mooyi/ waliko filila na wazeelé/ wawiliwé. ‘Once upon a time there lived a boy who had been orphaned by both of his parents.’

kh-fiisha v. caus. [Sw. fisha SSED 88] weaken, exhaust, use up khfishaa ziya ‘to use up s.o.’s stamina, weaken s.o.’s stamina kh-fishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-fishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-foowa v. pass. (fiĵila) (Phon. Observe that the prefix does not elide its vowel in front of the stem -foowa, in contrast to the other examples where -fa has been extended. The failure of the u to elide in kufa is due to the following stem being a monosyllable. One might have thought that -foowa would trigger the loss of the vowel.)

Kana kufowa leeló/ kheeri/ kufowa keesho. ‘Instead of dying today, it’s better to die tomorrow.’

Kufoowa/ nii ndila. ‘To die is a path (that one must take).’ A proverb?

rel. nom.

chi-fo n. 7 mortality

(w)u-fo n. 14 dying

ma-kufa n. dying

Kumwona muunt^hu/ makufa/ kaa ndala/ siwo/ jawaabu/ husuulikó. ‘To see a person dying from hunger is not a thing that is desirable.’

faa’izi

adj. [Ar. fā’iz W 732] successful munt^hu faa’izi ‘successful man’; cf. also want^hu faa’izi, chijana shfaa’izi, zijana sfaa’izi

faabrika (ma-)

n. [It. fabbrica] factory

Maduka/ mafaabrika/ na mahafiisá/ yote/ hufungoowa/ ka muda wa skuu nt^hatu. ‘Shops, factories, and offices are all closed for a period of three days.’

Faabrika/ ya Akuwa

n. the mineral water plant in Brava, located at the edge of Buulo/ Baazi; note the use of akuwa from Italian acqua ‘water’; this water plant was an Italian project and produced and bottled the “Salus” water; it was later bought by a Bravanese family and the former owner moved to London

fachakh

ideo. of wetness (Our data has not allowed an analysis of the pitch pattern of ideophones, but it is notable that this ideophone did not exhibit the marked high pitch observed in some others.)

Sivaalé/ nguwo iyo/ ni fachakh! ‘Don’t put on that cloth, it is wet!’

Waana/ nguwo zaawo/ zoloweene/ kaa nvula/ ziwela fachakh! ‘The children’s clothes got wet with rain, they became fachakh!’

fad fad

ideo. (The pitch on fad is raised.)

Haliima/ nakhpika maĵaaza/ yanakhtokota/ fad fad! ‘Haliima is cooking porridge, it is boiling, fad fad!’

Ali/ maĵaaza/ ka isiinga/ neeló/ ka dakha mooyi/ fad fad!/ maliize. ‘Ali, porridge, with a big bowl, he drank it; in a minute fad fad! he finished.’

fadhi

n. [Som.] couch, sofa

Mi/ nakhtahaja kaalmeyó/ kondrola fadhi iyi. ‘I need your help in moving this sofa.’

- fadhi n. 9/10 [Som. fadhi DSI 212] meeting; class session; dwelling; fact of being seated variant form: fadi
chiza khkukutala nijisi nafsiye/ wala chiza kuguura karka fadhiye [st.] ‘otherwise (if one does not clean oneself properly after defecating) the unclean thing dries up on its own, or does not move from its place’ fadhi iyi ‘this meeting’
fadhi izi ‘these meetings’
Fadhi/ leelo/ ya wazele/ ibakheete. ‘The meeting today of the elders has been cancelled.’
fadhiini in the meeting’
Haṭaa we/ shkoma apo/ fadhi/ itakumala. ‘By the time you get there, the meeting will be finished.’
huhuzuniko ni darsi/ fadhi ishtali’oowa [st.] ‘as will his daily circle of students/ and the lessons he used to teach’
ka fadhiini
Fulaani/ pete maali/ ka fadhiini. ‘So-and-so made money without moving (i.e. right at his place).’
Wa’ondroshale ka fadhiini. ‘They moved out of the meeting.’
wamo huwa’arzuq ka fadhiini/ na wiingine huwafaanya maskiini [st.] some (God) cares for their needs while they are at their own place, and others he makes them poor’ kuvundaa fadhi ‘to break up a meeting’ kuwekaa fadhi ‘to hold a meeting’
Sku mooyi/ mp^hana/ ziweshalee fadhi. ‘One day the rats held a meeting.’
Leelo/ yikoo fadhi. ‘Today there is a meeting.’
mane yashṭiindika shpata yaqiini/ istanja laakini siwo fadhiini [st.] when the urine stops (flowing) and you know for sure it has, then clean up, but not in the same place’ Nakhuloombá/ mbekelaa fadhi. ‘I beg you, hold a meeting for me.’ (Phon. The initial w of the verb stem -weekela ‘hold for’ is hardened to b after the first person object prefix.)
nt^haná/ fadhi ‘there is no place’
Mwana oyo/ nt^haná/ fadhi. ‘That child is always moving from place to place (i.e. there is not a place where he stays).’
Nt^haná/ fadhi/ yaa ye/ kuweka waant^hu. ‘He has no place for him to put people.’
Wachiwekaa fadhi/ ya piili. ‘They held a second meeting.’
- faḍaaha n. 9/10 [cf. Sw. fedheha SSED 93; Ar. fadand fadaha W 717] scandal, disgrace variant forms: faḍiiba [Ar. fadṭha W 717] and faḍeeha Leelo/ Omari/ kaawó/ numbaani/ itulushile faḍeeha. ‘Today at Omari’s house there was a big scandal/ disgrace.’
Leelo/ ra’iisi/ Niksoni/ ba’adaa ye/ kuwona kuwa ni njeema/ kuliwala sha’ani za Wotageta/ na faḍiihazze... ‘Today, President Nixon, after seeing that it was best to forget about Watergate and its scandals...’
nimo karka ḍana nafsiya faḍaaha [song] ‘I am (living) with suspicion, a disgrace for/to myself’ Raaha/ akhiriye/ faḍaaha. ‘Pleasure, at its end, is shame/misery.’ (A saying.)
- faḍiila n. 9/10 [Sw. fadhili SSED 89; Ar. faḍīla W 718] honor, dignity; an act which is good and merits reward; appreciation; advantage ilmu faḍiilaze karka Qur’aani/ karka hadiithi za Mtume Adnaani [st.] ‘the principles of ilmu are found in the Quran and in the hadiithi of the Prophet’ munt^hu mwenye faḍiila ‘a man who is appreciative, grateful’ mzuure Abaḍe Khadija karka Makka/ pata faḍiila niingi pata baraka [st.] ‘visit Lady Khadija in Mecca/ in order to obtain many favors and blessings’ Nt^haná/ faḍiila. ‘He has no dignity.’
pata faḍiila niingi pata baraka [st.] ‘so that you get much honor and blessing’

kh-faðila

v. [Sw. fadhili SSED 89; Ar. fadala and fadila W 717] (faðiliile) prefer, favor

Jaama/ nakhfaðilani. ‘What does Jaama prefer?’

Mi/ hufaðila khkalaant^ha. ‘I prefer to stay.’

Mi/ humfaðila Nuuru. ‘I prefer Nuuru.’

Mi/ ñnakhfaðila keendrá. ‘I prefer to go.’

mooja mfaðiliile ka kumpa maqaamu/ ya mitume yotte ndiye khitaamu [st.] ‘God preferred him by giving him high prestige, among all the prophets he is the last one’

Ye/ hufaðila ilmu/ siwo/ maali. ‘He prefers knowledge not wealth.’

Ye/ suļa khfaðilaa si/ keendra. ‘He would prefer for us to leave.’

rel.

kh-faðiloowa v. pass. [Sw. fadhiliwa SSED 89] (faðiliila)

Nuuru/ khkalan^hake apa/ ifaðilila na want^hu wiingi. ‘Nuuru’s staying here was preferred by many people.’

faðli

n. [Sw. fadhili SSED 89; Ar. fadl W 718] favor, kindness, merit, appreciation, good manners

Nt^haná/ asli/ walá/ faðli. ‘He does not have either ancestry (i.e. noble birth) nor good manners.’ (A proverb.)

Nt^huná/ faðli. ‘You do not have appreciation.’

waanawe ni saba wenye faðli/ karka saba awo watatu ni wabli [st.] ‘his children, endowed with virtues, were seven, and of those seven, three were boys’

sh-faafa

n. 7. [Sw. kifafa SSED 189] epilepsy

Omari/ file ka shfaafa. ‘Omari died from epilepsy.’

Shfaafa/ ni maraði waa wovu. ‘Epilepsy is a bad disease.’

Shfaafa/ nt^hayná/ dawa. ‘There is no medicine for epilepsy.’

Ye/ ni munt^hu mwenye shfaafa. ‘He is a man afflicted with epilepsy.’

kh-faafata

v. [Som. faaf DSI 209] (fafeete) be revealed, be spread over, out

Kooði/ sfafeete. ‘The news spread.’

rel.

kh-faafisha v. tr. (fafishiize) reveal; make someone’s vices, defects known; broadcast, spread s.t.

Fafishize kuwaa mi/ nnele khamrí. ‘He revealed that I drank alcohol.’

Fafishize kuwaa mi/ nziniiló. ‘He spread the news that I have committed adultery.’

Hufaafisha/ mañe yaawo/ ka mkila. ‘They (referring to camels) spread their urine with the tail.’

Hufafisho ebuzó/ muunt^hi/ hata^hami/ khutilaa mu^ho/ masku. ‘The one who reveals your defects in the daytime does not hesitate to burn you at night.’ (A proverb.)

Iyi/ ni raadiyo/ isho mwenewe/ hufafisho khabari/ maraa nt^hatú/ kila muunt^hi. ‘This is Free Radio (lit. radio without owners) which broadcasts the news three times each day.’

khfafisha khabari ‘to spread news, a secret’

Nt^hawafaafisha/ siri. ‘They did not reveal the secret.’

Si/ hufaafisha/ khabari/ za duniya/ maraa nt^hatu/ killa muunt^hi. ‘We broadcast the world news three times each day.’

kh-fafishiliza v. tr. appl.

Ali/ nfafishilize siriya. ‘Ali spread my secret all over (to my detriment).’

Nfafishilize ebuza. ‘He revealed my vices (on me).’

Nfafishilize kuwaa mi/ nnele khamrí. ‘He revealed (to my detriment) that I drank alcohol.’

kh-fafishoowa v. tr. pass.

umriwe uchiziida/ ilmu inafifishoowa [st.] ‘for if his life is extended, he will disseminate more knowledge’

Walá/ maneye/ nt^hayakhfafishoowa. ‘Nor was its (the camel’s) urine spread.’

fagah

ideo.

Abú/ fakeete/ fagah!! kana/ fatuura/ nt^hangú/ skolaani/ hatá/ sukhuuni/ ka dakhaa mbili. ‘Abu ran fagah! like a car from school to the market in two minutes.’

Omari/ shteza khamari/ mukhtaa ye/ mweno askari/ fakeete/ fagah!/ mahalaa ye/ ingiiló/ tozela. ‘Omari was gambling; when he saw police (coming), he ran away fast, fagah! whatever place he went into, he was not seen (i.e. he could not be found).’

fagiha

n. someone versed in Islamic doctrine

kh-fahama

v. [Sw. fahamu SSED 90; Ar. fahima (verb) and fahm (noun) W 730] (fahamiile or fahimiile) understand, figure out, solve Ali/ fahamile darsi. ‘Ali understood the lesson.’

Chiza/ khfahamake/ in.yawishiize. ‘His not understanding surprised me.’

Fahamiilé. ‘Did you understand?’ (The question differs from the statement just in intonation. See discussion of yes-no questions in the introductory materials.)

Fardoosa/ nakhfahama haali. ‘Fardoosa understands the situation.’

Hamiisi/ husoma niingi/ shokuwa(a ye)/ hafahami/ yaa ye/ nakhsoomó. ‘Hamiisi reads a lot, except he does not understand what he is reading.’

khati nsomeele zont^he nfahamiile [song] ‘I have read the letter and understood it all’ kuuya khuwona fahama nt^hiyiile [song] ‘understand that I was afraid to come and see you’

Mi/ nakhsula khfahamá. ‘I want to understand.’

Mwanaamke/ malizopo khfahama majiibu/ ayo/ chilawa/ chiyendrela kaawo. ‘When the girl understood that answer, she went out and went to her [lit. their] home.’

Mukeewe/ chubloowa/ ka khisa lughzi/ la muhliwe/ Ifahamiiló. ‘His wife was killed because of the riddle that her husband solved.’

Naambila/ yaa we/ nakhsuuló/ ka waahihi/ mp^hate khfahama. ‘Tell me what you want clearly so that I can understand.’

Nuuru/ fahamile darsi. ‘Nuuru understood the lesson.’

Si/ nfuye/ shchiwa chinakoondroka/ ka fadhiini/ kiitu/ hastukuli/ ma’inyi yiitu/ hulata kiitu. ‘We monkeys, when we leave our dwellings, we do not carry our livers with us, we leave them home.’

Sinakhfahama/ jisa suura/ tafdali/ koha ka tartiibu. ‘I don’t understand very well. Please speak slowly.’

Siwo/ dhibu/ naami/ kumfahama Hamadi. ‘It is not difficult for me to understand Hamadi.’

Spate/ khfahama kohi izi. ‘I failed to understand the words.’

Spate/ kumfahama Ali. ‘I failed to understand Ali.’

rel.

kh-fahamana v. rec. understand one another kh-fahamika v. p/s. capable of being understood kh-fahamila v. appl.

kh-fahamisha v. caus. (fahamishiize) make understand, explain

Ali/ mfahamishize mwaana/ darsi. ‘Ali explained the lesson to the child.’

Chimfahamisha/ mnaadisha/ ya kuwaa ye/ nt^hanakhsula/ yiingine/ shokuwa/ kuwona chitaache/ shtiinzila. ‘He made the auctioneer understand that he did want anything other except to see his (the auctioneer’s) head cut off.’

Mwaana/ sh̄tomola majiibu/ ya sh̄tandrawila/ icho/ jisa/ chizeele/ chimfahamishiizó. ‘The boy gave the answers to that riddle, just the way the old woman had revealed them to him [lit. made him understand].’

Nimfahamishize Jaamá/ darsi. ‘I explained the lesson to Jaama.’

kh-fahamishana v. caus. rec. explain to each other kh-fahamishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-fahamishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mfahamishilize Omari/ mwaana/ darsi. ‘Nuuru explained the lesson to Omari’s child, to the child for Omari.’

kh-fahamishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Omari/ na Nuurú/ wafahamishilizenye waana/ darsi. ‘Omari and Nuuru explained the lesson to one another’s children.’

kh-fahamishoowa v. caus. pass.

Jaama/ fahamishiza darsi/ naami. ‘Jaama was made to understand the lesson by me.’ Or: Darsi/ fahamishiza Jaama/ naami.

kh-fahamoowa v. pass.

rel. nom.

ma-fahamisho n.6 act of making understand

u-fahamisho n. 14

fahamdara

adj? [Som. fahmaddarro ‘indisposition, slight illness’ DSI 213; cf. Som. fahmeysan ‘to have recovered energy, to feel refreshed’] lack of well-being, not feeling well Leelo/ Omari/ na Huseeni/ wawaliko fahamdara/ nt^hawakeendra/ skolaani.

‘Today Omari and Huseeni were feeling unwell and did not go to school.’

Mubli/ chimwambila mukeewe/ ya kuwaa ye/ ni fahamdara. ‘The man told his wife that he was not feeling well.’

Sku mbili izi/ mi/ fahamdará. ‘These two days I am not feeling well.’

Waana/ sku mbili izi/ fahamdara/ wanayo hagarbu. ‘The children these two days are not feeling well, they have a cold.’

fahamu

n. 10 [Sw. fahamu SSED 90; Ar. fahm W 730] intelligence, recognition, understanding, perception; well-being, energy, state of health, alertness, vigilance khpata fahamu ‘to recover one’s energy/ well-being (i.e. to be on the way of recovery from illness)’ kh̄towa fahamu ‘to lose one’s ability to comprehend or understand’

Nazo fahamu/ na basará. ‘He has understanding and talent.’

Nt^haná/ fahamu. ‘He has no ability to comprehend, no memory; he is not feeling well, he is not alert, vigilant.’

Omari/ fahamu. ‘Omari is vigilant, alert, etc.’

Omari/ nt^haná/ fahamu/ sku mbili izi. ‘Omari has not been feeling well (not alert, vigilant, etc.) these two days.’

Teena/ mweenzawe/ humwaambila/ ndro/ tu/ we/ waawe/ ni ije/ tu/ mlate/ waawe/ nt^haná/ fahamu/ mlate/ tu/ we/ ndro/ tu/ we.

‘Then his friend tells him: just come, you, my father is just what, leave him be, my father has no understanding, just leave him be, you, just come, you [in the story, the sultan’s son is trying to persuade his friend, whom the sultan has sent away, to ignore the sultan and come to be with him].’

faahimu (ma-)

adj. [Ar. fahim ‘quick witted, of acute discernment’ W 730] intelligent variant form: fahiimu [Ar. fahīm ‘discerning, sensible, intelligent’ W 730] munt^hu faahimu ‘intelligent person’ (cf. want^hu faahimu ‘intelligent people’; chijana shfaahimu ‘intelligent dim. child’, zijana sfaahimu ‘intelligent dim. children’)

Na zo ni alfu dirhamu/ kubloowa meema faahimu [st.] ‘it was a thousand dirhams/ to have the virtuous scholar killed’

Ni muunt^hu/ fahiimu. ‘He is a very intelligent man.’

faharasa	n. [Sw. faharasa SSED 90; Ar. fahrasa “to compile an index” W 730] table of contents
faajiri	n. [Ar. fājir W 697] profligate, liar, shameless ghadabu za Mooja sku iyo daahiri/ ilu ya kulla kaafiri na faajiri [st.] ‘the wrath of God on that day clearly [will be] on every unbeliever and profligate’
fak	ideo. [Som. fag “to untie”, listed in Dhoorre & Tosco, p. 141] of untying (The ideophone fak! is high-pitched.) Hamadi/ fungile surwaaniye/ fak! ‘Hamadi opened his trousers fak! ’ Omari/ mwambile mwaanawe/ mara mooyi/ fanya fak! / endra farmachiyaani/ ka Mowlaana/ nuliila aaspero/ chita/ chinakundraazó. ‘Omari told his son: at once, go fak! (i.e. run) to the pharmacy of Mowlaana and buy for me aspirin, my head is aching me.’
kh-fakaṭa	v. [Som. fako “to run away” DSI 214] (fakeete) run, run away, flee, escape Abú/ khfakaṭá ‘if Abu had run’; ka’iza khfakaṭá ‘if Abu had not run’; Abú/ kachiza khfakaṭá ‘if Abu had not run’ Ali/ fakeete ka Jaama. ‘Ali ran towards Jaama/ to Jaama’s place.’ Chimalizaa kuja/ hufakaṭa/ hendra miyundraani/ ka waant^hu/ kuboola. ‘When she finishes eating, she runs away and goes to gardens of people and steals.’ Chimrashize eelo/ uyu/ ye/ nakhfakaṭa/ naasi/ chinumeche/ haṭá/ shkomele ṭawalá. ‘We followed this gazelle, he running and we at his back, until we reached the sea.’ Endrá/ fakaṭa. ‘Go and run away!’ fakaṭa/ kana faṭuura ‘quick like a car, run like a car’ Fakeete/ ingile maduriini. ‘He ran away and went into the bush.’ ḥHamadi/ fakeetó/ na Nureeni. ‘(It is) Hamadi (who) ran (away), and also Nureeni.’ (Notice that the focus on Hamadi triggers the pseudo-relativization of the main verb. The possibility of adding na Nureeni at the end demonstrates that pre-verbal focus in Chimiini is not necessarily exhaustive , i.e. it does not necessarily indicate that only Hamadi ran (away). Note that one can also say: Fakeetó/ Hamadi/ na Nureeni. ‘The one who ran away (is) Hamadi, and also Nureeni.’) ichiwa ka qariibu hiingila khfakaṭa [nt.] ‘if they are close I start running’ khfakaṭa kamba faṭuura ‘to run like a car [i.e. fast like a car]’ Khfakaṭa/ siwo/ khkoma. ‘To run is not to arrive.’ (A proverb.) kooḍi /khfakaṭa ‘for words, secrets to slip out unintentionally’ Haaji/ kooḍi/ zimfakeete. ‘Haaji let the words, secret slip out (lit. the words ran out, slipped out from Haaji).’ Kuulu/ iyi/ nt^hayikhṭindoowa/ na waawo/ kuulu/ iyi/ invundishile/ naa mi/ nnakhfakaṭó/ chimaliza/ nt^hiinzila. ‘This leg was not cut off by your father, this leg broke on me while I was running, afterwards it was cut off (lit. I was cut off).’ Haaji/ fakeete maduriini. ‘Haaji ran into the bush. Or, with veb emphasis: Haaji/ fakeete/ maduriini. Hamadi/ fakeete/ ingile gariini. ‘Hamadi ran into the truck (i.e. he was running and he ran into the truck; lit. Hamadi ran and he entered the truck).’ mbuzi izo/ schifakaṭa ‘those goats, if they run’ Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ poliisiya/ wamshiishiló. ‘The man who ran away, it is the police who caught him.’ (Cf. the following example where the subject noun is not focused: Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ poliisiya/ wamshiishile. ‘The man who ran away, the police caught him.’) Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ shiishila. ‘The man who ran away was caught.’ (It should be pointed out that the relative clause is downstepped relative to the subject, while the verb is downstepped relative to the relative clause.)

Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ shiishila/ Mkhodiisho/ yana. ‘The man who ran away was caught in Mogadishu yesterday.’

Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ shishila na mapoliisi. ‘The man who ran away was caught by the police.’

Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ shiishila/ yana. ‘The man who ran away was caught yesterday.’ (The phrasal separation of the time adverb from the verb is a common pattern)

Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ tu/ shiishila. ‘Only the man who ran away was caught.’ (The tu particle triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb in this example; it is the final accent on shiishila that signals the pseudo-relativization.)

Muunt^hu/ oo fakeetó/ waliko Nureeni. ‘The man who ran away was Nureeni.’

Mwaalimu/ fakeete. ‘The teacher ran away.’ Or: Fakeete/ mwaalimu. (The corresponding yes-no questions: Mwaalimu/ fakeete? and Fakeete/ mwaalimu?)

Mwaalimu/ fakeete/ so. ‘The teacher ran away, didn’t he?’

Mwaana/ nakhfakata ka hima. ‘The boy is running fast.’

Mwaana/ nakhfakata ndranaa nuumba. ‘The boy is running inside the house.’

Mwaana/ nakhfakata sukhuuni. ‘The boy is running to the market.’

Na’iwa/ ^fmi/ kuwa ^fNureeni/ peesa/ boozelo. ‘I know that it’s Nureeni who money stole.’ (In eliciting this sentence, we did specifically clarify that it is Nureeni that is focused rather than peesa. Presumably it would be possible to focus either. But in the recording we have of this sentence, Nureeni is higher in pitch than peesa. We assume that if it were peesa being focused, it would be higher in pitch. Cf. Na’iwa/ ^fmi/ kuwa ^fpeesa/ Nureeni/ boozelo. ‘I know that it is money that Nureeni stole.’ In our recording of this sentence, peesa was higher in pitch than Nureeni, hence our interpretation that it is the focused element.)

Naani/ fakeetó. ‘Who ran away?’ (Pre-verbal naani is necessarily focused and triggers pseudo-relativization of the following verb. A possible answer to this question is ^fNuuru/ fakeetó. ‘Nuuru ran away.’)

Nfakeete/ skumwona. ‘I ran (after someone), but I couldn’t find him.’

Noka/ shfakata/ chooloka. ‘The snake ran away and left.’

Nt^hangú/ chuunzila/ chinakhfakata/ nt^hashkupata/ khpumula/ hattá/ sku mooyi. ‘Since it was created, it is running and never gets to rest, not even one day.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa ‘the sun’.)

Nuuru/ mfakete naani. ‘Whom did Nuuru run away from?’ (Post-verbal naani does not trigger pseudo-relativization of the preceding verb. A possible answer to this question: Nuuru/ mfakete Omari. ‘Nuuru ran away from Omari.’)

Oo/ muunt^hu/ shiishila/ waliko Nureeni. ‘That one, man, who was arrested was Nureeni.’

Omari/ na’iwa/ kuwa Nureeni/ bozele peesa/ tu. ‘Omari knows that Nureeni stole only money.’ (In this sentence, peesa is downstepped, but tu is pronounced at the same pitch level as peesa.)

Omari/ na’iwa/ kuwa Nureeni/ tu/ bozelo peesa. ‘Omari knows that only Nureeni stole money.’ (In this sentence, the placement of tu after the subject puts focus on the subject and triggers pseudo-relativization of the following verb. The pitch on tu is of the same height as the preceding noun.)

Omari/ ^fsiri/ imfakeetó. ‘Omari blurted out the secret (lit. Omari, the secret escaped from him).’

Shfakata/ shfakata/ hattá/ shkoma numbaani/ ka ujee muke. ‘He ran and ran until he reached the home of that woman.’

Sfakate ‘Don’t run!’

Sfakateeni ‘(Pl.) don’t run!’

Shfakateni kahima/ ka apa. ‘Let us run quickly from here!’

Sulilopo kumbiga/ noka/ shfakata. ‘When he [the man] wanted to hit him, the snake ran away.’

Sultaani/ fakeete/ ka paapo/ enzele ka sarmala/ enzeló. ‘The sultan immediately went to the carpenter, that’s what he did.’

Wafakeete/ wa’ingile itundruuni/ na mbwa waawó. ‘They escaped and went into the cave with their dog.’

Walimu wiingi/ wafakeete. ‘Many teachers ran away.’ (While downstep intonation characterizes this simple statement, the pitch on the verb is raised in the yes-no question: Waalimu/ wafakeete? ‘Did many teachers run away?’ and in the tag-question: Walimu wiingi/ wafakeete/ so. ‘Many teachers ran away, didn’t they?’)

Walimu wont^he/ wafakeete. ‘All the teachers ran away.’ Or: Wafakeete/ walimu wont^he. (The simple yes-no question of the first example has no accent-shift, while the right-dislocated form undergoes accent-shift: Walimu wont^he/ wafakeete? and Wafakeete/ walimu wont^he?) wamo wafakeete ndraani ya tawala [nt.] ‘some fled deep into the sea’

Waant^hu/ awo/ wafakeetó/ wont^he/ washiishila. ‘People, those ones, who ran away, all were caught.’

Waant^hu/ wont^he/ awo wafakeetó/ washiishila. ‘All the people, those who ran away, were caught.’

Waant^hu/ wont^he/ wafakeetó/ washiishila. ‘All the people who ran away were caught.’ (The quantifier wont^he is pronounced at roughly the same pitch height as the noun it quantifies, while the following phrases exhibit downstep intonation. Note that wont^he does not trigger the pseudo-relativization of the main verb washiishila. It is also possible for wont^he to follow the relative verb: Waant^hu/ wafakeetó/ wont^he/ washiishila. ‘The people who ran away, all were caught.’ In this sentence, wont^he is raised in pitch, but this indication of emphasis does not actually trigger pseudo-relativization of the following verb. This is just one of a variety of examples indicating that there is a contrast between focus triggering pseudo-relative clause formation and focus (or perhaps better, emphasis) that does not. Unravelling this distinction is a research desideratum.)

Washfakata/ washpeleka khabari/ muyiini. ‘They ran and took the news to the town.’

Wote/ wafakeete/ ka apo/ wa’oloshihe/ khkala muyi mwiingine. ‘All ran away from there and went to stay in another town.’

Yaliko ka hima/ khfikirila khfakata. ‘It was not too early to think about fleeing.’

Ye/ hufakataa dhibu. ‘He avoids difficulties.’

rel.

kh-fakata v. appl. (fakatiile) run to Abinawaasi/ chifakata. ‘Abinawaasi ran away.’

Ali/ mfakatiile Jaama. ‘Ali ran towards Jaama.’

Ali/ mfakatiile Jaama/ sukhuuni/ mulilee nama. ‘Ali ran for Jaama to the market and bought meat for him.’

Eelo/ waa si/ chihadilo ifakatiile maduriini... ‘The gazelle that we said ran away to the forest...’

Kila/ nch^{hi}ingila/ numbaani/ chinfakata. ‘Every time I entered the house, she ran to me.’

Mwanaamke/ chi’ifakata/ kaake/ chisimaani/ chi’iruudilo. ‘The girl ran [herself] to her place in the well, that is where she went back to.’

Sula khaadira/ ki’ifakata. ‘He could have run away.’

Ye/ ifakatiile. ‘He ran away [lit. ran away for himself].’

kh-fakata v. caus.

Omari/ shfakata gaari/ bishile lkuta. ‘Omari was driving the car (too fast) and hit the wall.’

kh-fakata v. caus. rec.

hufakata mithali ya nt^huungu [nt.] ‘all scurry for cover like ants’ kh-fakato v. pass.

ishkasoowa yula yo hufakato [nt.] ‘when people hear “they have come”, they run’

rel. nom.

ma-fakato n. 6 running

Chilawa/ ka apo/ ka mafakato/ chendra markabuuni. ‘He left from there, running, and went to the ship.’

Hasani/ chimpandra farisiwe/ na farasi/ shtila mafakato/ shfakata/ shfakata hattá/ shkoma/ mahala/ yiko nuumbá. ‘Hasani mounted his horse and the horse [lit.] put speed and ran and ran until it reached a place where there was a house.’

Ile ka chinumecha/ ka mafakato/ kumbiga ifumo/ kunubla. ‘He came from my back, running, to strike me with the spear and kill me.’

kubiga mafakato ‘to run’

Hamadi/ oloshela/ bishile mafakato. ‘Hamadi went and ran.’

Muuntu/ uyu/ chilawa/ ka mafakato/ cheendra/ kumvila Ali. ‘This man left running and went to summon Ali.’

Wanamwaambila/ simama/ we/ qaatili/ simama/ we/ qaatili/ laakini/ Sa’iidi/ chizida mafakato. ‘They were telling him: stop, you killer, stop, you killer, but Sa’iidi ran faster.’

kh-fakhara

v. [Ar. fakara W 699] boast (that), praise, eulogize

Ali/ nakhfakhara kuwaa ye/ nayo mali miingi. ‘Ali is boasting that he has lots of money.’

Ba’adiye/ Abunawaasi/ chaanza/ khfakhara. ‘After that, Abunawaasi began to brag.’

khfakhara mwaana ‘to praise the child’

Naankh^hó/ mara ya piiji/ enzele/ mbele/ za askari/ khfakhara/ na khsifa ruuhuyé. ‘Again, for the second time, he went in front of the soldiers to boast and praise himself.’

Omari/ jisaa ye/ hufakharó/ ziintú/ hatá/ takhutamanisha. ‘The way that Omari praises things makes you fall in love with them.’

Waanth^hu/ wafakhariile/ ruhu zaawo. ‘The men praised themselves.’

rel.

kh-fakharila v. appl. boast about s.t. to s.o.

Ali/ nakhfakirila maali/ yaa ye/ nayo mali miingi. ‘Ali is boasting that he has a lot of money.’

Ali/ nakunfakharila maali. ‘Ali is boasting to me about money (e.g. that he has more money than me).’

kh-fakharilana v. appl. rec. boast about s.t. to one another Wanafakhirilana peesa. ‘They were boasting to one another about their money.’

kh-fakhiriloowa v. appl. pass.

Hamadi/ fakharilila peesa/ na Ali. ‘Hamadi was boasted to about money by Ali.’

kh-fakharoowa v. pass. be praised

Chint^hu chisuura/ hachisuuli/ khfakharoowa. ‘A good thing does not need to be advertised/praised.’ (A proverb.)

fakhari

n. 9/10 [Sw. fahari SSED 90; Ar. fakr W 699] pomposity, showing off, pride; glory; fondness; adj. pompous, proud; variant form: fakhri

fakhari/ kana aktoore ‘as proud as an actor’

fakhari/ kamba sulṭaani ‘as proud as a king’

fakhari/ zaaydi ‘too proud’

Haliima/ fakhari/ zaaydi. ‘Haliima is too proud.’

Inakoonya/ kuwaa we/ ni fakhari/ na Faatimá. It shows that you are fond of Faatima.

ka fakhari ‘pompously, boastingly’ kamu nk^haleent^ho na wenye fakhri [st.] ‘with how many glorious/proud people I sat’ khfanya fakhari ‘to show off, give oneself airs, give undue importance to oneself’

Sfaanyé/ fakhari. ‘Don’t show off!’

khfanya ka fakhari ‘to do s.t. in a boastful way’ ka fakhari shfaanya ibaada naaqisi [st.] ‘if you (worship) with the intention of showing off, (your) worshipping is not complete’ mwenye fakhari ‘someone who gives himself airs’ Ni munt^hu fakhari. ‘He is a show-off.’

fakharoyte	n. someone with excessive pride Fakharoyte/ hazimali/ fakharize. ‘An excessively proud person does not finish praising himself.’ (A proverb.)
u-fakhri	n. Ufakhri/ uwazidiilopó/ mwana wa sulṭaani/ chimwambila mweenzawe... ‘When they were poverty-stricken, the sultan’s son told his friend...’
fakhtaani	n. name of a mosque in Brava Muskiti wa Fakhtaani/ husala/ waant^hu/ haba. ‘Few people pray at Fakhtaani mosque.’ Muskiti wa Fakhtaani/ wiko kharibu ya steeshini. ‘Fakhtaani mosque is neat the police station.’
fa_l ya tafaḍal	fixed expression: welcome, you are cordially invited (usu. in speeches, welcoming someone to the podium)
sh-falfala (s-)	n. 7/8 [Som. falfal “magic, withcraft” DSI 215] “medicine” (e.g. a magical item left on the road to harm someone), same as chigeḍogeeḍo.
falme	n. [lit. king] an unknown species of fish
m-falme (ma-), (wa-)	n. 1/2,6 [Sw. mfalme SSED 275] king Bwana mfalme/ nt^hakhadiraayi/ mi/ khtinda chitaacha. ‘Mr. King, how can I cut off my head?’ mafalme aya/ awa ‘these kings’ mfalme uyu ‘this king’ rel. sh-falme n.7 in the manner of a king Ye/ hinendra shfalme. ‘He walks in a kingly manner.’ u-falme n. 14 kingdom, kingship Hukoḍa ufalme. ‘He talks like a king.’ Ufalme/ umbeele. ‘He lost his position as king.’
falqa	n. rascal Maliize/ hu’arurishowa waana/ wa muuyi/ falqa/ awaje wawovu. ‘When this is done, the children of the town, the rascals, the bad ones, are gathered together.’
faaluuta	n. [Sw. faluda SSED 91; Ar. fālūdaj “a sweet made of flour and honey” and fālūdajī “soft and flabby” W 692] a sweet dish, like a soft pudding variant form: fa_luzi [cf. Ar. fālūz cited in SSED 91, but not found in Wehr]
falaki	n. [Sw. falaki SSED 90; Ar. falak W 727] astronomy review the 1 khfanya falaki ‘to take the omens by observing the stars, etc.’ kulangala falaki ‘to take the omens by observing the stars, etc.’ Shekh Omari/ ize khadira khfungula mas’ala/ ya Hamadi/ muziizó/ tarafu ya ilmu/ ya falaki. ‘Shekh Omari could not respond to what Hamadi asked him about the study of astrology.’
faali	n. 9/10 [Sw. fali SSED 90; Ar. fāl “to regard as a good omen” and fa’l “good omen” W 692] omen, wish, foreseeing Faali/ ni kazi ya sheetaani. ‘Soothsaying is the work of satan.’ Faali/ ni wanaafaqi. ‘Soothsaying is a sham.’

kubiga faali ‘to foretell by divination’ (The future was foretold by examining the position of small items, like pebbles and cowrie shells, after throwing them onto sand.)

Kaahini/ uyu/ chibiga faali/ chilangala/ numa/ chihada/ Abunawaasi/ zimile karka jaziira. ‘This soothsayer cast lots and looked and then said that Abunawaasi had hidden on an island.’

Want^hu wa Mwiini/ haamina/ ya kuwa mp^haka mlusi/ ni falii mbovu/ na nt^haku/ hujo chaakujá/ mbele ya mp^haka mlusi. ‘The people of Brava believe that a black cat is a bad omen and there is no eating of food in front of a black cat.’

kh-faalisha

v. praise

Omari/ jisaa ye/ hufaalishó/ ziint^hú/ hatá/ takhutamanisha. ‘The way that Omari praises things makes you fall in love with them.’

famiilya

n. [Ital. familia] family

Killa/ famiilya/ wash^htukula zint^hu zaawo. ‘Every family brought their own things.’

kh-faanana

v. [Sw. fanana SSED 89] (faneene) resemble s.o., be similar to s.t.

Ali/ hufanana na Hamadi. ‘Ali looks like Hamadi.’

Hamadi/ na Ali/ uso waawo/ sawa/ sawa/ hufaanana/ kana maandra/ Ipaandre. ‘Hamadi and Ali, their faces are alike, they resemble one another like a loaf of bread cut in two.’

Nnakuwona ziint^hú/ hufanano na zijumba zaa nyunyí. ‘I see things that look like the nests of birds.’

Sanduukhu/ ichiletoowa/ nt^hakhtala/ ito/ hufaanano/ na yaaké/ nt^hampa. ‘When the box is brought, I will choose an eye that resembles his, and I will give it to him.’ (The relative clause in this example: ito/ hufaanano/ na yaaké ‘an eye that resembles (with) his’ illustrates that the PP- separation of the relative verb from the following prepositional phrase does not invoke the Accentual Law of Focus. The final accent of the relative verb projects to the end of the relative clause.)

Wana awa/ hufaanana. ‘These children look like one another.’

rel.

m-faanano n. likeness, resemblance

m-fanaani (ma-)

n. artist, designer

Abudeera/ ni mfanaani/ ma’aruufu. ‘Abudeera is a famous artist.’

fani science, craft

n. [cf. Som fan “art” DSI 216, but also Ar. fann “art, scientific discipline” W 728] art, kh-fanida

v. [Sw. fanidi SSED 91; Ar. fanida “to classify, itemize” W 729] (fadiile) pick out the better specimen from a group of things

kh-faanisha

v. [Som. faani DSI 210] (fanishiize) praise s.o.; variant form: khfaalisha

Chimfalishize Ali. ‘We praised Ali.’

Falishaani. ‘(Pl.) praise!’

Falishize want^hu weema. ‘He praised good people.’

Falishani wasuura. ‘(Pl.) praise the good!’

Mwaalimu/ mfanyishize mwaana. ‘The teacher praised the boy.’

Nt^hashkumfaalisha/ Ali. ‘We didn’t praise Ali.’

Sfalisheeni/ wawovu. ‘Don’t praise bad ones.’

rel.

kh-fanishoowa v. pass. (fanishiiza) be praised kh-faansaṭa v. (fanseete) boast variant form: khfaanaṭa

m-faano (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mfano SSED 89] resemblance, likeness hadiilo Mtume Mustafa Mahmuudi/ sho kuhija ni mfaano wa Yahuudi [st.] ‘the Prophet Muṣṭafā Maḥmūd said/ those who do not perform the pilgrimage will [on Judgment Day] be [considered] on equal footing with the Jews’ [SCB 556] huwala mfaano wa qammari [song] ‘it shines like the moon’ ni ḍambize ni niingi mfaano wa ntʰaka [song] ‘and his sins are many, just like garbage’ ntʰana mithaali ntʰana mfaano nafsiye [st.] ‘[God] has no equal, he has nothing like himself’ waako lamna ka lamuuna, mfaano shokuwa we [song] ‘there are (girls) of every kind, but nobody is like you’

fantu

n. one of several types of Guitarfish; [pron. fantu] fantu ijita ‘[lit.] large head guitarfish, a Giant Guitarfish, has a huge head and no dots’ fantu matete ‘[lit. spotted guitar fish] a guitarfish with white dots’ Fantu/ ni muntʰu safihi/ ha’ingili/ chilaviini. ‘Fantu is a stupid guy but he can’t be fished with a net.’ (A proverb.)
mpʰampʰa wa fantu ‘a fantu shark’

rel.

sh-fantu (s-) n. 7/8 dim. a small fantu shark faanuusi

lamp

n. [Sw. fanusi SSED 91; Ar. fānūs W 692; also Som. faanuus or feynuus DSI 210]

rel.

i-faanuusi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

kh-faanya

v. [Sw. fanya SSED 912] (fanyiize) do, make, prepare, fix, repair, correct; do something wrong; suppose (Observe that the stem final consonant ny is one of the set of consonants that induce the mutation of l to z in the perfect extension. When the stem itself is not mutated, then the perfect extension retains its underlying vowel length.)

Ali/ fanyize gari ya Hamadi. ‘Ali fixed Hamadi’s car.’

Baduwi/ chimjiiba/ ya kuwa ikoofiya/ ifanyiizo/ ni mukeewe. ‘The nomad answered that the one who made the hat was his wife.’ (Notice that when the head of the relative verb, here ikoofiya, is separated from the relative verb, here ifanyiizo, by a null subject, then there is no a-link between the head and the relative verb.)

Basi/ naawé/ nakhsula kunfanyaa mi/ kama mpʰundra wa doobi.

‘Therefore, you want to make me like the washerman’s donkey (who, in the story, was fooled into coming back a second time to Lion and was killed as a result).’

fanya kuwa ‘suppose that’

Fanyize kaazi/ suura. ‘He did a good job.’

Fanyize wajibuye. ‘He did his duty.’

Fanyiizeni. ‘What did he do?’

Fanyiizeni/ yana. ‘What did he do yesterday?’ (An appropriate answer to this question would be: Nandishilee khati/ yana. I wrote a letter yesterday.’ A more neutral sentence, without focus on letter, is: Nandishilee khati/ yaná. ‘I wrote a letter yesterday.’

Hasani/ fanyize gaariye. ‘Hasani repaired his car.’ Or with verb focus:

Hasani/ fanyiize/ gaariye. (It should be noted that it is possible for a pronominal referring to Hasani to appear in the sentence. The pronominal may precede or follow Hasani: Ye/ Hasani/ fanyize gaariye. Or: Hasani/ ye/ fanyize gaariye. These possibilities are independent of whether there is verb focus or not: Ye/ Hasani/ fanyiize/ gaariya. Or: Hasani/ ye/ fanyiize/ gaariya. It is also possible for the pronominal element to be post-verbal, but in this case it is phrasally separated from the verb: Hasani/ fanyiize/ ye/ gaariya. In this position, the ye is radically lowered in pitch.)

Hufaanyani/ Hasani. ‘What does Hasani do?’

Itamfanya Sultani Daraayi/ fakhiiri. ‘Will it make Sultan Daraayi poor?’

khfanya alaama ‘to make a sign, a mark’ khfanya bateera ‘to repair a boat’ (as opposed to kulunga bateera ‘to build a boat’) khfanya biyaashara/ biyanshara ‘to engage in trade, commercial activities’

Hasani/ na Nuuru/ wako Mambasa/ wanakhfanya biyanshara/ yaa nguwo. ‘Hasani and Nuuru are in Mombasa trading cloth (lit. making business of cloth).’

khfanya chaakuja ‘to prepare food, a meal’ khfanya chiintu ‘to deal with’; also: khfanyowa chiintu (passive)

Chiintu/ shfanyiza na msiba uyu. ‘(Lit.) Something was done with this crisis -- i.e. this crisis was handled.’

Fanyize chiintu/ na msiba uyu. ‘He dealt with this crisis.’

Ifanyiza chiintu/ na msiba uyu. ‘There was dealing with this crisis.’ Or: Chiintu/ ifanyiza na msiba uyu.

Msiba uyu/ ifanyiza chiintu/ naayo. ‘This crisis, there was dealing with it.’

khfanya da’awa ‘to complain’ khfanyaa dawa ‘to treat a disease, illness (lit. to make medicine)’ khfanya fakhari ‘to show off’

Wako waanthu/ washpata peesa/ hupeenda/ khfanya fakhari. ‘There are people who when they get money they like to show off.’

Waana/ wa Omari/ leelo/wavetee nguwo/ mp’hiya/ wanakhfanya fakhari. ‘Omari’s children today wore new shows, they are showing off.’

khfanya fitna ‘to create differences between people, pit one person versus another’ khfanya gaari ‘to repair a car’

Saalaha/ ni makaanikó/ hufanya magaari/ kaake/ garachaani. ‘Saalaha is a mechanic, he repairs cars in his garage.’

khfanya haraka ‘to be in a hurry, be hasty, make a move’

Mwaadamu/ ha’aa ye/ hayi/ laazimu/ khfanya haraka/ kuda’aalaa. ‘A human being, for as long as he is alive, he must move and work hard.’

khfanyaa hari ‘to make/be hot’

Sheekhi/ hadiile/ numbaani/ ka Nuuru/ imulo/ infanyizee hari/ niize/ khadira khkalaant’a. ‘Sheekhi said: at the house of Nuuru it is very hot, it made me feel hot, I could not stay.’

khfanya hiila ‘to devise a strategy, trick’ khfanya hisaabu ‘to total (numbers, expenditures), update figures’

Leelo/ Huseeni/ nakhfanya hisaabu/ kaake/ dukaani/ inakuhadoowa/ peesa/ niingi/ zibeeló. ‘Today Huseeni is doing the accounts at his shop, it is said that a lot of money has been lost.’

khfanya ibaada ‘to worship’

Sharif Mubiidi/ mojiitu/ namrehemu/ shfanya ibaada/ niingi. ‘Sharif Mubiidi, God bless him, used to make many prayings.’

wanafaanye ibada karka haramu [st.] ‘may they worship at the Grand Mosque (in Mecca)’ khfanya jaasuusi ‘to spy’

Diini/ ya islaamu/ hugarima/ khfanya ujaajuusi. ‘The Islam religion makes it impure/forbidden to spy.’

Omari/ ile ka Ali/ numbaani/ khfanya u-jaajuusi. ‘Omari came to Ali’s house to spy.’

khfanya karamu ‘to provide or cook or serve food on a special occasion’ khfanya kaazi ‘to work’

Sho/ khfanya kaazi/ miimbaye/ ni waazi. ‘He who does not work, his stomach is empty.’ (A proverb.)

khfanya khiyaana ‘to trick’

Fanyize khiyaana/ karka imtjhaani. ‘He cheated on the exam.’

khfanya khoofu ‘to be afraid’ khfanya maneeno ‘to object, have s.t. negative to say about s.t.’

khfanya masiiri ‘to be jealous’ khfanya miinza ‘to make dark’

khfanyaa mulo ‘to light, make a fire (for cooking)’

khfanya mzaaha ‘to tease’ khfanyaa ndre ‘to lengthen’ khfanyaa nk^havu ‘to make dry’ khfanyaa nk^heje ‘to make noise, shout angrily in response to s.t. that one does not like’

khfanya rabsha ‘to disturb’

khfanya ruuhu+poss. ‘to pretend (lit. make oneself)’

Fulaani/ fanyize ruuhuye/ hakhaadiri. ‘So-and-so pretended to be sick.’

khfanya uđiya ‘to disturb’

khfanya weelu ‘to make light’

khfanya zeema ‘to do good things’

Ye/ khufanyize zeema/ zaa we/ hukhadiri mlipá. ‘He did good for you that you cannot repay him.’

khfanyaa zita ‘to be angry and not talk to s.o. as a result of this’

khfanya ziwovu ‘to do evil or bad things’

Mi/ njaribile khfanya gaariyá. ‘I tried to fix my truck.’

Mazá/ mwanaamke/ chihada/ waawé/ nakhsulá nfaanyeni. ‘So the girl said, my father, what do you want me to do?’

Mfanyize mwaana/ mwiizi. ‘He made the child a thief (i.e. persuaded him to steal something).’

Mfanyize mwiizi. ‘He accused him of being a thief.’

Mi/ haťá/ chifa/ chint^hu icho/ sfaanyi. ‘Me, I will not do that thing even if I die.’

Mi/ sinakhfanya chiint^hu. ‘I am not doing anything.’

Mi/ takeendra/ yaa mi/ takhfaanyó/ numa/ we/ sihadé/ ka khisani. ‘I will go (and do) whatever I will do; later, don’t ask why!’ (Notice the absence of the first person subject marker n(i)- on these future tense verbs. MI himself tended to preserve the nasal prefix, but this passage is from a text spoken by one of MI’s relatives, who elided the nasal. Present-day speakers we have consulted also omit the nasal prefix.)

na nchiwona nk^hosa fanyaani [st.] ‘if you see mistakes, correct them’

Nakhfaanyani/ ka mwaana. ‘What are you doing with the child.’

Nfaanya/ yaa we/ nakhsuuló. ‘Do to me whatever you like.’

Nfanyiizé/ gari iyi. ‘I repaired this car.’ Or: Nfanyize gari iyi. ‘I repaired this car.’ (Phon. Our consultant did not find it to be acceptable to say: Nfanyize gaari/ iyi. This point needs exploration, however, since when something follows, this phrasing is acceptable: Nfanyize gaari/ iyi/ nofeeté. ‘I repaired the car, this, until I got tired.’ It should be noted that the final accent may not appear on the demonstrative in this phrasing: Nfanyize gaari/ iyi/ nofeetó. Another possible phrasing: Nfanyiizé/ gaari/ iyi/ nofeeté. ‘I repaired the car, this, until I got tired.’

Oloka/ yaa we/ nakhsuuló/ faanya. ‘Go (and) whatever you want, do.’

Shfanyize kaazi. ‘We did work.’ Or, with verb focus: Shfanyiizé/ kaazi.

(The pitch of kaazi is radically lowered.)

Shfanyiizé/ si/ kaazi. ‘We did, us, the work.’ (The pronoun in post-verbal position is radically lowered in pitch.)

Simfaanyé/ zeema/ zoo peeke. ‘Don’t do only good things.’

Wamfanyize Nuuru/ ra’iisi. ‘They made Nuuru president.’

Waana/ wafanyiizeni/ kawavunangoowá. ‘What did the children do that they have been beaten?’

Waant^hu/ wafanyize kaazi. ‘The people did work.’ Or, with OM included:

Waanfu/ wa’ifanyize kaazi. Or with verb focus: Waanth^h/ wa’ifanyiize/ kaazi. Or with left-dislocation but no focus: Kaazi/ wa’ifanyiize.

We/ nakhfaanyani. ‘What are you doing?’

We/ waliko shfaanyani/ mukhtaa mi/ niiló. ‘What were you doing when I came?’ (Possible answer: Mi/ waliko nch^hija/ mukhtaa we/ iló. ‘I was eating when you came.’)

Ye/ waliko shfaanyani/ mukhta waana/ wa’iló. ‘What was he doing when the children came?’ (Possible answer: Ye/ waliko chija/ mukhta waana/ wa’iló. ‘He was eating when the children came.’)

rel.

kh-fanyafanyoowa v. freq. pass.

Inakhfanyafanyoowa/ we/ ndiwó/ siwo. ‘It is just being done, you know, like it is, like it is not.’

kh-faanyika v. p/s. be capable of being done

Bwana mfa^lme/ amri/ yaa we/ tomeeló/ siwo/ hufaanyikó/ hatá/ majini/ yotte/ yashkumaangana/ hayatakhaadira/ kawanya tawala/ jisaa we/ nakhsuuló. ‘Mr. King, the order that you have issued, it cannot be done; even if all the djinns gather together, they will not be able to divide the sea as you want.’

Kaazi/ ifanyikishile (or: ifanyishile). ‘The work was able to be done.’

Kazi iyi/ hayfaanyiki/ na waana. ‘This work cannot be done by children.’

khfanyika alaama ‘for a mark to be able to be made’

Nnayo wana watatú/ mooyi/ shpuungula/ kaazi/ hayfaanyiki. ‘I have three children; if one is missing, the work is not able to be done.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is majiiko ‘cooking stones’.)

kh-fanyikiloowa v. p/s. appl. pass. turn out well for Fulaani/ fanyikilila. ‘For so-and-so things are going well, have turned out well.’

kh-fanyikila v. p/s. appl. (fanyikilile)

Duniya/ infanyikilile. ‘(Lit.) the world can be done for me – i.e. the world is a bed of roses for me.’

Hamadi/ gaari/ imfanyikilile. ‘The car was able to be fixed for Hamadi.’

Kaazi/ ikhufanyikilile? ‘Was the work able to become finished for you (this question would generally imply that the person queried was doing the work, but it could also be used in the case where someone else was doing the work for the addressee.)’

Nuumba/ imfanyikilile ka pesa habba. ‘The house was able to be built for him with little money.’

kh-fanyiliza v. appl. (fanyilize) do for, make for (The stem final ny is one of the set of consonants that require the iliz/elez form of the applied suffix. This suffix always forms its perfect by means of imbrication: iliz/elez.)

Ali/ mfanyilize Hamadi/ gaari. ‘Ali fixed the car for Hamadi (the car may or may not be one Hamadi owns).’

Ali/ mfanyilize Nuuru/ gari ya Hamadi. ‘Ali fixed Hamadi’s car for Nuuru.’

Chiwafanyiliza/ waanawe/ hadiikha/ nk^hulu/ nt^ho. ‘He made for his children a very large garden.’

Fanyilizeni/ ikoombe. ‘What did you do with the spoon?’ (A possible answer to this question: Njililee zijó. ‘I ate zijó (with it).’) khfanyiliza alaama ‘to make a sign for’ khfanyiliza chaakuja ‘make food for’

Haliima/ nakuwafanyiliza waanawe/ chaakuja/ cha shpiindri.

‘Haliima is making food for her children for lunch.’

khfanyiliza dawa ‘to give remedies to s.o. against illness (lit. make medicine for); there is no guarantee here of the outcome of the treatment, as the illness may or may not be curable’ khfanyiliza karamu ‘to provide or cook or serve food for a special occasion for someone’ khfanyiliza kaazi ‘to do business with; work for’

Mpele mku^le/ khfanyiliza kaazi. ‘He gave to his brother (e.g. money) to do business with.’

Mp^hundra uyu/ siwo/ takunfanyilizo kaazi. ‘This donkey is not one who will work for me.’

khfanyiliza ruuhu+poss. ‘to pretend’

Fanyilize ruuhuye/ kuwaa ye/ fiile. ‘He pretended that he was dead.’

kumfanyiliza yaa ye/ takhsuuló ‘to do for her whatever she will want’

Ndraṭaani/ ni’ifanyilize biyaashará. ‘Let me do my own selling of goods.’

Nfanyiliza gari ya waawe. ‘Fix father’s car for me!’

Nnakhsuulá/ we/ kunfanyiliza/ sanduukhu. ‘I want you to make for me a box.’

Sultaani/ chimfanyiliza/ sanduukhu/ chimpa. ‘The sultan made a box for him and gave it to him.’

Waana/ wamfanyilize wawa yaawo/ karamu. ‘The children did the karamu for their father (i.e. either instead of him or for his benefit).’

Wo/ hi’ifanyiliza kaazi. ‘They work.’ (Observe the use of the reflexive applied stem.)

yaa we/ takumfanyilizo munt^hu taajiri/ na munt^hu maskiini/kumfanyiliza ‘that which you will do for a rich man, (for) a poor man, to do (the same)’

kh-fanyilizoowa v. appl. pass.

Baana/ ni sahali/ khfanyilizowa kaazi. ‘Baana is easy to work for.’ Or:

Kaazi/ ni sahali/ khfanyilizowa Baana. ‘Work, it is easy to do for Baana.’

kazi ni sahali/ khfanyilizowa Baana ‘the work that it is easy to do for Baana’

Ni sahali/ khfanyilizowa Baana/ kaazi. ‘It is easy to work for Baana.’

Peesa/ zont^he/ stumikijila khfanyilizowa nuumba. ‘All the money has been used for repairing the house.’

kh-faanyisha v. caus. (fanyishiize) make s.o. do s.t. check whether this form exists;

in his thesis MI said that it appears to not be used kh-fanyizoowa v. pass.

Miyuuwa/ ishfanyizowa khamri/ johaari. [H!H!H] ‘Sugar cane (pl.) was used to make alcohol in Johari.’

kh-fanyoowa v. pass. (fanyiiza) be made; be repaired, maintained; be done wrong to Ba’adi ya meza mitatu/ ishfanyowa haruusi/ nk^hulu. ‘After three months, there was made a large wedding.’

Faṭuura/ ka wiingi/ huṭahaja khfanyoowa. ‘Cars often need repairing.’

Ifanyizo naawó/ ni kaazi. ‘What was done is the work.’

Ishfanyowa haruusi/ nk^hulu. ‘A big wedding was arranged.’

jisa mi nfanyiiza skoodi duniyaani [song] ‘how I was treated, I do not talk (about it) in the world’ khfanyowa ibaada ‘to be prayed’

Janna/ hupatoowa/ ka khfanyowa ibaada/ ya mojiitu. ‘Paradise is gained by praying to God.’

Markabu/ iyi/ ifanyiza ka ḍahabu. ‘This ship is made of gold.’

Mi/ nakhtaja faṭuurá/ khfanyoowá. ‘I need the car repaired.’

Miloongoti/ yafanyiza ka ni. ‘What are the masts made of?’

Muunt^hu/ fanyiizó/ huliwala/ fanyiizá/ haliwali. ‘The one who has done something wrong, forgets; (but) the one who has been wronged does not forget.’ (A proverb.)

Nuumba/ ichiza khfanyoowa/ huvuundika. ‘If the house is not maintained, it will fall apart.’

Surwani iyi/ inakhtahaja khfanyoowa. ‘These trousers need to be mended.’

kh-fanyishoowa v. caus. pass. (fanyishiiza) be made to do s.t.

rel. nom.

m-fanya (wa-) n. one who does, makes mfanya kaazi ‘a worker’

Mfanya kaazi/ tomeela/ kaziini. [HH!H] ‘The worker was fired from his job.’

Mfanya kaazi/ vundishile qalbi. ‘The worker was discouraged.’ Or:
Vundishilo qalbi/ ni mfanya kaazi. ‘The one who is discouraged is the worker.’

m-faanyo n. 3 the act of making or doing, fixing or repairing

Fatuura/ ka wiingi/ hutahaja mfaanyo. ‘Cars often need repairing.’

Faqi Omari n. This is the name of a mosque, which like other old mosques in Brava, borders the beach. This mosque is referred to in a well-known rhyme, quoted below. [pron. faqi omari or fakhi omari] Naa ndala Are you hungry?
Enda ja nk?ala Go eat crabs
Ka Faqi Omariat Faqi Omari Zinaxtalatala they are crawling about

m-aa-faqi* n. [Sw. mnaḥiki SSED 292; Ar. munāfiq W 988] liar (Bravanese treat this noun as if the beginning syllable mwa were a shortened form of mwaana, hence the plural form wanaafaqi ‘lies’; but note that the meaning of this plural form is ‘lies’ and not ‘liars’.)

E/ we/ mwaafakhi. ‘O, you liar.’

Ndila ya mwaafakhi/ ni chigobe. ‘The way of the liar is short.’ (A proverb.)

kh-faqida v. [Ar. faqada W 722] inspect, sort out (the best from a group of things), select re. nom.

m-faqido n. 3

u-faqido n. 14 inspecting, sorting out faqihi (ma-) n. [Ar. faqih W 723] a learned man who is especially proficient in Islamic jurisprudence (and therefore able to advise on matters pertaining to inheritance and to perform marriages)

faqiiri (ma-) adj. [Sw. fakiri SSED 90; Ar. faqīr W 723] poor; [usu. pron. fakhiiri] Kamaa we/ chimp^hkila sahani mooyi/ ya mpuunga/ killa muunt^hi/ itamfanya Sultani Daraayi/ fakhiiri. ‘If you cook for me one plate of rice each day, will it make Sultan Daraayi poor?’

Karka muuyi/ uyu/ munt^hu fakhiiri/ hakhaadiri/ kumlola taajiri/ ka sababuya maali. ‘In this town, a poor person cannot marry a rich person because of money.’

kuwa fakhiiri ‘to become poor’

We/ ni muunt^hú/ fakhiiri. ‘You are a poor person.’

rel.

fuqara adj. pl. [Ar. fuqarā W 723] poor (pl.) (Observe that Arabic words that end in a long vowel cannot maintain this length in Chimiini due to the ban on word-final long vowels.)

u-faqiiri n. 14 poverty; variant forms: u-faqri

kh-faqirika v. [Sw. fukarika SSED 90; Ar. fuqara W 722] (faqirishile) become poor; [pron. khfaqirika or khfakhirika]

rel.

kh-faqirisha v. caus. (faqirishiize) make poor

Hattá/ skumó/ skukasa/ ya kuwa mwanaamke/ hukhaadira/ mfaqirisha/ mwamubli/ jis’iyo/ ka kila haali. ‘Not one day did I hear that a girl can make a young man that poor in every circumstance.’

faqri n. [Ar. faqr W 722] poverty; [pron. faqri or fakhri] u-faqri n. 14 [Sw. ufukara ‘utter destitution, beggary, poverty’ SSED 99] poverty ufakhri/ uwazidilopó ‘when their poverty increased...’

far'a n. [Ar. far '“branch, subdivision” W 707] sub-clan, ancestors, descendants aḍaabuuye nda abadi/ kubla far'a ya Mhamadi [st.] 'she will be in hell forever/ for killing a descendant of Mohamed' Hamadi/ ni far'a gani. 'Hamadi is from which sub-clan?'
Isaabuuye/ muunt^hu/ haabahi/ mwaadamu/ maazi/ hayaabahi/ muunt^hu/ haabahi/ hisaabuuye/ tamtaambula/ ni naani/ ye/ ni far'a gani/ ye/ ni reri gaani/ waawaye/ naani/ haḥá/ ichiwaa we/ namwiwa maamaye/ tu/ waawaye/ takhaadira/ mshiiika. 'Meaning, one is not lost, a human being, the blood is not lost, one is not lost. Meaning, you will recognize who it is, he is descendant of which (person), he is of which family, his father is who, even. You may know only his mother, (but) his father you will be able to catch/detect.' (Part of the discussion of the proverb: Maazi/ ya muunt^hu/ hayaabahi. 'One's blood is not lost.')

Omari/ far'aye/ mbovu. 'Omari's sub-clan is bad.'

farachidera n. refrigerator
Si/ waliko chinakhkooḍá/ kana kula farachidera/ mp^hiya. 'We have been discussing whether to buy a new refrigerator.'

faraji n. [Sw. faraja SSED 92; Ar. faraj W 702] consolation, relief Ba'ada ya ḍiikhi/ ni faraji. 'After hardship there is relief.' (A proverb.)
Hamadi/ mojiitu/ mfunḡulile faraji/ kaaziye/ peesa/ niingi/ peete.
 'Hamadi, God opened success for him (with respect to his job), he got money.'
Sabri/ ni ifungulo la faraji. 'Patience is the key to [lit. of] relief.' (A proverb.)

faraakha n. privacy; leisure or spare time variant form: faraagha [Ar. farāḡ W 707] Iwaliko mahaḷa ya faraakha. 'It was a private place.'
Hamadi/ mwambile Omari/ mi/ takhusaayda/ wakht^hi wa faraakhaya. 'Hamadi told Omari: I will help you (when) I have spare time.'
khpata faraagha (or: faraakha) 'to find the spare time (to do something)'
Mi/ siná/ ba/ wakht^hi/ wa faraakha/ koloka dukaani/ kuza zoombo. 'Me, I do not have free time to go to the shop to sell things.'
Nt^haná/ faraakha. 'He has no time.'

kh-farama v. [possibly connected to Som. noun farrin, pl. farrimo "message" DSI 222, but no verbal form found in Standard Somali] (faramiile) ask or send someone to do something; advise, recommend doing, suggest, instruct something to be done; send for something, order something (e.g. by mail)

Chimera kaake/ ziint^hu/ zoḥe/ za chizeelé/ mfarimiiló/ kumera ka sulṭaani. 'He sought from him all the things that the old woman suggested he ask of the sultan.'

Ibreeni/ faramiileni. 'What did Ibreeni recommend?' (A possible answer: Ye/ faramile Sarmadi/ kendra ka dakht^hari. 'He recommended Sarmadi's going to the doctor.' Or: Ye/ faramile kendrowa ka dakht^hari. 'He recommended going to the doctor.')

Isa/ mi/ nt^hakhfarama/ sanduukhuya/ inaletooa. 'Now I will send for my box to be brought.'

Mithaali/ iyi/ inakhfarama/ waant^hu/ kudhoora/ na kafisha ahdí. 'This proverb advises people to respect and to fulfill a promise.'

Na zaa we/ mfaramilo mgarwá/ kaa kaná/ nkhuburiile/ zotte. 'And those that you recommended to the fisherman verbally, he has informed of all.'

Nfaramile Jaamá/ na'oloké. 'I advised Jaama that he should go.' (Syn: It is most common not to have object agreement on the verb in the case of a subjunctive complement, but it is possible to say Nimfaramile Jaamá/ na'oloké.) (Phon. Note that while the subjunctive would ordinarily have default penult accent, in this example the subjunctive is within the scope of a final-accent triggering higher verb.)

Simfaramé/ mwaana/ ziwovu. ‘Don’t suggest doing evil to the child.’

Sultaani/ wafaramilee nt^ho/ mawaziiriwe/ na winginewé/ ba/ kumtii’a/ na kumkhuduma mwaaná/ ka ikhlaasi/ na niya saafi. ‘The king entreated his ministers and others as well to obey and serve his son with loyalty and pure intentions.’

Yaa ye/ faramiiló/ muke/ zont^he/ fanyiize. ‘That which he ordered, his wife prepared all of it.’

rel.

kh-faramila v. appl. send for something for

Ali/ faramiile gaari/ chibumbu shpiya. ‘Ali ordered a new horn for the car.’

kh-faramisha v. caus. cause someone to order

Shaafi/ mfaramishize lisa/ chibuumbu. ‘Saafi had lisa order a horn.’

kh-faramishiliza v. caus. appl.

Shaafi/ faramishilize gaari/ chibuumbu. ‘Shafi had a horn ordered for the car.’

kh-faramoowa v. pass. (faramiila) be advised

Baduwi/ chingila sukhuuni/ chuula/ zaa ye/ faramiila/ chimleeteja. ‘The nomad entered the market and bought what he had been instructed to buy and returned to him.’

Huseeni/ nt^hakuliwala/ zaa ye/ faramiilá/ na mwanamke wa sultaani/ jahaziini. ‘Huseeni did not forget what he had been advised by the daughter of the sultan on board the boat.’

Ifaramiila mi/ kooloka. ‘It was suggested that I go.’ Cf. Ifaramiila mi/ nooloke. ‘It was suggested that I should go.’

Ifaramiila si/ chooloke. ‘It was suggested to us that we should go.’

Keendraka/ ifaramiila naawe. ‘My going was advised by you.’ (Syn: The possessive-complement is preferred here, in subject position, to an infinitive: Mi/ keendra/ ifaramiila naawe. ‘I to go was advised by you.’)

Nfaramiila keendrá. ‘I was advised to go.’

Nfaramiila na Jaamá/ keendra. ‘I was advised to go by Jaama.’ (Phon. In this example, the agentive phrase is immediately after the main verb. This is where a focused element is located. As a result, the final accent triggered by the main verb stops at the agentive phrase and does not project to the following infinitive phrase. We refer to this as the Accentual Law of Focus.)

Shfaramiila kooloká. ‘We were advised to go.’

Sultaani/ wafaramilee nt^ho/ mawaziiriwe/ na winginewé/ ba/ kumtii’a/ na kumkhuduma mwaaná/ ka ikhlaasi/ na niya saafi. ‘The sultan advised his ministers and others as well to obey him [his son] and to serve the boy with loyalty and pure intentions.’

faransa

n. [Sw. faransa SSED 92] French

Laakini/ mumathili/ wa Faransa/ simeeme/ hadiile/ ya kuwa kamaa si/ shchisuula/ kuwa wamooyi/ si/ want^hu wa Oorupa/ laazima/ kulla uöwu/ karka Suqu Mushtaraki/ iyi/ ichiwa impeete/ dhibu/ si/ wotte/ khsimama/ kubigana naayo/ dhibu iyo/ hatá/ si/ ki’ishiindra. ‘But the French representative stood up and said that if we wanted to become one (people), we the peoples of Europe must, every member of this Common Market, if it beset by difficulty, we all must stand firm and fight against it, until we defeat it.’

wilaya ya faransa ‘France’

rel.

m-faransa (wa-) n. 1/2 [Sw. mfaransa (wa-) SSED 92] a Frenchman

faransiyaale

n. 9/10 [Ital. differenziale] differential (on an automobile)

faransiyoone

n. 9/10 [Ital. frizione] gearbox (on an automobile)

farasi

n. [Sw. farasi SSED 92; Ar. faras W 704] horse; idiom. prostitute

Chihada/ kuwaa ye/ takhpandra farasi/ masku/ mazimaye/ hatá/ fijiri.

‘He said that he could ride a horse all night until morning.

Chimpa/ na farasi/ mooyi/ msuura/ nt^ho. ‘He gave him a very beautiful horse.’

farasi diira ‘a type of fish (lit. horse with glasses) – a fish that looks like it is wearing goggles; identified as having huge roe and long miwa, bones’ farasi ndre ‘a type of fish (lit. long horse)’ farasi ya sulṭaani ‘a king’s horse’

igari ya farasi ‘a horse-drawn cart’ khfakata/ kama farasi ‘to run (fast) like a horse’ khpandra farasi or khpaandra/ farasi ‘to ride a horse’

Mpandra farasi mbili/ hatuka tuusi. ‘The one who rides two horses splits his ass.’ (A proverb that counsels doing things one at a time; don’t be too ambitious.)

Mp^huundra/ chimpandra farasi/ huzala baghali. ‘When a donkey rides (i.e. copulates with) a horse, it gives birth to a mule.’

Pandra farasi/ chilawe. ‘Mount a horse and let us go.’

Sulṭaani/ hupandra farasi. ‘The king rides a horse.’

rel.

i-farasi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

sh-farasi (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

faraasila n. [Sw. frasila “a measure of weight, about 35 lbs” SSED 98, which suggests the word comes either from dialectal Arabic or from English parcel] a unit of measurement of weight (An historical note from Sandra Abud: This unit of weight was very seldom used in the second half of the twentieth century, only for maize when sold in town by countrymen. Formerly, it was used especially for exported goods, like ivory, dried fish, maize and clarified butter. Available documentation indicates that 1 faraasila= 36 pounds. This is confirmed by all Italian commercial data at the turn of the 20th century (see in particular Robecchi Bricchetti’s “Somalia e Benadir”, p. 589). Robecchi says that 1 faraasila = 36 raṭali (= pounds) and was approximately equivalent to 16 kgs. This was the official weight. In practice, 1 raṭali was calculated as the weight of 16 Thalers (Maria Theresia Dollar), which weighed 28 grams each, and therefore was slightly less than a lb.

rel.

i-faraasila n. 5 aug.

ikulu/ kana ifaraasila ‘as big as a large faraasila’

kh-farata

v. [Som. far “to give a message or thing to s.o.” DSI 217] (fareete) send Marhuumo/ Omari/ nt^haasá/ yaa ye/ kufa/ fareete/ nuumbaye/ ya

Baghdaadi/ khpowa mukeewe/ Aasha. ‘Omari, God bless him

(i.e. the deceased), before dying, he left a message that his house in Baghdaadi be given to his wife Aasha.’

rel.

kh-farila v. appl. (fariliile) send through someone waano khufariliile [st.] ‘I have sent you (through someone) a piece of advice’

fardiiði

adj. [Som. far “finger” DSI 217 + diid “to refuse” DSI 186, but this word is not used in Standard Somali] warm (of water)

Maya aya/ fardiiði. ‘This water is warm.’

farði

n. 9/10 [Sw. faradhi SSED 92; Ar. farḍ W 706] obligation, prescribed duty (esp. religious in nature); variant form: farli farði ya koowa amima maluungo/ yote ka maayi silate chilungo [st.] ‘(there is) an obligation of washing up (after ejaculating), cover all the body with water, don’t leave any part (untouched by the water)’ hija ni farði waajibu jo laazima [st.] ‘the pilgrimage (to Mecca) is a duty, an obligation which is a must’

koosha uso na mikono ndi yo farði [st.] ‘to wash the face and the hands is an obligation’

Khfunga ramaḏaani/ ni farḏi. ‘To fast for the month of Ramadhan is a must.’

kulipa farḏi ‘to carry out a religious obligation’

Mooja nashfaanye wakasiizo mnaada/ walisilo farḏi wapeeto faa’ida [st.] ‘may God include us among those who responded to the call (and) benefitted from fulfilling this religious duty’ laazimu/ kana farḏi ‘as necessary as a religious obligation’ nt^hendre ya farḏi ‘a kind of date, soft and sweet, often eaten to break fast during Ramadhan’

farfarikhaati adj. (cf. -fariqa) separated, scattered far from each other; this word is much used now to indicate the diaspora of Bravanese people around the world kh-fargaṭa v. [cf.? Som. fargo “to have muscular contractions or spasms” DSI 221] (fargeete) refuse s.t., refuse to do s.t. with the purpose of showing disapproval, displeasure, pique, or as a kind of threat to get what one wants (esp. of children and old people); pout

Mi/ anakhfargaṭá. ‘I refuse.’ (Our consultant MI recognized that the presence of the first person singular subject marker was not obligatory in the present tense. We noted its consistent absence in the speech of GM. In this book, we have generally indicated its optionality, but this is probably misleading with respect to the language as spoken today. In a practical orthography, it is likely that the SM should be omitted.)

Mi/ sinakhfargaṭa. ‘Me, I am not refusing.’

Anakhfargaṭá/ mi. ‘I refuse, me.’

Nt^hanakhfargaṭa/ ye. ‘He is not refusing, him.’

Sinakhfargaṭa/ mi. ‘I am not refusing, me.’

Ye/ nakhfargaṭa. ‘He is refusing.’ (Note that the [cl.1] subject prefix is null in non-negative tenses. In the present tense, the [cl.1] form nakhfargaṭa has default penult accent, whereas the first person singular form has final accent. Thus even if the SM of the latter form is omitted, the verb remains distinct from [cl.1]. The second person singular verb also has a null SM in non-negative tenses, and in the present tense, it exhibits final accent. Thus the second person form nakhfargaṭá is indistinct from the first person singular form when the latter appears with a null SM. Context or an overt subject is required to distinguish these forms.)

Ye/ nt^hanakhfargaṭa. ‘He, he is not refusing.’

rel.

kh-fargaṭisha v. caus.

rel. nom.

ma-fargaṭo n. 6

farhaani

adj. [Ar. farjhān “merry, gay, cheerful” W 702] merry, gay, cheerful, happy

Abú/ teze wakhtiwe/ kujariba khumfanya Omari/ farhaani. ‘Abu has wasted his time trying to please Omari.’

Haliima/ nii muke/ daa’imu/ farhaani. ‘Haliima is a woman always happy.’

Hamadi/ ni kana farhaani/ kuwako apo. ‘Hamadi seems happy to be here.’

Mi/ mbaliko farhaani/ mukhta Maryamu/ somelo chibuuku. [H!HH!H] ‘I was happy when Maryamu read the book.’ (Note that in this example, the usual downstep between the subject and the verb is observed in both clauses. The main intonational point to note here is that there is not a downstep between farhaani and Maryamu. There may sometimes be declination, but the subject of the mukhta-clause is not downstepped.)

Mukhta ye/ humziyaraṭo maamayé/ ye/ ni farhaani. ‘Whenever she visits her mother, she is happy.’

Waḵwaawo/ washfunga safari/ wachi’irudila kaawo/ wachi’iisha/ naawó/ farhaani. ‘They both set out on a journey and returned to their place and they lived in happiness.’

kh-fariḏa

v. [Ar. faraḏa W 705] prescribe a duty

Diini/ ya Islaamu/ ifariḏiile/ mweezi/ wa ramaḏaani/ khfungoowa. ‘The religion of Islam made it a duty for the month of Ramadhan to be fasted.’

- kh-farija* v. [Ar. faraja W 702] (farajiile) relieve (economically); bless (in the sense of increasing health or wealth, or with reference to one's state in the afterlife) (of God)
Chimnombe mojiitu/ kishfarija. 'Let us pray to God to make us successful.'
Humfarijo muunt^hu/ ni mojiitu. 'He who makes one succeed is God.'
ya Rabi Mooja kulla kheeri farija/ ilu ya muke wa Mtume Khadija [st.]
'Oh God extend all blessings onto the Prophet's wife Khadija' (Note that in this example, the verb has a non-human direct object, kulla kheeri.)
rel.
kh-farijika v. p/s. gain (economic) relief Ye/ farijishile sku izi. 'He has gained economic relief these days.'
kh-farijila v. appl. bless someone with (of God) Mwajiitu/ mfarijilile ka afiya/ na maalí. 'God blessed him with health and wealth.'
rel. nom.
m-farija n. 1 a name of God -- one who relieves
- fariili* n. message
- fariina* n. 9/10 [Ital. freno] brakes
Hamadi/ hukooða/ sansa fariina. 'Hamadi talks without brakes (i.e. he just talks and talks).'
Sheekhuna/ shishile gaari/ fariina/ kaa nguvu/ chiiq!/ khariibu/ kumbiga muunt^hu. 'Sheekhuna pushed the car's brakes with force, chiiq! he almost hit a man.'
- kh-fariqa* v. [Ar. faraqa W 708] differentiate, split, separate ahli infariqiile mi nakhkooða na nafsiya [nt.] 'my relatives have left me and I talk to my soul'
Chisulaa nt^hi/ ya ðahabu/ nt^haku/ ndila/ ila muunt^hu/ khfarikha duniyá. 'If one wants earth of gold, there is no way except for a person to die [depart the world].'
Hamadi/ nakuza zoomboze/ zont^he/ ka jimla/ zihaba/ na skulú/ nt^haku/ khfarikha zihaba/ na skulú. 'Hamadi is selling his things wholesale, small things and big, no separation of small and big.'
rel.
kh-fariqoowa v. pass. be differentiated Iidi/ waant^hu/ wont^he/ hupowa idimbaaraka/ sawa sawa/ hafarikhoowi/ waana/ na wazimá. 'During iidi all people are given iidi gifts equally, no difference between children and adults being made.'
- kh-farisha* v. eagerly plan to do s.t., hurry s.o. to do s.t., be eager (Note that although this looks like a causative verb, there is no verb khfara which might be considered to be the base for the formation of the causative verb.)
Abú/ nakhfarisha/ mweenzawe/ kuuya. 'Abu is eager for his friend to come.'
kh-farisha keendra 'to plan to go'
Omari/ nakhfarisha/ waawaye/ kuya ka Mkhodiisho/ kumletela zawaadi. 'Omari is having his father hurry to come from Mogadisho to bring him gifts.'
Omari/ shfarisha/ kumwonya Abú/ fauura. 'Omari is eager to show Abu the car.'
Si/ chinakhfarishá/ wana wiitu/ khpata ilmu. 'We are eager for our children to get educated.'
- faarisi (ma-)* n. a Persian Mafaarisi/ huhadoowa/ kuwa ni waant^hu/ magaasi. 'Persians are said to be brave people.'
rel.
i-faarisi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-faarisi (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

farji	n. [Ar.] vagina Farji/ ni karka mooyi/ owra/ muhimu/ yaa wake. ‘The vagina is one of the important private parts of women.’ Maazi/ ya hiiði/ huḷawa ka farjiini. ‘Menstrual blood comes from the vagina.’ Omari/ mṭilee muke/ ðakariye/ karka farji/ dhukh dhukh dhukh. ‘Omari inserted his penis into the woman’s vagina repeatedly dhukh dhukh dhukh. ’
farkeeta	n. fork Chint^hu cha mwanaamke/ tindiḷiloḷo namá/ iwaliko farketa. ‘The thing that the girl used to cut the meat was a fork.’ Skiizi/ waant^hu/ wa Mwiini/ wabaretee kuja/ ka farkeeta/ zamaani/ wachija ka mkono. ‘Nowadays people of Brava learn to eat with forks, in old times they used their hands.’ rel. i-farkeeta (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
farmaajo	n. [Som. farmaajo DSI 221, from Ital. formaggio] cheese Aamina/ waanawe/ fijiri/ khuraa’a/ huwapa rooti/ ka farmaajo. ‘Aamina, her children, in the morning for breakfast, she gives them bread and cheese.’ Farmaajo/ hufanyowa ka iziwa. ‘Cheese is made from milk.’ Huja mandra yaabisi/ huja farmaajo/ hujaa zijo/ hujaa nama/ huja yaa ye/ nakhsuuló/ karka nuumba. ‘They (e.g. rats) eat dried bread, they eat cheese, they eat zijo , they eat meat, they eat whatever they want in the house.’
farmani	n. a pole holding the sail, usually made of bamboo (= ikuri)
farmiyeeri	n. [Ital.] nurse Aba Aada/ waliko farmiyeeri/ wa kuzaalisha. ‘Aba Aada was a nurse (lit.) of delivery (i.e. in the delivery room).’ Farmiyeeri/ mbishile mwaana/ sindaanu/ tush! ‘The nurse injected the child with a needle tush! ’ Spitaale/ ya Mwiini/ farmiyeeri/ wataano/ hufanyo kaazi. ‘Brava’s hospital, five nurses work (there).’ Ye/ koðele farmiyeeri/ tu. [HH!!H] ‘She only talked to the nurse (not to the doctor, for example).’
kh-fariqa	v. differentiate Kanzaa we/ mbele/ chiza khfariqa/ bena munt^hu faqiiri/ na taajiri. ‘For you to begin, first do not discriminate between a poor man and a rich man.’
farmachiya	n. pharmacy Omari/ mwambile mwaanawe/ mara mooyi/ fanya fak! / endra farmachiyaani/ ka Mowlaana/ nuḷila aaspero/ chita/ chinakundraazó. ‘Omari told his son: at once, go fak! (i.e. run) to the pharmacy of Mowlaana and buy for me aspirin, my head is aching me.’
farmiyeeri	n. nursing Iyo/ yaliko mukhta mi/ nḥinzilo go’aani/ kingila farmiyeeri. ‘That was when I decided to go into nursing.’
farqi	n. difference variant: farqa Chambiloowa/ taambula/ ni ump^hi/ myaaya/ ni ump^hi/ mlungaana/ walawaanganye/ uje mlungaana/ na uje myaana/ mwaandike/

- hattá/ kama yimo farqi mwaape/ taambula. ‘He was told to differentiate which one was a slave and which one was free-born, that he should mark her, even if there is any difference at all (between them).’
- Laakini/ si/ shkhiriilé/ farqi iyi/ kuwaako/ karka muuyi/ uyu/ naa we/ ndiwé/ sultaani. ‘But we accepted this difference [in the story from which this example comes: the unequal treatment of people] to be there in this town and it is you who are the sultan.’
- Wanaadamu/ ni watana wa mwajiitu/ munt^hu faqiri/ na munt^hu taajiri/ mwaana/ chihaba/ na munt^hu mzimá/ ni sawasawa/ nt^hamú/ farqi. ‘Human beings are servants of God, a poor man and a rich man, a child and an adult, are equal; there is no difference.’
- farshi* n. [Ar. farš W 705] furnishings; carpet; variant form: firaashi Nuuru/ mulile mukeewe/ farshi/ suura/ mp^hiya. ‘Nuuru bought good new furniture for his wife.’
- farði* n. a duty, something required to be done
Khfungoowa/ ramaðani/ ni farði/ ka dini ya Islaamu. ‘To fast the month of Ramadhan is required by the religion of Islam.’
Omari/ fanyize farði/ ba/ kuya numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ kilaa fijiri/ kuna kahawa. ‘Omari made it a duty to come to Hamadi’s house every morning to drink coffee.’
- faaru* n. 9/10 [Sw. faru SSED 93] rhinoceros Keenya/ hupatikana ngoombe/ za faaru/ Somaaliya/ nt^haziiko. ‘In Kenya, rhinos (lit. rhino cows) can be found, in Somalia there are none.’
- rel
sh-faaru (s-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kifaru SSED 190] rhinoceros Safari iyi/ mwaana/ mwene shfaaru/ leele/ nt^hini yaa muti. ‘On this trip, the boy saw a rhino sleeping under a tree.’
Wenopo kuwa mwaaná/ ile/ na shfaaru/ chimjiiba/ ka ndriimbo/ kuwa hayawaani/ waayé/ ilo naayé/ siwo/ siimba. ‘When she saw that the boy had come with a rhino, she answered him in song that the animal that he had come with [it] was not the lion.’
- kh-faarukha* v. (farukhiile) die; disappear from the world khfarukha duniya ‘to leave the world – i.e. die’
Duniya/ iyi/ kilaa mooyi/ takhfaarukha/ nt^haku/ takhsaaló. ‘In this world every one will pass away, no one will remain.’ (A proverb.)
Hasani/ mbigilile Sheekhi/ telefono/ mwambiile/ Nuuru/ farukhiile/ duniya. ‘Hasani made a call to Sheekhi and told him that Nuuru passed away.’
Kilaa muunt^hu/ takhfaarukha/ duniya/ nt^haku/ takhsaaló/ shó/ kuwa mojiitu/ ndiyé/ takuwo baakhí. ‘Everyone will leave the world, no one will remain, except God, it is him who will remain forever.’
- faarumu* n. [Sw. farumi SSED 93; ?Ar.] sacks of sand used to balance a jahazi that is empty on its return trip (ballast) (This nautical term is used by the Swahili, Omani, and Bajuni; does not seem to be known by the general population in Brava.)
- fasaadi* (ma-) adj. [Ar. fasād and fāsid W 713] one who corrupts, spoils; scandalous (e.g someone who speaks about sex in public); void, null, invalid variant form: fasiha

Hasani/ hadiile/ mwana wa Omari/ ni fasaadi/ nakhsula ku'adabishoowa. 'Hasani said Omari's child is someone who behaves badly and needs to be disciplined'

munt^hu fasaadi 'a scandalous person'

rel.

u-fasaadi n. vice, corruption; act of spoiling, corrupting variant form: ufasiha

Huseeni/ mwambile Nuuru/ we/ jawaabu/ za ufasaadi/ lafa/ mtiye moojó. 'Huseeni told Nuuru, you, quit doing bad things, fear your God.'

Karka nt^hi za chi'aafrika/ ufasaadi/ uzidiile/ na rashwá/ iwele ni aada/na iyi inakuleetó/ ni kuwa kuła nakhtawalo zimaamú/ za nt^hi mooyi/ nt^hanakhfikirila/ shokuwa waant^hu/wa qabiilaye. 'In the countries of Africa, corruption has increased and bribery has become a custom, and what brings this about is that whoever administers the affairs on a country thinks about no one except the people of his tribe.'

fasaaha

n. [Ar. faṣāha W 715] eloquence khkoða ka fasaaha 'to speak eloquently'

rel.

u-fasaaha n. 14 eloquence

Muunt^hu/ shkoða ka ufasaaha/ kilaa mo/ humtaambula. 'If one speaks clearly, everyone understands him.'

Shekh Madaa Sheekhi/ waliko sheekhi/ fasaaha/ sowtiye/ shfungula mihiraaji/ Mwiini/ zamaani/ ka ufasaaha. 'Sheekhu Madaa Sheekhi was a very eloquent scholar in his voice, he used to explain mihiraaji in the old times in Brava with clearness and eloquency.'

kh-fasaha

v. (fasahiile) permit, allow

Abú/ mfasahile mwaanawe/ kendra Mwiini. 'Abu permitted his son to go to Brava.'

Khaanuuni/ hufasaha wabli/ tu/ kuwaako. 'The rules permit only men to be present.'

Si/ hachiwafasahi/ waana/ khteza ndilaani. 'We won't permit children playing in the street.'

rel.

kh-fasahoowa v. pass.

Si/ nt^hashkufasahoowa/ khkoða. 'We were not permitted to speak.'

fasaleeta

n. 9/10 [Ital. fazzoletto] handkerchief, headkerchief, scarf (worn over the head) (It should be noted that there was no tradition in Brava of women covering their face with a veil or piece of cloth.)
(This noun does not allow a plural form with ma-)

fasaleeta iyi 'this scarf'; fasaleeta izi 'these scarves'

Fasaleeta/ ya Tuuma/ finishiloo chitá/ nii mp^hiya. 'The scarf that Tuuma put over her head is new.'

Mpangile maana/ mapula/ ka fasaleeta. 'He wiped the mucous from the child's nose with a handkerchief.'

Tuuma/ finishile fasaleeta/ chitaani. 'Tuuma covered her head with a scarf.'

rel.

i-fasaleeta (mi-) n. aug. or derogatory

Ifasaleeta gani/ iyo. 'What kind of a scarf is that one (i.e. deriding it)?'

Mifasaleeta ayo/ miwovu. 'Those scarves are bad.'

Mifasaleeta gani/ aya. 'What kind of scarves are these (i.e. deriding the scarves for their ugliness or poor quality).'

sh-fasaleeta (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

fasali

n. [Som. fasal DSI 223] season; harvest

Fasali iyi/ miyuundra/ yabakheete. ‘This season farms did not bear crops.’

Fasali iyi/ ndaa gele/ na moordi. ‘This is the season of maize and sorghum.’

confirm I

fash ideo. [Som. fash “to splurt out, sprinkle”, cited in Dhoorre & Tosco, p. 142] Hamadi/ chisu/ chimtiinzile chaala/ maazi/ yalaziló/ fash. ‘Hamadi’s knife cut his finger, blood came out fash!’
Hamadi/ chisu/ chimtiinzile/ yamlazile maazi/ fash! ‘the knife cut Hamadi, blood spurted out from him fash!’ Hamadi/ mta(w)anyilize maayi/ Omari/ usooni/ fash! ‘Hamadi spit water into Omari’s face fash!’

faasha n. [Ital. fascia] bandage Omari/ mwaanawe/ itupa/ imtiinzile/ peshela spitaleeni/ zubila faasha. ‘A bottle cut Omari’s child, he was taken to the hospital and bandaged.’

rel.
i-faasha n.

faashili adj. [Ar. faasil W 714] failure
Huseeni/ hadiile/ mwaka uyu/ kaazi/ faashili/ shkhasareete. ‘Huseeni said that this year work failed, we lost (money).’
Ni muunt^hu/ faashili. ‘He is a failure.’

kh-fashilika v. [Ar. fašila W 714] (fashilishile) fail (to be a success)
Dul’eda/ iwilopo kuwa hiilayé/ ifashilishilé/ chishika ndilaye/ chiyolokela. ‘When fox realized that his trickery had failed, he took to [his] road and went away.’
...kuwa mu’amaara/ waawo/ ufashilishile ‘that their plot had failed’ Ye/ fashilishile ka zotte/ zaa ye/ fanyiizó. ‘He failed in everything that he did.’

rel.
kh-fashilisha v. caus. cause to fail (to be a success)

fashini n.
Sheekhi/ jisaa ye/ namlindro Omari/ masa’a/ na masa’á/ haṭá/ fashini/ imkuushile/ haṭá/ yokeleele. ‘Sheekhi, the way he waits for Omari for hours and hours until he got very tired and left.’

fashini check isolation form fashini yaa mbele ‘prow’ fashini yaa numa ‘stern’

kh-fashira v. [cf. Ar. fašara “to brag, boast” W 714] (fashiriile) spread scandalous news etc. about review the meaning given difference from Arabic source Zeena/ nfashiriile ka waant^hu. ‘Zeena spread scandalous news about me to people.’

rel.
kh-fashirika v. p/s.
Tayiibu/ hafashiriki/ ka waant^hu. ‘Tayiibu cannot be defamed by people (because he knows how to deal with attempts to do so, or he gets mad about it).’

kh-fashirikila v. p/s. appl.
Want^hu awa/ hawafashirikili/ zijaana. ‘These people cannot have their children defamed (on them).’

- kh-fashirila* v. appl.
Omari/ wafashirilile waant^hu/ Zeena. ‘Omari exposed Zeena’s scandalous behavior etc, to/for the people.’
- fashista* n. [Ital. fascista] fascist zamani za fashista ‘the time of the fascists’
- fashuuq* ideo. of squeezing
Haliima/ nakumira ndriimu/ maayi/ fashuuq!/ nakhfanya sparamuoto.
‘Haliima is squeezing out the (lit.) water of the citrus fruit, fashuuq! she is making grapefruit juice.’ (We have not established the contrastive prosodic patterns in ideophones and thus have omitted omitted pitch markings. In the case of this example, fashuuq! was pronounced with a relatively low pitched initial syllable and a level raised pitch on the second syllable: [fashúúq!]. The ideophone is in general raised in pitch and is not in a phonological phrase with either the word following or the word preceding.)
- kh-fasikha* v. [Ar. fasika ‘to be revoked, invalidated, dissolved’ W 712] (fasikhiile) ask for divorce (of a woman from a man)
Muke/ mfasikhile muhjiwe. ‘The woman asked for divorce from her husband.’
- faasiqi* adj. [Sw. fasiki ‘an immoral, profligate, dissolute, vicious person’ SSED 93; Ar. faasiq W 713 and verb fasaqa ‘to stray from the right path’ W 713] profligate, scandalous, licentious etc.
munt^hu faasiqi ‘someone scandalous’; want^hu (ma)faasiqi ‘scandalous people’
- kh-fasira* v. [Sw. fasiri SSED 93; Ar. fasira W 713] (fasiriile) interpret the meaning of s.t., translate (esp. s.t. written), explain Ali/ fasirile darsi. ‘Ali explained the lesson.’
Baana/ fasirile hadiithi. ‘Bana translated the sayings of Mohammad.’
Muunt^hu/ mpete mwaalimu/ shfasira darsi. ‘The man found the teacher explaining a lesson.’
Nfasiriliile/ mi/ nt^ho. ‘I explained fully.’
Nuuru/ fasirile darsi. ‘Nuuru explained, interpreted the lesson.’
Want^hu awa/ zihaba/ wafasirile ruhu zaawo. ‘These young people have explained themselves.’
- rel.
kh-fasirika v. p/s. be translatable Khasida iyi/ hayfasiriki. ‘This poem isn’t translatable.’
- kh-fasirikila* v. p/s. appl.
Khasida iyi/ imfasirikilile Ali/ ka sahali. ‘This poem translates easily for Ali.’
Khasida izi/ hazimfasirikili/ Omari. ‘These poems were not able to be translated for Omari (i.e. either Omari could not translate them or someone else could not translate them for Omari).’
- kh-fasirila* v. appl. translate for, with; explain to Mi/ nvundishilee himá/ ba/ ba’aða ya Hamadi/ kunfasirila mi/ zombo izo. ‘I lost interest after Hamadi explained to me those things.’
Suufi/ mfasirilile Hasani/ qasida iyi. ‘Suufi translated this poem for Hasani.’
- kh-fasirilika* v. appl. p/s.
Omari/ hafasiriliki/ khasida iyi. ‘Omari is unable to translate this poem.’
- kh-fasirisha* v. caus.
Nuuru/ mfasirishize mwaalimu/ darsi. ‘Nuuru had the teacher explain the lesson.’ (A periphrastic version is also possible using the simple verb: Ali/ mtile mwaalimu/ khfasira darsi. ‘Ali caused the teacher to explain the lesson.’)
- kh-fasirishika* v. caus. p/s.
kh-fasirishiliza v. caus. appl.
Nuuru/ mfasirishilize Ali/ mwaana/ darsi. ‘Nuuru had Ali’s child interpret the lesson.’ (A periphrastic version is also possible: Ali/ mtılıle Iisa/ mwaana/ khfasira darsi. ‘Ali had Iisa’s child explain the lesson.)

kh-fasirishlizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Ali/ wafasirishilizenye waana/ darsi. ‘Nuuru and Ali had one another’s children interpret or translate the lesson.’ (A periphrastic version is also acceptable: Nuuru/ na Ali/ watılılene waana/ khfasira darsi.) kh-fasiroowa v. pass.

rel. nom.

m-fasiro n. 3 translation, translating ma-fasiro n. 6 translation, translating, explanation

u-fasiro n. 14 translation, translating, explanation

m-fasiri (wa-)

n. 1/2 translator

faslı

n. 9/10 [Ar. fasl ‘class, grade, season’ W 715] class (in school), season; comma faslı iyi ‘this class’; faslı izi ‘these classes’

Faslı iyi/ nda chingereenza. ‘This class is an English class.’

faslı ya chingereenza ‘an English class’

faslı ya filaali ‘summer season’

Faslı niingi/ h-anza sa’aa n-t^hatu/ fijiri. ‘Many classes begin at 9 am.’

Omari/ umo faslıini. ‘Omari is in class.’

We/ teeté/ faslı ya chingereenza. ‘You took the English class.’ Cf. We/ teeté/ faslı ya chingereenza? ‘Did you take the English class?’

fasri

n. (cf. kh-fasira) poetic translation, explanation

ni sahali kiiwa aya mishtari / na ka chimbalazi tambulaani fasri [st.] ‘it is easy to learn (lit. to know) these lines and you have to understand the translation in Chimbalazi’

fat

ideo. [Som. fad, cited in an internet source as referring to “the bubbling of sticky cornmeal on a cooking pot”; Som. d is devoiced in word-final position, hence the Chimiini pronunciation] of food boiling

Maṭaaza/ yanatokota/ fát fát fát. ‘The porridge is boiling, (it is saying) fat fat fat.’ faṭaaha

n. 9 [Sw. SSED 93; Ar. faatıha W 694] the first chapter of the Quran; reward khsoma faṭaaha ‘to read faatıha, the first chapter of the Quran’ ya ne ni khsoma faṭaaha ka bismala ‘the fourth [requirement] is to read the faatıha along with its bismala, the first verse of the chapter’ khsomowa faṭaaha for faatıhato to be read’

Isomela faṭaaha. ‘Faṭaaha was read.’

khtala faṭaaha ‘to accept a decision’ (The faatıha is read when a decision on some matter is accepted.)

Mi/ nt^heeeté/ faṭahayo. ‘I accepted your decision.’

khtilowa faṭaaha ‘for faṭaaha to be read’ khtila faṭaaha ‘to read faatıha’ kubiga faṭaaha ‘to read faṭaaha, the first chapter of the Quran’ kubigowa faṭaaha ‘for faatıha to be read’

Hamadi/ na Omari/ yingile khilaafu/ kati kaawo/ wazeele/ wa’ingiiló/ i-bishila faṭaaha /wapatanishiize. ‘Hamadi and Omari had arguments/disputes, elders got in the middle and read faatıha and they were reconciled.’

Ka Hamadi/ numbaani/ isomelaa du’a/ ibishila faṭaaha. ‘At Hamadi’s house du’a was read and faatıha was read.’

Qur’aani/ hanzowa ka faṭaaha. ‘The Quran begins with faatıha.’

We/ chuza zint^hu izi/ ka himaahima/ takhpowa faṭahayo. ‘If you sell these things quickly, you will be given [lit. your] a reward.’

faṭaali	adj. [Som. fataal “procurer, pimp” DSI 224] s.o. who is a rogue, a rascal
kh-faṭama	v. (faṭeeme) hide Chishkila/ cheendra/ shfaṭama ka mahala. ‘He climbed down and went and hid someplace.’ Faṭeme ihandakhiini. ‘He hid in a trench.’ Faatiima/ namfaṭama Nuuru. ‘Faatima is hiding from Nuuru.’ (The simple yes-no question version exhibits Q-raising, but no accent shift. Accent-shift is found in the exclamatory question: Faatiimá/ namfaṭama Nuurú!? The shift in the VP is obligatory, but there appears to be variation with respect to whether the initial subject exhibits accent-shift.) Mi/ nfaṭeme chinume cha faṭuurá. ‘I hid behind the car.’ Omari/ faṭeme iboholiini. ‘Omari hid in a hole.’ Omari/ faṭeme mtanaani. ‘Omari hid in the room.’ waaliko shfaṭeeme ndraani ya mivuungu [nt.] ‘we hid under beds’ rel. kh-faṭamoowa v. pass. Faṭuura/ ifaṭema chinumeche. ‘The car was hid behind it.’
faṭaani	adj. s.o. who creates discord (= mwenye fit(i)ni), e.g. by informing someone about what another person said about him etc. variant form: fattaani [Ar. fattān W 696] munt^hu faṭaani, want^hu (ma)faṭaani (cf. agreement in the case of derived diminutive and augmentative nouns: chijint^hu shfaṭaani, zijint^hu sfaṭaani, ijint^hu ifaṭaani, mijint^hu mifaṭaani)
Faatiima	n. the daughter of Mohammad
faṭiini	adj. [Ar. fatīn “clever, smart, bright, intelligent” W 720] smart, intelligent munt^hu faṭiini ‘s.o. smart, with a good clear mind’
	review the meaning of this word
kh-faṭisha	v. [Sw. fatisha SSED 93; Ar. fatasša W 694] (faṭishiize) inspect, investigate variant form: kh-fitisha faṭisha ma’anaye [song] ‘explain its meaning’ lata khfaṭisha chizapo takhkufura [st.] ‘leave off investigating (such things) or else you will lose your faith’ Sultaani/ chishikowa shṭanaa nt^ho/ chiwavila askarize/ chizaambila/ olokaani/ faṭishaani/ mp^haandre/ zotte/ za nt^hiya/ mmereeni/ mgeeni/ uyu/ inakuhadowa kuwa nub^hlele ngoombeza. ‘The sultan got very angry and called his soldiers and told them: search thoroughly all sides of my kingdom and look for this stranger who is said to have killed my cattle on me.’ rel. kh-faṭishafaṭisha v. freq. Shfaṭishafaṭisha teena. ‘He rummaged some more.’ Sku mooyi/ naa ye/ nakhfaṭishofaṭishoo nt^haká... ‘One day while he was rummaging through the garbage...’ kh-faṭishana v. rec. kh-faṭishiliza v. appl. (faṭishiliize) rel. nom. m-faṭisha (wa-) n. 1/2 m-faṭisho (mi-) n. 3/4 act of searching, inspecting u-faṭisho n. 14 m-fitisho (mi-) n. 3/4 act of inspecting
faṭuura	n. 9/10 [Ital. vettura “car”] motor car Abubakari/ ile Mwiini/ ka faṭuura. ‘Abubakari came to Brava by car.’

Fatuura/ fanyizeeyi. ‘The car, what did you do to it (lit. how did you do it)? Or: Fatuura/ fanyiizeni. ‘The car, what did you do to it?’ A possible answer to both these questions: Mp^hashile ranji. ‘I painted (it).’

Fatura gani/ we/ weenó. ‘Which car did you see?’ (A possible answer to this question would be: Mbene fatura ya Omari. ‘I saw Omari’s car.’ Or another answer: Mbene Omari/ fatuurayé. ‘I saw Omari, his car.’) faturaa nk^hulu ‘large car/s’

Fatura ya waawaye/ ni chihaba/ na ni nyulusi. ‘My father’s car is small and black.’

iyó faturaa nk^hulu ‘that large car’

Ka fatuura/ Abubakari/ ilo Miini. ‘By car Abubakari came to Brava.’

Mbene fatura ya Omari. ‘I saw Omari’s car.’ Or: Mbeené/ fatura ya Omari. ‘I saw Omari’s car.’

Mi/ hupenda fatura nelpe. ‘I like white cars.’

Mi/ nuzile fatuurá. ‘I bought a car.’

Mi/ speendi/ fatura nyulusi. ‘I don’t like black cars.’

Mtomele mwaana/ ka faturaani. ‘He took the child from the car.’

Nuuru/ uzile fatuura. ‘Nuuru bought a car.’ Cf. Mi/ nuzile fatuurá. ‘I bought a car.’

Nuuru/ uzile faturaa nk^hulu. ‘Nuuru bought the large car.’ Cf. Mi/ nuzile faturaa nk^hulú. ‘I bought the large car.’ (Because of downstep intonation, the accented syllable in nk^hulu in these examples would be lower in pitch than the initial accented syllable in the phrase. However, it is possible to put special emphasis on the adjective by markedly raising the pitch.)

Nuzile fatuurá/ nk^hulu. ‘I bought a large car.’ Cf. Nuzile faturaa nk^hulú. ‘I bought the large car.’ Or: Nuzile iyo faturaa nk^hulú. ‘I bought that large car.’ (The second example, with definite phrasing, answers a question like: Fatura gani/ Nuuru/ uziló. ‘Which car did Nuuru buy?’)

Nuzile fatura ya Aziizi. ‘I bought Aziizi’s car.’

Nuzile fatura (y)a mana (w)a Omari/ mp^hiyá. ‘I bought Omari’s son’s new car.’

Omari/ mulile mwaanawe/ fatuura. ‘Omari bought a car for his son.’

Osmaani/ uzile fatura ya gani. ‘Which car did Osmaani buy?’

Osmaani/ uzile fatura ya naani. ‘Whose car did Osmaani buy?’

Uzile fatuura/ nk^hulu. ‘He bought a large car.’ Cf. Uzile faturaa nk^hulu. ‘He bought the large car.’ (The yes-no question versions of these two sentences contrast. In the first case, the adjective undergoes accent-shift: Uzile fatuura/ nk^hulú? No shifting occurs in the second case: Uzile faturaa nk^hulu?)

rel.

i-fatuura (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

sh-fatuura (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

faayda

n. 9 [Ar. fā’ida W 735] profit; variant form: faa’ida

Ali/ pete faayda/ niingi (or: nk^hulu). ‘Ali got a large profit.’

Faayda/ ha’ipatoowi/ kilaa muunt^hi. ‘Profit is not gotten every day.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Ma’anaye/ simt^hafsirilé/ muunt^hu/ maneenoyo/ chiwaa we/ nt^hunakhpata/ ka kaake/ faayda/ nk^hulu. ‘Don’t explain to anyone the meaning of your words if you do not get from him a large profit.’

Mooja chiloongole khfaanya ibaada/ karka amali njeema yiimo faa’ida [st.] ‘O God, guide us onto the path of worship/ there is benefit in observing proper conduct’ [SCB 556]

Mooja nashfaanye wakasiizo mnaada/ walisilo farði wapeeto faa’ida [st.] ‘may God include us among those who responded to the call (and) benefitted from fulfilling this religious duty’

Muunt^hu/ mara mo/ shkhasaarata/ mara mo/ hupata faayda. ‘If one suffers a loss once, one benefit's once.' (A proverbial saying.)

Nini/ faayda/ ya muunt^hu/ kuwanayo waana. 'What is the profit for a man to have children?'

Sinakuwona haaja/ yoyote/ walá/ faaydá/ si/ mfunza mwanamke uyu/ namfungula/ mfuunga/ namfuungula/ chiwaa ye/ iize/ khuwelelaa muke. 'I do not see any need whatsoever nor profit if we jail this girl, release her, jail her, release her, if she refuses to be a wife to you.'

kh-faaydish

v. [Ar. faayda W 734]

rel.

kh-faydishiliza v. appl.

Nasiibu/ naayó/ laakini/ hafaydishilizi. 'Good fortune, he has, but he does not benefit from it (i.e. he does not take advantage of his good luck).' (A proverbial saying.)

Wawili/ wachiilaana/ wataatu/ hufaydishilizo. 'If two fight, the third benefits from it.' (A proverbial saying.)

faydaani

n, [Ar. fayadān W 735]

fayluzi

n. [Ar. fālūdaj "a sweet made of flour and honey" W 692] custard (a synonym of faaluuta)

faza'a

n.

qalbiya faza'a na neefu hundüüqa [nt.] 'my heart is scared and I cannot breathe' wake na wabli watiila faza'a [nt.] 'women and men [alike] are afraid'

kh-faza'ata

v. [Ar. faza'a W 711]

Nahiile/ faza'eete/ walá/ nt^hanakiwa/ nini/ impeeto. 'He was scared, he was frightened, and he did not know what had happened to him.'

rel.

kh-faza'ika v. intr. (faza'ishile) be frightened (away)

We/ nfungulila mlaango/ we/ takumbona/ stiyé/ walá/ sfaza'iké. 'You open for me the door, you will see me, don't be afraid, neither be frightened.'

kh-faza'isha v. caus. (faza'ishiize) frighten someone or something away

Siimba/ kubooleke/ peesa/ ka sarkali/ namfaza'isha waawaye. 'Simba's having stolen money from the government is frightening his father.'

feða

n. 9/10 [Sw. fedha SSED 93; Ar. fidða "silver" W 717] silver, money (There are critical respects in which this word behaves as though it has a CVCCV structure and not a CVCV structure, despite appearances. First of all, a phrase-final CVCV word requires lengthening of a preceding vowel, whereas a CVCCV word does not. The examples below show that a vowel is not lengthened in front of feða. A monosyllabic possessive enclitic triggers lengthening on a CVCV word in front of it, but not on a CVCCV word. Thus one finds kanziya 'my treasure' versus lutiila 'my stick'. In the case of feða, there is no lengthening: feðaya 'my money'.)

Hufula ðahabu/ na feða. 'He forges gold and silver.'

Huseeni/ shtomola/ feða/ chiwapa. 'Huseeni took out the money and gave it to them.'

Khkooða/ ni feða/ kumaamala/ ðahabu. 'To speak is silver, to keep quiet is gold.' (A proverb.)

kuweka feða 'to save money'

Ali/ fanyize kaazi/ miingi/ weshele feða. 'Ali did a lot of work and saved money.'

Itaki la feða 'a silver necklace'

Nazo feða. 'He has money.'

Nnakhsula markabú/ ya ðahabú/ milongoŕiye/ ya feða/ mitaangaye/ ya hariiri. 'I want a ship of gold, its masts of silver, its sails of silk.'

Nt^hakendra ka waawe/ kumwaambila/ namp^he feḏa/ noondroke/ neendre/ nmere kaazi. ‘I will go to my father and tell him that he should give money so that I move and go and look for work.’
Nt^hanazo feḏa. ‘He hasn’t any money.’
pesa ya feḏa ‘a silver coin’

kh-feḏeha

v. [Ar. v. fadhaha and noun fadhā W 717] (feḏehēele) reveal someone’s wrongdoings and therefore bring shame or dishonor upon him Omari/ hupeenda/ khfeḏeha waant^hu. ‘Omari likes to reveal the wrongdoings of people.’
Simfeḏehé/ mwaadamu/ kama weewe. ‘Don’t reveal [the wrongdoings] of a human being like yourself.’
rel.
kh-feḏehēka v. p/s. (feḏeheshēle) have one’s wrongdoings revealed variant form: kufeḏehēkeka (feḏehēkeshēle)
We/ chiza kuḷaṭa jawabu izo/ takhfeḏehēka. ‘If you do not leave off (doing) those things, you will be shamed.’
kh-feḏehēkoowa v. p/s. pass.
We/ chiza kuḷaṭa jawabu izo/ itakhfeḏehēkoowa. ‘If you do not stop (lit. leave) doing those things, you will be shamed, dishonored.’
kh-feḏehēla v. appl.
Simfeḏehelé/ mweenzawa. ‘Don’t reveal [on me] the wrongdoings of my friend.’
kh-feḏehēsha v. caus. cause someone’s wrongdoings to be revealed Mojiitu/ sisfeḏeheshe. ‘May God not shame us (reveal our wrongdoings etc.)!’
kh-feḏeheshanya v. caus. rec.
kh-feḏeheshēka v. caus. p/s.
kh-feḏeheshēleza v. caus. appl.
kh-feḏeheshēlezanya v. caus. appl. rec.

feḷi

n. 9/10,6 line; file
Chiṭa/ weshelee feḷi/ za zamaani/ mṭanaani. ‘The chief kept old files inside the room.’
Feḷi/ ndre. ‘The line is very long.’
Feḷi iyi/ nda Hamadi. ‘This file belongs to Hamadi.’
Feḷi izi/ nza hafisaani. ‘These files belong to the office, are related to the office.’
Feḷi izi/ nza skolaani. ‘These files belong to the school, are school-related.’
Feḷi izi/ nza wanaaskoola. ‘These files belong to the students, are student files.’
Omari/ simeme feḷiini. ‘Omari stood in line.’ Or: Omari/ simeme karka feḷi.
Omari/ tukile feḷi/ nk^hulu. ‘Omari carried a large file.’
Omari/ tukile mafeḷi/ makulu. ‘Omari carried large files.’
Ustaadi/ lesele feḷi/ ya waana. ‘The teacher brought the file of the children.’
rel.
mi-feḷi n. 4 aug.
Omari/ tukile mifeḷi/ mikulu. ‘Omari carried large files.’

s-feḷi

n. a competition (involving drumming, singing and dancing) between two rival groups, which in Brava consisted usually of jereeri (people of Bantu origins) from Albamba and Baghdaadi (the two quarters in Brava where the jereeri usually lived; the competition was held in the last days of Ramadhan up to iid and would begin around midnight and last all the way to dawn Leelo/ masku/ yiko sfeḷi. ‘Tonight there is the competition.’
Sfeḷi/ yana masku/ shiinziló/ Albamba. ‘Albamba won the competition last night.’

m-feleji (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. feleji “steel of good quality” SSED 94; Persian?] water pump, also called bomba maayi (This word was known to MI, but completely unknown to our more recent consultant GM.)

feesta

n. holiday; party

Chiwapa khabari/ kuwaa dafa/ wanakudarbaṭa/ khfanya feesta/ nk^hulu/ na kuwa wote/ sku ya feesta/ iyo/ hendra kanisaani. ‘He gave them the news that the kites prepare to celebrate a large holiday and that all of them on the day of the holiday go to church.’

Hamadi/ nt^hamwona/ mweenzawe/ festaani. ‘Hamadi did not see his friend at the party.’ (The simple yes-no question: Hamadi/ nt^hamwona/ mweenzawe/ festaani? Notice that the complement following the negative verb does not undergo Accent Shift, while the locative noun does.)

Hamadi/ nt^hamwona/ Omari/ walá/ Huseeni/ festaani. ‘Hamadi did not see either Omari or Huseeni at the party.’

Hupeenda/ kuwaa mi/ mbaalikó/ festaani. ‘I wish that I had been at the party.’

Muunt^hi/ wa feesta/ ukomeelopó/ karaayle/ mzeele/ nt^hakeendra/ kanisaani. ‘When the day of the holiday came, the old crow did not go to church.’

Ni yakhiini/ kuwa Hamadi/ waliko festaani. ‘It is certain that Hamadi was at the party.’

Nikhumerelelé/ festaani. ‘I looked for you at the party.’

Nvete haanzuyá/ mp^hiyá/ khabla yaa mi/ kendra festaani. ‘I put on my new dress before going to the party.’

Ye/ fanyize ruuhuye/ kuwa waliko festaani. ‘He pretended to have been at the party.’

kh-fi’ila

v. hold a grudge, take revenge, etc.
Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kumfi’ila ka mweenziwe. ‘It is not good for someone to hold grudges etc. against his friends.’

fi’ili

n. 9/10 [Sw. fiili SSED 95 ; Ar. fi’l ‘action, doing, work’ W 721] verb (in grammar); action, deed; variant form: fi’li
Fi’ili/ ya kheeri/ ha’irudoowi/ numa. ‘Good deeds are not (i.e. should not be) delayed; you should do them quickly.’
Mwana uyu/ fi’ilize/ mbovu. ‘This child’s actions are bad.’
nayo fi’ili or nazo fi’ili or mwenye fi’ili ‘holding a grudge/grudges for wrongs done to one, one taking revenge for s.t., etc.’
Awo/ ni wenyé fi’ili. ‘These are people who hold grudges, seek revenge, etc.’
Ni munt^hu mwenye fi’ili. ‘He is a person who holds grudges, plots revenge, etc.’
Omari/ fi’ilize/ siwo/ suura. ‘Omari, his actions are not good.’
Walaaliwo/ chiza khadira kumsayda ka fi’li/ msayde kaa kana. ‘If you cannot help your brother with actions, help him with words (lit. the mouth).’ (A proverb.)
Yaliko waaḏehe/ ka kooḏize/ kuwa Fardoosa/ nt^hakhiira/ fi’ili/ za Baazi. ‘It was clear from her comments that Fardoosa did not approve of Baazi’s actions.’

fidiya

n. [Ar. fidya ‘in Islamic law, the redemption from the omission of certain religious duties, by a material donation: W 701] the ritual sacrifice of an animal (as in the Arabic usage of this word) chiza fidya mbuzi huḡindoowa [st.] ‘otherwise a goat is slaughtered as sacrifice’ khṭomola fidya ‘to make a sacrifice’
Muunt^hu/ chilapa/ chiza khfuulisha/ laazimu/ khṭomola fidya. ‘If someone swears an oath (to do s.t.), and if he does not fulfill it, then he must make a sacrifice (to appease God).’
Muunt^hu/ shkoḏa wanaafakhi/ huḡomola fidya. ‘If someone tells a lie, he must make a sacrifice (to appease God).’
kulaṭowa fidya ‘to be let free to do whatever one wants’ Omari/ kaawo/ lasila fidya. ‘Omari, in his house, has been let free to do whatever he wants.’
kumlaṭa fidya ‘to let someone be free to do what he wants’ Mzele Omari/ waḷasile wataanawe/ fidya. ‘The elder Omari let his slaves go free.’

- fidya n. [Sw. fidia SSED 95; Ar. fidya “ransom” W 701] ransom (Although this word was known to MI, our more recent consultant GM was not familiar with this item and could not provide an example of its usage.)
khtomola fidya ‘to pay a ransom’ kulata fidya ‘to put at the disposal of everyone; outcast someone’
- kh-fiigata v. [Som. fiig DSI 228] (figeete) flee without any planned direction, or (for many people) flee in different directions, because of fright; [pron. -fiigata] (It should be noted that the voiced velar fricative we write as g contrasts with the uvular fricative written gh. The velar fricative derives from a Somali g which in intervocalic position has a fricative allophone.)
Omari/ jisa usuurawe/ movú/ hatá/ wáanthu/ humfiigata. ‘Omari, as his appearance is so ugly, people even flee from him.’
Waana/ wamfigeete/ Omari. ‘The children fled from Omari.’
rel.
kh-figatila v. appl. [pron. -figatila]
Mi/ nfigatilile kooðizó/ ba. ‘I ran away from your words/talk (i.e I did not listen to what you were saying, I ran away from it).’
Omari/ fi’ilize/ za khfigatila. ‘Omari’s actions are (the sort to cause people) to flee from (him).’
We/ nakhfigatila mi. ‘You, why are you running away from me?’
kh-figatoowa v. pass. [pron. -figatoowa]
Omari/ jisa usuurawe/ movú/ hatá/ hufigatoowa. ‘Omari, as his appearance is so ugly people even flee from him.’
Siimba/ hufigatoowa. ‘One flees from a lion (lit. a lion is fled from).’
kh-fiigisha v. caus. cause to flee; [pron. -fiigisha] Omari/ fi’ilize/ hufigisha waanthu. ‘Omari’s actions cause people to flee.’
- fija n. [Sw. figa SSED 95] a local stove -- a clay bowl-shaped container with three supports Fija/ inakaaka. ‘The stove is burning (i.e. fire is going).’
Fija/ ivundishile. ‘The stove is broken.’
fija ya koranta or fija/ ya koranta ‘an electric stove’ fija ya makala or fija/ ya makala ‘charcoal stove’ fija ya uloongo or fija/ ya uloongo ‘clay stove’
Kahawa/ yiko fijaani. ‘The coffee is on the stove.’
Kuja/ yiko fijaani. ‘The food is on the stove.’
rel.
i-fija (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-fija (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- fijili n. [Sw. figili SSED 95; Ar. fujl, fujūl “radish, Raphanus sativus” W 698] a large white radish; this comes from the same plant as baqili; the white radish is left to grow bigger (to the size of an ice-cream cone) and is said to be beneficial to digestion
rel.
i-fijili (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
m-fijili (mi-) n. 3/4 raddish plant sh-fijili (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- fijiri n. 9/10 [Sw. alfajiri SSED 9 ; Ar. fajr W 697] morning (up until mid-day) variant: fijri
chakuja cha fijiri ‘breakfast’
Njile chakuja cha fijiri. ‘I ate breakfast.’
Chija/ chilaala/ hatá/ fijiri. ‘He ate, he slept until morning.’
Fijiri/ bakayle/ chimwambila ndiiwa/ lete amaanaya. ‘In the morning Hare came and said to Pigeon: bring my amaana (.s.t entrusted to s.o. to be reclaimed later).’
Fijiri/ mubli/ chimwambila mukeewe/ mi/ nnakendra kaziini. ‘In the morning, the husband told his wife, I am going to work.’

Fijiri mukhtaaya ye/ ondroshele ka usinziziini/ oloshela ka waawaye. ‘In the morning, when he awoke from sleep, he went to his father.’

Fijiri/ Sa’iidi/ chingila muyiini/ choloka ka sultani wa mayahuudi. ‘In the morning, Sa’iidi entered the town and went to the sultan of the Jews.’

Fijiri/ sku ya piili/ maama/ chimuḷila mp’huundra. ‘On the morning of the next day mother bought a donkey for him.’

fijiri/ ya jimaa tatu ‘Monday morning’ or jimaa tatu/ fijiri or jimaa tatu/ fijiriye

Tuuma/ vushile Mkhodiisho/ fijiri ya jimaa tatu. ‘Tuuma went to Mogadishu on Monday morning.’ Or: Tuuma/ vushile Mkhodiisho/ jimaa tatu/ fijiri. Or: Tuuma/ vushile Mkhodiisho/ jimaa tatu/ fijiriye.

fijiri ya kaandra ‘dawn’

Ori/ walimo karka chijuumba/ chaa nk’uku/ chilindra fijiri ya kaandra/ khpata kuwiika/ kondrola waant’u. ‘The cock was in the chicken coop waiting for dawn so as to get to crow to wake people up.’

fijiriini ‘[loc.] in the morning’ (Note that the locative form, while possible, is considered old-fashioned.)

Haliima/ pishilee zijo/ fijiri iyi. ‘Haliima cooked zijo this morning.’

kharibu ya fijiri or khariibu/ ya fijiri ‘near morning’

Jaama/ mwene Nuuru/ na Hamadi/ fijiri. ‘Jaama saw Nuuru and Hamadi in the morning.’

Leelo/ fijiri/ ningile mtanaani/ ka waawaye. ‘Today this morning I entered the room of his father.’

Masku ayo/ kaleent’^he/ kaa muke/ fijiriye/ cheendra/ shpandra teena/ uje mloongoti/ kulangala/ inakhfanyoowani/ muyiini. ‘That night he stayed with the woman (and) in the morning (following that night) he went and climbed up that mast again to see what was being done in the town.’

Mbishile na munt’^hu ilo fijiri. ‘I was hit by the man who came this morning.’

Mwana oloshelo fijiri/ tukile zibuuku. ‘The child who left in the morning carried the books.’ (cf. Mwaana/ oloshela fijiri/ tukile chibuuku. ‘The child left in the morning and carried the books.’)

Ningile mtanaani/ ka waawaye/ fijiri. ‘I entered the room of his father this morning.’ (In this example, fijiri is included within the projection of the final accent from the verb.)

Omari/ mbishile mwaana/ fijiri. ‘Omari hit the child in the morning.’ (In the default case, a time adverbial like fijiri is not included in the wide-scope focus of the verb phrase. The noun maana is pronounced parallel to a focused element, and there is a clear downstep of fijiri. The out-of-focus nature of the adverb is revealed in the simple yes-no question, where the adverb undergoes accent shift: Omari/ mbishile maana/ fijiri?) sala ya fijiri ‘morning prayer, around 4:30 a.m.’

Sala ya fijiri/ inayo raka’aa mbili. ‘The morning prayer has two raka’a.’

Shtaanga/ ni sala husalowa fijiri ya sku ya iidi. ‘Shtaanga is a prayer that is prayed on the morning of iidi (ya wamuusi).’

Ye/ chendra fijiri/ na mapeema/ lapiili/ na chendra kila ilooni. ‘He went early in the morning, (and) in the afternoon, and he went each evening.’

kh-fikira

v. [Sw. fikiri SSED 96; Ar. verb fakara and noun fikr W 724] (fikiriile) think, consider, decide, choose to do; (idiom.) look depressed

Alfaani/ fikiriile/ kuwa ipakacha/ itakihitajoowa/ kumtukulila sultani waa noka/mukhta wo/ waṭamshiikó. ‘Alfaani thought that a basket would be needed to carry the king of snakes in when they siezed him.’

Ali/ fikirile koloka kahima. ‘Ali decided to go quickly.’

Ali/ chiwonoowa/ ba/ nakhfikira/ tu. ‘Whenever Ali is seen, he looks depressed (lit. is just thinking).’

Fikira chiint^hu/ nt^haasá/ yaa we/ khfaanya. ‘Think of a thing before you do it.’ (A proverb.)

Isa/ si/ laazima/ khfikira jawaabu/ mweepe/ si/ khfaanya/ khpata kiiwa/ mukhta mp^h aka/ nakhtolezó. ‘Now we must think of something that we can do to get to know when the cat is approaching.’

Kaa kule/ wenopo kuwa ni mphuundrá/ muké/ sungura/ shfikira yaa ye/ kumwaambila/ mphuundra. ‘When he saw from afar that it was a female donkey, Rabbit thought about what he should say to the donkey.’

Mwaana/ shfikira/ chiwona kuwa ni kheeri/ ye/ kuwaraasha. ‘The boy thought and realized that it was better for him to follow them [the soldiers].’

Ndrata/ nfikire. ‘Let me think it over.’

Nfikirile kendra naawé. ‘I decided to go with you.’ (The preposition na that is used in naawe ‘with you’ is a default-accent trigger and therefore when outside the influence of a final-accent trigger would have accent on its initial syllable: cf. Fikirile kendra naawe. ‘He decided to go with you.’ In the example cited, the main verb is a final-accent trigger and consequently we get a final accent on the naawe.)

Nfikiriile/ chibuuku/ kumpa Nuuru. ‘I thought,decided a book to give to Nuuru.’

Nfikiriile/ Nuuru/ khpoowa/ chibuuku. ‘I chose Nuuru to be given a book.’

Nishfikiriile/ chibuuku/ khpoowa/ Nuuru. ‘I chose it the book for Nuuru to be given it.’ Or: Nishfikiriile/ Nuuru/ khpoowa/ chibuuku. Or: Nishfikiriile/ Nuuru/ khpoowa/ chibuuku. Or: Nishfikiriile/ khpoowa/ chibuuku/ Nuuru. Or: Nishfikiriile/ chibuuku/ Nuuru/ khpoowa. Nishfikiriile/ chibuuku/ khpoowa/ Nuuru. Nishfikiriile/ Nuuru/ chibuuku/ khpoowa.

Nimfikirile^f Nuuru/ kumpa chibuuku. ‘I chose Nuuru to give him a book.’ Or: Nimfikirile kumpa Nuuru/ chibuuku. ‘I decided him to give him a book.’

Nishfikiriile/ chibuuku/ kumpa Nuuru. ‘I decided, chose it the book to give to Nuuru.’ Or: Chibuuku/ kumpa Nuuru/ nishfikiriile. ‘The book to give to Nuuru I chose it.’ Or: Nishfikiriile/ kumpa Nuuru/ chibuuku.

Nṭ^hasa yaa we/ khfaanya/ fikira. ‘Think before you do.’ (A proverb.)

Omari/ chiza kujiba telefoono / inamtila khfikira. ‘Omari not to answer the telephone makes Haliima think (worries her).’

Shfikira kula mp^huundra. ‘He decided to buy a donkey.’

Sku mooyi/ karaayle/ waweshele gowoli/ khfikira/ jisaawo/ kuruuda/ muyiini/ kaawo. ‘One day the crows held a meeting to consider how to return to their town.’

Sku mooyi/ ye/ nakhfikiró/ chihada... ‘One day, while thinking, he said (to himself)...’

tiya adabu ya mwajiitu fikira [st.] ‘be afraid of the hell of God and think about it’

Walimo karka khfikira. ‘He was thinking.’

Waziiri/ choloka kaake/ shkalaant^ha/ khfikira. ‘The minister went to his place to sit and think.’

Ye/ hakhaadiri/ khfikira/ khsooma/ tu. [HHHH!!H] ‘She was just not able to concentrate enough to read.’

rel.

kh-fikirika v. p/s.

kh-fikirila v. appl.

Hamfikirili/ mzele msaafiri/ umo ta’abuuni. ‘He never thought about the old traveler in trouble.’ review accent

Ichiwa teena/ ye/ hamfikirili/ mukeewe. ‘It became then that he never thought about his wife.’

Mi/ nakhfikirila/ majiwe/ ayaje/ mawili/ imooyi/ ikulu/ na imooyi/ chihaba. ‘I am thinking about those two stones, one big and one small.’

Mi/ nakhtarajá/ we/ khfikiriḷa jawabu iyi/ mara yīingine. ‘I hope that you will think this matter over (lit. another time).’

Mi/ takhfikiriḷa/ kuya keesho. ‘I will consider coming tomorrow.’

Nt^h akhfikiriḷa/ ruuhuye. ‘He did not think of himself.’

Wo/ hawamfikiriḷi/ muunt^hu. ‘They do not have respect for anyone.’

kh-fikiriḷoowa v. pass. (fikiriḷa) de decided, chosen

Chibuuku/ shfikiriḷa/ khpowa Nuuru. ‘The book was chosen for Nuuru to be given.’ Or: shfikiriḷa/ chibuuku/ Nuuru/ khpoowa.

kh-fikirisha v. caus. (-fikirishiize)

Ali/ mfikirishize mwaana. ‘Ali caused the child to think.’ (The periphrastic version of this sentence is: Ali/ mtile mwaana/ khfikira. ‘Ali induced (lit. put in) the child to think.’)

Khutbaye/ infikirishiize. ‘His speech made me think.’

kh-fikirishan(y)a v. caus. rec.

kh-fikirishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-fikirishiliza v. caus. appl.

Ali/ mfikirishilize Iisa/ mwaana. ‘Ali caused Iisa’s child to think.’ (The periphrastic version: Ali/ mtijile Iisa/ mwaana/ khfikira. ‘Ali induced for Iisa (his) child to think.’)

kh-fikirihilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (wa-fikirishilizeenye)

Ali/ na Nuuru/ wafikirishilizenye waana. ‘Ali and Nuuru caused for one another their children to think.’ (A periphrastic version: Ali/ na Nuuru/ watijilene waana/ khfikira. ‘Ali and Nuuru induced for one another their children to think.’)

fikiri

n. [Ar. fikr W 724] thought, worrying; var. fikri

Chimwaambila/ si/ chinayo fikiri gani/ ambó/ waawé/ nayo fikiri gani/ zaa ye/ kujijilaa nsi. ‘She told him: what thought do we have (i.e. we cannot think of doing anything) or my father, what thought does he have about what to eat with fish (i.e. he cannot think about eating)?’

Lolaa muke/ nakhukorshenze mwaana/ naawé/ pata kendra kaziini/ pashpo fikiri. ‘Marry a woman so that she can raise your child and you can go to work without being preoccupied with the child.’

Nt^haná/ fikiri. ‘He has no intelligence, resourcefulness.’

Sababu yaa ye/ ijilo apá/ inakunt^hila fikiri. ‘The reason she came here worries me.’

Waliko muunt^hu/ wenye akhli/ fikiri/ na maalí. ‘There was a man having intelligence, thoughtfulness, and wealth.’

fikra

n. [Ar. fikra W 724] thought, idea, notion, concept

Haliima/ ni muṭa’asifu/ na fikra/ ya kuḷawa Mwiini. ‘Haliima is very sad at the idea of leaving Brava.’

jawaabu/ za fikra ‘matters that encompass concepts, i.e. meaningful matters’

Nayo fikra mwaapé. ‘Do you have any opinion, thought?’

Shpe fikra/ tumbura/ nini. ‘Give us an idea/notion what is tumbura.’ fiḷa

n. evil

Liḷa/ naa fiḷá/ hazidangamani. ‘Good and evil do not mix.’ (A proverb.)

fiḷaari

n. [Som. fallaar DSI 215] arrow

Fakeṭe kama fiḷaari. ‘He ran like an arrow (i.e. fast).’

fiḷhaali

adv. [Ar. expression fi’l-hāl ‘on the spot, immediately’ W 216-7] immediately

Fiḷhaali/ ye/ chiwa ndiyé/ mwaarabu/ uje waliko shujaa’á/ na shinzilo harbí/

zotté. ‘Immediately he became [lit. it is he] the Arab who had courage and who had won all the wars.’

Ile filhaali. ‘He came at once.’

Niilé/ filhaali. ‘I came at once.’

fiilo

n. [Ital. filo “thread, wire”] electric cables, car wires, etc.

filodifero

n. [Ital. filo di ferro “string of iron”] wire

fitro

n. [Ital. filtro] oil filter (on a car)

filaali

n. [etymology uncertain] summer (We are uncertain as to how widely known this word is.)

fasli ya filaali ‘summer season’

kh-filaṭa

v. [Som. verb fil and filid “to believe, think” DSI 229-30] expect (The form kh-filaṭila can be used in the same sense kh-filaṭa.)

Menye/ nakhfilaṭa kooloka. ‘Menye/ expects to go’

Menye/ nakhfilaṭa mwaana/ kooloka. ‘Menye/ expects the child to go’

Menye/ nakhfilaṭa mwaana/ tu/ kooloka. ‘Menye expects only the child to go.’ (Observe that tu does not trigger a shift in the following infinitive verb to the pseudo-relative form. When tu precedes the main verb, that verb does shift into the pseudo-relative form.)

Menye/ tu/ nakhfilaṭo kooloká. ‘Only Menye expects to go.’

Menye/ tu/ nakhfilaṭo mwaaná/ kooloká. ‘Only Menye expects the child to go.’

Nnakhfilaṭa kula faṭuurá. ‘I expect to buy a car.’ Or: Nnakhfilaṭa faṭuurá/ kuulá. ‘I expect a car to buy.’ Or: Nnaki’ifilaṭa faṭuurá/ kuulá. ‘I expect it a car to buy.’

Nnakhfilaṭa kuwa Fariidá/ takhpita imṭihaani. ‘I expect that Fariida will pass the examination.’ Or, with emphasis on the main verb: Nnakhfilaṭá/ Fariida/ kuwa takhpita imṭihaani. Or, with emphasis on the subject of the embedded sentence: Nnakhfilaṭa kuwa Fariidá/ takhpita imṭihaani.

(Notice that we say “emphasis” on the subject, not focus. The fact about this pronunciation that must be explained is that the final accent triggered by the main verb does not extend past Fariida. This would be explained either by Fariida being emphasized or focused. But if Fariida were focused, then it would require the following verb to be in pseudo-relative form. The verb is not, however, in such a form and therefore we know that Fariida is emphasized and not focused.)

Nnakhfilaṭa Nuurú/ kula faṭuurá. ‘I expect Nuuru to buy a car.’ Or: Nnakhfilaṭá/ Nuuru/ kula faṭuura. ‘I expect Nuuru to buy a car.’ Or: Namfilaṭa Nuurú/ kula faṭuurá. ‘I expect him Nuuru to buy a car.’ (Note that as long as Nuuru follows the main verb, only it can control an OM on the verb, not faṭuura. Thus the ungrammaticality of Nnaki’ifilaṭa Nuurú/ kula faṭuurá., as well as: Nnaki’ifilaṭa Nuurú/ faṭuurá/ kuulá. Only if faṭuura is brought into position after the verb can the verb bear an OM agreeing with it: Nnaki’ifilaṭa faṭuurá/ Nuurú/ kuulá. ‘I expect it a car for Nuuru to buy.’ If faṭuura is promoted by passivization of the lower clause, it also may control an OM on the verb: Nnaki’ifilaṭa faṭuurá/ kuḷoowá. ‘I expect a car to be bought.’

rel.

kh-filaṭiloowa v. pass. (filaṭiḷiila) to be expected

Ra’iisi/ nakhfilaṭiloowa/ khfaanya/ mukaaṭaba. ‘The president is not expected to make an agreement.’

Zibateera/ hasfilaṭiloowi/ kulawa salaama. ‘Little boats are not expected to escape safely.’

kh-filaṭila v. (filaṭiḷiile) expect

Nfilaṭiḷiile keendrá. ‘I expected to go.’

Nfilaṭiḷiile kuwa Hamadí/ mkonó/ umfuriiḷé. ‘I expected that Hamadí’s arm would swell up.’ (Cf. the accent in the main clause sentence:

Hamadi/ mkono/ umfuriile. ‘Hamadi’s arm swelled.’ The final accents in the example sentence are projected from the first person past tense main clause verb.)

Nfilatīlile kuwa Nuuru/ takuleta chaakujá. ‘I expected that Nuuru would bring food.’

Nfilatīlile kuwa Nuuru/ takuuyá. ‘I expected that Nuuru would come.’ (The verb in the complement clause is in the future tense and would be expected to trigger default penult accent; however, the final accent triggered by the main verb takes the complement into its scope and over-rides the expected default accent.)

Nfilatīlile Nuuru/ kuleta chaakujá. ‘I expected Nuuru to bring food.’

Nfilatīlile Nuuru/ kuuyá. ‘I expected Nuuru to come.’ Or: Nimfilatīlile Nuuru/ kuuya. (In the first example, the main verb does not exhibit agreement with the subject of the complement clause, whereas in the second example it does.) (Note that the final accent triggered by the main verb extends throughout the complement clause.)

Nnakhfilatīlá/ Fariida/ kuwa takhpita imtihaani. ‘I expect Fariida that she will pass the examination.’ Or: Nnakhfilatīla Fariidá/ kuwa takhpita imtihaani. ‘I expect Fariida that she will pass the examination.’ Or: Nnakhfilatīla Fariidá/ kuwa takhpita imtihaani. ‘I expect Fariida that she will pass the examination.’ (Although our consultant accepted putting focus on the subject of the complement sentence, he did not accept a pronunciation where the only focus was the complement verb: Nnakhfilatīla Fariidá/ kuwa takhpitá/ imtihaani.)

Nuuru/ (m)filatīlile Hasani/ na’oloke. ‘Nuuru expected Hasani that he go.’ (Observe that the verb ‘expect’ does not permit a subjunctive sentential complement.)

Omari/ filatīlile kuwa waawaye/ takuraaga. ‘Omari expected that his father would be late.’

Omari/ filatīlile kuwa waawaye/ tamshindra Huseeni/ tu. ‘Omari expected that his father would beat only Huseeni.’

Omari/ filatīlile kuwa waawaye/ tu/ takuraagó. ‘Omari expected that only his father would be late.’

Omari/ filatīlile kuwa waawaye/ tu/ takuuyó/ keesho. ‘Omari expected that only his father would come tomorrow.’

Omari/ filatīlile kuwa waawaye/ tu/ tamshiindró/ Huseeni. ‘Omari expected that only his father would beat Huseeni.’

Omari/ tu/ filatīlilo kuwa poliisi/ takuwashika wiizi. ‘Only Omari expected that the police would arrest the thieves.’

Omari/ tu/ filatīliló/ kuwa poliisi/ takuwashiika/ wiizi. ‘Only Omari expected that the police would arrest the thieves.’

Omari/ tu/ nakhfilatīlo ma’askari/ khkoma Mwiini/ masku ayá. ‘Only Omari expects the soldiers to reach Brava by this evening.’ With emphasis on the main verb: Omari/ tu/ nakhfilatīliló/ ma’askari/ khkoma Mwiini/ masku aya.

Pashpo khfilatīla/ Baana/ nandikishizee khati. ‘Unexpectedly, Baana made me write a letter.’ Cf. Baana/ nandikishizee khati/ pashpoo mi/ khfilatīla. ‘Baana made me write a letter without my expecting (it).’

Sfilatīlé/ khpita imtihaani. ‘Don’t expect to pass the examination!’

Si/ shfilatīlilé/ Nuuru/ kulawa/ muyiini. ‘We expected Nuuru to leave Town.’

Wafilatīlile Nuuru/ kuuya. ‘They expected Nuuru to come.’ Or:

Wamfilatīlile Nuuru/ kuuya.

Wo/ wanakhfilatīla Fariida/ kuwa takhpita/ imtihaani. ‘They expect Fariida to pass the examination.’

kh-filatīloowa v. appl. pass. (-filatīlila) be expected

Bay/ filatīlila keendra. ‘Bay was expected to go.’
Chaakuja/ shfilatīlila kuviva kahima. ‘The food was expected to cook quickly.’
Hasani/ kolokake/ ifilatīlila. ‘Hasani’s going was expected.’ (Observe that the “poss –ing” complement can be the subject of the passive verb, but such a complement clause is unacceptable with the corresponding active verb: *Nuuru/ mfilatīlile Hasani/ kolokake. ‘Nuuru expected Hasani’s going.’) Ifilatīlila Aboowa/ khshiindra. ‘It is expected that Aboowa will win.’ Or: Aboowa/ khshiindra/ ifilatīlila. ‘For Aboowa to win is expected.’ (These examples illustrate the impersonal passive. The personal passive is also possible: Aboowa/ filatīlila khshiindra. ‘Aboowa is expected to win.’)
Ifilatīlila kuwa chaakuja/ shṭakuviva kahima. ‘It was expected that the food would be cooked soon.’
Ifilatīlila Nuuru/ ṭakuleta chaakuja. ‘It was expected that Nuuru would bring food.’ Or: Ifilatīlila Nuuru/ kuleta chaakuja. But not: Chaakuja/ shfilatīlila kuletoowa. ‘Food was expected to be brought.’ Our consultant found the following sentence to be marginally possible: ?Nuuru/ filatīlila kuleta chaakuja. ‘Nuuru was expected to bring food.’
Kuwa Jaama/ ṭakuuya/ ifilatīlila. ‘That Jaama would come was expected.’
Maali/ ayo/ siwo/ maali/ hufilatīlowa kuruudá. ‘That money is not money that is expected to come back.’
Nakhfilatīlowa kuuya. ‘He is expected to come.’
Nuuru/ filatīlila kuuya. ‘Nuuru was expected to come.’ (Note that the logical subject of the complement can be promoted to subject of the passive version of the main verb.)

‘Nuuru

kh-filisa

v. [Ar. falasa W 726] (filisiize) be, go bankrupt; bankrupt s.o., cause s.o. to go bankrupt Ali/ ni mwaana/ wa mrehemuḷa/ Waziri Hasani/ mubjaana/ uje filisiizó/ mali yaa ye/ dhahaleetó/ yoté. ‘Ali is the son of the late Minister Hasani, (he is) the young man who squandered all the wealth that he inherited.’
Daawuudi mfilisize Sarmadi. ‘Daawuudi caused Sarmadi to go bankrupt.’
Ishfilatīloowa/ wo/ khfilisa. ‘It was expected for them to go bankrupt.’
Ni lila/ so/ kuwaa we/ filisiizé/ na kuwa kula/ khuuzó/ fanyizeeyi/ maaliyó/ we/ humjiiba/ kuwa ha’isi/ ma’anayé/ ha’ambiloowí. ‘Is it true that you have gone bankrupt and that anyone who asks you what happened to your money, you answer him that the one who does not know its reason is not told?’
Sarmadi/ filisiize. ‘Sarmadi went bankrupt.’
rel.
kh-filisiliza v. appl. (-filisiize) cause to go bankrupt on Ali/ mfilisilize Iisa/ mwaana. ‘Ali caused Iisa’s son to go bankrupt.’
kh-filisilizanya v. appl. rec. (-filisilizeenye) Ali/ na Nuurú/ wafilisilizenye waana. ‘Ali and Nuuru caused each other’s children to go bankrupt.’
kh-filisoowa v. pass.
Mineendro/ waa we/ nakiineendró/ itakhfilisoowa. ‘The way that you are behaving will lead to bankruptcy.’
nom. rel.
m-filisa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who goes bankrupt
m-filisi (wa-) n. 1/2 one who goes bankrupt

fimbalbaari

n. [Som. fin “pimple” DSI 230 + barbaar “young man” DSI 45] pimple, boil variant form: finbarbaari ni m’aafu maazi ya mapu na masila/ na matata na fimbalbaari khsalila [st.] ‘you are allowed to pray if you have bleeding and pus from boils, blisters and pimples’

fiini

n. [?Ital. fino, pl. fini “tiny”] sequin hanzu ya fiini or haanzu/ ya fiini ‘a haanzu made of sequins’
rel.
i-fiini (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. sequin mifini mikulu or mifiini/ mikulu ‘large sequins’ sh-fiini (s-) n. 7/8 dim. sequin hanzu ya sfiini or haanzu/ ya sfiini ‘a haanzu made of small sequins’ sfini zelpe or sfiini/ zelpe ‘small white sequins’ sfini zihaba or sfiini/ zihaba ‘small sequins’ sfini zilusi or sfiini/ zilusi ‘small black sequins’ sfiini/ zinakuwaló ‘shining sequins’ shtandriko cha sfiini or shtaandriko/ cha sfiini ‘a cloth (worn over the shoulder by Muslim women) made of small sequins’

kh-finika

v. [Sw. funika SSED 106, but also cites finika SSED 106 as the Kimvita dialect form] (finishile) cover, put a lid on Ali/ finishile ruuhuye/ nguwo. ‘Ali covered himself with a cloth’
Ali/ finishile uso/ nguwo. ‘Ali covered his face with a cloth.’
Ali/ mfinishile Hamadi/ nguwo/ usooni. ‘Ali covered Hamadi’s face with a cloth (lit. covered Hamadi with a cloth on the face).’
Ali/ mfinishile mwaana/ buraangeeti. ‘Ali covered the child with a blanket.’ Or: Ali/ mfinishile mwaana/ ka buraangeeti.
Finika shkoombe/ mwaachisi/ naapite. ‘Cover the cup (until) the bastard goes away.’ (A proverb, based on the Bravanese belief that a bastard cannot be trusted with secrets.)
Finika sufuriya. ‘Cover the pan!’
Hasani/ finishile ruuhuye/ nguwo. ‘Hasani covered himself with a cloth.’
Hasani/ finishile uso/ nguwo. ‘Hasani covered his face with a cloth.’
Hasani/ mfinishile Omari/ nguwo/ usooni. ‘Hasani covered Omari’s face with a cloth.’
Hufinika duniya/ ka buraangeetiye. ‘It covers the world with its blanket.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is miinza ‘darkness’.)
hufinika maghribi hatta mashriqi [st.] ‘it covers west and east’ khfinika chibuuku ‘to close a book’ khfinika iboholi ‘to cover a hole without filling it up, as in trying to trap an animal so that it falls into the hole’ khfinikaa nguwo ‘to cover with clothes’ khfinika ziwovu ‘to conceal evil deeds’
Mawiingu/ yafinishile kuzimu/ nzimaye. ‘The clouds covered the whole sky (lit. covered the sky its all).’
Mawiingu/ yafinishile iwa. ‘The clouds hid the sun.’
Maayi/ yafinishilee nt^{hi}. ‘Water covered the ground.’
muke sku za hija uso hafiniki [st.] ‘a woman should not cover her face during the pilgrimage’ Nguwo/ imfinishile mayti/ mzimawe. ‘The cloth covered the corpse all over.’
Nguwo/ nt^a/imfinika/ mayti/ mzimawe. ‘The cloth did not completely cover the corpse.’
Suufi/ finishile kani/ nama. ‘Suufi covered the meat with what?’ (It is interesting that Mohammad Imam preferred this form of the question to Suufi/ finishileni/ nama. We suspect that the explanation for this is that MI treats the construction -finika NP NP as parallel to the instrumental applied, even though there is no applicative extension involved, and disprefers for the instrument to be the focus of the sentence. In the question Suufi/ finishileni/ nama, the instrument is focused, which lowers its acceptability for MI.)
Suufi/ finishileni/ ka lwarakha. ‘What did Suufi cover with the piece of paper?’ (It is interesting that Mohammad Imam rejected Suufi/ finishileni/ lwarakha. This example suggests that the -finika NP ka NP construction is the more basic one.) Wafinishile waant^u/ maburaangeeti. ‘He covered people with blankets.’
rel.
kh-finikana v. rec. (-finikeene) cover one another; hide one another’s faults etc.
Nuuru/ na Hamadi/ wafinikene buraangeeti. ‘Nuuru and Hamadi covered one another with blankets.’

kh-finikanika v. rec. p/s. (-finikanishile) able to be used to cover one another Maburangeti aya/ hayafinikaniki. ‘These blankets shouldn’t be/ can’t be used to cover one another.’

kh-finikika v. p/s. (-finikishile) able to be used to cover Maburangeti aya/ hayafinikiki/ waana. ‘These blankets cannot be used to cover the children.’

Mayti/ nt^hakhfinikiki/ nguwo. ‘The corpse is not (completely) covered with the cloth.’ (Note that nguwo cannot be the subject of the p./s. verb: Nguwo/ nt^ha’ikhfinikiki/ mayti. One could use the simple verb: Nguwo/ nt^ha’imfinika/ mayti/ mzimawe. ‘The cloth did not cover the corpse all over.’)

Mwana uyu/ hafinikiki/ nguwo. ‘This child cannot be covered with a piece of cloth.’

Sufuriya/ ifinikishile. ‘The pan was able to be covered’

Wana awa/ hawafinikiki/ maburaangeeti. ‘These children cannot be covered with blankets.’

kh-finikiloowa v. appl. pass. (finikilila) be covered with, for Chijamu shfinikilila sufuriya. ‘A plate was used to cover the pot.’ (Note that if one said Sufuriya/ ifinikilila chijamu., the meaning would be ‘a pot was used to cover the plate’ and would not mean ‘a pot was covered with a plate’. The subject of the passive verb refers to the instrument used to cover something, and not the thing that was covered.)

Maburaangeeti/ yafinikilila mwaana. ‘Blankets were used to cover the child.’

Nguwo/ ifinikilila sanduukhu. ‘A cloth was used to cover the box.’ (Note that if one said Sanduukhu/ ifinikilila nguwo., it would mean that ‘a box was used to cover the cloth’ and not that ‘a box was covered with a cloth’.)

kh-finikila v. appl. (finikilile) cover with, for Finikilile sufuriya/ chijamu. ‘He covered the pot with a plate.’

Taha/ finikilile buraangeeti. ‘Taha covered himself with a blanket.’

Taha/ mfinikilile mwaana/ buraangeeti. ‘Taha covered the child with a blanket.’

Wanfinikilile majiwe/ wanfinikililó. ‘They covered me with stones, that’s what they did.’

Ye/ chishfinikila shkapu. ‘She covered it with a basket.’

kh-finikilana v. appl. rec. (-finikileene)

Wafinikilene makosa. ‘They hid faults for one another; they hid one another’s faults for.’

Waant^hu/ wafinikilene waana/ buraangeeti. ‘The people covered the children for one another.’

kh-finikilanika v. appl. rec. p/s.

kh-finikisha v. caus. make s.o. cover

Maryaamu/ mfinikishize mwaana/ ruuhuye/ iburaangeeti. ‘Maryaamu caused the child to cover himself with a blanket.’

Sa’iidi/ mfinikishize kani/ Suufi/ nama. ‘Sa’iidi made Sufi cover the meat with what?’

Sa’iidi/ mfinikishize naani/ mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Who did Sa’iidi cause to cover the child with a cloth?’ Cf. Sa’iidi/ mfinikishize Suufi/ naani/ nguwo. ‘Who did Sa’iidi cause Suufi to cover with a cloth?’ (In the first example, pragmatics favors understanding the naani to be referring to the “causee” since it is more normal for an adult to be putting a piece of clothing on a child than vice versa. In the second example, the word order suggests that naani is not the causee, but this is apparently not the only interpretation possible. In an example like Sa’iidi/ mfinikishize naani/ Suufi/ nguwo., the first interpretation is that naani is the one who was caused to do cover Suufi with a piece of clothing, but it is also possible that Suufi is the one who has been made to do the covering.)

Sa’iidi/ mfinikishize naani/ nama/ lwarakha. ‘Who did Sa’iidi make cover the meat with a piece of paper?’

Sa’iidi/ mfinikishiizeni/ Suufi/ ka lwarakha. ‘What did Sa’iidi make Suufi cover with a piece of paper?’ (MI preferred having the preposition preceding lwarakha in this example compared with the preceding example.)

kh-finikishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-finikishiliza v. caus. appl. (finikishiliize)

Shaafi/ mfinikishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ sufuriya. ‘Shaafi caused the child to cover the pot for Suufi; Shaafi caused Suufi’s child to cover the pot.’

kh-finikishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-finikoowa v. pass. (finishila)

Ali/ finishilaa nguwo/ na Ji. ‘Ali was covered with a cloth by Ji.’ (Note that nguwo may not be the passive subject: Nguwo/ ifinishila Ali/ na Ji. ‘A cloth was covered over Ali by Ji.’ On the other hand, it is possible to front nguwo and postpose the subject: Nguwo/ finishila Ali/ na Ji. ‘The cloth. Ali was covered with it by Ji.’)

Ali/ finishilaa nguwo/ usooni/ na Ji. ‘Ali’s face was covered with a cloth by Ji.’

Ali/ finishila uso/ nguwo/ na Ji. ‘Ali’s face was covered with a cloth by Ji.’

Ali/ usowe/ ufinishilaa nguwo/ na Ji. ‘Ali’s face was covered with a cloth by Ji.’

Mwaana/ finishila buraangeeti. ‘The child was covered with a blanket.’ (Note that it is ungrammatical to have the entity used to cover something as the subject of the passive verb: Buraangeeti/ ifinishila mwaana. ‘The blanket was used to cover the child.’)

Mwaana/ finishila ka maburaangeeti. ‘The child was covered with blankets.’

Nguwo/ ifinishila na Ali. ‘A cloth was covered (over himself) by Ali.’

(Note that nguwo can be the subject of the passive verb when the verb is referring to someone covering himself with a cloth. It does not seem to be possible, however, to localize the covering to a particular part of the body: Nguwo/ ifinishila uso(oni)/ na Ali.

‘The cloth was covered over his face by Ali.’ A possessed body part may possibly be the passive subject: Usoowe/ ufinishilaa nguwo/ na Ali. ‘His (i.e. Ali’s) face was covered with a cloth by Ali.’ MI did not accept the bare noun: Uso/ ufinishilaa nguwo/ na Ali. ‘The face was covered with a cloth by Ali.’)

Nt^hi/ ifinishila na maayi. ‘The ground was covered by water.’

Sufuriya/ ifinishila ka chijamu. ‘The pot was covered with a plate.’

rel. nom.

m-finiko (mi-) n. 3/4 lid, cover mfiniko wa sufuriya ‘cover of a pot’

u-finiko n. 14 act of covering sh-finiko (s-)

n. 7/8 lid, cover, cork, stopper

Chizeele/ icho/ chivaliko sh^tukiile/ shkapu/ cha shfiniko. ‘That old woman was carrying a basket with a cover.’

Jaama/ iletelele sufuriya iyi/ shfiniko. ‘Jama brought a lid for this pan.’

khalamu/ na shfiniko ‘a pen and pen cover’; khalamu/ na sfiniko ‘pens and pen covers’ khalamu/ na shfinikoché ‘a pen and its cover’; khalamu/ na sfinikozé ‘pens and their covers’ shfiniko chaa nt^hupa ‘cork’

rel.

i-finiko (mi-) n. 5/4 lid sufuriya/ na ifiniko ‘a pot and a lid’; sufuriya/ na mifiniko ‘pots and lids’ sufuriya/ na ifinikoyé ‘a pot and its lid’; sufuriya/ na mifinikoyé ‘pots and their lids’ fiqhi

n. Islamic jurisprudence

Ichiwaa we/ nayo haaja/ ya kiwa sababu ya nama ya khanziiri/ ifanyiliza haraamu/ ka islaamu/ soma zuwo za fiqhi. ‘If you have a need to know why pork was forbidden to Muslims, read books of Islamic jurisprudence.’

fir’ooni

n. [Ar. fir’aun W 707] pharaoh

- Chimuuló/ ni muunt^hu/ apo/ chimamulaṭo shu'uni zaa nṭhi/ siwo/ fir'ooni/ nafiye. 'The one who bought him (i.e. Joseph) was a man there (in Egypt) who took care of the affairs of the country, it was not Pharaoh himself.'
- Kula mtume/ nayo fir'ooni. 'Every prophet has a pharaoh.' (A proverb.)
- m-firaado* (wa-) n. 1/2 someone who has one Bajuni parent and one Somali parent
- firaashi* (ma-) n. [Sw. firashi "bed coverlet, quilt" SSED 97; Ar. firāš W 705; Som. firaash "bed, any place to be slept on" DSI 231] anything slept on -- a bed, sleeping bag (apparently the usage from Somali is most pertinent to this word's use in Chimiini)
- Lele bilaa firaashi. 'He slept without any bedding.'
- waladuḷ firaashi (lit. sleeping material child) a child born unlawfully, as the mother and father did not marry according to the religion'
- rel.
i-firaashi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-firaashi (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- Firdowsi* n.
Hasani peete mash'ada/ karka Firdowsi maq'ada [st.] 'But Hasani got martyrdom and a seat in Firdous.'
- kh-firgisha* v. [Som. firdhi DSI 231 – perhaps the consonantal difference reflects a source in a non-standard Somali dialect] (firgishiize) throw things (all over the surrounding area), scatter things (as someone who is angry)
- Ye/ firgishizee geḷe. 'He scattered corn.'
- rel. nom.
ma-firgisho n. 6
u-firgisho n. 14
- firiimbi* n. [Som. firimbi DSI 232] a whistle (the instrument)
- kubiga firiiimbi 'to whistle (using the instrument)'
- rel.
i-firiimbi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-firiimbi (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- firkha* n. difference
- Firkha/ mabena Hamadi/ na Nuurú/ kana/ nṭhi/ na kuzimú. 'The difference between Hamadi and Nuuru is like earth and sky.'
- fiishi* (mi-) n. a kind of fish (the name refers to the area of calm waters right where the waves stop, where this fish is found), type unknown
- fishi iyi 'this sp. fish'; mifishi aya 'these fish'
- kh-fisida* v. [Ar. fasada W 712] (fisidiile) spoil, corrupt
- khfisida maali 'to squander money'
- Jeeli/ fisidile peesa. 'Jeeli squandered money.'
- Mwana wa sulṭaani/ ṭawaḷiḷopó/ chaanza/ ye/ na mweenzawé/ mwana wa waziri mkulu/ khṭeleza maali/ na kiyafisidá. 'When the sultan's son assumed authority, he and his friend, the prime minister's son, started to waste and squander the wealth he had inherited.' (Note that an infinitive preceded by the na conjunct is assigned final accent, reflecting the fact that infinitives are nouns in Chimiini. Also note that the infinitive prefix ku is altered to ki in front of the [cl.6] object prefix ya.)
- rel.
kh-fisidika v. p/s.

- kh-fisidisha* v. caus. (fisidishiize) cause to squander
Hasani/ mfidishize mwaana/ peesa. ‘Hasani caused the child to squander money.’
Wachihada/ wallahi / ni/ nna’iwá/ kuwaa si/ nt^hashkuuya/ khfisidishaa dali/ walá/ si/ siwo/ want^hu hubooló. ‘They said, by Allah! you (pl.) know that we did not come to spread corruption in the country nor are we people who commit robbery.’
- kh-fisidishika* v. caus. p/s.
kh-fisidishiliza v. caus. appl. (-fisidishiliize) cause s.o. (on/related to s.o.) to squander Hasani/ mfidishilize Nuuru/ mwaana/ peesa. ‘Hasani caused Nuuru’s child to squander money.’
kh-fisidishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- u-fisqi* n. 14 corruption, scandal; usu. pron. ufiskhi
Umi/ mwambile Haawa/ akh!/ laṭa khkoḍa mijawabu ayo/ ufiskhi. ‘Umi told Haawa: akh! Stop talking those talks of bad things.’
- fiṭi* n. 9/10 [Som. fiid DSI 227] blossom, flower fiṭi iyi ‘this blossom’ (cf. fiṭi izi ‘these blossoms’) fiṭi za mṭume ‘[lit.] blossoms of the Prophet – a very sweet fruit that was already disappearing prior to the resettlement of ethnic Somalis in Brava in the 1970’s and the civil war’ khtomola fiṭi ‘to blossom’
Mukhtaa muti/ wa nt^heendre/ wanzizo khtomola fiṭi/ waana/ wafakeete/ ka wawa yaawo/ wachimpa/ khabari. ‘When the date trees began to blossom, the children ran to their father and gave him the news.’
- rel.
i-fiṭi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-fiṭi (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- fiṭina* n. [Sw. fitina SSED 97; Ar. fitna W 696] discord, friction, antagonism; a report designed to produce discord; the source of discord; variant form: fiṭna fiṭina na kiḍbu zotte haraamu [st.] ‘creating discord and lies are all forbidden’ khfanya fiṭna ‘to create discord’ Omari/ hupeenda/ khfanya fiṭina/ kulanya waant^hu. ‘Omari likes to sow discord among people, causing people to fight.’
khtila fiṭina ‘to cause strife between people’ Hasani/ tile fiṭna/ lanyize waant^hu/ washpeendanó. ‘Omari sowed discord and made people who love one another fight.’
- rel.
khtilila fiṭna ‘to create discord with s.o.’
Sku mooyi/ waant^hu/ wachimtilila fiṭina/ ka Harun Rashiidi. ‘One day people created discord between him and Haruun Rashiidi.’
khtilowa fiṭna ‘for discord to be sowed between people’ Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ khtilowa fiṭina. ‘It is not good for discord to be sowed among people.’
munt^hu mwenye fiṭna ‘a person who creates discord’
- fiṭiri* n. [Sw. fitiri SSED 97; Ar. fiṭr "fast breaking" and sadaqat al-fiṭr "almsgiving at the end of Ramadhan" W 719] fixed quantity of maize (or equivalent value) that the head of a family has to distribute to the poor at the end of Ramadhan for himself and each family member khtomola fiṭiri ‘to distribute alms at the end of Ramadhan’
- kh-fiṭina* v. [Ar. fatana “to inform against s.o.” W 695] (fiṭiniile) report s.t. about s.o. with the intention of causing friction, discord; spoil, corrupt

	Chiza khfaanya/ yaa mi/ nnakhṭulubo kaakó/ nt^hakhufiṭina/ ka muḥjiwa. ‘If you refuse to do what I ask from you, I will report you to my husband.’ Nfiṭinile ka waawe. ‘He told my father about me (hoping to cause discord between my father and me).’ We/ nakhfiṭina waaná. ‘You are spoiling children.’ rel. kh-fiṭinika v. p/s. (fiṭinishile) be spoiled kh-fiṭinila v. appl. (fiṭiniliile)
kh-fiṭiṣha	v. [Ar. fattaṣa W 694] (fiṭiṣhiize) inspect, search someone Watumila ma’askari/ khfiṭiṣha nuumba. ‘The police have been sent to search the house.’ rel. m-fiṭiṣha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who searches for Chiboorsacha/ chiboozela/ na wafiṭiṣha ziwovu. ‘My purse has been stolen by pickpockets.’ m-fiṭiṣho n. 3
fiṭnoole	n. someone who causes problems, makes people fight Fiṭnoole/ ha’ambiloowi/ chiint^hu. ‘One who creates discord among people is not told anything.’ (A proverb.)
fiyeera	n. [Ital.] fair (This Italian borrowing is used more commonly than the Arabic borrowing ma’araḍi.) Nakenrda fiyeerá/ Mkhodiishó. ‘I am going to the fair in Mogadishu.’ (At an earlier time in Somali history, there was an international fair that was held in Mogadishu and people in Brava might travel to Mogadishu to attend it.)
fiyoore	n. [Ital. fiore] flower (nowadays this word is more used in Chimiini than the older word i-luwa)
kh-foofaṭa	v. [Som. foof DSI 233] (-fofeete) go to graze Ngoombe/ sfofeete. ‘The cattle went to graze.’ rel. kh-foofiṣha v. cause (Phon. Observe that the causative suffix ish does not lower to esh after a mid vowel in this example, contrary to the usual situation. The failure to get *khfoofesha would seem to be connected to the fact that the stem is /foofaṭ/ and the vowel a is not one that would lower a following high vowel.) Mloojiri/ fofishize ngoombe. ‘The cattle-herder took the cattle to graze.’
fooji	n. 9/10 [Som. foori DSI 235, but foodhi in Northern Somali; we do not know whether there is an additional dialectal variant where the consonant j occurs] whistle (using lips) Fooji/ masku/ ha’ibigoowi/ huviḷa majini. ‘Whistling at night is not done; it calls jinns.’ kubiga fooji ‘to whistle’ rel. i-fooji (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. sh-fooji (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
sh-foko (s-)	n. 7/8 [?? connected to Sw. fua “to beat” SSED 98] bruise (of a fruit); a small wound about to heal
fontaana	n. [Ital. fontana] (ornamental) fountain rel. i-fontaana (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. sh-fontaana (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

foorōa	n. [Sw. forodha SSED 98; Ar. furda “seaport, small port town” W 706] port Baskiili/ Miini/ schajirishowa forōaani. ‘Bicycles were rented in Brava at the port.’ Khamaari/ ishtëzowa forōaani. ‘Gambling was played at the port.’
foore	n. [?Ital. fuori “outside”] term used by fishermen to point the fishing bays outside the town that are scattered to the north and south of Brava
foore	in the expression: khtila foore ‘to win over s.o.’ (cf. Sw. tia fora “to win in a game, or succeed in an undertaking, i.e. a particular task of work” SSED 98; cf. Sw. verb fora “beat, get the better of, succeed, used in games of cards, etc., and work” SSED 98) Omari/ mtile Ali/ foore/ niingi. ‘Omari won against Ali many times in cards, dominos, etc.’
foorno	n. [Ital. forno] oven, bakery fornooni ‘in the oven’ mazu ya foorno ‘bananas that were dried under the sun or in an oven, fried bananas’
kh-foorooraṭa	v. [presumably from a Somali dialect, but not found in Standard Somali] (-fororeṭe) walk in line (as of cattle going along a path to be grazed) Ngoombe/ sforeeṭe. ‘The cattle moved along the path in a line.’
fooza	n. [Ar. fauz W 732] success, victory; passing an examination variant form: foozi, fowza fowza nda muuntʰu enzelo Madiina [st.] ‘successful (in their pilgrimage) is the one who goes to Medina’ fooza nda muuntʰu ingilo janaani ‘[st.] success belongs to the man who enters heaven’
frijideeri	n. 9/10 [cf. Fr. frigidaire , which was formerly used in Ital.; cf. Som. frijideeri DSI 232] refrigerator
mu-fsidi	adj., n. [Ar. fasada W 712] wicked, depraved; corruptor, perverter
mu-fti (wa-)	n. 1/2 [Ar. muftin W 696] someone who is recognized as an authority on a particular subject (e.g. an authority on Islamic studies) (Note that the plural form indicates that the singular form borrowed from Arabic has been reanalyzed into a prefix mu and a stem -fti .)
chi-fu (zi-)	n. 7/8 [Sw. kifu , var. kefu “a sufficient quantity, abundance” SSED 190, where an example similar to Chimiini is given: amekula kifu yake “he has eaten his fill” is given; Ar. kafū “to be sufficient” W 834] gizzard, stomach?? Ile/ yezeze chifuuche/ oloshole. ‘He came, filled up his stomach, and left.’ Ile/ yezeze chifuuche/oloshole. ‘He came, filled up his stomach, and left.’
fud	ideo. Abú/ ile numbaani/ ka Ali/ ntʰakhkalaantʰa/ ba/ paapo/ ba/ fud!/ hadiiló/ tozeḷaa kati. ‘Abu came to Ali’s house, he never sat down, immediately fud! he said (i.e. he was gone), (lit.) he was lost in the middle (i.e. he couldn’t be found).’ Mwenye/ tukile nyaanya/ ka ba’a/ yimo ntʰuundrú/ ye/ ntʰakiiwa/ nyaanya/ niingi/ sfutushiló/ fud fud fud!/ bila/ yaa ye/ kiiwa. ‘Menye carried tomatoes in a plastic bag with a hole in it, which he did not know, a lot of tomatoes fell out, fud fud fud! without him knowing.’
fuḍuuli (ma-)	adj. [Ar. fudūlī W 718] intruder, busybody, foulmouthed, insulting, insolent (most commonly used to describe someone who meddles in other people’s business)

- Laakini/ Abunawaasi/ waliko muunt^hu/ fuðuuli. ‘But Abunawaasi was an insolent man.’
- Omari/ na Hamadí/ ni (ma)fuðuuli. ‘Omari and Hamadi are meddlesome people.’
- Omari/ ni fuðuuli. ‘Omari is a meddlesome man.’
- Want^hu awa/ ni (ma)fuðuuli. ‘These people are meddlesome people.’
- rel.
- u-fuðuuli n. 14 meddling, misbehaving by getting involved in s.t. that is not your business
- Jawaabu/ haykhukusi/ chiint^hú/ hayingiloowi (siingilé)/ ufuðuuli. ‘A matter that does not concern you at all, you should not get involved (or: don’t get involved) in it; it is meddlesome behavior.’
- kh-fuðuulika v. [cf. Ar. fuḍūl “officiousness. meddling” W 718] (fuḍulishile) speak ill of someone, speak derogatorily
- Hasani/fuḍulishile. ‘Hasani used derogatory words.’
- rel.
- kh-fuḍulikila v. appl. (-fuḍulikilīle) speak derogatorily to someone
- Nuuru/ mfuḍulikilīle Ali. ‘Nuuru spoke derogatorily to Ali.’
- kh-fuḍuulisha v. caus. (-fuḍulishiize) provoke someone into acting by speaking ill of him
- Nfuḍulishiize. ‘He provoked me by speaking ill of me (insulting me, dishonoring me, etc.)’
- kh-fuḍulishanya v. caus. rec.
- kh-fuḍulishika v. caus. p/s.
- Omari/ hafuḍulishiki. ‘Omari cannot be provoked (e.g. he is patient, does not react violently to derogatory words spoken to him).’
- kh-fuḍulishiliza v. caus. appl.
- kh-fuḍulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- kh-fuufila v. [probably connected to Som. faafi “to spread” DSI 209] sprinkle water on something
- rel.
- kh-fufiḷoowa v. pass.
- mane ya mwiimbili hufufiḷoowa/ iluke maayi yo hu’ aminoowa [st.] ‘(anything that has on it) the urine of a boy (should) be sprinkled with water, over it (i.e. the unclean thing) water should be spread’
- kh-fuufula v. [Sw. fufua SSED 99] (fufiile) raise someone from the dead; ferret out information; variant form: khfufula
- rel.
- kh-fufuḷoowa v. pass. (fufiila) be resurrected
- Keesho/ aakhera/ waant^hu/ wote/ watakhhufufuḷoowa. ‘Tomorrow in the hereafter all people will be resurrected.’
- kh-fufulika v. p/s.
- kh-fufulisha v. caus.
- kh-fufulishanya v. caus. rec.
- kh-fufulishiliza v. caus. appl.
- kh-fufulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- kh-fufuza v. caus.
- kh-fufuzika v. caus. p/s.
- kh-fufunuka v. [Probably connected to Sw. funuka “be uncovered” SSED 106] (fufunushile) be uncovered, be clear, intelligent
- rel.
- kh-fufuunsa v. try to discover a secret, a scandal
- Ni ḍambi/ khfufunsa ebu za waant^hu. ‘It is a crime to try to discover people’s vices.’
- kh-fufunukila v. appl.
- Khabari/ zinfunukilīle. ‘The news became clear to me.’

- kh-fufunulila* v. appl. (fufunuliile) fill in the details to, for s.o.
Nimfufuniliile maambó/ yotté. ‘I filled in the details of the affair for her.’
- kh-fufuniliiloowa* v. appl. pass. (fufuniliila)
Ali/ fufuniliila khabari/ naaye. ‘Ali received the news from her.’
- kh-fufunuloowa* v. pass. (fufuniila)
Khabari/ sfufuniila na Hamadi. ‘The details of the newa were revealed by Hamadi.’
- kh-fufunula* v. (fufuniile) reveal something hidden, uncover, investigate; elaborate the details of variant form: khfufunila khfufunula khabari ‘to elaborate the news, add more details, fill in the details’ Hamadi/ fufunile khabari. ‘Hamadi uncovered the details of the news.’
- rel. nom.
m-fufuunsi (wa-) n. 1/2 someone who tries to discover secrets, scandals u-fufuunsi n. 14 the act of trying to discover secrets
- i-fuga* (mi-) n. homosexual (particularly of a male homosexual who is a “bottom” in the homosexual act)
Oyo/ ni ifuga. ‘That one is a “bottom” (in homosexual intercourse).’
- kh-fuga* v. [?cf. Sw. fuga “to tame, domesticate” SSED 100] (fugiile) have anal sex (of homosexual) Omari/ mfugile Haadi. ‘Omari fucked Haadi.’
- ma-fujaari* adj. [Ar. fujār, plural of fājir “profligate, shameless, liar” W p. 697+ plural prefix ma-]
simama Ali kuula ḍulfikaari / unazime mulo wa mafujaari [st.] ‘rise, Ali, draw your sword, so that the fire of the profligate be extinguished’ (Note that Ali’s sword was called ḍulfikaari.)
- u-fuuju* n. nonsense
Waant^u/ wiingi/ humkahaṭa Omari/ ka khisa/ ṭabi’aye/ khkoḍa ufuuju. ‘Many people hate Omari because of his habit of talking nonsense.’
- fuk* ideo. of spilling out of a liquid
Mafta/ yaṭa(w)anyishile/ nt^uupaani/ fuk! ‘Oil is spilling from the bottle fuk!’
- kh-fukhsaṭa* v. [Som. fuuqso “to sip noisily” DSI 239] (fukhseeṭe) sip noisily
- l-fuko* (mi-) n. 11/4 [Sw. ufuko SSED 409] a hole in underwater rocks; a hole dug within the grave, the exact size of the dead person
- m-fuko* (mi-) n. 3/4 [Sw. mfuko SSED 276] pocket, cloth bag (as opposed to a leather or plastic bag) khila peesa/ mfukooni ‘to put money in a pocket’ mfuku mkulu ‘a big pocket’
Mfukuwe/ ha’uyeli. ‘His pocket does not get filled.’
mfuko wa peesa ‘a pocket for money’
- fulkheeri* [probably from the Ar. expression fi l-kairi] in the expression:
ka kheeri/ ka fulkheeri ‘with blessings and in blessings’
Waliko mwanamke mooyi/ na mwamubji mooyi/ walozeenye/ ka kheeri/ ka fulkheeri. ‘There was a girl and a boy and they married each other with blessings and in blessings.’
- fuula* n. [etymology uncertain] merry-go-round

rel.
i-fuula (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-fuula (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

kh-fula

v. [Sw. fua SSED 98] (fuzile) forge, do metalworking khfula ðahabu ‘to work gold’

Fuzile shpete cha ðahabu. ‘He forged a ring of gold.’

kubarata khfula ðahabu/ na feða ‘to learn to forge gold and silver’

Mfuzi/ nakhfula ðahabu. ‘A smith works gold.’

khula feða ‘to work silver’

rel.

kh-fuliila v. appl.

Baana/ nfuliile shpete. ‘Baana forged for me a ring.’

Mfuzi/ nakunfuliila shpete. ‘The blacksmith is forging me a ring.’

Muke/ chooloka/ chimpa mfuzi/ shilingi khamsiini/ izo/ kumfuliila shkooya. ‘The woman went and gave a blacksmith those fifty shillings to forge a necklace for her.’

rel. nom.

m-fula (wa-) n. 1/2 smith

mfula ðahabu ‘one who works gold, goldsmith’

kh-fula

v. (fuzile) wash (clothes, not other things like dishes or the body, where k-oosha is used)

Fuzilee nguwo/ ka saabuni. ‘He washed clothes with soap.’

Haliima/ nakhfulaa nguwo/ ka oomo. ‘Haliima washed the clothes with detergent.’

Mfuzile mweenzawe/ mwanishile. ‘(Lit.) he washed his friend and put him in the sun to dry – i.e. he insulted his friend and called him names.’

Naani/ hufuloo nguwo/ jisa suurá. ‘Who washes clothes well?’ (A possible answer to this question: Tuuma/ hufuloo n-guwó/ jisa suurá. ‘Tuuma washes clothes well.’ Notice that the answer focuses on the subject, Tuuma, result the verb is put into pseudo-relative form.)

Tuuma/ hufulaa nguwo/ jisa suura. ‘Tuuma (habitually) washes clothes well.’ (In this sentence, jisa suura is part of the focus, as is revealed by the simple yes-no question: Tuuma/ hufulaa nguwo/ jisa suura? ‘Does Tuuma wash clothes well?’ If jisa suura were out of focus, it would shift its accent to the end in the simple yes-no question. In emphatic yes-no questions, accent-shift occurs in all VP phrases, independent of focus: Tuuma/ hufulaa nguwo/ jisa suurá!?

Tetee nguwo/ kifula. ‘He took clothes to wash them.’

rel.

kh-fuliila v. appl. (fuliile or fuliiliile) wash for, with Khaðija/ mfuliile maamaye/ nguwo. ‘Khaðija washed the clothes for her mother.’

kumfuliila nguwo ‘to wash clothes for me’

Muke/ wafuliile waana/ nguwo/ ka sabuuni. ‘The woman washed clothes for the children with soap.’ (Note that it is ungrammatical to omit the preposition ka from in front of sabuuni.)

Nfuliile (or: nfuliiliile) nguwo. ‘She washed clothes for me.’

Saabuni/ muke/ wafuliile waana/ nguwo. ‘Soap/ the woman washed clothes for the children with it.’ (Note that when the instrument is topicalized to the beginning of the sentence, it can occur in bare form given the fact that the verb is an applied verb, even though the applied verb is also serving to allow a bare beneficiary to occur. This “double duty” of the benefactive applied verb is possible only if the instrument is out of the clause where the beneficiary is located.)

sabuni sfuliila waaná/ nguwo... ‘the soap that was used to wash the children’s clothes for them...’

Uzile saabuni/ khfuliila nguwo. ‘She bought soap to wash clothes with.’

kh-fuliloowa v. appl. pass. (fuliila)

Nakhsula khfulilowaa nguwo. ‘He wants clothes to be washed for him.’
Saabuni/ ifulilaa nguwo. ‘Soap was used to wash the clothes.’
Waana/ wafulilaa nguwo/ ka saabuni. ‘The children had their clothes washed for them with soap.’ (Note that the preposition ka is obligatory in this context. However, it is also possible to have Saabuni/ sfulila waana/ nguwo. ‘Soap was used to wash clothes for the children.’)

kh-fuloowa v. pass. (-fuzila)

Ifuzila. ‘It [cl.9] was washed.’

Nguwo/ ha’ifuloowi/ yo/ iveeta. ‘A piece of clothing is not washed when it is being worn.’ (A proverb, conveying the idea that things should be done at the appropriate time.)

rel. nom.

m-fula (wa-) n. 1/2 one who washes mfulaa nguwo ‘one who washes clothes’

fulaana

n. 9/10 [Sw. fulani SSED 101, where a possible source in Eng. flannel is suggested] undershirt, tee-shirt, sweater

fulana ya bardi ‘sweater’ (cf. fulana za bardi ‘sweaters’) fulaana/ ya mikono zigobe ‘a short-sleeved sweater’

Ali/ vete fulaana/ ya mikono zigobe. ‘Ali wore a short-sleeved sweater.’

fulaana/ ya mikonoo mile ‘sweater with long sleeves’

Wakhti/ wa bardi/ suura/ kuvalowa fulaana/ ya mikonoo mile/ hureba bardi. ‘During cold times it is good to wear a long-sleeved sweater (because) it stops the cold.’

fulana ya mpiira ‘(sports) jersey’ (cf. fulana za mpiira ‘(sport) jerseys’) fulana ya sansamaaniko ‘vest’ (cf. fulana za sansamaaniko ‘vests’) fulana ya suufi ‘cotton tee-shirt’ (cf. fulana za suufi ‘cotton tee-shirts’) fulana ya waana ‘children’s undershirt’ (cf. fulana za waana ‘children’s undershirts’) fulana zaa wake ‘women’s sweaters’

Ali/ lesele fulana zaa wake/ Mkhodiisho/ kuuza. ‘Ali brought women’s sweaters from Mogadisho to sell.’

rel.

sh-fulaana (s-) n. 7/8 dim. (disparaging use)

Shfulana gani/ icho. ‘What kind of shfulaana is that (indicating that in fact it is not a good one)?’

fulaani

n. [Sw. fulani SSED 101; Ar. fulān W 727] so-and-so

E/ we/ bwaana/ sku fulaani/ chendra numbaani/ kaako/ langala/ ilu. ‘O, you, master, on such-and-such a day, if you go to your home, look up.’

Muntu fulaani/ nakuhada/ duniyaani/ nt’aku/ zeema. ‘So-and-so says on earth there is no goodness.’

Muti oyo/ mbwa muuntu/ fulaani. ‘That tree belongs to so-and-so.’

kh-fuulata

v. [Som. fuli “to execute, to bring to completion” DSI 236, but note the difference in vowel length] (fuleete) succeed, get along well economically

Ye/ jisaa ye/ nakudaalaató/ takhfuulata. ‘The way that he is trying, he will succeed.’ check 1

kh-fuulisha

v. caus. [Som. fuli “to execute, to bring to completion” DSI 236, but note the difference in vowel length] carry out, keep a promise, fulfill a promise

Amri yaa mi/ mp^heelá/ na sultaani/ siwo/ yaa mi/ hukhadiro khfuulishá. ‘The order that I was given by the king is not one that I am able to carry out.’

khfulisha ahdi ‘to keep a promise’

Ahdi iyi/ nt^haki’ifuulisha. ‘This promise, I will fulfill it.’

Muuntu/ oyo/ iize/ khfuulisha/ ahdi/ yaa ye/ teeto. ‘But that man refused to keep the promise that he made [lit. took].’

khfulisha amri ‘to carry out, execute, implement an order’

- khfulisha bałani ‘to carry out a promise’
Ma’askari/ wachoondroka/ keendra/ khfulisha amri/ yaa wo/ wapeelá. ‘The soldiers left to go and carry out the order that they were given.’
Muunt^hu/ shtala bałani/ hufulisha ka hima. ‘If one makes a promise, he must fulfill it quickly.’ (A saying.)
Siyó/ namayó/ mi/ nfulishiizé/ ahdiya. ‘I fulfilled my promise.’
rel.
kh-fulishiliza v. caus. appl.
kh-fulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
kh-fulishoowa v. pass.
Bałani/ ni waajibu/ khfulishoowa. ‘A promise must be implemented, executed.’
Laazimu/ amri ya sulṭaani/ khfulishoowa. ‘The king’s order must be executed, implemented.’
- kh-fuuliza* v. [cf. Sw. fuliza ‘keep on at, hammer at, cause to hammer or keep on, continue doing -- in a general sense, quicken, hasten’ SSED 98] (fuliize) frequent a place; also used as a synonym of kh-fuulisha= keep a promise ahdi ya we teeto, mbona iize khfuuliza, na karka duniya, peenzele we kundriza [song] ‘the promise you made (lit. took), how come you refused to keep (it), and in (this) world, you liked to make me cry’
- kh-fululiza* v. [Sw. fululiza SSED 98] (fululiize) do s.t. continuously, often Alaani/ miyaaka/ saba/ fululizaani/ na yaa ni/ nt^hakhshafó/ laṭaani/ karka ziskize/ sho kuwa habamó/ yaa ni/ nt^haakujó. ‘Plant for seven years successively and what you will plant, let it remain in its cobs, except for a little that you will eat.’
Fululize kuuya. ‘He came often.’
sku izi/ yena nakhfululiza ka... ‘these days he is seen frequenting...’
rel. nom.
m-fululizo n. [Sw. mfululizo (mi-)] one after the other, in succession Wazeelewa/ wafile (ka) mfululizo. ‘My parents died one after the other.’
- fulusi* (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw. fulusi SSED 101] a type of fish (Although MI used the form fulusi for this fish, a more recent consultant says that this fish is called abluusi in Chimiini and that fulusi is the name in the rest of the Benadir and among the Bajuni.)
fulusi uyu ‘this fish’; fulusi izi or mafulusi aya ‘these fish’
rel.
i-fulusi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
sh-fulusi (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- kh-fuma* v. [Sw. fuma SSED 101] (fumiile) weave Hufumaa nguwo. ‘They weave clothes.’
nguwo za khfuma ‘locally woven clothes’
rel.
kh-fumika v. p/s.
kh-fumila v. appl.
Ali/ mfumilile mweenzawe/ chiguwo. ‘Ali weaved for his friend a chiguwo.’ kh-fumisha v. caus.
kh-fumishanya v. caus. rec.
kh-fumishika v. caus. p/s.
kh-fumishiliza v. caus. appl.
kh-fumishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
kh-fumuka v. (-fumushile) be(come) unravelled, unstitched
Ile/ fumushile/ zotte/ zaa ye/ wanaazó. ‘He came and spoke out all that he had (with him).’
Mashomo/ yafumushile. ‘The sewing has become unstitched.’
kh-fumulila v. appl. (fumulile)

kh-fumuloowa v. pass. (-fumiila) kh-fumula v. tr. (fumiile) unravel, unroll kh-fumulika v. tr. p/s.
kh-fumulisha v. tr. caus.
kh-fumulishanya v. tr. caus. rec.
kh-fumulishika v. tr. caus. p/s.
kh-fumulishiliza v. tr. caus. appl.
kh-fumulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

- kh-fuma* v. [Sw. fuma Sac 229, where the verb is identified as being found in Kiamu and Kigunya dialects, the northernmost dialects of Sw. and thus those closest geographically to Brava] (ya-fumiile) be at low tide (opposite of ku-yela 'to be at full or high tide')
Maayi/ tawala/ keesho/ yatakufuma. 'Water at sea tomorrow will be at low tide.'
Maayi/ yachiyela/ fuungu/ iyo/ hayiwonekani/ maayi/ yashfuma fuungu/ iyo/ huõihira. 'When the water is at high tide, that sandbank is not visible; when the water ebbs, that sand bar appears.'
Maayi/ ya tawala/ yafumiile. 'The sea water has become at low tide.'
Maayi/ yafumiile/ tawala. 'The water has ebbed in the sea.' (Note that the noun tawala, which is used as a locative here, never takes the locative suffix: tawalaani*.)
Tawala/ ichiyela/ hufuma. 'If the sea is at high tide, it ebbs.' (A proverb.)
We/ ile/ maayi/ yafumiiló. 'You came too late to get anything (lit. you have come when the water has already ebbed).'
- m-fumaa jima* n. Saturday, the first day of the week Hamadi/ mkali/ khpataa nsi/ mfumaajima/ hawa/ yaliko bilhakhiikha/ mbovu/ Hamadi/ petee nsi/ nt^hatu/ tu/ mfumaajima. 'Hamadi is a very good fisherman. On Saturday, the weather was really bad. Hamadi just caught three fish on Saturday.'
Keesho/ ni mfumaa jima/ na Haliimá/ ha'endri/ skolaani. 'Tomorrow is Saturday and Haliima will not go to school.'
- fuumba* n. sp. fish
- m-fuumbi (mi-)* n. 3/4 [Sw. mfumbi "channel dug to carry away rain water" SSED 276] toilet stool; cesspool; drain leading to cesspool Kanaye/ hunuunk^ha/ kama mfuumbi. 'His mouth smells (bad) like a toilet stool.'
- sh-fuumbo (s-)* n. 7/8 [Sw. fumbo SSED 102] mystery, enigma
- sh-fuumbo (s-)* n. 7/8 [Sw. kifumbu SSED 103] a strainer made of plaited strands of grass, used to squeeze a mixture of coconut and hot water, straining out the ituuvi
- kh-fuumbula* v. [Sw. fumbua "reveal, disclose" SSED 102] (fumbiile) solve a mystery
- fume* adj. (cf. kh-fuma) at low tide mayi mafume 'water at low-tide'
- i-fumi (mi-)* n. 5/4 a chunky grey catfish with a white under side, usually not eaten and discarded
- i-fumo(mi-)* n. 5/4 [Sw. fumo SSED 102] spear
Ile ka chinumecha/ ka mafakaṭo/ kunbiga ifumo/ kunubla. 'He came from my back, running, to strike me with the spear and kill me.'
Mwaana/ shtala bundukhuye/ na ifumoyé/ chanza kishkila mlima. 'The boy took his gun and his spear and began to descend the hill.'
Mwaana/ tukile ifumo/ na lpaangá/ shishilee ndila. 'The boy carried a spear and a sword and took to the road.'
Ye/ tukile ifumo/ ndrashiize/ ka chinume. 'He carried a spear and followed behind'

me.’

- kh-funa* v. (funile) (This verb is not known to GM.)
na qabri ni nuumba ya kheeri na shari/ ka ya we funilo takhata ajri [st.]
‘and the grave is the house of good and evil, you will be rewarded according to what you did’ is the stem –funa??
- kh-fuundra* v. [Sw. funda SSED 103] advise, warn, teach Fuundra. ‘Warn! advise!’
Fundraani. ‘You (pl.) warn! advise!’
Sfundreeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t warn! advise!’
rel.
kh-fundrisha v. caus. teach Aduwi/ khufuundrisha/ mweenza/ khuzuulisha. ‘An enemy teaches you, a friend destroys you.’ (A proverb.)
kh-fundroowa v. pass. be warned, advised, taught Hafundrowi na maamayé/ humfundro Imweengú. ‘The one who is not taught by his mother is the one whom the world teaches.’ (A proverb.)
- fuundri* n. [Sw. fundi SSED 103] builder; skilled workman variant form: fuunzi
Fuunzi/ haawaki/ nuumbaye. ‘A builder does not build his (own) house.’ (A proverb which says that everyone learns from someone else.)
- kh-fuundrika* v. [Sw. fundika SSED 103] (fundrisha) wrap part of a cloth garment into a knot to hold money Sfundrikeni/ peesa. ‘You (pl.) don’t make a knot (in the cloth) for the money!’
- i-fuundo (ma-)* n. 5/6 [Sw. fundo SSED 103] knot
khfunga ifuundo ‘to tie a knot’
khfunga lkaambala/ ifuundo ‘to tie a knot in a rope’ khfungula ifuundo ‘to untie a knot’ kubigaa nguwo/ ifuundo ‘to tie a knot in a piece of cloth’ kuleleza ifuundo ‘to loosen a knot’ kuwaliza ifuundo ‘to tie a knot tightly’ luti/ la mafuundo ‘a knotty stick, i.e. one that is not smooth, but has knots in it’ Shfungula ifuundo. ‘He untied the knot.’
- kh-fuunga* v. [Sw. funga SSED 104] (fuunzile) close s.t.; tie up, imprison; fast anshuura fuunzilo Muusa na qoomuye [st.] ‘the one who fasted on anshuura was Muusa and his people’
Chimfunga mikono/ na miilú. ‘He tied her arms and legs.’
Fuunga. ‘Close it!’ Fungaani. ‘(Pl.) close it!’ Fungani mlaango. ‘Close the door!’ Sfungeeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t close it!’ Sfungeeni/ milaango. ‘(Pl.) don’t close the doors!’
Fungaani/ mikandra yiinu/ ariplaano/ inakuuluka. ‘Fasten your seat belts, the plane is taking off.’
Funzile maato. ‘He closed his eyes.’ Cf. Shfunzile maato yitú. ‘We closed our eyes.’ (In the second example, the second person past tense verb triggers final accent, which appears at the end of the verb phrase. If the complement is preposed, it does not manifest this final accent: Maato yitú/ shfunzilé. ‘Our eyes, we opened.’) khfunga bakhsha ‘to close, seal an envelope’ Omari/ funzile bakhsha/ ba’adi yaa yé/ khtilaa khati/ katiike/ yaa yé/ mwandikililo muñé/ Sheekhi. ‘Omari closed the envelope after he put the letter in it that he had written to his younger brother, Sheekhi.’
khfunga biyaashara ‘to purchase goods for the purpose of selling those goods elsewhere (as traders do in Brava, buying goods there and taking them to Kenya to sell, then buying other goods in Kenya and returning to Brava to sell them)’

Ali/ funzile biyaashara/ ya makala/ nt^haku/ muunt^hu/ mwiingine/ t^hakhadiro kuulá. ‘Ali monopolized (lit. closed) the trading of charcoal, no one else was able to buy charcoal (to take to sell elsewhere).’

khfunga chiloho ‘to tie a fish-hook to the line’

Wagarwa/ hufunga chaambo/ chilohooni/ khpatilaa nsi. ‘Fishermen tie bait to a hook to catch fish with it.’

khfunga eeði ‘to tighten’

Funzile eeði. ‘He tightened it.’

Huseeni/ wa’ambile mahamaali/ zoombo/ fungani eeði/ seendré/ kastaanyiká. ‘Huseen told the porters: tie the things tightly so that they will not spill out.’

khfunga habasaani ‘to imprison’ khfunga hisaabu ‘to settle accounts (in particular, want^hu wa Miini use a kind of charge system whereby at the beginning of the month the storekeeper is told to grant so much credit to a family (both in goods and cash), and at the end of the month one comes in to settle the account, going over the charges with the storekeeper and paying the bill off) khfunga ibaandra ‘to wrap and medicate a wound’

khfunga ifuundo ‘to tie a knot’

Haliima/ funzilee nguwo/ ifuundo. ‘Haliima tied a knot in the cloth.’

Omari/ tile zoombo/ sandukhuuni/ fuunzile/ ka lkaambala/ bishile ifuundo. ‘Omari put the things in a box and tied the box with a rope, and tied a knot (in the rope).’

khfunga jawaabu ‘to put a question to someone’

Mi/ takinfunga jawaabu. ‘I will put a question to you (pl.).’ (The first person singular subject prefix elides in various verb forms. In this example it elides in the future tense. If present, the pronunciation would have been mí) n-l^ha-ki-n-funga jawáabu). GM tends to drop the nasal, while MI preserved it in his speech.)

khfunga ka lkaambala ‘to tie with a rope’

Mfunzile na farasi/ ka lkaambala. ‘He tied him to the horse with a rope.’

khfunga kaa luzi ‘to tie with a thread’ khfungaa kana ‘to keep one’s mouth shut’

Funga kanayo. ‘Shut your mouth!’

khfunga lkaandra ‘to tighten the belt (either literally or figuratively, in the sense of economizing)’

Abuuyi/ surwaani/ ni nk^huluye/ inamleela/ shartⁱ/ khfunga lkaandra. ‘Abuuyi, the trousers are too big, they are hanging loose, he must wear a belt.’

Hamadi/ vete surwaani/ nakhfunga lkaandra. ‘Hamadi is wearing trousers, he is tightening the belt.’

khfunga mas’ala ‘to put a question (to s.o., esp. in the hopes that he will be unable to answer and thus be shown-up)’

Omari/ funzile want^hu/ mas’alá/ nk^huku/ kuna maayi/ kachiza kuna^la. ‘Omari posed a question to people: (how can it be possible for) a chicken to drink water and not urinate?’

khfunga maato ‘to bind eyes, blindfold’

Takhufunga maato. ‘I will bind/blindfold your eyes.’

We/ takunfunga maato. ‘You will bind my eyes.’ (In the speech of our first collaborator, MI, the prefix ku would be converted to ki in front of the first person singular object prefix, as well as all other object prefixes containing a palatal element.)

khfunga miimba ‘to close the stomach – i.e. endure, put up with’

Muunt^hu/ miimba/ ichimpataa dhibu/ laazimu/ khfunga miimbaye/ khsawarata. ‘When a person encounters

- hardship, he must close his stomach (i.e. endure it) and be patient.'
- khfunga mlaango 'to close the door'
Funzile mlaango. 'He closed the door.'
Shfunzile milaangó. 'We closed doors.'
- khfungaa mp^hula 'to hold the nose closed (either because of a bad smell or as an insult to s.o.)' Numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ inakunuunk^ha/ kana bakht̃i/ hatá/ t̃akhfungaa mp^hula. 'At Hamadi's house it was stinking like a corpse until you had to close your nose.'
- khfunga m(w)eenza 'to establish a friendship with s.o.'
Ka jis'iyó/ ye/ chimfunga mp^haamp^ha/ mooyi/ mweenza. 'In this way, he made one of the sharks his friend.'
Nfuye/ choondroka/ chimfunga mp^haamp^ha/ m(w)eenza/ na ichiwa/ kuwa humt̃iindila/ matuundra/ humlat̃il̃ila mp^haamp^ha/ napatee kuja. 'The monkey established a friendship with the shark and it became his habit to pick off fruit and throw them down to the shark to eat.'
- khfunga mzigo 'to pack a load, tie a load up, finish packing'
Mahamaali/ wanakhfunga mizigo/ khpakizowa gariini. 'The porters are packing up loads to put on the truck.'
- khfungaa ndila 'to close a road to traffic'
Ma'askari/ wafunzilee ndila/ holoko baghdaadi/ ziko rabsha. 'Soldiers closed the road that goes to Baghdadi, there are disturbances.'
- khfungaa nvula 'to be about to rain'
Ishfungaa nvula/ na ichaanza/ kunya. 'It started to show signs of rain and (then) it began to rain.'
Nvula/ ifuunzile. 'It is about to rain.'
- khfunga ramaḏaani 'to fast for the month of Ramadhan' Khfunga ramaḏaani/ ni waajibu. 'Fasting the month of Ramadhan is a must (for a Muslim).'
Omari/ ile Mw̃iini/ khfunga ramaḏaani/ na waanawe. 'Omari came to Miini to fast Ramadhan with his children.'
- khfunga ruuhu 'to do s.t. to get oneself arrested (e.g. betraying oneself by one's speech, actions, or simply by doing s.t. that is criminal and thus leads to one's arrest)'
Funzile ruuhuye. 'He did s.t. to lead to his arrest.'
- khfunga safari 'to prepare, pack for a trip'
Muunt^hu/ mooyi/ funzile safari/ kooloka/ muyi mwiingine. 'A man got ready to travel and go to another town.'
Shfunga safari/ chiruda ka wazelewe. 'He packed and returned to his parents.'
- khfunga su'aali 'to put a question to s.o.'
Alí/ hupeenda/ khfunga waant^hu/ su'aali. 'Ali likes to ask people questions.'
Nuuru/ mfunzile Alí/ su'aali/ mwambiile/ we/ nini/ chiza khfanya kaazi. 'Nuuru asked Ali a question, he said to him: why don't you work?'
- khfunga shtandrawili 'to set, pose a riddle' Shtandrawili/ mfuunzile/ walá/ siwo/ jawabuu nk^hulu. 'She posed a riddle to him, but it is not a big thing.'
- Naku'ufuungá. 'I am closing it.'
Nfunzile mlaangó/ ka khufulí. 'I locked the door with a lock.'
- Nakhsulá kumfunga/ illa/ oyo mwaana/ naakuḷa/ simfuungé/ simfuungé/ basi/ chimwaambila/ lawa ka apa. 'He [the sultan] wanted to arrest him [the poor boy] except that boy [the sultan's son] was crying: don't arrest him! don't arrest him! So he told him:

get away from here!’

Takhufungaa we/ takhufuungó. ‘I will tie you up (in place of the donkey), that’s what I will do.’ (This example is quite interesting. It involves what we call the “repeated verb” strategy for putting focus on a verb. Specifically, a copy of the verb form is made, but put into a relative clause form. The copy is to the right of the verb. There is, however, a strong constraint: the copy may not immediately follow the verb. In this example, the pronoun we ‘you’ is redundant, since the object marker kh establishes that the object is second person singular. But it is necessary for we to present if one wants to focus the verb by verb repetition.)

Shfunzile milaangó. ‘We closed the doors.’

sultaani/ funzilo ruuhuyé/ mikonó/ ka siṣilá ‘the sultan who tied his hands with chains’ (This example illustrates nicely how, in a true relative clause, the final accent required by the relative verb, surfaces on the final vowel of each phonological phrase in the relative verb phrase. Ruuhuye ‘oneself’, mikono ‘hands’, and siṣila ‘chains’ each stand at the end of a NP and thus also at the end of a phonological phrase.)

wa muusi shfuunga sku sitta fululiza [st.] ‘if you fast six days in the first month [of the year], make them successive days’

Wamfunzile Sultani Daraayi/ mutiini. ‘They tied Sultan Daraayi to a tree.’

Ye/ chimwambila mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ jisaa we/ mfunzilo mkuḷá/ Hasani/ naami/ nṯakhufunga jis’iyo. ‘He told the sultan’s daughter: just as you imprisoned my older brother Hasani, I also will imprison you in that way.’

Ye/ oyo mwaanawe/ illa/ humfuungi/ chimfuunga/ mwana uyu/ naami/ takuḷa ruuhuya. ‘He, that son of his (i.e. the sultan’s son) (said) you must not arrest him; if you arrest this boy, I will kill myself.’

rel.

kh-fungafuunga v. freq.

Chiwafunzilefunzilé/ wiizi. ‘We tied up the thieves.’

Omari/ nakhsaafira/ nakhfungafunga zoombo. ‘Omari is traveling, he is tying up his stuff.’

Wafunzilefunzile mizigo yaawo. ‘They packed up their luggage.’ (Morph: Observe that in the perfect form of the reduplicated verb, both parts of the stem add the perfect extension. One does not say: *wafungafuunzile.)

Wanfunzilenfunzile/ mi. ‘They tied me up.’ (Morph. Observe that the first person object prefix, which forms a prenasalized consonant with the initial consonant in the stem, appears in both parts of the reduplicated stem.)

Ye/ shfungafunga zoomboze/ choondroka. ‘He packed up his things and took off.’

Ye/ tosheze kuwa ndiyé/ siimba/ chimuḷa/ chimaliza/ chimfungafuunga/ ka nk^haambala/ chiya/ naaye/ muyiini. ‘He thought that it [the animal he saw] was the lion and he killed him and then he tied him up with ropes and went with him to town.’

kh-fungamana v. be entangled maduuri/ yafungameenó ‘a tangled, thick forest’

Ndruzi/ sfungameene. ‘The threads are entangled.’

kh-fuungana v. rec. tie one another khfungana mas’ala ‘to put questions to one another’

Mawiingu/ yafungeene. ‘The clouds are thick (lit. tied to one another).’

kh-fuunganya v. join one thing to another by tying khfunganyaa luzi ‘to join thread’ khfunganya mizigo ‘to tie loads on one another’ kh-funganyika v. able to be joined Ndruzi izi/ hasfunganyiki. ‘These threads cannot be tied.’

kh-funganoowa v. rec. pass.

Itakhfunganoowa. ‘[The players in the game] will bind one another’s [eyes shut] – [lit.] there will be binding of one another.’

kh-fuungika v. p/s. (-fungishile or fungikishile) able to be closed; closed

Hufungika. ‘It can be closed.’ (cf. Ha’ufuungiki. ‘It cannot be closed.’) khfungika eeḍi ‘to be very tight’

Mlango uyu/ hawfuungiki/ na waana. ‘This door cannot be closed by children.’ (Observe that the potential/stative form of the verb permits the use of na to mark the agent. This is one of the deep-seated connections between the potential/stative and the passive form of the verb.)

Mlaango/ ufungishile. ‘The door was able to be closed.’

kh-fungikafuungika v. freq. p/s.

Mnango uwu/ unakhfungikafuungika/ tu. ‘This door is just getting shut, locked [by itself, on its own].’

kh-fungikila v. p/s. appl. (-fungikiliile) close for Mlaango/ umfungikiliile. ‘The door closed for, on him.’

kh-fungikoowa v. p/s. pass. (-fungishiila)

Ifungishiila. ‘It is being closed, locked up.’

Shchifanya jawabu iyi/ itakhfungikoowa. ‘If we do this thing, we are going to be locked up.’

Shfanya jawabu iyo/ ha’ifungikoowi. ‘If you do that thing, it cannot be closed/ locked.’

Shfanya jawabu iyo/ hufungikoowa. ‘If you do that thing, it can be closed/ locked.’

kh-fuungila v. appl. (fungiliile) shut for, tie with, for Chimaliza/ rudaani/ mp^hate kinaambila/ sababu yaa mi/ nfungiliile ruuhuyá... ‘Then come back so that I may tell you the reason that I have tied myself up...’

Nfungiliile mlaangó/ khufuli. ‘I closed the door with a lock.’ Or: Khufuli/ nfungiliile mlaangó. (For MI it is not possible to include the instrument in the scope of a final-accent trigger: *Nfungiliile mlaangó/ khufuli. In the instrumental applied, the instrument is presupposed and not the focus. Thus our consultant MI considered the following to be ill-formed: *Nfungiliile khufuli/ mlaango. , as well as *Mlaango/ nfungiliile khufuli.)

Sultaani/ chamura makhaadimu/ kudarbisha zaakuja/ za safari/ na kumfungila mwanaamkewe/ zoombo/ zotte/ zaa muke/ wa sultaani. ‘The sultan ordered servants to prepare food for the trip and to pack for his daughter all the things that the wife of the sultan (would need).’

Wamfungiliile mlaango. ‘They closed the door for him.’

kh-fungilana v. appl. rec.

kh-fungisha v. caus. (fungishiize)

Khaliifu/ mfungishize Suufi/ mwaanawe/ miilu. ‘Khaliifu caused Suufi’s child to tie up his (own) legs.’

Khaliifu/ mfungishize Suufi/ ruuhuye/ miilu. ‘Khaliifu made Suufi tie up his (own) legs.’

Mfungishize mwaana/ mlaango. ‘He made the child shut the door.’

kh-fungishoowa v. caus. pass.

kh-fungoowa v. pass. (fuunzila) khfungowa habasaani ‘to be imprisoned’

Funzila miyezi mitatu. ‘He was imprisoned for three months.’

Muunt^hu/ shfungowa habasaani/ hafungoowi/ numbaani. ‘When one is imprisoned, he has not imprisoned in a house.’

Omari/ hokomeja khfungoowa/ habasaani/ miyaka ikumi. ‘Omari has been sentenced to prison for ten years.’

khfungowa hisaabu ‘for the accounts to be closed’

Leelo/ garachaani/inakhfungowa hisaabu/ ya mweezi. ‘Today at the garage the monthly accounts are being closed.’

Leelo/ hafisaani/ ka resdente/ inakhfungowa hisaabu/ ya mwaaka. ‘Today at the office of the district commissioner accounts for the year are being closed.’

khfungowa ibaandra ‘to be wrapped with a bandage’

Ali/ funzila ibaandra/ kuluuni/ hakhaadiri/ kiineendra. ‘Ali has a bandage wrapped around his leg (e.g. he has a wound on his leg), he is not able to walk.’

Ali/ funzila ibaandra/ kuluuni/ ipu/ imlaziilo. ‘Ali had a bandage wrapped around his leg, he had an infection.'

Khfungoowa/ itakanza keesho. 'Fasting begins tomorrow.'

khfungowa lkaandra 'for belts to be fastened'

Ariplanooni/ hufungowa lkaandra (or: mikaandra). 'On an airplane, seatbelts are fastened.'

khfungowa safari 'a journey to be prepared for'

Mwaana/ chendra markabuuni/ chamura khfungowa safari.

'The boy went to the ship and order that the journey be prepared.'

Mlaango/ ufuunzila. 'The door was closed.'

Mphana uyu/ naa ye/ funzila jarsi/ shingooni/ chingila naawo/mitundruuni. 'This rat with the bell tied around his neck entered (with the other rats) into the hole.'

mtume amuriile khfungoowa sku nt'atu [st.] the Prophet ordered three days to be fasted'

Mwanaamke/ chimvila/ Abunawaasi/ chimwambila ndo/ mbuzi/

hafungoowi/ jis'iyo. 'The girl called to Abunawaasi and said to him: come on, a sheep (in this example, mbuzi is shortened from mbuzi ya matako) is not tied in that way.'

Ni kanaye/ imfuunzilo. 'It is his mouth that sent him to prison.'

Nnakhsula Jaama/ khfungoowa. 'I want Jaama to be imprisoned.'

Nnakhtamaná/ kuwa Jaama/ fuunzila. 'I hope that Jaama is imprisoned.'

(Phon. The verb is focused in this example, and as a consequence the final accent triggered by the verb does not extend beyond the verb. If there were no focus on the verb, the pronunciation would be: Nnakhtamana kuwa Jaama/ fuunzila.)

Qaaði/ chaamura/ Safiya/ khfungoowa. 'The judge ordered Safiya to be imprisoned.'

Qalbiyo/ inakhfungoowa. 'Your heart is being locked (i.e. you are not showing feeling for my plight).'

Takhfungoowa/ dewé. 'Be warned, you will be jailed.'

Ye/ shfungoowa/ chilaṭowa apo/ naayé/ fuunzila/ bakayle/ chija ukiwe/ chimaliza/ shteka maayi/ choowa/ apo/ chiyolokela. 'He was tied up and left there, while he was tied, Hare ate his honey and then fetched water and took a bath there and left.'

kh-funguka v. rev. intr. (-fungushile or -fungukishile) variant form: khfungukika

Baaba/ maato/ yachimfunguka/ chiwa huwona. 'Father's eyes opened (to) him, it was then that he could see.'

Lpepo/ lyumiile/ laakini/ mlaangowa/ nt'awukhfunguka. 'The wind blew but my door did not open.'

Mkulu wa wizi arba'iini/ hadiile/ funguka/ simsimu. 'The chief of the forty thieves said: open, sesame.'

Mlaango/ ufungushile. 'The door was opened.'

Mlaango/ ufungukishile. 'The door was openable.'

Sandukhu iyi/ hufunguka ka lfungulo ili. 'This box can be opened with this key.'

kh-fungukila v.

Mlaango/ umfungukilile mwaana. 'The door opened for, on, to the child.'

kh-fungulila v. rev. appl. (funguliile) open for, with; tell

Baaba/ chimwambila khkalaant'a/ kumfungulila. 'Father told him to sit down and tell him about it.'

Hasiibu/ chimfungulila sulṭaani/ izije zimpeetó/ zotte. 'Hasiibu told the sultan all that had befallen him.'

kinfungulila laana/ ili 'to tell you (pl.) this story'

Mwanaamke/ mfungulile mwaalimu/ mlaango. 'The girl opened the door for the teacher.' (The applied verb conveys the notion that the action was done for the teacher, not because of the teacher. To convey the latter meaning, the simple verb would be used with a prepositional phrase like ka khisa mwaalimu.)

Ndro/ nfungulila mlaango. 'Come, open the door for me.'

Nfungulile mlaangó/ lfungulo. 'I opened the door with a key.' (Our data in connection with the instrumental applied is a bit unclear. The instrument often seems not to be allowed to appear in the post-verbal position, which is the position for a focused NP. However, in this example where the logical object is inanimate, our consultant accepted a focused instrument: Nfungulile lfuunguló/ mlaango. review as this contradicts a preceding remark in this section

Nfungulila mlaango/ mi/ niingile/ numbaani. ‘Open the door for me so that I may enter the house.’

Nimfungulile mwaalimú/ mlaangó/ ka lfuungulól. ‘I opened the door for the teacher with a key.’ (Syn. Given the presence of a beneficiary NP in post-verbal position, one cannot have a post-verbal instrument without a preposition: Nimfungulile mwaalimú/ mlaangó/ lfuungulól.)

Wafungulile waant^hu/ mlaango. ‘He opened the door for, to the people (e.g. assisted them, helped them to enter).’

kh-fungulilana v. rev. appl. rec.

Munt^hi mzima/ wo/ hufungulilana ndraano. ‘All day long they tell each other stories.’

kh-funguliloowa v. appl. pass. (funguliila) be opened for, with lfuungulo/ hufungulilowa sandukhu iyi. ‘This key is used to open this box.’

Mwaalimu/ fungulila mlaango/ na mwanaamke. ‘The teacher was opened for the door by the girl.’ Or with emphasis on the agent:

Mwaalimu/ fungulila na mwanaamke/ mlaango. ‘The teacher was opened for by the girl the door.’ (The beneficiary must be the subject of the benefactive applied verb, not the logical direct object out: Mlaango/ ufungulila mwaalimu/ na mwanaamke. ‘The door was opened for the teacher by the girl.’ It is possible, however, for mlaango to appear in what looks like the subject position, but it does not control the subject marker on the verb: Mlaango/ fungulila mwaalimu/ na mwanaamke. In this construction, the subject, mwaalimu, is put in IAV position and is phrased with the verb.)

Na kila chiloombapó/ we/ mlaango/ funguliloowa. ‘And whenever you ask for something may the door be opened for you.’

kh-funguloowa v. pass. (fungiila)

Chaamura/ wotte/ khfunguloowa. ‘He ordered all to be untied.’

khfungulowa ibaandra ‘for a bandage to be removed’

Ali/ mpeshele mwaanawe/ spitaleeni/ khfungulowa ibaandra.
‘Ali took his child to the hospital to get the bandage removed.’

Kula mlaango/ hufungulowa ka lfunguloje. ‘Every door is opened with its own key.’ (A proverb.)

Mboni/ unakuraaga/ wo/ khfunguloowa. ‘How come it is delayed to be opened (i.e. how come they are delaying opening it, e.g. a door)?’

Mlaango/ ufungila na mwanaamke/ ka khisa mwaalimu. ‘The door was opened by the girl for/because of the teacher.’ Or: Mlaango/ ufungila ka khisa mwaalimu/ na mwanaamke. ‘The door was opened for/ because of the teacher by the girl.’

Ndila/ ifungiila. ‘The door was opened to traffic.’

Nkhaambala/ sfungeene/ sharti/ khfunguloowa. ‘The ropes got closed (tangled) in each other, they must be untied/ opened.’

Nnafunguloowá/ isa/ laano/ la shitoloko. ‘Now I will tell the story of the little bean.’

Sandukhu iyi/ hufungulowa ka lfuungulo iyi (na Hamadi). ‘This box is opened (regularly) with this key (by Hamadi).’

kh-funguka v. (fungushile)

Sandukhu iyi/ hufunguka ka lfungulo ili. ‘This box opens with this key.’

kh-fungukila v. appl.

Mlaango/ umfungukiliile. ‘The door opened for him.’ (Observe that the applied verb here has a benefactive use; it is not possible to use this formation with an instrumental interpretation: Sandukhu iyi/ hu- fungukila ifuungulo ili. ‘This box opens with this key.’) kh-fuungula v. [Sw. fungua SSED 104] (fungiile) open, uncover, unfasten, untie; release from prison, set free Ali/ mfungile Iisa. ‘Ali untied Iisa.’

Askari/ mfungile mwiizi. ‘The policeman released the thief.’
Bwaana/ takhaadira/ we/ khfungula shtandrawili ichi? ‘Master, will you be able to solve this riddle?’ (This sentence is an example of a simple yes-no question. The final phrase exhibits the accent shift that affects out-of-focus elements in the VP.)
Choondroka/ shfungula mlaango/ kulangaḷa. ‘He got up and opened the door and took a look.’
Fungile mnaango. ‘He opened the door.’
Fungile sanduukhu. ‘He opened the box.’
Fungileleni/ miizi. ‘What did he open, the thief?’ Possible answer: Fungile mnaango/ miizi. ‘He opened the door, the thief.’
fungilopo mlaangó ‘when he opened the door’
Fuungula. ‘Open it!’ Cf. Fungulaani. ‘(Pl.) open it!’
Fungula ijuuniya/ ka himaahima/ mp^hate kuḷawa/ naawé/ pata kiingila/ ndrani ya ijuuniya. ‘Open the sack quickly so that I get out and you get inside the sack.’
Fungulani choloko. ‘(Pl.) open the window!’
Hasiibu/ shfungula mlaango/ chingila numbaani. ‘Hasiibu opened the door and went into the house.’
khfungula chibaandra ‘to unwrap a bandage’ khfungula chibuuku ‘to open a book’ khfungulaa chiwo ‘to open a school of religion; to open a religious book; to consult a book of astrology’ Mwiini/ shfungilaa chiwo/ cha kubaratowa qur’aani. ‘In Miini there was opened a school for learning the Quran.’
Shfungulaa chiwo/ chisooma. ‘He opened the (religious) book and read it.’
khfungulaa duka ‘to open a shop for business’ khfungula ifuundro ‘to untie a knot’ Maskiini/ shfungula ltaambi/ laa nguwo/ shfungula ifuundro/ shtomola thumini ya riyaali. ‘The poor man opened the edge of the cloth and untied the knot and took out one-eighth of a riyal.’
khfungulaa kana ‘to break the fast after sunset during Ramadhan (lit. to open the mouth)’ khfungula lkaambala ‘to untie a rope’ khfungula mas’ala ‘to solve the riddle’ khfungula mashakha ‘to tell one’s troubles’ khfungula maato ‘to be alert (lit. to open the eyes)’ Fungula maatoyo/ skhada’oowá. ‘Be alert, don’t let yourself be cheated!’
khfungula miimba ‘to ‘come clean’, ‘spill the beans’, say something that one is trying not to say’ Fungula miimabayo. ‘Talk! Say it! Come clean!’
khfungulaa ndila ‘to open a road to traffic’ khfungulaa nguwo ‘to undress’ Wamfungilee nguwo. ‘They undressed him.’
khfungulaa nvula ‘to stop raining (lit. rain to stop)’ Nvula/ ifungiile. ‘It stopped raining.’
khfungula qalbi ‘[lit. to open one’s heart] be happy, be nice, considerate, show one’s love, confide in, lay bare one’s feelings’ khfungula khisa ‘to tell a story’ Buluukhiya/ chanza khfungula khisaze. ‘Buluukhiya began to tell his story.’
khfungula ruuhu+poss. ‘to free oneself (to be able to take care of one’s own problems, to take care of oneself)

Ni munt^hu hukhadiro khfungula ruuhuyé. ‘He is a man who is able to look out after himself.’

khfungula safari ‘to unpack’

Apo/ wafungile safari/ khpumula. ‘There they unpacked and rested.’

khfungula shaati ‘to take off a shirt’ khfungula shiingo ‘to free the neck – this is used as a formal greeting/compliment to a woman who has just given birth’

Mojitu/ khfungile shiingo/ ka kheeri. ‘God has freed your neck with a blessing.’

khfungula soomu ‘to break the fast after sunset during Ramadhan’ khfungula zimpeetó ‘to tell what happened to one (usu. s.t. bad)’ kumfungula muunt^hu ‘to free someone who is imprisoned or tied up’

Lfungulo ili/ hufungula sandukhu iyi. ‘This key opens this box.’

Mwanaamke/ ufungile mlaango/ ka khisa mwaalimu. ‘The girl opened the door for (or: because of) the teacher.’ (This sentence is ambiguous between whether the action of opening the door was done for the benefit of the teacher or was triggered somehow by the teacher.)

Mzeele/ chiya/ shfungula mlaango. ‘The old woman came and opened the door.’

Nambiile/ khfungula/ miṭaana/ yote/ shokuwa mṭana mooyi. ‘He told me to unlock all the rooms except one room.’

Nfungile mlaangó/ ka lfuunguló. ‘I opened the door with a key.’ Or, with focus on mlaango: Nfungile mlaangó/ ka lfuungulo. Or, with emphasis on the verb: Nfungiilé/ mlaango/ ka lfuungulo. Or: Nfungiilé/ ka lfuungulo/ mlaango. Or, with instrumental phrase moved to IAV position: Nfungile ka lfuunguló/ mlaango.

Nfungile shaatiyá. ‘I took my shirt off.’

Sfunguleení. ‘(Pl.) don’t open it!’

Sfunguleení/ choloko. ‘(Pl.) don’t open the window!’

Shfungile maṭo yiitú. ‘We opened our eyes.’ Or: Maṭo yiitu/ shfungiilé.

‘Our eyes, we opened.’

Shfungulaa chuwo/ chisooma/ chimaliza mwambile mukeewe... ‘He opened the book and read it and then he said to his wife...’

Sitakhufungula. ‘I will not untie you.’

kh-fungulana v. rev. rec.

Khpala izi/ na nfungulo izi/ hufungulana. ‘These padlocks and these keys each opens the other.’

Wafungulene mikono. ‘They untied one another’s hands.’

kh-fungulika v. p/s. (-fungulikishile)

Gari iyi/ hayfunguliki/ koofano. ‘This car cannot be opened the hood.’ Cf. the ungrammaticality of: Koofano/ hayfunguliki/ gari iyi. ‘The hood cannot be opened this car.’

Mlaango/ nt^hawukhfunulika. ‘The door did not open (e.g. when someone tried to open it).’

Mlango wa numba iyi/ hawfunguliki. ‘The door of this house cannot be opened.’ Cf. Numba iyi/ mlaangowe/ hawfunguliki. ‘This house its door cannot be opened.’ Cf. Numba iyi/ hayfunguliki/ mlaango. But note the ungrammaticality of: Mlaango/ hawfunguliki/ numba iyi.) kh-fungulisha v. rev. caus.

Mlaango/ wize khfunulika. ‘The door would not open.’

kh-fungusha v. rev. caus. (fungushiize)

Mfungushize Hamadi/ mlaango. ‘He caused Hamadi to open the door.’ (A periphrastic causative is available here: Mtile Hamadi/ khfungula mlaango. ‘He caused Hamadi to open the door.’)

kh-fungushiliza v. rec. caus. appl. (fungushiliize)

Huseeni/ mfungushilize Iisa/ mwaana/ mlaango. ‘Huseeni made Iisa’s child open the door.’ (A periphrastic version is possible: Huseeni/ mtile Iisa/ mwaana/ khfungula mlaango. ‘Huseeni some induced Iisa’s child to open the door.’)

kh-fungushilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-fungulishilizeenye)

Huseeni/ na Haaji/ wafungushilizenye waana/ milaango. ‘Huseeni and Haaji made one another’s children open the doors.’ (A periphrastic version is also possible: Huseeni/ na Haaji/ watililene waana/ khfungula milaango. ‘Huseeni and Haadi somehow induced one another’s children to open the doors.’

kh-fuunguza v. (fungiize) free (of a problem), repay (i.e. free of a debt), provide means to pay a debt

Ali/ mfungize Haaji/ deenize. ‘Ali provided the means for Haaji to pay off his debts’

Ali/ mfungize mwaana/ deeni. ‘Ali freed the child of his debt.’ (Because kh-funguza is not a true causative, a periphrastic form is not possible: Ali/ mtille mwaana/ khfungula deeni. ‘Ali caused the child to repay his debt.’)

Fuunguza. ‘Pay off (the debt)!’ Cf. Funguzaani. ‘(Pl.) pay off (debt)!’

Funguzani deeni. ‘(Pl.) pay off the debt!’

khfunguza deeni ‘to pay off one’s debt’

Fungize deenize. ‘He repaid his debt.’

khfunguza mas’ala ‘to solve a problem, find a solution’ khfunguza ruuhu+poss. ‘to take care of one’s problems; to prove one’s innocence’

Fungize ruuhuye/ deeni. ‘He freed himself of debt.’

khfunguza shiingo ‘to establish one’s innocence in the face of an accusation, clear oneself of a charge’

Ali/ fungize shiingoye/ ka poliisi. ‘Ali established his innocence to the police.’

Sa’iidi/ mfungize Haaji/ shiingo/ ka poliisi. ‘Sa’iidi provided evidence of Haaji’s innocence to the police.’

khfunguza soomu ‘to cause s.o. to break fast’

Ali/ mfungize Muusa/ soomu. ‘Ali caused Muusa to break his fast.’

Sfunguzeeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t pay off (the debt)!’

Sfunguzeeni/ deeni. ‘Don’t pay off the debt!’

kh-funguzany(an)a v. rec. (-funguzeenye or -funguzanyeene) kh-funguzany(an)oowa v. rec. pass. (-funguzeenya or -funguzanyeene)

rel. nom.

m-fuunga (wa-) n. 1/2 one who fasts

Mfungaa miya/ hafungulili/ bakhti. ‘One who fasts a hundred days does not break his fast for a carcass.’ (A proverb, which encourages someone not to give up when one is so close to succeeding in what one has set out to do.) Or: Mfungaa miya/ bakhti/ hafungulili.

m-fuungo (mi-) n. 3/4 a closing up of something; an arrest; fast (i.e. abstention from eating)’ mfungo wa muusi ‘the first month after Ramadhan’

u-fuungo n. 14 act of closing

m-fuungulo n. 3 the act of opening; a breaking of fast; month

mfungulo wa muusi ‘the first month after Ramadhan’

Mfungulo wane/ taarikhi/ ikumi/ maskuye/ huvilowa masku

Ashuura. ‘The tenth day of the fourth month, its night is called the night of Ashuura.’

sh-fuungula (s-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kifungua] an opener, s.t. that opens shfungulaa kana ‘(lit.) something that opens the mouth – a kind of snack of coffee, dates, etc., in the morning (e.g. after returning from prayers at the mosque) before the real breakfast’ shfungula mlaango ‘a sum of money that is paid to gain entry to the house where the bride is located – the husband or his relatives pay this fee when going to the bride after the marriage ceremony’ shfungulaa nthupa ‘a bottle opener’ sh-fuungulo (s-) n. 7/8 [cf. Sw. kifunguo ‘a small key’] a release

Ganaha/ huwa shfungulo cha habaasa. ‘A fine can be a release from prison – i.e. one can pay a fine in order to get out of prison (in Brava, in former days, the fine was calculated by multiplying one’s daily income times the number of days of imprisonment that would be involved; the practice is no longer existent.)

u-fuungulo n. 14 [Sw. ufunguo] act of opening

- n-fungamaato n. 9/10
rel.
sh-fungamaato (s-) n. 7/8
- fuunge adj. closed
Choloka apaje/ sa'a izi/ mlaango/ utakuwa mfuunge. 'If he goes there at times like these, the door will be shut.'
Ichiwa kanayo/ ni nfuunge/ we/ laazima/ khfungula kanayo/ kendra khfanya propaganda/ kuhada/ jawaabu/ zaa we/ haamini/ kooloka/ ðiddi ya mabadi'iyo. 'If it be that you close your mouth, [in order to get ahead in the world] you must open your mouth and go and make propaganda, say things that you do not believe, go against your principles.'
Kana nfuunge/ ni ðahabu. 'A closed mouth is gold.' (A proverb that conveys the idea that keeping quiet is very valuable, like gold; one avoids problems by keeping one's mouth shut.)
Mbene mlango mfuungé. 'I saw the closed door.' (Cf. Mbene mlaangó/ mfuunge. 'I saw a closed door.')
- milaango mifuunge masku ba na muung'hi [nt.] 'doors are kept closed night and day'
Mlaangowe/ ni mfuunge. 'His door is closed.'
- i-fuungo* (ma-) n. 5/6 portion Ifuungo/ ya kaandra/ weeka/ ni maali/ ya mwajiitu. 'The first portion, set it aside, it is the property of God.'
kubiga mafuungo 'to divide up into portions'
Mi/ nimjibiilé/ kuwaa mí/ maali/ niyabishile mafungu manné. 'I answered him that I, the money, divided up into four portions.' (Phon. Notice that a high vowel in the subject prefix does not elide in front of an object prefix, which explains the form /ni-ya-bishilé/ 'I divided [lit. hit] [cl.6].')
- Mbene mafungo yaa namá/ ya ngombe wiingi/ yaweshela mbaimbali. 'I saw portions of meat of many cows that were placed separately.'
Muunt^hu/ uyu/ naletoowa/ laakini/ we/ khulaazima/ kawanya bahari/ mafuungu/ mane. 'Let this man be brought [to me], but you must divide the sea into four portions.'
- sh-fuungo* (s-) n. 7/8 a puzzle, s.t. that requires a solution; imprisonment, bond, tie imprisonment).'
Kuboola/ inacho shfuungo. 'Stealing leads to imprisonment (lit. has imprisonment).'
Mi/ ni hurri/ pashpo sfuungó. 'Am I free without ties?'
Pete khfungula shfuungo. 'He was able to solve the puzzle.'
- fuungu n. [Sw. fungu SSED 106] the wet sand along the beach close to the water, sandbank Funguuni/ miti/ hayaalawi. [H'H!H] 'At the wet sand trees do not grow.'
(Although a negative verb in medial position in a sentence is not downstepped when final in the phrase, in a sentence-final position such as this downstep does occur.)
Miti/ hayaalawi/ funguuni. [H'H!H] 'Trees do not grow [lit. come out] in the wet sand.'
Muda/ wa sku niingi/ wasafiriiló/ hattá/ leelo/ washkoma/ mahala/ yiko fuungu. 'For a period of many days they traveled until today they reached a place where there was a sandbank.'
Wachoondroka/ ka apo/ wachimlata Huseeni/ funguuni. 'They moved from there, they left Huseeni on the sandbank.'
- i-fuungu* (ma-) n. a group of things, heap, pile, bunch; share ifuungu yaa mazu 'a bunch of bananas' ifuungu yaa mbuzi 'a herd of goats' ifuungu yaa nama 'a chunk of meat' ifuungu yaa nguwo 'a bundle of clothes'

ifungu ya skunyi ‘a bundle of firewood’ ifungu ya waan^hu ‘a large group of people’ ifungu ya zinyunyi ‘a large flock of birds’

kubiga mafuungu ‘to make shares’

Mp^huundra/ chibiga mafungu matatu/ sawasawa. ‘The donkey made three equal shares.’

Niyabishile mafungu manné. ‘I divided it into four shares.’ (Observe that the first person singular subject marker ni retains its vowel in position before the object marker ya.)

Taala/ ifuungu/ yo yotte/ itakhupeendezó. ‘Take whatever you please.’

Yotte/ takaawanya/ mafungu mawili/ sawasawa. ‘He will divide all into two equal shares.’

rel.

mi-fuungu n. 4

mifungu yaa nama ‘chunks of meat’ sh-fuungu (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

sfungu zaa nama ‘small chunks of meat’ shfungu chaa nama ‘a small chunk of meat’ shfungu shfuungu adv. in groups

Waant^hu/ wa’ile shfungu shfuungu. ‘People came in groups.’

Waant^hu/ wasimeme shfungu shfuungu. ‘People stood in groups.’

-fuungufu

adj. open heart.’

Fulaani/ nayo qalbi/ nfuungufu (or mfuungufu). ‘So-and-so has an open hearts.’

Hamadi/ na Ali/ wanazo qalbi/ nfuungufu. ‘Hamadi and Ali have open Qalbi zaawo/ nfuungufu. ‘Their hearts are open.’

Qalbiye. nfuungufu. ‘His heart is open.’

We/ takuwa muunt^hu/ mu’tarafu/ mp^hiindri/ yo/ kanayo/ ichiwa nfuungufu. ‘You will be someone recognized if your mouth be open (in the context of the text: praising your superiors).’

kh-fungula

v. (fungiile) narrate a story

Malizopo khfungula khisa ya mp^huundra/ nfuye/ chimwambila mp^haamp^ha... ‘When he finished telling the story of the donkey, Monkey said to Shark....’

rel.

kh-fungulila v. appl. (funguliile) tell to Ba’adiye/ Abdalla/ cheendra/ ka mukeewe/ chimfungulila/ dhibu/impeetó. ‘After that, Abdalla went to his well and told her about the difficulties that had befallen [lit. got] him.’

Chimfungulila zotte/ zaa ye/fanyizó/ chimfungulila/ jisaa ye/mkhada’iloo mp^hisi. ‘She told her all that she had done, she told her how she had deceived the hyena.’

Haye/ isa/ kalan^haani/ ninfungulile laano/ kuwa sultaani/ mfanysize mwaana/ mooyi. ‘Well, now, sit down so that I may tell you a story about (what) the sultan did to one boy.’

Nfuye/ chanza kumfungulila/ khisa ya mp^hundra wa doobi. ‘The monkey began to tell him (the shark) the story of the washerman’s donkey.’

Nimfungulile mwana wa Nuurú/ laanó. ‘I told Nuuru’s child a story.’

Sa’iidi/ chimfungulila sultaani/ maambo/ yampeetó/ yotte. ‘Sa’iidi narrated to the sultan all the things that had befallen him.’ (Phon. Observe that yotte is not within the scope of the relative clause final accent. Yotte modifies the head plus relative structure: maambo/ yampeetó and thus is not inside the relative clause.)

rel.
kh-fungulilana v. narrate to one another Hasani/ lazilopó/ Huseeni/ chiya/ mwanaamke/ shfurahaa ntʰo/ washfungulilana/ khabari/ zotte. ‘When Hasani left, Huseeni came; the girl was very happy; they recounted to each other all the news.’

l-fuungulo (n-)
 n. 11/10 key khtila lfuungulo ‘to wind up a clock, watch’ Kilaa mnaango/ inayo lfunguloje (or lfungulo laake). ‘Every door has its key.’ (A proverb which conveys the idea that if you wish to do something, you must find the right strategy, etc., since each situation is unique and has its own solution.)
lfungulo la luulu ‘a pearl key’ lfungulo laa ntʰupa ‘bottle opener’ lfungulo laa tala ‘a light switch’
Lfungulo lmooyi/ nlaaká. ‘One key is mine.’
Mmereelé/ nfunguloza/ kilaa mahala. ‘I looked for my keys everywhere.’
Mpʰele nfuungulo/ za nuumaye. ‘He gave me the keys of his house.’
Nfungulo mbili/ nza Maryamu. ‘Two keys are Mariam’s.’
Nfunguloza/ zibeele. ‘My keys are lost.’ (In the speech of GM, the nasal prefix in this noun is missing from pronunciation, although it appears in his written version of the sentence.)
Sabri/ ni lfungulo la faraji. ‘Patience is the key to relief.’ (A proverb.) sanduukhu/ na lfuunguló ‘a box and a key’; sanduukhu/ na nfuunguló ‘boxes and keys’ sanduukhu/ na lfungulojé ‘a box and its key’; sanduukhu/ na nfungulozé ‘boxes and their keys’ Shʰukula lfunguloje/ chishkila/ chendra ka sultaani. ‘He took his key and disembarked and went to the sultan.’

kh-funuka
 v. (-funushile) re-open (though the use of this verb is restricted) Ijarah/ ifunushile. ‘His wound is re-opened.’

rel.
kh-funukafunuka v. freq. uncover, reveal (though use is restricted) Fulaani/ funushilefunushile sku izo. ‘So-and-so has uncovered himself – i.e. formerly a quiet and timid person, he has become talkative, outgoing; or, formerly poorly garbed, he is now dressed fit to kill.’

kh-funula v. [Sw. funua SSED 106] (funiile) open (but restricted in use) khfunulaa ntʰanu ‘to open the oven’

funuuni
 n. [Ar. funuūn, pl. pf fann W 728, but note that Arabic does not have the meaning “dreams”] arts; dreams (but rare in this meaning) nakhsuula khuwona hata ka funuuni [st.] ‘I want to see you even [if only] in my dreams’

fuunzi (ma-)
 n. craftsman, mason; trainer
Fuunzi/ haawaki/ nuumbaye. ‘A builder does not build his house.’ (A proverb.)
Fuunzi/ nakhtumba iboholi. ‘The mason is digging a hole.’
 rel.
mʰaa-fuunzi or mʰana-fuunzi (w-) n. 1/2 trainee, apprentice Mʰaafuunzi/ humzida fuunzi. ‘An apprentice can become better than the craftsman (who has trained him).’ (A proverb.)

fuuq
 ideo. [Som. fuuq, from an internet citation where it is said to refer to “drink[ing] heavy drink like milkshake or creamy liquid”] of drinking; [pron. fuuq or fuukh] Hamadi/ nakuna mataaza/ fuukh fuukh/ yotte/ maliize. ‘Hamadi is drinking the porridge, he finished all of it.’ (Much work needs to be done with respect to the phonetics of the ideophone in Chimiini. It appears that fuukh is high-pitched, since it raised in pitch relative to the preceding accented syllable. The pitch seems level rather than falling over the long vowel. In the cited example, the second occurrence of the ideophone was somewhat lower in pitch than the first occurrence. But due to our limited understanding of the contrasts in the ideophonic system, we omit pitch marking on the ideophones.)

Omari/ nakuna mataaza/ ka himaa hima/ fuuq fuuq!/ paapo/ apo/ chijamu/ shtupu/ fanyiizó. ‘Omari is drinking the porridge fast -- fuuq fuuq!, at once the plate he made it empty.’

fuqara adj. pl. (see faqüiri) [Ar. fuqarā W 723] poor (pl.)

kh-fuura

v. [Som. fuur DSI 239; cf. also Ar. faur “boil, simmer” W 731] (furiile) swell; boil over, rise/foam up (after boiling), bubble up, fizz, get red in the face but not say anything (as the result of anger)

Ali/ furiile. ‘Ali got so mad that his face was red (but he said nothing).’

Ali/ furiile shiingo. ‘Ali’s neck swelled.’ (In this example, the subject of the verb is Ali, as indicated by the null subject prefix on the verb.)

Chaayi/ shfuriile. ‘The tea has boiled over.’

Chita/ chimfuriile kaa nk^heje. ‘Lit. his head swelled from the noise -- i.e. his head was pounding, in a whirl.’ (In this example, chita governs subject agreement on the verb, and the human experiencer is indicated by the [cl.1] object prefix -m(u)- on the verb.)

Dawa/ ifuriile. ‘The medicine (e.g. alka seltzer) frothed up.’

Furiile ka shtana. ‘[Lit.] He was swelled by anger.= He looked angry.’

Furiile mkono. ‘He swelled hand.’ Or: Furiile mikono. ‘He swelled hands.’

But not: Furiile mkonowe. ‘He swelled his hand.’ Nor: Furiile mikonoye. ‘He swelled his hands.’

inyi/ khfuura ‘for the liver to swell, become enlarged’

Ji/ furiile imilo/ kaa nk^heje. ‘Ji was very angry – lit. Ji’s throat swelled from shouting.’

khfura miimba ‘for the stomach to swell (in laughter)’

Teshele/ hatá/ miimba/ imfuriile. ‘[Lit.] He laughed until his stomach swelled.’ (Syn. Note that miimba is the grammatical subject, and the one who experiences the ‘swelling’ triggers the object prefix on the verb.)

Imilo/ limfuriile. ‘His throat swelled.’ (Syn. In this example, imilo governs subject agreement on the verb, and the experience is marked by the [cl.1] object prefix -m(u)- on the verb.)

Imilole/ furiile. ‘His throat swelled.’ (Syn. In this example, the verb agrees with a [cl.1] human subject, not imilo.)

Maatoye/ yafuriile/ kana matuumbo. ‘His eyes are swollen like the stomach.’

Mikono/ yashfuriile. ‘[His] hands swelled.’ Or: Yashfuriile mikono. (Phon. Observe that when mikono is in post-verbal position, it can form a phonological phrase with the verb.)

Mikono yiitu/ yafuriile. ‘Our hands swelled.’

Mikonoye/ yafuriile. ‘His hands swelled.’ Or: Mikono/ yamfuriile.

Mkono/ umfuriile. ‘The hand swelled [to] him.’

Mkono wa mwaana/ ufuriile. ‘The hand of the child swelled.’

Mkonowa/ ufuriile. ‘My hand swelled.’ Or: Mkono/ unfuriile. ‘Hand swelled [to] me.’ Or: Unfuriile mkono. ‘Swelled [to] me hand.’

Mkonowe/ ufuriile. ‘His hand swelled.’ Or: Mkonowe/ umfuriile.

Muusa/ mkono/ wanzize kumfuura. ‘Muusa’s hand began to swell.’

Mwaana/ mkonowe/ ufuriile. ‘The child, his hand swelled.’

Mwaana/ umfuriile mkono. ‘The child, [his] hand swelled [to] him.’ Or: Nuuru/ furiile mkono. ‘Nuuru’s arm swelled.’

Omari/ furiile miimba/ ka shteko. ‘Omari’s stomach swelled with laughter.’

Umfuriile mkono/ mwaana. ‘Swelled [to] him, [his] hand.’ (The second alternative has the prosody associated with right-dislocation, as mwaana is radically lowered relative to the initial phrase.)

Ye/ mkono/ umfuriile. [HH’H] ‘His arm swelled.’ Or: Umfuriilo ye/ ni mkono. [H’H] ‘What swelled was his arm [lit. what swelled him was the arm].’ Or:

Ye/ furile mkono. [H!H] ‘He became swelled the arm.’

rel.

kh-fuurana v. rec.

kh-fuurila v. appl. (-furiliile) boil ‘on’; show anger to Mfuriliile Hamadi. ‘He showed Hamadi his anger (e.g. by his facial gestures, etc.)’

Mwaanawa/ nfuliile mkono. ‘My child’s hand swelled (“on” me).’

Nama/ imfuriliile ka daqiqaa mbili. ‘The meat reached the point of boiling on him in two minutes.’

kh-furilana v. appl. rec. show anger at one another kh-furoowa v. pass. (-furila)

Furila Imilo. ‘[His] throat swelled.’

Furila na mkono. ‘Lit. he was swelled by the arm.= His arm swelled.’ (Note one cannot say Mkono/ ufurila.)

kh-fursha v. caus. (furshiize) swell s.t. up; cook meat until water is gone

Ali/ mfurshize Ji/ Imilo. ‘[Lit.] Ali made Ji’s throat swell – i.e. Ali made Ji shout and argue so much that his throat became swollen.’

Iyaankuku/ ifurshiiza. ‘The egg has been boiled (lit. swelled).’

khfurshaa chita ‘to bother’

khfursha miimba (ka shiteko) ‘lit. to make the belly swell with laughter -- said when s.o. makes jokes and tells funny stories that make everybody laugh very much’

Ali/ shfurshize miimba/ ka shiteko. ‘Ali made our bellies swell with laughter.’

khfurshaa mp'hula ‘to swell the nose – i.e. to get angry’

Kila / mo/ shfursha mp'hulaye/ itakhatanowaayi. ‘If everyone gets angry (lit. swells his nose), how will it be negotiated, an agreement come to?’

khfursha muunt'u/ chita ‘lit. to make s.o.’s head swell -- when s.o. speaks too much, he makes the listener’s head swell; in particular. when s.o. repeats his request obsessively until he gets what he wants from another person’ khfurshaa nama ‘to boil meat in water until the water dries up; cook meat in water to the point of boiling (as a means of keeping meat overnight)’

Haliima/ mwambile mwanaashkewe/ Nuura: furshaa nama/ jisaapó/ itakangamila/ hatá/ keesho. ‘Haliima told her daughter Nuura: boil the meat, otherwise, it may go bad tomorrow.’

nama ya khfursha ‘meat that has been cooked without water, but steamed, using a little oil’ kh-furshanya v. caus. rec.

khfurshanyaa chita ‘(refers to) a playful exchange between friends, with witty retorts and quick repartees’

Wafurshenye zita. ‘They bothered one another to the point that their heads were pounding.’

kh-furshanyoowa v. caus. pass.

khfurshanyowaa chikhfurshanyowaa chita (see active verb above for use) kh-furshika v. caus. p/s.

Nama iyi/ haytakhfurshika/ ka khisaa mu'lo/ ni habba. ‘This meat will not boil because the fire is not high enough.’

kh-furshiliza v. caus. appl. (furshiliize) boil for, on kh-furshilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-furshilizika v. caus. appl. p/s.

kh-furshoowa v. caus. pass. (furshiiza)

Furshizaa chita/ na Hamadi. ‘He was bothered so much by Hamadi that his head pounded.’

Furshiza ito. ‘His eye was made to swell.’

Furshiza mkono. ‘His hand was made to swell.’ Also: Furshiza mikono. ‘His hands were made to swell.’ (Note that one cannot say Mkono/ ufurshiiza.)

Nama/ ifurshiiza. ‘The meat has been cooked in water.’
Nfurshiza miimbá. ‘My stomach is full.’

rel. nom.

m-fuuro n. 3

u-fuuro n. 14

m-fuursho n. 3

u-fuursho n. 14

furaha

n. 9/10 [Sw. furaha ‘joy, pleasure, happiness, bliss, delight, gladness, mirth, merriment’ SSED 107; Ar. farah abd farḥa W 702] happiness furaha/ kamba haruusi ‘as happy as a groom’ furaha/ kamba iidi ‘as happy as iidi’

Hamadi/ imwingile furaha. ‘Hamadi is happy.’ Or: Furaha/ imwingile Hamadi. Or: Hamadi/ ingila na furaha.

ka furaha ‘in happiness, happily, with pleasure’

Ka furaha/ Omari/ iló. ‘Happily Omari came.’ Or: Ka furaha/ iló/ Omari.

(The simple yes-no question for the first example has no accent shift; in contrast, the postposed subject in the second example shifts its accent: Ka furaha/ Omari/ iló? but Ka furaha/ iló/ Omari? The exclamatory question has accent shift on the subject in both cases:

Ka furaha/ Omari/ iló!? and Ka furaha/ iló/ Omari!?)

Muke/ shpokela riwu/ naa nguwó/ ka furaha. ‘The woman received the gifts and clothes with pleasure.’

Omari/ ile ka furaha. ‘Omari came happily.’ Or: Omari/ ka furaha/ iló. Or: Omari/ ile/ ka furaha.

Wa’ishiize/ ka kheeri/ ka furaha. ‘They lived together comfortably and happily.’

Muunt^hu/ chiwanayo furaha/ tu/ hutékó. ‘Only when one has happiness does one laugh.’ (A proverb.)

Mzimawe/ furaha. ‘He is happy from head to toe (lit. his whole is happy).’

Nnayo furahá. ‘I am happy.’

Zawaadi/ ni furaha/ za khalbi. ‘A gift is the happiness of the heart.’ (A proverb.)

zithibitiile furaha niingi [st.] ‘much rejoicing was witnessed’

kh-furaha

v. [Sw. furahi ‘rejoice, be glad, feel pleasure, be happy, be pleased, enjoy oneself’ SSED 107; Ar. fariha W 702] (furahiile) be happy, pleased

Abdi/ nt^hakhfuraha/ kumsomela Safiya. ‘Abdi did not like to read to Safiya.’

Furahiiló/ khpata peesa/ ni Hasani. ‘The one who was pleased to get money is Hasani.’ But also: Furahiiló/ khpata peesá/ ni Hasani. (This is a true relative verb and one would have expected that the final accent would extend to the end of the relative clause even though the verb is emphasized, but our consultant was comfortable with both pronunciations shown. The issue of the Accentual Law of Focus being enforced in true relative clauses merits further study.)

Hasani/ furahile khpata peesa. [H!H] ‘Hasani was pleased to get money.’ (This example illustrates canonical downstep intonation. The corresponding simple yes-no question: Hasani/ furahile khpata peesa? [H!H] replaces the downstep of the second phrase with simple declination. The emphatic question: Hasani/ furahile khpata peesâ!? [H!H] retains downstep, but shifts accent in the second phrase to the final vowel, which is lengthened, with a falling pitch.)

Hasani/ furahiile/ khpata peesa. [H'H!H] ‘Hasani was pleased to get money.’ (We have attempted to provide some characterization of the intonation associated with the phrasing of examples in this book. It must be emphasized that these characterizations are to some extent preliminary. In the present example, where the main verb is phrasally separated from its complement, it seems safe to conclude that the verb is not subject to the usual (fairly radical) downstepping that typically occurs between the subject and such an emphasized verb. There is lowering of the verb however, which we indicate with the symbol ', in contrast to the downstep symbol !. Examining a sequence of phrases in the Verb Phrase, it is difficult to determine whether there is a contrast between declination (') and downstep (!). We consider the lowering across Phonological Phrases in the VP to be instances of downstep. However, there does appear to be a contrast between simple downstep and a radical downstep (indicated by the symbol !!). In the present example, the final phrase is downstepped, but not radically so. A simple yes-no question is available for this sentence: Hasani/ furahiile/ khpata peesá? [H'H'H]. Notice the shift in accent in the final out-of-focus phrase. GM typically failed to offer an emphatic yes-no question based on a sentence with verb-emphasis, but in this example he did give Hasani/ furahiilé/ khpata peesá!? [H!H!H]. Notice that in the emphatic question, there is clear downstep between the subject and the emphasized verb, as well as the verb and the next phrase. Accent shifts in both the verb and in the complement to the verb. These observations conform to what we have observed in MI's speech, where we have a number of examples of emphatic questions based on inputs with an emphasized verb.)

Hasani/ furahilo khpata peesá. [H!H] 'It's Hasani who was pleased to get money.' (Focus on the subject in this example triggers the pseudo-relativization of the main verb.)

Hasani/ furahiiló/ khpata peesa. [H!H!H] 'It's Hasani who was pleased to get money.' (A significant intonational fact is that in this example, where the main verb is pseudo-relativized and also phrasally separated from its complement, there is downstep between the subject and the verb. This contrasts with the simple declination observed above where the phrasally separated verb is not pseudo-relativized. Note that the Accentual Law of Focus comes into play in this sentence and blocks the shift of accent in the complement. Although this pronunciation seems to be the norm, it is apparently possible to shift the accent as well: Hasani/ furahiiló/ khpata peesá. [H!HH]. In this pronunciation, the complement did not seem to be downstepped, which is possibly a critical aspect of this sort of example. More research is required on the failure of ALF to hold in cases where a verb is both pseudo-relativized and emphasized.)

Hasani/ isa/ nakhfuraha/ nt^o/ ka kuwaa ye/ peete/ wanaashke/ wawili/ wa masultaani. 'Hasani now is rejoicing very much because that he has gotten two daughters of sultans.'

khfuraha/ kamba haruusi 'to be as happy as if getting married' khfuraha/ kana bashirilá janná 'to be as happy as if one has been announced for heaven [i.e. it has been announced that one is going to heaven]'

khfuraha/ kana zalíilá 'to be as happy as someone who has had a child born to him'

Majini/ wamwenopo Sa'iidi/ wafurahiile/ nt^o. 'The djinns, when they saw Sa'iidi, they were very happy.'

Mbona/ we/ sulṭaani/ chilangaḷa/ lpaandre/ la kubli/ we/ hufuraha/ nachilangaḷa/ lpaandre/ la kusooṭo/ we/ huḷa. '[Lit. I see] Why, king, is it that if you look to the right, you rejoice, and if you look to the left, you cry?'

Mi/ nfurahiilé/ mukhta Maryamu/ somelo chibuukú. [H!HH!H] 'I was happy when Maryamu read the book.' (There is no downstep of the subject of the mukhta-clause. It is not clear whether this should be taken as evidence that the mukhta-clause is a separate Intonational Phrase from the preceding clause, but this is certainly a possible analysis.)

Mi/ nfurahiilé/ mukhta Maryamu/ someeló/ chibuuku. [H!HHH!H] 'I was happy when Maryamu read the book.' (Although the matter needs further study, it appears that if some emphasis is put on Maryamu, the following verb is downstepped.)

Muunt^u/ furahilo khpata peesá/ ni Hasani. [H!H!H] 'The man who was pleased to get money is Hasani.'

Muunt^u/ furahiiló/ khpata peesá/ ni Hasani. [H!H!H!H] 'The man who was pleased to get money is Hasani.' (In this example of a true relative clause, the emphasis on the verb yields the phrasal isolation of the verb, but this phrasal separation of the verb from its complement does not lead to implementation of ALF. The final accent triggered by a true relative verb extends to the end of the relative clause. It is odd to say *Muunt^hu/ furahiiló/ khpata peesa/ ni Hasani.)

Mwaana/ shfurahaa nt^ho. ‘The boy was very happy.’

Mzele Simsini/ shfuraha/ nt^ho. ‘Old Simsini became very happy.’

Nureeni/ furahiile. ‘Nureeni was pleased.’

Nureeni/ furahile khpata peesa. ‘Nureeni was pleased to get money.’

Osmaani/ nt^hakhfuraha/ kooloka. ‘Osmaani did not like to go.’

Sarmaḷa/ shfuraha. ‘The carpenter was pleased.’

shṭakhkooḍa si shṭakhfuraha [song] ‘we shall talk and we shall rejoice’

Waant^hu/ wotte/ washfuraha. ‘All the people were happy.’

Zubeeri/ nt^hakhfuraha/ Shaafi/ kooloka. ‘Zubeeri did not like for Shaafi to go.’

rel.

kh-furahika v. p/s. (furahikishile, based on a stem where the suffix ik is doubled) be happy

Sarmaḷa/ shfurahika. ‘The carpenter was pleased.’

Sultaani/ naayé/ shfurahika/ nt^ho/ chimpa mwaana/ shilingii miya. ‘The sultan became very happy and gave the boy one hundred shillings.’

kh-furahikiḷoowa v. p/s. appl. pass. not certain how this verb form could be used kh-furahikila v. p/s. appl. (furahikiḷiile) be pleased for, with Hamadi/ mfurahikiḷiile mwaana. ‘Hamadi was happy for the child.’

Ijini/ oyo/ nt^hakhfurahikila/ amri ya sultaani/ mpeeló/ choondroka/ ka apo. ‘That djinn was not happy with the order that the sultan had given him and he moved away from there.’

Ka sababu iyo/ Harun Rashiidi/ nt^hamkhfurahikila. ‘For this reason, Harun Rashiidi was not pleased with him.’

Laakini/ Aamina/ kuwona kuwa maali/ yanamwiḷiḷa/ ka apa/ na apá/ pashpo/ naayé/ khfanya kaazi/ nt^hakhfurahikila. But for Amiina to see wealth coming to her from here and there without her doing work did not please her.’

Mi/ sfurahikili. ‘I am not happy about it.’

Waant^hu/ washfurahikila/ nt^ho/ ina iyi. ‘The people were very pleased with this name.’

Waawo/ khufurahikiḷiile. ‘Your father was pleased (for what you did).’

kh-furahila v. appl. [Sw. furahia “rejoice at (in, for, etc.)” SSED 107]

Boobo/ nt^hakhfurahila/ kujaa nama. ‘Boobo did not like to eat meat.’

Osmaani/ nt^hafurahila/ kooloka. ‘Osmaani did not like to go.’ (Morph. Observe that the applied verb usage here is interchangeable with the simple verb shown above.)

Sfurahilé/ dhibu/ impeto jiraaniwó. ‘Do not be pleased with the misfortune that befalls your neighbor.’ (A proverb.)

Wake wa Mwiini/ hawafurahili/ kiskaṭila ka zote/ ilu ya wabli. ‘Women of Mwiini do not enjoy depending on their husbands for everything.’

Zubeeri/ nt^hakhfurahila/ Shaafi/ kooloka. ‘Zubeeri did not like for Shaafi to go.’

kh-furahisha v. tr. [Sw. furahisha “gladden, cheer, rejoice, delight” SSED 107] (furahishiize) please someone Jisaa ye/ husoomó/ suura/ hufurahisha. ‘His way of reading is good, it pleases me.’

Khabari/ zimfurahishize Nuuru. ‘The news pleased Nuuru.’

Khaliifa/ keendrake/ madrasaani/ nt^haymfurahisha/ mwaalimu. ‘Khaliifa’s going to school did not please the teacher.’

Kuwa Khaliifa/ oloshale madrasaani/ nt^haymfurahisha/ mwaalimu. ‘That Khaliifa went to school did not please the teacher.’ (Syn. This sentence illustrates that the verb -furahisha permits a kuwa-complement clause as subject, while the preceding example shows that an infinitive+ke clause may also occur. A bare infinitive clause is not permitted, however:

Khaliifa/ kendra madrasaani/ nt^haymfurahisha/ mwaalimu.

Lamna yaa ye/ husoomó/ suura/ hufurahisha. ‘His kind of reading is good, it pleases me.’

Mambo aya/ hayanfurahishi/ mi/ ni/ nnaakulá/ kama ndimí/ nfiiló.
‘These matters do not please me; you (resp.) are crying as though it is me who has died.’

Naaziya/ hufurahisha duniyaa nzima. ‘My coconut pleases the whole world.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa ‘the sun’.)

Ni khabari/ hufurahishó. ‘It is pleasing news.’

nzimiliza muḷo we ndo nfulihisha [song] ‘put out the fire for me, come and make me happy’

Siwo/ tu/ khkooḍa/ killa chiint^hu/ husuḷowa yaa we/ takuhadó/ kulla itakuḷawo ka kanaani/ kaakó/ kuwa ni jawaabu/ hufurahishó/ wakulu. ‘Not just words of any kind, it is required that anything that comes out of your mouth be words that please your superiors.’ (Although the Accentual Law of Focus ordinarily does not apply in relative clauses, in the present example, there is a particularly strong emphasis on hufurahishó and the complement wakulu does not exhibit final accent. It thus appears that in relative clauses, strong emphasis does cause the Accentual Law of Focus to come into play. Of course, more research is required on this point.)

Uhuru/ umfurahishiize. ‘Freedom pleased him.’

We/ khshindra maṭezo/ imfurahisize Nuuru. ‘For you to win the game pleased Nuuru.’

kh-furahishiliza v. tr. appl.

Nuuru/ mfulurahishilize Suufi/ mwaana. ‘Nuuru pleased Suufi’s child.’

kh-furahishilizanya v. tr. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Omari/ wafurahishilizenye waana. ‘Nuuru and Omari pleased one another’s children.’

kh-furahishoowa v. caus. pass.

waana hufurahishoowa, jiraani hudufaṭoowa [song] ‘children are made happy, neighbors are embraced’ kh-furahoowa v. pass. [Sw. furahiwa “be pleased (with), be made happy (by), be rejoiced (at)” SSED 107] be made joyful by iidi hufurahoowa, na zawaadi hawanyoowa [song] ‘on iidi there is being made joyful, na gifts are shared’

Sheekhi chifa huḷowaayi/ ni muunt^hi wa khfurahoowa [st.] ‘how can people weep at the Sheikh’s death, as it is a day of joy?’

rel. nom.

m-furahifu (wa-) adj. 1/2 [Sw. -furahifu “joyous, cheering, pleasant” SSED 107] someone who is pleased

m-furahisha (wa-) n. 1/2 someone who pleases mfurahisha waant^hu ‘someone who pleases people’ sh-furahisha (s-) n. 7/8 a thing that pleases furahoole

n. [from furaha + Som. -leh] a cheerful and merry person

furḍa

n. port furḍaani ‘at the port’

furqaani

n. [Ar. al-furqān W 709] the Koran

fursa

n. [Ar. furṣa W 705] opportunity, chance

Ameerika/ yiko furṣa/ khpatowa peesa. ‘In America there is opportunity to make money (lit. for money to be made).’

Furṣa/ ha’ibashoowi. ‘An opportunity should never be lost.’ (A proverb.)

khpata furṣa ‘to find the opportunity’

Mi/ skuwanaayo/ furṣa/ ya kumwambila mukeewa/ chiza kuya apa. ‘I had no chance to warn my wife not to come here.

Omari/ nt^hashtiya/ laakini/ tayaari/ khfanya chiint^hu/ nakulindra fursaye. ‘Omari wasn't afraid, but ready for action, waiting his chance.’

Takuya kumdafkula/ naayé/ uyu/ takuwa peete/ fursa/ kumwub^laa dafa. ‘It (e.g. the kite) will come to snatch it and this one (e.g. the rabbit) will get an opportunity to kill the kite.’

- furuumba n. sp. fish
rel.
i-furuumba n. ibid.
sh-furuumba (s-) n. 7/8 sp. fish
- furuqu n. [Som. furuq "smallpox" DSI 238] smallpox; [pron. furuqu or furukhu]
- furuuta n. fruit
Habaa kamu/ furuuta/ we/ nakhsuuló. ‘How many (pieces of) fruit do you want?’
Hamadi/ furuuta/ yaa ye/ hupeendó/ ni embe, ye/ husuula/ mazu/ nt^ho/ laakini/ itika/ habamooyi. ‘Hamadi’s favorite fruit is mango. He likes bananas a lot, but watermelon only a little. He really wanted to eat a mango, but he just ate a banana.’
- fus.ha n. [Ar. fusha W 712] break, leave, vacation; variant form: fas.ha Keesho/ skhaadira/ khfanya kaazi/ nakhtala fas.há/ endra ka dakh^ttari. ‘Tomorrow I cannot go to work, I am taking a leave from work to go to the doctor.’
khtala fas.ha ‘to take a vacation’ Tete fas.ha. ‘He took a leave, a vacation.’
kuwanayo fus.ha ‘to have a vacation’
- fuusto n. [Ital. fusto] large barrel, drum fuusto ya maayi ‘water barrel’ fuusto ya nafta ‘barrel of diesel fuel’ kuskuma fuusto ‘to push a barrel’
rel.
i-fuusto (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- kh-fuuta v. [Som. fuud “to sip” DSI 238] (fuusile, fuuile) eat with the hands, particularly zijo, making a slushing noise; sip noisily, slurp (only used with respect to zijo/ ka iziwa and not for any other liquid (e.g. tea, water, etc.); usually zijo is eaten with relish, and milk is added to the last small quantity on the plate and the almost liquid mixture is sipped or slurped Sfuteeni/ mtuzi. ‘You (pl.) don’t eat slurpingly the soup!’
- kh-fuuta v. [Ar. fāta, faut W 730] (fuuile) miss something Chaakuja/ chikhufuuile. ‘You missed a lot of food!’
Imfuuile. ‘[Lit.] something missed him -- i.e. he missed something.’
Maambo/ yakhufuuiló. ‘What excitement you missed!’
muke umriwe sho mfuuta fadila [st.] ‘a woman who in her life never failed to do good deeds’
- kh-futuka v. intr. [Sw. futuka SSED 108] (fu^tushile) appear, emerge (e.g. plants from the ground); be revealed; stick out, protrude, pop out Mbona/ fu^tushile ka mahalaamp^hi. ‘Say, where did he pop out from?’
Mwenye/ tukile nyaanya/ ka ba’a/ yimo nt^huundrú/ ye/ nt^hakiiwa/ nyaanya/ niingi/ sfu^tushiló/ fud fud fud!/ bila/ yaa ye/ kiiwa. ‘Menye carried tomatoes in a plastic bag with a hole in it, which he did not know, a lot of tomatos fell out, fud fud fud! without him knowing.’
rel.
kh-futula v. [only observed in the reduplicated form below] give birth (restricted to plants; its meaning points to the moment when seed splits and plant appears;

- the verb cannot be used for humans variant form: khfuṭuṣha
- rel.
kh-fuṭulafuṭula v. give birth over and over variant form: khfuṭuṣhafuṭuṣha
- fuṭuluq ideo. of popping in Omari/ sho khfilatiloowa/ tu/ fuṭulukh/ ingile mtanaani/ ka Haliima.
'Omari without being expected, perhaps accidentally, entered Haliima's room.'
- kh-fuṭura* v. [Sw. fuṭuru SSED 208; Ar. faṭara, fuṭūr W 719] (fuṭuriile) break fast after sunset Msaafiri/ fuṭuriile. 'The traveler broke fast (eating fuṭuru).'
ni sunna soomu khfuṭura ka awali [st.] 'it is better to break the fast at the first moment after sunset' nuuru schiwaako fuṭuraani haydhibi [st.] 'even if there is light (after the sunset), break the fast, it does not matter'
- rel.
kh-fuṭurila v. appl.
fuṭurilaani ka kila hujoowa [st.] 'break the fast with anything edible' kh-fuṭurisha v. caus. provide food for the breaking of fast in the evening; convince to stop fasting Dakhṭari/ mfuṭurishize mariiḍi. 'The doctor convinced the sick person to stop fasting.'
Mfuṭurishize Hamadi. 'He provided food for Hamadi's breaking of fast.'
Sa'iidi/ mfuṭurishize msaafiri. 'Saiidi provided the traveler with a meal to break the fast.'
kh-fuṭurishiliza v. caus. appl.
Nfuṭurishilize mwaana. 'He persuaded my child to break the fast.'
- fuṭuru meal eaten in the evening after fasting
n. [Sw. noun fuṭari and verb fuṭuru SSED 208; Ar. fiṭr W719 and faṭūr W 720] first evening after fasting Nt^haasá/ mi/ skupata/ fuṭuru. 'I haven't yet eaten the first meal after fasting.'
- sh-fuvu (s-)* n. 7/8 [Sw. fuvu SSED 108] the hard outer shell of the coconut immediately beneath the fibrous -- used as fuel for a fire, or can be made into a kata or ladle or cup by cutting in half and removing the coconut
rel.
i-fuvu n.
Ifuvu ya naazi/ siwo/ naazi. 'The empty coconut shell is not a coconut.' (A proverb.)
- sh-fuwa (s-)* n. 7/8 [Sw. kifua SSED 190] chest kubiga shfuwa '[lit.] to hit the chest -- i.e. to declare one's readiness for an undertaking and extend one's financial assistance for such an undertaking'
- rel.
i-fuwa (ma-)
mtume ka Aisha numbaani file/ ilu ya mafuwaye iskaṭiile [st.]
'the Prophet died in the house of Aisha, he was leaning on her breast'
- l-fuwo (n-)* n. 11/10 [Sw. ufuo SSED 489] beach, strip of sand along the sea, seashore Astaghafirú/ ni sku/ want^hu wa Mwiini/ wote/ hulawa kendra lfuwooni/ kulombaa nvula. 'Astaghafiru is a day when all the people of Brava leave to go to the beach to pray for rain.'
Chimwambila mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ mi/ nnakendra lfuwooni/ kumeramera khabari za mkuḷá. 'He told the daughter of the sultan: I am going to the shore to look for news of my older brother.'

Ifuwo la muuyi 'the shore of the town'

Ifuwo la muuyi/ mooyi 'the shore of a town'

Komeelopó/ apo/ Ifuwooni/ ye/ chiwadirka waant^hu/ wiingi/ wa'ilo kulaa nsi. 'When he arrived, there on the shore he found many people who had come to buy fish.'

Mukhtaa wo/ wakomelo Ifuwooni/ wachiwafikhana/ kuweka ijuuniya/ nt^hi/ jisaa wo/ khpumula. 'When they reached the shore, they agreed to put the sack down on the ground so that they could rest.'

Mwaana/ chishkila Ifuwooni/ chimaliza/ cheendra/ ka mzele Simsini.

'The boy disembarked on the shore and then went to old Simsini.'

Nuuhu/ chiruuda/ karka Ifuwo/ chishkiza ahliye/ wotte/ awaje wamrashizoo ye/ wamwaminiiló. 'Noah returned to the shore and unloaded all his relatives, those who followed him (and) who believed in him.'

Oloshela Ifuwooni. 'He went to the beach.'

Rashani Ifuwo. '(Pl.) follow the shore!'

Wachi'ilata/ apo/ Ifuwooni. 'They left it there on the shore.'

Wiiko/ ilu ya Ifuwo la tawala ya Hiindri. 'It is located on the shore of the Indian Ocean.'

n-fuye

n. 9/10 monkey

Masku/ zilee nfuye/ niingi. 'At night, many monkeys came.'

mkila waa nfuye 'the tail of a monkey'; mikila yaa nfuye 'the tails of monkeys'

Nfuye/ haawoni/ tuusiye/ huwona tusi ya mweenziwe. 'A monkey does not see his ass, he sees the ass of his companion.'

Or: Nfuye/ haawoni/ tuusiye/ huwona ya wiingine. 'A monkey does not see his ass, he sees the ass of others.' (A proverb that conveys the idea that people do not see their own vices, only the vices of others.)

Nk^ha'iwá/ kuwaa we/ nakihtaajá/ khalbi yaa nfuye/ kaa dawa/ suła kuwa nishkilile na khalbiya/ ka mutiini. 'If I had known needed the heart of a monkey as medicine, I would have down from the tree with my heart.'

that you come

Nt^haako/ nfuye/ maduriini. 'The monkey is not in the bush, Nt^hawaako/ nfuye/ maduriini. 'The monkeys are not in the bush.'

Nt^haku/ nfuye/ maduriini. 'There are no monkeys in the bush.'

Ukoo nfuye/ maduriini. 'There is a monkey in the bush.'

Ukoo nfuye/ mlangooni. 'There is a monkey at the door. Wakoo nfuye/ mlangooni. 'There are monkeys at the door.'

Walikoo nfuye/ mooyi. 'There was a monkey.'

Zikoo nfuye/ maduriini. 'There are monkeys in the bush. Or: Wakoo nfuye/ maduriini.

rel.

i-fuye (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

sh-fuye (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

kh-fuuz

v. [Sw. fuzu SED 109; Ar. fauz "to be successful" W 732] (fuziize) succeed, pass (an examination)

Fuzize imtihaani. 'She passed the examination.'

Kila/ mubjaana/ jaribiiló/ nt^hakhfuuz/ na tinzila chitaache. 'Each young man who tried did not succeed, and he had his head cut off.'

Mukhtaa we/ hudaalato khsomá/ we/ takhfuz. 'When you study hard, you succeed.'

rel.

kh-fuziliza v. appl. (fuziliize)

kh-fuuzisha v. caus. (fuzishiize)

m-fuzi (wa-)

n. 1/2 [cf. Sw. mfua SSED 98, but this source does not cite a form with a final i vowel and the concomitant alteration of the final l in the stem -fula] blacksmith Muke/chooloka/ chimpa mfuzi/ shilingi khamsiini/ izo/ kumfulija shkooya. ‘The woman went and gave a blacksmith those fifty shillings to forge for her a necklace.’

G

ku-gabaṭa

v. [Som. gabbo "seek shelter from s.t." DSI 246] (gabeṭe) hide (in order to surprise someone), seek shelter (e.g., under something) kugabaṭa gaari ‘to hold onto the back of a running vehicle’

Gabeṭe gaari. ‘He held onto the vehicle at the back.’

Omari/ gabeṭe nṭ^hini yaa muti. ‘Omari took shelter under a tree.’

rel.

ku-gabaṭika v. p/s.

ku-gabaṭisha v. caus.

Omari/ mgabaṭishize mwaana/ nṭ^hini yaa muti. ‘Omari had the child take shelter under a tree.’

ku-gabaṭishana v. caus. rec.

ku-gabaṭishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-gabaṭishiliza v. caus. appl.

Omari/ mgabaṭishilize Iisa/ mwaana/ nṭ^hini yaa muti. ‘Omari had Iisa’s child take shelter under a tree.’

ku-gabaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Omari/ na Nuuru/ wagabaṭishilizenye waana/ nṭ^hini yaa muti. ‘Omari and Nuuru had one another’s children take shelter under a tree.’

rel. nom.

u-gabaṭo n. 14 act of hiding, seeking shelter

ku-gadika

v. intr. [Som. geddi DSI 263] (gadishile) turn, turn over, change variant form: kugedika [used by our original consultant, MI] (gedishile)

Ka paapo/ nyunyi/ zigidishile/ ziweele/ wake/ wa wanaadamu/ wenye jamaala/ sho kuwonekana/ karka duniya. ‘Then the birds transformed, they became human women, having beauty that is not seen in the world.’

Kuḷa/ chiint^hu/ gedika/ shokuwa chint^hu chimooyi. ‘Everything changes except one thing.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is qabiila ‘clan’.)

Mi/ ngadishilé. ‘I turned.’ (Cf. We/ ngadishilé. ‘You (pl.) turned.’ The second person plural nasal prefix does not form a prenasalized stop with the initial stop in this stem, unlike the first person singular case. Our orthography does not represent this contrast in pronunciation.)

Mp^haamp^ha/ chigedika/ kuruda kaake/ mutiini. ‘The shark turned and went back to his (the monkey’s) tree.’

rel.

ku-gadikoowa v. pass.

ku-gadisha v. caus. (gadishiize) turn something; change (clothes); cause someone to change his ideas etc.

variant form: kugedisha (gedishiize) used by MI chiṭa na shkosi gadisha mara mbili [st.] ‘turn the head and neck two times’ kugadisha kooḍi ‘to change one’s story, one’s version of some matter’ kugadisha Iwarakha ‘to turn the page’ kugadisha mwaana ‘to turn a child over (on his side, e.g.)’ kugadishaa nguwo ‘to change clothes’

Miimba/ inakungadisha/ inakunfanya choolo. ‘The stomach is disturbing me (lit. changing me), I feel like defecating (lit. it is making me defecate).’

ku-gadishagadisha v. freq.

ku-gadishoowa v. caus. pass. (gadishiiza)

rel. nom.
m-gadika (wa-) n. 1/2 one who changes ma-gadiko n. 6 act of turning m-gadiko (mi-) n. 3/4 act of turning u-gadiko n. 14 act of turning ku-gadimisha v. [Sw. kadimisha "send in advance" SSED 164; Ar. qadama "lodge a complaint" W 747-8] (gadimishiize) Saahibu_lmaali/ gadimishize da'awa. 'The owner of the property filed a suit.'

ku-gafa v. [Som. gaf "make a mistake; miss meeting s.o." DSI 249] (gafiile) make a mistake; miss something Abu/ shkoopa/ chimgafiile. 'Abu missed the alcoholic drink.' Or: Abu/ gafiile shkoopa.

Haṭá/ sheekhi/ hugafa/ ka moojé. 'Even sheekh makes mistake to his God (i.e. nobody is perfect, pure).' (A proverb.)

Kugafaa ndila/ siwo/ khtowaa ndila/ ni kubarataa ndila. 'To miss the road is not to lack the road but to learn the road.' (A proverb.)

Kugafa/ ni kubarata. 'To make a mistake is to learn.' (A proverb.)

Kugafa/ siwo/ ebu. 'To make a mistake is not shameful.' (A proverb.)

Mi/ ngafiilé. 'I made a mistake.'

Msoma peeke/ haagafi. 'One who reads alone does not make a mistake.' (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ mara mooyi/ hugafa. 'One makes a mistake (just) one time.' (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ yaa ye/ andikiililá/ haagafi. 'One does not miss whatever is destined/prescribed for him.' (A proverb.)

Mweenza/ we/ gafiile/ chiza kunambila naami/ niko mutiini. 'My friend, you made a mistake not telling me [this] while I was [still] in the tree.'

na sku siṭa wamuusi chiza kugafa [st.] 'and you should not miss (fasting) the (first) six days of the first month of the year'

Nakuwoná/ kuwa uyu/ gafiile niingi. 'I see that this one has made many mistakes.'

Ni/ ngafiilé. 'You (pl.) made a mistake.' (Phon. Our orthography does not indicate that there is a difference between ngafiilé 'I made a mistake' and ngafiilé 'you (pl.) made a mistake. Specifically, in the former case, the nasal prefix forms a pre-nasalized consonant with the initial stem g, while in the latter case, the nasal prefix and the g are a consonant sequence.)

Ni/ nna'iwá/ so/ mahaḷaa si/ hashtakugafa/ mawiindo. 'Do you know any place where we will be certain to find prey?'

Nt^haku/ sho kugafa/ shokuwa mojiitu/ haagafi. 'There is no one who does not make a mistake, except God does not make a mistake.' (A proverb.)

Nt^hale yaa ye/ laṭiiló/ imgafiile siimba. 'The arrow that he shot missed the lion.'

Sho kugafa/ ni mojiitu. 'He who does not make a mistake is God.' (A proverb.)

Yakhugafiile maambo/ harusiini/ zivaliko zaakuja/ anwa'i anwaa'i. 'The things that you missed at the wedding! There were different kinds of food.'

Ya mojiitu/ khandikiililó/ hugafi. 'What God prescribes you you will not miss it.' (A proverb.)

Ya mojiitu/ ozeló/ ha'imgafi/ muunt^hu. 'What God prescribed does not miss one.' (A proverb.)

rel.
ku-gafana v. rec.

Kana/ na mkonó/ ha'igafani. 'Mouth and hand do not miss each other.' (A proverb.)

ku-gafila v. appl. (gafiliile) mistreat (by insulting verbally) [this usage is derived from the root -gafa and there is a parallel form -koseleza derived from the root -kosa, which like -gafa means ‘make a mistake’]

Ali/ ngafiliile. ‘Ali verbally misused me.’

ku-gafilana v. rec.

ku-gafisha v. caus. (gafishiize)

Saalimu/ mgafishize Abu/ shkoopa. ‘Saalimu caused Abu to miss getting the alcoholic drink.’

ku-gafishzanya v. caus. rec.

ku-gafishiliza v. caus. appl. (gafishiliize)

ku-gafoowa v. pass.

Kugafowa niingi/ huletaa dhibu. ‘Making many mistakes causes problems.’

Kugafoowa/ siwo/ illa. ‘To make a mistake is not a deficiency/ a problem.’

rel. nom.

ma-gafo n. 6 mistake; variant form: magafu

Magafuye/ yanakoonyesha/ kuwaa ye/ nthaná/ khpata/ mphumuzi/ waafi. ‘His mistakes show that he is not getting enough rest.’

Muuntu/ shkhira magafoye/ hafishoowa. ‘When one accepts his mistakes he is forgiven.’ (A proverb.)

We/ daa’imu/ hubarata ka magafuyo. ‘You always learn from your mistakes.’

ku-gafila v. (gafiliile) mistreat (by insulting verbally) (Despite the lack of an apparent connection in meaning, this verb seems to be derived from kugafa. This connection is suggested by the fact that a verb equivalent to kugafa in meaning, khkosa, forms an applied version, khkoseleza, with the same meaning as kugafila.)

Ali/ ngafiliile. ‘Ali abused me (verbally).’

rel.

ku-gafilana v. rec. mistreat one another gafuuri n. [Som. gafuur DSI 250] snout, muzzle ku-gaguna v. [cf. Sw. kuna SSED 228 and Sw. kujikuna ‘scratch oneself’ A Standard English-Swahili Dictionary 482] (gaguniile or gagiine) scrape something from something (e.g. food from the side of a pan); detach; scratch (oneself)

Mwaana/ mgagine mwaalimu/ mkono(oni). ‘The child scratched the teacher’s hand/arm.’

Omari/ gagunile ruuhuye. ‘Omari scratched himself.’

rel.

ku-gagunika v. p/s.

ku-gagunisha v. caus. (gagunishiize)

Baana/ gagunishize sufuriya. ‘Baana had the pot scraped out.’ (This example illustrates the possibility of an unspecified causee. The noun sufuriya cannot control an object marker on the verb: Baana/ yagagunishize sufuriya.)

Baana/ mgagunishize mwaalimu/ mkono. ‘Baana caused the teacher to scratch (his) hand.’ (In this example, mwaalimu must be understood as the causee. The sentence cannot be understood as meaning ‘Baana caused someone to scratch the teacher’s hand’.)

Omari/ mgagunishize mwaana/ mwaalimu/ mkono(oni). ‘Omari caused the child to scratch the teacher on the hand.’

Omari/ mgagunishize mwaana/ ruuhuye. ‘Omari caused the child to scratch himself.’ (A periphrastic alternative exists: Omari/ mtile mwaana/ kugaguna ruuhuye. ‘Omari [lit. installed in] the child to scratch himself.’) ku-gagunishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-gagunishiliza v. caus. appl. (gagunishiliize)

Jeeli/ mgagunishilize Ali/ mwaana/ mkono. ‘Jeeli caused Ali’s child to scratch (his) arm.’ (In an example like this where the beneficiary and the causee belong to the same noun class, one cannot omit the overt beneficiary and have the object marker be understood as referring to the beneficiary and the following noun to the causee: Jeeli/ mgagunishilize mwaana/ mkono. ‘Jeeli caused his child to scratch himself.’ It is acceptable to omit the overt beneficiary noun if the causee belongs to a different noun class: Jeeli/ mgagunishilize waana/ mkono. ‘Jeeli made his children scratch their arms.’

Omari/ mgagunishilize Hamadi/ mwaana/ ruuhuye. ‘Omari caused Hamadi’s child to scratch himself.’ (A periphrastic alternative exists:

Omari/ mtīlīle Hamadi/ mwaana/ kugaguna ruuhuye. ‘Omari [lit. instilled in] Hamadi’s child to scratch himself.’)

ku-gagunishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-gagunishilizeenye)

Omari/ na Nuurú/ wagagunishilizenye waana/ ruhu zaawo. ‘Omari and Nuuru caused one another’s children to scratch themselves.’ (A periphrastic alternative exists:

Omari/ na Nuurú/ watīlīlene waana/ kugaguna ruhu zaawo. ‘Omari and Nuuru [lit. instilled in] one another’s children to scratch themselves.’) ku-gagunoowa v. pass. (-gaguniila)

gahaba (ma-)

n. [Sw. kahaba SSED 166; Ar. qaḥba W 743] experienced female prostitute rel.

u-gahaba n. 14 prostitution

m-gahawa (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Ar. maqḥāya "coffeehouse" W 795] restaurant, coffee shop

Huseeni/ hufaanyani/ mgahawaani. ‘What does Huseeni do at the restaurant?’ (A possible answer to this question: Huseeni/ hupikaa kuja/ mgahawaani. ‘Huseeni cooks food at the restaurant.’)

Huseeni/ huna khamri/ mgahawaani. ‘Huseeni drinks alcohol at the restaurant.’ (This sentence has canonical downstep intonation and the corresponding yes-no questions are as expected: the simple question has the usual Q-Raising, but the accent placement is not shifted. The exclamatory question shifts accent: Huseeni/ huna khamrī/ mgahawaani!?)

Lawa mgahawa/ uyu/ ingila mgahawa/ uyu. ‘Go from this restaurant and enter this (other) restaurant.’

Mi/ njile mgahawaani. ‘I ate at a restaurant.’

Nele khamrī/ mgahawaani. ‘I drank alcohol at the restaurant. (Since the two phrases in this example sentence have final accent, the yes-no questions based on it cannot display any accent shifting. The simple yes-no question simply has Q-Raising, while the exclamatory question has downstep-intonation, with the final syllable being realized with a very notable fall in pitch: Nele khamrī/ mgahawaani!?)

Nele khamrī/ mgahawaani. ‘I drank liquour at the restaurant.’ (In comparison to the immediately preceding example, there is focus here on khamri. This focus prevents the final accent triggered by the verb from projecting to mgahawaani, which is therefore assigned default penult accent. In the corresponding simple yes-no question, the accent on the out-of-focus mgahawaani shifts to the ultimate syllable. The question of course exhibits Q-Raising: Nele khamrī/ mgahawaani?)

Oloka/ ingila migahawaani. ‘Go and enter into restaurants.’

Si/ choloshelé/ mgahawa oo/ ka wiingi. ‘We have gone to that restaurant often.’

Si/ choloshelé/ mgahawa o(y)o/ yana masku. ‘We went to that restaurant last night (lit. yesterday night).’

m-gaala (wa-,ma-)

n. 1/2 a person belonging to the Gaala ethnic group

Waant^hu/ wiingine/ wadegelo Miini/ ni magaaḷa. ‘Another people [besides the Tunne] who settled in Brava were the Galla.’

galangaliyo

n. [said to be of Tunne origin, but so far have not found a source listed in available lexical material; no alternative Chimini name has been given] a small bird with blue wings and a green breast; it make a high, piercing sound; in Brava it was found perched on the coconut palms that lined the main thoroughfare

chi-n-galaawa	n. [Sw. ngalawa SSED 334] a type of boat (according to SSED "a small dug-out canoe with outriggers") not much seen anymore in Brava
ku-galgala	v. [Sw. gaagaa, garagara, galagala SSED 110] (galgeele) roll from side to side, toss and turn Dughaghi za maduuri/ zinakugalgala manyiini. 'Wild animals of the bush are tossing around in the grass.' Karkaa ye/ nakugalgalo chiliini/ shkasa waant^hu/ kaa kule/ wanakuuya. 'While he was tossing and turning on the bed he heard people from afar coming.' rel. ku-galgalika v. p/s. ku-galgaliza v. tr. appl. ku-galgalizanya v. tr. appl. rec. ku-galgaza v. tr. (galgeeze) roll s.t. from side to side, toss around (Morph: Stems ending in l form their 'causative' by transforming the l to z . In the present example, the resulting verb is simply a transitive version of the corresponding intransitive verb.) Omari/ mgalgeze mwaana. 'Omari rolled the child from side to side.' ku-galgazanya v. tr. rec. rel. nom. m-galgala (wa-) n. 1/2 one who rolls from side to side u-galgalo n. 14 m-galgaza (wa-) n. 1/2 u-galgazo n. 14
ku-galmata	v. [Som.] (galmeete) to have sex Omari/ galmeete na mukeewe. 'Omari had sexual intercourse with his wife.' (Observe that when na is not conjoining two nouns in surface structure, it does not trigger a final accent. In the present example we can gloss as "with"; but in the sentence below, the na follows the subject and does trigger final accent.) Omari/ na mukeewé/ galmeete. 'Omari had sexual intercourse with his wife.' (Observe that the subject marker on the verb in this example is singular, like in the preceding example where the na -phrase is post-verbal.) Omari/ na mukeewé/ galmeetó. 'Omari and his wife had intercourse.' Omari/ na mukeewé/ wagalmeete. 'Omari and his wife had intercourse.' (Note that in this example the verb exhibits plural agreement with the conjoined subject.)
galtu	adj. [Som. galti "foreigner; uncivilized, uncouth" DSI 253] uncivilized; ignorant of s.t.
Galwaani	n. the name of a large building in Brava where there is a bus staging area
galadi	n. [Som. gallad DSI 252] favor, help (from God or man) mtume shiilo galadi na faoila [st.] 'the prophet who helped and favored us'
gamasi	n. [Som. gamas "type of battle spears, small spears"] na wiimbili waawo ni gamasi mbili [st.] 'and their sons were two brave men'
n-gaamba	n. [Sw. kamba SSED 170] shrimp
n-gaamba	n. [Sw. ng'amba "a kind of hawk's head turtle, from which tortoise-shell is procured" SSED 334] tortoise with incrustations on its back, not eaten
chi-gaambari (zi-)	n. 7/8 [Som. gambar DSI 253] a locally-made small stool with top made of leather or stretched cow hide (Notice that the Chimwiini form has a long vowel in antepenult position in contrast to the Somali original. This would seem to reflect the general pattern in Chimwiini where vowels are lengthened before prenasalized consonants.)

- zi-gambari* n. [cf. Ital. gambero] shrimp
- gambaruusi* n. shrimp (In Brava, gambaruusi were not traditionally eaten, except by people who had some association with Italians and foreigners generally.)
rel.
i-gambaruusi (mi-) n. aug. shrimp
Migambaruusi/ huṭawanyoowa/ want^hu wa Miini/ hawaaji/ migambaruusi. ‘Shrimps are discarded, the people of Brava do not eat shrimps.’
Want^hu wa Miini/ hawa’isi/ kuja migambaruusi. ‘People of Brava do not know to eat shrimps.’
- ku-gambika* v. intr. [Som. gambi var. gambi, a transitive verb, DSI 266] (gambishile) be overturned (In words of Bantu origin, a vowel is normally lengthened before a prenasalized consonant. The short vowel in this example is apparently a reflection of its origin in Somali. The Somali root is extended here by the intransitivizing Bantu extension ik. See the causative form below where this same root is extended by the causative extension ish.)
Ali/ gaariye/ igambishile. ‘Ali’s car overturned.’ Gari iyi/ haygambiki. ‘This car cannot overturn.’
rel.
ku-gambikila v. intr. appl.
Chigaari/ chinakhugambikila. ‘The (dim.) car is overturning on (or onto) you.’
Chigaari/ hashtakhugambikila/ jis’iyo. ‘The (dim.) car won’t overturn for you that way.’
Gaari/ imgambikiḷiḷe. ‘The car overturned on (or onto) him.’
ku-gambikiḷoowa v. intr. appl. pass.
Ali/ gambikiḷiḷa na gaari. ‘Ali had the car overturn on him.’
ku-gambisha v. caus.
Gambishize gaari. ‘He overturned the car.’
ku-gambishika v. caus. p/s.
Gari iyi/ haygambishiki. ‘This car cannot be overturned (by someone).’
ku-gambishiliza v. caus. appl.
Ali/ mgambishilize Hamadi/ siniya. ‘Ali overturned the tray to Hamadi’s detriment.’
- gambuusa* n. 9/10 [Sw. gambusi SSED 110] a native guitar-like instrument Ka shkapuuni/ schilawa zinaandra/ na gambuusa/ naazó/ zinakubigó. ‘From the basket she took our banjos and guitars which were playing.’
rel.
chi-gambuusa (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-gambuusa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- n-gamiila* n. [Sw. ngamia SSED 334; Ar. jamal W 138] camel Morooni/ walimo ngamiila/ mooyi. ‘In the fenced enclosure there was a camel.’
muunt^hu/ mooyi/ ngamiilaye/ yingilo baaḏi ‘a man whose camel had gone astray’ Mwenye ngamiila/ chimuza msaafiri... ‘The owner of the camel asked the traveler...’
Nt^haskupita/ sku niingi/ siimba/ chimuja ngamila wa sultaani/ na kila/ shpowa khabari/ sultaani/ chijiiba... ‘Not many days passed [before] the lion ate a camel belonging to the sultan, and every time he was given the news, the sultan answered...’ (Notice that the

- \ conjunction na does not trigger final accent on the quantifier kila in this example.)
- rel.
chi-gamiila (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-gamiila (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
yiile/ kana igamiila ‘as tall as a camel’
- gamu ideo. [Som. gam “to exterminate”, cited in Dhoorre & Tosco, p. 143] Ma’askari/ wont^he/ harbiini/ wafanyize gamu. ‘All the soldiers in the fighting have been killed.’ (Although gamu phrases with the preceding verb, there is no lengthening before gamu. The pitch of gamu seems to participate in the downstep intonation following the quantifier wont^he, which is regularly focused.)
- gamuuni n. [Som. gamuun “arrow for child to play with, toy arrow” Ab xxx but “shaft of arrow” DSI 254] arrow kh^hoosata/ kana gamuuni ‘to be straight as an arrow’ N^hakhu^hosisha/ kana gamuuni. ‘I will make you straight as an arrow (i.e. discipline you).’
Omari/ tosee^he/ kana gamuuni. ‘Omari became straight as an arrow (i.e. got disciplined).’
- rel.
chi-gamuuni (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-gamuuni (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ganaaha n. [Som. ganaax DSI 254] a fine (that one must pay) kubiga ganaaha ‘to impose a fine’ Poliisi/ mbishile Ali/ ganaaha/ pisilee ndila/ ya ghal^hta. ‘The police fined Ali, he went the wrong way on the road.’
kubigowa ganaaha ‘to be penalized’ Omari/ bishi^hla ganaaha/ ragiile/ kulipa deeniye. ‘Omaro was fined, he was late repaying his debt.’
- i-gaandra* (ma-) n. 5/6 (cf. i-kaandra) [Sw. ganda SSED 111] bark (of a tree), peel (of a fruit)
Chambula igandra yaa mazu. ‘He peeled off the banana skin.’ Cf.
Chambula igandra yaa mazu/ chaambuló. ‘He peeled off the banana skin, that’s what he did.’
Chambula igaandra/ yaa mazu. ‘He peeled off the skin of the banana.’ Cf.
Chambula igaandra/ yaa mazu/ chaambuló. ‘He pulled off the skin of the banana, that’s what he did.’ Or:
Chambula igaandra/ chaambuló/ yaa mazu. ‘He peeled off the skin, that’s what he did, of the banana.’
Chaambula/ igandra yaa mazu. ‘He peeled off the skin of the banana.’
 (Note that given the focus on the verb in this sentence, it is not the case that one can add the Verb Copy, which is also used to focus the verb: Chaambula/ igandra yaa mazu/ chaambuló.)
- i-gaandro* (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. gando “claw of lobster or crab” SSED 111] claw (e.g. of lobsters, crabs, etc.)
nge ya magaandro ‘scorpion’
- m-gaanga* (wa-) n. 1/2 [Sw. mganga SSED 111] witch (not generally used, as saahiri is preferred); local doctor
Iwiile/ ya kuwa uyu/ ni mgaanga/ mkulu. ‘He came to know that this one was a great witch.’
Kamaa ye/ ni mgaanga/ wa kakal^hila/ ha^hashindroowa/ kiiwa/ ije yimo sandukhuuni. ‘If he is truly a witch, he will not fail to know what is inside the box.’
- ma-gaangamu* n. [cf. Sw. kungugu “mist, fog” SSED 229] mist, fog; overcast sky
- chi-gaango* (zi-) SSED 111] tin can n. 7/8 [? Sw. kigango, dim. of gango “appliance for holding together what is separate”
Haliima/ fungile chigaango/ chaa nsi. ‘Haliima opened a tin of fish.’
Omari/ lesele zigango ziwili/ za ananaasi. ‘Omari brought two tin cans of pineapple.’

Suukari/ yimo chigangooni. ‘Sugar is in a tin can.’

rel.

i-gaango n. aug. big tin can

Hamadi/ nakubiga igaango. ‘Hamadi is beating a big tin can (like a drum).’

Omari/ lesele mafta/ ka igaango. ‘Omari brought oil with big tin can.’

ku-gaangula

v. [Sw. kwangua SSED 235] (gangiile) scrape out s.t. stuck to s.t. (e.g. food stuck to the bottom of a pot)

gani

interrogative part. [Sw. gani SSED 111] which? what? (Examination of the examples below shows that gani is always phrase-final, indicating that it is inherently focused. The preceding vowel in the phrase is not lengthened, despite the fact that phrase-final CVCV words ordinarily lengthen a preceding vowel in the same phrase. What is not clear is whether this absence of lengthening is simply a lexical property of gani, similar to several other CVCV words, or whether it is a function of the focus on gani.)

Chakuja gani/ we/ nakhsuuló. ‘What food is it that you want?’

Chibuku gani/ eha Ali/ mbozelo mwaalimú. ‘Which book did Ali steal from the teacher?’

Chibuku gani/ chaako/ chibeeló. ‘Which book of yours is lost?’ (Less common is: Chibukucho gani/ chibeeló. ‘Your book which is lost?’)

Chibuku gani/ karka zaa we/ uziló/ we/ someeló. ‘Which book of those that you bought did you read?’

Chibuku gani/ mpelo mwaaná. ‘Which book have you given to the child?’

Chibuku gani/ mpelo mwaaná/ yuuzí. ‘Which book did you give the child the day before yesterday?’

Chibuku gani/ we/ someeló/ karka zaa we/ uziló. ‘Which book did you read of those that you bought?’

Chimuza/ Ali gani. ‘He asked him: which Ali?’

Gari gani/ we/ weenó. ‘Which car did you see?’ (Possible answer: Gari ya Hamadi/ uziló. ‘The car that Hamadi bought.’ Or: Mbene gari ya Hamadi/ uziló. ‘I saw the car that Hamadi bought.’ Or: Mbene Hamadi/ gari yaa yó/ uziló. ‘I saw Hamadi that car he bought.’)

Fatura gani/ Nuuru/ uziló. ‘Which car did Nuuru buy?’

lamna gani ‘what kind?’

Gaari/ lamna gani/ we/ uziló. ‘What kind of car did you buy?’

Gari ya lamna gani/ we/ uziló. ‘What kind of car did you buy?’

Gaari/ lamna gani/ yuuzila. ‘What kind of car was bought?’

Uzile gaari/ lamna gani. ‘What kind of car did he buy?’ (Cf. Uzile gaari/ lamna gani. ‘What kind of car did you buy?’)

Yuuzila gaari/ lamna gani. ‘What kind of car was bought?’

Mahaḷa gani. ‘Where?’

Maamé/ waawe/ shfanya kazi gani. ‘Mother, what kind of work did my father do?’

Mi/ siisi/ gari gani/ Baana/ uziló. ‘I do not know which car Baana bought.’ (Because the question word is located to the left of the verb, it requires that verb to be put into pseudo-relative form: uziló rather than uzile. The same holds true in the sentence: Gari gani/ Baana/ uziló/ mi/ siisi. ‘Which car Baan bought I do not know.’ But if the question word is to the right of the verb, no pseudo-relativization occurs: Mi/ siisi/ Baana/ uzile gari gani. ‘I do not know Baana bought which car.’)

Ni ajabu gani/ nk^hulu. ‘What a great wonder!’

Ni koḍi gani/ izi. ‘What kind of words are these?’

Ni munt^hu gani/ takhadiro khpanza zombo izó/ okó. ‘Which man can take those things up there?’

Nk^halent^he mahaḷa gani. ‘Where should I sit?’

Numba gani/ nuumbaye. ‘What kind of house is his house (i.e. I think his house is unsuitable or unsanitary or messy or crumbling).’ (This example illustrates a common pejorative use of gani.)

Nureeni/ uzile jaka gani. ‘Nureeni bought which jacket?’

Nuuru/ wanawe gani/ wa’olosheló. Nuuru, which of his children went?’ (In this example, Nuuru may be followed by a pause or not.) (It is ungrammatical to say Wanawe Nuuru/ gani/ wa’olosheló. On the other hand, ?Wanawe gani/ Nuuru/ wa’olosheló. is perhaps possible, but not preferred.)

- Siisi/ gari gani/ uziizó. ‘I do not know which car he sold.’
 Uzile zint^hu gani. ‘He bought what things?’ Or: Uzile/ zint^hu gani. ‘He bought what things?’ Or: Ni zint^hu gani/ ye/ uziló. ‘It is what things that he bought?’
 Wakh^ti gani. ‘When?’
 Wana gani/ wa Nuuru/ wa’olosheló. ‘Which children of Nuuru’s went.’
 (We)/ mpele chibuku gani/ maana. ‘You gave which book to the child?’ The accent on maana needs to be reviewed; in my notes I wrote a final accent, but that would seem to go against the focus on gani
- (We)/ mpele m^waaná/ chibuku gani. ‘You gave the child which book?’
- ganjeela n. [Ital. cancello] (=i-laango, the augmentative form of m-laango ‘door’) gate ganjeelaani ‘at the gate’
- n-gano n. 9 [Sw. ngano SSED 335] wheat nganoo mbiti ‘uncooked wheat (in grains)’ unga waa ngano ‘wheat flour’
- garabu n. [Som. garab "shoulder; support" DSI 256] shoulder; help, support Andishile nguwoze/ garabuuni. ‘He put his clothes on his shoulder.’
 Chiingila/ numbaani/ chija garabu/ iyo/ chiyolokela. ‘It [the hyena] went inside the house and ate that shoulder [piece of the goat] and then took off.’
 kh-panana garabu ‘to give one another support’ Wazaleeno/ laazimu/ khpanana garabu. ‘Relatives must support each other.’ (A proverb.)
 khpata garabu ‘to get support’
 Nuuru/ pete garabu/ suura/ ka weenzawe/ fungilee duka/ nk^hulu/ ya a^limentaare. ‘Nuuru got great support from his friends, he opened a large food shop.’
 khpatisha garabu ‘to help get supporters’ Abdi/ mpatishize Omari/ garabu. ‘Abdi helped Omari acquire support.’
 kht^owa garabu ‘to not get support’ Muunt^hu/ sht^owa garabu/ siwo/ sahali/ kolokaa mbele. ‘If one lacks support, it is not easy to move forward.’
 kht^oza garabu ‘to lose support’ Abdó/ mtozeze mweenzawe/ garabu. ‘Abdo caused his friend to lose supporters.’
 kingila garabuuni ‘[lit.] to enter in the shoulder -- i.e. to help, assist’
 Hasani/ mweenzawe/ Nuuru/ mwingilo garabuuni/ khfungula warshada/ ya zilaatu. ‘It is Hasani’s friend Nuuru who supported him in opening a shoe factory.’
 Mojiitu/ nakhingile garabuuni. ‘May God assist you (in what you are planning to do).’
 kubasha garabu ‘to lose support’ Omari/ bashize garabu/ mku^lé/ Ali/ kufa. ‘Omari lost support (due to) his brother Ali passing away.’
 kumpa garabu ‘to help, give support to s.o.’
 Mi/ nakhusulaa we/ Hamadi/ kumpaa garabu/ ka jawabu iyo. ‘Me, I want you, Hamadi, to assist me in that matter.’
 kumtila muunt^hu/ garabuuni ‘to take someone as an assistant, to provide someone with help’ Muunt^hu/ walaaliwe/ humtila garabuuni. ‘One must give support to his relative.’
 kumwelela muunt^hu/ garabu ‘to be a help to someone, to be an assistant to someone’
 Munó/ ni garabuyo. ‘Your brother is your shoulder.’ (A proverb.)
 Muunt^hu/ ha^tiindi/ garabuye. ‘(Lit.) one does not cut his shoulder – i.e. one does not fight, ignore etc. his friends, clansmen, i.e. those people that would come to one’s support.’
 Muunt^hu/ suura/ kumpa garabu/ waake. ‘It is good for someone to help, give support to his (friend, relative, etc.).’

Mwajiitu/ mwingile garabuuni. ‘God helped him [lit. entered his shoulder].’
rel.

i-garabu (ma-) n. aug.

nayo magarabu mawili akhdari [st.] ‘it has two green wings’

garaacha

n. 9/10 [Eng. garage] garage

Baazi/ hadiile/ Nuuru/ hufanya kaazi/ garachaani. ‘Baazi said that Nuuru works at the garage.’

Baazi/ hadile Nuuru/ hufanyapi/ kaazi. ‘Baazi said that Nuuru works where?’ (The enclitic =pi ‘where’ stands at the end of a focus-phrase, hence the phrasal separation of the verb and its complement kaazi. Apparently having focus on the complement verb renders the phrasal separation of the main verb from the complement less likely (maybe impossible; the point needs to be studied). Note that when the statement in the preceding example was elicited, the first response was to make the main verb phrase-final. This was generally the case for elicitation from GM, while in the question the first response was to not to separate the main verb from the complement, as in the present example. It should be noted that if the subject of the complement clause is postposed, the main verb is phrasally separated from the complement verb: Baazi/ hadiile/ hufanyapi/ kaazi/ Nuuru. ‘Baazi said where works Nuuru?’)

Hafisaani/ garachaani/ hulindra wakhti wiingi. ‘At the office in the garage one waits for a long time.’

garaada

n. rank

Karka waant^{bu}/ wa Miini/ garaada/ ya jeneraale/ komeeló/ ni Sa'id Mariina. ‘Among the people of Brava, the rank of general, the one who reached it is Said Mariina.’

garambiyoole

n. 9/10 apron

Garambiyoole/ ya dakhtari/ daa'imu/ ni nelpe. ‘The apron of a doctor is always white.’

Kooko/ rasmi/ laazimu/ kuvala garambiyoole/ mukhtaay ye/ nakhpikó. ‘An official cook must wear an apron when he cooks.’

garamudo

n. a dish of boiled meat and noodles; thick hand-made noodles are cooked in the stock and served mixed with the meat variant forms: galamudo, ganamudo

Garamudo/ mp^haka/ jiile. ‘[Lit.] the cat has eaten the garamudo -- meaning: they have been all eaten, or: they have never been cooked.’

garaaso

n. 9 [Ital. grasso] grease

khpaka bawaaba/ garaaso ‘to grease the hinges’ khpaka miilu/ garaaso ‘to grease the wheels’ khpangula garaaso ‘to wipe off grease’ makiina/ ya garaaso ‘grease pump, dispenser’

garbaashi

n. 9/10 [Som. karbaash DSI 359] whip

kubiga garbaashi ‘to whip’

Nnakhsuulá/ we/ kumbiga garbaashi/ miya. ‘I want you to give me one hundred lashes.’

garbasaari

n. s.t. used to cover the shoulders particularly and possibly the head variant form: garbisaari

Chiwona garbisariini/ yandishila ina/ ya mwanaamke/ wa sultaani. ‘He saw a shoulder-covering on which was written the name of the daughter of the sultan.’ syntax?

Kibri/ ni garbasaari/ ya mojiitu. ‘Pride is the mantle of God (i.e. only God has the privilege of being prideful, not human beings).’ (A proverb.)

Laakini/ ye/ oyo mwanaamke/ ka kumwingila haraka/ naayé/ nakuzolozolo ruuhuyé/ ki’iḷawilá/ chiliwala garbisaariye. ‘But she, that girl, because of her haste [lit. haste entering her], while she was collecting herself to get out, she forgot her veil.’

Numbaani/ chiwona garbisaari/ nṯhi. ‘In the house, he saw the veil on the floor.’

gardara

n. [Som. gardarro DSI 258] fault, wrong or unjust behavior

Gardara/ hayiineendri. ‘Fault, wrongness does not walk/ work.’ (A proverb.)

Mp^hele ruuhuyá/ gardará. ‘I attributed the fault to myself.’

Muunt^hu/ ha’etoowi/ ka gardara. ‘A person is not blamed with faults.’ (A proverbial saying.) meaning?

Muunt^hu/ ka gardara/ harashoowi. Or: Muunt^hu/ harashoowi/ ka gardara. ‘A man with faults is not followed.’ (A saying.) (It should be noted that in this example: ka gardara ‘with faults’ is not a reduced relative clause, as indicated by the absence of the final accent associated with relative clauses. One can, of course, use a relative clause structure to convey the same meaning: Muunt^hu/ nayo gardará/ harashoowi. ‘A man who has faults is not followed.’)

Nimpele Alí/ gardará. ‘I attributed the fault to Ali.’

We/ ni gardará. ‘You are at fault.’

gardi

n.

Gardi/ ipitiḷila muskitiini. ‘Marching passed the mosque.’ Also: Muskitiini/ ipitiḷila gardi. ‘The mosque there was marching to.’

ka gardi ‘with marching’

Ma’askari/ wapisile muskitiini/ ka gardi. ‘The soldiers marched past the mosque.’ Also: Muskitiini/ ipisiḷa ka gardi. ‘There was passing the mosque with marching.’ Muskiti/ upisiḷa ka gardi. ‘The mosque was passed with marching.’

ku-gardisha

v. caus. [Som. gaardi DSI 244] (gardishiize) drill (march), exercise someone Ma’askari/ wanakugardisha. ‘Soldiers are marching.’

rel.

ku-gardishiliza v. appl.

ku-gardishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-gardishoowa v. pass.

Inakugardishoowa/ skolaani. ‘There’s marching going on at school.’

gareesa

n. [Som. garays DSI 257] a kind of multi-colored cloth worn by women; this cloth is called kanga in Swahili, but women in Brava wear it differently variant form of gereesi

garfa

n. [Ar. qirfa W 758] cinnamon

Chaayi/ shtilowa garfa/ hununk^ha miskhi/ huwa chisuura. ‘Tea, when cinnamon is added, smells good, it gets better.’

Garfa/ huhadoowa/ kuwa nii dawa. ‘Cinnamon is said to be a remedy (for certain illnesses).’

ku-gargaara

v. [Som. verb gargaar DSI 258] (gargariile) help

Baana/ mgargariile Hamadi. ‘Baana helped Hamadi.’

ichigargariilo ni kubiga adaana [nṯ.] ‘making the adaana helped us -- lit. that which helped us was making the call to prayer’ (Note: the call to prayer is also made when a natural disaster occurs, as a cry for help.)

Mojiitu/ khugargariile? ‘has God assisted you?’ (This is said when visiting (or speaking to) a member of a household where a wedding ceremony has recently taken place. The obligatory reply is: alhamdulillah ‘praise be to God’.)

mundra wa Mawlaana/ mgargariḷo Hamadí/ kulimá ‘the field that Mawlaana helped Hamadi to cultivate’

rel.

ku-gargaroowa v. pass. (gargariḷa) be helped

Hamadi/ gargariḷa kulima muundra/ na Baana. ‘Hamadi was helped to cultivate the field by Baana.’

gargaari

n. 9/10 [Som. noun gargaar DSI 258] help, aid

Chiintʰu/ chisuura/ khfanyoowa/ ni kulindra gargaari/ kuwasila. ‘The best thing to do would be to wait for help to arrive.’

gargaariye ‘his helper’ (cf. gargaarize ‘his helpers’)

Maskiini/ gargaariye/ ni mojiitu. ‘A poor man’s helper is God.’ (A proverb.)

gari

n. [Som. gar “justice, legal case” DSI 255] reason, judgement as to whom is in the right, justice

Gari/ huṭiindó/ ni mojiitu. ‘The right decision, the one who makes it is God.’ (A proverb.)

Gari/ huṭomola mojiitu. ‘Justice comes from God.’ (A proverb.)

Gari/ huwanaayó/ ni muntʰu mooyi/ tu. ‘There is only one person who has the right decision.’ (A saying.)

Gari/ ishtindoowa/ hurashoowa. ‘When a right decision is made, it is followed.’ (A saying.)

Hamadi/ nayoo gari/ kumwiliza mwaanawe/ peesa. ‘Hamadi has the right to refuse his child money.’

Iyo/ ni gari. ‘That’s right.’

khpaar gari ‘to attribute a lack of fault to; tell someone that he is right’

Khpaar gari/ ka wanaafakhi/ siwo/ suura. ‘To give support (in winning an argument) by telling lies is not good.’

khṭomolaa gari ‘to make judgment what is right, just’ khṭowaa gari ‘to not be in the right’

Suufi/ ṭozelee gari/ ka jawabu izo. ‘Suufi was in the wrong in these matters.’

khṭozaa gari ‘to fail to declare someone to be in the right (even if one knows that he is in fact in the right)’

Omari/ namṭoza Ali/ gari. ‘Omari is making Ali lose (the contest about who is right and who is wrong, e.g. by saying things to make Ali seem wrong even though in fact he is right).’

khṭalaa gari ‘to take blame, accept responsibility’

Omari/ hataali/ gari. ‘Omari does not take blame, accept that he is in the wrong.’

kumingililaa gari ‘to take the blame’

Omari/ ha’imiingile/ gari. ‘Omari does not accept blame.’

kumpaa gari ‘to tell someone he is right, support him (even if he is not)’

Omari/ nampaa gari/ mweenzawe. ‘Omari is supporting his friend (in the argument etc., asserting that he is right, etc.).’

muuyi usho dowla naa takhupo gari [nt.] ‘in a town without government, who will provide justice?’

Mzuungu/ muḷe/ na gariyé/ mpe. ‘Kill the infidel and give him (the judgment of whether) he is in the right.’ (A proverb.)

Omari/ nayoo gari. ‘Omari is right.’

Omari/ ntʰaná/ gari. ‘Omari is wrong (he does not have right on his side).’

Siwo/ gari/ Faatima/ kiza kumziyarata mbujé. ‘It is not right for Faatima to refuse to visit her sister.’

We/ nayoo gari/ khsuḷa kiiwa/ zaaydi/ tarafu ya iyi. ‘You are right to want to know more about this.’

We/ nayoo gari/ za chiza khkoḷa naami. ‘You have the right not to talk to me.’

- gaari (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw. gari SSED 112; Hind.] truck, lorry (though MI also used this word to mean ‘car’, our other consultants preferred fatuura to refer to a car and gaari to refer to a truck)
Ali/ fanyiize/ gaari. ‘Ali fixed the truck.’ Or: Ali/ fanyize gaari.
Ali/ fanyizeeyi/ gaari. ‘How did Ali fix the truck?’ Or: Fanyizeeyi/ Ali/ gaari.
Kanaa we/ nakhsula khpata gaari/ khtukulá/ chiint^hu/ suura/ chaa we/ khfaanya/ ni kumvla Abú. ‘If you want to get a ride the best thing to do is to call Abu.’
khpandra gaari ‘to climb aboard a truck’; also: khpandrowa gaari (passive), khpandrika gaari (potential-stative) Gari ya Nuuru/ yiko sukhuuni/ inakhsaafira/ inakhpandroowa. ‘Nuuru’s truck is at the market, it is going on a journey, it is being boarded.’
Gari ya Omari/ nt^hayna/ ngazi/ ha’ipaandriki/ ilu. ‘Omari’s truck cannot be climbed on, it has no ladder.’
khshika gaari/ farina ‘to apply brakes of a car’ Sheekhuna/ shishile gaari/ fariina/ kaa nguvu/ qiiq!/ qariibu/ kumbiga muunt^hu. ‘Sheekhuna pushed the car’s brakes with force, chiiq! he almost hit a man.’
magari ya Nuuru ‘Nuuru’s cars’
Mp^hatilile gaari/ kuulá. ‘I got a wheel for the car.’
Naani/ uzilo gaari. ‘Who bought a car/truck?’
numa ya gaari ‘the rear part of a car’
- rel.
chi-gaari (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. cart to carry, move things chigari cha mkono ‘wheelbarrow’ chigari chaa nt^haka ‘a cart for carrying garbage’ chigari cha waana ‘stroller, pram’ Chigaari/ chiletelela chijuulu. ‘This cart was brought a wheel for it.’ Or: ‘This cart was used to bring a wheel.’
- i-gaari* (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
igari imooyi ‘one aug. lorry’; migari miwili ‘two aug. lorries’ igari iwovu/ ya madrasa ‘the bad lorry of the madrasa’; migari miwovu/ ya madrasa ‘the bad lorries of the madrasa’ Igari iyi/ ni iwovu. ‘This (aug.) truck is bad.’
igari ya farasi ‘a horse-drawn cart for transporting people’ igari ya mp^huundra ‘a donkey-drawn cart for transporting goods’ Migari aya/ ni miwovu. ‘These (aug.) trucks are bad.’
- ku-gariirsata* v. [Som. gariir DSI 259] shake, tremble Mikuwa/ yanakubiga/ hatá/ ngarirseté. ‘It is thundering to point that I am trembling.’
- rel.
ku-garirsatoowa v. pass.
Mikuwa/ yanakubiga/ hatá/ hugarirsatoowa. ‘It is thundering to the point that I am trembling (lit there is trembling).’
- garnyuungu* n. [Som. riyannug DSI 520] varan, iguana
rel.
i-garnyuungu n. tortoise review
- garoowu* (ma-) n. divorced woman garowu uyu ‘this divorced woman’; magarowu aya ‘these divorced women’ Haliimu/ ni garoowu. ‘Haliima is a divorced woman.’
- m-garwa* (wa-) n. 1/2 member of a clan of fishermen
Apo/ zamaani/ waaliko/ mgarwa/ mooyi/ maskiini. ‘Once upon a time

- there was a poor fisherman.’
Wagarwa/ hupataa nsi. ‘Fishermen catch fish.’
- ku-garwaakhsata v. (garwakhseeṭe) take the blame, accept being wrong Omari/ garwakhseeṭe/ ka yaa ye/ fanyiizó. ‘Omari took the blame for what he did’
- gashaani n. [Som. gashaan DSI 262] a married man or woman who has a sexual relationship with a person other than his or her spouse Omari/ waliko ni gashaani/ wa Haliima. ‘Omari was Haliima’s paramour.’
rel.
u-gashaani n. the act of taking a paramour
Diini/ ya islaamu/ huhada/ ugashaani/ ni haraamu. ‘Islam says that taking a paramour is forbidden.’
- gaashaani n. [Som. gaashaan DSI 244] shield (Phon. Although Chimwiini bans successive long vowels generally, this item is one of a significant number of Somali and Arabic loanwords that have both an antepenult and a penult long vowel in violation of the aforementioned constraint. It is interesting that at the phrasal level both of these vowels shorten, as in gashani zaawo below.)
ka mp^hanga zaawo/ na gashani zaawo ‘with their swords and their shields’
- gaasi (ma-) n. [Som. geesi DSI 165] a brave person; adj. brave, daring, courageous gaasi/ kana siimba ‘as brave, daring etc. as a lion’ Gaasi/ maamaye/ lizile/ biikhi/ maamaye/ teshele. ‘A brave man’s mother cried, a coward’s mother laughed.’ (A proverb.)
Mafaarisi/ huhadoowa/ kuwa ni waant^hu/ magaasi. ‘Persians are said to be brave people.’
munt^hu gaasi ‘a brave person’ (cf. want^hu magaasi ‘brave people’)
rel.
u-gaasi n. 14 courage, bravery
konyesha ugaasi ‘to demonstrate courage’
Sayyidina Ali tozele ugaasi [nt.] ‘Sayyidina Ali lost his courage’ (Sayyidina Ali was a Bravanese who, when hearing the sound of guns during a raid, said “there will be no bravery after this day”.)
- gawaadi (ma-) n. [Som. gawaad DSI 262] pimp, man or woman who helps one get the services of a prostitute; pl: magawaadi
Gawaadi/ ni munt^hu wa muḷooni. ‘A pimp is a man of hellfire.’ (A proverb.)
Zamaani/ Mwiini/ wawaaliko/ magawaadi/ wiingi. ‘During old times there were many pimps in Brava.’
rel.
u-gawaadi n. 14 the profession of being a pimp Ka diini/ ya Islaamu/ ugawaadi/ ni haraamu. ‘In Islam, pimping is unlawful.’
- chi-gawali (zi-) n. [Som. gabal, variant of gobol “part, piece, portion” DSI 269] part, piece, slice Dawuuro/ ni chigawali/ cha Baghdaadi. ‘Dawuuro is part of Baghdaadi.’
zigawali za haanzu ‘the parts of a haanzu’
rel.
i-gawali (mi-) n. aug.
- ku-gaawisha v. [Som. gaaban “to be short (person, thing, fig.)” DSI 241] (gawishiize) shorten; proceed at a slow pace Hamadi/ leelo/ gawishiize/ sa’a za kaazi/ ka sababu/ chidharara/ kumdirka waawaye/ nakhsaafira/ nakendra Mkhodiisho. ‘Hamadi today reduced hours of work because he was in hurry to reach his dad; he is traveling going to Mogadishu.’

- Muunthu/ koođi/ suura/ kugaawisha/ maneno miingi/ siwo/ suura. ‘For someone to talk less is good, too much talking is not good.’
watakugaawisha mweendro/ hatta itakofatoowa [st.] ‘the pace is so slow, the people will tire’
rel.
ku-gawishoowa v. to be made short Koođi/ suura/ kugawishoowa. ‘It is good to keep discussion short.’ (A proverb.)
takbiiri ziiko mbele/ m(w)eendro unagawishoowa [st.] ‘those repeating ‘God is great’ are in front, (proceeding) at a slow pace’
- n-gawo n. [Sw. ngao SSED 335] outer wall of a hut, made of wooden poles and plastered with cow dung Gari ya Sheekhi/ ibishile ariishi/ ya Faatima/ ivunzilee ngawo. ‘Sheekhi’s car hit the house of Faatima and broke the sidewall.’
- chi-gaaya (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kigae "shard", dim. of gae SSED 210] shard, fragment of broken pottery
Chigaaya/ cheelushile/ chijiwe/ chizamiile. ‘The shard floated, the pebble sank.’ (This is the traditional way that a Chimwiini story ends.)
Chigaaya/ shcheeluka. ‘The pot shard floated.’
Chishika chigaaya/ shtakhuwelela feđa. ‘If you hold a fragment of broken pottery, it will become for you silver.’
rel.
i-gaaya n. potshard
- ku-gaza v. [cf. Sw. kaza macho "to stare" SSED 180-1] (gaziize) approach slowly, carefully, so as not to be seen or heard; observe someone’s movements without being seen Nakugazaa nsi. ‘I am carefully looking for fish.’
Namgaza Omari. ‘I am watching, looking at Omari carefully.’
rel.
ku-gazoowa v.
Inakugazoowa/ suukari. ‘Sugar is being carefully looked for.’
Omari/ nakugazoowa. ‘Omari is being carefully looked for.’
- gazeeti (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Ital. gazzetta] newspaper (not commonly used in Brava, where jornaale is the preferred form, but is used in Kenya)
Duka/ mahala wé/ takhadiro kula zibuukú/ na magazeeti/ huuza. ‘The shop where you can buy books also sells newspapers.’
gazeeti izi ‘these newspapers’ magazeeti aya ‘these newspapers’
Magazeeti/ yachilawa ka shtalyaani. ‘Newspapers used to come out in Italian.’
Omari/ hupeenda/ khsoma magazeeti. ‘Omari likes to read newspapers.’
Zamaani/ nt^hasa ya istikhlaali/ Mkhodiisho/ schilawa/ gazeeti/ ka shtalyaani. ‘During old times before independence, in Mogadishu newspapers were coming out in Italian.’
- n-gazi n. 9/10 [Sw. ngazi SSED 335] ladder Hasani/ uzilee ngazi/ khpandrilaa miti. ‘Hasani bought a ladder to climb trees with.’
mi’raji ni ngazi nt^hayna mithaali [st.] ‘[the Prophet’s] ascension is a ladder that has no equal’ Mpandraa ngazi/ mwiishowe/ hishkiila. ‘The end of one who climbs a ladder is he comes down.’ (A proverb.)
rel.
chi-gazi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
chigazicha ‘my dim. ladder’; zigaziza ‘my dim. ladders’
i-gazi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
Igazi iyo/ yile/ haťa/ chilungu cha taano/ hukhadiroowa/ khpandriiloowa. ‘That big ladder is so tall, even five storeys are able to be climbed up.’

chi-ge (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kigwe SSED 191] a small rope; tie, link khfungaa chige ‘to tie a small rope’ khpaaa chige ‘to divorce (pay a wife divorce money)’; also: khpowaa chige, khpeleloowaa chige
Muke/ chiwa mwovu/ hupowa chigeeche. ‘If a wife is bad, she is given her divorce money.’
Nimpele chigeeché. ‘[Lit.] I gave her her tie -- i.e. I divorced her.’
Omari/ mwanaashkewe/ lasila/ ka ziwovu/ haṭá/ chige/ nthakhpoowa. ‘Omari’s daughter has been divorced in a bad way, even the divorce money was not given.’
Umi/ ndiyé/ sulilo kulaṭoowá/ nakhpeleloowani/ chige. ‘Umi is the one who wanted a divorce, for what is she being given divorce money?’

n-ge n. generic term for centipedes, scorpions Chimpoṭeleṭaa nge/ mkulu. ‘A large scorpion fell on him.’
nge ya magaandro ‘scorpion’
nge ya milu miingi ‘centipede’ Ba’adi ya waant^hu/ wachiwona nge ya milu miingi/ kaawo/ numbaani/ hawamuḅli/ ka khisaa wo/ haamina/ ya kuwa nge za milu miingi/ ni alaama/ ya kuwa msaafiri/ umo ndilaani/ nakuuya. ‘Some people [in Brava] if they see a centipede in their house do not kill it, because they believe that a centipede is a sign that a traveler/ guest is on the way coming.’
nge za maayi ‘[lit.] water scorpions – small stinging jellyfish which come ashore in March/April when the seas are calm’

rel.

chi-ge (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. [pron. chigé, zigé]

i-ge (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. [pron. igé, migé] (Phon. Observe the final accent in the diminutive and augmentative nouns. The explanation for this seems to be roughly the following: The basic noun nge receives an accent because it is the only syllable in the word. The diminutive and augmentative prefixes replace the n- prefix in the basic noun, but they do not behave, from an accentual point of view, as though they are part of the word, so accent remains on the only vowel in the word proper.)

geddi n. 9/10 [Som. geddi "side, part"] side (e.g. of town) more examples
rel.
geddigeddi adv. upside down

gedogeeḁo n. [Som. geed "tree" and geedagoo "to make witchcraft" DSI 264] witchcraft
rel.
chi- gedogeeḁo (zi-) n. 7/8 a pouch containing ‘medicine’ – roots, leaves, hair from animals, etc., which is placed on a path where a certain person might pass by and step on (this person thus will fall prey to the medicine’s effects) gedogeeḁoole (ma-) n. [Som.] witch geḁoole n. [Som.] s.o. who performs witchcraft; more specifically, one who practices sorcery by cutting certain trees in the belief that this will cause someone harm Omari/ ni geḁoole. ‘Omari practices tree-sorcery.’ (This means the same thing as Omari/ hufanyaa miti. ‘Omari (lit. works) trees.’) geefu n. [Etymology uncertain, but cf. Sw. kitefufufu SSED 209; although here the definition is "sobbing", it is given as "hiccup" in the English-Swahili Dictionary] hiccup khshikowa geefu ‘to have hiccups (lit. to be held by hiccups)’ Chishikowa geefu/ na ikopa ya mayi bardi. ‘If you have hiccups, drink a glass of cold water.’

koloka geefu ‘to hiccup’

geemu n. [Eng. game] game

gele

n. 9 [Som. galley DSI 252] maize (Phon. Although the source of this word in Somali has a geminate l, the word does not behave like a word of the structure CVCCV. Words of this structure do not allow the preceding word in the phrase to end in a long vowel, whereas gele does allow lengthening, as the examples below show. In Chimiini, this word would usually be pronounced gele, but if emphasized, gemination may be heard.)

Mi/ speendi/ izo zotte/ mi/ nakhsulaa gele/ tu. ‘I do not want all those things, I just want maize (to pound).’

Ponzelee gele. ‘She pounded the maize.’

Shkapu cha maame/ chiyelee gele. ‘My mother’s basket is full of maize.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is miino ‘teeth’.)

Shpowaa gele/ chisoola/ naayé/ naakuló. ‘She was given maize and she pounded it while crying.’

Wo/ halaa gele. ‘They plant maize.’

zijo zaa gele ‘meal made of crushed maize’

n-geena

n. 9/10 [Sw. ngwena SSED 338] crocodile

kuja/ kana/ ngeena ‘to eat like a crocodile (i.e. a lot)’

Huja/ kana/ ngeena. ‘He eats like a crocodile.’

Omari/ kuja/ ha’imṭoshi/ huja/ kana/ ngeena. ‘Omari, food does not suffice him, he eats like crocodile.’

Mchimbile ngeena. ‘He ran away from the crocodile.’

We/ ni ngeená. ‘You/ are greedy [lit. you are a crocodile].’

rel.

chi-geena (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-geena (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

generaale

n. general review the 1

Ma’askari/ humbigila saluti/ generaale. ‘Soldiers salute the general.’

m-geeni (wa-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mgeni (wa-) SSED 113] guest, stranger, foreigner (but younger speakers prefer the word martji)

Awa/ hawaṭomoli/ chaayi. [HH!H] ‘These ones do not offer tea.’ Cf. Chaayi/ hasṭomoli/ na awa. [H!H!H] ‘Tea is not offered by them.’ Cf.

Hasṭomolowi na awá/ ni chaayi. [H!H] ‘That which was offered by them is tea.’

Jaama/ mwene Nuuru/ na mgeení. ‘Jaama saw Nuuru and a stranger.’

Maskiini/ histirika/ kaawo/ dhibuye/ hanza chiwa mgeeni. ‘A poor man is not seen in his own place, his difficulties begin if he becomes stranger (in another country).’ (A proverb.)

Mgeeni/ lesele chaayi. [H!H] ‘The guest brought tea.’ Cf. Chaayi/ leeseló/ mgeeni. [H!H!H] ‘Tea, the one who brought it is the guest.’ Cf. Chaayi/ chileseḷa na

mgeeni. [H!H] ‘Tea was brought by the guest.’ Cf. Chileseḷa na mgeeni/ ni chaayi. [H!H] ‘What was brought by the guest is tea.’

Mgeeni/ nt^haasá/ nt^hakumaliza/ koowa. ‘The guest has not yet finished bathing.’

Mgeeni/ takendra sukhuuni. ‘The guest will go to the market.’

Sukhuuni/ takeendra/ mgeeni. ‘The stranger will go to the market [lit. to the market will go the stranger].’ (Although a postposed indefinite subject would phrase with an immediately preceding verb, the same is not true for a definite subject, as in the present example.)

Waloojiri/ wachendra ka sulṭaani/ wachimwaambila/ kuwa ile/ mgeeni/ mooyi/ ubleele/ ngoombe/ mbilii/ zaake. ‘The shepherds went to the sultan and told him that there came a stranger, he killed two of his [the sultan’s] cattle.’

Wawapokeze wageeni/ mizigo yaawo. ‘They handed the guests their luggage.’

rel.

chi-geeni n. 7 something foreign nt^hi za chigeeni ‘foreign countries’

- u-geeni* n. 14 state of being a guest, stranger, foreigner
- gereesi* n. 9/10 [Som. gareys DSI 257] a kind of imported, multi-colored cloth worn by women (This word was entered in CLE p. 130 as gareesa, but our current consultants consider gereesi to be the correct form.)
gereesi niingi ‘a lot of gereesi’ Nimulīlee mbujá/ geresii mbilí. ‘I bought two gereesi for my sister.’
 rel.
chi-gereesi (zi-) n. dim. 7/8 (disparaging)
Chigeresi gani/ icho/ chaa we/ nulīlō. ‘What sort of chigeresi is that which you bought for me?’ (The speaker here is disparaging the gereesi by putting it into the diminutive form.)
Zigeresi gani/ izo/ zaa we/ nulīlō. ‘What sort of zigeresi are these that you have bought for me?’
- ghaa* ideo. of the sound of crows Midafa/ yanaakuḷa/ ghaa ghaa ghaa. ‘The crows are crying ghaa ghaa ghaa.’
- ghaa’ibu* adj. [Ar. ḡā’ib W 689] absent
Naasi/ ghaa’ibu/ ilee mp^hisi/ mjile Yuusufu. ‘And while we were absent, there came a hyena and ate Yuusufu.’
- ghaadiri* adj. [Ar. ḡādir W 666] perfidious, treacherous, deceitful
- ku-ghaḍabika* v. [Ar. ḡaḍba W 676] (ghaḍabishile) become angry, get angry; variant form:
kugaḍibika (ghaḍibishile)
Baaba/ chighaḍibika/ chimwaambila/ we/ siwo/ mwaanawa/ we/ hiinfi/ sho kuwaa kuja/ na kulaalá. ‘Father became angry and said to him: you are not my child, you are good for nothing except to eat and sleep.’
Haba mooyi/ ghaḍabishile. ‘He was a little angry.’
Mubli/ chighaḍabika/ chimvunaanga. ‘The husband became very angry and beat her.’
Omari/ ghaḍabishile/ ka jawabu iyo. ‘Omari became angry over that statement.’
Simba/ chighaḍibika/ nt^ho. ‘The lion became very angry.’
Wote/ wachighaḍika/ nt^ho. ‘All were very angry.’
 rel.
ku-ghaḍibikiḷoowa v. app. pass. be the target of someone’s anger Hamadi/ ghaḍibikiḷila na Mubiidi. ‘Hamadi was angered by Mubiidi.’
Nghaḍibikiḷila na mwaalimú. ‘I was the target of the teacher’s anger.’
ku-ghaḍibikila v. appl. (ghaḍibikiḷiile) be angry at Mubiidi/ mghaḍibikiḷiile Hamadi. ‘Mubiidi made Hamadi angry.’
Nuuru/ nghaḍibikiḷiile. ‘Nuuru was angry at me.’
ku-ghaḍibikoowa v. pass. (ghaḍibishiḷa) Kughaḍabikoowa/ bilaa ma’ana/ siwo/ suura. ‘For one to get angry without any reason is not good.’
Kughaḍabikoowa kilaa wakhṭi/ siwo/ suura. ‘For one to get angry every time is not good.’
ku-ghaḍibisha v. caus. (ghaḍibishiize) Mwaana/ mghaḍibishize mwaalimu. ‘The child made the teacher angry.’
ku-ghaḍibishanya v. caus. rec. (-ghaḍibisheenyē) make one another angry Nuuru/ na Alí/ waghāḍibisheenyē. ‘Nuuru and Ali made each other angry.’
ku-ghaḍibishiliza v. caus. appl. (ghaḍibishiliize) make angry on Nghaḍibishilize waawe. ‘He made my father angry on me.’
ku-ghaḍibishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-ghaḍibishilizeenyē) make someone angry on one another Waghāḍibishilizenyē wazeele. ‘They made their parents angry (on one another).’
ku-ghaḍibishoowa v. caus. pass. (ghaḍibishiiza) be made angry Mwaalimu/ ghaḍibishiza na mwaana. ‘The teacher was made angry by the child.’

- ghaðabu n. 9/10 [Ar. ḡaḏab W 676] anger
Afðali/ inamp^hate/ ije itakump^ható/ kama keendrá/ kunsiba ghaðabu za mwajiitú. ‘Better that it befalls me, whatever will befall me, than to go and the anger of God strike me.’
Ghaðabu/ nt^hayná/ adabu. ‘Anger has no courtesy.’ (A proverb.)
ka ghaðabu ‘angrily’
wenye mabunduqu huuya ka ghaðabu [nt.] ‘men armed with guns come with anger’ khtila ghaðabu ‘to make angry’ Ruuhuya/ iyele ulaazo/ na ghaðabú. ‘My soul is full of pain and anger.’
- ghaðbaani adj. [Ar. ḡaḏbān W 676] angry Majini/ nt^hawakhaadira/ kujiiba/ ka jis’iyo/ wachiyondrokela/ naawó/ ghaðbaaní. ‘The djinns could not answer and therefore they left the place angry.’
munt^hu ghaðbaani ‘angry person’; want^hu ghaðbaani ‘angry people’
- ghaffaar adj. (cf. ghafuuru) [Ar. ḡaffār W 678] an attribute of God (much forgiving).
(gemination to be checked)
- ghaafi n. 9 [Sw. ghafi SSED 113; cf. Ar verb kaffa "to make lighter or reduce the weight" W 248] the gross weight of something
- ghaafili adj. [Ar. ḡāfil W 679] careless, inattentive, neglectful Mojiitu/ siwo/ ghaafili. ‘God is not inattentive -- said when s.o. does s.t. unlawful or objectionable and escapes human retribution; however, God notes his deeds and will restore justice.’
munt^hu ghaafili ‘neglectful person’ (cf. want^hu ghaafili ‘neglectful people’)
rel.
u-ghaafili n. 14 carelessness, neglectfulness
- ku-ghafilika v. [Sw. ghafilika SSED 113; Ar. ḡafala "to be negligent, careless" W 678] (ghafilishile) be inadvertently, unintentionally neglectful Ghafilishilee nt^ho. ‘He was distracted to the point of making a mistake or doing something unknowingly.’
- ku-ghafira v. [cf. Sw. ghofiri SSED 115; Ar. ḡafara W 677] forgive someone’s sins (of God)
Mojiitu/ hughafira ðambi. ‘God forgives sins.’
Mojiitu/ ni mwenye kughafira ðambi. ‘God is the one who forgives sins.’ (A proverb.)
rel.
ku-ghafirila v. appl. (ghafiriliile) forgive one’s sins for one (of God) kughafirila ðambi ‘to forgive someone his sins’ Mwajiitu/ takinsaameha/ kinghafirila. ‘God will pardon you and forgive you your sins.’
ku-ghafiriloowa v. appl. pass. (ghafiriliila)
huloomba Mooja kun’aafu/ ðambi kughafiriloowa[st.] ‘I implore God to obliterate my sins/ may God pardon my sins’ Namnomba mojiitú/ kughafirilowa ðambizá. ‘I am begging God to be forgiven my sins.’
ku-ghafiroowa v. pass. be forgiven Kubla/ siwo/ ðambi ya kughafiroowa. ‘Killing is not a sin, crime that can be forgiven.’
rel. nom.
m-ghafira n. 1 a name of God

ghaafiri	n. a name for God (God the forgiver)
ghaf̣la	n. [Sw. ghafula SSED 114; Ar. ḡaf̣la W 678] ghaf̣la/ kana ajali ‘as unexpected, sudden as a death’ ka ghaf̣la [Sw. kwa ghafula SSED 114] ‘suddenly’, unexpectedly’ Ka ghaf̣la/ Omari/ fiile/ jima. [HHH!!H] ‘Unexpectedly Omari died on Friday.’ (A time adverbial may be preposed to initial position without any radical raising in its pitch. There is no downstep in the pre-verbal phrases, but the time adverbial at the end is radically lowered.) Omari/ fiile/ ka ghaf̣la/ jima. ‘Omari died unexpectedly on Friday.’ (In an example like this, the phrasally separated verb escapes downstep intonation, although the following phrases are lowered.) Omari/ file ka ghaf̣la/ jima. Omari/ filee jima/ ka ghaf̣la. ‘Omari died on Friday unexpectedly.’ (Emphasis on jima is obtained here putting it in IAV position and phrasing it with the verb. Another means of emphasis jima is illustrated by the sentence: Omari/ fiile/ jima/ ka ghaf̣la. [HH[^]H!!H]. Here the radical raising of jima induces a radical downstep on the following complement.) Omari/ fiile/ ka ghaf̣la/ jima. [H[^]H!!H!H] ‘Omari died unexpectedly on Friday.’ (In this example, the verb is strongly emphasized by radically raising its pitch, which triggers then a radical downstep of the adverbial complement ka ghaf̣la. The time adverbial following is also lowered in pitch, although it is difficult to say whether it is a radical downstep or not.) rel. u-ghaf̣la n. 14 suddenness
ghafuuru	n. [Ar. ḡafūr W 678] a name for God [lit. one who forgives] ka sabri mloonzele mooja ghafuuru [st.] ‘from patience he (i.e. Jacob) begged God the Forgiver’
ghaaḷa	n. [Sw. ghala SSED 114; Pers.] storehouse rel. chi-ghaaḷa (zi-) n. dim. 7/8
ghaaḷibu	adv. [Ar. ḡālib W 680] often; variant: ghaalibu Haruusi/ ghaaḷibu/ hufanyoowa/ ka wazele/ wa mwaamuḅli. ‘The wedding ceremony often is held at the home of the parents of the young man.’ Mwana uyu/ ghaaḷibu/ huraga kuya madrasaani. ‘This child is often late in coming to school.’ rel. aghaḷabu adj. [Sw. aghalabu “usually, more often, chiefly, as a rule, mainly” SSED 5] often
ghalịịoi	invar. adj. [Ar. ḡalīẓ “gross, fat and uncouth” W 681] rude (of a person’s behavior), rough, thick (of a thing) munt^hu ghaḷịịoi ‘a rude man’; want^hu ghaḷịịoi ‘rude men’
ghaḷta	n. [Sw. ghalati SSED 14; Ar. ḡaḷta W 681] mistake, fault hija ka ghaḷta ikumi wacheendra [st.] ‘(if) they go on the pilgrimage by mistake (on) the tenth day’ khfanya ghaḷta ‘to make a mistake’ khtila ghaḷta ‘to find, show mistakes in’ Hamadi/ hupeenda/ kọoi za waant^hu/ khtila ghaḷta. ‘Hamadi likes to show the mistakes in the words of people.’ We/ daa’imu/ hubarata ka ghaltazo. ‘You always learn from your mistakes.’

rel.
chi-ghalta (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-ghalta (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ku-ghaltika

v. [Ar. ḡaliṭa W 680] (ghaltishile) be mistaken, make an error or mistake Kughaltika/ siwo/ ðambi. ‘To make a mistake is not a sin, crime.’
Muunt^hu/ mara mo/ maraa mbili/ hughaltika/ laakini/ siwo/ kiḷa/ mara. ‘One can make a mistake once or twice, but not every time.’ (A proverb.)
rel.
ku-ghaltisha v. caus. (ghaltishiize) cause to make a mistake ku-ghaltikoowa v. pass.
Kughaltikoowa/ siwo/ ðambi. ‘For a mistake to be made is not a sin.’

ghaala

n. storehouse used for grains and other staple foodstuffs
rel.
i-ghaala (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ghaali

invar. adj. [Sw. ghali SSED 114; Ar. ḡālin W 683] expensive, dear (Morph. This as well as many other borrowed adjectives exhibits the interesting fact that there is no agreement prefix on the adjective in conjunction with ordinary nouns such as [cl.7] but there is an agreement with derived nouns such as the diminutive and augmentative; cf. chint^hu ghaali ‘s.t. expensive’ and chijumba chighaali ‘an expensive little house’.)
Hadile kuwa ni ghaali. ‘He said that it is expensive.’
Hamadi/ huza jaaka/ ghaali. ‘Hamadi sells jackets at a high price.’ (Ghaali in this sentence is used as an adverbial phrase; if it were an adjectival modifier of jaaka, the associative phrase ya ghaali would be appropriate. This sentence lacks downstep at any point in the sentence.)
Hamadi/ jaakaze/ ghaali. ‘Hamadi’s jackets are expensive.’
Karkaa nt^hi/ iyi/ buni/ ni ghaali/ nt^ho/ na ka wiingi/ buni/ haspatikani/ na schipatikani/ huzowa ka aḷmaasi. ‘In this country coffee beans are expensive and most of the time cannot be found, and if they are found, they are sold in diamonds.’
khfanya ghaali ‘to make expensive’
Maluwa ya Haliima/ ni ghaali. ‘Haliima’s flowers are expensive.’ Or: Haalima/ maluwaye/ ni ghaali.
Mudiidi/ hula shaati/ za ghaali/ tu. ‘Mudiidi buys only expensive shirts.’ (In this example, shaati is phrasally separated from za ghaali and has raised pitch on it, while za ghaali is downstepped. The pitch on tu is not downstepped relative to za ghaali.)
Mudiidi/ hula shati za ghaali/ tu/ so. ‘Did Mudiidi buy only expensive shirts?’ (In this example ghaali is not downstepped, nor are either tu or so.) Nt^hi/ hukhadirowa khtumikiḷowa kalowaa kujá/ iwele ghaali. ‘Land which can be used for growing food has become expensive.’
numba ghaali ‘an expensive house’
Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ iyo ghaali. ‘Nureeni bought a jacket, that expensive one.’ (The phrasal separation of jaaka and iyō is one that requires careful study with respect to the intonation. There is some pitch lowering of jaaka relative to the initial phrase in this example, but it does not appear to be as significant as what is observed in downstep intonation. Furthermore, there is no lowering of iyō ghaali at all. The evidence from the yes-no question version indicates that neither jaaka nor iyō ghaali are out of focus, since neither is subject to accent shift in the question: Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ iyo ghaali?)
Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ (ya) ghaali. ‘Nureeni bought an expensive jacket.’ (The corresponding yes-no question establishes that neither jaaka nor ghaali is out-of-focus: Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ ghaali? In a yes-no question, an out-of-focus complement undergoes accent shift to the final syllable.)
Nuzile shati za ghaali/ tu. ‘I bought only expensive shirts.’ (The particle tu is not downstepped relative to the preceding phrase.)

Nuzile shaatí/ za ghaalí/ tu. ‘I bought only expensive shirts.’ (This sentence is of considerable interest to the account of Chimiini prosody. Notice first that in contrast to the preceding example, the head of the associative phrase shaati is phrasally separated from za ghaali. Second, the accented syllable in za ghaali is lowered with respect to the preceding phrase. This might be taken to suggest that shaati is focused. However, what we see is that the final accent of the verb projects to both shaati and to za ghaali. Focused elements ordinarily do not allow final accent to project past them. Also, note that tu is not downstepped relative to za ghaali.)

Shkombe chivunzila na Hamadí/ chiwaliko ghaali. ‘The cup that was broken by Hamadi was expensive.’

Sho/ kuwa Mubiidi/ uzilo shati za ghaalí. ‘Only Mubiidi bought an expensive shirt.’ (The element sho represents the pitch peak in the sentence and Mubiidi is lowered in pitch, indicating that it is sho that is focused and triggers the pseudo-relative clause. Ghaali is downstepped clearly.)

Shó/ kuwa Mubiidi/ uziló/ shati za ghaalí. ‘Only Mubiidi bought an expensive shirt.’ (Note that although we have often recorded the pseudo-relative verb respecting the Accentual Law of Focus, unlike the true relative, in this example ALF did not restrict the projection of the final accent to the end of the pseudo-relative clause. More research on this matter is required.)

Uza ghaali/ suuzé/ rakhiisi. ‘Sell at a high price, don’t sell cheap!’
ya ghaali ‘expensive’

Nvete shati ya ghaalí. ‘I wore an expensive shirt.’ (But one can also say: Nvete shati ghaalí. with the same meaning.)

Nvete shaatí/ ya ghaali. ‘I wore an expensive shirt.’ (Phon. The failure of the final accent of the verb to project past shaati would suggest that shaati is focused and ya ghaali out-of-focus. Simple yes-no questions do not support the view that ya ghaali is out of focus. Perhaps this is most clearly seen by using a third person version of the above sentence: Vete shaatí/ ya ghaali. ‘He wore an expensive shirt.’ The simple yes-no question version of this is: Vete shaatí/ ya ghaali? and not Vete shaatí/ ya ghaali?, which would be expected if ya ghaali is out-of-focus. Recall that in simple yes-no questions, out of focus elements at the end of the verb phrase shift their accent to the final syllable.)

rel.

ghalighaali adj.

Mi/ njile niingí/ na nvete nguwo/ ghalighaali/ nt’o. ‘I ate a lot and I wore very expensive clothes.’

ghamu

n. 9 [Sw. ghamu SSED 114; Ar. verb ḡamma "to fill with pain, distress" and noun ḡumma "affliction" and adjective ḡāmm "distressful, painful" W 683] worry, distress, grief (Although we have recorded this item with gemination on some occasions, we doubt that actual gemination is an invariable phonetic aspect of its pronunciation. In any case, we observed lengthening of a preceding word in the phrase, contrary to what would be expected if there were true gemination.)

Hammu/ naa ghammú/ zimpeetó. ‘Worries and disturbing thoughts got hold of him.’

khtomolaa gamu ‘to assuage someone’s grief’ khtilaa gamu ‘to cause to grieve’

kumwingilaa gamu ‘for s.o. to become sad’

Imwingilee hamu/ naa ghamú. ‘He was worried and distressed.’

kuwanayoo gamu ‘to have worries, sorrows’

Omari/ imwingiile/ gamu/ khkasa jawabu iyo. ‘Omari got sad hearing that news.’

ghani

n. a name of God

Mojiitu/ ndiyé/ ghani/ dekhesheló/ ka zont’bé. ‘God is the rich one and is self sufficient in every thing.’ (A proverb.)

ghaniima

n. 9 [Sw. ghanima "good luck prosperity" SSED 114; Ar. ḡanīma "spoils, booty,

- prey" W 686] (perhaps restricted to Islamic jurisprudence) booty, spoils of war ghanima iyi 'this booty'
- gharaði n. 9/10 [Sw. gharadhi SSED 114; Ar. ḡaraḍ W 670] aim, goal, intention (It has been suggested that the use of this word is restricted to people familiar with Islamic law. MI allowed for a possible pronunciation gharaði, but others seemed to consider gharaði as the only possibility.)
kuwanayo gharaði 'to aim, intend, have a goal' Laakini/ jisa aada/ ya chiruusi/ sababu/ walá/ gharaði/ ya waruusi/ kulusha khamari sinaa'i/ iyi/ nt^haykiwishoowa. 'But as is the Russian custom, neither the reason nor the goal of the Russians in launching this satellite [lit. artificial moon] was made known.'
Nini/ gharaðiye. 'What is the purpose of this? what is the meaning of this?'
- gharaama n. 9/10 [Sw. gharama SSED 114; Ar. noun ḡarām "penalty, fine" W 671] fee paid for services, expenses, expenditure Gharama za waana/ zilisila na sarkaali. 'The fees of the children were paid by the government.' Or: Waana/ gharama zaawo/ zilasila na sarkaali. 'The children, their fees were paid by the government.'
kingila gharaama 'to incur expenses'
Sarkaali/ lisile/ gharama za waana. 'The government paid the expenses of the children.'
Waana/ gharama zawo/ lisiló/ ni sarkaali. 'The children, their expenses, the one who paid is the government.'
- ku-gharaamika v. intr. [Sw. gharimika SSED 114; Ar. verb ḡarima "suffer a loss, pay a fine" W 671] (gharamishile) incur expensive; cost Huseeni/ gharamishile niingi/ safari iyo. 'Huseeni spent a lot of money on that trip.' rel.
ku-gharamatiloowa v. appl. pass.
Kugharamatiloowa maana/ ka masoomu/ siwo/ mbovu. 'To spend a lot of money on children for education is not bad.'
ku-gharamatila v. appl. spend a lot of money on s.o. or s.t.
Omari/ mgharamatilile niingi/ mwaanawe/ ka masoomu [or: ka khsooma]. 'Omari has spent a lot of money on his child for education.' Or: Omari/ mgharamatilile mwaanawe/ peesa/ niingi/ ka khsooma.
ku-gharaamisha v. caus. [Sw. gharimisha SSED 114] (gharamishiize) ku-gharamikoowa v. pass.
Muunt^u/ chifa/ hugharamikoowa. 'If someone dies, there's a lot of money spent.'
- gharbi n. [Ar. ḡarb W 668] west
- ghardhi n. goal
Jeelaani/ oloshela chilima/ ghardhiye/ iwaaliko/ kumliindra/ mwananamke/ waa ye/ chimpeendó. 'Jeelaani went to the little hill, his goal being to wait for the girl that he loved.'
Laakini/ jisa aada/ ya chiruusi/ sababu/ walá/ ghardhi/ ya waruusi/ kuulusha/ khamari/ sinaa'i/ iyi/ nt^haykiwishoowa. 'But as is the Russian custom, neither the reason nor the goal of the Russian launching of this satellite was made known.'
- ghaari n. [Ar. ḡār W 687] cave, cavern Wa'ingiile ghariini/ ndiwa/ na kabuuti. 'A pigeon and a spider entered into the cave.' (Note kabuuti as variant of ankabuuti.)
- ghariibu adj. [Ar. ḡarīb W 668] strange, foreign chint^hu ghariibu ‘something strange’ (cf. zint^hu ghariibu ‘strange things’) munt^hu ghariibu ‘stranger’ (cf. want^hu ghariibu ‘strangers’) Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ kumδulisha ghariibu. ‘It is not good for a person to humiliate a stranger.’

muyi ghariibu ‘a foreign town’ muyi mooyi/ ghariibu ‘one foreign town’, or: muuyi/ mooyi/ ghariibu ‘ibid.’ (Apparently it is not possible to put both modifiers into a phrase with the noun: muyi moyi ghariibu. Nor is it possible to put ghariibu next to the noun: muyi ghariibu/ mooyi.)
We/ laazimu/ kumdigilaa ye/ chiza khtaala/ zawaadi/ ka maghariibu. ‘You have to warn her about not accepting gifts from strangers.’

ku-gharima v. [Ar. ḡarima "suffer a loss" W 671] squander review meaning, get examples gharqi n. 9/10 [Sw. gharika SSED 114; cf. Ar. adjective ḡariq and verb ḡariqa W671, but no nominal form] shipwreck, disaster (usu. a flood) ku-gharqika v. intr. [Sw. ghariki SSED 114; Ar. ḡariqa W 671] (-gharqishile) sink, become shipwrecked; be flooded, inundate Mboni/ isa/ mwaanawa/ gharqishile. ‘How come now my son has drowned.’

Nvula/ ichinya/ na kaa nt^hi/ maayi/ yachilawa/ ichiwa teena/ zimuyi/ zotte/ zinaku gharqika. ‘The rain poured down and from the ground water sprayed out and then all the villages were sinking.’
Wamooyi/ hufa ka kugharqika/ wamó/ hufa ka kuja niingi. ‘Some die from drowning, some die from too much food.’

rel.
ku-gharqisha v. caus. [Sw. gharikisha SEED 114] (gharqishiize) flood; cause to be shipwrecked Maayi/ yagharqishize muuyi. ‘Water flooded the town.’
ku-gharqishoowa v. caus. pass. (gharqishiiza) fir’ooni gharqishiza karka bahari [st.] ‘Pharaoh was made to drown, sink in the sea’ ku-ghasiba v. [cf. Sw. ghusubu “compel, coerce, take away by force, violate” SSED 115; Ar. ḡaṣaba W 675] (ghasibiile) force, compel, oblige, make Jaama/ mghasibiileni/ Nuuru/ khfaanya. ‘What did Nuuru force Jaama to do?’ Or: Jaama/ mghasibile Nuuru/ khfaanyani. (A possible answer: Ye/ mghasibile Nuuru/ kulomba raaði. ‘He forced Nuuru to apologize.’) Mghasibile Nuuru/ kulomba raaði. ‘He forced Nuuru to apologize.’

Nimghasibile kuvalaa nguwo. ‘I forced him to put on clothes.’ Or, with a subjunctive complement: Nimghasibile navalee nguwo. ‘[Lit.] I forced him that he put on clothes.’
Nimghasibile Nuuru/ koloka chuwooni. ‘I forced Nuuru to go to school.’
Nimghasibiilé/ Omari/ kendra skolaani. ‘I forced Omari to go to school.’

There are of course many variations possible. A few of the variations where the main verb is emphasized and thus located at the end of a phrase: Omari/ nimghasibiilé/ kendra skolaani. Skolaani/ keendra/ Omari/ nimghasibiilé. Skolaani/ nimghasibiilé/ Omari/ keendra. Skolaani/ nimghasibiilé/ keendra/ Omari. Nimghasibiilé/ Omari/ kuvunda mnaango. ‘I forced Omari to break open the door.’ Some variations: Nimghasibiilé/ Omari/ mnaango/ kuvuunda. Omari/ nimghasibiilé/ kuvunda mnaango. Kuvunda mnaango/ nimghasibiilé/ Omari. Kuvunda mnaango/ Omari/ nimghasibiilé. Omari/ nimghasibiilé/ mnaango/ kuvuunda. Mnaango/ kuvuunda/ Omari/ nimghasibiilé. Mnaango/ kuvuunda/ nimghasibiilé/ Omari. Mnaango nimghasibiilé/ Omari/ kuvuunda. Mnaango/ kuvuunda/ Omari/ nimghasibiilé.

Nimghasibiilé/ Omari/ kulaa mazu. ‘I forced Omari to buy bananas.’

rel.
ku-ghasibisha v. caus. (ghasibishiize) compel, oblige, make ku-ghasiboowa v. pass. (ghasibiila) be forced, compelled, obliged Ni muunt^hu/ hughasiboowá. 'It is a human being who is forced to do s.t.

(i.e. God cannot be compelled to do anything).'

ghasbu

n. [Ar. ḡaṣb W 675] s.t. taken or gotten unjustly c hakuja cha ghasbu 'food gotten unjustly' ka ghasbu 'with force' Mnaango/ uvunziila ka ghasbu. 'The door was broken open with force.' Or: Mnaango/ uvuunziila/ ka ghasbu. 'The door was broken (open) with force.' Or: Ka ḡhasbu/ mnaango/ uvuunziila. 'With force the door was broken open.' Or: Ka ghasbu/ uvunziila mnaango. 'With force was broken open the door.' Or: ḡMnaango/ ka ghasbu/ uvuunziila. 'The door with force was broken open.'
khtala ka ghasbu 'to take s.t. without the owner's permission' kubiga ghasbu uncommon 'to take s.t. without the owner's permission' mali ya ghasbu 'wealth gotten unfairly' mwiskiti mtaangawe haraamu ghasbu [st.] 'a mosque, its sand is forbidden (to be used in taking ablutions) and is like robbing'

ghasiya

n. 10 [Sw. ghasia "confusion, complication, bustle, hurry, medley, crowding, and used of various things involving these ideas, and of annoyances generally" SSED 115; Ar. ḡaṣṣ "crowded, jammed" W 675; the verb ḡaṣṣ has the meaning "to choke or be overcrowded" W 675] commotion, trouble, noise

Awo ma'askari/ wakasizopoo nk^he/ na ghasiyá/ na sowti/ zaa ngomá/ wa'ondroshele naawó/ keendra/ kisterehesha/ ruhu zaawo/ pamó/ na want^hu/ muiini. 'When those soldiers heard the cries and commotion and the sounds of drums, they left and went to enjoy themselves with the people in town.'
ghasiyaze 'his making a commotion' khfanya ghasiya 'to make a commotion, noise, trouble'

check meaning in Chimiini

ghashiimu

adj. [Ar. ḡāṣim Wehr 674] uncivilized, stupid

ghasli

n. ritual impurity that must be removed by washing variant form: khasli

Ghasli/ ma'anaye/ ni muunt^hu/ shfanya ijtimaa'i/ naa muke/ na maniyi/ yachimlawá/ laazimu/ koowa/ mzimawe/ kuwa tahaara. 'Ghasli means that when one engages in sexual activity and ejaculates, he must take full bath/shower to be clean/pure.'

kowa ghasli 'to wash after sexual intercourse, ejaculation, as required by Islamic beliefs'

Mubli/ chijami'ana naa muke/ maniyi/ yachimlawá/ howa ghasli. 'If a man has sex with a woman and sperm comes from him, he must take a shower.'

Muunt^hu/ chiwanayo ghasli/ ni haraamu/ khsala/ laazimu/ koowa. 'When one has ghasli it is haraamu to pray, one must take shower.'

Muunt^hu/ laazimu/ kunuwa/ kuwaa ye/ nakowa ghasli. 'One must state his intention that he is washing ghasli.'

niya ya ghasli 'statement of the intention to ritually clean oneself after ejaculation' leete niya ya ghasli karka kistanja [st.] 'bring forth the statement of intention to clean oneself while doing the cleaning'

ghaaya

adv. [Ar. ḡāya "extreme limit, utmost degree" W 688] very, extremely Doobi/ mooyi/ wanayo mp^huundra/ na chimpeenda/ ghaaya. 'A washerman had a donkey and he loved him very much.'

Ghaaya/ takhfaanyani. ‘What will he do to the maximum?’ Or:

Takhfaanyani/ ghaaya.

Ghaaya/ taakuḷa. ‘At the most (extreme), she will cry.’ (Phon. It should be noted that it does not seem to be appropriate for an initial ghaaya to trigger pseudo-relativization: Ghaaya/ taakuḷo. Nor does it appear possible to phrase a post-verbal ghaaya with the verb: Takuḷa ghaaya. Rather, one says: Taakuḷa/ ghaaya. ‘He will cry, at the most.’

Iyi/ imudhishize waawaye/ ghaaya/ laakini/ nt^hakuwanaayo/ ya khfaanya/ ye/ waliko cheleela/ na teená/ wakhti/ uwela suwo/ munaasibu/ kuluma chaala. ‘This troubled his father extremely, but he did not know what to do [about it]; it was too late for him [to change things] and the time became unsuitable to bite the finger.’

Kirihile ghaaya. ‘He was extremely irritated.’

Mi/ nt^hakhpeenda/ ghaaya. ‘I would like it very much.’

Nk^hirihile ghaayá. ‘I was extremely irritated.’ Or, with verb emphasis:

Nk^hirihilé/ ghaaya.

Safiri/ sku izo/ iwaliko suura/ ghaaya/ naawó/ wotte/ wa’istereheele. ‘Traveling those days was very good and they all enjoyed themselves.’

ku-ghayirika

v. [cf. Sw. ghaira ‘change one’s mind, alter plan, annul, do something unexpected, sudden, or surprising’ SSED 114; Ar. ḡāra, ḡaira] change variant form: khṭaghayirika

Kuja/ ichilala masku/ huṭasawara/ khṭaghayirika (or: kughayirika).

[H!H!H!!H] ‘Food that stays (lit. sleeps) overnight can go bad (lit. change).’

Laakini/ leelo/ haali/ iṭaghayarishile. ‘But today conditions have changed.’

rel.

ku-ghayirikaghayirika v. freq.

variant form: khṭaghayirikataghayirika

Omari/ nt^haná/ mahala ya khshikoowa/ huṭaghayirikataghayirika.

[H!H!H!H] ‘Omari does not have a place (lit.) to be caught – i.e. he cannot be relied on, he is always changing.’ (We did not judge the downstep following the negative verb to be radical.)

gheebu

n. [Sw. ghaibu ‘a thing not obtainable because it is distant, absent’ SSED 114; Ar. ḡaib W 689] something that is going to happen but is not known

Gheebu/ na’iwó/ mojiitu/ tu. ‘It is only God who knows what will happen.’

ka gheebu [Sw. kwa ghaibu] from memory, by heart

Somele qur’aani/ ka gheebu. ‘He recited the Quran from memory.’

kiwa gheebu ‘to know the unknown, to have advanced knowledge of coming events’

Endraani/ rudaani/ ka wawa yiinu/ mwambileeni/ kuwa mwaanawo/ boozele/ walaa si/ nt^hashkuwona/ illa/ yaa si/ chiwiiló/ naa si/ gheebu/ siwo/ china’iwó. ‘Go and return to your father and tell him that your (i.e. his) son has stolen something, we did not see anything except what we came to know, and we are not the ones who know the unseen.’

Hakhaadiri/ kiwa gheebu. ‘He cannot know the future.’

Mwaadamu/ ha’isi/ gheebu. ‘A human being cannot know the future.’

ghera

without, less, against

Kubigowa waana/ Ameerika/ ni ghera shar’i. ‘Hitting children in America is against the law.’

Muunt^hu/ ghera mas’uuli/ ha’andikoowi/ mas’uuli. ‘An irresponsible person is not trusted with responsibility for something.’

ma-ghfira

n. [Ar. maḡfira W 678] forgiveness, pardon

Maghfira/ hulombowa mojiitu. [H!H] ‘Pardon is begged from God.’ (A saying.)

numa walwaawo wachiloomba maghfira [st.] ‘then both of them (= Adam and Eve) begged for forgiveness’ ummatiyo wanakhtaraja maghfira [st.] ‘your people hope for forgiveness’

ku-ghiiiba

v. [Sw. ghibu ‘be lost’ SSED 114; Ar. ḡaba, ḡaiba W 689] (ghibiile) be absent, lose one’s way, get lost, disappear

Ghibile sku niingi/ walá/ nt^haku/ na’iwó/ mahaḷaa ye/ ko. ‘He is absent for many days, nor is there anyone who knows where he is.’

Maaliye/ yaghibiile. ‘His money is gone (disappeared, got lost).’

Markaabu/ ighibiile. ‘The ship disappeared (without a trace).’

Siwo/ suura/ kughiiba/ karkaa fadhi. ‘It is not good to be absent from a meeting.’ (In the corresponding simple yes-no question and in the exclamatory yes-no question as well, all except the initial phrase undergo accent shift: Siwo/ suurá/ kughiibá/ karkaa fadhí? and Siwo/ suurá/ kughiibá/ karkaa fadhí!?)

rel.

ku-ghiiibika v. p/s.

Shpita ndila iyo/ takuhiibika. ‘If you pass that road, you will get lost.’

ku-ghiiibisha v. caus. (ghibishiize) make disappear

Mghibishize mwaana. ‘He caused the child to disappear.’

ku-ghiboowa v. pass.

Bahari iyo/ hughiboowa. ‘One can get lost/disappear in that ocean.’

Kughibowa fadhiini/ siwo/ suura. ‘To be absent from a meeting is not good.’ (In the simple yes-no question version of this sentence, only the adjective undergoes accent shift: Kughibowa fadhiini/ siwo/ suurá? Interestingly, the emphatic yes-no question does not appear to us to shift the accent in any other phrase than the adjective: Kughibowa fadhiini/ siwo/ suurá!?)

ghiiira

n. 9 self-respect, sense of honor, self-esteem

Muunt^hu/ chiza kuwanayo ghiiira/ siwo/ maadamu. ‘If one does not have self-esteem one is not a human being.’

Omari/ nt^haná/ ghiiira. ‘Omari does not have self-esteem.’

ku-ghisha

v. [cf. Sw. ghoshi, ghushi SSED 115; Ar. ḡassa W 674] (ghishize) cheat, falsify

Mi/ nkhashifile Baazi/ nakughisho imtihaani. ‘I discovered Baazi cheating on the examination.’

Omari/ pisile imtihaani/ ka kughisha. ‘Omari passed the exam by cheating.’

Osmaani/ nakughisha imtihaani. ‘Osmaani is cheating on the examination.’

rel.

ku-ghishika v. p/s.

Imtihani iyo/ ha’ighishiki. ‘It is not possible to cheat on that examination.’

ku-ghishiliza v. appl.

Omari/ tumikilile chibuku icho/ kugishiliza. ‘Omari used that book to cheat.’

ku-ghishilizoowa v. appl. pass.

Osmaani/ nakhsulá kughishilizoowa. ‘Osmaani wants someone to cheat for him (e.g. to give him the answers to the questions on the exam).’

ku-ghishoowa v. pass.

Imtihani iyo/ siwo/ sahali/ kughishoowa. ‘That examination is not easy for one to cheat on it.’

- ghishi n. 9/10 the act of cheating, falsifying Awo/ ghishi zaawo/ niingi. ‘Those people cheat often.’
Ghishi/ ni haraamu. ‘Cheating is sinful.’
Ghishi ziinu/ hazimali. ‘Your (pl.) cheating never ends.’
Ghishiyo/ ni zaaydi. ‘Your cheating is too often.’
Ghishizo/ ni zaaydi. ‘Your cheating (pl.) is too often.’
khfanyaa ghishi or khfaanya/ ghishi ‘to cheat, deceive’ Omari/ mkali/ ghishi. ‘Omari is very good at cheating.’
- ghiyaabu n. 9 [Sw. ghaibu SSED 114; Ar. ḡiyāb W 689] absence Ghiyaabuyo/ inhuzunishiize/ ntʰo. ‘Your absence saddened me very much.’
Sku mooyi/ baaba/ imshishile kendra muyiini/ na karka ghiyaabuyé/ du]’eda/ chiya numbaani/ chilekela mṭanaani/ ka mwaana. ‘One day father had to go to town and in his absence, a fox came into the house and headed to the child’s room.’
- ghufraani n. [Ar. ḡufrān W 678] pardon, forgiveness; the one who pardons Ghufraani/ ni mojiitu. ‘The one who pardons is God.’
Nakulomba ghufraani. ‘I beg for forgiveness.’
- ku-ghura v. [cf. Sw. ghuri "cheat, beguile, deceive" SSED 115; Ar. ḡarra "mislead, delude, dazzle, expose to danger" W 667] (ghuriile) lead astray (of things like money)
Ali/ maali/ yaa ye/ dhahaleetó/ yamghuriile. ‘The wealth that Ali inherited led him astray.’
Maali/ yamghuriile/ yampeleshele muḷooni. ‘Wealth led him astray and took him into fire (i.e. caused him to go to hell)’
rel.
ku-ghurika v. intr. [Sw. ghurika "be proud, vain, puffed up, because of wealth, or of anything transient, which may pass and leave one in a humble state" SSED 115] (ghurishile) be self-deceived, led astray, misled (into wrong values, etc.)
Nuuru/ ghurushile ka peesa. ‘Nuuru was led astray by money.’
ku-ghurila v. appl. (ghuriliile) ku-ghurisha v. caus. (ghurishiize) mislead, deceive, lead astray Peesa/ zimghurishiize. ‘Money led him astray.’
ku-ghurishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-ghururika v. [Sw. ghururika is not distinguished in meaning from ghurika in SSED 115] (ghururishile) be self-deceived
- ghuraabu adj. deserted
Mijumba ayo/ yawele (mi)ghuraabu. ‘Those houses were left deserted.’
Miini/ iwele ghuraabu. ‘Brava has become deserted (people have left Brava).’
muyi ghuraabu ‘a deserted town’; miyi ghuraabu ‘deserted towns’
- ghuraabu dafa is more common.) n. 9/10 [Ar. ḡurāb W 668] crow (This lexical item is not fully integrated into Chimiini;
rel.
chi-ghuraabu (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-ghuraabu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ghuraafaati n. superstition
Ghuraafaati/ ni jawaabu/ ntʰaziikó. ‘Superstitions are things that do not exist.’
Ghuraafaati/ ni jawaabu/ ntʰazinayo ma’aná/ (ntʰazinayo) mahala ya khshikoowá/ ni jawabu siwo lilá. ‘Superstitions are things that do not have meaning, (do not have) a place/origins to be traced or followed, they are things that are not true.'

Kooði/ zaa we/ nakuhadó/ ni ghuraafaati/ tu. 'The things that you are saying are just superstitions (not real).'

Ni kooði/ hukodowakodooowá/ ni chiint^hu/ siwo lílá/ siwo chiikó/ huviłowa ghuraafaati/ huviłoowá. 'They are words that are just said (without foundation), they are things that are not true, that do not exist, they are called superstitions, that's what they are called.'

ghurba

n. [cf. Sw. ghurubu "the setting of the sun, sunset" SSED 115; gurūb "setting of sun, stars" W 668] (cf. gharbi 'west') away from one's home town or country nt^hi za ghurba 'foreign lands'

Wont^e/ chinaku'isha ghurstá. 'We are all living in a foreign place.'

ghurfa

n. 9/10 [cf. Sw. ghorofa, orofa "upper storey, upper room" SSED 115, 356; Ar. gurfa W 670] room (This lexical item is not well-integrated into Chimini; the Bantu lexical item m-taana is much more common.)

Ghurfa iyi/ nda mzeele. 'This is the old man's room.'

ghurfa izi 'these rooms'; ghurfa izo 'those rooms' ghurfaya 'my room'; ghurfaza 'my rooms'

Nuumbayo/ ghurstaa kamu/ inaayó. 'How many rooms does your house have?'

rel.

chi-ghurfa (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-ghurfa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ghuruuri

n. [Sw. ghururi "arrogance, self-conceit, infatuation, vanity, folly, blindness, but all with the meaning of because of transient things" SSED 115; Ar. gurūr "deception, delusion, conceit" W 667] deception

variant form: ghuruuru

Duniya/ ni ghuruuri. 'The world is the allure of deceptive transient pleasures.' (A proverbial saying.)

Ghazaali/ mwenye ghuruuru 'Ghazaali is a man who has been led astray (by transient things like money).'

Ghuruuri/ zisikhutaale. 'Don't be taken in by deception.'

Mwaadamu/ ghuruuri/ ichimtaala/ hubaha. [H'H!H!H] 'If a human being is taken in by deception, he is lost.'

Mwaadamu/ ha'isuloowi/ ghuruuri/ kumtaala (or: kumtukula). [H'H!H!H] 'A human being is not wanted to be taken / carried by deception.'

rel.

u-ghuruuri n. 14 self-deception

ku-ginika

SSED 113] move

v. intr. [etymology uncertain; connected by meaning to Sw geuka "change position:

Speendi/ kuginika ka apa. 'I don't want to move from here.'

We/ chiginika ka apa/ naami/ nooshelé. 'If you move away from here, I too will be gone.'

rel.

ku-ginikika v. p/s.

Numba iyo/ ha'iginikiki. 'One cannot move away from that house (i.e. once someone enters that house, he does not leave it).'

ku-ginikiloowa v. appl. pass.

Nt^haku/ sababu ya kuginikiloowa. 'There is no reason to move away.'

ku-ginikila v. appl.

Siná/ sababu yaa mi/ kuginikila. 'I do not have a reason for moving away.'

ku-ginikoowa v. pass.

- Numba iyo/ haginikoowi. ‘One cannot move from that house (i.e. once someone enters that house, he does not leave it).’
ku-ginisha v. caus. move something Ikomelopo ilooni/ wawele wa’ofeete/ hattá/ ichiwa nt^hawanakhaadira/ kuginisha ruhu zaawo. ‘When dusk arrived, they became tired to the point that they became unable to move themselves.’
- giriiki (Ø, mi-) n. [Ital. cric, cf. Som. griig in Italian-Somali Dictionary, p. 175] jack, mechanical tool used to lift car when you change wheels, tires
rel.
chi-giriiki (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
chigobe/ kana chigiriiki ‘short like a jack’
- giriisi n. 9 [Eng. grease] grease (This word is not as commonly used as garaaso.)
khpaka giriisi ‘to grease something by rubbing grease on it’ khtila giriisi ‘to squirt grease into’
- ku-giirsata*
refuse to do something v. [cf. Som. giiran ‘to frown’ and giiro ‘to refuse to help s.o.’ DSI 268] (girseeṭe) Osmaani/ girseeṭe/ khpela nuumba. ‘Osmaani refused to sweep the house.’
rel.
ku-girsatika v. p/s. able to be refused Jawabu iyo/ ha’igirsatiki. ‘One cannot refuse to do that thing.’
ku-girsatila v. appl.
N^haku/ sababu ya kugirsatila. ‘There is no reason for refusing to do it.’
ku-girsatiloowa v. appl. pass.
N^haku/ sababu ya kugirsatiloowa. ‘There is no reason for refusing to do it.’
ku-girsatoowa v. pass.
Kugirsatoowa/ bilaa ma’ana/ siwo/ suura. ‘Refusing to do s.t. without reason is not good.’
rel. nom.
u-giirsato n. 14
- n-giisha n. 9/10 anchor
khtomola ngiisha ‘to pull up anchor’ khpanza ngiisha ‘to pull up anchor’ Wa’ambile/ waant^huwo/ wote/ wanawe tayaari/ khpanza ngiisha/ wana’ondroshe/ motoore/ inawe tayaari/ mukhtaay ye/ takuuyó. ‘Tell all your people to be ready to pull up the anchor and start the engine so that it is ready when she comes.’
kugiṭa ngiisha ‘to pull up anchor’ Wachigiṭa ngiisha/ wachoondroka. ‘They pulled up anchor and took off.’
khtila ngiisha ‘to anchor, drop anchor’
Apo/ wo/ washtila ngiisha. ‘There they dropped anchor.’
Apo/ ye/ shtila/ ngiisha/ chishkila/ chingila muyiini. ‘Then he put anchor and disembarked and went into town.’
Hasani/ ile numbaani/ ka Nuuru/ marti/ ahaani/ khkalanṭ^ha sku/ habamooyi/ isa/ ni kamba nakhtilo ngiishá/ nt^haná/ khsuula/ kulawa/ ba. ‘Hasani came to Nuuru’s house as a guest to stay a few days, now it looks like he is putting down an anchor, he does not want to leave ever.’
- gisi n. 9/10 [Som. gisi DSI 269] African buffalo (=ngombe ya maduuri ‘wild ngoombe)
variant form: n-gisi Hayawaani/ zotte/ scheendra/ schimlata ngombe waa gisi/ apo. ‘All the animals left, they left behind the buffalo there.’

iziwa yaa gisi ‘powdered milk (lit. milk of buffalo)’
Leelo/ chilatowa ngombe yaa gisi/ kulindra chisima. ‘Today Buffalo was left behind to guard the well.’
Mukhta si/ chisimeemó/ bilaa kooði/ ngisi/ ile kharibu yiitu. ‘While we were standing without speaking, the buffalo came towards us.’

rel.

chi-gisi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-gisi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

n-gisi

n. 9/10 [Sw. ngisi "a kind of cuttle-fish" SSED 335] squid

ku-giita smoke

v. [cf. Som. giiji “to pull or stretch a rope” DSI 268] (giisile) pull, tow; jerk; pull in

Chiwona kuwa nii mp^hana/ zinakugiita/ ijarsi/ zinakuya qariibuye. ‘He saw that rats were pulling a bell and coming near him.’ review
Ichiwa teena/ namgiita/ ka chinumeenumu/ na shpita/ ndila ya sulṭaani/ apo/ mahala numba ya sulṭaani/ yiikó. ‘Then it was that he was pulling from behind and passed the sultan’s road, where the house of the sultan was located.’

kugiita makasiya ‘to row a boat [lit. to pull oars]’

Chigisile makasiyá/ maskú/ na muunt^hi/ pashpo kiiwa/ chinakeendrapí. ‘We rowed night and day without knowing where we were going.’

kugiita ngoroonzi (or: magoroonzi) ‘to snore’

Na chanza kugiita magoroonzi. ‘And he began to snore.’

kugiita sigareeti ‘to smoke a cigarette’ (Comment: This expression is apparently not commonly used; more common is kuvuta sigareeti.)

Mwenye/ gisile gaari. ‘Mwenye towed the car.’

Sigiité. ‘Don’t pull!’ (cf. Sigiiteeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t pull!’)

Wo/ watilopo wadamu yaawó/ chisimaani/ Yuusufu/ chishika wadaamu/ awa/ wachigita wadaamu. ‘When they put their bucket in the well, Joseph clung to the bucket and they pulled the bucket up.’

Yuusufu/ anzizopo kondroka ka apó/ muke/ chimshika haanzu/ ka chinume/ chimgiita/ haṭá/ haanzu/ ichaatuka/ ka chinume.

‘When Joseph began to move away from there, the wife grabbed him from behind by his outer garment and pulled until the garment tore at the back.’

rel.

ku-giitika v. p/s.

wakhti/ hugiitika ‘lit. time pulls—i.e. time drags’ jisaa mi/ namlindra Omari/ wakhti/ ugiitishile. ‘As I was waiting for Omari, time dragged.’

Ku-gitiiloowa v. appl. pass.

ku-giitila v. appl.

kugiitila wakhti ‘to extend the time to do s.t.’

Ali/ nakhsula kugiitila wakhti/ kulipa deeniye/ haṭá/ mweezi/ uchimala. ‘Ali wants to extend the time to pay back his debt until the end of the month.’

Nuuru/ hapeendi/ khfanya kaazi/ kumaliza/ nakugiitila wakhti/ haṭá/ sa’a za kaazi/ schimala. ‘Nuuru does not want to do his job through its completion, he is just wasting time until the hours for working are finished.’

Sheekhi/ hapeendi/ khfanya gaariye/ isa/ nakhsula kugiitila wakhti/ haṭaa ye/ shpata peesa. ‘Sheekhi does not want to repair his car now, he wants to wait (lit. pull the time) until he gets money.’

ku-giitisha v. caus.

ku-giṭishana v. caus. rec.
ku-giṭishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-giṭishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-giṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
ku-giṭishoowa v. caus. pass.
ku-giṭoowa v. pass.
 rel. nom.
m-giito (mi-) n. 3/4 the act of pulling u-giito n. 14 the act of pulling n-gizi

?

glaasi

n. 9/10 [Eng. glass] a glass (for drinking)
 rel.
chi-glaasi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-glaasi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

go'aani

n. [Som. go'aan "decision" DSI 269] decision
khkoma go'aani 'to reach a decision'
Hamadi/ komele go'aani/ chiza kuuya/ numba ya Omari. 'Hamadi reached a decision not to come to Omari's house.'
Huṭasawara/ kuwa Hamiisi/ komele go'aani/ kuḷaṭa masoomo. 'It is possible that Hamiisi has reached a decision to drop out from school (lit. studies).'
khṭinda go'aani '[lit.] to cut a decision, i.e. to take a final decision' (a neologism formed on a Somali way of speaking, but much in use nowadays, although frowned upon by purists) Hamadi/ ṭinzile go'aani/ chiza kuuya/ numba ya Omari. 'Hamadi made a decision not to come to Omari's house.'
Hasani/ ṭinzile go'aani. 'Hasani made a decision.'
We/ Hamadi/ jawabu iyo/ ṭinda go'aani/ kanaa we/ [↑]nakhfaanyá/ amó/ kanaa we/ nt^hunakhfaanyá. 'You, Hamadi, make a decision on that matter, if you are doing it or if you are not doing it.' (Note that in the performance of this sentence, the first of the contrasted alternatives is pronounced with a markedly raised pitch on the accented vowel, well above the sentence-initial pitch level. We can make a couple other phonetic remarks. The final vowel of the vocative exhibits what we call a continuation H pitch which, in fact, is higher than the preceding accented syllable. Also, there is a partial pitch re-setting beginning with kanaa we. The we is higher than the preceding accented syllable on the penult of go'aani, but not as high as the pitch at the beginning of the sentence.)

chi-gobe (zi-)

fixed adj. [Som. gaab "short of person" DSI 241] short chigobe/ kana chigiriiki 'as short as a small car jack' chisu chigobe 'a short knife' Chimwona/ chizeele/ chimooyi/ chigobe/ nt^ho. 'He saw a very short old woman.'
ishungi chigobe 'short hair'
Lkaambala/ limwelele chigobe. 'The rope was short for him (i.e. there was insufficient length).'
Maame/ ni chigobe/ kolko waawe. 'Mother is shorter than father.'
munt^hu chigobe 'a short person'
Nii ndre/ amó/ chigobe. 'Is it long or short?' review Nimene Omari chigobé. 'I saw Omari the short (as opposed to some other Omari).'

Siwo/ zigobe/ miti aya. These trees are not short.'

Siwo/ zigobee nt^ho/ miti aya. 'These trees are not very short.'

Sku ya taatu/ chimwona/ chizeele/ chimooyi/ chigobe/ nt^ho. ‘On the third day he saw a very old woman.’
Wana awa/ ni zigobe. ‘These children are short.’
want^hu zigobe(e gobe) ‘short people’ zisu zigobe ‘short knives’

i-gobeegobe (ma-) n. 9/10 [Sw. kobe ‘land tortoise: SSED 214] land turtle, tortoise variant form: igombegoombe review, sandra wrote igombeegombe but this seems unlikely given usual lengthening before mb in Bantu words

Mzele igobeegobe/ naayé/ chanza khtuumba/ shtuumba/ shpata maayi/ miingi. ‘Old Tortoise also began digging, he dug and got a lot of water.’
Ndovu/ mwenopo igobeegobé/ chimshiika/ laakini/ hayawaani/ weenziwe/ wachimwaambila/ mlate/ simdhibé/ heendra/ ye/ kapata maayi. ‘When the elephant saw the tortoise, he seized him, but the animals, his companions told him: let him go! don’t bother him! it may be he can find water.’
Wotte/ wachiya/ wachina maayi/ wachimtaala/ igobeegobe/ oyo/ wachimtalisha/ na wachimpeenda/ nt^ho. ‘All [the animals] came and drank the water, and they took that tortoise and made him the chief, and they loved him very much.’

godoro n. 9/10,6 [Sw. godoro (ma-) SSED 116; Hind.] mattress Chendra numbaani/ kaako/ wa’ambile/ watumishi/ wana’ondrole/ godoro/ kama zimo nk^huungunyi/ meepe/ wanazubje. ‘When you go to your home, tell the servants that they should move the mattress, (and) if there are some bedbugs, they should kill them.’
chili/ na godoró ‘a bed and a mattress’; zili/ na godoró ‘beds and mattresses’ chili/ na godoroyé ‘a bed and its mattress’; zili/ na godorozé ‘beds and mattresses’ godoro iyi ‘this market’; godoro izi ‘these mattresses’; magodoro aya ‘these mattresses’ godoro noloolo ‘soft mattress(es)’; magodoro moloolo ‘soft mattresses’ Muke/ chimwambilaa noka/ kalaant^ha/ nt^hini yaa chili/ nt^hini ya godoro/ chilaala/ lawa/ mlume naafe. ‘The woman told the snake: stay under the bed under the mattress; when he sleeps, come out (and) bite him so that he dies.’

rel.
chi-godoro (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-godoro (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

i-goofu (mi-) n., adj. 5/4 [Sw. gofu (ma-) SSED 116] a ruin ijumba igoofo ‘an (aug.) house in ruins’; mijumba migoofo ‘(aug.) houses in ruin’ Shkasa/ maha^haa ye/ nakubigoobigó/ inaku^hla kama igoofo. ‘He heard the place that he was pounding making a noise like a ruin.’ (The form nakubigoobigo is interesting in that the reduplicated stem -bigoobigo exhibits the lengthening of the vowel at the end of the first occurrence of the reduplicated stem. This lengthening is ordinarily found only in word-final position. This lengthening thus argues that the first element of the reduplicated stem acts like a word-final element.)

rel.
chi-goofu (zi-) n. 7/8 ibid.
Oloka/ khariibu/ ya tawala/ takuwona chigoofu/ chimooyi. ‘Go near the sea and you will see a house in ruins.’

- gooful n. [Ar. iqfil, imperative form of qafala “shut up” W 782, but derived from the Yemeni pronunciation gaffil “shut (your eyes)”] a game that was played at dusk by two teams: half of the people were blindfolded and had to guess who had touched them variant form: goofool
Goofulé/ gooful/ni chiint^hu/ma’anaye/ waant^hu/ ikumi/ ka ikumi.
‘Goofule gooful is something, that is, ten people against ten.’
- i-gogo (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. gogo (ma-) SSED 116] large log of a certain tree that doesn’t grow in Brava, but whose logs sometimes wash up on the shore; used for building and making furniture; a log or tree trunk used to sit on kuvunda magogo ‘to break up dried wood to be used as firesticks’ Omari/ kaland^hilile igogo. ‘Omari sat on a log.’
rel.
chi-gogo (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
mi-gogo n. 4 aug.
- i-googolo(ma-) n. 5/6 a generic term for large insects igogolo ya mashkilo ‘caterpillar’ or is it:
i-golgolo n. [cf. Proto-Sabaki ijongolo* and Eastern Bantu igongolo* “=millipede” N&H 626]
- i-golgolo No etymo found. To be checked.
- i-goole (ma-) n. 5/6 [?connected to Sw. kauri SSED 180] shell, seashell; a metal cylindrical container which the captain of a dhow keeps documents in to prevent their getting wet igole ya nk^haasa ‘the shell of a marine tortoise’ Magoole/ hupatowa tawala. ‘Shells are found in the sea.’
Omari/ hu’arurisha magoole/ tawala. ‘Omari collects shells from the sea.’
- Gooloweyn n. a village some eighty-six kilometers north of Brava on the road to Mogadishu
- gooli n. [Ital. gol and Eng. goal] the goal in a game; a score in a game variant form: chigooli chigooli/ rasmi ‘a really nice goal, a wonderful goal’ Hamadi/ tile chigooli/ rasmi. ‘Hamadi scored a wonderful goal.’
(The intonation of an example like this is interesting. Specifically, rasmi is of about the same pitch height as chigooli.)
Hamadi/ tiile/ chigooli/ rasmi. ‘Hamadi scored a wonderful goal.’
(The yes-no question version of this sentence shows both chigooli and rasmi undergoing accent shift: Hamadi/ tiile/ chigooli/ rasmi?
Tile chigooli/ rasmi. ‘I scored a wonderful goal.’ (In this example, the consultant did not pronounce the first person subject prefix, using a null variant of it, but the final accent indicates the person. The construction chigooli/ rasmi is interesting. It appears that there is focus on chigooli, but rasmi is also raised, not downstepped. The final accent triggered by the verb does not appear on rasmi.)
khtila (chi)gooli ‘to score a goal’
Hamadi/ tile chigoli rasmi. ‘Hamadi scored a wonderful goal.’
Nimeené/ mwaana/ tilo chigoolí. ‘I know the boy who scored a goal.’ With focus on the relative verb: Nimeené/ mwaana/ tiiló/ chigoolí. But we also recorded: Nimeené/ mwaana/ tiiló/ chigooli.
Nimweené/ mwaana/ tilo chigooli/ matezooní. ‘I saw the boy who scored a goal in the game.’
Nimeené/ mwaana/ tiiló/ chigooli/ matezooní. ‘I saw the boy who scored a goal in the game.’ (In this pronunciation, the focus on the relative verb seems to allow the following complement to receive default accent, but the next complement does receive the final accent associated with the relative verb construction. We have recorded this pattern on various occasions. However, we have also recorded pronunciations with all the complements have final accent: Nimeené/ maana/ tiiló/ chigoolí/ matezooní. This point requires continued research.

Namwiiwá/ mwaana/ tiiló/ chigooli. ‘I know the boy who scored a goal.’ (Notice that in this example, with focus on the relative verb, the complement may escape the final accent triggered by the relative verb. This seems to be an effect of the Accentual Law of Focus. But we have recorded other cases where ALF does not appear to operate in relative clauses.

kubiga gooli ‘to make a goal’

i-goli (ma-) n. 5/6 or variable adjective [cf. Som. gol "bay" DSI 271 and gololo "arched structure" DSI 272] hole, pitch; adj. uneven; hollowed by use, so worn out that it has become hollow, e.g. a wooden dish (though perhaps -ifko is more properly used in this sense) chili chigoli ‘an uneven bed’

ijamu igoli or chijamu chigoli ‘soup plate’

Ndila/ ni magoli. ‘The road has potholes/ is uneven.’

Nt^hi/ ni magoli. ‘The land is uneven.’

gooma

n. 9/10 rubber; (rubber) eraser; the rubber sole of a shoe

goma iyi ‘this rubber’ (cf. goma izi ‘this rubber’)

Goma izi/ mbovu. ‘This rubber is bad.’

Goma izi/ suura. ‘This rubber is good.’

mpira (w)a gooma ‘a rubber ball’

Sandali izo/ goomaye/ (ni) inene. ‘These sandals, their rubber is thick.’ Or:

Sandali izo / goomaze/ ni zinene. (Usage: Observe that goomaye uses the third person singular enclitic =AG-e with the AG element agreeing with the [cl.9/10] noun gooma, and the -e element being triggered by the non-human noun, saandali. When a non-human is the possessor, -e is used regardless of number.)

Naayó/ goomá/ nakhsulá khpangulila ziiná. ‘Do you have an eraser? I want to erase some writing.’

zilatu za gooma ‘rubber shoes’

rel.

mi-gooma n. aug. 4 (disparaging)

Migoma aya/ miwovu. ‘This rubber is really of bad quality.’ (Phon. The demonstrative aya may be reduced to aa in ordinary speech. Since the form migooma is disparaging in its nature, it is incompatible for the predicate adjective to be, say, suura.)

n-goma

n. n. 9/10 [Sw. ngoma SSED 336] drum

kanaa ngoma ‘like a drum’

Miimbaya/ itagameele/ kanaa ngoma. ‘My stomach is extended like a drum.’

kubigaa ngoma ‘to beat a drum; dance around in joy’

Ali/ mwana wa Hamadi/ khpotela imtihaani/ furahiile/ bishilee ngoma. ‘Ali was happy at Hamadi’s son failing the examination, he (lit. beat a drum) danced around in joy.’

Mbishilee ngomá/ jisa suura. ‘I beat the drum very well.’

kubigilowaa ngoma ‘drums to be beaten for, at’

Haliima/ mwaanawe/ nakuloola/ nakubigilowaa ngoma/ harusiiini/ inakhtezoowa. ‘Haliima’s son is marrying, there are drums being beaten at the wedding, there is dancing/playing.’

kubigilaa ngoma ‘lit. to beat drums with; to give support to’

Burhan Shekh uzile ziluti/ zihaba/ kubigilaa ngoma/ leelo/ masku/ yiko sfeeji. ‘Burhan Shekh bought little sticks to use to beat a drum tonight, there is a competition.’

Nuuru/ nambigila mkule/ ngoma. ‘Nuuru is giving support to his older brother [lit. is beating a drum for his older brother].’

kumbiga/ kanaa ngoma ‘to beat him like a drum – i.e. hard’

Masku/ mukhta yakomeeló/ mwaana/ chamura makhaadimu/ kuletaa ngoma/ khteza/ hattá/ fijiri. ‘When night came, the boy ordered servants to bring drums to play until morning.’

Munt^hi oyo/ waant^hu/ wawaaliko/ washtezaa ngoma/ muiiini. ‘That day people were beating drums in town.’

Ngoma/ amá/ inawamo garabuuni/ kaako/ amá/ nashike (or: nabige) walaaliwo. ‘A drum should either be on your shoulder or be held by your brother (next of kin).’ (A proverb which counsels that one’s property, possessions, etc., should be under your control or under the control of your brother, next of kin.)

Ngoma iyije/ ndaako. ‘That drum is yours.’ (Cf. Ngoma izije/ ndaako. ‘Those drums are yours.’)

Zikoo ngoma/ keesho. ‘There is drumming tomorrow.’

rel.

chi-goma (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-goma (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

khkolola/ kana igoma ‘to cough like a drum (used both of adults and children coughing)’

i-goomba (ma-) n. 5/6 [cf. Sw. mgomba ‘banana plant, plantain’ DSI 277] a kind of plant with wide leaves that are used for wrapping a paste-like plug of tobacco igomba ya t̄ibaaku ‘a wrapped plug of tobacco’

Oloka/ nul̄ila t̄ibaaku/ igomba mooyi. ‘Go and buy for me one wrapped leaf of tobacco.’

m-goomba (mi-)

n. 3/4 a kind of shark mp^hamp^ha mgoomba ‘a mgoomba shark’; mp^hamp^ha migoomba ‘migoomba sharks’

n-goombe

n. 9/10 [Sw. ng’ombe SSED 336] cow

kulala kana ngoombe ‘to sleep like a cow (i.e. deeply)’

(A proverb.)

Mujaa mbuzi/ hulipa ngoombe. ‘The one who eats a goat pays back a cow.’

Mwanaamke/ mkamile ngoombe/ iziwa. ‘The girl milked the cow.’

Naani/ nakhsulo kula chīta cha ngoombé. ‘Who wants to buy the head of a cow?’

Ngoombe/ choondroka/ mbuzi/ hukalaant^ha. ‘When the cow gets up (i.e. goes away), the goat sits down.’ (A proverb.)

Ngombe izi/ nii nk^hulu. ‘These cows are large.’ (The evidence from the “talking backwards” language Chijini is that the copular should be considered as proclitic to the predicate adjective: Mbeng^o ziⁱ/ lunink^h.)

ngoombe/ kaafá ‘if a cow were to die’ ngombe mzeele ‘an old cow’; ngombe nzeele (or: wazeele) ‘old cows’

CHECK

Ni ngoombe. ‘She is a cow (big, without brains).’

Sku ya piili/ siimba/ chimujaa mbuzi/ na sku ya taatú/ chimuja ngoombe. ‘On the second day, the lion ate a goat, and on the third day, he ate a cow.’

Teena/ sku mooyi/ enzele/ ka sultaani/ chimwaambila/ ngoombewa/ uyu/ inaye/ ni Haafi/ yee peeke/ ma’anaye/ ngoombe/ uyu/ sku yaa ye/ takht̄indoowá/ na ngombe ziinginé/ naazó/ stakufa naaye.

‘Then one day he went to the sultan and said to him: this my cow, its name is Does Not Die Alone; meaning, on the day that this cow is slaughtered, others cow will die with it.’

We/ ni ngoombé. ‘You are a cow (i.e. stupid etc.).’

We/ ni ngoombé/ huno maayi/ maayi/ huzimizoo muló... ‘You are the cow that drinks the water, the water that puts out the fire...’

Ye/ wanaayo/ ngombee muke. ‘He had a cow (female bovine).’

rel.

chi-goombe (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-goombe (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ijint^hu igoombe ‘a stupid person’

mw-aa-n-goombe (w-) n. 1/2 calf

Siimba/ ni siimbawa/ na mwaangoombé/ ni mwaangoombewa. ‘The lion

- is my lion, and the calf is my calf.’
Ye/ mub̥lele mwaangoombe/ mjiile. ‘He [the lion] killed a calf and ate it.’
- chi-gombegoombe n. s.t. with the shape of a bug Hamadi/ shfaṭuurache/ kana/ chigombegoombe. ‘Hamadi, his car is like a bug.’
- i-gombegoombe n. tortoise Hinendra kana igombegoombe. ‘He wealks like a tortoise (i.e. slowly).’
ka ṭarṭiibu/ kana igombegoombe ‘slowly like a tortoise’
- i-gome (ma-) n. 5/6 [Som. goon “rocks in the sea” DSI 274, note that Somali only uses plural form]
a sea rock
Chiineendra/ chiineendra/ shpandra ilu ya igome. ‘He walked and walked and climbed up on a rock [looking for fish to catch].’
Diini/ waliko mkali/ koowelá/ dirshilopo chisiwá/ fanyize haraka/ panzile igome. ‘When Diini, who was good at swimming, reached the island, he hurried and climbed up on a rock.’
Mp^hete magomeeni/ sichí. ‘I found it (the shoe) in the rocks; here it is.’
Naank^hó/ chendra kooko/ mahaḷa/ igome. ‘Again, he went to the same place where the rock was.’
Yingile nṯini ya magome/ apo/ naayó/ nṯiiniké/ wamo waant^hu. ‘It [the ikodho bird] entered under the rocks there and under [the rocks] there were people [i.e. the bird’s chicks].’
- rel.
n-gome n. 10 rocks in the sea
yambeete/ kana/ ngome ‘attached like a sea rock (which is a rock embedded in the sea floor)’
- goona n. 9/10 woman’s skirt gona chigobe ‘a short skirt worn by non-Muslim women’ (cf. gona zigobe ‘short skirts’) gonaa ndre ‘a long skirt, worn by Muslim women, extending down below the knees’
- i-goondi (ma-) n. 5/6 [etymology unknown] advice, stern warning (followed by punishment)
(Comment: This word is much used in poetry (ṣṭeenzi) as a synonym of wa’^haḍi.)
kubiga magoondi ‘to give a stern warning (followed by punishment)’
- n-goondra n. 9/10 [Sw. ng’onda SSED 337] dried fish
m̥wambaamba/ kana ngoondra ‘as thin as ngoondra’ Hasani/ laazile/ wele m̥wambaamba/ kana/ ngoondra. ‘Hasani got sick, he became thin like dried fish.’
Wo/ washpeleka afrika ya mashriqi/ ngoondra/ mp^haamp^ha/ nk^havu. ‘They sent to East Africa dried fish, dried shark.’
- ku-goonga v. [Sw. gonga SSED 117] (gongeele) knock, tap Gaari/ imgongeeló/ Omari. ‘A truck hit Omari.’ Cf. without focus: Gaari/ imgongeele/ Omari.
Mi/ ṭakhugoonga. ‘I’ll hit you.’ Or: Mi/ nṯ^hakhugoonga. (In the future tense, the first person singular subject prefix may null, or it may be a nasal that forms a pre-nasalized consonant with the consonant in ṭa, causing aspiration of the ṭ.)
Nuuru/ gongele mlaango. ‘Nuuru knocked on the door.’
- rel.
ku-goongana v. rec. (-gongeeene) strike one another lightly, graze Gaari/ zigongeeene. ‘The cars grazed one another.’
ku-goongeka v. p/s.
Omari/ ni ghaasi/ hagoongeki. ‘Omari is brave, one cannot hit him (for - fear of what he will do in the event one does hit him.)’

- ku-goongela* v. appl.
kumgongela chuuma ‘to hit him with a piece of iron’
- ku-goongesha* v. caus. (gongesheeze)
Nuuru/ mgongesheze mwaana/ mlaango. ‘Nuuru had the child knock on the door.’
- ku-gongesheka* v. caus. p/s.
ku-gongesheleza v. caus. appl. (gongesheleeze) Nuuru/ mgongesheleze Omari/ mwaana/ mlaango. ‘Nuuru had Omari’s child knock on the door.’
- ku-gongeshelezanya* v. caus. appl. rec. (-gongeshelezeenye)
Nuuru/ na Omari/ wagongeshelezenye waana/ milaango. ‘Nuuru and Omari caused one another’s children to knock on doors.’
- ku-gongoowa* v. pass.
Kugongowa na gaari/ ni khatari. ‘To be hit by a truck is dangerous.’
- rel. nom.
m-goonga (wa-) n. 1/2 one who knocks
m-goongo (mi-) n. 3/4 the act of knocking
- chi-goongo* (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. kigongo SSED 117] club, bat with a knob at the end
- l-goongo* (n-) n. 11/10 the hard part of the branch of a certain kind of palm tree used for making brooms (the softer part is used for making mats, baskets, fishing line -- cf. ilala) kuḷawanganya ngoongo/ na milaala ‘lit. to separate the harder part of the palm tree branch from the softer part -- said of friends who discuss things together in order to clarify them in a crystal way’
- i-goonjo* (ma-) n. 5/6 [cf. Tikuu dialect of Swahili igonjo N&H (given as word of unknown origin in Appendix 4 – 100 word list)] knee
- kubiga magoonjo ‘to sit on the knees; wait for a long time’
Mzeele/ chibiga magoonjo/ chila. ‘The old man sat on his knees crying.’
Ye/ bishile magoonjo/ lizile kama munt^hu filijila. ‘He sat on his knees crying like a man bereaved.’
- kubigowa magoonjo
Hafisaani/ ka siindako/ chisula chiint^hu/ hubigowa magoonjo. ‘At the office of mayor if you want something you wait for long time.’
Numbaani/ ka Charles/ kaawo/ hubiga magoonjo. ‘In the house of Charles you will wait for a long time.’
- Maayi/ yachanza kuyela/ maayi/ yachinkoma magoonjooni/ chimaliza mimbaani/ chimaliza hewesiini. ‘Water began to fill up; water reached his knees, then his stomach, then his chest.’
- Mbishile igoonjó/ na meezá. ‘I bumped my knee against the table.’ (Note that one cannot relativize meeza in this construction: meza yaa mi/ mbishilo igoonjó/ (naayé)* ‘the table that I bumped against’.)
- Meeza/ inbishile igoonjo. ‘(Lit.) the table hit me – i.e. I hit my knee against the table.’ (This construction permits the relativization of meeza: meza i-n-bishilo igoonjó ‘the table that I hit my knee against (lit. the table that hit my knee)’.) (Note that in our transcription of MI’s speech we often wrote the first person object marker as an unassimilated n in front of voiced sounds. We are uncertain whether this is anything more than a method of distinguishing the first person object marker from the [cl.1] object marker m in this context.)
- Nandishile igoonjó/ mezaani. ‘I put (my) knee on the table.’
Wachiineendra/ ka magoonjo/ hattá/ washkoma/ mahala/ ya hayawaani/ waalikó. ‘They went on their knees until they reached the place where the animal was.’
- rel.
i-goonjo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
m-goonjo n. 3
kubiga mgoonjo ‘[lit. to hit knee] to wait, sit for a long time’

Mbishile mgoonjó/ buuré. 'I have waited for a long time uselessly.'

- ku-goontisha* v. caus. [unknown etymology, but likely from Somali] (gont^hishiize) threaten s.o.; [pron. kugont^hisha]
rel.
ku-gontishika v. caus. p/s. [pron. kugont^hishika] Hagont^hishiki. 'He cannot be threatened.'
ku-gontishanya v. caus. rec. [pron. kugont^hishanya] ku-gontishiliza v. caus. appl. [pron. kugont^hishiliza]
rel. nom.
ma-gontisho n. a threat; [pron. magont^hisho]
- gorgora* n. 9/10 [Som. googgaarad DSI 273] kind of skirt worn as an undergarment by women, petticoat
rel.
chi-gorgora (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-gorgora (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ku-gorgorisha* v. [Som. gorgori DSI 275] (gorgorishiize) v. caus. bargain for lowering of the price of s.t., haggle
rel. nom.
u-gorgorisho n. haggling
- gooro* [Sw. guru, SSED 120, cited in the phrase sukari guru; Hindi] in the expression:
sukari ya gooro 'brown sugar'
- goroobu* n. [Som. garoob DSI 259] divorced woman variant form: goroowu
- goroodi* n. [Som. garoodi "a tract of land where soil is hard and there are grass and trees" DSI 244] muddy red soil, esp. that found after the rains in the canyons running from the hill behind Brava at Ka Seleemo; when it rains the soil becomes swpongy, like porridge, and children used to walk/ play on it; in contrast matotoope is for clay soil which remains on top, in contrast to goroodi which can be deep down in the earth up to one meter or two and can swallow up people or animals and can also flow and take away people and animals
Goroodi/ humiza waant^hu. 'Mud swallows people up.'
Goroodi/ inakhtukula waant^hu. 'The flowing mud is carrying people away.'
Ichinyaa nvula/ Ka Seleemo/ huwako goroodi/ niingi. 'When it rains, it is very muddy at Ka Seleemo.'
Mbuzi/ kalene gorodiini. 'The goat got stuck in the mud.'
Ngoombe/ goroodi/ immiziizó. 'The cow, mud has swallowed it.'
- i-goroodi* (mi-) n. 5/4 a long thin yellow fish that is not eaten, used as a bait fish
- gorooma* n. 9 roar
- ku-gorooma* v. [Sw. koroma SSED 223] (goromeele) roar (of a lion etc.)
Nk^hasize siima/ nakugorooma. 'I heard the lion roaring.'
Nk^hasize goroma ya siimbá. 'I heard the roar of a lion.'
- i-goroombo* n. [Sw. (Kiamu and Bajuni dialects) gorombo "trachee artere"=windpipe Sac. 254] throat (perhaps the most correct term for throat, although we also recorded chimizo) Hamadi/ nayo kansera ya igoroombo. 'Hamadi has cancer of the throat.'

Kuja/ nt^hasaa yo/ kingila mimbaani/ ipite igorombooni. ‘Food, before it enters the stomach, passes through the throat.’

Omari/ igorombooye/ ikuulu. ‘Omari is greedy (lit. Omari’s throat is big).’

n-goroonzi (ma-) n. [cf. Sw. koroma “to snore” SSED 223 and Som. khuuri “to snore: DSI 367] in the phrases:

kugita ngoroonzi or kugita magoroonzi ‘to snore’

Gisile ngoroonzi. ‘He snored.’

Na chanza kugita magoroonzi. ‘And he began to snore.’

kuvuta ngoroonzi or kuvuta magoroonzi ‘to snore’

Nakuvuta magoroonzi. ‘He is snoring.’

i-goroori n. [Som. garoor “1. full-cram coagulated milk of goat, cow or sheep, 2. coagulated skimmed milk” DSI 260] thick milk, with all the cream removed (in Chimiini it is just the second meaning of the Somali word that is used)

goryaani n. intestinal worms

Goryaani/ niingi/ zimlazió. ‘Many worms came out of him (when he defecated).’

goosho

n. 10 a fruit with thin, but hard skin; inside it is yellow-reddish with many small seeds; it is sometimes mashed up and mixed with water to make juice; it is small and looks like a berry that has been pushed in on both sides; it does not spoil easily and can be kept for a long time goosho izi ‘these sp. fruit’

mayi ya goosho ‘juice made from the goosho fruit’

Nakhsonda goosho. ‘He is sucking out the juice from the goosho (spitting out the remainder after the juice has been sucked out).’

gosra

n. in the expression:

nt^hendre ya gosra ‘a type of date’

gowoli

n. [Som. gogol “meeting of relatives or friends to resolve some dispute or discuss some matter” DSI 271] meeting khfanya gowoli ‘to have a meeting’ kuweka gowoli ‘to hold a meeting; to hold wake for someone who has died’

Sku mooyi/ karaayle/ waweshela gowoli/ khfikira/ jisaa wo/ kuruuda/ muyiini/ kaawo. ‘One day the crows held a meeting to consider how to return to their town.’

Naani/ ilo gowoliini. ‘Who came to the meeting?’

Goygaali

n. one of the five clans making up the Tunni

i-goyi (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Som. gows “molar tooth” DSI 276] molar tooth

Ali/ igoyi/ imkuushile. ‘Ali’s molar tooth came out.’

Ali/ kuzile igoyi. ‘Ali had a molar tooth extracted.’ (In this construction, igoyi is not a primary object. It cannot control object agreement on the verb: Ali/ ikuzile igoyi. It also cannot be the subject of a corresponding passive sentence: Igoyi/ ikuzila na Ali.) igoyi ya aqili ‘wisdom tooth’

Mwaana/ igoyi/ inamlaaza. ‘The child’s molar tooth hurts.’ Or: Igoyi/ inamlaza mwaana. It is also possible to postpose mwaana, but phrase it separately from the verb, which has the verb then focused and mwaana out of focus: [igoyi/ inamlaza/ mwaana].)

Mwaana/ nakulazowa na igoyi. ‘The child is pained by his molar tooth.’

i-gozi (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. ngozi SSED 337] skin, hide, leather

Abunawaasi/ wenopo kuwa ngoombeyé/ malize khtindoowá/ oloshela ka sultaani/ chimloomba/ nampe igoyi/ ya ngoombe. ‘Abunawaasi, when he saw that his cow was done being slaughtered, he went to the sultan and begged him to give him the skin of the cow.’

Chimwamura Abunawaasi/ khtala magozi/ yotte/ keendra/ kiya'uza. 'He ordered Abunawaasi to take all the skins and go and sell them.'

igozi ikavu 'dry skin'

igozi ya bakhti huwa halaali/ chimaghaadisha ni tahaara maali [st.] 'the hide of a carcass becomes lawful when you tan it; then it becomes pure and is valuable'

igozi ya chita kana na ya mp^hula [st.] 'the skin of [her] head, mouth, and nose' igozi ya maghadishiiza 'leather' kambula (or: kawula) igozi 'to strip the skin off (e.g. of a slaughtered animal); (fig.) to make fun of someone or of someone's family'

Sultaani/ shkhiira/ chimpa Abunawaasi/ igozi. 'The sultan agreed and gave Abunawaasi the skin.'

rel.

n-gozi n. 9/10 skin, hide, leather

Ye/ nambiile/ kuwa inyunyi/ ikulu/ itakhtukulaa ngozi/ ka mlomowe/ itakhpandra naami/ ilu/ ya ijabali. 'He told me that a big bird would carry the animal skin in his beak and would go up with me to the top of the mountain.'

gramaatika

adv. [Ital. grammatica] grammatical, correctly, according to the rules Abdi/ hukoða gramaatika. 'Abdi spoke grammatically, correctly.'

grambiyoole

n. professional cook's apron (in non-professional cooking, aprons were not worn)

gu

n. 9/10 [Som. gu 'spring-time, season of rains in March, April and May' DSI 276] the main rainy season in the spring

Mkhodiisho/ guuze 'Mogadishu's spring rainy season'

guddi (Ø, m-)

n. [Som. guddi DSI 277] committee -- this word entered Chimiini with many other Somali words related to administration, government, offices, etc.; committee member (We recorded this word with the gemination preserved in Chimiini.)

guddi iyi 'this committee' (cf. guddi izi, maguddi aya 'these committees')

Omari/ ni guddi. 'Omari is a committee member.'

Omari/ ni mooyi/ karka maguddi wa hafiisa. 'Omari is one [i.e. a member] of the various committees in [that particular governmental unit].'

Omari/ ni naa'ibu/ ya mkulu/ wa guddi/ ya skoola. 'Omari is the deputy of the chief of the school committee.'

ku-gudha

v. [Som. gudh- "to become devoid of milk" Ab 97, Som. gur "to decrease slowly" DSI 281] (-gudhiile) become dry, dry up (e.g. of a woman not being able to give milk any longer, or someone running out of ideas, intellectual abilities; also much used in cooking, when you wait for liquid to decrease, for example, in a stew)

Akhilize/ zigudhiile. 'His brain went dry.'

Maayi/ wowiini/ yagudhiile. 'The water in the river dried up.' Or: Maayi/ yagudhiile/ wowiini. Or: Wowiini/ maayi/ yagudhiile.

Wowi/ igudhiile. 'The river dried up.' Or: Igudhiló/ nii wowi. 'What has dried up is the river.'

rel.

ku-gudhisha v. caus.

ku-gudhishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-gudhishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-gudhishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-guðbaṭa

v. [Som. verbs gudbi (trans.) and gudub (intr.) DSI 276-7] (guðbeete) cross, ford a river (The sound d in Somali is pronounced as a fricative [ð] when it occurs between two vowels; the stem gudb- receives an epenthetic vowel between db when a consonant-initial suffix follows, thus leading to the pronunciation of the d as a fricative. Chimwiini, in borrowing this word, seems to have utilized the fricative even though in the Chimwiini borrowing the consonant is not between two vowels.)

rel.

ku-ghuḍbaṭika v. p/s.

ku-guḍbaṭila v. appl.

ku-guḍbaṭisha v. caus. make cross; turn in; variant form: kuguḍbisha

Ali/ mguḍbishize mwaana/ wowi. ‘Ali made the child cross the river.’

Nṯ^haasá/ nt^hakuguḍbisha. [H!H] ‘He hasn’t turned it in yet (e.g. the examination).’

Omari/ teete/ so/ imṯihaani/ na guḍbishiize. [HHHHH] ‘Has Omari taken the examination and turned it in?’

ku-guḍbaṭishana v. caus. rec.

ku-guḍbaṭishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-guḍbaṭishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-guḍbaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-guḍbaṭoowa v. pass. (-guḍbeeta)

ku-guḍbishoowa v. caus. pass.

Mwaana/ guḍbishizaa wowi. ‘The child was made to cross the river.’ (Syn.

In the causative verb construction, when two objects are present, only the causee can be made the subject of the passive version of the sentence. Thus Wowi/ igughbishiza mwaana. ‘The river was made to be crossed by the children.’ is ungrammatical.)

rel. nom.

u-guḍbaṭo n. 14 the act of crossing a river

m-guḍbisho n. 3 the act of ferrying, causing to cross a river ma-guḍbisho n. 6 the act of ferrying, causing to cross a river u-guḍbisho n. 14 the act of ferrying, causing to cross a river guḍbiya (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10,6 [Sw. gudulia SSED 118] a small water jar used at the table

rel.

chi-guḍbiya (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-guḍbiya (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

chi-gugu (zi-)

n. egg(s) of head lice

i-gugu (ma-)

n. 5/6 [unknown etymology] eggshell

m-guuja (wa-n-)

n. 1/2 a person from Zanzibar

rel.

n-guuja n. Zanzibar

ku-gulguula

v. [Som. guul ‘to threaten’ DSI 283] (gulguliile) threaten Gulguliile kendra peeke. ‘He threatened to go alone.’ Or: Gulguliile kendra yee/ peeke.

Gulguliile kulata kaazi. ‘He threatened to quit work.’

rel.

ku-gulguulana v. rec. (-gulguleene) threaten one another ku-gulguu lila v. appl. (gulguliliile)

gulguuli

n. 9/10 threat

guule

n. [said to be of Tunni origin, but not found in Tosco] thunder gule anoole [cf. Som. caano ‘milk’ DSI 76] ‘thunder [lit. the thunder that brings milk, because pastures will renew their greenery with rains and cows will have more milk]’

kubiga guule ‘to thunder’

Zinakubiga guule. ‘It is thundering.’ Or: Inakubiga guule.

guuli

n. [Som. guul DSI 283] victory

Guuli/ hupatowa ka uwaafakha. ‘Victory is achieved by being united.’

khpata guuli ‘to be victorious’ chi-gulu (zi-) n., adj. 7/8 [Sw. kiguu SSED 278] lame; s.o. lame, with a deformed leg (This is one of many examples where Chimini has retained the sound /l/ while Swahili has deleted it in the course of its historical development.)

chigulu uje ‘that lame, one-legged person’

Jahaziini/ pakiile/ na sanduukhú/ ndraaniye/ yawalimo mikono/ na miilú/ yaa miti/ hinendrelowa na want^hu zigulú. ‘On the dhow, he loaded [also] a box, inside of which there were wooden hands and legs which are used by lame people.’

kendra chigulu ‘to limp’

Hamadi/ nt^hanakiineedra/ ba/ kana munt^hu nakendro chigulú.

‘Hamadi is not walking (well, properly), he is like a man who is limping.’

Omari/ kuulu/ inamlaaza/ nakendra chigulu. ‘Omari’s leg is paining him, he is limping.’

mp^haka chigulu ‘a lame cat’

munt^hu chigulu ‘a lame person’; want^hu zigulu ‘lame people’

Muunt^hu/ uyu/ waliko chigulu. ‘This man was without one leg.’

n-gulu n. 9/10 [Sw. nguru SSED 337] large kingfish, one of the most common fish eaten in Brava ngulu ya ishawa ‘a type of fish, but no further details known’ ngulu ya bahariini ‘a type of fish, but no further details known’ ku-gulumisha v. [unknown etymology] (gulumishiize) throw

rel.

ku-gulumishiliza v. appl. (gulumishiliize)

ku-gulumishilizoowa v. appl. pass. (gulumishiliiza)

Mwaana/ gulumishiliza majiwe. ‘The child had stones thrown at him.’

ku-gulumishoowa v. caus. pass. (gulumishiiza) be thrown Majiwe/ yagulumishiiza. ‘Stones were thrown.’

i-guma (ma-) n. 5/6 [cf. Som. qooman “to receive a wound” DSI 500] bump or lump resulting from a blow; a club with a knob at the end kubiga iguma ‘to inflict a lump on someone’

rel.

chi-guma (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-guma (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

guumeesi n. owl

i-gumudi (ma-) n. 5/6 a small pouch or bag or piece of cloth wrapped around money – may refer both to the container or to what is contained inside; the hard end/part of fruits or vegetables near the root, supposed to be thrown away

Hamadi/ jile muuwa/ mahaḷa suura/ igumudi/ mp^helee mi. ‘Hamadi ate the sugar cane in the nice places, the end (of the sugar cane) he gave to me.’

Hamadi/ mpele Omari/ chigumudi/ cha segereeti. ‘Hamadi gave Omari a cigarette butt.’

igumudi ya peesa ‘a bag of money’ ma-guungulu n. usu. [cl.6] sea urchins chi-guni (zi-) n. 7/8 a kind of thick white cloth worn like a chiguwo (also used to carry things)

Basi/ nt^hililani nt^hendre/ nt^hililaani/ ka chiguni. ‘In that case, put dates for me, that’s what you should do, in a bag.’

Leete/ khutifile chiguniini/ kaako. ‘[Lit.] bring it [i.e. give it to me] so that I may put it into your (piece of) cloth.’

rel.

i-guni (mi-) n. aug.

Omari/ leselee mazu/ ka iguni. ‘Omari brought bananas with a big piece of cloth.’ (Phon. The simple yes-no question version of this sentence involves just Q-raising, no accent shift: Omari/ leselee mazu/ ka iguni? On the other hand, the exclamatory yes-no question shifts the accent in the non-subject phrases: Omari/ leselee mazú/ ka iguní!?)

ku-guun^hata

v. [Som. gunto DSI 280, which has both the meanings of the Chimiini word]

(gun^heete) tighten a cloth that one is wearing, getting ready for s.t. undesirable (a fight, a mishap) (It is interesting that the Somali nt is treated here as a prenasalized stop and consequently assigned aspiration.)

m-gunya (wa-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mgunya (wa-) SSED 278] a native of the islands north of Lamu; also referred to as mbaajuuni and in the plural wabaajuuni rel.

chi-gunya n. 7 the language of the Baajuuni, also referred to as chibaajuuni

ku-guura

v. [Som. guur- "to migrate" Ab 99] (guriile) (i) move, shift, move from place to place, move from a house; (ii) die

(i) Baaba/ mukhta^a ye/ mweno mwaaná/ wele mkulú/ shfikira/ chihada/ ni afðali/ isa/ teena/ mwaana/ naguure/ ka maduriini/ na'endre/ nakale muyiini/ napate kubaratana na waant^hu.. ‘When the father saw that the boy had grown up, he thought, saying, it is better now than for the boy to move away from the bush and go and live in town so that he get acquainted with people.’

Baazi/ nakugura hafisaa mp^hiya. ‘Baazi is moving into a new office.’ (Cf.

Mi/ nnakugura hafisaa mp^hiyá. ‘I am moving into a new office.’)

Baazi/ nakugura hafisa yaawo/ mp^hiya. ‘Baazi is moving into their new office.’ (Cf. Mi/ nnakugura hafisa yiiitú/ mp^hiyá. ‘I am moving into our new office.’)

Gurile Columbús? ‘Did you move to Columbus?’ (A possible answer: Ee/ ngurile Columbús/ makaa yana. ‘Yes, I moved to Columbus last year.’)

Hasani/ nakugura nuumbaye. ‘Hasani is moving from his house.’ (Cf.

Hasani/ nakugura nuumbaye? ‘Is Hasani moving from his house?’ Hasani/ nakugura nuumbayê!? ‘Is Hasani really moving from his house!?’) Hasani/ nakuguura/ nuumbaye. ‘Hasani is moving from his house.’ (Cf.

Hasani/ nakuguura/ nuumbayé? ‘Is Hasani moving from his house?’ Although later in our research, GM tended to not accept exclamatory questions with a focused verb, he did offer Hasani/ nakuguurá/ nuumbayê!? ‘Is Hasani really moving from his house!?’ This pronunciation accords with the pronunciations offered by MI, who regularly formed exclamatory questions from sentences with a focused verb.)

Ka khisani/ chiza kuguurá/ Mambasa. ‘Why didn’t you move to Mombasa.’

kugura oko ‘to move there’

kulla mukhta^a ye/ takuwo nakuguurá ‘whenever he will be moving about’

maha^ala yaa mi/ nguriiló ‘the place where I moved to’ or maha^alaa mi/ nguriiló (The second pronunciation probably should be understood as involving the contraction of a yaa to aa.)

Nakhsuulá/ we/ kump^ha rukhsa/ mi/ kugura kaaka. ‘I want you to give me permission to move to my own place.’

Nakinaambilá/ haba mooyi/ guraani/ tu. ‘I am just telling you (pl.) to move away a little.’

Ngurile ka Mwiini. ‘I moved from Brava.’

Ngurile Mwiini. ‘I moved to Brava.’

Omari/ nakugura ka Nuuru. ‘Omari moved towards Nuuru.’ (Cf. Omari/ nakuguura/ ka Nuuru. ‘Omari moved away from Nuuru.’) is this construction ambiguous?

Uje sul^htaani/ ðaalimu/ shpata khabari/ ya kuwa mgarwa/ guriile/ oloshela nt^hi zingine/ na mloweele/ mwanaamke/ wa sul^htaani/wa nt^hi izo. ‘That unjust sultan got the news that the fisherman had moved and gone to other lands and had married the daughter of the sultan of those lands.’

Zote/ hugura kharibu yaa wowi/ kuwa kharibu ya maayi. ‘All [the animals] move near the river to be close to water.’

(ii) Chigura ka moojé. ‘He died [lit. moved to his lord].’

mooja chireheme sku ya kuguura [st.] ‘O God, have mercy on us on the day of our death’

Mukeewe/ chimwaambila/ ya kuwa celo/ guriḽe ka moojé/ leelo. ‘His wife told him that the gazelle died [lit. moved to his maker] today.’

Saalimu/ guriḽe/ duniyaani. ‘Saalimu departed from the world – i.e. he died.’

rel.

ku-guraguura v. freq.

Chiguraguura/ ka magoonjo/ hattá/ kharibu yaa muti. ‘He crawled on his knees close to the tree.’

ku-guraguurata v. freq.

Chiguraguurata/ ka magoonjo/ hatá/ mnangooni. ‘He crawled on his knees to the door.’

ku-guraguratiḽoowa v. freq. appl. pass.

Magoonjo/ yachigurguratiḽoowá/ hatá/ mnangooni. ‘Knees were crawled on to the door.’

ku-guraguratiḽa v. freq. appl.

ku-guurika v. p/s.

ku-guurila v. appl.

ku-guroowa v. pass. (guriḽa)

ku-guursha v. caus. take someone around in a procession, accompanied by drums, chants, etc., esp. with reference to escorting the groom in a wedding from his home, where the marriage ceremony takes place, to the bride’s home; move something; cause someone to move away kuguursha mataanga niya leete awali [st.] ‘(before) taking the sand (from its place to use it to clean with) state the intention first’ mara mbili kuguursha mataanga waajibu [st.] ‘twice to take sand from its place is required’ ku-guurshika v. caus. p/s.

ku-gurshiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-gurshilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-gurshoowa v. caus. pass. (gurshiiza)

Omari/ nakugurshowa kaake/ numbaani. ‘Omari is being moved to his house.’

Omari/ nakugurshoowa/ leelo. ‘Omari is being moved from his home to his bride’s home today.’

chi-gure

[Som. gurey "left handed" DSI 281] left-handed; left side

Omari/ handika ka chigure. ‘Omari writes with his left (hand).’

ka chigure ‘from/on the left-hand side’

ka kubli/ na ka chiguré ‘on the right and the left-hand side’

gureele

adj. [Som. gurey "left handed" DSI 281] left-handed

rel.

chi-gureele n. ibid.

Hamadi/ ni chigureele. ‘Hamadi is left-handed.’

Omari/ handika ka chigureele. ‘Omari writes with his left hand.’

ku-guursata

v. [Som. guuri “to copy, transcribe” DSI 283] (gurseeṽe) copy

Mi/ ngurseeṽé. ‘I copied it.’

Ni/ ngurseeṽé. ‘You (pl.) copied it.’ (Note that in the first person case above, the ng is a prenasalized stop, while in the second person plural case ng represents a sequence of a nasal n plus g.)

rel.

- ku-gursatila* v. appl.
rel. nom.
m-guursata (wa-) n. 1/2 one who copies
m-guursato (mi-) n. 3/4 the act of copying ma-guursato n.6 the act of copying u-guursato n. 14 the act of copying
- gurtumu* (Ø,ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw.gurudumu SSED 120; Pers.] wheel (although this meaning was employed by MI, it was not accepted by GM, who knew the word as igurtumu, meaning the hard part of a fruit or vegetable near the root, which is thrown away (also known as igumudi) gurtumo ya charkhaani ‘the wheel part of a sewing machine’ gurtumo ya gaari ‘a car wheel’
rel.
i-gurtumu n. hard part, end of fruit, vegetable, which is discarded Hamadi/ jile muuwa/ mahala suura/ igurtumu/ mp^heele mi. ‘Hamadi ate the sugar cane in the nice places, the end (of the sugar cane) he gave to me.’
rel.
chi-gurtumu (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-gurtumu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ku-guruma* v. [Sw. nguruma SSED 337] (gurumiile) roar (of a lion), peal (of thunder) Nimkasize siimbá/ nakuguruma ka apo. ‘I heard a lion roaring in that area.’
rel.
n-gurumo n. roar of a lion, peal of thunder
- gurupo* n. [Eng. group] group
Gurupoo mbili/ zinakubigana (or: zinashindramana)/ gurupo ya Omari/ na gurupo ya Ali. ‘Two groups are encountering/competing with each other (in some sort of a game, etc.), Omari’s group and Ali’s group.’
gurupo ya waant^hu ‘a group of people’ Omari/ ile na waant^hu/ wiingi/ ka gurupo. ‘Omari came with many people in a group.’
rel.
gurupo gurupo adv. in groups
Waant^hu/ wasimeme gurupo gurupo. ‘People stood in groups.’
- n-guruuwe* n. [Sw. nguruwe SSED 338] wild pig sho kuwa mbwa na nguruuwe lataani/ ichindirka marra saba oshaani [st.] ‘avoid only those of dogs and warthogs; if you touch them, you should wash yourself seven times’
- n-guva* n. 9/10 [Sw. nguva SSED 338] dugong (caught with a net and eaten in Brava, though rare); (related to mermaid stories; also called ‘pig fish’) check lengtheig in front of nguva
nguva iyi ‘this dugong’ (cf. nguva izi ‘these dugongs’) Leelo/ ipetaa nguva. ‘Today dugong has been caught.’
Nama yaa nguva/ hujoowa. ‘The meat of dugong is eaten.’
rel.
i-guva (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. a large dugong
- n-guvu* n. 9/10 [Sw. nguvu SSED 338] strength, power Anzizopoo kujá/ muke/ ka nguvuze/ zotte/ chimbiga / lpaangale/ chimtindaa chitta/ shtaala/ chimmolaa mp^hisi/ ndrevu/ izo. ‘When it [the hyena] began to eat, the woman with all her strength hit it with her sword and cut off its head and took it and shaved off the hyena’s beard [lit. beards – i.e. the hairs constituting the beard].’
kaa nguvu ‘by force’ Nshishile kaa nguvu/ kulala naami. ‘He grabbed me by force (in order to sleep with me.’
kandikaa nguvu ‘to try hard, to use force to do s.t.’

Nandishile mlaangó/ nguvú/ khfuungula. ‘I tried the door hard to open.’
 (In this example the object of the infinitive has been relocated between –andika and nguvu. There is emphasis on the nguvu, which bars the final accent from the main verb crossing into the infinitive. The main verb may also bear an OM agreeing with the object of the infinitive: Niwandishile mlaangó/ nguvú/ ku’ufuungula. ‘I tried the door hard to open it.’)

Nandishilee nguvú/ khfungula mlaango. ‘I tried hard to open the door.’ (In the case of a phrasal verb like –andikaa nguvu, what we refer to as verb emphasis puts the entire phrasal verb in a prosodic constituent, preventing a final accent from projecting out of that phrase.)

Nandishilee nguvú/ mlaango/ khfuungula. ‘I tried hard the door to open.’
Nandishilee nguvú/ mlaango/ khfunguloowa. ‘I tried hard the door to be opened.’

Niwandishilee nguvú/ khfuungula/ mlaango. ‘I tried it hard to open the door.’ (This example, where the main verb is marked with an OM controlled by the object of the infinitive verb, was judged as grammatical by our consultant. The infinitive could also bear an OM controlled by its object as well: ku’ufuungula. While grammatical, these sentences are improved by fronting the object to position before the infinitive: Niwandishilee nguvú/ mlaangó/ khfuungulá. ‘I tried it hard the door to open.’ Once again, the infinitive could also bear an object marker: ku’ufuungula. The preceding example was given with a pronunciation where there is no internal emphasis or focus. One could also emphasize the phrasal verb: Niwandishilee nguvú/ mlaango/khfuungula. ‘I tried hard the door to open.’) kandikowaa nguvu ‘to be tried hard’ Mlaango/ wandishilaa nguvu/ khfunguloowa. ‘The door was tried hard to be opened.’

khfanyaa nguvu ‘to insist’ khpaan nguvu ‘to strengthen’

khtilaa nguvu ‘to strengthen, apply force, strength (e.g. in pushing a car)’

Fuunzi/ tilee nguvu. ‘The craftsman applied force.’

Muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ chisulá ka lilaahi/ laazimu/ khtilaa nguvu. ‘When one really wants something, one must try hard.’

khtumilaa nguvu ‘to use force’

Khutanzuliliile/ kula yaa ye/ peetó/ ka nguvuzé/ na aqilizé. ‘He gave up to you everything that he got from his power and his wits.’

Mi/ nk^hawa mwenyee nguvú/ jisaa ni/ nakuhadó/ na nt^hakhadira khfanya yaa mi/ nakhsuuló/ mazá/ mi/ sulá kumlata/ mp^haká/ kunijá. ‘If I had the power that you say and I were able to do whatever I want, would I let the cat eat me?’ check into accent

Mwenyee nguvu/ mpise. ‘Let a strong man pass.’ (A proverb which says that one cannot do anything about a person who is stronger than one, so just leave him go away.)

Mwenyee nguvu/ ndila/ ndaaké. ‘He who has power, the road is his.’ (A proverb. This might be said, for example, when you see a large truck coming down the road and you are driving a small car, so you make sure to get out of the way and comment with this proverb.)

Nazoo nguvu/ kanaa ndovu. ‘He has strength like an elephant, he is as strong as an elephant.’

Nazoo nguvu/ zaydi yaa mi. ‘He is stronger than me.’

Ni mutá’asifu/ kumwona muunt^hu/ khfanya kilaa jawabu/ mbovu/ ka khisa/ khsulá khpata peesa/ naa nguvú. ‘It’s sad to see a man so corrupted by the desire for money and power.’

Nt^hayná/ haaja/ we/ khshikowa shtana/ kalaant^ha/ pumula/ na ruuda/ nguvuzo. ‘There is no need for you to be angry; sit, rest, regain your strength.’

Siná/ nguvu za kandikilaa khatí. ‘I do not have the strength to write a letter.’

Sinaa nguvu/ zaa mi/ khkooðela. ‘I haven’t the strength to speak with.’ (However, one does not say Nk^hooðelelee nguvú. ‘I spoke with strength.’) want^hu wenyee nguvu ‘people of power’

Wawili waseeló/ wachoweja ka nguvu zaawo/ zotte. ‘The two who remained swam with all their strength.’

n. 9/10 [Sw. nguo SSED 337] clothes (Phon.Observe that in Sw. orthography, the intervocalic glide that separates u and o is not written. We consider the glide w to be an integral part of the word's pronunciation. There is clear evidence that Chimiini does not allow successive vowel. When such sequences arise for morphological reasons, either the two vowels contract into a single (long) vowel, or a glottal stop is inserted between the two vowels. Further evidence that the glide is an integral part of the word's structure comes from the secret language Chijini, where nguo is pronounced [wong^h]. We see here that the w is treated as a syllable onset and moved to word-initial position. If the w were merely present in order to separate two vowels, then there would be no need to invoke it when the final vowel is moved to initial position. A pronunciation like *[ong^h] would be expected, assuming that the game reflects the phonemic structure.)

kḥĩndaa nguwo 'to cut cloth' kḥĩndilaa nguwo 'to cut cloth for; [idiomatically, a request to purchase cloth]'

Nṭ^hĩndilaa nguwo/ yardi nṭ^haano. 'Cut for me five yards of cloth [i.e. let me have five yards of cloth, whether it has already been cut is not material].'

kuḷaṭilaa nguwo 'to throw cloth – i.e. over-react, be extremely committed to one's position on some matter'

Abú/ nakulaṭilaa nguwo/ kambilowa jawabu iyo. 'Abu is over-reacting to being told about that matter/ those affairs, words, etc.'

Mi/ nṭ^hunzile iboholi/ nzishile nguwozé. 'I dug a hole and buried her clothes.'

Na nguwoze/ wanataale/ wo. 'And their clothes (in the story, referring to two girls bathing), let them (referring to some naughty boys) take (the clothes).'

nguwoo nk^havu 'dry clothes' nguwo ya khfinika 'a cloth for covering s.t.'

nguwo ya kuvaala 'a cloth to wear'

nguwo ya meeza 'table cloth'

nguwo zaa chili 'bedsheets, bedcovers' nguwo za kaazi 'work clothes'

nguwo za khfuma 'locally woven cloth' nguwo za kulaalila 'pyjamas [lit. clothes of sleeping in]'

nguwo za malaalo 'bedsheets, bedcovers' nguwoya 'my piece of clothing' (cf. nguwoza 'my clothes')

Wamalizopo koowá/ wavete nguwo zaawo/ wa'ulushile. 'When they finished bathing, they put on their clothes and flew away.'

Waana/ wavete nguwo suura. [H!H] 'The children wore nice clothes.' Or: Wavete nguwo suura/ waana. [H!H] 'They wore nice clothes, the children.' Waveto nguwo suurá/ ni waana. [H!H] 'The ones who wore nice clothes are the children.'

rel.

chi-guwo (zi-) n.7/8 a piece of cloth (e.g. one wrapped around the waist by men or worn as a veil by women) chiguwo cha meeza 'a table cloth' chiguwo cha mkono 'napkin'

chiguwo cha nṭ^hiini 'a cloth garment worn by men around the waist [lit. cloth of under] =ma'wizi'

Hamadi/ ile/ vete chiguwo cha nṭ^hiini/ tu. 'Hamadi came (here), he just wore a cloth covering his lower body.'

Mi/ siná/ chiguwo cha nṭ^hiini/ cha kulaalila. 'I do not have a lower body garment for sleeping in.'

Muunt^hu/ shkalanṭ^ha numbaani/ hukalanṭ^ha ka chiguwo cha nṭ^hiini/ tu. 'A man sitting at home (resting) sits (wearing) just a lower body covering.'

Mwanaamke/ uyu/ wanaacho/ chiguwo/ peelá/ na waawayé. 'This girl

- had a piece of cloth that she had been given by her father.’
Mwanaamke/ uyu/ shtaala/ chiguwo icho/ chimpa Huseeni. ‘This girl took that piece of cloth and gave it to Huseeni.’
Ye/ chiwa/ nt^haná/ nguwo/ sho kuwa chiguwo/ chimooyi/ chaa ye/ veto mimbaaní. ‘He became that he had no clothes except one cloth that he wore wrapped around his stomach.’
ziguwo za Banaadiri ‘pieces of cloth (not sewn clothes), woven on the traditional Benadir looms’
- n-guzo n. 9/10 [Sw. nguzo SSED 338] pillar, post (e.g. in the middle of a native hut, supporting the roof) chisuula kiiwa nguzo za imaaní [st.] ‘if you want to know the pillars of faith’ Isimishiḷa pashpoo nguzo. ‘It is raised without a pillar.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iwiingu ‘cloud’.)
nguzo za islaamu/ nt^haano ‘the five pillars of Islam’ ni nt^haano nguzo ziitu za islaamu/ izo ni waajibu kiwoowa kaamu [st.] ‘the (our) pillars of Islam are five and it is incumbent on all to know these by heart’
rel.
chi-guzo (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-guzo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ha interj. exclamation of pain
- haa interj. suggests some disapproval or negative attitude on the speaker’s part.
Haa/ hadiilení. ‘What! What did you say?’ Cf. Hadiilení. ‘What did you say?’
Haa/ kana Omari/ chiyá. ‘What! If Omari comes!’
Haa/ Omari/ hadiilení. ‘What! what did Omari say?’ Cf. Omari/ hadiileni. ‘What did Omari say?’
- ha(a) -pref. negative habitual Chikhuṭukulapó/ hakhuruudi. ‘When it takes you, it does not bring you back.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is qabri ‘grave’.)
Chisimacha/ hashtiindiki/ maayi. ‘My well never stops (yielding) water. (A riddle, the answer to which is kana ‘mouth’.)
Haalawi. ‘She does not go out.’
Maskiini/ haataji. ‘A poor man does not choose.’ (A proverb.)
- haba n. 9/10 [Ar. habba "granule" W 152] a grain of s.t.
- chi-haba (zi-) adj. [Sw. haba SSED 121; cf. Ar. habba "granule" W 152] small, little, young; [pron. chihaba or chihabba] Apo/ zamaani/ waliko sulṭaani/ mooyi/ ye/ zazile waana/ sabba/ sitta/ wanawabli/ mooyi/ chihaba chaawo/ waliko mwanaamke. ‘Once upon a time there was a sultan; he had seven children, six were boys, one, the youngest of all, was a girl.’
chihabacha ‘one [cl.7] who is younger than me’; chibachacho ‘one [cl.7] who is younger than you’; chihabache ‘one [cl.7] who is younger than him/her’; zihabaza ‘ones [cl.8] who are youger than me’ Ikooti/ imbelele chihaba. ‘The coat became short, small for me.’
Ka khisa/ we/ ni chihabbá/ hukhaadiri/ kuwa mzeele/ waa mi/ nsifiliḷá/ waa mi/ nambila mmeeré. ‘Because you are younger, you cannot be that old woman who was described to me [lit. I was described to] and who I was told to look for.’
Kiḷamo/ nt^hanakhtaambula/ ujee mbuzi/ iyo/ nini/ mkulu/ na chihabá. ‘Everyone fails to recognize that goat, that one, which is big and (which is) small.’
Mi/ nsomeelé/ wakhti/ chihaba. ‘I have read for a short while.’
Mooyi/ karka waanawe/ chiviḷoowa/ Yuusufu/ na chihabaché/ chiviḷowa Binyaamiini. ‘One of his children was called Joseph amd his younger sibling was called Benjamin.’

Muke/ nt^haná/ chihaba. ‘A woman does not have/ there is no (too) young.’ (A proverb that conveys the idea that once a woman reaches puberty and can bear children, age is not important.) Also: Muke/ nt^haku/ chihaba.

Mwaanawa/ ni chihaba/ nt^ho. ‘My child is very small.’

Mwaanawo/ ni chihaba. ‘Your child is small.’

Mwiini/ ni muuyi/ chihaba. ‘Brava is a small town.’ Or: Ni muyi chihaba/ Mwiini. ‘It is a small town, Brava.’

Nakhsula chint^hu chihaba/ tu. ‘He wants just a small thing (i.e. he just wants the smallest reason to explode in anger).’

Nimulile Iisá/ gari chihabá. ‘I gave Lisa the small car.’ Or: Nimulile Iisá/ gari chihaba. ‘I gave Isa a/the small car.’ Or: Nimulile Iisá/ gaari/ chihaba. ‘I gave Isa a small car.’ The phrasing of this sentence is less natural, chihaba appearing to be an afterthought.

numba chihaba ‘small house’

Nuzile numba chihaba. ‘I bought the small house.’

Omo/ numbaani/ walimoo muke/ mooyi/ waliko chihabbá. ‘In that house there was a woman who was younger (e.g. than the women encountered in the story).’

We/ takuwona mbadiikhi/ unayo badiikhi/ saba/ nk^hulu/ na niingi/ zihabá. ‘You will see a melon plant that has seven big and many small ones.’

review accent

We/ uzile numbaa nk^hulu/ ambó/ numba chihaba? ‘Did you buy the large house or the small house?’

rel.

haba adj. a little, a few

Habba/ nhadile habbá/ ka sababu habba/ tu/ wanayo ushujaa’á/ khambila jilá. ‘Few, I said few because it is just a few who have the courage to tell you the truth.’

Hamadi/ jibile su’aali/ haba/ tu. ‘Hamadi answered just a few questions.’

Hulimo miyuundrá/ ni waant^hu/ haba. ‘(The ones) who are farmers are few (lit. are a few people).’

Kila muunt^hu/ yaake/ imshiishile/ haba/ na niingi. ‘Everyone is caught by his own concerns (issues, affairs), few or many.’ (A proverb.)

Mukhtaa mi/ anzizo khfanya kazi habá/ na sa’a nt^haanó/ kulla muunt^hi... ‘When I began to do (only) a little work and (only) five hours each day...’

Mmera niingi/ hukosa habba. ‘The seeker of much misses (even) a little.’ (A proverb that says: be satisfied with the little that you have.)

Sho kuwanayo miingi/ nayo haba. ‘One who does not have many [implied: worries] has [at least] a few.’ (A proverb that essentially conveys the idea: who has no problems?)

Sindako/ koðele dakhikha haba/ tu. [H!HH] ‘The mayor spoke for just a few minutes.’

Yaa ye/ ndreteleeló/ siwo/ habba. ‘What he brought to me is not a little.’

We/ takhtahaaja/ habbaye/ skuu mbili/ kumziyarata kila mo. ‘You will need at least two days to visit everyone.’

haba mooyi adv. a little, a little ways; adj. few, a little number; variant form: habamó

Abú/ habamó/ dhibishile/ kujiba su’aali. ‘Abu had little difficulty in answering the question.’

ba’ada ya dakhikha/ habbamó ‘after a few minutes’

Ba’ada ya wakhti/ habamó/ karka weenzawe/ wawili/ chiloota. ‘After a little time, one of his two friends had a dream.’

Haba mooyi/ ghaðabishile. ‘He was a little angry.’

munu habamó ‘a little salt’

Tafaðali/ takhaadira/ kuwanayoo kujá/ habamó? ‘May I have some food, please?’

wa’inenzelopó/ haba mooyi ‘when they had walked a little ways’

Wachiwafiqana kumpelekela mamaye Hasiibu/ peesa/ habamooyi.

‘They agreed to send Hasiibu’s mother some money.’

Ye/ nt^hakhfikirila ruuhuye/ hattá/ habamó. ‘He did not think of himself, not a bit.’

Habba=y-e ‘[lit.] its little -- meaning : at the very least’

Gari iyi/ habbaye/ itakhkoma dolari alfu. ‘This car will cost (lit. reach) at least one thousand dollars.’

-habaahaba adj. small

Nnakuwona nuumbá/ niingi/ zihabaahaba. ‘I see many small houses.’

habaahaba adv. little by little, in small quantities

Dawa iyi/ mpe habaahaba. ‘This medicine, administer it to him in small doses (lit. little by little).’

ki-haba n. small size

Hamadi/ shaati/ kihabache/ imambeete/ dhab! ‘The shirt, its smallness, sticks to Hamadi dhab! (i.e. the shirt is too small for Hamadi’s size, it fits him tightly).’

ma-haba

n. 6 [Ar. maḥabba W 152] love, affection; [pron. mahaba or mahabba] (Phon. This item was sometimes recorded with gemination, but the precise status of gemination in the language is not easy to determine: is it entirely stylistic? is it a combination of both stylistics and the lexicon, i.e. are some words more prone to gemination than others? what is the relevance of gemination in the source language, e.g. is it these words that are most likely to exhibit stylistic gemination?)

kuvuunda mahabayo [song] ‘to break your love’

Mi/ nsomeelopó/ sifa za mtume uyu/ yaningile mahabba/ ya mtume uyu.

‘When I read the praises of this prophet, love entered me for this prophet.’ (Observe that in this =po relative clause, the Accentual Law of Focus holds, unlike ordinary relative clauses. Specifically, since focus is on the verb nsomeelopó and not on the entire verb phrase, the final accent does not extend past the verb to the complement.)

mulo wa mahabayo unakump^hiisha [song] ‘the fire of [my] loving you is burning me’

Sinnayo/ shakka/ ya kuwa ikhupeetó/ ni amri/ ya mahabba. ‘I have no doubt that what befell you was a matter of love.’

Wa’ishiize/ pamooyi/ ka mapeendo/ na mahabbá. ‘They lived together in love and affection.’

habadi

n. gun shots etc.

Masku/ si/ nt^hashkukhaadira/ kulaala/ ka ku^lat^lilowa habadi/ pa pa pa pa! ‘At night we could not sleep because of gun shots pa pa pa pa!’

habaasa

n. 9/10 [Ar. verb ḥabasa "to detain, imprison" and noun ḥabs "arrest, jailing" W 153] prison

Habasa iyi/ wamo mahabuusi/ wiingi. In this prison there are many prisoners.’

Haaji/ mukhtaa ye/ tomela ka habasaani/ chiwona ya kuwa ni afáli/ ye/ ki’irudila kaawo. ‘When Haaji was released from prison, he saw that it was better for him to return to his parents’ home.’

Hamadi/ kabola gaari/ su^la khtilowa habaasa. ‘If Hamadi had stolen the car, he would have been put in jail.’ Also: Hamadi/ kaboolá/ gaari/ su^la khtilowa habaasa. (In this second example, where there is focus on the ka-verb, notice that it is the normal case for the final accent of the verb not to be realized on the complement. It should also be observed that in our recording of this example, there was a very noticeable “continuation rise” on the last syllable of gaari.)

Hokomelela habaasa/ miyezi mitatu. [H!H] ‘He was sentenced to three months in prison.’

Karka habaasa/ Yuusufu/ chibaraṭana na want^hu wawili. ‘While in prison, Yuusufu became acquainted with two people.’

kumtila habaasa ‘to put him in prison’ miyaaka miingi t^lila habasaani [st.] ‘he was imprisoned for many years’

- Mwana wa Nuuru/ tīla habaasa/ chiwooni. ‘Nuuru’s child was placed in detention at the school.’
- Omari/ tīla habaasa/ miyaka ikumi. ‘Omari has been put in prison for ten years.’
- Ye/ iwīile/ kuwa Hasani/ tīla habaasa. ‘She knew that Hasani had been put in prison.’
- Yuusufu/ shtilowa habasaani. ‘Joseph was put in prison.’
- habashi (ma-) n. [Sw. habeshi SSED 122; cf. Ar. al-ḥabaš "Ethiopia" W 154] an Ethiopian (but also: amhaara, pl. ma’amhaara)
rel.
chi-habashi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-habashi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- habaṭi sooda n. [Ar. ḥabba al-ṣaudā’ "black seed" W 152] This is a plant, also known as ilalo ilusi, is a medicinal remedy. The scientific name of the plant is Nigella sativa. It is differently translated as black cumin, black sesame seed, and black caraway. This is an extremely popular remedy in the whole Arab world, because of a saying of the Prophet, according to whom “It cures all illnesses, except death”. It is also a general restorative. The crushed and powdered seeds are to be taken daily, either neat or mixed with honey (one small spoonful every morning). The oil of habaṭi also sold commercially.
- sooda is
- habeeniso n. [Som. habeeno "night blindness" DSI 288, from habeen "night"] Somalism night blindness; [pron. habeeniso] (Comment: As is often the case in bilingual situations, there may be differences in judgment as to whether a word has been truly borrowed from one language to another. Thus one consultant offered both amaamiso and habeeniso as Chimiini words for night blindness, but another consultant considered the latter to be purely Somali. Given the circumstances under which the want^hu wa miini live today and the circumstances under which our research has been conducted since the 1970’s, we have included all words that our consultants used in speaking Chimiini. If another consultant considered the word to be Swahili or Somali or Arabic, for instance, then we have added the labels Swahilism or Somalism or Arabicism. This practice is simply designed to distinguish between words that are perhaps more fully accepted as Chimiini and those that perhaps may retain a more marginal status. However, it must be remembered that there were dialectal differences in Chimiini even back in the days when the speakers were primarily located in Brava, and thus some differences in judgment may go back to dialectal differences rather than individual differences.)
- habeesa n. 9/10 [?Som. xab "water-jar" DSI 619] wooden milking vessel (which is also used to transport milk to market); [pron. habeesa or haweesa]
Haliima/ nakoteza hawesa ya iziwa. ‘Haliima is fumigating/ smoking the wooden milk container.’
Haliima/ tukile hawesa ya iziwa. ‘Haliima carried a wooden milk container.’
rel.
chi-habeesa (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. [pron. chihabeesa or chihaweesa]
- ku-habisa v. [Ar. ḥabasa W 153] (habisiize) imprison someone
rel.
ku-habisoowa v. pass.
Mwana wa Nuuru/ habisiiza/ chiwooni. ‘Nuuru’s son has been put in detention at school.’
Omari/ habisiiza/ miyaka ikumi. ‘Omari was imprisoned for ten years.’
- hable (ma-) n. [Som. hablo "girls" (pl. only) DSI 288] young unmarried female, maiden; [pron. hable] Haliima/ ni hable. ‘Haliima is an unmarried girl (i.e. she has never been married, a virgin).’

Mwanaamke/ hab̥le/ loweja naaye. ‘The maiden girl was married by him.’

Omari/ nakhsula kumnola hab̥le. ‘Omari wants to marry a maiden girl.’

Ye/ mlowele mwanaamke/ hab̥le. ‘He married the maiden girl.’

rel.

chi-hab̥le (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-hab̥le (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

hab̥ti

n. 10 [pron. hab̥ti or hapt̥i] khshika hapt̥i ‘to mind one’s own affairs, go about one’s business’

Hamadi/ shishile hapt̥ize. ‘Hamadi followed his affairs (wasn’t concerned with what others said, etc.)’

Mwaana/ shkhira chimlataa nyunyi/ khshika hapt̥ize. ‘The boy agreed to let the bird go on his way.’

Oloka/ shika hapt̥izo. ‘Go and mind your own business!’

ku’ishikila hapt̥i ‘to take oneself on one’s business’ Ali/ chilawa/ ka apo/ chi’ishikila hapt̥ize. ‘Ali left from there and took himself on his business.’

Shika zaako/ liwale/ Omari/ hapt̥ize. ‘Follow your affairs, forget Omari’s stuff (what he said, did, etc.)’

chi-haabu (zi-)

n. inflammable twig used as fuel (recorded in steenzi only in the plural)

Haliima/ ashizee mujo/ ka zihaabu/ haba mooyi. ‘Haliima lit a fire with a few twigs.’

rel.

chi-habu chi-haabu n. redup.

Nt^haku/ skunyi/ zisuura/ sukhuuni/ ziko zihabu zihaabu/ tu. ‘There are no good firesticks in the market, there are only small small pieces.’

habuusi (ma-)

n. prisoner

Habasa iyi/ wamo mahabuusi/ wiingi. In this prison there are many prisoners.’

ku-hada

v. [Som. hadal "to speak, talk" DSI 289] (hadiile) say

Ali/ hadiile/ kuwaa ye/ mpeenzele/ nt^ho/ Safiya. ‘Ali said that he loved Safiya very much.’

Hadiileni/ sultaani. ‘What did the sultan say?’

hadiilo mtume Mustafa Adnaani [st.] ‘the one who said [this] is the prophet Mustafa

Adnaani’

Hasani/ hadile kuwa Tuuma/ pishilee zijo/ pishilo. ‘Hasani said that Tuuma cooked zijo, that’s what she did.’ Or: Hasani/ hadile kuwa Tuuma/ pishilee zijo/ hadiilo. ‘Hasani said that Tuuma cooked zijo, that’s what he said.’

Huhadaayi/ we/ jis’iyo. ‘How can you say that?’

Kuwa Nuuru/ tu/ leelo/ nhadiile. ‘That only Nuuru was asleep, I said.’ (Note that focus on Nuuru requires the following verb in the kuwa clause to be pseudo-relativized. We see that it is not obligatory for the following main verb to be pseudo-relativized. However, such pseudo-relativization is possible: Kuwa Nuuru/ tu/ leelo/ nhadiilo.

Na ishtuluka/ jisa/ Yuusufu/ hadiilo. ‘And then it happened just as Joseph said (it would).’

Naa/ hadiilo/ Omari/ ile (or: ile). ‘Who said Omari came?’

Nhadile kuwa Nuuru/ leele. ‘I said that Nuuru was asleep.’

Nhadile kuwa Nuuru/ tu/ leelo. ‘I said that only Nuuru was asleep.’

Nhadiile/ Nuuru/ naaje. ‘I said Nuuru should eat.’ (The first person subject marker is null in this example in the speech of GM.)

Nhadile Nuuru/ naaje. ‘I said Nuuru should eat.’ Cf. with focus on the subject of the complement clause: Nhadile Nuuru/ naaje. ‘I said Nuuru should eat.’

Nuuru/ hadile (kuwa) Ali/ na’oloke. ‘Nuuru said (that) Ali could go.’

Nuuru/ hadile (kuwa) Ali/ naaye. ‘Nuuru said (that) Ali could come.’

Nuuru/ hadile (kuwa) Ali/ ni laazima/ kooloka (or na’oloke). ‘Nuuru said that Ali should/must go (the infinitive having the weaker and the subjunctive the stronger interpretation).’

Nuuru/ hadile (kuwa) Ali/ ni laazima/ kuuya (or naaye). ‘Nuuru said that Ali should/ must come.’

Omari/ hadiile/ Baazi/ uzile gaari. ‘Omari said Baazi bought a car.’ (cf. the questions: Omari/ hadile naani/ uzilo gaari. ‘Omari said who bought a car?’ Or: Omari/ naani/ hadiiló/ uzile gaari. ‘Omari who said bought a car?’ Or: Omari/ gaari/ hadile naani/ uziló. ‘Omari, a car, said who bought?’ Or: Naani/ uzilo gaari/ Omari/ hadiiló. ‘Who bought a car, Omari said?’ Or: Naani/ gaari/ uziló/ Omari/ hadiiló. ‘Who a car bought, Omari said?’ review

Omari/ hadiile/ kuwaa nvula/ itaakunya. ‘Omari said that rain will rain.’

Omari/ hadiile/ (kuwa) Nuuru/ ile. ‘Omari said that Nuuru came.’ (Cf. the questions: Omari/ hadile naani/ iló. ‘Omari said who came?’ Or: Naani/ iló/ Omari/ hadiiló. ‘Who came, Omari said?’ review Or: Naani/ Omari/ hadilo ilé. ‘Who did Omari say came?’

Sihadé/ kuwaa mi/ sikhaambila. ‘Don’t say that I did not tell you.’ (MI regularly elided the prefix ku in front of a second person singular object prefix kh(u)-. Perhaps there are speakers who do not necessarily apply this rule, as one consultant suggested that skhukhaambila should be used.)

Siná/ yaa mi/ kuhada. ‘I do not have anything to say.’

Takhadiraayi/ kuhada. ‘How can he say (what the difference is between the two poles that look exactly alike).?’

Waant^hu/ wahadiile/ rashaa nyoki/ ja uki. ‘People have said: go with bees and you will eat honey.’

We/ hadile kuwa ivundishilení. ‘You said that what broke?’ Or: We/ hadiilení/ ivundishile. ‘What did you say broke?’

We/ hadiilení. ‘What did you say?’

rel.

ku-hadika v. p/s.

Jawaabu/ kana iyo/ mbovu/ ha’ihadiki. ‘Bad talk like that cannot be spoken.’

Kooði/ suura/ waaðehe/ huhadika. ‘Good words and clear can be said.’

ku-hadila v. appl.

Siná/ ndila/ yaa mi/ kuhadila/ koði iyo. ‘I do not have reason to say that (word).’

We/ hadiilileni/ koði iyo. ‘You, why did you say that (word).’

sina ndila yaami kuhadila koothi/jawaabu iyo (I do not have reason to say that talk/words). We hadiilileni koothi iyo (You what for did you say that word).

?ku-hadisha v. caus. (hadishiize) make s.o. say s.t. (GM did not accept this verb form as being use, although MI included it in his list of verb forms related to -hada.)

ku-hadishana v. caus. rec.

ku-hadishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-hadishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-hadishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-hadoowa v. pass. (i-hadiila) huhadoowa/ ya kuwa... ‘it is said that...’

Huhadoowa/ lano ilo/ nda bataata. ‘It is called [lit. said] the tale of potatoes.’ review

Ihadila (ya) kuwa Niksoni/ takendra aafrika. ‘It was said that Nixon will go to Africa.’

Yo/ inakuhadoowani. ‘What is being said?’

rel. nom.

m-hada (wa-) n. 1/2 one who says

ukopi fir’ooni yaawo/ mhada ndimi mooja yaawo [st̩] ‘where is their pharaoh, who used to say: I am their god’

hadafu

n. [Ar. hadaf W 1022] goal, aim

Chiint^hu/ muunt^hu/ hufanya ka hadafu. ‘A man does something for a goal/ a reason.’

Hada hadafuyo. ‘Tell, say [what] your goal [is].’

Hadafuyo/ nini. ‘What is your goal?’

Nt^haná/ hadafu. ‘He has no goal.’

- hadali n. [Som. hadal "conversation" DSI 289] voice, sound of voice(s) Naxhaka hadali zaawó. 'I am hearing the sound of their voices.'
Omari/ nt^haná/ hadali. 'Omari has no voice.'
washo hadali na sowtí [st.] 'those who have no voice (i.e. are silent = the dead)'
- ku-hadgudbaṭa v. be abusive
rel.
ku-hadgudbaṭila v. appl. be abusive to Faatiima/ da'ile kuwa Omari/ chimhadgudbaṭila/ ye. 'Faatima claimed Omari was abusive to her.'
Mi/ sinhadgudbaṭilé. 'Don't cross my limits/ abuse me.'
- haadi'i adj. [Ar. hādi' W 1021] calm
bahari ya haadi'i 'Pacific Ocean'
Leelo/ tawala/ maayi/ haadi'i/ nt^haku/ mayiimbi/ raaha/ kowoowa. 'Today the sea is calm, there are no waves, it is nice for swimming.'
tawala haadi'i 'calm sea'
want^hu haadi'i 'calm people'
rel.
u-haadi'i n. 14/ calmness
Mahala/ muunt^hu/ hakhaadiri/ husuḷowa uhaadi'i/ ha'isuḷoowi/ nk^heje. 'At a place where someone is sick, calmness is needed, loud noises are not needed.'
- ku-hadida v. [Som. haddid "to threaten" DSI 290] (hadidiile) threaten (Some speakers may retain the germination found in the Somali source word.)
variant form: kuhandida, kuhandaḍaṭa Omari/ namhadida (or namhandaḍaṭa)/ Hamadi/ nambila takhubla.
'Omari is threatening Hamadi telling him I will kill you.'
Sheekhuna/ mhadidile mwaana. 'Sheekhuna threatened the boy.'
rel.
ku-hadidana v. rec. (-hadideene) threaten one another
ku-hadidila v. appl.
ku-hadidisha v. caus.
- ku-hadida v. [Som. khaddid "to limit" DSI 620] (hadidiile) fix (a time) (Some speakers may retain the germination found in the Somali source word.)
kuhadida wakhtí 'to fix a time'
rel.
ku-hadidiḷoowa v. appl. pass. (hadidiliḷa)
Hamadi/ hadidiliḷa wakhtí/ kumala kaazi/ iyo. 'Hamadi was given a limited time to finish the job.'
Omari/ mhadidiliḷe wakhtí/ Hamadi/ kulipa deeniye. 'Omari gave a limited time to Hamadi to pay back his debt.'
ku-hadidila v. appl.
ku-hadidisha v. caus.
Omari/ mwambile Hamadi/ kuhadidisha/ wakhtí/ ya kaazi. 'Omari told Hamadi to limit the time for the job.'
- hadiiqa n. [Ar. ḥadīqa W 163] garden
Chiwafanyiliza/ waanawe/ hadiiqa/ nk^hulu/ nt^ho. 'He made for his children a very big garden.'
Mooyi/ karka waana/ shkhira/ chooloka/ hadiqaani/ kulindra nt^heendre. 'One of the children agreed to go to the garden to protect the dates.’

Ningilopo m̄tanaani/ mbene hadiiqá/ nk^hulu/ na muto mooyi. ‘When I entered the room, I found a large garden with a river.’

Teena/ ichiwa/ ye/ heendra/ hadiqaani/ maraa nt^hatu/ kuḷa muunt^hi. ‘Then it became that he went into the garden three times each day.’

rel.

chi-hadiqa (zi-) n. dim.

i-hadiqa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

hadiithi

n. 9/10 [Sw. hadithi SSED 122; Ar.] story, tale, the Prophet’s saying Hadiithi/ za mtume/ laazimu/ kurashoowa. ‘The Prophet’s sayings must be followed.’

karka hadiithi za mtume Adnaani [st.] ‘in the sayings of prophet Adnaani’

...khabla/ ya hadiithi/ ya Watergate ‘before the event of Watergate’

rel.

hadathi n. event; variant form: hadiithi

Hadathi/ iyo/ mukhta ituushiló/ mi/ skuwaaliko. ‘That event, when it happened, I was not there.’

Hadathi niingi/ stuushiló/ zamani izo. ‘Many events happened during that time.’

haadithi

adj. [Ar. ḥādīt "occurring, new, recent" W 162] not eternal, transient, novel makhluuqu kuwa haadithi we khsadiqa [st.] ‘[that] creatures are not eternal, believe [that]’ stoshe ni haadithi wala za isa [st.] ‘don’t think [the words God conveyed to Moses] are new or of the present time’

hadiya

n. 9/10 [Ar. hadīya W 1024] gift

Hadiya/ hayizoowi. ‘A gift is not refused.’

Haliima/ peḷa hadiya/ na mweenzawe. ‘Hadiya has been given a gift by her friend.’

kumpa hadiya ‘to give someone a gift’

Mp^hokela/ hadiya/ iyi/ mi/ siwo/ takuyutíló. ‘Accept this gift, I am not the one who will regret it.’

Ni wanaashke/ waa ye/ watumilílo hadiyá. ‘It’s the girls that she sent the presents to.’

Sultaani/ wawaye mwaana/ tomele khabari/ ya kuwa takhadiro kumfanyiliza mwaanawé/ dawá/ shpolapo/ takhpoowa/ hadiya/ nk^hulu/ nt^ho/ itakumwiinfó/ sku zotté. ‘The sultan, the child’s father, gave out the news that the one who will be able to administer his child medicine, if he [the child] recovers, would be given a very big present that would be useful for all days.’ no final accent with =po noted here, explore this point ye leteleela mtume hadiya [st.] ‘she was brought to the Prophet as a gift’

Ye/ mpeelee/ ye/ hadiya/ niingi/ haali/ ye/ nt^hakumuuzá/ umriwé/ hatá/ mooyi. ‘He gave her many presents, although she never asked him for one.’

rel.

chi-hadiya (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-hadiya (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

haðiri

adj. (cf. tahaðari) [Ar. haðir] cautious, wary hufuraha muunt^hu haðiri haawoni fadaaha [st.] ‘the cautious person rejoices and does not face disgrace’

haaðiri

v. [Sw. hadhiri SSED 122; Ar. ḥāðir W 185] be present; variant form: haadiri

Ahḷi/ na kharaabá/ woṭe/ wako haaðiri. ‘Relatives close and distant were there.’

Mukhta ya/ oloshelo barzaani/ chiwapa khabari/ mawaziiri/ ma’akhyaari/ na kiḷa/waliko haadiri/ apó. ‘When he went to the royal parlor, he gave them the news, the ministers, the nobility, and everyone present there.’

Omari/ waliko haaðiri/ mukhta Ali/ chimbigo mwana wa Nuuru. ‘Omari was present when Ali was hitting Nuuru's child.’

haafa

n. 9/10 [Som. xaafad DSI 617] quarter (of a town)

Bulo Baazi/ ni karka haafa/ mooyi/ za Mwiini. ‘Bulo Baazi is one of the quarters of Brava,’ hafa iyi ‘this quarter (of the town); hafa izi ‘these quarters’ hafa mbovu ‘a bad part of town’

hafa ya Mp'aayi ‘the quarter of Mp'aayi (in Brava)’

Mwiini/ inazo hafa ne. ‘Brava has four quarters.’

Wo/ wa'iwiile/ kuwa wanawaawo/ maanzine/ wanakhkooda/ kugura hafa iyo.
‘They learned that their children had already been discussing moving out of the area.’

ku-hafiða

v. [Ar. hafiza W 188] (hafiðile) preserve, protect, keep in a safe place; memorize, “learn by heart” (esp. the Quran)

Ali/ mtile mwaana/ kuhafiða darsi. ‘Ali caused the child to memorize the lesson.’ (This is the periphrastic construction that corresponds to the causative verb -hafiðisha.)

Hajiya/ hafiðile peesa/ sandukhuuni. ‘Hajiya kept the money in a box.’

Hasani/ hafiðile darsi. ‘Hasani memorized the lesson.’ (Note that the phrase-medial word final vowel of the verb is not lengthened in front of darsi. A word-final vowel in medial position lengthens if by so doing it will receive (abstract) stress. The initial heavy syllable dar in darsi attracts stress, thus preventing the preceding vowel from being assigned stress.)

kuhafiða (a)khur'aani ‘to memorize the Quran’ mooja wahafiðe kula mahaaji [st.] ‘O God, protect all the pilgrims’

Mukeewe/ chimwaambila/ mwajiitu/ takuhafiða. ‘His wife told him: God will protect you.’

Omari/ waanawe/ huwahafiða/ na barda/ huwaweshaa nguwo/ nzito/ wachilawa ibanyaani. ‘Omari protects his children from the cold, he dresses them in heavy clothes when they go out.’

sandukhu ya Huseeni/ hafiðilo peesa/ katiiké ‘the box that Huseeni kept the money in it’ (Note that one is required to have a resumptive pronoun attached to a preposition if the head of the relative clause is a bare noun identifying a location; one cannot say sandukhu ya Huseeni/ hafiðilo peesa ‘the box that Huseen put money’.)

Si/ shtamhafiða/ na shtamdhora/ jisa muunt^hu/ humdhoru ruuhuyé/ na zaaydí. ‘We will protect him and guard him just as a person who protects himself and more.’

wake kuhafiða jismu ni waajibu [st.] ‘for women to cover [and thereby protect from view] their body is obligatory’

Waana/ wa(i)hafiðile darsi. ‘The children memorized the lesson.’ (An object marker in agreement with darsi is possible.)

Wanakhsooma/ wanakuhafiða/ wanakubaraða tafsiri. ‘They are studying, they are memorizing, they are learning Quranic exegesis.’

rel.

ku-hafiðika v. p/s. able to be memorized ku-hafiðila v. appl. (hafiðilile) keep for someone in a safe place

Huseeni/ mhafiðilile mwaana/ peesa/ karka sandukhuu nk^hulu. ‘Huseeni put the money for the child in a large box.’ (The presence of a modifier of sandukhuu prevents the use of the locative form sandukhuuni. Note the example below, where no modifier is used.)

Huseeni/ mhafiðilile mwaana/ peesa/ sandukhuuni. ‘Huseeni kept the money for the child in a safe place.’

mwana wa Huseeni/ mhafiðililo peesa/ sandukhuuni ‘the child whom Huseeni put money for him in a box’ pesa za Huseeni mhafiðililo Nuuru ‘the money that Huseeni put in a safe place for Nuuru’ ku-hafiðilana v. appl. rec. keep in a safe place for one another

Nuuru/ na Baazi/ wahafiðilene peesa. ‘Nuuru and Baazi kept money for one another in a safe place.’

ku-hafiðisha v. caus. (hafiðishiize) make s.o. memorize s.t.

darsi ya mwaalimu/ mhafiðishizo mwaana ‘the lesson that the teacher made the child memorize’

Mwaalimu/ wahafiðishize waana/ darsi. ‘The teacher made the children memorize the lesson.’ (It is possible to prepose either complement to the verb: Darsi/ mwaalimu/ wahafiðishize waana. or Waana/ mwaalimu/ wahafiðishize darsi.) ku-hafiðishana v. caus. rec.

ku-hafiðishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-hafiðishiliza v. caus. appl.

Ali/ mhafiðishilize Iisa/ mwaana/ darsi. ‘Ali made Iisa’a child memorize the lesson.’ (The periphrastic version of this sentence is: Ali/ mtĩlĩle Iisa/ mwaana/ kuhafiða darsi.)

Mwaalimu/ mhafiðishilize Hinda/ waana/ darsi. ‘The teacher made Hinda’s children memorize the lesson.’

ku-hafiðishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Ali/ na Nuuru/ wahafiðishilizenye waana/ darsi. ‘Ali and Nuuru made one another’s children memorize the lesson.’ (The periphrastic version of this sentence is: Ali/ na Nuuru/ watĩlĩlene waana/ kuhafiða darsi.) ku-hafiðishilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass.

Nuuru/ hafiðishiliza waana/ darsi/ (na mwaalimu). ‘(Lit.) For Nuuru the children were made to learn the lesson (by the teacher).’ (Syn: Note that one cannot say Waana/ wahafiðishiliza Nuuru/ darsi/ (na mwaalimu). ‘The children were made to memorize the lesson for Nuuru (by the teacher).’ This sentence is ungrammatical since only the beneficiary can be the subject of the passive applied. In passive sentences of the shape NP V-pass NP, where the two NP’s belong to different noun classes, it is quite common to interchange the location of the two NP’s, but with the post-verbal NP still controlling subject agreement. However, in an example like this with two post-verbal NP’s, our consultant did not like inversion: Waana/ hafiðishiliza Nuuru/ darsi. and Darsi/ hafiðishiliza Nuuru/waana. This point needs to be studied in detail with other verbs taking multiple objects.)

ku-hafiðishoowa v. caus. pass. (hafiðishiiza) be made to memorize

Darsi/ hafiðishiza mwaana/ na mwaalimu. ‘The lesson, the child was made to memorize by the teacher.’;

darsi/ hafiðishiza mwaana/ na mwaalimú ‘the lesson that the child was made to memorize by the teacher’

darsi ya mwaana/ hafiðishiza na mwaalimú ‘the lesson that the child was made to memorize by the teacher’

Waana/ wahafiðishiza darsi. ‘The children were made to memorize the lesson.’ (Syn: One cannot make darsi the subject of the passive sentence: Darsi/ ihafiðishiza waana. One can prepose darsi while postposing the subject, but the verb continues to agree with the postposed subject: Darsi/ wahafiðishiza waana. Observe that the postposed subject phrases with the verb.)

ku-hafiðooowa v. pass. (-hafiðiĩla)

Darsi/ ihafiðiĩla na mwaana. ‘The lesson was memorized by the child.’

rel.

u-hafiðo n. 14

haafiði

n. someone who memorizes

Omari/ ni haafiði/ al khur’aani. ‘Omari is one who memorizes the Quran.’

haafiði

n. a name of God, the Protector, Savior

- Haafiði/ humhafiðo muunt^hu/ ni mojiitu/ ka kilaa dhibu. ‘The Protector who protects one for every problem is God.’ (A proverb.)
- hafiisa (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Som.xafis DSI 621; Eng. office] a governmental structure (unit) which deals with public affairs (as in the English “Office of the President”); office, in the sense of a designated space where one works, meets with people, etc. (not used to refer to workspace in the home, for instance) Askari/ chiya/ chiwatukula waana/chiwapeleka hafisaani. ‘The police came and took the children and led them to the office.’
hafisa yiitu/ mp^hiya ‘our new office’
Mkulu wa hafiisa/ chiwa’uza waana. ‘The head of the office asked the children.’
Oloshole hafisaani. ‘He went to the office.’
Shekhow/ mlesele mwaana/ hafisaani. ‘Shekhow brought the child to the office.’
 rel.
chi-hafisa (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-hafiisa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- hafla n. 9/10 [Ar. hafla W 190] celebration, ceremony that is public and is attended by a large number of people; party hafla ya haruusi ‘a wedding celebration’ khfanya hafla ‘to celebrate’
Fanyize hafla ya mowliidi. ‘He celebrated the birthday of Mohammad.’
Haliima/ leelo/ nakhfanya hafla/ waanawe/ wapisile imtihaahni/ skolaani. ‘Today Haalima is making a celebration, her children passed the examination at school.’
kuweka hafla ‘to hold a celebration’; also: kuwekowa hafla, kuwekela hafla Ali/ kaawo/ iwesela hafla/ nk^hulu/ waawaye/ kuuya/ ka Ameerika. ‘Ali at their place a big celebration was held for his father coming back from America.’
Nuuru/ weshele hafla/ ya mukeewe/ kuzaala. ‘Nuuru made a celebration for his wife delivering (child).’
Omari/ uzile makhatiiifa/ kuwekela hafla/ kaake/ numbaani/ ya haruusi/ ya mwaanawe. ‘Omari bought carpets for making celebrations at his house for his son’s wedding.’
Naani/ mbujé/ wé/ mweenó/ haflaani. ‘Whose sister did you see at the party?’ (The choice of the word mbujé indicates that naani presupposes a male. This sentence indicates that emphasis on a pseudo-relativized verb does not necessarily trigger the Accentual Law of Focus.)
Uko haflaani. ‘He is at the celebration.’
Yiko hafla/ nk^hulu. ‘There is a big celebration.’
- Haafuuni n. Hafun (in Somali, Xaafuun), a region in Puntland in Somalia Nayoo ndala/ kana lazilo ka Haafuuni. ‘He has a hunger that is like someone who has come from Haafuni.’ (Haafuni is a place where there was drought.)
- hagaayi n. [Som. xagaayo "season of summer rains in Southern Somalia" DSI 621] a season of the year, corresponding to June-July, where – in Brava – the temperature is lower and a light rain falls almost daily; [pron. hagaayi] (The g found in this word is the Somali voiced velar fricative that represents the shape that g has in intervocalic position.)
Wakhti wa hagaayi/ hayondrokeki/ na mapeema. ‘In the cool rainy season, one cannot get up early.’
- haaja n. 9/10 [Sw. haja SSED 123; Ar. hāja W 211] need; affair; dispute
-a haaja ‘of good character, etc.’
Mwanaamke/ uyu/ kumwonake/ Hasani/ ba/ nt^hampeenda/ mwingile khalbiini/ tu/ kuwaa ye/ siwo/ muunt^hu/ wa haaja. ‘This girl, upon seeing Hasani, did not like him, it just entered her heart that he was not a man of good character.'

Ba'adiye/ chimwambila sultaani/ iyo haaja/ imleeseló. 'After that, he told the sultan the need that brought him to [the sultan].'

Haaja/ hufaanyika/ hooja/ hayfaanyiki. 'A dispute can be settled, a quarrel cannot be settled.' (A proverb.)

Iningilile haaja/ ka kaako. '[Lit.] A need from you entered me -- i.e. I need [to marry] you.'

Ma'anaye/ ye/ nt'uná/ haaja/ naami/ teena. 'It means he has no need of me anymore.'

Maama/ kasizopo baabá/ hadile kuwa nt'aná/ haajá/ na waanawé/ sittá/ ondroshele/ oloshele/ kumubliwe. 'When mother heard father say that he had no need for his six children, she arose and went to her husband.'

Maamé/ nayo haja gani/ ikhuleselo kaaká. 'My mother, what need do you have that has brought you to me?'

Mi/ siná/ haaja/ na mp'undra uyu. 'I have no need of this donkey.'

Mi/ siná/ haaja/ naawo. 'I have no need of them.'

Mwaana/ kamaa we/ siná/ haaja/ naaye. 'A child like you, I have no need of him.'

Mweenza/ we/ hutakuwanaayo/ haaja/ ya koowela/ we/ mp'andra mungooni/ mi/ nt'akoowela/ hajá/ kaaka. 'Friend, you do not have a need to swim, you ride on my back, I will swim to my home.'

Na chiwana haajá/ mahaĵa ya kulaala/ we/ poowa. 'And if you have need for a place to sleep, you will be given one.'

Nayo haja gani/ yaa we/ nakhsuuló. 'What need do you have such that you want it?'

qiĵa haaji 'to satisfy a need'

Wakazile/ apo/ skuu nt'atu/ na chizeelé/ nt'ashkuwaná/ haaja/ kumlawila sultaani. 'They stayed there three days and the old woman did not have the need to come out for the sultan.'

Hajari Aswadi

n. [Ar. hajar aswad W 157] the Black Stone -- a stone given by God to Abraham from paradise and now located in the ka'ba

Hajari Aswadi apo iweshela/ na asliye karka janna ileseĵa [st.] 'the Black Stone that was placed there (i.e. in Mecca) was originally brought from heaven'

Hajari Aswadi sunna hubusoowa [st.] 'it is not obligatory to kiss the Black Stone'

haaji

n. [Ar. haji "pilgrimage", hājj "pilgrim" W 156] a man who has gone on the pilgrimage to Mecca; a title given to a man who has gone on the pilgrimage; rel.

ma-haaji n. 6 male and female pilgrims to Mecca ka jaaha ya Mtume na malaayka/ wahafiĵe mahaaji kulla maaka [st.] 'for the sake of the Prophet and the angels, protect pilgrims every year'

Mooja wahafiĵe kulla mahaaji/ khaansa watazmuuro Mtume siraaji [st.] 'O God, protect all pilgrims, particularly those who visit the Prophet, our Light' haajiya (ma-) n. female pilgrim to Mecca; title given to a female who has gone of the pilgrimage

Haji Siimba

n. a mosque in Brava

Muskiti wa Haji Siimba/ ni chihaba/ tu. 'Haji Siimba mosque is small.'

Muskiti wa Haji Siimba/ wiko Biruuni. 'Haji Siimba mosque is in Biruuni.'

Haji Weelu

n. a mosque in Brava

Muskiti wa Haji Weelu/ wiko biruuni. 'Haji Weelu mosque is in Biruuni.'

Shekh Nureeni/ chisalisha muskitiini/ ka Haji Weelu. 'Sheikh Nureeni was leading prayers at Haji Weelu mosque.'

hajiimu

n. 9 [Som. xajiin, pl. xajiimo DSI 622] s.t. that causes itching; hairy caterpillar which causes itching when touched

Sheekhi/ nt^hakoowa/ sku ikumi/ hatá/ maluungoye/ yawele hajiimu/ yanamjaaja/ ka wasakha niingi. ‘Sheekhi did not take a shower for ten days until his body became itchy and was itching him from a lot of dirt.’
 Ziko ba’aði/ yaa kuja/ zinayo hajiimu/ huleta mjaajo. ‘There are some foods that can cause itching.’

ku-haajira

v. emigrate
 Muunt^hu/ mahaḷa/ chiwona dhibu/ naa zitá/ ziikó/ huhaajira/ hendra mahaḷa/ yiko amaani. ‘If one sees difficulties or fighting going on, he moves away and goes to a place where there is peace.’
 nt^haasa kuhaajira keendra Madiina/ dhelmishiiza masku Amiina [st.] ‘before his emigration to Medina, the Prophet was taken during the night’

Hajuuwa

n. one of the five clans that make up the Tunni, the Somalis who inhabit the environs of Brava and were in part incorporated into the town of Brava, learning to speak Chimiini Teena/ ni muhimmu/ si/ kiiwa/ kuwa Tunne/ ichilawaangana/ jamaa’a/ nt^haano/ Goygaali/ Dakhtira/ Da’faraadi/ Wiriile/ na Hajuuwa. ‘Again, it is important for us to know that the Tunne were divided into five clans: Goygaali, Dakhtira, Da’faraadi, Wiriile, and Hajuuwa.’

hakah

interj.
 Hamadi/ nt^hanaayo/ imaani/ yaa wé/ tampo/ haahadi/ hakah. ‘Hamadi does not get satisfied, content (lit. have faith), whatever you give him, he does not say hakah, i.e. thanks.’
 Zahara/ hakah/ haahadi/ hatá/ shpoowani. ‘Zahara does not say thanks whatever she is given.’

hakamu

[Ar. hakam W 196] an attribute of God (= the Arbiter); Hakamu/ ni mojiitu/ hutomoloo garí. ‘The arbiter of justice is God, who decides what is right.’

haakimu (ma-)

n. [Ar. hākim W 197] judge, ruler (of a country)
 hakimu uyu ‘this ruler’ Hakimu ya jazira iyi/ waaliko nii muke/ ma’askari/ wawaliko nii wake/ na kiḷa/ kazi muhimú/ iwaliko ishfanyowa naa wake. ‘The ruler of this island was a woman, the soldiers were women, and each important job was done by women.’
 nt^hana shaka amri ya mooja haakimu [st.] ‘there is no doubt, it is the order of God the Just’

hakiimu (O, ma-)

adj. [Ar. hakīm W 196] wise Hakiimu/ ni karka sifa za mojiitu. ‘Wise is one of the attributes of God.’
 kuwa hakiimu ‘to be wise’ Lukhmaani/ waliko ni hakiimu/ mkulu/ khur’aniini/ dukuriilá. ‘Lukhmani was a very wise man, he is mentioned in the Quran.’
 munt^hu hakiimu ‘a wise person’ (cf. want^hu (ma)hakiimu ‘wise people’)

Haako

n. an area at the southern edge of the Albaamba quarter of Brava, where people used to burn clay-pots

halahaḷa

interj. beware! try your best! take note, focus on!
 Nuuru/ mwambile mwēenzawe/ Huseeni/ mi/ nakhsaafirá/ halahaḷa/ niwila waanawe/ hali yaawo. ‘Nuuru told his friend Huseeni: I am traveling, be sure to check on my children’s condition.’
 Wazaleenó/ hawaḷaani/ halahaḷa/ majiraani. ‘Don’t fight with your family’ relations, and try your best [not to fight with] neighbors.’ (A proverb.)

ku-halaasha

v. [Som. hallee "to spoil or damage s.t." DSI 294] (halashiize) hurt, injure, wound someone

Ichiwaa we/ mhalashize muunt^hu/ ichiwaa we/ mtawanyiz e muunt^hu/ maazi/ ni jawabuu nziito/ ni jawabuu nk^hulu/ hulipanowa aari. ‘If it be that you hurt someone, if it be that you spill someone’s blood, it is a serious (lit. heavy) thing, it’s a big deal, it’s being revenged.’

Mweenzawo/ mtiye/ kolko/ aduwiyo/ ndiyé/ na’iwo siriyó/ hukhadiro khuhalaashá. ‘Beware of your friend more than your enemy, it is he who knows your secret and who is able to injure you.’ (A proverb.)

Nhalashize ruuhuyá. ‘I hurt myself.’

Si/ laazimu/ kubarata kafiha waant^hu/ wa chihalashiizó. ‘We must learn to forgive those who harmed us.’

Siimba/ mhalashize mwaana. ‘The lion wounded the child.’

Siimba/ mhalashizee nt^ho/ mwaana. ‘The lion wounded the child badly.’ Or:

Siimba/ mhalashize mwaana/ nt^ho.

rel.

ku-halaashanya v. rec.

ku-halashiliza v. appl.

Lkaambala/ Suufi/ mhalashilize Haaji. ‘The rope, Suufi hurt Haaji with it.’

Sinhalashilizé/ mwaanawa. ‘Don’t hurt my child (on me)!’

Yaa ye/ khiinfó/ na yaa ye/ khuhalashilizó/ ha’ileetani. ‘What he does that is useful to you and what he does that is harmful do not offset one another – i.e. he is more damaging to you than useful.’ (A proverbial saying.)

ku-halashoowa v. pass. (halashiiza)

ku-halaawata v. (halaweete) be or get hurt (e.g. bleeding, or broken bone, or sprain); have a defect, become dysfunctional, not work (e.g. of a car)

Ali/ nakhteza mpiira/ halaweete/ tindishile murukhu. ‘Ali was playing football; he hurt himself, he tore a muscle.’

Gari ya Omari/ ihalaweete. ‘Omari’s car is not working.’

Halaweete mkono. ‘He sprained, injured his arm.’ (Note that with this verb the common construction where the body part is the grammatical subject of the verb does not seem to be available: Mkono/ umhawalaeete.)

halí

n. 9 [Ar. hall W 199] solution

khpata halí ‘to find a solution’, also: khpatilowa halí

Chiint^hu/ ishkoðeloowa/ hupatilowa/ halí. ‘If issues are discussed, a solution can be found.’

Haaja/ hupatilowa/ halí/ hooja/ ha’ipatiloowi/ halí. ‘A dispute (a reasonable question, issue) can be solved, a quarrel (not based on factual issues) cannot be solved.’

kumera halí ‘to look for a solution’; also: kumerełowaa halí

Dhibu/ amá/ porobleema/ ishtuluka/ laazimu/ kumerełowaa halí. ‘If a problem happens, a solution ought to be sought.’

Nt^haku/ halí. ‘There is no solution.’

Nt^hayná/ halí. ‘It has no solution.’

ku-halisha

v. solve (A simple verb stem ku-hala* is not used in Chimiini.)

kuhalishaa dhibu ‘to find a remedy for a difficulty or problem’ khhalisha mas’ala ‘to solve a problem’

kuhalisha mushkila ‘to solve a problem’

Si/ chinakihtaja kaalmé/ ya sarkaari/ kuhalisha mushkila iyi. ‘We need

- the government's help in solving this problem.'
- Wo/ wanakhsuḷa khkasa/ kiitu/ yaa si/ shtakhfaanyó/ kuhalisha mushkila. 'They want to hear from us what we will do to solve the problem.'
- rel.
ku-halila v. appl.
Mwiini/ ifanyiza lujna/ ya want^huu saba/ kuhalila/ mushkila/ ya anshuuru. 'In Miini a committee of seven people has been created to solve tax problems.'
- ku-halishika* v. p/s. able to be solved Mushkila iyi/ ha'ihalishiki. 'This problem cannot be solved.'
- ku-halishiliza* v. appl.
Omari/ hutumikila peesa/ kuhalishiliza mushkila. 'Omari uses money to solve a problem.'
- Osmaani/ nt^haná/ ilmu/ ya kuhalishiliza mushkila iyi. 'Osmaani does not have the knowledge to solve this problem.'
- ku-halishilizoowa* v. appl. pass.
Peesa/ haskhadiroowi/ kuhalishilizoowa/ mushkila iyi. 'Money cannot be used to solve this problem.'
- ku-halishoowa* v. pass.
Mushkila iyi/ inakhsuḷa kuhalishoowa. 'This problem needs to be solved.'
Mushkila iyi/ laazimu/ kuhalishoowa. 'This problem must be solved.'
- haloo-haloo n. the name by which the police radio connection to Mogadishu was called
- halwa n. [Sw. halua "a common sweetmeat made of flour, eggs, sugar, ghee, etc. Turkish delight" SSED 125] ladda/ kamba halwa 'as sweet as halwa'
- halaaka n. 9/10 destruction (by natural phenomena), spiritual destruction, problem/difficulty
Halaaka/ ya mojiitu/ ichiya/ humpata sheetaani/ na moomini. 'When God's disaster happens, it affects the devil (i.e. evil people) and the faithful (ones).' (A proverb.)
Kuja/ ni halaaka/ ivaalo/ nda mwaaka. 'Food is a daily problem, clothes (what to wear) is (a problem) once a year.' (A proverb.)
 review use and meaning of halaaka
- halaali n. [Ar. ḥalāl W 199] lawfulness chakuja (cha) halaali 'lawful food' ka halaali 'lawfully'
Endrá/ mwaambile/ uje khutumiló/ ya kuwaa mi/ nkhiriiḷe/ kumpa mwanaamkewa/ ka halaali. 'Go and tell the one who sent you that I agree to give my daughter to him in lawful marriage.'
Ye/ nakhsuḷa ka halaali. 'He wants you in lawful marriage.'
nama halaali 'lawful meat -- i.e. meat from an animal the slaughtering of which was preceded by the required mentioning of God's name'
- ku-halaalisha* v. caus. make s.t. lawful
 rel.
ku-halalishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-halalishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- haali although; var. haalo
Abdalla/ chilawa/ ka numbaani/ naayé/ haali/ azimilo kuzimilá. 'Abdalla left the house and meanwhile he decided to escape.' (Notice that the word haali triggers the relative form of the following verb.)
Faatma/ oloshale/ haaliye/ naakuḷó. 'Faatma has gone although her situation was that she was crying.'
Haali/ Hamiisi/ husomo niingi/ ye/ hapiti/ imṭihaani. 'Even though Hamiisi studies a lot, he will not pass the exam.'

Haali/ naayé/ naakuḷó/ nakulombo raaḍi/ sulṭaani/ nt^haykumwiingila/ naharisi. ‘While he (the auctioneer) was in the state of crying, begging for forgiveness, mercy did not enter the sultan.’

Hamiisi/ hubaraṭa/ niingi/ haali/ hapendi skoolá. ‘Hamiisi studies a lot, even though he does not like school.’

Hamiisi/ husoma niingi/ haali/ jis’iyo/ ye/ hapeendi/ kendra skolaani. ‘Hamiisi reads a lot, despite that, he does not like going to school.’

Laakini/ haali/ naayé/ waliko ni maskiini/ ye/ azimiile/ keendra/ ki’imeera/ huundra/ iyo/ mahala/ itaakuwó. ‘But despite that he was a poor man, he decided to go and look for that huundra at whatever place it might be.’

Muusa/ peete/ kaazi/ haali/ nt^hanayo ilmuyé. ‘Muusa got the job even though he had no qualifications.’

Ye/ hukoḍa chingereenza/ jisa suura/ haalo/ umriwe/ nt^hakeendrá/ skoolá. ‘He speaks excellent English although he has never been to school.’

Ye/ mpeele/ ye/ hadiya/ niingi/ haali/ ye/ nt^hakumuuzá/ umriwé/ haṭá/ mooyi. ‘He gave her many presents, although she never asked him for one.’

Ye/ peete/ kaazi/ haali/ nt^hakuwanaayó/ khibrayé. ‘He got the job although he had no qualifications.’

Ye/ waliko ajiriila/ kaazi/ haali/ chita/ umriwe/ nt^hakumso’aalaṭá. ‘He was hired, although the boss never interviewed him.’

haali

n. 9 [Sw. hali SSED 125; Ar. ḥāl W 216] state, condition(s), strength, health, manner, circumstance(s)

Dafa/ chiya/ chimwona/ bakayle/ umo karka hali iyo. ‘The kite came and saw the hare in that state of being.’

Fardoos/ nakhtaambula/ haali. ‘Fardoosa understands the situation.’

Hali gani. ‘What condition?’

Hali gani/ yaako. ‘How are you? How is your condition?’

halii mbovu ‘bad condition’

Haali/ nii mbovu. ‘(His) condition is bad.’

Haali/ ni suura. ‘(His) condition is good.’

haali ni yaa we nayiwo [song] ‘the condition is that which you know’

hali suura ‘good condition’

Hali yaa wo/ iwalikoo mbovu/ nt^ho. ‘Their condition [lit. condition of them] was very bad.’

Haaliya/ ni baraabara. ‘My situation, condition is ok.’

Haaliye/ ni ta’abaani. ‘His condition is very bad, i.e. he is very sick.’

Haaliyo. ‘How are you?’

ka haali/ na maalí ‘with strength and wealth’

Si/ chisimeemé/ naawo/ ka haali/ na maalí/ mukḥṭaa wo/ wawalimo karkaa dhibu/ wachibiganó/ na nt^hi za chiyahuudí. ‘We stood with them, with strength and money, when they were in difficulty fighting against the country of the Jews.’

ka kiḷa haali ‘in, under all circumstances’

Humshukura mojiitu/ ka kiḷa haali. ‘I thank God whatever the conditions may be.’

kiḷaa haali ‘any condition’

kumshukura mojiitu/ ka kiḷaa haali ‘to thank God in any condition’

Laakini/ haali/ jisaayo/ mbovu/ si/ hashkaadiri/ illa/ kaamina/ ya kuwa doḅḷa/ ya Aldo/ Mooroo/ hayṭakhaadira/ khfanyilizaa dawa/ ikḥṭisaadi/ ya Taḷyaani/ khaasá/ karka wakḥṭi uyu. ‘But (its) condition being so bad, we can but believe that the government of Aldo Mooroo will not be able to cure the Italian economy, especially at this time.’

Laakini/ uje chizeele/ ingilo karka sanduukhú/ haaliye/ hachiisi/ si/ ndo/ye/ umo sandukhuuni/ amó/ lazile/ hachiisi. ‘But that old woman who entered into the box, her situation, we do not know; come, is she in the box or did she leave? We do not know.’

Mi/ na Omarí/ chimo hali mooyi. ‘Me and Omari are in the same situation.’

Mi/ nakuwona kuwa haaliyó/ mbovu. ‘Now I see that your condition is bad.’

Mi/ shfilaṭila/ ye/ kunviila/ kunshoorata/ amó/ kunuza haaliyá. ‘I expected him to call me and consult with me or ask my condition.’\

Mweenza/ we/ nakuwoná/ haali/ yiitu/ peesa/ zoleshele/ na mulkú/ ubeele. ‘My friend, you see our condition; the money is gone and the property lost.’

Mzeele/ uyu/ kumwonake Huseeni/ chimraasha/ chimuza Huseeni/ haaliye/ na haali/ ya waawaye. ‘This old man upon his seeing Huseeni, he followed him and asked Huseeni his condition and the condition of his father.’ (An alternative pronunciation would be one where the last two phrases are joined into a single phrase: na hali ya waawayé. Notice the phonological effects of this difference in phrasing: in the second pronunciation, haali loses its vowel length since it is too far from the end of the phrase to bear abstract stress, and it also loses its accent, since it is not the final word of the phrase. Waawaye no longer has default penult accent since now it is in a phrase containing the final-accent trigger na.)

Na haali/ jis’iyó/ waant^hu/ wawanayo shaka/ tu. ‘That being the case, people still had doubt.’ did not hear final accent on haali, but need to check this out

Nimkasize Omari/ kuwa haali/ Mwiini/ ni suura/ isa. ‘I heard from Omari that conditions are better now in Brava.’

Omari/ haaliye/ mbovu. ‘Omari’s situation is bad (e.g. he is getting sicker and sicker).’

Umooyi/ haaliyo. ‘How is your situation? Condition?’

we naniwa mi haaliya [song] ‘you know my condition’ (Notice the triple marking of first person in this song line: the verb naniwa contains the first person object prefix, the first person independent pronoun mi follows the verb, and the first person possessive suffix ≡y-a appears on the noun haali.)

We/ nt^hukhaadira/ kishkila/ ka chulunguuni/ kumwuza haaliye. ‘You could not go downstairs to ask after his health.’

Ye/ walimo karka haali/ yaa ye/ waalimó/ nt^hasaa ye/ khpata thumuni/ yaa ye/ mulilo eeló. ‘He was in the same state that he had been in before he found the eighth (of a riyal) that he used to buy the gazelle.’

Yo/ ni kuwaa mi/ tu/ ni laazimu/ mi/ kulangala ruuhuya/ karka hali iyi/ mbovu. ‘It is only that I must look after myself in this predicament (lit. bad situation).’

ku-halika

v. [Ar. halaka, W 1031] (halishile or halikiile) be destroyed by natural phenomena; ruin, destroy (spiritually); rip off, cheat s.o.
huhalika waant^hu shikaani sabri [st.] ‘(this) leads people to ruin: practice forbearance’ Nuuru/ mhalishile Sa’iidi. ‘Nuuru cheated Saiidi.’ Zilzaali/ ihalishile/ mui wa Mwiini. ‘An earthquake destroyed the town of Brava.’

haaliki (ma-)

adj. [cf. Ar. verb halaka “to covet, crave” W 1031] of one who will do anything to get what he wants munt^hu haaliki ‘s.o. who will do anything to get what he wants’; want^hu mahaaliki ‘people who will do anything to get what they want’

haliimu (ma-)

adj. [Ar. ḥalīm W 202] generous; gentle munt^hu haliimu ‘generous person’; want^hu mahaliimu ‘generous people’

haalo

n. [Som. xaal “compensation to be paid by s.o. who has committed a crime” DSI 618] in the expression:
kuweka haalo ‘to be revengeful; to defer vengeance to the future, when the time is right’; also: kuwekela haalo (applied), kuwekelanowa haalo (applied reciprocal passive), etc.
Hamadi/ mwekelele Ali/ haalo/ kumvunanga mwaanawe. ‘Hamadi prepared to take vengeance on Ali for beating his child.’ (GM, who regularly elides the w from the mw sequence in a prefix, retained the initial w of the verb in this example.)

Kuwekelanowa haalo/ siwo/ suura/ suura/ kafishanoowa. ‘For vengeance to be taken on one another is not good, it is good to forgive one another.’

Sawarata/ siweeké/ haalo. ‘Be patient, don’t be vengeful!’

hamaji (ma-)

adj. [Ar. hamaji ‘uncivilized, barbarous, rude’ W 1033] stupid, foolish munt^hu hamaji (cf. want^hu hamaji, chijint^hu chihamaji, zijint^hu zihamaji, ijint^hu ihamaji, mijint^hu mihamaji)

Omari/ kooðize/ kana/ za hamaji. ‘Omari’s words are like (those) of a foolish/.stupid person.’

rel.

hamajilhamaji adj. redup. (GM prefers hamajilhamaji to a simple hamaji.)

Ali/ fanyize jawaabu/ za hamajilhamaji. ‘Ali did foolish/ stupid things.’

Omari/ kooðize/ kana/ za hamajilhamaji. ‘Omari’s words are like (those) of a foolish/.stupid person.’

u-hamaji n. stupidity

Hamadi/ mwambile Omari/ lata uhamaji. ‘Hamadi told Omari to leave/quit stupidity.’

ku-hamaalata

v. carry on the back; load something on a person or a truck

Gaari/ inakuhamalata majiwe. ‘The truck is loaded with/ is carrying stones.’

hamaali (ma-)

n. [Ar. hamāl W 207] porter

Hamali uyu/ ha’andikishiki/ zoombo/ gariini. ‘This porter cannot be made to load things onto the truck.’

Mahamaali/ wanakhfunga mizigo/ khpakizowa gariini. ‘The porters are packing up loads to put on the truck.’

rel.

chi-hamaali (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-hamaali (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

Hamari

n. Mogadishu

Ayamu mooyi/ ba’ada ya haruusi/ mubli/ na mukeewé/ washfunga safari/ wachendra Hamari. One week after the wedding, the husband and his wife packed for a trip and went to Hamari.’

m-hamari (wa-)

n. term used to indicate a member of the Hatimi and Bida groups (collectively known as want^hu wa Miini ‘the people of Brava’); the term derives from Arabic and means “person with light colored skin” as opposed to the darker Somalis

Wahamari/ ni want^hu/ wa’ilo/ ka nt^hi ziingine. ‘The Wahamari are people who came (to Brava) from other countries.’

hamaasa

n. enthusiasm

Chiharbisha/ ka hamaasa/ na ushujaa’á. ‘He fought with enthusiasm and courage.’

Nayo hamaasa. ‘He is enthusiastic.’

Omari/ ile ka hamaasa. ‘Omari came with enthusiasm.’

hamasho

n. 10 [Som. xamasho DSI 623] defamation, slander, gossip

Hamasho/ huletaa dhibu. [H!H] ‘Backbiting brings problems.’

Hamasho/ ni ðambi. [H!H] ‘Gossiping is a sin.’

Hamasho/ siwo/ suura. ‘Gossip is not good.’

Huseenii/ hamashoze/ ni niingi. [H’H’H] ‘Huseeni, his backbitings are many.’ (There is a clear enough lowering of pitch across the phrases in this example, but we have judged these lowerings to be cases of declination rather than downstep. We take declination to characterize the pattern found in an initial subject consisting of a NP) N=possessive) and also between a phrase and a predicate adjective.)

kulla hamasho na namiima / izo huvuuta jahiima [st.] ‘every kind of slander pulls (i.e. brings you near) hell’ (Note: hamasho and namiima are synonyms, one from Somali, the other from Arabic. Jahiima = jahiimu; the final vowel is changed for rhyme purposes.)

ku-hamaṭa

v. [Som. xamo DSI 624] backbite, gossip, speak ill of someone not present Hasani/ kaaziye/ kuhamata waant^hu. [H¹H!H] ‘Hasani, his job is to backbite people – i.e. all that Hasani does is backbite people.’ (The emphasis on kaaziye is expressed as a pitch upstepping on this element, as indicated in the intonational annotation of this example.)

kumhamata ‘to gossip about someone’ lata kuhamata lata namiimu/ tiya Jahannamu tiya Jahiimu [st.] ‘forsake backbiting and slandering/ fear [the hells of] Jahannam and Jahim’ [SCB 556]

rel.

ku-hamaṭana v. rec.

ku-hamaṭika v. p/s.

Fulaani/ hahamaṭiki. ‘So-and-so cannot be spoken ill of.’

ku-hamaṭila v. appl.

Nhamaṭilile maame. ‘He spoke ill of my mother on me.’

ku-hamaṭoowa v. pass.

Apo/ nakuhamatoowa/ Omari. ‘Omari is being gossiped about in that place.’

hamdi

n. [Ar. ḥamd “commendation, praise” W 204] praise (In Chimiini, the word mahaṭi is used most commonly and not hamdi.)

Hamadi/ hamdi/ nt^hanaayo/ yaa we/ tamfanyiliizó. ‘Hamadi is not thankful whatever you do for him.’

Hamdi/ nda mojiitu. ‘Praise is due to God.’

hamdi nda mojiitu wa awali [st.] ‘praise is due to God the Eternal’

rel.

Alḥamdulillah. ‘Praise be to God.’ (an Arabic expression used in Chimiini as a formulaic expression, e.g. in condolences)

ku-hamdisha

v. praise

Hamadi/ hamhamdishi/ muunt^hu. ‘Hamadi does not praise/ thank people.’

Muunt^hu/ suura/ kumhamdisha mweenziwe. ‘It is good for one to praise another.’

rel.

?ku-hamdishika v. caus. p/s. (This verbal form was rejected by GM.)

ku-hamdishiliza v. appl.

Muunt^hu/ hupowa chiint^hu/ chaa ye/ kuhamdishiliza. ‘One is given something such that one can give praise/ appreciation for it (i.e. one is given something good, not something bad).’

ku-hamdishoowa v. pass.

Mojiitu/ ndiyé/ wa kuhamdishoowa. ‘God is the one to be praised/ thanked.’

hameeto

n. [Som. xammeeti] gall bladder

Omari/ ambila nazo zijiwé/ kaako/ hameetooni. ‘Omari has been told ‘you have stones in your gall bladder.’

Omari/ atiila/ tomela hameeto. ‘Omari has been operated on and his gall bladder has been taken out.’

Omari/ hameeto/ inamlaaza. ‘Omari’s gall bladder is painning him.’

haamidi

n. [cf. Ar. verb ḥamida “to praise” W 204] a name of God = one who is praised ingila maghani mloombe haamidi [st.] ‘put yourself under the protection (of God), pray to God, the one who is praised’

hamiidi

adj. [Ar. ḥamīd “praiseworthy” W 204] praiseworthy

ku-hamila

v. [Sw. himili “(1) bear, support; bear, endure, accept, be equal to; (3) be pregnant”

- SSED 126; Ar. hamala “to carry, load up and take along” W 206] load (a truck e.g.) kuhamila mas’uuliya ‘to take responsibility’
- haamila (Ø, ma-) adj. [cf. Sw. noun himila “pregnancy” SSED 126; Ar. haml, pl. aḥmāl “foetus, pregnancy” W 207] pregnant Fardoosa/ kashifile kuwaa ye/ ni haamila. ‘Fardoosa discovered that she was pregnant.’
- muke haamila ‘a pregnant woman’ (cf. wake (ma)haamila ‘pregnant women’, as well as the case of derived nouns being modified: chijike chihaamila, zijike zihaamila, ijike ihaamila, mijike mihaamila)
Siwo/ suura/ muke nayo haamilá/ khtala dawa iyi. ‘It is not safe for a pregnant woman to take this medicine.’
- hamu n. 9 [Sw. hamu SSED 126; Ar. hamm W 1033] anxiety, deep distress, longing; [pron. hamu or hammu] ghammu na hammu na bala/ na kulla sharri na ndala chondroolele [st.] ‘take away from us anxiety, distress, and calamities, and every evil and hunger’ Hammu/ naa ghamú/ zimpeetó. ‘Worries and disturbing thoughts got hold of him.’
Hamu/ naa ghamú/ zimsasishiize/ na imdhibiloo nt’o/ na kuwa wazeelewe/ nt’awakutaambula/ walá/ nt’hakudaḍalaṭa/ khtambula dhibu yaa ye/ wanaayo. ‘Frustration and depression caused him to grow thin and he was troubled very much by [the fact] that his parents did not understand nor did they try to understand the trouble that he was having.’
khtilaa hamu ‘to cause stress’ kingilaa hamu ‘to worry’
Mwanaamke/ ichimwingilaa hamu/ ye/ chanza khfikira/ isa/ mi/ nfanyeeyi. ‘The girl became worried, she began to think: now, how [i.e. what] shall I do?’
kuwanayoo hamu ‘to long for s.t., be anxious about s.t.’
Moojá/ chondrolelee hammu/ naa ghamú. ‘May God take from us stress and sadness!’ (A saying, prayer.)
Sa’iidi/ chi’idegela/ ka maamaye/ na nt’haymwiingila/ teena/ hamu/ ya kuwalola wanashke/ wa masultaani. ‘Sa’iidi stayed put at his mother’s and longing never entered him to marry daughters of sultans.’
- hamu interj. eat! (said to a small child)
- hamuuli n. 9/10 [Sw. himila SSED 126; Ar. haml, pl. aḥmāl “cargo” W 207] load, cargo; variant form: hamuula (rare)
Gaariya/ ipakiza hamuuli/ zaaydi. ‘My truck has been overloaded with cargo.’
Hamauuli/ itakhsaafira/ ka tawala. ‘The cargo will travel by sea.’
Leelo/ gaariya/ itozele hamuuli. ‘Today my truck lacked cargo (i.e. I had no cargo to carry in my truck).’
- rel.
chi-hamuuli (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-hamuuli (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- hamuumu n. 9 [cf. Sw. hamu “longing, yearning, anxiety, love, desire for something (either good or bad)” SSED 126; Ar. humūm, pl. hamm “concern, interest” W 1033] craving kuwanayo hamuumu ‘to crave s.t.’
- Hanafi n. one of the teachers from whom a major school of Islam derives

Hanbali	n. one of the teachers from whom a major school of Islam derives; [pron. Hanbali or Hambali]
handaqi	n. [Sw. handaki SSED 126] trench; underground shelter variant form: khandaqi rel. chi-handaqi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. i-handaqi n. trench Faṭeme ihandaqiini. ‘He hid in a trench,’ khṭumba ihandaqi ‘to dig a trench’ Umo ihandaqiini. ‘He is in a trench.’
handasa	n. [Ar. handasa “engineering, architecture, geometry” W 1036] geometry
handaasa	n. [?Som. hadiid “to desire violently” DSI 290] nymphomania Nayo handaasa. ‘She is a nymphomaniac.’
ku-handisa	v. [Ar. noun handasa W 1036] (handisiize) invent variant form: kuhindisa kuhindisa chiint^{bu} ‘to invent s.t.’ kuhindisa jawaabu ‘to invent s.t.’ rel. ku-handisoowa v. pass. variant form: kuhindisoowa Kuhindisoowa/ jawaabu/ siwo/ suura. ‘To create an issue etc. is not good (i.e. it is not good to make up false things).’
haando (ma-)	n. [Sw. hando SSED 126; Hind.; however, Chimiini speakers connect the word to Som. haan DSI 286, with the same meaning] a kind of wooden container (used for carrying milk bought at the market) rel. chi-haando (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. i-haando (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
ku-hanga’ika	v. [Sw. hangaika SSED 126] be astonished, be vexed rel. ku-hanga’isha v. caus. (hanga’ishiize) astonish, vex, trouble ku-hanga’ishana v. caus. rec. ku-hanga’ishika v. caus. p/s. ku-hanga’ishiliza v. caus. appl. ku-hanga’ishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
hanga’isho	n. astonishment, vexation
ku-hanjamaṭa	v. [Som. hanjan , variant of hanjab DSI 297] (hanjameete) threaten rel. ku-hanjama v. (hanjamiile) threaten Hamadi/ mhanjamile Omari/ mwambile takhuvunaanga. ‘Hamadi threatened Omari, he told him: I will beat you.’ ku-hanjamaṭana v. rec. threaten one another ku-hanjamaṭila v. appl. Nhanjamaṭiile mwaana. ‘He threatened my child on me.’ ku-hanjamoowa v. pass. Wako waant^{bu}/ hawakhiiri/ kuhanjamoowa. ‘There are some people, they do not give in (lit. accept) to threatening.’ rel. u-hanjamaṭo n. 14
hanjamu	n. threatening; attack

Ka hanjamu/ ha'ipatoowi/ chiint'u. 'With threatening nothing is achieved.'
khtila hanjamu 'to threaten'
Omari/ chisula chiint'u/ hutila hanjamu. 'When Omari wants something,
he makes threats.'
Ni ðaruuri/ si/ kumhafiða Baazi/ na hanjamu. 'It is essential that we protect Baazi from being attacked.'

hannaani

n. [Ar. ḥannān W 209] an attribute of God (Loving, Compassionate)

hantī

n. 1/2, 10 [Som. hanti "property, goods" DSI 298] slave; [pron. hant^hi] (In native Bantu words, a vowel is regularly lengthened in front of a prenasalized consonant. This lengthening does not occur, however, in this Somali loanword.)

hant^hi awa 'these slaves', but also hant^hi izi

hant^hi uyu 'this slave'

meezi minne na sku ikumi ni sharti/ muke mnungaana nusuye uje hant^hi [st.] 'four months and ten days are prescribed (referring to the waiting period after husband's death) for a free woman, and half of this (period) for a slave'

muke na mubli hant^hi na mnungaana [st.] '[and it is] for woman, man, slave and free-born'

ku-hantīsha

v. subjugate, enslave; [pron. kuhant^hisha]

ku-hanuunsata

v. [Som. noun xanuun "pain" and verb xanuunso "to be ill, to feel pain" DSI 626] feel pain

haanzu

n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. kanzu SSED 173; ?Ar. qamīs ??] long robe worn as an outer garment
by men; dress

Basi/ washtaala/ hayawaani/ mweepe/ wachimtiinda/ washtala haanzu/ ya Yuusufu/ washpaka maazi/ ya hayawaani/ waa wo/ wamtjinzilo. 'So they took an animal and slaughtered it and they took the haanzu of Joseph and daubed it with the blood of the animal that they had slaughtered.' (Although hayawaani is a [cl.9/10] noun, in this example the singular form governs [cl.1] agreement. This is a common property of animate [cl. 9/10] nouns in their singular use.)

Chi'itaala/ garbisaari/ iyó/ chiyuusha/ kaake/ hanzuuni. 'He picked up that veil and hid it in his haanzu.'

Fardoosa/ jaribiile/ haanzu/ laakini/ nt^ha'ikumtasha. 'Fardoosa tried on the dress, but it did not fit her.'

Faatma/ hanzuu mbili/ mulilo mwanaashkewé. 'Faatma, it's two dresses that she bought for her daughter.' (If there is focus on a preposed phrase like hanzuu mbili, the verb is put into pseudo-relative clause form. Emphasis, expressed as pitch raising, does not have this effect, as we see below.)

Faatma mulile hanzuu mbili/ mwanaashkewe. 'Faatma bought two dresses for her daughter.'

Faatma/ mulile hanzuu mbili/ mwanaamkewe. [H[↑]H!!H] 'Faatma bought two dresses for her daughter.' (In order to focus on mbili, the noun phrase is joined with the verb into a phonological phrase and mbili is markedly raised in pitch, resulting in the following phrase being radically lower in pitch.)

Faatma/ mulile haanzu/ mbili/ mwanaashkewe. [H[↑]HH!!H] 'Faatma bought two dresses for her daughter.' (In order to put emphasis on haanzu, it is phrased with the verb and separated phrasally from the modifier. Haanzu is markedly raised in pitch, but radical lowering does not occur until mwanaashkewe.)

Faatma/ mulile hanzuu mbili/ mwanaashkewe. [H[↑]H!!H] 'Faatma bought two dresses for her daughter.' (This example illustrates that emphasis, but not focus, can be put on the subject by a more radical raising of the pitch than would ordinarily occur. We observed ordinary downstep intonation on the following phrases.)

Faatma/ muliile/ hanzuu mbili/ mwanaashkewe. ‘Faatma bought two dresses for her daughter.’

Faatma/ mwanaashkewe/ muliile hanzuu mbili. [H[↑]H!!H] ‘Faatma her daughter bought two dresses for.’ (Emphasis on mwanaashkewe is achieved by preposing it and raising its pitch. The next phrase is radically lowered after this raising.)

Faatma/ uzile haanzu. ‘Faatma bought a dress.’ Or: Faatma/ uzile/ haanzu. ‘Faatma bought a dress.’ (Cf. the simple yes-no questions: Faatma/ uzile haanzu? ‘Did Faatma buy a dress?’, where there is no accent shift, and: Faatma/ uzile/ haanzú? ‘Did Faatma buy a dress?’, where haanzu is out-of-focus and undergoes accent shift.)

hanzu chigobe ‘a short haanzu’

Hanzu iyi/ badaniye/ ifumushile. ‘The front part of the haanzu has unraveled.’

hanzu ndre ‘long dress’

Haanzu/ uziloo ye/ siwo/ suura. ‘The haanzu that he has bought is not good.’

hanzu ya bafta ‘a white haanzu’ hanzu ya haruusi ‘a wedding dress’

hanzu ya kaazi ‘a handwoven haanzu with ornamental stitching’ hanzu ya khsalila ‘a haanzu for praying’ hanzu ya khuðurunji ‘a yellowish brown haanzu’ hanzu ya makhmali ‘a dress with a special design referred to as makhmali’ hanzu ya mikonoo mile (or: male) ‘a haanzu with long sleeves’ hanzu ya mikonoo zigobe ‘a haanzu with short sleeves’ hanzu ya shingo mviriiinge ‘dress with a round collar’ hanzu ya waana ‘children’s dress’

hanzu za wabli ‘haanzu (pl.) for men’

hanzu zaa wake ‘haanzu (pl.) for women’

Omari/ kaake/ dukaani/ hazuzoowi/ hanzu za wabli/ huzowa zaa wake/ tu. ‘At Omari’s shop men’s haanzu are not sold, only women’s haanzu.’

Islaamu/ hawavaali/ surwani zigobe. ‘Muslims don’t wear short pants.’

Mukeewa/ Barka/ haanzuye/ suura. ‘My wife Barka’s dress is beautiful.’

Nvete haanzuyá/ mp’iyá. ‘I put on my new dress.’

Nvete haanzuyé/ ndr’é/ huundrú. ‘I wore her long red dress.’ (This example illustrates the fact that the phrasal separation of an nominal head and a modifier does not necessarily indicate a focus on the head. If it did, propagation of final accent past the head would be blocked. Such a blocking effect is not present in this example.)

Omari/ nakhfilatila Faatma/ kula haanzu. ‘Omari expects Faatma to buy a dress.’

Yuusufu/ chiwapa haanzuye/ chiwa’ambila/ talaani/ hanzu iyi/ endraani/ mwandikeni waawe/ usooni. ‘Joseph gave them his robe and told them: you (pl.) take this robe and spread it over my father’s face.’

rel.

chi-haanzu (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-haanzu (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

hapu a “baby talk” term, used when a baby is taken up in a grown up’s arms and carried haqi n. [Sw. haki SSED 124; Ar. haqq W 192] justness, justice, right, the way it should be; what is deserved; [usu. pron. hakhi]

Hakhi/ ha’ibahi. ‘What is right, deserved, does not get lost.’ (A proverbial saying.)

ije ya haqi awanya [song] ‘that which is [my] right (i.e. is due me), divide it’

Imkalile kuwa siwo/ hakhi/ ye/ khpowa Ifuungu/ sawasawa/ na wiingine. ‘It seemed to him that it was not right that he be given a share equal to the others.’

Isa/ mi/ nimwene mwaanawé/ na nakhtulubá/ khtalilowa hakhiya/ ka kaake.
 ‘Now I saw his son and I request that my right (i.e. what is due to me) be taken for me from him.’

Khaasimu/ laazimu/ kawanya hakhi. ‘Khaasimu must divide it justly.’

Maamé/ siwo/ hakhi/ yaa we/ nakuhadó. ‘Mother, it is not right what you are saying.’

Mi/ nayo hakhi/ khtinda go’aaniza. ‘I have the right to make my own decisions.’

Mowti ni farði na kufa ni hakhi [st.] ‘death is a necessity and to die is something right’ na iyo ni hakhi ndrúza kasaani [st.] ‘and that is something inevitable (lit. right, just), listen, my brothers’ naami hakhiya isa kulata kundhiba aariya [song] ‘and my right now is [for you] to stop bothering me about my disgrace’

Nk^halenti^he kuliindrá/ skuu nt^hatu/ laakini/ hattá/ isa/ skupata hakhiya. ‘I stayed waiting for three days but up to now I could not get my right (i.e. what was due to me).’

Siwo/ hakhi/ Hamadi/ kichiwekaa si/ kuliindra. ‘It’s not right for Hamadi to keep us waiting.’

Waawé/ we/ ni sulṭaani/ we/ ka kuwako sulṭaani/ mwajiitu/ khaamura/ khfanya hakhi/ beena/ maskiini/ na taajiri. ‘My father, you are sultan; because of your being the sultan, God ordered you to do justice between poor people and rich people.’

Wo/ wam’ayidile Abú/ kuwanayo hakhi/ kudorsata weenzawe. ‘They supported Abu’s right to choose his friends.’

rel.
u-haqi n. 14
uhaqi wa nafsi kumeera salaama [nt.] ‘it is one’s right to seek safety’

ku-haqira

v. [Sw. hakiri SSED 124; Ar. haqara W 193] (haqiriile) despise, belittle, humiliate Nuuru/ mhaqiriile waawaye. ‘Nuuru despised, belittled his father.’

rel.
ku-haqirana v. rec. (-haqireene)
ku-haqirisha v. caus. (haqirishiize) cause to despise, belittle, humiliate Nuuru/ mhaqirishize mwaana/ waawaye. ‘Nuuru caused the child to despise, belittle his father.’

ku-haqirishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-haqirishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

haqiiri (Ø, ma-)

adj. [Ar. haqīr W 194] despised, humiliated, lowly, scorned munt^hu haqiiri ‘a despised person’ (cf. want^hu haqiiri ‘despised people’)

haqiqa

n. 9 [Sw. hakika SSED 124; Ar. haqīqa W 192] certainty, truth, essentials, essence;
 adj. certain; [pron. haqiqa or hakhiikha] haqiqa/ kanaa kufa ‘as certain as death’ kuleta hakhiikha ‘(lit.) to bring the truth, i.e. report the facts’ Rasdente/ mtumile askari/ kendra Maringuwaayi/ kuleta hakhiikha/ ya zita za khabiiila/ zinakiineendró/ apo.
 ‘The district commissioner sent a soldier to go to Maringuwaay village to report the facts about the clan fighting that was going on there.’

Laakini/ hakhiikha/ iwaliko siwo/ ye/ chisula kahawa/ chisula khkoða naami. ‘But the truth was he did not want coffee, he wanted to speak with me.’ review

Nt^hakuliindra/ kiiwa/ haqiqa. ‘He did not wait to learn the truth.’

ruuhu haqiqaaye mtume nt^hakubura [st.] ‘the soul, its essence, the prophet never mentioned anything about it (with respect to its fate after death)’

Siná/ hakhiikha. ‘I am not certain.’
Sinaayo/ hakhiikha. ‘I am not certain.’
We/ nayo hakhiikhá. ‘Do you have certainty/ sureness/ confirmation?’

ku-haqiqisha

v. ascertain

Sultaani/ sulile kuhaqiqisha/ kama zinakumero muyiini/ ka tarafu ya Ali/ ni lila. ‘The sultan wanted to ascertain whether what was circulating around town concerning Ali was true.’

ku-haara

v. [Sw. hara SSED 127; Som. xaar “to defecate” DSI 618; Ar. karā? “excrement, feces” W 231; the Arabic form cited in SSED is not found in Wehr] have diarrhea dawa ya kuhaara [cf. Sw. kuhara ya dawa SSED 127] ‘a laxative, purgative’

rel.

ku-haarika v. p/s.

ku-haarisha v. caus. [cf. Sw. harisha SSED 127] (harishiize) ku-harishana v. caus. rec.

ku-harishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-harishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-harishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

rel. nom.

m-haarisho n. 3

u-haarisho n. 14

haraka

n. 9 [Sw. haraka SSED 128; cf. Ar. verb ḥaraka “to set in motion, to prod, urge” W 170] hurry, hastiness, movement, move or step (e.g. in the completion of an action or a plan), exercise

Fanyani haraka/ tomolani ngiisha/ na panzani itaanga/ chisafireeni. ‘Do quickly, raise the anchor and put up the sail, let us take off.’

Haraka haraka/ nt^hayna/ baraka. ‘Hurry, hurry has no blessing.’ (A proverb.)

Haraka/ ni ḍaruuri/ ya afiya. ‘Exercise is essential to good health.’

Haraka/ yaa ye/ fanyizó/ imwangamilizee dali. ‘The move that he made spoiled things for him.’

kendra ka haraka ‘to go in a hurry’ khfanya haraka ‘to be in a hurry’ khtila haraka ‘to hurry s.o.’

Laakini/ ye/ oyo mwanaamke/ ka kumwingila haraka/ naayé/ nakuzolozolo ruuhuyé/ ki’ilaawilá/ chiliwala garbisaariye. ‘But she, that girl, because of her haste [lit. haste entering her], while she was collecting herself to get out, she forgot her veil.’

Mi/ nk^haleent^hé/ apo/ pashpo haraka/ kuwalangala. ‘I remained there without moving, watching them.’

Mzimawe/ haraka. ‘He is all movement (i.e. he is always moving about).’

Haramu

n. the Grand Mosque in Mecca cheendra Maka chiingila karka Haramu [st.] when one goes to Mecca and enters the Grand Mosque’ wanafaanye ibada karka Haramu [st.] ‘let them worship at the Grand Mosque (in Mecca)’ haraamu

adj. [Sw. haramu SSED 128; Ar. ḥarām W 171] forbidden (by Islamic religion), unlawful (according to Islam), illegitimate (child) chakuja cha haaramu ‘forbidden food’

ka haraamu ‘in sin’

Kaa ndala/ haraamu/ huwa halaali. ‘With hunger, what is forbidden becomes allowed.’ (A proverb.)

khfanya haraamu ‘to render illegitimate’ kuja haraamu taa’a haytasawari [st.] ‘eating forbidden foods [means] obedience [to

- the tenets of Islam] is not possible’ mahaṭi nda mojiitu wiitu m’aali/ shtaambizo si haraamu na halaali [st.] ‘thanks are due to God the Most High, who made us discern the lawful from the unlawful’ mbilize ni haraamu raasha maḍhabu [st.] ‘both are unlawful, follow (the way, the teachings) of the sect’ mwenye uzele na hiiḍi haraamu [st.] ‘it is forbidden [to fast] for a woman who is still staying in after childbirth or menstruating’
- haraara n. 9 [Sw. harara SSED 128; Ar. ḥarāra W165] heat Soonga/ haraara/ isikhudirke. ‘Move so that the heat does not reach you.’
- haraarisi adj. [Som. verb kharaari “to make s.t. bitter” and kharaarow “to become bitter” DSI 365; note that Dizionario Italiano Somalo p. 27 gives possible spellings of ‘bitter’ as qaraar, xaraar, and kharaar. Tunni has haraar “to be bitter” Tosco 216] bitter (in taste) chakuja (chi)haraarisi ‘bitter food’ chint^hu (chi)haraarisi ‘something bitter’ (cf. zint^hu (zi)haraarisi ‘bitter things’) Duniya/ imwelele/ miinza/ na ku’iishá/ kati/ ya waant^hu/ awó/ imwelele haraarisi. ‘The world became dark for him and to live among people such as those became bitter for him.’
-haraarisi/ kamba sibiri ‘as bitter as aloe (=extremely bitter)’ mayi (ma)haraarisi ‘salty water [used for washing not drinking]’ (There were several kinds of water in Brava. The various kinds that fell under the label haraarusi were: sea water; the slightly brackish water of the public wells in town (used in the homes to wash); the water supplied through pipes (which was also slightly salty and not used, if possible, for drinking, but was used to make tea). Drinking water, mayi maḷadda, was brought by donkey carts from wells out of town.)
- haraashi n. [Som. xaraash, a noun and a verb “sell/sale at auction” DSI 626] sale at an auction (a synonym of mnaada)
- harba’a n. 9/10, adj. [Ar. ḥirbā’ W 166] n. chameleon; adj. two-faced, chameleon-like, unpredictable harba’a uyu ‘this chameleon’ (cf. harba’a izi ‘these chameleons’) munt^hu harba’a ‘two-faced person’ (cf. want^hu harba’a ‘two-faced people’)
- harbi n. 9/10 [Ar. ḥarbi W 166] fight, war
Basi/ isa/ ni laazima/ si/ kubigana harbi. ‘So now it is necessary for us to engage in war with each other.’
Harbi/ maazi/ miingi/ huṭa(w)anyikó. ‘In a war, a lot of blood is shed.’
Harbi/ nt^hayná/ faayda. ‘War has no benefit, profit.’ (A saying.) harbi itukilo mudá ‘a long war [lit. carried on for a period of time]’ Huseeni/ shfakata/ ye/ na waant^huwé/ washpandra jahaziini/ naa wo/ wachandika bandera ya harbi. ‘Huseeni ran, he and his men, they went on board the ship and they put up the flag of war.’
Ikhtariile/ kingila harbiini. ‘He chose to fight.’
kubiga harbi ‘to wage war’
shaahidi wa harbi ni oyo hawoli [st.] ‘a martyr of war is the one who does not rot, decay (upon dying)’ Sultaani/ chamura kpanzoowa/ bandera/ ya harbi. ‘The sultan ordered a flag of war to be raised.’
Wachilawa kendra harbiini. ‘They went out to go to the battle.’
Wawaye mwanaamke/ bigeene/ harbi/ na sultaani/ oyo/ jiraaniye/ mara sitta/ na killa mará/ chishindroowa. ‘The girl’s father fought a war with that sultan, his neighbor, six times, and each time he was defeated.’

Ye/ wenopo kuwa khatari/ inamliindrá/ sula khaadira/ ki'ifakajila/ laakini/ ye/ ikhtariile/ kingila harbiini. 'When he saw that danger was waiting for him, he could have run away, but he chose to fight.'

Yiko khatari/ ya harbi/ za ahli. 'There is a danger of civil war.'

ku-harbisha

v. [Sw. harbisha SSED 127] (harbishiize) fight, do battle with, struggle, force s.t. to happen or change kuharbisha mlaango 'to force a door open'

Chiharbisha mlaango/ kiingila. 'He forced the door open so that he could enter.'

Harbishiize/ hattá/ ndrazile/ ka mkonooni/ ulushile. 'It struggled [the trapped guinea fowl] until I let it go from my hand and it flew away.'

Hasani/ shtomola lpaangale/ chanza kuharbisha. 'Hasani took out his sword and began to fight.'

Nyereere/ nakuharbisha kuwaka nt^hiyeye. 'Nyerere is struggling to build his country.'

Si/ nt^hashkukhuwona/ we/ kuuya/ kumharbisha/ aduwi yiitu. 'We did not see you come to fight our enemy.' (We generally recorded the infinitive element ku being null in front of the second person object prefix khu; however, in this example the ku was retained.)

Want^hu hujo peeké/ na kuharbishá/ huwalaazima/ kuharbisha peeke.

'People who eat alone and (then) fight (with someone), they are obliged (lit. it is obliged to them) to fight alone.'

We/ itakhu^hlaazima/ kuharbisha dughaghi izi. 'It will be necessary for you to fight these wild animals.'

rel.

ku-harbishana v. fight one another

Chiza kump^ha/ wana awo/ shtakuharbishana/ walwiitu. 'If you refuse to give me those children, we will fight one another, the two of us.'

Karkaa wo/ wanakuharbishanó/ siimba/ shtuluka/ na mp^huundrá/ shpata shpenene/ khfakata. 'While they were fighting one another, Lion fell down and Donkey had a chance to run away.'

Mukhtaá noka/ mweno dul'edá/ nakingila mtanaani/ ka mwaaná/ chimraasha/ chiharbishana naaye/ hatá/ chimubla. 'When the snake saw the fox entering the child's room, he followed him and fought with him until he killed him.'

ku-harbishiliza v. appl. fight with

Ali/ harbishilize ruuhuye/ khpata kaazi/ ka sarkaali. 'Ali tried hard to get a job with the government.' Or with verbal emphasis: Ali/ harbishiliize/ ruuhuye/ khpata kaazi/ ka sarkaali.

Hasani/ mukhtaá ye/ komelo maha^hla inakubiganowa harbi/ tomele lpaangale/ kuharbishiliza. 'When Hasani arrived at the place where there was fighting, he took out his sword and began to fight with it.'

haare

n. diarrhea, runny excrement; [pron. haare]

haare

n. a poisonous snake; [pron. haare]

ku-harfisha

v. [Som. caraf "to smell good, to be fragrant" DSI 90] (harfishiize) smell something variant form: ku'arfisha

Mp^hisi/ kama oyo/ harfishizopo lundo laa namá/ nt^hakhaadira/ kureba ruuhuye. 'The hyena, like that, when he smelled the bad smell of the [rotting] meat, he could not control himself.'

Ye/ harfishiize/ chiint^hu/ ndraani. 'He smelled something inside [the house].'

harfu

n. 9 [Sw. harufu SSED 128; Som. caraf DSI 90; cf. Ar. hīrrif "pungent, spicy" W

169] smell

Awa/ majini/ hawapeendi/ khkasa harfu ya wanaadamu. ‘These jinns don’t like to smell the smell of human beings.’

harfu iyi ‘this smell’

Masku/ mzelee mp^hisi/ chiya/ chiraasha/ harfu/ yaa nama. ‘At night the old hyena came and followed the smell of the meat.’

Mbona/ mi/ nakuharfisha harfu/ mbali/ leelo. ‘How come I smell a different smell today?’ review phrasing and accent ,, mbali

Muke/ chimwambila Sa’iidi/ ya kuwa/ ni laazima/ ye/ koowa/ muda wa skuu saba/ haṭa/ mukḥṭa harfu/ ya wanaadamu/ itakuwo imlasile. ‘The woman told Sa’iidi that it was a must that he bathe for a period of seven days until when the smell of human beings will leave him.’

pashpo khkasa harfuya ‘without smelling myself’

harfu

n. [Sw. harufu SSED 128; Ar. ḥarf ‘letter, consonant’ W 169] a letter of the alphabet, a consonant kalamuze siwo za sowḡi na harfu [st.] ‘his (God’s) words are not made of sounds and letters’

harfujari

n. 9/10 [Ar. ḥarf al-jarr ‘preposition’ W 169] preposition (in grammar)

hargabu

n. 9/10 [Som. hargab DSI 300] head cold, flu

mwaana/ chiwanayo hargabu ‘if a child has a cold’

Zinakumera hargabu. ‘Colds are going around.’

hari

n. [Sw. hari SSED 128; Ar. ḥarr W 165] heat [pron. hari or harri] (Notice that the preceding word-final vowel in the phrase is not lengthened in front of hari, even though CVCV words ordinarily trigger this lengthening. This behavior on the part of hari doubtless goes back to the fact that the Arabic source has a geminated r.)

Hari/ iwaletelele waant^hu/ dhibu/ naayó. ‘The heat has brought problems for people, too.’

Ka hari/ hayjiiki. ‘In hot weather one cannot eat.’

Leelo/ ni hari. ‘It is hot today.’

Mi/ nnayo hari. ‘I am hot [lit. I have heat].’

Sku mooyi/ wakhtⁱ/ ya harri/ sa’a za zohaari/ Juha/ na mwaanawé/ walazile/ wanakendra mahala. ‘One day, when it was hot, at mid-day, Juha and his son left to go someplace.’

m-hari (mi-)

n. 3/4 long needle, made of brass, used to stitch together pieces of mats or other things made of fibers, e.g. skapu

ku-hariða

v. [Ar. W 168] (hariðile) incite (This word was unknown to GM. The word was given by MI, but we do not have an example of its use.)

hariifa (Ø, ma-)

adj. clever

Alí/ (ni)hariifa/ kubiga khutba. ‘Ali is skillful at making speeches.’

Omari/ hariifa/ khṭeza mpiira. ‘Omari is skillful in playing ball.’

(Intonation: Omari and hariifa are pronounced at a similarly high pitch, while mpiira is strongly downstepped. The same intonational pattern was observed in the preceding example as well.)

hariifa

n. co-wife (each wife of the same husband is a hariifa of the other)

Haliima/ ni hariifa/ wa Aamina. ‘Haliima is a second wife to Aamina.’

Hariifa/ khabri/ taanzile. ‘The tomb even insulted (said bad things) about hariifa.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ wa hariifa/ haleeti/ kheeri. ‘A child of a second wife does not bring blessings/ good things (i.e. to the other wife).’

ku-harikisha

v. caus. (cf. harka above) [Ar. ḥaraka W 170] move (emotionally)

variant form: ku-harakisha

Laano/ ili/ suḷa kuharikisha qalbi za kiḷa mgereenza. ‘This story would move the hearts of all Englishmen.’

Omari/ mharakishize Hamadi/ mkonowe. ‘Omari has moved Hamadi’s hand.’

rel.

ku-harikishana v. caus. rec.

ku-harikishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-harikishoowa v. caus. pass.

Muunt^hu/ chilaala/ haharakishoowi. ‘When one sleeps, one is not shaken, moved (i.e. you do not touch a person when he is sleeping).’

rel. nom.

u-harikisho n. 14

ku-harima

v. [Ar. ḥarima W 171] (haramiile) forbid on religious grounds, make something unlawful; make s.t. impossible; deprive Nharamile kulaala. ‘He made it impossible for me to sleep.’

rel.

ku-harimisha v. caus. (harimishiize) render unlawful, illegitimate ku-harimoowa v. pass. (haramiila) kaa kuja na kaazi chiharimiila [nt.] ‘food and work are forbidden to us’

ma-hariimu

n. 6 those people whom one is forbidden to marry (for a male: mother, sister, grandmother; for a female, father, brother, grandfather)

hariiri

n. 9 [Sw. hariri SSED 128; Ar. ḥarīr W 165] silk

Farasi/ oyo/ chandikoowa/ nguwo/ za hariiri/ hattá/ lijaamuye/ lwaliko nda hariiri. ‘That horse had spread on it clothes of silk, even its reins were of silk.’

hariri iyi ‘this silk’

jezaye jana libsiye hariiri [st.] ‘(of a child who has died in childbirth) his reward is paradise and his clothese are silk’

Miloongoṭi/ nda feḍa/ na miṭaangá/ nda hariiri. ‘The masts are (made of) silver, and the sails are of silk.’

Mwanaamke/ chiingila/ mṭanaani/ kaake/ chivalaa nguwo/ za hariiri. ‘The girl entered her room and put on clothes of silk.’

nguwo ya hariiri ‘silk cloth’ noloolo/ kana hariiri ‘soft as silk’

harooharo

adv.

Chibaṭeera/ chinakendra harooharo. ‘The boat is swinging.’

Check whether this is harohaaro or harooharo

haruusi

n. [Sw. arusi SSED 19; Som. arōos DSI 24; Ar. ʿurs, ʿurus W 602] wedding ceremony and celebration, marriage feast, bride or bridegroom

Basi/ nt^hakuwaṭukula/ kendra naawo/ kaaka/ keesho/ inawe haruusi. ‘So I will take them to go with them to my place; tomorrow let the wedding take place.’

haruusi/ imalizopó ‘when the wedding ceremony ended’

Haruusi/ na mukeewé/ wakaleent^he/ numbaani// muda ayamu mooyi/ kama aada/ ya muuyi. ‘The bridegroom and his wife stayed indoors for a period of one week in accordance with the tradition of the town.’

Haṭá/ oyo haruusi/ nt^hakulabisoowa/ jis’iyo. ‘Even the bride was not dressed that way.’

Heendra/ kuwa Hasani/ kuuya/ harusi ya Omari. ‘It is possible that Hasani will come to Omari’s wedding.’

Ingile haruusi/ naayé/ nt^hana chiint^hu. ‘He entered into nuptials while he had nothing.’ is there final accent here?

khfanya haruusi ‘to arrange, conduct a wedding’ Shfanya haruusi/ shfaanyó. ‘He made/arranged a wedding, that’s what he did.’

Sultaani/ shfanya haruusi/ chimloza mgarwa/ mwanaamkewe. ‘The sultan arranged a wedding and married his daughter to the fisherman.’

khfanyowa haruusi a marriage to be arranged, conducted by’

Ishfanyowa haruusi/ nk^hulu. ‘There was arranged a big wedding.’

khkalan^ha haruusi ‘to stay indoors for a period of time after marriage (according to the custom in Brava)’

Wakalen^he haruusi/ muda wa skuu saba. ‘They stayed inside for a period of seven days.’

kuwamo haruusi ‘to be in the seven day period after marriage, during which time the married couple remains indoors and food is provided for them and their guests’ maharuusi ‘a married couple’

Mi/ ñnakhsulá kendra harusini. ‘I want to go to the wedding.’

Mi/ isa/ niilé/ na wanaashke/ wawili/ wa masultaani/ ñnakhsuulá/ we/ kunfanyiliza/ haruusi/ mi/ kuwaloola. ‘Now I have come with two saughters of sultans, I want you to make a wedding for me to marry them.’

Sultaani/ fanyize haruusi/ nk^hulu. ‘The sultan held a big wedding feast.’

Sultaani/ shfanya haruusi/ nk^hulu/ chimloza mwanaamkewe/ Sa’iidi. ‘The sultan held a big wedding and married his daughter to Sa’iidi.’

Wachimpelekela haruusi/ khabari. ‘They sent news to the bridegroom.’

Wachimwaambila/ kudarbisha ruuhuye/ kingila haruusi. ‘They told him to prepare himself to enter into marriage.’

walima wa haruusi or walimaa haruusi ‘food served at the marriage feast by the bridegroom’s family’

hasanaati

n. 10 [Sw. hasanati SSED 128; Ar. ḥasanāt, pl. of ḥasana ‘good deed, charity’ W 178] good things (from a religious point of view); the credit given by God for good deeds

Daðalata khkasabata hasanaati. ‘Try your best to earn yourself hasanaati.’

khkasabata hasanaati ‘to earn credit for good deeds’

Muunt^hu/ shkasabata hasanaati/ kuminfa yeeye. ‘It is useful to someone if he earns credit (from God) for good deeds done.’

Mwaadamu/ duniyaani/ husuloowa/ khkasabata hasanaati/ humwinfa keesho/ akhera. ‘Human being in the world is needed to earn good deeds, they help him tomorrow in life after.’

na hasanaati nt^hazina hisaabu [st.] ‘and credit which cannot be counted’

hasdi

n. envy (The s in this word is voiced to some extent.)

haasha

interj. truly no; [pron. haashá]

Chimwambila mukeewe/ mi/ nakhambila jawaabu/ laakini/ simwambile muunt^hu/ mukeewe/ chihada/ haashá/ nini/ mi/ mwambila muunt^hu/ siriyó. ‘He said to his wife: I am telling you something, but do not tell it to anyone; his wife answered: never! why would I tell anyone your secret?’

Wachihada/ haashá/ si/ nt^hashkuwona/ ka kaake/ ziwovu. ‘They said, truly no, we do not know any evil of him.’

hasha’

interj. an expression that approvingly affirms that s.t. was done; [pron. hashá’]

Hashá’/ Hamadi/ ile/ leesele/ zoombo. ‘Yes, Hamadi came and brought the stuff (and I am expressing satisfaction about this)’

Hashá’/ Hamádi/ m-peepe/ Omari/ peesa. ‘Yes, Hamadi did give Omari money (and I am expressing satisfaction about this).’

- hasharaaṭi n. 10 [Sw. hasharati “dissipation”; Ar. ḥasarāt “vermin, insect pests”, pl. of ḥasara “insect” W 179] insects; dissipation; adj. a bother, a nuisance hasharaaṭi/ izi ‘these insects’
Mwana hasharaaṭi/ oloshela. ‘The annoying child left.’
Mwana uyu/ hasharaaṭi. ‘This child is a nuisance.’
rel.
u-hasharaaṭi n. 14
Iyo/ ni ifuungu/ ya maali/ ya Ali/ fanyilizo uhasharaaṭi/ na surufilo ilu yaa waké. ‘That is the part of his wealth that Ali squandered on dissipation and spent on women.’
- hashaashi adj. [Som. xasgaash DSI 629] elegant (e.g. referring to someone who is well-dressed, new or clean clothes and shoes, hair nicely combed, skin well-oiled, etc.)
Hamadi/ ni hashashi. ‘Hamadi is/looks elegant.’
- hashiimu (Ø, ma-) adj. [Ar. ḥašīm “modest, shy” W 180] respectful (Although this word is accepted by GM, he prefers heshmaale.)
chijana chihashiimu ‘respectful child’ (cf. zijana zihashiimu ‘respectful children’) munt^hu hashiimu ‘a respectful person’ (cf. want^hu (ma)hashiimu ‘respectful people’)
rel.
u-hashiimu n. 14 respectfulness
- hashiisha n. [Ar. ḥašīš “hemp, hashish, cannabis” W 179] hashish, cannabis, etc.
Hashiisha/ ni haraamu. ‘Hashish is disallowed (according to Islamic religion).’
Omari/ huvuta hashiisha. ‘Omari smokes hashish.’
- hasiida n. boiled corn flour
Hi’ijilila hasiida/ ka iziwa. ‘We eat boiled corn flour with milk.’
Hutunga unga/ hupika hasiida/ huja. ‘He sifts flour, he cooks hasiida, he eats.’
Pishile Haliima/zijo/ kana hasiida. ‘Haliima cooked zijo as though it were hasiida (i.e. her zijo was soft and sticky like porridge rather than dry and not sticky, as zijo should be).’ (Syn. Observe that the subject can be moved into IAV position when the clause is expanded with a kana-phrase.) (Phon. In the corresponding yes-no question, there is no accent shift: Pishile Haliima/ zijo/ kana hasiida? In the exclamatory yes-no question, the last two phrases show accent shift: Pishile Haliima/ zijó/ kana hasiidá!?)
Sku yaane/ wajiile/ hasiida/ ya unga waa gele/ watowejele mtuzi/ waa nsi/ uwaliko useeló/ yaná. ‘On the fourth day they ate hasiida from maize flour, they ate it with soup of fish which remained from the day before.’
- hasho n. 10 [Som. xash “wood shavings, granular remains of work, small chips from working stone” DIS 629] small stones, pebbles, gravel Fulaani/ hu’isha ka ku’arishaa hasho. ‘So-and-so earns his living by collecting hasho and selling it.’
rel.
zi-hasho n. 10 small stones, pebbles, gravel
- hasiidi (Ø, ma-) n., adj. [Sw. hasidi (ma-) SSED ?? ; Ar. ḥāsīd W 176] one who begrudges or envies another to the point of wishing that the person envied will lose all that he has; someone who has the power to cause another to lose all that he has (by means of the ito iwovu ‘the evil eye’) Hasiidi/ haliwaani. ‘Someone who begrudges, envies never succeeds.’

munt^hu hasiidi ‘envious person’ (cf. want^hu hasiidi or want^hu mahasiidi ‘envious people’; chijana chihasiidi ‘dim. envious child’, zijana zihasiidi ‘dim. envious children’)

- hasili [Ar. verb ḥaṣala “to set in, to take place” W 182] with extra care, slowly ka hasili ‘slowly’
adina ka lkele qima ka hasili [st.] ‘call to prayer loudly, (but) announce the approaching of time to pray in a low voice’ Ineendra/ kas hasili. ‘Walk slowly, with care (e.g. on slippery ground).’
Tukula/ naank’ó/ weka ka hasili. ‘Carry (it) and put (it) down carefully.’
- ku-hasinika v. improve
rel.
ku-hasinikila v. improve for, to Haali/ imhasinikiliile. ‘The situation improved for him.’
Wachingila khfanya kazi ya miyuundra/ na ba’ada ya wakhtí mchaaché/ hali yaawo/ ichihasinika. ‘They began to farm [lit. do work of fields] and after a short period of time, their situation improved.’
ku-hasinisha v. improve s.t.
- hasiira n. 9 [Sw. hasira SSED 129; Ar. verb ḥaṣara “to restrain, hold back” W 181; SSED cites the Arabic as “oppression of the heart”] anger Ali/ ni munt^hu mwenye hasiira. ‘Ali is an angry man.’
Hasiira/ huleta khasaara. ‘Anger brings a loss.’ (A proverb.) hasira iyi ‘this anger’
- ku-hasuuda v. [Sw. hasidi, husudu SSED 129; Ar. ḥasada W 176] (hasudiile) begrudge someone something, be envious, wish to outdo someone and see him worse off than he presently is Mhasudile mweenzawe. ‘He begrudged his friend (and as a result, something bad happened to him).’
- hata conj., prep. [SSED hata SSED 129; Ar. ḥatā W155] even; until; [pron. hatá, and with gemination: hattá]; variant form: atá, attá Abunawaasi/ shpaandra/ hatá/ chendra ka Harun Rashiidi. ‘Abunawaasi climbed the stairs until he went to Haruun Rashiidi.’
ata chisala p(w)eeke pashpo wahali [st.] ‘even if you pray alone without companion’
Baduwi uyu/ shinda ije humwiililó/ mbeleye -- mp^haka/ mbwa/ na hatá/ wanaadamú. ‘The nomad slaughtered whatever came before him — cats, dogs, and even human beings.’ review accent on "mbele"
Basi/ uje sultaani/ hattá/ nakshula mfuunga. ‘So that sultan even wanted to arrest him.’
Chimsoomesha/ oyo mwaana/ teena/ maamaye/ chisoomesha/ chibarata khur’aani/ chibarató/ attá/ chiwa mkulu. ‘She taught that boy, then after his mother taught him, he learned the Quran, that’s what he did, until he grew up.’
Chiineendra/ hattá/ shkoma/ ndila/ hupeleko nt^hi ya wanyaasa. ‘He walked until he reached the road that leads to the land of the Wanyaasa.’
Fijiri/ Sa’iidi/ shfunga safari/ chiineendra/ chiineendra/ hatá/ shkoma numba/ mooyi. ‘In the morning Saiidi set out on a journey and walked and walked until he reach a house.’
Ghaðibishilee nt^ho/ hatá/ wele (kuwa) hakhaadiri/ kaandika. ‘He was so angry to the point until it became that he was not able to write.’
Hamiisi/ husooma/ nt^ho/ laakini/ hatá/ jis’iyó/ ye/ hupeenda/ mpira wa kuulu/ nt^ho. ‘Hamisi reads a lot, but even so he likes football a lot.’

Hamiisi nakhsoma chibuuku/ haṭaa ye/ nakulangalo mpiirá. ‘Hamiisi is reading a book while watching football.’

haṭá/ chimpaandra ‘until I found him’

Haṭá/ mukhta/ wakhti/ suura/ nii dhibu/ kinenza gaari/ koloka Mwiini. ‘Even at the best of times, it is difficult to drive to Brava.’

Hasiibu/ chija/ haṭá/ chiikuta. ‘Hasiibu ate until he was full.’

Haṭá/ ichiwa/ kuwa...kiḷa mooyi/ muyiini/ bareete/ majibu ya Ali. ‘(So it was) until it became that everyone in the town learned Ali’s answer.’

Haṭá/ Khaḍija/ nimeené. ‘I saw even Khadhija.’ Or: Khaḍija/ haṭá/ nimeené.

Haṭá/ kanaa ye/ mp^heelé/ simrudili. ‘Even if he gave it to me, I won’t return it to him.’

Haṭá/ kuja/ ni kaazi. ‘Even eating is work.’

haṭá/ mi/ chiya ‘even if/ until I come’

Haṭá/ Muusa/ lumila naa noka. ‘Even Muusa was bitten by a snake.’ (In this pronunciation, there is no downstep between the initial particle and Muusa.)

^fHaṭá/ Muusa/ lumila naa noká. ‘Even Muusa was bitten by a snake.’ (In this example, Muusa is lowered after the particle; the particle is apparently focused, and this requires the verb to be put in pseudo-relative form. Our consultant allowed a variant, with verb emphasis in addition: ^fHaṭá/ Muusa/ lumilá/ naa noká. Notice that the final accent extends through the next phrase. This pronunciation was volunteered by our consultant, but later research did indicate that the Accentual Law of Focus does seem to work in pseudo-relative clauses, so it is not entirely expected that it would be violated here. More research is obviously in order.)

Haṭá/ mwaalimu/ ooshele. ‘Even the teacher has left.’

haṭá/ Nureeni/ chiya ‘even if/ until Nureeni comes’

Haṭaa ^fwe/ nakhkoḍo na Nuurú/ ^hnakendra kumleta mwaaná. ‘While you are talking with Nuuru, I am going to bring the child.’ Or: Haṭaa ^fwe/ nakhkoḍo na Nuurú/ ^hnakeendrá/ kumleta mwaana. ‘While you are talking with Nuuru, I am going to bring the child.’

Haṭaa ^fwe/ nakhkoḍo na Nuurú/ nakendra nt^hiini/ kuleta zoombozá. ‘While you are talking with Nuuru, I am going down to bring my things.’ (The pseudo-relative form of the verb indicates that there is focus on the initial phrase.)

Haṭaa wo/ washkoma apo/ nuumba/ nzimaye/ ichizaama/ ichiwa bahari/ ichiwó. ‘As they reached there, the house, all of it, sank, and it became sea, that’s what it became.’

Hupoowi/ haṭá/ shṭomola peesa. ‘You won’t be given it, even if you pay money.’

Ishize na mub^hliwe/ ka zeema/ haṭá/ ye/ fiiló. ‘She lived with her husband in harmony until he died.’

Jis’iyo/ haṭá/ wachimalizaa kuja. ‘[Things went on] that way until they finished eating.’

Leelo/ haṭá/ peesa/ yaa si/ kuja/ nt^hachiná. ‘Today we do not even have money with which to eat.’

Mbishile/ haṭá/ skomelee ndruti/ khamsiini. ‘He beat him until he reached fifty blows.’

Mi/ skutiya/ haṭá/ mara mooyi/ kuwaa we/ ^htakump^haka uso/ mashizi/ na

^htakun’ebisha ka waant^hu. ‘I was not afraid even once that you would “smear my face with soot” and disgrace me in front of people.’

Ndriinzilé/ ^fhaṭá/ kuja/ imaliizó. ‘I waited until the food was finished.’ Or: Ndriinzilé/ haṭá/ kuja/ imaliize. ‘I waited until the food was finished.’ (In both these sentences, haṭá is raised in pitch, but only in the first case was this accompanied by a shift of the verb to pseudo-relative clause form.)

Ndriinzilé/ ^fhaṭá/ Nuuru/ iló. ‘I waited until Nuuru came.’ Or: Ndriinzilé/ haṭá/ Nuuru/ ile. ‘I waited until Nuuru came.’ (In both these sentences, haṭá is raised in pitch, but only in the first case was this accompanied by a shift of the verb to pseudo-relative clause form.)

Nt^hakhkalan^ha apa/ haṭaa we/ chiya. ‘I will stay here until you come.’

nt^hangú/ kaaka/ mundraani/ haṭá/ apa ‘starting from my field up to here’ need to review phrasing and accent

Sku niingi/ spisile jis’iyi/ haṭa iboholi/ iwele ndraani. ‘Many days passed this way until the hole (which had been full) became empty.’

Tuuma/ haṭá/ Barka/ mpeele/ peesa. ‘Tuuma gave money even to Barka.’
 Or: Tuuma/ Barka/ haṭá/ mpeele/ peesa.
Tuuma/ haṭá/ meene/ Khaḍija. ‘Tuuma even saw Khadhija.’ Or: Haṭá/ Tuuma/ meene/ Khaḍija.
Tuuma/ Khaḍija/ haṭá/ meene. ‘Tuuma saw even Khadhija.’ Or: Tuuma/ haṭá/ Khaḍija/ meene.
Tuuma/ waanzile/ nt^ho/ haṭá/ niizé/ mtaambula. ‘Tuuma had gotten so fat, to the point that I did not recognize her.’
Wamaliizopó/ wachiruuda/ kaawo/ kuliindra/ haṭá/ muundra/ kuḷawa.
 ‘When they finished, they returned to their place to wait until the garden bore fruit.’
We/ nt^huná/ haṭa yaa we/ kujá. ‘You do not have anything to eat.’ review
Wote/ wacheendra/ nt^hini ya majabali/ kulinda haṭaa nvula/ ishṭiinda.
 ‘All went under the rock to wait until the rain stopped.’
Ye/ haṭá/ Khaḍija/ meene. ‘He saw even Khadhija.’ Or: Ye/ Khaḍija haṭá/ meene.
Ye/ nt^hakunuuzaa/ haṭá/ jisaa mi/ mp^heto numba iyí. ‘He did not ask even how I got this house.’

haaṭifu n. 9 [Ar. hāṭif ‘shouting, calling loudly’ W 1018] rumors, news, sounds; variant form: haaṭufu
Nt^haku/ haṭifuye. ‘There’s no word of him.’
Pete haaṭifu. ‘He got wind of something.’
Shkasa haaṭifu/ ndilaani. ‘He heard sounds outside.’

Haatiimi n. the name of one of the main tribes in Brava; although the Haatiimi claim that they were the first to settle in Brava, the issue of the evolution of the town and its language is not at all a settled matter. According to their traditions, the Somali Tunni were in Brava already 850 years ago. This is not historically impossible, but is unproven. In any case, a Tunni population does not explain the presence of a Bantu language. The first mention of the Haatiimi is in the “Chronicle of Pate”, which says that some of them settled in Pate in 1595, coming from Brava, and ultimately originating from Andalusia. This latter migration has never been researched and the date of their first settling in Brava is unknown. In any case, prior to their arrival in Brava, there must have been a Bantu population living in Brava, otherwise the existence of the Chimiini language would be unexplained.

rel.
Wakohaatiimu n. pl.

haṭimṭilifu adj. battered, beaten, half-dead

hawa n. 9 [Sw. hawa SSED 130, hewa SSED 133; Ar. hawā’ W 1040] weather, air, climate Ariplaano/ yimo hawaani. ‘The airplane is in the air.’
Hamadi/ umo hawaani. ‘Hamadi is daydreaming [lit. in the air].’
Hawa iyi/ haysaaydi/ ukulo wa waana. ‘This climate does not help children to grow.’
hawaa mbovu ‘a bad climate’ kubadilaa hawa ‘to get away for awhile from one’s regular routine’
Mi/ na askarizá/ chondroshelé/ kendra ijabali Khaafu/ kubadilaa hawa.
 ‘Me and my soldiers left to go to Mt. Khaafu for a change of air.’
nt^hila karka hawa mbarate kuuluka [song] ‘put me in the air so that I learn to fly’ Si kheeri/ kuja/ mbelé/ chimaliza/ kingila hawa/ za dughaaghi. ‘It is better to eat first and then to deal with the wild animal.’

hawa n. 9 [Som. xabag DSI 619] glue hawa iyi ‘this glue’ kambisa kaa hawa ‘to attach with glue, to glue something on’ hawa n. 9/10 [Sw. hawa SSED 130; Ar. verb hawā ‘to desire’ and noun hawan, pl. ahwā ‘passion’ W 1040] longing, strong inclination, lust, passion, desire, hope, plan

Basi/ baaba/ chimtokomeza/ na chilawa/ karka hawaze. ‘So father abandoned him and [lit.] went away from his inclinations (referring in this particular example sentence to his youngest boy’s propensity for playing in the kitchen) [i.e. he forsook him].’
hawa za nafsi ‘desires, wishes, passions, lusts, cravings for worldly things’ lataani hawa za nafsi tala dhibu [st.] ‘don’t obey [lit. let go] passions, forbear [lit. take difficulty]’ Siraashé/ hawa za nafsi. ‘Don’t follow (obey) the soul’s desires!’
Hawazo/ ni niingi. ‘Your hopes, desires etc. are (too) many.’
Kubadilaa hawa/ ni suura. ‘To change the air (i.e. go someplace different and get a change of environment and perspective) is good.’
munt^hu mwenyee hawa ‘a daydreamer, a person who talks big but does little’
Nazoo hawa. ‘He has lofty, unreasonably high ambitions.’
Omari/ hawaze/ ni niingi. ‘Omari’s hopes, desires are (too) many.’
need examples of [cl.9] usage

- Haawa n. [Sw. hawa SSED 130; Ar. ??] Eve
- hawaaji n. 10 [Som. xawaash, var. xawaaj DSI 629] a mixture of cumin and coriander Hawaaji/ hufanyaa kuja/ taamu. ‘Curry spices make food taste good.’
- hawaala n. 9/10 [Sw. hawala SSED 130; Ar. hawāla W 218] letter of authorization to pay a sum of money to a person; it can be, and most often was, sent to individuals, e.g. a merchant in another town, with whom the sender had business relations; a company making such money transfers Ameerika/ ziko hawaala/ niingi/ za khtukuzowa peesa/ Soomáaliya. ‘In America there are many money transfer companies to send money to Somalia.’
khfanya hawaala ‘to obtain a hawaala’; also: khfanyowa hawaala (passive) Alí/ fanyize hawaala/ Mkhodiisho/ peesa/ niingi. ‘Ali transferred a lot of money to Mogadishu.’
Omari/ hadiile/ ziko peesa/ niingi/ apa/ zinakhsuḷa khfanyowa hawaala/ khtukuzowa Miini. ‘Omari said: there is a lot of money here that needs to be sent to Miini.’
Sheekhi/ oshela hawalaani/ kumtukuliza maamaye/ peesa/ Miini. ‘Sheekhi went to a money transfer company to send money to his mother in Miini.’
- ku-hawaalisha v. (hawalishiize) obtain a hawaala Alí/ mhawalishize waawaye/ ka Dahashiili/ doolari/ miya/ nt^haano. ‘Ali transferred at Dahashiil company to his father 500 dollars.’
- ku-hawaara v. [Som. verb habaar DSI 287] (hawariile or habariile) curse; [pron. kuhawaara or kuhabaara] Muunt^hu/ kumhawara mweenziwe/ bilaa sababu/ siwo/ suura. ‘For one to curse his friends is not good.’
Ziko/ ba’aḍi ya zizeele/ hupeenda/ kuhawara want^hu. ‘There are some old ladies who like to curse people.’
rel.
ku-hawaarika v. p/s.
Abú/ hahawaariki/ nazoo du’a/ za maamaye. ‘Abu cannot be cursed; he has the blessings of his mother.’
ku-hawariḷa v. appl. (hawariile) Nuuru/mwambile Sheekhi/ namhawariḷani/ Hasani/ ismu ya jawaabu/ mbovu/ nt^hakhfaanya. ‘Nuuru said to Sheekhi: for what are you cursing Hasani? he didn’t do anything bad.’
ku-hawariḷoowa v. appl. pass. (hawariḷa)

Omari/ hawarila na waawaye/ hamkasi/ koodi. ‘Omari is being cursed by his father, he does not listen to what his father says.’

- hawaarane n. someone cursed Hawaarane/ haliwaani. ‘Someone cursed does not succeed.’
- hawaari n. 9/10 [Som. noun habaar DSI 287] curse
Hawaari/ nt^haziná/ walaali. ‘Curses not have brotherhood.’ (This proverb conveys the idea that a cursed person is not a member of the family/community etc., does not behave in a way that recognizes brotherhood with others.)
- Hawaayi n. a village near Brava Hawaayi/ maduuriye/ mishaka/ yabigileene/ jiq!/ gaari/ ha’ikhaadiri/ khpita. ‘Hawaayi, its forest is thick, jiq!, a lorry cannot pass.’
- haweesa n. 9/10 a wooden vessel for carrying and storing milk; [pron. haweesa or habeesa]
Haweesa/ hotezowa ka lbaani/ hununk^ha miskhi/ na jeermi/ hubla. ‘A wooden vessel is smoked with incense, it smells nice and it kills germs.’
Walakata/ hiska iziwa/ khfanya igoroori/ khtomola toomu/ ka haweesa. ‘Bush people shake milk to thicken it and extract curd using a haweesa.’
rel.
i-haweesa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- haya interj. variant form: haye
Haya/ chilawe. ‘Well, let’s go.’
Haye/ isa/ teena/ mi/ nakendrá. ‘Well now then I am going.’
Haye/ nakump^ha pesaa kamú. ‘Well, how much money will you give me?’
Haye/ nini/ nayo amri gani. ‘Well, what affair (matter, etc.) do you have (e.g. that brings you here to see me)?’
- haya n. 9 [Sw. haya SSED 131; Ar. ḥayā’ W 220] shame, modesty (Observe that haya does not trigger lengthening of a preceding word-final vowel in the phrase. This suggests that the word has an abstract structure CVCCV; however, a superficial CVCV word that has this behavior pattern typical derives from an Arabic word with medial gemination. The Arab source of the present word, however, does not have gemination. Perhaps the long vowel in the second syllable in the Arabic word plays a role in rendering the word inappropriate for a preceding word-final vowel to be lengthened.)
konyesha haya ‘to show, reveal shame’ Ha’onyeshi/ haya. ‘He does not show shame.’
kuwanayo haya ‘to have shame’
Nt^haná/ haya. ‘He has no shame.’
We/ nt^huná/ haya. ‘You do not have a sense of shame.’
kuwona haya ‘to be embarrassed, ashamed’
Muhtaaji/ hawoni/ haya. ‘The needy person does not feel shame.’ (A proverb.)
Stiyé/ walá/ siwona/ haya. ‘Don’t be afraid nor feel embarrassed.’
Mi/ anakuwonaa hayá/ ka khisa wanafakhi waa mi/ nk^hoðeeló. ‘I am ashamed because of the lie that I told.’
munt^hu mwenye haya ‘a modest person’
- hayatamo n. a game in which players carry a long stick and a short piece of wood, which they launch by hitting it with the stick; the opponent has to run and get it and, if successful, tries to hit with it the “goal”, represented by a can; [pron. hayatámó]

hayaati

n. [Sw. hayati “departed, deceased” SSED 131, though this Swahili usage is rather removed from the Arabic use of the word; Ar. ḥayāh “life” W 220] life Mi/ ndimi/ nfuzilo nafsiyá/ karka hayaati/ amó/ ndimi/ maquudí. ‘Is it me who tied himself up in life or is it me who is tied down?’

Mi/ siisi/ yo yote/ karka hayaati/ inakuuyó. ‘I do not know anything of the life to come.’

Mukhtaa ye/ peto miiri/ langalile kubli/ na kusootó/ laakini/ nt^hakuwona/ alaama/ ya hayaati/ karka jaziira. ‘When he regained consciousness, he looked to the right and to the left, but he did not see a sign of life on the island.’

Ni chiint^hu/ mbovu/ kabisá/ kumtilaa shaka/ muunt^hu/ waa we/ mwaminiló/ hayaatiyó/ yont^hé. ‘It is a terrible thing to doubt someone you have trusted all your life.’

rel.

u-hayaati n. 14 the state of being alive

ka uhayaati apa mooja mweeshele [st.] ‘God put him there alive’ ka uhayaati ye panziiza kuzimu [st.] ‘in his aliveness he (i.e. Jesus) was lifted to heaven’

hayaathi

n. a kind of dance review

hayawaani (Ø, ma-, mi-)

n. 9/10 [Sw. hayawani “(1) brute, beast; (2) a person just like an animal, i.e. shameless, stupid, brute. idiot” SSED 131; Ar. ḥayawān W 220] animal

Apo/ zamaani/ hayawaani/ za maduuri/ washishiila oni. ‘Once upon a time animals of the bush became thirsty.’

Badala yaa we/ kumtaala/ kumfanya kama mwaanawo/ kumdhoora/ kama maaoyo/ kuja naaye/ yaa we/ naakujó/ we/ amurilee ye/ khpowa zaakujá/ za hayawaani. ‘Instead of you taking him and making him your child, protecting him like your eyes, eating with him whatever you eat, you ordered him to be given food [fit for] animals.’

Chiwona/ kuwa hayawaani/ uyu/ ni jisa/ maamaye/ msifiliilo. ‘He saw that this beast was just as his mother had described it.’

hayawani niingi ‘many beasts’; mihayawani miingi ‘many beasts’

Hayawaani/ zotte/ scheendra/ schimlata ngombe waa gisi/ apo. ‘All the animals went and left behind the buffalo there.’

Na oko maduriini/ ziko hayawaani/ niingi/ na dughaaghi/ niingi. ‘And there in the bush there are many animals and (there are) many beasts.’ (Observe the lack of final accent in na dughaaghi, despite the fact that na ordinarily triggers final accent on a following nominal conjunct. Although more research is merited, we expect the absence of final accent here is due to the fact that there is an omitted verb in front of dughaaghi – i.e. na ziko dughaaghi, and na does not trigger final accent in the case of conjoined verbs.)

Omari/ lele maduriini/ bishilee muo/ jisaa ye/ kudhora mahayawaani. ‘Omari slept in the bush and made a fire so as to protect himself from animals.’

Siwo/ zakuja za hayawaani. ‘These are not foods for animals.’

Ye/ ni hayawaani/ mwenye makri/ na khadad’á. ‘It is an animal that has tricks and deceits.’

rel.

chi-hayawaani (zi-) n. 7/8

Mp^hana/ ni chihayawaani/ chihaba/ huchileteloo dhibu/ na udiyá. ‘A rat is a small animal who brings to us harm and nuisance.’

u-hayawaani n. 14 [Sw. uhayawani “the condition, state, characteristics, etc., of a brute, beast, etc.” SSED 131]

hayaay

ideo.

Hayaay! lagaŋa Omari/ shati yaa ye/ veetó/ inakuwala/ inakuzima.
 ‘Wow! look at the shirt Omari is wearing, it is flashing (lit. it shines, it goes).’

hayee interj. ok, yes; hey; well
Haye/ chilaweni wowiini. ‘Well, let us go to the river.’
Haye/ jawaabu/ ziko jis’iyo. ‘OK, [so] the situation is like this.’
Haye/ lete wahaliwe. ‘OK, bring the other one [lit. its companion].’
Haye/ mpelekele. ‘Alright, take it to him.’
Haye/ mzeele. ‘Hey, old woman!’
Haye/ maama. ‘Yes, mother.’
Haye/ nakhsuulani. ‘Yes, what do you want?’

hayee ideo. a warning of something dangerous
Hayée! Faatima/ mambile maanawe/ sisoongé/ apo/ yikoo mulo/ itakhupiisha.
 ‘Hayee! Faatima told her child: don’t go near that, it is fire, it will burn you.’ (The ideophone hayee in this example is pronounced with a high pitch on the word-final long vowel; we indicate this high pitch with the acute sign over the first mora of the vowel, but it should be noted that the high pitch continues to the second mora: there is no fall to the pitch. We have not determined whether the pitch shape of the ideophone is consistent in all instances of its use.)

hayi adj. [Sw. hai SSED 123; Ar. hayy W 220] alive (Although we did not record this word with gemination of the y, the failure of hayi to trigger lengthening of a preceding word-final vowel, as in ni hayi and chiko hayi below, is perhaps a reflection of the geminate nature of the Arabic source word.)
ba’adi ya hayi ni mowti/ Sheekhi chifa isiŋoowa [st.] ‘after life comes death; when the Sheikh dies, no one should weep’ chiŋama cha chiint^hu hayi haraamu/ hadiŋo Sheekhi Shaafi’i imaamu [st.] ‘pieces of flesh of living things are forbidden, as stated by the Imam Shaykh al-Shaafi’i’ chiint^hu hayi khtila mulooni khatari [st.] ‘to put s.t. alive in fire is dangerous (i.e. something not permitted by the religion)’ ipana ihayi ‘a live aug. rat’; mipana mihayi ‘live aug. rats’
Ka paapo/ chiiwa/ kuwa mwanamkewe/ ni hayi/ na umo jahaziini. ‘At once he knew that his daughter was alive and in the boat.’
Kana hayi/ hukooŋa/ mba na/ hubiga mikele. ‘A live mouth talks and what about a dog, it barks (i.e. if one is alive, then one must talk).’ (A translation of a Somali proverb.)
Khadija hayi mtume nt’akuloola [st.] ‘during Khadija’s life (i.e. while Khadija was alive) the Prophet did not marry (any other wife)’ maamé/ kawa hayi ‘if my mother were alive’ mp^hana hayi ‘a live rat/ live rats’ Munt^hu uje/ ni hayi. ‘That man is alive – i.e. energetic, active.’
muti hayi ‘a live tree’; miti hayi ‘live trees’ Naasi/ chiko hayi... ‘And we who are alive...’
shpana chihayi ‘a live dim. mouse’ spana zihayi ‘live dim. mice’ want^hu hayi ‘alive, active, energetic people’
Ye/ nakamina kuwa mwaanawe/ nt^haasa/ ni hayi. ‘She believed her son to be still alive.’
Ye/ tiyiile/ kishkiŋa/ ka mutiini/ ka khisa/ ye/ tosheeze/ kuwaa ndovu/ nt^haasa/ ni hayi. ‘He was afraid to come down from the tree because he thought that the elephant was still alive.’
Ye/ waliko mweenza/ wa mwaana/ wa sultaani/ nt^hangú/ waawaye/ waliko hayi. ‘He was a friend of the son of the sultan since his father was alive.’
 rel.
u-hayi n. 14 the condition of being alive, living

- he interj. an expression of warning
Muunt^hu/ chiza khkasa/ he! he!/ akhiriye/ huwona yaale. ‘If one does not listen to warnings, in the end he gets what he deserves.’
Nuuru/ waanawe/ hawa’ambili/ he!/ nt^hawana/ adabu/ rabshoole. ‘Nuuru does not tell his children he!, they have no discipline, they are troublesome.’
- heeba n. 9/(10) [Sw. haiba SSED 123; Ar. haiba “reverence, esteem, respect” W 1042] character, personality, dignity, prestige, good appearance muunt^hu/ heebaye ‘the man’s character’ review
munt^hu mwenye heeba ‘a man of character, dignity’
Nguwo zaa ye/ veetó/ zimpele heeba/ na ujamaalá. ‘The clothes that he wore gave him dignity and beauty.’
Nt^haná/ heeba. ‘He has no character.’
- ku-hebela v. [cf. Ar. n. hiba “gift” and v. wahaba “to present, donate” W 1102] (hebelelele) give s.t. non-perishable freely, not expecting anything in return Na yaa ye/ peetó/ yote/ mhebelele mooje. ‘And whatever he got, he gave freely to his master.’
- heedari n. a name used for Ali, cousin and son-in-law of the Prophet; also used as a male proper name kumpeenda heedari Ali stoshe haba [st.] ‘to love Heedhari Ali, don’t think it insignificant’
- heehata an expression, repeated, indicating that something is utterly impossible Hamadi/ wa taajiri/ khpata maali/ ni heehata/ heehata. ‘Hamadi be rich, to get money, no way, it’s not going to happen.’
Jawaabu/ iyo/ khtuluka/ ni heehata/ heehata. ‘For that to happen is absolutely impossible, it can never happen.’
Jawaabu/ iyo/ kuwa/ ni heehata/ heehata. ‘For that thing, matter, whatever was be seing spoken of, to be (what happens) is absolutely impossible, it can never happen.’
- hena n. 9 [Sw. hina SSED 133; Ar. hinnā’ W 209] henna – red dye obtained from the dried and powdered leaves of the plant Lawsonia Inermis; it is applied to the hands and feet by women and to (white) hair and beard by men (Observe below that a preceding word-final vowel is lengthened in front of hena. This behavior suggests that the original Arabic gemination of the n in this word no longer functions as a mora in Chimiini prosody.) khpakaa hena ‘to apply hena’
- ku-hengaheenga uncertain) v. [?Sw. hangaika “to be troubled, anxious” SSED 126] (perfect form) pace back and forth in a perplexed or confused manner; wobble Hamadi/ nakuhengaheenga. ‘Hamadi is pacing back and forth perplexed.’
- hera n. [Som.] camp
variant form: hira
Ma’askari/ yanakudariboowa/ heraani/ hiila/ za harbi. ‘Soldiers are being trained in the camp (about) strategies of war.’
Waant^hu/ wa Mwiini/ wapisile qahri/ niingi/ hera ya qahooti/ Mambasa. ‘The people of Brava endured a lot of hardship/ coercion etc. in a refugee camp in Mombasa.’
Zamaani/ waant^hu/ wawanayo juḍaamú/ washfanyilizowaa dawa/ heraani/ Jilibu. ‘During old times people with leprosy used to be treated at a camp in Jilib.’

- herge adj. thick
Dawa iyi/ ni herge. ‘This ink is thick.’
Iziwa ishu/ iherge/ huzoowa/ sukhuuni/ Miini/ ni ghaali/ kolko/ iziwa maayi. ‘Thick fresh milk is sold at the market in Miini it is more expensive than thin (watery) milk.’
Iziwaye/ iherge. ‘His milk is thick.’
Kahawa iyi/ ni herge. ‘This coffee is thick/strong.’
Ranji iyi/ ya Hamadi/ nakubigilo likutá/ ni herge/ inasula haba mooyi/ khkabilowa maayi. ‘This paint that Hamadi is painting the wall with is thick, it needs a little water to be added.’
- ku-hergelata v. [Som. hargal “to be a guest, rest in the shade, rest in the middle of the day” DSI 300; Tun. hergel- Tosco 216] (hergeleete) take a rest, a nap (esp. refers to the resting that is done during the hottest part of the day); spend the day
Miini/ waant^{bu}/ shpiindri/ ba’adi ya kujaa khaða/ wachihergelata haba mooyi/ haṭá/ aḏaana/ ya lapili. ‘People in Miini, at noon after lunch used to take a little nap until the calling for the afternoon prayer.’
Omari/ oshale numbaani/ ka mweenzawe/ kuhergelata/ chiṭa/ chinamlaazó/ haba mooyi. ‘Omari went to his friend’s house to have a nap, his head is aching him a little.’
rel.
ku-hergelatoowa v. pass. (hergeleeta)
Nṭhi za iwa/ kuhergelatoowa/ haba mooyi/ shpiindri/ haṭá/ lapili/ ni afiya. ‘In hot countries, to take a nap from noon until afternoon is healthy.’
- hergeleeteeyi [Som. hargal, Tun. hergel] how did you spend your day (lit. the middle or hottest part of the day)? – a greeting used in late afternoon or evening; also, a more Somalized form of this evening greeting is used: hergesha.)
- hergeli n. nap, siesta
Nṭhi za iwa/ hergeli/ haba mooyi/ shpiindri/ haṭá/ lapili/ ni afiya. ‘In hot countries, to take a nap from noon until afternoon is healthy.’
- heero n. 9/10 [Som. xeero DSI 631] a kind of shallow wooden bowl, the size of a soup plate, used mainly to serve coffee beans fried in clarified butter Heero/ ivundishile. ‘The bowl broke.’
heero/ yaa zijo or hero yaa zijo ‘a bowl of zijo’ Want^u wa zamaani/ wachijaa zijo/ ka heero. ‘People of olden times ate zijo with a heero.’
rel.
chi-heero (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
chihero chaa buni ‘a little heero used as a serving container of fried coffee beans with a lot of steaming oil’
- heshiisi n. 9/10 [Som.] an agreement heshishi iyi ‘this agreement’ (cf. heshishi izi ‘these agreements’) Shalayeete/ kingila heshiisi/ na Omari/ kula gaari. ‘He regretted entering into an agreement with Omari to buy a car.’
- heshma n. 9 [Sw. hishima SSED ???; Ar.] respect variant forms: hishma, heshema
Ama/ muke/ uje/ walimo numba iwaliko lpandre la kusootó/ waliko nii muke/ msuura/ ka akhlaakhi/ mwenye naharisi/ na heshmá. ‘As for the wife who was in the house on the left hand side, she was a woman beautiful with good manners and respect.’

Apo/ wo/ washpanana salaamu/ ka adabu/ na heshmá. ‘There they extended greetings to one another with good manners and respect.’
Humheshmo muunt^hú/ naayé/ huheshmoowa. ‘He who respects people and he is respected.’ (A proverb.)
kufanya heshema ‘to show respect’
Muunt^hu/ husuḷa khfanya heshema/ karka want^hu wazima. ‘A person must show respect when among elders.’
Sultaani/ naayé/ chimpa/ chizeele/ salaamu/ ka heshma. ‘The sultan, and he, gave the old woman greetings with respect.’

ku-heshma

v. [see hishma below] [Sw. heshimu SSED 132; cf. Ar. ḥasama “to be modest, shy” and n. ḥisma “modesty, decorum” W 179] (heshmeele) respect someone (note the difference in meaning with respect to the Arabic); show respect for s.o. (e.g. by honoring a guest) kumheshma/ kana mzeelewa ‘to respect him like one’s parent’

Liini/ chinheshmó. ‘She never respected me.’

Ye/ huheshma want^hu. ‘He respects people.’

rel.

ku-heshmana v. rec. respect one another ku-heshmoowa v. pass. (heshmeeḷa)

Abdalla/ heshmeeḷa/ nt^ho/ na sulṭaani/ na wenye nt^hi wont^hé. ‘Abdalla was respected very much by the sultan and all the natives.’

heshmaale

adj. respectful

Omari/ ni heshmaale. ‘Omari is respectful (i.e. he respects, honors people).’

Waant^hu/ humpeenda/ munt^hu heshmaale. ‘People like someone who is respectful.’ Or: Waant^hu/ humpeenda/ muunt^hu/ heshmaale.

hewesi

n. 9/10 [cf. Som. xabad “chest” DSI 619] chest; [pron. hewesi or hebesi]

kubiga hewesi [lit.] to hit the chest -- i.e. to declare one’s readiness for an undertaking and extend one’s financial assistance for such an undertaking’

Sheekhi/ bishile hewesiye/ hadiile/ ndimi/ ṭamsaydo Nuurú/ kuwaka nuumbayé. ‘Sheekhi hit his chest and said it’s me who will help Nuuru build his house.’

Omari/ mishpaye/ heweesi/ hisabaṭika. ‘Omari, the bones of his ribcage, are countable (i.e. he is so thin).’

rel.

chi-hewesi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-hewesi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

check Tunni form

hidaaya

n. 9 [Ar. hidāya W 1024] (divine) guidance

Mooja ni kaako hidaaya/ chi’arzuqe si imaani [st.] ‘O God, guidance is yours [lit. is at your place, is with you], grant us faith’

Mwajiitu/ nakhishkiliza hidaaya. ‘May God send down for you his divine guidance.’

hiiḍi

n. 9 [Sw. hedhi SSED 131; SSED refers to the Arabic verb ḥaḍḍa and noun ḥaḍḍ “incitement, prodding” W 183, but this meaning does not correlate with the meaning in Swahili and Chimiini] menstruation, a woman’s period chilawa karka hiiḍi na uzele/ muke sho koowa nt^hana ndila beele [st.] ‘when menstruation and the laying-in after childbirth is over, a woman who does not bathe has no path (to follow), she is lost’ kingila hiiḍi ‘to menstruate’ kowa hiiḍi ‘to bathe, as required by Islamic practice, after menstruating’ kuwamo hiiḍiini ‘to be having one’s period’ kuwanayo hiiði ‘to be menstruating’ Nayo hiiði. ‘She is having her period.’

kuwona hiiði ‘to begin to menstruate’ mweepuke muke hiiði sho khṭindika/ chimdaara mweenziwe sala huuundika [st.] ‘avoid a woman whose menstrual period has not ended, if her companion touches her, the prayers are broken, invalid’ wabḷi ka mashoga waṭomeele tele/ wamereele ruuhu ki’ipelekaa mbele/ Mooja wa’ilize hiiði na mawele [nt.] ‘men decided to wear women’s black wraps trying to save themselves, [but] God did not give them a woman’s shape [lit. menstruation and breasts]’

- hifði n. memorization hifði/ na ṭajwiiḍi ‘the memorization and accurate recitation of the Quran’
- hija n. 9 [Ar. hijja W 156] Hajj, the pilgrimage to Mecca muke sku za hija uso hafniki [st.] ‘a woman should not cover her face during the pilgrimage’ muuntu naayo maali chifa bilaa hija [st.] ‘if a person who is wealthy dies without performing the pilgrimage’ safari ya hija faanya khafiifu [st.] ‘make the pilgrimage easy’ waruzuqe hija ije makbuuli [st.] ‘grant them [to perform] a pilgrimage that is acceptable [to you, God]’ ya nafsi shpata maali ṭomola zaka/ numa ni waajibu hija keendra Maka [st.] ‘oh mortals, if you get money, give alms; after (that) it is obligatory to go on the pilgrimage to Mecca’ ya taano ni hija ka muuntu khaadiri [st.] ‘the fifth (pillar of Islam) is the pilgrimage to Mecca for the person who is able (can afford to undertake it)’
- ku-hija v. [Sw. hiji SSED 123; Ar. hajja W 156] (hijiile) go on the pilgrimage to Mecca muuntu hijiilo amriye siwo haba [st.] ‘the man who performs the pilgrimage, his deed is not a small one’ takuhijo jima mpeeni yakhiino/ awaabuze kama hija sab’iini [st.] ‘the one who performs the pilgrimage on Friday, let him be assured that his reward is as though he had performed the pilgrimage seventy times’ wa’enzelo wanaahije ṭimaamu [st.] ‘may those who go on the pilgrimage perform it well, completely’
- rel.
ku-hijisha v. caus. provide the means for someone to go on the pilgrimage to Mecca; help someone perform all the prescribed duties of the pilgrimage to Mecca
- hijaa’i n. [Ar. hijā’ W 1020] alphabet
- ku-hijaabata v. (hijabeete) die (an euphemistic, more polite than kufa) Omari/ hijabeete. ‘Omari died.’
- hijaabu n. 9 [Sw. hijabu SSED 133; Ar. hijāb W 156] swellings that appear on various parts of the body (traditionally treated with the substance sab’iini) – the etymology of this meaning is unknown; something that protects one; anything in between that screens off, divides bila hijaabu ye meene rahmaani [st.] ‘without anything standing in the way he saw God’ Hirzi/ ni hijaabu. ‘Hirzi is something that protects one.’
- hikaaya n. 9/10 [Sw. hekaya SSED 131; Ar. W 198] story
- hikh dheere n. [Som. qiix-dheer, kix-dheer] whooping cough whooping cough.’

Hamadi/ waanawe/ wapete hikhdeere. [H’H!H] ‘Hamadi’s children got Maraði/ ya hikhdeere/ yanameeró/ sku mbili izi. [H’H!H!H] ‘Whooping cough is going around these days.’ (The pseudo-relativization of the verb yanameero is an indication of the presence of focus in the subject. The subject is separated into two Phonological Phrases, with declination between them. This perhaps could be taken as an indication that it is the PP maraði which triggers the focus, but we have not sorted out whether there is a contrast with respect to which of the two phrases is the trigger for pseudo-relativization.)

hikma n. 9/10 [Sw. hekima SSED 137; Ar. ḥikma W 196] wisdom

Baaba/ mtume Yaaquubu/ waliko ni muunt^hu/ mwenye ilmu/ aqli/ na hikmá/ mwajiitu/ mpeeló. ‘The father, the prophet Jacob, was a man having knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom, which God had given him.’

hikmaye or hikmaze ‘his wisdom’

mwenye hikma ‘wise’

ku-hiila v. solve

Sababu/ ya safari/ iyi/ itaakuwa/ ni kumeera/ kuhila/ ba’aði/ ya mashaakili/ yasabibiiló/ makosanyó/ benaa nḥi/ izii mbili. ‘The reason for this trip will be to seek to solve some of the problems that have caused misunderstandings between these two countries.’

hiiki n. [Sw. hiliki SSED 133, from Hindi] cardamon. a spice commonly used in Brava to flavor tea, rice dishes, cakes, etc.

hiila n. [Sw. hila SSED 133; Ar. hīla W 217] trick, means of doing something, tactic, strategy

Chiint^hu/ haypatikani ka hiilá/ kaa nguvu/ ha’ipatoowi. ‘Something that cannot be gotten by strategy cannot be gotten with force.’ (A proverb.)

Dokhani/ hiila/ ntḥaná/ maali/ ntḥaná. ‘Stupidity has no strategy and has no wealth.’ (A saying.)

ka hiila ‘sneakingly, deviously, cleverly’ khfanya hiila ‘to devise, find ways, means, tricks to get s.t.’

Hila gani/ yaa si/ shḥakhadiro khfaanyá. ‘What tricks are we able to devise?’

Hiila/ yaa si/ shḥakhadiro khfaanyá/ na chiza kumwangamiza wawa yitú/ ntḥayiiko. ‘There is no strategy that we can devise and not disrespectfully wrong our father.’

Shfanya hiila/ yingine/ teena/ ye. ‘He made another trick again.’

Ma’askari/ yanakudariboowa/ heraani/ hiila/ za harbi. ‘Soldiers are being trained in the camp (about) strategies of war.’

Mshinzile aduwi/ ka hiila/ na basará. ‘He defeated the enemy with tricks and astuteness.’

mwenye hiila ‘a tricky or devious person who finds a means to attain an end in whatever way possible; s.o. with a knack for doing things, s.o. who always has a way to get things done’

Na isá/ ye/ nakhsuḥa kishkhada’a/ ka hiilaze. ‘And now he wants to cheat us with his tricks.’

Naank^hó/ tumila hiilazo/ jisaa we/ khpata muḥjiwo/ khuruudila. ‘Again, use your tricks so that you get your husband to remarry[lit. return to] you.’

Wachisuḥa kumuḥḥa ka hiila. ‘They wanted to kill him using deceit.’

hiloowu n. [Som. hilow DSI 308] longing

khshikowa hiloowu ‘to feel longing (for person, thing, place)’

Nshishila hiloowuyé. ‘I am longing for him/her (lit. I was caught by his/her longing).’

hima

n. 9 [Sw. hima SSED 133; Ar. himma W 1033] enthusiasm, willingness, effort ; [pron. hima or himma] (We sometimes recorded this item with gemination, but this gemination does not seem to be a consistent feature of pronunciation. However, the failure of a preceding word-final vowel to lengthen, as in ka hima can be interpreted as a reflection of the gemination found in the Arabic source word.)

Fanya hima. ‘Do the best!’

Hima. ‘Hurry up!’

Hima/ oloka. ‘Hurry up and go!’

Hima/ seendre. ‘Don’t go!’ review

hima yaa ye/ fanyiizó ‘the effort that he made’

Himma/ chidirke ruhu ziitu. ‘Hurry, let us save ourselves!’

ka hima ‘quickly, soon, early’

Fanya ka hima. ‘Hurry up!’

Ja ka hima. ‘Eat quickly!’ Or: Ka hima/ ja.

Ka hima/ Hamiisi/ bishile mpiira. ‘Quickly, Hamiisi kicked the ball.’

Ka ^hhima/ Muusa/ jiló. ‘Quickly Muusa ate.’ Or with the postposing of the subject: Ka ^hhima/ jiló/ Muusa. (The verb in this example is strongly downstepped; the postposed subject is yet lower in pitch, but not radically so. We still consider this to be a case of right dislocation. Incorporating the postposed subject into a phrase with the verb was rejected: Ka ^hhima/ jilo Muusá.)

Ka ^hhima/ Muusa/ jilo maandra. ‘Quickly Muusa ate the bread.’ Or with additional emphasis on the verb: Ka ^hhima/ Muusa/ jiló/ maandra. Or with right dislocation of the subject: Ka ^hhima/ jilo maandra/ Muusa. Or with right dislocation of subject and emphasis on the verb: Ka ^hhima/ jiló/ maanda/ Muusa. (In these cases of right dislocation, the preceding phrase is already downstepped, and it is not so obvious that there is any greater degree of lowering associated with right dislocation in comparison to other sort of elements in this position. Perhaps the right dislocated subject is associated with a small pause, but this matter has not been extensively investigated.)

Mi/ nakhsulaa we/ kuya apa/ ka hima. ‘I want you to come here early.’

Muunt^hu/ husuloowa/ ba’adi ya ziint^hu/ khfanya ka hima. ‘It is needed for someone to do something quickly, readily.’

Mp^ha majiibu/ ka hima. ‘Give me an answer quickly.’

Muusa/ jile ka hima. ‘Muusa ate quickly.’ Or with verb focus: Muusa/ jiile/ ka hima.

Muusa/ jile maandra/ ka hima. ‘Muusa ate the bread quickly.’ Or, with verb focus: Muusa/ jiile/ maandra/ ka hima.

Mwaanawa/ nakhkula ka hima. ‘My child is growing up quickly.’

Ni ka hima/ kiwowa naani/ t^hakhshiindró. ‘It is very early to be known who is going to win.’

Nakosha usoowá/ ka himá. ‘I am washing my face quickly.’

Sh^htakhsafira ka hima. ‘We will leave soon.’

Surwani za jiiinis/ hazimali/ ka hima. ‘Jeans [trousers] do not wear out quickly.’

Yaliko ka hima/ khfikiri^hla khchiimbila. ‘It was not too early to think about fleeing.’

Yaliko ka hima/ mi/ kuruda M^wiini. ‘I was early coming back to Brava.’

Kheeri/ hima/ naambila/ nakhsuulani/ ka kaaka/ nimfanyilize ka upeesi. ‘That’s a blessing; hurry, tell me what he wants from me so that I can do it quickly.’

khtila hima ‘to prod [lit. to put in willingness]’

kondroka hima

Hamadi/ hima/ imwondroshele/ nakhsul^a khfungulaa duka.

‘Hamadi is eager, he wants to open a shop.’

kondrosha hima ‘(lit. to raise, lift enthusiasm) become more keen to do s.t.’

Omari/ ondrosheze hima/ nakhsul^a kuloola. [H^hH!H] ‘Omari is eager, he wants to get married.'

kuvundika hima 'to lose interest'

Alí/ vundishile hima/ ba/ nakoloka Mkhodiisho. 'Ali lost interest in going to Mogadishu.'

Mi/ nvundishile himá/ ba/ ba'aða ya Hamadi/ kunfasiriĵaa mi/ zombo izo. 'I lost interest after Hamadi explained to me those things.'

kondrosha hima 'to prod [lit. to raise the willingness]' kuvunda hima 'to make someone lose his enthusiasm'

Nt^haná/ hima. 'He has no enthusiasm.'

rel.

hima hima n. quickness (Phon. It is striking that while hima itself behaves like a CVCCV noun in failing to trigger lengthening in front of it, in the reduplicated structure shown here hima behaves like a CVCV noun and the second hima triggers lengthening on the preceding occurrence of hima.)

ka himaa hima 'speedily, frantically'

Mi/ hupika na mapeema/ waana/ wanapatee kuja/ ka himaa hima/ wanarude ruuhu. 'I cook early so that the children can get their strength, energy back.'

Muĵiwo/ siwo/ takhadiro kuruda ka himaa himá. 'Your husband is not one who will be able to return quickly.'

Na ndrazilé/ ka ngoziini/ ka himaa hima. 'And I got out from inside the skin (used to carry me) quickly.'

Sarmaĵa/ ka himaa hima/ shfakata/ chiya numbaani. 'The carpenter quickly ran away and came home.'

ku-himila

v. [Sw. himili SSED 126; Ar. hamala "to bear, endure" and himl "burden" W 206-7] (himiliile) withstand, endure, forbear, put up with, tolerate Nimhimiliilé/ Omari. 'I tolerated Omari.'

Numba ya uloongo/ hayhimili/ zishiindro. 'A house of mud cannot withstand shocks.' (A proverb.)

Omari/ nimhimiliilé. 'Omari, I endured/tolerated him.'

rel.

ku-himilila v. appl.

Siná/ sababu yaa mi/ kumhimilila Omari. 'I have no reason to put up with ku-himiloowa v. pass.

Omari.'

Dhibu/ ya duniya/ huhimiloowa. 'Difficulties/ troubles of the world are to be endured.' (A saying.)

ku-himilika v. be endured

Khalbi/ ulaazowe/ ha'uhimiliki. 'The heart its pain cannot be endured.'

Ulaazo/ wa mahaba/ ha'uhimiliki (or: hawhimiliki). 'The pain of love cannot be endured.'

rel. nom.

m-himila (wa-) n. 1/2

Hiindi

n. India

bahari ya Hiindi or tawala ya Hiindi 'Indian Ocean'

m-hiindi (wa-)

n. 1/2 an Indian

Sultaani/ mooyi/ karkaa nt^{hi}/ za wahiindi/ zaĵiĵa mwiimbili/ mooyi/ yee peeke. 'There was a sultan in the lands of the Indians who had born to him only one son.'

rel.

chi-hindi n. the Hindi language

Baduwi/ nt^hachiiwa/ chihindi. 'The nomad did not know Hindi.'

Ikofiyaani/ andishile shi'iri/ ka chihindi. 'On the hat he wrote a poem in Hindi.'

M(w)aana/ chimjiiba/ ka khisa karka chim(w)iini/ zimo jawaabu/ za chisoomaali/ za shtalyaani/ za chingereenza/ za chaarabu/ za chihindi/ haĵa/ jawabu za majini/ zimo. 'The child answered him, Because in Chimwiini there are words from Somali, from Italian, from English, from Arabic, from Hindi, even words of the djinns are in it.’

Sultaani/ mooyi/ karkaa nt^hi/ za wahiindi/ zalila mwiimbili/ mooyi/ yee/ peeke. ‘A sultan in India had only one child.’

hingaaði

n. 9 spelling

Nuuru/ waanawe/ wakali/ hingaaði/ skojaani. ‘Nuuru his children are good in spelling at school.’

Waana/ chiwooni/ ka Dada Hiine/ hingaaði/ jisa suura/ wachibarshoowá. ‘Children at the koranic school of Daada Hiine used to be taught spelling very well.’

ku-hingaaðisha

v. [Som. higgaadi DSI 307] (hingaaðishiize) spell

Wana wa Sheekhi/ hawabaraṭi/ chiint^hu/ hatá/ harfu chihaba/ hawakhaadiri/ kingaaðisha. ‘The children of Sheekhi don’t learn a thing, even a small word they cannot spell it.’

hingo

n. [Som. hingo DSI 309] hiccup (the more common word for ‘hiccup’ is geefu)

hinzizi

n. 9/10 [Som. xidid “root, vein” DSI 631; Tun. hindis “root” Tosco 217] vein, nerve, root (of a plant)’ hinzizi ya maazi ‘blood vessel’

Dawa/ hingila karka hinzizi ya maazi. ‘Medicine goes into the blood vessels.’

Hamadi/ hinzizi ya maazi/ imatushiló. ‘Hamadi’s blood vessel was cut (to him).’

Hamadi/ hinzizi ya maazi/ zifurifuriile. ‘Hamadi has swollen blood vessels.’

hinzizi za dereemu ‘nerves’

Hamadi/ hinzizi za dareemuze/ sfiile. ‘Hamadi does not feel anything (lit. his nerves are dead).’

Hinzizi za dareemu/ schifa/ muunt^hu/ haderensaṭa chiint^hu. ‘When the nerves die, one does not feel anything.’

hiqdi

n. [Ar. hiqd “hatred, malice, resentment” W 193] envy, resentment; [pron. hiqdi or hikhdi]

Alí/ hikhdi/ inamubla/ siwo/ jillaahi. ‘Envy, resentment, etc., is killing Ali, he is never honest/ truthful.’

Hikhdi/ ni maraði/ muunt^hu/ chiwanayo kooði/ na mweenziwe/ suura/ kumwaambila. ‘Envy some bad feeling inside one) is a disease, if someone has some something to say to his friend, it is best to tell it to him.’

hirfa

n. skills, having knowledge or experience of how to do something (especially in work)

Chimaliza/ pelesheja chiwandraani/ kubarata khfula ðahabu/ na feða/ kaðalika/ iize/ kubarata/ hirfa iyi. ‘Then he was sent to a smithy to learn to forge gold and silver; similarly (as before), he did not learn this skill.’

Hirfa gani/ we/ naayo. ‘What skills do you have (i.e. what do you know how to do as work)?’ (The answer to this question might be: Mi/ na’iwa khshoma sherkaani. ‘I know how to use a sewing machine, i.e. I am a tailor’.)

hirgihirgi

adv. pulled here and there

Alí/ hadiile/ mi/ hirgihirgi/ skhaadiri/ chiint^hu/ husula khfanyowa ka tartiibu. ‘Ali said: pulling here and there, I cannot take it; a thing must be done slowly/ calmly.’

- ku-hirgisha* v. [no etymological source found] (hirgishiize) force something, shake something (esp. door), pull here and there
rel.
ku-hirgishana v. rec.
ku-hirgishiliza v. appl.
ku-hirgishilizanya v. appl. rec.
ku-hirgishoowa v. pass.
Muunt^u/ hakhaadiri/ hahirgishoowi. ‘A sick person is not dragged here and there.’
- ma-hirgisho* n. 6 pulled here and there Ali/ hadiile/ mi/ mahirgisho/ skhaadiri/ chiint^u/ husu^{la} khfanyowa ka tartiibu. ‘Ali said: pulling here and there, I cannot take it; a thing must be done slowly/ calmly.’
- m-hiri (wa-)* n. 1/2 [Som. xer (collective noun) = "followers of a sheikh" DSI 631] follower of a sheikh, particularly of the leader of some sufi order.
Omari/ ni mhiri/ wa Shekh Wali. ‘Omari is a religious student of Sheekh Wali.’
Shekh Khaasimu/ na Shekh Aweesó/ wawanayo wahiri/ wiingi. ‘Sheekh Khaasim and Sheekh Aweeso had many religious students.’
- ku-hirima* v. [Sw. hirimia SSED 134; Ar. haruma, harima W 171] (hirimiile) make a statement of one’s intention to go on the pilgrimage to Mecca chihirimo muunt^hu ni sunna koowa [st.] ‘if one states his intention to go on the pilgrimage, it is preferred for one to wash all over’ ku-hirima. Example 1: I would translate (hujuz) as “it is proper” (not: allowed), in accordance with definition of verb given in CLE
p. 197.
- hirimu (O, ma-)* adj. [Sw. hirimu SSED 134; Ar. source suggested by SSED was not found in W; cf. also Som. heer “grade, level” DSI 305] peer, contemporary; [hirimú] Hirimuzo/ wote/ wamaliize/ masomo yaayo. ‘All your peers have completed their studies.’ (Morph. Notice that hirimu in this sentence triggers [cl.10] form of the possessive enclitic, but [cl.2] agreement on wote and on the verb.)
janaani waant^uwe wont^e ni hirimu [st.] ‘in paradise all people are of the same age’
Mi/ naa we/ ni hirimú. ‘We are peers, contemporaries.’
Mi/ ni hirimé. ‘I am his contemporary.’
We/ ni hirimá. ‘You are my contemporary.’
- hirzi* n. 9/10 [Sw. hirzi SSED 134; Ar. hirz “amulet” from haraza “guard, protect” W 167] something written on a piece of paper and enveloped in a leather or gold container which is worn around the neck or arm as a charm (usually a verse from the Quran or one of God’s names or the name of a prophet or angel; protection
- hisa* n. 9/10 [Sw. hisa SSED 134; Ar. hiṣṣa W 180] share; period (of a lesson) (We recorded this item with gemination on occasion, as in its Arabic source. However, the status of gemination as a lexical property is unclear to us, though gemination is certainly employed stylistically.)
Hisa ya hisaabu/ imaliize. ‘The math period is over.’
Mp^h a hisaya. ‘Give me my share.’

Nt^hakhpata/ hisaye. 'He did not get his share.'

ku-hisa

v. (hisiize) feel (esp. s.t. physically or morally painful, an insult, etc.)

Hamadi/ hadiile/ mi/ apa/ nakuhisa bardi/ lpepo llingi/ lnakuvuziló/ ka cholokooni. 'Hamadi said: here I feel cold, a lot of wind is blowing from the window.'

kuhisa bardi 'to feel cold'

kuhisa hari 'to feel warm'

Mi/ nakhsula kuhisa amaani. 'I want to feel safe.'

Mi/ nakuhisa muṭa'asifú/ na Faaṭimá. 'I feel very sad for Faaṭima.'

Mi/ nakuhisa muṭa'asifú/ nt^ho/ waawe/ kufa/ mi/ chihabá/ nt^ho. 'I feel very sad that my father died when I was so young.'

Muunt^hu/ chinendra iwaani/ niingi/ laazimu/ huhisa ooni. 'If one walks for long under the sun one must feel thirsty.'

Nhisiizé/ kuwa Maryamu/ ichisuḷowa kuwa lonzele raaḍi. 'I felt that Maryamu should have apologized.'

rel.

ku-hisoowa v. pass. (hisiiza)

Mi/ chizaa kuja/ hisiiza/ hangamila. 'If I do not eat, I feel out of sorts.'

Ramaḍaani/ huhisowaa ndala/ na ooni/ khaansá/ mukhtaa hari. 'During Ramadhan, thirst and hunger are felt, especially when hot.'

ku-hisaabaṭa

v. [cf. Sw. hesabu SSED 132; hisabu SSED 134; Ar. ḥasaba W 175] (hisabeṭe) count, consider variant form: kisaabaṭa, ku'isaabaṭa (Not all variations of this verb may be acceptable to all speakers. MI seemed to allow all three forms cited, while GM favors kisaabaṭa.)

Hisaabaṭa. 'Count!'

Humhisabaṭa Jaani/ kuwa dokhani. 'He considers [lit. counts] John to be a fool.'

Huwasabaṭa/ nii kumi. 'He counts them, they are ten.' (Notice that in this example, drawn from a text, the initial i vowel of the stem /isaabaṭa/ elides after the object marker -wa-.)

Maraa kaandra/ zimbishile khaadimu/ laakini/ mṭomola amri/ apo/ chiwa'ambila/ waant^hu/ chiza kisaabaṭa/ mara ya kaandra/ na kuwa tayaari/ kaanzá. 'The first time [in the context of the story: the lemons were thrown], they struck the servant, but the leader [lit. the one who issues orders] there told the people not to count the first time [the lemons were thrown] and to be ready to begin.'

Maskiini/ nakhtoshani/ ka kuwa awaje/ wataḱisaabaṭa. 'The poor child, what he thought was that those [people] would count them [the number of beans].'

Sultaani/ hisabaṭo waant^hu/ wotté/ ra'iyawé/ sawasawá. 'A sultan who considers all people, his subjects, to be equal.'

rel.

k-isabaṭanoowa v. rec. pass. be counted, held to account

Maazi/ hisabaṭanoowa/ maazi/ hisabaṭanoowa/ inayo isaabu. 'Blood (here with reference to the spilling of blood) is taken into account, blood is taken into account, it has accountability.' (Part of a discussion of the proverb: Maazi/ ni mazito/ kolko maayi. 'Blood is heavier than water.')

ku-hisabaṭika v. be countable variant form: kisabaṭika

Hamadi/ mishpaye/ hebeesi/ hisabaṭika (or: yanakisabaṭika). 'Hamadi, his ribcage bones are countable (i.e. he is so thin one can count the ribcage bones).'

ku-hisabaṭoowa v. pass. (hisabeṭa) be counted, considered variant form: k-isabaṭoowa

Chint^hu siwo chaako/ hachisabaṭoowi. ‘Something that is not yours is not counted.’ (A proverb.)

Jaani/ hisabeṭa kuwa dokhani/ na Ali. ‘John was considered to be a fool by Ali.’

Laakini/ wo/ washpatana/ kuwa maṭezo ya kaandra/ na ya piili/ hayahisabaṭoowi. ‘But they agreed that the first and the second games will not be counted.’

Ni suura/ peesa/ kisabaṭoowa. ‘It is good for there to be an accounting of the money.’

Okoko kiitu/ we/ shfanya kaazi/ ka daḍaali/ chidaḍaalaṭa/ kuḷawila wajibuye/ we/ hisabaṭoowi/ kuwa muunt^hu. ‘There in my country, if you work hard, if you try hard to carry out your duties, you are not considered to be anyone (a person of importance).’

We/ hisabeṭa (kuwa) dokhani/ na Ali. ‘You were considered to be a fool by John.’

Ye/ kuraga koloka madrasaani/ ihisabeṭa (or: yisabeṭa) kuwa makosa. ‘For him to delay going to school is considered a mistake.’

hisaabu

n. [Sw. hisabu SSED 134, hesabu SSED 132; Ar.] mathematics, arithmetic, calculating numbers, accounts, count bilaa hisaabu ‘without number’

Chibuku cha hisaabu/ chimbozele mwaalimú/ sì. ‘A mathematics book, we stole one from the teacher.’ Or: Chibuku cha hisaabu/ chimboozelé/ mwaalimu/ sì. (Phon. In the speech of MI, the proposing of an XP like chibuku cha hisaabu did not trigger pseudo-relativization, in contrast to our more recent recordings where preposing is often accompanied by pseudo-relativization. In the present example, the subject is also postposed to the end of the sentence, and is radically lowered in pitch, which is indicated here by the acute mark. One might plausibly consider the pronoun to be deaccented here, but the evidence from similarly right-dislocated full noun phrases suggests that this is probably not the correct interpretation.)

Chibuku cha hisaabu/ wambozele mwaalimu/ wò. ‘A mathematics book, they stole one from the teacher.’

Halaali/ masku mazima/ nakhfanya hisaabuze. ‘He does not sleep all night, he does his calculating.’

Fiiló/ nt^haamo/ hisabuuni. ‘The dead one is not counted.’ (A proverb.)
hisaabuye ‘[lit.] its calculation/counting -- used as a synonym of ma’anaye preceding a further explanation : that is, i.e., it means that...; because, for the reason that...’

khfanya hisaabu ‘to make one’s accounts (e.g. of expenses, of profits and losses, etc.)’

Kilaa chiint^hu/ hufanyowa ka hisaabu. ‘Everything is done (i.e. should be done) with a plan, calculation.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Mwaalimu wa hisaabu/ fakeete. ‘The math teacher ran away.’

Mwaalimu wa hisaabu/ wa mwaanawa/ fakeete. ‘My son’s math teacher ran away.’ (The subject in this example has an associative phrase embedded in another associative phrase. It seems that separating the embedded associative phrase from its complement is the norm. It should be noted that there is no accent shifting in the corresponding simple yes-no question: Mwaalimu wa hisaabu/ wa mwaanawa/ fakeete?)

Mwaalimu wa hisaabu/ wa mwaanawa/ fakeete/ so. ‘My son’s math teacher ran away, didn’t he?’

Mwaalimu wa mwaanawa/ fakeete. ‘My child’s teacher ran away.’ Or: Fakeete/ mwaalimu wa mwaanawa. (In the case where there is a right-dislocated subject, the yes-no question shows accent-shift:

Fakeete/ mwalimu wa mwaanawa?

Mwaalimu/ wo/ nt^hawakumboola/ chibuku cha hisaabu. ‘The teacher, they did not steal an arithmetic book from him.’ (Cf. the simple yes-no question: Mwaalimu/ wo/ nt^hawakumboola/ chibuku cha hisaabu? and the exclamatory question: Mwaalimú/ wo/ nt^hawakumboolá/ chibuku cha hisaabú!?) minoka humluma bilaa hisaabu [st.] ‘countless snakes bit him’

Ndo/ shfaanye/ hisaabu. ‘Come, let us make an accounting.’

Walimu wa hisaabu/ wa waanawa/ wont^he/ wafakeete. ‘All my children’s math teachers ran away.’ (Phon. There is no accent shift in the corresponding simple yes-no question: Walimu wa hisaabu/ wa waanawa/ wont^he/ wafakeete?)

Walimu wa hisaabu/ wont^he/ wafakeete. ‘All the math teachers ran away.’ (Phon. There is no accent shift in the corresponding simple yes-no question: Walimu wa hisaabu/ wont^he/ wafakeete?) hisani adj. [Ar. hasana ‘to be chaste, to be immunized, protected (from sin)’ W 183] person (man or woman) who is married and therefore protected from the sin of fornication (This word is not known to GM.)

muke hisani ‘a married woman’ (cf. wake hisani ‘married women’) hishma n. 9 [see heshma] [Sw. heshima SSED 132; Ar. hishma ‘modesty, decorum’ W 179] hisi n. 9/ (10) [cf. Sw. verb hisi SSED 134; Ar. hiss W 179] sense, feeling, perception (We recorded this item sometimes with gemination, as in the Arabic source; however, the status of gemination as a lexical feature of Chimwiini is uncertain at present. It certainly exists stylistically.) Omari/ daadaye/ ni mzeele/ miyaaka/ miya/ takhriibu/ umó/ laakini/ hisize/ chitaani/ ni tamaamu/ kilaa chiint^hu/ na’iwa. ‘Omari his grandmaa is old, almost 100 years old, but her brain works to the full extent, she knows every thing.’

hisiye ‘his perceptiveness’

Mzeele/ waliko bishilaa chita/ tuushile/ bashize hisi/ ba’adiye/ boozela/ kilaa chiint^hu/ chaa ye/ wanaayó. ‘The old man was hit in the head, he fell down and lost consciousness, then he was robbed of everything he had had.’

Nt^haná/ hisi. ‘He has no perceptiveness.’

Nuuru/ hadiile/ hisi/ chitaani/ sinaazo/ nt^hangú/ mukeewá/ hakhaadiri. ‘Nuuru said: I do not feel good in the head since my wife got sick.’

hiisi [irregular verb form] you do not know

Iyi/ ni nuumbaya/ hiisi/ so/ we. ‘This is my house, don’t you know?.’

Nini/ we/ hiisi/ so/ kuwa sultaani/ nambile kuza ghaali/ chiza kuza rakhiisi. ‘What, do you not know that the sultan told me to sell dear, not to sell cheap?’

ku-histarima v. respect

Alí/ nt^hanaayo/ uslubu suura/ hahistarimi/ waant^hu. ‘Ali does not have good character, he does not respect people.’

hiya’ interj. expressing negative attitude of the speaker; [pron. hiya’]

Hiya’/ mi/ Omari/ skupeenda/ jawaabuze. ‘Hiya’, I do not like what Omari is doing/saying.’ (We write the location of high pitch in interjections because they do not fit the accentual system of ordinary language in Chimwiini.)

hizbu n. 9/10 [Ar. hizb W 173] political party

Wafafisha khabari/ wanakuhada/ ya kuwa...mas’uuli/ ya haadithi/ iyi/ ni ba’adi/ ya waant^hu/ wa hizbu/ ya mu’aaraða. ‘News reporters say that the people responsible for this event are some of the people from the opposition party.'

- hizbu n. 9/10 a portion of the Quran
- ho interj. a word used to answer a call check vowel length [boy speaking:] Chiluti/ chiluti. [stick speaking:] Hoo. [boy speaking:] Chilawe/ mbigee mp^haka. 'Stick! Stick! Yes! Go and hit the cat!'
Maamaye/ chimwaambila/ mwaanawá/ ho. 'His mother said to him: my son! (And he replied:) Yes.'
Oyoo muke/ chiya/ chimwambila sultaani/ sultaani/ sultaani/ ho. 'That woman came and said to the sultan: sultan, sultan, ho!'
- hooba n. [Ar. ḥauba W 211] sin, offense, misdeed Chighadirile maḍambi/ na hoobá. 'Forgive our sins and offences.'
ni mwenye msaameha ḍambi na hooba/ ka jaaha ya mtume chinakuloomba [st.] 'he is the one who remits all sins (ḍambi and hooba), for the greatness (glory) of the Prophet we beg (him)'
- hobela hobela ideo. (Sw. hobela hobela)
Nyaanya/ izi/ zihālaweete/ ziseteshele/ ka khisa/ mashakhaale /awo/ waṭukile bilaa tahaḍari/ hobela hobela/ tu. 'These tomatoes were spoilt, were stepped on because those workers carried them carelessly.'
- hodaari (Ø, ma-) adj. [Sw. hodari SSED 135; cf. Ar. ḥidr "alertness" W 164 and ḥādir "quick witted" W 185] clever, skillful, keen, sharp (of mind), skilled, brave, active Maama/ chimkhiirila/ na pashpo kumwambila baabá/ chimfanyiliza mwaana/ sehe/ niingi/ na chimalila/ ma'askari/ hodaari/ kumraasha. 'Mother agreed to [lit.] him and without telling father, he prepared for the boy many supplies and chose for him skilled soldiers to follow him.'
Mwaana/ waliko hodaari/ na akhili/ liini/ schimpungukiló. 'The boy was clever and wits were not less with him.'
wana (ma)hodaari 'clever children'
- hoodela invariable verbal form [the passive past tense form of an otherwise unattested verb ku-hooda, cf. hoodi below] you have been given permission to enter; a reply to hoodi Ngombe waa gisi/ chimwaambila/ hoodela/ ingila. 'Buffalo told him: (we are here,) come in.'
- hoodi n. [Sw. hodi SSED 135] a request for permission to enter a place kubiga hoodi 'to ask permission to enter'
Baaba/ kila chiya ka kazini/ hubiga hoodi. 'Whenever father came home from work he asked permission to enter (the house).'
Cheendra/ numbaani/ ka sultaani/ chibiga hoodi/ chegeshoowa. 'He went to the house of the sultan and asked permission to enter and he was welcomed.'
Chisimama ndilaani/ chibiga hoodi. 'He stood outside seeking permission to enter.'
Naani/ nakubigo hoodi. 'Who is it that is asking for permission to enter.'
Weenopó/ chibiga hoodi/ chingila numbaani. 'When he saw (the house), he asked for permission to enter, and then went in the house.'
kujiba hoodi 'to respond to a request to enter' Omo/ ye/ chim(w)ona m(w)arabu/ mooyi/ uje mjibilo hoodi. 'Inside (e.g. the house) he saw an Arab, the one who had answered his request to enter.'
- hogaani n. [Som.] rope that is tied around the neck of an animal (a camel, e.g.) to lead it by; guide

- hogani wiitu ‘our guide’
Juha/ chiwakasa/ chishkila/ chimwambila mwaanawe/ pandraa we/ ndimi/ ntakhshiko hogaani. ‘Juha heard them. He got down and told his son, you climb up, I will hold the donkey’s leash.’
Juha/ panzile mp^huundra/ mwaana/ shishile hogaani/ na mineenza. ‘Juha climbed up on the donkey, and his child held the donkey’s rope on the trip.’
khshika hogaani ‘to guide’ mshika hogaani ‘a guide’ (cf. washika hogaani ‘guides’) munt^hu hogaani ‘a guide’
- ku-hogaansaṭa* v. [Som. hoggaami “to lead” and hoggaansan “to follow a guide” DSI 311] (hoganseete) be on the right path
Abú/ nt^hangú/ Shekh Nureeni/ namwa’adishó/ hoganseete/ lasile/ kuna khamri/ na khfanya ma’asiyá. ‘Abu, since Shekh Nureeni is preaching to him, got straight and he left drinking beer and (lit. doing) adultery.’ (In this example from GM, the stem-initial w in namwa’adisho was retained, although GM always elides the w in a prefix mw sequence.)
Muunt^hu/ islaamu/ laazimu/ kuhogaansaṭa/ awaamiri/ za mtume/ na mojiitú. ‘A Muslim should follow commands of the Prophet and of God.’
rel.
ku-hogaamisha v. caus. lead, cause to be on the right path ku-hogamishoowa v. caus. pass.
Farasi/ shpandroowa/ hushikowa lijaamu/ kuhogamishoowa. ‘If a horse is ridden, it is held by a rope in order to guide it.’
ku-hogansaṭoowa v. pass.
Salkaari/ laazimu/ kuhogansaṭoowa. ‘The government must be followed (one must obey the orders of the government).’
- m-hogo (mi-)* n. 3/4 [Sw. muhogo SSED 314] cassava, manioc, yam Haliima/ kilaa lapii/ kuwapikila waanawe/ mhogo/ asriya. ‘Haliima every afternoon cooks for her children yam for an afternoon snack.’
Haṭá/ mukhta mi/ nshishilaa ndalá/ siji/ mhogo. ‘Even when I am hungry, I do not eat cassava.’
kala mhogo ‘to plant cassava’ koka mhogo ‘to grill cassava’ kuja mhogo ‘to eat cassava’
Waant^hu/ wa Keenya/ hupeenda/ kuja mhogo/ ka basbaasi. ‘People of Kenya like to eat yam with pepper.’
- hooja* n. 9/10 [Sw. hoja SSED 123; Ar. hujja “argument, pretext” W 156] argument (in the sense of verbal reasoning), quarrel, excuse
Haaja/ hufaanyika/ hooja/ hayfaanyiki. ‘A dispute can be settled, a quarrel cannot be settled.’ (A proverb.)
Hooja/ hazikhupeleki/ mahala. ‘Arguing will never get you anywhere.’
- ku-hojesha* v. caus. [Sw. hoji SSED 123; Ar. hujja “to dispute, debate, reason” W 156] (hojesheeze) argue (reasoning), cross-examine Mbiga mnaado/ shfuraha/ na bilaa kuhojeshá/ shfakaṭa/ chidarbisha/ itulubila ka kaaké. ‘The public announcer was delighted and without arguing, he made ready that which was asked from him.’
- ku-hokoma* v. [Sw. hukumu SSED 137; Ar. hakama, hukm W 195] (hokomeele) judge, pass sentence; rule, govern, administer, direct Abunawaasi/ chirudiḷowa kaaziye/ ya kuhokoma ma’askari/ ya sulṭaani. ‘Abunawaasi was given back his job of exercising authority over the soldiers of the sultan.’

Apa/ naani huhokomó. ‘Who’s in charge here?’

Hamadi/ hokomele waana/ wotte/ kuleta shilingi shilingi. ‘Hamadi ordered all the children to bring a shilling each.’

Hamadi/ huhokoma madrasa. ‘Hamadi administers/directs the school.’

Hokoma! ‘Judge!’

Ni muunt^hu/ mwenye ma’arifa/ na aqli/ ni muunt^hu/ zazi^la kuhokomá. ‘He is a man of knowledge and intelligence, he is a man born to rule.’

Wa^lwaawo/ wachirashmana/ Alfaani/ mraadiwe/ khpata shpete/ cha mtume Su^leemaani/ khpata kuhokoma majini. ‘The two of them left together, Alfaani’s goal to get the ring, the prophet Suleemani, so that he might get to the rule the jinns.’

rel.

ku-hokome^loowa v. appl. pass. (hokome^lela) be passed sentence on Ba’adaa wo/ kingila ðambi/ wachihokome^loowa/ khfungowa habaasa. ‘After they committed a crime, they were sentenced to be imprisoned.’

Hokome^lela habaasa/ miyezi mitatu. [H!H] ‘He was sentenced to three months in prison.’

Hokome^lela miyezi mitatu. ‘He was given a sentence of three months.’

ku-hokome^la v. appl. (hokome^leele) pass sentence on someone; decree for Isa/ mi/ siwo/ nt^hakondroka ka apá/ ñla/ waawe/ chimp^ha rukhsa/ amó/ mwajiitu/ chihokomela/ jawaabu/ mweepe. ‘Now I will not be the one who moves from here, unless my father gives me permission or God decrees for me some thing.’

ku-hokomo^owa v. be judged, be ruled

Chiineendra/ chiineendra/ ha^tá/ shkoma muuyi/ mooyi/ huhokomowa na sul^taani. ‘She walked and walked until she reached a town ruled by a sultan.’

Mbiga mnaado/ uyu/ kumwonake uje mar^ti/ chizida khetema/ na chifa khal^bi/ nt^hasaa ye/ kuhokomo^owa. ‘This auctioneer (public announcer), upon seeing the visitor, shook (from fear) even more, and despaired [lit. died heart], before being judged.’

rel. nom.

m-hokoma (wa-) n. 1/2 one who judges

hokomo

n. 9/10 [Sw. hukumu SSED ???; Ar. ḥukm W 196] judgment, verdict, sentence; rule variant form: hukumu, hokomu

Hokomu/ maliizopó/ waana/ wachi^lawa/ ka apo/ wachanza safari yiⁱngine. ‘When the (e.g. king’s) judging finished, the boys departed from that place and began another trip.’ (The noun hokomu in this example fails to trigger agreement on the SM; the SM instead is null, indicating agreement with a human subject.)

Hukumu ya jazira iyi/ iwalimo mikonooni/ kaa wake. ‘Rule of this island was in the hands of women.’ (The y-a form of the associative particle shows a [cl.9] treatment for hukumu.)

kh^tinda hokomu ‘to judge’

Hokomo/ i^tiinzila. ‘The case has been decided. Judgement has been passed.’ (The i- SM indicates a [cl.9] status for hokomo.)

Khaa^ði/ ñnzile hokomu. ‘The judge has made his ruling.’

kh^tindika hokomu

Hokomo/ i^tindishile. ‘A verdict has been given.’

Sul^taani/ walimo barzaani/ nakhpisa hukumu. ‘The king was in the audience hall passing judgement.’

Waant^hu/ wakumangeene/ kulindra hokomo ya sul^taani. ‘People gathered to wait for the judging of the sultan.’

holo^loof

ideo. of being loose, hanging (e.g. of a shirt)

- variant form: hololoof
Hamadi/ vete ishaati/ habbalaya/ hololoof! ‘Hamadi wore a very big shirt, it was loose-fitting.’
- holopholobu adj .very loose review 1
Surwaani/ za Pakistaani/ ni holopholopu/ nafasi/ raaha/ kuvaloowa.
‘Pakistani trousers are loose-loose, they are comfortable to wear.’
- hoola n. 9/10 [Som. xoolo ‘cattle’ DSI 637] cattle and animals that are taken to graze (goats, camels, sheep), livestock Apa/ mi/ nnaayó/ maali/ miingi/ nnazo na hoolá/ pashpo adadí. ‘Here I have much wealth, and I have countless livestock.’ (Notice the occurrence of the conjunction na after the verb, preceding the noun hoola.)
haysihi Aarafa hoola za maradi [st.] ‘sick animals are not acceptable for slaughtering on Aarafa’ Hola uyu/ hasoongeki. ‘This animal cannot be approached.’
Iðihirile siimba/ karkaa nt^hi/ nakublo waant^hú/ na hoolá. ‘There appeared a lion in the country who was killing people and livestock.’
Jile hoolazo/ na zítú/ zote/ na mukhtaa we/ ambüla/ we/ ize khtila ishkiłooni. ‘He ate your livestock, and all ours as well, and when you were told, you did not pay heed.’
Mpuunga/ ni chakuja cha sulṭaani/ siwo/ chakuja cha hoola. ‘Rice is food for a king, not food for livestock.’
Mṭinda hoola/ haṭalami/ khpasula. ‘One who slaughters livestock does not hesitate/ to skin (them).’ (A proverb.)
Oyo/ ndiyé/ malizo hoolá/ na waant^hú. ‘That one, it is he, who exterminated livestock and people.’
Uyu/ siwo/ hoola. ‘This one is not livestock.’
Wamó/ huṭinda hoola. ‘Some of them slaughter livestock.’
Wingi waawo/ hudakhisha hoola. ‘Most of them graze animals.’
- hoonde n. [etymological source unknown] seed, stone (of a fruit) honde ya iwele ‘the hardness around the nipple that occurs in boys at puberty due to hormonal changes’ honde ya embe ‘mango nut’ hoonde/ ya nt^heendre ‘date nut’ honde za iboori ‘pumpkin seeds’ honde za itiki ‘watermelon seeds’ khṭomola hoonde (=kubaaligha) ‘to reach the age of puberty’
- rel.
chi-hoonde (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. little seed
i-hoonde (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- hooni n. [Eng. horn] horn Gari iyi/ hooniye/ mbovu. ‘This truck’s horn is not good.’
kubiga hooni ‘to honk a horn’
- chi-hoori* (zi-) n. 7/8 [Sw. hori SSED 136; Pers.] a small boat; a bobbin in a sewing machine chihori cha charkhaani ‘sewing machine bobbin’
- ku-horisha* v. (horishiize) set free
Muunt^hu/ laazimu/ khtawanya maaziye/ kuhorisha nt^hiiye. ‘A person must spill his blood to free his land.’
- rel.
ku-horishoowa v. pass. (horishiiza) be set free
Mtume Mhamadi/ tomele amri/ wataana/ kuhorishoowa. ‘Prophet Mohamed ordered slaves to be freed.’

Zita izi/ wajorishiiza/ mahbuusi/ wiingi. ‘This war has freed many prisoners.’

horiya

n. [Som. xorriyad DSI 638; cf. Sw. huria SSED 138; Ar. hurriya W 165] freedom; variant forms: uhoriya

Mi/ leelo/ nt^hakhulata horiya. ‘I today will set you free.’

Nt^hi/ za dimokhraadi/ yiko horiya/ ya kooði. ‘In democratic nations there is freedom of speech.’

Omari/ nayo horiya/ zaaydi. ‘Omari has a lot of freedom (i.e. he can do almost anything he wants).’

Omari/ nt^haná/ horiya/ umo istimariini. ‘Omari does not have freedom, he is in colonialism (i.e. Omari cannot do what he wants, he’s under someone else’s control, command, etc.).’

Somaaliya/ iteete/ horiyaye/ maaka/ wa alfu/ miya/ keendra/ na sitiini. ‘Somalia got (lit. took) its independence in 1960.’

Sultaani/ walasile wataanawe/ horiya. ‘The king freed his slaves.’

Uhoriya/ hupatowa ka khtanyowa maazi. ‘Freedom is gotten by spilling blood (i.e. fighting and dying for it).’

Uhoriya/ muunt^hu/ ndiyé/ humeeró/ yo/ ha’immeeri. ‘Freedom a man seeks it, it does not seek him.’ (A proverb.)

uhoriya/ kama uyu ‘freedom like this’

Uhoriya/ atá/ ushpatoowa/ maazi/ miingi/ huṭa(w)anyikó. ‘Until independence is obtained, a lot of blood is shed.’

Uhoriya mwiingi/ hupoteza waant^hu. ‘Too much freedom spoils people.’

Uhoriya/ ni ghaali/ ha’itelezoowi. ‘Freedom is expensive, it is not something to be played around with.’

hos gunti

n. [Som.] garment worn by men around the waist and extending down over the lower part of the body; = ma’awazi and its variants or chiguwo cha nt^hiini

hoosi

n. [Som. hoos DSI 313] shade, shadow (of an inanimate object) hoosi/ ichiguura ‘if the shade moves’

hoosi ya Maana Fatima/ ndrombelaani kuwekoowa [st.] ‘in the shade of Lady Fatima/ implore God (o brothers) that I may find a place’ hosi yaa muti ‘the shadow of a tree’

hoosiye ‘its shadow’

Ineenzele/ ineenzele/ karka iwa/ nt^hawkuwaaliko/ hattá/ muti/ mooyi/ ye/ khpata/ khpumula/ nt^hiini ya hoosiye. ‘He walked and walked under the sun and there was not even one tree that he could rest under its shade.’

mahala nt^haku hoosi ‘a place where there is not shade’ mahala yiko hoosi ‘a place where there is shade’

Muunt^hu/ haapiti/ hoosiye. ‘One is not bigger/higher than his shadow.’ (A saying.)

Nk^halent^he hosiini/ khpumulá. ‘I sat in the shade to rest.’

Mi/ speendi/ waant^hu/ khkalaant^ha/ nt^hiini/ ya hoosi/ ya muti uyu. ‘I do not like people to sit under the shade of this tree.’

shkalaant^ha choolo karka hoosi naa ndila [st.] ‘if one sits for bodily needs in the shade and on the street (it is forbidden)’

Wene meeza/ niingi/ na wenee ziti/ ziweeshela/ nt^hiini/ yaa miti/ karka hoosi. ‘He saw many tables and he saw chairs placed under trees in the shade.’

rel.

i-hoosi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

hositaale

n. 9/10 [Sw. hospitali SSED 136; Eng. hospital] hospital

- hoṭeeli n. [Eng. hotel] hotel
Hoṭeli ije/ shkalaantʰé/ mara miingi/ mi/ na mukeewá. ‘At that hotel, we stayed many times, me and my wife.’
hoṭeliini ‘in a hotel’
Kalentʰe hoṭeliini/ na mukeewe. ‘He stayed at the hotel with his wife.’ Cf. Nkʰalentʰe hoṭeliini/ na mukeewa. ‘I stayed at a hotel with my wife.’ (The example with a final-accent trigger makes it clear that the locative noun, when placed in IAV position, is focused and falls within the scope of the final accent. The complement na mukeewa is outside the scope of the final accent.)
Kaleentʰepi/ na mukeewo. ‘Where did you stay with your wife?’
Possible answer: Nkʰalentʰe na mukeewá/ hoṭeliini. (Observe that even though the locative noun represents the new information in this sentence, and even though the question focuses on the location, in the response the location is outside the scope of the final accent triggered by the first person past tense verb.)
Mi/ na mukeewá/ shkalentʰe hoṭeliini. ‘Me and my wife stayed at the hotel.’
Mwaalimu/ jilo chaakuja/ hoṭeliini/ hakhaadiri. ‘The teacher who ate food at the hotel is sick.’
Tuuma/ ntʰakuliindra/ hoṭeliini. ‘Tuuma did not wait at the hotel.’
- hoowa a “baby talk” term: sleep hoowa maana hoowa / yaa we nakhsuuḷo takhpoowa [rhyme] ‘sleep baby sleep, you will be given whatever you want’
- i-hoowa n. ringworm check this item
- howōi n. [Ar. ḥawḍ W 214] water basin, tank howdji na mito peela mtume Mhamadi [st.] ‘the Prophet Mohamed was given the water basins and the springs [of Paradise]’
- hoy interj. [Som. hooy DSI 314] used to call someone’s attention from afar (Phon. Although this word has a long vowel in Somali, the vowel in Chimwiini was recorded as short. Also observe that this item has not been adjusted to satisfy the requirement that words end in a vowel in Chimwiini and not a consonant.)
- ku-hooyata v. [Som. hoyo “to spend the night somewhere” DSI 316; Tun. hoyad- Tosco 218] (hoyeete) return home for the evening; apologize, seek forgiveness, seek to reconcile rel.
ku-hoyatiḷoowa v. appl. pass.
Omari/ nakhsuḷa kuhoyatiḷoowa. ‘Omari wants forgiveness to be sought from him.’
ku-hoyatiḷa v. appl. go to someone to ask forgiveness etc.
Muuntʰu/ laazimu/ kumhoyatiḷa mzeelewe. ‘A person must seek forgiveness from his parent.’
Ni maana/ humhoyatiḷo/ mkulú. ‘It is a child who should seek pardon from his elder.’
ku-hoyatiḷa v. caus. make someone apologize ku-hooyisha v. caus.
- mu-htaaji (wa-) n., adj. [Ar. muḥtāj W 212] a needy person
Muntʰu hufanyo kaazi/ haawi/ muhtaaji. ‘A man who works does not become needy.’ (A proverb.)
Naawó/ wa’iwiile/ kuwa Abunawaasi/ wanayo muhtaaji. ‘They knew that Abunawaasi had need/ needed (to see Haruun Rashiidi).’
rel.
wu-htaajo n. 14 need
- hu- [Sw. hu] habitual prefix (In prevocalic position, the vowel of this prefix assimilates to the quality of the stem-initial vowel; for example, /hu-endra/ becomes heendra. In front of object prefixes which have a palatal element, hu becomes hi, just as the infinitive ku becomes ki; e.g. hi'iweekela 'he puts aside for himself'.)

Chint^hu chimooyi/ huzaloo miyá. 'Something that gives birth to a hundred.' (A riddle, the answer to which is awuuri 'seed'.)
Heendra. 'I, you, (s)he, it, we, you (pl.), they go.'
Hupika. 'x cook(s).'
Kula mwaana/ hutukula chibeeramu. 'Each child carries a banner.'
Niya njeema/ hutabiiba/ niyaa mbovu/ hukhariba. 'A good intention cures, a bad intention spoils.' (A proverb.)
Ye/ hukoða na chibliche. 'He talks to or with his shadow (said of someone showing abnormal behavior).'
Ye/ huja. 'She cries.'

u-huba
493]

n. [Sw. ukuba "(i) a bad smell; (ii) a bad omen, misfortune, curse, evil fortune" SSED kh-pata uhuba 'to get bad luck, misfortune, etc.'

Ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ shfanya jawabuu mbovu/ hupata uhuba. 'If anyone does bad things, he will suffer misfortunes, etc.'
Muunt^hu/ chiza kuwaṭi'a wazeelewe/ hupata uhuba. 'If someone does not obey his parents, he will suffer misfortunes, bad luck, etc.'
Muunt^hu/ chiza mkasa waawaye/ hupata uhuba. 'If someone does not listen to his father, he will suffer misfortune, bad luck, etc.'
ku-m-pa uhuba 'to give him bad luck, misfortunes, etc.'

hubini

n.

Chindooro/ ni karka mooyi/ hubini/ zaa wake/ huwoneo raahá/ yaa muké. 'The clitoris is one of the female organs from which a woman derives pleasure.'

huduude Ethiopia.'

n. [Som. xuduud] border

Somaaliya/ na huduude/ na Amhaara. 'Somalia shares a border with ku-hudutha

v. [Ar. hadata "happen, occur" W 161] happen

Amri/ ihuduthiiló. 'Something (an incident, an occurrence, etc.) has happened.'

Kasiize/ ihuduthiileni. 'Did you hear what happened?'

kuhudutha jawaabu 'for something to happen'

rel.

ku-huduthisha v. caus.

ku-huduthishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-huduthishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-huduthishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-huðura

v. (cf. haaðiri) [Sw. hudhuria SSED 122; Ar. haðara W 183] (huðuriile) be present

Laakini/ paapo/ mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ chihuðura/ mbele za waawaye/ chimwaambila/ jisa maambo/ ya'incenzeló. 'But at once the daughter of the sultan showed up in front of her father and told him the way that matters had taken their course.'

Nuuru/ huḍuriḷe majlisi. ‘Nuuru was present at the meeting.’

Sku ya nikaaha/ zaakuja/ na zaakuná/ huṭomoloowa/ hupowa want^hu wahuḍuriḷó. ‘On the day of the wedding, foods and drinks are taken out and given to the people who are present.’

wahuḍuriḷopó ‘when they were present’

Wahuḍuriḷopó/ chiwa’uza/ sultani wiinu/ chinaamura/ jawaabu/ nṭamtii’a/ amó/ hanimtii’i. ‘When they were there, he told them: if your (pl.) sultan gives you an order, would you obey him or would you not obey him?’

Wanahuḍure waant^hu/ wiingi. ‘There should be many people present.’

rel.

ku-huḍurika v. p/s.

ku-huḍurisha v. caus.

Nuuru/ mhuḍurishize mwaana/ majlisi. ‘Nuuru had the child be present at the meeting.’

ku-huḍurishana v. caus. rec.

ku-huḍurishika v. caus. p/s.

ku-huḍurishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mhuḍurishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ majlisi. ‘Nuuru had Suufi’s child be present at the meeting.’

ku-huḍurishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wahuḍurishilizenye waana/ majlisi. ‘Nuuru and Suufi had one another’s children be at the meeting.’

ku-huḍurishoowa v. caus. pass.

Ali/ chihuḍurishoowa/ mbele ya sultaani/ na waziiriwé/ na waant^hu/ wawaliko haaḍiri. ‘Ali was made to appear in front of the sultan and his minister and the people who were present.’

Hasani/ chihuḍurishoowa/ mbele za sultaani/ na waant^hu/ tele/ apo. ‘Hasani was made to be present in front of the sultan and the numerous people there.’

Sultaani/ chaamura/ waant^hu/ wapeleshela khfanya kazi ya miyuundrá/ kuhuḍurishowa apo. ‘The sultan ordered that the people who were sent to work in the fields be brought there.’

huḍuuri n. [Sw. hudhurio SSED 122; Ar. ḥuḍr ‘presence, attendance’ W 184] kubiga huḍuuri ‘to call roll, take attendance’ huuhaa ideo.

Omari/ kooḍize/ ni huuhaa!/ nthaziná/ ma’ana/ haziraashiki. ‘Omari his talks are huu haa!, they have no meaning, they cannot be trusted (lit. followed).’

ku-hujuma v. [Ar. hajama W 1020] (hujumiile) attack Duḷ’eda/ chuuluka/ chimhujumaa noka. ‘The fox jumped and attacked the snake.’
kuhujuma kaawo ‘their attacks’
rel.
ku-hujumila v. appl.
rel. nom.
m- hujuma (wa-) n. 1/2

hujuumu n. 9 attack
Nt^haku/ muunt^hu/ da’ilo mas’uulí/ ya hujuumú. ‘No one has claimed responsibility for the attack.’

ku-hujura v. [Sw. hujuru SSED 137, hajiri SSED 123; Ar. hajara W 1019] (hujuriile) move from place to place; die; evacuate Waant^hu/ wa Mwiini/ wiingi/ wahujuriile/ kaawo/ Mwiini/ wa’enzele Keenya/ wakhṭi wa harbi/ Somáaliya. ‘Many people of Brava migrated from their place in Miini and went to Kenya during the time of fighting in Somalia.’
rel.

ku-hujuroowa v. pass.

Muyiini/ waant^hu/ wotte/ wafunzile milango yaawo/ sho kuwa nuumba/ mooyi/ iwaliko ihujurija na wenevé/ ndiyó/ mlaangowe/ uwaliko mwaazi. ‘In the town, all the people shut their doors, except one house which had been evacuated by its owners; it is its door that was wide open.’

hukuuma

n. government

Wa’ambile waant^hu/ ya kuwa hukuuma/ iyi/ ni hukuuma/ ya hakhi. ‘Tell people that this government is a just government.’

We/ husuloowa/ khsiifa/ hukuuma/ hattá/ ichiwa hukuuma/ ni jabbarí/ na ðaalimú. ‘You are required to praise the government even if it is a government that is tyrannical and unjust.’

huumbo

n. 9/10 [Som. xumbo DSI 639] foam

Huumbo/ siwo/ iziwa. ‘Foam is not milk.’ (A proverb.)

kana/ kulawa huumbo ‘for the mouth to foam’

Jeeli/ kanaye/ inamlawa huumbo. ‘Jeeli’s mouth is foaming.’

rel.

chi-huumbo (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-huumbo (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

huunda

n. 9/10 a measure (for grains and milk) that corresponds to four zi-dhu (see entry for this measure) (The source for this word is presently unknown. It does not come from the local Tunni Somali dialect, which uses the word suus.)

laano/ la huunda/ ya Yahuudi ‘the story of the dry measure of the Jews’

Shfikira/ jisaa ye/ khpata huunda/ iyi. ‘He thought about how he could get this measure.’

Sku mooyi/ Abunawaasi/ enzele/ ka sultaani/ kulomba msala mooyi/ na hunda mooyi. ‘One day Abunawaasi went to the sultan to ask him for a mat and a measuring tin.’

-huundru

adj. [Sw. -ekundu SSED 8] red

Fungile itooye/ ihuundru. ‘He opened his red eye.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is iwa ‘the sun’.)

huundru/ kana/ maazi ‘as red as blood’ huundru/ kana/ mpaatu ‘as red as a sp. fruit’ inyala ihuundru ‘red fingernail’ (cf. manyala mahuundru ‘red fingernails’) khalamu huundru ‘a red pen’ kuwa huundru ‘to become red’

Maatoye/ mahuundru/ kana/ makuruumbe. ‘His eyes are as red as makuruumbe (a type of fruit).’

Maatoye/ mahuundru/ kana/ maazi. ‘His eyes are as red as blood.’

mazi mahuundru ‘red blood’

Nakuvala haanzu/ suura/ huundru. ‘She is wearing a beautiful red dress.’

Nimulile Iisá/ gari huundru. ‘I gave Iisa the red car.’ Or: Nimulile Iisá/ gari huundru. ‘I gave Iisa a/the red car.’ Or possibly: Nimulile Iisá/ gaari huundru. But MI considered this phrasing to be less normal, more like an afterthought.

Niwapele waaná/ chibuku chihuundru. ‘I gave the children the red book.’ Or: Niwapele waaná/ chibuku chihuundru. ‘I gave the children a/the red book.’ Or: Niwapele waaná/ chibuuku/ chihuundru. But MI considered this post-focus phrasing to be less normal and more like an afterthought.

Nnakhsulaa nk^hukú/ mhuundru/ mkulu/ na mikaté/ na maayi. ‘I want a large red chicken and cake and water.’

Suufi/ mwandikilile Nuuru/ khati/ ka khalamu huundru. ‘Suufi wrote a letter to Nuuru with a red pen(cil).’

Tuuma/ mashuungiye/ mahuundru. ‘Tuuma’s hair is red.’

- Tuuma/ mukeewa/ mashuungiyē/ mahuundru. ‘Tuuma my wife’s hair is red.’
uso mhuundru ‘red face’ (cf. nyuso huundru ‘red faces’)
Uso/ umwele mhuundru/ mwaana. ‘The child’s face reddened.’ Or: Uso/ mwaana/ umwele mhuundru. (In this construction, mwaana cannot be the subject of the verb: Mwaana/ wele mhuundru/ uso. Also: Mwaana/ wele uso/ mhuundru.)
- want^hu wahuundru ‘red men’ zilatu zihuundru ‘red shoes’
- m-huundru n. a red variety of sorghum, hence its name – cf. huundru ‘red’ (= durra in Italian, a kind of sorghum (Andropogon Sorghum), according to MI
Chimwambila chizeele/ kumpikila mataaza/ ya mhuundru/ kumpa. ‘He told the old woman to cook gruel for him made from sorghum to give him.’
Hala mhuundru. ‘They cultivate sorghum.’
Mhuundru/ siwo/ chakuja cha waana. ‘Sorghum is not food for children.’
- hundhuri n. [Som. xundhur "dysentery" DSI 639] Somalism dysentery
- hundhuri n. [Som. xundhur "umbilical cord" DSI 639] umbilical cord (Comment: One consultant believed this word to be used by speakers from the Baghdaadi quarter in the sense ‘umbilical cord’, but the common Chimiini word is lufkuti.)
- ku-hupsata v. [Som. hubso DSI 316] (hupseete) be certain, ascertain rel.
ku-hupsisha v. caus. (hupsishiize) ascertain
- ku-hura v. [Som. huran “to be obliged to do s.t.” DSI 319] manage to avoid; [in the negative] inevitable, cannot be avoided
Husulo chimo mvunguuni/ hayimhuri/ kiinama. ‘The one who wants what is under the bed cannot help stooping.’ (A proverb.)
Kufa/ ni lama huraani. ‘To die is a must, it cannot be avoided.’ (A proverb.)
- hural’eeni n. 2 [Ar. expression hur al-’ain W 212 and W663] the women in paradise (in Islamic cosmology)
- ku-hurgufa v. [Som. hurguf DSI 319] (hurgufiile) shake s.t. out rel.
m-hurgufo n. 3
- huuri n. 9/10 [Som. huur “sweat caused by heat and humidity” DSI 320] perspiration, sweat
Huuri/ imwoleze mwaana/ shaatiye. ‘The child’s shirt was soaked with sweat [lit. sweat soaked the child his shirt].’ Cf. Huuri/ iwa’oleze waana/ shati zaawo. ‘The children’s shirts were soaked with sweat.’ (These examples illustrate the use of huuri as a [cl.9] nominal.)
Huuri/ zinamsheera. ‘Sweat is sliding down (my body) from me.’
ka qahri na huuri na wana umbukhu/ kaa ndruti tayaari shchitiya bundukhu [nt.] ‘overpowered, sweating, suffocating/ ready with sticks, we were fearing guns’ Komelopo zitaani/ ah/ ni huuri/ so/ schimlawó/ na mzimawe/ shtetema ka shana/ cha ye/ wanaachó. ‘When he reached the fighting, ah! what a sweat was coming from him and the whole of him was shivering from the anger that he had.’
kuḷawa huuri ‘to perspire, sweat’ Hamadi/ huuri/ zimlazile. ‘Hamadi perspired -- [lit] Hamadi, sweat poured out of him.’ Or: Hamadi/ zimlazile huuri. (It is not possible for the experiencer, i.e. the one doing the sweating, to be the subject of the verb: Hamadi/ lazile huuri. It is also not possible to put the verb into the passive and have the experiencer be the subject:

Hamadi/ lazila huuri.)

Huuri/ zinamlawā. ((Lit.) sweat is coming out of me.)

Inakundra wa huuri. ‘I am sweating.’

Inamlawā huuri. ‘He is sweating.’

Muunthu/ sho/ kumlawā huuri/ ha’ikuti. ‘A person who does not sweat does not get satiated.’ (A proverb.)

Zindrazile huuri. ‘I perspired.’ (This example, where huuri governs the SM on the verb, illustrates the [cl.10] use of this noun.)

Zindrazile huuri/ zindraziló. ‘I perspired, that’s what I did (lit. sweat came out from me, that’s what it did).’

Muunthu/ huja huurize. ‘A man eats his sweat (i.e. what he worked for).’ (A proverb.) (The choice of =z-e as the possessive enclitic illustrates the [cl.10] use of the noun huuri.)

Nuuru/ mzimawe/ huuri. ‘Nuuru is perspiring heavily (lit. his whole is sweat).’

Zinamṭanyika huuri/ kana muunthu/ naakufó. ‘He is sweating like someone dying.’

ku-huurisha

v. [Som. huuri “to keep s.o. or s.t. in a warm place, esp. food” DSI 320] (hurishiize) simmer, cook at a low temperature; put s.t. unripe in a place in order for it to ripen kuhurishaa nama ‘to cook meat at a low temperature’

rel.

ku-huursisha v. ibid.

kuhursishaa nama ‘to cook meat at a low temperature’

hurma

n.[Sw. huruma SSED 138; Ar. hurma “esteem, deference, respect” W 171; Som. xurmo DSI 640] sympathy, kind feelings, respect, honor variant form: huruma

kuwanayo hurma ‘to have sympathy’

Ewe/ fungula mlaango/ nonyesha huruma/ bardi/ apa/ nk^hali/ na lpepo/ linakuvuma. ‘O you, open the door, show me mercy, it is bitter cold here and the wind is blowing.’ (Phon. The analysis of ewe ‘o you’ is not entirely clear. The accent is on the vowel e, while the pronoun we is unaccented. If we write this expression as two words, then we would incorrectly predict accent on we, since a phrase-final monosyllable should be accented. An alternative representation would be e/ wè, where e is regarded as a phrasal isolate and we is considered to be deaccented.)

hurri

adj. [Sw. huru SSED 138; Ar. hurr W 165] free; n. freed, manumitted slave

Mi/ naxsuuḷa/ we/ kundrata hurri. ‘I want you to let me be free.’

Mi/ ni hurri/ pashpo sfuungo/ amo/ ni oghaari/ wa quyuudi? ‘Am I free without bonds or am I a prisoner of the bonds of life?’

mṭukiilo Umm Aymana ni hurriwe [st.] ‘Umm Aymana, his freed slave, took him [=the Prophet] home’

Sheekhi ndroombela ka Mooja/ kuwa hurri kulatoowa [st.] ‘O Sheikh, implore God for me that I might be free (of sin, damnation?)’

u-huru

n. [Sw. uhuru SSED 138; Ar. hurr “free” W 165] Swahilism freedom

Uhuru/ umfurahishiize. ‘Freedom pleased him.’

husdi

n. 9 [Sw. husuda SSED 138; Ar. hasad “envy” W 176; note that there is no related Arabic word with the vowel u in the root] envy

ku-husuda

v. [Sw. husudu SSED 138; Ar. hasada “to grudge, be envious” W 176] envy (coupled with a strong desire that the person envied will lose what he has)

huzni

n. 9 [Sw. huzuni SSED 139; Ar. ḥuzn W 174] grief, sadness, sorrow; variant form:

huzuni, mahuzuni

Hamadi/ imwingile huzni. ‘Hamadi is sad [lit. sadness entered Hamadi].’

Haṭá/ sku mooyi/ dafa/ nakhpita/ chimwona ndiwa/ umo karka huzni. ‘Until one day, a kite, while passing, saw the pigeon in grief.’

Huzniye/ imaliize. ‘His sadness ended.’

kuwa nayo huzni ‘to be sad [lit. to have sadness]’ munt^hu mwenye huzni ‘a sad person’

Mwana chihaba/ waliko mahuzuni. ‘The little girl was sad.’

Mzimawe/ huzuni. ‘He is sad from head to toe [lit. his all is sad].’

Ruuhuya/ iyele huzuni. ‘My soul is filled with grief.’

waliliile ka huzuni/ kubloowa meema Hasani [st.] ‘they cried in sorrow for the killing of the virtuous Hasani’

Waawe/ pete khabari/ za huzuni. ‘My father received sad news.’

We/ shkala karka nt^{hi} iyi/ takshalaayata/ na umriwó/ huzni/ haytakhulata. ‘If you stay in this land, you will have regret, and during your whole life, sadness will never leave you.’

Yaliko jawabu ya huzuni/ kuwa Abú/ teleeze/ peesa/ zont^{he}. ‘It was sad that Abu wasted all his money.’

ku-huzunika

v. intr. (huzunishile) be or become sad

Ka paapo/ chimviila/ Huseeni/ Huseeni/ ilopó/ Hasani/ huzunishile/ nt^o/ tozele yaa ye/ kuhada. ‘Immediately, he summoned Huseeni; when Huseeni came, Hasani became very sad, he did not know what to say.’

Laakini/ ijini/ chihuzunika/ chiskitika/ chihada... ‘But the djinn was sad and grieved and said...’

Maskiini/ chihuzunika/ chanzaa kuḷa/ kaa nk^heje. ‘The poor man became sad and began to cry loudly.’

Mi/ teena/ nhuzunishilé. ‘Then I became sad.’

Muke/ kumwona/ mubliwe/ rudiile/ chihuzunika. ‘The woman, seeing that her husband had returned, was sad.’

Waant^hu/ wa’iwiilopó/ ije impeetó/ wachimwaambila/ chiza kuhuzunika/ ka khisa iyi/ ndiyó/ tabi’a ya duniya/ shokuja chaake/ hujililoowa. ‘When people learned what had happened to him, they told him not to be sad because this is the nature of the world: the one who does not eat his own is eaten for.’

Waant^hu/ wachihuzunika/ khkasa koḍi izi/ na nt^hawakiiwa/ ya khfaanya. ‘People were sad to hear these words and they did not know what to do.’

Yachikhupata/ waant^hu/ wote/ huhuzunika. ‘When it gets you, all the people become sad.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is marāḍi ‘sickness’.)

rel.

ku-huzunata v. (huzuneete) become sad

Mukhtaā ye/ nt^hakuuyá/ mi/ nhuzuneeté. ‘When he did not come, I became sad.’

Mukhtaā ye/ nt^hakuya dukaani/ mi/ huzuneeté. ‘When he did not come to the shop, I became sad.’

Mukhtaā ye/ nt^hakuya dukaani/ yana/ mi/ huzuneeté. ‘When he did not come to the shop yesterday, I became sad.’

Nakuhuzunata/ kana filiilá. ‘He is very sad, as if someone had died (lit. on, to him).’

ku-huzunikila v. intr. appl. (huzunikiliile) be sad over something for, reveal sadness to someone Nhuzunikiliile. ‘He revealed his sadness to me.’

Nhuzunikiliile ka moti wa waawa. ‘He was sad for me on account of my father’s death.’

ku-huzunikoowa v. pass.

watakingiloowa shaqa/ itakuhuzunikoowa [st.] ‘they will be filled with

- distress and there will be mourning and weeping’ ku-huzunisha v. caus. (huzunishiize) sadden, make sad Jaama/ kufaaake/ imhuzunishiize. ‘Jaama’s death saddened him.’
Khabari/ zichihuzunishiize. ‘The news caused us to grieve.’
Kufake eelo/ imhuzunishiize/ kiḷa muunt^hu/ numbaani. ‘The gazelle’s death saddened everyone in the house.’
Mhuzunishize Nuuru/ ka kumkhubura motji wa waawaye. ‘He made Nuuru sad by telling him of his father’s death.’
ku-huzunishana v. caus. rec.
ku-huzunishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-huzunishiliza v. caus. appl.
ku-huzunishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
Ji/ na Ali/ wahuzunishilizenye waana. ‘Ji and Ali saddened each other’s children.’
ku-huzunishoowa v. caus. pass. (huzunishiiza) Si/ chihuzunishiza na khabari. ‘We were saddened by the news.’
- i- [cl.5] subject prefix
Abdalla/ mloweele/ mwanaamke/ wa sulṭaani/ inaye/ iwaliko Aaminá.
‘Abdalla married the daughter of a sultan whose (i.e. the daughter) name was Aamina.’
Ijiko imooyi/ ha’ireebi (or hayreebi)/ chuungu. ‘One cooking stone does not support a pot.’ (A proverb.)
Ijiwe ikhubishile. ‘A stone struck you.’
Mukhta igozi/ iwelo ikavú/... ‘When the skin became dry...’
- i- [cl.5] object prefix
Apo/ ye/ shṭumba iboholi/ chi’itila igozi/ chizumbiza mṭaanga. ‘There he dug a hole and put the skin in it and covered the hole with sand.’
(Ye/) ka’oloká/ suḷa ki’iwona ijabali. ‘If he went, he would see the mountain.’
- i- [cl.9] subject prefix; morphophonemic variant: y
Ije markabu/ irudiile/ ije markabu/ imteto mwanaamké/ wa sulṭaani/ irudiile/ wachihada jis’iyo. ‘That ship has come back, that ship that carried off the daughter of the sultan has come back, they spoke that way.’
Kaazi/ ifanyiza naawo. ‘The work was done by them.’
Mwaana/ miimba/ inamḷaaza. ‘The child’s stomach is aching.’
Numba/ yingila na waant^hu. ‘The house was entered by people.’
Numbaye/ iwaliko khariibu/ ya numba ya sulṭaani. ‘His house was near the house of the sultan.’
Ye/ hi’ipeenda. ‘She likes it (e.g. [cl.9] khalamu).’
- i- [cl.9] object prefix
Jaama/ iletelele sufuriya iyi/ shfiniko. ‘Jaama brought a lid for this pan.’
Kaazi/ ni’imaliize. ‘The job, I finished it.’ (*Syn. It apparently is not the case, however, that a preposed primary object can always trigger object agreement. MI did not like Kaazi/ ni’ipeete. ‘The job, I got it.’) Sanduukhu/ iyo/ sulṭaani/ chi’iweeká/ barzaani. ‘That box, the sultan placed it in the reception room.’ (Phon. The final accents in this example would appear to be an aspect of intonation, but have not been properly researched at this point.)
Wa’ifanyize kaazi. ‘They did the job.’ Or: Kaazi/ wa’ifanyiize. ‘The job, they did it.’
(Ye/) ka’oloká/ suḷa kiyula numba. ‘If he went, he would buy the house.’
- i- [cl.5] noun class prefix
igozi ‘skin’
ijiiko ‘cooking stone’
ijiwe ‘stone’

i-	[cl.5] agreement prefix on adjectives igozi ikavu ‘dry skin’ Ijiko imooyi/ ha’ireebi/ chuungu. ‘One cooking stone does not support a pot.’ ina isuura ‘a good name’ Mukhta igozi/ iwelo ikavú/... ‘When the skin became dry...’
'ii'	ideo. sound of straining to excrete Hamadi/ nayo yaabisi/ china/ sharti/ hujira/ kuhada 'ii' 'ii'. ‘Hamadi is constipated, if he defecates it is necessary for him to strain saying 'ii''ii'!’ Mwaana/ maskiini/ nakujira/ nt'hanakhadira/ kunya/ 'ii' 'ii'. ‘The poor child is straining, he is not able to defecate, 'ii''ii'!’ Omari/ nayo yaabisi/ kunya/ humdhiba/ hujira/ 'ii' 'ii'! hataa ye/ china. ‘Omari has constipation, defecating gives him difficulty, he pushes hard/ strains, 'ii''ii'! until he defecates.’
i'itibaari	n. [Ar. i'tibār W 588] consideration khfanya i'itibaari ‘to consider’ khpa i'itibaari ‘to give consideration to’
i'itiraafu	n. [Ar. i'tirāf W 606] recognition Ye/ nt'haná/ i'itiraafu. ‘He does not have any recognition.’
ku-'i'laana	v. [Ar. verb ‘ alana “to make known” W 637] (i'lanile) announce
i'laani	n. [Ar. i'lān W 637] announcement, proclamation, notice khfanya i'laani ‘to announce’ khomola i'laani ‘to issue a proclamation’ kubiga i'laani ‘to announce’ rel. i'laanaati n.pl. (an Arabic plural form more likely to be used in connection with religious matters)
k-i'tamida	v. rely on Muuntu/ hakhadiri/ ki'tamida/ chiintu/ chaa ye/ nt'hanaa cho. ‘A person cannot rely on something that he does not have.’ Muuntu/ humi'tamida muuntu/ amini. ‘One relies on someone honest/trustworthy.’ Muuntu/ kumi'tamida mwaadamu/ siwo/ suura. ‘For one to rely on someone/ people is not good.’ Ni Nuuru/ nimitamidilo khpata peesa. ‘(It is) Nuuru on whom I relied to get money.’ Ni'itamidile Nuuru/ khpata peesa. ‘I relied on Nuuru to get money.’ Or: Ni'itamidile peesa/ khpatoowa. ‘I relied on money being gotten.’ Ni'itamidile peesa/ Nuuru/ khpata. ‘I relied on the money Nuuru to get.’ check accent Nizi'itamidile pesa izo/ khpatoowa. ‘I relied on that money being gotten.’ Nizi'tamidile peesa/ Nuuru/ khpata. ‘I relied on it the money Nuuru to get.’ check accent Nizi'tamidile peesa/ Nuuru/ kispata. ‘I relied on the money Nuuru to get it.’ check accent Nthi yiitu/ hitamida ruuhuuye/ kaa kuja. ‘Our country relies on itself for food.’ Si/ hitamida ruhu ziitu/ ka zoombo/ za skoola. ‘We rely on ourselves for school supplies.’ rel. k-i'itamidika v. p/s. Hi'itamidowa mojiitu. ‘It is God that one relies on.’ Omari/ siwo/ muuntu/ hitamidiko. ‘Omari is not a person one can rely on.’

- k-i'itamidiŋoowa* v. appl. pass.
Chiint^hu/ chiko ka muunt^hu/ mbali/ hachi'itamidiŋoowi. 'Something that is with another person is not relied on.'
- k-i'itamidila* v. appl.
k-i'itamidoowa v. pass.
Nuuru/ i'itamidila khpata peesa. 'Nuuru was relied on to get money.'
- i'timaadi n. [Ar. i'timād W 642] reliance munt^hu mwenye i'timaadi 'a reliable person'
- ku-'i'tiqaada v. [cf. Ar. noun i'tiqād "firm belief, conviction" W 628] (i'tiqadiile) believe
- i'tiqaadi n. [Ar. i'tiqād "firm belief, conviction" W 628]
- ibaada n. 9/10 [Sw. ibada SSED 1; Ar. ibāda W 586] worship humbughuḍo ibaadaye ni buure [st.] 'the one who hates him, his worshipping is of no avail (useless)' Ibaada/ niingi/ humtila muunt^hu/ janaani. 'Worshipping a lot puts a person in heaven.'
ibaada pashpo shar'a zote baatili [st.] '[acts of] worship without [following] the regulations are all invalid' kaamina ka qalbiini na ibaada [st.] 'to believe it in your heart and to worship' laazimu/ kana ibaada 'as necessary, obligatory as worship' Mwaadamu/ ibaada/ ya mojiitu/ humingizo janaani. 'For a human being it is worshipping God that takes him to janna.'
wanafaanye ibaada karka Haramu [st.] 'let them worship at the Grand mosque in Mecca'
- rel.
ibaadaati n. pl. (an Arabic plural form sometimes used) Ismu/ amali/ suura/ ni karka ibadaati. 'Any good deed counts as worship.'
- Ibliisi n. Lucifer, Satan, the devil (The b in this item may be realized as b and w as well as b.)
Ibliisi waaliko maŋaayka mkulu/ shfaanya ibaada niingi nṯiini na ilu [st.] 'Ibliisi was a great angel, he used to worship constantly everywhere (lit. down and up)'
- ibra n. [Sw. ib(u)ra "something wonderful, a miracle, a very rare occurrence, etc." SSED 139, but this usage is unconnected to the Chimiini meaning; Ar. ibra "admonition, warning" W 587] something to be taken as a warning, a lesson khtala ibra 'to take, draw a lesson from s.t.'
Muunt^hu/ bilaa ḍamiiri/ haatali/ ibra/ umriwe. 'A person without conscience does not ever learn from experience.'
Muunt^hu/ laazimu/ khtajila ibra/ ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ humwiinfa/ mustakhbali. 'One must draw a lesson from anything, it serves him in the future.'
Tete ibra/ karka ije impeetó. 'He drew a lesson from what had befallen him.'
Ni ibra. 'It is a warning, a lesson.'
- Ibrahiimu n. Abraham variant form: Ibraahimu
mwene Ibrahiimu kuzimu ya saba [st.] 'he saw Abraham in the seventh heaven'
- ibtila n. (cf. ku'iptila) hardship, complication, dangerous or painful situation
Sitti simama waloombele haamila / karka kuzaaala wasiwoone ibtila [st.]

‘O Lady [Fatima] rise [and] pray for pregnant women, that they might not see (= experience) complications when giving birth’

- ichi [cf. Sw. hiki] this [cl.7] demonstrative pronoun Chibuku ichi/ nch^ha naani. ‘This book is whose?’
Chibuukucha/ ni ichi. ‘My book is this one.’
Chibuukucha/ siwo/ ichi. ‘My book is not this one.’
chiichi/ ichi ‘this same one (near you)’ chiint^hu/ shkulu/ kolko ichi ‘something bigger than this’
Chisu ichi/ ni shkali. ‘This knife is sharp.’ (cf. Chisu ichi/ ni shkalii nt^ho. ‘This knife is very sharp.’) Siwo ichi. ‘Isn’t it this one?’ (Phon. The phrasing and accent are different in the corresponding statement: Siwo/ ichi. ‘It is not this one.’)
- ichije that [cl.7] demonstrative pronoun chiichije/ ichije ‘that same one’
Muḅli/ nt^hasaa ye/ kuya kaake/ shpita ka chizeele. ‘Before coming home, the husband passed by that old woman.’
Siwo ichijé. ‘Isn’t it that one?’
Sultaani/ chimuuz/ ichije chiint^hu/ shpeeté. ‘The sultan asked him: that thing, did you find it?’
- ichiwa verb form: it became that, it was that Na ichiwa waant^hu/ waleele/ zo/ huḷawa ka maboholiini. ‘And if it is the case that people are sleeping, they (in text from which this example comes: rats) come out from their holes.’
Teena/ ichiwa/ ye/ heendra/ hadiqaani/ maraa nt^hatu/ kuḷa muunt^hi. ‘Then he made a habit of going to the garden three times each day.’
- icho [Sw. hicho] that [cl.7] demonstrative pronoun chilatu icho ‘that shoe’ or icho chilatu ‘that specific shoe’ Chileemba/ icho/ chiwaliko chisuura/ nt^ho/ hattá/ nishpeenzelé. ‘That turban was very beautiful, even to the point that I loved it.’
Chizeele/ icho/ ni sheetaani. ‘That old woman was a devil.’
Ilooni/ ondroshale/ chistukula chinoka/ icho/ chingila nacho/ ndraani/ numbaani. At dusk she got up and took that little snake and went with it inside the house.’
Mpele Huseeni/ icho chibuuku. ‘He gave Huseeni that book (i.e. the one we have been talking about).’
Shpeleka icho chilaatu/ ka sultaani/ chimwaambila/ chilaatu/ ndimi/ mp^heeetó. ‘He took that shoe to the sultan and told him: the shoe, I am the one who found it.’
Siwo ichó. ‘Isn’t it that one?’
Ye/ shkorsheeze/ chinoka/ icho/ hatá/ chiweele/ shkulu. ‘She raised the little snake until it became big.’
- ida, idda n. [Ar. idda W 595] the required waiting period that is required of a woman after husband’s death (four months and ten days) or after divorce (three months and ten days) before she can remarry; the mourning period of a woman after her husband’s death Jeelaani/ nt^hakhaadira/ kumloola/ Safiya/ ka sababu yiiko/ mas’ala ya idda. ‘Jeelaani could not marry Safiya (immediately) because there was the question of the waiting period.’
khkalan^ha idda ‘to stay indoors for the period of idda’ khpandra idda ‘to stay indoors for the period of idda’ muke mubliwe chifa ida humpandra ida [st.] ‘if a woman’s husband dies, she must stay inside for mourning’ mubli chifa muke idda ni waajibu/ kuḷata hawa ya nafsi khtaala dhibu [st.] ‘when her husband dies, a woman is obliged to observe the idda, forsaking worldly pleasures and submitting to [many] restrictions' muke muḅliwe chifa ida waajibu [st.] 'if a woman's husband dies, the mourning period is obligatory' mwenye idda 'a woman in the waiting period' muke menye idda nt'ana khasaara/ kuja ka mkonowe mafta kudaara [st.] 'a woman in a state of idda does not commit a sin if she eats with her hand and touches oil'

idaashara

n, adj. eleven

Sa'a idaashara/ za lapii/i/ Columbus/ ni wakhti wa izdihaamu. 'Five o'clock [lit. eleven] is a crowded, busy time in Columbus.'

iidi

n. [Sw. idi SSED 140; Ar. ʾid W 661] a religious festival day; holy day(s) (In spontaneous written Chimiini, an initial glottal stop is often written, using the symbol c from Somali. However, in the Chimiinized form of this word, there is no initial glottal stop.)

ayaamu/ za iidi 'days of iidi' furaha/ kamba (or: kana) iidi 'as happy as iidi'

Omari/ leelo/ uzile shaati/ mp'hiya/ nakhfuraha/ kana iidi.

'Omari today bought a new shirt, he is as happy as if it were iidi.'

Kilaa muunt'hi/ siwo/ iidi. 'Every day is not iidi.' (A proverbial saying.)

Leelo/ iidi/ waant'hu/ hawafaanyi/ kaazi. 'Today is iidi, people don't work.'

leelo muunt'hi wa iidi [song] 'today, the day of iidi' muke chisalo iidi shiindo uo'hiya [st.] 'a woman who used to pray the prayers of iidi and who used to slaughter uo'hiya' sku ya iidi 'days of iidi'

idimbaaraka

[a contraction of Ar. iid mubaarak "blessed holy day", the Arabic form of Eid greetings] This was said by children who used to go from house to house to receive money or sweets early in the morning of the Eid (kendra idimbaaraka). If they were late and nothing remained to be given, the household members would reply: [iidi]/ yoloshele/ Makka 'it went to Makka', and could also add: endrá/ ja staltala – ka boleeti/ zinakhtaltala 'go eat bats, at Boleti's house there are plenty (lit. they are tossing about)'. "Boleeti" refers to an Italian, probably called Paoletti, whose house in ruins was situated near the sea shore and was said to be the abode of majinni.

Iidi/ waant'hu/ wont'he/ hupowa idimbaaraka/ sawa sawa/ hafarikhoowi/ waana/ na wazimá. 'During iidi all people are given iidi gifts equally, no difference between children and adults being made.'

Idriisi

n. the Islamic name for the prophet Enoch iduḷ ad.ha

n. the iidi associated with the pilgrimage to Mecca

iduḷ fitri

n. the iidi associated with Ramadhan

Leelo/ ni dhafari/ ni iduḷ fitri. 'Today there is no sleeping all night (because) it is iidi (associated with Ramadhan).'

iḍaa'a

n. broadcast

Iḍaa'a/ ya kaandrá/ haanza/ sa'aa mbili/ za fijiri. 'The first broadcast begins at eight (lit. two) in the mornng.'

Iḍaa'a/ ya piili/ hanza sa'a sitá/ za shpiindri/ na iḍaa'a/ ya taatú/ iḍaa'a/ ya mwiishó/ haanza/ sa'a mooyi/ za masku. 'The second broadcast begins at twelve (lit. six) noon, and the third broadcast, which is the last one, begins at seven (lit. one) at night.'

review accent issue

- ku-’iðina* v. [Sw. idhini SSED 140; Ar. adina “allow, permit” W 11] (iðiniile) authorize
- iðni, iðini* n. [Sw. idhini “sanction, permission, authorization, leave” SSED 140] approval, authorization, permission khpa iðni ‘to give permission, approval to s.o.’
Mpele Omari/ iðini/ kuḷawa. ‘He gave Omari permission to leave.’ Or: Mpele iðni/ Omari/ kuḷawa.
Waalimu/ wampele Omari/ iðini/ kuḷawa. ‘The teachers gave Omari permission to leave.’ (The object marker is obligatory in the case of a definite singular object like Omari -- Waalimu/ wapele Omari/ iðini/ kuḷawa. Putting iðini after the verb does not improve the sentence: Waalimu/ wapele iðini/ Omari/ kuḷawa. If the object is an indefinite plural noun like w-aana ‘children’ or wazele ‘parents’ or wake ‘women’, the OM may be omitted: Waalimu/wapele waana/ kuḷawa. ‘The teachers gave children permission to leave.’
Waalimu/ wapele waana/ iðini/ kuza zibuuku. ‘The teachers gave children permission to sell the books.’ (In this example, it is permissible to omit the OM on the main verb due to the fact that the plural object waana ‘children’ is indefinite. One cannot also omit the noun itself. Waalimu wapele iðini/ kuza zibuuku. ‘The teachers gave permission to sell books.’ If there is no recipient of the permission identified, then the verb khṭomola iðini would be used.)
Waalimu/ wapele waana/ iðini/ zibuuku/ kuuza. ‘The teachers gave children permission books to sell.’ (Again it is unacceptable to omit the object noun altogether: Waalimu/ wapele iðini/ zibuuku/ kuuza.)
Waalimu/ wapele waana/ iðini/ zibuuku/ kuzoowa. ‘The teachers gave children permission for books to be sold.’ (Again it is unacceptable to omit the object noun altogether: Waalimu/ wapele iðini/ zibuuku/ kuzoowa.) khṭomola iðni ‘to approve, to give out permission’ Iðni/ tomeeló/ ni waawe. ‘The approval, the one who gave it was my father.’
Nṭhomele iðini/ Omari/kuḷawa. ‘I gave permission for Omari to leave.’ (Just as verbs may routinely be emphasized with an accentual effect similar to focusing, i.e. barring a final accent from extending beyond the emphasized verb, so also may a phrasal verb like khṭomola iðini exhibit parallel behavior, as seen here.)
Nṭhomele Omari/ iðini/ kuḷawá. ‘I gave (for) Omari permission to leave.’ (In this example, there is no internal focus or emphasis to bar the projection of the final accent from the main verb to the entire VP. It should be noted that the main verb may not bear an OM agreeing with the subject of the infinitive: Nimṭomele iðini/ Omari/ kuḷawá. Also not: Nimṭomele Omari/ iðini/ kuḷawá.)
Omari/ nṭhomele iðini kuḷawa. ‘Omari, I gave permission (for him) to leave.’ (We see from this sentence that the subject of the infinitive complement may be preposed to sentence-initial position. Such a preposing does not change the fact that the verb may not be marked with an OM in agreement with this preposed subject: Omari/ nimṭomele iðini/ kuḷawá.)
Ni muḷliwa/ laakini/ mi/ mukḥṭaa mi/ nch^hilozoowá/ nt^haykumeroowa/ kaaka/ iðni. ‘He is my husband, but when I was betrothed to him, there was no seeking approval from me.’
Ye/ ka iðni/ ya mwajiitu/ takhpata maṭoye. ‘He, with the permission of God, will get his eyes back.’
- iðraabu* n. [Ar. iḍrāb W 540] strike (i.e. stoppage of work) khfanya iðraabu ‘to strike’ Sarkaali/ rebele iðraabu. ‘The government prohibited striking.’
- ifiriṭi (ma’-)* n. [Ar. ifriṭ “afreet, demon” W 624] giant, a large and violent jinn; a ghost (usu. malicious) Simoondrolé/ ifiriṭi leeló. ‘Don’t wake up a giant that is sleeping.’ (A proverb.)
- ifko* adj. hollowed

chijamu chifko ‘hollowed plate’ ***
khawawa yifko ‘hollowed frying pan’ ***

- iftaari n. the meal eaten by Muslims after sunset during Ramadhan Hamadi/ hadiile/ leelo/ iftaari/ ni numbaani/ ka Omari/ ipishiḷaa kuja/ niingi. ‘Hamadi said: today, fasting breakfast is at Omari’s house, a lot of food is cooked.’
Wakhti wa iftaari/ kilaa muunt^hu/ huwamo numbaani/ kaake/ khfuṭura. ‘At breakfast time (lit. time of iftaari) everyone is home breaking fast.’
- iftiini adj. [Som. iftiin ‘light, splendour, clear sky’ DSI 322] clear mayi iftiini ‘clear water’
- k-iigema v. [Sw. egema ‘come or be close to s.t.’] (-igemeele) come close to; welcome!
variant form: keegema Igema. ‘Welcome! Come close!’
Igema/ we/ uko kiinú. ‘Welcome! You are at home.’
Igemeele. ‘He came closer.’ (cf. Wa’igemeele. ‘They came close.’) Muke/ chimweegsha/ chimwaambila/ tafaḍali/ bwaana/ igema/ ja chaakuja. ‘The woman welcomed him and said to him: please, sir, you are at home, eat food.’
Nigemeelé. ‘I am close.’ (This is an answer to the welcoming Igema.)
- ku-’ihmaala v. [Ar. hamala W 1034 and noun ihmāl W 1035] (ihmaliile) neglect Siwo/ suura/ muunt^hu/ ku’ihmala waanawe. ‘It is not nice for a man to neglect his children.’
- ihmaali n. [Ar. ihmāl W 1035] negligence, carelessness khfanya ihmaali ‘to be careless’
- ihraamu n. [Ar. ihrām W 172] statement of the intention to perform pilgrimage; the sacred state that a Muslim must enter into (through performing various rituals and wearing prescribed clothes) before crossing a certain prescribed location on journey to Mecca mwenye ihraamu rebeḷa zīnt^hu saba [st.] ‘someone in the state of ihraamu is forbidden seven things’ miski hadaari saahibuḷ ihraamu [st.] ‘one who is in the state of ihraamu does not touch perfume’
- ihsaani n. [Sw. hisani SSED 134, ihsan SSED 140; Ar. ihsān ‘beneficenc, charity’ W 178] favor
Humfanyilizo muunt^hu/ ihsaani/ naayé/ hufanyizoowa. ‘The one who does a favor for someone, he also is done a favor.’ (A proverb.)
Ihsaani/ haypoṭeli/ ka wenye kiwa ihsaani. ‘A favor does not get lost on those who know what a favor is.’ (A proverb.)
khfanya ihsaani ‘to do a favor’
Fanya ihsaani/ sint^hiindé/ nama/ ka su’aali. ‘Please don’t annoy me with questions.’
Wiingi/ hufanyo ihsaani/ laakini/ haba/ hulipó. ‘It is many who do favors, but it is few who pay back.’ (Translation of a Somali proverb.)
khfanyiliza ihsaani ‘to do a favor for s.o.’
Huseeni/ chiwajiiba/ nakuhadaayi/ ni/ nfanyiliza/ ni/ ihsaani. ‘Huseeni answered them: what do you all say, you do a favor for me.’
Isa/ mi/ nnakhsuulá/ we/ kunfanyiliza ihsaani/ yiingine. ‘Now I want you to do another favor for me.’
khtila ihsaani ‘to extend a favor’
Mi/ takhadira khuza ihsaani? ‘Can I ask you a favor?’
Mp^hete ka ihsaaniyó. ‘I got it because of the favors you have done to others.’
Mp^huundra/ nt^haná/ ihsaani. ‘A donkey does not have (i.e. return) a favor.’ (A proverb, essentially identical to the one immediately below.)

Mwaadamu/ nt^haná/ ihsaani. ‘A human being does not have (i.e. return) a favor.’
(This is a comment on the same theme as in other proverbs saying that no matter how many good things you do for a person, if ever you do something not to his benefit, he forgets all the good things.)

Mweenza/ we/ nfanyiizé/ ihsaani/ niingi/ naami/ nakhsuulá/ khulipa jezayo. ‘My friend, you have done me so many favors, I want to repay your favors.’

Nt^huná/ ihsaani. ‘You are ungrateful (lit. you do not have favor).’

stoshe ni waajibu iyo ihsaani [st.] ‘don’t think that (God) is obligated (to do that), that is a favor’

Want^hu akhyaari/ washfanyowa ihsaani/ hulipa ihsaani. ‘If gentlemen are done a favor, they repay with a favor.’

k-ihtaaja

v. [Sw. hitaji SSED 134; Ar. verb ahwaja “to have need” W 211 and noun ihtiyā “need, necessity” W 212] (ihtajiile) need; var. kh-tahaaja

Chinihtaaja/ ka jawaabu/ mweepe/ tila mashungiya/ karkaa muḷo/ ka paapo/ mi/ nt^hakhiilila. ‘If you need me for anything, put the strands of my hair in the fire immediately and I will come to you.’

Fatuura/ inakihtaaja khfanyoowa. ‘This car needs to be repaired.’

Iyo/ ni yont^he/ yaa we/ nakihtajo kiiwá. ‘That is all you need to know.’

Jawabu iyi/ inakihtaaja khkoḍelowaa nt^hó. ‘This matter needs to be discussed at length.’

Kooḍiye/ inakihtaaja kulangaḷoowa/ jisa suura. ‘His arguments need to be taken seriously.’

kumfanyiliza yaa ye/ takhsuuló/ na takih^htaajó ‘to do for her whatever she wants and needs’

Mi/ nakihtaaja Hamadí/ kujiba su’ali iyó. ‘I need Hamadi to answer that question.’

Mi/ nakihtaaja kendra Mwiini. ‘I need to go to Brava.’

Mi/ nakihtaaja khkoḍa na Haliimá. ‘I need to talk with Haliima.’

Mi/ nakihtaaja mooyi/ mwaapé/ kunsaydaa mi. ‘I need someone to help me.’

Mi/ nakihtaaja Omari/ kumphasa peesa/ mi. ‘I need Omari to lend me money.’

Mi/ nakihtaaja peesá/ niingi/ kolko zaa mi/ naazó. ‘I need more money than I have.’

Mi/ nakihtaaja peesá/ tafaḍali/ ulá/ chulungu cha kaandra/ nuumba/ nzimaye/ inawe yaako. ‘I need money; please buy the first storey so the house, its entirety, may be yours.’

Mi/ nakihtaaja surwaaniyá/ khfanyoowá. ‘I need my trousers mended.’

Mi/ nt^hahajile Hamadí/ kunsaydá. ‘I needed Hamadi to help me.’

Mi/ nt^hakhupa yaa we/ nakihtaajó. ‘I will give you whatever you want.’

...na kuwafanyiliza/ yaa wo/ wanakihtaajó ‘and to do for them whatever they need (done)’

Nuumba/ inakihtaaja khpakowa ranji. ‘This house needs to be painted.’

Si/ chinakihtajaa we/ apá. ‘We need you here.’

Sultaani/ shpakila zoomboze/ zaa ye/ takih^htaajó/ chiwapa waant^hu/ waradi/ chisaafira/ kendra ka wazelewe mwanaamke. ‘The sultan loaded the things that he would need and bid people farewell and took off to go to the girl’s parents.’

Taala/ mashungiya/ yolokele/ chinihtaaja/ ka jawaabu/ mweepe/ tila mashungiya/ karkaa muḷo/ ka paapo/ mi/ nt^hakhiilila. ‘Take my hair and take yourself off; if you need me for some matter, put my hair in fire and at once I will come to you.’

Walá/ hawahtaaji/ chiint^hu/ cho chotte. ‘Neither do they have need of anything.’
(Observe that the initial i of the stem elides after the low vowel in wa. The precise distribution of -htaaja as opposed to -ihtaaja is not known.)

We/ kana/ sh^htahaja ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ naambila. ‘If you need anything, let me know.’

rel.

k-ihtajoowa v. pass.

Alfaani/ fikiriliile/ kuwa ipackacha/ itakihtaajoowa/ kumtukulila sultani waa noka/ mukhtaawo/ waṭamshiikó. ‘Alfani thought that a basket was needed to carry the king of snakes in when they siezed him.’

Hayihtajoowi/ we/ keendra. ‘It is not needed that you go.’

Hih̄tajowaa si/ khfanya ṭahaḍari. ‘It is needed that we be careful, cautious.’

Hih̄tajoowa/ Siimba/ kendra na mapeema. ‘It is needed that Siimba go early.’ Or: Siimba/ hih̄tajoowa/ kendra na mapeema. Or:

Siimba/ hih̄tajowa kendra na mapeema.

Sulṭaani/ chimpa celo/ zoombo/ hih̄tajoowá. ‘The king gave the gazelle the things that are needed.’

Waana/ hawa’ih̄tajoowi/ apa. ‘The children are not needed here.’

Waana/ wanakihtajowa numbaani/ kumsa’ida mama yaawo. ‘Children are needed at home to help their mother.’

Waana/ watakihtajowa khfanya kaazi. ‘Children will be needed to work.’

rel. nom.

w-ih̄taajo n. 14 [Ar. ih̄tiyā W 212] need ku-’ih̄tarima

v. [cf. Ar. noun ih̄tirām “deference, respect” W 172] (ih̄tarimiile) respect; var.:

kuhtarima, kihtarima

Ni ḍaruuri/ daa’imu/ muunt^hu/ kihtarima ruuhuye. ‘It’s essential to always respect oneself.’

rel.

ku-’ih̄tarimika v. p/s. (ih̄tarimishile) be respected; able to be respected

Muunt^hu/ ih̄tarimishile. ‘The man is respected.’

Munt^hu oyo/ ha’ih̄tarimiki. ‘That man cannot be shown respect (i.e. it is not possible to show him the amount of respect that he thinks he deserves).’

ku-’ih̄tarimila v. appl.

k-ih̄tarimoowa v. pass.

Waant^hu/wazima/ hawapandroowi/ chiṭaani/ hih̄tarimoowa. ‘Elders are not (lit.) to be climbed on their head (=disrespected etc.), they are to be respected.’

ih̄timaamu

n. [Ar. ih̄timām W 1033] interest (in something), consideration of s.t.

Mi/ nanzize ka liḷaahí/ khpa ih̄timaamú/ kulṭaṭa/ skoola. ‘I began to seriously consider quitting school.’

Mi/ njaribiilé/ kiiza/ laakini/ ye/ nt^hakumpha/ mi/ ih̄timaamu. ‘I tried to object, but he paid no attention to.’

Mi/ ṭakhpa ih̄timaamu/ kuuya/ keesho. ‘I will consider coming tomorrow.’

Si/ apa/ hashtapata/ ih̄timaamu/ walá/ mahabá/ kaamili/ ya wawa yiitu/ chiwa Yuusufu/ umo karka kiitu. ‘We here will not get the attention nor the full love of our father, if it be that Joseph is among us.’

Ye/ laazimu/ khpa ih̄timaamu/ kubadila ṭabi’a iyo. ‘You should consider changing your behavior.’

rel.

ih̄timaamaati n. pl. (an Arabic plural form sometimes used, for example in religious matters)

ih̄tiraamu

n. respect

Mi/ siná/ ih̄tiraamu/ kaawo. ‘I have no respect in their eyes.’

Shkhabiliile/ bilaa ih̄tiraamu. ‘He received us without compassion.’

Shkhabiliile/ ka ih̄tiraamu. ‘He received us with compassion.’

ih̄tiyaaji

n. [Ar. ih̄tiyāj W 21] (cf. k-ih̄taaja) need ku-’ijaara

v. [Ar. verb ajara and noun ijār “letting, leasing” W 5] (ijariile) rent, hire

rel.

ku-’ijaarata v. (ij areete) rent, hire

ije	[cl.5] third position demonstrative Ijambi ije/ ni itaka. ‘That mat is dirty.’ Ikopa ije/ ni ikulu. ‘That cup is large.’
ije	[cl.9] demonstrative Abdalla/ iwilopo ije itulushiló/ chiruda numbaani/ na sultaani/ chimwaambila/ nakuwoná/ mi/ kachiza kulawa naawé/ ka apá/ we/ naawé/ sula kuwa mooyi/ karka waant^hu wafiló. ‘When Abdalla learned what had happened, he returned home with the sultan, telling him: do you see? if I had not gone out with you from here, you also would have been one among the people who were killed.’ Afðali/ inamp^hate/ ije itakump^ható/ kama keendrá/ kunsiba ghaðabu za mwajiitú. ‘Better that it befalls me whatever will befall me than to go and the anger of God strike me.’ Basi/ mi/ nnakuwona kuwa ni kheri yitú/ si/ khfunga safari/ keendra/ maha^hla ije itakuwó. ‘Therefore I think that is best (lit. our best) for us to pack and go anywhere at all (rather than here).’ Hasani/ chimwambila sultaani/ ije imleselo kaaké. ‘Hasani told the sultan what brought him to his place.’ ...ka ije ya waawaye/ mpenzelezó ‘...with whatever her father liked for her’ Kila/ mwaana/ humleetela/ mwaalimu/ ije yaa ye/ hukhaadiró. ‘Each child brings the teacher whatever he can.’ Luti khiinfó/ ni limo kaakó/ mkonooni/ silaaha/ ni ije/ yimo mkonooni. ‘The stick that is of use to you is the one that is in your hand, a weapon is the thing that is in your hand.’ (A proverb.) Nakuwona numba ijé. ‘Do you Ni laazima/ keendra/ khkooða/ na waawe/ ije yaa ye/ takuhadó. ‘I must go and speak with my father, whatever it is that he may say.’ Waawé/ mi/ nakhsula keendrá/ kulanga^hla markabú/ ijé. ‘My father, I want to go to look at that ship.’ check the final accents marked here Yana/ mi/ nuzize ije igozi/ ya ngoombewa/ na mp^hetét/ feða niingi/ nt^ho. ‘Yesterday I sold that skin of my cow and I got a lot of money (for it).’
iije	= ipisiló ‘[cl.9] that passed Jima iije/ Hamiisi/ somele chibuuku/ muun^hhi/ woowo/ owo/ ye langalile mpiira. ‘Last Friday, Hamisi read a book. That same day, he watched football.’
ijtihaadi	n. [Ar. ijtihād W 143] effort ka ijtihaadi ‘with effort’ khfanya ijtihaadi ‘to be diligent, try hard’ Kilaa chiint^hu/ ishfanyowa ijtihaadi/ hupatoowa. ‘If a lot of effort is made, everything is achievable.’ Omari/ waanawe/ hufanya ijtihaadi/ skolaani/ khpita imtihaani/ jisa suura. ‘Omari’s children made a lot of effort at school to pass the test.’ mwenye ijtihaadi ‘s.o. diligent’
ku-’ikhaaba	v. (ikhabiile) punish
ikhlaasi	n. [Ar. ikhlaṣ W 255] loyalty, sincerity ka ikhlaasi/ na niya saafi ‘with loyalty and pure intentions’ khfanya ikhlaasi ‘to be loyal’

Mi/ siná/ sababu/ khtilaa shaka/ tarafu ya Abú/ ikhlaasiye. ‘I have no reason to doubt Abu’s sincerity.’

mu-khlisi adj. loyal k-ikhlaara v. [Ar. kāra W 266] (ikhlaariile) choose, select, elect Wamwikhtariile Nuuru/ kuwa ra’iisi. ‘They elected Nuuru to be president.’

Ye/ ikhtariile kingila harbiini. ‘He chose to fight.’
rel.
k-ikhlaarisha v. caus. (ihlaarishiize)
rel. nom.
mw-ikhlaara (wa’-ikhlaara) n. 1/2 one who chooses
w-ikhlaaro n. 14 the act of choosing k-ikhlaara v. (ikhlaariile) suggest Hamadi/ ikhtariile Jaama/ kula gaari. ‘Hamadi suggested that Jaama buy a car’ Hamadi/ ikhtariile kuwa Jaama/ tu/ na’oloke kahimá. ‘Hamadi suggested that only Jaama go quickly.’

Hamadi/ mikhtariile Jaama/ kuwa kendra kahima. ‘Hamadi suggested to him Jaama that to go quickly’

Hamadi/ tu/ ikhtariilo Jaamá/ kula gaari. ‘Only Hamadi suggested that Jaama buy a car.’ (The final accent in the infinitive phrase is due to its being in the scope of the final accent triggered by the pseudo-relativized main verb. An infinitive verb is not itself able to be pseudo-relativized, as the following example demonstrates: Hamadi/ ikhtariile Jaama/ tu/ kula gaari. ‘Hamadi suggested that only Jaama buy a car.’ Note that one cannot say kula gaari, where there is a final accent due to the hypothetical pseudo-relativization of the infinitive verb.)

Hamadi/ tu/ ikhtariilo Jaamá/ kuwa na’oloke kahimá. ‘Only Hamadi suggested Jaama that he should go quickly.’

Ikhtariile Jaama/ kendra kahima. ‘He suggested that Jaama go quickly.’

Jaama/ kula gaari/ Hamadi/ ikhtariilo. ‘Jaama to buy a car, Hamadi suggested.’

(Note that the main verb is pseudo-relativized. Pseudo-relativization is caused by a pre-verbal focus, but we could not ascertain where focus was in this example. Perhaps it is the preposed sentence Jaama/ kula gaari as a whole. Our consultant GM did accept a verb without pseudo-relativization: Jaama/ kula gaari/ Hamadi/ ikhtariile. However, he regarded the pseudo-relativized form as better.)

Mikhtariile Jaama/ kuwa na’oloke kahima. ‘He suggested to Jaama that he should go quickly.’

Mikhtariile kuwa Jaama/ na’oloke kahima. ‘He suggested to him that Jaama go quickly.’ Is the suggestion to someone else that J should do something, or is it to Jaama????

rel.

k-ikhlaarowa v. pass. (ikhlaariila) be suggested

Jaama/ ikhtariila kendra kahima. ‘Jaama was suggested to go quickly.’

Or: Ikhtariila Jaama/ kendra kahima.

Jaama/ ikhtariila/ kuwa na’oloke kahima. ‘Jaama was suggested that he go quickly.’

k-ikhlaari’a v. [Ar. karu’a W 235] (ikhlaari’iile) invent k-ikhlaariha v. [?Ar. iqtirāh “invention” W 756] (ikhlaarihiile) suggest (MI gave this as the form for the verb ‘suggest’; our consultant GM did not recognize this form and used instead kikhlaara, which is the same as the verb “choose”).

Ikhtarihiile Jaama/ kendra kahima. ‘He suggested for Jaama to go quickly.’ (Note that the subject of the infinitival complement cannot be “raised” to be the object of the main verb: Mwikhtarihiile Jaama/ kooloka. ‘He suggested Jaama to go.’)

Ikhtarihiile Jaama/ kooloka. ‘He suggested Jaama’s going.’ (Note that the complementizer kuwa cannot precede the complement clause:

Ikhtarihiile kuwa Jaama/ kooloka. One also cannot use a finite complement clause: Ikhtarihiile kuwa Jaama/ oloshale. ‘He suggested that Jaama went.’ One also cannot use a “poss-ing” complement clause: Ikhtarihiile Jaama/ kolokake/ kahima. ‘He suggested Jaama's going quickly.' But compare the passive verb form below.)

Ikḥṭarihile kuwa Jaama/ na'oloke kahima. 'He suggested that Jaama should go quickly.'

rel.

k-ikḥṭarihoowa v. pass.

Jaama/ kooloka/ yikḥṭarihile na Nuuru. 'For Jaama to go was suggested by Nuuru.' (But it is also possible and perhaps preferred for a "poss-ing" construction to be used: Jaama/ kolokake/ yikḥṭarihila na Nuuru. 'Jaama's going was suggested by Nuuru.' This contrasts with the failure of the "poss-ing" construction to be used as the object to the active verb. It should also be noted that the subject of the complement clause may not become the subject of the passive main verb: Jaama/ ikḥṭarihila kooloka/ na Nuuru. 'Jaama was suggested to go by Nuuru.')

k-ikḥṭima

v. [Sw. hiimu SSED 130; Ar. katama W 227] (ikḥṭimiile) complete, bring to an end (esp. the study of the Quran or certain religious activities such as the mowliidi celebration)

Ikḥṭimile masoomoye. 'He completed his course of study.'

Ikḥṭimile qur'aani. 'He completed the study of the Quran.'

Mwaana/ chikḥṭima qur'aani/ hufanya/ sadaqa. 'When a child completes the study of the Quran, he prepares sadaqa.'

rel.

k-ikḥṭimisha v. caus. (ikḥṭimishiize)

Mwaalimu/ mwikḥṭimishize mwaana/ qur'aani. 'The teacher made the child complete the study of the Quran.'

k-ikḥṭimoowa v. pass. be brought to an end

Ba'adi ya skuu nt'atu/ itakikḥṭimoowa. 'After three days, it (the burial of someone who has died) will be completed).'

me.'

ikḥṭiraa'i

n. [Ar. iqtirāh "invention" W 756] invention

(i)kḥṭiyaari

n. 9 [Sw. hitiari SSED 133; Ar. ikhtiyār "choice, preference" W 267] (cf. k-ikḥṭaara) choice ka ikḥṭiyaari 'by one's choice, at one's option, etc.'

Fanyize ka ikḥṭiyaariye. 'He did it out of his own will.'

kazi ya ikḥṭiyaari 'voluntary work' kḥfanya ikḥṭiyaari 'to act out of free will'

Kḥṭiyaariyo/ chooloka. 'It's your choice whether you go (but then be ready for the consequences, if you do go – a kind of warning).'

Mi/ hufanya kaazi/ ka ikḥṭiyaari. 'I work when I please (lit. from choice).'

Mi/ sṭahaaji/ ku'akida muhimu/ ya ikḥṭiyaari/ ya muunṭu. 'I hardly need stress the importance of discretion.'

Nnayo ikḥṭiyaari. 'I have a choice, options.'

Siná/ (i)kḥṭiyaari. 'I have no choice, option.'

wa'unzilo mwajiitu ka kḥṭiyaariye [sṭ.] 'the one who created them [people] is God, [out of] his own free will' (The syllabic requirement of this sṭeenzi is such that it must have twelve syllables, given the fact that the final two syllables in the line are short. The optionality of the initial vowel of ikḥṭiyaari makes it possible for this word to fit the syllabic requirement.)

ch-iiko (z-)

n. [Sw. kiko SSED 193] pipe for smoking

mw-iiko

n. [Sw. mwiiko (miiko) "a spoon, or instrument resembling it, e.g. a mason's trowel" SSED 321] a wooden spoon used for stirring food, esp. zijo

ikraaha

adj. [cf. Ar. verb karoha "to detest, abhor" W 823] reprehensible; var. ikraahi muḅli kumoola cḥịtaache mubaaha/ laakini muke na nkope ikraaha [sṭ.] 'it is proper for a man to shave his head, but it is reprehensible for a woman to shave her eyebrows'

m̄w-iikulu (w-)

n. 1/2 grandchild;

Waana/ na wiikulú/ washtii'a/ amri/ ya chizeele. 'The children and grandchildren obeyed the order of the old woman.'

rel.

chiikulu n. grandchild

We ni chiikulu cha Mtume Mhamadi/ ni amaani ya waantu ihsaani

[SCB112] 'You are a grandchild of Prophet Muhammad, the shield of those who act virtuously.'

mw-iikula n. my grandchild; [pron. m̄wiikulá] review the !!!!

Daadá/ Umi/ hadiile/ mi/ kuwapakata wiikulá/ ni kaṭabu. 'Grandmother Umi said: for me to hold my grandsons on my lap is something prescribed.'

M̄wiikulá/ ukopi mbuziwa. 'My grandchild, where is my goat?'

m̄w-iikule n. his/her grandchild; [pron. m̄wiikulé]

Basi/ chizeele/ ichi/ shkumanganya waanawe/ na wikuluwé/ wotte/ khfunga safari/ keendra/ kummwona sultaani/ uyu. 'So this old woman gathered her children and her grandchildren all and set off to go to see this sultan.'

k-iikuta

v. [cf. Sw. kuta "become satisfied with food" SSED 232] (ikusile) be satiated, full, satisfied (from eating)

Haṭá/ chimpani/ ha'ikuti. 'Even if you give him (whatever), he is never satisfied.' (A proverbial saying.)

Hasiibu/ chija/ haṭá/ chiikuta. 'Hasiibu ate until he was full.'

Huja/ laakini/ ha'ikuti. 'He eats, but he is never satisfied.' (A riddle, the answer to which is m̄wooti 'death'.)

Muunt^hu/ chiikuta/ na munt^hu m̄wiinginé/ humwiikusó. 'When one gets satiated, satisfy someone else.' (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ hikuta ka chaake. 'One gets satiated with his own things.' (A saying.)

Munt^hu ikusiló/ ham̄wiwi/ m̄wenyee ndala. 'A man who is full does not understand the one who is hungry.' (A proverb.)

M̄waadamu/ ha'ikuti. 'A human being does not get satisfied/satiated.' (A proverb.)

M̄waarabu/ na sultaani/ wachija/ chaakuja/ icho/ ka furaha/ haṭá/ wachiikuta. 'The Arab and the king ate the food happily until they were satiated.'

Nii muke/ hiiwó/ kama waaná/ wa'ikusilé. 'It is the wife who knows if the children are full.'

Si/ chijiilé/ haṭá/ chikusilé. 'We ate until we were full.'

Tama'a niingi/ ha'ikuti. 'Great longing never gets satiated.' (A proverb.)

Wachija/ haṭá/ wachiikuta. 'They ate until they were satiated.'

rel.

k-iikutila v. appl. (-ikutiliile) full with

Waanawá/ naank^hó/ leelo/ ni'ikutiliilé. 'My children, again today I am full (with food) (in the story where this example comes from, a bird – actually, a djinn – is speaking to her chicks, telling them that she is full of food that she has brought to them).'

k-iikusa v. caus. (ikusiize) satisfy s.o.'s appetite, doubts, etc.

Nimpeleshele numbaani/ nim̄wiikusilé. 'I took him home and gave him his fill.'

rel. nom.

w-iikuto n. 14 satiation, satisfaction

Muunt^hu/ laazimu/ kuhada alhamduḷillah/ kaa ndala/ na wiikutó/ kaa dhibu/ na raahá. 'One must say alhamduḷillah, in hunger and prosperity, in hardship and in luxury.'

Wiikuto/ walḍaraani. 'Satiation has bad consequences.' (A proverb.)

w-iikuso n. 14

ila

n. 9/10 [Ar. illa W 633] defect, vice kutila ila 'to find fault'

Yaa we/ ṭampkiló/ hutila ila. 'Whatever you cook for him, he finds fault with it.'

Munt^hu oyo/ ilaze/ niingi. 'That one, his vices are many.'

Numba yaa we/ nt^hukiingilá/ hiiwi/ ilaye. 'The house that you have not entered, you cannot know its defects.' (A proverb.) (Notice that a negative relative verb does not end in the final vowel o but does trigger final accent.)

ila

conj. [Sw. ila SSED 140; Ar.] except, but, until; [pron. ila or illa]

Basi/ chmwaambila/ illa/ huji/ mahala yiingine/ illa takuja kaaka/ tu.

'So [the sulan] told [the poor boy] you must not eat anywhere else except here at my place.'

ila ka sabri zotte zirudiile [st.] 'everything came back [to Job] only as a consequence of his patience'

Il^la/ mi/ takhtala bataata/ takhtaala. 'I must take a potato, I will take one.'

Khanziiri/ kudaroowake/ ni haraamu/ ka islaamu/ wotte/ na namayé/ islaamu/ hawaaji/ ila ka ðaruura/ kama chiwa muunt^hu/ tozele yoyote/ yaa ye/ kuja/ apo/ nama ya khanziiri/ ni halaali/ ka islaamu. 'For a pig to be touched is forbidden to all Muslims, and its meat, Muslims do not eat except in case of necessity such as if a man fails to find anything to eat, then pork is permitted [to be eaten] for Muslims.'

khshika illa/ kuwa 'to hold that one must, to affirm that one will do s.t. despite orders, requests to the contrary'

Ye/ shishile illa/ kuwaa ye/ takeendra/ kummera siimba/ mahala ye/ uko. 'He affirmed that he was going to look for the lion wherever he was.'

Laakini/ haali/ jisaayo/ mbovu/ si/ hashkhaadiri/ ila/ kaamina/ ya kuwa dobla/ ya Aldo/ Mooroo/ haytakaadira/ khfanyilizaa dawa/ iqtisaadi/ ya talyaani/ khaasa/ karka wakhti uyu. 'But the condition being so bad, we cannot but believe that the government of Aldo Moro will not be able to cure the Italian economy, especially at this time.'

Mp^huundra/ ha'ineendri/ ila/ kaa luti. 'A donkey does not move except with (use of) a stick.' (A saying.)

Nt^hashkupata/ ndilaani/ illa maghribi. 'We did not find the road until sunset.'

Oyo mwaana/ haxhiiri/ ba/ kujaa kuja/ yee peeke/ illa/ nakhsula kuja na muunt^hu. 'That boy never accepts to eat food alone, except he want to eat with someone.'

Sulhu/ hayiyi/ ila/ ka nt^ha ya lpaanga. 'Peace does not come except at the point of a sword.' (A proverb.)

Want^hu awa/ hawafurahili/ talaqa/ illa ichiwa iweele/ waajibu/ ka sababu mweepe. 'These people do not like divorce unless it becomes obligatory for some reason.'

ilbahi

adj. [Som. ilbax "civilized, urban" DSI 324] civilized; modern, up-to-date (of a person)

Fulaani/ wele ilbahi. 'So-and-so has become more civilized, i.e. modern, because now he is following modern fashion in dress, modern customs, etc.'

ilhaamu

n. [Ar. ilhām "inspiration, instinct" W 881] inspiration, revelation khtila ilhaamu 'to inspire, give a revelation to'

Mwajiitu/ mtile ilhaamu. 'God inspired him.'

kuwanayo ilhaamu 'to have an inspiration'

ili

[cl.11] first position weak demononstrative

Lwarakha ili/ ni lusi. 'This piece of paper is black.'

Ili/ nii luti. 'This is a stick.' (Note that the noun here would be interpreted as indefinite.)

Ili/ nii luti/ laa mi/ chilmeeró. ‘This is the stick that I was looking for.’
Mwaana/ shtala lwarakha/ ili/ chisooma. ‘The child took this page
(and) read it.’

Ni ili/ luti. It is this, the stick – i.e. the stick is this one.’ Or: Luti/ ni ili.
Shtala lwarakha ili/ chisooma. ‘He took this page and read it.’
Siwo/ ili. ‘It is not this one.’ (Cf. Siwo ili? ‘Is it not this one?’)

ilije

[cl.11] third position weak demonstrative

Ltanzi ilije/ nii ile. ‘That branch is long.’

liilije/ ilije ‘that very same one’

Luti ilije/ lyundishile. ‘That stick is broken.’

Siwo/ ilije. ‘It is not that one.’ (Cf. Siwo ilije? ‘Is it not that one?’)

Lwawo ilije/ ni lpaana. ‘That plank is wide.’

ku-’illa

v. [Ar. illa W 633] (cf. ila) (ilishiize) point out s.o.’s defects

illa

conj. [Sw. ila SSED 140; Ar. illā W 22] except, until illa ka sabri zotte zirudiile [st.] ‘everything came back (to Job) only as a consequence of his patience’

sunset.’

Nt^hashkupata/ ndilaani/ illa maghribi. ‘We did not find the road until

Want^hu awa/ hawafurahili/ talaqa/ illa ichiwa iweele/ waajibu/ ka sababu mweepe. ‘These people do not like divorce unless it becomes obligatory for some reason.’

illa

aux. must

Chambiloowa/ illa/ ba/ ndiwé/ boozeló. ‘He was told: it must be you who stole it (the shoe).’

khshika illa ‘to insist’ must go.’

Ali/ shishile illa/ Hamadi/ na’endre. ‘Ali insisted that Hamadi

Ali/ shishile illa/ mi/ keendra. ‘Ali insisted on my going.’

this job.’

Shiishile/ mi/ illa/ kumaliza kazi iyi. ‘He insisted on my finishing Mi/ (ni) illa/ keendra. ‘I must go.’

Ye/ oyo mwaanawe/ illa/ humfuungi/ chimfungu mwana uyu/ naami/takub^hla ruuhuya. ‘He, that son of his, (said): You must not arrest him; if you arrest that boy, I will kill myself.’

illa wa illa

inv. must khshika illa wa illa ‘to insist’

Ali/ shishile illa wa illa/ Hamadi/ na’endre. ‘Ali insisted that Hamadi go.’

would go.’ (Ambiguous as to whether Ali would go or some other person identified from the context.)

Ali/ shishile illa wa illa/ kuwaa ye/ takeendra. ‘Ali insisted that he Ishishila illa wa illa kendroowa. ‘It was insisted that we must go.’

Sulile illa wa illa kooloka. ‘He insisted on going.’

ilmu

n. [Sw. elimu SSED; Ar. ilm W 635] learning, knowledge, science

Baaba/ mtume Yaaquubu/ waliko ni muunt^hu/ mwenye ilmu/ aqli/ na hikmá/ mwajitu/ mpeeló. ‘The father, the Prophet Jacob, was a man having knowledge, intelligence, and wisdom, which God gave him.’

Husaafira/ hendra khaariji/ kuzida ilmu. ‘They travel and go abroad to increase their knowledge.’

Ilmu/ ni bahari. ‘Learning is a sea (i.e. s.t. vast, unending).’

Ilmu/ nt^haynaayo/ miisho. ‘Learning never ends.’ (A proverb.)

Ilmu/ ni nuuru/ ujaahili/ ni miinza. ‘Knowledge is light, ignorance is darkness.’ (A proverb.)

ilmu ya tabiibu ‘medicine’

ka ilmuye iwiile kuḷa chiint^hu [st.] ‘with his (i.e. God’s) knowledge, he knows everything’

Mi/ nayo ilḡmú/ kabisá/ khtinda go’aani/ ni chint^hu gani/ saha/ khfaanya. ‘I am quite competent to decide what is the right thing to do.’

Mi/ siisi/ kuwaa mi/ nayo ilḡmú/ ya kujiba su’ali izi. ‘I do not know if I am competent to answer those questions.’

Mzele wa muuyi/ nt^haná/ ilḡmu/ ya khfanya chiint^hu/ na msiiba/ uyu. ‘The mayor is not competent to deal with this crisis.’

Nayo ipupa ya ilḡmu. ‘He has a very strong desire for knowledge.’

Omari/ nayo ilḡmu/ ya kudafi’a ruuhuye. ‘Omari is quite competent at defending himself.’

Shtaala/ ziwo/ za ilḡmu/ ziwaalikó/ kaaké/ zoṭe/ chizisooma. ‘He took all the books of learning that he had at his place and read them.’

Sindako/ nt^haná/ ilḡmu/ ya khfanya chiint^hu/ na msiiba/ uyu. ‘The mayor is not competent to deal with this crisis.’

Sooma/ ilḡmu/ itakhiinfó. ‘Acquire (lit. read, study, learn) knowledge, it is what will serve you.’ (A proverb.)

someelo ilḡmu rashiliizo amali [st.] ‘the one who studied (lit. read) knowledge and who followed up with deeds’

We/ takuwa dakhtari/ mkulu/ mwenye ma’arifa/ na ilḡmú. ‘You will become a great doctor having wisdom and knowledge.’

Ye/ peete/ kaazi/ haali/ nt^hakuwanaayó/ ilḡmuyé. ‘He got the job although he had no qualifications (lit. its knowledge).’

ilo

[cl.11] second position weak demonstrative

Chiwona/ naambila/ chiiko/ lpandre gani/ mi/ nt^hakhpita/ lpandre ilo/ na shpitá/ we/ chiodafkula/ chijumba icho. ‘If you see it, tell me on which side it is located, and I will pass by that side and when I pass, snatch you from that nest.’

liilo ilo ‘that very same one near you

Ltepe ilo/ ni lēlpe. ‘That bandage, piece of tape is white.’

Siwo/ ilo. ‘It is not that one.’ (Cf. Siwo/ iló? ‘Is it not that one?’)

iluhuma

n. suffering, hardship

Msalaa numa/ huwona iluhuma. ‘He who remains last sees hardships.’ (A proverb that counsels one to be the “early bird”, don’t delay, don’t wait to the last minute, things will not go well if you do.)

Nuuru/ wene sahariiri/ ka iluhuma/ safari iyi. ‘Nuuru experienced hardship and suffering on the journey.’

ilaakha

khtinda ilaakha ‘to cut a relationship off’

Nt^hinzile ilaakhá/ na Hamadí. ‘I have cut off my relationship with Hamadi.’

ku-’ilaalisha

v. control, keep in check, constrain;

Ye/ bashiize/ miizaani/ haali/ ye/ nt^haku’ilaalishá/ kujá. ‘She lost weight, although she never watched (her weight).’

Ye/ dhibishile/ ku’ilalisha tabi’aye. ‘He had difficulty in containing his temper.’

ilalo ilusi

n. The name of a plant (also known as habati sooda) used as a medicinal remedy. See the entry for habati sooda for discussion.

ku-’ilata disgraced

v. [Som. ciil “to mistreat, to oppress, to create resentment” DSI 100] (ileete) feel

- Ye/ hula/ maskiini/ hu'iilaṭa. 'She cried, the poor girl, she felt mistreated and oppressed [by her step-mother].'
rel.
ku-'iilisha v. caus. (ilishiize) cause remorse, rancor (as a result of having been spoken ill of, disgraced)
ku-'iṣata v. (iṣeete) feel disgraced
- ma-'ileeli* n. [cf. Som. verb alalaas DSI 16] joyous ululation/trilling sound made by women by vibrations of the tongue (esp. at weddings)
- iili* n. [Som. ciil "to mistreat, to oppress, to create resentment" DSI 100] rancor held as a consequence of having been spoken ill of; remorse for having failed to do s.t.
- iloo=ni* adv. [Sw. jioni SSED 156] (only used in locative form) at dusk, in the evening Chiineendra/ nt^h angú/ fijiri/ haṭá/ karka ilooni. 'He walked from morning until about dusk.'
Ilooni/ muke/ na muḅiwé/ wachiḷawa/ wacholoka kaawo. 'After dark the woman and her husband departed and went to their place.'
Ilooni/ muke/ shpika chaakuja. 'At dusk the woman cooked food.'
Ilooni/ ondroshela/ chistukula chingoka/ icho/ chingila naa cho/ ndraani/ numbaani. 'At dusk she got up and took the snake and went inside the house with it.'
Kharibu ya ilooni/ ofeetopó/ chilemela mteendre/ khpumula/ na usiinzizi/ uchimtaala. 'About dusk, when he got tired, he leaned against the date tree to rest and sleep overtook him.'
Sku mooyi/ karka ilooni/ choondroka/ shpika chaakuja/ chisuura/ chaakuja/ cha khpeendeza. 'One day near dusk she got up and cooked good food, food that pleases.'
Ye/ chendra fijiri/ na mapeema/ lapiili/ na chendra kila ilooni. 'He went [to the garden] early in the morning, in the afternoon, and he went in the evening.' (Phon. The phrase na chendra kila ilooni illustrates the possibility that kila may be internal to a phrase. In the text recorded by MI, the final accent on ilooni is clear. We suspect that it has to do with the conjoined chi-clauses. We did not study this issue with MI. GM, when asked to record the line, assigned a default penult accent to ilooni.)
- ilu* n., adv. [Sw. juu SSED 160] above, up, on, top, over Basi/ isa/ mwaanawá/ mi/ nt^h akuuluka/ naawe/ ilu/ nt^h o. 'So now, my son, I shall fly with you ,very high.'
chimeza ziwena zibuukú/ iluké 'the small table which books were seen on it' (This relative clause, where the relative verb agrees with the postposed subject is preferred, but it is acceptable to say chimeza chiwena zibuukú/ iluké 'the small table which was seen (with) books on it'.)
Chiwa'ambila weenzawe/ wawaliko ilú/ kumḷaṭiḷila ḷkaambala. 'He told his friends above to throw him a rope.'
Chizeele/ chimwonya eelo/ nuumba/ ilu/ na nt^hiini. 'The old woman showed the gazelle the house from top to bottom.'
ilu/ ka ilu 'up and up' kuwaka nuumba/ ilu/ ka ilu 'to build a house high, high up' ilu/ ka ilu 'on the surface' Ziwaliko ilu/ ka ilu/ tu. 'They were on the surface only.'
ilu/ ya iyo 'on top of that, in addition to that'
Hamiisi/ husomaa nt^ho/ ilu/ ya iyo/ hupenda mpiira/ nt^ho. 'Hamiisi reads a lot; on top of that, he likes football a lot.'
Ilu ya khabri/ mi/ nḷizilee nt^ho. 'On the grave, I cried very much.'
iluya 'on me – i.e. my responsibility' (also: iluyo, iluye, ilu yiit, ilu yiin, ilu yaawo) Ni waajibu/ iluya. 'It's my obligation.'
ka ilu 'on the surface; implicitly'

Mazá/ khudariliile/ haṭá/ ka ilú/ kamaa ye/ nakhsuulá. ‘Well, has he mentioned to you, even implicitly, if he wants you?’

Kula hendro ilú/ kuzimu/ hashkomi/ hishkila. ‘Everything that goes up does not reach the sky, (rather) it comes down.’ (A proverb.)

Langala ilu. ‘Look up above!’

Mara ya isa/ Hasani/ maatoye/ yachiwa/ nt^hayaako/ ilu/ ya matezo/ maatoye/ yaako/ ilu/ ya mwanaamke/ tu. ‘This time, Hasani’s eyes were not on the play, his eyes were on the girl only.’

Meeza/ iwena chibuuku/ iluke. ‘The table, there was seen a/the book on it.’ (This sentence is probably an impersonal passive, where the subject marker is the impersonal i- rather than in agreement with meeza. This interpretation is supported by the ungrammaticality of *Chimeeza/ chiwena zibuuku/ iluke. ‘The small table was seen books on it.’)

Mubli/ chiya numbaani. Ondroshezopo maatoyé/ ilú/ chimwonaa noka. ‘The man came to the house. When he raised his eyes up, he saw a snake.’

Mwanaamke/ chaandika/ ilu/ ya chiguwo. ‘The girl wrote on the piece of cloth.’

Namfaðila Nuurú/ ilu ya Hamadi. ‘I prefer Nuuru over Hamadi.’

Niko ilú. ‘I am upstairs’

Sa’iidi/ chisimama/ iluke/ laakini/ shtiisho/ nt^hashkumlaṭa. ‘Sa’iidi stood up on it, but fear did not leave him.’

Salaamu/ niingi/ zinaawe/ ilu yiinu. ‘May much peace be on you (pl.).’

Shondola maatoye/ ilu/ chiwona/ kuwa nt^heendre/ nt^hayiiko/ na mwaaná/ leele/ nt^hini yaa muti. ‘When he lifted his eyes up, he saw that the dates were not there and the child was asleep under the tree.’

Shpaandra/ ilu yaa muti/ oyo/ chilaala. ‘She climbed up that tree and slept.’

Wake wa M(w)iini/ hawafurahili/ kiskaṭila ka zoṭe/ ilu ya wabli. ‘Women of Mwiini do not enjoy depending on their husbands for everything.’

Wazele/ naawó/ ni waajibu/ ilu yaawo/ khkasa waana. ‘Old people also have an obligation on them to listen to children.’

We/ husuloowa/ khsiifa/ waant^hu/ wako ilukó/ haṭá/ ichiwa ni waant^hu wawovu. ‘You are required to praise people who are your superiors, even if they are bad people.’

Wene chibuuku/ ilu ya chimeeza. ‘He saw the book on the little table.’

Weshela zibuuku/ ilu yaa chiti. ‘He put books on the chair.’ (Note the ungrammaticality of the passive *Chiti/ chiweshela zibuuku/ iluke. ‘The chair was put on it books.’) zint^hu za ilu ‘the things on top’

m-iilu

n. 4 [cf. Sw. miguu, plural of mguu SED 278] (cf. kuulu ‘leg’) legs, feet (The Sw. version of this stem has undergone the deletion of intervocalic l that is an aspect of the historical phonology of Sw. On the other hand, Chimiini has elided the stem-initial g that is retained in Sw.)

Basi/ sulṭaani/ lazilopo ka mlangooni/ chizeele/ kama icho/ shchilawa/ ka ikholiini/ shchimtulukila sulṭaani/ miluuni. ‘So. the sultan, when he came out the door, the woman, like that, came out of the mat-bag and threw herself at the sultan’s feet.’

Bwaana/ mi/ niilé/ ka khisa kheezeza/ ije/ indreeseló/ nt^hini ya miiluyó. ‘Sir, I came in order to explain to you that which brought me under your legs.’

Chimfunga mikono/ na miilú. ‘He tied her arms and legs.’

Karkaa we/ nakubloowá/ dawa iyi/ weka nt^hini ya miiluyo. ‘When you are being killed, take this medicine and put it under your legs.’

koloka ka miilu ‘to walk’

kubiga miilu ‘to travel by foot’

Chibiga miilu/ nt^hangú/ fijiri/ haṭá/ ilooni. ‘He traveled by foot from morning until night.’

Hinendro tartiibú/ halazoowi/ na miilu. ‘The one who walks slowly is not given pain by (his) legs.’ (A proverb.)
milu miingi ‘many legs, wheels’
miluu nt^hi [lit.] feet ground -- meaning: barefooted, without shoes.
Wala zilaatu/ sineendré/ miluu nt^hi. ‘Wear [your] shoes, don’t walk barefooted!’
Mp^haka/ mnyakilee mbwa/ miilu. ‘The cat scratched the dog on the legs.’
 Or: Mp^haka/ mnyakilee mbwa/ miluuni.
muunt^hu/ na miilú ‘a man and legs’
muunt^hu/ na miiluyé ‘a man and his legs’ Wanaafakhi/ nt^ha’iná/ miilu. ‘Lies do not have legs.’ (A proverb.) (Note that nt^ha’iná and nt^hayna are used in free variation in Chimiini, as far as we can tell.) A variant form of this proverb: Miilu/ ya wanaafakhi/ ni zigobe. ‘The legs of a liar are short.’
waant^hu/ na miilú ‘people and legs’ waant^hu/ na milu yaawó ‘people and their legs’
We/ ndrāta/ mi/ khufunge miilú/ na mikonó. ‘You let me tie your legs and arms.’

imaamu religious scholar

n. [Sw. imamu SSED 141; Ar. imām W 26] leader of the congregational prayers; imaamu yītu Shaafi’i na Hambali [st.] ‘our leaders Shaafi’i and Hambali’ imaani

n. [Sw. imani SSED 10; Ar. īmān W 29] faith, belief chisuula kīwa nguzo za imaani [st.] ‘if you want to know the pillars of faith’
Hamadi/ nt^hanaayo/ imaani/ yaa wé/ tampo/ haahadi/ hakah. ‘Hamadi does not get satisfied, content (lit. have faith), whatever you give him, he does not say hakah, i.e. thanks.’
Imaani/ hupuungula/ bila shahaada. ‘Faith is lacking (i.e. not complete) without shahaada (i.e. the acceptance of the oneness of God).’
Imaani/ ni zaaydi/ ya kilaa chiint^hu. ‘Faith (and the contentment that it offers) is better than any other thing.’ (A proverb.)
Imaani/ ni zaaydi/ ya maali. ‘Faith is better, surpasses wealth.’ (A proverb.) khfanya imaani ‘to have faith’ kuwanayo imaani ‘to have faith (and nothing else), to be satisfied with little Laakini/ imaani/ nt^hunaayo. ‘But you are not satisfied, you are greedy.’
mooja namwiwo hufa ka imaani [st.] ‘God, the one who knows him, dies (in a state of being) faithful’
Muunt^hu/ chiza kuwanayo imaani/ chiint^hu/ ha’imḡoshi. ‘When one does not have faith, belief (and the contentment that comes with this), nothing will suffice him.’ (A proverb.)
Tama’aye/ iwalikoo nk^hulu/ na imaaniyé/ ka mwajitú/ iwaliko thaabití. ‘His hope was great and his faith in God was firm.’

imaara
gelani does not think this word is used in Chimiini

n. [Sw. imara SSED 141; Ar. imāra “rank, authority, power” W 27] strength

k-iimba

v. [Sw. imba SSED 141] (inzile most commonly but also imbiile) sing
Imbá. ‘Sing!’ (cf. Imbaani! ‘Sing (pl.)!’) Kharibu ya kaawo/ mwaana/ chanza kiimba/ maamé/ nimubleele/ dughaaghi/ mubla waant^hu/ nimubleele/ maamé/ maamé. ‘Near his home, the boy began to sing: mother, I have killed him, the

- beast, the one who kills people, I have killed him, mother, mother.’
kiimba/ kana Abu Dheera ‘to sing like Abu Dheera’ kiimbake ‘his/her singing’ lata kumsiifa we lata kumwiimba [st.] ‘leave off praising him, you, abandon singing about him’
Nakhsula kiimba/ na khteza dansa. ‘He likes to sing to and to dance.’
Noloshelo numbaani/ nimkasizee ye/ chiimba. ‘When I went home, I heard him singing.’
Nuuru/ inzile. ‘Nuuru sang.’
Waana/ wa’imbile ndriimbo. ‘The child sang songs.’
- rel.
k-imbiloowa v. appl. pass. (imbiliila) be sung for k-iimbila v. appl. (imbiliile) sing for, with, to Haliima/ wa’imbiliile waana. ‘Haliima sang to the children.’
Yimbiliile (ruuhuye) ndriimbo. ‘And so he sang a song.’
k-iimbisha v. caus. (imbishiize) Mwaaḷimu/ imbishize waana/ ndriimbo. ‘The teacher had children sing songs.’
k-imbishiliza v. caus. appl. make sing to or for Nuuru/ wa’imbishilize waana/ Haliima. ‘Nuuru made Haliima sing to or for the children.’
Suufi/ mwimbishilize Nuuru/ mwaana. ‘Suufi made Nuuru’s child sing.’
k-imbishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
Suufi/ na Ali/ wa’imbishilizenye waana. ‘Suufi and Ali made each other’s children sing.’
k-imboowa v. pass. (inzila or imbiila) be sung Yimbiila ndriimbo. ‘There was singing of songs.’
- mw-imbaaji* (wa-) n. 1/2 singer; [pron. wa’imbaaji]
- w-iimbi* n. [Sw. wimbi ‘Bullrush millet’, not recorded in SSED, but found in English-Swahili Dictionary 347, under ‘millet’] millet
- m̄-iimbili* (w-, wa-) n. boy; [pron. mwimbili or miimbili; wimbili or wa’imbili]
Apo/ shpata sultaani/ mwimbiliwe/ shpató. ‘Then the sultan’s boy got it [“Cinderella’s” shoe], that’s what he did.’ Basi/ oyo mwimbili/ wa masultaani/ nakuyaawata. ‘Then the son (lit. the young man) of the sultan (lit. sultans) was surprised.’
Mwajiitu/ m’arzukiile/ mwimbili/ inaye/ Ali. ‘God bestowed upon him a boy, his name, Ali.’ (MI always used the pronunciation mwajiitu to refer to God. Present-day speakers never use majiitu, the form that would occur if one simply elided the glide w following m.
 Instead, the form mojiitu is always used. It is for this reason that we do not write mwajiitu parallel to mwaana.) Mwimbili/ nt^haakujá/ waliko Omari. ‘The boy who did not eat was Omari.’ (It is also possible for the head of the relative verb to be in the same phrase as the verb: Mwimbili nt^haakujá/ waliko Omari.
 The consequence of this difference in phrasing is that in the first pronunciation, mwimbili has a long antepenult vowel and has accent on the penult syllable, while in the second pronunciation, the antepenult vowel is short and there is no accent on the word.)
Mwimbili uyu/ taku’iisha/ miyaaka/ miingi/ na kuwaa ye/ sultaani/chifa/ ni mwimbili/ uyu/ takuwo sultaani. ‘This boy will live many years, and if he, the sultan, dies, it is this boy who will become sultan.’
Mkulu/ wa mawaziiri/ wanayo mwimbili/ mooyi. ‘The prime minister had one son.’
Mukeewa/ we/ nayo miimbi/ we/ takuzala mwaana/ mwimbili. ‘My wife, you are pregnant, you will give birth to a baby boy.’

Mzalile mwimbili wa kaandra/ wa piili/ wa taatu/ waane/ wa faano/ wa sitta/ wa sabba. ‘She bore him a first son, a second, a third, a fourth, a fifth, a sixth, a seventh.’ (The expression ‘of four’ is treated as though the ne ‘four’ forms a prosodic word with waa, indicated by the fact that in default contexts accent rests on waa and not on ne. Ordinarily, a phrase final monosyllabic word receives accent in both default and final-accent triggering environments. In the case of waane, however, there is final accent only in the presence of a final-accent trigger.)

Nthaku/ chintu cha wiimbili (or: wiimbili)/ wanakhtiyó. ‘There is nothing that young boys fear.’ Or: Nthaku/ chiintu/ cha wiimbili (or: wiimbili)/ wanakhtiyó.

Sultani mooyi/ karka nthi za wahiindi/ zalila mwimbili/ mooyi/ yee peeke. ‘A sultan in the land of the Hindis had (lit. was born to) just one son.’

Sultaani/ weele/ mapsuuti/ ntho/ kuzajiloowa/ waana/ wote/ wiimbili. ‘The sultan was very happy to have had (lit. been born to) all male children.’

Wabjaana/ na wiimbili/ wotte/ wachiruuda. ‘Young boys and boys all came back.’

wanaawake/ na wiimbili ‘girls and boys’ wanaawake/ wont^he/ na wiimbili/ wont^he ‘all the girls and all the boys’

We/ takuzala mwaana/ mwiimbili. ‘You will bear a male child.’

wiimbili/ na wanaawake ‘boys and girls’

wimbili wont^he ‘all the boys’ wont^he/ wanaawake/ na wiimbili ‘all the girls and boys’

l-iimbo (n-driimbo)

n. song

ndrimbo niingi ‘many songs’ ndrimbo za mahaba ‘love songs’ ndrimbo za mataando ‘insulting songs’ Omari/ mtarjumijile Hamadi/ liimbole. ‘Omari has translated for Hamadi his song.’

imkaani

n. [Ar. imkān W 918] possibility

-(i)mkini

v. (-imkiniile) be possible

Hayimkini/ kuwanayo aqli. ‘It is impossible that he has any wits.’
Humkina/ kuwa Hamiisi/ komele kharaari/ kulata masoomo. ‘It is possible that Hamiisi has reached a decision to quit (his) studies.’
Humkina/ kuwa Hamiisi/ tinzile kharaari/ kulata masoomo. ‘It is possible that Hamiisi has decided to quit (his) studies.’

ch-iimo (z-)

n. [Sw. kimo SSED 196] height

chimooche ‘his height’

na chimooche ni duna kolko baghali [st.] ‘and its height is less than (that of) a mule’

zimo zaawo ‘their heights’

ku-’imtihana

v. test, examine (but use of this verb is extremely uncommon, as a periphrastic expression using the noun imtihaani is preferred)

imtihaani

n. [Sw. mtihani SSED 309, from Ar. imtiḥān W 895] examination

Aziizi/ munaze/ wotte/ wapisile imtihaani. ‘All of Aziizi’s younger brothers passed the examination.’

Aziizi/ muné/ pisile/ imtihaani. ‘Aziizi’s younger brother passed the examination.’ Or: Aziizi/ muné/ imtihaani/ pisile.

Aziizi/ muné/ pisile imtihani ya hisaabu/ tu. ‘Aziizi’s younger brother passed only the math exam.’

Aziizi/ muné/ tu/ pisilo im̄tihaani. ‘Only Aziizi’s younger brother passed the examination.’

Hamadi/ nt^hakhpita/ im̄tihaani. ‘Hamadi did not pass the examination.’

(In sentences with a negative verb, this verb is ordinarily focused and thus appears in phrase-final position. There is some raising of the negative verb, contra the usual downstep-intonation in sentences with canonical word order. The complement following the negative verb is markedly low in pitch. The simple yes-no question responds to this structure by treating the complement as out-of-focus, shifting the accent to the final syllable: Hamadi/ nt^hakhpita/ im̄tihaani? In the exclamatory yes-no question, the accent shifts on the negative verb as well as the complement: Hamadi/ nt^hakhpitá/ im̄tihaaní!?)

Hamadi/ nt^hakhpita/ im̄tihaani/ zont^he. ‘Hamadi did not pass all the exams.’ (In the simple yes-no question, the final two phrases shift their accent to the final syllable: Hamadi/ nt^hakhpita/ im̄tihaaní/ zont^he? In the exclamatory version, the negative verb also shifts its accent: Hamadi/ nt^hakhpitá/ im̄tihaaní/ zont^he!?) Im̄tihaani/ zont^he/ Hamadi/ nt^hakhpita. ‘All the exams, Hamadi did not pass.’ Or: Im̄tihaani/ zont^he/ nt^hakhpita/ Hamadi. (These examples, illustrate that a pre-verbal -ont^he does not necessarily trigger pseudo-relativization of the verb. However, when the quantifier is radically raised in pitch, then pseudo-relativization is obligatory: [Im̄tihaani/ ↑zont^he/ nt^hakhpitá/ Hamadi.])

kumtalija im̄tihaani

kumtila karka im̄tihaani

Choloshele skuijaani/ im̄tihaani.

Mi/ takhpita/ im̄tihaani/ keesho. ‘I will pass the exam tomorrow.’

Muusa/ takhpita im̄tihaani/ keesho. ‘Muusa will pass the exam tomorrow.’

(In this example there is no focus on the subject.) Or: (Ni) ^hMuusa/ takhpito im̄tihaani/ keeshó. (In this example there is focus on the subject. The copular ni is optional.) Or: Keesho/ Muusa/ takhpita im̄tihaani. (In this example neither pre-verbal phrase is focused.) Or: Keesho/ ^hMuusa/ takhpito im̄tihaaní. (In this example, both keesho and Muusa are raised in pitch, thus making it a bit uncertain which is focused. The pseudo-relativization of the verb indicates that one of them is focused.) Or: Keesho/ takhpita im̄tihaani/ Muusa. (In this example, the preposed adverb is not focused, hence there is no shift to the pseudo-relative form in the verb. The subject here seems to be right-dislocated, which is manifested in its radical lowering.) Or: ^hKeesho/ takhpito im̄tihaaní/ Muusá. (Focus on the preposed time adverbial triggers pseudo-relativization of the main verb. The extension of the final accent domain to the postposed subject indicates that the subject has not been right-dislocated, but merely postposed.)

Muusa/ tu/ takhpito im̄tihaaní/ keeshó. ‘Only Muusa will pass the exam.’

We/ pisile im̄tihaaní. ‘You passed the examination.’ Or: We/ pisilé/

im̄tihaani. ‘You passed the examination.’ (The simple yes-no question version of the latter sentence involves a shift of accent in the final phrase: We/ pisilé/ im̄tihaaní?)

Ye/ pisile im̄tihaani. ‘He passed the examination.’ Or: Ye/ pisile/ im̄tihaani.

‘He passed the examination.’ (Note the shift of accent in the final phrase in the yes-no question: Ye/ pisilé/ im̄tihaaní?)

ina (ma-’ina)

n. 5/6 [Sw. ina (ma-) SSED 141] name

Abdalla/ mloweele/ mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ inaye/ iwaliko Aaminá. ‘Abdalla married the daughter of a sultan whose (i.e. the daughter) name was Aamina.’

apo takiiwa kuḷa mo ka inaye [st.] ‘then you will know each one’s name (referring to the prophets sent by God)’

Chimuza maamaye/ nini/ inaye. ‘He asked his mother what his name was.’

Ina isuura/ humpo muunt^hú/ ni mojiitu. ‘A good name, the one who gives it to a man is God.’ (A proverb.)

Ina isuura/ huwaza nuumba. ‘A good name brightens a house (i.e. a family).’ (A proverb.)

Inaya/ ni Bulukhiya/ na waawé/ waliko sultaani. ‘My name is Bulukhiya and my father was the sultan.’

Inayo/ handikowaayi. ‘How do you write your name?’ Or: Jisaayi/ handikowa inayó. ‘How do you write your name?’

Isa/ mwaana/ chizaloowa/ wazele/ wanayo khtala ina imooyi/ karka ma'ina/ hupowa waaná/ sku iyó. 'Now, when the baby is born, the parents have to choose one name from among the names that are given to babies born on that day [i.e. there is a prescribed set of names used for children born on a particular day of the week].'

kumpa ina 'to give him a name'

Ma'ina/ masuura/ ya mojiitu/ ni tis'ina keendra. 'God's good names are 99.'

ma'ina/ ya maraði 'names of diseases'

Ma'ina yaawo/ ni Omari/ Huseeni/ na Haliimá. 'Their names are Omari, Huseeni, and Haliima.'

Mpele ina gani/ mwanaamkewo. 'What name did you give your daughter?'

Mi/ inaya/ ni Hamdaani. 'My name is Hamdaani.'

Mi/ nimuzize inayé/ na ina ya waawayé/ naayé/ njibiile. 'I asked him his name and the name of his father and he answered me.'

Omari/ dhibishile/ khkumbuka ina ya Baazi. 'Omari had difficulty remembering Baazi's name.'

Want^hu wa Mwiini/ akthari ya ma'ina yaawo/ ni ma'ina ya mitume/ ya masheekhi/ amó/ ya mawaliyi. 'The people of Brava, the majority of their names are the names of prophet, sheikhs [religious authorities], or saints.'

ch-iina (z-)

n. 7/8 [no etymological source found] written word, writing

Isomeḷa ziina. 'Writing has been read.' (An impersonal passive, where the SM is [cl.9], impersonal, rather than [cl.8] in agreement with ziina.)

kandika chiina 'to write'

kola chiina 'to write s.t.'

kondrola chiina 'to be able to read – lit. raise a word'

Ha'ondroli/ chiina. 'He cannot read.'

inaaba

n. [Ar. anaba W 29] blame, censure (This item was unknown to GM.)

inabu

n. 9/10 [Ar. inab W 647; Som. canab, var. cinab DSI 87] grape variant form: anabu, enabu

Enabu/ hulawa/ nt^{hi} za bardi. 'Grapes grow in cold places.'

Mi/ hupeenda/ enabu. 'I like grapes.'

inaadi

n. 9 [Sw. inadi SSED 142; Ar. inād "opposition, obstinacy" W 648] a contradiction; the act of contradicting inadi isho kumala 'a contradiction that never ends' khfanya inaadi 'to contradict stubbornly'

Omari/ hupeenda/ kiḷaa chiint^hu/ khfanya inaadi. 'Omari likes to contradict everything.'

munt^hu mwenye inaadi 'a person who refuses to listen, insisting on his own viewpoint'

Ni inadi waaðihi. 'It is a clear contradiction.'

k-iinama

v. [Sw. inama SSED 141] (ineeme) bend over

Husuḷo chimo mvunguuni/ hayimburi/ kiinama. 'The one who wants what is under the bed cannot help stooping.' (A proverb.)

Inama. 'Bend over!'

Mdirshile mweenziwe/ ineeme/ naakuḷa. 'She found her friend bent down crying.'

...ya kuwa muuyi/ uyu/ wiiko/ ka lpaandre/ wineeme '...that that town was to one side, tilted'

rel.

k-inamika v. p/s. (inamishile) k-inamisha v. caus. (inamishiize)

k-inamishana v. caus. rec. (-inamisheene)

k-inamishika v. caus. p/s.

k-inamishiliza v. caus. appl. (inamishiliize)

Jeeli/ mwinamishilize Nureeni/ mwaana. ‘Jeeli made Nureeni’s child bend over.’

k-inamishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

rel. nom.

mwinama (wa-) n. 1/2 one who bends over; [pron. wa’inama ‘ones who bend over’] mwinamisha (wa-) n. 1/2 one who causes to stoop or bend over; [pron. wa’inamisha] mwinamisho n. 3 act of causing to stoop or bend over mwinamo n. 3 act of stooping or bending over inchidente

n. accident

kingila inchidente ‘to have an accident’

Hasani/ ingile inchidente/ bishile [kuta/ ka gaari/ bom!/ haḥá/ majiraani/ wakasiize. ‘Hasani had an accident, he hit a wall with his car/ bom! Even the neighbors heard.’

Mi/ mpheeté/ khabari/ za inchidente/ mukhtaá yé/ ilo numbaani. ‘I found out about the accident when she came home.’

k-iindama

v. birth of moon, be sighted

kuliindra/ kana mweezi/ kiindama ‘to wait for like the moon being born (i.e. to await s.t. that is certain to happen)’

mweezi/ kiindama ‘the month/moon to be seen/ born/ sighted’

Mweezi/ wa ramaḍaani/ uchiindama/ hufungoowa. ‘If the month of Ramadhan is seen/sighted, it is fasted.’

Mweezi/ wa ramaḍaani/ una kiindama. ‘The month of Ramadhan is being born/ sighted.’

Mweezi/ wa ramaḍaani/ windeeme. ‘The month of Ramadhan is born/ sighted.’

Indya

n. India

Nuzile dira’á/ Indyá. ‘I bought a dira’a cloth from India.’

k-iineendra

v. [cf. Sw. enda SSED 83] (ineenzele) walk; continue on Abinawaasi/ nakiineendra/ rashmene na weenzawe/ wa’ingile nuumba.

‘Abinawaasi was walking together with his friends, (and) they entered a house.’

Chiineendra/ chiineendra/ hattá/ shkoma/ mui/ mooyi. ‘He walked and walked until he reached one town.’

Chiineendra/ kumsonga mp^huundra. ‘He walked and drew near to the donkey.’

Fatura gani/ we/ inenzeezó. ‘Which car did you drive?’ Or: We/ inenzeze fatura gani.

Hinendro tartiibú/ haḥazoowi/ na miilu. ‘The one who walks slowly is not given pain by (his) legs.’ (A proverb.)

Ichiwa/ ye/ uko ilu ya mp^huundra/ na mwaaná/ nakiineendra. ‘It became that he was on the donkey and the child was walking.’

Karkaa ndila/ mukhtaá wo/ wanakiineendró/ lpaandre/ mbilize/ zaa ndila/ waliko waant^hu. ‘On the street when they were walking, on both sides of the road there were people.’

kinendraa chiṭa ‘lit. to walk on the head -- i.e., to abuse someone’s patience; to assume someone’s responsibility without his permission’

Fulaani/ ninenzele chiṭaani. ‘So-and-so abused my patience.’

kiineendra/ kana mwaana ‘to walk like a child – i.e. slowly, unsteadily’ kinendra kana maayi ‘to go like water – i.e. of s.t. going quickly, like goods at the market’

Tibaaku/ inakiineendra/ kana maayi. ‘The tobacco is selling quickly [lit. like water].’

kiineendra/ kana mzele ‘to walk like an old person – i.e. slowly, unsteadily’ kinendra lkutaani ‘to walk on a wall’ (Syn. One does not say kinendra lkuta, i.e. the locative form of the noun is required as a complement to kiineendra. Because the locative form is required, one cannot form a relative clause like lkuta laa ye/ ineenziló ‘the wall that he walked on’.)

kinendra naa zo ‘[lit.] to walk (or: continue) with those [news], i.e. to be already aware of a situation, to be already following a certain matter’ (Note that zo refers to “these matters” or “the news”, i.e. jawabu izi or khabari izi).

Nenzele kumambila Nuurú/ zoṭe za Ali/ nfanyiliizó/ laakini/ ye/ maanzine/ nakinendra naa zo. ‘I went to tell Nuru about all that Ali did to me, but he was already aware/well informed about it.’

kinendra ndilaa mbovu ‘to go a bad way, i.e. to follow a bad path, way of living’ kinendra ndila suura ‘to go a good way, i.e. to follow a good path, way of life’ kinendra ndilaani ‘to walk on the road’ (One cannot say kinendra ndila.

Interestingly, one can form a relative clause as in: Ndila yaa ye/ ineenziló/ siwo/ suura. ‘The road that he walked was not a good one.’ However, this is possible only in the figurative sense of following a good path, way of life.

Ndila yaa ye/ ineenziló cannot be referring to an actual road or path one is walking down.)

Maambo/ aya/ ya’ineenzele/ ka muda/ wa miyaaka/ mitatu. ‘These matters, affairs continued for three years.’

Mi/ niineenzelé/ haṭá/ Daawu. ‘I walked as far as Daawu.’

Mwaana/ ha’ineendri/ sho khtuluka. ‘A child does not walk without falling down.’ (A proverb.)

Mbnee ndilá/ mbeleya/ niineenzelé. ‘I saw the road ahead of me and I walked.’

Muke/ inenzele na waanawe/ skoḷaani. ‘The woman walked with her children to school.’

muza eelo/ anizizopo kiineendrá/ kumolokela uyu maskiini ‘when the seller of gazelles started walking towards this poor man’

Nondroshelé/ ka apo/ niineenzelé/ sku niingi/ haṭá/ nk^homele muuyi/ mooyi. ‘I left from there and continued walking many days until I reached a town.’

Nṭ^hakiineendra/ ilu ya ndila iyi. ‘I will be walking along this road.’

Waḷwaawo/ washpandra mp^huundra/ wanakiineendra/ wanakiineendra. ‘Both of them climbed up on the donkey and continued on.’

We/ ineendra/ mi/ nṭ^hakiineendra/ na mp^huundrá/ na’ineendre. ‘You walk, I will walk, and let the donkey walk.’

Ye/ ondrele mkono/ na inenzeze/ ndilaye. ‘He waved and continued on his way.’

rel.

k-inendra’ineendra v. take a stroll variant form: kinendrakiineendra

Chiya muunt^hu/ mweepe/ kunmeera/ mwaambile/ kuwaa mi/ noloshele kinendra’ineendrá. ‘If someone comes looking for me, tell him that I have gone for a stroll.’

Sku mooyi/ masku/ sulṭaani/ naayé/ nakinendro’inendro karka ndilaani/ wene nuumba/ mooyi/ inakakaa ṭala/ katiike. ‘One day, at night, while the king was taking a stroll, he saw a house burning a lamp in it.’

k-inendroowa v. pass. (y-ineenzela) be walked Yiineenzela/ haṭá/ Daawu. ‘There was walking as far as Daawu.’

k-iineenza v. (inenzeze) drive, go on, continue; help to walk (esp. a child), make walk

Ali/ inenzeze gari ya Nuuru. ‘Ali drove Nuuru’s car (either the one he owns or the one he usually drives).’ Or: Ali/ inenzeze Nuuru/ gaariye.

Chimaliza/ wo/ huḷawa/ hendra kumera kaazi/ amó/ kinenza kazi zaawó. ‘Then they leave to go to look for work or to continue with their work.’

Chinzena kaaziye/ ya khsuka. ‘She continued weaving (lit. she continued her job of weaving).’

Inenzeze gaari. ‘He drove the truck.’

Juha/ panzile mp^huundra/ mwaana/ shishile hogaani/ namwiineenza. ‘Juha climbed up on the donkey, and his child held the donkey’s rope on the trip.’

kiineenza/ kana maayi ‘to keep on going, doing without stopping’

Omari/ nakinenza qur’aani/ kana maayi. ‘He is reciting the Quran fluently.’

Omari/ nakizinenza ndrimumbo/ kana maayi. ‘He is singing songs continuously without stopping like water.’

kinenza kaazi ‘to keep the work going, progressing’

Msimamishi/ inenzeze kaazi. ‘The supervisor kept the work going.’

Maambo/ ya’ineenzele/ jis’iyi/ kaa muda/ mule

Mi/ namwiineenzá/ mba. ‘I am walking a/the dog.’

Mwinenzeze mwaana. ‘He helped the child walk.’

Ninenzeze faḫuraa mp^hiyá. ‘I drove the new car.’

Nuuru/ inenzeeze/ gaari/ ya Haaji/ uziló. ‘Nuuru drove the truck that Haaji bought.’

Omari/ namwiineenza/ mwaanawe. ‘Omari is walking his child.’

We/ inenzeze faḫuraa mp^hiyá/ ambó/ nshepe? ‘Did you drive the new car or the old car?’

k-inenzeleza v. appl.

Tuuma/ mwinenzeleze Omari/ gaari. ‘Tuuma drove the car for Omari.’

(Usage: This sentence would not be used to convey the idea that Tuuma drove Omari’s car in a situation where it was not being done for him. In such a situation, one would say: Tuuma/ inenzeze gaari ya Omari. ‘Tuuma drove Omari’s car.’)

rel. nom.

mwineneendo n. 3 a walk, act of walking, a trip

Faatima/ mwiineendrowe/ msuura. ‘Faatima, her way of walking is very nice.’

Muunt^hu/ kuulu/ ichimlaaza/ mwiineendro/ huzidisha/ ulaazo. ‘If someone’s leg aches him, walking makes it more painful.’

Wake awo/ miineendro waawo/ siwo/ msuura. ‘Those women, their way of walking is not nice.’

mwineneenza (wa-) n. 1/2 one who drives mwinenza gaari ‘driver of the car’

k-iinfa

v. [Sw. faa SED 88] (infiile) be useful, of use

Baaba/ chighaḍibika/ chimwaambila/ we/ siwo/ mwaanawa/ we/ hiinfi/ shokuwaa kuja/ na kulaalá. ‘Father became angry and said to him, You are not my child, you are good for nothing except to eat and sleep.’

Chimwaambila/ ya kuwaa ye/ nakhsula kumjaariba/ kama tamwiinfa/ kumfanyiliza kaazi/ amó/ hamwiinfi. ‘He said to him that he wants to try him out (e.g. the donkey) to see if he will be of use to work for him or not.’

chint^hu hiinfó ‘something useful’

Ha’infi/ chiint^hu. ‘He is good for nothing.’

hayi na mayti humwiinfo qur’aani [st.] ‘both the living and the dead, what is useful to them is the Quran’

Hichiinfa. ‘He is useful to us.’

Hiinfani/ Hasani. ‘What is Hasani useful for?’

Huta’abato zeemá/ huminfa yeeye. ‘The one who works hard so that

- accumulates good deed gets his benefits/rewards.’ (A proverb.)
Huwa’infra. ‘It becomes useful for them.’
Isa/ nimkoseze mweenzá/chiniinfó. ‘Now I have lost the friend who was a help to me.’
Itakiinfa/ ye/ kooloka. ‘It will be useful for him to go.’ (The subjunctive was rejected in this environment: Itakiinfa/ ye/ na’oloke. ‘It will be useful that he go.’)
Kaafiri/ khiinfó/ ni kheeri/ kolko islaamu/ sho xiinfa. ‘An infidel who is of use to you is better than a Moslem who is of no use to you.’ (A proverb.)
Kazi iyi/ itamwinfa mwana uyu. ‘This job will be suited to this child.’
Kulaa muti/ uchihada/ yaa wo/ hiinfó. ‘Every tree said that they were of use.’
Koði niingi/ haziinfi/ chiint^hu. ‘Too much talk does not serve anything.’ (A proverb.)
Mahaḷa/ inakhsuḷa khfanyowa chiint^hú/ kooði/ haziinfi. ‘Where action is needed, talk does not serve anything.’ (A proverb.) (Observe the final accent on the second phrase, indicating that it is a relative clause. It seems that the auxiliary verb form inakhsuḷa... is not marked as the relative verb, since the final vowel is not changed to o. The infinitive verb is passive and thus its final vowel is not expected to be altered.)
Maamaye/ mwinfiile/ nt^ho. ‘His mother was very helpful to him.’
Maana/ siwo/ waako/ hakhiinfi. ‘A child who is not yours will not be of use to you.’ (A proverb.)
Mi/ skuzaala/ wana hiinfó. ‘I did not give birth to children who are of use.’
Munt^hu izo khiinfá/ leeló/ na keesho/ hakhiinfi. ‘A person who was not of use to you today will not be of use to you tomorrow.’
Ninfa masku/ khinfe muunt^hi. ‘Be of use to me in the night so that I may be of use to you in the daytime.’ (A proverb.)
Nnayo wana watatú/ mooyi/ choondroka/ wawili/ hawa’infi/ chiint^hu. ‘I have three children; if one moves away, two are of no use.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is majiiko ‘cooking stones’.)
Raaði/ si/ itakichiinfani. ‘Raaði, what will it benefit us?’
Uyu/ hatakiinfa/ kaazi. ‘This one will not do for the job.’
Uyu/ takinfa kaazi. ‘This one will do for the job.’
We/ hinfi chiint^hu. ‘You are good for nothing.’ review the negative verb
rel.
k-infoowa v. pass.
Mwana uyu/ takinfowa kazi iyi. ‘This child will be suited to the job.’
rel. nom.
mw-iinfa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who is of use; [pron. wa’infra (pl.)] infermiyeere (ma-) n. [Ital.] nurse (male or female); [pron. ma’infermiyeere (pl.)] ingaaði n. [Som. higgaad DSI 307] act of spelling variant form: hingaaði
ku-ingaaðisha v. caus. (ingaðishiize) spell
rel.
ku-ingaðishoowa v. pass.
Kalima iyo/ hu’ingaðishoowa/ jis’iyi. ‘That word is spelled this way.’
-iingi adj. [Sw. -ingi SSED 142] many, a lot, much, hard; the [cl.9/10] form may be pronounced [niingi] or [niingi] ahli nt^hawana mapeesá/ miingi ‘people who do not have much money’
Akhili niingi/ kuletaa dhibu. ‘Too much cleverness causes harm.’ (A proverb.)
Awa/ naawó/ wa’ishize niingi. ‘These ones lived a long time.’ (In this example, niingi is used as an adverb.)

Dafa/ wingi waawo/ wafiile/ na haba waseeló/ wafakete ka apo. ‘Many of the kites died and the few who remained ran from there.’

deni niingi ‘many debts’

Hulimo miyuundrá/ ni waant^hu/ wiingi. ‘It is many people who farm.’

Huteko niingi/ huḷa niingi. ‘The one who laughs a lot, cries a lot.’ (A proverb.)

ichiwa niingi ‘[lit.] if it is much -- i.e. at most’

Ichiwa niingi/ gari iyi/ itakhkoma dolari alfu. ‘At most, this car will cost 1,000 dollars.’

ka wiingi ‘often; hard’

kuvuma ka wiingi ‘to blow hard (of the wind)’

Omari/ ka ^hwiingi/ hendra muskitiini. ‘Omari often goes to the mosque.’

Wana awa/ kuraga ka wiingi. ‘These children are often late.’

Kiḷa muunt^hu/ yaake/ imshiishile/ haba/ na niingi. ‘Everyone is caught by his own concerns (issues, affairs), few or many.’ (A proverb.)

Mi/ nk^halent^he apá/ sku niingi. ‘I have sat here many days.’

Mmera niingi/ hukosa haba. ‘The one who seeks more misses a little.’ (A proverb.)

munt^hu mwenye wana wiingi ‘a person having many children’

Muza biyaashara/ huḷoowa/ na want^hu wiingi. ‘A merchant is called by many people.’

Mwana uyu/ kooḷize/ niingi. ‘This child talks a lot.’

Mzaha niingi/ hangamiza uweenza. ‘Too much joking spoils a friendship.’

Also: Mzaha mwiingi/ hangamiza uweenza. (A proverb.)

Naakhuḷa/ wachiwa wiingi/ jahazi/ huzaama. ‘If the captains become many, the dhow sinks.’ (A proverb, like the English “too many cooks spoil the broth”.)

Ni wiingi/ want^hu wafiló/ apa. ‘Many people have died here.’

nk^hombe niingi ‘many spoons’

Pesa izo/ ni niingi/ niingi. ‘That money is a lot.’

Peete/ nsi niingi. ‘He caught many fish.’ (Morph. Observe that in this example nsi ‘fish’ triggers [cl.9/10] agreement on -iingi, as opposed to human -- i.e. [cl.2] -- agreement.)

Sho kuwanayo miingi/ nayo habba. ‘He who does not have many (worries) has a few (at least).’ (A proverb which essentially asks: Who doesn’t have any problems?)

Sku ya piili/ wachendra teena/ wachiruda na skunyi ziingi. ‘The next day they went again and returned with much firewood.’

Want^hu awa/ wanazoo zisu/ niingi/ nt^ho. ‘These people have very many knives.’ (Notice the use of the [cl.10] form niingi where one might have expected ziingi due to agreement with the [cl.8] noun zisu. Compare the variation above between mzaha niingi and mzaha mwiingi.)

Want^hu wiingi/ wa’oloshela. ‘Many people went.’

We/ takuwona/ zijuumba/ zaa nyunyi/ ziingi. ‘You will see the nests of many birds.’

Wingi waawo/ hudakhisha hoola. ‘Most of them graze animals.’

Wowi iyi/ maayiye/ miingi. ‘This river has a lot of water.’

zibuku ziingi ‘many books’

-ingiḷa adj. diseased (lit. entered); [pron. -ingiḷá] muti wingiḷiḷá ‘a diseased tree’

k-iingiḷa v. [Sw. ingia SSED 142] (ingiḷe) enter; begin to do Abinawaasi/ ingiḷe. ‘Abinawaasi entered (the house).’
Chingila kuloomba/ sadakha. ‘He started to beg for alms.’
Chingila naa ye/ ndraani. ‘He went with her inside.’
Chisu/ chingile miriri. [H!H] ‘The knife became rusty -- lit. the knife entered rust.’ (Syn. Notice this rather strange construction where the thing that has been “entered” is the grammatical subject and the things doing the “entering” is a complement of the verb. It is not possible for ‘rust’ to be the grammatical subject: Miriri/ yingilee chisu. It is apparently not acceptable to have ‘rust’ as the subject by putting ‘knife’ in a locative form: Miriri/ yingile chisuuni. See below for an example where such a construction does occur. A passive sentence is possible, but it is still the ‘knife’ that is the subject: Chisu/ chingila na miriri. [H!H] It is important to note that the base sentence from which the passive is derived is not a grammatical sentence.)

ichiwa ka qariibu hiingila khfakata [nt.] ‘if they are close I start running’

Fardoosa/ nt^hakingila/ numbaani. ‘Fardoosa did not enter the house.’

(Phon. The simple yes-no question: Fardoosa/ nt^hakingila/ numbaani? The emphatic version: Fardoosa/ nt^hakingila/ numbaani!?)

Furaha/ imwingile qalbiini. ‘Happiness entered his heart.’ Or: Qalbi/ imwingile furaha.)

Ikoofiya/ imchingila sultaani/ mkonooni. ‘The hat fell into the king’s hand[s].’

Ingila. ‘Enter!’ (cf. Ingilaani. ‘You (pl.) enter!’)

Ingila iboholiini/ tomola uki. ‘Enter into the hole and take out the honey.’

Isa/ siimba/ ingile kuja waant^hu. ‘Now the lion has begun to eat people.’

jawaabu ya duniya hiingila humala [nt.] ‘the matters of this world ebb and flow’

Hiingila/ kaake/ nt^hundruuni. ‘He (e.g. the rat) enters into his hole.’

Huseeni/ nt^hakingila/ numbaani. ‘Huseeni did not enter the house.’ Not:

Huseeni/ nt^hakingila numbaani. Both phrasings, however, are possible under pseudo-relativization: Liini/ Huseeni/ nt^hakingila/ numbaani. ‘When did Huseeni enter the house?’ or Liini/ Huseeni/ nt^hakingila numbaani.

hiingila makaani nuumba ya Mojitu [nt.] ‘I go find shelter in the house of God’ kingila amaniini ‘to be safe’

Si/ shtakingila amaniini. ‘We will be safe.’

kingila deeni ‘to go into debt, take money from someone and therefore be in debt to him’

Ye/ ingile deeni. ‘He went into debt.’

kingila dhibuuni ‘to get into difficulty’

Iyi/ ma’anaye/ ichiwa we/ ingile dhibuuni/ ichiwa we/ nayo poroblemá/... ‘The meaning of this is that if you get into difficulty, if you have problems...’

kingila dhuuma ‘to go in the night to a sleeping woman and rape her’

[This expression not known to GM.]

kingila haaja ‘to be needy’

Nuuru/ hadiile/ mi/ ininingilile haaja/ ka Hasani/ nakhsula khpasa peesá/ kaaké. ‘Nuuru I need something from Hasani (lit. a need has entered me from Hasana), I want to borrow money from him.’

kingila ilanzi ‘to be asleep (of body parts)’

Kuuluya/ yingile ilanzi. ‘My leg is asleep.’

kingila khalwa ‘to seclude oneself in an isolated place for religious purposes’

Masheekhi/ wakuluwakulu/ hingila khalwa/ ka wiingi/ kulomba mojiitu/ maghfira. ‘Senior (lit. big) scholars enter into seclusion often to pray to God for forgiveness.’

kingila khuusi ‘to dive’

Ingile khuusi/ maraa mbili. ‘He dived in two times.’

kingila nuumba ‘to enter s.o.’s house to apologize’

Muunt^hu/ ingile nuumba. ‘The man entered the house to apologize.’ (C. Muunt^hu/ ingile numbaani. ‘The man entered the house.’) kingila ruuhu ‘to revive (in spirits)’

Imwingile ruuhu. ‘His spirits revived.’

kingila ta’ziya/ taaziya ‘lit. to enter a bereavement (with ta’ziya as the subject)’

Leelo/ ka Hamadi/ numbaani/ yingile taaziya/ dada yaawo/ fiiló. ‘Today at Hamadi’s house someone died, their grandmother died.’

Leelo/ ka majiraani/ yingile ta’ziya. ‘Today the neighbours had a bereavement (lit. a bereavement has entered at the neighbours’ place).’

Kingilake/ numbaani/ nt^haykumfurahisha/ nt^hayimfurahisha/ Ali. ‘His entering the house did not please Ali.’

Laakini/ masku/ yachiingila/ na wenye nuumbá/ wachilalaá... ‘But when night comes and the owners of the house are asleep...’

Mi/ niingiló/ Nuuru/ chilawa. ‘When I entered, Nuuru was leaving.’

Mubli/ chiya/ hatamlata/ kingila numbaani. ‘If her husband came, she would not let him enter the house.’

Mukhtaá wo/ wa’ingilo ka Yuusufú/ wamwambiile... ‘When they entered into the presence of Joseph, they told him...’

Muunt^hu/ siingilé/ mtanaani. ‘Let no one enter the room.’

Na’ingile. ‘Let him enter.’

Nt^hanakingila. ‘He is not entering.’

Nuumba/ ingila na waant^hu. [H!H] ‘The house was entered by people.’

Nuumba/ yaa we/ nt^hukiingilá/ hiiwi/ ilaye. ‘The house that you have not entered, you cannot know its defects.’ (A proverb.)

Peesa/ schimingila Omari/ mkonooni. ‘The money has gone into Omari’s hands (we did not hope for or expect this, and now something bad is likely to happen).’

Omari/ bozele zibuuku/ haba/ tu/ ha’ingili/ habasaani. ‘Omari just stole a few books, he won’t go to prison.’

Siingilé. ‘Don’t enter!’ (cf. Singileeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t enter!’)

Suukari/ yingile nt^huungu. ‘There are ants in the sugar (lit. sugar entered ants).’ (Syn. This sentence is similar to the one cited earlier for a knife having become rusty. In this example, suukari governs subject agreement. It is impossible for nt^huungu to govern an object prefix: Suukari izingile nt^huungu. It is possible for nt^huungu to be the subject of the verb if suukari is put into a locative form: Nt^huungu/ zingile sukariini. It is also possible to have a passive sentence where suukari is the subject and nt^huungu appears in an agent phrase: Suukari/ yingila na nt^huungu. ‘The sugar has been entered by ants.’ The reverse is not possible of course: Nt^huungu/ zingila na suukari. ‘The ants were entered by sugar.’

Taahiri/ ingile numbaani. ‘Tahiiri entered the house.’ Or, with focus on the verb: Taahiri/ ingiile/ numbaani. ‘Tahiiri entered the house.’ (Syn. If one wishes to focus on the subject, the verb must be put into pseudo-relative form: Taahiri/ ingilo numbaani. ‘Tahiiri entered the room.’ It is possible to focus on the subject and at the same time put emphasis on the verb: Taahiri/ ingiló/ numbaani. ‘Taahiri [is the one who] entered the room.’)

Wa’ingilopo numbaani... ‘When they entered the house...’

Waant^hu/ wa’ingile numbaani. [H!H] ‘People entered the house.’

Wotte/ wa’ingiile/ kumteka. ‘All started laughing at him.’

Ye/ ingile jawabu iyo/ mara ya piili. ‘He went into that matter again.’

rel.

k-ingikila v. p/s. appl. able to enter in for (This form is rather surprising. There does not seem to be a root /ing/ used in Chimiini, but the present form seems to consist of /ing+ik+il/. As is shown below, there is a p/s. form /ingil-ik/, but interestingly, there is no applied form derived from this stem: */ingil-ik-il/.)

Chiti/ chimwingikilile mtanaani. ‘The chair was able to be brought in the room for him (usu. due to his own efforts).’

k-ingilila v. appl. (ingiliile)

Bakayle/ lasile/ kanaye/ waazi/ teena/ nzi/ zinamwingilila/ kanaani. ‘The hare had left its mouth open (while feigning to be dead), then flies were getting in and out of his mouth.’

Basi/ chiwa'ingilila/ chimwaambila/ maamé/ leelo/ shpatilileni/ kishpaakuja. 'So she [the mother bird] went in to them, [and the chicks] said to her: Mother, today, what did you get for us to give us to eat?' (Morph: In this example sentence, we observe that the [cl.2] subject prefix wa- is elided in chimwaambila.)

Eelo/ chilawa/ chanza khfakata/ kiyingilila maduriini. 'The gazelle left and began to run and took himself off into the bush.'

Hamadi/ khingilile mtanaani. 'Hamadi entered the room on you (this sentence conveys the idea that he should not have done this, he has put himself in danger and thus has done s.t. to your detriment).'

Isa/ Abunawaasi/ imwingilile haja ya peesa. 'Now Abunawaasi needed money [lit. the need of money entered him].'

kingilila safari 'to travel with'

...zaakuja/ zaa wo/ kingilila safari 'food for them to use as provisions on the trip'

Ningilile mtanaani. 'He entered my room.'

Ye/ mwingilile/ baduwi/ kuza khabari. 'He went in to the nomad to ask after the news [of the town].'

k-ingililana v. appl. rec.

kingililana numbaani 'to visit one another (lit. to enter the house for one another)'

k-ingililoowa v. appl. pass.

Ningilila mtanaani/ naaye. 'My room was entered by him.'

k-ingiloowa v. pass. (ingiila) be entered Chingilowa na tuhumu/ mukeewe. 'She got suspicious, his wife.' (Prosody:

The postposed subject is out-of-focus, and thus the corresponding simple yes-no question involves accent shift in that phrase: Chingilowa na tuhumu/ mukeewé? The exclamatory question also shifts accent in the preceding phrase: Chingilowa na tuhumu/ mukeewê!?)

Chisu/ chingila na miriri. 'The knife became rusty -- lit. the knife was entered by rust.'

Jawabu iyo/ yingila mara ya piili. 'That matter was gone into again.'

kingilowa na shaka 'to doubt -- [lit.] to be entered by doubt'

Miti/ nthayakingiloowá/ hayatakhtindoowa. 'Trees which have not become diseased will not be cut down.'

Mukeewe/ chingiloowa. 'His wife was sick (lit. entered).'

Mukeewe/ chingilowa na tuhumu. 'His wife has gotten suspicious.'

(Prosody. This sentence exhibits canonical downstep intonation. The simple yes-no question involves no accent shift. The exclamatory question shifts the accent in the VP: Mukeewe/ chingilowa na tuhumu!?)

Mukeewe/ chingiloowa/ na tuhumu. 'His wife got suspicious.'

Muunt^hu/ na mukeewé/ hayingiloowi/ kati kaawo. 'A man and his wife are not entered in the middle (i.e. do not interfere between a man and his wife).' (A proverb.)

Muti waa si/ chi'utiinziló/ uwaliko wingilá. 'The tree that we cut down was diseased.'

Numba/ yingila na waant^hu. 'The house was entered by the people.'

Zamaani/ zita/ shchingiloowa/ ka lpaanga/ na gaashaani. 'In olden times wars were fought (lit. entered) with swords and shields.'

k-ingilowa'ingiloowa v. freq.

Hasani/ ingila'ingiila. 'Hasani has been afflicted (lit. entered and entered) by diseases.'

k-ingilana v. rec. go to visit one another (of neighbors)

Si/ hachingilani. 'We do not visit one another.'

k-ingilika v. p/s. able to be entered Mtana oyo/ hawungiliki/ ka lvuundo. 'That room cannot be entered because of the bad smell.' (The expected pronunciation of the verb in this example is hawungiliki. We are unsure whether this is a misrecording, or whether it is a sporadic pronunciation, or whether there is some systematic aspect to it.)

Mtana uyu/ hingilika. 'This room can be entered.'

k-ingiliza v. caus. appl. (ingilize) take s.t. into a room, house, office, etc., for s.o.

kingiliza deeni (or: deniini) 'to cause to go into debt on'

Ningilize mwaanawa/ deeni. 'He caused my son to go into debt.'

Ningilize chaakuja. ‘He brought food in for me (to eat).’
Ningilize chaayi. ‘He brought some tea into me [where I was].’
Ningilizee chili. ‘He took a bed into [some place] for me.’
Ningilize mwaana/ chaakuja. ‘He brought food to the child for me.’
Ningilize mweenzawa/ khasaara. ‘He caused my friend to suffer a financial loss.’

Ningilize sanduukhu/ mṭanaani. ‘He took the box into the room for me.’

k-ingilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. take s.t. in for one another Wa’ingilizenye chaakuja. ‘They took food in for one another.’

k-iingiza v. caus. (ingiize) make, induce s.o. enter into a place; take s.t. into, bring into; show s.o. in; allow or permit to enter

Ali/ mwingize Hamadi/ numbaani. ‘Ali let or helped Hamadi enter the house.’

Basi/ chimpa khabari/ muḅliwe/ chimwaambila/ khtumila peesa/ pashpo khfanya kaazi/ kiingiza/ peesa/ siwo/ suura. ‘So she informed her husband, telling him: to spend money without doing work to bring [this] money in is not nice.’

Chimwingiza numbaani. ‘He took him inside the house.’

Chingize kaashá/ mṭanaani. ‘We took the wooden box into the room.’

Ingize chaakuja/ mṭanaani. ‘He brought food into the room.’

Ingize sanduukhu/ mṭanaani. ‘He put the box in the room.’

kingiza deeni (or: deniini) ‘to cause to go into debt’

Ningize deniniini. ‘He caused me to go into debt.’

kingiza khasaara ‘to cause to suffer a loss’

kingiza mwaana/ madrasaani ‘to enter a child in school’ kumwingiza eelo/ numbaani ‘to bring the gazelle into the house’

Mwingize. ‘Show him in!’ (cf. Mwingizeeni. ‘You (pl.) show him in!’)

Ningize deeni. ‘He made me go into debt.’

Ningize numbaani. ‘He made me enter the house.’

Nuuru/ mwingize mweenzawe/ chineema. ‘[Lit.] Nuuru brought his friend into the movie -- i.e. paid his friend’s way into the movie.’

Suufi/ ingizee chiti/ mṭanaani. ‘Suufi brought a chair into the room.’

k-ingizanya v. caus. rec. cause each other to enter kingizanya deeni (or: deniini) ‘to cause each other to go into debt’ k-ingizika v. caus. p/s.

Chiti ichi/ hachingiziki. ‘This chair cannot be brought in.’

Mwana uyu/ ha’ingiziki/ mṭanaani. ‘This child cannot be brought into the room (e.g. he cannot be persuaded to enter).’

k-ingizikila v. caus. p/s. appl.

Chiti/ chimwingizikiliile. ‘The chair was able to be brought in for him.’

(This form may be used to convey the idea that someone else succeeded in getting the chair in for him, while the usual interpretation of Chiti/ chimwingizikiliile. is that he himself succeeded in bringing the chair in.)

k-ingizoowa v. caus. pass. (ingiiza) be brought into Chaakuja/ chingiza mṭanaani. ‘Food was brought into the room.’

Eelo/ chingizowa numbaani. ‘The gazelle was brought into the house.’

Huseeni/ chingizoowa/ barzaani/ ka mwanaamke. ‘Huseeni was made to go in the hall to the girl.’

Sultaani/ chingizoowa/ chumbaani/ ka mwanaamkewe/ chiwonana naaye. ‘The sultan was brought into the bedroom of his daughter and saw her (lit. saw one another with her).’

k-ingilana

v. (ingileene) be stretched tight (of a rope)

Lkaambala/ lingileene. ‘The rope is stretched tight.’

Ndruzi/ zingileene/ zaaydi. ‘Threads got entwined together very tight.’

Nk’aambala/ zingileene. ‘The ropes got stretched tight.’

-iingine

adj. [Sw. -ingine SSED 142] other, another

Ali/ ha’isi/ walá/ haṭakiiwa/ kuwaa ye/ mfurahishize maamaye/ na ka jis’iyó/ ye/ dáa’ima/ takumeerá/ jisaa ye/ mriðishiza maamaye/ka kumpa maali/ miingine/ na miinginé. ‘Ali does not know nor will he know that he has pleased his mother and for this reason, he always will seek to please his mother by giving her more and more money.’

chibuku chingineche ‘a book other than this one’

chiti chiingine ‘another chair’; ziti ziingine ‘other chairs’

Cho/ siwo/ kama lugha za want^hu wiingine. ‘It (i.e. Chimwiini) is not like the languages of other people.’

Chizeele/ na winginewé/ wawaliko numbaani/ wachiya ka sulṭaani. ‘The old woman and others who were in the house came to the sultan.’

Choloka khsimama na mp^huunda/ ziingine. ‘He went to stand with the other donkeys.’

Dawayo/ siwo/ chint^hu chiingine/ shokuwa inyi yaa nfuye. ‘Your medicine is not anything except the liver of a monkey.’

Haala/ na ziint^hú/ zinginezé. ‘They grow (and) many other things.’

ifungu yiingine ‘another share’

ikuta yiingine ‘another aug. wall’; mikuta miingine ‘other aug. walls’ ka ahli yaawo/ na winginiwé/ ba ‘to their relatives and to others as well’ kuwa siwo/ hakhi/ ye/ khpowa ifuungu/ sawasawa/ na miingine ‘that it was not right that he be given a share equal to others’ lkuta liingine ‘another wall’; nk^huta ziingine ‘other walls’ mafungu miingine ‘other shares’

Mi/ nanzize khfikirilá/ khtalaa ndila/ yiingine/ ya khfanya ziint^hu. ‘I began to consider taking a different course of action (a different way of doing things).’

Mi/ nnakhsulá nyunyi mwiinginé/ kama uyú. ‘I want another bird like this one.’

Mp^haka/ nt^hakhfaanya/ yiingine/ chimulukila. ‘The cat did nothing other than jump at him (the rat).’

Muunt^hu/ mooyi/ funzile safari/ kooloka/ muyi mwiingine. ‘One man got ready to travel to another town.’

munt^hu mwiingine ‘another man’

muti mwiingine ‘another tree’; miti miingine ‘other trees’

mwaarabu/ na mwanaamkewé/ na khisa ziinginé ‘the Arab and his daughter, and other tales’ mwinginewa ‘someone other than me’; mwinginewo ‘someone other than you’

...na hufaanya/ kaazi/ zingineze ‘and they do other jobs’

Nnakhsoma chibuku ichi/ mara yiinginé. ‘I am reading this book another time.’

numba yiingine ‘another house’; numba ziingine ‘other houses’ safari yiingine ‘another trip, another time’

Si/ nt^hachiná/ chint^hu chiingine. ‘We do not have anything else.’

Sulṭaani/ chimpa baduwi/ riyaali/ khamsiini/ chimwaambila/kumwambila mukeewe/ khfanya ikofiya yiingine. ‘The sultan gave the nomad fifty riyaali and told him to tell his wife to make another hat.’

Teena/ chilola muke mwiinginé. ‘Then he married another woman.’ (Phon. The ordinary pronunciation of the last phrase of this example would be one where there is default penult accent. The final accent in the pronunciation recorded here seems to be a kind of exclamatory intonation that we have observed elsewhere in yes-no questions.)

Wachiineendra/ wachiineendra/ haṭá/ washkoma nt^hi yiingine. ‘They walked and walked until they reached another land.’

Walikoo muke/ mwiingine. ‘It was another woman.’

Want^hu wiingine/ washishiḷa shṭana. ‘The other people got angry.’

Washpanza itaanga/ wachisaafira/ mpaka/ washkoma/ jaziira/ yiingine.

‘They raised the sail and traveled until they reached another island.’

wiingine ‘others’

winginewe ‘some of them, others than them’

Zaakuja/ ziingine/ maama/ humwistiriŋa mwaanawe. ‘Other foods mother hides from her children.’

k-iinika

v. [Sw. inika SSED 141] (inishile) tip, tilt, turn s.t. on the side

Hamadi/ nakiinika/ ka kuḅḅji. ‘Hamadi is tilting toward the right side.’ Or:

Hamadi/ nakinika ka kuḅḅji.

Ntʰanakiinika. ‘He is not tilting it.’

Omari/ nakiinika/ mbelee mbele/ haṭá/ tuushile. ‘Omari was tilting forward until he fell.

rel.

k-inikika v. p/s.

k-inikila v. appl.

rel. nom.

mw-iiniko n. 3 act of tipping, tilting

in jiili

n. [Sw. injili SSED 143; Ar. injil “gospel” W 30] Bible, New Testament

Injiili/ ishkiliza mtume lisa. ‘The Bible has been brought down/ revealed for the Prophet Issa (Jesus).’

Injiili/ na qur’aani/ ba/ ni ziwo za mojiitu. ‘The Bible and the Quran are God’s books.’

Injiili/ nii chiwo/ cha makiristyaano. ‘The Bible is a Christian book.’
injiliini ‘in the Bible’

injinyeeri (ma’-)

n. [Ital. ingegnere] engineer

ku-’inkaara

v. [Som. inkaara DSI 328] (inkʰariile) curse; [pron. ku’inkʰaara]

rel.

ku’inkʰarsata v. do s.t. that merits cursing, bring a curse on oneself inkaari

n. 10 [Som.] curse; [pron. inkʰaari] (The examples below illustrate that inkʰaari is regularly treated as a [cl.10] nominal.)

Inkʰaari/ huzoloowa/ du’a/ huḷoowa. ‘Curses are easily gathered, praise has to be bought (i.e. earned).’ (A proverb.)

Inkʰaari/ za maana/ hazimdhibi/ mzeele. ‘The curse of a child does not affect, harm the father.’ (A proverb.)

kuwanaayo/ inkʰaari ‘[lit.] to have a curse -- s.o.’s curse is upon you (and consequently your misfortune derives from this factor)’

Muuntʰu/ chiza kuwakasa wazeele/ hutala inkʰaari. ‘If one does not listen to his parents he is cursed.’

Muuntʰu/ nazo inkʰaari/ haliwaani. ‘One who is cursed does not succeed.’

Ni/ nnakumera inkʰaari. ‘You (pl.) are looking for curses only.’

Jaabiri/ inkʰaari/ zimpete. ‘[Lit.] a curse got Jaabiri.’ Or: Jaabiri/ pete inkʰaari. ‘Jaabiri [lit. got] a curse.’

Saahibu/ mpatishize Jaabiri/ inkʰaari. ‘Saahibu persuaded, tricked Jaabiri into doing something that brought a curse on him.’

ku-’inkira

v. [Ar. nakira and noun inkār “denial, refusal” W 998] (inkʰiriile) deny, reject (what s.o. says); [pron. ku’inkʰira]; variant form: kiinkʰira

Huseeni/ inkʰiriile/ koḍi izo. ‘Huseeni denied those words.’

khu’inkʰiro ni kaafiri [poem] ‘whoever rejects you is an infidel’

Mi/ hukahata/ Muusa/ kun’inkʰiraa mi. ‘I hate Muusa’s ignoring me.’

Mi/ n’inkʰiriile/ kumwiwa Hamadi. ‘I denied knowing Hamadi.’

Mi/ n’inkʰiriile/ kuwa namwiwa Hamadi. ‘I denied that I know Hamadi.’

Muusa/ inkʰiriile/ kuwa hadile ismu/ ya chiintʰu/ kana icho. ‘Muusa denied having said anything such as that.’

Mwanaashke/ inkʰiriile/ kudirkamana na Abú. ‘The girl denied having met with Abu.’

Mwanaashke/ ink^hiriile/ kuwa dirkamene na Abú. ‘The girl denied that she met with Abu.’
Nink^hiriile kuwaa ye/ bozele peesá. ‘I denied that he stole the money.’ (If it were a main clause, ye/ bozele peesa would exhibit default penult accent on peesa since the third person verb form bozele ‘he stole’ triggers default accent. In this example, we find final accent on bozele peesa since it is within the scope of the main verb, nink^hiriile ‘I denied’, a first person past tense form that triggers final accent.)
Omari/ ink^hiriile/ kuwaa ye/ bozele fatuura. ‘Omari denied that he stole the car.’
Omari/ ink^hiriile/ nt^ho/ kuwaa ye/ mwene Abú. Omari strongly denied that he had seen Abu.
Sultaani/ mpiya/ chi’ink^hira/ chihada/ mi/ skeendra/ ka Ali/ walá/ ka muunt^hu/ mwinginiwe/ kumera majiibu/ mi/ nt^hambilee mí/ mwenwé. ‘The new sultan denied it, saying: I did not go to Ali nor anyone else to seek the answers, I figured it out myself.’
taku’ink^hiró ‘he who will deny’
rel.
ku’inkiroowa v. pass.
Kuwa Omari/ ni akhili/ ha’ikhadiroowi/ ku’ink^hiroowa. ‘That Omari is intelligent cannot be denied.’
Nt^ha’ina/ faayda/ ku’ink^hiroowa/ kuwaa we/ waliko apó. It is useless to deny that you were there.

ch-iino (z-) n, 7/8 [no etymological source found] goal (the thing into which or past which s.t. must go in a game), “home” in a game, goal (that one seeks to attain)

Chiino/ ni ka Omari/ numbaani. ‘The end point/ target is Omari’s house.’
kudara chiino ‘to touch “home” in a game; to anticipate a request, a question, and to cut it short, to brush it off as unimportant; to forestall another’s accusation by making a similar accusation against the person’

Hamadi/ dirshile/ kudara chiino. ‘Hamadi reached to get the goal/ end point.’ (In an example such as this, where the verb is phrasally separated from its complement, there is no radical downstepping of the verb. There is some declination between the initial phrase and the verb. The infinitival complement kudara chino, on the other hand, is downstepped.)

w-iino n. 14 [Sw. wino SSED 531] ink (Perhaps this is a Swahilism, as dawa is the usual word in Chimiini for ink.)

wino uyu ‘this ink’

y-iino (m-) n. [Sw. jino (meno) SSED 156] tooth

Ibanya iyi/ hukaló/ ni mituungu/ mikulumikulu/ ka miino/ mikulu/ kama mino yaa mbwa. ‘In this open area the ones who live are large ants with teeth like the teeth of a dog.’

kh^homola miino ‘to teethe’ ku’al^hama yiino ‘to fill a tooth’ kujyeza yiino ‘to fill a tooth’

Mino yaa mbwa/ hayalumani. ‘The teeth of a dog do not bite each other (i.e. they bite something else).’ (A proverb which conveys the idea that something that is a part of you, deeply connected to you, will not hurt you.)

Miinoye/ kanaa mp^hisi. ‘His teeth are (sharp) like a hyena.’

Mwaana/ yiino/ inamlaaza. ‘The child’s tooth aches.’ (Syn. It is possible to postpose mwaana, but it must be phrasally separated from the verb and have lowered pitch: [yiino/ inamlaaza/ [↓]mwaana].)

rel.

chi-j-iino (zi-j-) n. 7/8 dim.

i-j-iino (mi-j-) n. 5/4 aug.

- ku-'inqilaabaṭa v. to be overthrown
Maḍahweena/ wa Burundi/ inqilabeṭa. 'The president of Burundi is being overthrown.' (It should be emphasized that in an associative phrase where the head and the complement are phrasally separated, there is no downstep between the two phrases in pre-verbal position: in maḍahweena/ wa Burundi, there is some declination in pitch but not the radical downstepping that separate a pre-verbal phrase and the verb phrase.)
- inqilaabu n. [Ar. inqilāb W 785] overthrow of the government; [pron. inqilaabu or inkhilaabu] khfanya inqilaabu 'to overthrow the government' Siyad Barre/ shishile hokomu/ ka inqilaabu. 'Siyad Barre took power by revolution.'
Ṡoomaaliya/ inqilaabu/ ituushiló. 'Revolution happened in Somalia.'
- insaafu n. [Ar. inṣāf W 971] justice, equity (This word is perhaps an Arabicism, as it was unknown to GM.)
Mooja hishtakoowa kaako / u'adili wiiko kaako / wenye insaafu nt^hawaako / Mooja chooloke ka naani [st.] 'o God, to you are brought our complaints, [because] justice is at your door (lit. place), there are no just men, o God to whom should we go'
- insha n. [Sw. insha SSED 143; Ar. inṣā' W 964] essay Mwaalimu/ wa'uzize waana/ kandika insha. 'The teacher asked the children to write an essay.'
- k-iinsha v. finish
Mi/ mbaliko waaḍehé/ nt^ho/ kuwaa mi/ nakhsuulá/ kiinsha/ dothi iyi. 'I have been very clear that I want to put an end to this dispute.'
- ma-'iinsha n. life
Ma'iinsha/ ya fanyizaa dhibu/ nt^ho/ naami. 'Life has been made very difficult for me.'
Ni chiint^hu/ mbovu/ kabisá/ kumtilaa shaka/ muunt^hu/ waa we/ mwaminiiló/ ma'iinshayó/ yont^hé. 'It is a terrible thing to doubt someone you have trusted all your life.'
- insha'alla interj. [Sw. inshallah SSED 143; Ar. in ṣā'a Allāh W 495] God-willing, if God wills (MI pronounced this word with the velarized "l" of Arabic, written here ll)
- inshaara n. forecast, sign, indication khpata inshaara 'to get a sign, indication, direction'
Hamadi/ nakhsuḷa khpata inshaara/ yaa ye/ kolokela/ numbaani/ ka amiyé. 'Hamadi wants an indication of which way to go to his uncle house (i.e. he wants directions).'
- Mi/ ka inshaara/ Ṡu/ nilo apá. 'Me, by indication only, I came here.' What does this meaning exactly?
Omari/ inshaaraye/ huwa. 'Omari's forecast happens/becomes.'
- k-inshaaraṭa v. make a forecast, indicate to Ma'anaye/ teena/ jisa want^hu/ iyaminiilá/ mbuzi iyo/ ichinshaaraṭa. 'Because then, as the people believed, that goat gave a forecast.'
Mi/ nakinsharaṭaa nvulá. 'I am forecasting rain.'
Nimwinshareṭe Hamadi/ numba ya Omari. 'I indicated to Hamadi Omari's house.'
- rel.
k-insharaṭila v. appl. (insharaṭiliile) forecast for Ndiwé/ insharaṭiliiló/ mi/ khpata kaazi. 'It is you who predicted that I would get a/the job.’

k(u’)-insharatiloowa v. appl. pass.
We/ naku’insharatilowa kheeri. ‘You, for you it is being indicated/forecasted blessing.’

m(w)-iinsho

n. 3 [Sw. mwisho SSED 143] end; adv. finally variant form: mwiisho,

-a mwiinsho ‘last’

Mwaana/ wa mwiisho/ wa sultaani/ petopo khabari/ kuwa mkułaze/ watatú/ wa’ublela na siimba/ mwambile maamaye/ kuwaa ye/ nakeendra/ maduriini/mahala/ ya mkułaze/ wa’ublela. ‘The youngest boy [lit. the last boy] of the sultan, when he got the news that his three older brothers had been killed by the lion, he told his mother that he was going into the bush to the place where his older brothers had been killed.’

Ye/ zazila kuwa mwana wa taatu/ na wa mwiinsho/ karka nuumba. ‘He was born the third and last child in the family.’

Chizeele/ icho/ shchikala/ mwiishowe/ wa nthi ya sultaani/ oyo. ‘That old woman lived at the end of the land of that sultan.’

haťa/ mwiisho/ mwishooni ‘until the last days of his life’

kođi ya mwiinsho ‘the last word’ laakini mwiinso mowti wote laazimu [st.] ‘but in the end death is obligatory for all’

Lano ili/ mwiishowe/ una huzni. ‘This story, its end is sad.’

Mpandraa ngazi/ mwiishowe/ hishila. ‘The one who climbs a ladder, his end, he comes down.’ (A proverb.)

mwinsho waa ndila ‘the end of the road’

Mwiisho/ sultaani/ shkuumbuka/ kuwaa ye/ nthamwona/ Hasani. ‘At the end, the sultan remembered that he had not seen Hasani.’

Mwiisho/ ye/ khiriłe kooloka. ‘Finally, he agreed to go.’

Nthangú/ mwisho wa muuyi/ haťa/ mi/ nk’omela apa/ skuwona/ ruuhu.
 ‘Since the edge of town until I reached here, I have not seen a soul.’

Sa’iidi/ shfunga safari/ cheendra/ kaa muke/ wa majini/ wa mwiisho.
 ‘Sa’iidi set out on a journey and went to the woman of the last djinns [i.e. the last djinns he had met on his previous trip].’

insi

n. [Ar. ins W 30] human beings

Insi/ na jinni/ ba/ mojiitu/ wa’unziló. ‘Humans and jinnis, God created them.’ (The prosody of this sentence merits some discussion. The initial sequence insi/ na jinni shows some declination in pitch on the two accented syllables, but then a substantial lowering on ba; the subject mojiitu also shows only a small declination from jinni. but then there is the usual strong downstep between it and the verb.)

Ismu/ ya insi/ simpeendi/ kumona apa. ‘Any human being, I do not want to see him here.’ (Although negative verbs ordinarily exhibit pitch raising when separated prosodically from their complement, we did not note such a raising here. A normal downstep intonation seems to prevail. We are uncertain as to the reason for this pitch pattern.)

interneti

n. internet

internetiini ‘on the internet’

=iinu

[Sw. -enu SSED 85] second person plural possessive stem

chiinu [cl.7]

chibuku chiinu ‘your (pl.) book’ shkapu chiinu ‘your (pl.) basket’ kiinu [cl.15]

kiinu [cl.17]

Aduwi yiitu/ nakudarbaťa/ kichihujuma/ basi/ uje/ kati kiinu/takhshiindró/ ushujaa’á/ mi/ nthamloza

mwanaamkewa. ‘Our enemy is preparing to attack us, so that one among you who will win with courage, I will marry my daughter to him.’

Ali/ simeme lwavuuni/ kiinu. ‘Ali stood at your (pl.) side.’

kati kiinu ‘between you (pl.)’

kiinu ‘at your (pl.) place; for you (pl.)’

Mi/ nfaanyizeni/ kiinu. ‘What wrong did I do in your family?’

numbaani/ kiinu ‘in your (pl.) house’

We/ uko kiinú. ‘You are at home.’

Kheeri/ vutila kiinu. ‘As for blessing, pull it towards one’s own.’ (A proverb that says: if there is something to be gained or gotten, let it go to one’s relatives, one’s own family, and not to others.)

liinu [cl.11]

wiinu [cl.1]

wiinu [cl.2]

Ni wake wazimu wiinu/ kooði/ tu. ‘You women, all of you just talk.’

Siwo/ waajibu/ ilu yiinu/ kudhora want^hu/ wakulu wiinú. ‘Is it not obligatory for you (pl.) to respect people older than you?’

watatu wiinu ‘all three of you’

wawili wiinu ‘both of you’

wenza wiinu ‘your friend’

wiinu [cl.3]

wiinu [cl.14]

yiinu [cl.4]

yiinu [cl.5]

yiinu [cl.6]

yiinu [cl.9]

Basi/ mi/ mbeené/ kuwa ni kheeri/ yiinu/ ni kumfanya muunt^hu/ uyu/ sultani wiinu. ‘So I see that it is in your (pl.) best interest to make this man your sultan.’

illa yiinu/ tu ‘except what is just yours (pl.)’

Siwo/ waajibu/ ilu yiinu/ kudhora want^hu wazimá? ‘Isn’t it compulsory for you (pl.) to respect elderly people?’

Teena/ wa’ambiile/ mbele/ lindraani/ ninpe kuja yiinu. ‘Then she told them: first, wait so that I give to you (pl.) your food.’

ziinu [cl.8]

Ntetemesheze zita ziinú. ‘You (pl.) shook your heads.’

ziinu [cl.10]

Nk^he^le ziinu/ zizidiile/ nt^ho. ‘Your (pl.) noise is very loud.’

inwaani

n. [cf. Sw. anwani "address of a letter" SSED 17; Ar. unwān W 650] address, title inyi (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. ini SSED 142] liver

Dakhtari/ mwambiile/ nt^haku/ itamweleloo dawá/ sho kuwa/ inyi yaa nfuye. ‘The doctor told her that there is no cure for her except the liver of a monkey.’

Illa/ we/ keendra/ kumeera/ inyi yaa nfuye/ amó/ kundratāa mi/ kufa. ‘Either you go and look for a monkey’s liver or you let me die.’

inyi/ khfuura ‘swelling of the liver’

Inyi/ naa namá/ ni inyi/ ghaalí. ‘(Comparing) liver and meat, it is liver which is (more) expensive.’

Mi/ fijiri/ huraa’a/ huja inyi. ‘For morning breakfast, I eat liver.’

Mi/ hupenda inyi yaa mbuzi. ‘I like goat’s liver.’

Ndimí/ tamuno maaziyé/ ndimí/ takujo iniyé. ‘It is me who will drink (lit. him) his blood, it is me who will eat his liver.’

- Nfuye/ chimwaambila/ si/ ni laazima/ kuruuda/ mutiini/ mpbate khtala inyiya. ‘The monkey said to him [the shark] it is necessary for us to go back to the tree so that I may take my liver.’
ni sunna uōiya inyi kujoowa [st.] ‘it is good for the liver of a slaughtered animal to be eaten’ Omari/ nayo kansera ya inyi. ‘Omari has cancer of the liver.’
Omari/ nayo maraōi ya inyi. ‘Omar has liver disease.’
Omari/ inyi/ imfuriile. ‘Omari’s liver has swollen.’
- ch-iinza n. [Sw. kinga SSED 200] in the expressions:
chinza chaa muō ‘a burning piece of wood’ chinza ka chiinza ‘dark all over’
- mw-iipa (w-) son or daughter n. 1/2 [Sw. mpwa “‘son or daughter of sister, a nephew or niece” SSED 298] sister’s mwipa mkulu ‘big nephew/niece’; wipa wakulu ‘big nephews/nieces’ mwipa msuura ‘nice nephew/niece’; wipa wasuura ‘nice nephews/nieces’ mwipa ump^hi ‘which nephew/ niece?’; wipa waamp^hi ‘which nephew/nieces?’
mwipa wa.../ wipa ya... (associative) wiipaze ‘his/her nephews/nieces’ (Observe that the plural noun wiipa triggers [cl.10] agreement on the possessive enclitic, although in other structures it governs [cl.2] agreement, as shown above.)
- ipi (ma-’ipi) n. 5/6 [Sw. ipi cited by Sac. 304 as used in the Kiamu dialect; cf. Proto-Sabaki ipi* “=slap, palm of the hand” N&H 628] slap, spank ipi ya uso ‘slap in the face, box in the ear’ Nimtakasize ipi ya usō. ‘I plastered him with a slap in the face.’
kubiga ipi ‘to slap’
Nimbishile Aziizi/ ipi/ usō. ‘I slapped Aziiza’s face.’
Nimbishile ma’ipiyé. ‘I slapped him his slaps (i.e. the slaps he deserved)’ kubiga ka ipi ‘to slap’ Tuuma/ mbishile Aziizi/ (ka) ipi/ uso. ‘Tuuma slapped Aziizi’s face.’
- ku-’ip̣ila (ipṭiliile) afflict v. [?Ar. iḅṭil “ruin, destruction” W 63 or ’abita “impair, injure” W 586] (ipṭiile, variant form: ku’iḅṭila)
ruuhu na maali mooja m’ipṭiliile [st.] ‘in spirit and in wealth God afflicted him (Job)’
- ku-’iq̣aaba v. [Ar. noun ’uq̣ūba “punishment, penalty” W 627] (iq̣abiile) punish (e.g. with reference to God punishing evil); [pron. ku’iq̣aaba or ku’iḳhaaba] kum’iḳhaaba ‘to punish him’ Muunt^hu/ ha’isi chiint^hú/ mojiitu/ hamiḳhaabi. ‘One who does not know anything, God does not punish him.’ (Translated from a Somali proverb.)
rel.
ku-’iq̣aboowa v. pass. (iq̣abiila) be punished; [pron. ku’iq̣aboowa or ku’iḳhaboowa]
Na wafanya kaazi/ ka sarkali/ wachingila ðambi/ zozote/ hawa’iq̣aboowi/ ichiwa iyo sarkali ya wengewe/ yimo mikonooni/ ka want^hu wa qabila yaawo. ‘And those who work for the government, if they make any mistake, they are not punished if this very government [lit. government of owner] is in the hands of people of their tribe.’
Nfanyize ðambi gani/ ka’iḳhaboowá. ‘What crime did I commit that I deserve to be punished?’
- iq̣aabu n. 9/10 [Ar. ’uq̣ūba “punishment, penalty” W 627] punishment bughōi ya aqraba mwiiho iq̣aabu [st.] ‘hatred of blood relatives, [its] end is

- punishment’
- Đambi iyo/ ikhaabuye/ nii nk^hulu. ‘This crime, its punishment is big.’
Đambi izo/ ikhaabuze/ ni niingi. ‘Those crimes, their punishments are many.’
Mojiitu/ ni mwenye ikhabu niingi/ naank^hó/ ni mwenye naharisi niingi.
‘God is one of too much punishment, but also one of too much mercy.’
Muunt^hu/ shfanya đambi/ ikhaabu/ ka mojiitu. ‘If someone commits a crime, punishment is from God.’
- iqaama n. [Ar. iqāma W 801] announcement that it is time to pray ađaana na iqaama sunna akmalī [st.] ‘the call to prayer and the announcement that it is time to pray are preferred [but non-obligatory] acts’
- iqbaali n. [Ar. iqbāl W 741] luck
Nt^haná/ iqbaali. ‘He has no luck (e.g. everything goes wrong for him).’
- iqṭisaadi n. [Ar. iqṭisād W 767] the act of economizing, economy Inakuhadoowa/ ya kuwa iqtisaadi/ ya talyaani/ yiimo/ karka khatari nk^hulu. ‘It is said that the Italian economy is in great danger.’
khfanya iqtisaadi ‘to economize’
Khutba/ iwaliko ka tarafu ya iqtisadi yaa nt^hi. ‘(His) speech concerned the economy of the country.’
- iriiri n. [Som. ciriiri "narrowness, restricted space" DSI 104] narrowness iririini ‘in a narrow, restricted space’ Fulaani/ umo iririini. ‘So-and-so is in straitened circumstances, in a tight spot.’
kumtila muunt^hu/ iririini ‘to put s.o. with his back against the wall (fig.)’ mahaḷa iriiri ‘a narrow place’
Mi/ siná/ kudirka/ khfanya jawabu iyo/ ka sababu wakhtīwa/ iriiri. ‘Me, I cannot do that thing because my time is very limited.’
Mi/ wakhtīwa/ iriiri/ siná/ kudirka/ kooloka/ kumlangaḷa Hamadi. ‘Me, my time is very restricted, I cannot go and visit Hamadi.’
ndila iriiri ‘a narrow road’ numba iriiri ‘a narrow house’
- irmaani adj. [cf. Som. verb irmaanee “to make pregnant (of an animal) during lactation” and irmaan “she-animal when in milk” DSI 329] pregnant (of an animal)
- k-irtada v. [Sw. ritadi SSED 402; Ar. irtidād “withdrawal, apostasy” from verb radda W 333-334] reject the Muslim faith, apostasize (This is one of a number of examples where Arabic loanwords in Chimiini show a metathesized initial VC structure in comparison to the Swahili CV.)
- isa adv. [cf. Sw. sasa SSED 411] now Isa/ mi/ nimweené/ mwaanawe/ uyu. ‘Now I have seen this his son.’
Isa/ mi/ siná/ ndala. ‘I am not hungry now.’
Isa/ ni sa’aa nt^hatu za masku. ‘Now it is nine o’clock p.m. (lit. three of the evening).’
Isa/ ni wakhtī wa kurudoowa. ‘Now is the time for going back.’ (Emphasis/focus may be placed on isa, in which case the verb phrase may either be put into pseudo-relative form or not: [^fisa/ ni wakhtī wa kurudoowá] or [isa/ ni wakhtī wa kurudoowa].)
Isa/ nnakhsuḷa kumpá. ‘Now I want to give it to him.’
Isa/ nnakhsuḷa kumpa Nuurú. ‘Now I want to give it to Nuuru.’
isa/ tu ‘just now’ Omari/ isa/ tu/ iló. ‘Omari came just now.’ (The focus in this construction is on isa, which triggers the pseudo-relativization of the verb, ka isa ‘as of now’

Ka isa/ majawabu iyo/ nkhiriiġé. ‘As of now, that thing I accept.’

mara ya isa ‘this time’

Mi/ naktoshá/ ye/ umo karkaa ndila/ kuuya/ isa. ‘I believe she is on her way now.’

Mubġi/ suġile kumubġa/ laakini/ mara ya isa/ noka/ khadirile khfakaġa. ‘The husband wanted to kill him, but this time the snake was able to run away.’

Mi/ nakhpika isá. ‘I am cooking now.’ (Isa may be fronted and focused, thus triggering pseudo-relativization: Mi/ isa/ nakhpikó. Or: Isa/ mi/ nakhpikó.)

Nnakhsuġa khupaa we/ isá. ‘I want to give it to you now.’

Nnakhsuġa kumpa isá. ‘I want to give it to him now.’

Nnakuuyá/ isa. ‘I am coming now.’ Or: Nnakuya isá. ‘I am coming now.’

Omari/ isa/ iló. ‘Omari came now.’ Or: Isa/ Omari/ iló. (The word order Omari/ ile isa. was considered to be dubious.)

Siwo/ isa. ‘It is not now, i.e. it is not the right time to do something.’

Tuuma/ isa/ nakhpika. ‘Tuuma is cooking now.’ Or: Isa/ Tuuma/ nakhpika. Or: Isa/ nakhpika/ Tuuma. (These statements, where there is no focus on isa, would be used to answer a question as to what Tuuma is doing now; e.g. Tuuma/ nakhfaanyani/ isa. ‘What is Tuuma doing now?’ or Isa/ Tuuma/ nakhfaanyani. ‘Now Tuuma is doing what?’) (Isa may be pre-verbal and focused: Tuuma/ isa/ nakhpikó. Or: Isa/ Tuuma/ nakhpikó. Or: Isa/ nakhpikó/ Tuuma. If one wishes to focus on the subject, then isa is put at the end: Tuuma/ nakhpikó/ isa. ‘Tuuma is cooking now.’)

Tuuma/ nakhpika isa. ‘Tuuma is cooking now.’

We/ siwo/ eelo/ teena/ we/ isa/ ni kama mwaanawá. ‘You are not a gazelle anymore, you now are like my child.’

ni isa (+ verb conj.) = lit. it is now. If pronounced with a certain intonation, it opposes s.o.’s statement that s.t. has happened very recently, and the meaning is: long time ago, it is already a long time since... (Note that the meaning is exactly opposite to the wording!)

Ni isa guriiló. ‘It is already a long time since he moved.’ (Also: Ni isa/ so/ guriiló.) Compare with: Ni isa/ tu/ guriiló. ‘He has just moved.’

Iisa

n. Jesus; [pron. Iisá, Iisa]

ku-’isaabaġa

v. [cf. Sw. hesabu SSED 132] count (Morph. The extension at is used primarily in conjunction with words borrowed from Somali, though of course the Somali word may in fact have an origin in Arabic.)

variant forms: k-isaabaġa, ku-hisaabaġa

Hineendra/ nakihisaabaġa/ ni... ‘He goes on, he counts, they are...’

Hisaabaġa/ one/ two/ three/ four. ‘He counted (them): one, two, three, four.’

Huwasabaġa/ ni ikumi. ‘He counts them, they are ten.’ (Phon. Observe the elision of the initial i of the verb stem in this example.)

Isabaġa. ‘Count!’

saant’hi za mapeendo ni sisabateeni [song] ‘do not count the steps of love’

ku-’iisha

v. [Sw. ishi SSED 143; Ar. āša, ʾiša W 661] live; variant form: ku’insha

Chi’ishize (karka) numba mooyí. ‘We lived in one house.’

Chinakhtarajá/ iyi/ kuwa’infa waant’hu/ wote/ watakhsoomó/ khaasá/ waana/ wiitu/ wanaku’inshó/ apa/ khpata kiiwa/ tariikhi/ ya muuyi/ waawo/ na waant’hu/ waawo. ‘We hope that this [account] is useful to all the people who read it, especially our children who were born here [in the United Kingdom] to get to know the history of our town and our people.’ (This is an example of a consultant reading aloud from an article on Brava that appeared on the internet. It is striking that there is relatively little joining of words together into single phrases, except for kuwa’infa waant’hu and khpata kiiwa and cases where a particle precedes a content word: ya muuyi and na waant’hu. One might take this pronunciation pattern to be indicative that native speakers, when reading written Chimiini, would be comfortable with an orthography that represents words as they are spoken in isolation rather than as they might appear when in phrase-medial position, even if in the sentence in question the word would ordinarily be phrase-medial.)

Chiwa naku'iisha/ karka kheeri/ na raahá. 'He became living in blessing and comfort.'

Fardoosa/ na Aashá/ wawiliwe/ ba/ hu'insha kharibu ya skoolá/ so. 'Do both Fardoosa and Aasha live near the school?' A possible answer to this question: Ā'ā/ Fardoosa/ tu/ hu'insho kharibu ya skoolá. [HHH!!H] 'No, only Fardoosa lives near the school.'

Fulaani/ nt'aku'isha/ miyaka miingi. 'So-and-so did not live long.'

Hamadi/ hu'isha Mqodiisho. 'Hamadi lives in Mogadishu.'

Hasiibu/ ishiize/ karka raaha/ na amaani/ haṭá/ mowṭi. 'Hasiibu lived in comfort and peace until his death.'

Hu'insha apa/ isa. 'I live here now.'

Hu'insha muyi uyu/ isa. 'I live in this town now.'

Ilu yaa muti/ uyu/ chi'iisha/ nfuye/ mooyi/ mzeele. 'On this tree lived an old monkey.'

Ishiize/ jis'oyo/ naayé/ ni sulṭaani/ muda wa miyaaka/ miingi. 'He lived that way while being sultan for a period of many years.'

Karaayle/ uyu/ ishiize/ kati yaa dafa/ ka muda/ wa sku niingi. 'This crow lived among the kites for a period of many days.'

Ku'isha apa/ ni rakhisi. 'To live here is cheap.'

Ku'isha niingi/ ni kuwona miingi. 'To live long is to see much.' (A proverb.)

Mi/ n'inshize Nayroobi/ miyaka miingi. 'I have lived in Nairobi for many years.' (This example illustrates the fact that a time adverbial is ordinarily outside the scope of the final accent triggered by the verb.)

Mubiidi/ hu'insha Mambasa/ isa. 'Mubiidi lives in Mombasa now.'

Mubiidi/ hu'insha Mambasa/ isá? 'Does Mubiidi live in Mombasa now?'

Mubiidi/ hu'inshapi/ isa. 'Where does Mubiidi live now?'

Mwaka oyo/ mi/ chi'insha na wazeelewa. 'That year, I was living with my parents.'

Na ishiize/ naa ye/ miyaaka/ miingi. 'And he lived with her many years.'

Nakhsuulá/ ku'isha naa ye. 'Do you want to live with her?'

Nt'anakhaadira/ ku'iisha/ peeke. 'He cannot live alone (anymore).'

Teena/ ichiwa/ ye/ naku'iisha/ na mwaanamkewe. 'Then he lived with his daughter.'

Wazeelewo/ hu'inshapi. 'Where do your parents live?'

We/ kapata mayi yaa noka/ we/ suḷa ku'isha abadi. 'If you would get the water of the snake, you would live forever.'

Wo/ wa'ishiize/ sku niingi. 'They lived many days.'

rel.

ku-'iishika v. p/s.

Gurile Mwini/ ka khisa hu'ishika ka pesa habba. 'He moved to Brava because one can live there with little money.'

Numba iyi/ hay'iishiki/ katike. 'This house can't be lived in it.'

ku-'ishiliza v. appl.

Hi'idaḍalaṭila ki'ishiliza jisa suura. 'They try to live in a nice way.'

Nt'aná/ pesa zaa ye/ ku'ishiliza. 'He has no money to live on.'

ku-'ishoowa v. pass.

Apa/ ku'ishoowake/ ni rakhisi. 'Living here is cheap (lit. here, it's being lived, is cheap).'

Ye/ nii dhibu/ nt'ho/ ku'inshowa naaye. 'He is very difficult to live with.'

ma-'iisha

n. 6 life; variant form: ma'iinsha

Alí/ nt'anaku'iisha/ ma'iisha/ masuura. 'Ali is not living a good life.'

Khpata ma'iisha/ ni dhibu/ apa. 'Earning a living here is difficult.'

Leelo/ ma'iisha/ yaawo/ hulawa ka skazi meepe/ zaa wo/ hukhadiro khfaanyá/ apo/ muyiini. 'Today their daily living expenses come from some little jobs they are able to do there in town.'

Ma'iisha/ aya/ hayatooshi. 'The means of living do not suffice.'

Ma'iisha/ sku izi/ yawele ghaali. 'Life these days has become expensive.'
Ma'iishaye/ haya'onYESHI/ kuwaa ye/ nayo maali. 'His way of living does not show that he has money.'
Mi/ nakhtarajá/ ma'iinsha/ kuwa masuura/ nt^ho. 'I hope for life to get better.'
Mp^huundra/ welopo nt^hakuwa raaóí/ ka ma'iishá/ yaa ye/ waalimó/ ifakatiliile/ yingilile maduriini. 'When the donkey became discontented with the life that he was in, he ran away and entered the forest.'

ishaara

n. [Sw. ishara SSED 19; cf. Ar. ašara "to indicate" W 18] sign, an indication of events to happen in the future; var. anshaara, inshaara Ishaara/ ya maana/ ni utuungu/ anshaara/ yaa nvula/ ni mawiingu. 'The sign of a child (i.e. that a child is being born) is labor pains, the sign of (coming) rain is clouds.'
khpa ishaara 'to indicate'
Nuuru/ nakinzena gaari/ pele ishaara/ ka kubji/ bishile jiira. 'Nuuru is driving a car, he signaled going to the right and then went in that direction.'
khpata inshaara 'to get a sign, indication, direction'
Hamadi/ nakhsuła khpata inshaara/ yaa ye/ kolokela/ numbaani/ ka amiyé. 'Hamadi wants an indication of which way to go to his uncle house (i.e. he wants directions).'

ku-'isharaṭa

v. (ishareete) instruct a person to act in a certain manner on the basis of what one foresees as his future, what is God's will on the basis of an inshaara that one has had ku'isharaṭa ka chaala 'to show direction with the finger' ishaa'aati

n. lies

ishi

interj. something dirty, like faeces or urine variant form: ish:
Iyo/ ni ish(i)/ lata. 'That thing is dirty, leave it!'
Lata/ iyo/ ish:. 'Leave it, that thing is dirty.'
Sidaaré/ iyo/ ishi. 'Don't touch, that thing is dirty!'

ishiriini

n., adj. [Sw. ishirini Sac. 307; Ar. īsrūn W 614] twenty Ba'ada/ ya thaaniya/ ishiriini/ sa'a yūtu/ karka študiyo/ itakubiga mooyi. 'After twenty seconds, our clock in the studio will strike seven (lit. one) (o'clock).'

ishiriini/ na keendrá or ishirna keendra 'twenty nine' (Observe that when ishiriini is not contracted with the following preposition na, then we have two phrases and the second phrase has final accent, as is usual when the conjunction na precedes a nominal phrase. But when contraction occurs, yielding ishirna, we are dealing with a single phrase and there is no final accent. The contracted form is the more usual one in ordinary speech. There may also be a generational aspect to this matter, as our consultant GM referred to the uncontracted forms as "old people's speech". The contracted version may thus be a relatively recent development.)

ishirnaa mbili or ishiriini/ naa mbilí 'twenty two' ishirna mó/ mooyi or ishiriini/ na mooyí 'twenty one' ishirina naane or ishiriini/ na naané 'twenty eight' ishirinaa (n)ne or ishiriini/ naa (n)né 'twenty four' ishirna nt^haano or ishiriini/ na nt^haanó 'twenty five' Mwana/ komelopo miyaka ishirna nt^haanó.. 'When the child attained the age of twenty five...'
ishirnaa nt^hatu or ishiriini/ naa nt^hatú 'twenty three' ishirnaa saba or ishiriini/ naa sabá 'twenty seven' ishirna sitta or ishiriini/ na sittá 'twenty six'
Maliizopó/ chimwambila mwanaamke/ shchiteza/ teena/ mi/ nt^hakhutila/ ziwawo/ ishiriini/ kaa sa'a/ mooyi. 'When he finished, he told the girl: if we play again, I will defeat you twenty times in one hour.'

Mukhtaa ye/ ingilo chibaŕaani/ yachibigoowa/ miziinga/ ishiriini/ na mooyi. ‘When she entered the boat, twenty-one cannon shots were fired.’

Mwaana/ komelopo miyaka ishiriini/ na nt^haanó... ‘When the child reached (the age of) twenty-five years...’

Omari/ nayo baŕani/ taariikhi/ meezi/ ishiriini. ‘Omari has an appointment on the twentieth of the month.’

k-ishkiŕa

v. intr. [cf. Sw. shuka SSED 425] (ishkiŕiile) descend; to go down (of prices)

Chimwambila Huseeni/ mi/ ñnakhsuulá/ we/ na mwaanaamkewa/ kishkiŕa/ kendra muyiini. ‘He told Huseeni: I want you and my daughter to disembark and go into town.’

Chimwambila Sulŕani Daraayi/ kishkiŕa ka farasiini. ‘He told Sultan Daraayi to dismount from the horse.’

Chiskŕa. ‘He dismounted.’

Chizeele/ chiŕawa/ chiskŕa nt^hiini. ‘The old woman left and went downstairs.’

Chizeele/ ishkiŕiile nt^hiini. ‘The old woman went downstairs.’

Ha’ishkiŕi/ koloka maduriini. ‘He never used to climb down [from that tree] to go into the bush.’

Ishkiŕa. ‘Get off!’

Juha/ chimwambila mwaanaawe/ ishkiŕa. ‘Juha told his son: Get down.’

kishkiŕa hoŕeŕiini or kishkiŕa ka fulaani ‘[lit.] to descend to an hotel, or to so-and-so’s place -- meaning: to go and stay at an hotel or at s.o.’s place (when on a journey)

Mi/ chendra Mambasa/ hishkiŕa ka Nuuru. ‘When/if I go to Mombasa, I (usually) stay at Nuuru’s place.’

Kulla hendro ilú/ kuzimu/ hashkomi/ hishkiŕa. ‘Everything that goes up does not reach the sky, it comes down.’ (A proverb.)

Laakini/ mwaanaamke/ iize/ kishkiŕa. ‘But (his) daughter refused to disembark.’

Mi/ nikishkiŕiile. ‘I got off.’

Mi/ nikishkiŕiile usulŕaani/ ka khisa/ mi/ iwaaliko/ inlazimiile/ koofisha/ baŕaniya. ‘I resigned the sultanship because it was necessary for me to keep my promise.’

Muke/ shpata maraŕi/ shpandra chiŕiini/ na nt^hashkiŕa/ ka chiint^hu/ hattá/ ye/ fiilopó. ‘The woman fell sick, and was confined to bed and never got up until she died.’

Mwaana/ chishkiŕa. ‘The child climbed off.’

Mwaanaamke/ chishkiŕa/ shfungula mlaango. ‘The girl came down and opened the door.’

numa takishkiŕa ruuhu khtáŕoowa [st.] ‘he will return (lit. descend back), (his) soul will be taken’

Nuuru/ chishkiŕa (ka) mutiini. ‘Nuuru climbed down the tree.’

Skizi/ doolari/ ishkiŕiile. ‘These days the [exchange rate of] the dollar went down.’

Sulŕaani/ ishkiŕiile/ ka chitiini. ‘The sultan stepped down from his throne (i.e. abdicated his throne).’

rel.

k-ishkiŕika v. p/s. (ishkiŕishile) be descendable

Ka apa/ hayishkiŕiki. ‘At this point it is not descendable.’

k-ishkiŕiŕa v. appl. (ishkiŕiŕiile) go down by means of, go down for k-ishkiŕisha v. caus. order, instruct, persuade, etc., someone to come down

Hamadi/ mwishkiŕishize mwaana/ ka mutiini. ‘Hamadi persuaded the child to come down from the tree.’

Osmaani/ mwishkiŕishize mwaana/ chibuuku/ ka chulunguuni. ‘Osmaani persuaded the child to bring the book down from upstairs.’

k-ishkiŕishiliza v. caus. appl. (ishkiŕishiliize) instruct, persuade, etc., someone to bring something down for/"on" someone

Ali/ mwishkiŕishilize Nuuru/ mwaana/ chibuuku. ‘Ali instructed Nuuru’s child to bring a book down.’ (In this example Nuuru cannot be the goal, only the ‘beneficiary’, in the loose sense of this word discussed in the introduction. Thus the sentence cannot mean ‘Ali instructed the child to bring the book down to Nuuru.’)

k-ishkiŕiza v. tr. appl. (ishkiŕiize) lower for, by means of; bring down to, for Muusa/ mwishkiŕize mwaalimu/ chibuuku/ ka chulunguuni. ‘Muusa brought a book down from upstairs for the teacher.’

k-ishkilizoowa v. caus. appl. pass. (ishkiliiza) be brought down, lowered for Mwaalimu/ ishkiliza chibuuku (/na Osmaani)/ ka chulunguuni. ‘(For) the teacher was brought down a book (by Osmaani) from upstairs.’
 (Note that in this construction, chibuuku could not be the passive subject: Chibuuku/ chishkiliza mwaalimu (/na Osmaani)/ ka chulunguuni.)

k-ishkiloowa v. pass. (ishkiliila) be descended Muti/ wishkiliila. ‘The tree was climbed down from.’

k-ishkiza v. tr. (ishkiziize) bring/take something down, unload, have disembark, help come down Ali/ ishkizize chibuuku/ nt’iini. ‘Ali brought the book downstairs.’
Chimwaambila/ ya kuwaa ye/ nashkiza ruuhuye/ na namtawalisha usultaani. ‘He told him that he was going to resign (lit. take himself down) and make him the ruler.’
Hamadi/ mwishkizize mwaana/ ka mutiini. ‘Hamadi brought the child down from the tree.’
kishkiza bandeera ‘to lower a flag’
Huseeni/ chishkiza bandera yaa zita/ shpaanza/ chiguwo/ cha mwanaamke/ andishilo iluké. ‘Huseeni lowered the flag of war, and raised the cloth that the girl had written on it.’
kishkiza itaanga ‘to lower a sail’
Lwato/ ka chindriimu/ na uki/ hishkiza kaðiiðo. ‘Fennugreek with lemon and honey reduces fever.’
Mi/ nt’akhishkiza/ ka ijabaliini. ‘I will bring you down from the mountain.’
Muusa/ ishkizize chibuuku/ ka chulunguuni. ‘Muusa brought a book down from upstairs.’
Muntu uyu/ chimwishkiza/ mwanaamke/ nt’i. ‘This man helped the girl climb down [from the tree].’
Mzeele/ chooloka/ chilishkiza lpaanga/ chiya naalo/ ka eelo. ‘The old woman went and took the sword down and came with it to the gazelle.’
Mzele Simsini/ shfuraha/ nt’o/ chimuuzo/ mwaana/ takishkiza liini. ‘Old Simsini became very happy and he asked the boy: when will you unload [the coffee from the ship]?’
Na wachiya makhaadimu/ wawili/ wachimwishkiza sultaani/ ka chitiini. ‘And there came two servants, they lifted the sultan down from the chair.’
Omari/ ishkizize chibuuku/ ka kabañiini. ‘Omari took a book down from on top of the cupboard.’
Sultaani/ shfurahikaa nt’o/ chimwaambila/ endrá/ mwishkize. ‘The sultan was very pleased; he told him: go and have her disembark.’
Ye/ ishkiziize/ uzito. ‘She lost weight.’

k-ishkiliza v. tr. appl. bring down to or for someone Muusa/ mwishkilize mwaalimu/ chibuuku/ ka chulunguuni. ‘Muusa brought a book down to/for the teacher from upstairs.’

k-ishkilizoowa v. tr. appl. pass.
Mwaalimu/ ishkiliza chibuuku/ ka chulunguuni. ‘[Lit.] To/for the teacher was brought down a book from upstairs.’

k-ishkizoowa v. caus. pass. (ishkiziiza) be brought down
 rel. nom.
mw-ishkila (wa-’ishkila) n. 1/2 one who goes down
w-ishkilo n. 3 the act of going down

ishkilo

n.

khtila ishkilooni ‘to pay heed to’
Baaba/ na maamá/ wachiñ/ apo/ mbeleze/ laakini/ mwaana/ iize/ khtila ishkilooni/ jawabu zaawo. ‘Father and mother cried there in front of him but the boy refused to heed their words.'

Laakini/ Sa'iidi/ iize/ khtila ishkilooni/ waano/ na wa'aðí. 'But Sa'iidi refused to heed the warnings and advice.'

mw-iisho

adv. finally, in the end

Mwiisho/ shiinda/ keendra/ kumera majiibu/ ka Ali. 'Finally he decided to go to seek the answer from Ali.'

mw-ishpa (m-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mfupa SSED 277] bone (The reduction of mw to m in present day speech leads to the merger of the singular and the plural forms of this noun.)

Chiwa/ mzimawe/ ni mishpa/ tu. 'It became that his entire body was just bones.'

Hamadi/ mp^helee mi/ mishpa/ nama/ ndiyé/ teetó. 'Hamadi gave me bones, it is he who took the meat.'

Huyo ka wakhtí/ hupataa nama/ huraagó/ hupata mishpa. 'He who comes on time gets meat, he who delays, gets bones.' is this a proverb?

Jawaabu/ ya Hamadi/ nakuhadó/ ina mwishpa. 'What Hamadi is saying has a bone in it (i.e. there is a serious doubt about what he is saying).'

Komelopo mahała ziint^hú/ ziwaalikó/ chiwona kuwa ni mishpa ya wanaadamu. 'When he reached the place where the things were, he saw that they were the bones of human beings.' phrasing and accent

Mishpa/ hupowaa mp^haka. 'Bones are given to cats.'

mishpa yaa mbavu 'ribs'

mwishpa wa moongo 'spinal column'

Nama/ jaani/ mishpa/ mphaani. 'Meat you eat; bones, give me.' (A proverb.)

Nama/ ndaaké/ mishpa/ ndaakó. 'Meat belongs to him, bones belong to you.' (A proverb.)

Omari/ mwishpawe/ muumu. 'Omari's bone is hard (i.e. he is strong).'

Shtala na mishpa yaa noka/ oyo/ chiya'usha. 'She took the bones of that snake and hid them.'

rel.

ch-ishpa (z-) n.

chispa cha mkila 'tail-bone, backbone' ruuhu na chishpa cha mkila ni baaqi [st.] 'the soul and the backbone are what remain [after death]'

l-ishpa n. aug. big bone

Omari/ nalo lishpa. 'Omari has a big bone (i.e. he is strong).'

ishqi

n. [Ar. išq W 614] (cf. ku-'aashiqa) love, affection, passion; [pron. ishqi or ishkhi]

Ishqi/ ni aðaabu. 'Love is hell.'

iyoo noota igurshiiža ye n'iilo mi karka ishkhii [song] 'that star has been made to shift place, it is she who has put me in passion'

k-ishtaghayara

v.

chisusumuka na kana ishtaghayara/ khsala bila mtimiino we tahaðara [st.]

'when you wake up, if your mouth feels unclean, you should beware of praying without (first) brushing your teeth'

k-ishbaka

v. [Sw. shtaki "accuse, charge, complain of, prosecute" SSED 425; from Ar. šakā "make a complaint" W 483] (ishbakiile) complain, protest, bring a suit, sue Choloka ka khaaði/ chimwishbaka. 'He went to the judge to sue her.'

Kuła mooyi/ karka want^hu wa Jaama/ wabishiló/ ishbakiile. Each one among the people that Jaama hit complained.'

Mi/ nile kishṭaká/ mbelezo. ‘I came to complain in front of you.’

Muti oyo/ mbwa muunt^hu/ fulaani/ naaye/ ile kishṭaka. ‘That tree belongs to so-and-so and he came to complain.’

Mzeele/ chishṭaka/ ka askari/ chihada/ mwaana/ uyu/ waawaye/ nt^hinzile kuulu. ‘The old man brought a suit to the soldiers, saying, this boy’s father cut off my leg.’

Mzeele/chishṭaka ka ma’askari. ‘The old man brought a complaint to the soldiers.’
rel.

k-ishṭakana v. rec.

k-ishṭakika v. p/s. [Sw. shtakika SSED 425] added

k-ishṭakila v. appl. [Sw. shtakia SSED 425]

Martí/ waa we/ mwishtakiiló/ yaná/ ile kumera haqiye. ‘The visitor whom you complained about yesterday has come to seek his right (i.e. what is due to him).’

k-ishṭakilana v. appl. rec. [Sw. shtakiana SSED 425] added

k-ishṭakisha v. caus. [Sw. shtakisha SSED 425] added

k-ishṭakoowa v. pass. [Sw. shtakiwa SSED 425]

Ma’askari/ wachishṭakowa kaawo. ‘The soldiers were brought a complaint to them.’ Or Ichishṭakowa ka ma’askari. ‘There was a complaint brought to the soldiers.’ Or: Ma’askari/ ichishṭakowa kaawo. ‘The soldiers, there was a complaint brought to them.’

rel. nom.

mw-ishṭaka (wa-) n. 1/2 one who complains; [pron.wa’ishṭaka (pl.)] ma-’shṭako n. 6 complaint, lawsuit

mw-ishṭari (m-)

n. 3/4 [Ar. mīṣṭara W 410] ruler (for measuring with) ishṭiraaki

n. sharing; socialism

mi nakhpeenda ishṭiraakiya [song] ‘I like the sharing (of things)’

Tanzaanya/ nii nt^hi/ mooyi/ karka za nt^hi za Iṣṭ Aafrika/ zirashiizó/mabaadi’i/ ya ishṭiraakiyá. ‘Tanzania is one country among the countries of East Africa that follows the principles of socialism.’

k-iska
something

v. [cf. Sw. suka ‘shake. wag, move quickly to and fro’ SSED 438] (iskiile) shake Gaari/ iniskiile. ‘The car shook me.’

kiska iziwa ‘to shake milk to get butter’

kiska/ kana iziwa igoroori ‘to shake like camel’s milk’ kiska mashuungi ‘to wash one’s hair -- said of a woman after her menstrual period is over; to wash or shampoo the hair’

kumwiska ‘to shake him’

laṭa kumwiska kumuūḍa hizoowa [st.] ‘don’t shake [the corpse while washing it], to disturb is forbidden’

rel. nom.

mw-isko n. the act of shaking s.t.

k-iskaṭila

v. [Som. cusko, cuskad DSI 110] (iskaṭiile) lean against something; rely on chiskaṭile diini na khsooma qunuuti [nt.] ‘le us rely on our faith and pray with humility’ iskaṭila kusooto oora isṭira [st.] ‘lean to the left, cover (your) genitals’

Hamadi/ iskaṭilile lkuta. ‘Hamadi leaned against the wall.’

Hamadi/ mwiskaṭilile waawaye. ‘Hamadi leaned against his father.’

Hamadi depended on his father (e.g. for financial support).’

Humwiskaṭilo mojiitú/ hasuuli/ wahali. ‘He who relies on God does not need a companion.’ (A proverb.)

Mpa waaya/ ni mwajiitu/ simwiskiṭilé/ mwaadamu. ‘The giver of mankind is God, don’t rely on human beings.’ (A proverb.)

Muti/ wiskaṭilile (or: uskaṭilile) lkuta. ‘The tree leaned against the wall.’
Wake wa Mwiini/ hawafurahili/ kiskaṭila ka zotte/ ilu ya wabli. ‘The women of Brava do not enjoy depending on their husbands for everything.’

rel.

k-iskaṭilila v. appl. (iskaṭilile) lean on, against Mwiskaṭilile waawaye. ‘He relied on his father.’

Osmaani/ iskaṭilile muti. ‘Osmaani leaned against a tree.’

k-iskaṭilana v. rec. rely on one another, lean on one another

k-iskaṭiliza v. caus. appl. (iskaṭilize)

k-iskaṭiza v. caus. (iskaṭize) lean something against something

Hamadi/ iskaṭizee muti/ lkuta(ani). ‘Hamadi leaned the piece of wood against the door.’

muti wa Hamadi/ iskaṭizo lkutaani (or, less preferred, lkutá) ‘the piece of wood that Hamadi leaned against the wall’

k-iskaṭizoowa v. caus. pass.

Muti/ wiskaṭiza (or: uskaṭiza) lkuta na Hamadi. ‘A piece of wood was leaned against the wall.’

rel. nom.

w-iskaṭilo n. 14 the act of leaning on k-iskitika

v. [Sw. sikitika SSED 430] (iskitishile) feel sorrow, express sad feelings; regret, feel sorry for what one has done; ask for s.t. nicely variant form: kh-sikita

Baaba/ chiskitika ka khalbaani. ‘Father felt sad.’

chilo cha agraba mayi hiskitika [st.] ‘the crying of his close relatives, the dead person is bothered by this’

Mzele Simsini/ chiskitika/ nt^{ho}. ‘Old Simsini became very sad.’

Niskitishilee nt^{ho}. ‘I was very sad.’

Omari/ nakiskitika/ maanawe/ kulaala. ‘Omari is sad (for) his son to be sick.’

rel.

k-iskitikila v. appl. feel sorry for someone

Mi/ nakhiskaṭikilaa nt^{ho}/ ka yaa we/ namfanyo eeló. ‘I feel very sorry for what you have done to the gazelle.’

k-iskitisha v. caus. sadden someone, cause someone to be sad k-iskitikoowa v. pass.

Kiskitikoowa/ niingi/ hulet mazi miingi. ‘To be sad too much causes high blood pressure.’

rel. nom.

ma-iskitika n. 6 sorrow

alternate form: ma-skitiko

Naa mi/ ka ma’iskitiko/ ndrakilé/ noloshele khabriini/ ka maamé/ nzaaziló. ‘And I from sorrow went out and went to the grave of my mother who gave birth to me.’

m-w-iskitika (wa-iskitika) n. 1/2 one who feels sad

w-iskitisho n. 14 the act of saddening someone

m-w-iskiti (m-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. msikiti SSED 303; ?Pers., Ar. masjid W 397] mosque; var. muskiti

Ali/ zurile muskiti/ wa mtume/ Madiina. ‘Ali visited the mosque of the Prophet in Medina.’

Cholokeeni/ muskitiini/ kahima/ chidirkeni sala/ yaa jima. ‘Let us go to the mosque quickly, let us reach the Friday praying.’

heendra miskitiini nuumbaya hulata [nt.] ‘I go to the mosque and leave my house’

Husaloowa/ muskitiini. ‘It is prayed in the mosque (i.e. praying is done in the mosque).’

Huseeni/ hinendra muskitiini. ‘Huseeni walks to the mosque.’ Also:

Muskitiini/ hinendroowa. ‘The mosque is walked to.’

Ibreeni/ nakhsula madrasaaniu/ Haamidi/ naayé/ mwiskitiini. ‘Ibreeni wants to go to school, and Hamadi (wants to go) to the mosque.’ (Note that the phrase naayé follows the noun referred to; one does not say *...naayé/ Haamidi/ mwiskitiini.) khsala miskitiini ‘to pray in the mosque’

Maliizopó/ chilawa/ kiyeendrela/ miskitiini/ khsala. ‘When he finished, he left and went [with himself] to the mosque to pray.’

miskiti waa jima ‘Friday mosque – the mosque where Friday prayers are performed’

Sultaani/ oloshela miskiti waa jima/ khsala. ‘The sultan went to the Friday mosque to pray.’

muskiti wa malim Biimaalo ‘the mosque of Malim Biimaalo’

Muskiti’ aa (malim) Biimaalo/ waant^hu/ wiingi/ husaló. ‘Many people pray at the mosque of Biimaalo.’

Muskiti’ aa malim Biimaalo/ wi-ko Baghadaadi. ‘The mosque of Malim Biimaalo is in Baghadaadi.’

muskiti wa Shekh Khaasimu ‘the mosque of Shekh Khaasimu’ (Shekh Khaasimu is the second most famous religious scholar in Brava after Shekh Aweeso.)

Makhabriini/ ka Shekh Abdukhaadiri/ khariibuye/ yiko muskit’ aa Shekh Khaasimu. ‘The graveyard of Shekh Abdukhaadiri is near the mosque of Shekh Khaasimu.’

muskiti wa Shekh Nureeni ‘Shekh Nureeni’s mosque’

Muskiti’ aa Shekh Nureeni/ ni karib’ aa tawala. ‘Shekh Nureeni’s mosque is near the beach/sea.’

Muskiti’ aa Shekh Nureeni/ wi-ko Albaamba. ‘Shekh Nureeni’s mosque is in Albaamba.’

Mwaana/ naayé/ chendra miskitiini/ khsala pamo na waant^hu. ‘The boy also went to the mosque to pray together with people.’

Nk^homele kharibu ya muskiti. ‘I reached near the mosque.’ Or: Nk^homele khariibu’ ya muskiti. Or: Nk^homele’ kharibu ya muskiti. Or, with extreme raising of khariibu: Nk^homele’ khariibu/ ya muskiti.

Nt^haasá/ nt^hakuruuda/ ka miskitiini. ‘He has not yet come back from the mosque.’

Waant^hu/ wachiruudapó/ ka tawala/ wingi waawo/ hendra miskitiini/ kulomba mwajiitu. ‘When people return from the sea (on the night of Ashuura), most of them go to the mosque to pray to God.’

Wawashile miskiti miingi. ‘They built many mosques.’

We/ kheeri/ kendra ka hima/ muskitiini. ‘You had better go quickly to the mosque.’

islaamu follower of Islam

n. [Sw. islamu SSED 144; cf. Ar. islām ‘the religion of Islam’ W 426] a Muslim, a Bwana mfa^lme/ yana/ nt^hezeze khamaari/ na munt^hu mooyi/ islaamu. ‘Mr. King, yesterday I played games of chance with a Muslim man.’

islaamu ahlu al-keeri wenye baraka/ heendra Jidda heendra Madiina na Makka [st.] ‘good Muslims who have God’s blessings/ go to Jeddah, (and then) to Medina and Mecca’ islaamu/ wa khpaka ‘a superficial Muslim’ islaamu/ waa nguwo ‘a superficial Muslim ((lit. a Muslim of clothes)’

Islaamu/ hawavaali/ surwani zigobe. ‘Muslims don’t wear short pants.’

Islaamu/ wote/ hufuunga/ nt^hangú/ awali ya mweezi/ hatá/ akhiriye. ‘All Muslims fast from the first day of the month (of Ramadhan) until its end.’

Islaamu/ wote/ wa’oloshela. ‘All the people (lit. all Muslims) came.’

Kaafiri/ khiinfó/ ni kheeri/ kolko islaamu/ sho khiinfa. ‘An infidel who is of use to you is better than a Muslim who is of no use to you.’ (A proverb.)

Khanziiri/ kudaroowake/ ni haraamu/ ka islaamu/ wote. ‘Touching a pig is forbidden for all Muslims.’

Kula muunt^hu/ islaamu/ baalighi/ na aqilizé/ ni tamaamu/ humwajiba ziint^hu/ staano. ‘Every Muslim who reaches puberty and his faculties are perfect is required to do five things.’

Munt^hi uyu/ ni munt^hi hukuzowaa nt^ho/ na islaamu. ‘This day (i.e. idi ya wamuusi) is a day very much respected by Muslims.’

muskiti waa jima ‘Friday mosque – the mosque in Brava where many people go for Friday prayers’

Sala yaa jima/ want^hu wa Miini/ ^fwiingi/ husala muskiti waa jima. ‘Friday prayers, many Bravanese pray at muskiti waa jima.’ sharti ya mwaadini kuwa islaamu [st.] ‘it is necessary for the one who calls people to prayer to be a Muslim’

Waant^hu/ awa/ wa as.habu^l kahfi/ wawanayo diini/ wawaliko islaamu. ‘Those people of the companions of the cave had religion, they were Muslims.’

rel.

u-’islaamu n. 14 the Islamic faith

ismu

n. deed, action, thing

Hamadi/ somele chibuku ichi/ tu/ laakini/ nt^hakhsooma/ ismu/ ya zibuku ziingine. ‘Hamadi has read only this book, he has not read any other books.’

Muunt^hu/ chibanayo janaabu/ laazimu/ kowa janaaba/ nt^hasa ya khfanya ismu/ ya ibaada. ‘When one has janaaba he must take a shower/bathe for janaaba before he does any activity related to worship.’

Uko/ ismu/ ya muunt^hu/ mwiinginé/ sho kuwa Fardoosa/ holoko apó/ ka chi-taawó. ‘Does anybody else beside Fardoosa go there by bus?’ (This is a simple yes-no question and in such questions, out of focus VP elements undergo Accent Shift to the final vowel. In the pronunciation of this example, uko was separated from ismu, but this did not trigger accent shift on ismu, although the subsequent phrases in the VP muunt^hu and mwiingine and sho kuwa Fardoosa all shift their accent. The phrases holoko apo and ka chi-taawo also have final accent, but this is expected in any case since focus on Fardoosa triggered pseudo-relativization of the following verb.)

Yana/ masku/ Hamadi/ somele chibuuku/ laakini/ nt^hakhfaanya/ ismu/ ya chint^hu chiingine. ‘Yesterday evening Hamadi read a book, but he did not do anything else.’

isnidhaamis

n. scabies

israa

n. the Prophet Mohamad’s “night journey” from Mecca to Jerusalem, prior to his ascent to heaven

Masku/ ya ley^lat^ul israa/ wal mihraaji/ ni masku ya mtume Mhamadi/ dhemishiiza/ peeshela kuzimu/ ka moojé. ‘The night of the night of israa and mihraaji is the night Prophet Mohamad was taken to the heaven of his God.’

Mtume Mhamadi/ masku ya israa/ buraakhi/ imtukilee Maka/ impeshele beytu^l makhdas. ‘Prophet Mohamed on israa night, buraakhi took him from Mecca to the Holy Mosque (in Jerusalem).’

Israa’ili

n. Israel

israafu

n. [Ar. israf “intemperance, dissipation, prodigality” W 408] abuse, misuse, overuse, squandering, extravagance

Israafu/ ni amali ya sheetaani. ‘Extravagance is Satan’s habit.’

israafu ni mbovu mayti koshooa [st.] ‘squandering [water] is bad [when] the corpse is being washed’

- Nuuru/ kaawo/ numbaani/ hupikowaa kuja/ israafu/ haṭá/ huṭawanyoowa.
 ‘Nuuru, at their house, food is cooked extravagantly, even to the point that it is discarded, thrown away (unused).’
- Ist Aafrika n. East Africa
Tanzaanya/ nii nṭhi/ mooyi/ karka za nṭhi za Ist Aafrika/ zirashiizó/ mabaadi’í/ ya ishtiraakiyá. ‘Tanzania is one country among the countries of East Africa that follows the principles of socialism.’
- k-ista’amila v. [Ar. ‘amila “to put into operation” W 644 and noun isti’māl “application, use” W 646] (ista’amiliile) use s.t.; var. ku-ṣta’amila
 rel. nom.
mu-ṣta’amila (wa-) n. 1/2 one who uses s.t.
- k-ista’amira v. [Ar. verb ‘amara W 643 and noun isti’mār “colonization, colonialism” W 644] (ista’amiriile) enslave, colonize; var. ku-ṣta’amira
- k-ista’arabika v. [Sw. staarabika SSED 436; Ar. ‘araba “to arabicize” W 601] (ista’arabishile) be civilized
 rel.
k-ista’arabisha v. caus. [Sw. staarabisha] civilize
k-ista’arabishana v. caus. rec.
k-ista’arabishika v. caus. p/s.
k-ista’arabishiliza v. caus. appl.
k-ista’arabishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
- k-ista’ida v. [Ar. ‘adda “to make ready” W 594; cf. noun isti’dād “readiness, preparedness” W 595] (ista’idiile) be ready, prepared; var. ku-ṣta’ida
- k-ista’jaba v. [Sw. staajabu SSED 6; Ar. isti’jāb W 591] (ista’jabiile) be surprised, amazed alternant form: ku-ṣta’jaba
- ch-ista’rabu n. 7 civilized manner
Huja/ yaa ye/ nakhsuuló/ ka chista’raabu. ‘He eats whatever he wants in a civilized manner.’
- k-istahamila v. [cf. Ar. verb ḥamala W 206] (istahamiliile) stand, bear, tolerate, forebear variant form: k-istahamila, k-istahamila, k-istahamila kistahamila bardi ‘to withstand cold’ kistahamila dhibu ‘to withstand difficulties’ kistahamila harri ‘to withstand heat’ kistahamila ndala ‘to withstand hunger’ kistahamila ooni ‘to withstand thirst’
 rel.
k-istahamiliika v. p/s.
Laakini/ zaa mi/ nakuwonó/ hastukuliki/ walá/ hazistahamiliiki. ‘But what I see is unbearable and cannot be tolerated.’
 rel. nom.
u-ṣtahamilo n. 14 forbearance
- k-istaahila v. [Sw. stahili SSED 437; Ar. ahala “to be or become suited” W 32] (istahiliile) merit, deserve; var. ku-ṣtaahila
Eelo/ hastaahili. ‘The gazelle does not deserve [what is being done to him].’
We/ histahila chiint’u/ shkulu/ kolko ichi. ‘You deserve something bigger than this.’
Yaa si/ shtamfanyilizó/ ye/ histaaahila. ‘What we will do for him he deserves.’
 rel.
k-istahiqa v. (istahiqiile) deserve s.t. as one’s right; var. ku-ṣtahiqa
 rel. nom.
mu-ṣtahiqa (wa-’istahiqa, wa-ṣtahiqa) n. 1/2 one who rightfully deserves

- k-istalima* v. (istalimiile) receive Istalimile fatura ya koranta. ‘He received the electric bill.’
Sa’iidi/ ba’ada ya kistalima/ zaa ye/ tulubiiló/ chistukula/ choloka naazo/ ka ujee muke/ numbaani. ‘Sa’iidi, after receiving what he asked for, carried it and went with it to that woman’s house.’
rel.
k-istalimisha v. caus.
- k-istaamana* v. ?
- k-istamira* (istamiriile) continue v. [Ar. verb marra W 900; cf. also noun istimrār “duration, continuation” W 9012]
Mkulu waawo/ naa ye/ naakufó/ na khariibuyé/ mayti za weenziwé/ istamirile kaandika/ chimaliza kaandika/ na chimaliza kaandika/ hatá/ khalamu/ imvuyile ka zalaani. ‘Their leader, while he was dying, and near him (lay) the bodies of his companions, continued writing and wrote and wrote until the pen slipped out of his fingers.’
Suufi/ istamirile kendra tawala/ kila masku. ‘Suufi continued to go to the sea each night.’
- k-istanja* defecating v. [cf. Ar. najw “excrement” W 946] (istanjiile) clean oneself after urinating or muunt^hu sho kistanja chidaara jismuyo/ sala haysihi hatá chiwa mwaanawa [st.] ‘if a man who has not washed (his sexual organs) touches your body, the prayer is void, even if he be your son’ ni waajibu sho kistanja daalimu [st.] ‘it is required [to cleanse oneself], the one who does not cleanse himself is a wrongdoer’ shkalaant^ha choolo kistanja laazimu [st.] ‘if one sits for defecation, to clean oneself is required’
rel.
k-istanjiloowa v. appl. pass.
majiwe matatu kistanjiloowa ni waajibu [st.] ‘to use three stones to clean oneself with is required’ mwaana sho kistanjoowa hatá chihaba/ mweepuke sala amriye siwo haba [st.] ‘a child who has not been cleaned, even if he is small, avoid him, the issue of prayer is not a simple matter’
k-istanjila v. appl.
k-istaanza v. tr. (istanziize) clean s.o.
Mwistanzize mwaana. ‘She cleaned the child.’
k-istanziliza v. tr. appl.
k-istaanzisha v. caus.
- k-istawa* v. [Sw. sitawi SSED 433; cfr. Ar. verb sawiya W 444 and noun istiwā ‘straightness, regularity’ W 445] (istawiile) thrive, prosper, succeed, be in good condition (but not used with human subjects)
Matezo/ ya’istawiile. ‘The game has gone well.’
Muundra/ wistawiile. ‘The cultivated field is prospering.’
muuyi wiitu kistawa chinakhtaraja ka Mojiitu [nt.] ‘we hope from God that our town will see better times’
rel.
k-istawika v. p/s.
k-istawila v. appl.
Ikhistawiile. ‘Things are going well for you.’ Or: Ikhustawiile.
k-istawisha v. caus. (istawishiize) make thrive; decorate a room; make look nice Maliizopó/ chooloka/ choowa/ chivalaa nguwo/ humwistawishó/ shpaka ruuhuye/ miskhi. ‘When she finished [cooking], she went and bathed, she put on clothes that made her look nice, and she applied perfume on herself.’
Mwaana/ chiwa’ambila waant^huwe/ kistawisha ruhu zaawo/ kuvala nguwo suura. ‘The boy told his people to make themselves look

- nice, to put on nice clothes.’
Nguwo izi/ khistawisha. ‘These clothes make you look nice, fit you well.’
Ni mkali/ kistawisha koođi. ‘He is good at making a speech effective, good, etc.’
Sultaani/ choondroka/ chistawisha ruuhuye/ chiskila tawala. ‘The sultan got up and made himself look nice and disembarked on shore.’
k-istawishoowa v. caus. pass. (istawishiiza) be made to thrive; be decorated by Istawisha nuumba. ‘He put the house in good condition.’
 rel. nom.
mw-istawisha (wa-’istawisha)
w-istawisho n. 14 making prosper
w-istawo n. 14 prospering, thriving
- k-isteha* v. [Sw. stahi SSED 436; Pers.] (isteheele) respect s.o., be considerate to s.o.
Ye/ khisteheele/ nt^ho. ‘He respected you very much.’
 rel.
k-istehana, k-istehanana v. rec. (-isteheene, -istehaneene) (The reduplicated suffix is used commonly in the past tense, while elsewhere the form without reduplication seems to be preferred.)
- k-istereha* v. [Sw. starehe SSED 394; Ar. istirāha W 366] (istereheele) relax, take a rest, enjoy life
Eelo/ chija/ chistereha. ‘The gazelle ate, enjoying it.’
Histereha kumzura maamaye. ‘He enjoys visiting his mother.’
Istereha. ‘Enjoy!’ (Cf. Isterehaani. ‘(Pl.) enjoy!’)
Naawó/ wotte/ wa’istereheele. ‘And they all enjoyed themselves.’
Sisterehé. ‘Don’t relax!’ (Cf. Sistereheeni. ‘(Pl.) don’t relax!’) Wanakistereha. ‘They are relaxing, enjoying themselves.’
 rel.
k-istereheka v. p/s. (istereheshele)
k-istereheleowa v. appl. pass. (istereheleela) get enjoyment from by Chiza kisterehela chaako/ shtakistereheleowa na waant^hu. ‘If you do not get enjoyment from yours (i.e. your money, your possessions, whatever you have), it will be enjoyed by others.’
k-isterehela v. appl. (isterehelele) get enjoyment from Kaleent^he/ nakisterehela maaliye. ‘He is just sitting there, enjoying himself with his money.’
Ndro/ pata kisterehela zakuja izi/ zaa mi/ khuleteleeló. ‘Come and enjoy these foods that I have brought to you.’
k-isterehesha v. caus. [Sw. starehesha SSED 394] (isterehesheeze) cause to relax, rest, enjoy life; give sexual relief Nafiisa/ nisterehesheeze. ‘Nafiisa relaxed me.’
Nt^hanná/ qalbi ya kulila chiint^hu/ kisterehesha ruhu ziinu. ‘You (pl.) do not have the guts to buy anything to enjoy yourselves with.’
Sku ya kaandra/ na ya piili/ safari/ iwaliko sahali/ na isterehesheeze/ wabjaana. ‘The first and the second day, the trip was easy and caused the young men to enjoy themselves.’
k-istereheshana v. caus. rec. cause one another to relax, enjoy life etc.
k-isterehesheka v. caus. p/s.
k-isterehesheleza v. caus. appl.
k-istereheshelezanya v. caus. appl. rec.
Nuuru/ na Hamadi/ wa’istereheshelezenye waana. ‘Nuuru and Hamadi caused one another’s children to relax, enjoy life etc.’
k-istereheshoowa v. caus. pass.
k-isterehoowa v. pass.
Karka miyi mikulu/ histerehowaa nt^ho. ‘Living in big cities is enjoyed very much (by people).’
 rel. nom.
w-isterehelo n. 14 act of enjoying with w-isterehesho n. 14 act of causing s.o. to enjoy himself

- isti'idaadi n. [Ar. isti'dād W 595] preparedness khfanya isti'idaadi 'to make preparations' Nakhfanya isti'idaadi/ kumqabila ra'iisi. 'He is making preparations to welcome the president.'
- isti'imaali n. [Ar. isti'māl W 646] use
- isti'imaari n. [Ar. isti'mār W 644] colonialization, enslavement
- isti'jaali n. [Ar. isti'jāl W 593] hurry
khfanya isti'jaali 'to hurry up, be in a hurry' Khfanya isti'jaali/ ni amali ya sheetaani. 'To do things in a rush is Satan's character.' (An Arabic proverb translated into Chimiini.)
khfanya ka isti'jaali 'to do s.t. in a hurry' Chiint^hu/ shchifanyowa ka isti'jaali/ hashtoosati/ ka wiingi. 'A thing done in haste mostly does not go straight.'
- istifaghaara n. forgiveness
huleta istifaghaara 'to seek forgiveness'
Ba'adi/ kila yaa sala/ kaandra/ muunt^hu/ huleta istighafaara. 'After each praying, the first thing is to seek forgiveness from God.'
Muunt^hu/ chingila ðambi/ huleta istighafaara/ mojiitu/ kumghafirila ðambize. 'If one commits a sin, one must seek forgiveness from God to forgive his sins.'
- istihizaayi n. [Ar. istihzā W 1027] the act of belittling, ridiculing someone who is poor, diseased, deformed, etc.
khfanya istihizaayi 'to ridicule'
- istimnaa n. masturbation
Istimnaa/ ka mkono/ ni ðambi. 'Masturbation by hand is a sin.'
khfanya istimnaa 'to masturbate'
Muunt^hu/ shfanya istimnaa/ yachimlawa maðiyi humwajiba koowa. 'If a man masturbates and secretion comes from him, he must take a shower.'
- k-istinja v. clean oneself
Muunt^hu/ chinjala/ laazimu/ kistinja/ chizapó/ nguwoze/ hutowa tahaara. 'When one urinates, one must clean himself, otherwise his clothes lose their purity.'
rel.
k-istinjila v. appl.
Muunt^hu/ shṭowa maayi/ kistinjila/ hukhaadira/ khtumikilla zijiwe/ skavu/ zinaðiifa/ kunaðifisha ðakariye/ haṭaa ye/ shpata maayi. 'If one lacks water for cleaning oneself he can use dry clean stones to clean his penis until he gets water.'
- istiqamaa n. living according to principles of islam; [usu. pronounced istikhaama]
Muunt^hu/ chimwamina mojiitu/ na shfanya istihaama/ huliwaana/duniyaani/ na aakherá. 'If a person believes in God and practices the Islamic way of life, he succeeds in this world and in the world hereafter.' (Note the final accent in the conjoined chi-clauses.)
Waant^hu/ wenye istikhaama/ ni want^hu wa janaani. 'People who follow the Islamic path are of heaven.'
- istiqlaali n. [Ar. istiqlāl W 783] independence Khabla/ ya istikhlaali/ na ba'adaye/ ba/ Tanzaanya/ liini/ ichivilowa Tanzaanya/ ichivilowa Tanganyika. 'Before independence and after as well, Tanzania was not called Tanzania, it was called Tanganyika.'

	khpata istikhlaali ‘to get independence’
k-istira	v. [Sw. stiri SSED 437; Ar. satara W 397] (istiriile) conceal, hide, keep in a safe place Ba’adi/ ya miyaaka/ ayo/ yatakuuya/ miyaaka/ yaa dhibu/ yatakuja zaa ni/ ntaqdishiliizo/ miyaka ayó/ sho/ kuwa habamó/ yaa ni/ ntakistiró. ‘After these years, years of difficulty will come; (during those years) will be eaten what you (pl.) have kept aside, except for a little that you (pl.) will save.’ Istirile maaliye. ‘He kept his wealth in a safe place.’ kistira sirri ‘to keep a secret’ Moojá/ nachistire. ‘May God keep us safe -- this is said when speaking of a general situation of lawlessness, disorder, etc., expressing the hope that it will not affect us directly.’ ye mwenye kistira abu ni mwajitu [song] ‘he who conceals abu (a disgrace, blemish on one) is God’ rel. k-istirika v. p/s. [Sw. stirika] 1 be concealed, hidden from sight; be barely alive Maskiini/ histirika/ kaawo/ dhibuye/ hanza chiwa mgeeni. ‘A poor man is not seen in his own place, his difficulties begin if he becomes a stranger somewhere.’ (A proverb.) mwaana waawaye chifa ye ha’istiriki [song] ‘when a child’s father dies, he (the child) can hardly live’ Nakistirika. ‘I am alright, I am doing fine.’ k-istirila v. appl. [Sw. stiria] (istiriliile) hide for, keep for rel. nom. mw-istira (wa-’istira) n. 1/2 [Sw. msiri] one who conceals
ch-istiro (z-)	n. 7/8 hiding place
k-istiwaata	v. [Som.] (istiweete) surrender Aduwi/ ba’ada ya khshindroowa/ istiweete. ‘After being defeated, the enemy surrendered’ Aduwi/ istiweete. ‘The enemy surrendered.’
isyaani	Sho khupeenda ni muuntu sho diini/ ni majaahili wenyé isyaani [SCB:112] ‘Those who do not love you are unbelievers, ignorant and rebellious people.’
itaabu	n.[Ar. itāb W 589] the act of blaming, reproaching someone
Itaalya	n. [Ital. Italia] Italy Nk^huku za taalya/ huzala mayaank^hulu/ makulu. ‘Italian hens lay big eggs.’ Tuuma/ waliko Itaalya/ maraa mbili. ‘Tuuma has been to Italy twice.’ rel. taalyaani adj. Italian Inakuhadoowa/ ya kuwa iqtisaadi/ ya talyaani/ yiimo/ karka khatarii nk^hulu. ‘It is reported that the Italian economy is in great danger.’ ma-talyaani n. Italians Matalyaani/ laazima/ wo/ khfanyilizaa dawa/ iqtisadi yaawo. ‘The Italians must cure their economy.’
ku-’itarifoowa recognized	v. pass. [cf. Ar. nouns ta’rif “determination, identification” and i’tirāf W 606] be Sivo/ muunt^hu/ hu’itarifoowá (or: hitarifoowa). ‘He is not a man who is recognized.’
itifaki	n. [Sw. itifaki SSED 144, from Ar. ittifāq W 1085] agreement, harmony

it̥ila	n. [cf. Ar. verb ʾatila W 621] obstacle, hindrance, damaged state
ku-ʾitiqaada religion; believe	v. [Sw. itakadi SSED 144; cf. Ar. noun iʾtiqād “firm belief” W 628] believe in God,,
it̥miʾnaani	n. [Ar. it̥miʾnān W 568] tranquility Ntʰaná/ it̥miʾnaani. ‘He has no tranquility.’
ku-ʾithibiṭa “proof, evidence” W 101]	v. [cf. Sw. thibitisha “establish. prove” from Ar. ṭabata “be proven” and noun it̥bāt (ithibiṭiile) be evidence of or for s.t., prove, substantiate, confirm ithibiṭile kuwa... ‘it was evident, proven that...’ ntʰaʾikhthibiṭa/ kuwa... ‘there was no evidence that...’
ithnaashara	n., adj. twelve Iyo/ yaliko idaashara/ iyi/ ithnaashara. ‘That was eleven, this is twelve.’
ithmu	n. [Ar. it̥m W 5] sin khfanya ithmu ‘to sin’
k-itika	v. (past tense not recorded yet) drip humitika ye ka mafuraha [st.] ‘I shower him [my husband] with joy’ (Observe the figurative, and transitive, usage found in this sh̥teenzi.) Nsi iyi/ jisaayo/ maṭuuri/ inakitika mafta. ‘This fish is so fat that it drips out oil.’ Ntʰendre iyi/ jisaayo/ suura/ inakitika uki. ‘This date is so sweet that it drips honey.’
mw-iito (m-)	n. 3/4 [cf. Sw. icho “spring, place where water bubbles from the ground” SSED 155] pool of water left behind on the beach when sea is at low tide (more commonly used: mulo)
Iṭoopiya	n. Ethiopia Jundi/ ya Soomaaliya/ ishiinzile/ zita/ za Iṭoopiya/ mwaaka/ wa sabʾinaa saba. ‘Somali soldiers won the fight against Ethiopia in the battle of the year (19)77.’
-iitu	first person plural possessive root; see kiitu chiitu shkapu chiitu ‘our basket’ ndiitu Mayaank^huku/ yawozelo/ ndiitu. ‘The eggs that have gone bad are ours.’ (cf. Ndiitu/ mayank^huku yawozelo. ‘Are ours the eggs that went bad.’) wiitu [cl.1] Mi/ nakhsuulá/ we/ chizaala/ kumviila/ mwana wiitu/ Hasiibu/ Karimuddiini. ‘I want you, when you give birth, to call our son Hasiibu Karimuddini.’ mwana wiitu ‘our child’ mwenza wiitu ‘our friend’ wiitu [cl.2] Ali/ sh̥tanzile wote/ wiitu. ‘Ali insulted all of us.’ Si/ wote/ wiitu/ chiile. ‘We all came.’ Or: Si/ chiile/ wote/ wiitu. ‘We came, all of us.’ wote/wiitu ‘all of us’ Wote/ wiitu/ choloshele. ‘We all went.’ wiitu [cl.14] Uweenza/ wiitu/ ukomele apa/ waraaḍi. ‘Our friendship has ended here; goodbye.’

yiitu [cl.9]

Aduwi yiitu/ nakudarbaṭa/ kichihujuma/ basi/ uje/ kati kiinu/takhshiindró/ ushujaa'á/ mi/ nt^hamloza mwanaamkewa. 'Our enemy is preparing to attack us, so that one among you who will win with courage, I will marry my daughter to him.'

ziitu [cl.8]

Shtetemesheze ziṭa ziitu. 'We shook our heads.'

ziitu [cl.10]

ivu

n. 9 [Sw. juvu (ma-) SSED 157] ashes

ivu niingi 'too much ashes'

Muunt^hu/ impishizee muḷo/ haṭá/ ivuye/ hutiya. 'A person burned by fire, he is afraid even of its ashes.' review this example

rel.

mi-'ivu n. aug. a large amount of ashes

Shpakapaka ruuhuye/ mi'ivu. 'She rubbed ashes all over her (body).'

zi-'ivu n. dim. a small amount of ashes

ivule

adj. [from ivu 'ashes' + Som. suffix -le] grey (the color of ashes)

k-iüwa

v. [Sw. jua SSED 139] (iwiile) know

Ali/ chiwa kuwa Nuuru/ bozele chibuuku. 'Ali knew that Nuuru stole the book.'

Ali/ nandikishizee khaṭi/ pashpoo we/ kiüwa. 'Ali made me write a letter without your knowing.'

Ba'ada ya muunt^hu/ kuuya/ Jeelaani/ chiüwa/ ya kuwa nt^hakuwaaliko/ Safiya.

'After the person came (closer), Jeelaani knew that it was not Safiya.'

Basi/ iwá/ ya kuwaa mi/ siwo/ muṅó. 'Therefore know that I am not your little sister.'

(Observe that when a verb stem of the shape -VCa such as iwa is used in the imperative in phrase-final position, it has accent on the final vowel, even though default accent would be expected to place it on the initial vowel. The explanation for this seems to be that, from the accentual point of view, the initial vowel behaves as though it is not part of the word. Accent falls on the only vowel in the word once the initial vowel is discarded from consideration.)

Chibuku cha Mhamadi/ iwilo kuwa Omari/ chibashiize/ nech^haaká. 'The book that Mhamadi learned that Omari lost it is mine.' (Observe that in isolation, Omari/ chibashiize. 'Omari lost it.', both phrases have default penult accent. When incorporated into a relative clause, both phrases acquire final accent.)

Chili chaa we/ nt^hukichilaaḷiḷa/ hiiwi/ nk^hungunyize. 'A bed that you do not sleep on, you cannot know its bedbugs.' (A proverb.)

Hawa'iwí/ chiint^hu/ siwo/ kamaa si. 'They cannot know anything, they are not [djinn]s like us.'

Hawaṭakiüwa/ almasi iyi/ ilazilepi. 'They won't know where this diamond came from.'

Iwileeyí/ kuwaa ye/ mweene. 'How do you know that he saw him?'

Jisa itaakuwó/ Hamadi/ siiwe/ yaa mi/ khaambiló. Anyway, Hamadi should not know what I told you.'

Leelo/ tu/ mi/ niwiiló/ kuwa Omari/ kuulú/ gaari. 'I only learned today that Omari went to America.'

Mi/ hiiwa. 'I know.'

Mi/ na'iwá/ kuwa Nureeni/ bozele peesa. 'I know that Nureeni stole money.'

Mi/ na'iwá/ kuwa^fNureeni/ bozelo peesá. 'I know that Nureeni stole money.' Or:

Mi/ na'iwá/ kuwa^fNureeni/ boozeló/ peesa.

Mi/ niwiilé/ khabari/ za inchidente/ mukhtaayé/ ilo numbaani. 'I found out about

- the accident when she came home.’
- Mi/ niwiilé/ kuwa Fardoosa/ nambile wanaafakhí. ‘I know that Fardoosa lied to me.’
- Mi/ niwiilé/ kuwa Fardoosa/ nt^hanakuuya. ‘I learned that Fardoosa is not coming.’
- Mi/ anakhiiwá. ‘I know you.’ (In the speech of GM, the 1 sg. prefix n(i)- is usually elided in position before the present tense marker na.)
- Munt^hu ikusiló/ hamwiiwi/ mwenyee ndala. ‘A man who is full does not understand the one who is hungry.’ (A proverb.)
- Mwana wa Baana/ iwilo kuwa Mhamadí/ mbishile/ ni Sheekhi. ‘The boy who Baana realized that Mhamadi hit him is Sheekhi.’
- Mwaarabu/ nt^hakumwiiwa/ kuwa waa ye/ naxkoðo naa ye/ waliko ni sultaani. ‘The Arab did not know [lit. him] that the one he was talking to was the king.’
- Namwiiwá/ mwana wa Nuuru/ mukeewe. ‘I know Nuuru’s son’s wife.’ Or: Namwiiwá/ muke wa mwana wa Nuuru. Or: Namwiwa mwana wa Nuurú/ mukeewé. Or: Namiwa mwana wa Nuurú/ mukeewe.
- Namwiiwá/ muke pishiló. ‘I know the woman who cooked.’ Or: Namwiiwaa muké/ pishiló. Or: Namwiwa muke pishiló.
- Namwiwa munt^hu iló. ‘I know a (or the) man who came.’
- Namwiwa Nuurú/ mwaanawé/ mukeewé. ‘I know Nuuru’s son’s wife.’ Or, with emphasis on Nuuru: Namwiwa Nuurú/ mwaanawe/ mukeewe. (It is not possible to put focus on mwaanawe: Namwiwa Nuurú/ mwaanawé/ mukeewe.)
- Naawó/ wa’iwiile/ kuwa Abunawaasi/ wanayo muhtaaji. ‘And they knew that Abunawaasi needed (to see Haruun Rashidi).’
- Mi/ niwiilé/ kuwa waawe/ waliko hakhaadiri/ nt^ho. ‘I realized that my father was very sick.’
- Nk^ha’iwá/ kuwa waaná/ maanziné/ wajiilé... ‘If I had known that the children had already eaten...’ review this for accent and phrasing
- Nna’iwá/ kuwaa mí/ nt^hakhshiindrá. ‘I know that I will win.’
- Nna’iwá/ kuwaa yé/ takúuya. ‘I know that he will come.’
- Nna’iwá/ kuwa takunhaláasha ‘I know that he will wound me.’
- Nuuru/ iwile kuwa Jaama/ chibashize chibuuku. ‘Nuuru learned that Jaama lost the book.’ (Cf. how chibuuku in this sentence could be the head of a relative verb: Chibuku cha Nuuru/ iwilo kuwa Jaamá/ chibashiizé/ nch^haaká. ‘The book that Nuuru learned that Jaama lost is mine.’)
- Nuuru/ namwiwa Baana/ (kuwa) ni mwalimu msuura. ‘Nuuru knows that Baana is a good teacher.’
- Omari/ isa/ tu/ iwiiló/ kulawaa ye/ laazimú/ kendra Mwiini/ keeshó. ‘Omari just learned that he had to go to Brava tomorrow.’
- Omari/ na’iwa/ kuwa Nureeni/ bozele peesa. ‘Omari knows that Nureeni stole money.’
- Omari/ na’iwa/ kuwa peesa/ tu/ Nureeni/ boozeló. ‘Omari knows that it was only money that Nureeni stole.’ (In this example, tu and peesa are at roughly the same pitch height, while the subsequent phrases are downstepped relative to them. Peesa is not lowered relative to the main verb.)
- Omari/ na’iwa peesa/ Nureeni/ boozele. (In this example, the preposed peesa is raised in pitch, contra the usual downstep intonation. At the same time, however, a focused preverbal element requires the verb to be put into pseudo-relative form, but this does not seem to apply to the present sentence. Compare the case where pseudo-relativization does occur: Omari/ na’iwa fpeesa/ Nureeni/ boozeló. ‘Omari knows it is money that Nureeni stole.’ In our estimation, there is no observable difference in the pitch raising on peesa in this example in comparison with the preceding example where pseudo-relativization does not occur.)
- Omari/ tu/ na’iwó/ kuwa fNureeni/ bozelo peesá. ‘Only Omari knows that it is Nureeni who stole money.’
- Omari/ tu/ na’iwó/ kuwa Nureeni/ peesa/ boozele. ‘Only Omari knows that Nureeni money stole.’ (In this example, tu is raised in pitch and triggers pseudo-relativization of the main verb. Nureeni is somewhat raised in pitch, but does not trigger pseudo-relativization of the following verb)

Omari/ tu/ na’iwó/ kuwa Nureeni/ peesa/ boozeló. ‘Only Omari knows that it is Nureeni who money stole.’

Si/ chinakhsulaa we/ kiiwá/ kuwaa si/ shtakuraagá. ‘We wish you to know that we will be late.’

Si/ chiwiilé/ tarafu ya Omari/ khtomolowa kaziini/ leelo. ‘We learned about Omari being fired today.’

Skiiwa. ‘I did not know.’

Tuure/ ndiyé/ na’iwo malaaloyé. ‘It is the humpback who knows how (to position himself) to get his sleep.’ (A proverb.)

Uje mwaana/ namwiiwa. ‘That boy knows her.’

We/ na’iwa inayó. ‘Do you know your name?’

We/ na’iwa kuwaa mi/ ni armalá. ‘You know that I am a widow.’

We/ naniiwá/ nakhtiyani. ‘You know me, what are you afraid of?’

Yana/ tu/ mi/ niwilo kuwa Omari/ fiilé. ‘I only learned yesterday that Omari had died.’

Ye/ teete/ bilaa kiiwa. ‘He has taken it unknowingly.’

rel.

-isi irregular verb form

ha’isi ‘[cl.1] does not know’

hachiisi ‘we do not know’

haniisi ‘you (pl.) do not know’

hawa’isi ‘they do not know’

hiisi ‘you do not know’

Kanaa we/ hiisi/ nini/ mowji/ we/ leelo/ takiiwa. ‘If you do not know what death is, you today will know.’

siisi ‘I do not know’

siisi

irregular verb form: I do not know

Baana/ yaa ye/ uziló/ mi/ siisi. ‘Baana, what he bought, I do not know.’

Mi/ niilé/ siisi/ ka mahaalaa mp’hi/ laakini/ niilé. ‘I came, I do not know where from, but I came.’

Siisi/ chiint’u. ‘I do not know anything.’

Siisi/ liini/ uzizo gaariyé. ‘I do not know when he sold his car.’

k-iiwana v. rec. (iweene) know one another, get acquainted

Wawanayo fursa/ ya kiiwana. ‘They had a chance to get to know one another.’

k-iwanoowa v. be gotten acquainted ni furaha kiwanoowa, haali kuzanoowa [song] ‘it is happiness to be gotten acquainted, health is asked of one another’

k-iwikana v.

Karka masheekhi/ wakulu/ wana’iwikanó/ ni Shekh Awees/ Al Qadiiri/ Shekh Nureeni/ Ahmad/ Saabiri/ Shekh Qaasim/ Al Baraawi/ Shekh Haaji/ Sidiiq/ Shekh Ma’alim Nuur/ Akhwaan/ ‘abdo Munye/ Shekh Muhammad Hiraale/ Shekh Muhammad Gadhuudho/ Sharif Mubiidi/ Sharif ‘alawi/ Dada Maasiti/ na wiinginé. ‘Among the main sheikhs who are well-known are Shekh Aweys Al Qadiiri, Shekh Nureyni Ahmad Sabiiri, Shekh Qaasim Al Baraawi, Shekh Haaji Sidiiq, Shekh Macallim Nuur, Akhwaan Cabdo Munye, Shekh Muhammad Hiraale, Shekh Muhammad Gadhuudho, Sharif Mubiidi, Sharif Calawi, Dada Maasiti, and others.’

uõri una’iwikanó ‘a well-known excuse’

k-iwiõowa v. appl. pass. (iwi)

k-iiwila v. appl.

Nt’aná/ akhili/ zaa ye/ kiwila izi/ zotte. ‘He does not have the intelligence to understand all these (things).’ review prosody k-iwilana v. appl. rec.

k-iiwisha v. (iwishize) make known, make aware, inform kumwiiwisha/ humwaaajibó/ na hazimwaaajibí ‘to make her know what she is required to do and what she is not to do’

Kuwasilake/ bilaa kiiwisha/ nt^haykumpeendeza/ Nuuru. 'His arriving without making it known did not please Nuuru.'

Ni laazima/ mbele/ kuniiwisha/ ikhupeteeyi/ amri iyi. 'It is necessary first to let me know how this matter happened to you.'

Sultaani/ chilawa/ pashpo kumwiiwisha/ mwaarabu/ kuwaa ye/ ni sultaani. 'The king left without informing the Arab that he was the king.'

We/ shtahaja ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ niwisha. 'If you need anything, let me know.'

k-iwishoowa v. pass. (iwishiiza) ka sabri ilmu niingi iwishiiza [st.] 'because of his patience, much knowledge was made known to him'

Sheekhi shaaniye adiimu/ wiingi nt^hawakiwishoowa [st.] 'the Sheikh, his shaani is great/ [but] many were not told of it'

k-iwoowa v. pass.

Baana/ na'iwowa kuwa ni mwiizi. 'Baana is known that he is a thief.'

Baazi/ na'iwowa na waant^hu/ wotte. 'Baazi is known by everyone.'

Ina'inowa kuwa Hamadi/ bozele chibuuku. 'It is known (by everyone) that Hamadi stole the book.'

Kiwoowa waant^hu/ ni suura/ ka khpata kaazi. 'Getting to know people is useful in finding a job.'

Mweendo/ na sifa za muunt^hu/ hukhadiroowa/ kiwoowa/ ka waant^hu/ waa ye/ hushirkano naawo. 'A man's behavior and characteristics can be known from the people he associates with.'

sho kuwa Ibraahiimu wazaazila/ ka Mwaana Khadijata wa'wiila/ ni waana sita wakiriila [st.] 'except for Ibraahiimu, they were born of Lady Khadija and they were known as six children endowed with noble traits'

rel. nom.

mw-iiwa (wa-) n. 1/2 one who knows

m(w)-iiwa (m-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mwiba SSED 32] thorn (Among current speakers of Chimiini, w elides after m; as a consequence, the singular and plural forms of this noun merge: /mu-iwa/ > mwiiwa>miiwa and /mi-iwa/> miiwa. Of course, these forms trigger different agreement, the former being [cl.3] and the latter [cl.4].)

kubiga miiwa 'to make stinging, biting remarks'

Nimbishile miiwawe. '(Lit.) I hit him his thorns – i.e. I made biting remarks about him.'

Miiwa/ umduriile. 'The thorn stung him.'

miwa yaa nsi 'fishbones'

mshaka wa miiwa 'a thorn tree'

Nk^hukuwa/ zazile miwaani. 'My hen has laid among thorns.' (A riddle, the answer to which is ananaasi 'pineapple'.)

ch-iwo (z-)

n. [Sw. chuo SSED 66] a religious book; a koranic school variant form: chuwo

chiwoocha 'my book'

Mwaana/ shkoma miyaaka/ nitatu/ ya umri/ hupelekoowa/ chiwooni/ kubarata qur'aani/ na mambo ya diini. 'A child, when he reaches the age of three years, is sent to koranic school to study the Quran and religious matters.'

ya tatu kaamina ziwo za mooja [st.] 'the third (pillar of faith) is to believe in the books of God'

Ziwo za qur'aani/ zingize husoomehó/ nii wake. 'At the koranic schools, most of those who teach are women.'

ziwoza 'my books'

rel.

mw-a-chi-woo=ni n. an educated person

Mwachiwooni/ nakunashira chiwo chaa ye/ andishiló. 'The educated person is publishing the book that he wrote.’

- iyi* [cl.5] demon. this Ishaka iyi/ ni ikulu. ‘This doubt is large.’
Waant^hu/ wafurahikiḷḷee nt^ho/ ina iyi. ‘People were very pleased with this name.’
- iyi* [cl.9] dem. this Iyi/ laazima/ inayo ma’ana. ‘This must have a meaning.’
Iyi/ ni kaaziyo. ‘This is your job.’
Iyi/ ni raadiyo/ isho mwenewe. ‘this is free radio (lit. radio without owners)’ zabibu iyi ‘this raisin’
- iyije* [cl.5] dem. that yiiyije iyije ‘that very same one [cl.5]’
- iyije* [cl.9] dem. that Khalamu iyije/ ni chihaba. ‘That pen is small.’
- iyio* [cl.5] dem. that one Ijiwe iyio/ ni ilusi. ‘That stone is black.’
Iyo/ ni ifuungu/ yaa ye/ mpeloo muké/ kuwa ni mahariyé. ‘That is the portion [of his squandered wealth] that he gave to his wife as her dowry.’
- iyio* [cl.9] dem. that one Embe iyio/ ni huundru. ‘That mango is red.’
Faatma/ yuuzile/ iyo haanzu. ‘Faatma bought that dress [the one we have been discussing etc.]’ (Phon. In the simple yes-no question, there is shift to final accent on the out-of-focus complement: Faatma/ yuuzile/ iyo haanzú?) (Syn. The presence of the demonstrative iyio does not require an object prefix to appear on the verb. It is well-formed to say: Faatma/ uzile(/) iyo haanzu.)
Khaadimu/ ba’adaa ye/ khpata amri/ iyo/ chanza mbiga oyo mwanaamke. ‘The servant, after he received that order, began to strike the girl.’
Mi/ nuzile iyo faṭuraa nk^hulú. ‘I bought that big car.’
Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ iyo. ‘Nureeni bought that jacket.’ (The phrasal separation of jaaka and iyio in this sentence is not a preferred phrasing for our consultant GM, as he would prefer a descriptive expansion of iyio, but the corresponding yes-no question clearly indicates that neither jaaka nor iyio are out-of-focus: Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ iyo? Remember, it yes-no questions the out-of-focus phrase undergoes accent shift. No such shift occurs here.)
Sa’iidi/ langaliḷḷe/ chi’iwona/ iyoo nt^hi/ yaa ye/ chi’imeeró. ‘Sa’iidi looked and saw the land that he was looking for.’
Shtala maandra/ iyo/ shtilaanga/ shfanya zihabaahaba/ zihabaahaba. ‘She took that loaf of bread and cut it and made small, small pieces.’
sku iyo ‘that day’
yiiyo/ iyo ‘the very same, this same one’
mahaḷa yiiyo/ iyo ‘at the very same place’ review phrasing
- ch-iza* neg. infinitive marker
Ali/ ambila chiza kooloka. ‘Ali was told not to go.’
Hiila/ yaa si/ shtakhadiro khfaanyá/ na chiza kumwangamiza wawa yitú/ nt^hayiiko. ‘There is no strategy that we can devise and not disrespectfully wrong our father.’ (Phon. The conjunction na ‘and’, when located in front of an infinitive, triggers final accent. This fact illustrates the nominal nature of the infinitive, since na does not trigger final accent on a following verb. The present example illustrates that even when the infinitive is preceded by the negative element chiza, final accent is still assigned by the na.)

Kanzaa we/ mbele/ chiza khfariqa/ bena munt^hu faqiri/ na taajiri. ‘For you to begin, first do not discriminate between a poor man and a rich man.’

Ni afðali/ mi/ chiza kuleeta/ nsiiza/ uyi uyu. ‘It is better that I not bring my fish to this town.’

ukali wa sakaraati/ Sheekhi ka chiza konyoowa [st.] ‘from the torturous agonies of dying/ may the Sheikh be spared’

rel.

k-iiza neg.

inawe niizé/ ba/ ambó/ nsuliilé ‘whether I don’t or I do like it’

Tuuma/ waanzile/ niizé/ mtaambula. ‘Tuuma had put on (so much) weight that I did not recognize her.’

Waant^hu/ washtiinda/ kiza keendra/ maduriini. ‘The people decided not to go to the bush country.’

Ye/ kiza kiimba/ nt^haykump^heendeza. ‘It didn’t please me that he didn’t sing.’

ch-iiza

otherwise, if not; [pron. chiizá]

Isa/ kheeri/ we/ ondroka ka apa/ yolokele kiinu/ chiizá/ mi/ nt^hakhubla/ ka khisaa mi/ nofeetó. ‘Now it is better that you move from here and go to our country, otherwise I will kill you, because I am tired.’

Kama chiza kuruuda/ ba’ada ya sku sitta/ ndimi/ nt^hakhiililó. ‘If he does not return after six days, it is me who will come to you.’

rel.

ch-izapo inv. otherwise; [pron. chizapó]

Fakaṭa/ chizapó/ takhshikoowa. ‘Run away, otherwise you will be arrested.’

Silawe/ chizapó/ humwoni/ Muusa. ‘Don’t leave, otherwise you will not see Muusa.’

k-iiza

v. [Sw. iza SED 145] (iize) refuse, not

Ali/ ize kooloka. ‘Ali refused to go.’

Ali/ ize kumpa mwaana/ peesa. ‘Ali refused to give the child money.’

Binṭi Simsini/ chimwambila sulṭaani/ mi/ siwo/ nt^hakiizó/ laakini/ iwá/ kuwa jis’iyi/ siwo/ suura. ‘The daughter of Simsini told the sultan: I am not the one who will refuse, but know that this is not a good way [of doing it].’

Chaayi/ chize kuneeka. ‘The tea was not (lit. refused to be) drinkable.’

Chiizá. ‘If I refuse? if he refuses?’ review matter of accent

Chiza khfaanya/ yaa mi/ anakhṭulubo kaakó/ nt^hakhufitina/ ka muḅliwa. ‘If you refuse to do what I ask from you, I will report you to my husband.’

Hasani/ uzile surwaani/ izi/ tu/ ziingine/ ziize/ mṭosha. ‘Hasani bought only these trousers, the other trousers did not (lit. refused to) fit him.’

Heendra/ Omari/ kiza kujaa zijo. ‘It is possible that Omari will refuse to eat zijo.’

Or: Heendra/ Omari/ kizaa kuja/ zijo. ‘It is possible that Omari will refuse to eat zijo.’

Hukhadiraayi/ mi/ kumwiiza/ munt^hu uyu. ‘How can I refuse this man?’

Izá. ‘Refuse!’

Iize/ khkasa koḁi zaa muke. ‘He refused to listen to the words of the woman.’

Khaṭi/ yize khsoomeka. ‘The letter was not readable [lit. refused to be readable].’

Maama/ chila/ na baabá/ iwiilopó/ naayé/ chila/ laakini/ mwaana/ iize/ kuwakasa. ‘Mother cried, and when father came to know, he also cried, but the boy refused to listen to them.’

Mi/ sinakiiza/ khufungulila mlaango. ‘I am not refusing to open the door to you.’

Mi/ siizi/ teena/ kulowa faṭura yiingine. ‘I no longer object to buying another car.’

Mi/ siizi/ ya Omari/ nakujaribo khfaanyá. ‘I don’t object to what Omari is trying to do.'

Mp^hundra uyu/ chiiza/ khsimama mp^huundra/ izo. 'This donkey refused to stand with those donkeys.'

Mwaana/ ize khtelushika. 'The child could not be persuaded to go away.'

Mwaana/ iize/ kumlola mwanamke wa waawaye/ msuliliiló. 'The boy refused to marry the girl that his father wanted him (to marry).'

Mwaanawo/ ni mwaanawo/ laakini/ siwo/ ahliyo/ ka sababu ye/ khizee we/ iize/ na diiniyó/ na miize/ mi. 'Your son is your son, but he is not your relative (as I, God, have defined it) because he rejected you, he rejected also your religion, and he rejected me.'

Ni ka khisa iyi/ ye/ izo kuwa'ambila waant^hú/ kooðizé. 'It is for this reason that he refuses to tell people [what] his words [were].'

Niizé/ kuja. 'I refused to eat.'

Nuuru/ ize khpaawake/ kuja. 'Nuuru refused to give women food.'

Safiya/ iize/ kumweleleaa muke. 'Safiya refused to be a wife to him.'

Sultani Daraayi/ iize/ khtukula askarize. 'Sultan Daraayi refused to bring along his soldiers.'

rel.

k-iliza v. appl. (iliize)

Baazi/ mwilize mwaana/ peesa. 'Baazi refused money to the child.'

Mwaalimu/ mwilize mwaana/ kooloka. 'The teacher refused to allow the child to go.'

Mwilize Hamadi/ kendra madrasaani. 'He refused to allow Hamadi to go to school.'

Nimwilize Hamadi/ chaakujá. 'I refused Hamadi food.'

Nimwilize kingila numbaani. 'I refused for him to enter the house.'

Nimwiliizé/ Omari/ peesa. 'I refused Omari money.'

Nimwiliizé/ peesa. 'I refused money to him.'

Nimwiliizé/ peesa/ kumpa Omari. 'I refused him to give money to Omari.'

wabli ka mashoga watomeele tele/ wamereele ruuhu ki'ipelekaa mbele/ mooja wa'ilize hiidi na mawele [nt.] 'men decided to wear women's black wraps trying to save themselves, [but] God did not give them a woman's shape [lit. menstruation and breasts]'

Waawe/ niliize/ laakini/ mi/ nanzizopoo kulá/ waawe/ shkhiira/ mi/ kumraasha. 'My father refused me, but when I began to cry, my father agreed and I accompanied him.'

k-ilizanya v. appl. rec. (-ilizeenye) refuse one another k-ilizoowa v. appl. pass. (iliiza)

Hamadi/ iliza kendra madrasaani. 'Hamadi was not allowed to go to school.'

Khati/ yiza khsomoowa. 'The letter was refused to be read (i.e. someone refused to read the letter).'

Muke/ ihsaani/ hafanyilizoowi/ na ha'ilizoowi. 'A woman is not done a favor for, and also is not refused for.' (A proverb.)

Mwaana/ iliza peesa/ na Nuuru. 'The child was refused money by Nuuru.'

Waana/ wa'iliza khsomelowa zibuuku. 'Children were refused to be read books to.'

k-izoowa v. pass. (-iiza) be forbidden, be refused

Gaari/ ziza khpakowa ooliyo. 'The cars were refused to be oiled (i.e. someone refused to oil the cars).'

Hizoowa. 'It is forbidden.'

Khati/ yiza khsomoowa. 'The letter was not read [lit. the letter was refused to be read].'

naa wo hawaminoowi/ khabari zaawo hizoowa [st.] 'and (those who knew it) were not believed/ their attestations were denied (lit. refused)'

rel. nom.

mw-iiza (wa-') n. 1/2 one who refuses mw-iizo n. 3 objection
w-iizo n. 14 the act of refusing, refusal, objection

izdihaamu

n. crowdedness etc. (people, cars, movements) Sa'a idaashara/ za Japiili/ Columbus/ ni wakhti wa izdihaamu. 'Five o'clock [lit. eleven] is a crowded, busy time in Columbus.'

izi

[cl.8] first position demonstrative: these Hamadi/ tukile izi/ ziti. 'Hamadi carried these chairs.'
[Hamadi/ tukiiló/ ziti izi] 'It is Hamadi who carried these chairs.' Or: [Hamadi/ tukiiló/ izi/ ziti]. (The pseudo-relativization of the main verb reflects the presence of focus on the subject Hamadi in these examples.)
Izi/ stukila na Hamadi. 'These were carried by Hamadi.' Or: Izi/ stukila na Hamadi. Or, with focus on the demonstrative subject: [izi/ stukila na Hamadi] and [izi/ stukilá/ na Hamadi], where the focused subject triggers pseudo-relativization.
Mi/ ntukilé/ izi/ ziti. 'I carried these chairs.' Or: Mi/ ntukile izi/ ziti. (The extension of the final accent past the pre-nominal demonstrative indicates that even though the demonstrative is prosodically separated from the nominal, it is not focused. We elicited a pronunciation where ziti does not have final accent as well; this may indicate some variability on this matter, but we did not observe any clear overt focus on the demonstrative.)

Nza naani/ zintu izi. 'Whose things are these?'

Mi/ ntukilee ziti/ izi. 'I carried these chairs.'

Zibuku izi/ ni zi'akhōari. 'These books are green.'

Zisu izi/ ni skali. 'These knives are sharp.'

Zisu izi/ siwo/ skali. 'These knives are not sharp.' (cf. Zisu izi/ siwo/ skali nt^ho. 'These knives are not very sharp.'

izi

[cl.10] first position demonstrative: these Embe izi/ nii mbiti. 'These mangoes are unripe.'
izi ka izi 'this and that' review phrasing
Walekeze koodi/ izi ka izi/ ntaku/ mooyi/ kati kaawo/ wanayo ra'ayi suura. 'They thought of this and that to say, but not one of them had a good idea.'
Mbarakha izi/ ni nyulusi. 'These pieces of paper are black.'
Nfunga mikono/ na miilú/ ka mp^hingu izi. 'Tie up my arms and legs with these chains.'
Ngoma izi/ ni mp^haana. 'These drums are wide.'
Ngombe izi/ nii nk^hulu. 'These cows are big.'
Nza naani/ khufu izi. 'Whose socks are these?'
Waziiri/ leselopo mp^hiingú/ mwaana/ chimwaambila/ nfunga mikono/ na miilú/ ka mp^hingu izi. 'When the minister brought the chain, the boy told him: tie my arms and legs with these chains.'
zabibu izi 'these raisins' zakuja izi/ zaa mi/ khuleteleeló 'these foods that I have brought to you' Zisu izi/ suwo/ skali nt^hi. 'The knives are not very sharp.'

izi

n.dignity, respect, honor, greatness variant form: ezi

mw-iizi (w-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mwizi SED 139] thief; [pron. mwizi or miizi (sg.)]

Azizi mwizi 'Aziizi the thief' (answers the question 'which Aziizi?') vs. Aziizi/ mwizi 'Aziizi, the thief' (identifies Aziizi as a thief)

Aziizi/ mwizi/ ile. 'Aziizi, the thief, came.'

E/ we/ ni wasaafiri/ ni wiizi. 'Oh, you travelers are thieves!'

khfakata/ kana mwizi 'to run away like a thief (e.g. someone who does not want to be seen or to be asked to do something, and goes away to avoid these things) kiingila/ kana mwiizi ‘to enter like a thief (i.e. to go in carefully, do what one wants, and then leave without speaking to anyone or being noticed)’

kuzimila/ kana mwiizi ‘to hide like a thief’ (=khfakata/ kana mwiizi)

Mapoliisi/ wamshishile mwiizi/ yana. ‘The police caught the thief yesterday.’

Mwiizi/ chimbishilé. [H!H] ‘The thief, we beat him.’

Mwiizi/ hafanyoowi/ mweenza. ‘A thief is not made a friend.’ (A proverb.)

Mwiizi/ hakhiiri/ ðambize. ‘A thief does not confess to/admit/accept his crimes.’ (A proverb.)

Mwiizi/ jisaa we/ tamfaanyó/ haalaṭi/ kuboola. ‘A thief, whatever you do \ with him, he does not quit stealing.’ (A proverb.)

Mwiizi/ oyo (or owo)/ mapoliisi/ wamshishiloo yaná/ fakeete. ‘The thief whom the police arrested yesterday escaped.’ Or: Miizi/ wa mapoliisi/ wamshishiloo yaná/ fakeete. Or: Miizi/ oyo/ wa mapoliisi/ wamshishiloo yaná/ fakeete. Cf. Wiizi/ awo/ mapoliisi/ wawashishiloo yaná/ wafakeete. ‘The thieves, those ones, who the police arrested yesterday, escaped. Or: Wiizi/ awo/ wa mapoliisi/ wawashishiloo yaná/ wafakeete.

mwiizi (oyo) shishilaa na mapoliisi/ yaná ‘the thief who was arrested by the police yesterday’ or miizi (oyo) shishilaa yaná/ na mapoliisi mwiizi (oyo) shishilaa yaná ‘the thief who was arrested yesterday’

Mwiizi/ chiboola/ sku arba’iini/ hushikoowa. ‘After stealing for forty days, a thief is caught.’ (A thief will always be caught in the end, he cannot get away with continued thievery.’ (A proverb.)

Mwiizi/ sku arba’iini/ hushikoowa. ‘A thief is caught in forty days.’ (A proverb which is commenting that a thief will eventually be caught.)

Muunt^hu/ wele mwiizi. ‘The man was a thief.’ Or: Wele mwiizi/ muunt^hu. ‘Was a thief, the man.’ (Phon. The right-dislocated subject in the second version of the sentence has the radical lowering associated with dislocation.)

Mwiizi/ bishilaa naasi. [H!H] ‘The thief was beaten by us.’ Cf. Naasi/ bishilaa mwiizi. [H!H] ‘By us the thief was beaten.’

Mwiizi/ chimbishilé/ si. ‘The thief, we beat him, we.’

Mwiizi/ humshiikó/ ni mwizi mweenziwe. ‘A thief, the one who catches him is his fellow thief.’ (A proverb.)

Ni mwizi gani/ tu/ takuyo apá. ‘What thief would come here?’

Nimene Omari miizi. ‘I saw Omari the thief (not some other Omari).’

Polisi/ hu’adiba wiizi/nt^hasaa wo/ kuwapeleka mahkamaani. ‘Police torture thieves before they take them to trial.’

Si/ chimbishile mwiizi. [H!H] ‘We beat the thief.’ Cf. Mwiizi/ chimbishile/ si. [H!H!H] ‘The thief, beat him, we.’ (The downstepping of the pronoun si in the second example is so radical that one might well be tempted to say that it is unaccented. We have opted against this interpretation due, in part, to the fact that when such a postposed subject pronoun is not in sentence-final position, its status as bearing accent is clear.)

rel.

i-j-iizi (mi-j-) n. 5/4 aug.

y-iizi n. aug. big thief

Yiizi/ ibozele peesa. ‘The big thief stole the money.’

izije [cl.8] demonstrative those (away)

Zireza izije/ mi skali. ‘Those razors are sharp.’

izije [cl.10] demonstrative those (away)

Hasiibu/ chimfungulila sultaani/ izije zimpeetó. ‘Hasiibu told the sultan those things that had befallen him.’

Khalamu izije/ ni zihaba. ‘Those pens are small.’

Mbawo izije/ ni mp^hana. ‘Those planks are wide.’

Numba izije/ ni zihaba. ‘Those houses are small.’

ziizije izije ‘those same ones’

ku-’izisha

v. [Ar. ‘azza W 609] respect, honor variant form: ku'ezesha Hu'izisha waant^hu. 'He respects people.'

izo [cl.8] demonstrative those Izo/ zilaatu/ za Nuura/ uziló/ ni ghaali. 'Those shoes that Nuura bought are expensive.'
Nt^hepe izo/ ni nelpe. 'Those bandages are white.'
Nuura/ uzile izo zilaatu. 'Nuura bought those shoes (that we saw etc.)'
Nuura/ uzile zilatu izo. 'Nuura bought those shoes.' Or: Nuura/ uzile/ zilatu izo. 'Nuura bought those shoes.'
Zisu izo/ ni skalii nt^ho. 'Those knives are very sharp.'

izo [cl.10] demonstrative those
Basi/ oyo mwiimbili/ naank^hó/ shfakaṭa/ cheendra/ shṭukula oyoo nsi/ naank^hó/ shpeleka/ chimwambila oyo mwanaamke/ oyo mwanaamke/ chimwambila waawaye/ izo jawaabu. 'So that young man again ran and went and carried that fish and again took it (to the sultan's place) and told that girl and that girl told her father those things (in the story, those things that the djinn had told the young man).' (This sentence is an excellent example of the pre-nominal use of the demonstrative in Chimiini.)
Nchikoma/ nt^hi izo/ endraani/ ka masultaani/ wa nt^hi izo/ na koḏaani/ naa wo/ ka adabu/ na ka zeemá. 'When you (plural) reach these lands, go to the kings of these lands and speak with them respectfully and nicely.'

Izraa'ili n. the angel of death, Azrael
Namtiya/ kana Izraa'ili. 'He fears him like Azrael, the angel of death.'
Nsimamiliile/ kana Izraa'ili. 'He stood for me like Azrael, i.e. he is not letting me go until I do something for him that he wants done, he won't give me any peace until I do it.'

ku-ja v. eat
Baazi/ nt^haakuja. 'Baazi has not eaten.' (Note that one can place special emphasis on the subject, exaggerating the pitch height and loudness. We indicate this by an upward-pointing arrow, as in: [↑]Baazi/ nt^haakuja. 'Baazi has not eaten.' But what is of considerable interest is that this sort of emphasis does not necessarily trigger pseudo-relativization of the verb, as we see in this example. There is no shift of accent in the verb to the final syllable, the characteristic feature of relativization of any kind. Pseudo-relativization is triggered by focus, and this seems to be different from emphasis.)
Chijaa kuja/ naawo. 'He ate food with them.' Or: Chija naawo/ kuja. Or: Kuja/ chija naawo. Or: Kuja/ chijo naawó. (In the last example, focus on 'food' triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb.)
Hamadi/ takujaa zijo/ mi/ nt^hakuja maandra. 'Hamadi will eat zijo, and I will eat bread.' (It is also possible to use an overt conjunction and gap the second verb: Hamadi/ takujaa zijo/ naami/ maandra. 'Hamadi will eat zijo and I bread.' The noun maandra in this example could have a final accent, but this is not preferred.)
Hasani/ jiile/ ye/ maandraye. 'Hasani ate, he, his bread.' (Note the use of a pronoun, co-referential with the subject, in position after the verb. This pronoun is phrasally separated from the verb and radically lowered in pitch.)
Hasani/ ye/ jiile/ maandraye. 'Hasani, he, ate his bread.' Or: Ye/ Hasani/ jiile/ maandraye. 'He, Hasani, ate his bread' haṭá/ teena/ weele/ kuwa nt^haná/ yaa ye/ kuja 'to the point that there was not anything for him to eat'
Hujoo mbelé/ haaji/ numa. 'The one who eats first does not eat later.' (A proverb.)
Hujo naawé/ haafi/ naawe/ illa zaleno naawé. 'The one who eats with you does not die with you, only the one who is related to you (will die with you).' (A proverb.)
Jile chakuja cha Hamadi/ mpeeló. 'He ate the food that Hamadi gave him.' Cf. Jile chakuja cha Hamadi/ mpeeló/ jiióló. ‘He ate the food that Hamadi gave him, that’s what he did.’ Also: Jilechaakuja/ jiióló/ cha Hamadi/ mpeeló. ‘He ate the food, that’s what he did, that Hamadi gave him.’

Jile kani/ chaakuja. ‘What did he eat the food with?’ (Note that the final vowel of the verb is not lengthened in front of kani, even though CVCV words generally trigger lengthening of the preceding vowel if in the same phrase as that vowel.)

Jile kani/ zijo. ‘You ate with what rice?’ (A possible answer: Njile ka lkoombé/ zijo. ‘I ate with a spoon rice.’ Observe that in MI’s speech, the applied instrumental form of the verb is not used here since that construction does not permit focus on the instrument.

Jiile/ ye. ‘He ate, him.’ (In this sentence, where the subject pronoun is postposed, the pitch on the pronoun is radically lower than that on the verb. In the corresponding yes-no question, however, the pitch on the pronoun is raised, though it does noticeably fall: Jiile/ ye? In the emphatic yes-no question, the pitch register is clearly lowered in MI’s speech, but the pitch on the pronoun is raised just as in the simple yes-no question. In addition, the verb undergoes accent shift: Jiilé/ yé!?)

Jiile/ ye/ nama. ‘He ate, him, the meat.’ (The postposed subject is radically lowered in pitch, and the complement even more so. In the yes-no question version, the lowering is absent and complement undergoes accent-shift: Jiile/ ye/ namá? In the emphatic version, in MI’s speech, there is register-lowering and in addition the post-verbal phrases are lower in pitch than the verb. The verb undergoes accent-shift: Jiilé/ ye/ namá!? In GM’s speech, where there is no register-lowering in the emphatic yes-no question, the final accented syllable would be markedly falling in nature.)

Jilee zijó/ kani. ‘You ate rice with what?’ Or: Kani/ jiloo zijó. ‘With what did you eat rice.’ (Note that in pre-verbal position, kani triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb. Possible answer to these questions: Njilee zijó/ ka lkoombé. ‘I ate rice with a spoon.’ It should be noted that given the question, in the answer the final accent must be extended through the verb phrase. If one said: Njilee zijó/ ka lkoombe., the sentence would mean ‘it’s rice that I ate with a spoon’ and this is obviously not an appropriate answer to a question about what instrument was used.)

Jiiló/ mwaana. ‘The one who ate is a child.’ (This sentence is an answer to the simple yes-no question Jiiló/ mwaana? ‘Is the one who ate a child?’ or the emphatic yes-no question Jiiló/ mwaaná!? ‘Is the one who ate really a child?’)

Kana ijiióló/ ha’ikooði. ‘A mouth that has eaten does not talk.’ (A proverb that suggests that someone who has done something wrong does not talk about what he has done.)

kuja kana ngeena ‘to eat like a crocodile’

Kujaako/ hulawa nt^hakaani. ‘Your food [lit. your eating] comes from the garbage pile.’

^fLeelo/ sijee namá/ ^fkeesho/ ja. ‘Today don’t eat meat, tomorrow eat (meat)!’

Liindra/ kujaa kujá. ‘Wait, I am eating.’ (Observe that the first person form nnakujaa kujá can undergo an elision of the initial na, leaving the bare infinitive to appear, but this bare infinitive carries the final accent associated with the first person present tense verb.)

Mwaana/ jiile. ‘The boy ate.’ Or: Mwaana/ jiióló. ‘The boy ate.’ (In the second example, focus on ‘boy’ triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb. This sentence answers a question like: Naani/ jiióló. ‘Who ate?’)

Mwaana/ nt^hakujaa zijó/ waliko Omari. ‘The child who did not eat zijo was Omari.’ Or, with emphasis on the negative verb in the relative clause: Mwaana/ nt^haakujá/ zijó/ waliko Omari.

Masku ayo/ nt^haakuja/ chiint^hu. ‘That evening he did not eat anything.’ Mi/ njiilé. ‘I ate’ (In a statement such as this, there is downstep intonation whereby the pitch on the first accented syllable is higher than the pitch on the next accented syllable. In the simple yes-no question version, this downstep intonation is absent and the second accented syllable is raised: Mi/ njiilé? ‘Did I eat?’ The question mark indicates this raising/ absence of downstep intonation. In the emphatic yes-no question version in MI’s speech, the downstep intonation relationship is maintained, but the entire pitch register is lowered relative to the statement: Mi/ njilé!? This special intonation is indicated by the sequence “!?” at the end of the emphatic yes-no question.)

Mi/ njile maandrá/ wo/ wajilee zijo. ‘I ate bread, they ate zijo.’ (A conjunction with gapping may also be used: Mi/ njile maandrá/ naawó/ zijo. ‘I ate bread, and they zijo.’ In this sentence, zijo may be pronounced with final accent, but this is not preferred: Mi/ njile maandrá/ naawó/ zijó.)

Mi/ njilee namá. ‘I ate meat’ (Phon. The corresponding yes-no question undergoes Q-raising: Mi/ njilee namá? The emphatic yes-no question in MI’s speech shows register lowering and maintains downstep intonation; accent-shift is vacuous since the verb phrase already has final accent: Mi/ njilee namá!?)

Mi/ njiilé/ nama. ‘I ate meat.’ (Phon. This example illustrates the case where a verb that takes a complement is focused. What we see is that the verb stands at the end of a phonological phrase and thus the complement is in a different phrase. Furthermore, we see that the final accent triggered by the first person past tense verb extends only as far as the verb. The complement has default penultimate accent. All of this can be gleaned directly from our transcription. There are, however, additional prosodic matters that are not encoded in the transcription. The first point is that this sentence, with its focus on the verb, does not display the usual downstep intonation pattern of simple statements. In particular, the pitch on njiilé is raised, not downstepped. Second, although the complement is lowered in pitch, it seems that its lowering is more radical than in ordinary downstep intonation. We will assume this to be true, although it is mostly an impressionistic observation. Now let us turn to the matter of the yes-no question versions of this example. In the simple question, there is not only no downstepping of the verb, there is also no lowering of the complement either. Furthermore, the complement shifts its accent to the final syllable: Mi/ njiilé/ namá? The exclamatory question, shows the same shift in accent, but also downstep intonation. In MI’s speech, there is also register-lowering: Mi/ njiilé/ namá!?)

Mi/ skuja. ‘I did not eat.’ (Phon. The downstep intonation associated with the statement is missing in the simple yes-no question: Mi/ skuja? The pitch level of the verb is raised in this question, but there is no other accentual change. In the emphatic yes-no question, on the other hand, there is a register-lowering in NI’s pronunciation and accent-shift in the verb in both MI’s and GM’s speech: Mi/ skuja!? Note that the downstep intonation relationship between the subject and the verb remains in the emphatic yes-no question, unlike the simple yes-no question.)

Miimbili/ nt^haakuja/ waliko Omari. ‘The boy who did not eat was Omari.’

Or: Mimbili nt^haakujá/ waliko Omari. (Phon. When the subject of the relative verb is also the head of the relative clause and in pre-verbal position, then the head may either phrase separate from the verb or together with the verb. We did not detect any necessary meaning difference associated with this phrasing difference. However, it appears that if the speaker is using the relative clause in a non-restrictive fashion, then the head is phrasally separated. However, phrasing the head with the verb is not a necessary condition for the restrictive interpretation.)

Mp^ha chakujaacha/ nije. ‘Give me my food so that I can eat!’

Mubli/ chimwambila mukeewe/ kuwavi^la waana/ wanaje naaye. ‘The man told his wife to call the children so that they might eat with him.’

Muke/ chimwaambila/ ya kuwa waana/ maanzine/ wajiile. ‘The wife told him that the children had already eaten.’

Muunt^hu/ nayoo ndalá/ ha^tá/ bakhtⁱ/ huja. ‘A man who is hungry even eats dead carcasses.’ (A proverb.)

M^waalimu/ m^wene mwaana/ chija chaakuja. ‘The teacher saw a boy eating food.’

Mwaana/ nakujoo namá/ ni mku^lá. ‘The boy who is eating meat is my older brother.’

naa kujá ‘and to eat’

Na wachija. ‘And they were eating.’

Na wajiile. ‘And they ate.’ Cf. Na wajiile? ‘And did they eat?’ Cf. Na wajiilé!? ‘Did they really eat?’

Nama/ jaani/ mishpa/ mp^haani. ‘Meat, you (pl.) eat! Bones, you (pl.) give to me!’ (A proverb.)

^fnama/ sije leeló/ ^fnsi/ ja. ‘Meat don’t eat today, fish eat!’ Or: ^fnama/ sije leeló/ jaa nsi. ‘Meat don’t eat today, eat fish!’

Njiilé/ mi. ‘I ate, me.’ (In this sentence, the pronominal subject is postposed after the verb. Although we do not indicate it in the transcription, the pitch level of mi is sharply reduced with respect to the preceding verb. We consider this reduction to be more substantial than in ordinary down-step intonation. In the simple yes-no question version of this sentence, the mi is pronounced with a falling pitch that begins at the same level as the preceding accented syllable: njiilé/ mí? In the emphatic yes-no question, the pitch range in MI’s speech is clearly lowered with respect to the statement, but the downstep intonation does not exist between the verb and the postposed subject pronoun. Rather, the pronoun begins at the same pitch level as the preceding syllable, and falls: Njiilé/ mí!?)

Njiilé/ mi/ nama. ‘I ate, me, the meat.’ (Phon. This sentence illustrates that the verb may be focused, with the pronominal subject in position after the verb, and the complement following it. The pronoun in this case is radically lowered, and the complement even more so. In the simple yes-no question, the complement does undergo accent-shift, but neither pronoun nor complement is radically lowered: Njiilé/ mi/ namá? MI pronounced the emphatic version with register lowering, and the post-verbal elements are lowered: Njiilé/ mi/ namá!?)

Njile namá/ mi. ‘I ate meat, me.’ (Phon. In this example, where the pronominal subject is postposed to the end of the sentence, it is radically lowered in pitch, even more so than in the usual downstep intonation. One might be inclined to say it is “unaccented”, but the yes-no question versions go against this characterization. In the yes-no question, the pronoun escapes lowering and is pronounced with a clear fall: Njile namá/ mí? In the emphatic yes-no question, the pronoun shows the same absence of lowering and falling pitch. In MI’s speech, there is register-lowering: Njile namá/ mí!?)

Njiilé/ nama/ mi. ‘I ate meat, me.’ (Phon. In this sentence, where the verb is phrasally separated from the complement, the complement is radically lowered, and the postposed pronominal subject pronoun even more so – to the point that one might wish to characterize it as unaccented. In the corresponding yes-no question, this radical lowering is absent from both the complement and the pronoun, and the accent on nama is shifted to the end, while the pronoun is realized with a clear falling character: Njiilé/ namá/ mí? In MI’s pronunciation, the emphatic version has register-lowering and there is lowering of the complement, but with accent-shift: Njiilé/ namá/ mí!?)

Nt^haakuja/ ye. ‘He did not eat, him.’ (Phon. The postposed subject pronoun is radically lowered in pitch in the statement, but in the simple yes-no question it is raised, being realized with a falling pitch: Nt^haakuja/ yê? In the emphatic yes-no question, there is register-lowering in MI’s speech, but the pitch on the pronoun remains raised and falling. The verb undergoes accent shift: Nt^haakujá/ yê!?)

Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ Hamadi/ jile maandra. ‘Nuuru ate zijo, Hamadi ate bread.’ (These two clauses could also be conjoined using the preposition na: Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ na Hamadi/ jile maandra. The verb may also be gapped, with or without the overt conjunction: Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ Hamadi/ maandra. Also: Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ na Hamadi/ maandra. ‘Nuuru ate zijo, and Hamadi, bread.’ The latter sentence could also use final accent on maandra, but we are not aware if there is any meaning difference attached to this pronunciation: Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ na Hamadi/ maandra.)

Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ mi/ njile maandra. ‘Nuuru ate zijo, I ate bread.’ (Use of the pronominal subject appears to be obligatory in this conjoined construction. An overt na conjunction is also possible: Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ naamí/ njile maandra. The verb may be gapped in the second clause, but apparently only if the conjunction is present: Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ naamí/ maandra (or also maandra, as noted above). Gapping without the conjunction was rejected: Nuuru/ jilee zijo/ mi/ maandra (or even maandra).

Nuuru/ naaje. ‘Let Nuuru eat.’ (It is possible to elevate the pitch on Nuuru without thereby triggering any change in the form of the sentence, but we have not established the function/context of such elevation might be. If one wishes to convey that it is Nuuru and nobody else who should eat, the pitch on Nuuru would be raised and the verb shifted to pseudo-relative form: Nuuru/ naajé. ‘Let Nuuru (not anyone else) eat.’ Another way of saying this is: Nuuru/ tu/ naajé. ‘Let only, just Nuuru eat.’)

Omari/ nt^haakuja/ zijo. ‘Omari did not eat zijo.’ With subject-focus:

Omari/ nt^hakujaa zijó. Or: Omari/ nt^haakujá/ zijo. (Syn. and phon. The first example illustrates that in a main clause, the negative verb phrasally separates from its complement. Focus on the subject requires putting the verb into a pseudo-relative form. A negative verb, when located in a relative clause, is typically phrased together with its complement. However, the negative verb may be phrase-final. A pseudo-relative verb projects a final accent, just like a true relative clause, but unlike true relative clauses, it respects what we refer to as the Accentual Law of Focus – i.e. final accent does not project past a focused element.)

Pilpili/ zaa we/ nt^hukujá/ hazikhaashi/ kana. ‘Peppers that you have not eaten do not burn the mouth.’ (A proverb.)

Sijé/ nama. ‘Don’t eat meat.’ Or: Nama/ sijé.

Sijé/ nama/ leelo. ‘Don’t eat meat today!’ Alternatively: Leelo/ sijé/ nama.
Or: Sijé/ leelo/ nama. Or: Nama/ leelo/ sijé.

Sijee namá/ leelo/ jaa nsi/ leelo. ‘Don’t eat meat today, eat fish!’

Siji. ‘I do not eat.’ Cf. Huji. ‘You do not eat.’ Haaji. ‘He does not eat.’

Haachiji. ‘We do not eat.’ Haaniji. ‘You (pl.) do not eat.’ Hawaaji. ‘They do not eat.’

Simpé/ Tuuma/ peesa. ‘Don’t give Tuuma money.’ Or: Tuuma/ simpé/ peesa. ‘Tuuma, don’t give her money.’

Simpé/ Tuuma/ peesa/ mpe Nuura. ‘Don’t give Tuuma money, give Nuura (money).’ Or: Peesa/ simpé Tuuma/ mpe Haliima. ‘Money, don’t give it to Tuuma, give it to Haliima.’ Or: Peesa/ simpé/ Tuuma/ mpee kuja. ‘Money don’t give to Tuuma, give her food.’

Skuja/ mi. ‘I did not eat, me.’ (Phon. In this sentence, the postposed pronominal subject is radically lowered in pitch. In the corresponding yes-no question, however, it is raised in pitch and has a falling character: Skuja/ mí? In the emphatic yes-no question, there is register lowering in MI’s pronunciation, and the pronoun is raised in pitch, with a clear fall. In addition, the verb undergoes accent-shift: Skujá/ mí!?)

Tuuma/ jile Haliima/ mazuye. ‘Tuuma ate Haliima’s banana.’ (Phon. The simple yes-no question involves Q-raising but no accent shift: Tuuma/ jile Haliima/ mazuye? ‘Did Tuuma eat Haliima’s banana?’ The exclamatory version does show accent shift in the VP: Tuuma/ jile Haliimá/ mazuyé!?)

[Tuuma/ jile Haliima/ mazuye.] ‘Tuuma ate Haliima’s banana.’ (Phon. In contrast to the preceding example, mazuye is focused and thus raised in pitch.)

[Tuuma/ jilee mazú/ ya Haliima.] ‘Tuuma ate Haliima’s banana.’

Tuuma/ jile mazu ya Haliima. ‘Tuuma ate Haliima’s banana.’ (Phon. The simple yes-no question involves Q-raising but no accent shift: Tuuma/ jile mazu ya Haliima? ‘Did Tuuma eat Haliima’s banana?’ The exclamatory version does show accent shift in the VP: Tuuma/ jile mazu ya Haliimâ!?)

[Tuuma/ jile mazu ya Haliima.] ‘Tuuma ate Haliima’s banana.’ (Phon. This example puts focus on Haliima, which involves raising the pitch on Haliima, in contrast to the example above, where Haliima is subject to the default downstep intonation.)

Tuuma/ jilee mazu/ ya Haliima. ‘Tuuma ate the banana of Haliima.’

Tuuma/ jiiól/ mazu ya Haliima. ‘It is Tuuma who ate Haliima’s banana.’

Tuuma/ simpe peesá/ nguwo/ mpe. ‘Tuuma, don’t give her money; clothes give her.’

Wachanzaa kuja. ‘They began to eat.’

We/ waliko chijani/ mukhtaa mi/ niíló. ‘What were you eating when I came?’ (Possible answer: Mi/ waliko nch^hija mwaangi/ mukhtaa we/ iló. ‘I was eating mwaangi when you came.’)

Wo/ wajilee kuja. ‘They ate the food.’ Or: Wo/ wajiile/ kuja.

Ye/ jiile. ‘He ate.’ (Phon. In the third person past tense form, there is default penultimate accent on the penult syllable of the verb. Downstep intonation requires this accented syllable to be lower in pitch than the initial accented syllable in the sentence. In the corresponding yes-no question, this downstep intonation is absent and the accented syllable in the verb is raised in pitch: Ye/ jiile? In the emphatic yes-no question, the downstep intonation is retained, but the pitch level across the sentence is lowered in comparison to the statement. In addition, in both MI’s speech and in GM’s speech, the verb shifts its accent to the final syllable: Ye/ jiiilé!?)

Ye/ jilee nama. ‘He ate meat.’ (Phon. The simple yes-no question shows Q-raising: Ye/ jilee nama? The emphatic yes-no question shows accent-shift and downstep intonation: Ye/ jilee namá!? In the speech of MI, there is also a clear register lowering in comparison to the statement.)

Ye/ jiile/ nama. ‘He ate meat.’ (Phon. As noted above, a focused verb is phrase-final and is not subject to downstep intonation. The complement is radically lowered in pitch. In the simple yes-no question, the complement is not lowered in pitch and is subject to accent shift: Ye/ jiile/ namá? In the exclamatory question, accent shift affects both the verb and the complement: Ye/ jiiilé/ namá!? In MI’s speech, there is also register-lowering.)

Ye/ nt^haakuja. ‘He did not eat.’ (Phon. The simple yes-no question shows pitch raising on the verb, but no accent-shift: Ye/ nt^haakuja? The emphatic yes-no question, on the other hand, shows accent-shift while maintaining the downstep intonation: Ye/ nt^haakujá!? In MI’s speech, there is also clear register-lowering.)

Ye/ waliko chijani/ mukhta waana/ wa’iló. ‘What was he eating when the children came?’ (Possible answer: Ye/ waliko chija mwaangi. ‘He was eating cooked maize.’)

rel.

ku-jaanana v. rec. [cf. Sw. lana] eat one another; talk ill of one another

Omari/ hadiile/ reri ya Huseeni/ siwo/ wasuura/ wachiwonoowa/ wanakujaanana. ‘Omari said that the family of Huseeni is not good, whenever they are seen, they are saying bad things about each other.’

Peesa/ za haraamu/ hujaanana. ‘Ill-gotten money lit. wears out – i.e. gets used up and does not have lasting benefit.’

Wawaliko weenza/ laakini/ isa/ wanakujaanana. ‘They were friends but now they talk ill of one another.’

ku-jiika v. p/s. [Sw. lika] (jiishile) be edible, able to eat

Apa/ hayjiiki. ‘Here one cannot eat.’

Chaakuja/ hachijiiki. ‘The food cannot be eaten.’

Chakuja ichi/ hachijiiki/ na waana. ‘This food cannot be eaten by children.’

Hayjiiki/ chaakuja/ isa. ‘One cannot eat (this) food now.’

Ka hari/ hayjiiki. ‘In hot weather one cannot eat.’

matundra hujiikó ‘edible fruit’ ku-jiikila v. p/s. appl. (jikiliile) able to be eaten for Zaakuja/ zikhujikiliile? ‘Were you able to eat the food (lit. was the food able to be eaten for you)?’

ku-jiilila v. appl. [Sw. lia] (jiliile)

Ali/ mjilile Hamadi/ chaakuja. ‘Ali ate Hamadi’s food (i.e. food intended for Hamadi).’

Ijiliile/ yolokeleele. ‘(After waiting and waiting, e.g.) he went ahead and ate on his own and took himself off.’

Jiliileni/ chaakuja. ‘Why did you eat the food?’

Jiliileni/ lkoombe. ‘You ate what with a spoon?’ (A possible answer to this question: Njililee zijó/ lkoombe. ‘I ate zijo with a spoon.’ In the instrumental applied verb construction, MI preferred that the instrument not be focused. In this example, focus is on what was eaten rather than what was used to eat it.)

Mi/ nimweené/ nyunyi/ ye/ siwo/ takuyo teená/ kichijilila nt^heendré. ‘I have seen the bird; he will not be the one who will come back again and eat our dates [on us].’

Mp^huundra/ chingila ki’ijilila/ maanyi/ yaakó/ qaribu ya mahalaa wo/ wasimeemó. ‘The donkey began to eat the grass that was there near the place where they stood.’

Mwaana/ jililee nama/ farkeeta. ‘The child ate meat with a fork.’ (MI prefers for the instrument in an instrumental applied construction to be out-of-focus. If nama is focused in this word order, then it is acceptable for farkeeta to appear at the end of the verb phrase. If farkeeta is part of the focus, then MI found the sentence of dubious acceptability.)

Tuuma/ mjilile Haliima/ mazuye. ‘Tuuma ate Haliima’s banana [on her].’

ku-jililoowa v. appl. pass.

Kana/ siyi/ inajililoowani. ‘Here is the mouth – what to eat with it?’ (In other words, talk is easy, action is not. This is the Chimiini translation of a Somali proverb which is used in Brava, but retains its Maymay form rather than being recast into Chimiini: Af waakee may la ki aamee.)

Shokuja chaake/ hujiliwoa. ‘The one who does not eat his own is eaten for.’ (A proverb directed at stingy people.)

ku-jiisha v. caus. [Sw. lisha] (jishiize) make something appetizing; cause to eat Ali/ mjishize mwaana/ nama. ‘Ali had the child eat meat.’

Muusa/ mjishize mwaana/ nama/ ka farkeeta. ‘Muusa made the child eat meat with a fork.’

Pilipi/ hujishaa kuja. ‘Hot pepper makes food appetizing.’

ku-jishiliza v. caus. appl.

?Muusa/ mjishilize mwaana/ nama/ farkeeta. ‘Muusa made the child eat meat with a fork.’ (Our consultant MI found this sentence of doubtful validity, as he routinely dispreferred sentences where an instrumental NP licensed by the applicative suffix is included as part of the focus of a sentence.)

ku-joowa v. pass. [Sw. liwa] (jiila) be eaten

Hujoowa/ huja/ huja/ hujoowa. ‘It is eaten, it eats; it eats, it is eaten.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is mp^haamp^ha ‘shark’.)

Ka Ra(a) Tahaara/ ichijoowa/ zijo. ‘The zijo was eaten at [the house of] Raa Tahaara.’ (Syn. The noun zijo governs [cl.8] agreement, zi-, thus cannot be regarded as the subject of the passive verb. Rather the i- subject agreement on the verb indicates that it is an impersonal passive form. Literally, then, the sentence is: At [the house of] Raa Tahaara there was eating of zijo.)

Mkulu/ wa makhaadimu/ ondroshepo ka usinziziini/ chiwona kuwa nt^heendre/ zijiila/ ye/ shfakata/ chimkhubura mwaana. ‘When the head of the servants awoke from sleep, he saw that the dates had been eaten and he ran and he informed the boy.’

Ondroshepo/ chiwona/ kuwa nt^heendre/ imalize kujoowa. ‘When he awoke, he saw that the dates had been eaten.’

Siimba/ naa mp^hisi/ wachihada/ sungura/ repteme/ basi/ najoowa.

‘Lion and Hyena said: Rabbit has stopped, so he should be eaten (according to the agreement that they had all made not to stop).’

Ziwo/ zote/ zivaliko zijiila/ na rurumu. ‘All the books had been eaten by termites.’

ku-liisha v. caus. [Sw. lisha] (lishiize) feed

Mwaana/ mlshizee nfuye/ mazu/ ka farkeeta. ‘The child fed bananas to the monkey with a fork.’

ku-lishiliza v. caus. appl.

Farkeeta/ mwaana/ lishilizee nfuye/ mazu. ‘A fork, the child fed the monkey bananas with it.’ (MI preferred to topicalize the instrument in an instrumental applied, rather than having it occupy the IAV position: Mwaana/ lishilize farkeeta/ nfuye/ mazu. Topicalizing either of the other complements does not render the sentence well-formed if the instrument remains in the VP: Nfuye/ mwaana/ lishilize farkeeta/ mazu. Also: Mazu/ mwaana/ lishilize farkeeta/ nfuye. It is not clear the extent to which other speakers share this tendency to want the instrument to be old rather than new information.)

ku-lishoowa v. caus. pass.

Nfuye/ lishizaa mazu/ ka farkeeta/ na mwaana. ‘The monkey was fed bananas with a spoon by the child.’ (It is ungrammatical to make mazu the passive subject: Mazu/ zilishizaa nfuye/ ka farkeeta/ na mwaana. ‘Bananas were fed to the monkey with a spoon by the child.’)

rel. nom.

mu-ja (wa-) n. 1/2 [Sw. mla] one who eats, an eater

muja buure ‘someone who makes a practice of eating free food’

Mujaa mbele/ haaji/ numa. ‘One who eats first does not eat later.’ (A proverb.)

Mujaa mbuzi/ hulipa ngoombe. ‘The one who eats a goat repays a cow.’ (A proverb.)

mu-jo n. 3 the act of eating; eating, foods, things to eat, variety and abundance of food mujo uyu ‘this abundance and variety of food’

(W)uko mujo/ apo. ‘There is an abundance of food here.’ check

lengthening

wu-jo n. 14 the act of eating ku-ja

n. 9/10 (in origin, this noun is the infinitive verb ‘to eat’; however, now it is a [cl.9/10] noun without any certain internal morphological complexity) food

Ali/ jile chakuja cha Hamadi. ‘Ali ate Hamadi’s food (i.e. food intended for Hamadi).’

Ali/ jile chakuja cha Hamadi/ mpeeló. ‘Ali ate the food that Hamadi gave to him.’

Kuja/ ^hHamadi/ jiiól. ‘The food, (it is) Hamadi (who) ate it.’

Kuja/ ipozele/ ^hbardi/ kana/ barafu. ‘The food became as cold as ice.’

Kuja iyi/ lada. ‘This food is tasty.’

^hKuja/ mi/ njiól. ‘The food I ate it.’

Kuja/ ndimi/ njiól. ‘The food, it is me who ate it.’

Kuja/ (yaa) mi/ njiól/ iwozele. ‘The food that I ate was rotten.’

Kujaako/ huława nt^h akaani. ‘Your food [lit. your eating] comes from the garbage pile.’

Marti wiitu/ pishilee kuja. ‘Our guest cooked the food.’

Mi/ njilee kujá/ na waanawá. ‘I ate food with my children.’ (The corresponding simple yes-no question does not exhibit downstep intonation: Mi/ njilee kujá/ na waanawá?)

Mi/ njiólé/ kuja/ na waanawa. ‘I ate food with my children.’ (Focus/emphasis on the verb has the effect of preventing final accent from manifesting itself to the right of the verb. The corresponding yes-no question exhibits accent-shift on the out-of-focus complements: Mi/ njiólé/ kujá/ na waanawá?)

Nt^haku/ kuja/ numbaani. ‘There is no food in the house.’

Wo/ wajilee kuja/ na waanawo. ‘They ate food with their children.’ (The corresponding simple yes-no question exhibits no accent-shift, just the absence of downstep intonation: Wo/ wajilee kuja/ na waanawo?)

Wo/ wajiile/ kuja/ na waanawo. ‘They ate food with their children.’ (In the corresponding simple yes-no question, there is accent shift in the final two phrases: Wo/ wajiile/ kujá/ na waanawó?)

rel.

mi-ku-ja n. 4 aug. (disparaging)

Haliima/ mp^hele mikuja/ miamooyi/ ^h(mi)bardi/ kana/ barafu. ‘Haliima gave me some food that was as cold as ice.’

Mikuja gani/ mp^hikiliiól/ we. ‘What kind of food have you cooked for me?’

Nakuletełowa mikuja ya kila lamna. ‘He was brought foods of every type.’

ch-aa-ku-ja (z-)

n. 7/8 food

Chakuja gani/ we/ nakhsuól. ‘Which food do you want?’

chakujaacha ‘my food’; zakujaaza ‘my foods’ (The lengthening of the final vowel of chaakuja in front of the possessive enclitic is of some interest. This lengthening is confined to monosyllabic and bisyllabic words whose syllables are light, i.e. CV, in shape. Chaakuja undergoes this lengthening because it is based on the noun kuja, which satisfies the required word shape.)

Mp^hishile chakuja cha Haliimá. ‘I cooked (lit. Haliima’s food) – i.e. I cooked food for Haliima to eat, I cooked food that Haliima was supposed to cook.’

Suufi/ jile chakuja cha Haliima. ‘Suufi ate (lit. Haliima’s food) – i.e. Suufi ate the food meant for Haliima, thus it was to her detriment.’

Suufi/ jile chakuja cha Hamadi/ mpeeló. ‘Suufi ate the food that Hamadi gave to him.’

Suufi/ mjilile Hamadi/ chaakuja. ‘Suufi ate Hamadi’s food (e.g. food intended for Hamadi and thus to his detriment).’

ja'	ideo. Hamadi/ hawa'ambili/ waanawe/ ja'/ nt^hawaná/ aǎabu. hamadi does not tell his children: stop, behave, they don't have dicipline.'
ku-ja'alá	v. [Ar. ja'ala "to create, bring about" W 127] (ja'alíile) will s.t. (of God) Mwajiitu/ ja'alílee we/ khpata maali. 'God willed for you to get money.' rel. ku-ja'(a)lila v. appl. [Sw. jalia SSED 147] Leelo/ ni jimaa nne/ na mwajiitú/ chichija'alilá/ arabiya/ ni keesho/ tu. 'Today is Tuesday, and if we are destined so by God, Wednesday is just tomorrow.' ku-ja'aloowa v. pass. (-ja'alíila) be destined rel. nom. ma-ja'(a)liwo n. fate, destiny
ku-ja'alá	v. [Ar. ja'ala "to think, believe" W 127] (ja'alíile) take notice of, pay attention to Hanja'ali. 'He ignores me.' laakini jaahili zote ha'ajali [st.] 'but the ignorant do not pay attention to all (these matters)' Mubliwe/ hamja'ali. 'Her husband does not pay attention to her.' Wanaaskoolá/ hawamja'ali/ ustaadi. 'The students don't pay attention to the teacher.'
	rel. ku-ja'alana v. rec. (ja'aleene) ku-ja'alíila v. appl. (ja'alíliile) rel. nom. m-ja'alá (wa-) n. 1/2 one who notices m-ja'alo n. 3 noticing ma-ja'alo n. 6 noticing
i-jaaba	n. [Ar. ijāba "response, fulfillment, granting of a request" W 145] answered du'a ijaaba 'an answered prayer'
i-jaaba	n. [Ar. ijāba "response, fulfillment, granting of a request" W 145] success mamala chiiza takhkosa ijaaba [st.] 'keep quiet about it otherwise you will miss success' Munt^hu uyu/ nt^haná/ ijaaba. 'This man never succeeds at anything.'
i-jabali (ma-)	n. 5/6 [Sw. jabali SSED 147; Ar. jabal W 111] mountain; rock ijabali iyi 'this rock' Ijabali yiimp^hi. 'Which mountain?' kharibu ya jabali 'near the mountain' majabali aya 'these rocks' Majabali yaamp^hi. 'Which mountains?' Mi/ na askarizá/ chondroshelé/ kendra ijabali Khaafu/ kubadilaa hawa. 'Me and my soldiers, we left to go to Mount Xaafu for a change of air.' Mi/ nnakeendrá/ khpaandra/ ijabali/ ije/ ikulu/ maayi/ hayaṭakudirka. 'Me, I am going to climb that big mountain, the water will not reach (me).' Si/ skaleent^hé/ ijabali Khaafu/ sku niingi. 'We stayed on the mountain Khaafu many days.' Wote/ wacheendra/ nt^hini ya majabali/ kulindra/ haṭaa nvula/ ishtiinda. 'All went under rocks to wait until the rain stopped.' Ye/ nambiile/ kuwa inyunyi/ ikulu/ itakhṭukulaa ngozi/ ka mlomowe/ itakhpandra naami/ ilu/ ya ijabali. 'He told me that a big bird would carry the animal skin in his beak and would go up with me' to the top of the mountain.’

- jabaari n. [Sw. jabari SSED 147; Ar. jabbār "omnipotent, of God" W 111] a name of God, the Almighty, the Omnipotent sultaani ni jabaari / jalla MALIKU 'L QAHAARI [st.] '(God) the ruler is almighty, exalted, the king who subdues all'
- jabaari (ma-) adj. [Sw. jabari SSED 147; Ar. jabbār "tyrant, oppressor" W 111, and verb jabara "to be haughty, to act strong" W 110] arrogant, cruel
We/ husuloowa/ khsiifa/ hukuuma/ hattá/ ichiwa hukuuma/ ni jabbaari/ ni ðaalimú. 'You are required to praise the government even if the government be tyrannical, unjust.' (Phon. We have not at present worked out the explanation for the final accent in the last two phrases in this example.)
- ku-jabira v. [Ar. jabara W 110] (jabiriile) console, cheer-up someone who is heart-broken Ile kumjabira khaatiri. 'He came to soothe his (bruised) ego.'
Maaluulu/ waliko chila/ na maamayé/ nt'akhaadira/ khfanya ayi/ chiint'u/ kumjabira. 'Maaluulu was crying and her mother could not do anything to console her.'
- jaddi n. [cf. Sw. jadi SSED 147; Ar. jadd W113] Arabicism (poetic) grandfather jaddi ya Hasaneeni 'grandfather of Hasan and Hussein' ni Mahadali ye asliye/ laakini maama jaddiye/ Ali Naðiri far'aye [st.] 'she (=Dada Masiti) is Mahadali by ancestry, but her mother's grandfather was a descendant of Ali Nadhiri' tuunzilo ilo ltuungu ni Ahmadi/ hunasabiloowa Marzuuqu ni jaddi [st.] \ 'that poem was composed by Ahmad, who took the nisba al-Marzuqi from his grandfather' yiiko Madiina qabriye/ muuyi wa Mtume jaddiye [st.] 'his tomb is in Medina, the town of his grandfather, the Prophet'
- ku-jadida v. [Ar. jadda W 113] (jadidiile) renew
- jadiidi adj. [Ar. jadid W 114] new; [fig.] young Izra'iili [...] humlata daharishiilo chilini / humtala muunt'u jadiidi samiini [st.] 'Izra'il [the angel of death] leaves the one who is sick in bed [and] takes a young, stout person'
- ku-jadila v. [Sw. jadili SSED 147; Ar. jadala W 115] (jadiliile) argue pointlessly
- jadwali n. [Sw. jedwali SSED 152; Ar. jadwal W 115] a chart or table in a book
- jaðba n. the state of being in a religious frenzy
- ku-jaðbata v. (cf. ku-jalbata below) [Som. jidboo, variant jilbo "to be in ecstasy, trance" DSI 342] (jaðbeete) be in a religious frenzy Yana/ masku/ ðikiri/ yaalikó/ ka Daada/ Masiiti/ ziyaraani/ want'u wont'e/ jaðbeete. 'Yesterday night there was praying at the Daada Masiita religious ceremony, everyone was in a religious frenzy.'
- rel. nom.
ma-jaðbato n. frenzy
Huseeni/ yana/ masku/ ziyaraani/ ka Shekh Khaasimu/ jaðbeete/ majaðbato/ masku mazima. 'Huseeni yesterday night got into a frenzy at the religious ceremony Sheekhi Khaasimu's all night.'
- jafa adj. uncouth hiizo Madiina ni jafa ni jaahili/ hija bila ziyaara siwo kaamili [st.] 'those who refuse to go to Medina are uncouth and ignorant/ without this visit the pilgrimage is not complete' jaaha n. [Sw. jaha SSED 147; Ar. jāh W 110] glory, greatness, honor, dignity, respect ka jaaha 'for the glory, sake of (used in prayers)'; because of' ka jaahaye 'because of him or her' ka jaahaye kamu wapeeto madaadi [st.] 'how many is it that have got blessing because of him (i.e. the Prophet)' kufa jaaha 'to die doing s.t. good, honorable, joyful' Omari/ waawaye/ file jaaha/ waanawe/ na wiikuluwé/ wont^he/ wawaliko haaðiri/ mukhtaaya ye/ chifó. 'Omari's dad died a good death, all his children and grandchildren were present when he was dying.'

Mwenye kiza jaaha/ humsaaliló/ ðulli. 'The one who refuses honor, what remains for him is humiliation.' (A proverb, with variants like those below.)
Mwenye kiza jaaha/ huwona ðulli. 'The one who refuses honor will be humiliated.' (A proverb.)
Mwenye maali/ ni mkulu/ haṭá/ ooji (or: mbooni, or mṭaana, or jaahili/ pete jaaha. 'A wealthy person is someone important; even (if he is an) ooji (or mbooni or mṭaana) – i.e. a member of a lower caste—or a fool he gets respect.' (An internet source cites this proverb with an apparent proper name Uurko substituted for ooji, etc. GM was unfamiliar with this version.)
Mwiza jaaha/ hupata ðulli. 'The one who refuses honor/dignity gets humiliation.' (A proverb.)
mooja ka jaaha ya Mtume shariifu/ safari ya hija faanya khafiifu [st.] 'O God, for the sake of the noble Prophet/ ease the journey to the pilgrimage'
rel.
jaahi [Ar. . jāh W 110] honor, dignity mwenye jaahi 'honorable, dignified' jahanamu n. [Sw. jahanum SSED 147; Ar. jahannam W 144] lit. one of the seven hells of Islamic religion lata kuhamata lata namiimu/ tiya jahanamu tiya jahiimu [st.] 'leave off backbiting, leave off slandering (people in their absence), be afraid of hell, be afraid of hell (two of the seven hells of Islam are mentioned here)' jahazi (ma-) n. 9/10,6 [cf. Ar. jahāz "outfit, gear" W 143] boat, vessel (Despite the long vowel in the second syllable of the Arabic source, we recorded a short vowel in the Chimiini word.)

Chishkiḷa/ ka jahaziini/ kendra muyiini. 'He disembarked from the dhow to go into town.'
Huseeni/ chiwapa rukhsa/ wo/ kuuya/ jahaziini. 'Huseeni gave permission for them to come on board.' (An example of the '(for) NP infinitive' sentential complement.)
Jahazi/ haydhakhaakhi/ bila lpepo. 'A boat does not move without wind.'
(A proverb.)
Jahazi/ hurasha lpepo. 'A dhow follows the wind.' (A proverb.)
Jahazi/ ichoondroka. 'The dhow set sail.'
jahazii nk^hulu 'a large boat/ large boats' jahazi ya kuweeti 'A large type of boat, with prow and stern having the same point shape. kuweeti refers presumably to Kuwait. Traditionally the Kuwaitis were great sailors and used to build boats on their dhows during their journey to East Africa. These smaller boats were later sold in the East African ports (providing additional profit to the crew).'
Naakhuḍa/ wachiwa wiingi/ jahazi/ huzaama. 'If the captains become many, the boat sinks.' (A proverb.) Variant form: Naakhuḍa/ wiingi/ huzaamisha jahazi. '(Too) many captains cause the boat to sink.'
Sultaani/ na waziiriwé/ wachiya/ washpandra jahaziini. 'The sultan and his minister came and boarded the ship.'
Wachishkiḷa/ ka jahaziini/ wacheendra/ sukhuuni. 'They disembarked from the dhow and went to the market.'

Walwaawo/ wachingila kaziini/ kulundra jahazi/ khsafirila. ‘Both of them began working, building a boat to sail in.’

Wamaliizopó/ wachuunganya/ sehe niingi/ washpakila jahaziini. ‘When they finished, they collected a lot of provisions and they loaded the boat.’

Washpakila jahaziini. ‘They loaded it on the boat.’

rel.

i-jahazi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

ijahazi ikulu ‘a large boat’

ijahazi imooyi ‘one boat’ mijahazi mikulu ‘large boats’

mijahazi miwili ‘two large boats’

Oloka/ faanya/ ijahazi/ ikulu/ mukhtaa we/ takumalizó/ mi/ nt^hakhupa/ amri/ ziingine. ‘Go, build a large dhow; when you have finished, I will give you another order.’

ku-jahida

v. work hard

Chijihada/ takhpata. ‘If you work had, you will get (what you want, good results, etc.)’

jahidaani nafsi kumeera zawaadi/ za nuumba ya jana ka mooja jawaadi [st.] ‘make an effort so that your soul may get the presents for the house of paradise, (at the place of) the generous God’

Muunt^hu/ chijahida/ kulaa chiint^hu/ hukhaadira/ khfaanya. ‘If someone works hard, he can do anything.’

ku-jahila

v. [Ar. jahila W 144] (jahiliile) be ignorant

jaahili (Ø, ma-)

adj. [Ar. jāhil W 144] ignorant

jaahili nt^haayo loomu [st.] ‘someone ignorant [of the rules] is not blamed’ ilmu ni nuuru jaahili ni booyi [st.] ‘knowledge is light, ignorance is worthless’

Kheeri/ aduwi aaqili/ kama mwenza jaahili. ‘Better a clever enemy than an ignorant friend.’ (A proverb.)

laakini jaahili hutosha laano [st.] ‘but an ignorant person thinks this a (fairy)tale’ munt^hu jaahili ‘an ignorant person’; cf. want^hu (ma)jaahili ‘ignorant people’; cf. chijint^hu chijaahili, zijint^hu zijaahili, ijint^hu ijaahili, mijint^hu mijaahili

Omari/ ni jaahili/ iize/ khadira kondrola chiina/ hatá/ chimooyi ‘Omari is ignorant, he is not able to read even one word.’

Wabli/ leelo/ hawapeendi/ wake majaahili. ‘Men today do not like ignorant women.’

rel.

u-jaahali n. 14 ignorance

Ilmu/ ni nuuru/ ujaahili/ ni miinza. ‘Knowledge is light, ignorance is darkness.’ (A proverb.)

ujahali wiingi ‘much ignorance’

ujahaliwa ‘my ignorance’

u-jaahli n. 14 ignorance

khatari zote khfaanya ka ujaahli [st.] ‘it is dangerous to do all (these things) in ignorance’

jahiimu

n. [Sw. jahim SSED 147; Ar. jaḥīm W 113] one of the seven hells of Islamic belief

Waant^hu/ hawamamini mojiitú/ makalo yaawo/ keesho/ ahkera/ ni jahiimu. ‘Those who do not believe in God, their residence tomorrow, in the life hereafter, is jahiimu.’

ku-jaaja

v. [cf. Som. cuncun "to itch", with reduplication of cun "to eat"; on this model, -jaaja could be a reduplication of -ja 'to eat' in Chimiini] (i-jajiile) itch Igozi/ ichikhujaaja/ gaguna. 'If (your) skin itches you, scratch it.'
Ipu/ inakunjaaja/ nt'ho. 'The abcess is itching me a lot.'
Maluungo/ yanakunjaaja. '(My) body is itching me.'

rel.

ku-jaajisha v. caus.

Mp^heele dawa/ mo/ injajishizo maluungó/ masku mazimayé. 'He gave me some medicine which caused me to itch the whole night.'
review

ku-jajishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-jajishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-jajoowa v. pass. (-jajiila)

Mi/ nakujajowa maluungó. 'I am itching, the body.' Or: Mi/ nakujajoowá/ maluungo.

Mi/ (n)nakujajoowá. 'I itch.'

rel. nom.

m-jaajo n. itching

Mi/ nayo mjaajó. 'I have itching.'

u-jaajo n. itching

kuleta ujaajo 'to cause itching'

Mazu/ hundretela ujaajo. 'Bananas cause me to itch.'

Masku/ silaali/ ka ujaajo. 'In the night I do not sleep because of itching.'

ku-jaajuusa

v. spy

kumjaajuusa 'to spy on him'

rel.

ku-jaajuusan(y)a v. rec.

Ameerika/ na Ruusiyá/ wanakujaajuusana. 'America and Russia are spying on one another.' Or: Ameerika/ nakujaajuusana/ na Ruusiya. 'America is spying reciprocally with Russia.'

ku-jajusanoowa v. rec. pass.

Siwo/ suura/ kujajusanoowa. 'It is not good to spy on another.'

ku-jajusoowa v. pass.

Siwo/ suura/ muunthu/ kujajusoowa. 'It is not good to spy on someone.'

jaajuusi

n. spy

jaaka

n. 9/10 [Eng. jacket] jacket, coat

jaka iyi 'this jacket' (cf. jaka izi 'these jackets')

Jaaka/ iyi/ Omari/ uziló? 'This jacket, did Omari buy it?' (This question expresses some doubt as to whether Omari did buy this particular jacket. It should be observed that Q-raising in this sentence does not raise Omari/ uziló to the same level as jaaka/ iyi, but there is not the strong downstepping associated with downstep intonation. An answer to this question does not necessarily mimic the word order. For example, one could respond: Ee/ Omari/ uzile/ jaaka/ iyi/ nafsiye. 'Yes, Omari did buy this jacket itself, i.e. this precise jacket.') jaka ya hariiri 'silk jacket' (cf. jaka za hariiri 'silk jackets')

Ka khisani/ Nureeni/ uzilo jaka iyó. 'Why did Nureeni buy that jacket?'

Nureeni/ uzile jaaka. 'Nureeni bought a jacket.'

Nureeni/ uzile jaka gani. 'Which jacket did Nureeni buy?'

^fNureeni/ uzilo jaka iyó. 'Nureeni bought that jacket.' Or: ^fNureeni/ uziló/ jaka iyo. 'Nureeni bought that jacket.' (It is clear that in both of these sentences, the focus on the pre-verbal Nureeni induces a shift of the verb to pseudo-relative clause form. Cf. the statements: Nureeni/ uzile jaka iyo and Nureeni/ uzile/ jaka iyo, where there is no focus on Nureeni. However, the second version of the sentence shows that it is also possible to have a secondary focus on the verb. The evidence that there is focus on the verb in ^fNureeni/ uziló/ jaka iyo comes from the fact that the final accent triggered by the pseudo-relative verb does not project past the verb to the complement. This is a case of what we call the Accentual Law of Focus. It is important to remember that pseudo-relative verb clauses are subject to ALF, while true relative clauses are not. In any case, we should note that both of the sentences shown at the beginning of this example can be pronounced as yes-no questions. For example, ^fNureeni/ uzilo jaka iyó? 'Did Nureeni buy that jacket?' differs from the statement in that the Q-Raising associated with simple yes-no questions eliminates the significant downstepping from the second phrase. In the example, ^fNureeni/ uziló/ jaka iyó? ‘Did Nureeni buy that jacket?’, the secondary focus on the verb triggers a shift of accent on the out-of-focus complement in the simple yes-no question, hence we get jaka iyo in the statement, but jaka iyó in the question. This discussion has sought to highlight the subtleties involved in Chimiini prosodic structure.)

^fNureeni/ uziló/ jaaka/ iyo. ‘Nureeni bought jacket, that one.’ (In this sentence, it seems that to some extent there is focus on the first three phrases, as indicated by the lack of a significant pitch drop between them. The only real pitch drop seems to affect iyó. That Nureeni is the primary focus is indicated by the fact that it triggers the pseudo-relative form of the verb. That uziló is focused is shown by the phrase break between it and the complement, as well as the fact that final accent from the verb does not project to that complement; this is predicted by the Accentual Law of Focus. That jaaka is focused to some extent is suggested by the phrasal separation between it and iyó, as well as the downstepping of iyó.)

Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ iyo itumbishiila ilú. ‘Nureeni bought a jacket, that one that was hung high up.’ (A sentence like Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ iyo is grammatical in Chimiini and puts some emphasis on iyó ‘that’, our consultant GM prefers for iyó to be expanded as in the sentence cited.)

Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ iyo/ iwaliko kharibu surwani ya Alí. ‘Nureeni bought a jacket, the one that was near Ali’s trousers.’

Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ yaa mi/ shpeendó. ‘Nureeni bought a jacket that I like.’

Nureeni/ vete jaaka. ‘Nureeni wore a jacket.’

Omari/ uzile jaaka/ iyo. ‘Omari bought that jacket.’ (In this pronunciation, there is emphasis on iyó. There is some lowering of jaaka, but we remain uncertain whether one should claim that normal downstep intonation prevails up to the point of the raising of iyó. If the focus is on jaaka and the iyó drops in pitch: ^fOmari/ uzile jaaka/ iyo. ‘Omari bought that jacket.’, the iyó seems incomplete; it wants some descriptive material to be added.)

Omari/ uzile/ jaaka/ iyo. ‘Omari bought that jacket.’ (In this pronunciation, the verb is focused and jaaka is downstepped, and iyó is even lower.)

Uzilepi/ Nureeni/ jaka iyo. ‘Where did Nureeni buy that jacket?’

rel.

chi-jaka (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. (disparaging use)

Chijaka gani/ icho. ‘What kind of chijaka is that (suggesting that it is a bad example of a jacket)?’ (Cf. Zijaka gani/ izo. ‘What sort of zijaka are those ones?’)

jalaada

n. 9/10 [Sw. jalada SSED 147; cf. Ar. verb jalada “to bind a book” W 130] cover (of a book)

Baana/ atile chibuuku/ jalaada. ‘Baana tore the book cover (i.e. the cover of the book).’

Baana/ atile jalaada/ chibuuku. ‘Baana tore cover the book.’ (The word order in this example is one that naturally involves the presence of focus on jalaada. This can be seen from the simple yes-no question, where the out-of-focus possessor undergoes accent-shift: Baana/ atile jalaada/ chibuukú?)

Baana/ atile jalada/ ya chibuuku. ‘Baana tore the cover of the book.’ Or:

Baana/ atile jalada ya chibuuku.

chibuuku/ na jalaada ‘a book and a cover’; zibuuku/ na jalaada ‘books and covers’ chibuuku/ na jalaadayé ‘a book and its cover’; zibuuku/ na jalaadazé ‘books and their covers’ khtila jalaada ‘to bind a book’

rel.

i-jalaada (ma-) n. 5/6 ibid.

jalaata

n. [Ital. gelato] ice cream

Jalaata/ inakudhaayika. ‘The ice cream is melting.’

ku-jalбата

v. (see kujaḍбата) [Som. jilboo, variant of jidboo “to be in ecstasy, in a trance” DSI 342] (jalbeete) be in a religious frenzy

ku-jalida

v. [Ar. jalada “to whip” W 130] (jalidille) whip s.o. for religious sins variant form: kujelida (jelidiile)

- jalla adj. [Ar. jalla W 128] great, exalted; often used in set phrase: jalla/ jalaaluhu or jalla jalaali
jalla ađiimu shaani [st.] 'Exalted and Sublime' Mojiitu/ jalla/ jalaaluhu/ kilaa chiintu/ hukhaadira/ khfaanya/chisuḷa chiintu/ ni kun/ fayakuun. 'God the highest and with majesty can do whatever he wants, if he wants something, it is be and it becomes.'
- jaḷsa n. [cf. Sw. jilisi v. "sit down" and majilisi "n. a reception room, place for conversation" SSED 155; cf. Ar. jalasa "to sit down" W 130] meeting Leelo/ ka resdentē/ hafisaani/ yiko jaḷsa/ ya wazeele/ inakhkoḷeḷowa amaani/ ya muuyi. 'Today at the D.C.'s office there is an elder's meeting, the security of the town is being discussed.'
- jalaali adj. [Sw. jalali SSED 147; Ar. verb jalla "to be lofty, exalted" W 128] an attribute of God (the Glorious one) Jalla/ jalaali/ ni mojiitu. 'The highest and most majestic is God.'
- i-jali n. 5/6 [cf. Som. gal "sheath" DSI 250 and Tunni verb jal "to enter" Tosco 220] sheath Mnakata/ tomelee chisu/ ijaliini/ mdurilile mwiizi. 'The bush guy took out a pocket knife and stabbed the thief.'
- jaaliya n. community, a group of people sharing certain characteristics Chita/ cha jaaliya/ ya wantu wa Mwiini/ Mombasa/ waliko ni Doktoro Mustafa. 'The head of the Brava community in Mombasa was Doctor Mustafa.'
- jaama'a(ma-) n. 9/10 [Sw. jamaa SSED 148; Ar. jami'a W 136] university variant form: jaami'a
Amina/ umo simista/ ya taano/ jaami'a. 'Amine is in the fifth semester at the university.'
jama'a yaa ye/ koḷelo ka tarafuyé 'the university that he spoke about' (cf. Ye/ koḷele ka tarafu ya jaama'a. 'He spoke about the university.')
- Munt^hu simemo kharibu yaa ndila/ ni mwanafunzi wa jaama'a. 'The man who was standing near the road is a student of the university.'
- jamaa'a n. [Sw. jamaa SSED 148; Ar. jamā'a W 135] family -- people of the same ancestry; a member of people gathered together, company khsala jamaa'a 'to pray, say prayers in a group (congregation)'
Ndo/ we/ na mukeewó/ na waanawó/ ma jamaa'a/ wotte/ waa we/ uko naawó. 'Come, you, and your wife, and your children, and all company that you are with.'
Yapisile miyaka miingi/ nt^hangú/ Captain Robert Falcon/ pamó/ na jamaa'aye/ wafilo kaa ndalá/ na ta'abú/ karkaa wo/ wanakurudo ka Qutbiya Kusiini. 'There have passed many years since Captain Robert Falcon together with his company died from hunger and hardship while returning from the South Pole.'
- u-jamaa'a n. 14 relationship
- jamaala n. 10 [Sw. jamala SSED 148; Ar. jamāl W 137] beauty, handsomeness
Ka paapo/ nyunyi/ zigidishile/ ziweele/ wake/ wa wamaadamu/ wenye jamaala/ sho kuwonekana/ karka duniya. 'Then the birds changed, they became human women, of beauty not seen in the world.'

Laakini/ ye/ chisimika qalbiye/ chimwaambila/ ewe/ mwanamke suura/ mwenye jamaala/ nakhuloombá/ kumbejele raaði. ‘But he ([lit.] held up his heart) retained his courage and said: O you, beautiful girl, possessing beauty, I beg you to forgive me.’

Mbene kuwa muke uyú/ ni mweema/ na nazo jamaala. ‘I have seen that this woman is good and beautiful.’ (Phon. The accent pattern that we recorded here indicates that there is focus on muke uyu, thus blocking the projection of final accent from the first person singular past tense verb mbene... to the end of the complement clause.)

Sheekhi nakeendra jamaala/ janna hushowati loowa [st.] ‘the Sheikh is going to a beautiful place, in heaven everybody is dressed with elegance’

Ye/ wele mujaana/ mwenye suura/ na jamaalá. ‘He became a young man possessing goodness and handsomeness.’

rel.

u-jamaala n. 14 beauty

ya taatu Yuusufu ka ujamaala [st.] in the third [heaven] Joseph with [his] beauty’

Jamaame n. a town in the southern region of Somalia; one of the ethnic groups well-represented in this town is the Biyomaal/Biamal, a Dir clan; in Chimiini, this clan is referred to as Biimaali and a derivative of the word appears in the name of one of the Brava mosques: muskiti wa Malim Biimaalo ‘Malim Biimaalo’s mosque

i-jaambi (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw, jamvi SSED 149] floor matting, made of leaves stronger than those used in making the m-sala mat, though the leaves are from the same shrub; ijaambi is a much larger mat than msala and is used to cover the whole or a large part of the floor of a room to have people sit on it (e.g. visitors or members of the family when eating); a smaller mat, isharafa, was then placed on the ijaambi and the dishes with the different foods would be placed on it (The Chijini pronunciation of this word is instructive: [mbi’ij^a]. Recall that in Chijini, the final syllable of a word is preposed to the beginning of the word. The Chijini pronunciation supports the analysis of mbi as a syllable and mb as a prenasalized consonant that forms the onset of this syllable. Also, observe that when mbi is located in front of the initial syllable of ijaambi, a glottal stop is inserted between mbi and i. This suggests that, although the juxtaposition of two vowels often yields a long vowel in Chimiini, the default principle is that a glottal stop is used to separate juxtaposed vowels. This glottal stop insertion can be observed in several places in the ordinary language.)

Husuka misala/ na majaambi. ‘They weave misala and majaambi mats.’

ijambi itaka ‘a dirty mat’; majambi mataka ‘dirty mats’

Ijaambi/ itaka. ‘The mat is dirty.’ Cf. Majaambi/ mataka. ‘The mats are dirty.’

ijambi itaka/ ya mwiskiti ‘the dirty mat of the mosque’; majambi mataka/ ya miskiti ‘the dirty mats of the mosques’

Kula zilaatu/ nakhpaka matotoopé/ ijambiini. ‘Take off (your) shoes, you are getting (lit. applying) mud on the floor mat.’

rel.

chi-jaambi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

l-jaambi (mi-) n. 11/4 aug.

i-jambiya n. 5/6 [Sw, jambia SSED 148; Pers.] a curved, broad-bladed dagger

Baaba/ oyo/ chimulila mwaanawe/ farasi/ ijambiya/ na lpaanga. ‘That father bought a horse, a dagger, and a sword for his son.’

Mwanaamke/ uyu/ waliko tilaa kati/ na wajaana/ watatu/ na kila mubjaana/ shishile ijambiya/ mkonooni/ ondreele/ kumbigila mwanaamke/ uyu. ‘This girl was surrounded (lit. put in the middle) by three young men and each young man held a dagger in his hand, raised up to strike this girl.’

Ye/ apo/ mfunzile farasiwe/ chimaliza/ shuumba/ iboholi/ shtila lpaangale/ na ijambiyayé/ chimaliza/ iboholi/ chi’izuumbiza.

‘He there tied up his horse, and then dug a hole, and put his sword and dagger in [the hole], and then the hole, he covered it with earth.’

jamhuuri n. [Sw. jamhuri SSED 149; Ar. jumhūr "general public" and jumhūrīya "republic" W 138] republic, public

Iyi/ ni raadiyo/ isho wenewe/ ya jamhuuri/ ya wajaā nāma/ za waant̃u. 'This is the Free Radio (lit. radio without owners) of the Republic of the Cannibals (lit. eaters of the meat of people).'

Leelo/ fijiri/ sa'aa nt̃atu/ ra'iisi/ ya jamhuuri/ ondroshela/ ka ariplāano/ khaasá/ koloka Deema/ muuyi/ mkulu/ wa jamhuuri/ ya Barafu. 'Today in the morning at nine (lit. three) o'clock, the president of the republic took off in his private airplane to go to Deema, the capital city of the republic of Biafra.'

Oko/ Deema/ ra'iisi/ wa jamhuuri/ takudirkamana/ na ra'iisi/ wa Barafu/ na wakulu wa nt̃i iyó. 'There at Deema the president of the republic will meet with the president of Biafra and the officials in that country.'

ku-jami'a v. [Sw. jamii SSED 149; cf. Ar. jimā "sexual intercourse" W 136] (jami'iile) have sexual intercourse (a politer term than kh-toomba)

rel.

ku-jami'ana v. rec. (-jami'eene) have sexual intercourse

Fardoosa/ nkhashifilee mi/ nakujaribo kaa nguvú/ Haliimá/ kujami'ana naami. 'Fardoosa discovered me trying to force Haluwa to have sex with me.'

Muunt̃u/ chijami'ana na mukeewe/ diini/ ya Islaamu/ huhada/ laazima/ kowa janaaba. 'When a man has intercourse with his wife, the religion of Islam says that it is necessary for him to wash janaaba, shower from head to toe.'

Omari/ jami'ene na mukeewe. 'Omari had intercourse with his wife.'

ku-jami'isha v. caus.

ku-jamila v. [cf. Ar. jamīl "friendly act, courtesy" W 137] (jamiliile) be cordial, courteous to a guest, providing him with all that he could ask for (This lexical item is unknown to Gelani Mohamed.)

rel.

ku-jamilila v. appl.

rel. nom.

u-jamilo n. 14

jamīli [Ar. jamīl W 137] nice, good (Restricted in its use to poetry apparently and in the poetry the nature of the final vowel of the words according to the verse requirements.)

Abađe Faṭīma msiife jamiila* [st.] 'Fatima, praise her nicely'

ila wafarama sabri jamiili* [st.] 'except those who persuade others to be patient nicely'

chi-jamu (zi-)

n. 7/8 [etymology unknown] plate

chijamu cha ma'adini 'metal plate' chijamu chaa nt̃upa 'a glass plate'

chijamu cha palastika 'plastic plate'

Chijamu/ chivundishile. 'The plate broke.'

chijamu cha mpuunga 'a plate of rice' chijamu cha santuuri 'phonograph record'

chijamu cha chaayi 'saucer' chijamu chigoli 'hollowed out plate for soup' chijamu chiliishe 'a flat plate' kosha kijamu 'to wash a plate'

Nuuru/ vuzile zijamu. 'Nuuru broke the plates.' Or: Nuuru/ vuuzile/ zijamu.

Nuuru/ vuzile zijamu/ za Faṭīma/ uziló. 'Nuuru broke the plates that Faatima bought.' (Phon. Postposing the subject of the relative clause seems possible, albeit less preferred: Nuuru/ vuzile)

	zijamu/ uzilo Faatimá.) Shtila chaakuja/ karka zijamu statu/ chijamu chimooyi/ cha mwaanawe/ chimooyi/ cha mubliwe/ naayé/ na chijamu cha taatú/ tile makooko/ na chita chaa nsi/ kumpa mwana wa mubliwe. ‘She put food on three plates – one for her child, one for her husband and her, and on the third one, she put the crust of the rice and a fish-head for her husband’s child.’ Zijamu/ za Faatima/ uziló/ stumikili. ‘The plates that Faatima bought, I will not use.’ Or: Zijamu uzilo Faatimá/ stumikili.
jana	n. 9 [Ar. janna W 138] heaven, paradise variant form: janna ama janaani ow adabu takhkala [st.] ‘either you will dwell in heaven or in hell’ humtilo muunt^hu karka janaani/ mooja hadiilo karka qur’aani [st.] ‘he is the one who put man in paradise, God (himself) said so in the Quran’ kingila janaani ‘to enter heaven’ masku ya mi’raaji tila jannaani [st.] ‘on the night of ascension, he [Mohammad] was put in heaven’ mlango waa jana or mlango wa janna ‘the door to paradise’ muunt^hu mtii’ilo humtila jannaani [st.] ‘the man who obeys [God], [God] puts him in heaven’ na niya saafi khutila jannaani [st.] ‘and pure intentions will take you to Paradise’ ndila ya janna ‘the road to heaven’ Wanakaambila/ kuwaa wo/ walwaawo/ na ahliwó/ wotte/ wamo karka janna. ‘They are telling you that they both and your relatives all are in heaven.’
i-janawanziiri	n. [lit.] son of the minister – a largish grey fish so named because it looks healthy and well-fed; it is not commonly eaten in Brava
ku-jana	v. (cf. ja) (-jeene) gossip [lit. eat one another]
janaaba	n. [Sw. janaba SSED 150; Ar. janāba "major ritual impurity" W 139] the period of time of being ritually unclean (between the time of having sexual intercourse, e.g., and showering to ritually clean oneself) kowa janaaba ‘to wash after sexual intercourse, ejaculation (as prescribed by Islam) to achieve ritual purity’ kowowa janaaba ‘to be washed etc.’ janaaba nt^hasa fjiri kowoowa [st.] ‘before morning, the ritual cleaning should be washed’ Muunt^hu/ chivanayo janaabu/ laazimu/ kowa janaaba/ nt^hasa ya khfanya ismu/ ya ibaada. ‘When one has janaaba he must take a shower/bathe for janaaba before he does any activity related to worship.’ Nayo janaaba. ‘He is ritually impure.’ We/ nayo janaabá. ‘You are ritually unclean (e.g. said to someone known to carouse with prostitutes etc.).’
ku-jaanana	v. (-janeene) rub against the other, wearing out Nguwo/ ichiwa shiiri/ wakhti miingi/ ichiza kufuloowa/ hujaanana/ hatukahaatuka. ‘Cloth, if dirty for a long time and is not washed, gets worn out.’ Skaarpa/ za Hasani/ zalimo makhazinaani/ wakhti miingi/ hatá/ zijaneene. ‘Hasani’s shoes were in the store for a long time, until they got worn out.’
janaastika	n. exercise

Janaastika/ ni daruuri/ ya afiya. ‘Exercise is essential to good health.’
Ni manfa’a/ khfanya janaastika/ niingi. ‘It is useful to get a lot of exercise.’

janaaza

n. [Sw. jeneza SSED 152; Ar. janāza "bier; funeral procession" W 141] a bedstead (or other wooden frame) used as a bier on which a corpse is carried to burial; funeral khtomola janaaza ‘to take the corpse from the funeral bier’ kurasha janaaza ‘to follow the bier’

Mayti/ chimaliza koshoowa/ huzubowa kafani/ hutukuḷoowa/ ka janaaza/ hupelekowa muskitiini/ khsaliloowa. ‘After the corpse is washed, it is wrapped in a shroud, and carried on a bier to the mosque to be prayed for.’

Mayti/ hutukuḷowa ka janaaza. ‘The dead body is carried on a bier.’

Mi/ nhisize mahazuuni/ kugafa janaaza. ‘I felt sad about missing the funeral.’

sala ya janaaza ‘funeral prayer’

Leelo/ muskitiini/ shpiindri/ yiko sala ya janaaza/ Omari/ maamaye/ fiiló/ takhsaliloowa. ‘Today at the mosque there are funeral prayers; Omari’s mother died, she will be prayed for.’

Waant^hu/ hinendraa mbele/ ya janaaza/ ichiwa mayti/ ni munt^hu mzima/ sababu/ huhadoowa/ kuwa waant^hu/ hupitaa mbele/ kumsomela mayti/ du’a/ kumnombela mojiitu/ kum’aafu. ‘People walk in front of the funeral bier if the dead person is an adult, the reason is said to be that people walk in front to pray for the dead person to be forgiven (his sins).’

m-jaanja (wa-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mjanja "impostor, rogue" SSED 150] an extrovert, an exuberant outgoing person; a clever, tricky person

Abunawaasi/ ni muunt^hu/ mjaanja/ nt^ho/ na khadiriile/ mara niingi/ kumkhada’a sulṭaani. ‘Abunawaasi is a very tricky person and he had been able many times to deceive the sultan.’

muke mjaanja ‘a cheating woman (i.e. said of a woman who is having an affair and manages not to be detected)’

rel.

i-jaanja (mi-) n. 5/4 an eloquent, glib individual u-jaanja n. 14 eloquence, glibness, exuberance, boisterousness, extroversion

Karkaa wo/ wanaakujó/ mwanaamke/ uyu/ shfanya ujaanja/ na pashpo/ Fikiriini/ kuwoná/ shtila/ iyii dawa/ chakujaani. ‘While they were eating, this girl used female tricks and without Fikiriini seeing, she put this medicine in the food.’

jannatul firdoosa

n. one of the highest levels of paradise

Jannatul firdoosa/ ni mooyi/ karka janna/ nk^hulu/ hiingiló/ ni mitume/ na waant^hu/ moomini/ wafanyizo zeemá/ duniyaani. ‘Jannatul firdoosa is one of highest levels of paradise, it is prophets and those with greatest level of faith and good deeds in this world who enter jannatul firdoosa.’

januubi

[Ar. janūb W 139] Arabicism south (This item, used in opposition to shimaali ‘north’, is an Arabicism which is understood in Brava because it is used in some specific contexts (e.g. when indicating in a document the boundaries or measurements of a plot of land or of a building. The Chimiini ‘north’ are kuusi and kaskaazi respectively.)

terms for ‘south’ and i-jaanvula

n. rainbow (lit. the thing that eats the rain)

Huhadoowa/ ijaanvula/ chilawa/ nvula/ hureebaṭa. ‘It is said that when a rainbow appears, rain stops.’

jara

n. a kind of game similar to dominos

jara ya boodo ‘[lit.] jara of fleas – the game of jara’

Nakhtezaa jara. ‘He is playing jara.’

i-jaara

n. 5 [Ar. ijār W 5] fee, fare, rent, wage (occasional rather than regular)

- ijaraa gari ‘fare’
ijara ya nuumba ‘house rent’
Ijaara/ ya waana/ hutomoló/ siwo/ chiint^hu/ cha ma’ana. ‘The fee that children pay is next to nothing [lit. has no significance].’
Laazima/ chizide ijara ya nuumba. ‘It is necessary that we increase the rent of the house (apartment, etc.).’
pashpo khuuza/ ajri/ amó/ ijaará ‘without asking you for a reward or a salary’
- jaraadi n. [Ar. jarād W 119] locust waaya watakuwa kama jaraadi [st.] ‘human beings will be like locusts [in the hereafter]’
- i-jaraha (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. jeraha SSED 153; cf. Ar. verb jaraha "to wound" and noun jurh, pl. jurāh W 119] wound Huteko ijarahá/ ni munt^hu nt^hana ijarahá. ‘The one who laughs at a wound is the one who does not have a wound.’ (A proverb.)
Ingilopo mtanaani/ chimwona mwaanawe/ ilu yaa chili/ na dul’edá/ ukoo nt^hi/ fiile/ ka majaraha/ yaa noka mkomeezó. ‘When he entered the room, he saw his child on the bed and the fox on the floor, dead from the wounds that the snake had caused [lit. made reach him].’
karka khalbi ijaraha kump^hoza üze [st.] ‘you refused to heal the wound in my heart’ kudara ijaraha ‘to touch a wound – i.e. to aggravate, annoy, irritate someone by mentioning a matter that he will not like’
Nt^haku fiiló/ laakini/ waant^hu/ huziidó/ ikumi na siṭa/ iwadirshile/ majahara. ‘No one died, but more than sixteen people have been wounded.’
- rel.
chi-jaraha (zi-) n. dim. 7/8
Chint^hu shpiya/ hupeendeza/ haṭá/ shchiwa chijarahá. ‘A new thing pleases even if it is a wound.’ (A proverb.)
l-jaraha (mi-) n. aug. 11/4 a large wound
- i-jarwali (ma-) n. a mountain
Ijarwali yiimp^hi. ‘Which mountain?’
Majarwali yaamp^hi. ‘Which mountains?’
kharibu ya ijarwali ‘near the mountain’
- jardiina n. [Ital. giardino] garden, park Ba’adi yaa mi/ khpika/ na jardiiná/ hulangaḷa. ‘Apart from doing the cooking I look after the garden.’
jardina iyi ‘this garden’; jardina izi ‘these gardens’
Nuumba/ za jardiina/ zont^he/ zuziiza. ‘All the houses with gardens have been sold.’
 Or: Nuumba/ zont^he/ za jardiina/ zuziiza.
- i-jarfa (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. jarife SSED 151, from Ar. verb jarafa "carry off or carry along" W 120] fishing net, fixed to buoys and placed in deep water overnight Ijarfa yiimp^hi. ‘Which net?’
Majarfa yaamp^hi. ‘Which nets?’
Nsi izi/ skomelopo kharibu ya Huseeni/ mooyi/ chimwaambila/ Huseeni/ mi/ ni nsi uje waa we/ mpeto ijarfá/ chimaliza/ we/ mrudilo bahariini. ‘When these fish arrived near Huseeni, one of them said: Huseeni, I am the fish that you caught in a net and then you let it return to the sea.’

ku-jaariba

v. [Sw. jaribu SSED 151; Ar. jariba W 118] (jaribiile) try, attempt, test, feel out Chijaribiilé. 'We tried.'

Chijaribiilé/ si. 'We tried.' (The subject pronoun following the verb is radically lowered in pitch.)

Chijaribiilé/ si/ kumala kaazi. 'We tried to finish the work.'

Chimwaambila/ mtaale/ oloka/ mjaaribe. 'He told him: take him, go and try him out.'

Hasani/ jaribiile. 'Hasani tried.' Or: Jaribiile/ Hasani. (A postposed subject, as in the latter example, typically shows a strong reduction in pitch level.)

Hasani/ jaribile khfanya gaariye. 'Hasani tried to fix his truck.' Or with verb focus: Hasani/ jaribiile/ khfanya gaariye.

Hasani/ jaribiile/ ye/ khfanya gaariye. 'Hasani tried (he) to fix the car.' (GM considered it odd to wrap the ye into the preceding phrase: ?Hasani/ jaribilee ye/ khfanya gaariye. This oddness perhaps is connected to the presence of the =ye enclitic on gaari.)

Jaribaa nguwo. 'Try the clothes on!'

Jaribile kooweja. 'He tried to swim.'

Khaje/ jaribile khfaanyani. 'What did Khaje try to do?' (A possible answer: Ye/ jaribile khfanya ghishi/ karka imtihaani. 'He tried to cheat on the examination.')

Kujaariba/ ziwo/ mbovu. 'To try is not bad.' (A proverb.)

Mi/ nch^hihada/ kheeri/ jaariba. 'I said: [it is] best, test it [the truth of the second warning he had been given].'

Mi/ njaribile khfanya gaariya. 'I tried to fix my truck.' But with verb focus: Mi/ njaribiilé/ khfanya gaariya. 'I tried to fix my truck.' (Note that the presence of focus on the verb bars the final accent associated with the first person verb from projecting onto the infinitival complement.)

Mi/ nt^hakujaariba/ jawabu ya piili. 'I will test the second warning [that my father gave me before dying].'

Njaribiilé. 'I have tried.' Cf. Njaribiilé/ mi. 'I have tried.' Cf. Mi/ njaribiilé. 'I have tried.' But with focus on subject: Mi/ njaribiiló. 'I have tried.' (This last sentence is a possible answer to the question: who has tried?)

Njaribilee mi. 'He tried me,' (Note that this sentence has a null [cl.1] SM and a first person singular OM. The pronominal object mi is redundant, but serves to put emphasis on the object. The accent pattern is, of course, a bit obscured. A [cl.1] SM demands default penult accent. However, when the last word is monosyllabic, it bears the accent and there is no difference between penult and ultimate accent. The accent on mi also shows that the pronominal object is not an enclitic to the verb. If it were, then the default penult accent would fall on the syllable preceding mi: *[njaribiilée=mi].)

Njaribiilé/ mi/ khfanya gaari. 'I tried to fix the car.' (It is questionable whether the pronoun might be wrapped into the same phrase as the main verb: ?Njaribilee mi/ khfanya gaari.)

Omari/ ijaribiile/ gaari/ ki'ifaanya (or: khfaanya). 'Omari the car he tried to repair (it).' Also: Omari/ ki'ifaanya/ gaari/ jaribiile. Or: Omari/ ki'ifanya (or: khfanya gaari/ jaribiile.)

Sijaribeení. 'You (pl.) don't try!' (Phon. and morph. The enclitic element ni indicates a plural second person subject in both the affirmative and negative imperative. This enclitic element induces the lengthening of the preceding vowel. Observe that we write this enclitic as part of the same word as the imperative verb. The Chijini form of a word like sijaribeení is interesting in that it supports the proposition that the ni is part of the word, but it also shows that the speaker recognizes it is not actually the last syllable in the word. Recall the core principle of Chijini. Take the last syllable of the word and bring it to the beginning. The Chijini form of sijaribeení is [benisijár¹]. This form illustrates the loss of vowel length, the imposition of penult accent, and the devoicing or weakening of the final vowel. But more critical for our present purposes, we see that be is treated as the final syllable and moved to the beginning of the word, but the enclitic ni is dragged along as well!)

Wanaskoolá/ wajaribile khteza mpiira. 'The students tried to play ball.' Or with verb focus: Wanaskoolá/ wajaribiile/ khteza mpiira. (The pronoun wo may appear as the subject of the infinitival complement: Wanaskoolá/ wajaribiile/ wo/ khteza mpiira. 'The students tried they to play ball.' Note that in this usage the pronoun is not wrapped into a phrase with the preceding main verb. It does not seem acceptable to say ?Wanaskoolá/ wajaribilee wo/ khteza mpiira.)

Wanaskoolá/ wo/ wajaribiile/ khteza mpiira. 'The students, they, tried to play ball.' Or: Wo/ wanaskoolá/ wajaribiile/ khteza mpiira. 'They, the students, tried to play ball.' (Note that the pronominal wo may co-occur with wanaskoolá in either order.)

rel.

ku-jaribika v. p/s.

Hajaribiki. 'He cannot be felt out, tested etc.'

- ku-jaribila* v. appl. (jaribiliile) try with; for Njaribiliile gaari. ‘He checked out the car for me.’
- ku-jaribilana* v. appl. rec.
ku-jaribisha v. caus. (jaribishiize)
Mjaribishize muunt^{bu}/ nguwo. ‘He persuaded the man to try on clothes.’
Mjaribishize mwaana/ nguwo. ‘He helped the child try on clothes.’
Nimwambilopo kuwaa mi/ nakhtamaná/ Ali njaribishize khpanda farasi. ‘When I told him that I longed to, Ali permitted me to ride his horse.’
- ku-jaribishan(y)a* v. caus. rec.
ku-jaribishika v. caus. p/s.
ku-jaribishiliza v. caus. appl.
Mjaribishilize mwaana/ kooweja. ‘He helped the child try to swim for him.’
ku-jaribishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.
ku-jariboowa v. pass. (jaribiila) (of s.t.) being tried Gaari/ ijaribiila khfanyoowa. ‘The car was tried to be repaired.’ Or:
Ijaribiila khfanyoowa/ gaari. Or: Ijaribiila/ gaari/ khfanyoowa.
- rel. nom.
m-jaariba (wa-) n. 1/2 one who tries m-jaaribo n. 3
ma-jaaribo n. 6 experiment, trial variant form: ma-jaaribu n. 6
u-jaaribo n. 14
- jarida* (Ø, ma-) n. [Ar. jarīda W 119] (not as commonly used as jornaale, but can be used) newspaper Ali/ kilaa fijiri/ husoma jariida. ‘Every morning Ali reads the newspaper.’
Zamaani/ Mkhodiishu/ schilawa jariida/ ka shṭalyaani. ‘During old times in Mogadisho, news paper used to come out in Italian.’
- Jarmani* n. [cf. Sw. jeremani (ma-) "a German"] Germany Mumathili wa Jarmani/ simeeme. ‘The representative of Germany stood up.’
wilaya ya Jarmani ‘the country of the Germans’
- rel.
m-jarmani (wa-) n. 1/2 a German
- jarsi* n. 9/10 [Ar. jaras W 120] bell
Skoḷaani/ sa’a za kingiloowa/ na kuḷawoowá/ hubigowa jarsi. ‘At school the hour of entering and leaving is rung.’
- rel.
chi-jarsi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
Si/ laazima/ kumfuunga/ mp^haka/ chijarsi/ shingooni. ‘We must tie on the cat a small bell around his neck.’
i-jarsi (mi-) n. 5.4 aug.
Si/ shṭakhkasa ijarsi. ‘We will hear the bell.’
- jasadi* n. [Ar. jasad W 125] body tahira kulla ḍambi/ ya jasadi na qalbi [st.] ‘cleanse every sin of (=from our) body and heart’ uso kama binaadamu na jasadi [st.] ‘his face like that of a human being and his chest’
- jasi* n. no etymo found roof
Jasi/ iburbushile. ‘The roof collapsed.’
Jasi/ inakuvuuya. ‘The roof is leaking.’
Jasi/ ivuyiile. ‘The roof leaked.’
jasi yaa mbawo ‘a wooden roof’ jasi ya nuumba ‘the roof of the house’
jasi yaa shuwu ‘a concrete roof’

Mp^haka/ uko jasiini. ‘A cat is on the roof.’ Also: Jasiini/ uko mp^haka. ‘On the roof there is a cat.’
Nakhfinika jasi nuuma. ‘He is covering the house with strong roofing.’

ku-jaasira

v. [Sw. jasiri SSED 151; Ar jasara W 125] (jasiriile) dare, venture, have courage Jasirileeyi/ kingila m^tanaani/ kaaka/ bilaa we/ kunuuzaa. ‘How dare you go into my room without asking me?’

Karka majlisi ayo/ nt^haku/ jasirilo khkoo^oá. ‘In that meeting there was no one who dared to speak.’

Sijasireeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t venture to do it!’

rel. nom.

m-jaasira (wa-) n. 1/2 one who dares

u-jaasiro n. 14 the act of daring

ku-jaasuusa

v. [Sw. jasisi SSED 151; cf. Ar. noun jāsūs "spy" W 125] spy

rel.

ku-jaasuusana v. rec. (Note the retention of the vowel length in the first stem syllable violates a general phonological principle; retention here is perhaps keyed to the fact that the second stem syllable is in a position that legitimately retains its length.)

ku-jasusiliza v. appl. (Note the loss of vowel length in both stem syllables since both vowels are in positions where length is not allowed.)

rel. nom.

m-jaasuusi (ma-) adj. [Sw. (m)jasusi SSED 151]

munt^hu jaasuusi (or: mjaasuusi) ‘a spy’

u-jaasuusi n. 14 [Sw. ujasusi SSED 151]

jaati

n. narcotic green leaves which are chewed, esp. popular when people gather to chat, discuss issues etc., also called khaati or qaati kuja jaati ‘to chew [lit. eat] jaati – the verb tafuna is not used in reference to chewing jaati’

jawaabu

n. 9/10 [Sw. jawabu SSED 151; Ar. jawāb W 145] solution, an answer to a question; an affair, matter, event; a thing, anything; words, advice

Bakayle/ chimwambila ndiwa/ nimtambiile/ muunt^hu/ khambilo jawabu izi/ nii dafa. ‘The hare told the pigeon: I recognize that the one who told you about these matters is the kite.’

Chihada/ iyo/ ni jawaabu/ sahalii/ tu. ‘She said: that is an easy matter just.’

Chiwa^oihishiliizá/ jawaabu/ zote. ‘All [these] matters were explained to us [lit. we were explained all these matters].’

Hamadi/ kambilowa jawabu iyo/ ulushile/ degeele. ‘Hamadi, to be told that news, he jumped up and down.’

Hatá/ ichiwa jawabu izo/ ni jawaabu/ za wanaafakhi. ‘Even if those words are lies.’

Isikhulawe/ jawaabu/ ka kanaani. ‘Let not a word come out of your mouth!’

Jawabu gani. ‘What matter?’

Jawabu/ izi/ nza wanaafakhi. ‘These words are lies.’

jawabu ya duniya hiingila humala [nt.] ‘the matters of this world ebb and flow’

Jawaabuze/ mbovuu mbovu. ‘His deeds are evil.’

khinda jawaabu ‘to make [lit. cut] a decision’

Jawabu/ isa/ tizileni/ wè. ‘What’s your decision now?’ (Phon.

In this example, the pronoun we is clearly not accented. It is examples such as this that demonstrate the possibility of a monosyllabic pronoun being in a phrase of its own, but without an accent.)

Kilaa jawaabu/ inayo ndilaye. [H’H] ‘Each issue has its reason.’ (A proverb that conveys the idea that people say or do something for a reason.) (We did not observe the strong downstep ordinarily found between a subject and the PP initiated by the verb. This may be a characteristic associated with the verb na 'have'.)

Mi/ ndimí/ nímṭamaniiló/ na nsulíloo ye/ khfanya jawabuu mbovú. 'It is me who longed for him and wanted him to commit bad acts.'

Mi/ ndrashize jawaabuzé/ nuzize ghaalí. 'I followed his advice and I sold dear.'

Muunt^hu/ ambíla jawaabu/ naawo. [H!H!H] 'The man was told things by them.'

Mwiingine/ chihada ja/ kuḅloowa/ siwo/ suura/ ni muna yíitu/ nalangaloowa/ jawaabu/ mweepe/ yiingine. 'Another one said: No, (for him) to be killed is not good, he is our younger brother, he should be dealt with in some other way [lit. he should be seen some other solution].'

Nazo jawaabú/ nt^hatu/ nakhsulo khaambilá. 'I have three things that I wish to tell you.' need to confirm that "nthatu" will have default accent here

Ni/ hanpeendi/ ba/ khkasa jawaabú. 'You (pl.) do not want to listen to anything at all.' what is the explanation for the final accent here?

Sfaanyé/ jawaabu. 'Don't do a thing!'

Sihadé/ jawaabu. 'Don't say a thing!'

Siná/ jawaabu. 'I have no objection.'

Siwo/ jawabuu nk^hulu. 'It is not a big thing.'

Sultaani/ chimwuzá Huseeni/ ndo/ mwaanawe/ ni líla/ jawabu izí? 'The sultan asked Huseeni: come, my son, are they true, these things (that are being said)?' (The accent shift observed in jawabu izí is due to the fact that this is a yes-no question; in yes-no questions phrases that are out of focus undergo shift of the accent to the final syllable.)

Wamwambile muunt^hu/ jawaabu. [H!H] 'They spoke to the man about the matter.' Or: Muunt^hu/ wamwambile jawaabu. [H!H]

Waawé/ mi/ nakhambila jawabu za lílá. 'Father, I am going to tell you words of truth.'

Ziwalikooyi/ jawabu ziiinu/ mukhtaá ni/ nimsulílo Yuusufú. 'What was the matter with you (pl.) when you wanted Yuusufu?'

jawaadi adj. [Ar. jawād W 146] generous (an attribute of God)

jahidaani nafsi kumeera zawaadi/ za nuumba ya jana ka mooja jawaadi [st.] 'make an effort so that your soul may get the presents for the house of paradise, (at the place of) the generous God'

ku-jaaza v. [Sw. jaza, jazi SED 152; Ar. jazā W 124] (jaziize) reward, compensate; mistreat; provide s.o. with less than he needs

Mjazize mwaana. 'He mistreated the child.'

Mwajiitu/ nakhujaza. 'May God pay you back.' (A kind of curse to someone who has done wrong: may God repay you for the wrong that you have done.)

Mwajiitu/ nakhujaza kheeri. 'May God reward you with blessing.'

rel.

ku-jaazana v. rec. requite one another ku-jaziliza v. appl. (jaziliize)

jazaari adj. ungrateful

Alí/ ni jazaari/ haalipi/ ihsaani. 'Ali is ungrateful; he does not repay favors (done for him).'

jazaari n. butcher, one who slaughters animals as a profession (cf. mṭinda hoola)

Sheekhi/ amiyé/ Hasani/ ni jazaari/ huzaa nama/ sukhuuni. 'Sheikh's uncle Hasani is a butcher, he sells meat at the market.'

- ma-jaazi n. test, hardship (from God)
Majaazi/ nda mojiitu. 'Tests are from God.'
Omari/ hadiile/ iyi/ ni majaazi/ mojiitu/ chileteleejó/ mwaanawa/ ba/ chiza khkasa koodi. 'Omari said this is test/hardship that God brought us, my child not to listen any thing (I say).'
- jaziira (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Ar. jazīra W 123] island Fijiri/ shtete baṭera yīitú/ chenzele jaziirá/ yīingine. 'In the morning we took our boat and we went to another island.'
jaziraa mbili 'two islands' jaziraa nkʰulu 'a big island'
Jaziraani/ shpete matuundrá/ chijiilé/ na maayí/ chineelé. 'On the island we found fruits; we ate, and water, we drank.'
Laakini/ ye/ ntʰakuwona/ jaziira/ yenyee sifa/ izo. 'But he did not see an island having that description.'
majazira mawili 'two islands'
Mudda/ wa skuu mbili/ walimo bahariini/ sku ya taatu/ shkoma karka jaziira/ mooyi. 'For a period of two days he was in the sea, on the third day he reached an island.'
Shfunga safari/ chisaafira/ chisaafira/ mpaka/ shkoma jaziira/ yaa ne. 'He set off on a journey, he traveled and traveled until he reached a fourth island.'
Sku mooyi/ wachiwona jaziira/ muke/ ka khalbiini/ kaake/ chihada/ ni kheeri/ mi/ nishkile apa/ mbahe/ siwonowa teena. 'One day they saw an island; the wife, in her mind, said: it is better for me to disembark here and be lost, not to be seen ever again.'
Wachinʰukula/ haṭá/ shchikoma/ jaziira/ mooyi/ yenyee miti/ miingi. 'They carried me until we reached an island having many trees.'
Washkoma jaziira/ mahala/ ya mkuulé/ shiishilá. 'They reached an island, the place where his old brother was kept.'
rel.
i-jaziira (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- ma-jðuumu inv. adj. leprous muntʰu majðuumu 'leper'
wantʰu majðuumu 'lepers'I demonstrative
- =je
awaje [cl.2] position III demonstrative ayaje [cl.4]
ayaje [cl.6]
ichije [cl.7]
ilije [cl.11]
iyije [cl.5]
iyije [cl.9]
izije [cl.8]
izije [cl.10]
uwuje [cl.3]
uwuje 'cl.14]
uyuje [cl.1]
- jeega [cf. Som. jeegaxiir "haircut" DSI 341] hair cut Haliima/ peshele waanawe/ jegaani/ nakuwatinda jeega/ mashuungi/ yawayeele.
'Haliima took her children to a barbershop to cut their hair, their hair was lit. filling them, i.e. they had too much hair, it needed to be cut.'
khṭinda jeega 'to get one's hair cut'
- jeneraale n. general
Jeneraale/ koḏeele? [HH] 'Did the general speak?'
Jeneraale/ ni garaada/ nkʰulu/ ya militaare. 'General is a high rank in the military.’

Karka waant^hu/ wa Miini/ garaada/ ya jeneraale/ komeeló/ ni Sa'id Mariina. ‘Among the people of Brava, the rank of general, the one who reached it is Said Mariina.’ (Note that “Mariina” is a nickname for the man who was admiral of the navy during the reign of Said Barre.)

ku-jenjeena

v. [no etymological source yet found] (jenjeneele) groan, lament

Mwanaashke/ jenjenele ka ulaazo/ muda dakhtari/ mdarilo mkono unamlaazó. ‘The girl groaned in pain when the doctor touch the injured arm.’

Omari/ chiwonoowa/ nakujenjeena/ tu. ‘Whenever Omari is seen, he is always [just] lamenting, complaining about someone or something.’

Want^hu wiingi/ wajenjeeló. ‘It is too many people who have lamented.’

rel.

ku-jenjeenoowa v. pass. (jenjeneela)

Ijenjeneela/ niingi. ‘There was a lot of lamenting.’

jenjeeni

n. groan, sound of agony, lament

Kalaant^ha/ liindra/ mowti/ utakhiilila/ bilaa utuungu/ na jenjeeni. ‘Sit, wait, death will come to you without pain or groans.’

Omari/ jenjeenize/ niingi. ‘Omari is full of too many laments.’

ku-jera

v. [Som. jar DSI 338] (jereele) cut meat in to long strips to dry for preservation and then to cut these strips into small pieces

rel.

ku-jerela v. appl. (jereelele)

chisu cga kujerelelaa nama ‘a knife with which to cut into strips’ ku-jeera

v. [Sw. jera cited by Sac 185 as occurring in the Kigunya dialect, which is geographically closest to Brava] (jereele) be ashamed, be timid, shy

Hujeera/ zaaydi/ yaa muke. ‘He is more shy than a woman.’

Jaahili/ ha'isi/ kujeera/ na'iwaa nguvu. ‘The ignorant person does not know being timid, he knows force.’ (A proverb.)

Jerele kuwaa ye/ tulushile imtihaani. ‘He was embarrassed that he failed the examination.’

Jereeló/ khatiiile. ‘The one who is ashamed goes without food.’ (A proverb.)

Kana ijiiló/ hujeeró. ‘The mouth that has eaten is the one that feels ashamed (i.e. those who have gotten something are the ones who feel ashamed, etc.).’ (Translation of a Somali proverb.)

kujeera/ kanaa muke ‘to be as timid, shy as a woman’

Haaji/ mahaala wako want^hu wiingi/ hujeera/ khkooða/ kanaa muke. ‘Haaji, when at a place where there are many people, is shy to speak, like a woman.’

kujera waant^hu ‘to be timid, afraid of people’

Muhtaaji/ hajeeri. ‘The needy person does not feel shame.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ daniye/ hajeeri. ‘A person is not ashamed because of his need/ best interests/objectives.’ (A proverb.)

Mzeele/ chijeera. ‘The old man was embarrassed.’

sina uso wa khiilila mi nakujeera [song] ‘I have no face to come to you, I am ashamed’

Wake/ husulowa kujeera/ Hamadi/ hujeera/ kanaa muke. ‘It is women who should be shy (modest, non-assertive, etc.), Hamadi is timid, like a woman.’

rel.

ku-jeeranoowa v.

wake na wabli nt'aku kujeranoowa [nt.] ‘women and men [together], without being ashamed’ (Note: In the traditional world of Brava, the gathering together of unrelated men and women was absolutely exceptional.)

ku-jeersha v. (jersheeze) shame, disgrace someone (We should note that the expression kujera waant^hu ‘to be timid, afraid of people’ can not be transformed into a causative construction:

- Baazi mjersheze mwaana/ waant^hu. ‘Bazi made the child timid.’
Baazi/ mjersheze mwaana/ mbele za waant^hu (or: ka waant^hu). ‘Baazi embarrassed the child in front of people.’
Saalimu/ njersheze/ karka waant^hu. ‘Saalimu disgraced me among people.’ Or: Njershezo karka waant^hu/ ni Saalimu. ‘The one who shamed me among people is Saalimu.’
ku-jersheleza v. caus. appl. (jersheleeze) ku-jershoowa v. pass. (jersheeza) Njersheza na Saalimú. ‘I was shamed, disgraced by Saalimu.’
rel. nom.
u-jeero n. 14
- jereere n. people of Bantu origin, regarded as of lower status in Somali society; adj. curly, kinky (hair), of the type associated with the Bantu ethnic group mashungi majereere ‘curly hair’
Omari/ ni mjereere. ‘Omari is a person of Bantu origin.’
Tuuma/ mashungiye/ majereere. ‘Tuuma’s hair is curly.’ Or: Mashungi ya Tuuma/ majereere.
Tuuma/ mukeewa/ mashungiye/ majereere. ‘Tuuma my wife has curly hair.’ Or: Tuuma/ mukeewa/ majereere/ nashungiye. ‘Tuuma my wife is curly her hair.’
- jeeri n. [Som. jeer DSI 341] hippopotamus Hamadi/ mwene jeeri/ wowiini. ‘Hamadi saw a hippo in the river.’
jeri uyu ‘this hippo’ or jeri iyi ‘this hippo’; jeri awa ‘these hippos’ or jeri izi ‘these hippos’ Mchimbile jeeri. ‘He ran away from the hippo.’
rel.
chi-jeeri (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-jeeri (mi-) n. 5/4
Ijeeri/ kuvundavunda waant^hu. ‘A hippo crushes (lit. breaks-breaks) people (i.e. it does not eat people).’
Omari/ inene/ kana ijeeri. ‘Omari is fat like a hippo.’
- jeermi n. germs
Muunt^hu/ chosha zoombo/ suura/ kuvala khufu za mikono/ kuhafiða mikono/ na jeermi. ‘When one is washing things, it is good to wear gloves to keep the hands safe from germs.’
- jeeshi (ma-) n. 9/10,6 [Sw. jeshi SSED 153; Ar. jaiš W 150] army Apo/ zamaani/ Abunawaasi/ waaliko/ ni mkulu/ wa majeeshi/ ya sulṭaani/ Harun Rashiidi. ‘Once upon a time, Abunawaasi was the head of the armies of the sultan, Haruun Rashiidi.’
Chingila ndrani ya majeeshi. ‘He entered in the middle of the armies.’
jeshi iyi ‘this army’; jeshi izi or majeshi awa ‘these armies’ Jeeshi/ zotte/ zimlasile chinume/ ka khisa mp^huundra/ hakhaadiri/ khshindamana/ na farasi/ ka mafakato/ walá/ khshindamaná/ na baghalí. ‘All the armies left him behind because a donkey cannot compete with a horse in running, nor can it compete with a mule.’
- jeza n. [Sw. jazua, kezwa, jizya SSED 152; Ar. jazā W 124] compensation, reward Ali/ mpele maamaye/ ifungu iyo/ kumlipa jezaye/ na walá/ ha’isi/ kuwaa ye/ mriðidhiize/ maamaye/ ka kumpa mali ayo. ‘Ali gave his mother that portion [of his wealth] to repay her [for her care in bringing him up], but he does not know whether he pleased his mother by giving her this money.’
Alí/ ni jazaari/ haalipi/ jeza. ‘Ali is ungrateful; he does not repay favors (done for him).’
khtilaa jeza ‘to do a favor; to disappoint s.o. (by failing to do s.t. that was expected of one)’

na mkulu waawo Mhamadi shtilo jeza [st.] ‘and the greatest (prophet) of them is Mohammad, who did us favors’

- Kula muunt^hu/ pete jezaye/ apo. ‘Each man received his recompense there.’
- Mazá/ isa/ nini/ jeza/ ya muunt^hu/ itakhpatowa kaaké/ ikopa iyó. ‘So now what is the compensation (punishment) for the man who this cup was found with him?’ (Observe that the final accent of the relative clause extends through ikopa iyo, the postposed subject of the relative verb.)
- Mi/ hutosha/ kuwaa mi/ hutasawara/ kuda’aa jeza/ yaa mi/ nimkha’ishizoo ye/ kichisaydaa si. ‘I think I may claim the credit (lit. reward) for having convinced him to help us.’
- Mi/ nakhsuulá/ naa mi/ kambiloowa/ kuwaa mi/ nfanyize zeemá/ na kulipowa jezayá. ‘I want also to be told that I have done good things and to be rewarded for my services.’
- Mp^huundra/ nt^haná/ jeza. ‘A donkey does not have reward, recompense, favor.’
Variant: Jeza ya mp^huundra/ ni mashuzi. ‘The reward of a donkey (i.e. the reward that he gives) is farts.’ (A proverb.)
- Na kulipowa jezayá ‘and to be rewarded for my services’
- Nini/ jezaye. ‘What is his reward?’
- Nt^haná/ jeza/ ka moojé. ‘He has no reward from his master.’
- Si/ nt^hachiná/ jeza yaa si/ khulipa. ‘We do not have the compensation with which to repay you.’

jezaari (ma-)

- adj. [Som. jasaar, variant jisaar DSI 339] ungrateful; n. ingrate; var. jazaari kuwa jezaari ‘to be ungrateful, not remember a favor done for one’
Hamadi/ ni jezaari/ hakuumbuki/ ihsaani. ‘Hamadi is ungrateful, he does not remember a favor (done for him).’
- Wanaadamu/ ni majezaari/ mi/ huwapa iziwa/ huwapaa nama/ huwapaa ngozi/ yaa wo/ khfanya zilaatu/ kiineendrela. ‘Human beings are ungrateful. I [in the story, a cow is speaking] give them milk, I give them meat, I give them hides for them to make shows to walk with.’

ku-jiiba

- v. [Sw. jibu SSED 151; Ar. jāba W 145] (jibiile) answer, reply, retort, talk back (of a child when he has been rebuked by an elder)
- Abú/ nt^hakudhibika/ kujiba su’aali. ‘Abu had no difficulty in answering the question.’
- Chinjiiba/ takhuḷaṭa/ chiza kunjiiba/ iwá/ mi/ nakhilila kaa zitá. ‘If you answer me (in the context of the story: tell me which is the older goat and which is the younger), I will let you go; if you do not answer me, know, I am coming to you with war.’
- Hamadi/ kujiba su’aali/ nfilatiilé. ‘Hamadi to answer the question I expected.’
- Hamadi/ tu/ kujiba su’aali/ nfilatiiló. ‘Only Hamadi to answer the question I expected.’ But also without pseudo-relativization of the main verb: Hamadi/ tu/ kujiba su’aali/ nfilatiilé. ‘Only Hamadi to answer the question I expected.’
- Jibilee khati. ‘He replied to the letter.’
- Laakini/ mwanaamke/ chijiiba/ su’aali/ iyo/ muḅli oyo/ takhtindowa chitaache.
‘But if the daughter answers that question, that man will have his head cut off.’
- Muunt^hu/ chiviloowa/ hujiiba. ‘If someone is called, he responds.’ (A proverb.)
- Mwaana/ chimjiiba/ ka khisa karka chimwiini/ zimo jawaabu/ za chisoomaali/ za shṭalyaani/ za chingereenza/ za chaarabu/ za chihindi/ haṭá/ jawabu za majini/ zimo. ‘The child answered him, Because in Chimwiini there are words from Somali, from Italian, from English, from Arabic, from Hindi, even words of the djinns are in it.’
- Mwaana/ jibile su’aali. ‘The boy answered the question.’ (The initial element in a sentence with canonical downstep intonation, such as this one, is the pitch peak in the sentence. Even if the verb is focused, as in Maana/ jibiile/ su’aali., it is still the case that the initial element tends to be higher than the focused verb. The focused verb, of course, does not exhibit the type of downstep exhibited by canonical downstep intonation. It is possible to put emphasis on maana without this counting as focus. In our elicitation sessions, this emphasis involved higher pitch, but apparently also a small pause. But if this initial element is brought into focus, then the verb must shift to pseudo-relative form: ‘Mwaana/ jibilo su’aali. ‘The boy answered the question.’ It is even possible to also focus on the verb at the same time: ‘Mwaana/ jibiiló/ su’aali. ‘The boy answered the question.’ Notice that in pseudo-relativization, the Accentual Law of Focus holds, or at least may hold, as in this example.)

Mwaana/ jibile su’ali ya Omari. ‘The boy answered Omari’s question.’ (This sentence, where there is no internal focus in the verb phrase, could be used to respond to a question like: Mwaana/ jibile su’ali ya naani. ‘Whose question did the child answer.’ A less preferred answer to this question would be: Mwaana/ jibile Omari/ su’aaliye. ‘The child answered Omari, his question.’ The question Mwaana/ jibiileni. ‘The child answered what?’ could be answered by either Mwaana/ jibile su’ali ya Omari. or Mwaana/ jibile Omari/ su’aaliye.)

Mwaana/ jibile su’ali ya Omari? ‘Did the child answer Omari’s question?’ (A possible answer to this question would be: ā’ā/ jibile su’ali ya ‘Hamadi. ‘No, he answered Hamadi’s question.’ In this answer, Hamadi does not undergo downstep intonation. Another possible reply: ā’ā/ nthakujiiba/ su’ali ya Omari/ jibile su’ali ya ‘Hamadi. ‘No, he did not answer Omari’s question, he answered Hamadi’s question.’)

Mwaana/ jibiile/ su’ali ya Omari. ‘The boy answered Omari’s question.’ (The simple yes-no question corresponding to this sentence is: Mwaana/ jibiile/ su’ali ya Omari? ‘Did the child answer Omari’s question?’)

Mwaana/ jibilo su’aali/ ni Omari/ mweenzawe. ‘The boy who answered the question is Omari’s friend.’ (Internal focus in a relative clause does not induce application of the Accentual Law of Focus: Mwaana/ jibiiló/ su’aali/ ni Omari/ mweenzawe. ‘The boy who answered the question is Omari’s friend.’)

Mwaana/ chimjiiba/ ya kuwa khabari/ zaa ye/ leeseló/ siwo/ suura. ‘The child answered him that the news that he brought was not good.’

na kulla muuntthu mjibiilo takeendra/ khsimama Arafaati meezi keendra [st.] ‘and whoever answers his call will go and stand on mount Arafa on the ninth day’

Nimjibile mwaaná/ su’aaliyé. ‘I answered the child’s question [lit. the child his question].’

Nthaná/ adabu/ hujiba wantthu wazima. ‘He does not have good manners, he talks back to his elders.’

Omari/ namiwa/ mwaana/ jibilo su’aali. ‘Omari knows the boy who answered the question.’ (The main verb in this example, namiwa, is focused and thus phrasally separated from the following complement. Often in such a construction, the complement would be radically lowered in pitch. This is not the case in the present sentence. Perhaps this is due to the complex nature of the complement, but this matter requires further exploration.)

Sho kujiiba/ ni Baana/ Gaameele. ‘The one who does not answer is Bwaana Gaameel.’ (A proverbial saying.)

Simjibé/ muntthu mzima. ‘Don’t talk back to adults (i.e. when they have rebuked you).’

Wachimjiiba/ chimlātile wowiini. ‘They answered her: we have thrown him into the river.’

rel.

ku-jiibana v. rec. answer one another kujibana ka maṭaando ‘to exchange insults’

Sadiiqi/ na Haadi/ wajibene ka maṭaando. ‘Sadiiqi and Haadi exchanged insults.’ Also: Sadiiqi/ jibene na Haadi/ ka maṭaando. ‘Sadiiqi exchanged insults with Haadi.’

ku-jiibika v. p/s. able to be answered

Fulaani/ hajiibiki. ‘So-and-so cannot be answered (e.g. he talks so much that you cannot get in a word edgewise).’

Khaṭi ya Baana/ hayjiibiki. ‘Baana’s letter cannot be replied to (e.g. it is too vague or too illegible to read or he is making impossible requests).’

ku-jübila v. appl. (jibiüile) answer for Mjibilile teleefono. ‘He answered the telephone for him.’

Nimjibilile mwaaná/ su’aaliyé. ‘I answered for the child his question.’

Nt^haná/ chitta/ chaa ye/ kujibila su’ali iyi. ‘He has no brains with which to answer this question.’

ku-jibilana v. appl. rec. answer for kujibilanaa khati ‘to answer letters for one another’

ku-jübishia v. caus. make reply or make answer

Mjibishize ka makoondre. ‘He used punches to make him answer.’

Mjibishize su’ali ya mwaalimu/ muziizó. ‘He made him answer the question that the teacher asked him.’

ku-jibisha(n)ya v. caus. rec.

ku-jibishika v. caus. p/s.

Munt^hu uyu/ hajibishiki. ‘This man cannot be made to answer.’

ku-jibishiliza v. caus. appl.

ku-jibishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

ku-jiboowa v. pass. (jibiüla) be answered, replied

Chuuza/ sultaani/ oloshlepi/ chijiboowa/ sultaani/ oloshle miskiti waa jima/ khsala. ‘He asked: where did the sultan go? He was answered: the sultan went to the Friday mosque to pray.’

Khati ijibila na Aasha. ‘The letter was answered by Aasha.’

Komelopo apo numbaani/ bishile hoodi/ jibiüla/ naayé/ chingila ndraani. ‘When he reached the house, he asked for permission to enter, and he was answered, and he went inside.’

Nt^hakujiboowa. ‘There was no answer.’

rel. nom.

m-jüba (wa-) n. 1/2 one who replies chi-jübo (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. answer

m-jübo n. 3

ma-jübo n. 6 answer

Naayé/ majiibuye/ daa’ima/ yachiwa/ la/ niko yaayá/ tu. ‘And his answer was always no, I am still just as I was.’

Nt^hakuwanaayo/ majiibu/ miingine/ shokuwa aya. ‘He did not have any other answer than this.’

u-jübo n. 14

jibiso

n. [Som. jebiso DSI 340] python, a constrictor which squeezes to death; [jibiso] or [jiwiso]

fakataani oyo ni noka jiwiso / takichivuunda oyo mbavu zütu [st.] ‘run away, that one is a python, that one will break our ribs’ (Note that the poet is speaking of a person, therefore all agreements are of class 1.)

Ngoombe/ wa Hasani/ jibiso/ immiziizó. ‘Hasani’s cow, the python swallowed it.’

Jibriüli

n. Gabriel ambila Jibriüli mwoshe ka zamzamu [st.] ‘it was told to Gabriel that he should wash (the Prophet) with zamzam’ review 1

ma-jübu

n. 6 [Sw. jibu ma- (usu. in the plur.) answer, reply, retort, response” SSED 152] a reply to a letter or message, answer

Baana/ pete majiibu/ ka sarkaali. ‘Baana got a reply from the government.’

Kooði/ majiibuye/ ni kooði. ‘The answer to words is words.’ (A proverb.)

majibu aya ‘this reply, these replies’ majibu masuura ‘a good (i.e. favorable, positive) reply’ majibu mawovu ‘a bad (i.e. negative) reply’

Mi/ nnakhsuulá/ majiibu/ kaako. ‘I want your answer.’

Moojá/ nafaanya/ kuwa ni majibu masuura. ‘May God make the answer a favorable one.’

Mwaana/ shtomola majiibu/ ya shtandrawili/ icho/ jisa/ chizeele/ chimfahamishiizó. ‘The boy gave the answer to that riddle just as the old woman had made him understand it.’

Na mp^ha majiibu/ ka himma. ‘And give me the answer quickly!’

Nayo majiibu/ kump^há/ mp^hate nimpelkelé. ‘Do you have an answer to give me so that I can take it to him?’ review this question

Nt^hakhpata/ majiibu. ‘He did not get an answer.’

Su’aali/ iyo/ mi/ shtaambula/ chikhupa majiibuye/ we/ hump^hati/ na chiŋaachó/ shtakhtindoowa. ‘That question, if I figure it out and give you its answer, you will not get [to marry] me and your head will be cut off.’

We/ oloshela ka Ali/ kumera majiibú. ‘You went to Ali to seek answers.’

jidaari

n. [Ar. jīdār "wall" W 114] base, foundation

Jidari iyi/ itakhaadira/ khtukula zulungo statu. ‘This foundation will be able to support three stories.’

khtila jidaari ‘to lay a foundation’ kuweka jidaari ‘to lay a foundation’

Jidda

n. Jeddah

jiha

n. 9/10 [Ar. jīha W 1052] direction

Hamadi/ inenzelee jiha/ ya ndilaa nk^hulu. ‘Hamadi walked towards the main road.’

Jahazi/ bilaa naakhuḍa/ nt^ha’iná/ jiha. ‘A dhow without a captain has no direction.’ (A proverb.)

jiha ya chigure ‘to the left’

jiha ya chinume ‘backwards’

jiha ya ka’ba ‘in the direction that a Muslim prays’ jiha ya kibla ‘in the direction that a Muslim prays’ jiha ya khsala ‘in the direction that a Muslim prays’ jiha ya kubli ‘to the right’

jiha ya kusooto ‘to the left’

jiha yaa mbele ‘forwards’

jiha ya upotofu ‘in a winding, non-straight direction’ jiha ya skoola ‘in the direction of the school’

jiha ya suukhu ‘in the direction of the market’ kumbahaa jiha ‘for someone to lose direction – become confused, not know where he is’

Hamadi/ mbelee jiha/ mahala ye/ kulekela/ ha’isi. ‘Hamadi became confused/ lost direction, he did not know the direction to go.’

Jiha/ imbeele. ‘I became confused.’

Oloshela jiha iyi. ‘He went in this direction.’

Si/ chiloonzelé/ we/ kishpaa si/ jiha. ‘We begged that you give us guidance.’

Zeena/ nt^hanaayo/ jiha/ ya kurashoowa. ‘Zeena has no fixed principles that he follows (lit. Zeena has no direction of being followed).’

ku-jihaada

v. [Ar. jīhad W 142; the Mw. verb seems to be built on the Arabic nominal formation rather than the Arabic verb jahada W 142] fight for a religion, fight against infidels; struggle against one’s emotions etc. in order to control oneself; variant form: kujahida (regularly used in steenzi) kujihada nafsi ‘to struggle with one’s inner self’

Muunt^hu/ chisula chiint^hu/ laazimu/ kujihaada/ jisaa ye/ khpata. ‘When one wants something one must work hard so as to get it.’

Sijihadeeni. ‘You (pl.) don’t undertake jihaadi!’

jihaadi

n. a sacred war against infidels; spiritual struggling; trying hard, making effort

Diini/ ya Islaamu/ huhada/ jihaadi/ nk^hulu/ ni jihadi nafsi/ ni muunt^hu/ kujihada ruuhuye/ chiza khfaanya/ ismu/ ya chiint^hu/ chiwovu/ cha diini/ hiizó. ‘The religion of Islam says that the big struggle is one’s own’ struggle for a person to struggle not to do a bad action that religion forbids.’

Kilaa chiint^{bu}/ muunt^{bu}/ hupata/ ka jihaadi. ‘Everything one gets with trying hard.’

Khfanya kaazi/ ka jihaadi/ ni suura. ‘Working hard is useful.’

Mi/ n’akidile khfanyowa kaazi/ ka jihaadi. ‘I emphasized working hard.’

Mi/ nanzize khsoma ka jihaadi/ ba’adi yaa mi/ khpotela/ imtihani ya kaandra. ‘I began to study hard after I failed the first test.’

na kula muunt^hu enzelo jihaadi [st.] ‘and everyone who went on jihad’

ku-jika

v. (jikiile) force s.o. to do s.t. (This verb is an exception to the general principle that stem-final k will mutate to sh in forming the perfect stem.)

kumjika ‘to force him to do s.t.’

Mjike. ‘Push him; force him to do it!’

Omari/ waawe/ mjikiile/ kendra skoolā. ‘Omari’s father forced him to go to school.’

we jikiile ka khada’a nonyeeze ndila za miinza [song] ‘you subdued me with deceitfulness, you showed me the ways of darkness’

rel.

ku-jikoowa v. pass. be forced Waana/ sharti/ kujikoowa/ hatā/ wachija. ‘Children must be forced to eat [lit. until they eat].’

jikjiki

ideo. of being young, strong, fit, etc.

Hamadi/ mzele/ laakini/ chimona/ kana mubjaana/ jikjiki. ‘Hamadi is an old man, but if you see him, he is jikjiki like a young man.’

chi-jiiko (zi-)

n. 7/8 pipe

i-jiiko (mi-), (ma-)

n. 5/4,6 [Sw. jiko SSED 155] cooking stone (one of three forming a triangle, with the fire in the middle) ijiko ikulu ‘a large cooking stone’

Ijiko mooyi/ ha’ireebi/ chuungu. ‘One cooking stone does not support a pot.’ (A proverb) khpika ijikooni ‘to cook on a cooking stone’

rel.

mikoo=ni n. loc. in the kitchen

jilaali

n. [Som. jilaal DSI 344] dry season, corresponding to the winter months (December to March) (It is interesting that the first syllable of this word is long in Somai but is short in Chimiini. One might take this as evidence of the constraint against a long antepult vowel when the penult is long, but there are a significant number of loanwords in Chimiini that preserve successive long vowels in those two syllables.)

Gele/ ya jilaali/ nii dhibu/ khsoloowa/ ka sababu/ ni nuumu. ‘Maize of the dry season (which is kept and used during drought) is difficult to pound because it is hard.’

Jilaali/ zamani izi/ iwele niingi/ kilaa mwaaka/ inakurudaruuda. ‘Drought nowadays becomes more and more, every year it is coming back again and again.’

Mukhta mi/ mbaliko chihabā/ waawé/ chinaambila/ chiwa umo karka jilaali/ suuzé/ hayawaani/ huwaakopi/ ka khisa zote/ hugura kharibu yaa wowi/ kuwa kharibu ya maayi. ‘When I was a child, my father used to say to me: if you are in the dry season, don’t ask where the animals are, because all move near the river to be near water.’

Mwaka uyu/ Soomaaliya/ niingiye/ itulushile jilaali/ hoola/ niingi/ sfiiló. ‘This year most of Somalia experienced drought, many animals died.’

Jilibu

n. Jilib

Zamaani/ waant^{bu}/ wawanayo juḏaamú/ washfanyilizowaa dawa/ heraa/ni/ Jilibu.

‘During old times people with leprosy used to be treated at a camp in Jilib.’

i-jilibu (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Som. jilib DSI 345] knee ijilibu/ hudhiboowa/ ito/ hudhoroowa. ‘The knee is made to work hard, (but) an eye should be taken care of, protected, rested (i.e. the eye is of greater value than the knee and must be taken care of).’ (Translation of a Somali proverb.)

ijilibu/ khfuura ‘to swell (of) the knee’ ijilibu/ kulaaza ‘to have pain in the knees’ khkuta ijilibu ‘to bend the knees’

kubiga ijilibu ‘to sit down (lit. hit the knee)’

Bishile ijilibu. ‘He sat down.’

maraði ya ijilibu ‘ailments of the knees’

Mbishile ka ijilibu. ‘He hit him with the knee.’

jima

n. [Som. jamce, jimce, jimco DSI 338; cf. Ar. jum‘u W 135, Sw. ijumaa SSED 140] Friday; Friday’s prayer jimaa musu [Swahilism, used by MI] ‘Saturday -- the first day of the week’ jimaa nne ‘Tuesday -- the fourth day of the week’

jimaa piili ‘Sunday -- the second day of the week’

Omari/ nayo balani/ jimaa piili. ‘Omari has an appointment on Sunday.’

Shṭakuḷawa jimaa piili. ‘We will leave on Sunday.’

jimaa tatu ‘Monday -- the third day of the week’

Ka mfaano/ waana/ huzalowa munt^hi wa jimaa tatu/ hupowa ina ya Mhamadi/ amó/ Ahmadi/ amó/ Haamidi/ amó/ Mahmuudi/ amó/ ina yoyote ya mtume Mhamadi/ kama/ Mustafa/ Mukhtaari/ amó/ Akhyaari. ‘For example, children who are born on Monday are given the name Mhamadi or Ahmadi or Haamidi or Mahmuudi or another name of the prophet Mhamadi, such as Mustafa, Mukhtaari/ or Akhyaari.’

jimaa tatu na arkhamisi suura [st.] ‘Monday and Thursday [of any week] are good [days for fasting]’

Lapiili/ laa jima/ killa mooyi/ hi’iruudila/ mahala yaa ye/ hufanyo kaazi. ‘On Friday afternoon each one returns to the place where he works.’

Leelo/ jima/ maduka/ hayafunguloowi. ‘Today is Friday, shops are not open.’

mfumaa jima ‘Saturday’

Nguwo ya kaazima/ hayendreloowi/ jima. ‘One does not attend Friday prayers in borrowed clothes.’

Sultaani/ oloshale mwiskiti waa jima/ khsala. ‘The sultan went to the Friday mosque to pray.’

Tahara yaa jima/ nda arkhamiisi. ‘The ritual cleanliness for Friday prayer is from Thursday (i.e. you must prepare yourself in advance).’ (A proverb.)

How do you say Wednesday?

jime

n. peer, someone equal, someone similar; [jimé]

jimá ‘my peer’

jimó ‘your peer’

(Kila/) muunt^hu/ huteza naa jimé. ‘Every one plays with one like himself.’ (A proverb.)

Kilaa muunt^hu/ nayoo jimé. ‘Every one has his peer.’ (A proverb that conveys the idea that however good, strong, etc., you are, there is always someone just a sgood or strong or even more so.)

Mi naa we/ nii jimú. ‘Me and you are peers.’

Muunt^hu/ hushindramana naa jimé. ‘A person competes with his peer/ agemate/ someone with the same strength etc.’

ku-jimi’sata

v. [Som. jimico "stretch limbs" DSI 346] (jimi’sete) stretch one’s arms (from being tired, or giving vent to being sexually aroused)

jimla

n. [Ar. jumla W 137] wholesale; variant form: jumla

ka jimla ‘in total, wholesale’ Huza maali/ ka jimla. ‘He sells goods wholesale.’
thalaatha miya na ikumi ka jimla/ na wataatu sho kiiwa nt’anaayo mila [st.] ‘(there are) three hundred and ten (prophets) in total, plus three, the one who does not know this does not have religion, faith, etc.’

ku-jimlisha

v. caus. add up; alternative form: ku-jumlisha kujumlisha hisaabu ‘to add up the count’ kujumlisha zoombe/ zont^he ‘to add up all the things’ Zont^he/ jimlisha/ ni muhimu/ khsooma/ jisa khpita imtihaani. ‘In sum, it is important to study in order to pass an exam.’
 rel.
ku-jimlিশoowa v. caus. pass.
kujumlিশowa hisaabu ‘the count to be added up’

m-jiinga (wa-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. mjinga SSED 156] a foolish or stupid person Amá/ ni/ wanaadamu/ hanpuunguli/ kuwa mijiinga. ‘O, you humans, you are stupid [lit. you do not decrease to be stupid].’
khkooða/ kana mjiinga ‘to talk nonsense – lit. to speak like a foolish person’

i-jini (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. jinni SSED 156Som. jinn DSI 344; Ar. jinn W 138] djinn, ghost or spirit;
 an invisible creature, either good or bad Chilangaḷa/ mahaḷa/ sooti/ inakuḷawiló/ chimwona ijini. ‘He looked in the place where the voice was coming from, and he saw a djinn.’
Ijini/ inayo miirize. ‘The devil/madman has his wisdom/intelligence.’ (A proverb.)
Ijini/ munt^hu tiiló/ ndi ye/ huṭomoló. ‘The djinn, the one who brought him in, is the one who can take him out.’ (A proverb.) Or: Ijini/ munt^hu tiiló/huṭomoló.
Ijini/ yiko lamna niingi. ‘There are many types of madness.’ (A proverbial saying.) Ishfanyoowa/ jisa uje ijini/ hadiiló. ‘It was done (i.e. happened) just as that djinn had said (it would).’
khpata ijini ‘to become crazy’ khtila ijini ‘to drive crazy’ Nazaajá/ nakunt^hila ijini. ‘My mother-in-law is driving me crazy.’ Review final accent issue.

Mi/ siná/ ijini. ‘I am not crazy.’
Muunt^hu/ maashe/ haatiyi/ ijini. ‘The blind person never fears a spirit/ghost/djinn.’ (A proverb.)
Mwana uyu/ nayo ijini. ‘This child is crazy.’
Mwenye zijuumba/izo/ ni mzele simsimu/ na mahaḷaa ye/ hukaló/ wako majini/wiingi/ nt^ho. ‘The owner of these nests is the old Simsimu and the place where he lives, there are very many jinns.’
Nayo ijini. ‘He is crazy, insane -- [lit.] he has craziness, insanity.’
Nayo ijini/ maana/ we/ endrá/ endrá. ‘You are crazy, you child, go away! go away!’
Nayo ijini/ naawé/ siwo/ mzima/ we. ‘You have been possessed by a djinn and you are out of your mind [lit. and you are not whole], you.’
Nii muke/ wa majini/ naayó/ na waanawé. ‘It was a djinn woman, she, and her children.’
Nt’ana aqili/ nayo ijini. ‘The one who has no wits has craziness.’
Wachimjiiba/ si/ ni majini/ na uyú/ ni mwanaamke/ wa sultaani. ‘They answered him: we are djinns, and this one is the daughter of a sultan.’
We/ nayo ijini. ‘You are crazy!’
Wo/ ni wanashke/ wa sultaani/ wa majini. ‘They are the daughters of the sultan of the djinns.’

rel.

chi-jini n. the language of the majini: a secret language used by the want^hu wa Miini that involves moving the final syllable of a Chimiini word to the beginning of the word, reducing/devoicing the new word final vowel, shortening any long vowel, and assigning the word penult accent regardless of the original accent location.)

Chijini/ suwo/ lughā/ mbali. Ni Chimwiini/ tu/ shpoteelá/ khpata waant^hu/ wa'isi noo'i/ ya kođi izi/ wastaambuli/ na complete the passage

i-jiniile

adj. mad, crazy; n. a mad man

Koōđize/ kana ijiniile. 'His words are like (those of) a madman.'

jiinis

n. 9/10 [Eng. jeans] blue-jeans; variant form: jiinsi

Ali/ mulile mwaanawe/ surwaani/ ya jiinsi/ orijinaale. 'Ali bought for his son the original jeans.'

jiinis iyi 'these jeans'

Jinis izi/ nza Ali. 'These jeans belong to Ali.'

Nuuru/ vete jiinsi/ iriri/ imwaleene. 'Nuuru wore very narrow jeans, they were tight on him.'

Omari/ vete (surwani ya) jiinis. 'Omari wore jeans [trousers].'

shkoti cha jiinis 'a short denim jacket' (cf. skoti za jiinis 'denim jackets') surwani iyi/ ya jiinis 'these jeans trousers'

Surwani izi/ za jiinis/ nza Ali. 'These jeans trousers belong to Ali.'

Surwani za jiinis/ hazimali/ kahima. 'Jeans [trousers] do not wear out quickly.'

rel.
chi-jiinis (zi-) n. 7/8 dim. (disparaging use)

Chijinis gani/ icho. 'What kind of chijiinis are those (suggesting that they are not good jeans)?'

jinsi

n. [Sw. jinsi SSED 156; Ar.] sort, kind, nature

Kila/ mooyi/ huwona ziint^hu/ jinsi/ mba^hmbali. 'Each one sees things in a different way.'

Nini/ ni jinsi gani/ mp^hundra wa doobi/ chiza kuwa nayo mashkilo/ na khalbi?
'What is the nature of a washerman's donkey that it does not have ears and a heart?'

jiq

ideo.

Hawaayi/ maduuriye/ mishaka/ yabigileene/ jiq!/ gaari/ ha'ikhaadiri/ khpita.
'Hawaayi, its forest is thick, jiq!, a lorry cannot pass.'

jiiq

ideo. of squeaking (of s.t. unlubricated)

Milaango/ aya/ ni makavu/ yanaaku^hla/ jiiq jiiq/ yanakhsu^hla khpakowa garaaso.
'These doors are dry, they are crying jiiq jiiq, they need to have oil applied to them.'

Mnaango/ unaaku^hla/ jiiq jiiq. 'The door is squeaking.'

jiira

n. in the expression: kubiga jiira 'to turn around, make a turn' (although kh^htinda jiira is also used)

Ali/ mwambile Hasani/ chilawe chibiga jiira/ sukhuuni/ tawala. 'Ali told Hasani: let us go make a round at the market at the beach.'

Gaari/ ya Hamadi/ karka yaa yo/ inakubigo jiira/ sukhuuni/ imbishile muunt^hu.
'Hamadi's car while it was turning in the market hit someone.'

Mp^haamp^ha/ chibiga jiira/ kuruda mutiini. 'Shark turned around to return to the tree.'

jiraafu

n. giraffe

Mwiini/ maduriini/ zamaani/ wawaliko jiraafu/ laakini/ sku izi/ nt^hazaako/ ziguriile/ huhadoowa/ sababu/ ya nt^howa niingi. 'Brava in the bush in olden times there were giraffes, but these days there are not any, it is said that they moved away because of many droughts.'

rel.

i-jiraafu n. aug.
yile/ kamba ijiraafu ‘as tall as a giraffe’

jiraani (Ø, ma-)

n. [Sw. jirani SSED 157; Ar. jīrān, pl. of jār "neighbour" W 147] neighbor Choloka ka jiraaniye. ‘He went to his neighbor.’ (This example illustrates that in terms of the agreement on the possessive enclitic, jiraani is a [cl.9/10] noun.)

Jiraaniya/ nzuriile. ‘My neighbor visited me.’ (This example shows the singular noun jiraani triggering [cl.9] agreement on the possessive enclitic (the y in jiraaniya) but [cl.1] agreement on the verb (which is phonologically null).)

jiraaniza ‘my neighbors’, but also: majiraaniya ‘my neighbors’

Jiraaniza/ zinzuriile. ‘My neighbors visited me.’ Or: Majiraaniya yanzuriile. ‘My neighbors visited me.’

jirani izi ‘these neighbors’, but also: majirani awa ‘these neighbors’ jirani mbovu ‘bad neighbors’, but also: majirani mawovu ‘bad neighbors’ jirani msuura ‘a nice neighbor’ jirani mʋovu ‘a bad neighbor’ jirani suura ‘nice neighbors’, but also: majirani masuura ‘nice neighbors’ jirani ump^hi ‘which neighbor?’

jirani uyu ‘this neighbor’

jirani yaawo ‘their neighbor’

jirani zaawo ‘their neighbors’

jirani zümp^hi ‘which neighbors?’, but also: majirani waamp^hi ‘which neighbors?’

jiraniini ‘in the neighborhood’

karka jiraani ya mtume zikoowa [st.] ‘in the neighborhood of the Prophet he (i.e. Jesus) will be buried’

Majirani waane/ wa’ilo ka mamaye Hasiibú/ kazi yaawo/ iwaliko khtinda skunyi/ kuuza. ‘The four neighbors who came to Hasiibu’s mother, their work was to cut firewood and sell it.’ (The construction mamaye Hasiibu, as opposed to Hasiibu/ maamayee, was definitely a construction used by MI. However, our more recent work suggests that it is rejected by many speakers.)

Mooyi/ karka jiraanize/ waliko ni muunt^hu/ maskiini/ ka waana/ wiingi. ‘One among his neighbors was a poor man with many children.’

Ndiwé/ jiraaniyé. ‘It is you who is his neighbor.’

Sfurahilé/ dhibu/ impeto jiraaniwó. ‘Don’t be pleased with the misfortune that befalls your neighbor.’ (A proverb.)

Shpenda jiraani/ naawó/ wachimpendaa nt^ho. ‘She loved her neighbors and they loved her.’

Siwo/ mi/ jiraaniye. ‘I am not his neighbor.’

Sku mooyi/ jiraani/ wa’ile numbaani. ‘One day the neighbors came to his home.’ (Notice that the plural use of jiraani triggers [cl.2] subject agreement (wa) on the verb.)

Ye/ naayé/ ni waaliko/ ni jiraani/ ya Abunawaasi. ‘He was the neighbor of Abunawaasi.’

ku-jiirata

v. [Som. jiiro DSI 344] (jiirete) bear down, strain (as a woman in labor, a person defecating)

Mwaanawa/ hujiirata/ mudaa ye/ naakunyó. ‘My baby strains when he poops.’

Omari/ nayo yaabisi/ china/ sharti/ kujjirata. ‘Omari has constipation; when he defecates, he must push hard.’

jiridi

n. [Som. jirrid DSI 348] stump of tree, including roots khkula jiridi ‘to uproot, eradicate’

Muunt^hu/ muti/ shkuula/ husulowa khkulowa na jiridiyé/ chiizapó/ naank^hó/ hukora. ‘If one takes a tree out, it must be taken out with (lit. and) the root, otherwise it grows again.’

rel.
chi-jiridi (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-jiridi (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

jiiro

n. dysentery
mimba ya jiiro ‘dysentery’
Mwana wa Haliima/ nayo mimba ya jiiro/ nakunya maazi. ‘Haliima’s child has dysentery, he is defecating blood.’

jisa

conj. [Sw. jinsi SSED 156; Ar. jins W 141] as, so that, how Basi/ jisa/ khfaanya/ nt^haná. ‘So, how (what) to do, she did not know (lit. have).’
Faatiima/ jisaa ye/ nakuhadó/ Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ khsooma. ‘According (lit. how she says) to Faatima Hamiisi likes to read.’
Fungula mnaango/ jisa mwaana/ khpata kiiingila. ‘Open the door so that the child may enter.’
Hamiisi/ husooma/ niingi/ jisa waalimu/ kumpeenda. ‘Hamiisi reads a lot so that the teachers will like him.’
Hasani/ wenopo ngoombé/ jisaa zó/ niingi/ nt^hakhaadira/ kureba ruuhuye/ shfakata/ chiingila/ katikati ya ngoombe. ‘When Hasani saw the cows, how many there were, he could not stop himself, he ran and went in the middle of the cows.’
Jisa aadaye/ shfanya zaa ye/ hufaanyó/ kilaskú/ chimaliza/ shpandra farasiye/ chendra harbiini. ‘As was his custom, he did what does every day, then he mounted his horse and went to war.’
Jisa gani. ‘How?’ Or: Jisi gani.
jisa itaakuwó ‘however, anyway -- (lit.) the way it will become’
Jisa itaakuwó/ Hamadi/ siuwe/ yaa mi/ khaambiló. ‘Anyway, Hamadi should not know what I told you.’
Jisa itaakuwó/ mi/ nnakhtuhuma kuwa Nuurú/ oloshelé. ‘However, I suspect that Nuuru left.’ Jisa/ khfaanya/ nt^haku. ‘How to do it (tell the two poles apart) he could not (find a way).’

jisaa mbovu ‘very badly’

Nuuru/ tulushile/ halaweete/ jisaa mbovu. ‘Nuuru fell and hurt himself very badly.’

jisa suura ‘well, nicely, but used as a general intensifier; thoroughly, carefully, completely’ Fiitisha jisa suura. ‘Search carefully!’
Ja jisa suura. ‘Eat nicely!’
Kaäiioo/ impete jisa suura. ‘The fever really laid him low.’
Muke/ naayé/ huveshoowa/ nguwo/ nelpe/ naäiifa/ hotezoowa/ jisa suura. ‘The woman also will be dressed with new clothes, white, clean, [and] will be fumigated with incense thoroughly.’
Nfanyize chiint^hú/ jisa suura. ‘He did something verb well.’
Nfanyize kaazi/ jisa suura. ‘He worked very well.’
Siimba/ chiwa’egasha/ jisa suura. ‘Lion welcomed them nicely.’
Tuuma/ hupikaa zijo/ jisa suura/ hupikó. ‘Tuuma cooks zijo well, that’s what she does.’ Or: Tuuma/ hupikaa zijo/ hupikó/ jisa suura. ‘Tuuma cooks zijo, that’s what she does, well.’ Or: Tuuma/ hupika jisa suura/ zijo/ hupikó. ‘Tuuma cooks well zijo, that’s what she does.’
Ye/ bishile jisa suura/ paasi. ‘She ironed well.’ (Cf. Mi/ mbishile jisa suurá/ paasi. ‘I ironed well.’) jisaa we/ hupeendó ‘as you like’

jisaa wo/ hujó ‘the way they eat’

Jisaa ye/ fiiló/ nt^haku/ na’iw shokuwa du’edá/ waa ye/ mrashiizó/ masku mamoooyí. ‘How he died, there is no one who knows except the fox that he went with [lit. followed him] one night.’

jisaa ye/ hadiiló ‘as he said’
jisa mweepe ‘somehow, in one way or the other’ Jisaayi. ‘How?’ Or: Ka jisaayi.
Jisaayi/ handikowa inayó. ‘How do you write your name?’
Kooði/ kila mo/ jisaa ye/ hutaambuló. ‘Talk is how everyone understands it.’ (A proverb.)
Nfasiriliilé/ mi/ jisa suura. ‘I explained it well.’
Siisi/ Baazi/ jisaa ye/ takulo gaari. ‘I do not know how Baazi will buy a car.’ Or:
Baazi/ jisaa ye/ takulo gaari/ siisi. Or: Gaari/ Baazi/ jisaa ye/ takuuló/ siisi. Or: Baazi/ gaari/ jisaa ye/ takuuló/ siisi./
Songa chaa chiti/ mbele/ jisa Nuuru/ khpata khpita. ‘Move the chair forward so that Nuuru may pass.’
Sultaani/ nuziize/ jisaa mi/ mbashizo maaliyá. ‘The sultan asked me how I had lost my wealth.’
Wakomelopo muyiini/ Hasiibu/ shfaanya/ jisa mweenzawe/ sultani waa noka/ mwaambiló. ‘When they reached the town, Hasiibu did just as his friend, the king of snakes, told him (to do).’

rel.
jis’u as jis’aa we/ hupeendó ‘as you like’
jis’aa ye/ hadiiló ‘as he said’
jis’iyi this way
Ambila khfanya jis’iyi. ‘He was told to do such and such/ this way.’
Sku niingi/ spisile jis’iyi. ‘Many days passed in this way.’
Wa’ishiize/ jis’iyi/ ka mudda/ hattá/ maali/ yotte/ yamlasile/ na ufalme/ umbeele. ‘They lived this way for a period of time until all the money was gone [lit. left them] and he lost the sultanhip.’
We/ nakuwoná/ kuwa ni suura/ jis’iyi? ‘Do you think that it is right this way?’
Yapisile miyaaka/ miingi/ jis’iyi. ‘Many years passed this way.’
jis’iyo so, in that manner or way, thereabout, as usual Abunawaasi/ chiingila/ na mbuziye/ na mubjaanawe/ ka jis’iyo/ mubjaana/ chidirkamana na mwanaamke. ‘Abunawaasi entered with his sheep and his young man and in that way the young man met the girl.’
Ba’adi/ ya apo/ tu/ mi/ nkhashifiló/ kuwaa ye/ ni taajiri/ jis’iyo. ‘Only then did I discover how rich she was.’
Bas(i)/ kilasku/ jis’iyo/ jis’iyo/ hattá/ leelo/ waawaye/ chiwa hakhaadiri/ chifa. ‘So each day (passed) that way, that way, until (one) day his father became sick and died.’
Basi/ oyo mwaana/ hendra khpatapataa nsi/ jis’iyo/ hendro khpataapatá. ‘So that boy goes to catch fish as usual, that is what he goes to catch.’ (This example is interesting in that it reveals that the construction where a verb is repeated in relative clause form may include both an auxiliary-like verb and infinitive complement.)
Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ ka jis’iyo/ takhpita imtihaani. ‘Hamiisi likes to read, therefore he will pass the examination.’
Huhadaayi/ jis’iyo. ‘How can you say that?’
Huseeni/ chiwa’uza/ mboni/ ni/ nakhfanya jis’iyó. ‘Huseeni asked them: how come you (pl.) are doing so/ this way?’
Jis’iyo/ si/ shtakuwona/ miyi miingi/ miingine/ shtakubaratana/ na waant^hu/ wiingine/ wiingi. ‘That way we will see many other towns and get acquainted with many other people.’
ka jis’iyo for this reason’
Ka jis’iyo/ waant^hu/ wa’anzize kumkahata. ‘For this reason people began to hate him.’
Ni ka jis’iyo/ mi/ huló. ‘It is for this reason that I cry.’
Ka sababu gani/ we/ hadilo jis’iyó. ‘For what reason did you speak that way?’

Mi/ hupeenda/ khkasa tarafu ya waant^hu/ hufanyo ziint^hú/ jis'iyó. 'I love to hear about people who do things like that.'

Mukhtaa ye/ ineenzeló/ mu^hdda/ wa sa'a naane/ jis'iyó/ na komeloo dali/ kotté/ maduuri/ kasize sooti. 'When he had travelled for a period of about eight hours and reached a place which was all bush, he heard a voice.'

M(w)aana/ chiwa'ambila waant^huwe/ kistawisha ruhuzaawo/ kuvala nguwo suura. Wote/ washfanya jis'iyó. 'The boy told his people to make themselves look nice, to put on nice clothes. They all did so.'

Na shfanya jis'iyó/ kila mooyi/ nambige baakoora. 'And if he does things this way, each one (of us) should cane him.'

Ni jis'iyó/ so. 'Is that so?'

Sfaanyé/ jis'iyó. 'Don't do it that way!'

Wachooloka/ washfanya jis'iyó. 'They went and they did just that way (just as they were told to do).'

Wotte/ washfanya jis'iyó. 'All did so [i.e. as instructed].'

Ye/ cheendra/ khkala nt^hi yingine/ ka muda/ hupato miyaka mitatú/ jis'iyó. 'He went to live in another country for a period of three years, around that.'

jismu

n. [Ar. jism W 126] body

Ayuubu jismuye nvuno zingile [st.] 'worms entered Job's body'

Jismuye/ yote/ inamlaaza. [H'H!H] 'His whole body ached him.'

wake kuhafiða jismu ni waajibu [st.] 'for women to cover [lit. protect] her body is obligatory'

i-jiwe (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. jiwe, mawe SSED 157] stone (The usual plural is majiwe, though mawe is used in the phrase numba yaa mawe 'stone house'. Presumably the root was originally -we, and the singular form ijiwe developed from the augmentative of -we; cf. how a noun such as chisu 'knife' forms an augmentative ijisu.)

ijiwe ikulu 'a large stone'; majiwe makulu 'large stones'

Ijiwe/ ilatila. 'The stone was thrown.'

ijiwe ilusi 'a black stone (cf. Ijiwe/ ilusi. 'The stone is black.') ijiwe ilusi/ ya taajiri 'the black stone of the rich man'; majiwe malusi/ ya taajiri 'the black stones of the rich man'; majiwe malusi/ ya mataajiri 'the black stones of the rich men'

Ijiwe/ imbishile. 'The stone struck me.' Cf. Majiwe/ yambishile. 'The stones struck me.'

Ijiwe/ nthaykulañilooowa. 'The stone was not thrown.'

ijiwe ya chimento 'a cement block (lit. cement stone)' ijiwe yaa kuta 'large rectangular stone on which different foodstuffs are crushed and made into a paste (softened grain, tomatoes, peppers, etc.)' ijiwe ya kuwaka 'stone for constructing buildings with'

ijiwe yaa ngome 'rock'

ijiwe ya nthuwaakala 'limestone'

ijiwe yaa tala 'battery for a flashlight' ijiwe ya khalaza or ijiwe ya khalalaza 'a stone for grinding corn' ijiweya 'my stone'; majiweya 'my stones' ijiweye 'his stone'; majiweye 'his stones' ijiweyo 'your stone'; majiweyo 'your stones'

imoro ya majiwe 'stone fence' khalbi ya ijiwe 'a stone heart – of a uncaring, hard person' khpakila majiwe 'to load stones' khpakiza majiwe 'to load stones on (usu. onto a camel or a truck)' khpakizowa majiwe 'for something to have stones loaded on it'

Ngamiila/ pakiza majiwe. 'The camel is being loaded with stones.'

kumbiga ka ijiwe 'to hit him with a stone' kuvunda majiwe 'to break up stones'

Ikuta la majiwe ‘a stone wall’ majiwe malusi ‘black stones’ (cf. Majiwe/ malusi. ‘The stones are black.’) Majiwe/ yakhubishile. ‘Stones struck you.’
Majiwe/ yalese^hla na muunt^hu. [H!H] ‘The stones were brought by a man.’
Majiwe/ yaleesele. [H!H] ‘The stones, he brought them.’
Majiwe/ yaleeseló/ ndiyé. [H!H!H] ‘The stones, the one who brought them is him.’
Mbashile numba yaa mawé. ‘I built a stone house.’ Or: Mbashile nuumbá/ yaa mawe. (Notice that the complement to the head of the associative phrase, when phrasally separated from the head, receives default penult accent. The pronunciation m-bashile nuumbá/ y-aa ma-wé is not acceptable. review this point)
Mbashile numba yaa mawé/ ya Nuurú. ‘I built Nuuru’s stone house.’ Or: Mbashile numba yaa mawé/ Nuuru. Or: Mbashile nuumbá/ yaa mawe/ ya Nuuru. (It does not seem to be particularly felicitous to say: ?Mbashile numba ya mawe ya Nuurú.)
Mi/ nakhfikirilá/ majiwe/ ayaje/ mawili/ imooyi/ ikulu/ na imooyi/ chiba./ Ijiwe/ chihaba/ haypaandri/ na ijiwé/ ikulu/ hayishkili. ‘I was thinking about those two stones (over there), one big and one small. The small stone does not go up and the big stone does not come down.’ (This is Rabbit’s explanation for why he has stopped walking!)
Muunt^hu/ leesele/ majiwe. [HH!H] ‘The man brought stones.’ (cf. Muunt^hu/ yaleesele/ majiwe. [HH!H] ‘The man brought the stones.’) numba ya majiwe ‘stone house’ numba yaa mawe/ yaa Menye ‘the stone house belonging to Menye (this may be the only house he has)’ (Our consultant preferred to introduce a phrasal break between the complex head numba y-aa ma-we and the associative phrase y-aa Menye. A pronunciation where there is a single phonological phrase was considered infelicitous: ?numba ya mawe yaa Menye.)
numba yaa Menye/ yaa mawe ‘the house of Menye’s (that is) made of stone= the stone house belonging to Menye (not any other house that Menye has)’ (A pronunciation where there is a single phonological phrase was considered infelicitous: ?numba ya Menye yaa mawe.)
-uumu/ kana ijiwe ‘as hard as a stone’
Chitaache/ chuumu/ kana ijiwe. ‘His head is hard, like a stone.’
Ye/ lesele majiwe. [H!H] ‘He brought stones.’ Cf. Ye/ yaleesele/ majiwe. [HH!H] ‘He brought them the stones.’
-zito/ kana ijiwe ‘as heavy as a stone’ Mbawo izi/ mizito/ kana/ majiwe. ‘These pieces of wood are as heavy as stones.’
rel.
chi-jiwe (zi-) n. dim. 7/8 little stone Chijiwe/ shchizaama/ chigaaya/ shcheeluka. ‘The little stone sank, the potshard floated.’ (A traditional closing to a story.)
chijiwe shpo^hteeló ‘a stone that fell’; zijiwe spo^hteeló ‘stones that fell’ l-ji-we (mi-ji-we) n. 11/4 aug.
Wachindremezandremeza mijiwe. ‘They struck me repeatedly with large stones.’

ku-jiwisha v. pay attention Abú/ nayoo dhibu/ kujiwisha waant^hu. ‘Abu has difficulty paying attention to people.’

jo ? [The analysis of this item is uncertain, as we have only observed it in the following lines of poetry:]
hija ni faródi waajibu jo laazimu/ hukhaadiro sho keendra aasi daalimu [st.] ‘the pilgrimage is a binding religious obligation, whoever has the means and does not go, is disobedient and a wrongdoer’ muunt^hu sho kiiwa namuuze jo aadili [st.] ‘the one who does not know (the rules and regulations) should ask the one who is knowledgeable'

zi-jo

n. crushed maize or millet that is then boiled; food, cooked rice; noun class?
Laakini/ zijo/ mpele mwanaamke/ na ikookó/ mpele mwana wa muḅliwe. 'But zijo she gave to her daughter and the crust of rice she gave to the child of her husband.'
Muke/ chimpakulilaa zijo. 'The woman dished out zijo for him.'
Muke oyo/ pishilee zijo. 'The woman cooked food/zijo.'
Muke/ shpikaa zijo. 'The woman cooked zijo.'
Tete iziwa / na zijo za mpuungá/ mtukize myaana/ kumpelekela eelo. 'She took milk and rice zijo and had a female servant take it to the gazelle.'
zijooza 'my food'

joodari

n. 9/10, 6 [Sw. jodari SSED "a kind of dried fish, like dried shark" SSED 158; dyodari "Bonite (Thynnus pelamys)" Sac 191] tuna; joodari or majoodari (pl.)
Joodari/ ni karkaa nsi/ Mwiini/ hupendoowá/ huzowa ghaali. 'Tuna is among the fish that in Brava are like, it is sold at a high price (lit. expensive).'

joogi

n. 9/10 [Sw. jozi SSED 159; Ar. jauz W 148] pair jogi ya zilaatu 'pair of shoes' Nuuru/ mulile mwaanawe/ zilaatu/ jogii mbili. 'Nuuru bought his child two pairs of shoes.'

jografya

n. [Ital. geografia] geography
Mwalimu Rufaa'i/ zamaani/ skolaani. chisomesha jograafiya. 'Teacher Rufaa'i in the old times at school taught geography.'

Johaari

n. a town in Somali Miyuundra/ ya qasabu (or muuwa)/ miingi/ yachaḷowa Johaari. [H!H!H!H] 'Many sugar cane farms were cultivated in Johaari (a town near Mogadishu).'

joohari

n. [Sw. johari SSED 158; Ar. jauhar W 150] jewel, gem Chinakhishiza ka luulu/ johaari/ na almaasi. 'It was decorated with pearls, jewels, and diamonds.'
Ḍahabu/ ni ghaali/ johari na. 'The gold is expensive, what about the gems?'
hata shpavuungu ka muke ni khatari/ ziingine haydhibi walo za joohari [st.] 'even a woman's kohl-stock can imperil the soul, but other items or precious stones are permitted' johariya 'my jewel' (Observe the shortening of the initial vowel of the stem as a consequence of the encliticization of the possessive marker, which puts the initial syllable in an unstressed position.)
kama joohari 'like a jewel' Haliima/ zazile waana/ kama majoohari. 'Haliima bore children (as beautiful) as jewels.'
Nt'akhaadira/ kumaliza ka khisa impungukilile joohari/ mooyi. 'She was not able to finish [making a crown] because she she lacked one jewel.'
rel.
chi-joohari (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.
i-joohari (mi-) n. aug.

chi-joho (zi-)

n. 7/8 a member of a social class on Lamu island, consisting of wealthy old people who are regarded as arrogant and not true Muslims by virtue of their having their own mosque which they do not like others to enter check vowel length and whether used in Chimiini

jokaatoli

n. 9/10 [Ital. giocattolo] toy
Hasani/ waletelele waanawe/ zoombo/ kokaatoli. 'Hasani brings his children things, toys.'
Saydi/ huteleza waant'u/ kana/ jokaatoli/ lila/ ba/ ha'ambili/ waant'u. 'Saydi plays with people like toys, truth he never tells people.’

- jornaale (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Ital. giornale] newspaper; pl: jornaale or majornaale jornale izi ‘these newspapers’ majornaale aya ‘these newspapers’
Majornaale/ yachilawa ka shŕtalyaani. ‘Newspapers used to come out in Italian.’
Omari/ hupeenda/ khsoma majornaale. ‘Omari likes to read newspapers.’
Zamaani/ nt^hasa ya istikhlaali/ Mkhodiisho/ schilawa/ jornaale/ ka shŕtalyaani.
‘During old times before independence, in Mogadishu newspapers were coming out in Italian.’
- jowri n. or adj. [Sw. jeuri SSED 153] arrogant; arrogance; outrage khfanya jowri ‘to act arrogantly’
Muunt^hu/ siwo/ suura/ khfanya jowri. ‘It is not good for someone to behave arrogantly.’
Ye/ nfanyize jowri. ‘He acted on me arrogantly.’
kuleta jowri ‘to behave arrogantly’ Omari/ akhiri iyi/ anzize kuleta jowri. ‘Omari lately has begun to act arrogantly.’
kuwa jowri ‘to be outraged’ munt^hu jowri ‘an arrogant man’
- ku-jowrisha v. [Ar. verb jāra W 146 and noun jaur "oppression, tyranny, outrage" W 147] (jowrishiize) outrage s.o., show arrogance, try to impose s.t. on s.o.
Omari/ jawaabuze/ nza jowri/ husuŕa kujowrisha waant^hu/ jis’iyo/ siwo/ ŕabi’a.
‘Omari his thing (behavior, actions) are (based on) force, he wants to force people to do things, that way of behaving is not good character.’
- joozi n. [Ar. jauz W 148; Som. jaws, variant jows DSI 340] nutmeg Haliima/ mgahawawe/ chaahi/ huuzika/ sababu/ hukabila joozi/ chayiini.
‘Haliimu at her restaurant sells very good tea. because she adds joozi in the tea.’
- juŕaamu n. [Sw. jethamu SSED 153; Ar. juŕam W 117] leprosy Huhadoowa/ waant^hu/ wanayo juŕaamú/ huja waant^hu/ waant^hu/ huwa fakaŕa. ‘It is said that people who have leprosy eat people, so people used to run from them.’
munt^hu mwenye juŕaamu ‘a leper’
Zamaani/ waant^hu/ wawanayo juŕaamú/ washfanyilizowaa dawa/ heraani/ Jilibu.
‘During old times people with leprosy used to be treated at a camp in Jilib.’
- ku-juŕbata v. [cf. Ar. jadaba "to attract, allure" W 115 and Som. jidboo "to be in a frenzy" DSI 342]
- juha (ma-) adj. [Sw. juha SSED 159] stupid (from the legendary character Juha who appears to be stupid but in fact is very intelligent)
Iyi/ ni raadiyo/ isho wenewe/ ya jamhuuri/ ya majuha. ‘This is Free Radio of the republic of fools.’
Waant^hu/ wamweno Abunawaasi/ namgitaa mbuzi/ ka chinumeenumé/ wachingila kubigaa nk^hele/ ijuha/ ijuha/ idokhani/ mbuzi/ ha’inenzoowi/ jis’iyo. ‘The people who saw Abunawaasi pulling the sheep (mbuzi is shortened from mbuzi ya matako) began shouting: fool! fool! stupid! A sheep is not driven that way.’
- juhudi n. [Sw. juhudi SSED 157; Ar. juhd W 142] effort; var. juhdi
Mi/ n’akidile khfanyowa kaazi/ ka juhdi. ‘I emphasized working hard.’

- Omari/ tile juhudi/ niingi/ jisaa ye/ kuwaka nuumbaye. ‘Omari put a lot of effort so that he could build his house.’
- Someele/ ka juhudi/ na daḏaali/ masku/ na muunt^hi. ‘He studied with effort and trying hard night and day.’
- i-juhudi (ma-) n. 5/6 a heavy punch (e.g. to the chest that can kill or cause problems to the lungs) khtila ijuhudi or majuhudi ‘to hit hard’ Omari/ shshila shṭana/ na Ali/ mtile ijuhudi. ‘Omari got angry with Ali, he hit him hard.’
Sheekhi/ ha’isi/ kuwa’adabisha waana/ huwatila majuhudi.
‘Sheekhi does not know how to discipline his children, he just hits them hard.’
- juk ideo.
Shaati/ iyi/ chiguwoche/ chuuma/ juk!/ hachihadi/ takuvaala/ miyaaka/ na miyaakayé. ‘This shirt, its cloth is hard/strong, juk! it does not say (i.e. it does not get torn or wornout); you will wear it years and years (lit. years and its years).’
- i-juukhu n. [Ar. jūk "broadcloth" W 146] a coat Ali/ vete ijuukhu/ ikuluye/ nda waawaye. ‘Ali wore a coat too big for him, it belongs to his father.’
- i-juula (ma-) n. 5/6 a fishing net pulled by men
- chi-juulu n. 7/8 dim. form of kuulu
- i-juulu n. 5/4 aug form of kuulu
- i-juulu n. tire
Ijulu ya gaari/ itumbishile. ‘The tire of the lorry got punctured.’
- chi-juumba n. 7/8 dim. of nuumba [cf. Sw. kijumba SSED 64] small house; nest
We/ kapata chijuumbá/ chaa nyunyi/ wo/ suḷa kiimba. ‘If you could get the nest of (these) birds, they would sing.’
- jumḷa n. 9 [Sw. jumla “(i) the sum, total, a lot, all together; also adv. wholesale, in lots” SSED 160; Ar. jumla W 137] sum, total; wholesale bohari ya jumḷa ‘a store where things are sold wholesale’ kula ka jumḷa ‘to buy in whole lots’ kuza ka jumḷa ‘to sell in whole lots’
Omari/ huza zoombo/ jumḷa. ‘Omari sells things at wholesale.’
- ku-jumḷisha v. [Sw. jumlisha “add up, sum up, put all together, in arithm. addition, to add up, tot up” SSED 160] (jumlishiize)
variant form:
ku-jimḷisha v. ibid. (jimlishiize)
Omari/ jumlishize zoombo/ zotte. ‘Omari has put the things all together in a lot to sell.’ Or, with emphasis on the verb: Omari/ jumlishiize/ zoombo/ zotte.
- rel.
ku-jumlishoowa v. pass.
- jundi (O,ma-) n. [Ar. jundī W140] group, army of soldiers Jundi/ mbili/ zinakubiganoo zitá/ ya Soomaaliya/ na Amhaará. ‘Two groups of soldiers are fighting, Somali (soldiers) and Ethiopian (soldiers).’
Jundi/ ya Soomaaliya/ ishiinzile/ zita/ za Itoopiya/ mwaaka/ wa sab’inaa saba. ‘Somali soldiers won the fight against Ethiopia in the battle of the year (19)77.’

i-jungujuungu

n. tortoise

Omari/ hadiile/ Ali/ hiineendra/ ka tartiibu/ kana/ ijungujuungu/ ha'ikhadiroowi/ kurashmanowa naaye. ‘Omari said Ali walks slowly like turtle, one cannot walk along with him (lit. follow together with him).’

i-juuniya (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. gunia "sack" SSED 120; Hind.] sack used for anything (grain, cement, charcoal, etc.).

Haliima/ (ni) 'mzito/ kana ijuuniya. ‘Haliima is as heavy as a sack.’ Or: Haliima/ (ni) 'mzito/ kana ijuuniya. (The difference between these two examples is with respect to whether the adjective is given augmentative agreement, izito, or simple [cl.1] agreement, mzito.)

Sultaani/ shtomola amri/ chiwa'ambila want^hu wa muuyi/ wotte/ keendra/ kumshiika/ Abunawaasi/ kumtila ndrani ya ijuuniya/ kuyeza ijuuniya/ majiwe/ khfungaa kana/ kanmake/ kuvurumisha ijuuniya/ iyo/ bahariini. ‘The sultan issued an order and told all the people of the town to go and arrest Abunawaasi and to put him inside a sack and to fill the sack with stones and to tie up the opening and then to throw that sack into the sea.’

-zito/ kana ijuuniya ‘as heavy as a sack’

rel.

chi-juuniya (zi-) n. 7/8 dim.

l-juuniya (mi-) n. 11/4 aug.

ku-junuunata

v. [Ar. junūn W 138] (jununeete) become mad, crazy

Ali/ jawabu zaa ye/ hukoodó/ nza mandalavi/ hatá/ muunt^hu/ hujunuunata. ‘The things that Ali talks are nonsense, one even gets mad.’

rel.

ku-junuunisha v. caus. (jununishiize)

juuq

ideo.

Omari/ nakuvunangaa nkhele/ Hamadi/ mameele/ tu/ juuq!/ nt^hakuhada. ‘Omari is shouting, Hamadi just kept quiet. Juuq! He did not say anything.’

jutha

n. 9/10[Ar. jutta W 112] uncommon corpse (This word seems to be largely restricted to teachers during shari'a lessons. The usual word in Chimwiini is mayti.)

ku-juuza

v. [Sw. juzu “be permissible, be allowable, be suitable, be fitting for, be right for, be duty of” SSED 161; Ar. jāza W 147] (juziize) (i) be right for, suited for, deserved, permitted; (ii) reproach, point out that something is someone’s fault when he is suffering the consequences of his actions (thus ‘rubbing it in’)

Humjuuza. ‘He deserves something (bad) because of his actions.’

kubiga shamali stoshe hujuuza [st.] ‘do not think that it is permitted to jump and sing loudly’

mulo na maayi na muu hujuuza/ kuwa muhtaaji hata masku miinza [st.] ‘fire and water and salt are permitted (to be borrowed/lent) if there is need, even at night’

Mwajiitu/ nakhujuuza. ‘May God punish you for your wrongdoings.’ –e?

nama na maaziye pamo khpikoowa/ bila koshoowa hujuuza kujoowa [st.]

‘(such as the custom of) cooking meat together with its blood without washing it, (and assuming that) it is suitable for eating’

Omari/ hanahili/ waant^hu/ hupeenda/ kujuza waant^hu/ tu. ‘Omari does not feel empathy for people, he just likes to reproach/find fault/ rub it in.’

Sharafu iyi/ hayimjuuzi. ‘This honor/respect is not fitting for him.’

Sheekhi/ hadiile/ Nuuru/ humjuuza/ gaariye/ kuvuundika/ sababu/halangali/ gaariye. ‘Sheekhi said that Nuuru deserves for his car to break down, because he does not look after his car.’

rel. nom.
ma-juuzo n. 6
u-juuzo n. 14

juzu

n. 9/10 [Sw. juzuu SSED 161; Ar. juz' W 123 "the thirtieth part of the Koran"] the thirtieth part of the Quran; a section, chapter, division of a book, esp. the Quran; [pron. juzú] (This word has an exceptional lexical final accent. Is this accent connected to the fact that the Swahili version has a rearticulated vowel at the end?)

khsomaa juzú 'to read a section of the Quran' khsoma juzuu mbili 'to read two sections of the Quran (Phon. Observe that although when it is at the end of a phrase juzu has an accent on its last syllable, when the word is no longer final in the phrase there is no indication of its lexical final accent.)

khsoma juzu ya piili 'to read the second chapter of the Quran'

-ka-

past conditional prefix, counterfactual conditional prefix

Ali/ iwiile/ kuwaa ye/ kawa'ambilá/ waant^hú/ kooðizé/ wo/ skawataambule. 'Ali knew that if he told people his words they would not understand them.'

kachiboolá 'if we had stolen it'; kachiboolá/ sí 'if we had stolen it, we' (Phon. A right-dislocated subject is ordinarily radically lowered in pitch, an indication of its out-of-focus nature. However, in the present case, the pronoun si is raised in pitch. We have not explored the issue of how right-dislocation works in the ka tense, so cannot expand on this point.) kaachijá/ yaná 'if we had eaten yesterday' or, with a right-dislocated subject pronoun: kaachijá/ yaná/ si and kaachijá/ si/ yaná

Kachiwa choloshelé/ suḷa kuwa chiwaweené. 'If we had gone, we would have seen them.'

kachilimá 'if we had cultivated'

Kaniwa noloshelé/ suḷa kuwa niwaweené. 'If you (pl.) had gone, you would have seen them.'

Kawa wa'oloshelé/ suḷa kuwa wawaweene. 'If they had gone, they would have seen them.'

mi/ kaajá 'if I had eaten', we/ kaajá 'if you had eaten', ye/ kaajá 'if (s)he had eaten', si/ kaachijá 'if we had eaten', ni/ kaanijá 'if you (pl.) had eaten', wo/ kawaajá 'if they had eaten', maana/ kaajá 'if the child had eaten', waana/ kawaajá 'if the children had eaten'

Mi/ nk^hawa mbaliko mwaalimú. 'If I had been a teacher.' Or: Mi/ kawa mbaliko mwaalimú.

Muusa/ kawanayo chibuukú 'if Muusa had a book' or, with verb focus: Muusa/ kuwanaayó/ chibuuku (Cf. the definite version: Muusa/ kawanacho chibuukú 'if Muusa had the book' or, with verb focus: Muusa/ kawanaachó/ chibuuku.)

mwanaa mule/ kaayá 'if the tall boy had come'; or: kaya mwaaná/ mulé 'if a tall boy had come'; or: kaya mwanaa mulé 'if the tall boy had come'

Ni ḷiḷa/ koði za waawe/ nk^halala ndrani ya ḷogaani/ suḷa kuwa nfiilé. 'They were true, the words of my father, if I had slept in the valley, I would have died.'

Nk^ha'endrá/ suḷa mwona. 'If I went, I would see him.'

Nk^ha'endra kaaké/ suḷa mwona. 'If I went to his place, I would see him.'

Nk^ha'endra kaaké/ yaná/ suḷa kumwona. 'If I had gone to his place yesterday, I would have seen him.'

nk^ha'oloká 'if I had gone'; ka'oloká 'if you had gone/if he had gone'; kachooloká 'if we had gone'; kawa'oloká 'if they had gone' nk^ha'ula garii mp^hiyá 'if I bought a new car' (Observe that the noun gaari is interpreted as indefinite here, even though it is phrased together with the modifier. In other post-verbal situations, phrasing of the noun with a modifier indicates definiteness, while phrasal separation indicates indefiniteness. But this pattern does not hold in the present example. Our consultant rejected separate phrasing of gaari: *nk^ha'ula gaari/ mp^hiyá. In order to make gaari definite, an object prefix on the verb is required: nk^hayula garii mp^hiyá 'if I bought the new car'. We have not explored what lies behind this set of facts.)

Mwanaamke/ choondroka/ chendra ka waawaye/ sulṭaani/ chimwaambila... ‘The girl got up and went to her father, the sultan, and said to him...’
Naank^hó/ chimwaambila/ sinsoongé/ lawa ka muyi uyu. ‘Again, he told him: do not come close to me, get out of this town.’
Nimuuzilé/ ka thumuni. ‘I bought him for one-eighth (of a riyal).’
Niwasaydile ka khtukula skunyi. ‘I helped them by carrying firewood.’
Sulṭaani/ shfurahika/ nt^ho/ ka ushujaa’a/ wa Hasani. ‘The sultan became very happy with the courage of Hasani.’
Waliko chiwasayda ka khtukula skunyi. ‘He was helping them by carrying firewood.’

Ka Booleeti n. The Italians did not build extensively in Brava. A few settlers built their own houses, which now are either in ruins or have disappeared. A ruined one is called Ka Booleeti (from the name of the owner, Paoletti).

Ka Gargaarta n. a place where some Somali people who were brought from the north during the drought were settled in Brava Ka Gargaarta/ nii kule. ‘Ka Gargaarta is far.’

Ka Golwaano n. an Italian, probably called Galvani or Galvano, built a hotel-restaurant in Brava, which in later years (after the 1950’s) became a private house; it is still called Ka Galwaano.

Ka Kamooḷe n. (alternatively, Ka Komooḷe) an important activity started by Italians in Brava in the inter-wars years was a tanning and leather industry; this was especially active at the time of the Italian war with Ethiopia, when it had the contract for all leather equipment of the Italian army (boots, belts, pistol holsters, etc.); it gave work to many Bravanese, who later continued to make shoes and opened their shops also in Mogadishu; the building is still extant and is located on the main avenue; it is called Ka Kamooḷe (or Komooḷe), from the owner’s name, Mr. Camogli ka khisa because, for the reason review phrasing of ka khisa

Baaba/ chiskiṭika ka khalbiini/ ka khisa/ nt^hanakhpata/ kuja na mwaanawe/ nt^hangú/ ye/ loweeló. ‘Father felt very sad because he was not able to eat with his child since he got married.’
Hamadi/ lazile/ ka khisa/ Omari/ mṭaanzile. ‘Hamadi left because Omari insulted him.’
Hamadi/ lazile/ ka khisa/ ye/ sulile kumziyarata mweenzawe. ‘Hamadi left because he wanted to visit his friend.’
Ka khisa/ Huseeni/ nt^hanaazo/ peesa. ‘Because Huseeni does not have money.’ This is a reply to a question like: Ka khisani/ Huseeni/ nt^hakula faṭuurá. ‘Why did Huseeni not buy the car?’ Other possible answers to this question: Ka khisa/ faṭuura/ ni ghaali. ‘Because the car is expensive.’ Or: Ka khisa/ nt^hakhpeenda. ‘Because he did not like it.’
ka khisa/ khupele balani/ mi ‘because I promised you’ ka khisaa mi/ siná/ maame ‘because I have no mother’ Muusa/ na’iwa/ ka khisa ya mwaana/ olosheló. ‘Muusa knows why the child left.’
Mwambiile/ siwo/ ka khisa/ jis’iyo. ‘She told him: it is not because of that (lit. it is not because of that way).’
Ndrzile na ¹mapeemá/ ka khisa/ safari. ‘I got up early for the journey.’
Oloshelē sukhuuni/ ka khisa/ kulaa nama. ‘He went to the market in order to buy meat.’
Sulṭani ḍaalimu/ shkhubala/ ka khisa/ na’iwa/ kuwa mgarwa/ hakhaadiri/ kuruuda/ ka sku sitta. ‘The unjust sultan agreed because he knew that the fisherman would not be able to return in six days.’

ka khisa=ni why? for what reason? variant form: ka khsani Ali/ ile ka khisani. ‘Why did Ali come?’ (Cf. We/ ile ka khisaní. ‘Why did you come?’) (If ka khsani is preposed to the beginning of the sentence, it triggers pseudo-relativization: Ka khisani/ Ali/ iló. ‘Why did Ali come?’

Ali/ ka khisani/ nt^hakuuyá. ‘Why didn’t Ali come?’ (In this example, the question word is pre-verbal and triggers pseudo-relativization of the verb. In the case of a negative verb, pseudo-relativization is manifested only by the final accent that the verb triggers.)
Ali/ nt^hakuya ka khisani. ‘Why didn’t Ali come?’ (In the default situation, a negative verb would be focused and thus final in the phonological phrase. However, the question word ka khisani is focused, rendering the verb no longer focused. Thus the negative verb phrases with the following question word. In this phrase-medial position nt^h-a-kúu-ya) loses both its vowel length and accent.)
Ali/ nt^hakuuya/ ka khisani. ‘Ali didn’t come, why?’ (In this example, we are dealing with a statement ‘Ali didn’t come’ and then a query: ‘why (is that)?’) Ka khisani/ Ali/ mbishilo mwaaná. ‘Why did Ali hit the child?’
Ka khisani/ Hasani/ uzilo garii mp^hiyá. ‘Why did Hasani buy a new car?’ Or: Ka khisani/ Hasani/ uziló/ garii mp^hiyá. (In the alternative sentence, where the verb is phrasally separated from its complement, our consultant preferred to violate the Accentual Law of Focus and have the final accent extend to the end of the pseudo-relative clause.)
Ka khisani/ muke/ olosheló/ Tuuma. ‘Why did the woman go, Tuuma?’ Or: Tuuma/ ka khisani/ muke/ olosheló. ‘Tuuma, why did the woman go?’
Ka khisani/ nt^hakiingilá/ numbaani. ‘Why did he not enter the house?’ Or: Ka khisani/ nt^hakingila numbaani. Or: Numbaani/ ka khisani/ nt^hakiingilá. (These examples reveal that pre-verbal ka khisani triggers pseudo-relativization. If located post-verbally, no such pseudo-relativization is triggered: Nt^hankingila ka khisani/ numbaani. ‘Why didn’t he enter the house?’ or Numbaani/ nt^hakingila/ ka khisani.)
Ka khisani/ nt^hakingila numbaani/ yana. ‘Why didn’t he enter the house yesterday?’
Ka khisani/ Nureeni/ uzilo jaka iyó. ‘Why did Nureeni buy that jacket?’
Ka khisani/ we/ nakunt^haaló. ‘Why did you take me?’
Leelo/ mi/ siisi/ ka khisani/ laakini/ nakuharfisha ruuhuya. ‘Today, I do not know why, but I smell myself.’
Mi/ nakuvunangoowa ka khisani. ‘I am being beaten for what reason?’
Mub^hjiwe/ chimwaambila/ we/ ni laazima/ kunaambila/ naku^hla ka khisani. ‘Her husband said to her: you must tell me why you are crying.’
Mwanaamke/ chimwaambila/ ka khisani.
Mwaanawá/ naku^hla ka khisani. ‘My son, you are crying for what reason?’
Ndro/ mi/ ninfanyiizeni/ nakunvunanga ka khisani/ ni. ‘Come, what have I done to you (pl.), why are you beating me, you.’
Nuuru/ nt^hakuya ka khisani. ‘Why didn’t Nuuru come?’ (Observe that the negative verb, which would ordinarily be phrase-final, is phrase medial in this interrogative sentence.)
Siisi/ ka khisani/ uzizo gaariyé. ‘I do not know why he sold his car.’
We/ mbishile ka khisani/ mwaana. ‘Why did you hit the child?’ (In this example, ka khisani is located between the verb and its primary object. It phrases with the verb and receives the final accent that the verb triggers. However, ka khisani is inherently focused and thus the final accent from the verb cannot extend past it, given the Accentual Law of Focus. By locating ka khisani after the primary object, we can get the final accent to extend across the VP: We/ mbishile mwaaná/ ka khisani. This word order, however, does not appear to be normal.)
We/ naku^hla ka khisani/ isa. ‘Why are you crying now?’ review
Wo/ ku^hla/ mara/ humsu’alaata/ ka khisani/ khaajá/ we/ khfunga ruuhuyo/ mikono/ na miilú. ‘Every time they ask him: why, my uncle, do you tie yourself up, arms and legs?’

ka kote

everywhere, anywhere, anyplace

Tuuma/ mereje siindanu/ ka kote/ laakini/ nt^haki'ipata. 'Tuuma searched for the needle everywhere. but she did not find it.'

Ka Mabaadiri

n. The Catholic mission was named ka mabaadiri in Chimwiini [lit. at the priests' place]. In 1908 the Trinitarian Fathers were given permission to settle in Brava, where they were asked to establish a technical school for natives but were forbidden to preach. They built a very substantial mission-house on high ground west of Biruuni, separated from the city's areas. It became a walled compound with an orphanage (no Bravanese children were there, only Somali orphans), school, chapel, kitchen-garden and a well. A water faucet set in the external wall allowed the town-people to draw water from it. The mission was still in use in the 1970's, but during Barre's regime the priests were moved to Mogadishu and the compound became a government rest-house.

Ka Mabaadiri/ hupowa waant^hu/ dawa/ ka buure. At Ka Mabaadiri people are given medicine for free.'

Ka Mabaadiri/ iwashiya jisa suura. 'Ka Mabaadiri is built well.'

Ka Mabaadiri/ zimo kaniisa. 'There are churches at Ka Mabaadiri.'

Ka Mada Saalehe Luungo

n. the name of the electric power plant in Brava, named after the man who used to run it; also known as Makiina/ yaa Naji.

Ka Maftaaho

n. this place is marked by a mosque built at the northern tip of Baghdaadi. The name comes from its builder, Shariif Maftaaho, a rich merchant of Brava who lived in Mp^haayi. All his sons had shops in Brava. Shariif Maftaaho was famous for the mawliidi (celebration of the Prophet's birthday) that he held at his house every year. On that day, everybody was welcome to participate from dawn to dusk, without the need of an individual invitation.

Ka Mashariifu

n. Skoondro/ zisuura/ huzowa Ka Mashariifu. 'Good sugar candies are sold at Ka Mashariifu.'

Ziyara za mtume/ hufanyowa Ka Mashariifu. 'Celebrations of the Prophet are made at Ka Mashariifu.'

Ka Seleemo

n. South-west of Brava, inland from the sea, is Ka Seleemo "at Seleemu's place". It was marked by a date-palm grove planted by a Yemeni immigrant, Sulaym bin Saalimiin (floruit at the turn of the 20th century), whose name was "Chimiinized" to Seleemo. The grove, which was still seen in the 1970s, is now destroyed, but the place retains its name. Near Ka Seleemo the British archaeologist Neville Chittick made a brief survey in the late 1960s and found Kwale ware and other ancient shards.)

Ichinyaa nvula/ Ka Seleemo/ huwako goroodi/ niingi. 'If it rains, Ka Seleemo has a lot of mud.'

Waana/ hendra Ka Seleemo/ khtinda steendre. 'Children go to Ka Seleemo to harvest (lit. cut) dates.'

Ka Sheekh Nureeni

n. A name for a small cluster of about 10 houses and huts around a mosque, situated on the sea shore approx. 1 km. south of Albaamba and separated from Brava. Its founder was Sheekh Nureeni Mohamed Saabiri (died 1909), a judge and religious leader of the Idrisiyya brotherhood (also called Al-Ahmadi), who is now the patron-saint of Brava. The mosque bears his name and contains his tomb. It is the venue of a great ziyaara, or annual celebration on the anniversary of his death, which the participation of the whole population of Brava, with chanting of dikiri and recalling of the many miracles performed by Sheekh Nureeni. The site is also known as Bilaadi (see the entry for this name).

ka=ni

interrogative word: with what?

Kani/ Hamadi/ mbishilo maaná/ we/ nakhtoshó. ‘With what did Hamadi hit the child do you think?’ Or: Hamadi/ kani/ mbishilo maaná/ we/ nakhtoshó. (In both of these sentences, the complement clause is fronted, and within that clause ka=ni is also fronted. The result is that the interrogative word precedes both the complement verb and also the main clause verb, both of which must be pseudo-relativized)

Wé/ kani/ nakhtoshó/ Hamadi/ mbishilo maaná. ‘With what you think Hamadi hit the boy?’ (In this example, the question word is taken from the complement clause and put in front of the main verb. In this case, both the main verb and the complement verb are to its right and must be put into pseudo-relative form.)

Wé/ nakhtosha Hamadi/ mbishile kani/ maana. ‘What do you think Hamadi hit the boy with?’ (The main verb in this sentence is a final-accent trigger. The final accent extends rightward in the verb phrase through the question word. Since question words are focused, the final accent cannot extend past ka=ni. Question words do not require pseudo-relativization to their left, thus in this example neither the main nor the complement verb are in pseudo-relative form.)

Ka’(a)ba

n. the Kaaba in Mecca

Ka’ba mara saba sharti khtufoowa [st.] ‘it is obligatory for the Ka’ba to be gone around seven times’ (In Chimiini, the ordinary pronunciation of the noun Ka’aba is for there to be a vowel between the glottal stop and the following consonant. This vowel is not present in the Arabic source. However, in this line from a shteenzi, the line must have eleven syllables, hence the use of the shape Ka’ba as opposed to Ka’aba.)

Ká’aba/ asliye/ iwashila/ na mtume Ibraahimu. ‘the Ka’aba originally was built by the prophet Abraham’

Ká’aba/ yikoo Maka. ‘The Ka’aba is in Mecca.’

ka’uta

in the phrase: -teza ka’uta, someone who does whatever he wants; a spoiled brat, someone who gets whatever he wants

Mteza ka’uta/ hula. ‘The one who takes risks cries.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt’u/ sheteza ka’uta/ shlowelowa taakha/ huwona yaake. ‘If a person takes risks and cannot be managed, he sees his (i.e. he will get what he deserves for being so reckless).’

Numbaani/ ka Hamadi/ yikusila/ inakhtezowa ka’uta/ laakini/ sku mooyi/ itakhshalayatoowa. ‘At Hamadi’s house (lit.) there is being satisfied (i.e. the family there has everything they could want), there is living dangerously (i.e. the members of the family are behaving recklessly, as the children of the rich sometimes do); but one day there will be repentance.’

kaba

n. a unit of measure for oils, honey, paraffin, or other such substances in Brava where they were sold at market; a one half liter container

Nakendra kula mafta ya wilaaya/ kabaa mbili. ‘I am going to buy a liter of kerosine.’

rel.

sh-kaba (s-) n. 7/8 a small bottle used to hold oils etc.

Haba/ na haba/ huyeza shkaba. ‘Little and little fills the shkaba.’ (A proverb.)

kaaba

n. 9/10 front, opened part of the haanzu (This word was not known to GM or those he consulted.)

kabaaba

n. 9/10 kebab

Mgahawaanu/ ka Abu wa Rasuulu/ ichuzowa rooti/ ka kabaaba. ‘At the restaurant of Abuu wa Rasuulu bread with kebab was sold.’ (The restaurant referred to was a well-known restaurant in Brava. Remember, references to people and places are generally with regards to pre-war Brava. The present situation in Brava is mostly unreflected in our examples.)

Mgahawaani/ ka Faqi/ fijiri/ khuraa'a/ hujowa maandra/ ka kabaaba/ na maftá. 'At the restaurant of Faqi during morning breakfast it is eaten bread with kebab and oil.'

kabaliyeeri

n. waiter; var. kamaliyeeri n. ibid.
kamaliyeri uu 'this waiter'; kamaliyeri awa 'these waiters' Omari/ ni kamaliyeeri. 'Omari is a waiter.'
Sheekhi/ waliko kabaliyeeri/ mgahawaani/ ka Sa'iidi. 'Sheekhi was a waiter at Saiidi's restaurant.'

kaabaari

n. 9/10 wedge of wood used to split logs (This word is not known to GM.)
rel.
i-kaabaari (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

kaabaati

n. 5/6 [Sw. kabati SSED 63; Eng. cupboard] cupboard Haliima/ nakhtilaa nguwo/ za waanawe/ karka kaabaati. 'Haliima is putting the clothes of her children in the cupboard.'
kabati chigobe 'a short cupboard' kabaati ndre 'a long cupboard' kabaati ya chuuma or kaabaati/ ya chuuma 'an iron cupboard' kabaati yaa mbawo or kaabaati/ yaa mbawo 'a wooden cupboard' kabaatiini 'in the cupboard'
Mismaari/ yamo kabaatiini. 'The nails are in the cupboard.' Or: Mismaari/ yamo karka kaabaati.
Mubaji/ chimwaambila/ mukeewe/ kumletela tubaaku/ ka kabaatiini. 'The man told his wife to bring the tobacco from the cupboard.'
Muusa/ ishkizize chibuuku/ ka kabaatiini. 'Muusa took a book down from the top of the cupboard.'
Nguwo/ zimo kabaatiini. 'The clothes are in the cupboard.'
rel.
i-kaabaati (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

kabeebe

n. [Som. kabeebey "very popular traditional Somali dance" DSI 354] a kind of dance Leelo/ masku/ yiko kabeebe/ ka Daada/ Masiiti/ ziyaraani. 'Tonight there is a kabeebe at the Daada Masiiti religious celebration.'
Maizezo ya kabeebe/ hutezowa makiindri. 'The kabeebe game is played by pelvic shaking.'

kh-kabila

v. (kabiile) include; add to, give more; give Chimaamala/ pashpo khkabila chiint^hu. 'He kept quiet without adding anything.'
E/ we/ mwenye amri/ shkabile zaakuja. 'O you ruler, give us more food!'
Haliima/ mgahawawe/ chaahi/ huuzika/ sababu/ hukabila joozi/ chayiini. 'Haliimu at her restaurant sells very good tea, because she adds joozi in the tea.'
khkabilaa munu '(lit.) add salt – spice up, make more appealing' Omari/ mkali/ khkabilaa munu/ kooði. 'Omari is good at adding salt to (his) talking (adding words that make what he is saying appear, seem more interesting, appealing).'
khkabila suulbisi 'to add something extra to s.t. purchased' Shekhamanaana/ dukaye/ waant^hu/ kabilowa suulbisi. 'In Shekhamanaana's shop people are given extra (when they purchase s.t.)' khkabilaa munu 'to embellish, exaggerate (lit. add salt to)'
Haliima/ naayé/ nakhkabilaa munu/ koði izo. 'Haliima is embellishing (the truth) in those words.'
Naank^hó/ chimkabila mali miingi/ miingine. 'Again, he gave him [lit. added to him] much other wealth.'
Sultaani/ chimkabila/ karka watumishiwe. 'The king included him among his servants.'
Sultaani/ shkhiira/ kumkabila mwanaamkewe/ laakini/ shtila sharti. 'The sultan agreed to give him his daughter [in marriage], but he put one condition [on this].’

rel.

kh-kabilila v. appl.

suliile kunk^habila [song] ‘he wanted to add more for me’

kh-kabiloowa v. pass.

Abdalla/ shkabilowa mali miingine. ‘Abdalla was given [lit. was added to] additional [lit. other] wealth.’

Muunt^hu/ shkookha/ hukabilowaa muke. ‘If a man becomes sexually active, he should be added/ given a wife.’ (A proverb.)

kabisa

adv. [Sw. kabisa SSED 164] at all; [pron. kabisá]

Dakhtari/ siwo/ waaðehe/ kabisá/ kaake/ ni ka khisani/ Baazi/ haaliye/ nt^ha’ina kuwa suurá. ‘The doctor is not at all clear as to why Baazi’s condition is not improving.’

Fanyize kaazi/ kabisá. ‘I worked a lot.’ (In this example from GM, the first person singular nasal subject marker is elided in front of a voiceless obstruent, thus it is only the final accent that indicates the subject. Even then, the sentence could also mean ‘you worked a lot’ since the null second person subject marker also triggers final accent. MI, on the other hand, retains the nasal subject marker in a case like this.)

Ize kabisá/ kooloka. ‘He refused to go at all.’

Kabisá/ wo/ hawapeendani. ‘They do not like each other at all.’

Mi/ nda’ile kuwaa mi/ ni munt^hu msuurá/ kabisá/ ya kazi iyó. ‘I claimed to be the best person for the job.’

Mlaango/ ufuunzila/ kabisá. ‘The door is completely closed.’

Naayé/ weele/ mapsuuti/ kabisá. ‘And he was very pleased.’

Nize kabisá/ kuja. ‘I refused to eat anything at all.’ review

Omari/ ink^hiriile/ kabisá/ kuwaa ye/ mwene Abú. ‘Omari strongly denied that he had seen Abu.’

Simpé/ kabisá/ maamala/ tu. ‘Don’t give him it, just be quiet!’

Simpeendi/ kabisá. ‘I do not like him at all.’

Zoombo/ zaa mi/ nt^heeetó/ ni zizito/ kabisá. ‘The things which I took are very heavy.’ (In GM’s speech, the first person singular subject marker is elided in front of voiceless consonants and thus does not aspirate an initial voiceless stop. The pronunciation in this example is thus [teetó].)

kabooti

n. [Ital. cappotto "overcoat"] overcoat (this word apparently originated when a stock of overcoats was left by the Italian customs police and passed to the Somali police in the later 1950’s; the usual word for a coat is based on English:

(i)kooti)

Ma’askari/ huwala kabooti/ masku/ yaa wo/ hingilo waardiyá/ kurebela bardi. ‘Soldiers wear coats in the nights when they are on guard to keep warm (lit. repel the cold).’

kaða wa kaða

adv. [Sw. kadha wa kadha SSED 165] a lot; thus and thus; this and that Kooði/ kaða wa kaða/ haziinfi/ muunt^hu/ suura/ khkoða koði mooyi.

‘Talk [that skips from] this to that is not useful, it is better for one to speak on one thing at a time.’

Tomele peesa/ kaða wa kaða. ‘He paid a lot of money.’

kaðaalika

adv. [Sw. kadhalika SSED 164] similarly, in like manner, likewise, also, further, moreover

Chimaliza/ peleshela chiwandraani, kubarata khfula ðahabu/, na fedá;/ kaðaalika/ iize/ kubarata/ hirfa iyi. ‘Then he was sent to a smithy to learn to forge gold and silver; similarly he did not learn this skill.’

Khkalantha khuweleja izigo/ iluyo/ skhaadiri/ na khchiimbilá/ skhaadiri/ kaðaalika. ‘I cannot stay and be a burden on you nor can I flee from you either.’

kh-kaðiba

v. (cf. kh-kiðiba) (kaðibiile) deny

Hasani/ mkaðibile Omari/ kooðiye/ hadiile/ Omari/ ni maafakhi. or kaaðibu ‘Hasan has denied what Omari said; he said: Omari is a liar.’

rel.

kh-kaðibisha v. caus. deny

Wazuungu/ wachiwakaðibisha mitume. ‘The infidels used to call the prophets liars (denying the truth of their words).’

kh-kaðiboowa v. pass. be denied, called a liar

Huseeni/ jawaabu/ yaa ye/ hadiiló/ ka tarafu ya Ahmadi/ kuwa ni mwiizi/ kaðibiila/ na waant^hu/ wont^he. ‘Huseeni, the thing that he said concerning Ahmadi, that he was a thief, has been denied by all people.’

Muunt^hu/ khkaðiboowa/ bilaa sababu/ siwo/ suura/ chiint^hu/ husulowa kuyakhinishoowa. ‘For a person to be called a liar without reason is not good, something should be made sure of (before being expressed etc.).’

kaðibo

n. denial

kaaðibu (ma-)

adj. one who lies; n. 5/6 a liar

Mi/ takuwa kaaðibu/ kanaa mi/ chi’ink^hira/ kuwaa si/ chiwanayo baashaali/ niingi. ‘I would be a liar if I denied that we had a lot of fun.’

Omari/ ni kaaðibu. ‘Omari is a liar.’

Omari/ ni kaaðibu/ mkulu/ lila/ hakooði/ ba. ‘Omaari is a big liar, he never speaks truthfully.’

Wo/ ni makaaðibu. ‘They are liars.’

kaðiido

n. 9/10 fever, stroke, malaria

Chijike chizeele/ icho/ shkasizopo kuwa uko sul^htaani/ huvi^hlowa Hashiindriki/ shchishikowa kaðiido/ ya khsula kumwona/ sul^htaani/ oyo. ‘When that old woman heard that there was a sultan who was called He Cannot Be Defeated, she was gripped by a fever of wanting to see that sultan.’

Imwanzize kaðiido. ‘He began to have a fever.’

Kaðiido iyi/ imshishilee yana. ‘The fever caught him yesterday.’

khshikowa kaðiido ‘to have a fever’

Yana/ masku/ Haliima/ mwaanawe/ shishi^hla kaðiido/ shkolola. ‘Last night Haliima’s child had fever, (s)he was coughing.’

mwaana/ chiwanayo kaðiido ‘if a child has a fever’

rel.

mi-kaðiido n. fever, malaria

kh-kafana

v. [Sw. kafini SSED 165] (kafaniile) wrap in a shroud (although the phrase khtila kafani is more commonly used than the simple verb)

variant form:

kh-kafina v. (kafiniile) wrap in a shroud

kafani

n. shroud

hachi^hlati muuyi wiitu shtiloowa papa kafani [nt.] ‘we won’t leave our town, we will die here -- lit. let us be put in a shroud here’

Kafani/ haymeroowi/ ka mayti. ‘A shroud is not sought after from a dead man.’ (A proverb, suggesting that one does not go to a poor man for help.)

Mayti/ nt^hasa ya kuzikoowa/ hoshoo^hwa/ hutilo^hwa kafani. ‘The corpse before burying is washed and is put in a kafani.’

- kafaara (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. kafara SSED 165] religious sacrifice, offering kafaara sfaanye shuruuti [song] ‘don’t resort to offerings’ kafaara we takuziwo [song] ‘it is you who will conceal the offering’ kh̄inda kafaara ‘to slaughter an animal as a sacrifice’ kh̄tomola kafaara ‘to perform a religious sacrifice, make an offering of money’
Is̄laamu/ chiza kh̄fulisha ah̄di/ hum̄lazima kh̄tomola kafaara. ‘A Muslim if he breaks a promise, it becomes a must for him to pay kafaara.’
sina taakha ya kaafara [song] ‘I have no means to make an offering’
- kafe n. coffee; [pron. kafé]
Omari/ haani/ kafé. [HH!!H] ‘Omari does not drink coffee.’
- kafelaate n. [Fr. café au lait] coffee with milk (more milk than coffee) Mgahawa wa Kafe Naziyonaale/ Mkhodiisho/ zamaani/ ichuzowa kafelaate. ‘At the restaurant Cafe Naziyonaale in Mogadisho in olden times coffee au lait was sold.’
- kaafi adj. enough, sufficient, adequate (with mass nouns only) chakuja kaafi ‘enough food’ iziwa kaafi ‘enough milk’
mayi kaafi ‘enough water’
- kaafiri (ma-) n. [Sw. kafiri SSED 165; Ar.] an infidel, one of a different religion from oneself (i.e. from Islam) kh̄u’ink’īro ni kaafiri/ nt’ana imaani shaahiri [poem] ‘whoever rejects you is an unbeliever who lacks true faith’ Makaafiri/ ni ah̄lū naari/ hingila āḁabuuni. ‘Infidels, those who do not follow God’s commandments, are the people of hellfire, they go to hell.’
Msaafiri/ kaafiri. ‘A traveler is an infidel.’ (A proverb, referring to the fact that by traveling, one is putting oneself in a position where one may be forced to violate one of the tenets of Islam out of necessity.)
takuwaara mūlooni kūla kaafiri [st.] ‘he will be in hell forever every infidel’
- i-kafiri ya ilu n. a kind of owl that is considered to be a bird of ill-omen; it is believed to cause convulsions in a new-born child if it happens to settle on the roof of the house in which the child is lying
- kaflehe interj. expression of disgust, disapproval
- kaflehe adj. shameless; someone not embarrassed by anything that he does Munt’u uyu/ ni kaflehe. ‘This man is shameless.’
Ni munt’u kaflehe/ hafanyi wajibuwé. ‘He is a shameless person who does not carry out his duties.’ (Phon. While a negative verb is ordinarily final in a phrase, this is not necessarily the case when it is a relative verb.)
Ni want’u kaflehe. ‘They are shameless people.’
- kaftani n. joking
Kaftani niingi/ huletaa dhibu. ‘Too much joking brings problems.’ (A proverb.)

- kaafu/ na nuuni an expression deriving from the Arabic letters “kaaf” and “nuun” which are separated only by the letter “miim” in the alphabet sequence; [pron. kaafu/ na nuuní] kubiga kaafu/ na nuuní ‘[lit.] to hit k and n -- i.e. to embarrass’ mabeena/ kaafu/ na nuuní ‘(lit.) between “k” and “n” – i.e. in a very short time, in no time at all’
- kh-kagata v. (kageete) become hard, dried up, stiff (as a corpse); shrivel, wither (of flowers, e.g.) Ishaka iyi/ ikageete/ ka sababu/ mayi la’aani. ‘This tree is withered/dried/hardened because of lack of water.’ Maandra/ izi/ skalen^{the} niingi/ ha^{ta}/ skageete. ‘This (lit. these) bread stayed for too long, it became dry/hard.’ Mayti ya Nuuru/ ikageete ka iwa. ‘Nuuru’s corpse became dried up by the sun.’ rel. kh-kagisha v. caus. make hard, stiff
- kah(a)fi n. 9/0 cave As.haabu/ al^kahfi/ wawaalimo/ karka kahfi/ miyaaka/ al^fu. ‘The companions of the cave were inside a cave for one thousand years.’ suura/ ya kahfi ‘the suura of the cave; the suura in the Quran that tells the story of the as.haabu/ al^kahfi ‘the companions of the cave’ Suura/ ya kahfi/ ni suura/ hukoda tarafu/ ya waant^hu/ wa’ingilo itundruuni (or: karka ituundru/ waleeló/ miyaaka/ al^fu. ‘The suura of the cave is a suura (of the Quran). It speaks concerning the people who entered into a cave (and) slept (there) for a thousand years.’ (This example is of some interest as in Chimiini, a true relative verb triggers a final accent that extends to the end of the verb phrase that the relative verb heads. In the present example, we see that it is possible for a time adverbial like miyaaka/ al^fu ‘a thousand years’ to fall outside the scope of the final accent of the relative verb, at least in the case where this verb is emphasized and thus at the end of a phonological phrase.) rel. al^kahfi n. [Ar.] As.haabu/ al^kahfi/ wawaalimo/ itundruuni/ miyaaka/ al^fu. ‘The companions of the cave (in Christian mythology known as the “Seven Sleepers of Ephesus”) were in the cave for a thousand years.’ as.habu^l kahfi n. [Ar.] companions of the cave As.habu^l kahfi/ wawaaliko/ ni waant^hu/ adadi yaawo/ saha/ hayisoowi. ‘The companions of the cave were people whose whose number is not exactly known.’
- kah(a)fi (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. kahafi SSED 166; Ar.] the top, center piece of the white skull cap made in Brava (the round headband part is called mshaaðara) Kofiya iyi/ nakhshi ya kahfi/ suura. ‘This skullcap, the design of its kahfi, is good.’ Nakhshi/ za kahfi/ Miini/ schifanyoowa/ ka wa kohaati^mu. ‘The designs of kahfi in Miini were made (in the homes) of the Hatimi.’
- kh-kahata v. (kaheete) hate, dislike Hafsa/ hukahata mwaanawe/ kubigoowa. ‘Hafsa hates for her child to be beaten (by anyone).’ Cf. Hafsa/ hukahata kumbiga mwaanawe. ‘Nuuru hates to beat her child.’ Hukahata/ kumulila Omari/ chiint^hu. ‘(I) hate to buy something for Omari.’ Ibraahimu/ hukahatani. ‘What does Ibraahimu hate/ dislike? (A possible answer: Ibraahimu/ hukahata Faatma/ koloka (or: ku^lawa) ka hima. ‘Ibraahimu dislikes Faatma’s leaving early/ quickly.’) Ibraahimu / kaheete zibuku izi/ khsomoowa. ‘Ibraahimu hated for these books to be read.’ Jaama/ hukahatani. ‘What does Jaama dislike?’ Jaama/ hukahatani/ nt^ho. ‘What does Jaama hate most?’ Jaama/ nakhkahatani/ nt^ho. ‘What does Jaama hate most?’ Khadija / hukahatani. ‘What does Khadija dislike?’ Mi/ hukahata kinenza masku. ‘I hate to drive at night.’ Mi/ hukahata kinenza nvulaani. ‘I hate driving in the rain.’

Mi/ hukahaṭa/ ku'insha maduriini. 'I hate living in the bush.'

Mi/ hukahaṭa/ kuwaa mi/ nshikamene na muke mo/ tu. 'I hate being tied down to one woman.'

Mi/ hukahaṭa/ Muusa/ kun'ink'hira. 'I hate for Muusa to ignore me.'

Mi/ hukahaṭa/ Nuuru/ kendra skolaani. 'I hate for Nuuru to go to school.'

Mi/ hukahaṭa Nuuru/ kurashmanyana na Hasani. 'I hate for Nuuru to go with Hasani.' Or with focus on the main verb: Mi/ hukahaṭa/ Nuuru/ kurashmanyana na Hasani.

Mi/ humkahaṭa Ghazaali. 'I hate Ghazaali.' Or with focus on the verb: Mi/ humkahaṭa/ Ghazaali. (Note that the habitual verb does not have a subject prefix, consisting just of the habitual element hu and the macrostem. Accent is always the default penultimate accent.)

Mi/ nk'ahete kooloká. 'I hated going.'

Mi/ simkahaṭi/ ye/ ka chiza kunaamina/ mi. 'I do not hate him for not believing me.'

Muyiini/ want^hu/ wamkaheete/ na kiḷa chimwonó/ chintuusha/ nakumtelezá/ kama muunt^hu/ mwa nda wazimu. 'In the town people hated him and everyone who saw him derided him and teased him as being a crazy person.'

Nakhkahaṭaa mi/ neendre. 'He dislikes that I go.'

Nuuru/ hiskahaṭa kizisonga mbwa izi. 'Nuuru hates them to go near these dogs.' (It is interesting to notice that the main verb and the infinitival complement are marked with an object marker in agreement with the plural noun mbwa. It is noteworthy that MI did not accept a sentence like Nuuru/ hiskahaṭa mbwa izi/ kizisoonga. He did accept: Nuuru/ hukahaṭa mbwa izi/ khsongoowa. 'Nuuru hates for these dogs to be approached.' However, in this sentence he did not accept the main verb to have an object marker agreeing with mbwa: Nuuru/ hiskahaṭa mbwa izi/ khsongoowa.)

Nuuru/ hukahaṭa kumsonga mbwa uyu. 'Nuuru hates to go near this dog.'

Nuuru/ wakaheetó/ wana wa Omari. 'It is Nuuru who hates Omari's children.'

Omari/ hukahaṭa wanaafakhi. 'Omari hates lies.' Or: Omari/ hukahaṭa/ wanaafakhi. 'Omari hates lies.'

Omari/ hukahaṭa wanaafakhi/ so. 'Omari hates lies, doesn't he? Does Omari hate lies (I have some reason for thinking he does)?' (The pitch on so noticeably falls. When it is separated from the preceding accent by a toneless syllable, there is lowering of the so. Such lowering is not observed when the immediately preceding syllable bears the accent.)

Omari/ huwakahata wana wa Nuuru. 'Omari hates Nuuru's children.' (The yes-no question version of this sentence involves just Q-raising: Omari/ huwakahata wana wa Nuuru? The exclamatory question, on the other hand, does not have Q-raising, and shifts the accent of the final phrase to the end: Omari/ huwakahata wana wa Nuuru!?)

Omari/ huwakahata wana wa Nuuru/ so. 'Omari hates Nuuru's children, doesn't he? Does Omari hate Nuuru's children (somehow it seems he does, observing his behavior)?'

Simkahaṭé/ muunt^hu/ chikhambila liḷa. 'Don't hate someone when he tells you the truth.' (A proverb.)

Sink'ahaṭé/ nt'asa yaa we/ kuniwa. 'Do not hate me before you know me.' (A translation of a Somali proverb.)

Want^hu/ wa'anzize kumkahaṭa. 'People began to hate him.'

Ye/ hukahaṭa/ koshaa nguwo. She hates washing clothes.

Ye/ hukahaṭa Nuuru/ khfanyaa nk^heḷe. 'He dislikes Nuuru making noise.'

Ye/ nakhkahaṭa kuwa Faatma/ hakhaadiri. 'He hates that Faatma is sick.'

rel.

kh-kahaṭana v. rec. hate each other kh-kahaṭanoowa v. rec. pass.

kh-kahaṭika v. p/s.

kh-kahaṭila v. appl. (kahaṭiliile) hate for s.t. to happen; reason for hating

Mi/ khukahaṭiliile we/ khtuluka imtihaani. 'I hate for you to fail the examination.'

Naambila/ we/ namkahaṭilani. 'Tell me, why do you hate him?'

Nnamkahaṭila kurashmanyana na munt^hu uyu. 'I hate for him to be associated with this man.'

kh-kahaṭisha v. caus. cause to hate

Ji/ mkahaṭishize mwaana/ waant^hu. ‘Ji caused the child to hate people.’ (It is also possible to omit the overt causee: Ji/ mkahaṭishize waant^hu. ‘Ji caused him to hate people.’ This sentence is acceptable due to the fact that the singular OM marker clearly refers to a causee while waant^hu refers to the logical object. It is not possible, however, to omit the OM: Ji/ kahaṭishize waant^hu. Nor is it possible to say: Ji/ mkahaṭishize muunt^hu. This sentence is unacceptable since the OM cannot be understood as referring to the causee while muunt^hu is understood as referring to the logical object; muunt^hu must be understood as a co-referential causee with the OM, but it is unacceptable to omit the logical object from the sentence.)

Nkahaṭishize waant^hu/ wote. ‘He made me hate everyone.’ (One can also use the periphrastic construction: Nṭile khkahaṭa waant^hu/ wote. ‘He made me hate everyone (lit. instilled in me to hate everyone).’ Cf. Watile waant^hu/ kunk^haṭa. ‘He made people hate me.’) kh-kahaṭishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-kahaṭishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-kahaṭishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-kahaṭoowa v. pass.

Abunawaasi/ shkahaṭoowa/ nt^ho/ na waant^hu/ karka muuyi/ wa

Baghdaadi. ‘Abunawaasi was hated very much by the people in the town of Baghdad.’

Basi/ hattá/ leelo/ maskiini/ hukahaṭoowa/ ndiyé/ tu/ uko numbaani. ‘So, until today, [this] poor [girl] is hated, she is the only one who stays in the house [all the time, like Cinderella].’

Desturi iyi/ hukahaṭowa naami. ‘This custom is hated by me.’

Hukahaṭoowa. ‘Someone or something is hated.’

Mbwa izi/ skahaṭa khsongowa na Nuuru. ‘These dogs were hated to be gone near to by Nuuru -- i.e. Nuuru hated for anyone to go near to these dogs.’

Mukeewe/ shkahaṭoowa. ‘His wife was hated.’

Muunt^hu/ hakahaṭoowi/ kaa dhibu. ‘One is not hated because he has problems, troubles, etc.’ (A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ kulomba niingi/ hukahaṭoowa. ‘A person’s begging a lot is hated.’ (A proverb.)

Nsi izi/ skahaṭa na waant^hu/ wote. ‘These fish are hated by everyone.’

Qanuni iyi/ hukahaṭowa naami. ‘This custom is hated by me.’

Wana wa Omari/ wakaheṭa/ na Nuuru. ‘Omari’s children are hated by Nuuru.’

rel. nom.

ma-kahaṭano n. 6

Izi/ zote/ hazileeti/ shokuwa makahaṭano/ na ziwovú/ na mara niingi/ huba’idisha want^hu wa nt^hi mooyi/ na huziida/ ufisqi/ ufasaadi/ rashwa/ na ziwovu zinginezé. ‘All of these things do not bring anything except hatred of one another, and evil, and many times separates people belonging to one country, and increases corruption, immorality, bribery and other evils.’

kahawa

n. 9 [Sw. kahawa SSED 166; Ar.] coffee

buni za kahawa ‘coffee beans’ kahawa haraaris ‘bitter coffee (made with coffee husks, no sugar added)’ kahawa ka suukari coffee with sugar added’ kahawaa nk^havu ‘coffee without milk and sugar (lit. dry coffee)’ kahawa ya tangawiizi ‘a beverage made by brewing dried powder of ginger with sugar added’ kahawa yaa we/ mpheeló ‘the coffee that you gave me’ khtila kahawa ‘to pour coffee’; also: khtilila kahawa, khntililowa kahawa, khtilika kahawa

Haliima/ namtilila waawaye/ kahawa/ ka suukari. ‘Haliima is pouring coffee with sugar for her father.’

Tarmusi iyi/ ha’itiliki/ kahawa/ huvuuya/ yimo nt^huundru. ‘One cannot pour coffee into this thermos, it is leaking, it has a hole in it.’

- Wazeele/ wanakhtililowa kahawa/ ya tangawiizi/ kunelelaa buru. ‘Elders are being poured for “ginger coffee” to drink with donuts.’
- Mi/ naami/ noloshele ka mwaarabu/ oyo/ laakini/ mi/ nnele kahawa. ‘I too went to that Arab but I drank coffee.’
- Nuuru/ nele kahawa/ na Muusa/ chaayi. ‘Nuuru drank coffee and Muusa tea.’
- Omari/ haani/ kahawa. [HH!!H] ‘Omari does not drink coffee.’ (If one wants to put emphasis on the complement kahawa, it can be preposed: Hamadi/ kahawa/ haani. [HH!!H] ‘Hamadi coffee does not drink.’ Notice that when kahawa is in post-verbal position, the negative verb is not downstepped. But when kahawa is preposed, the negative verb is radically downstepped. This emphasis on kahawa does not constitute focus on the complement. Focus would be expressed as follows: Omari/ hani kahawa. [H!H] ‘Hamadi does not drink coffee.’ Here, there is no phrasal break between the negative verb and the complement.)
- Omari/ haani/ kahawa. [[↑]H!H!!H] ‘Omari does not drink coffee.’ (Notice that this sentence differs from the initial sentence in the preceding data set just in intonation. Emphasis is placed on the subject by pitch raising; this raising means that the following verb must drop in pitch. The complement to the negative verb still shows radical downstep.)
- Omari/ haani/ kahawa/ masku. [HH!H!!H] ‘Omari does not drink coffee at night.’ (The simple yes-no question version of this: Omari/ haani/ kahawa/ masku?)
- Omari/ haani/ kahawa/ masku. [[↑]H!H!!H!H] ‘Omari does not drink coffee at night.’
- Omari/ kahawa/ haani/ masku. [HH!H!!H] ‘Omari coffee does not drink at night.’
- Omari/ masku/ haani/ kahawa. [HH!H!!H] ‘Omari at night does not drink coffee.’
- shkombe cha kahawa ‘a cup of coffee’
- Sultaani/ mukhtaa ye/ malizo kubigoowa/ oyo/ mwaarabu/ chimuza/ ndo/ nakhsuula/ kuna kahawa. ‘The king, when he was finished being beaten, that Arab asked him: come, do you want to drink coffee?’
- Sultaani/ mwenopo mgarwa/ chimweegsha/ chimpa kahawa/ kuna. ‘When the sultan saw the fisherman, he welcomed him and gave him coffee to drink.’
- Wanele kahawa. ‘They drank coffee.’

kaahini (ma-)

- n. [Sw. kahini SSED 166; Ar.] rabbi, soothsayer, deceiver
- Ka khisa/ mi/ nimvilile kaahini/ kundrangalila/ mahala we/ zimiilo. ‘Because I called a soothsayer to look for the place where you were hidden.’
- Oyo sulaa/ chimvula/ kaahini/ mooyi/ chimwaambila/ mi/ nnakhsuula we/ kundrangalila/ kuniwila/ maha/ ya Abunawaasi/ zimiilo. ‘That sultan invited a soothsayer and said to him: I want you to practice soothsaying for me to learn for me the place where Abunawaasi is hidden.’

kajini (ma-)

- n. (cf. i-jini and chi-jini) indirect speech
- kubiga (ma)kajini ‘to talk about s.o. but indirectly, not directly (e.g. attributing s.t. to x while really meaning y); to speak to someone, making one’s points indirectly’
- Nakubiga makajini. ‘I am speaking indirectly.’
- Omari/ mkali/ kubiga makajini. ‘Omari is good at talking indirectly about people.’
- kubigila (ma)kajini ‘to talk about s.o. but indirectly, not directly (e.g. attributing s.t. to x while really meaning y)’
- Omari/ nakumbigila mi/ makajini. ‘Omari is saying things about me (indirectly, not coming right out and saying it).’
- kubigowa (ma)kajini ‘for there to be talking indirectly about s.o.’
- Numba iyo/ hubigowa makajini/ tu. ‘That house is one where there is always talking about people indirectly going on.’
- Hamadi/ makajiniye/ miingi. ‘Hamadi, his talking about people in an indirect manner is a lot.’

kaaka

- to my place, at my; for, to me
- Ali/ simeme lwavuuni/ kaaka. ‘Ali stood at my side.’

Chendra ka waawe/ simwaambilé/ kuwaa we/ mwene mwanaamké/ numbaani/ kaaká. ‘If you go to my father, don’t tell him that you have seen a girl at my house.’

Kaaka/ nt^haku/ chint^hu chizito. ‘For me there is nothing difficult.’

Mi/ hutosha/ kuwaa ye/ waliko kaalme/ nk^hulu/ kaaka. ‘I think he was a big help to me.’

Mtungiini/ kaaka/ kata/ hayiingili. ‘In my water jar a ladle cannot enter.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is nt^hupa ‘bottle’.)

Muusa/ ile/ numbaani/ kaaka. ‘Muusa came to my house.’

Nfakete mtanaani/ kaaká. ‘I ran into my room.’ Or: Nfakete kaaká/ mtanaani. (MG did not accept a pronunciation of the second sentence where the locative noun was out-of-focus: Nfakete kaaká/ mtanaani.)

Numbaani/ kaaka/ unga/ hawkosekani. ‘In my house flour is never lacking.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ivu ‘ashes’.)

We/ ile numbaani/ kaaká. ‘You came to my house.’ Or: We/ ilé/ numbaani/ kaaka. ‘You came to my house.’

rel.

sh-kaaka adv. in my way, manner

kakalila

adj. [cf. lila] true

kakalilaka ‘(what I said) is true, correct’ kakalilake ‘(what he or she said) is true, correct’

kakalilako ‘(what you said) is true, correct’

Kamaa we/ ni kakalila/ nakhsuulá khkoða naami/ songa mlangooni. ‘If you are sincere in wanting to talk with me, come to the door.’

Maamé/ ni kakalila/ kuwaa si/ wotte/ chilazile karka mimba mooyi/ kuwaa si/ wawa yiitu/ na mama yiitu/ ni mooyi/ laakini/ qalbi/ ziitu/ siwo/ mooyi. ‘My mother, it is true that we all came from one stomach, that our father and our mother are one, but our hearts are not one.’

Sultaani/ malizopo khsomaa khatí// chihada/ ni/ kakalilako/ Ali/ we uzize ghaali/ nt^hukuuzá/ rakhiisi. ‘When the sultan finished reading the letter, he said, what you said is true, Ali, you sold dear, you did not sell cheap.’

Kakamoole

n. the location of the factory where shoes were made in Brava, now no longer active Warshada/ ya zilaatu/ ya Kakamoole/ want^hu/ washfanya kaazi/ kana/ makiina. ‘(In) the shoe industry, factory of Kakamoole, people worked like a machine.’

kh-kakanya

v. (kakanyiize) pour all of something from one container to another; exchange, trade; change money (into smaller denominations, coins; cf. khsurufa which has this same sense of changing money into smaller units, but is also used to mean to change one type of money into another, e.g. dollars to euros)

bangi ya Omari/ kakanyizo peesá ‘the bank at which Omari exchanged the money’

Hamadi/ kakanyize maayi/ ibaldiiini. ‘Hamadi poured water into the bucket.’

Hamadi/ kakanyize maayi/ karka ibaldi(ini). ‘Hamadi poured water from the bucket.’

ibaldi ya Hamadi/ kakanyizo maayi ‘the bucket that Hamadi poured water from’ ibaldi ya Hamadi/ kakanyizo maayi/ katiiki ‘the bucket that Hamadi poured water into’ mayi ya Hamadi/ kakanyizo ibaldiini ‘the water that Hamadi poured into the bucket’

Omari/ kakanyize peesa/ bangiini. ‘Omari exchanged money at the bank.’

rel.

kh-kakanyika v.

khkakanyika/ kana maayi ‘to pour out like water – i.e. to come out in a large quantity’

Waant^hu/ wanakhhkakanyika kana maayi. ‘People keep on coming (e.g. at a gathering, people keep coming and coming).’

khkakanyika kanaa nvula ‘to pour out like rain’

Waant^hu/ wanakhhkakanyika kanaa nvula. ‘People keep coming and coming like rain.’

kh-kakanyiliza v. appl. exchange for, pour for Omari/ mkakanyilize mwaana/ maayi/ ibaldiini. ‘Omari poured water into the bucket for the child.’

kh-kakanyilizoowa v. appl. pass.

Mwaana/ kakanyiliza maayi/ ibaldiini/ na Omari. ‘[Lit.] The child was poured-for water into the bucket by Omari (i.e. the child was the beneficiary of the pouring).’

kh-kakanyoowa v. pass. be poured from one container to another; be exchanged

Maayi/ yakakanyiza ibaldiini. ‘The water was poured into a bucket.’

i-kakasi

n. a metal jar

variant: mkakasi

Haliima/ tile makashaṭa/ na zinaazi/ mkakasiini. ‘Halima put makashaṭa and zinaazi in the metal jar.’

kaake

at or to his/her/its (place), for, to, from him/her

Ali/ simeme lwavuuni/ kaake. ‘Ali stood at his side.’

Baduwi/ chilawa/ koloka kaake. ‘The nomad left to go to his place.’

Chimaliza/ mwaana/ chingila mṭanaani/ kaake/ shfuunga/ mlaangowe. ‘Then the boy went into his room and closed its door.’

Chiruda kaake/ numbaani. ‘He returned to his home.’

Chizeele/ choondroka/ chi’irudila kaake. ‘The old woman got up and went back to her place.’

Eelo/ shtukula/ almaasi/ iyo/ kanaani/ kaake. ‘The gazelle carried this diamond in his mouth.’

Endra numbaani. ‘Go home!’

Endra/ numbaani/ kaake. ‘Go to his house!’ or: Endra numbaani/ kaake.

Fakeṭe mṭanaani/ kaake. ‘He ran into his room.’

gari ya Ali/ simemo lwavuuni/ kaaké ‘the car that Ali stood at its side’ muke waa ye/ andishiloo khaṭi/ kaaké ‘the woman whom he wrote a letter to (her)’ (cf. muke waa ye/ andishiloo khaṭi/ kaaké/ numbaani ‘the woman whose home he wrote a letter at’)

Huseeni/ chimlata/ chimaliza chi’irudila kaake/ jahaziini. ‘Huseeni let him go and then went back to his dhow.’

muke waa ye/ leseloo khaṭi/ kaaké ‘the woman to whom he brought a letter’ (cf.

muke waa ye/ leseloo khaṭi/ kaaké/ numbaani ‘the woman whom he brought a letter to her house’.)

Muunt^hu/ chiint^hu/ hulangaḷa ka kaake. ‘A man discovers things from his home.’ (A proverb.)

Mwaalimu/ khaṭi iyi/ ilazile (ka) kaake. ‘The teacher, this letter came from him.’

Mwaalimu/ khaṭi iyi/ ilazilo (ka) kaaké/ ni mweenzawa. ‘The teacher that this letter came from him is my friend.’ (This construction is preferred over mwajimu wa khaṭi iyi/ ilazilo (ka) kaaké ‘the teacher who this letter came from him’.)

Noloshelé/ numbaani/ kaake. ‘I went to his house.’ or: Noloshelé numbaani/ kaaké. rel.

sh-kaake adv. in his/her/its way, manner

Fanyize shkaaka. ‘He did it in his usual manner.’

kaaki

n. [Sw. kaki SSED 167; Pers.] khaki
Chiguwo cha kaaki/ ni chuumu/ hachaatuki/ ka sahali. ‘Khaki cloth is tough, it does not get torn easily.’
Hamadi/ veete/ surwaani/ ya kaaki. ‘Hamadi wore khaki trousers.’ Or: Hamadi/ vete surwaani/ ya kaaki.
Omari/ uzile shaati/ kalooraye/ nda kaaki. ‘Omari bought a shirt, its color is of khaki.’

l-kaaki (n-)

n. 11/10 [Sw. kaki SSED 167; Pers.] a kind of pancake with onion and salt added, cooked on an oiled pan; [pron. nk^haaki (pl.)] Haliima/ mpele Omari/ lkaaki lmooyi/ kuja. ‘Haliima gave Omari one pancake to eat.’
Haliima/ pishile nk^haaki/ za unga/ wa khamadi. ‘Haliima cooked pancakes made of wheat flour.’

kaako

at or to your (place); for you Ali/ simeme lwavuuni/ kaako. ‘Ali stood at your side.’
Chibigile telefeno/ si/ chinakhsula khukasá/ kaakó. ‘Telephone us, we want to hear from you.’
Kaako/ ni mahalaamp^hi ‘Where is your place?’
Kaako/ yiikopi. ‘Where is your place?’
Luti khiinfó/ ni limo kaakó/ mkonooni/ silaaha/ ni ije/ yimo mkonooni. ‘The stick that is of use to you is the one that is in your hand, a weapon is the thing that is in your hand.’ (A proverb.)
Mi/ mubliwá/ na’iwá/ kuwaa ye/ shfanya kaazi/ kaakó. ‘My husband, I know that he worked for you.’
numbaani/ kaako ‘in your house’
Osmaani/ uko kaako. ‘Osmaani is at your place.’ Cf. Osmaani/ uko kaakó. ‘It is Osmaani who is at your place.’
Osmaani/ uko numbaani/ kaako. ‘Osmaani is at your house.’ Or: Osmaani/ uko kaako/ numbaani. ‘It is Osmaani who is at your house.’ Or: Osmaani/ uko kaakó/ numbaani. ‘It is Osmaani who is at your house.’ (Observe that when the subject is focused, both numbaani and kaako must shift to final accent, regardless of the order in which they occur. It is important to note that our consultant rejected any sentence where just numbaani or just kaako has final accent: Osmaani/ uko kaakó/ numbaani. Or: Osmaani/ uko numbaani/ kaako.) Tukiileni/ kaako/ chiwovuuni? ‘What are you carrying in your pocket?’
We/ hukhadira kaanza/ kaako/ numbaani. ‘You can begin in your (own) home.’
rel.
sh-kaako adv. in your way, manner

kh-kala

v. [cf. Sw. kwa "strike the foot against an object" SSED 234] (kaliile) press, tread, step on, trample; squeeze, choke; force s.o. to buy at a high cost; go, leave Humkala. ‘It chokes him.’
khkala chimargi ‘to choke, strangle someone, abuse someone’
Ijini chuuluka/ kumkala Hasani/ chimargi. ‘The djinn jumped and choked Hasani.’
Mkalilo Omari/ chimargi/ ni Huseeni. ‘The one who choked Omari is Huseeni.’
Nimkaliile chimargi. ‘I choked him.’
Nimkaliile mwaaná/ chimargi. ‘I choked the child.’
Omari/ mkalile Sheekhi/ chimargi/ khariibu/ kumubla. ‘Omari choked Sheekhi almost to the point of killing him.’
Waa mi/ nimkaliile chimargi/ ni mwaana. ‘The one whom I choked is the child.’
khkala chita chaa noka ‘to press or stand on a snake’s head – i.e. to do dangerous things and then get hurt’

Muunt^hu/ chiza kuwa tahaðari/ kilaa mara/ chingila ghalta/ akhiriye/ hukala chita chaa noka. ‘If a person is not careful and always makes a mistake, his end is that he steps on a snake’s head (i.e. gets into real trouble, danger).’

khkala (ka) iteke ‘to stamp on, trample with the foot’

Ali/ nk^halile ka iteke. ‘Ali stepped on me with his foot.’

khkala kaa nguvu ‘to press hard’

khkala ka tartiibu ‘to press softly’

Maandra/ imkalile mwaana/ (imilo). ‘Bread choked the child (in the throat)

– i.e. the child choked on the bread.’

Nk^halile. ‘He forced me to buy it at a high price.’

Omari/ kaliile. ‘Omari left, went away.’

Omari/ nakhkala. ‘Omari is leaving, going.’

rel.

kh-kalana v. rec. (kaleene)

Wakalene zimargi. ‘They choked each other.’

kh-kalika v. p/s.

Hakaliki. ‘He cannot be stepped on (e.g. without causing lots of trouble, etc.).’

kh-kakalila v. appl. (kaliliile)

Nk^halilile mwaana/ ka iteke. ‘He stamped on my child.’

kh-kalisha v. caus. make stamp or press down; make someone buy at a high price; force s.o. to choke s.o. (Note that this causative form cannot be used to convey the notion ‘cause someone to choke on s.t.’, thus the unacceptability of a sentence like Bakari/ mkalishize mwaana/ maandra/ imilo. ‘Bakari caused the child to choke on bread.’)

Nk^halishize mwaana/ chimargi. ‘He made me choke the child.’

kh-kalishana v. caus. rec.

kh-kalishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-kalishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-kalishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-kaliza v. appl.

Fikhirini/ mkalize Hamadi/ nguwo/ sandukhuuni. ‘Fikhirini squeezed the clothes into the box for Hamadi.’

kh-kaloowa v. pass. (kaliila)

Mwaana/ kalila imilo/ na maandra. ‘The child was choked by bread – i.e. the child choked on bread.’

kh-kaza v. [Sw. kaza SED 180] (kaziize) press s.t. into s.t., cram s.t. full, put in by force, tighten; hit s.t. forcefully with s.t.

Ali/ kazizee nguwo/ sandukhuuni. ‘Ali squeezed the clothes into the box.’

Or: Ali/ kazize sandukhu/ nguwo.

Aamina/ nakiskazaa nguwo/ armajooni. ‘Aamini is stuffing the clothes into the cupboard.’

Chisula kuwa taajiri/ kaza lkaandra. ‘If you want to be rich, tighten your belt.’ (A proverb.)

Kaza lkaandra/ kazá. ‘Tighten your belt, that’s what you should do.’ (This example illustrates that an imperative verb can be copied as a relative verb in the phenomenon we call Verb Repetition.)

Kazaa nt^ho/ musmaari/ nt^hunduuni. ‘Drive the nail into the hole!’ (Note that the intensifier nt^ho may occur in IAV position and phrase with the verb.

khkaza lkaambala ‘to make a rope fast’

Nguwo/ nt^ho/ kaza borsaani. ‘The cloth, very, stuff it into the bag.’

Nimkazize Suufi/ kaa ndruti. ‘I hit Suufi with a stick.’

^fNt^ho/ kazá. ‘Push it in hard!’ (Note the pre-verbal nt^ho is focused and requires the verb to be in a pseudo-relative form, even though an imperative verb does not appear in ordinary relative clauses.)

^fNt^ho/ kaza musmaari. ‘Drive in the nail harder!’ Or: ^fNt^ho/ kazá/ musmaari.

^fNt^ho/ kaza musmaari/ nt^hunduuni. ‘Drive the nail into the hole!’ Or with verb emphasis: ^fNt^ho/ kazá/ musmaari/ nt^hunduuni. (Note that with verb emphasis, the Accentual Law of Focus comes into play and restricts the final accent to the verb itself.)

Omari/ kazize borsaaani/ nguwo/ nt^{ho}. ‘Omari stuffed into the bag the cloth very much.’

Omari/ kazize m̄taana/ majuuniya. ‘Omari filled the room with sacks.’

Or: Omari/ kazize majuuniya/ m̄tanaani. ‘Omari packed sacks into the room.’

Omari/ nakhkaza/ ruuhuye/ mnangooni. ‘Omari pushed himself through the door, squeezed himself through the door.’

Omari/ nakhkaza zibuuku/ borsaaani. ‘Omari is stuffing the books into the bag.’ Or: Omari/ nakhkaza borsaaani/ zibuuku. But can also have an unmarked noun: Omari/ nakhkaza boorsa/ zibuuku. ‘Omari stuffed the bag with books.’ Or: Omari/ nakhkaza zibuuku/ boorsa.

sandukhu ya Ali/ kazizoo nguwo ‘the box that Ali crammed with clothes’

Waant^{hu}/ wakalent^{he} chitiini/ Omari/ ile/ naayé/ nakhkaza/ ruuhuye.

‘People were sitting on a couch and Omari came and squeezed himself in.’

kh-kazan(y)a v. rec. (-kazeen(y)e) squeeze together in a narrow space, be crowded, squeezed into a place; hit each other Wakazenyé m̄tanaani. ‘They crowded into the room.’

Wanakhkazanaa ndruti. ‘They are hitting each other with sticks.’

kh-kazika v. p/s. (-kazishile) be tight

Sanduukhu/ haykaziki. ‘This box cannot have things squeezed into it.’

kh-kazisha v. caus. cause to be crammed full

Ali/ mkazishize m̄waana/ nguwo/ sandukhuuni. ‘Ali caused the child to squeeze the clothes into the box.’

Baana/ kazishize m̄taana/ majuuniya. ‘Baana had the room crammed full with sacks.’ (Syn. Observe that in this example the “causee” is not specified. One does not say: Baana/ kazishize majuuniya m̄taana. Also note that m̄taana cannot control an object prefix the verb: Baana/ ukazishize m̄taana/ majuuniya.)

Baana/ nk^hazishize m̄taana/ majuuniya. ‘Baana had me fill the room with sacks.’ (Syn. Notice that here the “causee” is present in the sentence in the form of an object prefix on the verb. It is not particularly felicitous to have the causee appear in post-verbal position as a full NP: ?Baana/ mkazishize m̄waana/ m̄taana majuuniya. The sentence improves if the causee is topicalized: M̄taana/ Baana/ mkazishize m̄taana/ majuuniya.) kh-kazishana v. caus. rec.

kh-kazishika v. caus. p/s.

Mwana uyu/ hakazishiki/ nguwo/ sandukhuuni. ‘This child cannot be made to squeeze clothes into the box.’

Nguwo izi/ haskazishiki/ sandukhuuni. ‘These clothes cannot be made to be squeezed into the box.’

kh-kashiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-kashilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-kazishoowa v. caus. pass.

Majuuniya/ yakazishiza m̄tanaani. ‘Sacks were caused to be crammed into the room.’ (Syn. Although ordinarily only the “causee” can be the subject of a passive version of a causative verb, if the causee is unexpressed, it is possible to have the logical object as subject, as in the present example. This sentence is possible, however, just in the event the location m̄taana is in its locative form: Majuuniya/ yakazishiza m̄taana. Also, it should be noted that m̄taana cannot be the subject of the passive verb: M̄taana/ ukazishiza majuuniya.)

kh-kazoowa v. be crammed full

M̄taana/ ukaziza majuuniya. ‘The room was crammed full with sacks.’

Or: Majuuniya/ yakaziza m̄tanaani. ‘Sacks were crammed into the room.’ (Syn. One cannot say majuuniya/ yakaziza m̄taana.)

Sanduukhu/ ikazizaa nguwo. ‘The box was crammed full with clothes.’

Suufi/ kazizaa ndruti/ na Ali. ‘Suufi was hit with a stick by Ali.’

- rel. nom.
m-kala (wa-) n. 1/2 one who tramples
m-kalo n. 3
ma-kalo n. 6
u-kalo n. 14
- kalamiita n. [Ital. calamita] magnet (though the more traditional term is chuma cha nk^halaambi ‘[lit.] iron from lightning’)
- kh-kalana v. (kaleene) be stuck in, onto something, be cramped or squeezed into; squeeze through; be tight on someone (This verb could be considered to be an extended form of -kala above, but given the lack of a reciprocal element to its meaning, we have chosen to list it separately.)
- Bangiili/ ink^haleene. ‘The bracelet is tight on me.’
Chibuuku/ shkalene sandukhuuni. ‘The book is stuck in the box.’
khkalana matotopeeni ‘to be stuck in the mud’ Kuulu/ ink^halene iboholiini. ‘My leg is stuck in the hole.’
Meeza/ ikalene mlangooni. ‘The table is stuck in the doorway.’
Mkono/ unk^haleene. ‘My hand is stuck.’
Muusa/ zilaatu/ zimkaleene. ‘The shoes are tight on Muusa.’
Mwaana/ kalene sandukhuuni. ‘The child got stuck in the box.’
Ndriweelé/ kuwa fatuura/ ikalene matotopeeni. ‘I forgot that the car was stuck in the mud.’ Or: Ndriweelé/ fatuura/ kuwa ikalene matotopeeni. Or: Nichiliweelé/ shfatuura/ kuwa skalene matotopeeni. ‘I forgot it the dim. car that it was stuck in the mud.’ Or: Sfatuura/ chiliweela/ kuwa skalene matotopeeni. ‘The dim. car was forgotten that it was stuck in the mud.’
Shpete/ chink^haleene. ‘The ring is stuck on me.’
Waant^hu/ wakalene mtanaani.’ People squeezed into the room.’
Zilaatu/ zink^haleene. ‘The shoes are tight on me.’
- rel.
kh-kalanila v. appl.
Mwaana/ nk^halanilile sandukhuuni. ‘My child got stuck in the box.’
kh-kalanoowa v. pass.
- kalaasi n. class review 1
Kalasi niingi/ hanza sa’aa nt^hatu/ fijiri. ‘Many classes begin at 9 am.’
- kalfaati n. [Sw. kalafati SSED 167; Ar.] caulking cotton kh^htila kalfaati ‘to caulk’ kh^htila mashkilo/ kalfaati ‘to put cotton in the ears -- i.e. to close one’s ears to something’
- kh-kalifa v. [Sw. kalifu “discomfort, cause annoyance to, impose a difficult matter on one, trouble” SSED 168; Ar.] (kalifile) force, compel, impose s.t. on s.o.
Nk^halifile kumrasha Mkhodiisho. ‘He compelled me to follow him to Mogadishu.’
Siwakalifé/ waana. ‘Don’t force the children (to do s.t.)!’
Skalifé/ ruuhuyo/ khtomola peesa. ‘Don’t trouble yourself to pay the money.’
- rel.
kh-kalifila v. appl. cost to Fatura iyi/ ink^halifilile dolari alfuu mbili. ‘This car cost me $2000.’
kh-kalifisha v. caus.
rel. nom.
u-kalifo n. 14
- kaliiifu n. the state of being strained, overburdened

Kaliifu/ siwo/ suura. ‘Being overburdened, strained is not good.’ (A proverbial saying.) review whether this is correctly identified as a proverbial saying

kh-kalīla

v. (-kaliile) seem to, think

Hunk^halīla/ Jeeli/ nakuwa mwaalimu. ‘I think that Jeeli is becoming a teacher.’

Hunk^halīla/ mi/ we/ ni laazimu/ khsooma/ chibuku ichi. ‘It seems to me that you should read this book.’

Hunk^halīla Nuuru/ ni mwalimu wa mwaanawa. ‘I think that Nuuru is my son’s teacher.’

Hunk^halīla / Nuuru/ oloshole Mkhodiisho. ‘I think that Nuuru went to Mogadishu.’

Hunk^halīla/ Omari/ peete/ peesa/ zimbeeló. ‘I think Omari found the money that he lost.’

Hunk^halīla/ Omari/ tilanzilee nguwo/ ka makhasi. ‘I think that Omari cut the cloth with scissors.’ (In the implementation of this sentence by our consultant, the accented penult syllable of makhasi was markedly raised, revealing the possibility of putting emphasis on a word that is sentence-final but not “immediately after the verb”, the preferred position for focused non-subjects.)

Imkalīle kuwa siwo/ haqi/ ye/ khpowa ifuungu/ sawasawa/ na miingine. ‘It seemed to him that it was not right that he was given a share equal to the others.’

ink^halīle ‘it seemed to me’ mi/ hunk^halīla ‘it seems to me’; we/ khukalīla ‘it seems to you’; ye/ humkalīla ‘it seems to him’; si/ hishkalīla ‘it seems to us’; ni/ hinkalīla ‘it seems to you (pl.)’; wo/ huwawalīla ‘it seems to them’ (This paradigm illustrates the parallelism between the habitual prefix hu- and the infinitive prefix ku-

Note that hu- elides before the second person object marker khu-, just like the infinitive; cf. we/ khukalīla. Also note that hu changes to hi before object markers containing a palatal element: cf., for example, si/ hishkalīla.)

Mi/ hunk^halīla/ nt^hakendra kuwiinda. ‘It seems likely that I will go hunting.’

(Mí) hunk^halīla/ we/ laazimu/ keendra. ‘It seems to me that you must go.’

mi/ inakunk^halīla ‘it seems to me’; we/ inakhukalīla ‘it seems to you’; ye/ inamkalīla ‘it seems to him’; si/ inakishkalīla ‘it seems to us’; ni/ inakinkalīla ‘it seems to you (pl.)’; wo/ inakuwawalīla ‘it seems to them’

Omari/ humkalīla kuwa shati iyo/ siwo/ suura. ‘Omari thinks that that shirt is not good.’

Wo/ huwawalīla kuwa Nuuru/ iize/ khiira. ‘They think that Nuuru refused to accept.’

sh-kalkala(s-)

n. 7/8 [Sw. kaaka 162] palate, velum; (idiom.) a Somali kh^htinda shkalkala ‘to cut the velum (often done in Brava since the velum was believed to cause cough, vomiting, or suffocation if too big)’

Haaji/ Maká/ mkali/ kh^htinda shkalkala. ‘Haaji Maka is very good at cutting the velum.’

Miini/ sh^htindo waant^hú/ shkalkalá/ ni Haaji/ Maká. ‘In Brava the one who used to cut the velum was Haaji Maka.’

Oyo/ ni shkalkala. ‘That one is a Somali.’ Cf. Awo/ ni skalkala. ‘Those ones are Somalis.’

kh-kaal^hmaṭa

v. (kalmeete) help

Omari/ hakaal^hmaṭi/ waant^hu. ‘Omari does not help people.’ (Notice that with an indefinite [cl.2] object, object marking is not required. However, it is possible to include the object marker: Omari/ hawakaal^hmaṭi/ waant^hu.)

Omari/ mkalmeete/ muné/ Nuurú. ‘Omari helped his brother Nuuru.’

kaal^hme

n. help

Chiint^hu/ chisuura/ khfanyoowa/ ni kulindra kaa_lme/ kuwasila. ‘The best thing to do would be to wait for help to arrive.’

Kuumbuka/ kuwaa wo/ wata_khsula ka_lme yiitu. ‘Remember that they will need our help.’

Nuuru/ oshele ka mku_lé/ Hasani/ kumera kaa_lme/ kuwaka nuumbaye. ‘Nuuru went to his brother Hasani to look for help to build his house.’

Waant^hu/ wa Mwiiini/ wanakuza kaa_lme/ yiitu. ‘The people of Brava are asking for our help.’

ka_loora

n. 9/10 [Ital. colore] color (cf. ranji which means ‘colored paint’); colored pencil Hamadi/ vete shaati/ ka_looraye/ m_taandanu. ‘Hamadi wore a shirt, its color, yellow.’

ka_lora ya l_kuta or ka_loora/ ya l_kuta ‘the color of the wall’

l_kuta/ ka_looraye ‘the wall, its color’

ka_lora yaa nk^huta or ka_loora/ yaa nk^huta ‘the color of the walls’ nk^huta/ ka_looraze ‘the walls, their color’ (Note that -e is the third person plural possessive enclitic referring to non-humans; -awo is restricted to human beings, thus the ungrammaticality of nk^huta/ ka_lora zaawo.) confirm that it is a dental l

ka_loora

n. [Som. kalloorad DSU 357] aluminum container with lid, used for milk or other foodstuffs

Haliima/ lesele iziwa/ ka ka_loora. ‘Haliima brought milk in (lit. with) an aluminum container.’

Haliima/ tile iziwa/ ka_loraani. ‘Haliima put milk in the aluminum container.’

i-kala (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. kaa SSED 162] a piece of charcoal

makala ya majiwe ‘mineral coal’

Mi/ hukumbuka muk_htaa mi/ mbaliko mwaaná/ kuwa gaari/ schinendra ka makala. ‘I remember that when I was a child cars used to go by charcoal.’

rel.

l-kala (mi-) n. aug. 11/4

nyulusi/ kana ikala ‘as black as charcoal’

sh-kala (s-) n. dim. 7/8

kh-kala

v. [Sw. kaa SSED 162] (kazile, keele) stay, live in a place, inhabit, reside

Basi/ we/ kala apa/ mliindre/ hattá/ ye/ chiruuda. ‘So you stay here and wait for him until he returns.’

Dibii mbili/ askali/ karka moro mooyi. ‘Two bulls do not dwell in one fenced-in enclosure.’ (A proverb.)

Karka muuyi/ wa Mwiiini/ wakazile/ khabiila/ niingi/ laakini/ wa’ileene/ kaa l_ugha/ l_mooyi/ ka diini/ mooyi/ ka aada/ mooyi/ na ziinginé/ na khaasá/ nii l_ugha/ la Chimiini. ‘In the town of Brava lived many clans, but they had come with one language, one religion, and one tradition, and other things, but especially the Chimiini language.’ (This passage is of questionable validity with respect to how the town of Brava became established as a Chimiini-speaking town. The formation of Swahili(-like) dialects along the East African coast doubtless arose from the interaction of various waves of maritime immigrants with the local Bantu population. The details of this interaction are not the subject of any written records.)

Mbona/ we/ hukala numba ya waziiri/ peteeyi/ we. ‘I see that you live in the house of the minister; how did it (lit. get you) happen?’

Mi/ mbaliko shkala/ muyi uyu/ karka nuumba/ iyi. ‘Me, I was residing in this town in this house.’ (Although in elicitation, it is usual for demonstratives to be phrased with the nominal they modify, in texts it is not uncommon to find the demonstrative phrasally separated, as in this example: muyi uyu but nuumba/ iyi. We have not been able to establish what the discourse implications are for this phrasing.)

Mwenye zijuumba/ izo/ ni mzele Simsimu/ na mahaḷaa ye/ hukaló/ wako majini/ wiingi/ nt^ho. ‘The owner of these nests is old Simsimu and at the place where he lives, there are very many jinns.’ (This is another textual example where the demonstrative is phrasally separated from the noun it modifies: zijuumba/ izo.)

Naambila/ we/ hukalapi/ naami/ fijiri/ na mapeema/ nt^hakhiḷila/ kaako/ we/ pata/ kunambila yaa we/ nakhsuuló. ‘Tell me, you, where you live, and early in the morning I will come to your place so that you get to tell me what you want.’

Ndiyé/ takhkaló numba iyí/ amoo ndimí/ nt^hakhkaló. ‘Is it him who will live in this house or is it me?’

Nt^haku/ hukalo numba iyí. ‘No ones lives in this house.’

Orii mbili/ haskali/ karka moro mooyi. ‘Two roosters do not live inside one fenced enclosure.’ (A proverb.)

Shkala apo/ muda/ wa skuu saba. ‘He stayed there a period of seven days.’

Si/ shkazilé/ ilu ya jaziira/ iyi/ sku niingi. ‘We stayed on this island many days.’

Sultaani/ uyu/ karka nt^hiyé/ waaliko/ mzele/ mooyi/ shkalo ṭawalá. ‘In the sultan’s land there was an old man who lived at the sea.’

Tala zaa mi/ khupeeló/ zoṭe/ na numba yaa mi/ hukaló. ‘Take all the things I have given you and the house that I live in.’

Wakhtí/ kamu/ kazilo Mambasá. ‘How long have you been in Mombasa?’

Waant^hu/ hukala numba mooyi. [H!H] ‘The people live in one house.’

We/ nakhsuḷa waaná/ wanakale/ kaa ndala/ mpaka mukhtaá we/ takuuyó. ‘Do you want the children to stay hungry until you come?’

We/ oloka/ kala numba ya maamo. ‘You, go and live in the house of your mother.’

Ye/ keele/ karka jazira iyi/ miyaka matatu. ‘He lived on this island for three years.

rel.

kh-kalila* v. appl. does not appear to be in use kh-kaloowa v. pass. (kaziḷa, keeḷa) be lived on, in Jazira iyo/ ikeeḷa/ miyaka mitatu. ‘This island was lived on for three years.’ Or: Miyaka mitatu/ ikeeḷá/jazira iyi. ‘Three years this island was lived on.’

Numba izi/ skaziḷa ka shtiisho. ‘These houses were lived in with fear [i.e. some danger was attached to living in these houses].’

Numba mooyi/ hukalowa na waant^hu. ‘One house is lived in by the people.’

kh-kalika v. p/s.

Numba iyi/ haykaliki. ‘This house cannot be lived in.’ Cf. Numba izi/ haskaliki. ‘These houses cannot be lived in.’

kh-kalisha* v. caus. does not appear in use

rel. nom.

m-kala (wa-) n. 1/2 resident, inhabitant

Maraḷi aya/ mawovu/ inakuwatila khoofu/ wakala muuyi. ‘These diseases are bad, there is fear being put in the residents (lit. ones that reside in town).’

ma-kalo n. 6 residence dwelling, act of residing at a place keesho aakhera makalo muḷooni [st.] ‘tomorrow in the life hereafter (his) dwelling (will be) in hell’ sh-kalo (s-) n. 7/8 dwelling

kh-kala

v. (keele) look like

Faṭuura/ ya Omari/ ikeleeyi. ‘What does Omari’s car look like?’

Faṭura ya Hamadi/ ikele kana/ ya Omari. ‘Hamadi’s car looks like Omari’s.’

Ikeleeyi. ‘How does it look like?’

Maazi/ ya muunt^hu/ hayaabahi/ kiḷaa muunt^hu/ mahmaahi/ iyi/ hupenzeleza/ kiḷaa muunt^hu/ ma’anaye/ lamnaye/ shakliye/ jisaa ye/ keeló/ haabahi. ‘The blood of a person is not lost [a Chimiini proverb]... Each person, this proverb intends [to communicate], each person, it means, his type, his physical form, how he looks, cannot be lost.'

Nuumba/ ya Omari/ [↑]ikeleeyi/ takuyaawata/ we. 'Omari's house, how (good, wonderful) it looks, you will be amazed (by it).' (The extreme raising on the verb ikeleeyi adds to the basic meaning 'how it looks' a positive connotation: how good, wonderful it looks.)

Omari/ kele kanaa nfuye. 'Omari looks like a monkey.'

Waant^{bu}/ wako apó/ wachimwaambila/ nakhfanyaayi/ we/ ni mwaaná/ chihabá/ na jisaa we/ keeló/ inakoonyesha/ kuwaa we/ ni mwana wa mataajiri.
'The people who were there they told him: why do you do it? You are a small boy and the way you look, it is showing that you are a son of rich people.'

Ye/ keleeyi. 'How does he look like?'

muwaṭiini

n. citizens study this item further

Maraḍi aya/ mawovu/ inakuwatila muwaṭiini/ khoofu. 'These diseases are bad, there is fear being put in citizens.'

n-kala

n. 9/10 [Sw. kaa SSED 162] crab; [idiomatically] a person who 'works' both sides of two opposing forces, a double agent; a person who cannot make up his mind and changes his "direction", rejecting his previous decision; [pron. nk^hala] nk^hala wimbi 'a smaller, yellowish crab that does not enter reef caves' confirm short

vowel in wimbi

nk^hala ya bahariini 'a large, red crab -- [lit.] sea crab' nk^hala ya Ifuwo 'a kind of crab -- [lit.] beach crab' nk^hala ya magaando 'crab' nk^hala ya magome 'a kind of crab -- [lit.] rock crab'

rel.

i-kala (mi-) n. aug. 5/4

sh-kala (s-) n. dim. 7/8

n-kalaambi

n. 9 lightning; [pron. nk^halaambi]

Nk^halaambi/ ibishilee muti. 'Lightning struck a tree.'

Nk^halaambi/ itulushile. 'Lightning struck.'

kalaamu

n. 10 [Ar. kalām "talking, speaking, language" W 838] words kalaamuze sivo za sowṭi na harfu [st.] 'his (i.e. God's) words are not (made) of sounds and letters'

Qur'aani/ ni kalaamu/ za mojiitu. 'The Quran [contains] the words of God.'

rel.

kalima n. 9 word

Kiḷa/ kalima/ mooyi/ ya qur'aani/ inaayo/ thawaabu/ miya. 'Every word of the Quran has one hundred blessings.'

kalandaariyo

n. [cf. Sw. kalenda SSED 168; Eng. calendar] calendar; [pron. kalandaariyó]

Kalandariyo iyi/ nda mwaka waa yana. 'This calendar is last year's.'

kh-kalaanga

v. [Sw. kanga SSED 163] (kalaanzile) fry (fish, meat, etc.) with oil

Kalangaani. 'You (pl.) fry!'

Kalanagani daank^hu. 'You (pl.) fry the popcorn!'

Skalangeeni. 'You (pl.) don't fry!'

Skalangeeni/ daank^hu. 'You (pl.) don't fry popcorn.'

rel.

kh-kalaangisha v. caus. (kalangishiize) cause to fry (by force or by persuasion)

Juha/ mkalangishize Saalehe/ nama. ‘Juha caused Saalehe to fry meat.’
kh-kalangishoowa v. caus. pass. (kalangishiiza) be caused to fry Saalehe/ kalangishizaa nama/ naa Juha. ‘Saalehe was caused to fry meat by Juha.’ (Syn. It is not possible for nama to be the subject of the passive causative verb: Nama/ ikalangishiza Saalehe/ naa Juha.) kh-kalangoowa v. pass. (kalaanzila) be fried Apo/ zinakhkalangowa stata. ‘There fat is being fried.’
schikalangoowa ‘that which is being popped, i.e. popcorn’

kh-kalaanta

v. [Sw. kaa SSED 162 + nchi SSED 31, with the final vowel of the compound assuming the characteristic shape a of an infinitive verb] (kaleent^he) sit down, be sitting, reside, dwell, stay, live; [pron. khkalaant^ha]

Apa/ haykalaant^hi/ ka harri. ‘One cannot live here because of the heat.’

Chimlangala/ sultaani/ chimwona (ni) mwaana/ msuura/ basi/ chimwaambila/ kalant^ha apa/ kalaant^ha. ‘The sultan observed him, he saw that he was a good boy, so he said to him, sit here! that’s what you should do.’ (Note the common expression in Chimiini where the verb is repeated in a relative form. In the present example, the relative form of the imperative is indicated only by the final accent; the final vowel of an imperative verb remains a when it is put into (pseudo-)relative form.)

chiti chaa ye/ kalent^ho iluye ‘the chair that he sat on it’

Haapati/ kaleent^ho/ laazimu/ khta’abata/ laazimu/ khfanya kaazi.
 ‘Someone seated does not get something, one must earn it, one must work for it (one cannot just sit and wait for it to come to you).’

Haruusi/ na mukeewé/ wakalent^he numbaani/ wakalent^ho. ‘The bridegroom and his wife stayed inside, that’s what they did.’

Hukalant^ha Marka. ‘He lives in Marka.’

Kalaant^ha/ apa/ ndrindra/ hat^haa mi/ chiruuda. ‘Sit here and wait for me until I return.’

Kalant^haa we/ ja. ‘Sit down, you, and eat.’

Kalent^he chitiini. ‘He sat on a chair.’ Or: Kalent^he ilu yaa chiti. ‘He sat on a chair.’ Cf. with Verb Copy: Kalent^he chitiini/ kaleent^ho. ‘He sat on the chair, that’s what he did.’ Or: Kalent^he ilu yaa chiti/ kaleent^ho. ‘He sat on the chair, that’s what he did.’ Or: Kalent^he ilu/ kaleent^ho/ yaa chiti. ‘He sat on top, that’s what he did, of the chair.’

Kalent^he na mukeewe/ apo. ‘He stayed with his wife there.’ Or: Kalent^he/ na mukeewe/ apo. Cf. Nk^halent^he na mukeewá/ apo. ‘I stayed with my wife there.’ Or: Nk^halent^he/ na mukeewa/ apo. Cf. Kalent^he na mukeewó/ apo. ‘You stayed with your wife there.’

Kalent^he na mukeewó/ apo. ‘You stayed with your wife there.’ Or: Kalent^hé/ na mukeewo/ apo. ‘You stayed with your wife there.’ Cf. The yes/no question corresponding to the case where the verb is emphasized: Kalent^hé/ na mukeewó/ apó? ‘Did you stay with your wife there?’

Kalent^he na mukeewe/ apo/ so. ‘Did he stay with his wife there?’ (Perhaps so-sentences are similar to tag questions: he stayed with his wife there, didn’t he? But this point requires further study. (The simple yes-no question provided by AB is Kalent^he na mukeewe/ apo? with Q-raising and an apparently quicker tempo than the corresponding statement. The exclamatory question is Kalent^he na mukeewé/ apó!?)

Kalent^hepi/ na mukeewe. ‘Where did he stay with his wife?’ Possible answer: Kalent^he na mukeewe/ hoteliini. ‘He stayed with his wife at a hotel.’

khkalant^ha haruusi ‘to stay inside the house after marriage for a prescribed period of time (as is the custom in Brava)’

Wakalent^he haruusi/ mudda wa skuu saba. ‘They remained inside after the wedding for a period of seven days.’

khkalant^ha idda ‘to stay inside (e.g. a woman in Islam is required to stay inside for a period of four months and ten days after the death of her husband)’ khkalant^ha ka magoonjo ‘to kneel’ khkalant^ha kaa ndala ‘to spend the day without eating’ khkalant^ha ta’aziya ‘to stay in the house for the prescribed period of time’ after the death of a member of the family (three days)'

Mwanaamke/ kalent^he ta'aziya. 'The girl stayed home (after the death of a family member).' (Syn. Putting ta'aziya in the locative gives a different interpretation: Mwanaamke/ kalent^he ta'aziyaani. 'The girl stayed in the house of a friend whose relative has died.'

Mi/ takhkalaant^ha apá. 'I will stay here.'

Muke/ kalent^he mtanaani. 'The woman stayed in the room.' Or, with locative preposing and subject postposing: Mtanaani/ kalent^hee muke.

Muunt^hu/ kaleent^hó/ haani/ chaayi. 'A person who is seated does not drink tea.' (A proverb.)

Mwana wa sarmala/ shkalaant^ha/ nt^hi/ chila. 'The carpenter's child sat on the ground and cried.'

Mwaarabu/ oyo/ chimweegsha/ chimwaambila/ nakalaant^he. 'That Arab welcomed him and told him to sit down.'

Ngoombe/ choondroka/ mbuzi/ hukalaant^ha. 'When the cow gets up, the goat sits down.' (A proverb.)

Nk^halent^he chitiini. 'I sat on the chair.'

Nk^halent^hé/ nnakhpumulá. 'I have sat down and I am resting.'

Shkalant^ha naaye/ kuja naaye/ oyo mwaana. 'He sat with him to eat with him, that boy.'

Wachendra oko/ sku iyo/ washkalaant^ha/ wachija oko. 'They used to go there on that day and they stayed and they ate there.'

Waana/ naawó/ wachingila barzaani/ washkalaant^ha. 'The children [lit. and they] entered the audience hall and sat down.'

Ye/ kalent^he na Omari. 'He stayed with Omari.'

rel.

kh-kalaantika v. p/s. (-kalaant^hishile) able liveable, able to be sat on; [pron.

khkalaant^hika]

Apa/ haykalaant^hiki/ ka hari. 'One cannot sit here because of the heat.'

Chiti ichi/ hashkalaant^hiki. 'This chair cannot be sat on.'

Mahala/ umoo noká/ ha'ikalaant^hiki. 'A place where there is a snake cannot be inhabited.' (A proverb.)

kh-kalant^hiloowa v. appl. pass. (kalant^hiliila) kh-kalaantila v. appl. (kalant^hiliile) sit on, with; live on s.o.'s assistance, help;

[pron. khkalaant^hila]

Chiruuda/ ka mwanaamke/ wa sultaani/ chi'ikalaant^hila. 'He returned to [the place of] the daughter of the sultan's and stayed there [lit. for himself].'

chiti chaa ye/ kalant^hiliiló 'the chair that he sat on'

Hamadi/ ikalant^hiliile. 'And so Hamadi sat down.' (Although when the reflexive-applied verb is used it is often possible to re-enforce the verb with a reflexive pronoun, MI did not like to do so in the present case: * Hamadi/ ikalant^hiliile ruuhuye. We are not certain, however, whether this is fixed matter of grammar, or a more stylistic matter.)

Nk^huku/ kalant^hiliile mayaank^huku. 'The hen sat on the eggs.'

Siná/ chiti cha khkalaant^hila. 'I do not have a chair to sit on.'

We/ kalant^hiliile chibuukú. 'You are sitting on a book.'

Ye/ ikalant^hiliile/ apo/ numbaani/ ka mwanaamke/ pashpo khfanya

- house kaazi. ‘He just stayed there [lit. for himself] in the girl’s without doing any work.’
- kh-kalant^hilakalaant^hila* v. freq.
Humkalant^hilakalaant^hila/ khariibuye. ‘They stay repeatedly by her side for her.’
- kh-kalaant^hisha* v. caus. (kalant^hishiize) seat s.o.; [pron. khkalaant^hisha] Maama/ chimkalant^hisha mwaana/ shtako/ chimwaambila... ‘Mother sat the boy down on his butt and told him...’
- kh-kalant^hishoowa* v. caus. pass. (kalant^hishiiza) be seated by, be made to live with; [pron. khkalaant^hishoowa] Ngoombe/ skalant^hishiiza. [HH] ‘The cattle were made to stay, sit.’
Ngoombe/ skalant^hishiza na waant^hu. [H!H] ‘The cattle were made to sit, stay by the people.’
Wakalant^hishiza na waant^hu/ ni ngoombe. [HH] ‘Those ones who were made to stay, sit by the people are the cattle.’
Waant^hu/ wakalant^hishiiza. [HH] ‘The people were made to sit, stay.’
Waant^hu/ wakalant^hishiza na ngoombe. [H!H] ‘People were made to live with cattle.’ Or: Wakalant^hisha na ngoombé/ ni waant^hu. [HH] ‘The ones who were made to live with the cattle are the people.’
- kh-kalant^hiloowa* v. appl. pass. (kalant^hiliila) be sat on; [pron. khkalaant^hiloowa] kh-kalant^hoowa v. pass. (i-kaleent^ha) (for one to) sit, live; [pron. khkalaant^hoowa] Jazira iyo/ ikaleent^ha /miyaka mitatu. ‘This is land was lived on for three years.’ Or: Miyaka mitatu/ ikaleent^ha/ jazira iyi. ‘Three years thus island was lived on.’
Klasiini/ hukalant^hoowa/ zitiini. ‘In class one sits on chairs.’
Numba mooyi/ hukalant^howa na waant^hu. [H!H] ‘One house was lived in by people.’
Omari/ ikalent^ha naaye. ‘Omari was stayed with him.’
- kalaasha n. 9/10 [cf. Tunni Somali kalāaš “kidney” Tosco 222; Som. calool (which becomes calosha when an article is added to it) “abdomen, belly” DSI 84] abdomen (though in one of the steenzi, the word is used to refer to the uterus) Kalaashaye/ inamłaza. ‘His stomach hurts him.’
- kaale n. [Sw. kale SSED 168] old times ndiye wa kaale nt^hana mithaali [st.] ‘he is the One without beginning and without equal’ nt^hanaayo mwaanzo wa kaale qadiimu [st.] ‘he (God) has no beginning, (he is) timeless (lit. of old times), ancient’ want^hu wa kaale ‘people of old times, the ancients’
- kali adj. [Sw. -kali SSED 168] sharp; warm, hot (of spices, e.g.), hot-tempered, good at s.t., excels in s.t.
Bardi/ apa/ nk^hali. ‘It is bitter cold here.’
Chisu ichi/ ni shkali. ‘This knife is sharp.’ (Cf. Zisu izi/ ni skali. ‘These knives are sharp.’) iwa ikali ‘very hot sun’
-kali/ kanaa chisu ‘as sharp as a knife’
Chigaango/ ichi/ shfinikoche/ shkali/ humtinda muunt^hu/ kanaa chisu. ‘The lid of this can is so sharp it cuts people like a knife.’

khfanya –kali ‘to sharpen’

Haliima/ nakhfanyaa chisu/ shkali/ nakhsuḷa khtindilaa nama.

‘Haliima is sharpening a knife, she wants to use it to cut the meat.’

Ka khisaa ye/ ni mwaalimu/ mkali/ waanawe/ wa skoolḷa/ wonṭhe/ hupita imṭhaani.

‘Because she is a good teacher, all of her students pass the examination.’

kuwa shkali ‘to be sharp (of a knife, e.g.)’

Maneeno/ ni makali/ khshindra lpaanga. ‘Words are sharper than a sword.’ (A proverb.)

mayi makali ‘rough water’

mkali/ kanaa muḷo ‘someone as sharp as fire (i.e. someone who is very smart, knows a lot)’

Mwanaamke/ waliko mkali/ maṭezo. ‘The girl was good at games [such as playing cards].’

Naḷoo limi/ lḷkali. ‘He has a sharp tongue.’

Naḷo lpaanga/ lḷkali/ nt^ho. ‘He has a very sharp sword.’

Ni skalii nt^ho/ zisu izi. ‘These knives are very sharp.’

Ni skali/ zisu izi. ‘These knives are sharp.’

Ni wakali. ‘They are warm; they are very good, expert at something.’

nk^hali/ kanaa chisu ‘as sharp as a knife’

Nakhsuḷaa chisú/ chinawe shkali. ‘I want the knife to be sharp.’

shkali/ kana chireeza ‘as sharp as a razor’

Siimba/ apa/ walali. ‘Lions here are fierce.’

siwo –kali ‘dull (lit. not sharp)’

Haliima/ tindilḷee nama/ chisu siwo shkali. ‘Haliima cut the meat with a dull knife.’

We/ tumikile chisu shkali/ ambó/ chisu siwo shkali? ‘Did you use the sharp knife or the dull knife?’

Tumikile chisu shkali. ‘I used the sharp knife.’

Walimu awaje/ ni wakali. ‘Those teachers are excellent.’

Ye/ ni mkali/ khtafsira ndrooto. ‘He excels in interpreting dreams.’

Zisu izi/ ni skalii nt^ho. ‘These knives are very sharp.’

Zisu izi/ siwo/ skali/ kolko zisu izo. ‘These knives are not sharper than those.’ Or:

Zisu izi/ siwo/ skali/ kuzida zisu izo. ‘These knives are not sharp to surpass those knives.’

Zisu izo/ suwo/ skali. ‘Those knives are not sharp.’

rel.

ma-kali n. the cutting edge of a knife khtilḷa makali ‘to sharpen for’

Nimtilḷee Nuurú/ chisú/ makali. ‘I sharpened the knife for Nuuru.’

(One cannot say: *Nimtilḷee Nuurú/ makali/ chisú, whatever the accent assignment. One can say: Nimtilḷee chisú/ makali/ Nuuru. In this sentence there is focus on chisu: ‘I sharpened a knife for Nuuru.’) khtila makali ‘to sharpen’

Nt^hilee chisú/ makali. ‘I sharpened a knife.’ (It is ungrammatical to put makali after the verb and allow the final accent to extend past it onto chisu: *Nt^hile makali/ chisú.)

u-kali n. sharpness, high degree (of pain) ukali wa sakaraṭi/ Sheekhi ka chiza konyoowa [st.] ‘from the torturous agonies of dying/ may the Sheikh be spared’

kalima

n. 9/10 [Sw. kalima SSED 168; Ar. kalima W 838] (cf. kalaamu) word, words variant form: kilma

Aḷaana/ni kalima ikum na keendra. ‘The call to prayer consists of nineteen words.’

ikum na keendra kilma za aḷaana [st.] ‘nineteen are the words of the call to prayer’

kalima ikumi ‘ten words’

Kalima iyo/ yile ka chaarabu. ‘That word came from Arabic.’
Kalimaa mbili/ nt^hatu/ zaa mi/ nkhadirilo kaandiká/ na mayti ziitú/ zilelo nt^hini ya barafú/ huḡosha kinfungulila laano/ ili. ‘The two or three words that I was able to write, and our dead bodies lying under the ice, should be sufficient to narrate our story.’
kalima mooyi ‘one word’

sh-kalo (s-) n. 7/8 dwelling

kama conj. [Sw. kama SSED 168] like, as though study accent and usage with kama
Aakhili/ ni kama mashuungi/ kila mooyi/ nayo yaake. ‘Brains are like hair, everyone has his own.’ (A proverb.)

Cho/ siwo/ kama lugha za want^hu wiingine. ‘It (i.e. Chimwiini) is not like the languages of other people.’

Hawa’iwi/ chiint^hu/ siwo/ kamaa si. ‘They cannot know anything; they are not like us (i.e. djinns).’

Khkasa/ siwo/ kama huwona. ‘To hear is not like seeing.’ (A proverb.)

Mali ayo/ ni kama/ mi/ niyalaṭilo tawalá. ‘That money [spent on cavorting with women] is as though I threw it into the sea.’

Mambo aya/ hayanfurahishi/ mĩ/ ni/ naakuḷá/ ndimi/ nfiiló. ‘These matters do not please me; you are crying as though it is me who has died.’

Mapeenzi/ ni kama shkololo/ haya’ushiki. ‘Love is like coughing, it cannot be hidden.’

Mi/ nnakhsuḷa nyunyi mwiinginé/ kama uyú. ‘I want another bird like this one.’

Mukhtaawo/ wawelo tayaari/ wachibiga miziinga/ kama wanakhpo waant^hu/ waraadí. ‘When they were ready [to depart], they fired cannons like they were saying farewell to the people.’ (Syn. Observe that kama here triggers relativization of its verbal complement.)

Mwaana/ kamaa we/ siná/ haaja/ naaye. ‘A child like you I have no need of him.’

Ndiyó/ ni kama uyu/ nyunyi waa we/ nakummeeró? ‘Is the bird that you are looking for like this one?’

Washtomola salaamu/ naawó/ kama/ want^hu wiingine/ washkalaant^ha. ‘They extended greeting and they, like other people, sat down.’

Ye/ yutiliile/ kuwaa ye/ fanyize mkaataba/ kama uyu/ pamooyi/ na Abunawaasi. ‘He regretted that he made a contract like this together with Abunawaasi.’

kama if variant form: kana

Chibuuku/ kama nt^hachiimo/ sandukhuuni/ chimera kabatiini. ‘If the book is not in the box, look for it in the cupboard.’

Kamaa mi/ nch^hiya/ nt^hakuleta chaakuja. ‘If I come, I will bring food.’

Kama nakhsuḷa kundroolá/ mi/ ndrola kiitu. ‘If you want to marry me, marry me in my country.’

Kamaa we/ chimpata/ chizeele/ ndraani/ ya mtaanawo/ funga mlaango. ‘If you find an old woman inside your room, shut the door.’

Kamaa we/ chiwona chiint^hu/ chiza kuhada chiint^hu/ haykhupati/ chiint^hu. ‘If you see something but do not say anything, nothing will happen to you.’ (A proverb.)

Kamaa we/ hupeendi/ kuwa sulṭaani/ ndimi/ nakhsuḷo kuwa sulṭaani. ‘If you do not want to become sultan, it is me who wants to be sultan.’

Kamaa we/ shiinziḷa/ taala/ dawa/ iyi/ endrá/ kaake/ oyo mubjaana. ‘If you are defeated, take this medicine and go to him, that young man.

Kamaa ye/ chiya/ mpe chaakuja. ‘If he comes, give him food.’
Kana Omari/ chiya. ‘[What do you mean,] if Omari comes [e.g., we will do it anyhow, whether Omari comes or not]?’
Kana Omari/ chiya/ maambile/ nandriindre. ‘If Omari comes, tell him to wait for me.’
Kana Omari/ chiya/ shtakhteza mpiira. ‘If Omari comes, we will play football.’
Nambila ka sultaani/ kama nch^hiza/ kuleeta/ zijuumba/ zaa nyunyi/ nt^h akhtindowaa chiṭa. ‘I was told that if I do not bring the nests of (these) birds, I will be beheaded.’
Ni laazima/ we/ kunsaaḡda/ kamba/ mbwa wa maduuri/ chinulukila. ‘It’s necessary that you help me if a wild dog attacks me.’

kama that; appears; than Kama wanakhpo waant^hu/ waradi. ‘It appears they were bidding the people farewell.’

Kheeri/ kufa maatō/ kama kufa khalbi. ‘Better to lose one’s eyes than to die in the heart.’ (A proverb.)

Nk^hasiizé/ kamaa we/ ilé. ‘I heard that you arrived.’

kh-kama

v. [Sw. kama SSED 169] (kamiile) milk (an animal or, figuratively, someone)

Ali/ mkamile ngoombe. ‘Ali milked the cow.’

Mloojiri/ mkamile ngoombe/ iziwa. ‘The milker squeezed milk from the cow.’

rel.

kh-kamika v. p/s.

kh-kamila v. appl. (kamiliile) use to milk; milk for Makiina/ kamiliile ngoombe/ iziwa. ‘He used a machine to milk the cows.’

Mwanaamke/ mkamile iziwa/ ngoombe. ‘The girl milked the cow.’

(Notice that even though the verb bears an object marker in agreement with ngoombe, an animate noun that requires human agreement in its singular usage, it is still possible for the noun iziwa to precede ngoombe in the word order.)

Uzile makiina/ khkamila ngoombe/ iziwa. ‘He bought a machine to milk the cows with.’

Wakamiliile waant^hu/ ngoombe/ iziwa. ‘He milked the cows for the people.’

kh-kamisha v. caus. (kamishiize) cause to milk

Ali/ mkamishize mwaana/ ngoombe. ‘Ali caused the child to milk the cow.’ (Syn. One can also use the periphrastic construction: Ali/ mtile mwaana/ khkama ngoombe. ‘Ali [lit. instilled in] the child to milk the cow.’)

Iwilopo kuwaa mi/ nakhsula kubarata khkamá/ Ali/ nk^hamishize ngoombeye. ‘When he learned that I wanted to learn to milk, he allowed me to milk his cow.’

kh-kamishana v. caus. rec. cause one another to milk kh-kamishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-kamishiliza v. caus. appl. (kamishiize)

Ali/ mkamishilize Iisa/ mwaana/ ngoombe. ‘Ali caused Iisa’s child to milk the cow.’ (Syn. A periphrastic version is also possible: Ali/ mtiliile Iisa/ mwaana/ ngoombe. ‘Ali [lit. instilled in] Iisa’s child to milk the cow.’)

kh-kamishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec. (-kamishilizeenye)

Ali/ na Nuurú/ wakamishilizenye waana/ ngoombe. ‘Ali and Nuuru caused one another’s children to milk the cows.’ (Syn. A periphrastic version is also possible: Ali/ na Nuurú/ watililene waana/ khkama/ ngoombe. ‘Ali and Nuuru [lit. instilled in] one another’s children to milk the cows.’)

kh-kamiza v. caus. (kamiize)

Nuuru/ mkamize mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Nuuru caused the child to wring out clothes.’

kh-kamoowa v. pass. be milked

Ngoombe/ kamiḷa iziwa/ na mloojiri. ‘The cows were milked by the milker.’ (Note that iziwa cannot be the subject of the passive verb here: Iziwa/ ikamiḷa ngoombe/ na mloojiri. It is possible to have the word order: Iziwa/ kamiḷa ngoombe/ na mloojiri. But in this example the subject marking on the verb is in agreement with ngoombe and not with iziwa.)

kh-kamuka v. intr. (kamushile) (of s.t. to) dry out kh-kamukila v. appl. (kamukiliile)

Nguwo/ zink^h amukiliile. ‘The clothes dried for me.’

kh-kamuliḷa v. appl. [Sw. kamulia SSED 169, where however a meaning of ‘squeeze s.t. over’ is given’] (kamuliile)

Nk^h amuliḷee nguwo. ‘He dried the clothes for me.’

kh-kamula v. [Sw. kamua “squeeze, wring, compress, squeeze out” SSED 169] (kamiile) wring s.t. wet out kh-kamulika v. p/s.

kh-kamulisha v.caus. [Sw. kamulisha SSED 169] cause s.o. to dry

Nuuru/ mkamulishize mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Nuuru caused the child to wring out the clothes.’

kh-kamulishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-kamulishiliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mkamulishilize Suufi/ mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Nuuru caused Suufi’s child to wring out the clothes.’

kh-kamulishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Nuuru/ na Suufi/ wakamulishilizenye waana/ nguwo. ‘Nuuru and Suufi caused one another’s children to wring out the clothes.’

kh-kamuliza v. caus. appl.

Nuuru/ mkamulize Suufi/ mwaana/ nguwo. ‘Nuuru caused Suufi’s child to wring out clothes.’

rel. nom.

m-kama (wa-) n. 1/2 one who milks; fig. a parasite who lives off other people

m-kamo n. 3

u-kamuko n. 14 the act of drying

u-kamulo n. 14 the act of wringing s.t. wet out

kamaakana

Mukhtāa ye/ weno kuwa looniḷé/ lbadishilé/ wele mwelpe/ jisa zamaaní/ na mavaaziyé/ yarudile kamaakana/ Hasani/ shfungula farasiyi/ shpaandra/ choondroka/ naayé/ kendra harbiini. ‘When he saw that his complexion had changed and he had become white as before, and his garb had returned to as it used to be, Hasani untied his horse and rode it and went off also to go to the battle.’

kaamaani

n. [Sw. kamani SSED 170] the mainspring of a watch or clock

kamardaariyo (Ø, ma-)

n. 9/10, 6 [Ital. camera d’aria] inner tube

kh-kamata

v. [Sw. kamata “take forcible hold of, catch hold of, seize with the hands (arms, claws, a trap, etc.), grasp, clasp, make a prisoner of, arrest, usually of something or some one going quickly or trying to escape” SSED 170] (kameete) catch, grasp, etc.

khkamata kama koola ‘to catch, grasp, hold like glue’

Mkameete/ kama koola. ‘He caught him like glue.’

rel.

kh-kamatoowa v. pass. (kameeta) khkamatoowa/ kana koola ‘to be caught like glue’

kamba

like, as kulla mo qalbiye yiiko kamba sa'a [nt.] 'everybody's heart beats like a lock'

lada/ kamba suukari 'sweet as sugar'

lada/ kamba uki 'sweet as honey'

Nakuwala/ kambaa nt^hupa. 'He is shining like a bottle – i.e. he looks good, fresh.'

kamba if, whether

Hasani/ chimjiiba/ sikhupikili/ na kambaa we/ hukhaadira/ kunubla/ jaariba/ mi/ ni tayaari/ kubigana naawe. 'Hasani answer him: I will not cook for you; if you are able to kill me, try, I am ready to fight with you.'

Killa/ maaka/ ichinshaarata/ jawaabu/ stakuuyo/ jawabu stakupatikano/ kamba ni awaari/ kamba ni aarani/ ka mbuzi oyo. 'Every year, it gave a forecast of what would come and could be expected, either famine or abundance of harvest by that goat.'

Kuja/ kamba siwo yaako/ miimba/ ndaako. 'Food if it is not yours, the stomach is yours.' (A proverb.)

kaamba n. a native rope made of twisted coconut fibre (i.e. ikuumbi) kfunga kaamba 'to tie a rope' kubiga kaamba 'to make a rope'

n-kaamba n. 9/10 [Sw. kamba "lobster, crayfish, prawn, shrimp" SSED 170] lobster, crayfish, shrimp; [pron. nk^haamba]

[-kaambala (n-)] n. 11/10 [Sw. kambaa SSED 492] rope; clothesline; [pron. nk^haambala (pl.)]

Baduwi/ nt^hakhfaanya/ yiingine/ chimshiika/ chimfungafunga nk^haambala/ chimtila numbaani/ karka mtaana/ mkulu/ nt^ho. 'The nomad did nothing other than to seize him and tie him up with a rope and put him in a house in a very large room.'

Chiya/ shfungula lkaambala/ ka tartiibu/ chimtomolaa mbuzi/ chimtomo. 'He came and untied the rope slowly and set the goat free, that's what he did.'

Haliima/ nakandika lkaambalaani/ nguwo. 'Haliima is putting clothes on the clothesline.' (In our recording of this example, the locative noun was put in IAV position and focused. This focus was manifested in the pitch on the locative not undergoing the level of lowering associated with downstep intonation. Further evidence that this noun is focused is provided by the yes-no question, where the complement nguwo is subject to accent shift: Haliima/ nakandika lkaambalaani/ nguwo? We should note that focus on the locative noun in this word order is not obligatory. In the speech of GM, the emphatic yes-no question seems not to reflect any presence of focus: Haliima/ nakandika lkaambalaani/ nguwo!? The shift of accent to the final syllable (observed on all three phrases in our recording of this example) is independent of focus in emphatic yes-no questions.)

Haliima/ nakandikaa nguwo/ lkaambalaani. 'Haliima is putting clothes on the clothesline.'

kfunga lkaambala 'to tie a rope' kfungula ifuandro/ lkaambala 'to untie a knot in a rope' kfungula lkaambala 'to untie a rope' khinda nk^haambala 'to cut ropes – i.e. be committed to doing s.t., unable to be prevented from doing s.t.'

Huseeni/ nakhinda nk^haambala. 'Huseeni is dead-set on doing s.t., one cannot talk him out of it.'

kubiga ifuandro/ lkaambala 'to make a knot in a rope' kubiga lkaambala 'to tie a rope' lkaambala chigobe 'a short rope' lkaambala/ hutindika mahala nambaamba. 'A rope breaks where it is thin.' (A proverb.)

lkaambala la naylooni 'a nylon rope' lkaambala la milala 'a rope made of milala reeds'

Ukaambala/ nii ile/ laakini/ halkhaadiri/ khfunga skunyi. ‘A rope is long, but it cannot tie firewood.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ndila ‘road’.)

Mwana wa sultaani/ wene waant^hu/ wiingi/ wafunzila ka nk^haambala/ pamo naa mbuzi. ‘The son of the sultan saw many people tied up with ropes together with goats.’

Uje mbuzi takhfakató/ takhadiro kendra ka himaahimá/ takhtiiindó/ takhfakató/ ikambala iló/ khtiiindá/ khfakata kendra kuja wisha iyó/ ndiyé/ mwaana. ‘The goat that will run and will be able to go quickly and will break and run, that rope, to break, and run to go to eat those husks, that is the one who is the younger (goat).’ (This sentence is from a text and while it seems to be a bit disjointed, we cite it as it occurred in the narration.)

Wataamtomola ka ikaambala. ‘They will bring him out with a rope.’

Wataana/ wachimfunga ka nk^haambala/ kumkookota/ kendra naayé/ muiini. ‘The servants tied him up with ropes and dragged him, going [and him] to town.’

Watete ikaambala. ‘They took a rope.’

We/ ni ikaambalá/ humfungoo mp^haká/ mp^haka/ hujoo mp^haná... ‘You are the rope that ties up the cat, the cat that eats the rat...’

rel.

i-kaambala (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

sh-kaambala (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

n-kaambi n. [Sw. kambi SSED 170: "encampment, camp"; Eng. camp] quarantine; [pron. nk^haambi] khtilowa kambiiini ‘to be quarantined’

n-kaambo n. 9/10 [Sw. kambi “encampment, camp” SSED 170] camp, police headquarters; [pron. nk^haambo]; var. kaampo Askari/ hukala nk^hambooni. ‘Police stay at the camp.’
nk^hambo ya ma’askari ‘police headquarters’
Si/chishishile waardiyá/ maskú/ kamponi. ‘We guarded the camp during the night.’ Cf. Kaampo/ ishishiila waardiya/ masku. ‘The camp was guarded during the night.’ Masku/ kaampo/ waardiya/ ishiishiila. ‘The night the camp there was guarding it.’

n-kaambo n. in the expression babaa nk^haambo ‘stepfather’ Babaa nk^haambo/ si baaba. ‘A stepfather is not a father.’ (A proverb. In Miini society, leaving one’s children is strongly disapproved, as it is believed that a stepfather will not provide for the children as well as the biological father.)

kaamera n. [Eng. camera] camera
Kamera ya Ali/ mbigilile ruuhuyá/ piichá. ‘Ali’s camera, I used it to take a picture of myself.’
Mbishile ruuhuyá/ piichá/ kamera ya Ali. ‘I took a picture of myself with Ali’s camera.’

kaamili adj. [Sw. kamili SSED 170; Ar. kāmil W 841] complete, perfect, whole Imaani/ haa’iwi/ kaamili/ sharti/ ka shahaada. ‘Faith is not complete unless it has shahaada (i.e. acceptance of the oneness of God).’
Jawaabu/ iyi/ khkoðelowa shkaamili/ ni ðaruuri. ‘Discussing this issue fully is essential.’
mandra kaamili ‘a whole loaf of bread’ mbuzi ya matako ya mwaka kaamili [st.] ‘a sheep of one full year [of age]’ munt^hu kaamili ‘a perfect man’ (cf. want^hu kaamili ‘perfect men’, chijint^hu shkaamili ‘dim. perfect man’, zijint^hu skaamili ‘dim. perfect men’) mwezi kaamili ‘a complete month -- i.e. a month of thirty days’ Peesa/ ni kaamili. ‘The money is all there.’

- Si/ apa/ hashtapata/ ihtimaamu/ walá/ mahabá/ kaamili/ ya wawa yíitu/ chiwa Yuusufu/ umo karka kiitu. ‘We, here, will not get the attention nor the full love of our father if Yuusufu is among us.’
Yaliko fursa/ khkoðowa shkaamili/ jawabu iyo. ‘There was an opportunity to discuss the matter fully.’
 rel.
u-kaamili n. completion, perfection (with reference to God)
- kamilifu adj. perfect, complete
 rel.
u-kamilifu n. 14 completion, perfection
- kh-kamilisha v. tr. [Sw. kamili, kamilisha SSED 170; Ar. kamala or kamila W 840] (kamilishiize) complete s.t.
Kamilishize masoomoye. ‘He completed his studies.’
 rel.
kh-kamilika v. p/s. (-kamilishile) be completed kh-kamilishiliza v. tr. appl.
kh-kamilishilizanya v. tr. appl. rec.
- kampaneela n. [Ital. campanella “small bell” or Ital. campanello “bell (at house, in school)”] bell kampaneela/ kururuma ‘for a bell to ring loudly’ kampaneela ya kaniisa ‘church bell’ kampaneela ya skoola ‘school bell’ khkasa kampaneela ‘to listen to the bell’
kubiga kampaneela ‘to ring a bell’
kuja kampaneela ‘to ring (lit. cry) a bell’
- kampiyaale n. [Som. kambiyaale DSI 358, from Ital. cambiale] bill of exchange
- kamu interrog. [Ar. kam W 839] how many? how much?
Ali/ mulile mandraa kamu/ Haliima. ‘How many loaves of bread did Ali buy for Haliima.’ Or: Ali/ mulile Haliima/ mandraa kamu. ‘Ali bought for Haliima how many loaves of bread?’ It is possible to right dislocate the object: Ali/ mulile mandraa kamu/ Haliima. ‘Ali, he bought how much bread for her, Haliima.’
Baazi/ hadile gaari/ iyo/ kaa kamu. ‘Baazi said that car was how much?’ Or: Kaa kamu/ hadiiló/ Baazi/ gari iyo. Or: Gari iyo/ Baazi/ hadile kaa kamu. Or: Kaa kamu/ gari iyo/ hadiiló/ Baazi. (Notice that the position of kaa kamu determines whether the main verb is in pseudo-relative form or not. If kaa kamu is to the right of the main verb, it has no effect on its form. If kaa kamu is to the left of the main verb, then the verb is in pseudo-relative form. The complement clause in this sentence is a null copular, thus there is no complement verb whose form can be determined by kaa kamu.) Cheendra/ kaa kamu/ chimwaambila/ ka pesa haba/ tu/ siwo/ niingi. ‘He went (i.e. asked): with how much (i.e. to purchase a goat)? With just a little money, not much.’
ka jahaye kamu wapeeto maddadi [st.] ‘because of him, how many received blessings?’
kamu wawaalimo ndraani ya sanduukhu [nt.] ‘how many people hid inside wooden chests?’
Kamu/ wa’iló. ‘How many came?’ (When kamu is preverbal, the verb may be put into the pseudo-relative form. Cf. post-verbal kamu: Wa’ilee kamu. ‘How many came?’) Khalamu iyi/ kamu. ‘How much is this pen?’ Khalamu kamu/ nyulusi/ ye/ nakhsuuló. ‘How many black pens does he want?’
Mandraa kamu/ Ali/ mulilo Haliimá. ‘How many loaves of bread did Ali buy for Haliima?’
Mandraa kamu/ ye/ jiló. ‘How many loaves of bread did he eat?’
Mi/ siná/ yakhiini/ wantu kamu/ watakuuyó. ‘I am unsure how many people will come.’
Nt^hakhadira kujaa kamu. ‘How much am I able to eat?’
Nt^hangú/ leelo/ kamu/ nt^hachikuja/ nt^hachinaakuna/ chofeté/ ba. ‘Since how many days from today we have not eaten, we have not drunk, we are just exhausted (worrying about our problem).’ Accidentally erased some words before kamu -- check to see if we can be certain what they were

Numbaani/ wamo want^huu kamu. ‘In the house there are how many people?’ (When kamu is post-verbal, the verb is not put into the pseudo-relative form: Numbaani/ wamo want^huu kamu.)

Osmaani/ nazo faṭuraa kamu. ‘How many cars does Omari have?’

Schitalowaa mbuzi/ schifungoowa/ skuu kamu. ‘The goats were taken and tied up for some (lit. how many) days.’

Si/ nt^haasá/ siwo/ waaḏehe/ kiitu/ kamu/ nuumba/ itakhkomó/ peesa. ‘We are not yet clear on how much the house is going to cost.’

Skafaanye/ gaari/ kawa na’iwá/ kamu/ itakhaliḥó/ peesá. ‘I wouldn’t have fixed the car if I had known how much it was going to cost.’

Wa’ilee kamu. ‘How many came?’

Wa’ile want^huu kamu/ numbaani. ‘How many people came home?’

Want^huu kamu/ wa’aminilo kuwa Ali/ weshele peesá/ bangiini. ‘How many people believed that Ali deposited money in the bank?’

Want^huu kamu/ wa’iló. ‘How many people came?’

Want^huu kamu/ wamo numbaani. ‘How many people are in the house?’

Or: Waant^hu/ kamu/ wamo numbaani. ‘As for the people, how many are in the house?’

Want^huu kamu/ ye/ waweenó. ‘How many people did he see?’ (Pseudo-relativization is obligatory when the question word precedes the verb. One cannot say: Want^huu kamu/ ye/ waweene.)

We/ mulile Haliimá/ mandraa kamu. ‘You bought for Haliima how much bread?’ (Cf. with the object right dislocated: We/ mulile mandraa kamu/ Haliima. ‘You bought for her how much bread, Haliima.’ Notice that the right-dislocated object is outside the scope of the final accent that the second person verb form triggers.)

Ye/ wawene want^huu kamu. ‘How many people did he see?’

Zibukuu kamu/ karka zaaka/ we/ nakhsuuló. ‘How many books of mine do you want?’

Zint^huu kamu/ zimo sandukhuuni. ‘How many things are in the box?’

kaamu

[no etymology known] in the phrases:

kambila ka kaamu ‘to say by heart’

We/ takhaadira/ kuhada jawabu za Hamadi/ khambiiló/ ka kaamu. ‘Can you repeat what Hamadi told you by heart?’

kiiwa kaamu ‘to know by heart’

Alí/ waanawe/ wana’iwa khur’aani/ ka kaamu. ‘Ali’s children know the Quran by heart.’

izo ni laazimu kiwoowa kaamu [st.] ‘these (the five pillars of Islam) must be known by heart’

Shekh Nuuru/ ha’isi/ khsooma/ walá/ kaandika/ kilaa chiint^hu/ hiwa ka kaamu. ‘Shekh Nuuru does not know reading or writing, every thing he gets to know by heart’

kubarata ka kaamu ‘to learn by heart’

Chiwooni/ ka Mwalim Ali/ waana/ hubarata khur’aani/ ka kaamu. ‘At the school of Maalim Ali, children learn the Quran by heart.’

Mi/ hukuumbuka/ kubarata shteenzi/ icho/ ka kaamu. ‘I remember learning that poem by heart.’

Muunt^hu/ hataa ye/ chihaba/ ni sahali/ kubarata chiint^hu/ ka kaamu. ‘When one is a child, it is easy to memorize things.’

khsoma (ka) kaamu ‘to read by heart (i.e. from memory)’

Hamadi/ husoma qur’aani/ ka kaamu. ‘Hamadi reads the Quran by heart.’

kh-kamula

v. tr. squeeze, wring s.t. wet out

Ichiwa teena/ ye/ huleeleza/ chileemba/ chisimaani/ schidaara/ maayi/hichigiita/ hishkamula/ maayi/ yaa ye/ hupatoo kuná. ‘It became then that he puts the turban into the well and when it touches the water, he pulls it up and squeezes out the water that he collects to drink.’

khkamulaa nguwo ‘to wring out wet clothes’

rel.

kh-kamuka v. intr. (kamushile) dry out; for rain to stop nvula/ khkamuka ‘rain to stop’

kh-kamukila v. intrans. appl. (kamukilijile)

Nguwo/ zink^hamukilijile. ‘The clothes dried for me.’

kh-kamulila v. tr. appl.

Nk^hamulijile nguwo. ‘He dried the clothes for me.’

nom. rel.

u-kamuko n. the act of drying out

u-kamulo n. the act of wringing s.t. wet out

kaamuni

n. [Ar. kammūn W 841] cummin

Huta kaamuni. ‘You grind cummin.’

kana

conj. (cf. kama) [Sw. kana SSED 171] like, as if, better, if Haṭá/ kanaa we/ humpeendi/ we/ nt^haasá/ takhadira/ kuwanayo adabu/ naaye.

‘Even if you don’t like him you can still be polite.’

Kana khujijila munt^hu mwiinginé/ chaakó/ kheeri/ nakhujijile waako. ‘Instead of someone else eating your (things), it is better that yours (those related to you) eat them.’ (A proverb.)

Kana/ kufa leeló/ kheeri/ kufa keesho. ‘Instead of dying today, it is better to die tomorrow.’ (A proverb.)

Kana kuboolá/ kheeri/ kuloomba. ‘Begging is better than stealing.’ (A saying.)

Kana ni lilá/ ambó/ siwó/ nt^haasá/ ni kiwoowa. ‘Whether it is true or not remains to be learned.’

kana siimba/ chinija ‘if the lion eats me’ kanaa we/ chiza khaadira/ kuwaka ‘if you cannot build (e.g. a house)’

kanaa we/ shkhaadira/ khkeesha/ masku mazima/ ndraani/ ya ibirka ya mayi ya barafu ‘if you are able to pass the whole night inside a tank of ice water’

Mi/ hukuumbuka/ kilaa chiiint^hu/ kana yaliko yaná. ‘I remember everything like it was yesterday.’

Mi/ nt^haasá/ laazimu/ khkasa kana ni amaani/ khsafirowa Miini. ‘I have yet to hear whether it is safe to travel to Brava.’

Na’iwá/ we/ kana Nuurú/ oloshelo Mkhodiishó. ‘Do you know if Nuuru went to Mogadishu?’

Nt^haasá/ ni kiwoowa/ kanaa wo/ watakhadira kulataa zitá. ‘It remains to be seen if they can avoid a big fight.’

Nt^haasá/ siwo/ waaðehe/ kana Fardoosa/ nakuuyá. ‘It is not yet clear whether Fardoosa is coming.’

Omari/ nt^hakuwanaayo/ hakhiikha/ kana Fardoosa/ kalent^he ibanyaani/ ka khaṣṭi. ‘Omari is unsure whether Fardoosa stayed away on purpose.’

Omari/ nt^haná/ yakhiini/ kanaa ye/ laazimu/ kulata kaazyé. ‘Omari is unsure if he should quit his job.’

Omari/ uzize kanaa ye/ takhadira kumziyarata waawayé. ‘Omari asked if he could visit his father.’

Siwo/ waaðehe/ kanaa ye/ waliko waaḷimó/ karka kuboolá. ‘It is not clear if he was involved in the robbery.’

Teena/ nt^hanakuhada/ ba/ kana ni oyo mwiimbili/ nakuhadó. ‘So she did not say that it is the young man who is saying (this).’

We/ laazimu/ kumuza mukeewa/ kanaa si/ shṭakuwako numbaani/ keeshó. ‘You must ask my wife whether we will be at home tomorrow.’

We/ nampenda naani/ na kanaa we/ nampeendá/ dirkameené/ naayé/ kodeelé. ‘Who do you love, and if you love her, have you met with her, have you spoken (to her)?’

Ye/ fanyize kana/ Ali/ waliko festaani. ‘He pretended (lit. did as if) Ali had been at the party.’ (It is not usual for kana to be preceded in a phrase, but this example indicates that it does not trigger lengthening of a preceding word-final vowel.)

Ye/ hufanya ruuhuye/ kana mi/ mweenzawé/ msuurá. ‘She acts as if I were her best friend.’

kana

invar. seems (lit. it is like)

Hamadi/ kana/ pisiló. ‘Hamadi seems to have passed.’ Or: Kana/ pisiló/ Hamadi.

Hamadi/ kana/ pisiló/ imtíhaani. ‘Hamadi seems to have passed the examination.’

Or: Imtíhaani/ Hamadi/ kana/ pisiló. Or: Imtíhaana/ kana/ pisiló/ Hamadi.

Hamadi/ kana/ uziló/ gaari. ‘Hamadi seems to have bought a car.’ Or: Gaari/ Hamadi/ kana/ uziló. Or: Gaari/ kana/ uziló/ Hamadi.

Hamadi/ kana/ wapelo waaná/ peesá. ‘Hamadi seems to have given the children money.’ Or: Waana/ kana/ Hamadi/ wapelo peesá. Or: Peesa/ kana/ Hamadi/ wapelo waaná.

Inakoonyesha/ kana/ itakunyoo nvulá. ‘It seems that it is going to rain.’

Inakoonyesha/ si/ kana/ shtakhshiindró. ‘It looks like we are going to win.’

Omari/ ni kana akhili. ‘Omari seems to be intelligent.’

Omari/ kana/ hapeendí/ kulawa. ‘It seems as if Omari does not want to leave.’

We/ kana/ hupeendí. ‘it seems that you do not want it, it looks like you don’t want it.’

We/ kana/ hupeendí/ kuya ka sukhuuni/ naami. ‘you look like you do not want to go to the market with me.’

kana

n. 9/10 mouth

Ba’ada ya khtomola salaamu/ na kuza khabari/ funga kanayo. ‘After extending (your) greetings and asking how he’s doing, shut your mouth!’

Bakayle/ lasile/ kanaye/ waazi/ teena/ nzi/ zinamwingilila/ kanaani. ‘The hare had left its mouth open (while feigning to be dead), then flies were getting into its mouth.’

Eelo/ shtukula/ almaasi/ iyo/ kanaani/ kaake. ‘The gazelle carried this diamond in his mouth.’

Funga kanayo. ‘Close your mouth!’

Fuunga/ kanayo/ we. ‘Shut up, you!’

Kana/ heendra/ hatá/ Maka. ‘The mouth goes even to Mecca.’ (A proverb that suggests that talk is cheap, talk does not mean action.)

Kana/ ijiiló/ ha’ikooði. ‘A mouth what has eaten does not talk.’ (A proverb that suggests that someone who has done something wrong does not talk about what he has done.)

Kana/ imyelee mate. ‘His mouth was filled with saliva.’

kana iyi ‘this mouth’; kana izi ‘these mouths’

Kana/ ni numba ya maneeno. ‘The mouth is a house of words.’ (A proverb.)

kanaa nk^havu ‘dry mouth’

kanaya ‘my mouth’, kanaye ‘his mouth’ (cf. kana zaawo ‘their mouths’)

Kanaya/ nk^havu. ‘My mouth is dry.’

kanzaa kana ‘to eat breakfast (lit. to start the mouth)’

Mi/ skaanza/ kana/ nth^haasa. ‘I haven’t eaten breakfast yet.’

khfinikaa kana ‘to cover the mouth (e.g. when coughing)’ khfungulaa kana ‘to open the mouth; to eat s.t. early in the morning’ khpangulaa kana ‘to wipe the mouth clean’ koshaa kana ‘to wash the mouth’

kuyezaa kana ‘to fill the mouth (e.g. with food)’

Maayi/ yan.yelee kana. ‘My mouth is full of water -- i.e. I can’t talk (what you are saying is wrong, but I can’t say anything for some reason that I cannot put forth).’

Mojiitu/ khatiloo kaná/ haatowi/ ya khutula. ‘God, who is the one that opened your mouth, does not fail to put something in your mouth.

(A proverb.)

Muunt^hu/ hub^la ruuhuye/ ka kanaye. ‘A man kills himself by his mouth.’
(A proverb.)

Mwene dul’eda/ kanaye/ na zijuuluzé/ maazi. ‘He saw blood on the fox’s mouth and paws.’ need to review phrasing of this example

Nt^hawakhfuungula/ kana zaawo. ‘They did not open their mouths’

Reeba/ kanayo. ‘Shut up (lit. stop your mouth)!’

Wamaliizopó/ wachishoma kana ya ijuuniya/ wachi’itukula/ hattá/ifuwooni. ‘When they finished (putting Abunawaasi and the stones in the sack), they sewed up the opening of the sack and carried it up to the seashore.’

rel.

i-kana (mi-) n. 5/4 aug. big mouth

Awo/ mikana yaawo/ mikulu. ‘Those [people], their mouths are big – i.e.
they talk too much.’

ikana/ kana nt^heleewa ‘a big mouth like a sp. fish – i.e. of someone who talks too much’

khfunga ikana ‘to close the mouth’

Muunt^hu/ suura/ khfunga kanaye. ‘For a man to keep his mouth shut is good.’

khfungila ikana ‘to close the mouth for, with, etc.’

Muunt^hu/ suura/ ki’ifungila kanaye. ‘It is good for a man to keep quiet.’ (Morph. Notice the use of the applied reflexive verb form here.)

khfungula ikana ‘to open the mouth’

Omari/ shfungula kanaye/ hamaamali. ‘When Omari opens his mouth, he does not keep quiet.’

Omari/ shfungula kanaye/ hareebaŋi. ‘When Omari opens his mouth, he does not stop.’

khtaga ikana ‘lit. to widen the mouth -- i.e. shout’

We/ khtaga ikana/ hayiinfi. ‘Your shouting does not help.’

Omari/ ikanaye/ ikulu. ‘Omari, his mouth is big; Omari talks a lot.’

Omari/ ikanaye/ iwovu. ‘Omari says bad things (lit. Omari’s mouth is bad).’

Omari/ ikanaye/ kana iteleewu. ‘Omari’s mouth is as big as that of the iteleewu fish.’

Zeena/ nt^haná/ kana. ‘Zeena does not talk, he is silent, quiet (lit. Zeena has no mouth).’

kanaa ntupu

naked; [pron. kanaa nt^hupu]

Ali/ owele kanaa nt^hupu ‘Ali swam naked.’

kanaa nt^hupu/ kana maamaye/ mzaaziló ‘as naked as his mother gave birth to him’

Kanada

n. Canada

Nfanyize kaazi/ Kanadá/ mwaka mooyi. ‘I worked in Canada for one year.’ (In GM’s speech, the first person singular subject marker n- is dropped in front of a voiceless consonant like f, although he retains the n- in writing Chimiini.)

kanaale

n. 9/10 [Ital. canale] canal

kanama

interj. in fact, my goodness!

Hamiisi/ nambilee mi/ ye/ hupeenda/ khsooma/ kanamá/ ni wanaafakhi/ nt^hupú!
‘Hamiisi told me he likes to read but it was an empty lie!’

Kanamá/ we/ ni mwanaamke. ‘My goodness! You are a woman.’
Shtosha Hamiisi/ hupeenda/ mpiira/ kanamá/nakhsooma/ hupeenda. ‘I thought Hamiisi (only) liked football, in fact reading he likes too!’

Kaande

n. the name of a graveyard in Brava Waant^hu/ huzikowa makhabriini/ Kaande. ‘People are buried at Kaande graveyard.’

kaandra

[cf. Sw. -a kwanza SSED 17] first, initially -a kaandra ‘the first one’
mun^hu wa kaandra ‘the first person’ sku nt^hatu za kaandra ‘the first three days’
Chibiga hoodi/ maraa kaandra/ nt^hakujiboowa/ maraa piili... ‘He asked for permission to enter; the first time, he got no reply; the second time...’
Chiint^hu/ cha kaandra/ khfaanya/ ni khkoða na weenzawo. ‘The first thing to do is speak to all your friends.’
Kaandra/ Hamiisi/ somele chibuukhu/ aakhiri/ langalile mpiira. ‘Initially, Hamiisi read a book. Eventually, he watched football.’
Isafa la kaandra ‘the first line, row’
Maraa kaandra/ ile/ nawene kuwaa we/ sujile kumublá. ‘The first time, she came and saw that you wanted to kill her.’
Maraa kaandra/ mi/ nshiinzilá. ‘The first time, I was defeated.’
Maraa kaandra/ nt^haku/ mrashiizó. ‘The first time, no one followed him.’
Mun^hu ukoo mbelé/ ndiyé/ wa kaandra. ‘The person who is in front is the first.’ (A proverb.)
Sku ya kaandra/ ya piili/ ya taatu/ yaane/ ya taano/ hafá/ sku ya siṭa/ nt^h akhpata/ majiibu. ‘The first day, the second, the third, the fourth, the fifth, up until the sixth, he could not come up with an answer (to the riddle).’
ya kaandra ‘first’
Ya kaandra/ mi/ nkhiriiélé/ we/ kumbelele mooja; ya piili... ‘first, I agree for you to be my master; second...’
Ye/ hufanya ruuhuye/ kana mweenzawé/ wa kaandra. ‘She acts like my besfriend.’

i-kaandra (ma-, mi-)

n. 5/6,4 skin layer or membrane of a living thing, peel, bark ikandra ya embe ‘peel of a mango’ ikandra yaa mazu ‘banana peel’ ikandra ya miimba ‘belly membrane/skin (in animals, the thin layer that encloses the stomach and intestines)’
rel.
i-gaandra n. [Sw. ganda SSED 111] peel, skin (of fruit)
igandra yaa mazu ‘banana peel’
Nakaambula/ igandra yaa mazu. ‘He is peeling off the banana peel.’
Nakuja igaandra/ yaa mazu. ‘He is eating the banana peel.’

kh-kaandra

v. [Sw. kanda SSED 172] (kaanzile) knead, massage Haliima/ namkandra maamaye/ ka mafta. ‘Haliima is massaging her mother with oil.’ Cf. Haliima/ namkandra maamaye/ ka mafta/ namkaandró. ‘Haliima is massaging her mother with oil, that’s what she is doing.’ Or: Haliima/ namkandra maamaye/ namkaandró/ ka mafta. ‘Haliima is massaging her mother, that’s what she is doing, with oil.’
khkandra kaa nguvu ‘to massage forcefully’ khkandra maluungo ‘to massage the body’ khkandra uloongo ‘to knead clay’ khkandra unga ‘to knead flour’ kumkandraa chiṭa ‘to massage his head’ Mwaana/ namkandra maalimu/ chiṭa. ‘The child is massaging the teacher’s head.’ (The yes-no question version does not involve accent shift, just Q-raising. The exclamatory question involves accent shift throughout the VP: Mwaana/ namkandra maalimú/ chitá!?)

Mwaana/ mkanzile maalimu/ chita. ‘The child massaged the teacher’s head.’ (Observe that with this verb, it is not necessary to mark the possessive relationship between the object mwaalimu and the body part. It is not felicitous to say: ?Mwaana/ kanzile chita cha mwaalimu. ‘The child massaged the head of the teacher.’ Only somewhat more acceptable is: ?Mwaana/ kanzile mwaalimu/ chitaache.) kumkandra ilungo ‘to massage the back’ kumkandra ka magoonjo ‘to massage s.o. with the knees (e.g. as a small child might massage his mother with his knees)’ kumkandra ka tartiibu ‘to massage gently’ kumkandra miilu ‘to massage his legs’

kumkandra moongo ‘to massage the back’

Mwaana/ namkandra mwaalimu/ chita/ namkaandró. ‘The child is massaging the teacher’s head, that’s what he is doing.’ Or: Mwaana/ namkandra mwaalimu/ namkaandró/ chita. ‘The child is massaging the teacher, that’s what he is doing, (his) head.’

rel.

kh-kaandrika v. p/s.

kh-kaandriila v. appl.

Mwaana/ namkandrila mwaalimu/ mafta. ‘The child is massaging the teacher with oil.’

kh-kandrisha v. caus. have someone knead, massage kh-kandrishana v. caus. rec.

kh-kandrishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-kandrishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-kandrishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

kh-kandroowa v. pass.

Wazeele/ hukandroowá. ‘It is old men who are massaged.’

rel. nom.

m-kaandro n. 3 [Sw. mkando (mi-) SSED 172] act of kneading

l-kaandra (n-)

n. 11/10 [Sw. ukanda SSED 492] belt; [pron. nk^haandra ‘belts’]

Chimvīla baduwi/ chimpa/ peesa/ zaa ye/ wanaazó/ lkaandraani/ chimwaambila/ kumulīlaa luzi/ na shpandre chaa nguwo. ‘He called the nomad and gave him the money that he had in his belt and told him to buy for him thread and a piece of cloth.’

Chisula kuwa taajiri/ kaza lkaandra. ‘If you want to be rich, tighten your belt.’ (A proverb.)

khfunga ka lkaandra ‘tie with a belt’ khfungula lkaandra ‘to open belt’

kumbiga ka lkaandra ‘to hit s.o. with a belt’

Omari/ nambiga Hamadi/ ka lkaandra. ‘Omari is beating Hamadi with a belt.’

kumfunga ka lkaandra ‘to tie someone with a belt, strap’ kumvunanga ka lkaandra ‘to beat with a belt’ kuvala lkaandra ‘wear a belt’ lkaandra la aaga ‘rubber belt’ lkaandra/ la chigozi ‘a leather, skin belt’ lkaandra la chiguwo ‘a cloth belt’ lkaandra la ðahabu ‘a golden belt (e.g. something a bride might want for a wedding)’ lkaandra la mpiira ‘rubber belt’ lkaandra/ laa ngozi ‘leather belt’ lkaandra la palaastika ‘plastic belt’

Omari/ namvunanga Hamadi/ ka lkaandra. ‘Omari is beating Hamadi with a belt.’

rel.

sh-kaandra (s-) n. 7/8 the belt strip at the back of a sandal, etc.

shkandra chaa sa’a ‘wrist watch strap’

mi-kaandra n. 4 belts

Valaani/ mikandra yiinu/ ariplaano/ inakuuluka. ‘Fasten your seat belts, the airplane is taking off.’

n-kaanga

n. 9/10 [Sw. kanga SSED 172] guinea fowl [pron. nk^haanga]

Karkaa ye/ oloshelo kumrasha nk^haangá/ mundraani/ wa’ilee nyunyi/ wajile nt^heendre/ yotte. ‘While he was (going) following the guinea fowl in the garden, birds had come and ate all the dates.’

kuwinda nk^haanga ‘to hunt guinea fowl’ mashkiloye/ kana nk^haanga ‘his ears (are) like a guinea fowl (i.e. he hears well)’

nama ya nk^haanga ‘the meat of a guinea fowl’

Nk^haanga/ walikoo chila/ kaa kule/ nt^ho. ‘The guinea fowl was crying from very far off.’

nk^heje za nk^haanga ‘the noises of a guinea fowl’

rel.

mi-kaanga n. aug. pl. large guinea fowls

i-kangaaya (mi-)

n. 4/5 Blue Tang fish

kani

by what means?

Ali/ kani/ oloshelo Mkhodiishó. ‘By what means did Ali go to Mogadishu?’ (Syn. When kani is pre-verbal, it requires the verb to go into the pseudo-relative form.)

Kani/ we/ oloshelo Mkhodiishó. ‘By what means did you go to Mogadishu?’ (The pre-verbal location of kani triggers the pseudo-relative form of the verb. Of course, the second person form of a non-relative past tense verb would also trigger final accent.)

Tinzile kani/ nama. ‘With what did you cut the meat?’ Or: Nama/ tinzile kani. Or: Kani/ tinziloo namá. (Syn. Observe that kani in pre-verbal position triggers pseudo-relative clause formation, but not when it is post-verbal.)

Uzile kani. ‘What did he buy it with?’

We/ oloshelo kani/ Mkhodiisho. ‘You went by what means to Mogadishu?’ (Phon. The second person past tense form triggers final accent; however, the scope of the final accent cannot go past the focus element kani. This explains why in the present sentence Mkhodiisho has default rather than final accent.)

We/ oloshelo Mkhodiishó/ kani. ‘You went to Mogadishu by what means?’ (Phon. In Chimiini, immediate post-verbal position is the focus position for a verb complement. In the present sentence kani is not focused, hence it is not included in the scope of the final accent triggered by the second person past tense verb.)

Ye/ oloshelo kani/ Mkhodiisho. ‘He went by what means to Mogadishu?’ Or: Ye/ oloshelo Mkhodiisho/ kani.

kani

from what?

Miloongoti/ yafanyiza kani. ‘The masts, what are they made of?’

mu-kanifu

n. [Ar. kanafa W 843] protector, guardian, the one who assists (Ar. kanafa, W 843)

kaniisa

n. [Sw. kanisa SSED 172; Ar. kanīsa W 842] church

kanisaani ‘in church’

Haṭá/ sku mooyi/ dafa/ wachimwaambila/ kendra naawo/ kanisaani/ khsaḷa naawo. ‘Until one day the kites told him to come with them to church to pray with them.’

Karaayle/ wachishoorata/ keendra/ khtila kaniisa/ muḷo. ‘The crows decided to go and burn the church down.’
Omari/ uko kanisaani. ‘Omari is at the church.’

- kaanjuri n. a game played on a board with holes, using seashells
Nakhṭeza kaanjuri. ‘He is playing kaanjuri. ‘
- kaankaro n. cancer
File ka kaankaro. ‘He died of cancer.’
kumwambaṭa kana kaankaro ‘to stick to him like cancer (said of some who when he wants something, he will never quit until he gets it’ Kaankaro/ nt^hayná/ dawa. ‘Cancer has no treatment (remedy, medicine).’
maradi ya kaankaro ‘the disease of cancer’
- u-kanme n. a silver or golden choker
- kansari n. cancer; var. kansar
Hamadi/ nayo kansari ya igoroombo. ‘Hamadi has cancer of the throat.’
Hamadi/ nayo kansari ya inyi. ‘Hamadi has cancer of the liver.’
Iyi/ huṭasawara kuleta khkashifowaa dawa/ ya kansar. ‘This may lead to discovering a cure for cancer.’
- kanumake adv. [ka numa=ke, cf. numa] afterwards, then (MI shortened to kanmake)
Kanmake/ chibuzi/ hiyingilila/ maduriini. ‘After that, the little goat went on its way to the bush.’ (The verb hiyingilila is an example of the one environment where Chimiini makes use of a reflexive prefix i that is found in other Bantu languages. Specifically, i is used in conjunction with the applied stem /ingilila/, yielding a meaning ‘take oneself into’. The number of verb stems which can be used in this construction is limited.)
Kanmake/ itushileni (or: itulushileni)/ kati kaawo. ‘And then what happened between them?’
^fKanumake/ Omari/ takhpikó. ‘It’s later that Omari will cook.’ (In principle, either of two pre-verbal phrases might be focused. The focused phrase is not necessarily initial. A focused initial phrase is clearly higher in pitch than the second phrase. A focused second phrase is not lowered relative to the initial phrase.)
Mwanaashke/ wa Abú/ mpelo chibuukú/ takuuya/ kanumake. The girl to who(m) Abu gave the book will come over later.’
Omari/ haapiki/ kanumake. ‘Omari will not cook later.’ (In the absence of external focus, a negative verb is inherently focused and therefore separated phrasally from its complement. The simple yes-no question version of this sentence shows only suspension of downstep, no shifting of the accent on the post-verbal phrase. This lack of accent shift is significant, because it indicates that the status of the phrase separated from a negative verb is different from a phrase separated by the presence of emphasis on an affirmative verb. In the latter case, the post-verbal phrase undergoes Accent Shift.)
Omari/ kanumake/ haapiki. ‘Omari is not going to cook later.’ (In the simple yes-no question, no accent shift was observed. In the exclamatory yes-no question, shift occurred on all but the initial phrase: Omari/ kanumaké/ haapikí!?)
^fOmari/ nt^hakhpika kanumaké. ‘(It’s) Omari (who) did not cook later.’ (That Omari is focused in this example is shown by two things. First, a pre-verbal focused phrase triggers pseudo-relativization of the following verb. Pseudo-relativization of a negative verb is indicated only by the fact that the verb becomes a final accent-trigger. The second fact is that a negative verb is inherently focused and phrased separately from its complement, except that focus elsewhere takes priority over the inherent focus on the verb and as a result the verb is no longer phrasally separated from its complement.)
Omari/ takhpika kanumake. ‘Omari will cook later.’ (The simple yes-no question version of this only suspends downstepping; there is no accent shift. The exclamatory yes-no question retains downstep and shifts accent to the final vowel, where it has a falling character.)
Omari/ takhpika/ kanumake. ‘Omari will cook later.’ (The simple yes-no question applied to a sentence with verb emphasis shifts the accent of a complement: Omari/ takhpika/ kanumaké? ‘will

Omari cook later?’

Si/ hashkooḁeli/ jawabu iyi/ mpaka/ kanumake. ‘We won’t discuss that problem until later.’

Sultaani/ uyu/ naayé/ kila shpisa/ hukumu/ hulangaḁa/ ka kublike/ chimaliza huṭeka/ kanmake/ hulangaḁa/ lpaandre/ la kusooto/ huḁa. ‘This king [lit. and he] whenever he passes judgement, he looks to his right and then laughs, then he looks to his left, and he cries.’

Takhpika kanumake/ Omari. [H!!H] ‘He will cook later, Omari.’
(Right-dislocated subjects are radically downstepped, as in this example.)

Wo/ wachanza khṭeza/ washṭeza/ kanmake/ Sa’iidi/ chimshindra oyo ijini. ‘They began to play (gamble), they played until Sa’iidi defeated that djinn.’

kaanza

adv. initially (In origin, this is the infinitive form of the verb -anza ‘begin’.)

Kaanza/ Hamiisi/ somele chibuukhu/ aakhiri/ langalile mpiira. ‘Initially Hamiisi read a book, (but) eventually he watched football.’

kanzi

n. 9/10 [Sw. kanzi SSED 173] treasure, hoard (esp. buried treasure) ilmu ni kanzi ya lmiingu na aakhera [st.] ‘knowledge is a treasure of this world and the hereafter’

Kaazi/ ni kanzi. ‘Work is a treasure.’ (A proverb.)

kusha kanzi ‘to hide a treasure’ kuweka kanzi ‘to set aside a hoard’

i-kaapa (ma-)

n. 5/6 [cf. Sw. gaba Sac. 243, who identifies the word with the Kiamu dialect] fin (of a fish); wing (of a bird) kumtila makapaani ‘to put under one’s wing – i.e. protection’

Nyunyi/ bilaa makaapa/ ha’uluki. ‘A bird without wings does not fly.’ (A proverb which says that one needs the means to do something, e.g. a soldier without a gun cannot fight.)

Washpala nsi izo/ washṭinda makaapaye. ‘They scaled those fish and cut off the fins.’

rel.

i-kaapa (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.

l-kaapa (n-) n. 11/10 wing of a bird; [pron. nk^haapa in the plural] ‘wings’] sh-kaapa (s-) n. 7/8 dim.

shkapa chelpe ‘an oceanic whitetip shark’ (cf. pl. skapa zelpe)

kapartoone (Ø, ma-) n. 9/10, 6 [Ital. copertone] the outer rubber tire of a wheel

Kapeelo

n. Cappello, the name of an Italian resident, whose name appears in the place name:

Ibuuri/ ya Kapeelo (also Chibuuri/ cha Kapeelo) ‘a stretch of the slope on the western side of the hill leading to Brava (not on the side nearest to the town, but the other side from which you see the inland plain) approximately half way between Brava and Muduni. At that point the hill road is particularly steep and Resident Cappello had the stretch paved, probably to facilitate the passage of carts loaded with agricultural produce that were going into Brava from the cultivated areas near the Shebelle River.’

kapiili

adv. again (presumably from ka + piili)

Hamadi/ mwambile Hasani/ kahima/ teremeka/ kaaka/ numbaani/ na kapiili/ siye. ‘Hamadi told Hasani: get away from my house quickly and don’t come again.’

Hamiisi/ husoma niingi/ na kapiili/ ya iyó/ hupeenda/ mpiira/ wa kuulu/ nt’o. ‘Hamiisi studies a lot, in addition to that, he likes football a lot.’

Kapiili/ mpiira/ siwo/ muhimu/ ka mwana wa skoolā. ‘Secondly, football is not necessary for a student.’

kapitaale	n. capital Kapitaale/ ya Soomaaliya/ ni Mkhodiisho. ‘The capital of Somalia is Mogadishu.’
kapsola	n. [Ital. capsula] capsule
kaptani (ma-)	n. [Eng. captain] captain Huseeni/ chiwa’amura/ makaptani/ wa manwari/ kuruda kaawo. ‘Huseeni ordered the captains of the warships to return home.’ Mi/ nimdorsete Omari/ kuwa kaptani. ‘I chose Omari to be captain.’ Ye/ ðuhurishize kuwaa ye/ tarajiile/ kudorsatowa kuwa kaptani. ‘He revealed that he had hoped to be chosen to be captain.’
Kaptanlaas	n. a village some ninety kilometers north of Brava on the road to Mogadishu
sh-kapu (s-)	n. 7/8 [Sw. kikapu SSED 193] basket Cho/ shchifungula shkapuche. ‘She opened her basket.’ Hufanya skapu. ‘They make baskets.’ Ikoni ya shkapu ‘handle of a basket’ Ka shkapuuni/ schilawa zinaandra/ na gambuusá/ naazó/ zinakubigó. ‘From the basket she took our banjos and guitars which were playing.’ Ni ndrani ya shkapu icho/ yawalimo mi’ujizá. ‘It was inside that basket that there were miraculous things.’ Shkapu cha maame/ chiyelee gele. ‘My mother’s basket is full of maize.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is miino ‘teeth’.) shkapuuni ‘in the basket’ Ye/ chishfinikila shkapu. ‘She covered it with a basket.’ rel. i-kapu (mi-) n. aug. large basket ikapu ikulu/ ya sukhuuni ‘the large basket for the market’; mikapu mikulu/ ya sukhuuni ‘the large baskets for the market’ ikapu ipaana ‘a wide basket’; mikapu mipaana ‘wide baskets’ mikapu aya ‘these aug. baskets’ l-kapu (mi-) n. aug. large basket lkapu ili ‘this aug. basket’
kapuchiino	n. [Ital. cappuccino] coffee with milk in it
karaaka	n. [Sw. kiraka SSED 204; Ar. raqa’a ‘to patch a garment’ W 354] patch kambisa karaaka ‘to attach with patch’ kandika karaaka ‘to patch s.t.’ Shaatiye/ inayo karaaka. ‘His shirt has a patch.’ rel. sh-karaaka (s-) n. 7/8 dim. (tire) patch
karaama	n. [Sw. karama SSED 174; Ar. karāma W 822] miracle, extraordinary things done by saints; honor Masheekhi/ wana karaama. ‘Sheikhs have (the power of performing) miracles.’ na karaama zītu ziweena bayaana [nt.] ‘and our miraculous delivery became clear’ Nayo karaama. ‘He has a God-given gift for performing miracles.’ ya Sheekhi Abdulqaadiri/ karaamazo ni ðaahiri [poem] ‘O Sheikh Abdulqadir, your miraculous powers are evident’
karaamaale	adj. possessing miraculous gifts (a synonym of astaale) Mitume/ mikaraamaale. ‘Prophets are miraculous.’ Oyo/ Hamadi/ ni astaale/ karaamaale. ‘That Hamadi is someone possessing miraculous abilities.’ shekhiya ni sheekhi astaale karaamaale ni sheekhi Jeylaani ‘[st.] ‘my sheikh is a sheikh who possesses miraculous gifts, it is Sheikh Jeylani'

karamu

n. [Sw. karamu SSED 174; Ar. karīm "hospitable, generous" W 822] feast served on a special occasion; food given to poor people

Karamu/ ifanyiiza. 'Karamu was done.' Or: Ifanyiza karamu.

Karamuuni/ wa'azimiila/ masheekhi/ walangaala noota/ na ma'akhyari/ wa muuyi. 'To the feast were invited learned men, astrologers, and gentlemen of the town.' (Phon. Notice that the final accent triggered by the conjunction na extends in this example only to the end of ma'akhyari and not to the end of the entire associative construction: ma'akhyari/ wa muuyi. If the head of the associative had been joined into a single phrase with its complement, then the final accent would have appeared at the end of that single phrase: na ma'akhyari wa muuyi.)

khfanya karamu 'to provide or cook or serve food on a special occasion'

Maama/ choloka sukhuuni/ chulaa mbuzi/ shinda mbuzi/ shfanya karamu/ nkulu. 'Mother went to the market (and) bought a goat/ (and) slaughtered the goat (and) made a large feast.'

Wa'ifanyize karamu/ ya wawa yaawo/ faramiilo. 'They made the karamu that their father recommended.'

khfanyiliza karamu 'to make a feast for'

Wafanyilize waant^h/u/ karamu. 'They made karamu for people.'

Leelo/ ka Mashariifu/ yiko karamu/ ni ziyara za mtume. 'Today at the area of the Mashariifu there is an invitation to an event, it is the celebration of the Prophet.'

Maama/ chimwaambila/ kuwaa ye/ takhpowa ina/ ba'ada/ ya karamu. 'Mother told him that he would be given a name after the feast.'

Wapikilile waant^h/u/ karamu. 'They cooked karamu for people.'

karaani (ma-)

n. 1/2 [Sw. karani SSED 174; Persian kārān "factor, agent" cited in SSED 174] clerk

Awa/ ndiwó/ makarani waa mi/ niwapelo peesá. 'These are the clerks who I gave money to them.'

karani uyu 'this clerk'; makarani awa 'these clerks'

Tuuna/ waawaye/ ni karaani. 'Tuuma's father is a clerk.'

Uyu/ ndiyé/ karani waa mi/ nimpelo peesá. 'This is the clerk whom I gave money to him.'

rel.

u-karaani n. clerkship

karata

n. [Sw. karata SSED 174; Port.] playing card

Chambiloowa/ nt^hasaa we/ kumloola/ we/ ni laazima/ kh^hteza/ na mwanaamke/ karata. 'He was told: before you marry her, you must play cards with the girl.'

jogi ya karata 'a pack of playing cards' kawanya karata 'to deal cards'

kh^hteza karata 'to play cards'

Ye/ chiwona majini/ miingi/ yakumangeene/ kh^hteza karata. 'He saw many djinns gathered together to play cards.'

Ye/ nakendra jiraniini/ kh^hteza karata na jiraaniye. 'He is going to his neighbor's [place] to play cards with his neighbor.'

kh^htinda karata 'to cut the cards' kubiga karata 'to shuffle cards'

kudanganya karata 'to shuffle cards'

Schiletowa karata/ wachanza kh^hteza. 'Cards were brought and they began to play.' (Syn. Observe the postposing of karata, the subject of the passive verb schiletowa, as well as the grouping of karata into

- the same phrase as the verb.)
Uyu/ chaamura/ khadimuze/ kuleta karata. ‘This one ordered her servants to bring cards (for playing).’
- sh-karawa (s-)* n. 7/8 small monkey (according to GM; an internet source glosses as “baboon”)
Mbene skarawá. ‘I saw small monkeys.’
Omari/ nayo shkarawa. ‘Omari has a monkey.’
shkarawa ichi ‘this monkey’; skarawa izi ‘these monkeys’ Shkarawa/ shfakeete. ‘The monkey ran away.’
Skarawa izi/ zihaba. ‘These monkeys are small.’
Skarawa/ sfakeete. ‘The monkeys ran away.’
- karawaata* n. 9/10 [Ital. cravatta] necktie, cravat
- karaayle (ma-)* n. 9/10 [?cf. Som. qararaflee “to croak, to caw”, found in Dizionario Italiano-Somalo 289] crow (there are two kinds: the wholly black one, which is rare in Brava, and a larger kind that is black with a white ring around its neck)
Apo/ zamaani/ sultani waa dafa/ ondroshela/ mpelekelele/ sultani wa karayle/ khati/ mwambiile/ kuwaa ye/ nakhsuula/ makaraayle/ na sultani waawó/ kumwelela askarize. ‘Once upon a time the king of the kites sent a letter to the king of the crows telling him that he wanted the crows and their king to be his soldiers.’
rel.
i-karaayle (mi-) n. 5/4 aug.
- karbaashi* n. [Som. karbaash DSI 359] whip variant form: garbaashi
rel.
sh-karbaashi (s-) n. dim.
- karboratoore* n. 9/10 [Ital. carburatore] carburator
- kaari* n. [Eng. card] any kind of ‘card’, e.g. identification or membership document, or ration card
- kaariko* n. 9/10 [Ital. carico] cargo Gaari/ ni kariiko. ‘The truck is loaded with cargo.’ check
- kariimu (Ø-, ma-)* adj. [Ar. karīm “beneficent (God)” W 822] open-handed, generous (and thus respectful of others); a name for God want^hu makariimu ‘generous people’
rel.
u-kariimu n. [Sw. ukarimu SSED 174] respectfulness, generosity kurama adj. pl. [Ar. kuramā W 822] generous
- karka* prep. [cf. Sw. katika SSED 178-179] from, among, of, in, while Dibii mbili/ haskali/ karka moro mooyi. ‘Two bulls do not dwell in one fenced-in enclosure.’ (A proverb.)
hummoni muunt^hu karka lpeengele [nt.] ‘you don’t see anybody in the streets’ karka muunt^hi/ kati ‘around mid-day’ Karkaa ndila/ siimba/ chiwa’uza weenziwe... ‘On the way, Lion asked his companions...’
karka nuumba ‘in the house’
Karka waana/ wont^he/ mpenzele Nuuru. ‘Among all the children he liked Nuuru (best).’
Karka wanaashke/ wont^he/ ni fHaliima/ msuurá (or: msuraa nt^ho). ‘Among all the girls, it is Haliima who is the most beautiful.’
Karkaa ye/ nakeendró/ gaari/ imvundikiliile. ‘While he was going, the car broke down on him.’

Karkaa ye/ naakufó/ sulṭaani/ chaamura/ mawaziiriwe/ kumdhahalisha/ mwaana/ maali/ yaa ye/ takulató/ yotte/ na kumtawalisha muuyi. ‘When he was dying, the sultan ordered his ministers to give his son all the wealth that he would leave behind and to make him the ruler of the town.’

Karkaa ye/ nakugalgalo chiliini/ shkasa waant^hu/ kaa kule/ wanakuuya. ‘While he was tossing and turning on the bed, he heard people from afar coming.’

karkaa ye/ nakurudo muyiini ‘while he was returning to town’

Kuḷa mooyi/ karka want^hu wa Jaama/ wabishiló/ ishtakiile. ‘Each one of the people whom Jaama hit complained.’

Mi/ mbaliko shkula muyi uyu/ karka numba iyi. ‘I was raised in this town in this house.’

Mi/ waawe/ karkaa ye/ naakufó/ mp^hele wasiya/ mbili. ‘I, my father, while he was dying, he gave me two warnings.’

mooyi/ karkaa si ‘one of us’

Mooyi/ karka waant^hu/ awa/ watatu/ chihada... ‘One of these three men said...’

Mwaana/ chilawa karka ibirka. ‘The child came out of the tank of water.’

Nile karka laakujá. ‘I came around sunset.’

Nowelele karkaa wowi. ‘I swam in the river.’ (One cannot relativize into karka NP and say wowi yaa mi/ nowelelo karkayé* ‘the river that I swam in it’.

Rather one says: wowi yaa mi/ nowelelo katiiké.)

Safiya/ lazile karka reeri/ inayo maali. ‘Safiya came from a family that has money.’

Shtila chaakuja/ karka zijamu statu. ‘She put food on three plates.’

Sku mooyi/ muunt^hu/ mooyi/ karkaa ye/ nakhpitó/ kharibu ya numba ya waziiri/ welo sulṭaani/ chimwona Ali/ uko cholokooni/ nakuwapa khaadimu/ amri/ kumfungila farasi. ‘One day a man, while passing near the house of the minister who had become sultan saw Ali at the window giving orders to the servants to saddle for him the horse.’

Wakomele karka muuyi/ mooyi. ‘They reached a town.’

Walimo karka kaazi. ‘He was busy working; he was engaged in working.’

Walimo karka khfikira. ‘He was (in the process of) thinking.’

Walimo karka khsooma. ‘He was (in the process of) reading.’

Walimo karkaa kuja. ‘He was (in the process of) eating.’

Walimo karka kujaa zijo. ‘He was eating zijo.’

Walimo karkaa kuna. ‘He was drinking.’

Walimo karka kuna khamri. ‘He was drinking liquor.’

Wana watatu/ karka wana ikumi/ wa’ile. ‘Three students out of ten have come.’

kh-karkarata agitated way

v. [cf. Som. adj. karkar “energetic, lively” DSI 359] (karkareete) speak in an angry, karpaṭoone

n.9/10,6 the outer rubber tire of a wheel; karpaṭoone or makarpaṭoone ‘rubber tires’

karshe

n. 9/10 black tip reef shark

karwaayi

adj. [cf. Tunni expression: la kari waa “impossible to restrain”] stubborn

Laakini/ mwaana/ wele karwaayi/ ize khtoosaṭa. ‘But the boy became stubborn and refused to be corrected.’

Maama/ chimtiyila mwaanawe/ kendra kubloowa/ na siimba/ laakini/ mwaana/ wele karwaayi. ‘Mother was afraid for her son to go and be killed by the lion, but the boy was stubborn.’

l-kasa

n. 11 [etymology not known] ceiling

Ali/ mkomeze mwaana/ lkasaani. ‘Ali helped the child reach up to the ceiling.’

kh-kasa

v. [cf. Som. kas- “understand” Ab 149] (kasiize) listen, see, smell; listen to, heed Ali/ mkasize Nuuru/ da’awaze. ‘Ali listened to Nuuru’s complaints.’ (This example requires some discussion. A possessive expression such as Nuuru/ da'awaze 'Nuuru, his complaints', has, as its head, the noun da'awa 'complaints'. The head of the possessive phrase is ordinarily the NP that controls a subject or an object marking on the verb. Thus it is out of the ordinary for the verb's object marker to be in agreement with Nuuru. An object marker is not required; cf. the sentence n-k^hasize Nuuru/ da'awazé. 'I heard Nuuru's complaints.'

Apo/ schondrokaa nk^heje/ kati kaawo/ hattá/ ma'askari/ ya sultaani/ washkasa/ wachiya. 'There a lot of cries went up between the two until the soldiers of the sultan heard and came.'

Ba'ada/ khkasa/ jis'iyoy/ Huseeni/ chiruda jahazini/ chimkhubura mwanaamke/ zaa ye/ kasiizó. 'After hearing this way, Huseeni returned to the boat and informed the girl what he had heard.'

Bakayle/ kasizopo zaa dáfá/ hadiiló/ chanza khtetemesha mkilawe. 'The rabbit, when he heard what the kite said, began to shake its tail.'

Basi/ oyo mwiimbili/ shkasa jis'iyoy. 'So, that boy heard about this.'

Chilawe/ shkase jawaabuze. 'Let us go so that we can listen to his words.'

Da'awa za Nuuru/ nk^hasiizé. 'The complaints of Nuuru, I heard.'

Daa'ima/ humkasa/ laakini/ simwoni. 'I always hear him, but I do not see him.' (A riddle, the answer to which is lpepo 'wind'.)

Haliima/ nk^hasizee mi/ kiimba. 'Haliima heard me singing.'

Haliima/ nk^hasizee mi/ nakiimbó. 'Haliima heard me singing.'

Hamadi/ khkasa jawabu iyoy/ ulushile/ degeele. 'Hamadi, to hear that news, he jumped up and down.'

Ito/ huwona khariibu/ ishkilo/ hukasaa kule. 'The eye sees near, the ear hears far.' (A proverb.)

jiraanize/ wamkasizopo naakuá 'when his neighbors heard him crying'

Karkaa ye/ nakugalalo chiliini/ shkasa want^hu/ kaa kule/ wanakuuya. 'While he was tossing and turning on the bed, he heard people from afar coming.'

Kasa koði za waawo. 'Pay heed to what your father says (and act accordingly).'

Kasa koði za want^hu wa wazima. 'Listen to the words of elders.'

Kasaani. 'You (pl.) listen!'

Kasize khabari/ radiyooni. 'He listened to the news on the radio.'

Kasa koði za want^hu wazima. 'Listen to the words of elders.'

Kasa koði za waawo. 'Pay heed to what your father says (and act accordingly)!'

khkasa bardi 'to feel cold' khkasa keesi 'to hear a lawsuit, a case'

khkasa kooði 'to pay heed to someone's words'

Khkasa/ siwo/ kama huwona. 'To hear is not the same as seeing.'

Khkasa/ siwo/ kama kuwona. 'To hear is not like seeing.' Also: Khkasa/ na kuwoná/ siwo/ sawa. 'To listen and to see are not the same thing.' (A proverb.)

Maamaye/ chimreeba/ laakini/ iize/ mkasa/ mnoweele. 'His mother forbid it (tried to stop him), but he refused to listen to her, and he married her.'

masku leelopo takhkasa zibuumbu [nt.] 'in the night, when you have just gone to sleep, you will hear the hooting of cars'

mooja nashfaanya wakasiizopo mnaada [st.] 'may God make us the ones who have heard the call'

Moojá/ takhfuraha/ shkasa zaa mi/ nfanyiizó. 'My master will be pleased when he sees what I have done.'

mwaanzo wa waajibu ndrúza kasaani/ kumwiíwa moojo khuunzilo rahmaani [st.] 'listen my friends: the beginning of [all] religious obligations is to know God, the Compassionate, who created you'

Nakhkasá? 'Do you hear?'

Nimkasiizé/ Nuuru/ da'awaze. 'I heard Nuuru's complaints.'

Nimkasize siimbá/ nakugoroomá. 'I heard a lion roaring.' Or: Nk^hasize siimbá/ nakugoroomá.

Nk^hasaani/ waanawá. 'Listen to me, my children!'

Nk^hasiizé/ kama Omari/ ile. 'I heard that Omari arrived.' (The focus on the main verb, signalled by the fact that the verb is at the end of a phonological phrase, prevents the final accent triggered by this verb from extending to the complement.)

Nk^hasiizé/ koði za Nuuru. ‘I heard Nuuru’s words.’

Nk^hasiizé/ tarafu ya Osmaani. ‘I heard about Osmaani.’

Nt^humkasa maamó. ‘Didn’t you hear your mother?’

Omari/ iize/ khkasa jawabu iyo/ bilkuliya. ‘Omari refused to listen to that thing (argument, point of view, etc.) ever.’

pashpo khkasa harfuya ‘without smelling myself’

Qaaði/ kasize da’awa za Nuuru. ‘The judge listened to Nuuru’s complaints.’

shkasapo bunduqu mi huwerersata [nt.] ‘when I hear guns I become troubled and confused’

Sho khkasa mkulu/ huvundika kuulu. ‘The one who does not listen to his elder breaks his leg.’ (A proverb.)

Sho khkasa ya waake/ huwona yaake. ‘The one who does not listen to his (i.e. the people close to him, family and friends) will see his (i.e. the unfortunate consequences of ignoring these people).’ (A proverb.)

Si/ humkasa/ laakini/ hachimwoni. ‘We hear him, but we do not see him.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is sooti ‘voice’.)

Zilaatu/ zimbakaze Haaji. ‘The shoes squeezed Haaji (i.e. were too narrow for his feet).’

rel.

kh-kasanya v. rec. (-kaseenye) listen to one another

Kambilana/ yiiko/ khkasanya/ nt^haku. ‘There is giving each other advice, there is not listening to each other.’ (A proverb.)

Waant^hu/ wakasenye kooði. ‘They listened to/ paid heed to one another.’

kh-kasika v. p/s.

Fulaani/ hukasika kooðize/ ka sahali. ‘So-and-so’s words can be heard easily.’

Koði za Ali/ hukasika ka sahali. ‘The words of Ali can be heard easily.’

Kooðize/ nt^haskukasika/ ka bayaana. ‘His words were not clearly heard.’

kh-kasiliza v. appl. (kasiliize) listen for, on; listen to a wish, an entreaty (and therefore grant it)

Mkasilize Ali/ kooðiza. ‘He listened to my words (i.e. spied on me) for Ali.’
mooja nashkasiliza keendra Harameeni [st.] ‘may God grant us to go to the two mosques (of Mecca and Medina)’

Nk^hasilize kooði. ‘He spied for me (lit. listened to words for me).’

Nk^hasilize kooðiza. ‘He listened to my words on me (i.e. he spied on me).’

kh-kasilizanya v. appl. rec. listen to or for one another

Waant^hu/ wakasilizenye kooði. ‘They listened to the talk for one another.’

kh-kasisha v. caus. make listen, allow to hear

Dafa/ chihada ka lkele/ kumkasisha bakayle. ‘The hawk spoke loudly so as to make the rabbit hear.’

Hakhaadiri/ khkasisha waanawe. ‘He can’t make his children listen.’

kooði za ye mkasishiizo Muusa [st.] ‘words are what he made Muusa hear’ Mkasishize kooði/ ka khashi. ‘He allowed him to hear what he said intentionally.’

kh-kasishanya v. caus. rec.

Wana awa/ hukasishanya ndriimbo. ‘These children make one another listen to songs.’

kh-kasishika v. caus. p/s.

Hakasishiki/ kooði. ‘He cannot be made to pay heed to the words.’

kh-kasishiliza v. caus. appl.

Mkasishilize Nuuru/ waana/ muuzika. ‘He made Nuuru’s children listen to the music.’

kh-kasishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

Wakasishilizenye waana/ muuzika. ‘They made the children listen to the music for/on one another.’

kh-kasoowa v. pass.

Huwona/ hawonoowi/ hukooða/ hakasoowi. ‘He sees, but he is not seen, he speaks, but he is not heard.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is mojiitu ‘God’.)

ishkasoowa yiila yo hufakatoowa [nt.] ‘when people hear “they have come”, they run’

Kooðize/ skasiza mashuriqi/ na maghribi. ‘His words were heard east and west.’

Nuuru/ kasiza da’awaze/ na qaaði. ‘Nuuru was listened to (regarding) his complaints by the judge.’ review to make sure that this sentence is acceptable

Siimba/ hujo kula mahalá/ laakini/ hakasoowi. ‘A lion who roars everywhere but is not heard.’ (A riddle, the answer to which is ikuwa ‘thunder’.)

rel. nom.

m-kasa (wa-) n. one who hears

Mkasa waake/ hashalaayaṭi. ‘The one who listens to his relative does not regret it.’

Mkasa waake/ hayuuti. ‘The one who listens to his relative does not regret it.’

Sho mkasa waake/ huwona yaake. ‘The one who does not listen to his relatives sees his own (i.e. regrets it).’ A proverb.

m-kaso n. 3

ma-kaso n. 6 listening

Makaso masuura/ ni makaso ya khkasowa khur’aani. ‘Good listening is listening to the Quran.’

u-kaso n. 14 listening

Ukaso was Hamadi/ mkasizo Omari/ nt’a’uwaaliko/ ukaso/ wa daa’adi. ‘The listening of Hamadi with which he listened to Omari was not an honest listening.’

n-kaasa

n. 9/10 [Sw. kasa SSED 175] sea turtle; [pron. nk’aasa] igozi ya nk’aasa ‘the skin of a sea turtle’ ikholofu ya nk’aasa ‘the shell of a sea turtle’ mafta ya nk’aasa ‘the fat, oil of a sea turtle’ mayank’uku ya nk’aasa ‘the eggs of a sea turtle’

nama ya nk’aasa ‘the meat of a sea turtle’

kh-kasabaṭa

v. [Ar. kasaba W 825; Som. kasab “to obtain s.t. with effort or difficulty” DSI 360] (kasabeṭe) gain, acquire s.t. through one’s efforts; variant form:

kh-kasabaṭa (seems to be invariably used in poetry)

Chimwambila kuwa husuloowa/ khfanyowa kaazi/ husuloowa/ muunt’u/khkasabaṭa/ haṭá/ muḅli/ schimwwingila/ naayé/ shfikira/ kaanza/khfanya kaazi. ‘She used to tell him that it was desired for work to be done, it was desired for a man to earn a living, until the husband decided to begin to work.’

khkasabaṭa hasanaaṭi = khkasabaṭa zeema (see below) khkasabaṭa ilmu ‘to gain knowledge’ khkasabaṭa maali ‘to acquire wealth’ maali/ ya munt’u mooyi/ kasabeṭó/ ka nguvuzé ‘wealth that one person earned through his strength’ khkasabaṭa zeema ‘to acquire rewards for good deeds done’

Abú/ kasbeṭe zeema/ ka wazelewe/ kilaa chiint’u/ chiwafanyiliza. ‘Ali earned good things from his parents, he was doing every thing for them.’

Omari/ kasbeṭe zeema. ‘Omari worked to accomplish good deeds.’ Or: Omari/ kasbeṭe/ zeema.

Shkasabaṭa zeema/ stakhinfa weewe/ na shkasabaṭa ziwovú/ stakhudhiba weewe. ‘If you earn blessings for good deeds done, they will serve

- you, and if you earn bad things, they will trouble you.’ (A proverb.)
Kilaa muunt^hu/ hupata yaa ye/ kasabeetó. ‘Every one gets (i.e. should get) what he earns, works for.’ Or: Kilaa muunt^hu/ hupata/ yaa ye/ kasabeetó.
Muunt^hu/ huja yaa ye/ kasabeetó. ‘A man eats what he has earned.’
Nureeni/ uzile jaaka/ karka pesa zaa ye/ kasabeetó. ‘Nureeni bought a coat with money that he earned.’
We/ kasbeetení. ‘What did you earn? what did you work for (i.e. what did you get in return for your work)?’
rel.
kh-kasabaṭika v. p/s.
kh-kasabaṭila v. appl.
Mpeleshele mwaana/ kumkasabaṭila maali. ‘He sent his child to make money for him.’
Nt^haná/ bilaa zaa ye/ khkasabaṭila maali. ‘He has no wits with to acquire money.’
- u-kasaala n. [cf. Ar. kasal W 827] laziness (This word is less common than ukaslaani.)
Ukasaala/ ha’impisi/ muunt^hu/ mbele. ‘Laziness does not make one move forward.’
Ukasaala/ humruda muunt^hu/ chinume. ‘Laziness sets one back.’
- kasbu n. [Som. kasab ‘profit, gain (esp. obtained with difficulty)’ DSI 360] wealth
Kasbu/ ni ka mojiitu. ‘Wealth is from God.’ (A proverb.)
Maali/ ni kasbu. ‘Money is wealth.’ (A proverb.)
Nt^hakhpata/ kasbu ya ma’ana. ‘He did not get enough, anything that amounted to something.’
- kaasha (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. kasha SSED 175; Port.] wooden box with decoration on top Chingize kaashá/ mtanaani. ‘We took the wooden box into the room.’
- i-kashaṭa (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. kashata ‘kind of confectionery, boiled sugar with grated coconut’ SSED 175] a kind of confectionery consisting of boiled sugar with either grated coconuts or sesame seeds Makashaṭa/ hufanyowa ka suukari/ unga/ na mashṭaṭá. ‘Makashaṭa are made of sugar, flour, and sesame.’
Mwiini/ zamaani/ mashariifu/ washfanya makashaṭa/ wachuuza. ‘In Brava during old times, mashariifu used to make makashaṭa and sell them.’
- kaashi n. cash khtomola kaashi ‘to pay in cash’
Hamadi/ uzilee nguwo/ ka Sheekhi/ dukaani/ toleme peesa/ kaashi.
‘Hamadi bought cloth from Sheekhi’s shop and paid the money in cash.’
- kh-kashifa v. [Sw. kashifu SSED 176; Ar. kaṣafa W 829] (kashifiile) discover and reveal someone’s secrets, faults, sins, uncover something Kashifile kuwaa mi/ nazo peesá/ bangiiní. ‘He discovered that I had money in the bank.’
khkashifa ebu ‘to reveal a secret’ khkashifa siri ‘to reveal a secret’
Mi/ mbaliko furhaani/ khkashifa kuwaa ye/ ni sahali/ khkoḍowa naaye. ‘I was happy to discover him to be easy to talk to.’
Mi/ nkhashfiilé/ kuwa Omari/ waliko chinkhiyaansata/ mi. ‘I discovered that Omari was cheating me.’
Nk^hashifile ka waant^hu. ‘He reported me (i.e. my disgraceful actions) to people.’
rel.
kh-kashifika v. p/s.
Ba’adi ya waant^hu/ awa/ kiwoowa/ khkashifika/ kuwa ni waant^hu/ wa zamaani/ wachifa. ‘After these people became known and were revealed that they were people of the olden times, they passed away.’

kh-kashifila v. appl. (kashifiliile)

Nk^hashifiliile ebuza. ‘He revealed my vices.’

kh-kashifisha v. caus.

kh-kashifishana v. caus. rec.

kh-kashifishika v. caus. p/s.

kh-kashifishiliza v. caus. appl.

kh-kashifishilizanya v. caus. appl. rec.

rel.

m-kashifo n. act of revealing secret vices

Nuuru/ hadiile/ apa/ zinakuya jawabu za mkashifo/ kheeri/ mi/ nakiyolokelá. Nuuru said: Here there are coming acts of revealing secret vices it is better for me to leave (lit. be leaving).’

ma-kashifo n. acts of revealing secret vices

Jawaabu/ za makashifo/ khkashifananoowa/ siwo/ suura/ ni ðambi. ‘Acts of revealing secret vices is not good, it is sinful.’

u-kashifu n. 14 the act of revealing someone’s vices, secrets

Hamadi/ jawaabuze/ nza ukashifu/ hupeenda/ khkashifa waant^hu/ ebu zaawo. ‘Hamadi, his way of acting is that of revealing secrets/vices, he likes to reveal people’s vices.’

kashiindri

n. [etymology unknown] porcupine (large kind, living in the bush) lbawa la kashiindri ‘porcupine quill’

kaasi

n. [Sw. kasi SSED 176; the Ar. source cited in SSED is qāsin “hard, harsh, rough, severe” W 764, but it is not clear that there is in fact a semantic connection] numbness, the sensation of the teeth after eating citrus fruit; “asleep” (of body parts); the state of being twisted or tangled (of rope-like objects)

khtila kaasi ‘to twist (thread, rope)

khtila kaasi/ mshpi ‘to twist a fishing line’

Kuuluya/ yingile kaasi. ‘My leg is asleep.’

Lkaambala/ limo kaasi. ‘The rope is entangled.’

Lkaambala/ la Nuuru/ nakhsuuló/ mfungila ngoombé/ limo kaasi/ sharti/ khtomoloowa/ khtosishoowa. ‘The rope that Nuuru wants to tie the cow with is twisted, it must be taken and straightened.’

kasirna

[Sw. kasirani SSED 176] variant form: kasirnamuusi [an Arabic expression formed by the words qasr “shortening, diminution” W 768 and nāmūs “honour” W 936] kubiga kasirna ‘to humiliate, disgrace someone in front of others, embarrass someone’

Umi/ oshela harusiini/ ka Ali/ mwaanawe/ bishiila ka sirna/ ambiila/ naani/ khulalizowe/ burishiiza. ‘Umi went to Ali’s child’s wedding, she was humiliated and told: who invited you? and was expelled.’

i-kasiya (ma-)

n. 5/6 [Sw. kasia SSED 176] oar

ikasiya ya nyonga ‘the oar in the back position that is held by the skipper and is used to steer the boat (= used as a rudder when rowing)’ ikasiya yaa mbele ‘oar in fore position, held by a rower and used to propel the boat’ kubiga makasiya ‘to row (with oars)’

kugita makasiya ‘to row’

Chigisile makasiya/ masku/ na muunt^hi/ pashpo kiiwa/ chinakeendrapi. ‘We rowed night and day without knowing where we were going.’

kuvunda ikasiya ‘to break the oar’

rel.

l-kasiya (mi-) n. 11/4 aug.

- sh-kasiya* (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- kasiyeeri n. [Ital. cassiere] cashier
Nuuru/ ni kasiyeeri/ mgahawaani/ ka Hasani/ ndiyé/ hushiko peesá. ‘Nuuru is a cashier at Hasani’s restaurant, he is the one who keeps money.’
- kaskaazi n. [Sw. kaskazi SSED 176] winds coming from the north Kaskaazi/ inakuvuma. ‘The north wind is blowing.’
Rasha lpandre la kaskaziini. ‘Follow the direction of the north wind (i.e. go north).’
- Kaskeera n. the name of a cape near Brava
- i-kaski (ma-) n. 5/6 [Sw. kasiki SSED 176; ?Port. or Eng.] a large jar used for honey or oil (There are many words in Swahili having an open syllable structure, but which through vowel loss have developed closed syllables in Chimwiini. The present example illustrates, as Sw. kasiki is -kaski in Chimwiini. Often the vowel deleted is a high vowel in an environment that is parallel to the environment where synchronically high vowels are deleted in Chimwiini prefixes, i.e. before voiceless consonants. However, the historical vowel deletion may also include cases with the low vowel a, which in the synchronic phonology is never observed in prefixes. This word was provided by Mohammad Imam; Gelani Mohamed offered instead ikakasi or mkakasi instead with the same meaning.)
rel.
l-kaski (mi-) n. 11/4 aug.
sh-kaski (s-) n. 7/8 dim.
- kaslaani (Ø-, ma-) adj. [Ar. kaslān W 827] lazy mp^hundra kaslaani ‘a lazy donkey’ ndila ya muunt^hu/ kaslaani/ ya kuwelela taajiri ‘the way for a lazy person to become rich’
rel.
u-kaslaani n. 14 laziness
Nuuru/ fijiri/ ba/ choondroka/ hondroka ka ukaslaani/ hasuuli/ khfanya kaazi. ‘Nuuru at morning wakes up and he is lazy, he does not want to work.’
Ukaslaani/ ha’impisi/ muunt^hu/ mbele. ‘Laziness does not make one move forward.’
Ukaslaani/ humruda muunt^hu/ chinume. ‘Laziness sets one back.’
Ukaslaani/ ni alama ya unuhsi. ‘Laziness is a sign of bad luck.’
- kasraani (Ø-, ma-) adj. [Ar. kasara W 826] bitter, morose, glum, etc. (of human beings); person of bad omen
rel.
u-kasraani n. bitterness, glumness, etc.
- kasuuku n. 9/10 [Sw. kasuku SSED 177] parrot Kasuku uyu/ hakooði. ‘This parrot does not talk.’ (Cf. Kasuku izi/ haskooði. ‘These parrots do not talk.’)
- m(u)-kaaṭaba (mi-) n. 3/4 [Sw. mkataba (mi-) SSED 179; Ar. mukāṭaba “exchange of letters” W 813] contract, written agreement between two parties khfanya mkaaṭaba ‘to make a contract’
Ye/ yufiliile/ kuwaa ye/ fanyize mkaaṭaba/ kama uyu/ pamo na Abunawaasi. ‘He regretted that he had made a contract like this together with Abunawaasi.’ mkaaṭaba uyu ‘this contract’; mikaaṭaba aya ‘these contracts’ Ra’iisi/ nakhfilaṭiloowa/ khfaanya/ mkaaṭaba. ‘The president is being expected to make an agreement.’

Wachandikilana mkaat̩aba/ ya kuwaa ye/ takhpató/ yot̩e/ takaawanya/ mafungu mawili/ sawsawa. ‘They made a contract [lit. wrote for one another a contract] that whatever he would get, he would divide all into two equal shares.’

kh-kaṭabila

v. [cf. Ar. kataba W 812] be destined, fated

Moojá/ nashkaṭabile kuwonaana. ‘May God allow/fate us to see each other (again).’ (This expression is used when saying good-bye to a person that you do not expect to see again soon (e.g. you live far from each other, or in two different countries).)

Mooja shṭakhuloomba hija shkaṭabile/ karka mahaaji kulla maaka shkabile [st.] ‘O God, we beseech you, grant us that we may perform the pilgrimage/ include us in the [number of the] pilgrims every year’

Mojiitu/ hulomboowa/ kishkaṭabila janna. ‘God is begged/prayed to for us to be destined to enter paradise.’ (A religious proverb.)

rel.

kh-kaṭabilila v. appl. (-kaṭabiliile)

Nuuru/ hadiile/ mojiitu/ nk^haṭabiliiló/ kendraa Maka/ kuhija/ mwaka uyu. ‘Nuuru said that it is God who prescribed me to go to Mecca this year.’

kaṭabu

adj. prescribed

Daadá/ Umí/ hadiile/ mi/ kuwapakata wiikulá/ ni kaṭabu. ‘Grandmother Umi said: for me to hold my grandsons on my lap is a blessing (prescribed by God).’

Kilaa chiint^hu/ ni kaṭabu ka mojiitu. ‘Everything is prescribed by God.’ (A proverb.)

Kuwonaana/ ni kaṭabu. ‘To see each other is decreed (i.e. depends on God’s will).’ (This expression is used when you are actually seeing the person or when you hope to be able to do so.)

-kaṭaara

adj. falling apart (of a car, but extended to human beings)

gari ikaṭaara ‘a car that is falling apart’

Gaari/ ikaṭaara. ‘The car is falling apart.’

igari ikaṭaara ‘a car (sug.) that is falling apart’; migari mikaṭaara ‘cars (aug.) that are falling apart’

kaṭarbila

n. [Eng. Caterpillar, a company that makes bulldozers] bulldozer

kaṭeetra

n. catheter

Hasani/ mwaanawe/ rebelee mane/ leelo/ taano/ peshele spitaale/ tomelaa mane/ ka kaṭeetra. ‘Hasani’s child was unable to urinate; today, the fifth day/, he was sent to hospital and urine was extracted with a catheter.’

sh-kaṭi (s-)

n. 7/8 [this item could be connected to Sw. shuka SSED 426, which further gives Ar. source šiqqa ‘a half, a piece’ W 480; if the final ta of the Ar. word is pronounced, it becomes šiqat, which could be the source for sh(i)kaṭi] a cloth garment worn by males around the waist

Baana/ huza skaṭi. ‘Baana sells skaṭi.’

Omari/ vete shkaṭi. ‘Omari wore a shkaṭi.’

kaṭibu (ma-)

n. [Sw. katibu SSED 179; Ar. kātib W 813] writer; court secretary

kaṭiito

n. [this word is recognized by Chimiini speakers as Tunni, but is not found in Tosco’s Tunni vocabulary] a type of squash ibori kaṭiito (pl. mabori kaṭiito) ‘squash’ (also called maborii male ‘long squash’).

kaṭu

n. [Sw. katu ‘a kind of gum, imported and sold in small dark-red lumps chiefly for chewing with betel’ SSED 179; Ar.] a kind of gum used originally in tambú, but now used alone since the tambú (betel) leaf is no longer easily imported (This word was provided by Mohammad Imam, but not known to Gelani Mohamed.)

kh-kaṭuka

v. [Sw. kwajuka SSED 235] (kaṭushile) fade
Nguwo za asli/ haskaṭuki/ nguwo/ siwo/ asli/ hukaṭuka ka sahali. ‘First-hand [original, not refurbished or copied] clothes do not fade; second-hand [or “knock offs” e.g.] fade easily.’
Omari/ mp^heele/ nguwo skaṭushiló. ‘Omari gave me clothes which were faded (i.e. not really good clothes, but old, faded ones).’

rel.

kh-kaṭusha v. make fade

Iwa/ hukaṭushaa nguwo. ‘The sun causes clothes to fade.’

Maayi/ yaa munu/ hukaṭushaa nguwo. ‘Salt water fades clothes.’

rel. nom.

m-kaṭuko n. 3

kh-kaṭula

v. [Sw. katua SSED 179] (kaṭiile) polish, burnish

rel.

kh-kaṭulila v. appl. (kaṭuliile)

kh-kaṭuloowa v. pass. (-kaṭiila)

kh-kaṭulisha v. caus. cause to burnish

rel. nom.

m-kaṭulo n. 3 act of polishing

Mkaṭulo/ wa Aamina/ hukaṭulo ṭawaafá/ ni kana/ ṭala. ‘The polishing of Aamina that she polishes the lantern makes it bright, like a light.’

ma-kaṭulo n. 6 act of polishing

Makaṭulo/ ya zijamu/ izi/ siwo/ suura/ nt^hazina kuwala. ‘The polishing of these plates is not good, they are not shining bright.’ (It is interesting that in this example, we did not record a phrasal break after the negative verb nt^hazina. The usual explanation for the failure of a phrasal break after a negative verb is that there is focus elsewhere in the sentence. More research is required on this matter, however.)

u-kaṭulo n. polishing

Ukaṭulo/ wa Umi/ hukaṭulo bikeeri/ siwo/ kana/ wa Aamina/ wa Umi/ bikeeri/ huwala zaaydi. ‘Umi’s way of polishing that she polishes glasses is not like that of Aamina/ Umi’s glasses shine more.’

kata

n. [Sw. kata SSED 177] ladle, scoop used for drinking, made out of the coconut shell with a long stick attached

Kata ipotele mtungiini. ‘The scoop fell into the water pot.’

Kata/ na baḷaasi/ haskosi/ kudaarana. ‘A ladle and a jug never fail to touch one another.’ (A proverb.)

kata ya maayi ‘a water scoop’ kufa ni maayi kataani/ kulla nafsi huneshoowa [st.] ‘death is a cup of water [lit. water in a scoop], every soul is sprinkled with it’ kunelela maayi/ kata ‘to drink water with a scoop’

m-kate (mi-)

n. 3/4 [Sw. mkate SASED 178] bread, cake (made from the flour of wheat, cream of rice)

Aasha/ tile mkate/ na jiile. [H!H!H] ‘Aasha baked a cake and ate it.’ (In this example the conjunction na is used to conjoin two clauses and in this context does not trigger a final accent on the following phrase. It is also striking that the na-phrase is downstepped relative to the preceding phrase, showing that it has been included in the same intonational phrase with the preceding clause.)

Chizeele/ chija mikate/ yote/ na china maayi/ yote. ‘The old woman ate all the cakes and drank all the water.’

khtila mkate/ mikate ‘to bake a cake/ cakes’

Fardoosa/ tile mkate/ tu/ laakini/ ye/ nt^hakiyija. ‘Fardoosa baked (lit. put in) a cake only, but she did not eat it.'

Mikate/ yako apa? 'Are the cakes here?' or: Yako apa/ mikaté? or: Apa yaakó/ mikaté? or: Apa/ mikaté/ yaakó? (These examples are all instances of yes-no questions, whose Q-raised intonation is indicated by the question mark at the end. Observe that all of the examples except the first involve instances of the shift of accent to the final syllable in the phrase. In the case of Yako apa/ mikaté? the shift of accent is due to the fact that phrases that are out of focus undergo accent shift in simple yes-no questions. The other examples require further research since there is an additional accent shift in each.)

mkate wa kumiimina 'a kind of bread made out of flour, sugar, eggs, a little cinnamon – the mixture is beaten and shortening is added, then poured into a container and baked (also called: mkate wa siniya lit. bread of tray)' mkate waa ngano 'bread made of wheat flour' mkate wa tubaaku 'a plug of tobacco' mwaana/ na mkaté 'a boy and bread'; mwaana/ na mikaté 'a boy and cakes' mwaana/ na mkatewé 'a boy and his bread'; mwaana/ na mikateyé 'a boy and his cakes'

Nfanyiliiza/ mikate/ ningiile safariini. 'Make for me cakes (to live on) in my journey.'

Nthukile mikaté/ na maayi. 'I am carrying cakes and water.'

Waatakuleta mikate. 'They will bring cakes.'

rel.

sh-kate (s-) n. dim. 7/8

kh-kathura

v. [Ar.] (kathuriile) grow, increase, become more variant form: khkathira

Awaði/ ikathuriile. 'The complaints increased.'

Awaari/ ikathiriilopó/ na idirshilo mahala niingi/ waant'u/ ka kuḷa/ mahala/ wa'ile Misra/ kumera zaakuja. 'When drought spread increasingly and affected many places, people from every place came to Egypt to look for food.'

Kooðize/ skathiriile. '(Lit. his words have increased), i.e., he is doing a lot of talking.'

maayi yashkathira kahima huwola [st.] 'if there is too much water, (the corpse) will deteriorate quickly (this is with reference to the washing of a corpse)'

rel.

kh-kathuroowa v. pass.

Khkathirowa maðambi/ ni khatari. 'To increase sins, crimes is dangerous.'

Suura/ khkathirowa zeema. 'It is good to increase good deeds.'

kati

n., prep. [Sw. kati SSED 178] inside, middle, among chiti chaa kati 'the chair in the middle'

Karka muunt^hi/ kati/ hutindowaa mbuzi/ niingi. 'Around mid-day many goats are slaughtered.'

kati ka 'between'

kati naa kati 'the middle of something'

Ismu/ ya chiint'u/ kati naa kati/ suura. 'Everything in the middle is good.' (A proverbial saying.)

Muuyi/ oyo/ kati naa kati/ ina nuumba/ nk^hulu/ nt^ho. 'In the middle of that town there is a very large house.'

Nuumbaya/ mi/ iwaalimo/ kati naa kati/ iwaalimo/ kati nuumba/ mbili/ zaa wake. 'My house was located in the middle, it was located between the two houses of my wives.'

kati ya mtaana 'inside the room'

Itezeza kati ya mtaana. 'There was playing inside the room.' Or: Mtaana/ itezeza katiike. 'The room, there was playing inside it.'

Kati ya m̄taana/ tezeezó. ‘Inside the room, I played.’ (The preposing of the phrase kati ya m̄taana can trigger pseudo-relativization of the verb.)

M̄taana/ ūtezeza katiike. ‘The room was played inside it.’

Tezeze kati ya m̄taana. ‘He played inside the room.’ Or: Tezeze/ kati ya m̄taana. (Cf. N̄^hezeze kati ya m̄taaná. ‘I played inside the room.’

Or: N̄^hezeze/ kati ya m̄taana. Or: N̄^hezeze/ [↑]kati/ ya m̄taana.)

Waana/ watezeze kati ya m̄taana. ‘The children played inside the room.’ Or: Waana/ watezeze/ kati ya m̄taana. Or: Watezeze/ [↑]kati/ ya m̄taana.

khtilaa kati ‘to surround (lit. put in the middle)’

Huseeni/ na mwanaamké/ wachanza khteza/ waant^hu/ wiingi/ wawatilee kati. ‘Huseeni and the girl began to play (cards); many people surrounded them.’

Taajiri/ chanzaa kulā/ kaa nk^hele/ na paapo/ waant^hu/ wachimtilaa kati/ nakumuza/ ije impeetó. ‘The rich man began to cry loudly and right then people surrounded him asking him what had happened to him.’

Mi/ nsimeme kati ya Omari/ na Hamadí. ‘I stood between Omari and Hamadi.’ Cf. Omari/ na Hamadí/ isimema katikaawo. ‘Omari and Hamadi were stood between.’

munt^hu waa kati ‘the man in the middle’

mwana waa kati ‘the middle child (in location or in terms of order of birth)’

Waana/ watezeze kati ya m̄taana. ‘The children played inside the room.’ Or, with emphasis on the verb: Waana/ watezeze/ kati ya m̄taana. Or, with emphasis on the verb, but also separation of kati from its complement: Waana/ watezeze/ kati/ ya m̄taana. There is raising of kati in the case, even above the preceding verb. (When the verb is a final-accent trigger, the last example is interesting: N̄^hezeze/ kati/ ya m̄taana. ‘I played inside the room.’ What we see here is that the final accent cannot land on kati since the verb is focused. It is apparently not possible to have focus on kati while grouping it together with the verb: N̄^hezeze kati/ yaa m̄taana.

want^hu waa mi/ nfaketo kati yaa wo ‘the people whom I ran between (them)’ (cf.

Nfakete kati ya waant^hú. ‘I ran between the people.’) kati+poss.

kati kaawo

Itulushileni/ kati kaawo. ‘What happened between them?’

Mooyi/ kati kaawo/ chihada/ ni kakajila. ‘One of them said: it is true.’

Mooyi/ kati kaawo/ tumila kulaa kuja/ muyiini. ‘One of them was sent to town to buy bread.’

Ningile kati kaawó. ‘I interfered between them (to try to bring them together) [lit. I entered between them].’ (Cf. want^hu waa mi/ ningilo kati kaawó ‘the people whom I got in between (to help bring them together).’)

katiike inside it

Chimtila chizeele/ katiike. ‘He put the old woman inside it [a box].’

Sanduukhu/ ichiwa tayaari/ leete/ nt^hilaa mi/ katiike. ‘When the box is ready, bring it and put me inside it.’

Sku mooyi/ masku/ sulṭaani/ naayé/ nakinendro’inendro karka ndilaani/ wene nuumba/ mooyi/ inakakaa ṭala/ katiike. ‘One day, at night, while the sultan was taking a stroll, he saw a house burning a lamp in it.’

umo katiike fikiran peeke mi nseele [song] ‘think! you are in it, I remained alone’ yo/ na ije yimo katiiké/ na zimo katiiké ‘it and that which is in it and those things in it'

kati kiitu 'among us'

Chiwanyilize mawiindo/ aya/ kati kiitu. 'Divide the booty up among us.'

moyi kati kiitu 'one among us'

We/ ndiwé/ mwaana/ kati kiitu. 'You are the smallest (child) among us.'

kati ya

assoc. between, in the middle of, among, inside

kati ya mtaana 'inside the room'

Nt^hezeze kati ya mtaana. 'I played in the room.' Or: Nt^hezeezé/ kati ya mtaana. 'I played in the room.'

Tezeze kati ya mtaana. 'He played in the room.' Or: Tezeze/ kati ya mtaana. 'He played inside the room.' Or: Kati ya mtaana/ tezezó. 'Inside the room (was where) he played.'

kati ya nuumba 'in the middle of the house'

kati yaa ndila 'on the way'

Nfakete kati ya waant^hú. 'I ran between the men.' Cf. want^hu waa mi/ nfaketo kati yaa wo 'the men that I ran between (them)' (Syn. In the relative form, the resumptive pronoun is required: *...nfaketo

kati ya is ill-formed.)

Ningile kati yaa wo. 'I entered between them [physically].' (Cf. want^hu waa mi/ ningilo kati yaa wo 'the people whom I entered between them'.)

Wawashile suukhu/ kati ya muuyi. 'They built a market in the middle of town.'

katikati ya

Hasani/ chuuluka/ chingila katikati ya majeeshi/ ya aduwi/ chiwabiga/mp^hanga zaawo/ chiwa'ubla/ wiingi. 'Hasani jumped and entered in the middle of the enemy armies and struck their swords and killed many of them.'

katikati yaa ndila 'in the middle of the street'

-kavu

adj. [Sw. kavu SSED 180] dry; stingy (of people); lacking in goodness

Bakayle/ chuuluka/ chihada/ mkulu siimba/ nt^hunakuwona/ maduuri/jisaa yo/ makavú? 'Rabbit jumped up and said: Chief Lion, do you not see how dry the forest is?'

chijamu shkavu 'dry dish'; zijamu skavu 'dry dishes'

Haatibu/ l^himilo/ l^himwelee nk^havu. [H'H!H] 'The preacher, the tongue became dried to him.'

Haatibu/ l^himilole/ l^hwelee nk^havu. [H'H!H] 'The preacher's throat has become dry (i.e. he has become hoarse).'

-kavu/ kana igozi 'as dry as a skin/hide'

-kavu/ kana ijiwe 'as dry as a stone'

Haliima/ mpele mwaana/ maandra/ ska^hleent^hó/ nk^havu/ kana majiwe. 'Haliima gave the child bread that had stayed for so long, it was dry, like stones.'

-kavu/ kanaa ngome 'as dry as a stone'

khfanyaa nk^havu 'to make dry (empty)

Wana wa Haliima/ kuja/ mikooni/ yont^he/ wajiile/ wamaliize/miiko/ nk^havu/ wafanyiizó. 'Haliima's children, ate all the food in the kitchen, they made the kitchen empty (lit.

dry).'

